ELECTRA TO CHARITY NOVEMBER

"GIVE LIBERALLY THE WHOLE TO BE WITH LAUNCH OF A NOO Community Charity Chamber of Commerce $1800 A

ELECTRA, Texas, generally one of the largest and strongest financial institutions in the world, will be opened on Fifth avenue, New York, December 1.

Others are planned for early next year including that of miners.

The foundation of the International Labor Bank, in which four strong unions in the needle trades are cooperating, will be followed within a few months by the opening of the Brotherhood Trust Company by the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers in a building recently leased by the Brotherhood opposite the Pennsylvania station in New York.

The Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers already have a $25,000,000 bank at Cleveland.

In the spring of next year a $1,000,000 labor bank with John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, at head, will be opened at Indianapolis. A similar bank will be established by the Brotherhood of Railway Telegraphers at Boston early in the year.

The telegraphers' Brotherhood established a highly successful $2,000,000 bank at St. Louis early last summer.

In addition to the new labor banks for New York, Boston, and Indianapolis, no less than twenty other workers' banks are now in process of organization throughout the country, all of which will be in operation before the end of 1934.

The present movement for labor banks is being led by the International Labor Bank, which has approximately $50,000,000. It is predicted by leaders in the banking movement that the total resources of workers' banking institutions in this country will pass the $100,000,000 mark within the next few years.

"In the labor banking movement," said Richard Boeckel, labor economist today, "we are witnessing the rise of a new power in finance. While the growth of labor banks has been phenomenal, they do not tell the full story of labor's new effort in the financial field. Side by side with the new workers' banks, strong workers' investment and insurance companies are being organized, which may be expected in the future to play an important part in financing industrial operations."

The Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers may be cited as an example. Its members have accumulated $100,000,000 a day.

Mr. Boeckel's new book "Labor's Money" is the best work on the new plan of American labor for securing a substantial share in control of American industry by mobilizing its money under its own control, and thus assuming a share in the control of the credit resources of the nation upon which the financing of the industrial machine depends.

The first labor bank in the United States was opened in Washington in the summer of 1929 by the International Association of Machinists. The Fifteenth workers' bank was opened at Cincinnati late in October by the Brotherhood of Railroad Clerks. In addition to the fifteen banks now in successful operation, a one-third interest in the $50,000,000 Empire Trust Company of New York is owned by the Locomotive Engineers.

Notwithstanding some of the old trade union labor leaders, Boeckel says, "the movement will be a larger and larger achievement for it has caught the imagination of the American working man."

ELECTRA TO HAVE CHARITY DRIVE ON NOVEMBER 27-29

"GIVE LIBERALLY ONCE FOR THE WHOLE YEAR" IS TO BE SLOGAN.

WILL LAUNCH CAMPAIGN WITH A NOON LUNCHEON

Community Charitable Board and the Chamber of Commerce Set $1800 As Goal.

ELECTRA, Texas, Nov. 17.—"Give liberally once for the whole year," will be asked of Electra people during the drive for a community charity chest November 27, 28 and 29. The campaign will be formally launched with a noon luncheon in the basement of the First Methodist Church Tuesday, November 27.

At a point meeting of the community charity board and the chamber of commerce Wednesday afternoon in the chamber of commerce hall it was decided that $1,800 would be adequate for all relief work in Electra. That sum will be the goal of the charity board in the community chest campaign.

The members of the Community Charitable Board are as follows: J. R. Lawrence, chairman; Geo. E. Fabus, secretary; L. C. Whitaker, assistant secretary; Rev. C. C. Dooley, A. C. Rippey, B. L. Stevenson, M. O. Turner, J. M. Towles, directors; Mrs. Mary Jewell, Mrs. W. A. Gault, Mrs. Edward Schlarke, Mrs. J. P. Parr, Mrs. E. A. Archer, Mrs. J. P. David, Mrs. J. E. Cooper, Mrs. C. Dooley, Mrs. Bud Claypool, Mrs. Grace Jennings, Mrs. Pearl Callens, B. L. Stevenson, Mrs. J. M. Munay, visiting secretaries.

A committee appointed by the chamber of commerce, of which G. M. McDavid is chairman and J. M. McAnby, C. E. McNameid, J. E. Brannen and E. M. Friend are members, will cooperate with the charity board in raising the budget for charity relief.

Will Erect Building

The Electra Gas Company will erect a new building in the rear of the Electra Hardware store, facing Front street. Part of the building now occupying this site will be torn down to make room for the new structure. The proposed building will be used by the gas company as an office and warehouse. It will cost about $2,500.

The ditching created and by the gas company is making rapid progress, and it will be only a matter of about two weeks, according to company officials, before it will be possible to supply the business section with gas. The south side will be reached a short time after that.

The Electra Gas Company will be capitalized at $42,000. Application for incorporation has already been made at Austin. Officers of the new company will be elected at a later date.

Variety Store to Move

A variety store owned by Harris brothers, will occupy the new brick building which is under construction at the corner of Main and Bryan streets. The building is being erected by J. H. Harris. Plans call for its completion not later than December.

The Organize Boy Scouts

The organization of six troops of Boy Scouts, each troop to consist of 20 boys, will be undertaken in this city under the sponsorship of the Rotary and Lions Clubs and other civic bodies.

At last Friday's meeting of the Rotary club Robey Price of Houston, special representative of the Boy Scouts, was the principal speaker. He emphasized strongly the good work that could be accomplished by the boy scout movement here, and stated that there are fully 150 boys in Electra who should belong to Boy Scout troops. A budget of about $200 would be sufficient to get the movement under way, he said. After that it would be self-supporting.

Texhoma Filling Stations' Third Birthday Success

Splendid patronage was experienced at the three Texhoma filling stations here Saturday, the third anniversary of the opening of the first station in the city by the local company, W. B. Hamilton, president, stated Saturday night.

More than 3,000 automobiles were served at the three stations Saturday, and coupon tickets, good for one gallon of Texhoma motor oil, were given all patrons during the day, according to Mr. Hamilton.

Three years ago Saturday the first Texhoma filling station was formally opened at Tenth and Broad streets; shortly afterward the station at the refinery on the Burkholder highway was opened and six months later the station at Indiana and Front streets began operation. The stations are of the most modern type and civic experts praise the excellent service being active in civic beautification and community building, and Mr. Hamilton has always endeavored to give only the best to his patrons, according to all reports.

"The Texhoma Company sincerely thanks the people of Wichita Falls for their excellent patronage since the opening of our first filling station, and we have always attempted to maintain perfect service and give only the best to our patrons. We are proud to be a part of the Texhoma family, and we are confident that we will continue to give only the best to our patrons in the future."

The filling stations are built on the bungalow type, of white enameled brick with green tile roofing. The lawns are most attractive and flowers are found in boxes and in beds on the grounds.

GRAND JURY ADJOURNS SATURDAY AFTERNOON TO MONDAY MORNING

The grand jury of the 19th district court, which resumed its deliberations last Monday after a recess of three weeks, adjourned Saturday afternoon until Monday morning, without making any further reports.

This grand jury was assembled the first Monday in October, and following almost daily sessions for two weeks returned a total of 60 indictments.

A recess of three weeks next intervened, followed by the reconvening Monday, November 12. Reports from the grand jury during the past week were to the effect that the jurors hoped to finish their work Saturday. However, at the Saturday afternoon session it developed that this was impossible and it was therefore decided to adjourn until Monday morning.

IMPROVEMENT IS SHOWN IN DR. KEEVIL'S CONDITION

Some improvement was shown Saturday night in the general condition of Dr. J. Lam Keevil, pastor emeritus of the First Christian Church, who has been critically ill at his home for several weeks. Dr. Keevil's condition grew worse Friday night and some uneasiness was felt by his friends over his condition until he rallied Saturday morning. Physicians in charge reported that he was resting well Saturday night.

"To adjust the balance of this age we must seek another remedy; we do not need more material development, we need more spiritual development. We do not need more intellectual power, we need more moral power. We do not need more law, we need more religion."

FEDERAL GRAND JURY TO CONVENE MONDAY MORNING

A federal grand jury will assemble here Monday morning, when Judge William H. Atwell, United States district judge, will open the fall term of the United States district court for the northern district of Texas, Wichita Falls division.

A. J. Reinhart, an assistant in the United States district attorney's office, arrived Friday to make advance preparations for the opening of the term Monday.
Judge Atwell, the clerk, deputy marshals and other members of the district attorney's office are expected to reach the city Sunday.
Mr. Reinhart spent Friday and Saturday preparing a number of cases for submission to the grand jury, which will be impaneled at 10 o'clock Monday morning.

UNIVERSITY CLUB TO DISCUSS SUNDAY LAWS

The program committee for the weekly luncheon of the University Club declared Saturday at a most interesting luncheon would be enjoyed by all who attend next Tuesday.
Refusing to divulge details, it was asserted that a number of interesting and recorded observations on matters relating to Sunday laws, and the revealing of such matters at the club luncheon would be of interest to all. As usual the luncheon is open to all who find it convenient to attend. The committee stated the luncheon will begin on time, 12:10 sharp, and adjourn at 1:15.

WEATHER CONDITIONS IN DISTRICT UNCHANGED

No change in weather conditions was reported by Professor Jimmie Lyle, of the Wichita Falls Electric Company, volunteer weather observer, Saturday afternoon. The minimum temperature during the 24 hours preceding was 37 degrees and the maximum was 42 degrees. At the time of the last reading, 5 p. m. Saturday, the mercury stood at 40 degrees.
Light winds are reported from the west and no precipitation was recorded.
Roads are in fair condition and activities have been resumed in the oil fields and at the irrigation dams.

SEVEN PEOPLE AND FIVE GALLONS OF WHISKEY SEIZED

Seven people were arrested and five gallons of whiskey were seized by a raiding party headed by State Ranger Sergeant J. W. McCormick, which swooped down on a Lamar Avenue rooming house Saturday night. One of the men arrested is wanted in Casper, Wyoming by both state and federal authorities, in connection with automobile activities and a large reward has been posted for his apprehension.

