DEFEATS MASONRY RESPONSIBLE FOR THE KU KLUX KLAN

DALLAS, Oct. 15.—Andrew L. Randall, grand master of the Grand Lodge Ancient, Free and Accepted Masons of Texas, in a statement late today, denied that Masonry "is credited in some quarters" as responsible for the Ku Klux Klan or any other non-Masonic organization, and declared that "our fraternity must not and should not be made to appear as a sponsor or surety therefor at the bar of public opinion." Mr. Randall issued the statement, he said, in accordance with requests of various newspapers and press associations of Texas for an expression of his attitude regarding the subject. "No pretense or lodge of Masons has hesitated to deny responsibility for such an organization," the statement added. "And the actions of the lodge over Texas have shown with what abhorrence they view the claims of non-Masons in some localities that the Klan is Masonic in membership or in methods."

HISTORY

The railroad labor board began hearings in April, 1921, on application for a wage cut. The board was authorized to order a strike if it found that the railroad industry was unable to pay the wages demanded by the labor unions. The board's decision was to reduce wages by 12 percent, effective July 1, 1921. This decision was met with a storm of protest from the railroad industry and the public. The board's decision was eventually overturned by the Supreme Court in June, 1922.

PART ONE

SLAY COUNTY WILL VOTE TUESDAY ON $2,000,000 BONDS

OPPONENTS ARE CLASSIFIED AS "ANTI-HOME MORTGAGE COMMITTEE."

BOTH SIDES ACTIVE AS CONTEST NEARS CLOSE

Wichita County's Experiences Are Used As Arguments by Both Of Factions.

Special to The Times. HENRIETTA, TEXAS, Oct. 15.—Clay county is seething with interest in the coming road bond election which is to be held next Tuesday, October 18. The issue of $2,000,000 bonds is at stake and a fight is being made by the "Anti-Home Mortgage Committee" to defeat the issue while an equally enthusiastic committee known as the Good Roads committee is fighting to have the issue win.

The publicity committee of the Anti-Home Mortgage committee has placed but a large number of hand bills in which they take the stand that this is a bad time to build roads and that all the voting of the issue will mean higher taxes and giving a few of the many taxpayers a smooth road on which to ride to Wichita Falls.

The committee also contends that 6 per cent bonds cannot be sold at par and state in their posters that Wichita county was forced to sell its bonds below par although it was reported that they were sold at par and accrued interest.

Another paragraph in the hand bills reads: "The writer is informed by the best authority in Wichita county that the roads that cost Wichita county over $2,000,000 can be built by careful business men for half the money. I believe that this plus 10 business is bad for the taxpayers."

The publicity committee for the issue has also put out some advertising in which it contends that a vote for the good road means increased property valuation; employment for Clay county men and teams; more money in the banks to care for the customers; decreased cost of transportation; enlargement of farm life, financially and socially, and less upkeep on all kinds of vehicles, machinery and cars.

A vote against the issue it contends means low property sales values, as compared with counties that are advancing by means of good roads, unemployment and idleness during time of need; less deposits in the banks; continued high cost of transportation; narrower farm life and continued isolation; and more money necessary for repairs and higher cost of upkeep on vehicles machinery and cars.

TREATY PLACES THE POPULATION FIRST INDUSTRY SECOND

By Associated Press.

LONDON, Oct. 15.—Arthur J. Balfour, British representative on the council of the league of nations, said today that he thought it would be well if one of the council should explain the decision regarding Upper Silesia.

He denied recent current rumors that members of the council were mere puppets of the various governments.

"There is absolutely no acintilla of foundation, I know, for that rumor," he declared.

Emphasizing the difficulty of the problem, Mr. Balfour says that the Versailles treaty had placed the population first in importance and the industry of that country second, and while there was no doubt that western Upper Silesia was German, the southeast was Polish.

The real difficulty arose, he said, regarding the small area which is a fraction of the whole of Upper Silesia, containing a large percentage of population much intermixed as to national characteristics.

The council had to cut the line through a highly industrialized region. To be sure, he said, no Englishman could travel in that area and not regard with dismay the severing of the district, there would even be a feeling of horror at this partition, he said.

"If the two parties," he declared, "are prepared to show ordinary prudence and a sense of self-interest, they will be able to make the scheme a working proposition."

Commenting upon expressions of disapproval on the part of Germany, Mr. Balfour said he could not imagine any policy more suicidal if the Germans should attempt to wreck the whole scheme.

From the records of the county tax collector comes the message that women are interesting themselves in the coming political elections of 1922. Out of the number who have qualified 119 are women. Of this number 48 paid poll taxes out of a total of an even 100 and 4 out of a total of 19 have secured exemptions.

Collections for the week in taxes also showed up favorably. It was the consensus of opinion of county officials that tax collections would be slow until January.

During the past week $452.65 was collected as redemption taxes; $2,392.11 as taxes and 43 poll taxes.

The records show that the collections in all three departments are running ahead of last year.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 15.—A bit of poetry helped win Ruth C. Claremont the divorce she had today from Ralph C. Claremont.

PALACE THEATRE OPENS MONDAY FOR A BIG WINTER RUN

NEWLY DECORATED THEATRE OFFERS "THREE MUSKATEERS" FIRST OF SEASON'S FEATURES

Those who visit the Palace theatre this week when it opens for the winter season will find an almost entirely new show house. The theatre has undergone extensive changes during the last month and the result has been that the big house is now in a class with the best picture theatres in the country.

The Palace, originally intended as a movie house but switched at the last minute for the accommodation of vaudeville acts, has the largest seating capacity of any public building in town. But this very fact has worked toward its unpopularity.

The original decorations were not entirely satisfactory and until the decision to open the place this winter was reached the faults had not been corrected.

Now, however, changes have been made that have transformed the big room into a tring of beauty. The front of the theatre, which has been ready for the looker for the past week, has been fixed up with mats and posters by Robert Sparks, manager of the Palace, until it resembles the entrance to an art gallery more than that of a movie house.

A distinctive feature of the Palace program will be the music by the new symphony orchestra under the direction of Prof. Liebelt.

Reservations have been held during the last week and the musicians are ready to offer something entirely new in the way of musical settings for the pictures.

Manager Sparks has announced that following "The Three Musketeers" which opens with a week's run tomorrow, several of the largest pictures of the year have been booked for exhibition at the Palace.

Included in this list are "The Affairs of Anatol," starring Wallace Reid and a flock of other well known screen stars, "Way Down East," the great Griffith production, "Dangerous Curves Ahead," with Helen Chadwick and Richard Dix and other big feature pictures.

NEW YORK PAPERS DECLARE "THE THREE MUSKATEERS" IS ONE OF GREATEST PICTURES

When Douglas Fairbanks in "The Three Musketeers" opens at the Palace theatre, tomorrow, local movie fans will be privileged to take a slant at one of the film masterpieces of the world.

Following the premier of "The Three Musketeers" at the Lyric theatre in New York the dramatic critic of the Herald broke out with a column article which, by way of introduction, said "The Dempsy-Carpenter pictures are still running in this city, but the real fight of the ages opened at the Lyric last night with Douglas Fairbanks' production of "The Three Musketeers."

Continuing in this vein the article goes on to declare that "Douglas Fairbanks' masterpiece in this city, but the real fight of the ages opened at the Lyric last night with Douglas Fairbanks' production of "The Three Musketeers."

It is a kind of combination of Dumas, Douglas and delirium. One moment it boils with action and the next it snaps and sparkles with humor like D'Artagnan's own rapier. The spectators alternately shrieked with laughter at his comedy—even the serious faced Charlie Chaplin beside the Pickford-Fairbanks box. It increased in speed and fury as it progressed, until but one word fits it—rip-roaring. Fairbanks ripped and the audience roared.

"While he does some serious acting in it—in fact, the first real characterization since Griffith directed him in "The Lamb," his initial picture—for the most part Fairbanks waves a sword and runs amuck. He fights against overwhelming odds, climbs around on roofs with a fair-damned in his arms, leaps over chairs and tables, throws himself like a catapult through the air, jumps down from great heights, dives from the windows of a ship's cabin into the

—and he did them all last night, then, we say, give him credit. "Douglas Fairbanks never has seen before and never again will see, no doubt, an hour of personal triumph that can be compared with that which came to him when he rolled up to the Lyric theatre with his wife, Mary Pickford, Charlie Chaplin and Jack Dempsy at 12:00 o'clock last night. Thousands jammed 42d street for a sight of any one of them. One's mind went back to the Roosevelt days and to the happy times when the boys were coming home from France, it was all so spontaneous and so fervid."

"Wink" Weaver Talks of Life of Animal Trainer

The subjugation and education of animals continues to be one profession that is not overcrowded, and there is plenty of room at the top for those who qualify, according to "Wink" Weaver, animal overseer of the Getty Bros. show, coming to Wichita Falls for two exhibitions on October 18.

Weaver has the distinction of being the only known trainer that can govern a group of elephants by the wink of an eye, hence his nickname. In speaking of his peculiar business, Weaver claims a successful trainer must possess the following four qualifications at the start: First, at least as much intelligence as the animal he seeks to educate, plenty of patience, kindness, perseverance, endowed with these characteristics, any average person can succeed in training any animal, from a yellow dog to a hippopotamus.

In the opinion of Weaver, an elephant is the most intelligent of all the so-called beasts; they are temperamental and have many peculiarities. For instance, they will not allow stoves or steam pipes in their winter quarters; they are deathly afraid of a mouse, although they will battle a lion; they apparently never get tired and are always willing to work; they are possessed of more strength than any other animal; they are usually passionately fond of children; their most common ailment is colic.

Weaver and Queen, one of the "bulls" with the show, have worked together in the Getty performance for 15 years, and she expresses her affection for him by wrapping her trunk around his body.

STRENUOUS ADHERENT OF THE BUBBLING AND IRREPRESSIBLE LIFE

Viola Dana, the irrepensible star of the screen, whose latest Metro picture, "The Match Breaker," a Dallas M. Fitzgerald production will be shown at the Strand Theatre Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday, is a strenuous believer in the irrepensible life of the screen.

As a girl the vivacious little star spent most of her early childhood in romping amid country environment. Like the vast majority of girls Viola had plenty of exercise. But unlike most of them she cultivated the habit as a woman.

Viola never neglects her physical well being. Even after a hard day before the camera, she spends a few minutes in setting-up exercises, and when the time permits she likes to go out-of-doors for a long tramp on foot or ride on horseback.

Swimming, roller skating and dancing keep her in proper trim, and enable her to dispense that effervescent quality of youth which is a marvel to all who see her, and which makes the irrepensible star the embodiment of perpetual youth.

And she loves animals. So much so, that in the Metro studios in Hollywood it has become a joke. When a stray dog happens around, someone says, "Oh, this will please Viola," and Viola is immediately presented with another mongrel.

Sometimes this has annoying consequences as occurred one day when Miss Dana found herself the possessor of a fifteen hundred dollar pomeranian and had much ado to explain the matter to the owner, an old lady, who accosted her on the street with the dog.

"The Match Breaker" was adapted for the screen by Arthur J. Zellner from Meta White's story. It was photographed by John Arnold. A. F. Mante was art director.

