Killeen Man Burned In Drive-In Explosion

About midnight Sunday night a thunderous explosion followed by a towering column of flames and smoke awoke Covites. The explosion and fire completely destroyed Mike's Drive-In Restaurant on highway 190. John Holloway of Killeen, manager of the cafe, was seriously burned and is in serious condition at Killeen General Hospital.

Holloway had leased the restaurant from Mack Assed of Killeen who said the building and equipment destroyed cost approximately $25,000. The first explosion which set off the fire apparently occurred in the north corner of the building. The northeast wall and most of the northwest wall were blown out and observers reported that parts of the building and equipment were scattered over a one hundred foot area. Smaller explosions continued for nearly an hour as the heat of flames reached pressurized cans and other combustible materials.

Royal and Son Mattress Factory adjacent to the cafe was in danger for a while as Southeasterly winds whipped the flames toward the new factory. Cove firemen, seeing no hope of saving the restaurant, concentrated on preventing spread of the fire to other buildings nearby.

At 12:15 a.m. Fire Chief Frank Whitehead sent a radio call to Killeen for a water truck to assist in firefighting efforts. When the fire alarm sounded many residents rushed to the scene and jammed streets leading to the highway and within minutes both sides of highway 190 were lined with cars for more than a mile.

John Holloway, who was injured, lives at 605 West Adams in Killeen. After he was rushed to Killeen General Hospital doctors worked over him for two or three hours. He was found to have suffered second and third degree burns over a large portion of his body and is reported to be in serious condition still. Holloway was evidently alone in the restaurant at the time of the explosion which set off the first major fire in this city for a number of years.

School Board Okay's $196,499 Budget And Guidance Program Adopted

At Tuesday night's meeting of the school board, a budget of $196,449.00 was approved for the coming school year. The new budget shows a decrease of $79,500 from last year's budget due to construction costs set aside last year for the new Fairview school which will open for the fall term.

The 1958-59 budget was $265,840 in comparison to the $196,449 set for this year. Revenue to meet the budget for 1959-60 school year will come from the following sources: $21,000 from local sources; $185 from county sources; $139,264 from state sources; and $36,000 from federal sources.

Expenditures planend for the coming year are as follows: $12,217 for administration; $157,710 for instruction; $9,580 for operation of the school plant; $400 for plant maintenance; $2,100 for fixed charges including insurance and judgments; $3,200 for furniture and equipment; and $11,242 for debt service including retirement and interest on serial bonds and short term loans.

The new six room Fairview School which opens in September will house grades 5 and 6 as well as a library and an office. Future plans are to eventually expand the building into a high school if the school's enrollment continues to grow. The Fairview school is located on an 18 acre site which will allow plenty of room for future additions to the school plant.

STATE MARCH OF DIMES chairman Gordon McLendon, recently reappointed by National Foundation president Basil O'Connor, has called for additional help for broke Texas chapters who now owe one-half million dollars, mostly to hospitals in the state.

Shown here at a recent March of Dimes meeting, he is explaining to Clare Foran of Corpus Christi and foreign exchange students Françoise Loup of France and Josette Thonnard of Belgium how American teens gain insight into community action by participating in the March of Dimes and National Foundation chapter activities.

"Texans will respond freely with dollars," he said, "to save lives and to help bring those crippled paralytic polio back to meaningful living if they know the facts and know that the money is wisely spent."

McLendon is president of the McLendon Corporation which operates stations KLIF in Dallas, KILT in Houston, KTSA in San Antonio, and others.

THE CASE OF THE TARDY WITNESS

Fourteenth of a series

by Donald J. Sobol

"The fight happened last May 30th, and it's just now coming up on the court calendar," said Kronke, the attorney for young Arthur Monroe. "Frankly, I didn't give my client much of a chance. A neighbor who saw the whole thing said Arthur struck Mr. Gilman first."

"What's changed your attitude suddenly?" asked Haledjian.

"A new witness, John Craft, turned up yesterday. He's a close buddy of Arthur's and claims to have seen the fight from the bank directly across the street. His version is that Mr. Gilman hit Arthur first. I want you to check his story before I put him on the stand."