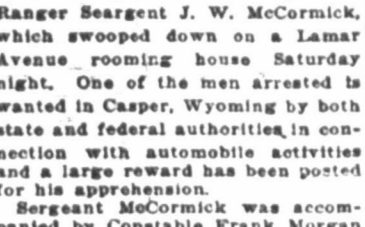

Sergeant McCormick was accompanied by Constable Frank Morgan and Deputy Constable K. F. Hean on the raid. Four women and three men were arrested at the residence and more arrests are expected. Vagrancy charges were filed against all except the alleged fugitive from justice, and two women and two men had arranged bond at 10 o'clock Saturday morning.

Rich Beauties

Use this liquid cleanser now

By Edna Wallace Hopper

Leading beauty expert advises their patrons to use a liquid cleanser now. But their price is high, so it has been used by only the well-to-do.
Lucille Lantelme, the famous Parisian beauty, gave me this formula many years ago. A French scientist gave it to her. It has since become the leading cleanser, the world over, with those who could afford it.
Its results are marvelous. I have used it for decades. My baby-like complexion, after 22 years as a stage star, shows what that cleanser means.
Now I have that liquid cleanser made for all who wish it. I call it my Facial Youth and dealers everywhere supply it at a modest price.

Its Unique results
This is how my Facial Youth excels a cleansing cream.
It contains no animal, no vegetable fat. So it cannot go on hair on the face. It cannot assimilate in any way with the skin. It simply penetrates the skin to the depth, to clean every pore. When I wipe it off, all the dirt and grime, all that clogs the skin comes with it. It is amazing how much dirt it finds. Clean the skin in the best other way you know. Then use my Facial Youth and see how much extra grime it gets.

I care for my body as well as my face. Before each bath I cover myself with Facial Youth. It is astounding to see how much clogging matters water fails to reach.
I use Facial Youth for removing make-up. And in that supreme test nothing else compares.
Clear cleanliness
I apply Facial Youth night and morning, and whenever else my face needs cleaning. Thus I keep my skin clean, to the depths—keep the foreign matter out. And that is the first essential to a fine complexion.
Facial Youth also softens and whitens the skin. It is a great wrinkle combater. Note my results—my youthful bloom and contour at my grand old age. This liquid cleanser is one of the reasons.
Edna Wallace Hopper's Facial Youth is supplied by all druggists and toilet counters at 75c per bottle. Also my Youth Cream—my frisky cold cream. Also my White Youth Clay. Also my Hair Youth, which brings my luxuriant hair. My Beauty Book comes with each.
Please try my Facial Youth. It will bring you new conceptions of what a clean skin means, and benefits you have not seen before.

FRENCH REPUDIATION AMERICAN DEBT NOT SURPRISING TO U. S.

OFFICIALS HAVE REALIZED FRANCE DOES NOT INTEND TO PAY.

REPUDIATION OF DEBT BY PREMIER POINCARÉ

Four Billion Loan in Good Faith at Time France Was in Great Need.

By GEORGE W. HINMAN, JR. Universal Service Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—Premier Poincaré's practical repudiation of the French debt owed to the United States failed to impress American officials here today.

Those best informed here realized for some time that the French government has no intention of paying the $4,000,000,000 in principal and accrued interest which the United States loaned in good faith in time of great need.

The significance of Poincaré's declaration lies in the fact that they were made with full and immediate knowledge of the fact that he was directing them.

Never for a moment has the United States admitted that the debt owed by France was in any way dependent on whether or not Germany paid any reparations. It was made plain today at the state department.

The American position, it was pointed out, was recently covered fully in the note to the British government dealing with the proposed expert inquiry into Germany's capacity to pay.

In that correspondence Secretary Hughes informed Lord Curzon that the American government opposed the "transfer to the people of the United States of the burdens of Germany's obligations directly or indirectly."

Most significantly Mr. Hughes added: "The establishment of sound economic conditions in France is the serious reduction of military outlays and the demonstration of a disposition of European peoples to work together to achieve the aims of peace and justice will not fail to have their proper influence upon American thought and purpose in connection with such 'debt' adjustments."

Officials assert that no information had been received relative to the suggestion by certain British authorities that England and the United States join hands in presenting France for debt settlement.

The American view, it was asserted, was given France some time ago when a French debt delegation visited the United States. No statement from official quarters has been obtained in response to a question asking whether word had been received from France since the return to Paris of the French delegation more than a year ago.

Despite official silence it is known that France is generally regarded as the real obstacle to the settlement of the debt.

There was a time when officials hoped that the British debt settlement would prove an enticing wedge in obtaining the funding of other obligations. As time passed, however, it became apparent that France as the dominant military power of the continent furnished the weaker people with a model in ignoring the desires of the United States for settlement.

American officials returning from abroad have brought to Washington the impression that France was supporting despite her pleas of poverty. Disgraceful as this time has revealed new advances of French credit to military satellites for war supplies.

CONVICTED OF SLAYING KANSAS CITY WORKER

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 17.—James H. Alley was found guilty of second degree murder in district court here today in connection with the slaying of Julius A. Bess, a non-union electrical worker, and was sentenced to 10 years in the penitentiary.

Alley is the second man to have been convicted and sentenced for the slaying. One man was acquitted and two are awaiting trial.

Bess was slain July 2, by several men who attempted to induce him to leave a job upon which he was working.

The Ruhr industrialists have so far refused the demand of France but it is realized they cannot hold out long.

Miss Ines Ruddy was hostess to the Maids and Matrons Club Wednesday afternoon. After the usual business Mrs. Wilbur Morgan led a very interesting lesson on "The Little Theater in the Elizabethan Age," and Mrs. Wilbur Morgan conducted the lesson on Hamlet.

Bill to Provide For Acceptance Of Ford's Offer

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—Acceptance of Henry Ford's offer for the Muscle Shoals water power and fertilizer project, through government construction of a new steam auxiliary power plant to replace the Georgia plant disposed of recently to the Alabama Power Company, is provided in a bill prepared by Representative Madden, Republican, of Illinois, for introduction upon the assembling of the new congress.

Representative Madden said he thought the new bill would meet Mr. Ford's objection to the present status of the project.

Through an oversight on the part of the press reporter, the social meeting of the Thursday Club on Wednesday was omitted from this week's news, and as it was quite one of the prettiest local affairs for "many a day," it is included in this week's with an apology to the hostesses.

The party included in its hospitality all of the members of all of the city clubs of the city, The Women's Literary Club, the Dramatic Art Club and the Maids and Matrons, with other friends of the hostesses.

Miss Ines Ruddy, Mrs. E. W. Wright, Messrs. Charles Tane and Roy Riddle and Mrs. Clara Capers. After dinner several clever contests and games were enjoyed by the guests.

URGES THAT FREE STATE

"The World Tomorrow," After the Manner of Great Journalists

By WILL ROGERS

Now for the last few months I have been writing and I have become ambitious and want to do "Bigger and Better things." I realize that my writings up to now have only appealed to the Morons. (That's not Mormon misspelled. It's Morons, just as it's spelled.) So I have been a close student and admirer of some of our great editorial writers and I have tried to study their style and, beginning with this article, I am changing my entire method of literature and I hereby bid Adieu to my Half-Wit Audience. (As a writer's Writings never appeal to a higher grade of intelligence than the Writer himself.) So, from now on, I am going to give these learned and heavy thinkers a run for their laurels. I am out to make the front Page. My Column will be called "The World Tomorrow," not only commenting on the news of Today but predicting what the morrow will bring forth.

A Race Horse, in Memorandum, beats the great Zev, the International Favorite and My Own thrown in for good measure. That news will perhaps interest 40 million Human Beings, and 2,000 Bookmakers, while the news of the unearthing of a Prehistoric Skull at Santa Barbara, California, linking us up with the Neanderthal Age will only be appreciated by a small Majority of us thinking People. So anthropologists, however, consider the extinct Neanderthal Man as a separate Specia (Homo Neanderthalensis) intermediate between the Java Man (or Pithecanthropus). According to Linnaeus, Humanity comprises four races: the Whites, having a light colored skin, belonging to the Caucasian race; the Blacks, the completest possible negation of White; the Republicans, form of genus Homo ape in his earliest Prehistoric State; and, last of the four Races the Democrat. The Democrat doubtless originated in the eastern Hemisphere. The main structural characters distinguishing him are his gait, the modification of the feet for walking instead of prehension, and the great Toe being nonopposable, and most of all the enormous development of the brain, and smooth rounded Skull.

But what cares the man of today for the Neanderthal Age? He is of the Speculative Age. If he can get 10 Dollars down on the Nose of a winner at about 15 to one, he don't care if we descend from Goat or Ape.

As Demosthenes, the Great William Jennings Bryan of his time, so aptly put it when he casually met Confucious, the originator of Mah-Jong or Epsom Downs: "Good Afternoon countryman, art thee risking a few Shekels on thy favorite Crow Bait in this Race?" And Confucious pulled the following Nitty which has been handed down through the Ages, and made him the Philosopher of Shanghai:

"No, Demosthenes, Betting is a form of unintelligence. So long as we have betting, we will know we have the ignorant with us." That little remark of Confucious was well said, and the fact that we had 40 million interested in the Race, and only a handful interested in the Neanderthal Man, proves we have a long way to go yet until Civilization is thoroughly reached.

The Crown Prince of Germany is allowed to return, proving that War don't pay. You only have to go back into History a short way to the Trojan Wars. What happened to Priam the King of Troy when Prince Paris his Heir and Son was born? Eros, Goddess of Discord, threw out a Golden Apple to the most beautiful, and Juno, Minerva and Venus all claimed it. Paris was to decide. He gave the Apple to Venus. Helen of Troy, the most beautiful Woman in Sparta, got jealous of Paris and that culminated in the War of Troy. Troy was besieged for 9 years. This Trojan War alone should prove to the greedy interests that War don't pay. And Sons born of Kings don't pay. A law should be passed that all offspring of Royal Birth should be of the feminine Gender.

An American army airman flies at the rate of 258 miles an hour. What does this astounding feat mean to the World? What did Napoleon say at Ansterlits in 1805, just after the battle of Ulm, and after the Old Corsican had rushed his troops from Cologne? He said, "An army travels on its Stomach."