HONEY BOY MINSTRELS HERE ON MONDAY NIGHT

Manager Gus Hill, whose enterprises this season will be limited to two or three productions, makes the important announcement of the consolidation of the late George Evans Honey Boy Minstrels and his own black-face organization which has scored such a triumph during its reign the past six years. The result has been one aggregation surpassing anything of its caliber or style offered to the American public for decades. The unity of these two stellar burnt-ork institutions was only brought about a short time ago. The cream of talent heading both organizations has been mustered into one troupe, forming a unity of forty stars who are already making minstrel history. Instead of the time-honored routine of other days, the new show will introduce a style of entertainment superior to the ultra conventional which one usually expects in affairs of this kind. There will be bits, travesties, reviews, novelty-surprises, real song hits, real music, syncopated and straight; melodies that linger; vocalists who know how to utilize their golden gifts to the best advantage; frolic, revelry, contagious laughter, wit, repartee, fun, and all the bon mots embracing a fin de siècle entertainment. In addition there will be a spectacular street pageant which from all accounts is a treat in itself. This exceptional show will be the next attraction at the Wichita theatre, one day only, Monday, October 17.

CLASS "THE CIRCLE" AS MUCK WITHOUT MORAL

By JAMES W. DEAN
NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—No play of the season is so sure an index to the loose attitude increasing numbers have adopted toward marital morals as is "The Circle."

Somerset Maugham has built "The Circle" out of ten triangles. A woman deserts her husband and son for another man. After 20 years she returns to her husband's home to witness the desertion of her son by his wife.

It's muck without a moral, unless it be that if a woman feels like deserting her husband it is her own prerogative to do so.

Are theatregoers spelled by such a story? Decidedly not!

The Selwyn theatre is sold out two months in advance.

When John Drew and Mrs. Leslie Carter, supported by Estelle Winwood, Robert Rendel, Ernest Lawford and John Halliday, can be seen for one admission, the man in the box office is in for a busy time.

When one can say to the neighbors, "New, when I saw John Drew and Leslie Carter in—" the neighbors know one has had one's little moment in the theater.

The author characterizes the abandoned husband as unembarrassed at meeting his wife and her lover. He employs them in ugly old age—as the horrible examination to hold before his son's wife, who, too, is about to leave with her lover.

At this turn, the play seems about to point to a moral. The wife seems almost dissatisfied from leaving her husband. But Maugham does not construct a play that way. The horrible example falls. The young wife deserts the son of the deserted father.

The pay has many smart lines. The mother, greeting her son after 20 years, says, "I knew your father."

Another line—"Men are funny. Even when they're in love, they're not in love all day."

The runaway wife to her husband, "If I had my life to live over again, I should be unfaithful to you, but I wouldn't leave you."

John Drew has only to be John Drew to fill capably the few moments given to him.

It seemed to me that Mrs. Carter was too vigorous. Lines that would have been more effective with gentler emphasis.

If you like satire that pokes old age and respectability in the ribs, you'll like "The Circle"—immensely.

"WIDOW BY PROXY" FEATURING MARGUERITE CLARK AT THE GEM

More than ordinary interest centers around Marguerite Clark's latest Paramount-Artcraft picture, "Widow by Proxy," to be shown at the Gem theatre Monday, because it is the dainty star's first production since becoming acclimated to the new California atmosphere in which she is working. Miss Clark's former photoplays have been made in New York, and it is only recently that she left the metropolis and joined the colony of motion picture stars at Los Angeles.

A large amount of that celebrated California sunshine is reflected in "Widow by Proxy," and it is one of the brightest light comedies in which Miss Clark has yet appeared. The little favorite has the part of a pretty "bachelor girl" who poses as her recently widowed chum in order to win for her the inheritance which the real widow is too proud to claim. Two delightful love stories are woven into the plot, which is crowded with pleasant surprises and a startling climax. It was adapted from the Broadway stage success by Walter Edwards. Nigel Harrie is leading man.

VERNON MAN OPENS FIRE UPON LOCAL IRRIGATION PLAN

R. L. MORE WRITES CIRCULAR LETTER TO IMPROVEMENT DISTRICT TAXPAYERS.

CLAIMS WATER UNFIT FOR PURPOSE INTENDED

Directors in Reply Point Out That Suitability Has Been Completely Proven.

In a three-page circular addressed to the taxpayers of Wichita improvement district No. 1, and headed with the question, "Do you want to encumber your property to secure a bond issue of $4,500,000 to procure a water supply which cannot be used for any purpose except to flush sewers?" R. L. More, of Vernon, Texas, manager for the W. T. Wagoner Interests in the former county, declares that Wichita river water is not fit for use for drinking or irrigating purposes.

Questioned Saturday as to the issue raised in the circular, which is postmarked Vernon, directors of the water district pointed out that the river water has been analyzed as to its suitability for the uses contemplated, on numerous occasions dating back 25 years, and that the results are not in line with the assertions made by the Vernon man. It was pointed out, further, that even if the river water were an unfit for use as is claimed by the More circular, it would have only a remote bearing on the project, from the fact that the water to be impounded by the storage dam will not be river water but storm water, which has been used for years from Lake Wichita. It was also pointed out, as has been published frequently, that the foremost engineering talent in America has carefully investigated the project from every conceivable angle and has approved it absolutely. Data previously obtained by the directors of the district show that Wichita river water has considerably less solid matter than that of the Rio Grande, which is used for an extensive irrigation project. It was also cited that two Oklahoma communities, Chickasha and Oklahoma City, use water from streams that has been found to have far more solid matter than was shown in the analyses obtained by Mr. More for the Wichita water. The directors were at first unwilling to comment on the circular at all, but agreed to do so when attention was called to the fact that some Wichitans might take the document seriously.

LITTLE LUCILLE GRAHAM CELEBRATES BIRTHDAY

Little Lucille Graham of 1212 Tenth street was the honoree at a birthday party given for herself and her little friend as a celebration for her fifth birthday.

The children played games and had several contests for an hour or two, Madeline McCarty being presented with a small gift for winning on the donkey's tail. In the dining room a pink and white color scheme formed the decorations, pink baskets containing each piece, while a birthday cake graced the center of the table. In cutting the cake the thimble, ring and dime were found by the little ones.

Little Miss Lucille was generously remembered by her guests and on leaving each was presented with a basket of balloons.

The guests included Mary Elizabeth Smith, Nancy and Martha May, Louise Fritz, Catherine Simon, Olive Green, Madeline McCarty, Helen and Jane Clayton, Patsy McGregor, Pauline Jane Art, Ona Belle Britton, Lily and Roberta Graham and Beverly Ransom of Pittsburgh, Pa.; Masters Robert Collier, Billy Hopkins, R. ### NEGRO MASS MEETING TO BE HELD TODAY TO RAISE ORPHANAGE FUNDS

The Times has received the following announcement: All the colored churches in the city will hold a mass meeting Sunday at 3 p. m. at the Mt. Pleasant Baptist church, corner of Brick and Sullivan, in the interest of raising funds for St. John's Orphan Home, located in Austin, Texas.

A large jubilee chorus among the colored churches of this city will hold the largest concert of the kind ever pulled off in this city. Over a hundred voices have begun active practice for this occasion, according to a statement by M. H. Graham, field secretary of the home.

There will be a 20-minute song service followed by a sermon by Dr. J. W. Loving, pastor of the Floral Heights Baptist church. "The Appeal of the Orphans to the Lord's Steadfast."

Lovers of this class of music will have an opportunity never before accorded them in this particular line. This is a worthy cause which is working out in a large way this particular problem of the race, unassisted by the state.

The public at large is respectfully asked to give this institution their support and encouragement. The local committee has already arranged to have reserved seats for our white friends, and to avoid the rush, we suggest that the people come early to get seats.

SCOTT AND FIELDS HELD WITHOUT BOND PLAN HABEAS CORPUS

GIVEN PRELIMINARY HEARING AT HENRIETTA; WOMAN ALLOWED BAIL.

MR. AND MRS. GIVENS TELL OF ALLEGED ROBBERY

Defense Counsel Attempts to Show Firearms Were Not Used By Two Defendants.

Staff Special to The Times. HENRIETTA, TEXAS, Oct. 15.—H. T. Scott, commonly known as Scotty, and Sewell Fields, both of Wichita Falls, were remanded to the Clay county jail without bond following a preliminary hearing held before Justice of the Peace Clay Coleman Saturday afternoon. The men are charged with robbery with firearms in connection with the robbery of the country store at Dean last Monday night. Mrs. Jim Lemons, who it is alleged drove the car in which the two men departed, waived hearing and she was released on a bond of $500.

Counsel for the defense which consisted of Attorneys John Davenport and Shields Hayer of Wichita Falls, and Attorneys R. E. and C. O. Taylor and H. M. Muse of Henrietta, stated immediately after the ruling of the justice of the peace that they would sue out a writ of habeas corpus. The grand jury in Clay county will meet on Monday, October 24. District Attorney Bert Wilson and County Attorney Vincent Stine represented the state in the case. Sheriff G. P. Jones brought the two defendants and Mrs. Lemons into the crowded district court room where the trial was held at 1:30 o'clock.

Merchant Is Witness.
J. B. Givens, proprietor of the store at Dean, was the first witness placed on the stand after the complaints were read, and it was agreed that both men be given a hearing at the same time.

Mr. Givens, who said he would soon be 65 years of age, and that his wife was 70, told that on Monday evening about 11 o'clock he was awakened when two men called to him, stating that they wanted some gasoline.

He said he got up and opened the door and that one of the men, whom he said was Scotty, had a pistol in his hand. He was told, he testified, that they were officers and had come out to arrest him for selling moonshine liquor. Givens said that the men told him they were Officers Morgan and Belcher from Wichita Falls.

The aged man invited them into the house and he stated that they searched every nook and corner and then entered the store. The men asked him whether he had a license to sell cigarettes, and when he, Givens, told them he had not, they told him that he would have to go back to Wichita Falls and pay a fine and get his license.

Identification Is Positive.
Givens positively identified Scotty and Fields as the two men who robbed him on the night of October 10. He told that Fields came to him and slapped him in the face when he told Fields that there wouldn't be any liquor in the jewelry case.

At this point Givens said that Scotty came in and told Fields, "Don't slap him; he is an old man." The witness testified that after they had searched the store, Scotty stood behind him and Sewell Fields took between $30 and $25 from his pockets. Givens testified that Scotty entered the house with a pistol in his hand and that he kept it there throughout the time they searched the store and house, and that he left the house with it still in his hands. Givens told in direct examination that he was in fear of his life when he permitted Fields to take the money from him. He also told that two packages of chewing gum, some cigarettes and a Smith and Weston six-shooter were also taken besides the money.

Blindfolded Plaintiff.
On cross examination Givens stated that at no time did either one of the men point the pistol at either he or his wife, and from his testimony the defense sought to show the magistrate that the offense was not robbery with firearms, but merely a plain case of robbery as no firearms were exhibited.

The witness further told of his identification of the two men at the police station the morning after the robbery, and went on to relate that the men had asked him to dig up enough money to make $50 which would be his cash bond. He said he told them that they had all the money he had and then they asked him to write a check for the balance. This, however, was not done, he said.

He testified that Scotty was partly drunk and that he smelled whiskey on Fields' breath while there that night.

Scotty's Black Eye.
Scotty developed a highly colored left eye in the court room and upon cross examination conducted by Attorney R. E. Taylor, former United States district attorney, Mr. Taylor referred to the discolored eyes as a birth mark and asked Givens whether he did not partly identify Scotty by this birth mark. The witness stated that he did not notice the mark that night. It was later brought out that the defendant received the black eye from a fellow-prisoner in the cell at the police station the night of his arrest.

Attorney Taylor asked whether Mrs. Givens talked any to the men that night, to which the witness replied that she did as "she is pretty bad about talking anyway."

Mrs. Givens was the next witness and she told the same story of the affair as did her husband. She was slightly confused, however, with reference to the minor details that the two men carried out the night of the robbery. She also positively identified the two defendants as the men who had robbed the store.

