

NEARLY 15,000 MEALS SERVED IN CAFETERIA DURING PAST MONTH

During the month of October a total of 14,317 meals were served in the Y. W. C. A. Cafeteria, according to the report of Miss Ruth Dillon, the cafeteria secretary and manager, made to the executive board of the association, meeting in regular monthly session Thursday.

This is an increase of more than 9,000 over the total for the first month the cafeteria was in operation, the report added. Of the number 8,414 were meals served to girls and women and 6,176 served to men. The average meal was around 60 cents.

Numerous changes are under way to be put into effect immediately to enable the cafeteria to care for the ever increasing patronage, and to make it possible to continue serving men at the noon hour. The cafeteria was opened primarily for the girls and women and men have been excluded between the hours of 12:00 and 1:00 o'clock, unless they accompanied girls or women, but the patronage was increasing so that an enlargement of the accommodations was necessary if the men are to be served as well as the girls.

TWO HOLD UP MAN IN DENVER YARDS SATURDAY NIGHT

Without the evident use of firearms, two men held up and robbed M. M. Parks, a blacksmith, in the Fort Worth & Denver railroad yards shortly after 11 o'clock last night while he was on his way to his home in the vicinity of the brick yards.

The highwaymen took $47 from him, Parks told the police a brief while after the holdup.

"I was going home," he told Detective Overby and Night Chief Scott. "I passed two youngish-looking men, but paid no particular attention to them. After I had walked along a piece, one of them turned me and stopped. The other came up behind me."

"Put up your hands," they said, and I did. The one behind me took $47. Then they left and I came here."

There was no clue last night, for Parks could not describe the men.

URGES CREATION OF SPECIAL COURT TO CLEAR DOCKET

Creation of a special district court of two years' duration for Wichita county, such as the court which was created at Sherman a few years ago to help the existing courts clear up the backlog of litigation which has grown up in this county following the oil development, is being advocated by Judge William N. Bonner, judge of the 20th district court.

Under present conditions, with only one court sitting its full time in Wichita county, and the other here only part of the time, the docket, if not altogether cleared, could be put in such shape as to give the other courts an opportunity of keeping pace with the litigation, which may decrease somewhat as the conditions in the oil fields become more stabilized.

"The value of such a court was also very clearly demonstrated by what the special district court at Sherman accomplished with the court dockets in Grayson county, which at that time had become hopelessly congested."

"The constitutionality of such a court was also determined for all time at the time of the establishment of this court, so such an action can no longer be considered in any sense an experiment."

Judge Bonner's views as to the need of a special court here finds Judge Edgar Scurry, judge of the 78th district court, in full accord.

Judge Scurry's court, which is the one which sits permanently at Wichita Falls, while disposing of cases at a revolving basis since the beginning of the present term, finds itself hopelessly distanced by the litigation which is being continually filed at a rate hitherto unthought of in this county.

In fact, Judge Scurry is of the opinion that the needs of Wichita county have grown to such an extent as to justify two permanent district courts in Wichita county. It would be entirely feasible for the three districts adjoining that of the 20th district court to each take one county from the district, and leave the court the opinion that the needs of Wichita county, Judge Bonner declared in connection with this phase of the matter.

While nothing has as yet been definitely done in this matter, it is expected that the Wichita County Bar Association will be called to take some action on this matter before the next session of the state legislature.

In the meantime a special session of the 20th district court to convene Monday week, has been brought about in an effort to give some slight relief on the criminal side of the docket. This session was made possible by the cutting short of the term of the court in Clay county.

OKLAHOMANS TO BE JAILED FOR "TOTING" ARMS ACROSS LINE

A new light was thrown on the boundary dispute on the banks of Red River, the controversy that has furnished "copy" galore for world weary reporters with romantic inclinations, by the formal announcement that in case any Oklahoma officers cross the river again they will be arrested and brought to Wichita Falls to answer "pistol toting" charges.

Captain Abudge, of the headquarters company, Texas rangers has arrived on the scene with a detachment of four rangers ready for any event which may take place, John W. Horneby, of Austin, receiver appointed by Judge George Calhoun of the Travis county district court to take charge of the property was also on hand and in full command of the forces he had been chosen to direct.

Judge East, trustee for one of the companies among the Texas claimants and associate counsel for the state in the suit in the United States supreme court, emphasized the fact Saturday that Texas was not anxious to shed blood to maintain its rights.

"This is clearly a case of Oklahomans invading Texas, trying to take Texas's rights away from them," said he. "If there is bloodshed, then Oklahomans will be responsible, for the Texas claimants, or rather part of them, are merely maintaining their rights and protecting their property."

During the week Assistant Attorneys General Keeling and Taylor were here and visited the properties. Considerable interest here yesterday attached to the announcement by Attorney General Cullen that Louisiana, Arkansas and Kansas would be drawn into the litigation on the side of Texas in order to protect their own boundaries.

INSURANCE MAN PROMOTED TO BE DISTRICT MANAGER

Milton Reid, local representative of the State Life Insurance Company of Indianapolis, has been notified by T. W. Papham, of Dallas, state manager, of his promotion to district manager with headquarters in Amarillo. Mr. Reid, although he has only been in Wichita for about eight weeks, says he has become "stuck on the place" and there is a tincture of regret in his promotion which necessitates his removal from this city.

T. W. Scott left Saturday night for a visit to his brother at Lawton.

ONE WEEK CAMPAIGN Y. W. C. A. BUILDING FUNDS STARTS DEC. 1

FINAL PLANS FOR DRIVE WORKED OUT AT SATURDAY CON-FERENCE.

MAY ASK NEARLY $400,000

Possibility of Having to Buy Second Site Delays Setting of Definite Amount.

Wichita Falls' Y. W. C. A. campaign for building funds will be formally launched on December 1, and will extend over one week.

This date of the campaign opening is announced by Mrs. W. T. Silk, president of the executive board of the association, following a conference on Saturday with Miss Cady, national educational secretary, Miss Frances Bothwell, town secretary for the Southwestern district, and local officers and executives of the association. The amount which will be requested in this campaign has not yet been definitely set, but will be announced some time next week. Mrs.
Silk added, on the return of W. D.
Cline, the chairman of the finance committee, G. C. Wood and Roy B.
Jones. It is believed that this amount will be about $350,000 to $400,000.

The movement for the Young Women's Christian Association's building campaign to raise adequate funds for a housing plan and a headquarters building, received a decided impetus last week, when prominent business men were asked to meet with Miss Geary, economic secretary, Miss Cady, educational secretary, both from national headquarters, and Miss Bothwell, town secretary, from Dallas, and women of the local Y.
W. C. A. board.

The definite pledge of support of all the men present forecast the prompt success of the campaign, and the general expression that the campaign should be undertaken immediately, is being closely followed up.

The possibility of having to purchase a second building site, also unsettled building conditions, is delaying determination of the amount which Wichita Falls will be asked to contribute to the Y. W. C. A. it was stated Saturday. On the return of the members of the finance committee who are at present out of town, the committee, which in addition to Messrs. Cline, Wood and Jones, includes W. W. Silk, C. W. Sulder and Walter M. Priddy, and Mrs. C. R.
Hartsock, chairman of the finance committee of the board, and chairman of the woman's work in the campaign, will determine the amount of the quota.

While waiting for this meeting of the committee plans of model Y. W.
C. A. housing plans and administration buildings will be received for consideration by the local building committee. Mrs. Silk stated. Plans were ordered by wire Saturday from the national headquarters, and in a few days a number of adequate plans to suit the needs of Wichita Falls will be in the hands of the committee. Through Miss Geary and Miss Cady who have been on the ground, and familiarized themselves with the local situation, national headquarters will be enabled to be of material assistance to the Wichita Falls association in its building program.

Organization of the office details for the campaign will begin Monday, it is announced. Mr. Cline, the chairman, has requested that the Chamber of Commerce take charge of the routine details of the campaign, and the headquarters will be maintained at the Chamber of Commerce office, with the secretary in charge.

DINER TO BE PUT IN SERVICE ON DENVER TRAINS TO FT. WORTH

Diner service on the morning train from Fort Worth on the Denver within the very near future and some minor changes in the schedule of passenger service between Wichita Falls and Fort Worth are the promised result of a consultation of the local traffic committee with E. A. Covin-ton, general superintendent, and J. H.
Barwise Jr., vice-president and general manager of the road, who were in Wichita Falls Saturday for a consultation with traffic officials here.

The diner service is promised as soon as the cars can be secured.

Definite plans for changes in the schedule have not been yet worked out in detail, but no considerable change is anticipated.

The local committee is hoping for additional passenger trains, but so far has announced no plans for securing them.

FIREMEN ANSWER TWO ALARMS SATURDAY NIGHT
The fire department answered two alarms in rapid succession Saturday night neither of which proved serious.
About 8 o'clock an alarm was turned in from 1500 Monroe street, but the fire, confined to a portion of the wall paper in the kitchen, was put out before the fire department got to the scene. In returning from the fire on Monroe the largest hose truck stuck in a mud hole made by an excavation for water pipe and had it not been for the fortunate arrival of a Nash
"Quad" the truck would probably still be there, Chief McClure said.

No sooner had the department returned to the fire station than they were called to an alarm from Tenth and Lamar, where a pile of good-boxes and rubbish afire had caught a nearby telephone pole which was burning merrily when the department arrived. The chemical tank soon was used with this fire without any necessity for laying a hose line.

The National Bank of Commerce is ready at all times to serve the oil and agricultural interests of Wichita Falls and the surrounding territory, and welcomes consultations from firms and individuals seeking new or additional banking service. 170-11c

MEXICANS ARRESTED ON MURDER CHARGE

HELD ON CHARGE GROWING
FROM KILLING AT DENTON
IN 1918.

Pedro Perez, a Mexican, and his wife Maria, were arrested here Saturday by Mounted Officer Morgan of the city police, and are being held on a charge growing out of the killing of another Mexican at Denton a year ago.

According to the story the woman told the police, her husband was at that time only her lover, and was very jealous of the individual who became so suddenly deceased. She absolved her husband of all blame, however, in connection with the killing, and told local officers that it was she that wielded the knife. The officers declared that they did not believe the story. Both the man and woman are being held.

From Denton the couple went first to El Paso, then to Kansas City, and finally to Wichita Falls, where more than twelve months after the killing in connection with which they are held occurred, their arrest followed, the woman said.

The National Bank of Commerce attends to oil men a specialized service based upon a thorough understanding of and an intelligent interest in the oil industry. Both small and large accounts are welcomed by this institution. 170-11c

RIGID ENFORCEMENT HEALTH REGULATIONS TO START WEDNESDAY

ARRESTS WHERE WALKS ARE NOT KEPT CLEAN IS FIRST STEP.

TO BE COUNTRYWIDE IN SCOPE

Every Phase of Public Health to Receive Attention of Workers.

After eight o'clock Wednesday morning police officers are to make arrests for failure of merchants to keep the sidewalks in front of their places of business clean, according to instructions issued to members of the police force by Assistant Police Commissioner Robert Goodfellow.

Police officers are to sweep and sweep sidewalks must be swept and swept before eight o'clock.

Because officials of the board of health and other physicians believe the dust and dirt on the sidewalks are the greatest menace to public health and are even now spreading the germs of influenza, a thorough clean-up of the sidewalks is to be the first step in health campaign to be inaugurated here on Wednesday of this week.

State, county and city sanitation experts, the Red Cross and the police force are uniting in making the campaign effective. C. W. Goddard, state health officer, with a sanitary inspector, an assistant state sanitary expert, Mrs. Parsons at the head of the Red Cross and a corps of office helpers are to be established in Wichita Falls on Thursday, November 20.

Dr. Goddard and Mrs. Parsons will be here only long enough to help organize and coordinate forces, but the other workers with the county and city board and committees are here to stay until the county is cleaned up.

"In general are the plans discussed by the city clean-up committee meeting with Dr. W. M. Walker, chairman of the county board of health on Friday afternoon. Robert Goodfellow, assistant police commissioner, attended the meeting and offered his support of the police officers.

"First we are going to enforce all existing health and sanitation ordinances," said Dr. Walker Saturday, in discussing the plan of action. "We are going to clean the sidewalks because we all agree that they are one of the greatest sources of infection. There are already a number of cases of influenza in town and if these walks are not kept clean we are going to have another epidemic like that of last fall. We are going to clean up the garbage pile, fill up the holes where water is left standing, and prove the general appearance of the town."

VARIED CALLS FALL TO LOT OF THE Y. W. C. A. TRAVELERS AID

About ninety times in one day the Travelers Aid lady, as Mrs. Davidson, the pleasant, smiling Y. W. C. A. Travelers Aid at the union station, is called by the waiting public, which is more or less helpless when arriving in the bustling, busy crowded city of Wichita Falls, with women and their babies and parcels on the right train, finds relatives or friends for newcomers.

She does not know addresses or phone numbers and soon for strangers. And in between these times she is telling all who call at her desk when the next train leaves for Gainesville, or "last connections to make to get to Kansas City, Kansas, or how late the Denver is, answering any number of other questions with regard to trains and their going and coming. And she acts as an information bureau as well.

Mrs. Davidson during the month of October handled 2,671 general cases, as her work as travelers aid, her report given by the Y. W. C. A. executive board last Friday showed. During this month she also cared for 19 special cases which required activity outside the station.

People all along the various railroad lines leading to Wichita Falls have learned that there is a travelers aid here as well.

have arranged for the disposal of trash and garbage. So long as that is done, well and good. We don't care how its done or when just so its done. "We will have to take up things as they come. We can't do it all at one time. If additional ordinances are needed we are going to go after them."

The clean-up is gradually to extend all over the county and to include every phase of the health problem. Water is to be tested, vital statistics brought up to date, restaurants inspected and put strictly in line with all ordinances.

Dr. Walker said that he and State Health Officer Goddard had found restaurants in fair condition in a recent trip of inspection. "They are handling their garbage fairly well and we found nothing especially objectionable," he said. "But these businesses are to receive much more attention and to be kept in even better shape," he added. "We are going to clean up this county."

POLICEMAN DECLARES WAR ON SERVICE CAR DRIVERS; TAKES 54 IN THREE DAYS

Police Officer Hunter has declared war on the service car drivers. Within the last three days he has arrested 54 drivers of service cars for numerous violations of the law, chiefly not having a license to operate a service car within the city limits.

"I will continue to arrest them until they comply with the law and get permits to operate service cars in the city," said Hunter. He is stationed on the union depot beat, and has plenty of opportunity to get the car drivers who do not obey the law.

at Wichita Falls and frequently Mrs. Davidson has children consigned to her care, to be kept until she relatives show up, and it is a not infrequent occurrence for her to get a telegram from some doctor in a nearby town asking that she have an ambulance meet a certain train, which bears a patient coming to a Wichita Falls hospital.

The ambulance is always on hand, and all other requests for assistance are promptly met, and travelers have learned that the pleasant woman with the Y. W. C. A. ribbon armband can be depended on "to deliver the goods." A telephone has recently been installed at the Travelers Aid desk to facilitate Mrs. Davidson's activities in securing assistance for the cases which are coming up daily for attention. The work is steadily growing in scope and there are numerous instances showing the concrete benefit of the Travelers Aid work. At present there is no one at the Travelers Aid desk during the night, and there is a very great need of a second worker for this time, it is stated. It is understood that a night Travelers Aid is being considered, and there is a favorable sentiment among the board members toward this step.

INADEQUACY OF LAWS TO BLAME FOR RADICALISM

Such Is Declaration of Attorney General Palmer in Reply to the Senate

MORE THAN 60,000 ARE NOW UNDER SURVEILLANCE

Urges Passage of Law to Supplement the Espionage Act Now on Statutes

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—The growth of radicalism throughout the country is to be attributed to inadequacy of federal laws against preaching violent overthrow of the government, Attorney General Palmer declared tonight in replying to the Senate's recent inquiry as to what action had been taken by the department of justice to curb efforts to establish a "dictatorship of the proletariat."

Mr. Palmer disclosed that the department has more than 60,000 persons under surveillance as radicals with whom it is unable to cope because of weakness of present statutes. The attorney general urged the passage of a law to supplement the espionage act, and to take its place when the war-time measure ceases to be effective. He described the proposed act as being the most effective method of dealing with sedition, anarchy and radicalism, generally which members of his staff had been able to draft. Mr. Palmer said the bill was broad enough to stop effectively all attempts to overturn the existing order and yet safeguarded free speech and the press.

Activities of the foreign language press present another problem which the department has been unable to meet successfully, Mr. Palmer said. Investigations have uncovered 22 foreign language newspapers which have openly advocated changes in the governmental system by violence and preached sedition.

English newspapers branded as anarchistic and menacing by the department's agents number 105, Mr. Palmer said. He explained that these were much more easily dealt with, as loyal citizens are aiding the government in reporting them.

In addition, Mr. Palmer said, 141 radical newspapers published in foreign countries are received and distributed in the United States. Most of them, he said, were not sent through the mails, but were shipped in bulk and distributed by hand to the foreign population.

Translators busy.

The department has kept a corps of 40 translators busy and is attempting to gather evidence of their activities from other sources as well, Mr. Palmer said. Articles advocating violence always are "upheld" by being followed up with pamphlets and other propaganda.

Most of the newspapers named are street practically devoid of advertising, which the department accepts as proof that funds are coming from outside sources, Mr. Palmer said.

Mr. Palmer argues for changes in immigration laws and revision to simplify laws governing deportation. Radical leaders have taken advantage of countless technicalities to evade deportation, he explained.

Practically all of the radical organizations in the country have looked on the negro race as fertile ground for the spread of their doctrine, Mr. Palmer said. He warned that the propaganda had been successful in many respects and that the government should guard against trouble from that direction. Some publications, printed wholly for the benefit of negroes, have been particularly insistent, he said, and their attitude was traceable directly to leaders of radical groups, and not infrequently to citizens of this country who have turned against their government.

AGREE ON MILITARY PLAN FOR 300,000 OFFICERS AND MEN

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—A peace time military establishment of about 300,000 officers and men has been agreed upon by the House military committee. Chairman Kahn said the House today. This will include a regular army of 250,000 combat troops and auxiliary supply and staff corps with a strength of 50,000 officers and men.

The strength of the army is virtually the same as General Pershing recommended to Congress, but it is just about one-half of the big army program Secretary Baker and the general staff desired. Their plans called for a total strength of 575,000 men.

Kahn said that no army reorganization bill would be brought before the House this session because the committee feels the hearings must be continued.

Other recommendations virtually agreed to by the committee, Kahn said, are voluntary enlistments to fill up the army ordered during the war, and promotion of officers by selection from a single list, thus replacing the old plan of seniority. Whether universal military training will be recommended has not yet been decided nor have plans been devised for the reorganization of the national guard, Kahn said.

The loss is about $1,000,000. The fire is believed to have been started by spontaneous combustion.

CONGRESS PLANNING FOR ADJOURNMENT AT AN EARLY DATE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—Tentative plans for sine die adjournment of the present session of congress were made today by Senate and House republican leaders. By resolutions in the two bodies it is proposed that the House shall be permitted to adjourn on passage of the pending railroad bill—expected next week—and the Senate on disposition of the peace treaty. The resolution would give each body authority to adjourn independently of the other any time between now and December 1.

Senator Curtis of Kansas, republican, who presented it in the Senate, and asked immediate consideration, but Senators Gronna, republican of North Dakota, and Ashurst, democrat of Arizona, objected, and it went over.

Authentic Finish of the Period

William & Mary

William and Mary (England) 1689-1702

When William of Orange ascended the throne of England in 1689, there began what is sometimes known as the Anglo-Dutch period. Marquetry workers were brought from Holland and introduced the severe Dutch type of inlay into English furniture design. Among the designers who followed William from Holland were a number of Huguenot refugees, who impressed certain French tendencies upon the furniture design of this period.

The William and Mary case created for the Official Laboratory Model is charmingly expressive of the grace and delicacy that were so noteworthy of English furniture in the days of William and Mary. The inlaid border takes us back to King William's marquetry workers and the legs, stretcher and pendant pull are authentically typical of the period. The grille typifies the more florid motifs introduced in the latter part of the reign of William and Mary. The feeling of antiquity developed in this cabinet will be agreeably apparent to the lover of fine furniture.

PRINCETON DEFEATS YALE TEAM BEFORE CROWD ESTIMATED AT MORE THAN FIFTY THOUSAND

NEW HAVEN, CONN., Nov. 15.—By turning an intended Yale trick into a touchdown and consequent goal, Princeton won here today, 13 to 6, its first football victory over Yale since 1911. The football, tossed into the air as a bit of Yale strategy, tonight was the treasured trophy of the national Princeton victory.

It was "Butt" Scherer, a substitute called into play only a few minutes before, who upset the Yale tactics, broke a tie score, and secured for himself lasting fame with the football enthusiasts of old Nassau by scoring for Princeton the first victory over Yale since 1911. His feat, was the result of emergency handling of a loose ball.