That little progress that has been made in the mode of Transportation from the Napoleon days to this! I don't know exactly how far a man could travel in a day on his Stomach. If he had a good Stomach and was an Apt Traveler he might make pretty good headway. There was no way in reckoning speed in those days as there was no way of fixing a speedometer on a Soldier's Stomach, but if you take a Soldier going away from the Enemy, and if his Stomach held out, he certainly ought to have had the abdominal record of his time.

But has Congress heeded what the Airship is doing? No, they go ahead building Battleships which will be as useless as a shipping board. Transportation advances but our Lawmakers are still traveling on their Stomach.

Lloyd George goes home to England after inviting us to join in the Salvation of Europe. You have only to turn to Hugo's Oration on Voltaire to find out if we should meddle in the selfish affairs of European Turmoil. Hugo said: "Before going further, let us come to an understanding, Gentlemen, upon the word Abyss. There are good abysses: such are the abysses in which evil is engulfed. Rabalais warned royalty in Gargantua. Moliere warned the people at Tartuffe." That proves right there to any thinking person that we should not meddle in the affairs of these envious Nations. The more Trouble you get them out of, the more they get into. No, the time has come when this Country has got to bank up our own fires for a cold morning. Just remember Cicero's words speaking at Glasgow in regard to America's participation in the World's War: "La premiere femme du monde la tete mousee en se couchant." Those who want to adjust Europe's Carburator should remember Horace Greeley's immortal Gag: "Go west, young man. Not east."

As Demosthenes said to Confucious, "Art thee risking a few Shekels on thy favorite Crow Bait this Race?"

A Lady in Chicago is arrested for killing a casual acquaintance. That's news. If she had killed her Husband or Lover that would be commonplace. But friends are seldom killed. What does the 8th chapter, second verse, of the first Book of Matthew teach us? That ver's should be enough to teach us that friendship should be trusted. We will never have true civilization until we have learned to recognize the rights of others.

Judge Gary, the head of the great Steel Corporation, eats only the white of a soft-boiled egg for breakfast. Which should be a lesson to some of you who think you have to eat the whole egg to substist. We should look and learn from our Men who have Done Things. Read Einstein's Theory on what constitutes over-gorging. He says: "Light rays, if obstructed, have an observed constant velocity irrespective of the relative velocity between the observer." That should show even the ignorant when they have enough.

A little Girl in Brooklyn started to school and forgot her books and had to go home for them. There you have a bit of news that is valuable. We are at that age when we are rushing headlong and paying no attention to small details. It's only the big things of life that interest us. For instance, the little Girl was only interested in getting to the School, not in what she had when she got there. If we only stopped to realize that it is really after all the little things that count, why, we would be a wiser and more contented race. People that can't remember should remember what Socrates said to Plato on the subject of forgetfulness. He says: "Where then I wonder shall we find Justice and Injustice in it? With which have we contemplated? Has it simultaneously made its entrance?"

A Professor of Columbia University won a prize by writing a Book in 13 hours. That's a good thing. The quicker the Authors write them the quicker they can get to some useful work. But if Pascal were on earth today and heard of that feat he would say: "That's fine, Professor, but what did you do with the other 10 hours?"

It takes two and a half Tons of Marks to buy a Stein of Beer in Berlin. Before the War you could have bought two and half Tons of Beer for a Mark. What does Wall Street think of that? It shows you that selfish interests can't rule the People, when they make up their mind to rebel.

SOUTHLAND CAR LINE EXTENSION BEGINS OPERATION SATURDAY

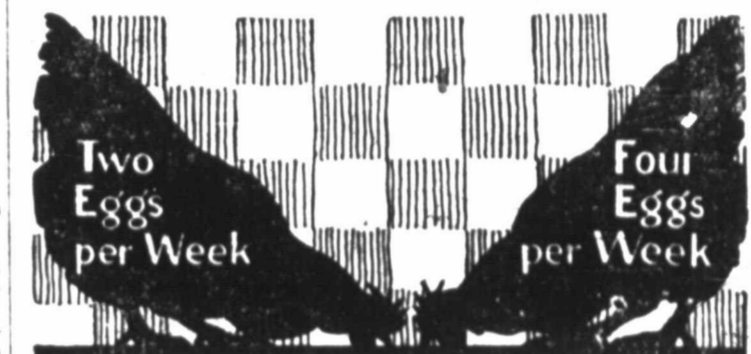

Officials of the Wichita Falls Traction Company stated Saturday afternoon that the power on the new Southland car line extension would be connected Saturday night and cars would then begin regular operation on the new extension from the Southland addition to Fictal Heights.

The opening of the new extension will necessitate the placing in service of an extra car, bringing the total number of cars operated on the line to four, instead of the three that were formerly used. The addition of a car will maintain the regular service on the line.

The new extension is within one block of the new Wichita Falls Junior College and students going to and from school will find the line convenient.

The energy output of an average workman, it is estimated, is about one-tenth of a horsepower in an eight-hour day.

Same Hen—Fed Differently

Ordinary chicken feed will make a good hen lay two eggs a week. Purina will make the same hen lay four eggs a week.

So don't ask for "chicken feed." Demand Purina Chicken Chowder and Purina Hen Chow in checkerboard bags.

Please do not feed Chowder without Hen Chow or Hen Chow without Chowder—to do so upsets the scientific balance and loses your extra eggs. Feed as directed on the instructions with each bag and get more eggs.

The Finest Car that MARMON ever built now sells for $400 less—New low price $2785

Phaeton, f. o. b. factory

FRITZ MOTOR CO. Wichita Falls, Texas. Nov. 11, 1923.

GENTLEMEN:

In answer to your inquiry as to expense on my Marmon purchased from you in August, 1922, which I have driven up to this date 1122 miles, I wish to advise that it is by far the most economical car I have ever operated regardless of cost. In checking over what I have paid you, I find that my total mechanical upkeep is $15.45, of which your last bill was a general tightening and going over which amounted to $6.45 and which I really think should not be considered in this sum.

Mr. Marmon has given me a degree of comfort not obtainable in any other car that I know of. And being a locomotive engineer, I feel that there is no other automobile manufactured to the same degree of minute excellence that the Marmon engineers obtain in their product.

Your Service Department is always ready and willing to extend any inspection that I ask for and have treated me in what I call a first class manner.

Yours very truly,
(Signed) F. G. COOK.

ON BOARD SPECIAL OBSERVATION Train, Fort Worth to Denver Railroad, En Route from Fort Worth to Amarillo, Nov. 15.—The proprietor of this train, which the Fort Worth & Denver railroad has kindly put at my disposal, is our host, J. E. Clarity, vice president and general manager of the road.

The grand marshal of the expedition is the general freight and passenger agent of the road, Bill Steiner, who has a long and interesting history in the transportation business.

Bill Steiner reached Fort Worth in 1871. The only railroad it had in those days was the Texas & Pacific running east. So far as the west was concerned, Fort Worth was the jumping off place. Bill was an express leader for the prairie freight wagons that took merchandise on to the sparse settlements in the west and the military outposts which held off the Indians from the settlers.

Fort Comacho, Fort Davis and Fort McKavett. The biggest outgoing freight was pig lead for Fort Griffin, center of the buffalo killing.

The whole population turns out to see at every station; men, women and children. The schools are dismissed and we see the youngsters trooping across the fields—400 of them at Comacho for example. Those children are a lot of youngsters worth coming all the way from New York to see. Here is something new for my fellow citizens down east; 95 per cent of the population in west Texas is American here. I have not seen a negro since we left Fort Worth. This is a white man's country, all of pure American stock.

The business men and chamber of commerce officials turn out to meet us, but not the children. They swoop down to see the oldest passenger engine on the Fort Worth & Denver, a $9,000 pound locomotive built by Brooks in Philadelphia in 1882. We are pulled by the old Brooks and by a modern 125,000 pound American Locomotive Company engine built in 1921.

Both engines were on exhibition to admiring throngs at the Fort Worth Jubilee. The difference between the two is about the difference between the Hotel Brevoort on Fifth avenue and Eighth street, New York's hotel de luxe in 1882, and the Elmsmore or any of the other monster hostels of today.

Bill Steiner stopped.

The boll weevil dead line, beyond which the pests do not advance, lies some hundred and fifty miles west of Fort Worth. The first town we struck gave us instances of the weevil's damage. At Alvord, before the weevil came, they used to compress 1,000 bales of cotton in a season. This year they will make 1300 bales. They made 800 last year and not one the year before. Even the comparatively good season of 1922 is only one-eighth of normal. The weevil has forced the people to turn to diversified farming. This year Alvord shipped 148 cars of watermelons. It also shipped milk, butter, peaches and vegetables. It ships thousands of dollars of poultry and eggs. Here, as in so many places in the south, the boll weevil has given the people more than it has taken away from them.

The very excellent state agricultural college and the state department of agriculture have done a very marvelous work in educating the people in dairy, egg and poultry production. The Fort Worth & Denver railroad has done its share and to its own profit.

For example, in 1921 it ran a poultry and egg demonstration train over its lines for three weeks. Its carload shipments of eggs doubled in the next year, 1922.

A single chicken rancher in Bowie, M. Johnson, has an incubator with a capacity of 61,000 eggs. His 100,000 high bred chicks to farmers' parcels last year, mostly to Texas but also to every state from New York to California.

Not a cattle county, great ranches of hundreds of thousands of acres. At Henrieville our own Tex. Brickyard was on the town marshal. We pass the ranch of W. R. Edgington, now a New York capitalist. The business of these ranches, where cattle can graze all the year around, is to produce grass fed cattle for sale to Fort Worth stockyards or for shipment north, where they are fattened over the winter by farmers in the corn belt. Those farmers, working with cattle, cost two hundred dollars an acre and up, cannot afford to devote it to the pasturing of cattle which they can buy after they are raised on Texas ranges worth ten dollars an acre.

Growth of Wichita Falls. The increase in land values and taxation is forcing the splitting up of these ranches into farms. Soon Texas herself will be fattening her own cattle. The hope of this vast source of agricultural prosperity to her own riches and incidentally to the packing houses of Fort Worth.