George Hawkins, a member of the Wichita Falls police force, was the third and last witness for the state. He told of arresting Scotty at his home at 1:20 o'clock, and that Scotty was drunk at the time. He also told of finding two cartons of Juicy Fruit chewing gum in the car Scotty drove. He stated that the chewing gum was taken from one of the pockets of the car as it stood on Eighth street about 3 o'clock in the morning.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Givens testified that three cartons of chewing gum were taken from the store that night. The aged couple also testified to the fact that a woman sat in the car in which the men departed after robbing the store.

The state rested its case upon concluding the examination of George Hawkins. The defense placed no witnesses on the stand.

Attorney R. E. Taylor in his argument to the court maintained that the evidence did not substantiate a charge of robbery with firearms as the pistol was never used. This argument was contended to convince the court that the offense charged was a bailable one. He asked that the court set a bond of $2,500.

County Attorney Stine and District Attorney Wilson spoke for the state and each recommended that both the defendants be remanded to the custody of the sheriff without bail bond.

After the hearing state's attorney and counsel for Mrs. Lemons agreed on a $500 bond.

OVER 8,000 FEET OF CONCRETE LAID DURING PAST WEEK

Over 8,000 feet of concrete road were laid during the past week in Wichita county and the wide gap between paved points is narrowing fast. Potts and Prentice with their two large concrete mixers had a record run of over 5,000 feet for the week.

The McCullum Construction company placed over 2,500 lineal feet of concrete and Zimmerman at Iowa Park finished 600 feet. Gilstrap at Burkburnett, who was granted a sub-contract for the paving of a strip of 1500 feet on the Clara road out of Burkburnett has nearly completed the job.

The contractors reported Saturday that they were running low on materials, especially crushed rock.

Peggy Paige WEEK

Defining Authoritatively the Accepted Mode In Every Department of the Store

WITH the entire store participating, with every department in full winter array, tomorrow will open a series of fashion events that will definitely present the final trend of the mode for winter—what Paris has settled and America accepted for the winter season of 1921.

Altogether, it is a showing notable in distinction; truly expressive of the viewpoint of Paris as modified by American taste; living up to every obligation of the Peggy Paige label in the fine workmanship, honest fabrics and exceptional value at each price displayed; furnishing for winter wardrobe selections, a genuinely authoritative array of the styles that are undoubtedly CORRECT at a price that leaves them without rivals.

The central note of the showing is the presentation of Peggy Paige Dresses for winter; the dominating thought is Smartness—the mark of Peggy Paige garments, the motive they express.

This showing brings definite word that skirts will be longer and irregular at the bottom. It brings the message of little or no change in silhouette but marked diversity and originality in trimmings and sleeves.

If you care for correctness, if you are fastidious about the style of the garments you wear, you will be here at the opening tomorrow to gather information and to see an exhibit that can guide your every fashion-choice this winter!

HOW LONG, O, LORD! HOW LONG? The republican congress is still debating the tax and tariff issues while the public continues to pay the same old high taxes which they promised us a year ago would be speedily reduced, once the republicans are in power.

One of the definite promises of the republicans, when they were the "outs" was a program of retrenchment in governmental spending. This was to be taken care of pronto or even sooner, and in a permanent manner.

But even though the public did not do any particular amount of clamoring because it expected the temporary measures would be shortly adopted. Now we are confronted with further delays while the senate and the house spend their time in offering many different brands of nostrums, designed and said to be good for what ails the public.

wild animals, where water holes were few. Most of the cattle died of thirst. Starting in a shanty, the Adairs became fabulously rich.

After her husband's death, Mrs. Adair ran the ranch and its huge cattle industry herself. At 70 years, she still handled all the deals and made her "J. A." ranch famous as the best in Texas.

Despite this activity, Mrs. Adair found time—rather, made time—to improve herself mentally and spiritually. She was a devotee of music and a connoisseur of art.

America was built up by pioneer women of the Cornelia Adair type, though usually their fields for activity were small.

There have been many great women as great men, in all ages. Usually—as in the case of Mrs. Elias Howe, who perfected the sewing machine invention for her husband—the woman has been robbed of the credit.

It is woman's nature to remain in the background. But whenever a man achieves greatness, it is a 1000-to-1 shot that his greatness was inherited from his mother. Also, that he probably would have remained a mediocrity, had he not been fired with ambition and inspiration and pushed forward—by his wife or sweetheart.

In all generations, the greatest actors have been women, just as Sarah Bernhardt eclipsed all male performers of her time.

In private life, woman plays the silent part. But she is there, staging the show, setting the scenery, making the costumes, directing the plot—and, most important of all, providing what theatrical producers call atmosphere.

Farewell, Cornelia Adair! You were one of the few wonderful women who get credit for their important functions in life.

WICHITA COUNTY SPENT $247 IN CONVICTING A MAN WHILE ANOTHER STATE SPENDS $15,000

By E. F. FRUECHTE. Not counting the cost of the prosecution of Cook county and the state of Illinois to expend over $15,000 recently to convict a man of a crime and send him to the gallows.
In a recent case in Wichita county, which according to the records was one of the longest and most expensive trials held for several years, the total cost to Wichita county and the state of Texas was $247.
In each of the above cases a man was charged with murder, one for uxoricide and the other for patricide, and upon trial each was found guilty of the crime charged, and were sentenced to be hanged. In the former case, however, it required six days more to select a jury and try the case than it did in the Wichita county case. But there is a difference in expenditure of nearly $14,753.
Either one of the states is a penny-wise niggard or the other is a lavish and profuse spender of the taxpayers' money.
The state of Illinois and also the state of California, which jumped into the limelight a fortnight ago, allow the district attorney to call upon the county commissioners for a special appropriation to be utilized in the investigation of criminal cases. These states also pay witness fees.
Texas, however, does not permit money to be appropriated for investigating purposes, and further than that it does not pay fees to witnesses who reside within the confines of the county in which a trial is held.
The cost to the county and state of the Toussaint murder trial was approximately $250, which was all expended for jury fees. The jurors who served are paid $3 a day, while each special venireman who answered his summons was entitled to $1, but only a very small number called for this fee.
Officials who devote their time to the prosecution of criminals in Wichita county find themselves handicapped due to the non-allowance of money for investigating purposes. They realize that when a criminal is in trouble that money is no object to him in an attempt to defeat the ends of justice and to combat him without money leads to naught for the state and county.
A certain county official who was in office during the crime wave that swept Wichita county the latter part of the summer and the fall of 1920, expended approximately $2,500 of his own money for investigating purposes. This amount was within a few hundred dollars of the yearly salary of the office.
Within the past month another example of this same nature occurred when the county attorney was called upon to bring back a man arrested in Fort Worth who was wanted here on a petty theft charge. The county attorney was compelled to pay the expense of going after the prisoner and bringing him back to this county out of his own pocket. True enough, the man was convicted and the county attorney gets his fees out of the costs, but in this case the man is laying out his time and costs in jail, so that there will be no fees and mileage fees.
Several weeks ago state rangers raided a certain place and found a large quantity of wine and whiskey. The confiscated liquor had to be removed to the court house and a dray was called. The charges were $5. The county attorney paid for it out of his own pocket.
A movement was on foot several months ago to secure a special investigator who would work under the direction of the district attorney. This investigator would be allowed a certain salary and an expense account. Evidently the movement got nowhere.
The county and district officials

IOWA PARK BOY ON HIS RANGER

Here we have Son Ralston of Iowa Park, Texas. This is the young man who secured thirty-five new subscribers to The Times in less than three days.

What this youngster accomplished others can do, so parents of boys and girls inside and outside of Wichita Falls should encourage their children to take advantage of this wonderful offer.
The reward a boy or girl receives for the efforts they put in is one that is useful and valuable. The use and good they get out of owning a bicycle is known to every one. It is not hard work. It does require a little enthusiasm and vim to secure new subscriptions.
This is a "help yourself proposition." All you have to do is to secure thirty-five new subscribers, it does not matter in the least how many subscribers any other work may secure.
You have until November 1st to enter this campaign and we will give you a reasonable time after that to complete your book if you have not finished by that time.
Come in and let the Bicycle Manager explain this proposition to you. He will be glad to assist you in every possible way.

CONSTIPATION SOURS STOMACH, CAUSES SICK, BILIOUS HEADACHE

That awful sourness, belching of acid and gases; that pain in pit of stomach, heartburn, nervousness, nausea, feeling of fullness, dizziness and sick headache, means your stomach is sour—liver torpid—bowels constipated. It isn't your stomach's fault—it isn't indigestion—it's biliousness and constipation. Try Cascarets; they sweeten the stomach, remove the fermenting food and gases; take bile from liver and carry off the constipated waste matter from the bowels. Then your stomach trouble is ended. GRANDMA USED SAGE TEA TO DARKEN HAIR

She Made Up a Mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur to Bring Back Color, Gloss and Youthfulness.
Common garden sage brewed into heavy tea with sulphur added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair naturally dark and luxuriant. Just a few applications will prove a revelation if your hair is fading, streaked or gray. To Make the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get a bottle of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound at any drug store all ready for use. This is the old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients.
While wispy, gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally.
You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant.—adv.

MUCH FAVORABLE COMMENT FOR THE TEAM OF ELECTRA

By H. A. STROUD. ELECTRA, TEXAS, Oct. 15.—Electra's football squad has attracted the favorable comment of everyone who has seen them in action and the general sentiment seems to be to compare them to a university team.

In the first game of the season, when Henrietta was the opposition, the visiting team appeared on the field, sprawled out all over the ground and waited for the Electra boys to show up. Just a few moments before time for the game to start the Electra squad came through a gate and came on the field running signals, with Coach Edens following in their wake and shouting instructions.

The present Electra football squad has been raised in the spangly, E. M. Denmore, superintendent of the schools, has turned out two state championship squads in his career, and the boys who now play under Electra's banner had football drilled into them by this old master of the platoon.

Edens has an enviable record as an athlete. He played quarter four years for the Brennan high school and then entered Southwestern in his career, and the boys who now play under Electra's banner had football drilled into them by this old master of the platoon.

Edens has accomplished wonders with the Electra line. After the first game Electra showed a weakness on breaking up forward passes and the following week Edens was working them out on this defense.

Coaching has gone a long way in developing the Electra squad. But the coach has had good material to work with and Electra fans will be disappointed if the Tigers are not in the final chapters of the race for the state championship this season.

BOSTON COLLEGE DEFEATS BAYLOR

Terrific Line Plunging Gives The Eastern College 23 to 7 Victory.

DALLAS, TEXAS, Oct. 15.—Baylor university of Waco went down to defeat here this afternoon before the crack Boston College football team from Massachusetts, by the score of 23 to 7, at State Fair stadium.

The Baylor Bears were outplayed in every department of the game except the air attack and this means of gaining ground gave her many yards.

Bradshaw, the crack Baylor quarterback, played his usual sensational game, but the terrific line plunging of the eastern team tore great holes in the Texas line.

Baylor scored first on a delayed pass in the first three minutes of play.

Bradshaw received the ball on the kick off and ran it back 25 yards before he was stopped.

Tom Darling, the stellar halfback of the Boston team was taken out of the game in the early part of the first period.