Haledjian consented. John Craft was ushered in and related what he had seen.

"I'd gone into the First National Bank to make a deposit, but it was lunchtime, and there were long lines in front of all the clerks. I didn't feel like waiting, so I left."

"As I got to the door I had a perfect view of Arthur and old man Gilman approaching each other on the opposite sidewalk. Arthur told me how old man Gilman was always needling him. He said if Gilman ever started something, why he'd just walk away."

"Old man Gilman wouldn't let him walk away. He blocked Arthur and punched him twice in the jaw. Arthur reached up to ward off another blow. Old man Gilman tripped and hit his neck against Arthur's raised hand."

"That's when the neighbor looked out. She saw old man Gilman stagger and fall to the pavement on his face. I guess he got the brain concussion from falling so hard."

"Why didn't you speak up at the time, instead of letting months pass?" asked Haledjian.

"I-I didn't want to get in-involved," stammered Craft. "I've done time in a reformatory."

"And you'll do more time for perjury if you ever repeat that story under oath," said Haledjian harshly.

WHAT WAS CRAFT'S LIE?

Craft could not have been emerging from the bank opposite the scene of the fight. The fight occurred on May 30th, Decora-Ton Day, when all banks are closed.

the process. They're mighty expensive critters to tolerate in town or country, both by virtue of the food they eat and the some 27 diseases — including typhus fever and bubonic plague — they are known to spread. This time of year rats will be in field burrows. Soon though, with rural harvest well underway and cooler weather coming, they'll move into grain bins and feed stacks and buildings where food is stored.

If you're interested in keeping them out of your place, now's the time to formulate a plan to deprive them of food and shelter this winter and avoid a repetition of last year's record breaking infestation.

Start by burning or piling scrap lumber at least two feet off the ground. Scatter feed stack chaff and manure piles over fields. And keep the inevitable weeds and grass around outbuildings cut so as not to attract rats.

Rats breed so rapidly that mere killing campaigns without accompanying sanitation are worthless. On the other hand, striking reductions in rat populations have been made by rat proofing without killing procedures.

Farm buildings in good repair are seldom infested with rats, so it follows that's the way to keep them. Check to make sure walls are tight and that floors and foundations are crack-less. A strip of galvanized metal three feet or so high placed around the base of a building will keep rats out — provided they can't get through the floors.

By and large, rats as a group probably prefer grain to any other type food. Which is a good argument in favor of building new grainaries tight and off the ground.

All known rat runs ought to be baited with poison. In one closely supervised campaign, almost 12,000 rats were killed at a cost of about 4 cents per rat. Warfarin bait was used; and the amount required to kill a rat averaged slightly less than a quarter pound.

Other effective poisons are available but many of them must be used with extreme caution. Persons unfamiliar with rodenticides should get expert advice before attempting to use them.

Sheepmen Urged to Vote Against Continued Compulsory 'Check-off'

Farm Bureau is making an all-out effort across the nation to eliminate another compulsory program in agriculture, according to J. H. West, president of the Texas Farm Bureau. The organization is opposed to the continuation of the compulsory wool "check-off" and urges all sheepmen to vote "no" in the coming September referendum, West said.

Plans for the education campaign in Texas and the Southwest were mapped out at an American Farm Bureau sponsored meeting July 17 in Dallas.

Briefly, here's the procedure for the referendum:

Ballots will be mailed out soon by county ASC offices to all wool growers who received compensatory payments from the government under the National Wool Act. Growers have until September 30 to turn in their ballots. Each grower "votes" the number of sheep he owns. A two-thirds majority favorable vote of all sheep voted is necessary for approval. Secretary of Agriculture Benson, however, has indicated that he will also take into consideration the actual number of growers voting for and against the proposal.

In the referendum, growers will vote to approve or disapprove an agreement between the Secretary of Agriculture and the American Sheep Producers Council, Inc., for continuing during 1959, 1960 and 1961 marketing years, the advertising and sales promotion of lamb and wool. The outcome of the referendum does not affect the Wool Act incentive payment program except that a "no" vote would give producers an additional one cent per pound on all their wool.