Wichita Falls, which was reached in the afternoon, is not even mentioned in the Rand McNally guide book of the United States of nineteen hundred four. It had a population of eighty two hundred in nineteen hundred ten, and in nineteen twenty, and fifty one thousand five hundred today. Nobody knows how many people Wichita Falls had at the peak of the oil boom in nineteen nineteen. The number was somewhere around a hundred and fifty thousand about twenty five thousand living in tents.

Like most oil towns Wichita Falls has caught in and held much of the prosperity it then enjoyed. It has beautiful hotels and office buildings and private residences, and there are sixty-seven miles of concrete highway in the county. Extensive manufacturing interests have grown up here and more are coming.

In nineteen twenty the city bonded itself for a four million five hundred thousand dollar bond issue. It has built a dam three miles long and a hundred and fifty feet high, creating a reservoir a hundred and twenty miles around, with enough water for a city of a million people. This huge lake, like the artificial lake which Fort Worth has built, will, under proper restrictions, be used as a pleasure resort for the people. More important, it will furnish irrigation for a half million fifty thousand acres of land. All Texas is watching this irrigation experiment, which will mean much in solving the state's farming problem in dry districts. Wichita Falls is becoming something more than an oil town and yet it remains an oil town, with an output of sixty six thousand barrels in its district, mainly at Electra. We drove twenty six miles out to Electra over a perfect concrete highway. Electra is a dinner pail oil city with an annual payroll of a million and a half. The rich oil operators themselves live in Wichita Falls.

Tonight at the Wichita Club we meet a group of the city's business men and tomorrow I hope to tell you of them and the big things they are planning to do.

Couple Arrested In Kansas Wanted Here for Burglary

Word was received here Friday night of the arrest of Edna Burnett and Charles Gifford in Hutchinson, Kansas. They were arrested on charges of burglary; complaints have been filed against them in the justice court. Both city and county officers have been at work on the case since the date of the burglary. They are wanted in connection with the theft of clothing from a residence on Denver street. One other arrest has been made in the case prior to their apprehension.

T. E. WRIGHT TO OPEN CLOTHING STORE MONDAY

T. E. Wright, formerly of Bentonville, Arkansas, announced Saturday that he will open a clothing and furnishings store at 613 Seventh street Monday morning. Mr. Wright, before moving to Arkansas, four years ago, was in the clothing business in this city at 518 Eighth street. He is well known here, having resided in this city for a number of years.

Mr. Wright stated Saturday that he would return to Bentonville next week, when he would bring his family here to live.

Organization of Democratic Victory Club Perfected in Wichita Falls With Twenty-Two Charter Members

Organization of a Democratic Victory Club has been perfected in Wichita Falls by W. F. Weeks, and 22 charter members have enrolled. The club is a branch of the National Democratic Victory Club, which is under the jurisdiction of the Democratic National Committee, and Cordell Hull, chairman of the national committee, is in charge of the task of organizing clubs in every community.

Wichita county into one of the two clubs. Speaking of the newly organized club, Fred Weeks, president of the Wichita Falls club, made the following statement: "During most of the past Democrats have sought to put in three or four months organizing with the idea of winning the presidential election, by offsetting and overcoming a 48 months' Republican organization throughout the country. The plan this year is to match the Republicans in organization and preparation. To this end, our national chairman, Cordell Hull, has devised the plan of organizing Democratic Victory Clubs in every community throughout the country. For this purpose he has appointed me as Victory Club chairman for Wichita Falls, and I have already started with the organization of the club, securing the following members as a nucleus for further organization. During the coming week we expect to call upon a great many Democrats in Wichita Falls and secure their memberships."

Text of Pledge. The membership pledge is as follows: "In order that a great national organization of Democrats covering every section of their state may be prepared to win in 1924, we the undersigned hereby enroll as members of the Wichita Falls Division of the National Democratic Victory Club, being formed by Democratic headquarters in Washington, D. C. and in order that the party of the people shall be financed by the people—as it should be—we agree to subscribe as dues the sum of $5.00 now, and a like amount in 1924."

Young Author Nears Fame In Story of the War Veteran

DEAN REVIEWS
John No-Brown, by George Looms (Doubleday, Page).
Stephen Crane, by Thomas Beer (Knopf).

By JAMES W. DEAN
NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—A new figure arises on the literary horizon of America, a young man named George Looms, who has recently written "John No-Brown."

"It was a desolate place for a cultured man to live in. He had never lived in the room before, merely slept there and creased for the evening. Why hadn't he noticed it? It was the very symbol of his failure. He looked about the room. The curtains were down from the windows; Mrs. Melton was having them washed. There was no cloth on the washstand top. Ashes were strewn on the edge of the little table by the door. The bed was rumpled. In a corner lay his underwear where he had thrown it just before he had bathed. It was lovely."

First on record to describe a girl as "demonstrating an artist would like to paint." Considering the glamorous figure of Crane, one looks upon all of the great men of letters of his time, for his interests were interlocked with theirs.

New Scout Troop Organized Each Friday Evening

Last Friday night at the First Methodist Church, Troop No. 1 was organized and Friday evening will be an old timer. NEW PASTOR FIRST METHODIST CHURCH
HERE WITH FAMILY

REV. LESLIE MILLER

The Rev. Leslie Miller, newly appointed pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal Church, Seventh and Lamar, together with his family, is in the city, and has already taken up his pastoral duties.

Mr. Miller is well known throughout this conference, having been institute instructor in Bible, and director of the music for the conferences and the state Sunday school conventions in Oklahoma.

Prior to coming to Wichita Falls, the new pastor completed three years as associate pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal Church of Tulsa, Oklahoma, one of the largest churches of the denomination in the southwest.

Although only 31 years of age, Mr. Miller has had wide training and experience in his chosen calling, having served as associate pastor in some of the large Methodist churches both in the east and west.

When our country entered the world war, the Rev. Mr. Miller volunteered his services, was commissioned lieutenant in the U. S. Navy, and served twenty-two months as chaplain of the U. S. S. South Carolina. At that time he was a member of the New England conference. At the time of his discharge from the service in 1919, Mr. Miller came back to his native state of Indiana, where he became a member of the north Indiana conference. In a few months the call came from Oklahoma and was accepted.

Mr. Miller is a graduate of both DePauw University and Boston University, having received his bachelor's degree from the former, and his M. T. D. degree from the Boston University School of Theology.

Besides being a successful preacher and pastor, Mr. Miller is an enthusiastic exponent of church music, and strives to make the music in the churches he serves one of the outstanding features. He also has considerable reputation as a singer, and may be heard in the services of the church not only in preaching but also in singing the gospel.

SCHOOL SURVEY IS CONSIDERED IN SESSION FRIDAY

Urging the club women to watch for the reports of the school survey in order that they may know what is needed in the schools of the state, and declaring the educational commission to be a body of earnest citizens whose efforts are for the best interests of the state, Mrs. Henry Redmond of Corpus Christi opened the conference on applied education, Friday afternoon.

An opportunity for club women in applied education was the subject of a paper by Mr. H. W. Morelock, president of the Sul Ross State Normal College at Alpine, in which he traced the development of woman from a secluded place in the home to her present place by the side of man in his interests and achievements.

Mr. Morelock declared that all ideas of extreme value must find expression in some form of action and spoke of the modern club woman as the cultural background of every community, enumerating the various phases of her work, and referring particularly to the work done by certain women in west Texas.

He declared that from her club the woman gets a new vision, new ambitions and new ideas and develops a greater amount of self-respect and self-confidence.

BEEHIVES OF THE ALPS AS SEEN BY FRANK G. CARPENTER

Tells How the Swiss Make Lace, Embroideries and Cheese in the Heart of the Great Mountains

Some Wonders of a Geneva Watch Factory—Grinding Out Chronometers by Hand—Canton Which Make Toys and Raise Snails—The Tourist and Hotel Industry—High Charges for Americans—Electrifying the Railroads—How the White Coal of the Alps Will Soon Run the Country.

(Copyright 1922, Carpenter's World Travels)

ZURICH, Switzerland.—Pluck a hair from the head of your baby. Stand it on end under a microscope and split it lengthwise into 600 strips. Now measure the thickness of each strip and if your work is correct you may see the exactness of the tools of a Geneva watch factory. It was almost under the shadow of the palace of the League of Nations that I went through an establishment which has been making watches for one hundred and fifty years. The same firm owns it today, and it was Mr. Constant, a descendant of the original founder, who took me from room to room and showed me how the Swiss make the finest of timepieces.

Our American watches are made altogether by machinery. For ages the finest Swiss watches have been made by hand and the chronometers of today are produced by a combination of handwork and small machines run by electricity. These machines are wonders of construction. They work to the one eighteenth thousandth of an inch, and every man at the bench has a micrometer which he applies from time to time to see that the parts are just right. These micrometers measure a hair as you might measure a log with a pair of calipers. In order to test this, I pulled out one of the sandy grey hairs still left on the roof of my cranium and the watchmaker tested its size. It was five hundredths of a millimeter thick, and the jeweler flattered me by saying "It is as fine as the hair of a woman."

Some of the screws made are more than half a pin, and cogwheels are cut which are not as big as the finest grain of sand on the seashore. Indeed, you have to use a microscope to see the teeth forming the cog. Nevertheless a wheel of that size has just as many cogs as the cylinder as big around as a timber which forms the similar part in a giant chronometer. The factory makes some watches not as large as your thumb and others twice the diameter of the palm of your hand. Every watch has 170 parts and the only difference in the large and the small is the size of the parts.

The owner of this factory told me some interesting things about watches. He says no watch keeps perfect time, but they are able to make chronometers here so exact that they vary only a second in twenty-four hours or just about six minutes a year. If you will open your watch and look at the balance wheel which flies back and forth, you may have some idea of what this figure means. That balance wheel is making about 18,000 revolutions an hour, and as it swings back and forth, it travels thousands of miles every year. As I remember it, the man said it goes eighteen miles every day; nevertheless, in a district as far from New York, as Detroit, its variation is only five feet.

And then the oil it takes to keep these jewels in mechanical motion. You know how your motor car eats oil and that should the oil fall the car would stop; you have to replenish it nearly every day. A watch needs oil only every two years, and the finest need only a drop once in ten years. The head of a pin to keep their works moving that long without friction.