STUDY OF IRRIGATED FARMING ALONG SCIENTIFIC LINES URGED FOR SUCCESS OF LOCAL PROJECT

By FRANK S. REID.
The Wichita Valley irrigation project so near to realization, should and must suggest to those who are particularly interested in farming work, a most careful study of every phase of the work just as has been suggested, and from the writer's own personal experience, the value of the permanency of this irrigation project does not lie alone with the mere completion of the works themselves, but the building up of the farm land through practical scientific farming of the soil, peculiarly adapted to this section.

buildings located near the road. Have outlet near the chief traveled road.
A modern farm house has never yet been designed. It ought to be a house which is something more than a mere town house. Do not plan a house on the lines of the ordinary town house. A farm house has certain features which a town house will not care to include. The farm house is a work-shop and ought to be designed accordingly.
Water supply must be considered in the plans. Provision for domestic supply of water is important.
No farm surroundings are complete which neglect the use of shade trees and immediate and close connection of orchards.
The farm is the home and wants to have the best features of a home surround it. Locate for convenience; for the best operation of your farm both from the standpoint of operation and transportation of products.
In line with these suggestions, this practical farmer has worked out a score card in determining the kind of a farm to purchase. He uses 100 points as a basis, and divides it up as follows:

Size of the farm as adapted to the kind of farming to be pursued	2 points
Kind of farming to which adapted	3 points
Shape of the fields	3 points
Nearness to shape	3 points

BIBLE LECTURE SERIES PLANNED AT CENTRAL PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

Dr. George Gullie arrived in Wichita Falls Saturday afternoon from Austin, where he has just closed a very successful series of Bible lectures, under the auspices of the Y. W. C. A. of that city. This is the third series of meetings that Dr. Gullie has held in Austin and he reports that it has been the most enthusiastic and successful services that he has ever held in that city.

He was formerly pastor of the First Presbyterian church at Austin, and he will be in charge of the series of Bible lectures at the Central Presbyterian church, Eleventh and Bluff streets, this morning at 11 o'clock. He will speak at both the morning and evening service and continue two services a day, through the week. The hour for the day services will be announced at the morning service. The night meetings will be at eight o'clock.

The public is cordially invited to attend these services and it is hoped that large crowds will take advantage of hearing this most gifted and entertaining speaker. Special music will be provided for the services.

Shotgun Almost Figures in Fight, Uses Fist Instead

Seventh street was the scene of two right fair fights late Saturday. There was a woman in each case.

One combatant might have been a downright serious affair, inasmuch as one of the combatants, up to a minute or two before he met the other, had been totting a sawed-off shotgun, loaded with No. 4 shot, for the avowed and express purpose of shooting. Getting weary of totting the weapon, he parked it in a convenient place and went to a refreshment stand to get a drink. There he encountered the man he had been looking for. The erstwhile man-hunter weighed some 200 pounds and the other about 130, so that the fight was soon over, and the little one in full retreat.

About that time a small man in the vicinity decided that it was no private fight, and that anybody could get in. Accordingly he went for the big fellow; the latter made an emphatic move with his right arm, and small man No. 2 landed some yards away.

Nothing daunted—in fact, there wasn't a daunt in his system—he attacked again and succeeded in knocking a pop bottle out of the other's hand.

The shotgun had begun to figure in the proceedings when the 200-pounder learned that the other had made a telephonic date with the former's wife. The wife had duly reported the date, and the identity of the dates.

The other combat was a brief one. A man entered a store, asked for the manager, and when the latter was pointed out, walked up and struck him in the face. The clerk prevented further hostilities by bodily ejecting the assailant and hollering "police."

The attack resulted, it was said, from a disappointment over some payments made on a dress by a woman friend of the attacker.

The police arrested as many of the several combatants as could be located Saturday night.

Nowhere is found greater longevity than in England.

TIMES DAILY MARKETS

COTTON MARKET.

New York Cotton.
NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—There was a further rally in the cotton market during the last trading, but the demand from shorts became less active on the advance to 19.45 for December, or about 50 points above yesterday's low level. Late fluctuations were irregular, but there was a decided tendency to a higher close. The market closed at 19.25, or 24 points off from the best. The general market closed barely steady but unchanged to 15 points higher.

The opening was steady at a decline of 7 points on December but generally 1 to 19 points higher on covering for the week-end and trade buying. Reports of an improved demand in the south late yesterday and rather vague reports that the tropical disturbance was developing in the Caribbean sea, probably promoted buying to cover short contracts. On the whole, however, local brokers attributed the advance chiefly to a firmer technical position after heavy liquidation of the past two weeks and when the demand from shorts subsided the market soon turned irregular. January sold up to 19.22 during the mid-morning with active buying generally showing net advances of 20 to 30 points, but the close was 15 or 20 points off from the best.

New Orleans Cotton.
NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 15.—Production firmness was shown in early trading in cotton today. At highest the trading moved up to 22 points over the close of yesterday, December rising to 19.25. After the middle of the day the market gradually tapered off under renewed selling for shorts and was realizing by those who took on long contracts around the opening. The close showed net gains on the day of only 2 to 3 points on the more active months, December's last price being 19.25.

On the first call it was plain that the short interest was buying considerably, but the demand down as a result of uneasiness over the very favorable tone of weekly and monthly statistics.

Week-end revised very favorable general were the reference to textile conditions.

Highest prices of the day were reached on telegrams from Texas claiming the crop of 1921 was 50 per cent ginned and on telegrams from Oklahoma saying that ginning would be finished there in 15 days.

DALLAS, Oct. 15.—Cotton midling, 19.25; steady. At Houston, 19.45; steady. At Galveston, 20.50; steady.

GRAIN AND PRODUCE

CHICAGO, Oct. 15.—Uncertainty regarding farm reserve figures credited to the government but not officially issued from Washington, gave an advantage to bears in wheat today during most of the session. Week-end trading more active caused a rally. The close was unsettled at a net decline to a like advance, with December 1.13 1/4, No. 1, 1.12 1/4 and May 1.12 1/4. Corn finished off at 1.14 1/4, up 1/4, gained 1/4 to 1 1/4. In provisions the outcome varied from a decline to a rise of 10c.

Corn and oats were governed chiefly by action of wheat. Provisions averaged higher with wheat.

 Oats: No. 2 white, 32 1/2c; No. 2 mixed, 31c.

Coffee Market.
NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—Coffee futures very quiet, with fluctuations correspondingly narrow. The opening was 2 to 5 points higher on covering through commission house brokers, but prices later eased on reports that some Santos shippers had accepted bids at slight concessions.

December sold off from 7.70 to 7.62 and the market closed net 3 points lower to 1 point higher. Sales were estimated at about 10,000 bags. Closing bids: December, 7.64; March, 7.74; May, 7.51; July, 7.56; September, 7.32.

Spot coffee quiet: Rio Ta. 5c; Santos 4c, 11 1/2c.

Sugar Market.
NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—Raw sugar quiet and no sales reported. Prices were unchanged to 40c for centrifugal for duty free sugars and 4 1/2c for Cubas.

Raw sugar futures were very quiet but new low records were established with March selling at 2.22. The opening was 1 to 2 points decline, under scattered local liquidation, but the loss was regained on covering and final prices were net unchanged. December closed at 2.22; March 2.25; May 2.31; July 2.44.

There were no changes in refined sugar with all refiners listing on the basis of 32 1/2 for fine granulated. There were no transactions in refined futures, and closing prices were not unchanged with December at 2.25; March and later months 2.50.

NEW YORK STOCKS

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—Straight developments in the stock situation unsettled today's stock market. Chicago, N. Y. & Pa.

session falls of the investment division reacting 1 to 3 points. The reversal extended to steel, equipments and numerous allied issues, but domestic oils followed their recent movement into new high ground. Several of the foreign oils, especially Mexican Petroleum, high were substantially better. Elsewhere trading was of deontology character, specialties tending mainly downward with a new low record for American Sugar. Pierce-Arrow common and preferred were unusually active at material advances. Sales amounted to 275,000 shares.

Aside from the 3c, which rose slightly over 50 points, dealings in Liberty bonds were dull and featureless. The general bond market was irregular. Another sharp rally in British rates, with demand sterling at a level approximately 65-100th cent directed renewed attention to chaotic conditions abroad. Most other European rates were better on limited dealings. Total sales per value, $7,422,000.

 IS THIS WHAT YOU FEAR?
 FOR LIFE

A great many persons have an aversion to wearing glasses, because they believe if they commence wearing them, they will have to keep it up for life. This is a very false idea. Many persons who get glasses at the first alarm are afterwards able to lay them aside, but if the eyes are neglected until the condition becomes chronic glasses may have to be worn for life.

You cannot afford any but the best Optical service.

EAT LESS AND TAKE SALTS FOR KIDNEYS

Take a Glass of Salts Before Breakfast if Your Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers You.

The American men and women must guard constantly against kidney trouble, because our diet is so much and all our food is rich. Our blood is filled with uric acid which the kidneys strive to filter out, they weaken in every effort, become sluggish; the eliminative tissues clog and the result is kidney trouble, bladder weakness and a general decline in health. When your kidneys feel like lumps of lead; your back hurts or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment or you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night; if you suffer with sick headache or dizzy, nervous spells, acid stomach, or you have rheumatism when the weather has had, get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys; to neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder disorders. Jad Salts is inexpensive, cannot injure, makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water beverage, and belongs in every home, because nobody can make a mistake by having a good kidney flushing any time.

has a message that he would like for every member of the church to hear. Special music, good fellowship, and a cordial welcome to all strangers and visitors. The evening service, the choir will give a sacred concert under the leadership of Mr. E. V. Ray, assisted by the choir and some of the leading musicians of the city. Very few of the people know about our great choir. We invite you to come and enjoy this musical treat with us Sunday evening.—O. L. POWERS, Pastor.

The public is cordially invited to attend the services and visit the reading room.

Evangelical Church. Corner Fifteenth and Broad streets.—Sunday school at 10:30 a. m., Supt. R. C. McIver. We have set the 20th of this month for our rally day, putting forth extra efforts, calling on absentees, getting in homes that don't attend Sunday school any place, encouraging people to attend Sunday school. Dear people, don't depend entirely upon the committee for this work. For remember God has appointed each one of us as a committee of one to build up his kingdom here on earth, and we will have to give him our report on this work some day. We are indebted to the Lord for one-tenth of our money and one-seventh of our time, and if we use this for any other purpose we are robbing God. God has put us here as His stewards. What are we doing with His income? Preaching service at 11:00 a. m. Junior League at 3:00 p. m.; president, Miss Martha Mahler. Senior Y. P. ### Possibilities of Suburban Home Development Are Demonstrated by N. B. Chenault in Making Place of Rare Beauty Out of Bare, Bald Prairie

Conspicuous with the beauty of cultivated shrub and tree in a setting of drab prairie, the house and grounds of the N. B. Chenault home at the first westward turning of the Seymour road west of the city, has in the success of the first season's development strongly forecasted the day when extensive suburban homes and grounds will mark the western limits of Wichita Falls. Already the location that had made the Chenault home so prominent is being broken by the residence of P. H. Cox, under construction several hundred yards to the north; and another Wichitan is completing plans for building on a thirteen-acre plot half a mile west on the Seymour road. As a logical extension of the Morning Side park development the hills to the west promise to become within the next few years the sites for the most extensive and beautiful homes of the city.

As a pioneer in the development of the suburban districts Mr. Chenault has given every attention to the cultivation of his grounds, obtaining in one season results which have been surprising even to the landscape architect under whose direction the work was done. Already, at the close of the first growing year, the entire landscape scheme extending over five acres of ground has taken marked shape and formed itself into a remarkably attractive frame and background for the residence.