Neville of Yale, rushing from his own 41 yard line, had gained several yards when he was tackled by Bigler of Princeton. Instead of turning the ball, he swung it over his head laterally to Kempton, who was following fast behind. Scherer, shunted Kemp in a side as he strained to reach the flying plunkin, then followed its course himself, gathered it in, and set off for the goal 20 yards away.

A broken field of Yale players, who had been reversed from offense to defense by the turn of play, lay between Scherer and the goal, but he used straight arm and interference, and crossed the line with the touchdown that was the measure of Princeton's victory.

Between 50,000 and 60,000 persons witnessed the game.

Princeton had gained an early advantage today when, advancing into Yale territory by forward passes, Strubling was pounced by a field goal in the first period. He kicked from the 30-yard line. The Nassau eleven stopped Yale's rushing attack after the Blues had gained 30 yards in the second period, but was unable to advance its own offense.

The third period found Yale, spurred by the coaches' comment between halves, pressing its attack by rushing and kicking, with the result that the Blue went into the lead. The boot of Jimmy Braden sent the ball flying through Princeton goal posts twice in this period for field goals, one from the 22 and the other from the 25-yard line.

With Trimble's interception of a Yale forward pass, Princeton stock advanced in the fourth period. For ward passes again were the Tiger resort, for gain, and the ball was forced to Yale's 25 yards line. From the side lines, Murray, Nassau substitute, was called into play and, standing on Yale's 25 yard line, kicked the field goal which tied the contest. The Tiger host broke into an uproar which not entirely quieted when Neville and Kempton attempted the trick play which gave Scherer his opportunity and Princeton the game. Yale players were stunned by the turn of events. Substitutes were rushed in for several line positions, but Princeton maintained ascendancy to the end, although Trimble failed in an effort to kick another field goal for the Tigers from the 40 yard line.

Except for the deciding play by Scherer, Princeton's offense today was largely through the air. It was the most notable exhibition of the open style of play seen in any game between the "big three" of Princeton, Yale and Harvard.

The game was marked by a contest within a contest, in the duel between the brothers, Callahan, each as center position for his team. Both were bulwarks of strength in their respective lines.

The line-up and summary:

Nerve Force is the Life Spring of Good Health

A Sufficient Supply of Life Force Means an Abundance of Good Health

This life force is that intangible element, originating in the brain, and transmitted through the nerves to the organs of the body, bringing the organs into activity and life. A little study of the nerve system of the body readily illustrates the Chiropractic claim that nearly 95 per cent of the diseases which afflict the human body are directly traceable to a pinched condition of the nerves, which condition cuts off the supply of life forces and thereby causing a deadened, or diseased, condition of the organs which the particular nerves supply. For an illustration, put a pressure on a nerve that leads to any organ. You will immediately have a numb, deadened effect in the organ, and if the pressure is severe enough, or remains long enough, the organ will become diseased and devoid of life activity.

REMOVE THE PRESSURE AND THE LIFE FORCE WILL SPRING BACK INTO THE ORGAN, AND A NATURAL CONDITION WILL RESULT.

To remove this pressure is the science of Chiropractic. The body is so constituted that the most probable place for the nerves to become pinched is directly at the point where they leave the spinal column to diverge to the organs. At this point a great many things can contribute to this pinched condition. A sudden cold, and consequent drawing up of the muscles, an unusual jarring of the body, due to a fall, a slip on a walk or any other slight accident, apparently harmless in itself, may cause a pinched nerve that will later result in a diseased condition of an organ, and the patient will not be able to trace the effect to the cause.

THE CHIROPRACTIC LOCATES THE IMPINGED NERVE WHERE IT LEAVES THE SPINE, AND BY ADJUSTMENTS ON THE SPINE, REMOVES THE CAUSE.

No medicine is used, and no surgery is employed. Chiropractic is absolutely drugless and is the most wonderful health agent that has been discovered in a century. Practically every spine can be put in perfect alignment, causing a 100 per cent of life force to circulate through the body and a consequent improving in the life and energy in every organ.

LET US EXAMINE YOUR SPINE

and demonstrate the philosophy, as well as the simplicity and common sense of this science. Our examinations and spinal analysis are free, but are made only by appointment. Kindly phone me in advance if you desire appointment.

kick from the twenty yard line, beating Wisconsin 3 to 0, before 18,000 spectators, in what was probably the most desperately fought game in the western conference championship race this season.

The narrow victory strengthens Ohio State's grip on the "big ten" title. The Ohioans have gone through the race with a clean slate, but to clinch the title, Illinois must be defeated at Columbus next Saturday.

Fought to a standstill for three periods of the game, the Ohioans opened up a vicious attack in the fourth and scored a touchdown on a forward pass, but the score was not allowed, because Harley, passing the ball to Stinebaugh, the Buckeye quarter back, had reached the line of scrimmage before heaving the ball. When the ball was brought back into play on the twenty yard line, Harley dropped back for a drop kick and booted the oval squarely between Wisconsin's posts.

WICHITA DEFEATS GRAHAM ELEVEN IN SATURDAY'S GAME

In an invasion of Graham Saturday afternoon the Wichita Falls Hi footballers were successful in walking away with 19 to 0 victory over the speedy eleven of that place. The locals got their points on a touchdown and a field goal, Wilson playing fullback crossing the goal and the nimble tackle, Weldon booted a pretty drop kick between the posts. Other stars of the game were: Jordan, playing right end for the locals and Burnett, Mayas and Graham for Graham. The locals line-up was as follows: Wilson, full; Weldon, quarter; Chewing, halfback; Hashara and Hughes halves; Trotter, Jordan and F. Patton ends; Walker, McConkey, guards; Norris and Dowis, tackles and Hapay, center.

SIDELIGHTS ON SPORTING EVENTS

Something of a real scrap is promised for the fight between Leonard and Jimmy Duffy, champion of the world, 12 rounds in Tulsa tomorrow night. "Kid" McPartland, of New York, former featherweight champion of the world, is going to referee the bout, and he is one of the best known men in the game for the third one in the ring.

Last Monday Leonard went eight rounds for a decision with "Soldier" Barfield, but he did not show up in the fighting form the fans have learned throughout his career to expect from him. Leonard, it seems, has been overdoing the fight game. He has been taking on a lot of pretty likely fellows, and last week with Barfield he looked rather shaky.

However, a week's rest for a man in fit condition should put him back in prime shape for his go tomorrow night, which will be the best of the fight of recent months, for Duffy is no slouch when it comes to generalship and ability in the roped square.

In fact, some of the sport writers would not be surprised to see Jimmy get a draw decision out of his meet with the champ. Duffy has whipped such good boys as Ted "Kid" Lewis, Irish Patsy Cline and other topnotchers, and he has not confined his efforts to the lightweight division, either, for he has won over a few welterweights, and not a few heavyweights.

McPartland, the referee, was the referee in Leonard's fight against Freddy Welsh in New Orleans in 1917, counting Welsh out while the game little battler still was on his feet in the sixth round. Both Manager Shannon of Duffy and Manager Gibson of Leonard have accepted McPartland as the decision-maker, and wired Promoter Healer, who is staging the Tulsa show, to that effect before they left the east.

Mecca For Fighters.

Oklahoma, by the way, is becoming something of a mecca for fighters, and no reference here is made to Red river disputes, either. Tulsa, with a very sportive inclination, having staged one negro heavyweight bout, now wants another and the Tulsa Sporting Club is working to bring Sam Langford, champion negro heavyweight of the world and also famous as the "Boston tar baby," and Harry Wills together there this month.

Muskogee, not to be outdone by its sister city, plans a series of bantamweight elimination bouts. Frank Corey, matchmaker for the Muskogee Athletic club, is making the arrangements and already has staged one pretty good go between Nate Jackson and Bobby Hughes.

Nixon Is Drafted.

It is the fate of Class B leagues exemplified to a queen's taste that one finds in the case of "Nixon," leading batter of the Texas League and Beaumont's mainstay through many seasons. He has been drafted for next season by Topeka of the Western League, a class A organization. Had the Texas League been in Class A this could not have happened, for one league cannot draft from another league of equal class.

Even the major leagues cannot draft from the Texas league any more, as they used to do, as the league star better goes to a league really no faster than the Texas league, but of faster classification, for the draft price.

This case shows better possibly than could any recent one the evils of the draft system and the disaster of low classification. Next season, if the system has not been changed and the classification of the Texas league not raised, Manager Salm can develop a star and see him drafted by the Southern Pacific Coast or Western league while he (Salm) will be powerless to prevent.

It is this condition that the Texas league has been fighting and will continue to fight until it is righted in justice to the league.

Fleming On Program.

The chief preliminary, or semi-wind-up of the Leonard-Duffy go in Tulsa tomorrow night will be between Carl Fleming, former Wichita, and Frankie Nordin, recently returned from France. The men will weigh in at 130 pounds and will go eight rounds.

Premises to Meet Winner.

Jack Dempsey, champion of the world, has promised to meet the winner of the Beckett-Carpenter go in London, which takes place December 4. The fight between Dempsey and the winner will likely take place in either Paris or London next spring.

OKLAHOMA DEFEATED BY ARKANSAS ELEVEN

FAYETTEVILLE, ARK., Nov. 15.—When Davidson kicked goal in the second period of the Arkansas-Oklahoma game here today, he made the point that gave the local team the victory over the visitors, 7 to 6. Scores for Arkansas had gathered in a punt and had run 15 yards for a touchdown. Oklahoma's only score was made in the first period on an Arkansas pass, intercepted on the Arkansas 20 yard line. Arkansas made free use of the forward pass, but Oklahoma did not try the maneuver often.

RED HEADED QUARTERBACK KICKS TEAM TO VICTORY

CHICAGO, Nov. 15.—Percy Graham, agile red headed quarterback for the University of Chicago, pushed, shoved and finally kicked his team to a 9 to 6 victory over Iowa today. It was the Iowa team's second defeat of the "big ten" season.

Graham, with the game nearing a close and the score 6 to 6, began a series of brilliant dashes that brought the ball to within 20 yards of Iowa's goal and when the Orange and Black held he drop kicked for the winning three points. Graham also scored Chicago's touchdown.

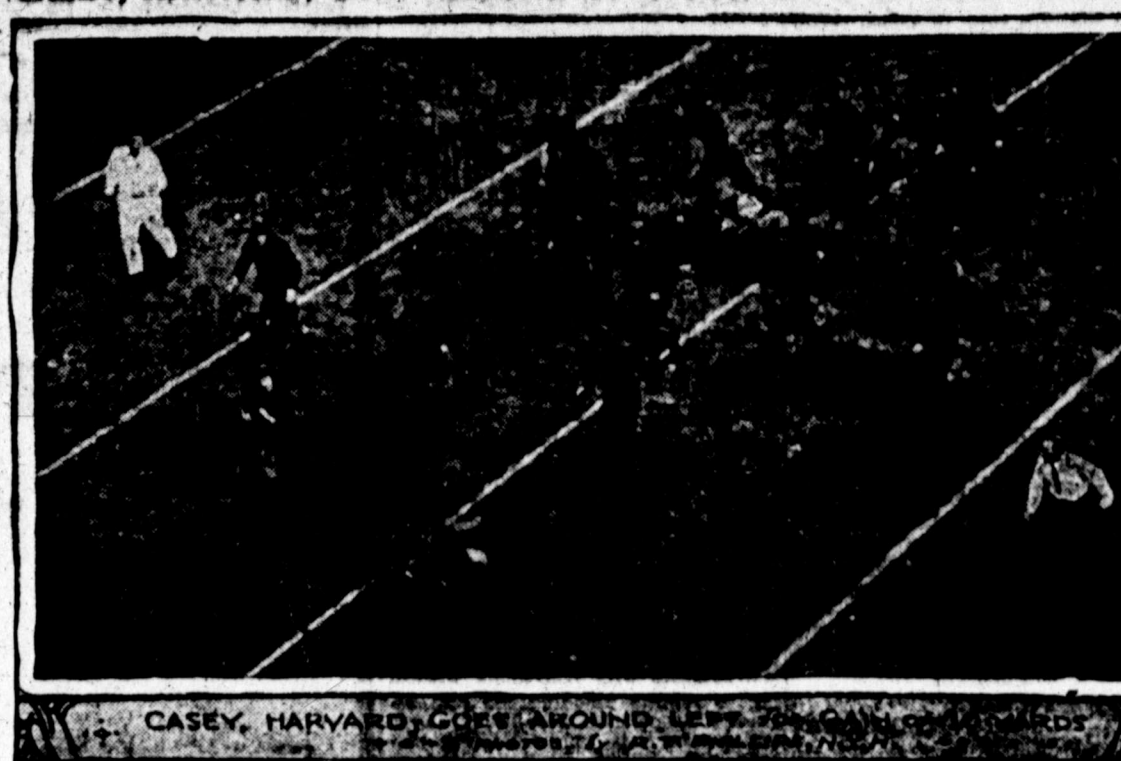

HARVARD HAS EASY VICTORY OVER TUFTS

CAMBRIDGE, MASS., Nov. 15.—Harvard, with many substitutes in the line, had little difficulty in defeating Tufts today, 23 to 0. There was no scoring the first half, and at the end of the third period Harvard led only 3 to 0. In the fourth, however, with Arnold Horween, substituted for Hamilton at right half back, furnishing the driving power, Harvard scored three touchdowns, two of which were followed by goals.

CORNELL DEFEATED BY PENNSYLVANIA STATE

ITHACA, N. Y., Nov. 15.—Pennsylvania State defeated Cornell today, 20 to 0, through long forward passes and superior work by the backfield. Cornell at intervals put up a stiff defense and succeeded three times in holding the visitors for downs on the Cornell one yard line.

CASEY, HARVARD, GOES AROUND LEFT FOR GAIN OF TEN YARDS

Here is a photograph of a spectacular play in the recent Harvard-Princeton game at Princeton, which resulted in a score, 10 to 10. It was a splendid game, a contest of clean, wholesome, intense excitement to 22,700 folks who looked down from the towering tiers of the spacious horsebox.

FIVE MAKE PERFECT SCORES AT WEEKLY GUN CLUB SHOOT

Five shooters out of the twelve who turned out for the turkey shoot held by the local gun club Saturday with the aid of the handicaps turned in perfect scores, necessitating two shoot-offs for the turkey offered as a prize, which was finally won by Deatheridge.

Shooters who turned in perfect scores were Weatheridge, Nabb, Greenberg, Guthrie, and Adrain, and in the first shoot-off, Guthrie, Nabb and Adrain were eliminated. In the second shoot-off Deatheridge made a perfect score without his handicap, to Greenberg's 22. The turkey gobbler therefore rode home in his auto to be fattened for Thanksgiving.

Pate was high scratch gunner, as he broke 47 out of 50 of the targets thrown. He had a handicap of one too few to get him in the shoot-off too few to get him in the shoot-off for the bird.

A number of new-comers were out, and the efforts of the secretary to let all shooters in the town know that they are welcome is bearing fruit. The members plan to make this the most active gun club in the state, and they have already made a good start.

The scores of the afternoon follow:

WANT TO BRING GERMAN NATIONAL SOUP TO A BOIL

BERLIN, Nov. 14. (via London).—Three mass meetings have been called for tomorrow by the majority of the police authorities for the purpose of "rousing the police authorities from their sleep." It is declared an attempt is being made to use the presence of Field Marshal Von Hindenburg as a fire on which the German national soup can be brought to a boil.

Demonstrations chiefly by students cheered Von Hindenburg and General Ludendorff yesterday and raised cries of "Heil" for former Emperor Wilhelm and the old empire.

BRYAN DISCOURAGES PLAN FOR A LABOR CANDIDATE

HOT SPRINGS, ARK., Nov. 15.—William Jennings Bryan, in a statement issued here today, advised against organized labor putting a candidate for president in the field next year. He said all organized labor had obtained within the past 25 years has been given it by the Democratic party. A labor candidate for president, he said, would only put farther away the things labor now wants, and intimated the coming labor more than would be contained in the Republican program.

MINERS AGAIN MAKE DEMAND FOR INCREASE

thing else and that is the statement of the high officers of this government who have said they would not hesitate to enforce the law against others after enforcing it against the coal miners.

"I want to call your attention as a representative of this government, Mr. Secretary, to violations of the law by the operators and then see if you will enforce it."

Lewis Reads Telegram.

Lewis read a telegram from Birmingham, Alabama, mine workers which said "It seems to have been a concerted action among the mine operators here to require men returning to work under their court order to give up their buttons and renounce their union affiliations."

"I have in mind the Colorado fuel and iron company in Colorado now putting into effect the same policy," Lewis resumed, "and refusing men work until they sign away every right of citizenship. In the New River field of West Virginia the men are being told that they are returning to work without a contract and to be dealt with merely as individuals. I wonder if these operators are violating any provision of the Lever act. I wonder if the great machinery of the government is to be turned against them when they violate the law. In certain coal fields over the United States a state of armed terror is maintained. In the Guin Valley the guards with side arms are marching and beating and beating high until death workmen whose only desire is to endeavor to improve their condition. Our voices are too feeble to get a dress; do you hear any voices in our behalf in the halls of Congress or the chambers of the government? In the Clinchfield field, in certain sections of New Mexico, Pennsylvania and Kentucky this is going on. But I say now that the condition can not long endure when workers are stifled and the men who merely happen to own these mines can oppress and tread down as they desire."

RADICALS ORGANIZING NEW MINERS UNION

BROWNSVILLE, PA., Nov. 15.—Organizations of a new miners union, headed by radicals, is being promoted in this district for the purpose of continuing the strike of soft coal miners. This information today indicated the leaders of the new movement were identified with a similar activity several years ago among the employees of the Pennsylvania railroad which was thwarted by the brotherhoods.

called in Kansas City for tomorrow by Governor Henry J. Allen. The call for the meeting was the first move toward the state taking control of the Kansas mines in an effort to relieve the fuel shortage in the state.

MINERS VOTE NOT TO RETURN TO WORK

BIRMINGHAM, ALA., Nov. 15.—Coal miners in the Cahaba district voted not to return to work at a special meeting held last night, according to reports reaching the coal operators' association here today. It is understood that representatives present were Sicard, Blount, Garney, Marmel, Plosser and Coleman.

BELIEVE GENERAL IS LARGE AS ANY WELL IN WAGGONER POOL

Belief that the General Oil Company's No. 1 Sparks would test on gauged runs as large as any well in the Waggoner pool, was expressed by visitors to the well on Friday, who saw the big stream of oil shoot over the top of the derrick several times. Some estimates place the capacity as high as 5,000 barrels.

The well was "shot" not with nitro, but with celluloid, Fred Bockelman, official photographer for the Pathé News, being on hand when the well was turned loose, and the now famous well will soon be in the movies.

KEMP-MUNGER-ALLEN STILL FLOWING BY STRONG HEADS

The Kemp-Munger-Allen well continues to flow, raising heavily and making strong heads. There was no late report from the field Saturday afternoon as to whether or not pipe line connections have been made, as was expected.

"FOOL PROOF" OIL FIELD IS LURE WHICH BRINGS JUDGE J. C. NORMAN HERE

The recommendation of R. M. Moore, better known to the pioneers of Wichita Falls as "Butler" Moore, that the Wichita Falls oil fields are "fool proof," lured to Wichita Falls, Judge James C. Norman, old time friend of Arkansas days of the ex-Wichitan. Judge Norman, who is now living in Joplin, Mo., says he concluded that if this was so the field would bear investigating, and he is now preparing to invest, after concluding his investigation.

"Undoubtedly you have a great oil field here," he said Saturday in discussing his impressions of the fields. "Let at the same time business prudence should not be cast to the wind."

"To illustrate take the Kemp-Munger-Allen well, which property I visited yesterday. It is undoubtedly a great well, and opens up a wide expanse of territory, but if it had not been for J. A. Kemp that now renowned property would, if considered at all, be considered only as a site for a salt factory. Ample capital, unquestioned ability and splendid nerve snatched victory from the very jaws of defeat. I am not throwing any bouquets at Mr. Kemp but am using this to point a moral possibly to adorn a tale.

"Yes... the judge continued, "we are going into the oil business. Some business friends and associates have pooled our interests with some of the Wichita Falls citizens and we have decided to take a chance. Our plans are not fully matured, but I can say this, that in planning our venture we have used extreme caution and when we are ready for business we will be able to offer the investing public a proposition in which all unnecessary risk has been eliminated."