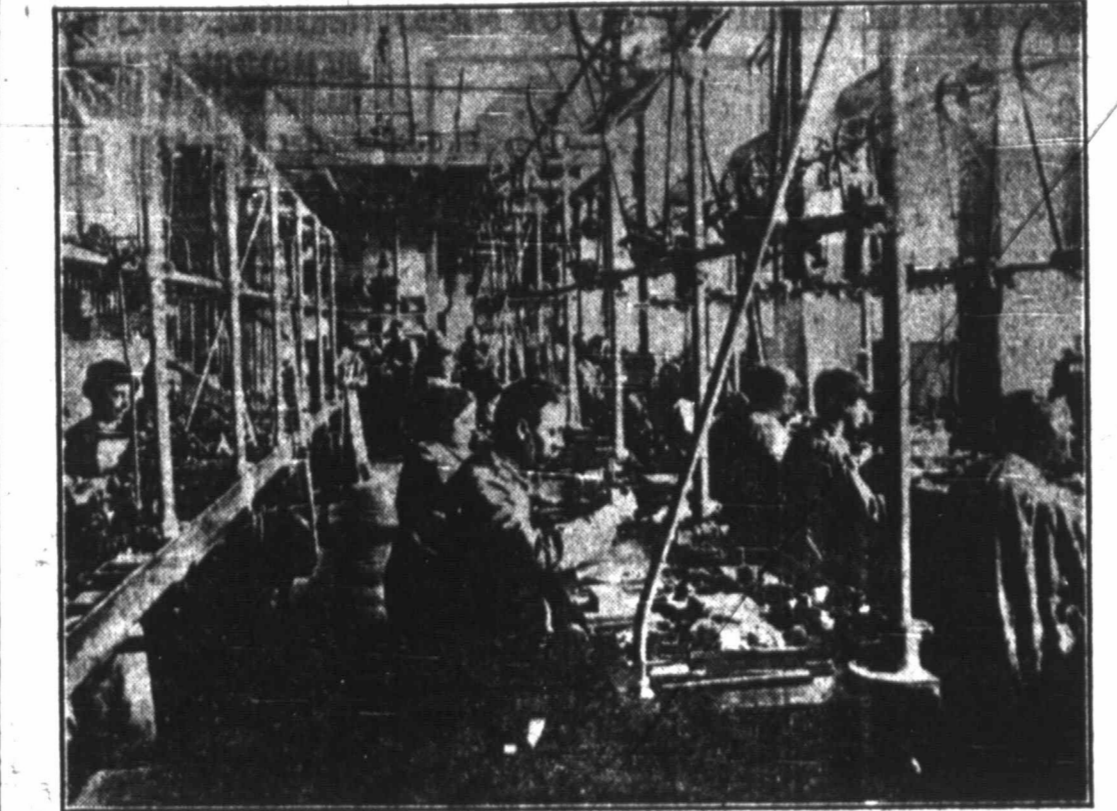

Switzerland has twelve hundred watch factories, each of which are standardized, turning out cheap watches by machinery much as our cheap motor cars are made in the factories of Detroit, where a ton of steel goes in at one end and comes out at the other as an automobile. The Swiss will sell you a million of this kind of watch. But the fine watches, such as are made in the factory I visited, are different. The workmen there are not industrial robots. They use their brains and skill and hands to the utmost. The watch fathers have been making watches before them and they have a hereditary skill which has come down through the generations.

The making of a watch begins with great sheets of brass, nickel and steel which are cut into strips an inch or so wide with machines, much like those that paper stores use to cut cardboard. Little dies cut out blanks for the various parts, and tiny machines run by electricity make the cogwheels, the screws, and other infinitesimal parts of the small watches.

Talk With the Workmen
As I went from table to table equipped with machines of this kind, I talked with the watchmakers. They are both men and women, and not a few are gray-haired. I saw a man of sixty-five with a microscope cupped in his eye and I was told that the fine work does not impair the eyesight. Indeed, the manager tells me one of his men, now eighty-five, worked fifty odd years before he was retired on a pension. He is proud of his work and still comes down every day to spend several hours at the bench to keep his hand in.

The wages are low for skilled labor. The women get from a dollar and a half to two dollars a day and the most expert men receive one hundred and forty dollars a month. They work forty-eight hours a week, and I asked my guide as to the jewels of a watch. He says the number has little to do with the perfection of the workmanship. Jewels are used because the rubies and sapphires are harder than any metal, and the holes through them do not wear as much as steel, nickel, or brass. This factory makes its own jewels and finds synthetic rubies the best.

The Swiss Watch in America
Switzerland has been making watches for three or four hundred years. The industry was started here by a Frenchman, the year after Sir Francis Drake destroyed the Spanish Armada. It began in the Jura Mountains and spread throughout western Switzerland. For generations all of the watches were made in the homes of the workers, only one or two parts being made at each house. Later, factories were established and, after the cheap American watch made by machinery began to capture the trade, the Swiss adopted similar methods and made watches by thousands where they were formerly made by the dozen. Most of the fine watch parts used in America are imported from Switzerland, and this is also true of the synthetic jewels of which we take hundreds of thousands of dollars' worth in a year. The United States has always been one of the chief buyers of Swiss watches but we import mostly the finished movements, making the cases ourselves. Today Switzerland is producing in the neighborhood of 20,000,000 watches a year, but the World War disorganized the industry and it now subsidizes by the government.

Switzerland has 1200 watch factories, where millions of timepieces are turned out yearly. The finest watches, however, are made entirely by hand by skilled laborers.

Switzerland, while the high exchange has made it impossible for the Italians, Austrians and Germans to spend their money here. Formerly the Germans were the best patrons; they came three or four times a year and spent freely. Now most of the money comes from Americans but they are spending less per head than they did before our prohibition law was enacted. They do not drink as much, saying "What is the use of spilling our stomachs when we will soon go back in a dry country?" Many of the Americans do not drink at all, but those who do get drunk very quickly, and the more they drink the worse they get. Americans take the best rooms and as a rule they pay the best prices. Sometimes, I think, they are charged more.

High Rates and Ten Per Cent Tips
Here at the Bellevue Palace in Bern, where I have stayed a week, I made a rate of about twelve dollars a day for myself and secretary. But when the bill came in it was for fifteen dollars and the landlord took an extra percentage on the amount of one hundred and twenty dollars to give to the servants. Tips are demanded at nearly every hotel and one pays at least ten per cent extra for accommodations.

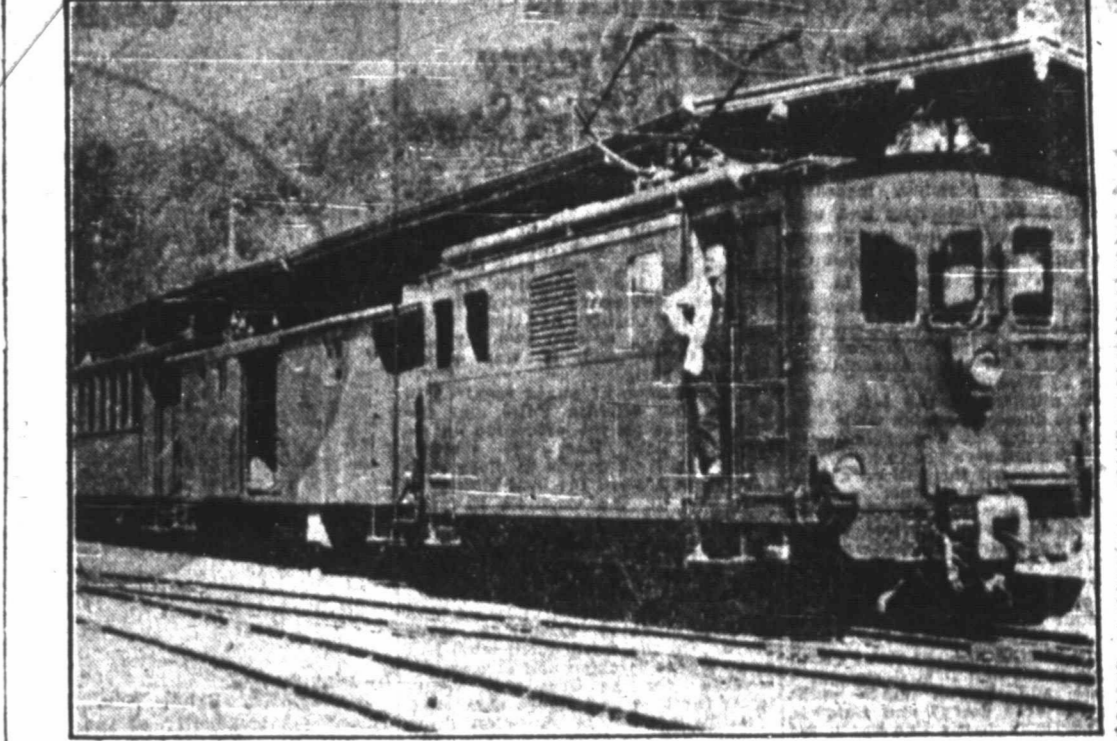

It costs more now to run the hotels than it did in the past, and charges have gone up accordingly. The average rate per day at the best is perhaps eight dollars, including room and meals, but there are many good second class hotels where one can be accommodated for four or five dollars and pensions where the price is still less. The food everywhere is good and the living better and cheaper than in the United States. The hotel employees are paid more than in the past, but many of the hotels evade this added expense by asking the guests to give service fees. Specimens of all these things are three times as high as before the war. Food is almost doubled in price and taxes have been greatly increased. The income tax rate for well-to-do men of the cities is at least ten per cent.

Cheese and Butter
I am surprised to find what an important part agriculture has in this land of the mountains. One would think nothing could be raised in a country which is all hills and hollows, but the truth is three-fourths of the total area of Switzerland is productive. There are several hundred thousand farms and it is estimated that there are a quarter of a million acres in farms of less than fifteen acres in size. Every patch which is not covered with rocks or snow is either cultivated or used for pasture or forest. About thirty per cent of the land is wooded and almost forty per cent is given up to raising grass. High up in the mountains you will find flat patches of green as big as a bed quilt, separated by stone piles and with cows feeding between them. The cows are started into the mountains as soon as the grass sprouts and are driven higher and higher as summer comes on.