Funds which the council uses in this promotion are deducted by the government from Wool Act payments to individual growers and turned over to the private agency. Deductions from the government payments to individual growers may not exceed 1 cent per pound of shorn wool marketed and at a comparable rate (5 cents per hundred pounds of liveweight) for the unshorn lambs marketed.

More than $8 million of the producers' money was checked off in 1955, '56, and '57. But, during the time this money was being spent, here's what happened:

- (1) Wool consumption went down.
 - (2) Wool prices went down.
 - (3) Use of competitive synthetic fibers went up.
 - (4) Lamb consumption went down more than beef consumption.
- According to President West, this is the first time the Farm Bureau has sought to influence the outcome of a referendum. In past commodity referendums, the national farm organization has asked only that all eligible growers vote as they choose.

This time, the state farm leader says, the organization feels that something must be done to counteract the efforts of proponents of the compulsory "check-off" system who plan an intensive door-to-door campaign to gain a favorable vote.

Here is the Farm Bureau statement on the subject: "Wool growers should vote against the compulsory 'check-off' for a number of reasons, but primarily because

Sept. 30 Deadline For Gas Tax Refund To Farmers

Farmers who are entitled to gas tax refunds are again reminded by R. L. Phinney, District Director at Austin, to file claim with the Internal Revenue Service before September 30.

Farmers filing these claims should use Form 2240 for 1959. Claims made on the obsolete 1958 form are being returned to taxpayers with a 1959 form and a request to refile.

When obtaining forms and instruction sheets from county agents or other offices, farmers should be sure to get Form 2240 for 1959 and not for 1958.

Only one claim is required for all purchases, Phinney added.

Your Citizenship

"I am a man which am a Jew of Tarsus, a city in Cilicia, a citizen of no mean city." — Acts 21:39

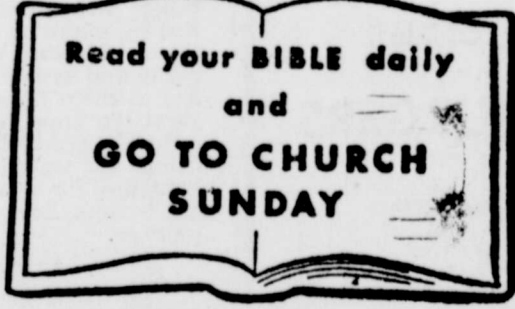

HOW many of us are proud to say we are a citizen of a certain community?

From the above passage it is obvious that St. Paul was proud of the fact that he was a citizen, and we know that he worked overtime at being a good one.

According to the National Municipal League the seven ills of government are: popular apathy and ignorance, undemocratic methods of elections, spoils and corruption, wasteful and antiquated systems, overlapping services, hand-to-mouth planning and financing, unnecessary centralization and bureaucracy.

How many of these ills prevail in this community?

The answer to such ills is in each of us. They will not exist if we exercise our citizenship wisely and with resolution.

Senator YARBOROUGH'S ☆ REPORT ☆

Forty-four is a critical age for American workers today.

Once a man or woman passes that age many businesses and industries consider him or her "too old" and will not hire them.

This is a terrific waste of manpower and brain power and the situation grows worse as the person grows older.

Because of compulsory retirement policies, many people are forced out of jobs in which they have long experience. And, to add to the tragedy, people 20 years younger than the usual retirement age often find they cannot change jobs because many companies consider 44 a hiring cutoff age.

At the beginning of this year 1.2 million workers past 44 were unemployed. And 30 per cent of the companies questioned in a recent survey admitted they have a policy of not hiring a worker who is past 44 years of age. The Labor Department ran another survey and in 70 per cent of the cities considered, more than half the jobs listed with employment agencies set an age ceiling on hiring.

People need the assurance they can change jobs, or — if retired — find other employment to help them remain useful citizens and to earn money to pay for necessities. We have done a great deal to assist our retired people — helping them obtain medical assistance and other types of aid — but we need to do more to help them help themselves. One way we can do this is to assure that age will not be a major factor in consideration of an individual for a job.