RED RIVER VALLEY TEST NEAR NOCONA RESUMES DRILLING

NOCONA, TEX., Nov. 15.—After a shutdown of about two days for a 10-inch under-reamer at 1,100 feet, the Red River Valley Company test on the Jones farm is again under steam. The 12 1/2-inch casing was set at 925 feet. A well drilled a few years ago in section 16-7s-6w on the Oklahoma side found gas at 1,600 feet. The Red River well is a little south of a line between the Nocona test and the well in section 10 just noted. The Empire company has the rig up for a test on the Seay land in section 3-6s-6w, the location being probably about the middle of the south line of the section and near the river bank, and across Red River from the David L. Wood survey on the Texas side. It is understood that work will proceed with as little delay as possible. This company completed a test about six months ago a mile and a half northeast of this location and along the river bank also. The Frank V. Wright well on the Fiddling Secret survey, north of Saitto is still fishing for tools at 3,650 feet. Some of the last drillings have been submitted to geologists. Encouragement is offered for further drilling which will be continued as soon as the hole is cleared.

How Doubling the Size of the House Office Building Will Necessitate the Extension of the Private Subway—Interesting Facts About the Burrows Under the Famous Capitol Plaza

The Monorail Underground Trolley Used by Members and Clerks in Transit Between the Capitol and Offices.

By RENE BACHE

THE huge office building of the House of Representatives is to be doubled in size. It now occupies a whole block, with a total frontage on its four sides of about one-third of a mile. With the contemplated addition, it will cover two blocks of ground, and will have 1100 rooms.

This is in order that each member of the House may have a suite of rooms for office purposes. Each senator now has a suite—a room for himself, another for his secretaries, and a marble-lined lavatory—and representatives are convinced that they are entitled to enjoy quarters equally luxurious and commodious.

It is likely that the contemplated architectural improvement will involve an extension of the subway which connects the House office building with the Capitol. A similar underground passage runs between the Capitol and the Senate office building, and is traversed by trolley cars running on a monorail track which carry senators to and fro.

An Unknown Labyrinth

The every-day stranger who visits Washington has no knowledge of the system of subterranean tunnels that is hidden beneath the great Capitol plaza and its neighborhood. Yet it is in its way very remarkable, and most interesting from an engineering viewpoint, comprising as it does not only the subways above mentioned, but also a number of other big concrete-lined burrows, one of which connects the Capitol with the Library of Congress.

The subways are in appearance remarkably like those through which trains are run nowadays in our principal cities. Though of short length relatively, they are almost equally spacious, lined with vitrified brick, and brilliantly lighted by electricity. In effect they are underground streets.

For the transportation of senators through their subway there was at first provided an automobile, which even now remains available, though practically out of use. It has been replaced by two of the trolley cars above mentioned, driven by electric motors, one of them accommodating 16 persons and the other 12. When a senator wishes to use a car, if it is not ready at hand, he summons it by pushing a button, as he would call an elevator.

No vehicle has been provided for carrying representatives to and fro through their subway. They walk—as, for the matter of that, do many senators, a concrete sidewalk running along one side of the tunnel. The reason why, is mainly that the mere "members" are such a multitude that a whole flock of cars would be required to transport them; and apart from this consideration is the fact that they are mostly younger men. Some of the senators are elderly and disposed to economize physical effort.

Half a mile south of the Capitol is a superbly equipped power plant which supplies light and steam heat not only to the main legislative building but also to the two great office buildings and the Library of Congress. The steam pipes and electric feed-wires run through concrete-lined tunnels, the electricity being delivered as an alternating current of 6000 volts at sub-stations in the sub-basements of those buildings, where it is converted into direct current and "stepped down" suitably for use on the premises. Part of its job is to keep 25,000 lamps of 16 candle-power (or the equivalent) going in the Capitol alone.

The ventilation of the Capitol is accomplished by the use of huge revolving fans, which draw fresh air in through the top of a tower outside and at some distance from the building. The air, on its way into the building, passes through masonry-lined subterranean passages, and by this means is reduced in temperature several degrees. In winter it is drawn over steam coils, to heat it. Forced beneath the floors of the House and Senate chambers, it rises through openings provided for the purpose, the Senate receiving 30,000 cubic feet per minute and the House 60,000 cubic feet.

The tunnel that connects the Capitol with the Library of Congress is of just about the length of three ordinary city blocks, and is used for no purpose other than the carrying of books. Representatives and Senators are in constant need of books for reference purposes, and it saves them a lot of trouble to be able to get them without going after them.

For instance, a senator finds that he needs a certain volume. He writes the title on a scrap of paper and hands it to a page. The page takes it to a little room just off Statuary Hall, and gives it to a clerk. The clerk fires it through a pneumatic underground tube to the Library of Congress reading desk, and presently the desired volume arrives in a leather receptacle that looks like a dress-suit case.

This magical performance is accomplished by an endless-chain arrangement running through the tunnel, suspended wire baskets serving to carry the books. The basket containing the volume wanted by the senator suddenly appears at a hole in the wall of the little room (it looks like a cupboard); the clerk hands the book to the page, who departs with it, and half a minute later it is delivered at the desk of the grave and reverend legislator.

Yet another tunnel that is almost a little subway in itself runs underground from beneath the House of Representatives to the House office building. It was built to accommodate a huge pneumatic tube designed for carrying printed documents. For some reason not very well understood, it has never been used—the tube, that is to say—though in perfectly utilizable condition.

Life Below Ground

The existence of this complex system of burrows beneath the Capitol plaza and its vicinity is hardly known to most of the people who live in Washington; but the great legislative building has other and very extensive underground works, hidden from the view of the casual visitor. In its sub-basement are immense mechanical and heating plants, machine shops, plumbers' shops, painters' shops, carpenters' shops, storage rooms for documents and the overflow of the law library (which occupies the former quarters of the supreme court), and, by no means least important, the vast kitchens of the House and Senate.

These are the days of luxury, the spirit of which has thoroughly pervaded Congress. Formerly representatives and senators were content to do at home—i. e., in quarters they rented for domiciliary purposes—such office work as could not be conveniently accomplished at the Capitol. If they needed help, they hired it. But the senators voted themselves private secretaries, to be paid from the treasury; so the plain "members" decided that they must have them too. The Sen-

cent quadrangle. The money that might have gone to construct the fourth side was thus made available for expenditure on more costly materials; and, accordingly, the marble lining of the Senate building is in the House building largely replaced by plaster, cheaper woods are substituted for mahogany and so with other details.

To cap the climax, $3,400,000 was spent on the Senate office building, whereas that of the House cost only $3,100,000. But the really exasperating fact is that each senator has a suite, while to each representative is allotted only one room. There are in the Senate building 98 suites.

When the House Rebels

Against this "outrage" the House has finally rebelled, and, as a result, its office building is to be doubled in size. When it is finished, each representative will have a suite. Also three secretaries, for that is the number now declared requisite even for a plain "member." In the double-size edifice there will be 24 elevators, magnificent baths (including Turkish and other kinds appealing to a taste for luxury), at least one barber shop, and a huge dining room, with a kitchen for supplying "short orders." Most of the cooking, however, will be done in the great kitchen in the sub-basement at the House end of the Capitol, the "eats" thus prepared being fetched through the subway in insulated boxes of hand-drawn trucks.

No, no! The representative in Congress is not to be ground down any longer, or treated as if he were a person inferior. He is going to have all the luxury that is properly coming to him—and then some, possibly. As for electric cars in the subway, he does not care particularly. Give him what he wants above ground, and he is indifferent to the subterranean.

ate rented the near-by Maltby Building, at government expense, using it for office purposes. The House demanded equivalent rights, and hence the comparatively recent erection of the two great white marble annexes known as the office buildings of the House and Senate.

The House has always been, and is today, jealous of the Senate—jealous of the assumption on the part of senators that they are legislators of a superior breed, and particularly irritated by their disposition to vote themselves privileges and luxuries which representatives, fearful of criticism by their constituents, hesitate to adopt.

The two office buildings are just alike in respect to size, but that of the Senate, requiring fewer rooms, has no fourth side to its magni-

Should Girls Be Permitted to Play Real Football?

EVEN a prude, in the light of the altered order of things, cannot seriously object to a woman playing Association football in public in the opinion of the girl captain of an Englishwoman's football team. The Rugby code may be a little too strenuous, she thinks, but under the laws which govern the sister-game the fair sex can reap many advantages.

"In the first place," says the girl captain, "football is a healthy sport for the robust woman to follow. It is played in the open air. All the important muscles are brought into use. Keenness of eye and quickness of decision are essential. The game teaches women to control temper. It stimulates unselfishness and fosters the true sporting spirit. It engenders pluck, staying power, determination and a resolute desire to conquer obstacles. Played seriously, it causes a woman to use her brain as well as her muscle.

"The enormous number of people who took a delight in seeing munitionettes, engaged on strenuous war work all the week, match their skill against each other on the football field on Saturday afternoons proves conclusively that there is great interest in feminine football from a spectacular point of view.

It is true that the munition workers have now scattered, but there are hundreds of big business establishments in the country where women are engaged in toil that necessitates physical strength which could turn out eleven sturdy specimens of feminine humanity capable of giving a very interesting display of leather-chasing.

"With a little enterprise, matches could be arranged, grounds secured, competitions and even a league formed.

"One small objection to women taking up football seriously is that the costume usually worn is not quite so becoming as it might be. But surely that is a thing which feminine ingenuity could easily remedy.

"As a munition girl who has played the game for two seasons vigorously without receiving a scratch and captained a very successful team of women war workers, I have made these few little suggestions in the hope that other women will combine to see if something cannot be done to popularize a sport in which the gentler sex can shine conspicuously."

HOW TITLES ARE PICKED FOR MOTION PICTURES

WHO picks the titles for motion pictures? How do they do it and where is it done?

Do the authors or the scenario writers send in titles with their stories, or is the whole question left to the producer? These are the questions which puzzle the outsider. To one who is not familiar with the inside workings of the motion-picture industry it is generally supposed that the author sends in the titles, but as a matter of fact the titles are selected in the studio by experts. It is very seldom that even if the author does submit titles that they withstand the scrutiny of the experts as they prepare the film for the public.

How many pictures have been made or marred by subtitles? The answer is, scores.

What system of handling this very important part of a photoplay is most likely to produce uniformly satisfactory results? Most motion pictures are seen by hundreds of thousands of persons, representing practically every phase of life and mentality in this country and foreign lands.

The "Jury" System.

In devising innovations in production that are bound to bring about superior photoplays, producers are giving considerable thought to the selection of titles. Samuel Goldwyn, in a recent conversation, says that he has considered them from all angles and finally conceived what he calls the "jury system," a plan that is justifying his confidence in the benefits to be derived from getting a consensus of opinion as to what "goes over" with the great audience reached by motion pictures.

The recently formed "title jury" is composed of men and women in the organization who from experience and temperament see things from different viewpoints. The jury comprises those with a literary training and others without any training of any kind. An effort is made to have this body typical of the average motion-picture audiences as they are found in all parts of the country, in small theaters as well as the large.

When a new production is viewed by the committee, it contains titles written by the title editor, but they are subject to change and sometimes removal entirely, if the jury finds for one reason or another they fail to carry the desired point, either in making the story clear or in putting over a laugh.

Title Must Have Entire Approval.

It is figured that the director, scenario editor and even the title writer are so close to their work that they know a story backwards, and what may seem perfectly clear to them may appear vague to an audience that sees a picture without any previous knowledge as to what it concerns. Sometimes it is found that a number of the jury is doubtful about the meaning of a word or a phrase used in a title, in which case a substitute is found. Before a title is considered satisfactory it must meet with the approval of everyone on the committee.

In striking an average which keeps a production from going over the heads of an audience unaccustomed to subtle phraseology, or the slang of the Broadway, particular attention is paid to titles of a humorous nature. Experience has shown that "smart" titles which may appeal to the particularly sophisticated sense of humor are likely to fall flat with a large percentage of photoplay goers.

Imagination is the quality the motion-picture industry can not do without if it is to get out of the rut it has long been in, due alone to neglect. Producers have got to co-operate with the creative writers if the public is to escape the monotonous round of mere footage production of conventional plays.

From the viewpoint of eminent authors, we emphasize the value of the story in pictures, and also the value of continuity. Everyone realizes that a photoplay can rise no higher than its source and that the source is the story.

The intelligent producer and director today goes on logically to see that a good continuity is necessary to a good story.

On this basis eminent authors are working with the best scenario writers to get material started right. The director has enough to do in creating his pictures from script even when most skillfully prepared.

Two groups of writers must be developed. One group we have in eminent authors and they are the group. Their names are a great asset to every add new people to an exhibitor's regular who are writers who command the picture. ers who can be relied on to do big things directly for the screen. They will find it worth their while to master screen technique and so interpret fully the subjects submitted in novels or short story form.

Eminent Authors Co-operating.

We believe that the established writer of national reputation should continue to write as he is inspired for his great public and that he should then work with continuity writers who are familiar with the motion-picture angle. The public will get more artistic plays when those men and women who adapt the stories are equal in intelligence, mental equipment and imagination to those who write the original stories. There are not enough good continuity writers today.

After a good story is secured and a good continuity prepared, a good director is required. Even then if a story is cut to fit the needs of some particular star the story will suffer. In eminent authors' pictures the story is not sacrificed. Actors are obtained who will and are capable of representing the characters the author had in mind. On this basis the director can go ahead and make a production that represents the best that is in him.

Directors Demanding Good Stories.

He has suffered more in the past from the undue exploitation of the star's personality and the star's limitations than he has from the interference of the author. The best directors of the present time are demanding good stories, good continuity and co-operation of the author as far as it helps in the building up of the screen drama.

The question of preservation of continuity and particularly to the proper length of titles is a topic now being discussed in the Motion Picture Press.

"We are already pledged to 'natural length' features," said T. A. Liebler, Jr., in a recent interview; "that is to say, the footage of its releases is dictated by the requirements of the subject, and not by any fancied necessity to approximate a certain number of even thousand feet. There will be neither padding in our pictures nor cuts interfering with the flow of action such as are often made with the design to prevent the feature from running over on to another reel."

Of almost equal importance to the elimination of padding and the preservation of continuity is the maintenance of a proper speed in projection. The practice of the double-feature day houses and those desiring a quick turnover on week end or holiday nights in running off reels at a twelve-minute speed, necessitates the manufacture of pictures that will not suffer when projected at this speed. This is the speed, too, at which the picture is, as a rule, originally shown in the projection room to the reviewers, and to the officials of the company passing on its merits. And in nine cases out of ten the picture gains through the advanced speed of the projection.

Emotions Dramatized to Be Effective.

The standard rate of projection was fixed in an effort to screen action at about the same tempo in which it was originally enacted. In this way, it was figured, a natural, life-like representation of that action could be obtained. But it is only in speed that there is not an inevitable exaggeration or "dramatization" of everything that is photographed for dramatic effect. Emotions are dramatized so that they may register more effectively; costumes of a period other than today are dramatized by compromise with the prevailing modes, so that they may not seem uncouth or even comic to the eyes accustomed to regard the up-to-the-minute creations of the fashionable modistes as the latest word in beauty. And in the same way, the good director distorts all things in nature so that he may throw his high lights where they belong, so that the attention of the spectators may be fixed on such points as will maintain his interest in the story at concert pitch. For the same reason there should be an exaggeration of speed or pace, an exaggeration that can be more effectively engineered from the projection booth than in the studio, especially since the varying rates of projection make it necessary for the director to preserve a tempo that will not become ridiculously fast when the print is raced.

Action Improved by Rapid Projection.

"Stories in which physical action predominates are, as a rule, tremendously improved by rapid projection. They demand that the sweep of action be emphasized, a result easily achieved by speed. Love scenes and love stories require slower treatment, but in order that a proper change of pace may be registered, such scenes are usually photographed at a slower tempo. Were the producers assured that their pictures would always be shown at a twelve-minute pace, such change of pace would be provided for in the studio."

"It is seldom that a picture is shown to those most interested in its success in any but the advanced rate of speed, and it seems extremely flattering to the clientele of the first-class houses, in which the patrons may be credited with the ability to read subtitles within the normal time, that it should be presumed that they require a longer time to grasp the dramatic significance of the scenes than do the film critics and officials. And it must be the experience of every exhibitor who has raced the average film, whatever his purpose may have been in so doing, that the interest of the spectators was held at a high pitch when the sweep of action was emphasized by speed."

Ferns Play-Reading Department.

Intelligent co-operation on the part of the operator of a motion-picture machine is a most desirable factor, the importance of which can not be overestimated.

The Goldwyn Pictures Corporation has announced the formation of a new play reading department to sift through the 2,000 or 3,000 plays which become available through the recent affiliation of the Shubert, Woods and Selwyn organization with the Goldwyn concern. Heretofore a scenario reading department has been maintained at both the Culver City studios and in New York. The work done in these offices has been conferred on the reading and passing upon the fitness for picturization of novels and stories.

However, since the expansion and the growth of scenario writing all over the country it has been necessary for the big studios to create new departments for the reading and passing on scenarios. They have been literally swamped in the past, but most of them are now prepared to receive and either accept or reject a scenario within a period of two to three weeks. Many new writers are constantly bobbing up and their stories are quickly being bought up and the film rights secured.

Unusual opportunities are presented for the telling of stories in pictures and the country is being combed for those who have the faculty of producing good photoplays. For those who can successfully portray their thoughts along motion-picture lines, a fortune awaits them.

OUGHT TO GIVE BETTER SERVICE.

A writer in the American Legion Weekly calculates that nearly nine-tenths of the former service men have let their war risk insurance lapse and while the persistent campaign now being waged to secure reinstatement of the lapsed policies may bring some results, it seems fair to say that the bulk of the service men are opposed to the continuance of the war risk insurance, and that while there is diversity of opinion as to the way of their displeasure, the result tots up about the same.

One criticism that we hear talked among the men carrying the insurance is the installment payment feature whereby the beneficiary may draw only one-twentieth of the face of the policy at a time. Another reason is the "psychological situation," to which the War Risk Bureau itself attributes the large percentage of lapses. But more numerous given than either or than any other cause mentioned is the "service" the policyholders have received from the War Risk Bureau, which is apparently so overcrowded with detail that it simply cannot keep up with its correspondence satisfactorily to itself or to anybody else. "Frequently when belated replies do come," says the Legion Weekly writer, "they are useless form letters, which have no bearing on the questions asked. The records of the bureau are still in such a state that prompt, intelligent or satisfactory replies to inquiries are often difficult to obtain."

Soldiers fear, too, that congress may take it into its head to make material changes in the policies. "If I take out an old-line policy I know exactly what I'm getting and exactly what it is going to cost," said a local soldier the other day. "If I take out a temporary policy I know just when I get through paying for it, and I can arrange, too, just how the policy shall be paid in the event of my death." It is a pity that the 4,000,000 young men who took out the war risk insurance cannot be induced to carry their policies, because they are cheaper than anything they can get elsewhere and, all things considered, they are as good as they could get from old line companies. It is a greater pity that the administration of the War Risk Bureau has not been such as to compel confidence in it from the men dealing with it, that its "service" to its patrons—I. e., its policyholders—has disgusted many of them and dissatisfied many more.

OUR EXTRAVAGANCE.

"...the bulk of spring buying," reads a recent market review, "has been on the higher-priced lines, and there seems to be no call at all for the cheap merchandise." And in that statement, the correctness of which is not to be doubted, lies one of the really big factors in the high cost of living of which we hear much and read much and for the existence of which we buy only "the higher-priced lines" are measurably responsible. A merchant the other day told an experience that demonstrates not only our extravagance, but our downright silliness, to put it mildly. "We had some women's shoes he couldn't sell at $10, but he found that marked up to $18 they sold readily." Apropos of which a salesman tells the story of a farmer who came in to buy a suit of overalls and when told the price called the storekeeper a point-blank robber and profited. The storekeeper finally satisfied the man that the price was not unreasonable and made the sale. As the farmer went out of the store he saw the silk shirt. For two that pleased him he paid $18 without whispering about the price or apparently even considering it! But he did go off muttering to himself about the exorbitant price of overalls.

We wonder if there aren't some republicans presidential hopefuls shaking in their shoes at the result in Massachusetts. Governor Quigley's tremendous victory will turn many eyes in his direction as the "Republican Moses," and he has actions instead of utterances to show where he stands on Bolshevism and IWWism.

GERMANS WORKING THE HARDEST.

"The people that work the hardest, the most and the longest are the people who will sooner recover from the effects of this war," is the philosophic conclusion of W. G. Shepherd, European correspondent of an American paper, who is contributing to the New York Evening Post an interesting series of articles on the real conditions in Germany. And he adds: "Ask any of the salesmen who have been in Germany recently what nation in Europe is the most hearty at work today." Mr. Shepherd declares that the Germans are doing so much work and are working in such concert that Germany "finds herself able to spend it, like coin, in the world's market," and his own opinion is plain, that he believes Germany will be the first European nation to recover from the effects of the war, despite the staggering indemnities levied upon her by the victors' allies and the handicaps imposed by the peace terms. While the United Kingdom and the United States are reducing work hours, German workmen are voluntarily lengthening theirs—German miners voted recently to increase their hours to eleven until after the threatened fuel crisis was over. With the whole world crying for increased production that the cost of living may be brought back to normality, Germany alone, do we believe Mr. Shepherd, is the one nation where the whole effort of the people is aimed at greater production rather than shorter hours and higher pay where-with to meet the higher cost of living. And who has reason to doubt the correctness of his conclusion—the people that work the hardest, the most and the longest are the people who will sooner recover from the effects of the war."