George F. Preston, landscape architect who directed the planting of the grounds, made nature beauty his aim, limiting any impression of formality to a semi-formal motif in the arrangement of the rose garden. Some of the most effective groups of the architect's planting follow the fence line and enclose the swimming pool pergola and the lattice work fence about the rose garden. Dorothy Perkins climbing roses cover the enclosing fence around the entire grounds. Shrubs and flowers outline the fence with occasional groupings to break the straight fence line. At either side of the brick entrance gates groups of purple and white lespedezas have been placed, and the same shrub is used in profusion about the porte chere.

The pergola entrance to the concrete swimming pool at the western end of the grounds is covered with climbing roses under which are twin tea sets and white arbor seats. At either end of the pool are arbors of Concord grapes, their foliage screening the pool and the surrounding enclosure.

Around the rose garden lattice fence climbing roses and honey-suckle vines alternate in canopying the three arched benches and the pergola gateway. Inside are American Beauties, Helen Goulds, Sunburats, Etoile de France and other famous roses arranged in ten groups. Gravel walks encircle the garden and separate the beds. Flowering shrubs enclose the sides of the garden and line the path from the door of the house to the entrance gate. Purple winteria has been effectively used about both swimming pool and rose garden as well as in other shrub groups about the grounds.

Red cedar evergreens enclose the concrete court in front of the garage leading to the driveway and make up the principal back yard decoration. They set off the playground in the playhouse front of the main ground. Back of the playgrounds are the fruit and vegetable gardens and at one side is the laundry and store room.

Vast-colored phlox, anemone daisies, coreopsis and hibiscus-malo marvel are perennials which have given color to the rich background of shrubbery all summer. The fall planting will add to their number and will include additional shrubs and trees.

While framing the grounds with thickly clustered groups, the architect has chosen a somewhat rigid simplicity in the planting immediately next to the house, straight rows of tiny evergreens following the porch lines in front and strictly trimmed shrubs outlining the porch at the side.

Practically all the development of the grounds has been done since the opening of the season this year, and the unusual growth of the shrubs and trees and newly sodded grass largely attributed to the efficiency of the irrigation system employed. Water from the swimming pool which is filled from the city main is pumped into the pipe lines running across the entire grounds. Growth of the early spring is expected to cover the grill work fence and complete the double purpose of the shrub clusters, the screening of the unsightly and the development of the beautiful.

DR. KNICKERBOCKER PLANS SERIES OF SERMONS ON "BUSINESS CHRISTIANITY"

"About a year ago I attended a small dinner party in Wichita Falls," said Dr. H. D. Knickerbocker, pastor of First M. E. church, recently, to a Times reporter. "There were only three couples there and yet in the course of the year three distinct varieties of tragedy had affected those couples. I will use them in illustrating my sermon Sunday night on 'Broken Homes.' Such questions as 'Can a broken home be healed, and what is the remedy?' will be answered. Also, some psychological and philosophic discussions as to broken wills and broken personalities will be a part of the sermon.

"In the morning service I am going to begin a series on 'Christianity in Business and Business in Christianity.' I will discuss in a practical as well as a philosophic way the problems that business men have—problems of honesty, loyalty and brotherhood. I once had a business man say to me that in his life in dealing with business men he never had one of them show any difference in their mutual business transactions because he was a Christian. He didn't mean that Christians were crooks, but that you couldn't tell the difference between Christian business men and any other business man. We will try and find out whether there ought to be a marked difference and what that marked difference ought to be. For instance, take a concrete example. A friend of mine owned forty acres in the K. M. A. field. He was offering it for $4,000. One day he was in Houston. A friend of his met him and said, 'Are you still wanting to sell that land?' He said, 'I am. Well,' he said, 'I'll take it.' They went at once to a real estate office and closed the transaction. Now, afterwards he found that an oil discovery had brought the value up to $10,000, which the party who bought it from him at $4,000 sold it for. Query: Did the party who used his knowledge, concealing it from the owner of the land, practice the golden rule? Now, don't be too sure of the answer until you come and hear my sermon. I hope in this series of morning sermons to provide as much practical help and inspiration to business men as we will have hundreds in attendance who don't usually go to church, and I confidently expect to have the sign, 'Standing Room Only,' for my morning services before this series is over.

"The great feature services at night are proving tremendously attractive. The church is crowded to the doors at each service. The following are the special features for each day's program Sunday:

(a) "Broken Homes," subject Sunday night at 7:30 o'clock. The "dramatic personae" of three of the tragedies discussed in this lecture sermon were guests of a Wichita Falls dinner party given about a year ago.

(b) Harp solo by Miss Louise Clark; two violins and organ accompanying at night service.

(c) Mystery singing at night service.

(d) Illuminated cross with musical accompaniment at night service.

(e) Great chorus choir of forty at both services.

(f) Great pipe organ solos at both services.

(g) "Can Christ Work a Modern Business Miracle?" the first of a series on Christianity in business, at 11 a. m.

(h) Judge John C. Kay's great lecture at the Olympic theater at 9:30 a. m.

(i) Mrs. J. R. Chambers' vocal solo at the Olympic theater at 9:30 a. m.

(j) A thousand folks in Sunday school at 9:30 a. m.

KNOWLEDGE FOR CAR OWNERS

KNOWLEDGE FOR CAR OWNERS

Generator brushes should be examined occasionally for wear. Always partly inflate a tube before inserting it in the casing.

When a cotter pin is slipped into place, never bend the ends over flat against the bolt or rod. The pin will lock just as accurately if the ends are spread just enough to prevent slipping out.

The correct mixture at high engine speed is determined by flashing the throttle open to note if engine runs smoothly and evenly. If it back-fires it is getting too much air and the adjustment must be changed to give it less.

When the drive wheels of a car are locked through breakage in the differential or in the universal joint, the car can be placed in position to be towed by removing the keys that hold the rear wheels in the axle, allowing the wheels to turn freely.

With the coming of cold weather one should make slight changes in the carburetor adjustment. Adjust the needle valve to give a slightly richer mixture. On carburetors which have no needle valve change the low speed adjustment to give a richer mixture. Try different positions until the engine pulls best at low speed.

Never draw a monkey wrench backward from the jaw as it is likely to bend the bar. Always pull it forward.

The air valve on high speed adjustment must be changed to the same purpose. Strengthen the spring and flash throttle open repeatedly. If popping occurs at carburetor, mixture is too lean. If mixture smells strong at exhaust it is too rich.

When changing the oil it is well to flush out the oiling system with about a gallon of kerosene, poured into the crank case and allowed to run out the drain plug from the oil reservoir.

Then try the car on a level road at about 15 miles an hour. Run two blocks throttled down, then open throttle all the way. Car should speed up rapidly and smoothly and engine should not labor, stall, miss explosions, pop back carburetor or give muffler explosions.

To guard against gritty substance just the reflectors carefully with a small feather duster or with a soft cotton. Wet a piece of absorbent cotton with grain alcohol and wipe the reflector from the bulb socket outward and dry with a piece of dry cotton.

MARMON MINIATURES ATTRACT ATTENTION

Although the famous Marmon miniature first made their appearance nearly a year ago at the New York automobile show, they are as much of a novelty and an attraction as ever.

When oiling the front wheels, take off the dust cap and remove the wheel and pack the bearings in a medium hard cup grease. This should be done in every 500 miles of driving.

Even in South America the reputation of these little cars was so wide-spread that it became necessary to satisfy the demand there by sending them one of the miniature town cars. This made its first appearance at the great National exposition of Peru.

There are 15 of these cars, two each of the eight models of the Marmon line. The ninth car of the Marmon line, the Suburban, presented to the public for the first time last month, has not yet been reproduced. A special force is kept constantly at work keeping these cars fresh and in repair in order that, even after a year's shipping about the country, they may be as attractive in appearance as last January.

PART TWO

CLAIMS MADE THAT POTENTIAL MARKET FOR AUTO IS GREAT

Theodore H. Price, editor of Commerce and Finance, in an address delivered recently before a meeting of the Motor and Accessories Manufacturers' association at Detroit brought out a few important facts that are of interest to all connected with the motor car industry.

"The convenience, economy, promptitude and comparative safety in motor transportation is just beginning to be appreciated," he asserts. Whereas a large amount of guess work, most of necessity, is used in estimating future requirements, allowing for the increase in wealth and population and the increased dependence of the population upon transportation, he holds it reasonable to assume that a total of at least twenty million automobiles will be necessary to supply the present demand of America for the swift and rapid movement of its people and its products.

"To form a basis for his assumption of the present demand, Price reveals some interesting facts on production figures of horse-drawn vehicles, including light wagons and carriages, being placed at one million, four hundred thousand in the year 1924.

"The fact that there was probably an average annual production of two million, two hundred thousand horse-drawn vehicles of all sorts during the five years ending with 1924, when the advent of the motor car had the effect of reducing the production of horse-drawn vehicles. It is also indicated that in the year of 1924 there were in use in the United States at least eleven million horse-drawn vehicles of every description.

"This, it is to be borne in mind, was seventeen years ago," he further states. "Since then our population has been increased by probably twenty million, and Professor Anderson, economist of the Chase National bank, estimates that the net income of our people has risen from $12,500,000,000 to over $13,000,000,000 annually.

"If the automobile had not been invented and we had continued to be dependent upon the horse-drawn vehicle for transportation, it is probable that many more than eleven million huggins, carriages, wagons, etc., would today be required to provide for the passenger and freight traffic that could not be carried on the railroads.

"Horse-drawn vehicles are rapidly becoming obsolete. To take their place we are now, as is said, provided with nine million motor vehicles of all sorts. I am inclined to think that a substantial portion of this nine million motor vehicles are also obsolete or are in a rundown condition, but assuming that they are all efficient and useful, it is, I think, an error to conclude that they can begin to meet the transportation requirements of the American people which look eleven million horse-drawn vehicles to satisfy seventeen years ago. This is my main reason for believing that it is a mistake to insist that the American demand for automobiles has reached its peak and that it will hereafter show a decline.

"Why I believe in the automobile may be summarized by the following reasons: First: The nation's demand for transportation which seems to increase more than twice as rapidly as the population. Second: As the number of automobiles of all sorts in use today is less than the number of horse-drawn vehicles in use seventeen years ago. Third: The superior economy, speed and reliability of motor transportation. Fourth: The cityward tendency of our population which implies a constant increase in transportation facilities of both freight and passenger, without which urban population would starve and business would be at a stand still. Fifth: The fact that the railroad short lines are being gradually abandoned and railroad building has practically stopped, thus leaving the American population today entirely dependent upon the automobile for the necessary increase in transportation facilities required."

LATE HAYNES CREATION WINS FAVORABLE TALK FROM MOTORING PUBLIC

The new 1932 Haynes 55, two-passenger roadster is a smart, practical, roomy car that may be used for a variety of social and business purposes. It is presented as a fitting typification of the efforts of the famous Haynes designers and engineers who possess the accumulated experience of more than a quarter of a century of fine automobile manufacturing. Designed to be pleasingly beautiful in appearance and decidedly adaptable for its many requirements, this new 1932 presentation of the Haynes 55 roadster marks the beginning of a new base line in prices for such a particular car.

The Haynes 55 roadster at $1835, O. Golden of Burk. Hugh states that they have unloaded a carload of the new 1932 models. They have many attractive new features.

Quick acceleration and adequate power alone, however, will not make for complete satisfaction. There must be beauty, strength and comfort. In this respect the Haynes 55 roadster is not lacking. Long, unbroken lines accentuate its grace and dignity.