For this reason, I am co-sponsoring a proposal which would prohibit discrimination because of age against a person applying for a job with any company which holds government contracts. The measure is now being studied by a Senate Committee.

Older workers have statistically proven records of high production, good attendance and other assets. Men and women who are 40 years of age and older have a great deal of ability and experience to offer our nation. It is tragic and ridicu-

Lone Star AGRICULTURE

Released by State Department of Agriculture

Recent findings on the effect of light on poultry have caused poultrymen to sit up and take notice.

Nature in her wisdom has seen fit to correlate reproduction with the light phase of seasonal change.

Age affects the response of poultry to light. During the brooding period the chick needs lots of light. This means that all-night lights are beneficial during the brooding period. During the rearing period the light requirement is quite different. Rest periods are necessary for proper growth as the birds become older.

In the summer months additional lights may be given at night to induce greater feed consumption. Intermittent light is preferable. For example, one hour of light could be followed by a rest period of three hours of darkness and the process repeated throughout the night.

Too much light during the growing period is harmful in several ways. All-night light of high intensity may encourage feather picking. More important is the possible reduced life-time productivity of pullets given all-night lights during the growing period.

The hours of light required for egg production is not an all-or-none reaction. Pullets will reach sexual maturity with six hours of light. In addition to the hours of light, the intensity must be considered. While one foot candle is required for optimum egg production when the hens are given 14 hours of light about a fourth of that amount is lous to blindly refuse to use this great national resource of people past 44 years of age.

required when all-night lights are used. With fryers, it is necessary only to give enough light so the birds can see to eat.

Tests are still being conducted, but with the desire to get a sustained high egg production, it is quite certain that most poultrymen should consider light control for pullets.

Retailing of turkey parts, turkey steaks, cut-up turkey, and turkey patties is gradually increasing in Texas retail food stores. A recent survey shows that most purchasers interviewed at a supermarket handling the parts year-round are steady users of the product. More than half the shoppers served turkey parts three to five times a month.

Those buying turkey parts rated them very favorably as to family acceptance compared with other meats such as beef, pork, fish and chicken. A wide variety of dishes is being prepared with turkey parts. Baking is the most prevalent method of preparation. Other methods include smothered, steamed, stewed, creamed, soup and salads.

WASHINGTON AND "SMALL BUSINESS"

By C. WILSON HARDER

Indicative of what will probably be the tone of the new session of Congress are the hearings being held by House Anti Trust subcommittee chairmanship by Rep. Emanuel Celler of N.Y.

The chief concern of these hearings is to probe deeply the current practice of the Justice Dept. in anti-trust cases to accept consent decrees.

In the fiscal year ending June 30, 1957, Justice Dept. accepted consent decrees in 22 out of 27 civil cases.

C. W. Harder

This is the way a consent decree works. Justice Dept. agrees to drop prosecution against alleged monopolist in return for promise to "go and sin no more."

One of the biggest drawbacks to this technique is that the injured competitors of monopoly practices are left holding the sack. The anti-trust laws provide that an injured party can sue for triple damages, and that in establishing the right to damages, may use as proof a judgment won by the government.

But in a consent decree settlement, this remedy is denied the injured competitors, because the law as it stands now, does not permit consent decrees to be entered as proof of guilt.

This practice is perhaps somewhat akin to what would result if someone drove at high speed through a stop sign and in doing so inflicted lifelong crippling injuries on an innocent party that was in the intersection. Then, if this reckless driver could make a deal with authorities whereby he would admit he was in the wrong, but any further proceedings were squashed on his promise not to do it any more, which in turn would prevent the injured party from suing for damages, there would be somewhat a parallel situation.

The nation's independent businessmen, voting through the National Federation of Independent Businessmen, have long requested more teeth being put into enforcement of anti-trust laws.

Actually, if some one is driven into bankruptcy by illegal, monopolistic practices, his finances are not helped in the least by guilty promising to reform.

Thus, while under the anti-trust laws it is as much of a crime to conspire to drive out competitors through illegal means as it is to rob his till, there is always on the scene enough high priced legal talent to throw up all manner of smoke screens based on legal theories.