The people watch these patches and manure them every year. When the automobiles began coming over the mountains they feared that the dust raised would hurt the grass and I am told they often threw buckets of dirt at the cars to show their displeasure. But this is not so today.

Nearly every farmer knows how to make cheese and something like two thousand factories are devoted to the industry. Fifteen million dollars worth of cheese is exported and the factories annually use something like one hundred and fifty million gallons of milk. The butter made is consumed in this country and some is imported from Denmark. The cream is excellent but as a rule only the best milk for his coffee at the hotels. The Swiss also make a great deal of Swiss milk and milk chocolate. Millions of dollars are invested in the chocolate industry and during the World War the home consumption of this candy food

Swiss railways are being electrified as rapidly as in a few years steam lines may go out of use entirely. Most of the famous Alps railways are now run by electric power.

Switzerland has 1200 watch factories, where millions of timepieces are turned out yearly. The finest watches, however, are made entirely by hand by skilled laborers.

Switzerland, while the high exchange has made it impossible for the Italians, Austrians and Germans to spend their money here. Formerly the Germans were the best patrons; they came three or four times a year and spent freely. Now most of the money comes from Americans but they are spending less per head than they did before our prohibition law was enacted. They do not drink as much, saying "What is the use of spilling our stomachs when we will soon go back in a dry country?" Many of the Americans do not drink at all, but those who do get drunk very quickly, and the more they drink the worse they get. Americans take the best rooms and as a rule they pay the best prices. Sometimes, I think, they are charged more.

High Rates and Ten Per Cent Tips
Here at the Bellevue Palace in Bern, where I have stayed a week, I made a rate of about twelve dollars a day for myself and secretary. But when the bill came in it was for fifteen dollars and the landlord took an extra percentage on the amount of one hundred and twenty dollars to give to the servants. Tips are demanded at nearly every hotel and one pays at least ten per cent extra for accommodations.

It costs more now to run the hotels than it did in the past, and charges have gone up accordingly. The average rate per day at the best is perhaps eight dollars, including room and meals, but there are many good second class hotels where one can be accommodated for four or five dollars and pensions where the price is still less. The food everywhere is good and the living better and cheaper than in the United States. The hotel employees are paid more than in the past, but many of the hotels evade this added expense by asking the guests to give service fees. Specimens of all these things are three times as high as before the war. Food is almost doubled in price and taxes have been greatly increased. The income tax rate for well-to-do men of the cities is at least ten per cent.

GRIDIRON GLEANINGS

The Coyotes are again victor champions. Now for district 1.

There were no individual stars of the game. Every man who had the opportunity to line up with the two teams fought for all he was worth. There was too much at stake to save all the work to one man.

From the sidelines there was nothing spectacular about the way the two teams fought. They played a football. Yet the hard hitting full back more persistent gaining than any man on the squad. Baldwin's position of Baldwin. Moore's big gains were through the line, and draws was given four quarters of play. He won him a letter for the third time—his third line playing.

Captain Stringer was knocked out in the first quarter of play when a tackle from Princeton, which Stringer was penalized for, landed on his head. Stringer was carried to the hospital. Stringer was carried to the hospital. Stringer was carried to the hospital.

"Red" Jenkins saved the game for Princeton. He was the only player who was not tackled. He was the only player who was not tackled. He was the only player who was not tackled.

West led many gains through his own line. He was the only player who was not tackled. He was the only player who was not tackled. He was the only player who was not tackled.

The three backs on the right side of the line, Covaleski, Coffey and Emerson, held up in old style by copying the advance of the opponent. As usual, a great number of plays were run over these three men and they were heavily for gain.

Curtain, who took Stringer's place at quarterback in the Princeton team, was the last of the line in running with the ball. He was the only player who was not tackled. He was the only player who was not tackled. He was the only player who was not tackled.

"Shorty" Cheyning took his old job at quarterback in the Princeton team. He was the only player who was not tackled. He was the only player who was not tackled. He was the only player who was not tackled.

A number of stars of last year have not had many opportunities to play. This season, however, the staff that was better for them in the Princeton team. These were Taylor, Mackechny and Harris.

Strawn should be given much of the credit for furnishing a good gridiron pole. It is a pity, especially Whiteaker at guard, but they were not in the Princeton team.

True, captain of the visitors and right end, who was painfully injured in the play when several ribs were knocked loose from their moorings. He was the only player who was not tackled. He was the only player who was not tackled. He was the only player who was not tackled.

KENTUCKY PRODUCER EXTENDS ARCHER PROVEN TERRITORY

Two Big Lease Sales Made During Week and Active Development Is Greater Both Inside and Outside

The past few days with the sunshine after two weeks of almost incessant rain has practically dried up the transportation routes to the various sections, and resulted in an increase of all kinds of activity in Archer County's development of the petroleum industry. Several locations have been made both in the county and in adjacent territory, and a few more days of good weather will find many other tests prepared to start drilling operations.

THE PEACE ARMY—By Kathleen Norris

I know a woman who has four small children to raise; she knows that making about diets. The last time I was in her house her 6-year old daughter came in with a stomach ache.

"Is it a coconut cake sort of stomach ache?" the mother asked smilingly, as she cut a whole wedge of the fresh delicacy for the sufferer. It means nothing to her that all her four are sickly, pale, uncomfortable children, and that she lost a fine, 6-year old boy in convulsions a few years ago. She laughs at advice.

"Yes, I know, I suppose there is something in all that," she says abstractedly, when one mentions Graham toast and spinach. And she goes right on with the hot bread and Welsh rabbit and fried potato diet.

I know another woman who has a family of four, her mother, her brother-in-law, her two sons. The income ranges around four hundred a month. But Minna laughingly admits that she is a bad manager, and hence it is insufficient. There are never fresh sheets. There is never enough butter. Servants steal and pilfer. Everything is uncomfortable and unhygienic. Bills mount up, and every day has its serious mistake. Minna's idea of housework is to leave the bed-room cooling and airing until late afternoon. She leaves the dinner dishes unwashed overnight, and gets breakfast in a mud-bath.

To see her at the dishpan is to be driven frantic. First a heavy iron frying-pan then a wooden spoon into the hot water, then she sops desultorily at the drain-board, and picks up a towel.

"Here, what am I doing?" she laughs, "wiping that black pan with this clean cloth? Oh, don't you hate housework? I don't, I do it, I'm doing the same thing over and over! There's no keeping up with it—"

"Minna, are you throwing away that steak-bone and those tomatoes?"

"Why are they any good?"

"Well, they'd make a wonderful soup."

"They would? I have no sense about these things, you know, I give you Dick steak and chops and Saratoga chips night after night. He won't eat bakery cake any more."

And she picks up an egg spoon in her hand, and the coffee-pot in the other, and stands chatting comfortably, and occasionally glancing from one to the other, for twenty minutes.

Then there is Emily. Emily was the only daughter of the type of woman somebody used to call "the professional widow." Her mother mourned for twenty years. Emily's whole life was timidity, silence, grief, cramp, loneliness. She presently married a doctor at her dying mother's bedside, and she lives in a clean, cold, lifeless house, with a clean, cold, lifeless servant. Emily has no friends, and her only interest is a mournful, voiceless, intense devotion to her man. They are creamed codfish and rice, and a slice and cold mutton in Emily's house, and the bread is always stale, and the butter cut in pale, neat squares.

Here are three types of women, each supremely unfitted for the busy life of living, and of each there are a thousand variations. Dirt, slovenliness, ignorance, doubt, inefficiency, timidity, and other ills. At the very moment that one is enthusiastically kissing the bride-sister, she's thoughts, now, are apt to run in some such channel as this:

"You poor little unloved nestling, you! Jim has had nothing to do with his three hundred a month, hitherto, but keep gas in the car and settle with the tailor. Peggy is the usual predatory type. She has worked her father, her brother, her mother, charge account. She has begged and begged and her way gaily through twenty countless years. She doesn't know any more about a horse and coal than she does about a mosquito."

The marvel is that they marry. Nature is taking care that every girl will always marry. The miracle is that any marriage ever succeeds.

But presently one does discover the best of the Peggies wiping up a little sink-board capably, preparing bread for turkey dressing, and washing sheets. Bitterly, slowly, painfully, Peggy has learned something. Minna still writes her, and presently she is going to be placed into a fresh agency of responsibility over the baby, but still Peggy is keeping ahead of her.

"We have four hundred," she concludes anxiously. "Jim gets sixty for his club and living and the car, and the rent is eighty-five. In the eight-five too much? I'm supposed to manage table and laundry on twenty-five. I know that neither of 'em." Then light and gas and telephone and my piano are about twenty-five a month. I don't know when I have Annie that fifty beside what she eats and washes. Would you think that was about right?"

"One feels so sorry for her. One hopes that when wars are as old-fashioned as slavery, that some day some government—and may it be ours—will carry the education of our girls and boys a little beyond the present point of arithmetic, not lunches, physical examination and clinic treatment."

Perhaps in those days there will be training camps, as ordered and equipped as were the mushroom barracks that sprang up all over the country overnight, a few years ago. There will be neat iron beds, clean and airy, and the towels, sheets, there will be uniforms and caps.

To these camps, for six months or eight months, all girls will go, every little girl in the country, between the ages of—say twelve and fifteen. Here they will learn about both-brushes, and personal cleanliness, here they will be taught how to make a bed, how to pile dishes or washing and wash them and put them away, how to economize on coal and gas, how to sew and plant, how to obey, and to plan and to know themselves, how to make friends. They will learn what a

BOY SCOUTS PREPARED TO SUPERVISE GAMES

Cities in which a playground supervisor or recreational director is supported in the advantages of directing the play activities at parties or picnics given by individuals or lodges, are the ones that are best. Frank R. Craighead, scout executive. These playground people take the worry of furnishing games from the mothers or committees and go to the affairs prepared to play numerous games.

As much as Wichita Falls has no recreational director, the Boy Scouts, through their executive, will be glad to furnish games, amusements for any party, club or church social. This will be considered one of the many good turns a second Mr. Craighead said.