Individual fenders and steps, exterior side cowl lights, artistically designed headlights, a special style winged radiator cap, large carrying compartments—one in the rear deck spacious enough to carry luggage and another one in the body directly back of the seat with a doro on the right side—a ventilating type windshield, an attractive one-man top made of durable weather proof material and adorned by a beveled plate glass window with a trim looking nickel plated frame—these are some of the successful attractions that are compelling buyers to investigate this exceptional value.

The Haynes system of steering and lighting reduces the action to the mere pressing of levers by your fingers. Ease of control and operation is noticeably evident once you feel the thrill of transportation back of the renowned Haynes-built engine. The popular wheel base of 111 inches makes for economy and the extreme ruggedness of the Haynes mechanism assures users of the utmost dependability.

The new 1932 Haynes roadster is truly a remarkable value and a thoroughly practical car for the salesman, doctor, lawyer, architect and business men in other professions besides being a smart, attractive car for society. Four cord tires, 2 1/2 inches, and a spare tire carrier attached to the rear of the frame, are standard equipment. The color is a brilliant, lustrous green. Genuine leather upholstery is used for the roomy seat.

Through good times and bad times, for more than thirty years, the City National Bank of Commerce has served the Wichita Falls district, at all times providing absolute security for money entrusted to its care as well as friendly interest and co-operation in the business building plans of its customers. 125-130

HUDSON ANNOUNCES NEW SUPER SIX MODEL WITH MANY IMPROVEMENTS

Of major importance in motor car companies' announcements this year is the statement from Detroit that a new Hudson super-six is ready to the market. The first super-six in 1916 created exceptional interest because of its distinctive design. Since that time the factory has been constantly refining and improving the product. Now they offer the new Hudson, with many important changes. The patented super-six motor principles, of course, have been retained.

The most important changes in the new Hudson super-six model, from the owner's viewpoint, have been effected in the driver's compartment. This compartment has been entirely redesigned and the construction changes in connection with the steering wheel, pedal and control lever action give operation without effort—a particular appeal to women drivers. A construction change in the steering wheel exceptionally easy. Greater comfort for the front seat occupants has been assured—design giving more knee room. Appearance has been enhanced by grouping the instruments in the center, and the dash light being placed at the top of the group makes night readings easily discernible.

The principal motor change is in connection with carburetion, incorporating a new air heating attachment and a construction change in the intake manifold. A decided improvement and one that will be greatly appreciated is the installation of a new type oiler which does away with the old fashioned conventional grease cup. Turning down grease cups is an out of date operation on the new Hudson car. Lubrication maintenance can be adequately taken care of in a very few minutes with a pump oil can which is furnished as standard equipment. The superior appearance of the new Hudson emphasizes still further advancement in beauty of line. Deep crown fenders that are really mud guards have replaced the previous type. The front fenders have aprons that extend to the extreme front end of the spring hangers. There is a splash apron placed between the front spring horns, which not only adds to the appearance of the car but also affords further protection.

An improvement has been made in the top curtain arrangement, giving still better weather protection. Cord tires are now standard equipment on all models. It is a new Hudson with many refinements and noticeable improvements.

As Expected—Nash Leads the World in Motor Car Value

Nash Four Reduced to $1045 Effective Immediately

This Car at This Price Is by Far the Most Remarkable Motor Car Value in America

The Nash Four was designed, built and perfected as a light-weight, high-quality car and created a new standard of value at its original price of $1395.

From the first public recognition of the wonderful worth embodied in the Nash Four kept the demand always far ahead of our steadily increasing production.

Production Makes New Prices Possible Now this production has reached a volume where by handing this car to buyers practically at cost we are able to make this new price effective immediately.

Like money has never before purchased such great value in a high-grade light motor car. In every quality of appearance, comfort and performance this car displays its commanding supremacy and expresses that superior excellence which so conspicuously and invariably distinguishes a Nash-built product.

The beautiful body, finished in dark, lustrous blue, is unusually roomy. The thick upholstery of its wide, restful seats is of finest materials.

Superior in Every Outstanding Quality The famous Nash Perfected Valve-in-Head Four-Cylinder Motor, the acknowledged performer among light-four engines, is now refined to the last degree. Its wonderful acceleration, fine speed, power on the hills and unusual flexibility in throttling down, leave it without a rival in its field.

Remarkable Riding Comfort The unusual spring suspension of this great Nash Four gives a riding ease which equals that of far more expensive cars of greater wheel base.

See This Car Today—Drive It Then you will recognize by how wide a margin it surpasses all the other light cars. It is the outstanding automobile value today—a real leader in the automobile industry.

A Greater Super-Six For Less Money

It is a handsome car—It is easier to operate—It is improved in many mechanical features—It is more economical—It has the exclusive Super-Six features for increasing car life

We Are Showing It For the First Time

The perfection that men said would make the Hudson Super-Six the finest automobile that is built is embraced in the new models we are now showing.

Only within the Hudson organization was such development possible. Its engineers, for the most part, the same personnel responsible for all previous Hudsons, have had unequalled opportunities.

Recall the Qualities For Which It Is Known

Each year has seen the emphasis of some new quality in the Hudson Super-Six. Six years ago, when new, it was the 72% greater horsepower without increase of motor size or sacrifice of simplicity that attracted.

It created new standards of beauty. Each body type is famous for good looks and the completeness of every detail.

PAUL POIRET, THE GREATEST PERSONALITY ARTIST

Radiating Success, This Fountain of Dynamic Energy Turns From Designing a Gown to Distilling a Perfume or Creating a Garden With Equal Facility and Sureness of Touch

By Kate Buss

IF YOU met Paul Poiret strolling along the boulevard you would say to yourself: "There goes a successful person." And you would be so completely right in your judgment that it would not be easy to limit the meanings of the word successful. Say that he is happy; a celebrated personality; a rich man; a being of tremendous vitality; a remarkable artist; the handsome husband of a beautiful wife. Say whatever you will and add adjective and attribute and you will still not exceed the modern significance of successful as applied to Paul Poiret.

He is known to be the most chic and the most sought-out Parisian dressmaker, or couturier, which sounds a bit more masculine and which I am sure he would prefer to be named. But to call him a decorator would be more nearly to catalogue his profession. He decorates a hat or a sofa, a woman or a hotel; he distills a perfume and pours it into so beautiful a bottle that you think it more delicious than when it distracted your senses in a flower; he creates a garden, turns it into a smart "dancing" or turns the world out of it to offer a sensational evening fete to his friends; he stages a play or starts a tea-shop. And always he succeeds because he pleases your eye, because he is a decorator with an original and daring conception of color composition.

Poiret was the first modern European to popularize black; to associate somber velvet with great gold tassels; to juxtapose wide stripes of magenta and blue and toss a black flower against them to create a stunning cretousse; to rediscover the value of black marble; to revitalize color which for so long a time was the futile result of Whistler's limpid and exquisite pastels.

It is entertaining to know how Poiret es-established himself in business and to discover that his was the proverbial struggle of the young genius against paternal decision. Of course (again true to legend) he covered his schoolbooks with drawings and employed his study hours to design pretty ladies. But, college over, he was put to work with an umbrella manufacturer of family association, and sent out in the streets of Paris to deliver bundles of umbrellas.

You ask, "What did the eighteen-year-old Poiret do when his spirit met such obstruction?" He continued to make sketches of smart and original frocks, and to snatch a few moments while out to deliver his bundles of umbrellas to visit various well-known dressmakers—M. Worth, Doucet, Madame Paquin—in an attempt to sell his designs. Ultimately he succeeded in interesting M. Jacques Doucet, who engaged him at 500 francs a month to design tailor frocks, then the great mode of the feminine world. Poiret worked two years in the house of Doucet and two more for the Worth Brothers, today his business rivals, and then, to quote one of his friends, "feeling his own wings so strong that he must fly alone," he opened a tiny shop in the Rue Anjou, behind the Paris Opera House, behind his window with fabrics of his own coloring and design, patterned with the silver of spring buds and the gold of autumn foliage that he studied in long country walks.

THERE was at that time in the Champs-Élysées quarter of Paris an old "hotel" (in reality a disintegrating palace) so abandoned amid its surrounding and devastated gardens that it might have been a hundred years untenanted. It was a place of suggestion, of retreat, a background for further attack. And Paul Poiret saw and coveted it. In three months' time from the day he bought it he had the house completely restored, the gardens terraced and bedded in the "broderie" style so dear to the French landscape, artist (shown in one of the photographs) and established his dress-making business on the first and second floors and himself and his wife on the third—where each remains today, although the first floor has more than once been decreed to express new ideas of Poiret, and the third floor has been embellished by three delectable youngsters, who are no less appreciative of the Poiret cult of beauty.

The house and completely surrounding gardens fill a great space between the Faubourg Saint Honoré and the Avenue Victor Emmanuel III, and are near the Elysee Palace, the winter home of the French President. It is not the quarter of the dressmakers, who are rather generally grouped on the Rue de la Paix and in the all in the manner of the others in not at all in the fashion. Chez Worth you feel business in the air—that you are come to order a frock. Chez Poiret, while fifty frocks may be offered for your inspection upon nonchalantly strolling mannequins, and while great rolls of taffetas as varied as the ocean sunset, and a wealth of brocade, lace and metal fabric are spread for your pleasure, you linger to examine a cubist brass figure before a reflecting mirror, to approve the effect of the vari-colored pebbles arranged in garden paths with a sure eye to emphasize the pattern of the planting, to remark a white statue placed against a background of ivy-covered wall in the surrounding that best suits and shows beautiful marble, in the open air of a garden. You relax to the persuasive.

It was enlightening to watch the mannequin who displayed the cape-mantle of the true Poiret design, which appeared to be a formidable length of gray lined with purple satin, or purple lined with gray satin—whichever you choose. She wound and unwound it variously about her over-slim body, with here a deft turning of an edge to show reverse color, and there releasing a length to emphasize richness of dimension. A clever young woman she was, nineteen or so, with wise eyes and a hard mouth, who spends her days exhibiting lovely clothes for other women to wear, mimicking the wealthy Parisienne or the chic New Yorker as a parakeet might ape a peacock, envying, competing, aging. The Paris mannequin is a subject apart, a unique being. You watch her and forget that you are come to choose a frock until she strolls too near and you remark a label on her skirt. The one I recall was so droll that I tell you of it. It marked a costume named "Richelieu," which had nothing of his period in its cut. The significance of the title was in a sort of tiny cape which covered so completely a daring décolletage that it was thought to suggest the character of the deceptive Cardinal. An amusing bit of Gallic caprice! Model frocks are known and ordered by their name, an easy means of distinguishing the order book. Most frequently costumes bear the names of French history—Dubarry, Malmisson, Ninon de l'Enclos, but now and again a bizarre modern title tags the hem of a frock, Spring Showers, or Martial.

Perhaps you are fortunate enough to be entertained at a soiree given by M. and Madame Poiret (which the journalists name the "Fetes of the Thousand and One Nights") when not a trace of the business of dressing women remains to suggest the daytime use of the several salons of the first floor. Rose-colored walls painted with French blue and mauve stripes and occasionally a scattered pink rose, deep rose red taffeta hangings at the many long windows which open on the gardens, painted wooden chairs in grays and mauves that seat customers by day but charmingly receive guests after dusk, frequent mirrors, doors of glass and a great hall through which a white marble staircase balustraded with wrought iron winds into the unknown, and at the end of the hall an inconceivably large mirror in which, against it, is reflected a seat of black velvet spread with cushions that Aladdin might have saved for his personal palace and that afford a splendid note of contrasting color to the still more splendid decorations added for the evening, and the brilliant group of assembled guests among whom M. and Madame Poiret are never lost to view, so arresting is each of their personalities—this is the Maison of Poiret, in sunlight and electricity, by day a salesroom, at night a salon.