Yet the anti-trust laws themselves are quite clear and plain the way they are written, in most instances, and probably much plainer than many other laws on the books.

Justice Dept. defends the consent decree procedure as one that saves the government a lot of time and expense.

But undoubtedly, many legal actions could be settled with even greater savings in time and money if the defendant were that to go scot free by only promising to do better.

In all the high flown phraseology thrown about on the subject, one thing seems to escape the attention of the theorists.

The anti-trust laws are the law of the land as much as those prohibiting treason, murder, or robbery. As such, they are entitled to same enforcement.

the Great Books speak to Today...

Pleasure

THE PLEASURE and delight of knowledge and learning far surpasses all other in nature. For, shall the pleasures of the affections so exceed the pleasure of the sense, as much as the obtaining of desire or victory exceeds a song or a dinner? And must not of consequence the pleasure of the intellect or understanding exceed the pleasures of the affections? We see in all other pleasures there is satiety, and after they be used, their freshness departs; which shows well that they are but deceits of pleasure, and not pleasures; and that it was the novelty which pleased, and not the quality. — Francis Bacon, British, 17th century.

If men in this life only have hope; if in this life only can they enjoy, it is not strange or unreasonable, that they should seek their happiness by avoiding all things that disease them here, and by pursuing all that delight them; wherein it will be no wonder to find variety and difference. For if there be no prospect beyond the grave, the inference is certainly right—"Let us eat and drink"—let us enjoy what we delight in—"for tomorrow we shall die." — John Locke, British philosopher.

Philosophy does not contend against natural pleasures, provided they be moderate; and only preaches moderation, not a total abstinence. The power of its resistance is employed against those that are adulterate and strange. Philosophy says that the appetites of the body ought not to be augmented by the mind, and ingeniously warns us not to stir up hunger by satiety; not to stuff, instead of merely filling, the belly; to avoid all enjoyments that may bring us to want; and all meats and drinks that bring thirst and hunger. — Michel de Montaigne (16th century), creator of the essay.

by ORAL ROBERTS

ARE YOU AFRAID OF PEOPLE?

I once heard a woman say: "I am frightened of people. I don't like crowds."
Do you ever feel the same way? Certainly many of us tend to withdraw from crowds. Some of us have such inferiority complexes that we are ill-at-ease among any group of people. The only way we can overcome this sort of problem is to force ourselves to associate with others.
It is important that we mix with others because association is absolutely necessary in this day and age.
We ought to keep one thing in mind, however. We don't have to "go" with the crowd. But we can learn to become a part of it, while still maintaining our ideals and individualities.
You know, Jesus Christ loved people! Jesus attended many feasts. As a matter of fact, he went to many feasts that were prepared by sinners! No other public man had a more interesting list of friends, from the top of the social ladder to the bottom: There was Nicodemus, Zacchaeus, the Roman centurion, the ruler of the synagogue, the blind beggar, the demoniac of Gadara, the fishermen, the tax collectors—all were Jesus' friends.
He said: "I am the Bridegroom. Let my friends be happy with me."
And Jesus was like a magnet to children. They flocked to him. They climbed upon his knees and asked him to hold them. They smiled up into his eyes. Children begged to be near him and to hear more of his stories.

Abraham Lincoln once said of the common people, "Go where they are. God must love them, for he made so many of them."
Jesus loved them, too. I think that is why the common people were irresistibly drawn to him and his ministry.
If you are self-conscious in crowds, think about Jesus! Think of how he wandered through public places, constantly meeting new people from all walks of life.
Some people have the ability to be at ease with kings or poor alike. They have a power to adapt themselves to any situation. Christ had this power. He could adapt himself to any situation. But while he traveled with sinners and went with the crowds, he did not "go as the crowd goes." Rather, he remained an individualist. He was able to exercise great influence over all the people he met.
You can do likewise. Stick your inferiority complex in your pocket! Grit your teeth and "wade" into the crowd. Say, "Lord, help me feel at ease. You moved with the crowds. So will I."
This type of thinking will enable you to be free of fear of crowds. You will no longer be frightened of people because you will have learned that we are all kindred . . . we are all children of God and are here only by the grace of God!