RED CROSS DRIVE EXTENDED.

The Red Cross roll call has been extended eleven more days because the rains and impassable roads have interfered with or actually prevented solicitations in many districts. The extension of time is especially fortunate here in Wichita county where we got away to a slow start, and it will be taken advantage of, we are sure, to bring the county's total to the point it deserves to be.

The Red Cross is asking for members on the one basis of service to the public. It is still aiding in the reconstruction program overseas and in the relief work in some war-stricken sections where it was best prepared to handle it. But from now on the original work put under way by the Red Cross will be mainly at home. It is doing home-service work, home nursing work, just as Red Cross work in the schools, home charities as well.

The man who contributes a dollar for a year's membership in this great organization may do it secure in the knowledge that that dollar will be spent in the service of humanity with a maximum of efficiency and economy and a minimum of extravagance or waste.

If a concomitant of a butchers' strike everywhere is as it is in Chicago—strikes establishing meat markets at which the choicest steaks retail at 10c a pound—we may hear soon of the public fomenting such strikes. Now if all the strikers would put out that sort of propaganda—if the striking miners would start coal yards to sell coal at $3 a ton, if the striking clothing makers would start shops to sell clothes at a 50 per cent discount from regular prices, if the striking street car men would establish jitney buses to haul passengers at 25c fare—if such things resulted from every strike, strikes would soon be popular and we would be giving honor medals to every strike leader. Suppose the strike leaders try it that way for a while?

Victor L. Berger has been unseated and his seat in Congress declared vacant. Berger was convicted of espionage shortly after his election, and there was never a doubt but that Congress would turn "thumbs down" whenever it came to a vote. But action required a full year, during all of which time Berger had his office in the House building, the franking privilege, mileage and the $7,500 a year. The vote was 309 to 175 in favor of ousting the Milwaukee representative.

"Rather a hundred guilty men go unwhipped of justice than one innocent man suffer for a crime he did not commit," is one of those unfounded aphorisms which has turned hundreds of guilty men loose. At that, it isn't needed much in Texas, for what with complaint juries and trial courts in the first place, the suspended law in the second and the unlimited pardoning power in the third, it's a rather remote chance that many of the guilty will suffer, much less any of the innocents.

Wichita Falls continues to smash records. Now it is in bank clearing with a total last week of $5,948,977, an increase of $1,715,378 over the previous week, bringing the total for the past forty-five weeks to almost $175,000,000 and setting a new high mark over all previous records of $400,000.

GOD'S INSTRUMENT

He who has smoothed another's way
And left a long-remembered day
With one whose heart was sick with pain,
Need never say he's lived in vain.
He who has done one kindly deed
And served another's hour of need,
Has truly justified his birth
And made this world a richer earth.

He who has borne his share of grief
And never faltered in belief,
But through it all has kept his trust
That God knows best and God is just,
May die content to such a plan;
For he has truly played the man
And rich or poor, that man shall be
Fit spirit for eternity.

He who has given as he could,
And spent his strength for what is good—
Has helped the weary and the weak,
No other goal from life may seek.
He who has tried to play the friend
Shall come to glory at life's end
And find to his serene content
That he has been God's instrument.

WHY MARRIED PEOPLE LOOK ALIKE.

One often hears it said that people who have been married a great many years grow to look alike. I think this is true, but why is it? A paragraph in a story I was reading the other day seemed to me to put the reason in a very vivid way, although it was not a story about married life. On the contrary, it was about the experience of a little old maid who had been in Brussels when the war broke out and who, in trying to get from Brussels to Paris, was left alone on a field where a battle had been raging and where dozens of wounded and dying men lay without care of any sort. It changed her heart and her face. This tremendous experience which she went through that night, trying to help those men, changed her whole outlook on life. In her own words, "It was like being torn all to pieces, and put together again differently. But to get back to the paragraph that made me understand better why married people sometimes look alike. It was a description of this woman as she looked to a fellow passenger on the ship in which she was finally going back to America. "She had the colorless mawkish of a middle-aged mouse," writes Mrs. Manning, "but her expression was amazing. It started and arrested one. All the old lines of the face were set to small ambitious and sorrowful desires, but the look should have accompanied these things were clean gone, wiped into something big and still and simple." Do you see the connection?

Homeless.
I am sitting in my palace, which is strictly up-to-date; and my Aunt Jezebel says I am a lucky skate; my existence should be sunny, should be sweet as shredded honey, for I have a stack of money, and a figure by the gate. I am sitting in my palace as the evening shades draw near, drinking from a jeweled chalice many quarts of kickless beer; luxuries are all around me, and no creditors confound me, and no sorrows ought to hound me, yet I spring the scalding tear. For my heart is sick with longing for the scenes my childhood knew; for the woods where birds were thronging, and the pastures wet with dew; all the day I'm longing, wishing, for the creek where I went fishing, and old Dobbin, tall and swishing, and the cow that murmured "Moo!" Oh, my present lot is splendid, but I'm thinking with a sigh, of the school that I attended in the happy days gone by; and I hear the buzz and clamor when the teacher used to hammer all the rudiments of grammar into boys, and made them cry. So I weary of my palace, though it is a sight to see, and I'd like to break a gallus climbing up an apple tree; for this stale life never varies, and I'd like to swipe some cherries, and some melons and some berries, and to rob a bumble bee.

Conditions in the Baltic Provinces

By PHILLIP WITZ

The Baltic Provinces, though not large in area and population, nevertheless was always important to the development of Russia; always underscoring new ideas and methods in the commercial activities of the nation, as well as the political life. As a seaport, they had opportunity to mix with foreign element. Very naturally, from their superior opportunities, they were the very first to see and feel the oppression of the iron hand of the then autocratic rule and took the lead in raising their protest against everything crude and barbaric and made themselves heard everywhere, though their voice was stifled in every possible way and means and methods were employed to crush and bury their efforts. The government purposely made themselves deaf and blind to the efforts and appeals of these people, though they well knew that the efforts and appeals were right and justified, and for the sole purpose to cure it all the Cossacks were created, and continued in a most fanatical way to carry out the orders of those in power. Did any one individual take an open stand in these matters it meant sure death or worse than death in the Russian prisons. It would take untold thousands of pages to write of the horrible experiences of these poor down-trodden people, to tell of the lives they lived and the terrible prices paid for their better way of thinking. The prisons all over the country were constantly filled to the doors, but that did not stop these brave people in their efforts to secure a better government for their wonderful land. If ten or even 100 were thrown into jail thousands were ready to step into their places. When the government began to awaken to the state of affairs and realized that not even jail has any effect upon the masses, their first step was forbidding in schools to teach anything but the Russian language, thinking that might be a help in the right direction to gain their ends. But the more progressive teachers always found some means by which they could help the good cause along and secretly aided many a young person in gaining a knowledge of some other language and along with the prescribed lines of study, and this was no easy matter for the government agents were always on the alert and if discovered the teachers were obliged to pay a heavy penalty for their acts, but this did not deter them in their efforts to help their country by helping the young people to enlighten themselves on the subjects of the day, in the outside world, through study and learning.

All the men of the country of military age—from 20 to 45—had no means of leaving the country other than to steal their way over the borders, and many were never heard from again, but they never reached the longed for freedom of the land they sought. Government secret agents were everywhere. And even worse was it for the Jewish race for all those families having sons falling to appear for military duty at the prescribed age the parents were heavily fined, the fine amounting to not less than 300 Russian Rubles, and failure of the parents to pay the fine, through inability or otherwise, the fine was collected from an uncle or any other relative who was able to pay it.

An experience in the family of the writer was this. When the eldest brother was about 15 years of age he secretly made his way out of the country and came to the United States. The authorities soon discovered his absence and a few years later very unexpectedly one of the government agents called at our home, demanding the customary fine. The parents at that time were not financially able to pay the cash and everything was inventoried and a date of sale by auction was set. When the auction day arrived everything in the house was sold, not a chair, a pillow or a bed cover of any description was left. Through many long days sufferings were unbearable from being obliged to sleep on cold floors without coverings, to say nothing of the inconvenience of being deprived of the use of other household necessities for it was long before we were able to gather together a few things to make ourselves more comfortable.

This is just one instance of the trials that came to the average family in the Baltic Provinces, who have sanctioned the going to other lands of their sons.

In the next article I will begin to dwell upon the beginning of the early revolution, especially in the city of Riga, and the Baltic Provinces, which quickly spread throughout the country.

WALKING UNDER DIFFICULTIES

according to Carlos Avery, state game and fish commissioner. Thousands of hunters have been on the ground for days. Many women have joined the ranks. Deep snow will necessitate snow shoe hunting in many localities. Deer and moose are reported unusually plentiful in the northern recesses. Two men have been killed thus far in the season, both being mistaken for game.

"Through foreign marketing of American-made left hand drive automobiles, the United States will eventually bring foreign countries to adopt the American system of traffic movement on the streets," predicts S. M. How, general sales manager of The Maynes Automobile Company. "In many foreign countries the rule for traffic is 'keep to the left,' or just the opposite to the way our vehicles move," says Mr. How, "and as a result, the foreign buyers of American cars demand right-hand-drive cars—that is, cars with the driver's wheel on the right-hand side of the automobile. This is a natural demand, for the same reason that we in this country demand an automobile with the wheel on the left side. It is more convenient and safer in every way. In this connection it is interesting to note the origin of the custom by which vehicles go in opposite directions pass to the left and not to the right. In the early days in England when horse-drawn coaches were the prevalent means of transportation through the narrow streets, the coachman's whip with its long lash had to obtain its play on the side of the coach away from the side of the road. And as the driver manipulated his whip with his right hand, it was found necessary to have vehicles pass to the left. Many other countries adopted the passing to the left idea, partly because of the narrow streets and partly because England had set custom. But now that horse-drawn vehicles and the coachman's whip have practically disappeared and the automobile has become the predominant means of transportation in most countries, the reason for the left-hand rule does not hold. But the tradition remains and we find foreign buyers of American automobiles still insisting upon right-hand drive cars.

"However, this insistence on the part of the foreign buyers for right-hand drive cars slows down automobile production as it calls for special operations, and it devolves upon the American automobile industry to educate foreign countries to the American system in street traffic. The United States is just now successfully finishing the tremendous task of installing American ideals and standards of democracy and political freedom in the peoples of Europe; she is gradually but surely establishing purely American principles in Latin America. Now it is up to the third leading industry in the United States to put in effect the Yankee system of traffic movement in foreign countries, thus doing away with any necessity for right-hand drive automobiles. The world in general is a right-handed world and to have traffic moving on the left side of the street is necessarily awkward. People, by instinct, keep to the right, and the only reason foreign traffic moves the other way is because of the strong hold that tradition has in those countries. A skillful campaign by the American automobile industry will eventually effect the desired change, with the result that a great number of American-made automobiles will be seen on foreign highways.

M'FALL AGENCY DELIVERS SEVERAL COMMERCIAL CARS

McFall Brothers, Dodge Brothers dealers, report quite a few sales on the commercial or screen body jobs, having made delivery to several candy houses and hardware firms. This type of car is proving extremely popular because of the splendid service they are giving as well as the low cost of haulage. They have been quite fortunate in securing several car loads of touring cars during the past month which has enabled them to teach up considerably on deliveries of this model car. However, they are still far behind on deliveries for the roadsters. This condition has been somewhat aggravated by the opening up of the new oil field here recently which has been the occasion for various oil companies placing additional orders for roadsters, which a number of them have established as their standard car. In one of the recent car loads of cars McFall Brothers received one of the late model Dodges which they now have on their floor.

BANNON MOTOR IS A MECHANICAL NOVELTY

Revolution Of Steam Engineering Methods Promised By Performances.

Among the recent inventions brought to the notice of the mechanical world is a rotary steam motor, perfected by Frank A. Bannon, formerly a lieutenant in the air service at Camp Field. While stationed at the local field Lieutenant Bannon interested the support of Major Neville, chief engineer, and Major Alfante, commanding officer, and he was accorded many privileges in the way of leaves of absence to work and experiment, and given the use of expert mechanics to help in the work. When he had completed the model army officers, civilian engineers and others were invited to see the test. The small motor, no larger than a hat was put to the brake test and it was found it developed 17 horsepower. Another and larger engine was built weighing 600 pounds, 24 inches in width and 20 inches long and when the brake test was applied with 200 pounds steam pressure, 75 horsepower was developed. Other engines of various sizes were built, so that Mr. Bannon has perfected and received patents on engines from one horsepower to 500 horse-power and from the slowest to 3500 revolutions per minute. Then he associated himself with other men, after his discharge from the army, for the purpose of commercializing his experiments and began to manufacture the engines for commercial use.

Briefly described, the Bannon Rotary Motor is a compact steam engine of three working parts: an eccentric piston keyed to the drive shaft and two sliding gates which operate with their ends forming contact with the periphery of the piston. These three parts are the heart and soul of the engine and, it is claimed, that any man, whether mechanic or not, can quickly tear down or rebuild a Bannon engine, because its essentials are so simple and easily understood. It is further claimed that the new motor can be manufactured at less than one-fifth of the cost of any other engine of the same horsepower, due to the simplicity of construction.

MAXWELL WINS FIRST PRIZE AT DIXIE SHOW

That a Maxwell took first honors before thousands of people who thronged the grandstand and adjoining spaces at the Tennessee State Fair is the gratifying information recently received by S. Bamrod & Supply Co., local agents. Contrary to auto shows of other fairs, driving was not the chief factor but it was the cars themselves. W. W. Dilliox, Adjutant General of Tennessee, Baxter Sweeney and Major Hoagland, U. S. A. were named judges of the show. Six classes were up for judge-

ing. In each one first, second, and third prizes were awarded.

In the first class, cars $1,000 and under, a Maxwell driven by Mrs. Ed Polk won first honors. Second prize went to a Ford driven by S. S. McMurray. A Ford coupe driven by Egbert Hill was third.

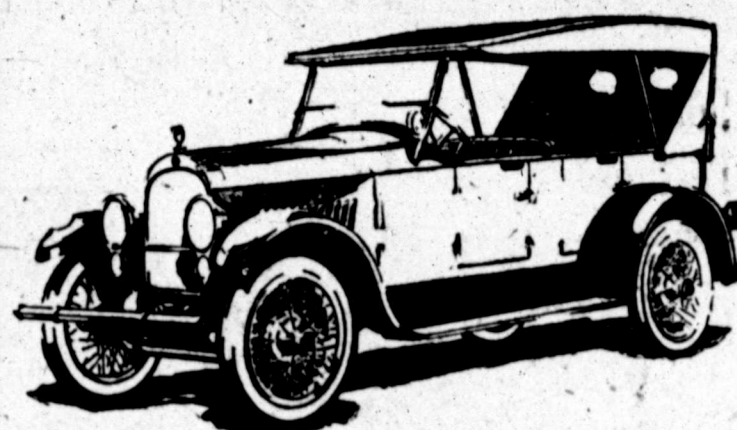

EXPERT CALLS MAXWELL ULTIMATE IMPROVEMENT

E. Y. Watson, automobile editor of the Detroit Free Press, recently visited the Maxwell-Chalmers booth at the Michigan State Fair. Mr. Watson is considered one of the best posted automotive authorities at the hub of the motor world and his comment, as clipped from the Free Press, August 31, by S. Bamrod, is a remarkable tribute from a capable, disinterested expert: "The 1920 Maxwell with its sleek lines, hot spot and ram's horn manifold attracts its crowds of gazers as the ultimate improvement of a standard design. The Chalmers, its stablemate, is of the same family and known for like qualities in higher degree."

WANT CARS TO LOOK LIKE NEW SAYS AUTO PAINTER

Automobile owners of Wichita Falls are beginning to realize the value of having their old cars painted in good shape, according to George S. O'Daniel of the O'Daniel Automobile Painting Works, who stated in his 5 years of experience in the auto painting game he had never seen a larger percentage of owners who desired to keep their cars looking new than the trade he has enjoyed since the opening of his new establishment last March. The demand for painting has been so great that he has been forced to increase the capacity of his up-to-date plant to the point where he can turn out painting jobs in wholesale numbers.

"WESTCOTT" LARGER SIX

DELIVERIES MADE NOW

THE WESTCOTT MARK

The most accurate guide to car values is the experience of actual owners. Car buyers know this and they will frequently go to great lengths to obtain interviews with owners of the particular car under consideration. Owners of late model Westcotts can be most easily discovered by watching the stream of traffic for the odd-shaped, orange-colored WESTCOTT MARK which appears on the radiator shell and the hub caps of the car. Earlier models were not distinguished in just this way but are readily recognized by the distinctive lines of the radiator which are the same as shown in cut.

The Road—In New Overland 4 on Three-Point Cantilever Springs

YOU expect a bad road to ride as it looks. It did, until the introduction of the Overland 4 Springbase.

Overland 4 does not change the road, but it does change the manner in which you can ride on it. It gives you comfort instead of discomfort. It gives you a smooth, sailing sensation instead of bouncing and swaying.

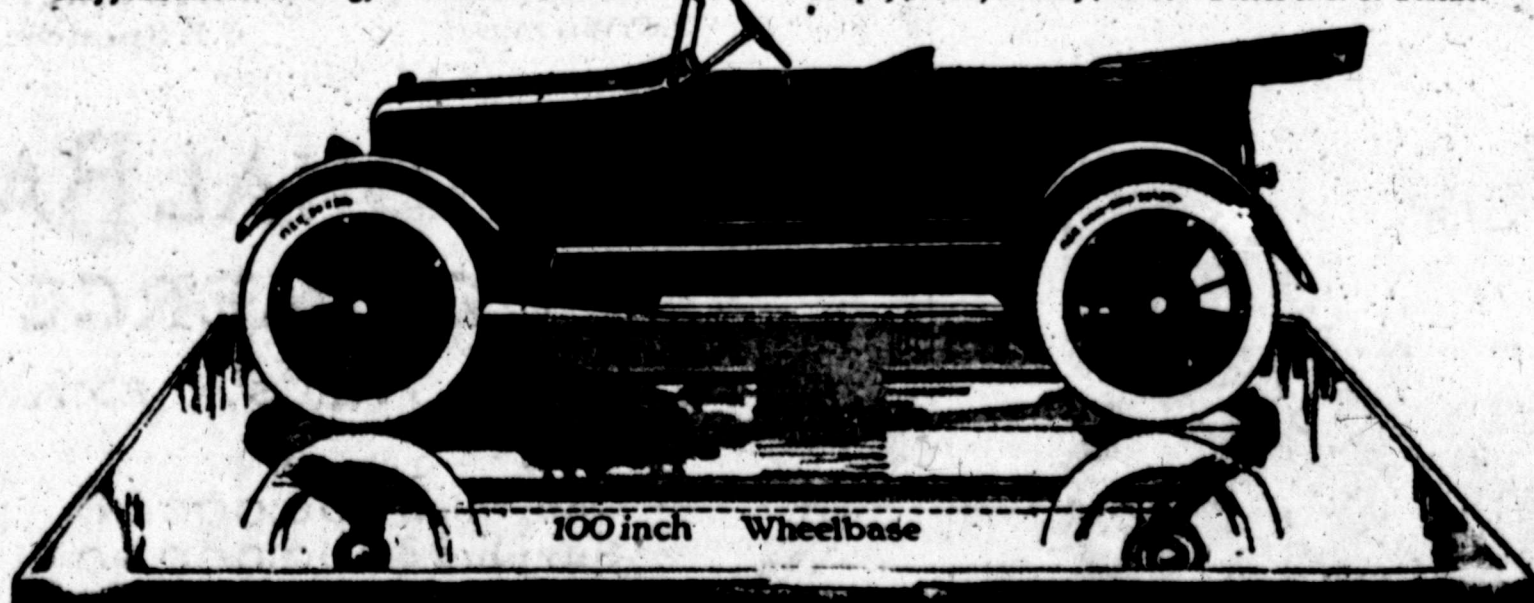

The Diagonal attachment of Three-Point Cantilever Springs at the ends of a 130-inch Springbase gives long wheelbase road steadiness. Yet Overland 4 retains all the advantages—lightness, economy, and ease of handling, of 100-inch wheelbase.

This means an altogether new standard of riding comfort, a noteworthy reduction in the wear and tear which lessens the efficiency of a car. The new springs give longer life to every part and thus minimize upkeep and replacement costs.

Tires wear longer because cushioned against hammering blows. Light weight means marked economy in gas, oil and running expense.

Overland 4's equipment is complete from Auto-Lite Starting and Lighting to Demountable Rims.