PAUL POIRET is never interviewed. You may know him socially, or, if you are a very admired customer, you may obtain his decree upon your sartorial needs, a rare occurrence nowadays, since he is so much a man of other affairs that merely designing clothes is incidental, otherwise you will not meet him. He is a handsome man, with high cheek bones and long, heavy-lidded eyes that suggest Oriental origin; short, just a bit heavy, but with it a high vitality that lifts him physically as well as mentally above many a taller man; contradictory hands, both long of finger and square of palm; chic, rather English clothes that pleasantly seem not so new as very well pressed, and direct interrogative eyes.

The portrait reproduced here of Monsieur and Madame Poiret, which has just been painted by Garcia Benito and which now hangs in the new salon at the Grand Palais, gives you the impression of the chic boulevardier that Poiret might be if he wasn't so much more the creative artist, the man of decorative affairs and enterprises. And Madame Poiret as well gains nothing from Benito's paint. To be sure her frock of gold tinsel is destructively reproduced and her brilliant, compact head is well suggested, but she is far prettier than her picture. She is, however, a subtly matching personality to the husband at her right hand. You might imagine them to be brother and sister from Benito's seeing of them if you didn't know them to be husband and wife. But enough of the Poiret personality. There are so many other things to talk about—Poiret as an interior decorator, whom we have already met in his own establishment; Poiret as a perfumer; Poiret as the manager of a night restaurant, just opened and named "Le Clover"; Poiret as an organizer of the annual spring fete at Cannes; as stage costumer; Poiret in a dozen activities that are rapidly writing figures to the left of the decimal point in the addition of his fortune. It is easy to say that he must have been born under that lucky star that no astronomer has ever been able to place, although it appears now and again to light the birthright of a favorite child, but it is more truthful to say that he has made his own way brilliant by the constant expression of an indefatigable individuality. The gift of the casual appears to be his, but it is wrapped about with stupendous energy.

His interest in perfumes shows the activity of his brain even in play. He commenced to experiment with them entirely as a relaxation. But his success in extracting the essence of nature herself forbade the closing of his laboratory until at the moment it has become an industry that employs many people and finds outlet in a shop named "Rosine" that is niched in beside the Faubourg Saint Honoré entrance of the Poiret "Hotel." It is a humorous little boutique full of quaint bottles and boxes that imprison such perfumes as "Monsieur et Madame" and "Més Culpas." One often blames a perfume for one weakness or another, but whoever thought of labeling it so before Poiret called it "Més Culpas." Poiret has recently shown that he has a humorous slant in his decorative vision in a restaurant that opened a week before this was written and for which he is sponsor as decorator, and one imagines from which he must draw a considerable revenue. "Le Clover," in the Rue Caumartin, has been both club and theatre. Under Poiret ownership it opens at 11 in the evening and closes when you are ready to breakfast—a night restaurant. I went to see it. I entered through portal hangings that seemed too stunning to be subjected to the whim of Paris weather and along a corridor mysterious with exotic fabric and fabrication. The usual night restaurant has only a few mirrors to decorate it and depends on the beauty of the women who frequent it and the bouquet of its wines to suggest an attractive midnight milieu. Not so "Le Clover." Every inch of it is of distinctive decoration, and although Irene Hammond and "Charlie" Stuart dance there each night, you return to enjoy the spectacular effect of the place rather than the women or the dancers, or even to dance yourself.

APROPOS, Poiret has caused to be painted in behind the musicians' stand a scene or more of black faces so scarlet of lip and white of rolling eyes that they must rather discover the orchestra if it turns to inspect its mural background. And the smiling spectator doesn't know which is which, black flesh or black fresco. At one end of the restaurant a night sky is painted with immense white clouds and a golden star or two, and on the opposite wall, which backs a wide alcove, a garden is latticed with roses and hung with brilliant crystal lights to afford sharp and enticing contrast for choosing one's table to accord with one's mood of display or discretion. And in the shop, a place in which to sell, but nevertheless furnished as an apartment (you may buy anything you choose in this Poiret dwelling if you have the "price"), in this shop Poiret shows the creations of a group of young people known as the School Martine, pupils obviously, although they are said to express only their individual observations of nature in design, but the resulting decorations are of the sort with which Poiret revolutionized the upholstery and textile manufactures six or eight years ago. They are in fact Poiret himself, flat color in large surfaces, juxtaposed and unfriendly styles, merry spottings, quaint foliage and birds that were once thought "queer." Black and gold are the compelling tones of the shop Martine.

It is Paul Poiret's intelligent habit to live for a time each year in a country that is new to him. He studies it, assimilates its arts in motif and color melody, and returns to Paris to give the world a tactile memoir of his wanderings. It is neither imitation nor challenge. It is rather an almost superhuman understanding of beauty. Many writers have tried to explain beauty, Euripides, Keats, a few have succeeded, as much by sound as by definition. Many painters have tried to show it. Again a few have succeeded. Botticelli, Hokusai, Gauguin, Dürer, in his directness and within the limitations of his century, is an artist among these men.

THE DRUG TRAFFIC DISCUSSED BY THE MAN WHO KNOWS

Colonel L. G. Nutt, Charged With Enforcing the Anti-Narcotic Laws, Discloses Some of the Devious Ways by Which the Habit Lays Its Numbing and Almost Unbreakable Clutch on Millions

Copyright, 1921, by Public Ledger Company

By William Atherton Du Puy

"Persons in good circumstances may acquire the drug habit through following the venturesome spirit of experimentation."

"WE HAVE hundreds of thousands, possibly a million, persons in the United States who are addicted to the use of narcotic drugs," said Colonel L. G. Nutt, who is in charge of the enforcement of the statute which prohibits the importation, manufacture or sale of such habit-forming materials except through prescribed channels. "That group of persons which is thus in the grip of a demoralizing habit is undoubtedly the most miserable and hopeless element in all our national life. After years of experience with them I have come to the conclusion that an addict, an habitual and confirmed user, cannot be cured. Our principal hope lies with the rising generation. If we can prevent the members of that generation from falling under the influence of the drug we will only have to wait for the passing of those who are now beneath its thrall for a solution of the problem."

Colonel Nutt is an official of the Treasury Department who has emerged through the decades, has perfected one of those services which the Federal Government renders to its people in a field which it has found for itself. Twenty-five years ago he was a druggist in Kankakee, Ill. For ten years he worked behind the counter filling prescriptions for his townsmen.

Then he was lured away from the monotony of mixing medicines by an opportunity to enter the Federal service and become an agent of the Bureau of Internal Revenue. For years he scoured about the country on the track of those men who sought to manufacture liquor, or tobacco, or drugs, and to avoid payment of the taxes on them which were due the Government. He had charge of the enforcement of these laws in one section after another in the United States until it came to pass that the map of a nation was rolled out before him, from an internal revenue standpoint, like the detail of your back yard garden.

The primary accomplishment of the Harrison Narcotic Act is that it enables us to keep track of all the habit-forming drugs that are legitimately introduced into the United States and distributed through the trade. The Secretary of the Treasury three years ago appointed a special committee to investigate and report upon the traffic in narcotic drugs. It should be borne in mind that there are two primary materials from which these different habit-forming drugs are made. One is opium, made from the juice of the poppy. The other is coca leaves grown in the forests of South America. This committee found that about 500,000 pounds of opium was being lawfully imported into the United States each year. This opium retailed for about $40 a pound and thus the trade in it amounted to something like $20,000,000 a year. The average yearly importation of coca leaves is found to be about 1,000,000 pounds. These leaves had a value of about $1 a pound and so represented a business of about $1,000,000.

The raw materials must be duly reported by the importer, who pays a duty on them. Their journey from the importer to the manufacturer must be shown and the manufacturer must pay another duty. After preparing them for use he sells them to a wholesaler and the transaction must be again reported to the Government. Every ounce that the wholesaler sells to a druggist must be reported and the druggist in turn must show exactly what is his disposition of these narcotics. Finally, the law requires that every grain of these forbidden drugs that are obtained on prescription must be recorded, and where any physician prescribes them overmuch suspicion is immediately aroused. Thus is a complete chain established which informs the Government as to the disposition of all narcotics that are handled through regular channels.

Colonel Nutt went to a cabinet in his office and took therefrom a plain white, conventional petticoat. He showed me that around this petticoat at about the point where it came over the hips there was a series of pockets, twenty-seven of them altogether. In each of these pockets there was a little package of the drug. The woman who wore the petticoat was in collusion with the steward of a steamer which docked at San Francisco and the two were regularly

"This phase of the law is satisfactorily in operation. It makes it impossible for the unprofessional doctors or druggists to dispense habit-forming drugs.

"So does the big problem become that of preventing the illegitimate introduction into this country and the illegitimate sale of narcotics. It is estimated that the 'underground' traffic in narcotics introduces about the same amount of these substances into the United States as come in through legitimate channels. This trade is in the hands of so-called dope peddlers, who appear to have a national organization for procuring their supplies and disposing of them. For the most part they obtain their supplies by smuggling them from Mexico or from Canada and through the various ports of the Atlantic and Pacific. This sort of smuggling is a very profitable enterprise, because of the fact that such drugs may be sold in the United States for ten times what they cost. The smuggling is comparatively easy, because the bulk of these materials is so small in proportion to value. An ounce of cocaine, for example, can be bought in Italy for five dollars. In the United States it can be sold wholesale for ten times that amount and if retailed may be sold for a price as high as three or four dollars a grain. There are 480 grains in an ounce. So do stupendous profits become possible.

"So on the face of it it becomes obvious that it is an easier thing to reap a given profit through smuggling cocaine than through smuggling whiskey. It is necessary to introduce only a few ounces of cocaine to insure a profit equal to that of the introduction of a barrel of whiskey. Let me show you something."

"Give me that cross," commanded the colonel. When examined it was found to have a remarkable cap and a hollow interior which would carry a goodly supply of opiate introducing opiates in this way. Ordinarily a woman coming in from the Orient would not be so carefully searched as to reveal the presence of these packages. Once suspected, of course, she would be turned over to woman inspectors and thoroughly examined.

"Along the Mexican border all manner of subterfuges are resorted to. The most striking of these was one which we detected in which the tire of an automobile coming over from Juarez was found to be filled with morphine cubes. In another case a can of Cuban jelly, a delicacy of that island, was found to have in the center of it a space given over to the inclosure of drugs. Thus the devices resorted to are so numerous that it is admittedly virtually impossible to prevent the introduction of narcotics into this country without the building of a very much more complicated machine than that which now exists."

"How are these drugs disposed of as they arrive in the United States?" I asked.

"IN THE underworld of every city," said Colonel Nutt, "there are sources of supply for these narcotics. The smugglers establish them, of course, as a means of disposal of their illicit goods. The dope peddlers are in touch with these sources of supply and regularly get supplies for their traffic. Drug addicts have naturally developed information as to the agencies through which narcotics can be obtained in the course of the development of their habit. As the habit fastens itself upon them they become more determined to obtain the drug and cleverer in the devices to which they will resort. So long as they have money to pay they are pretty certain of finding a source of supply, and they will get the money with which to buy drugs by any means within their power, lawful or otherwise."

"There are several classes of them," said Colonel Nutt. "There are the denizens of the underworld, whose addictions grow out of general depravity and who ally from bad to worse. They recruit their numbers from strata of society that are somewhat lowly. One might become addicted to the drug in this way, for instance; He or she might be a participant in the pleasures that are offered by the dance hall. This sort of opportunity is much less frequent now than before the days of prohibition. A young girl might be exhausted or suffering from some ailment at such a dance and a companion, already an addict, would give her the drug, which would result in an exhilaration carrying her joyfully through the balance of the evening. This first experience would lead to a second and addiction would soon be acquired.