This service will be available for any group or party, all that is asked is that the executive be given at least two days notice.

Boy Scout headquarters will be glad to furnish further information upon telephone application.

One of Many Testimonials

For about 50 years I had a large egg-shaped gouter under my chin which was very distressing to me. One day I saw your ad. in my paper. I bought a bottle of your ointment and used it for a few days. It relieved me from the start and I improved from week to week until the gouter was entirely gone. I would not have any price for what the band has done for me. I am glad to tell the world and advise every woman who has a gouter to get a bottle of your ointment. I do not know of any other ointment so effective as yours. Write today to the Physicians Remedy Company, 713 E. Huntington Ave., Los Angeles, Cal.

Mrs. Norris Says—

We have made some pretty serious mistakes in our generation. We have raised the womanhood of the nation according to a pretty low standard in some ways; a standard of over-feeding, over-dressing, over-beautifying.

One hopes that when wars are as old-fashioned as slavery, duels, torture and religious persecution that some day some government—and may it be ours—will carry the education of our girls and boys a little beyond the present point of arithmetic, hot lunches, physical examination and clinic treatment.

Perhaps in those days there will be training camps, as ordered and equipped as were the mushroom barracks that sprang up all over the country overnight, a few years ago. To these camps, for six or eight months or a year, will go every little girl in the country between the ages of 12 and 15.

Here they will be taught everything from tooth brushes to how to obey and plan and know themselves, and the right to work under organized order.

The League means order, peace, a federation for amelioration, discipline, advice, counsel and America, who has given this idea, takes "orchestra" seats to watch others carry it out.

The importance of our continent economically, geographically and industrially was pointed out by the speaker declaring "We have the most to lose if we go on going on with it." Not only to help ourselves, but to help ourselves, it is necessary to change our course, since our position in the world is becoming economically and if we want responsible prosperity, we must have the best of the world for our commodities.

In pointing out the contribution of women to this great question, Dr. Rhinehardt said, "Women must help carry out his purposes through training, education and understanding."

Women must be consecrated to this purpose every day, the purpose of helping the world prepare for peace, both community, national and international, for we get what we prepare for.

The final report of the credentials committee, Saturday morning, Mrs. J. I. Lovely, chairman, gave 192 as the number of delegates attending the convention and 209 as the total number of registered visitors in attendance.

Mr. R. R. Waggoner is able to be ordered again after undergoing an operation for appendicitis.

R. E. Eckert, Guy Sinclair and Roy Shreder left Saturday to attend the Shrine ceremonies at Port Worth and Dallas.

DR. RHINEHARDT GIVES SPLENDID FEDERATION TALK

"We have shown the world what we can do by courage, now let us show the world what we can do by intelligence," was the challenge of Dr. Rhinehardt.

Dr. Rhinehardt gave three ideas for forming a national basis—tools with which to work, declaring that God expects cooperation and activity of human beings in bringing about His ends rather than mere supplication. In discussion concerning the true meaning of peace Dr. Rhinehardt said, "Peace is a rational free play—liberty of mind and achievement, but under world order that will make it beautiful and splendid instead of murderous."

Scouts Will Maintain Model Camp Friday and Saturday, Nov. 30 and Dec. 1, at T.-O. Fair Grounds

Friday and Saturday, Nov. 30 and Dec. 1, the Boy Scouts of Wichita Falls and vicinity will pitch a camp just beyond the hangars at Call Field. This camp will be operated for two days and the boys will get actual experience in making and breaking camp, and will learn how to trench tents so that water will not run through them. They will learn how to be ready for any emergency that might arise while at a summer camp.

The fair ground officials have allowed the Scouts the privilege of making this camp. Capt. John H. Fletcher has agreed to lend the Scouts the tents and kitchen outfit and will also detail one man to every tent to see that the boys properly make and break camp.

It is expected that over 100 boys will attend, as Iowa Park, Archer City, Oney, Burkhardt and possibly Electra will be asked to send their Scouts to attend this camp. These boys, in addition to Scouts from Wichita Falls, will bring the camp up to and above 200.

Mr. Harrison will speak on the "Need for Enjoining Law to Obtain Them." Every member is invited to be present.

WORK PROGRESSES ON GRAVELING OF THORNBERRY ROAD

Work is progressing nicely on the graveling of the Thornberry or Frisberg road, despite the bad weather conditions which have prevailed during the past two weeks.

R. H. Stroup, the contractor, stated Saturday morning that a great deal of sub-grading had been done and that actual placing of gravel would begin Monday morning.

The gravel to be used on completing this road to the Clay county line will be secured from the Tyson pit.

Helpful Advice to Overworked Women

DAY in and day out, week in and week out the tired, overworked housewife and mother toils on, sweeping, dusting, cooking, cleaning and mending. Is it any wonder that after a time a weakness, such as Mrs. Chapman had, develops and the wife and mother pays a toll in physical weakness and pain for her efforts of love, the natural result of overwork?

Women who find themselves afflicted with weakness, pain, headaches, backache, nervousness, irritability and melancholia will be interested in Mrs. Chapman's letter, and should realize that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, is especially adapted to overcome such conditions.

Mrs. Chapman's Letter Reads as Follows:

NEW ALBANY, IND.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for a weakness which many women have from over work, and from which I suffered for quite a while. I wasn't fit to do my work and my sister advised me to take this medicine. After the first few days the pains were not so severe as they had been and after taking a few bottles I am not bothered any more. I am doing my housework every day and highly recommend the Vegetable Compound to any woman suffering from female trouble. Only yesterday a friend called me on the phone and knowing what it did for me wanted to know what to ask at the drug-store, so she meant to give it a trial.—MRS. C. E. CHAPMAN, 1520 Elm Street, New Albany, Indiana.

Another Case of Nervous Breakdown

MEMPHIS, TENN.—"Two years ago I was completely run-down and my nerves were wrecked. I could not sleep, I could not rest, I could not do my work except a little at a time. I went to the doctor and he did not help me. One day some one threw a little book on my porch and in it I read several testimonials of women who had been like myself. I went right out and got me a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and before I had taken the whole of that bottle I knew it was helping me. I took it for about three months I took two more. Now I am in perfect health. I do all my own work and could do more. I can truly say that I know Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound gave me my health.—MRS. J. H. HICKLEY, 116 Union Avenue, Memphis, Tenn.

Jewish Harvest Song of Thanksgiving Furnishes Theme For Judge Kay's Address to Bible Class Sunday

For the second consecutive Sunday morning, there were 101 present at the Grand theater at 2:30 Nov. 11, to hear Judge John C. Kay deliver the following address to his Bible class of the First Methodist Episcopal Church, South:

"The lesson this morning is about a harvest song which the Jews sang at the harvest time, a lesson of Thanksgiving.

"It is a wonderful thing to write the songs of the people. Some of you many of you perhaps most of you, think that you do not care about poetry, but you do. The great names in literature, the names that will live after our statesmen and scientists and warriors are lost in oblivion, will be those of the poet and the song writer. Ah! What would I give for the earthly immortality of Stephen Foster, poor and miserable as he was in life, yet he wrote 'Swanee River,' 'Old Kentucky Home,' 'Old Black Joe' and 'My Love Lies Drowsing.' They will be singing those songs in this country when the mountains are worn down much lower than they are now, because the people of the strong note of the common people. You think that you do not like poems. More than half of the Old Testament and most of the New is in poetry. We go out too much for material things. I like to boast, and I like to brag, but I think that I am not as strong about material things as other men, but I do not know whether I am merely cheering myself up or not about that. It might be that I am a little more covetous than by neighbor. I do not know about that, but I do know, I am always a little bit envious, a little bit jealous of the accomplishments of my neighbor and when Marcel made his little electric spark plug talk with wireless all over the world, I was a little bit envious.

Envious of Accomplishments

"And, when Tennyson wrote 'Sunset' and 'Evening Star,' I said to myself, that I might as well have done that, and Lincoln's Gettysburg address, and a hundred other accomplishments, that great men have made, I have felt that I would like to put forth my hand and do something like that. But, I am especially envious of the artist, and the poet, and the musician; these fine things that cannot be bought with money and with price. And, when I see a man who is a great artist on the violin, I say to myself: If I could just do that, you could have everything else and go with it. You have often heard people say that a fiddler was no account for anything, but that one fiddler does not need to be. He has already got in his grasp everything that there is. And, to hear Sembrick sing! My, my! How my soul is lifted up at the perfection of these great, great people, but there is One—there is One, and One only—that you cannot envy, that you cannot emulate, and whose efforts may not be reached by your most lofty ambition. God is the perfect artist. Ah, who put that perfect blue in the violet, who puts that gold in the dawn of the morning and in the sunset's glow; who put these blue stars up there that wink and mock at you in the frosty night, beyond your reach and influence, and beyond even, almost beyond the imagination; infinitely above us, infinitely beyond us, beyond our reach, beyond our knowledge? And, He never does anything that He doesn't do with the very acme of perfection.

"Now, these songs are in praise of Him. Does He like praise? Ah, if we would judge Him as we judge men, we know that He does. For, there is no sane man, there is no

WORLD WILL HAVE 17 MILLION AUTOS BY JANUARY FIRST

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17 (AP)—By January 1 the world will have in operation 17,000,000 automobiles, passenger cars and trucks, according to an estimate by M. P. Holpil, chief of the automotive division of the commerce department. Of that total, he says, 14,000,000 will be running in the United States, or about one to every eight persons, whereas in the rest of the world the proportion will be about one to 112 persons. The number of cars in operation is expected to show an increase of 11 per cent over the same date a year ago.

One dollar, invested for 100 years at 4 per cent, compounds will earn $232.26. At 3 per cent it would earn only $119.21.

WAS DOCTOR GRAVES INNOCENT IN NOTED POISONING CASE?

Physician Had Every Reason to Help Mrs. Barnaby and the Crude Murder Not That of a Scientist

By Sir Basil Thomson

Ex-Director Bureau of Criminal Investigation in Scotland Yard I have selected the case of the poisoning of Mrs. Barnaby because I believe that it was one of those very rare cases in which there was a miscarriage of justice and an innocent man was convicted of murder.

It happened more than 20 years ago and the actors in the drama are either dead or scattered. We can therefore comment on it with freedom.