Come in and see this remarkable car. Ask for booklet. Overland 4 Touring, $845; Roadster, $845; Coupe, $1325; Sedan, $1375. Prices f. o. b. Toledo.

Look at the Yancey map—We are right over the largest dome and anticline that he found in his year of research, with eleven assistants. He knows his business. When he put the pool under Burkburnett we all laughed and no drilling was started for three years afterwards. Now look. Every prediction he made has come to pass, save where they have not drilled—why not take a chance with us. We feel confident that we are right and will win; a little more stock left. CARE OF CARBURETOR A WINTER NECESSITY

SLOW RESPONSE FROM "GAS" MAKES FREQUENT ADJUSTMENTS NECESSARY.

In cold weather gasoline does not vaporize as it does in higher temperatures, resulting in all sorts of engine troubles from hard starting to lack of power. As gasoline gets colder it becomes, we might say, thicker or heavier, and then instead of flowing freely through the nozzle of the carburetor it has difficulty in getting through at all, especially on starting up. In order to make the action clear, imagine the gasoline to be as thick as mud. The latter cannot be forced through a very small opening such as a carburetor nozzle and formed into a fine spray. It might be forced through but it would run down the side of the nozzle or be pushed into the manifold in the form of drops. Cold gasoline does just that.

Starting Engine.
On starting a cold engine on these days of poor (heavy) gasoline even on a moderately warm day it is necessary to apply the choke. This is done in order that a large amount of gasoline will be drawn through the nozzle in the hope that in that large amount there is enough of a volatile nature to get into the combustion chamber and explode. It is the same reason that you prime the engine through the pet cocks or a special primer. You introduce into the combustion chamber a comparatively large amount of fuel the greater part of which is so heavy that it will not vaporize even with ordinary heat applied. The remainder, though a small portion of the whole, forms a sufficiently large volatile volume to start an explosion, which is all that is necessary. The trouble with priming and with keeping the choke applied is that it wastes fuel and also lets into the engine a quantity of gasoline which does no work. In fact it is harmful. If we may say the production of carbon and oil contamination are really harmful. The gasoline that does not vaporize does not all go out through the exhaust. Some of it does, but much burns with a flame and deposits carbon. Some also flows down the sides of the pistons and gets into the crank case, where it mixes with the oil. Both conditions are not the best for engine and of the two the oil dilution is the worst. The oil is thinned and weakened, hence lubrication of the entire engine is impaired.

Using a Primer.
The owner can overcome some of these difficulties by making a few changes and observing certain facts. First install a primer, but instead of using ordinary gasoline use a mixture of gasoline and commercial ether. This gives firing immediately, providing the spark is good, and avoids using a large quantity of fuel to get initial firing. Secondly, avoid keeping the choke applied longer than necessary. So much for getting started. After the engine is started, it should run at such a temperature that the fuel will be vaporized before it gets into the combustion chamber. This does three things: It saves fuel, gives more power, and keeps the engine clean. The same results practically are had if the fuel is preheated enough and kept so until it reaches the cylinders.

There are various ways in which the engine temperature can be kept up. One is to use a radiator shutter or a radiator cover. When the engine is cold these can be made to keep out the cold or they will so reduce the effective fan draft as to reduce the cooling effect on the water in the radiator. Thermostat control of the water is another method, but it is not considered to have all the advantages of air control. The thermostat block the water passage when the engine is cold so that the water in the radiator will be warmed by the engine. By all means it is necessary for the owner to alter the carburetor hot air opening. While for part of the running it will be advisable to close air control altogether, it also will be found that doing this reduces the power perceptibly, if a means of adjusting a hand control is provided. It should be done. If there is no such means it is obviously impractical to lift the hood and change the size of the air opening. If there is a fuel preheater, or a shutter, I believe, it best to keep the hot air control open only half way. If you find you can get results with it open full, do so, because then you take in cold air which permits of higher volumetric efficiency.

The market now affords various devices for heating the gasoline either for priming or for normal running or both. The electrically operated primers will be found to be especially desirable, as they heat the gasoline by causing it to pass over a red hot coil made so by battery current. Fuel preheaters in constant operation may be of the electrical or exhaust type. The latter are more economical and if properly regulated are perfectly satisfactory. Hot spot unfinishes tend to produce the same effect, but the manifold must have a reasonably large size heated area before it will show good results.

For general all round results, giving the easiest starting normal power, good flexibility and fuel economy, I believe the following will be found just about right. A primer using a highly volatile mixture, with initial mixture preferably heated, hot air control open half way and a heated intake.

LOCAL ENTERPRISE IS RAPIDLY EXPANDING

WESTERN AUTO SUPPLY GROWS TO AN EXCLUSIVE WHOLESALE ESTABLISHMENT.

Expansion of the Western Auto Supply Company's business from a retail, one store business, to an exclusive wholesale supply house with houses in both Wichita Falls and Fort Worth is indicated in the announcement that the Fort Worth wholesale house is being opened at 905-7 Throckmorton and preparations made to move the local business to another location, where only a wholesale trade will be done. The address of the new location will be announced in a short time.

The Wichita Falls house will handle heavy automobile supplies exclusively, while the light merchandise and heavy, as well, will be handled at

Fort Worth. D. C. Wood, owner of the Western Auto Supply Company, has purchased a home in Fort Worth and will move his family there about December 1, moving his office there at the same time. The Wichita Falls manager will be named later. A traveling salesman for the company will also make Wichita Falls headquarters.

Mr. Wood's success in the operation of the business is evidenced by the remarkable growth it has enjoyed, and it will be regretted that his growing business takes him away from Wichita Falls. He is a Rotarian, and has been active in civic matters, and his loss will be felt in business and civic circles.

The JORDAN Silhouette Five

TIME was when we bought motor cars like graphophones—large enough to entertain the neighbors. Our friends now have motor cars of their own. Watch the endless line of motor cars moving down the boulevard. Count the average number of persons carried—it is really less than five.

Occasionally you see seven people in a car, but they all look strangely uncomfortable. The passenger capacity of the New Jordan Silhouette Five is in accord with the size of the average family, which is five persons. It weighs only 2800 pounds.

The chassis of finished mechanical excellence is the lightest on the road for its wheel base. In balance this car is supreme. It holds the road, speeding forward without a tremor, bouncing and swaying never.

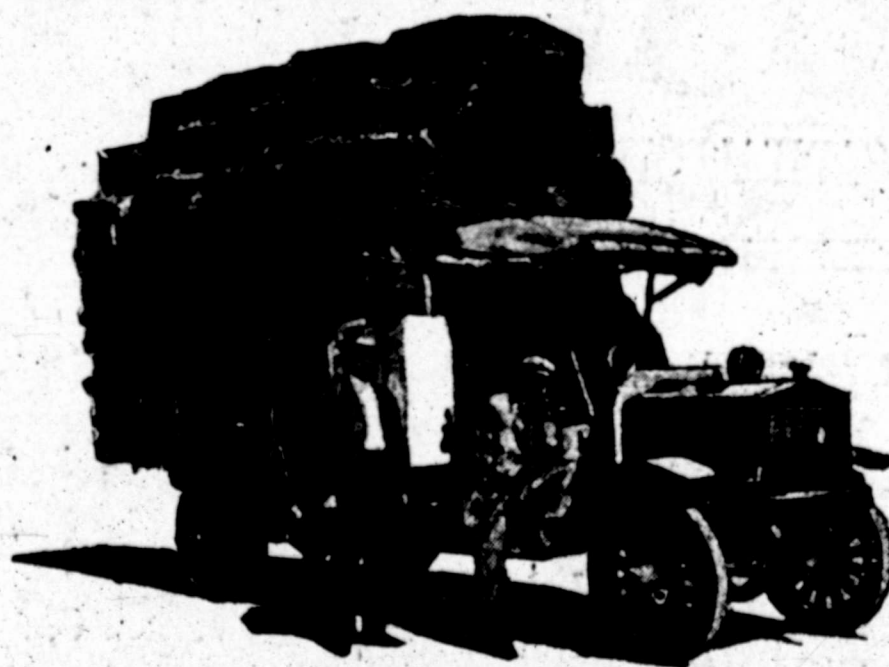

Women with a natural appreciation for comfort, atmosphere and poise, will find this car irresistible in its compelling colors and fashion, comfortable to a delightful degree.

GENERAL WELL AND REPORT OF NEW SAND TURNS INTEREST TO TERRITORY ALONG RED RIVER

New drilling operations in several sections of Wichita county are arousing interest, while the territory along Red River, northwest of the Waggoner pool is of exceptional interest, because of the General Oil Company's well, and the report of an oil sand in the Dawley Brothers test on the Oklahoma side of the river, south of Section 33 in Range 14, Township 4.

Numerous new locations and new rigs are expected to make their appearance in this section in a short time.

Several good completions have been reported from the Waggoner pool, after more than a week in which few completions were reported. Waddill et al are reported to have a 1100 barrel well of their No. 1 Taylor, the Texas Consolidated Oil Company's No. 1 Elisea is estimated at 1300 barrels, the Sura Pop Oil Company's No. 2 Vogel is reported a 1,000 barrel well, the Western Oil Company, No. 1 Elisea, 800 barrels; Wellmar Oil Company, No. 2 Renner, 750 barrels and the West Tennessee Oil Company No. 1 Elisea, and Penny Harris et al, No. 3 Elisea, 500 barrels each.

300,000 Maxwells

How they created a demand for the Post-War Maxwell that cannot be fulfilled

THERE is a demand for the Post-War Maxwell that eight great plants cannot fill.

More than 40,000 persons who set their minds on having one will have to go without.

The cause for this is due largely to the magnificent performance of the 300,000 previous Maxwells.

They delivered such excellent mileage at such low cost that the great American public learned to know this car.

This unprecedented demand is evidence of its deep rooted appreciation. Then when the Post-War Maxwell came out, with its score or more of refinements and improvements developed during the war, the demand for Maxwell reached a new peak.

100,000 are being built during the current year. 40,000 more readily could be marketed.

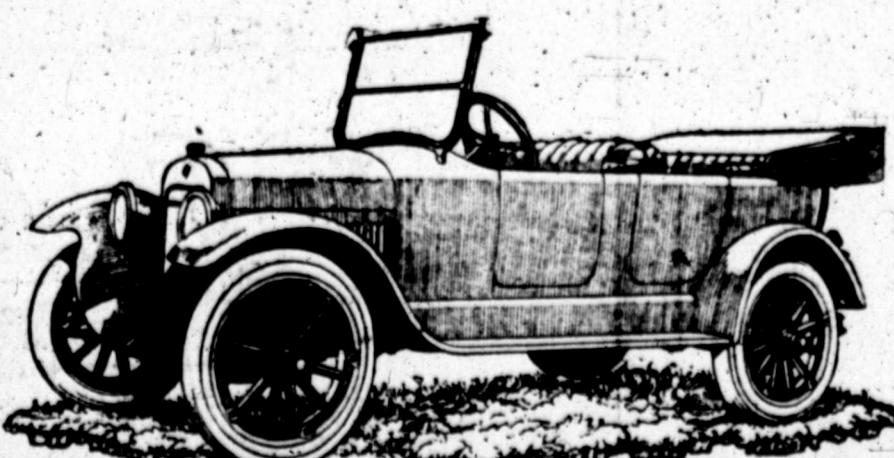

Thousands are priding themselves on possessing one of these Post-War models; thousands more will have their hopes filled; thousands will have to go without.

Which class will you be in?

FIVE DEEP TESTS ARE TO BE DRILLED IN COLLINGSWORTH

TWO RIGS ARE EXPECTED TO BE IN OPERATION WITHIN TEN DAYS.

MUCH ACTIVITY IN LEASING

Work is Also Scheduled to Begin on Additional Wells at an Early Date.

WELLINGTON, TEX., Nov. 15.—

Five deep tests for oil are to be drilled in Collingsworth county. At least two of the rigs will be in active operation inside the next ten days or two weeks. Work is scheduled to begin at once on the additional wells. There is considerable activity in leasing. Many geologists and oil speculators are flocking to the vicinity of Wellington.

Dr. H. D. Barnes, president of the Barnes-Buster Oil Co., has announced that their No. 2 well will be located during the coming week. The No. 1 well is located on section 26 in block 21, being eight miles west of Wellington, county seat of Collingsworth county. The tools for No. 1 well are being shipped from Electric and are scheduled to arrive the first of the week. The derrick is up, the camp house built and everything else is in readiness for work as soon as the tools arrive on the ground.

F. P. Converse, geologist, will act as superintendent during drilling operations for the Barnes-Buster company. Converse is one of the three geologists who have pronounced the territory now under lease by the Barnes-Buster company, as being in the oil district. N. S. Clark will have charge of the drilling.

The Booster Oil Co. is said to have shipped its tools to Wellington, to begin drilling its deep test located about four miles north of the town. This company has taken up large acreage surrounding the well.

The Stokes-Wilson company and associates from Memphis, have let a drilling contract for their No. 1 well, located near the Collingsworth county line. This well is about five miles west of the Barnes-Buster derrick.

The well being drilled by Bray and associates is located ten miles still farther west from the Barnes-Buster well.

Surface indications.

Nearly all geologists who have looked over the land in Collingsworth county declare that there is every surface indication of oil in both the shallow and deep sands. Surface indications are that the oil will be found at from 450 to 1,750 feet in depth.

Childress county, located to the south of Collingsworth, continues to show pep. There are said to be indications on all sides of the town of Childress at the present time. There are seven wildcat wells now drilling in the county.

The Vogel company is building a derrick five miles south of the town of Childress and expects to begin drilling as soon as is possible.

The Cooper well, located two miles east of Childress, which was started during the year 1913 by local people, will be cleaned out. This well is owned by the Denver & Gulf company.

It is claimed by many persons familiar with the drilling of this well, that oil was struck at the shallow depth of eighty feet, also at other deeper depths, also that when the well was cased, there was a good showing of oil. It is not known just how deep the well was drilled at that time.

Shrewsbury.

R. M. Bell and associates, have a well now being drilled in the well being drilled in the town of Childress. The oil was struck at about one hundred feet and is being used.

The Stone Creek Oil & Gas Co., which has a foot of oil sand at 150 feet in their well located seven miles east of Childress. The well is being drilled at 250 feet. A rotary is being used.

The Childress-Duluth, located six miles northeast of Childress, is shut down at a depth of 1160 feet. Several gas and oil showings are reported to have been found. The well is on the Klutts ranch.

The Denver Gulf well, located five miles east of Childress, is down 460 feet. The company is reported to have found the shallow sand at 107 feet.

NEW REGULATION FOR EXPRESS SHIPMENTS

Apply Only To Express Shipments Exceeding 25 Pounds in Weight.

Steps are being taken by M. M. Davis, agent in charge of the city express office to prepare for the new express packing requirements, which go into effect on December 10th. He has been advising shippers to study the new rules, which have been approved by the United States Railroad Administration, so that they may be able to adjust their packing methods to the forthcoming new standards.

Under the new regulations which are embodied in what is known as Supplement No. 5 to Express Classification No. 26, all shipments sent by express weighing over 25 pounds must be packed in wooden containers, or cartons of fibre board, pulp board, or corrugated strawboard material, of specified "test strength." This means, according to Agent Davis that after December 10th, packages over the 25 pound limit will not be accepted for forwarding by the American Railway Express company, handling the express business of the entire country as the agent of the Railroad Administration, if only paper wrapped. Nor will ordinary paper boxes, wrapped or unwrapped be accepted as suitable protection for these heavier shipments.

The regulations, however, do not affect shipments under 25 pounds. Regular shippers, the agent stated, will not be mystified by the new regulations, as they follow very closely the packing requirements long in vogue in the freight service. The express regulations, however, allow a little more latitude in the size of the container used. The enforcement of the new regulations was postponed until December 10 to give the shippers plenty of time to adjust their packing methods.

Mr. Davis expressed the opinion that

MURINE
After the Movies
Wholesome-Cleansing-Refreshing
When Your Eyes Need Care

the new rules will not work any hardship on the shippers, but would work definitely in their interest, as the rules will establish additional safeguards for merchandise in transit. Moreover, they will establish uniformity in express packing rules, which has hitherto been lacking. The new order does not affect the movement of food products by express which are ordinarily shipped in crates or barrels.

"We believe," stated Mr. Davis, in explaining the new regulations, "that the shipping public will welcome the new rules when they understand them and the reasons for putting them into effect."

"Never before in the history of the country has the express traffic reached such proportions as it has today. At the same time, there has been comparatively little increase in the amount of car space available for this business. We have been asked to carry heavy shipments and commodities of every conceivable kind.

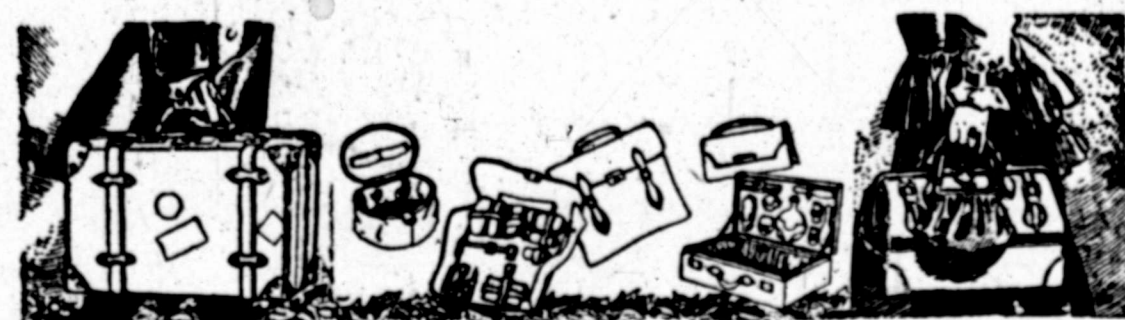

Before the war it was possible for car messengers to spread their freight on the floors of the express cars without much congestion. Today we are running dozens of through cars between the big cities, every car packed to its full capacity. Everyone realizes the local application of the situation due to the large amount of oil business. This has made it necessary for the express shipments to be stacked. As a result, individual shipments have to be so strongly packed as to enable them to stand up for themselves. The stronger containers, we believe, will very perceptibly help to improve express service and to protect the miscellaneous articles of merchandise from damage or interference enroute. Mr. Davis is able to supply shippers with copies of the supplement No. 5 to Express Classification No. 26, in which the new rules are outlined in detail.

U. S. SENATORS FROM TEXAS ARE LOYAL TO THE PRESIDENT IN THEIR SUPPORT OF TREATY

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—During all of the voting that has taken place in the United States Senate on the peace treaty and League of Nations, there has not been cast a vote by either of the Texas Senators which has lined them up with the opponents of the treaty, not even the mild reservationists being able to enlist their sympathy and support. They have stood for the ratification of the treaty with its League of Nations covenant in the identical form in which it was submitted to the Senate by President Wilson. Whether this meets with the approval of a majority of the Texas voters, the two Senators do not appear to care nor to be greatly concerned. Both Senator Culberson and Shepard have been treaty stand-patters ever since that instrument reached the Senate. They have accepted it as one of the responsibilities growing out of the war and agree that the United States can no longer remain outside the pale of world events and participation in all questions affecting the world. That is the way they have been voting and they were hopeful that all reservations and interpretations might be beaten.

Will Back Leader.
When the compromise period is reached and the administration leaders begin jockeying to secure the mildest reservations that can be put through the Senate in accord with President Wilson's position that he is not opposed to any interpretations that merely make clear the attitude of this country as a participant in the league, the Texas Senators will be found backing every move made by Senator Hitchcock, the floor leader of the administration.

Senator Culberson has been doubly committed to the success of the peace treaty. In the first instance, he is one of the "original" Wilson men in the upper branch of Congress. He has lost none of his original admiration for and confidence in Woodrow Wilson. That of itself would have bound the Senator to the treaty, but even stronger than that is the force represented by Colonel E. M. House. A close political partnership has existed between these two Texans for a long term of years, dating back to Senator Culberson's period of service as attorney general and governor of Texas. They have been bosom friends and are to this day. Whenever Colonel House visits Washington, an hour each afternoon is given over to an auto ride through the Washington parks with the Senator. Culberson has frankly and frankly discussed all of the great questions before the Senate.

Colonel House was President Wilson's closest adviser in France when the peace treaty was being framed. He had been to Europe as the personal representative of the President and took up there two questions as an opportunist seeking to keep himself in office through their advocacy. His record in the Senate does not justify this charge. He was for prohibition and suffrage when it was not popular to advocate either. But he has always been quick to give ear to all humanitarian appeals that come to him, and you may be sure they are numerous. Just now he has pending a bill to provide a fund for the support of women unable to properly care for themselves during maternity. He has introduced more bills outlining plans for loan systems for the landless and the homeless, for various educational projects and for the general uplift of humanity than any other one member of the Senate. Evidently, he loves his fellow man.