"Even in better grades of society similar experiences sometimes occur. People in good circumstances may acquire the drug habit through following the venturesome spirit of experimentation. They may acquire it because of illness that they have had, operations which they have undergone which required them to take opiates to alleviate their pain. However they have acquired the habit, they are likely to lose their moral fiber and may become sources for contamination for other people about them. Thus it is possible for the habit to find its way into the very best of circles."

"IS IT possible to cure the drug habit?" I asked.

"This is a question with regard to which there has been a great deal of misinformation distributed," said Colonel Nutt. "When the Harrison Narcotic Act first went into effect there was much emotionalism over the idea of depriving addicts of their drugs and the terrible agonies which they suffered when so deprived. The enforcement of the act off of which was that of reduction or tapering off—of giving the addict each day a little less of the drug than he had the day before until finally he was receiving none of it at all. This idea of cure was thoroughly tried out."

"We even went so far as to allow clinics

"A splendid young captain of the United States Army, having been wounded in France, had acquired the drug habit. After his recovery it became evident that he was addicted to narcotics. He was sent to a hospital for treatment, was carefully searched and carefully guarded, but he still continued to give evidence of being under the influence of drugs. Finally the colonel in charge of the hospital went to this captain's quarters and searched them. He stripped the captain to the skin and assured himself that there was none of the drug in his clothes. There remained around his neck, however, a cross indicative of his religious faith.

"Give me that cross," commanded the colonel. "Instinctively, protesting, the captain's hand went to the cross and he protested against its release so earnestly as to increase the conviction that it carried his drug. Sure enough, when examined, it was found to have a removable cap and a hollow interior which would carry a goodly supply of opiate.

"A similar case was that of a woman who continued under the influence of opiates, the presence of which could not be detected. Finally, the agent demanded that she give him for examination a handsome comb which she wore in her hair, and sure enough, beneath the brilliants in that comb was found the resting place for her supply of opiates.

"WHAT advancement is being made in cleaning up this drug addiction?" I asked Colonel Nutt.

"There is coming to be a better understanding of it," he replied, "and an overcoming of the prejudices against the rigid enforcement of the law. Local administrations everywhere are becoming more sympathetic and are lending more assistance. Judges are giving more severe sentences to violators of the law than they used to and that is helping a great deal. In New Orleans recently we put on a campaign and obtained sixty-one convictions in sixty days and a penitentiary sentence in each case. In Kansas City, which has been a very bad spot, we tried ninety-two dope peddlers in June and July and got ninety convictions. In one of these cases, that of a physician who illegitimately sold these drugs, we obtained a sentence of nine years. In St. Louis recently a physician, proved to be guilty of selling drugs, was given a sentence of fifteen years. Judges and juries generally are at the end of their patience with regard to these individuals and are assessing severe penalties. All of which helps very much.

"Another element that promises to enter into the situation is progress on the part of the medical men in so-called synthetic substitutes for the alleviation of pain. Already there has been developed such non-habit-forming substitutes which are used with very satisfactory results by dentists. It is not too much to hope that the medical profession will soon develop such substitutes. When that day arrives this country can prohibit the importation of all the products of the poppy and of the coca leaves and thus outlaw those products wherever they are found. This would greatly simplify the enforcement of the Narcotic Law. Neither the opium poppy nor the coca tree grows in the United States, and unless introduced these drugs will not be available. Before the great war a convention had been arranged among nations for co-operation in suppressing this drug traffic. It had not been ratified and not much has been done about it for nearly a decade. With the growth of the idea of international co-operation, however, new possibilities of suppressing this traffic may develop.

play of unhappiness over their deprivation for two or three days and find that they get no results from their emotionalism and the thing is over. Inside of a week their physical conditions become improved and within a month they are getting back to normal. In all the history of the Atlanta Penitentiary no addict has ever died because he has been deprived of his opiates. The claim that they will die from being deprived has been very completely disproved.

"Down at Atlanta on this trip I was specially interested in studying a most exaggerated case of drug addiction. A dope peddler had a short time before been sent to this penitentiary from Albany, N. Y. This man was of huge stature but frightfully emaciated. It was impossible to find upon his body a spot which was not scarred by the use of the needle. At the time he was apprehended he was using an ounce of morphine every day. An ounce of morphine is 480 grains, and one-fourth of a grain is an average dose for a normal adult. So this man was using the equivalent of 1920 normal doses of morphine each day. As far as I know, he was the prize addict of the experience of the service. At Atlanta, however, they had locked him in a cell and given him no dope whatever. When I saw him he had been at Atlanta for a month and was already starting on the road to recovery. For the four years of his sentence he will be without morphine. His moral depravity will, however, be such that when he gets out he will probably go back to the old life. It will have been demonstrated, however, that morphine is not necessary to his existence.

"Our agents have many interesting experiences in apprehending these men who engage in illicit drug traffic. Here, for instance, is an interesting case: an agent had gone to a room in a small-town hotel which was occupied by a man who was suspected of selling these drugs. The man had submitted to the search of his room and of his person and none of the drug had been discovered. After going over the premises the agent was standing by the mantel thinking the situation over. There on the mantel lay a Gideon Bible, such as is to be found in most hotel rooms. As he thought he absentmindedly fingered the edges of this Bible. Then he inserted his finger halfway through the book and opened it up. There in the middle of the book the leaves had been cut out and a space arranged for the cacheting of a hypodermic syringe and a supply of dope.

"A splendid young captain of the United States Army, having been wounded in France, had acquired the drug habit. After his recovery it became evident that he was addicted to narcotics. He was sent to a hospital for treatment, was carefully searched and carefully guarded, but he still continued to give evidence of being under the influence of drugs. ## The Largest City in the World

THE biggest city in the world has moved from the Orient to the Occident, and estimating New York on the same basis as the population of Greater London was computed during the recent census, the metropolis of the Western Hemisphere is the largest city in the world. Greater London includes all the suburbs within a radius of fifteen miles of Charing Cross and has a population of 7,476,168 persons. On this basis New York would include Jersey City, Hoboken, Bayonne, Yonkers and New Rochelle. Again the municipality of New York, with a population of 5,620,048, census of 1920, is larger than the municipality of London. But this is more or less of a technicality inasmuch as Greater London is classified as a unit as regards population. If, however, one is seeking the spot on the earth's surface where the greatest number of persons are gathered New York and its environs lead.

The Greater London which has nearly seven and a half million has an existence as a metropolitan and police unit. It is municipal London plus the so-called Outer Ring. The 7,476,168 people of "Greater London" are distributed over 608 square miles, an area six times that of municipal London, and more than twice that of municipal New York.

In passing it should be noted that not only is there a distinction between "Greater London" and plain "London," but that the "City of London" is "something yet again." The "City of London" covers only 675 acres and has a resident population of over 25,000. The day population, however, exceeds 800,000.

New York of today is an agglomeration of towns. All have been amalgamated with the original New York, comprised in what now is the borough of Manhattan, or the County of New York. The New York which includes the boroughs of Manhattan, Brooklyn, Bronx, Queens and Richmond is a municipal unit with an area of 326 square miles and a population of 5,620,048.

Strictly speaking the municipality of New York has more people than the municipality of London. For legally, as a municipal unit, "London" refers only to the area within the boundaries of the County of London. Thus the municipal London, which corresponds to the municipal New York, comprises about 116 square miles and, in 1911, had a population of four and a half million. Only the "Greater London" figures are carried in dispatches, but at the rate of growth they indicate, London proper still is under the five million mark.

Suppose New York were to add to its present area the aggregate 273 miles of Hudson, Essex and Union Counties in New Jersey. It still would be a hundred square miles smaller than "Greater London," but would pass the seven million mark in population. Were it then to add portions of Westchester County (north of the Bronx) and of Nassau County (on Long Island) it would pass London's population well within a like area.

Municipal New York is larger than municipal London. A mythical "Greater New York" extending as far into its environs as does "Greater London" would be larger than "Greater London." Aside from municipal definition New York and the territory about it constitutes a greater population center than London.

More than 9,000,000 persons live within fifty miles of the New York City Hall and one-ninth of the entire population of the United States reside within a hundred-mile radius of that city.

The Red river boundary hearing in progress in Texas and Oklahoma for the last two months will come to a close soon, the final hearing opening Tuesday in Austin.

Several Wichitans, including Judge J. T. Longmeyer, Judge C. E. Elder and T. R. Boone, will attend. Mrs. Lillis Morgan, one of the property owners affected by the case, will probably also be at the hearing.

The Austin hearing will deal largely with technical matters, and engineers, geologists and geographers who investigated the matter for Texas will be the principal witnesses.

Considerable interest was aroused here Saturday, among those familiar with the case, by Washington dispatches telling of Oklahoma's new brief which sets up that Red river is navigable. This brief amounts to a break between Oklahoma and the United States on this point, as the United States conveys the notion that the river is not now, and never has been, navigable. The Oklahoma brief was filed in order to protect Oklahoma's claims against those of Indian tribes. However, it puts Oklahoma and Texas on the same side, so far as the question of navigability is concerned. Texas has contended that the river was recognized by the treaty of 1819 as being a navigable stream. The significance of the claim, from a Texas standpoint, lies in the contention by Texas that Texans are entitled, under the 1819 treaty, to access to the actual water at all times, which would mean that the south bank of the stream would have to be at the mean low water level.

THREE ACT MUSICAL COMEDY "SPRINGTIME" PROMISES THE PUBLIC ENJOYABLE PROGRAM

PAVING PROGRAM NEARLY FINISHED, FILLMORE OPENED

Paving of Fillmore street from Tenth to Avenue G was completed Saturday and the street will be open to traffic today. It is the last of the bituminous contracts to be completed.

The west side of Ohio has been completed, but not all has been opened to traffic. Most of the concrete on the east side of the street, with the exception of that in front of the railroad property, has been laid. Considerable progress has also been made on Indiana, paralleling the Ohio avenue work, and the next few weeks will see both these streets connected by paving with the county's highway.

THANKSGIVING DAY OF JEWISH CHURCH WILL BE OBSERVED

Succoth, the original Thanksgiving Day of ancient Israel, better known as the Feast of Tabernacles, comes this year on Monday, October 17, and is observed for seven days, ending with the Day of Conclusion or Simenit Atzereth.

It is known in scripture as the Feast of Ingathering (Exodus 23:16), when the ancient Israelites gathered in the fruit of his labors of the field.

It is also associated with the early history of the Hebrews with their journey through the wilderness, when they were compelled to live in tents of temporary dwellings. Many observant Jews obey the Biblical command "to dwell in booths" literally, and erect "succoth," temporary huts, in which they serve their meals and offer prayers of thanksgiving.

There will be special Succoth services at Temple Israel, corner Burnett and Eleventh streets, to-night at 7:30 (Sunday, October 16). Dr. David Goldberg will preach on "The Gerns of Prejudice." All are invited.

Good Citizenship

A bank account makes a good citizen. That's a broad assertion, but it is universally true.

A good citizen is one who is independent, self-supporting and who does things conducive to the best interests of the community. The man who has a bank account is independent, he is thrifty, he is able to pay his way and he contributes to the general wealth of his community. His funds are in circulation. He pays taxes and helps to make things go. Likewise a man who has money and property in a community is anxious to see that the community prospers. We pull for the man with a bank account.