Treaty Lovers An Appeal.
Possessing such a disposition, there was in the peace treaty that which appeals to his every instinct. His proposal to make war between nations more difficult to provoke, the tribunal for the arbitration and settlement of disputes, the labor conference, the elevation of those small nations that dared not raise their heads in the past, the freeing of certain Christian nations in Europe from Turkish domination—all this and much more in the treaty, made it a document whose appeal he could not resist. By his very nature, it was as certain that Senator Shepard would support the Versailles pact as it was absolutely fixed that he would not listen to the President's suggestion that the war-time ban on liquor be lifted.

However, Senator Shepard's slight errantry, did not spare him from the greed of the Washington landlords. A few weeks ago, the residence he had occupied for several years was sold at a fancy price and notice was served that he must vacate. Then began a night-mare of rounds with real estate men of the capital. It seemed that the mere suggestion that a United States Senator desired to rent a house or an apartment was sufficient to cause the price to try for the altitude of champagne. In final desperation he was forced to purchase a home on Nineteenth street, one of the prettiest and most charming residence sections of Washington, and at last he is freed from the flock of real estate agents that perched about his office during the two weeks the Senator was house-hunting.

EASTERN CAPITAL AWAKENING TO THE VALUE OF FIELDS

"Northern and eastern capital is awakening to the great opportunities offered in Texas oil, but the majority of business men of those sections do not realize what a vast and important factor it is in the financial and industrial life of the nation," said F. A. Gorman, state treasurer of Michigan, here from Detroit with a party of capitalists and business men from Detroit, to look over the Wichita Falls oil fields, and also to inspect the Charles F. Noble properties, in which they are interested.

"I had learned much from my activities on the 'blue sky' board, when Oklahoma stocks were offered to the investors," continued Mr. Gorman. "But those past experiences are actively discounted in the Wichita Falls district activity."

John Bode, vice president of the People State Bank and Trust Co., another prominent member of the party, spoke especially of the activities of Mr. Noble, and the extent of the Noble interests.

"Mr. Noble has certainly built up a big proposition on a permanent basis in a very short time," he said, "and I find that the field is full of such substantial men and organizations."

"There is a wide spread lack of definite information regarding the Turk Burnett field," said M. J. Riser, banker of Saginaw, Mich.

"The magnitude and scope of the developments can not be fully appreciated, until they are seen. I am frank to confess that I had no idea of the real extent, and the wonderful possibilities which the oil fields offer for a sane investment, with level-headed business men, and experienced oil men in charge of operations."

Another member of the party, John Pyle, also a banker, and of Kalamazoo, Mich., admitted that he had considered the newspaper stories, and the word of mouth descriptions as more or less "bunk." After seeing, however, he added, "I'm a convert. In fact I'll admit that the stories are true."

In Memoriam
(To the memory of Jack I. Coats.)
Dear little Jack, so blithe and so gay
God called you early and you went away.

The angel in heaven they envied us
so,
Desiring your presence and you could but go.

Dear little Jack, your mother's so sad
Your father so misses his dear little lad.
Your brothers are lonely and long for you so.

You can't come to them, to you they can go.
Dear little Jack, your sweet sister
May,
Now is so lonesome and wants you to play.

Still she can see you, up in the sky.
You beckon her onward to pleasures on high.

Dear little Jack, we all miss you so,
But you are free, from sorrow, we know.

You bask in the sunshine and warmth of God's love,
And watch for our coming, in heaven
above.

METHODIST MINISTERS HAVE SALARIES RAISED

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—Ministers—at least Methodist ministers—will not have to strike for higher pay.

A general increase in their salaries, in some instances 100 per cent and establishment of minimum salaries that will provide a living wage was announced by the Centenary Conference Committee of the Methodist Episcopal church today.

In 1907 the average Methodist minister's salary was $326. This minimum established in most districts now is $1200. Laymen have taken the initiative in raising the ministers' salaries.

Districts which individually have taken steps for "a living wage" are: Des Moines, Iowa, and Nebraska conferences, $1500 and parsonage; Southern Illinois Conference, $1300 and parsonage; South Dakota, $1400 and parsonage; Portland, Oregon, conference, $1200 to $1800.

The idea of numbering houses originated in Paris some 400 years ago, though it was not until 1759 that the system became general.

HOW TITLES ARE PICKED For MOTION PICTURES

WHO picks the titles for motion pictures? How do they do it and where is it done?

Do the authors or the scenario writers send in titles with their stories, or is the whole question left to the producer? These are the questions which puzzle the outsider. To one who is not familiar with the inside workings of the motion-picture industry it is generally supposed that the author sends in the titles, but as a matter of fact the titles are selected in the studio by experts. It is very seldom that even if the author does submit titles that they withstand the scrutiny of the experts as they prepare the film for the public.

How many pictures have been made or marred by subtitles? The answer is, scores.

What system of handling this very important part of a photoplay is most likely to produce uniformly satisfactory results? Most motion pictures are seen by hundreds of thousands of persons, representing practically every phase of life and mentality in this country and foreign lands.

The "Jury" System.

In devising innovations in production that are bound to bring about superior photoplays, producers are giving considerable thought to the selection of titles. Samuel Goldwyn, in a recent conversation, says that he has considered them from all angles and finally conceived what he calls the "jury system," a plan that is justifying his confidence in the benefits to be derived from getting a consensus of opinion as to what "does over" with the great audience reached by motion pictures.

The recently formed "title jury" is composed of men and women in the organization who from experience and temperament see things from different viewpoints. The jury comprises those with a literary training and others without any training of any kind. An effort is made to have this body typical of the average motion-picture audiences as they are found in all parts of the country, in small theaters as well as the large.

When a new production is viewed by the committee, it contains titles written by the title editor, but they are subject to change and sometimes removal entirely. If the jury finds for one reason or another they fail to carry the desired point, either in making the story clear or in putting over a laugh.

Title Must Have Entire Approval.

It is figured that the director, scenario editor and even the title writer are so close to their work that they know a story backwards, and what may seem perfectly clear to them may appear vague to an audience that sees a picture without any previous knowledge as to what it concerns. Sometimes it is found that a number of the jury is doubtful about the meaning of a word or a phrase used in a title, in which case a substitute is found. Before a title is considered satisfactory it must meet with the approval of everyone on the committee.

In striking an average which keeps a production from going over the heads of an audience unaccustomed to subtle phraseology, or the slang of the Broadway, particular attention is paid to titles of a humorous nature. Experience has shown that "smart" titles which may appeal to the particularly sophisticated sense of humor are likely to fall flat with a large percentage of photoplaygoers.

Imagination is the quality the motion-picture industry can not do without if it is to get out of the rut it has long been in, due alone to neglect. Producers have got to co-operate with the creative writers if the public is to escape the monotonous round of mere footage production of conventional plays.

From the viewpoint of eminent authors, we emphasize the value of the story in pictures, and also the value of continuity. Everyone realizes that a photoplay can rise no higher than its source and that the source is the story.

DORIS MAY,

VIOLA DANA,
who doesn't care a rap about titles

MARION DAVIES,
who gives personal attention to photoplay titles

its merits. And in nine cases out of ten the picture gains through the advanced speed of the projection.

Emotions Dramatized to Be Effective.

The standard rate of projection was fixed in an effort to screen action at about the same tempo in which it was originally enacted. In this way, it was figured, a natural, life-like representation of that action could be obtained. But it is only in speed that there is not an inevitable exaggeration or "dramatization" of everything that is photographed for dramatic effect. Emotions are dramatized so that they may register more effectively; costumes of a period other than today are dramatized by compromise with the prevailing modes, so that they may not seem uncouth or even comic to the eyes accustomed to regard the up-to-the-minute creations of the fashionable modistes as the best word in beauty. And in the same way, the good director distorts all things in nature so that he may throw his high lights where they belong, so that the attention of the spectator may be fixed on such points as will maintain his interest in the story at concert pitch. For the same reason there should be an exaggeration of speed or pace, an exaggeration that can be more effectively engineered from the projection booth than in the studio, especially since the varying rates of projection make it necessary for the director to preserve a tempo that will not become ridiculously fast when the print is raced.

Action Improved by Rapid Projection.

Stories in which physical action predominates are, as a rule, tremendously improved by rapid projection. They demand that the sweep of action be emphasized, a result easily achieved by speed. Love scenes and love stories require slower treatment, but in order that a proper change of pace may be registered, such scenes are usually photographed at a slower tempo. Were the producers assured that their pictures would always be shown at a twelve-minute pace, such change of pace would be provided for in the studio.

It is seldom that a picture is shown to those most interested in its success in any but the advanced rate of speed, and it seems extremely unflattering to the clientele of the first-class houses, in which the patrons may be credited with the ability to read subtitles within the normal time, that it should be presumed that they require a longer time to grasp the dramatic significance of the scenes than do the film critics and officials. And it must be the experience of every exhibitor who has raced the average film, whatever his purpose may have been in so doing, that the interest of the spectators was held at a high pitch when the sweep of action was emphasized by speed.

Forms Play-Reading Department.

Intelligent co-operation on the part of the operator of a motion-picture machine is a most desirable factor, the importance of which can not be overestimated.

The Goldwyn Pictures Corporation has announced the formation of a new play reading department to sift through the 2,000 or 3,000 plays which become available through the recent affiliation of the Shubert, Woods and Selwyn organization with the Goldwyn concern. Heretofore a scenario reading department has been maintained at both the Culver City studios and in New York. The work done in these offices has been conferred on the reading and passing upon the fitness for picturization of novels and stories.

However, since the expansion and the growth of scenario writing all over the country it has been necessary for the big studios to create new departments for the reading and passing on scenarios. They have been literally swamped in the past, but most of them are now prepared to receive and either accept or reject a scenario within a period of two to three weeks. Many new writers are constantly bobbing up and their stories are quickly being bought up and the film rights secured.

Unusual opportunities are presented for the telling of stories in pictures and the country is being combed for those who have the faculty of producing good photoplays. For those who can successfully portray their thoughts along motion-picture lines, a fortune awaits them.

Siberian graphite is said to be nearly equal to the product of Ceylon.

The average marrying age for men is now over 25, and for women nearly 27.

The suicide rate in Germany was, before the war, the highest in the world—21 per 100,000 yearly.

The most remarkable bird colony in the world is on Hat Island, in the Great Salt Lake, Utah. The island is about 15 acres in extent, and on a rocky pinnacle 100 feet above the brine, with not a drop of fresh water to be found and apparently having nothing to attract the birds except the sense of security which the island offers.

ers who can be relied on to do big things directly for the screen. They will find it worth their while to master screen technique and so interpret fully the subjects submitted in novels or short story form.

Eminent Authors Co-operating.

We believe that the established writer of national reputation should continue to write as he is inspired for his great public and that he should then work with continuity writers who are familiar with the motion-picture angle. The public will get more artistic plays when those men and women who adapt the stories are equal in intelligence, mental equipment and imagination to those who write the original stories. There are not enough good continuity writers today.

After a good story is secured and a good continuity prepared, a good director is required. Even then if a story is cut to fit the needs of some particular star the story will suffer. In eminent authors' pictures the story is not sacrificed. Actors are obtained who will and are capable of representing the characters the author had in mind. On this basis the director can go ahead and make a production that represents the best that is in him.

Directors Demanding Good Stories.

He has suffered more in the past from the undue exploitation of the star's personality and the star's limitations than he has from the interference of the author. The best directors of the present time are demanding good stories, good continuity and co-operation of the author as far as it helps in the building up of the screen drama.

The question of preservation of continuity and particularly to the proper length of titles is a topic now being discussed in the Motion Picture Press.

"We are already pledged to 'natural length' features," said T. A. Liebler, Jr., in a recent interview; "that is to say, the footage of its releases is dictated by the requirements of the subject, and not by any fancied necessity to approximate a certain number of even thousand feet. There will be neither padding in our pictures nor cuts interfering with the flow of action such as are often made with the design to prevent the feature from running over on to another reel."

Of almost equal importance to the elimination of padding and the preservation of continuity is the maintenance of a proper speed in projection. The practice of the double-feature day houses and those desiring a quick turnover on week end or holiday nights in running off reels at a twelve-minute speed, necessitates the manufacture of pictures that will not suffer when projected at this speed. This is the speed, too, at which the picture is, as a rule, originally shown in the projection room to the reviewers, and to the officials of the company passing on

A writer in the American Legion Weekly calculates that nearly nine-tenths of the former service men have let their war risk insurance lapse and while the persistent campaign now being waged to secure re-instatement of the lapsed policies may bring some results, it seems fair to say that the bulk of the service men are opposed to the continuance of the war risk insurance, and that while there is diversity of opinion as to the why of their displeasure, the result tops up about the same.

One criticism that we hear talked among the men carrying the insurance is the installment payment feature whereby the beneficiary may draw only one-twentieth of the face of the policy at a time. Another reason is the "psychological situation," to which the War Risk Bureau itself attributes the large percentage of lapses. But more numerous given than either of these is the fact that the "service" the policyholders have received from the War Risk Bureau, which is apparently so overcrowded with detail that it simply cannot keep up with its correspondence satisfactorily to itself or to anybody else. "Frequently when belated replies do come," says the Legion Weekly writer, "they are useless form letters, which have no bearing on the questions asked. The records of the bureau are still in such a state that prompt, intelligent or satisfactory replies to inquiries are often difficult to obtain."

Soldiers fear, too, that congress may take it into its head to make material changes in the policies. "If I take out an old-line policy I know exactly what I'm getting and exactly what it is going to cost," said a local soldier the other day. "If I take out a term policy I know just when I get through paying for it, and I can arrange, too, just how the policy shall be paid in the event of my death." It is a pity that the 4,000,000 young men who took out the war risk insurance cannot be induced to carry their policies, because they are cheaper than anything they can get elsewhere and, all things considered, they are as good as they could get from old line companies. It is a greater pity that the administration of the War Risk Bureau has not been such as to compel confidence in it from the men dealing with it, that its "service" to its patrons—i. e., its policyholders—has disgusted many of them and dissatisfied many more.

OUR EXTRAVAGANCE.

"The bulk of spring buying," reads a recent market review, "has been on the higher-priced lines, and there seems to be no call at all for the cheap merchandise." And in that statement, the correctness of which is not to be doubted, lies one of the really big factors in the high cost of living of which we hear much and read much and for the existence of which we who buy only "the higher-priced lines" are measurably responsible. A merchant the other day told an experience that demonstrates not only our extravagance, but our downright silliness, to put it mildly. He had some women's shoes he couldn't sell at $10, but he found that marked up to $15 they sold readily. A group of which a salesman tells the story of a farmer who came in to buy a suit of overalls and when told the price called the storekeeper a point-blank robber and profited. The storekeeper finally satisfied the man that the price was not unreasonable and made the sale. As the farmer went out of the store he saw the silk shirts. For two that pleased him he paid $15 without whispering about the price or apparently even considering it! But he did go off muttering to himself about the exorbitant price of overalls.

We wonder if there aren't some republicans presidential candidates shagging in their shoes at the amount in Massachusetts. Governor Coolidge's tremendous victory will turn heads even in his direction as the republican Moses, and he has options instead of utterances to show where he stands on Bolshevism and IWWism.

GERMANS WORKING THE HARDEST.

"The people that work the hardest, the most and the longest are the people who will soonest recover from the effects of this war," is the philosophic conclusion of W. G. Shephard, European correspondent of an American paper, who is contributing to the New York Evening Post an interesting series of articles on the real conditions in Germany. And he adds: "Ask any of the salesmen who have been in Germany recently what nation in Europe is the most heartily at work today." Mr. Shephard declares that the Germans are doing so much work and are working in such object that Germany "finds herself able to spend it like coin in the world's market," and his own opinion is plain, that he believes Germany will be the first European nation to recover from the effects of this war, despite the staggering indemnities levied upon her by the victors, and the handicaps imposed by the peace terms. While the United Kingdom and the United States are reducing work hours, German workmen are voluntarily lengthening theirs—German miners voted recently to increase their hours to eleven and a half after the threatened fuel crisis was over. With the whole world crying for increased production that the cost of living may be brought back to normality, Germany alone, do we believe Mr. Shephard, is the one nation where the whole effort of the people is aimed at greater production rather than shorter hours and higher pay where-with to meet the higher cost of living. And who has reason to doubt the correctness of his conclusion—"the people that work the hardest, the most and the longest are the people who will soonest recover from the effects of the war."

RED CROSS DRIVE EXTENDED.

The Red Cross roll call has been extended eleven more days because the time and impassable roads have interfered with actually prevented solicitations in many districts. The extension of time is especially fortunate here in Wichita county where we got away to a slow start, and it will be taken advantage of, we are sure, to bring the county's total to the point it deserves to be.

The Red Cross is asking for members on the one basis of service to the public. It is still aiding in the reconstruction program overseas and in the relief work in some war-stricken sections where it was best prepared to handle it. But from now on the original work put under way by the Red Cross will be mainly at home. It is doing home-service work, home nursing work, Junior Red Cross work in the schools, home charities as well.

The man who contributes a dollar for a year's membership in this great organization may do it secure in the knowledge that the dollar will be spent in the service of humanity with a maximum of efficiency and economy and a minimum of extravagance or waste.

If a concomitant of a butchers' strike everywhere is as it is in Chicago—strikes establishing meat markets at which the choicest steaks retail at 15c a pound—we may hear soon of the public fomenting such strikes. Now if all the strikers would put out that sort of propaganda—if the striking miners would start coal yards to sell coal at $3 a ton, if the striking clothing makers would start shops to sell clothes at a 50 per cent discount from regular prices, if the striking street car men would establish jitney buses to haul passengers at 25c fare—if such things resulted from every strike, strikes would soon be popular and we would be giving honor medals to every strike leader. Suppose the strike leaders try it that way for a while?

Victor L. Berger has been unseated and his seat in Congress declared vacant. Berger was convicted of espionage shortly after his election, and there was never a doubt but that Congress would turn "bums down" whenever it came to a vote. But action required a full year, during all of which time Berger had his office in the House building, the franking privilege, mileage and the $7,500 a year. The vote was 209 to 1 in favor of ousting the Milwaukee representative.

"Rather a hundred guilty men go unwhipped of justice than one innocent man suffer for a crime he did not commit" is one of those unfounded aphorisms which have turned hundreds of guilty men loose. At that, it isn't need of much in Texas, for what with complimentary juries and trial courts in the first place, the suspended law in the second and the unlimited pardoning power in the third, it's a rather remote chance that many of the guilty will suffer, much less any of the innocents.

Wichita Falls continues to smash records. Now it is in bank clearings with a total last week of $5,548,977, an increase of $1,715,275 over the previous week, bringing the total for the past forty-five weeks to almost -178,000,000 and setting a new high mark over all previous records of $400,000.

Both Quanta and Kerk are following the precedent and example of their distinguished father. Quanta's fourth is followed a few days later by Kerk's third.

GOD'S INSTRUMENT

He who has smoothed another's way
And left a long-remembered day
With one whose heart was sick with pain,
Need never say he's lived in vain.
He who has done one kindly deed
And served another's hour of need,
Has truly justified his birth
And made this world a richer earth.

He who has borne his share of grief
And never faltered in belief,
But through it all has kept his trust
That God knows best and God is just,
May die content to such a plan;
For he has truly played the man,
And rich or poor, that man shall be
Fit spirit for eternity.

He who has given as he could,
And spent his strength for what is good—
Has helped the weary and the weak,
No other goal from life may seek.
He who has tried to play the friend
Shall come to glory at life's end
And find his serene content
That he has been God's instrument.

WHY MARRIED PEOPLE LOOK ALIKE.

One often hears it said that people who have been married a great many years grow to look alike. I think this is true, but why is it? A paragraph in a story I was reading the other day seemed to me to put the reason in a very lucid way, although it was not a story about married life. It was about the experience of a little old maid who had been in Brussels when the war broke out and who, in trying to get from Brussels to Paris, was left alone on a field where a battle had been raging and where dozens of wounded and dying men lay without care of any sort. It changed her heart and her face. This tremendous experience which she went through, that night, trying to help those men, changed her whole outlook on life. In her own words, "It was like being torn all to pieces, and put together again different."

Homesick.
I am sitting in my palace, which is strictly up-to-date; and my Aunt Jezebel says I am a lucky statesman, my existence should be sunny, should be sweet as shredded honey, for I have a stack of money, and a figure by the gate. I am sitting in my palace as the evening shadows draw near, drinking from a jeweled chalice many quarts of kickless beer; luxuries are all around me, and no creditors confound me, and no sorrows ought to haunt me, yet I spring the scalding tear. For my heart is sick with longing for the scenes my childhood knew; for the woods where birds were thronging, and the pasture wet with dew; all the day I'm pining, wishing, for the creek where I went fishing, and old Dobbin, tall and swishing, and the cow that munched "fodder!" Oh, my present lot is splendid, but I'm thinking with a sigh of the school that I attended in the happy days gone by; and I hear the buzz and elation when the teacher used to hammer all the rudiments of grammar into boys, and made them cry. So I weary of my palace, though it is a sight to see, and I'd like to break a gallus climbing up an apple tree; for this state life never varies; and I'd like to swipe some cherries, and some melons and some berries, and to rob a bumble bee.

HOROSCOPE.
(Copyright, 1919, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Although Venus rules strongly for good, this is not a lucky day, according to astrology. Mercury and Saturn exercise malign power during this configuration. It is held to be a most unfavorable day for beginning journeys or making changes of any sort. Ministers may find the way rather unfortunate, since it is supposed to render men and women impervious to any suggestion of self-sacrifice. Letter writing is subject to a peculiarly sinister influence during this rule of the stars, which makes for misunderstandings. Although the planets that are friendly to lovers premises much, it is wise to delay love misadventure until kinder influences rule.

Return is in a place believed to presage anxiety for all who draw their maintenance from the ground. Farmers are warned of unusual weather and severe storms. Mines and mining are subject to malign influences that will be very apparent during the next few weeks. Capital and labor are warned that conditions of much uncertainty will precipitate trouble, but again it is foretold that workers are to profit by a planetary rule that will cause financiers and employers to favor co-operative reforms. Uranus is in a place supposed to encourage altruistic thought and to enable men and women to see each other's problems. This way develops the spirit of democracy.

Women are subject to a direction of the stars which is most promising to their political progress. Appointments to high offices in the government are foretold. More will bring serious troubles to more than one city, for the condition forecast months ago as indicating riots and fires still prevails. Persons whose birthdate it is may have an exacting and difficult year, but they can overcome difficulties by care and industry. Children born on this day may be given to moods, but they are usually talented and clever. In speech they are likely to be frank even to the point of bluntness.

The Japanese are great admirers of splendor and apt dressers. Their love of such things is carried so far that when a guest says something unusually brilliant the host or hostess will beg him to write down his remark in large ornamental script. The sentence is then mounted and hung on the wall as a permanent addition to its ornaments.

Conditions in the Baltic Provinces

By PHILLIP WITZ

The Baltic Provinces, though not large in area and population, nevertheless was always important to the development of Russia; always interesting new ideas and methods in the commercial activities of the nation as well as the political life. As a seaport, they had opportunity to mix with foreign element. Very naturally, from their superior opportunities, they were the very first to see and feel the oppression of the iron hand of the then autocratic rule and took the lead in raising their protest against everything crude and barbaric and made themselves heard everywhere, though their voice was stifled in every possible way and means and methods were employed to crush and bury their efforts. The government purposely made themselves deaf and blind to the efforts and appeals of these people, though they well knew that the efforts and appeals were right and justified, and for the sole purpose to cure it all the Cossacks were created, and continued in a most fiendish way to carry out the orders of those in power. Did any one individual take an open stand in these matters it meant sure death or worse than death in the Russian prisons. It would take untold thousands of pages to write of the horrible experiences of these poor down-trodden people, to tell of the lives they lived and the terrible prices paid for their better way of thinking. The prisons all over the country were constantly filled to the doors, but that did not stop these brave people in their efforts to secure a better government for their wonderful land. If ten or even 100 were thrown into jail thousands were ready to step into their places. When the government began to waken to the state of affairs and realized that not even jail has any effect upon the masses their first step was forbidding in schools to teach anything but the Russian language, thinking that might be a help in the right direction to gain their ends. But the more progressive teachers always found some means by which they could help the good cause along and secretly aided many a young person in gaining a knowledge of some other language and along other than the prescribed lines of study, and this was no easy matter for the government agents were always on the alert and if discovered the teachers were obliged to pay a heavy penalty for their acts, but this did not deter them in their efforts to help their country by helping the young people to enlighten themselves on the subjects of the day, in the outside world, through study and learning.

All the men of the country of military age—from 20 to 46—had no means of leaving the country other than to steal their way over the borders, and many were never heard from again, but they never reached the longed for freedom of the land they sought. Government secret agents were everywhere. And even worse was it for the Jewish race for all those families having sons failing to appear for military duty at the prescribed age the parents were heavily fined, the fine amounting to not less than 300 Russian Rubles, and failure of the parents to pay the fine, through inability or otherwise, the fine was collected from an uncle or any other relative who was able to pay it.

An experience in the family of the writer was this. When the eldest brother was about 14 years of age he secretly hid his way out of the country and came to the United States. The authorities soon discovered his absence and a few years later very unexpectedly one of the government agents called at our home, demanding the customary fine. The parents at that time were not financially able to pay the cash and everything was inventoried and a date of sale by auction was set. When the auction day arrived everything in the house was sold, not a chair, a pillow or a bed cover of any description was left. Through many long days sufferings were unbearable from being obliged to sleep on cold floors without coverings, to say nothing of the inconvenience of being deprived of the use of other household necessities for it was long before we were able to gather together a few things to make ourselves more comfortable. This is just one instance of the trials that came to the average family in the Baltic Provinces, who have sanctioned the going to other lands of their sons.

In the next article I will begin to dwell upon the beginning of the early revolution, especially in the city of Riga, and the Baltic Provinces, which quickly spread throughout the country.

THOUSANDS TO HUNT DEER AND MOOSE

ST. PAUL, MINN., Nov. 15.—Fifty thousand hunters will seek deer and moose in Minnesota's north woods during the season opening today, according to Carlos Avery, state game and fish commissioner.

Thousands of hunters have been on the ground for days. Many women have joined the ranks. Deep snow will necessitate snow shoe hunting in many localities. Deer and moose are reported unusually plentiful in the northern recesses. Two men have been killed thus far in the season, both being mistaken for game.

"Through foreign marketing of American-made left hand drive automobiles, the United States will eventually bring foreign countries to adopt the American system of traffic movement on the streets," predicts S. M. How, general sales manager of The Hayes Automobile Company.

"In many foreign countries the rule for traffic is 'keep to the left,' or just the opposite to the way our vehicles move," says Mr. How, "and as a result, the foreign buyers of American cars demand right-hand-drive cars—that is, cars with the driver's wheel on the right-hand side of the automobile. This is a natural demand, for the same reason that we in this country demand an automobile with the wheel on the left side. It is more convenient and safer in every way. In this connection it is interesting to note the origin of the custom by which vehicles go in opposite directions pass to the left and not to the right. In the early days in England when horse-drawn coaches were the prevalent means of transportation through the narrow streets, the coachman's whip with its long lash had to obtain its play on the side of the coach away from the side-walk. And as the driver manipulated his whip with his right hand, it was found necessary to have vehicles pass to the left. Many other countries adopted the passing to the left idea, partly because of the narrow streets and partly because England had set custom. But now that horse-drawn vehicles and the coachman's whip have practically disappeared and the automobile has become the predominant means of transportation in most countries, the reason for the left-hand rule does not hold. But the tradition remains and we find foreign buyers of American automobiles still insisting upon right-hand drive cars.

However, this insistence upon the part of the foreign buyers for right-hand drive cars slows down automobile production as it calls for special operations, and it devolves upon the American automobile industry to educate foreign countries to the American system in street traffic. The United States is just now successfully finishing the tremendous task of installing American ideals and standards of democracy and political freedom into the peoples of Europe; she is gradually but surely establishing purely American principles in Latin America. Now it is up to the third leading industry in the United States to put in effect the Yankee system of traffic movement in foreign countries, thus doing away with any necessity for right-hand drive automobiles.

The world in general is a right-handed world and to have traffic moving on the left side of the street is necessarily awkward. People, by instinct, keep to the right, and the only reason foreign traffic moves the other way is because of the strong hold that tradition has in those countries. A skillful campaign by the American automobile industry will eventually effect the desired change, with the result that a great number of American-made automobiles will be seen on foreign highways.

McFALL AGENCY DELIVERS SEVERAL COMMERCIAL CARS

McFall Brothers, Dodge Brothers dealers, report quite a few sales on the commercial or screen body jobs, having made delivery to several candy houses and hardware firms. This type of car is proving extremely popular because of the splendid service they are giving as well as the low cost of haulage.

They have been quite fortunate in securing several car loads of touring cars during the past month which has enabled them to catch up considerably on deliveries of this model car. However, they are still far behind on deliveries for the roadsters. This condition has been somewhat aggravated by the opening up of the new oil field here recently which has been the occasion for various oil companies placing additional orders for roadsters, which a number of them have established as their standard car. In one of the recent car loads of cars McFall Brothers received one of the late model Sedans which they now have on their floor.

BANNON MOTOR IS A MECHANICAL NOVELTY

Revolution Of Steam Engineering Methods Promised By Performances.

Among the recent inventions brought to the notice of the mechanical world is a rotary steam motor, perfected by Frank A. Bannon, formerly a lieutenant in the air service at Camp Field. While stationed at the local field Lieutenant Bannon interested the support of Major Neville, chief engineer, and Major Alfonte, commanding officer, and he was accorded many privileges in the way of leaves of absence to work and experiment and given the use of expert mechanics to help in the work.

When he had completed the model army officers, civilian engineers and others were invited to see the test. The small motor, no larger than a hat, was put to the brake test and it was found it developed 17 horsepower.

Another and larger engine was built weighing 600 pounds, 24 inches in width and 20 inches long and when the brake test was applied with 200 pounds steam pressure, 75 horsepower was developed.

Other engines of various sizes were built, so that Mr. Bannon has perfected and received patents on engines from one horse-power to 500 horse-power and from the slowest to 3500 revolutions per minute. Then he associated himself with other men, after his discharge from the army, for the purpose of commercializing his experiments and began to manufacture the engines for commercial use.

Briefly described, the Bannon Rotary Motor is a compact steam engine of three working parts: an eccentric piston keyed to the drive shaft and two sliding gates which operate with their ends forming contact with the periphery of the piston. These three parts are the heart and soul of the engine and, it is claimed, that any man, whether mechanic or not, can quickly tear down or rebuild a Bannon engine, because its essentials are so simple and easily understood. It is further claimed that the new motor can be manufactured at less than one-fifth of the cost of any other engine of the same horsepower, due to the simplicity of construction.

MAXWELL WINS FIRST PRIZE AT DIXIE SHOW

That a Maxwell took first honors before thousands of people who thronged the grand-stand and adjoining spaces at the Tennessee State Fair is the gratifying information recently received by S. Bemrod & Supply Co., local agents.

Contrary to auto shows of other fairs, driving was not the chief factor but it was the cars themselves. W. W. Dillon, Adjutant General of Tennessee, Baxter Sweeney and Major Hoagland, U. S. A. were named judges of the show. Six classes were up for judging. In each one first, second, and third prizes were awarded.

In the first class, cars $1,000 and under, a Maxwell driven by Mrs. Ed Polk won first honors. Second prize went to a Ford driven by S. S. McMurray. A Ford coupe driven by Egbert Hill was third.

EXPERT CALLS MAXWELL ULTIMATE IMPROVEMENT

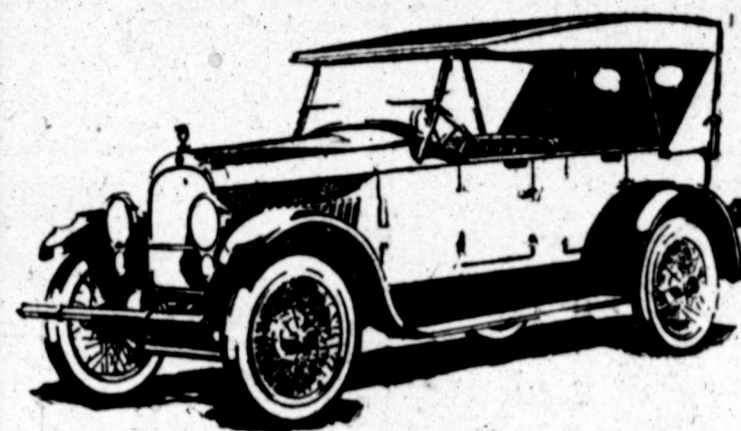

E. Y. Watson, automobile editor of the Detroit Free Press, recently visited the Maxwell-Chalmers booth at the Michigan State Fair. Mr. Watson is considered one of the best posted automotive authorities at the hub of the motor world and his comment, as clipped from the Free Press, August 31, by S. Bemrod, is a remarkable tribute from a capable, disinterested expert:

"The 1920 Maxwell with its sleek lines, hot spot and ram's horn manifold attracts its crowds of gazers as the ultimate improvement of a standard design. The Chalmers, its stablemate, is of the same family and known for like qualities in higher degree."

WANT CARS TO LOOK LIKE NEW SAYS AUTO PAINTER

Automobile owners of Wichita Falls are beginning to realize the value of having their old cars painted in good shape, according to George H. O'Daniel of the O'Daniel Automobile Painting Works, who stated in his 5 years of experience in the auto painting game he had never seen a larger percentage of owners who desired to keep their cars looking new than the trade he has enjoyed since the opening of his new establishment last March. The demand for painting has been so great that he has been forced to increase the capacity of his up-to-date plant to the point where he can turn out painting jobs in wholesale numbers.

DELIVERIES MADE NOW
THE WESTCOTT MARK

The most accurate guide to car values is the experience of actual owners. Car buyers know this and they will frequently go to great lengths to obtain interviews with owners of the particular car under consideration. Owners of late model Westcotts can be most easily discovered by watching the stream of traffic for the odd-shaped, orange-colored WESTCOTT MARK which appears on the radiator shell and the hub caps of the car. Earlier models were not distinguished in just this way but are readily recognized by the distinctive lines of the radiator which are the same as shown in cut.

The Road—In New Overland 4 on Three-Point Cantilever Springs

YOU expect a bad road to ride as it looks. It did, until the introduction of the Overland 4 Springbase.

Overland 4 does not change the road, but it does change the manner in which you can ride on it. It gives you comfort instead of discomfort. It gives you a smooth, sailing sensation instead of bouncing and swaying.

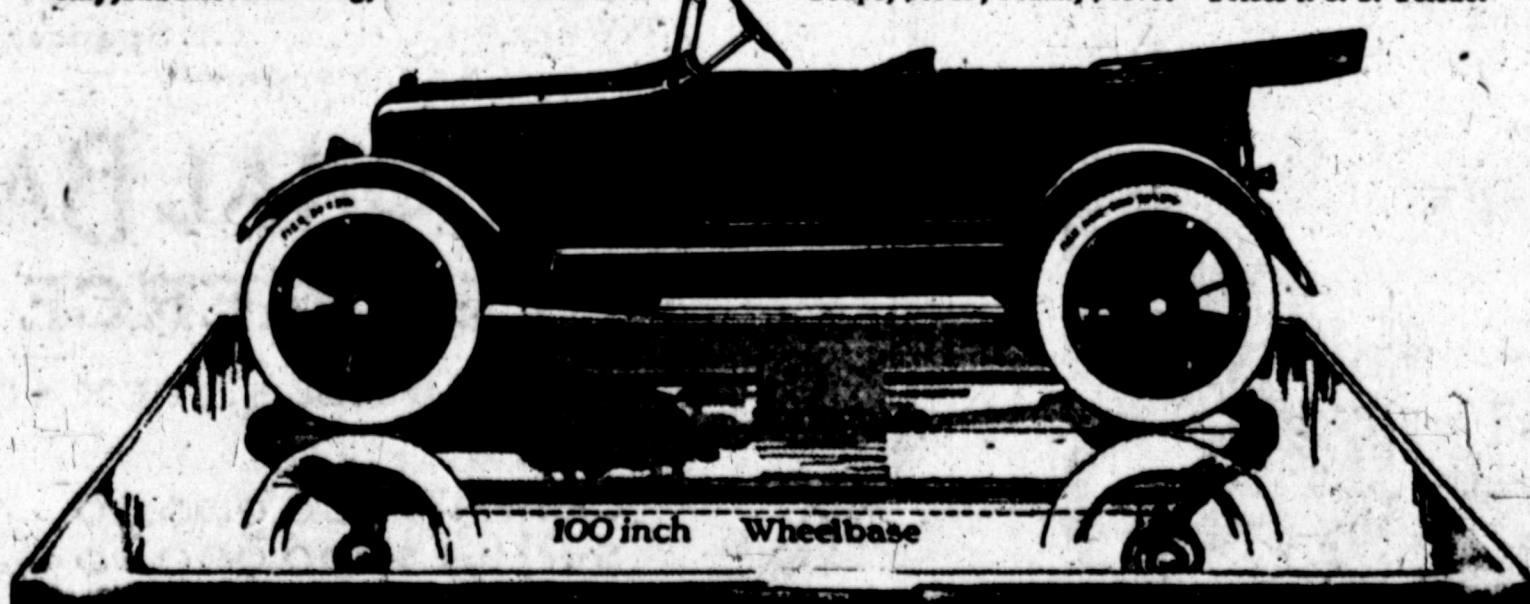

The Diagonal attachment of Three-Point Cantilever Springs at the ends of a 130-inch Springbase gives long wheelbase road steadiness. Yet Overland 4 retains all the advantages—lightness, economy, and ease of handling, of 100-inch wheelbase.

This means an altogether new standard of riding comfort, a noteworthy reduction in the wear and tear which lessens the efficiency of a car. The new springs give longer life to every part and thus minimize upkeep and replacement costs.

Tires wear longer because cushioned against hammering blows. Light weight means marked economy in gas, oil and running expense.

Overland 4's equipment is complete from Auto-Lite Starting and Lighting to Demountable Rims.

Come in and see this remarkable car. Ask for booklet. Overland 4 Touring, $845; Roadster, $845; Coupe, $1325; Sedan, $1375. Prices f. o. b. Toledo.

CARE OF CARBURETOR A WINTER NECESSITY

SLOW RESPONSE FROM "GAS" MAKES FREQUENT ADJUSTMENTS NECESSARY.

In cold weather gasoline does not vaporize as it does in higher temperatures, resulting in all sorts of engine troubles from hard starting to lack of power. As gasoline gets colder it becomes heavier, and then instead of flowing freely through the nozzle of the carburetor it has difficulty in getting through at all, especially on starting up. In order to make the action clear, imagine the gasoline to be as thick as mud. The latter cannot be forced through a very small opening such as a carburetor nozzle and formed into a fine spray. It might be forced through but it would run down the sides of the nozzle or be pushed into the manifold in the form of drops. Cold gasoline does just that.

Starting Engine. On starting a cold engine on these days of poor (heavy) gasoline even on a moderately warm day it is necessary to apply the choke. This is done in order that a large amount of gasoline will be drawn through the nozzle in the hope that in that large amount there is enough of a volatile nature to get into the combustion chamber and explode. It is the same reason that you prime the engine through the pet cocks or a special primer. You introduce into the combustion chamber a comparatively large amount of fuel the greater part of which is so heavy that it will not vaporize even with ordinary heat applied. The remainder, though a small portion of the whole, forms a sufficiently large volatile volume to start an explosion, which is all that is necessary. The trouble with priming and with keeping the choke applied is that it wastes fuel and also lets into the engine a quantity of gasoline which does no work. In fact it is harmful, if we may say the production of carbon and oil contamination are really harmful. The gasoline that does not vaporize does not all go out through the exhaust. Some of it does, but much burns with a flame and deposits carbon. Some also flows down the sides of the pistons and gets into the crank case, where it mixes with the oil. Both conditions are not the best for engine and of the two the oil dilution is the worst. The oil is thinned and weakened, hence lubrication of the entire engine is impaired.

Using a Primer.

The owner can overcome some of these difficulties by making a few changes and observing certain facts. First install a primer, but instead of using ordinary gasoline use a mixture of gasoline and commercial ether. This gives firing immediately, providing the spark is good, and avoids using a large quantity of fuel to get initial firing. Secondly, avoid keeping the choke applied longer than necessary. So much for getting started. After the engine is started, it should run at such a temperature that the fuel will be vaporized before it gets into the combustion chamber. This does three things: It saves fuel, gives more power, and keeps the engine clean. The same results practically are had if the fuel is preheated enough and kept so until it reaches the cylinders.

There are various ways in which the engine temperature can be kept up. One is to use a radiator shutter or a radiator cover. When the engine is cold these can be made to keep out the cold or they will so reduce the effective fan draft as to reduce the cooling effect on the water in the radiator. Thermostatic control of the water is another method, but it is not considered to have all the advantages of air control. The thermostat block ing the water passage when the engine is cold is likely to cause freezing of the water at the bottom of the radiator while the rest of the water is warming. By all means it is necessary for the owner to alter the carburetor hot air opening. While for part of the running it will be advisable to close air control altogether, it also will be found that doing this reduces the power perceptibly. If a means of attaching a hand control is provided, it should be done. If there is no such means it is obviously impractical to lift the hood and change the size of the air opening. If there is a fuel preheater, or a shutter, I believe it best to keep the hot air control open only half way. If you find you can get results with it open full, do so, because then you take in cold air which permits of higher volumetric efficiency.

The market now affords various devices for heating the gasoline either for priming or for normal running or both. The electrically operated primers will be found to be especially desirable, as they heat the gasoline by causing it to pass over a red hot coil made so by battery current. Fuel preheaters in constant operation may be of the electrical or exhaust type. The latter are more economical and if properly regulated are perfectly satisfactory. Hot spot manifolds tend to produce the same effect, but the manifold must have a reasonably large size heated area before it will show good results.

For general all round results, giving the easiest starting normal power, good flexibility and fuel economy, believe the following will be found just about right. A primer using a highly volatile mixture, with initial mixture preferably heated, hot air control open half way and a heated intake.

WESTERN AUTO SUPPLY GROWS TO AN EXCLUSIVE WHOLESALE ESTABLISHMENT.

Expansion of the Western Auto Supply Company's business from a retail, one store business, to an exclusive wholesale supply house with houses in both Wichita Falls and Fort Worth is indicated in the announcement that the Fort Worth wholesale house is being opened at 905-7 Throckmorta, and preparations made to move the local business to another location, where only a wholesale trade will be done. The address of the new location will be announced in a short time.

The Wichita Falls house will handle heavy automobile supplies exclusively, while the light merchandise and heavy, as well, will be handled at

Fort Worth. D. C. Wood, owner of the Western Auto Supply Company, has purchased a home in Fort Worth and will move his family there about December 1, moving his office there at the same time. The Wichita Falls manager will be named later. A traveling salesman for the company will also make Wichita Falls headquarters.

Mr. Wood's success in the operation of the business is evidenced by the remarkable growth it has enjoyed, and it will be regretted that his growing business takes him away from Wichita Falls. He is a Rotarian, and has been active in civic matters, and his loss will be felt in business and civic circles.

GENERAL WELL AND REPORT OF NEW SAND TURNS INTEREST TO TERRITORY ALONG RED RIVER

New drilling operations in several sections of Wichita county are arousing interest, while the territory along Red River, northwest of the Waggoner pool is of exceptional interest, because of the General Oil Company's well, and the report of an oil sand in the Dawley Brothers test on the Oklahoma side of the river, south of Section 15 in Range 14, Township 6.

How they created a demand for the Post-War Maxwell that cannot be fulfilled

THERE is a demand for the Post-War Maxwell that eight great plants cannot fill.

More than 40,000 persons who set their minds on having one will have to go without.

The cause for this is due largely to the magnificent performance of the 300,000 previous Maxwells.

They delivered such excellent mileage at such low cost that the great American public learned to know this car.

This unprecedented demand is evidence of its deep rooted appreciation. Then when the Post-War Maxwell came out, with its score or more of refinements and improvements developed during the war, the demand for Maxwell reached a new peak.

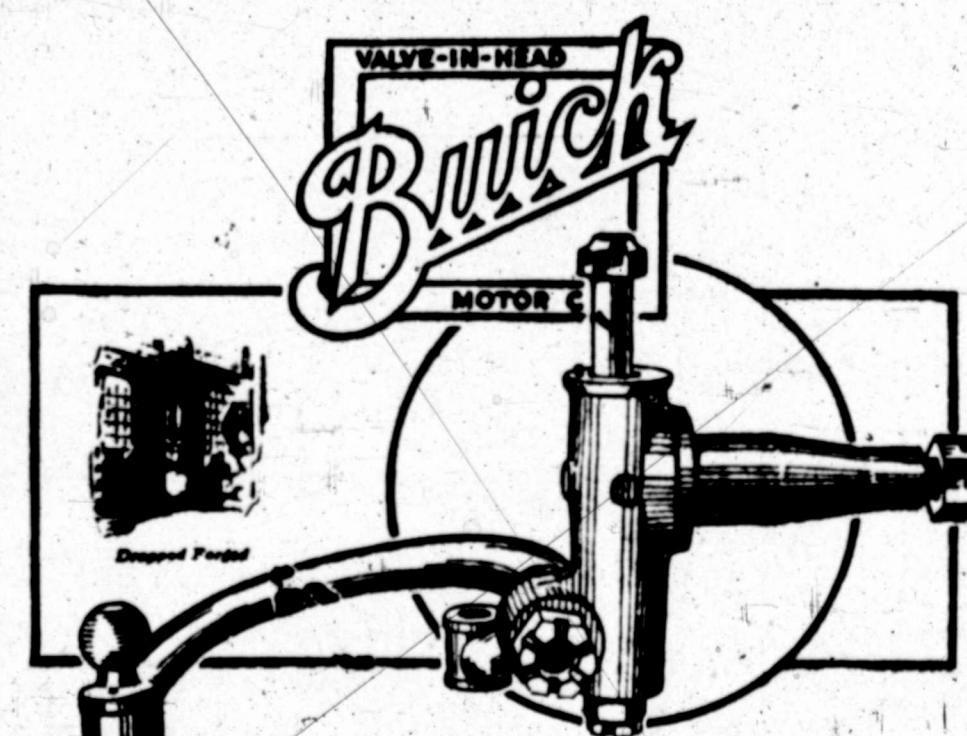

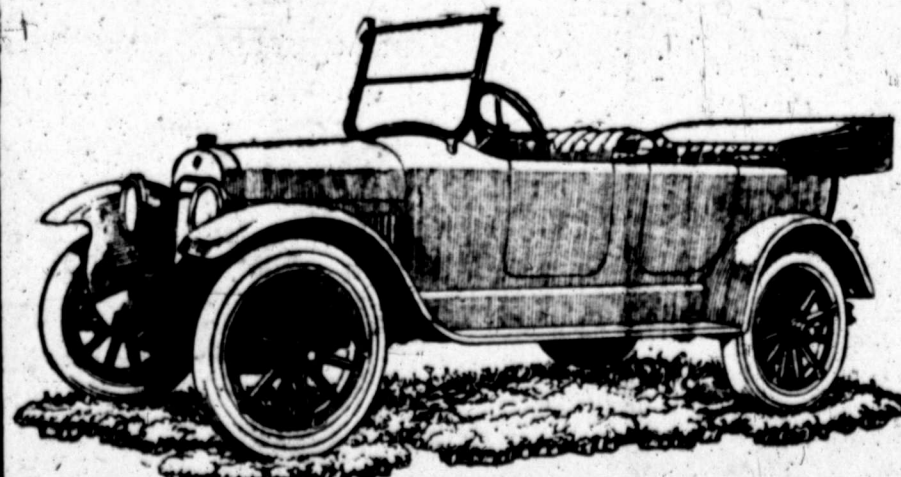

100,000 are being built during the current year. 40,000 more readily could be marketed.

Thousands are priding themselves on possessing one of these Post-War models; thousands more will have their hopes filled; thousands will have to go without.

Work is Also Scheduled to Begin on Additional Wells at an Early Date.

WELLINGTON, TEX., Nov. 15.—Five deep tests for oil are to be drilled in Collingsworth county. At least two of the rigs will be in active operation inside the next ten days or two weeks. Work is scheduled to begin at once on the additional wells. There is considerable activity in leasing. Many geologists and oil speculators are flocking to the vicinity of Wellington.

Dr. H. D. Barnes, president of the Barnes-Buster Oil Co., has announced that their No. 2 well will be located during the coming week. The No. 1 well is located on section 26 in block 21, being eight miles west of Wellington, county seat of Collingsworth county. The tools for No. 1 well are being shipped from El Paso and are scheduled to arrive the first of the week. The derrick is up, the camp house built and everything else is in readiness for work as soon as the tools arrive on the ground.

Converse Superintendent. F. P. Converse, geologist, will act as superintendent during drilling operations for the Barnes-Buster company. Mr. Converse is one of the three geologists who have pronounced the territory now under lease by the Barnes-Buster company, as being in the oil district N. S. Clark will have charge of the drilling.

The Booster Oil Co. is said to have shipped its tools to Wellington, to begin drilling its deep test located about four miles north of the town. This company has taken up large acreage surrounding the well.

The Stokes-Wilson company and associates from Memphis, have let a drilling contract for their No. 1 well, located near the Collingsworth county line. This well is about five miles west of the Barnes-Buster derrick.

The well being drilled by Bray and associates is located ten miles still farther west from the Barnes-Buster well.

Surface Indications. Nearly all geologists who have looked over the land in Collingsworth county, declare there is a strong surface indication of oil in both the shallow and deep sands. Surface indications are that the oil will be found at from 450 to 1,750 feet in depth.

Childress county, located to the south of Collingsworth, continues to show pep. There are rigs in operation on all sides of the town of Childress at the present time. There are seven wildcat wells now drilling in that county.

The Vogel company is building a derrick five miles south of the town of Childress and expects to begin drilling as soon as it is possible.

The Cooper well, located two miles east of Childress, which was started during the year 1912 by local people, was cleaned out. This well is owned by the Denver & Gulf company. It is claimed by many persons familiar with the drilling of this well, that oil was struck at the shallow depth of eighty feet, also at other deeper depths, also that when the well was cemented, there was a good showing of oil. It is not known just how deep the well was drilled, that time.

Showing Near Childress. R. M. Dell and associates, have a gas well showing in their well being drilled in Childress. The oil was struck at about one hundred feet and a dry rig is being used.

Storrs Creek Oil & Gas Co. struck about a foot of oil sand at 157 feet in their well located seven miles northwest of Childress. The well is 250 feet. A rotary is being used.

The Childress-Duluth, located six miles northeast of Childress, is shut down at a depth of 1160 feet. Several gas and oil showings are reported to have been found. The well is on the Knotts ranch.

The Denver Gulf well, located five miles east of Childress, is down 450 feet. The company is reported to have found the shallow sand at 107 feet.

NEW REGULATION FOR EXPRESS SHIPMENTS

Apply Only To Express Shipments Exceeding 25 Pounds in Weight.

Steps are being taken by M. M. Davis, agent in charge of the city express office to prepare for the new express packing requirements, which go into effect on December 10th. He has been advising shippers to study the new rules, which have been approved by the United States Railroad Administration, so that they may be able to adjust their packing methods to the forthcoming new standards.

Under the new regulations which are embodied in what is known as Supplement No. 5 to Express Classification No. 25, all shipments sent by express weighing over 25 pounds must be packed in wooden containers, or cartons of fibre board, pulp board, or corrugated strawboard material, of specified "test strength." This means, according to Agent Davis that after December 10th, packages over the 25 pound limit will not be accepted for forwarding by the American Railway Express company, handling the express business of the entire country as the agent of the Railroad Administration, if only paper wrapped. Nor will ordinary paper boxes, wrapped or unwrapped, be accepted as suitable protection for these heavier shipments.

The regulations, however, do not affect shipments under 25 pounds. Regular shippers, the agent stated, will not be mystified by the new regulations, as they follow very closely the packing requirements long in vogue in the freight service. The express regulations, however, allow a little more latitude in the size of the container used. The enforcement of the new regulations was postponed until December 10 to give the shippers plenty of time to adjust their packing methods.

Mr. Davis expressed the opinion that the new rules will not work any hardship on the shippers, but would work definitely in their interest, as the rules will establish additional safeguards for merchandise in transit.

Moreover, they will establish uniformity in express packing rules, which has hitherto been lacking. The new order does not affect the movement of food products by express which are ordinarily shipped in crates or barrels.

As a result, individual shipments have to be so strongly packed as to enable them to stand up for themselves. U. S. SENATORS FROM TEXAS ARE LOYAL TO THE PRESIDENT IN THEIR SUPPORT OF TREATY

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—During all of the voting that has taken place in the United States Senate on the peace treaty and League of Nations, there has not been cast a vote by either of the Texas Senators which has lined them up with the opponents of the treaty, not even the mild reservationists being able to enlist their sympathy and support. They have stood for the ratification of the treaty with its League of Nations covenant in the identical form in which it was submitted to the Senate by President Wilson. Whether this stands with the approval of a majority of the Texas voters, the two Senators do not appear to care nor to be greatly concerned. Both Senator Culberson and Sheppard have been treaty stand-patters ever since that instrument reached the Senate. They have accepted it as one of the responsibilities growing out of the war and agree that the United States can no longer remain outside the pale of world events and participation in all questions affecting the world. That is the way they have been voting and they were hopeful that all reservations and interpretations might be beaten.

When Back Leader.
When the compromise period is reached and the administration leaders begin jockeying to secure a mild reservation that can be put through the Senate in accord with President Wilson's position that he is not opposed to any interpretation that merely makes clear the attitude of this country as a participant in the League, the Texas Senators will be found backing every move made by Senator Mitchell, the floor leader of the administration.

Senator Culberson has been doubly committed to the success of the peace treaty. In the first instance, he is one of the "original" Wilson men in the upper branch of Congress. He has lost none of his original admiration for and confidence in Woodrow Wilson. That of itself would have bound the Senator to the treaty, but even stronger than that is the force represented by Colonel E. M. House. A close political partnership has existed between these two Texans for a long term of years, dating back to Senator Culberson's period of service as attorney general and governor of Texas. They have been best friends and are to this day. Whenever Colonel House visits Washington, an hour each afternoon is given over to an auto ride through the Washington parks with Senator Culberson. They freely and frankly discuss all of the great questions before the Senate.

Colonel House was President Wilson's closest adviser in France when the peace treaty was being framed. He had been to Europe as the personal representative of the President even before treaty negotiations were begun. Unquestionably much that is in the treaty is the work of Colonel House. He knows as much concerning all the conferences and debates that marked the drawing up of this famous instrument as any man in America, not barring the President.

Loyal to Friends.
Should Senator Culberson have turned against the treaty and joined forces with Reed, Shields, Gore and Smith of Georgia, he would have been turning his back upon the men whom he has known and trusted since the very outset, long before he had publicly declared his position on it, that he would support it in every vote he should be called upon to cast in the Senate.

Analysts in the press gallery, have concluded there are two chief causes which impelled Senator Sheppard to give the treaty his whole-hearted endorsement. First, he has been an "administration Senator" ever since he was promoted by the voters of Texas from the House to the Senate. Just one vote, or rather series of votes, cast by Senator Sheppard against any cleavage from the administration and President Wilson—prohibition enforcement, Senator Sheppard has stated openly that he regards President Wilson as an anti-prohibitionist and on the liquor question he cannot accept his leadership, nor has he done so. In the fight to maintain and extend the war-time prohibition statute, Senator Sheppard has steadily fought the President. On no other question, however, has he declined to accept President Wilson as a leader. On the score of his record, the press gallery the day the treaty was submitted for consideration, listed the junior Texas Senator as one of its "last ditch" supporters. This guess has proved absolutely correct.

Sheppard An Idealist.
Aside from his willingness to concede to President Wilson a leadership in adjusting the world peace, Senator Sheppard finds in the treaty that which must appeal to every fiber of his being. Senator Sheppard is an idealist who strives to put his ideals into concrete legislation. The great brotherhood of man appeals to him. His sympathies are easily aroused. He likes to help the under dog. This idealism found expression in his championship of prohibition and woman suffrage. The charge has been made in Texas many times that Sheppard took up there two questions as an opportunist seeking to keep himself in office through their advocacy. His record in the Senate does not justify this charge. He was for prohibition and suffrage when it was not popular to advocate either. But he has always been quick to give ear to all humanitarian appeals that come to him, and you may be sure they are numerous. Just now he has pending a bill to provide a fund for the support of women unable to properly care for themselves during maternity. Idealism! He has introduced more bills outlawing plans for loan systems for the homeless and the homeless, for various educational projects and for the general uplift of humanity than any other member of the Senate. Evidently, he loves his fellow man.

Treaty Carried An Appeal.
Possessing such a disposition, there was in the peace treaty that which appeals to his every instinct. Its proposal to make war between nations more difficult to provoke, the tribunal for the arbitration and settlement of disputes, the labor conference, the elevation of those small nations that dared not raise their heads in the past, the freeing of certain Christian nations in Europe from Turkish domination—all this and much more in the treaty, made it a document whose appeal he could not resist. By his very nature, it was as certain that Senator Sheppard would support the Versailles pact as it was absolutely fixed that he would not vote to the President's suggestion that the war-time ban on liquor be relaxed.

However, Senator Sheppard's knight errantry, did not spare him from the greed of the Washington landlords. A few weeks ago, the residence he had occupied for several years was sold at a heavy price and notice was served that he must vacate. Then began a night-mare of rounds with real estate men of the Capital. It seemed that the mere suggestion that a United States Senator desired to rent a house or an apartment was sufficient to cause the price to try for the altitude of champagne. In final desperation he was forced to purchase a home on

Announcement to Stockholders
DOUBLE F OIL COMPANY
The directors of this company are pleased to inform the stockholders that we have sold our five acre lease in block 96 in the Burk Northwest with two wells now completed on same and two more to be finished by the company, for $600,000.00, the greater portion of which amount we expect to pay in dividends.
We have already commenced drilling on our forty acre tract offsetting the Burk Bet well which adjoins us on the east and the new well of the General Oil Company which lays about 3000 feet west of our land, which we fully believe is now absolutely proven oil property. We intend to drill at least three more wells on this forty acre, setting aside 15 per cent of the above mentioned sale price for this work.
We suggest that persons holding Double F. Stock not standing in their name have same transferred on the books of the company at once.

EASTERN CAPITAL AWAKENING TO THE VALUE OF FIELDS

"Northern and eastern capital is awakening to the great opportunities offered in Texas oil, but the majority of business men of those sections do not realize what a vast and important factor it is in the financial and industrial life of the nation," said F. A. Gorman, state treasurer of Michigan, here from Detroit with a party of capitalists and business men from Detroit, to look over the Wichita Falls oil fields, and also to inspect the Charles F. Noble properties, in which they are interested.

"I had learned much from my activities on the 'blue sky' board, when Oklahoma stocks were offered to the investors," continued Mr. Gorman. "But those past experiences are entirely discounted in the Wichita Falls district activity."

John Bode, vice president of the People State Bank and Trust Co., another prominent member of the party, spoke especially of the activities of Mr. Noble, and the extent of the Noble interests.

"Mr. Noble has certainly built up a big proposition on a permanent basis in a very short time," he said, "and I find that the field is full of such substantial men and organizations."

"There is a wide spread lack of definite information regarding the Fairbairn field," said M. J. River, banker of Saginaw, Mich.

"The magnitude and scope of the developments can not be fully appreciated, until they are seen. I am frank to confess that I had no idea of the real extent, and the wonderful possibilities which the oil fields offer for a sane investment, with level-headed business men, and experienced oil men in charge of operations."

Another member of the party, John Pyle, also a banker, and of Kalamazoo, Mich., admitted that he had considered the newspaper stories, and the word of mouth descriptions as more or less "hunk." "After seeing, however," he added, "I'm a convert. In fact I'll admit that the stories

COURTESY AND CHEERFULNESS

A combination with which we spice every sale. Some people have an idea that drug stores are pretty much the same the world over. They do not consider the fact that stores have character just the same as individuals. Study the store in any community and you will soon learn as to how they differ. At our store customers are greeted with a happy smile and a word of welcome. Courteous attention is given to customers while shopping. All packages are neatly wrapped. In fact our service throughout is marked by care. We do everything in our power to guard customer's interests.

In Memoriam.
(To the memory of Jack I. Coats.)

Dear little Jack, so blithe and so gay
God called you early and you went away.

The angel in heaven they envied us
Desiring your presence and you could but go.

Dear little Jack, your mother's so sad,
Your father so misses his dear little lad.

Your brothers are lonely and long for you
You can't come to them, to you they can go.

Dear little Jack, your sweet sister May,
Now is so lonesome and wants you to play.

Still she can see you, up in the sky,
You beckon her onward to pleasures on high.

Dear little Jack, we all miss you so,
But you are free, from sorrow, we know.

You bask in the sunshine and warmth of God's love,
And watch for our coming, in heaven above.

His Uncle, S. H. Jackson.

METHODIST MINISTERS HAVE SALARIES RAISED

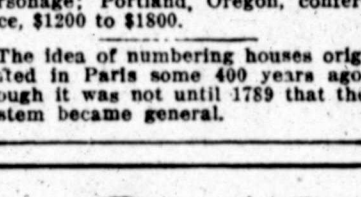

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—Ministers at least Methodist ministers—will not have to strike for higher pay.

A general increase in their salaries, in some instances 100 per cent and establishment of minimum salaries that will provide a living wage was announced by the Centenary Conference Committee of the Methodist Episcopal church today.

In 1907 the average Methodist minister's salary was $826. The minimum established in most districts now is $1200. Laymen have taken the initiative in raising the ministers' salaries.

Districts which individually have taken steps for "a living wage" are: Dev. Moines, Iowa, and Nebraska conferences, $1500 and parsonage; Southern Illinois Conference, $1300 and parsonage; South Dakota, $1400 and parsonage; Portland, Oregon, conference, $1200 to $1800.

The idea of numbering houses originated in Paris some 400 years ago, though it was not until 1789 that the system became general.