After a trial which lasted for a whole month Dr. T. Thatcher Graves, M. D., of Harvard, was found guilty at Denver of the murder of Mrs. Josephine Barnaby and was sentenced to death. He appealed to the supreme court, but while a new trial was pending he committed suicide in prison, by taking poison, and there the case had perforce to rest. It is not an easy case to review because the records no longer exist; they were destroyed by fire more than 20 years ago, and there is no survivor left in Denver from whom all the details could be reconstructed.

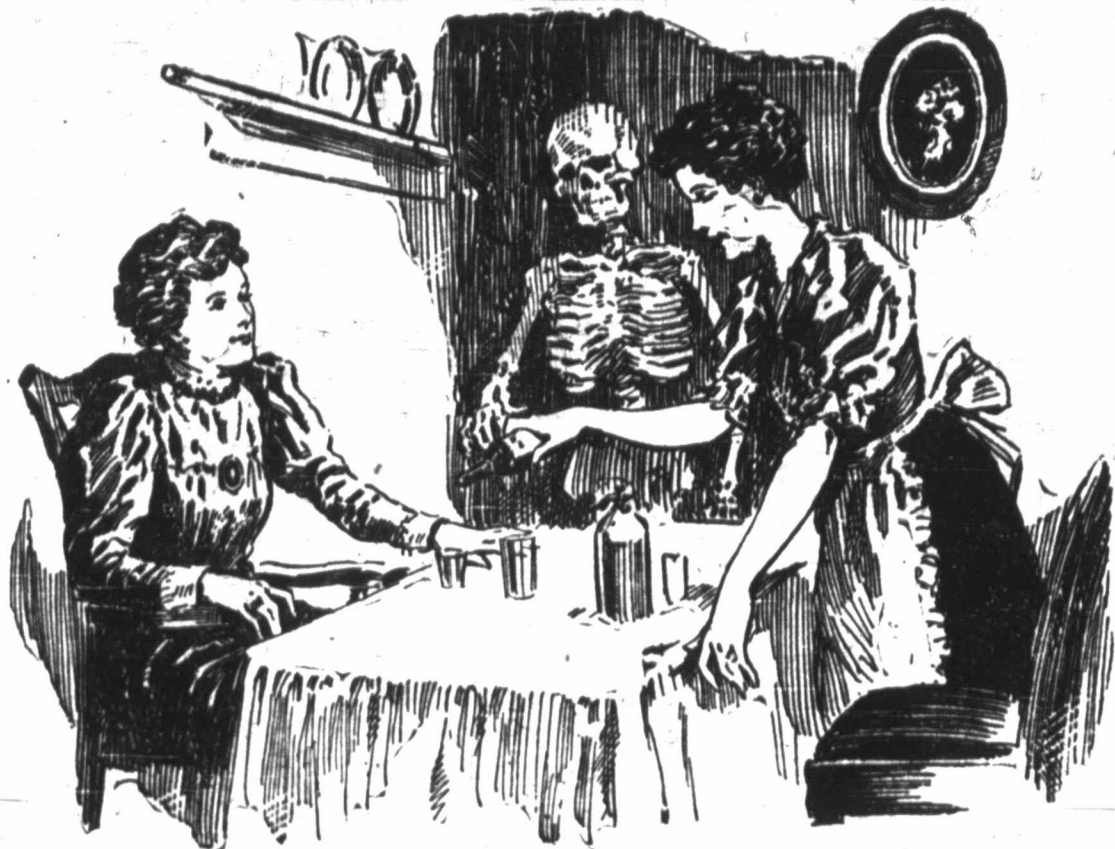

If Dr. Graves was guilty he was one of the most hardened liars that the world has seen for, knowing himself to be standing on the threshold of eternity, he took a solemn oath that he was innocent.

The victim of the murder was Josephine Barnaby, who was in Boston on very ample means. Her only daughter, who was married to John H. Conrad, died and she was left with no near relatives except her son-in-law. Their common grief drew them together and Mrs. Barnaby made a will leaving everything to him. He knew that he was to be her heir. In the summer of 1915, when she was about fifty-five, Mrs. Barnaby went to a camp in the Adirondack Mountains. She had occasion to call in a doctor and she sent for Dr. T. Thatcher Graves, whose acquaintance she had made in the camp. Dr. Graves was at that time about fifty. He was married and lived with his wife in Boston, who had a lucrative practice, besides having a considerable fortune of his own. His wife and his mother were beneficiaries under his will. Mrs. Barnaby was one of those women who are prone to sudden and almost violent friendships.

Dr. Graves' influence soon became so strong that she consulted him about everything—her investments, her daily life and even her religion. Matters went so far, indeed, that she made him manager of her estate, which was worth several hundred thousand dollars. She invited him and his wife to stay with her in New York City and during that visit she made a second will bequeathing $75,000 to Dr. Graves as a reward for his services. He was still to inherit the larger part of her fortune.

Poison From the Bottle
This infatuation for her new friend cannot have been very different to her son-in-law, who found himself supplanted in his position of business adviser and confidant by his mother-in-law. It is not recorded that he knew about the second will, but probably it was no secret, and he must have felt that there was something to prevent so impulsive a lady from making a third will excluding him and together with the intimacy with her new friend ripened a further.

In March, 1917, Mrs. Barnaby went to California with her friend Mrs. Worrall, of Denver, to pay a visit to friends in that state. On April 2nd a package was sent to Denver addressed to her, care of Edward Worrall, the son of Mrs. Worrall, who was a prominent investment broker in Denver. On April 15th Mrs. Barnaby returned to Denver and the parcel was handed to her. It contained a bottle of white liquid and was wrapped around the bottle that one of them caused the poison to be sent to her. These two were Dr. Graves and John Conrad, who had pressed on the prosecution with so much activity. Let us look at the probabilities of motive. Dr. Graves had nothing to gain from Mrs. Barnaby's death except the prospect of entering immediately upon her legacy of $75,000, but he was in no need of money, he had ample means and a lucrative practice and his relations revolved her will. It was more likely that she would make him even larger beneficiaries. Even to have a vague suspicion cast upon him of attempting to poison would have ruined his practice. If he desired to poison Mrs. Barnaby he had ample opportunity for doing so scientifically. The method that was taken by the prisoner of sending a bottle of whiskey through the mails infected with a poison that must infallibly have been detected, was crude and unsentimental to the last degree. One would have said that no sane person in the circumstances of Dr. Graves would have thought of it.

Why are people so foolish as to eat or drink things mailed them by strangers? Both women became violently ill, and five days later Mrs. Barnaby succumbed.

Miscarriage of Justice
With John Conrad, on the other hand, the circumstances were quite different. He knew that up to the point when Dr. Graves came upon may be objected that no man could be so diabolical as first to commit a murder and then to fasten it upon an innocent man, but unfortunately the annals of crime have shown that a guilty man may go to any extremity to escape from the consequences of his own misdeeds, in the ordinary course Conrad must have come under suspicion equally with Dr. Graves and the only way in which he would avert the suspicion was by coming out in the guise of prosecutor.

As far as one can judge from such records as escaped the fire in the early nineties, the evidence was not such as would have secured a conviction in these days, for in poisoning cases it is necessary to prove far more than a possible motive. In this case the jury would have required evidence to show that Dr. Graves had purchased poison, the handwriting on the note and the address would have been scrutinized, and evidence would have been produced identifying beyond all reasonable doubt the sender of the packet. For these reasons, I think it certain that the conviction of Dr. Graves was a miscarriage of justice and I think it probable that the real culprit was Conrad, or some one employed by him.

Chorus Girls Is The Author of 'Age of Desire'

"Beautiful, but dumb." That expresses the attitude of the public in general toward the chorus girls who made life worth living for the tired business man. Chorus girls do not need to have brains to succeed in her profession, as long as she is "good to look at." To be able to dance and sing a little is all that is expected of her, and she and her sister bring in the money at the box-office.

Now and then, however, the theatre-goer gets a surprise. In one instance a chorister proved to be a writer whose stories were eagerly sought by the magazine editors of New York.

She is Miss Dixie Wilson, and she is the author of "The Age of Desire," a first National picture produced by Frank Borzage, which is coming to the Olympic last half of the week. The history attached to the writing of this tale is highly interesting.

While touring the country with the 1231 Greenwich Village Follies, Miss Wilson and her bosom friend, Bird Millman, the star of the company, found themselves in a hotel room in Columbus, Ohio, with time hanging heavy on their hands.

Miss Wilson had joined the company to be near her friend. She did not need the money, for she was able to make an extremely comfortable living with her pen, and her reputation as a writer was widespread. Suddenly she said:

"I feel like writing, and you're going to help me with the plot." Sitting on the bed, the girls discussed the subject pro and con until the plot had taken form. Then Miss Wilson started writing it, now and then asking her companion's advice and aid.

When the story was completed Miss Wilson sent it to Measure Magazine, one of the most prominent magazines in the country, and it was promptly accepted. Mr. Borzage read it—and immediately purchased the motion picture rights for wire. And, contrary to the general custom of authors, Miss Wilson praised the picture version of her story warmly.

It is beautifully done and I am proud of it," she commented.

Miss Wilson met Miss Millman while the latter was employed as a tight wire artist with Ringling's Circus. The life "under the big top" possessed a romantic appeal to the former, and she traveled two years with the circus, utilizing the local color obtained in this way for magazine stories. Then both joined the Greenwich Village Follies. Miss Millman as the star and Miss Wilson as chorister.

"The Age of Desire" is the story of a woman who desired happiness so much that she sacrificed her young son for it. It is one of the most gripping themes ever portrayed on the screen and has been produced in a lavish manner, with settings of extraordinary beauty. The leading roles are played by Myrtle Steadman, Myrtle Steadman and William Collier, Jr., supported by Josef Swickard, Frank Truesdell, Bruce Guerin, Frankie Lee, J. Farrell McDonald, Mary Jane Irving, Aggie Herring and Edith Yorks.

"Potash and Perlmutter" to Be Attraction at Olympic Theater First of Week Starting Sunday

One of the most meteoric careers in the history of filmdom has been that of Samuel Goldwyn, the producer of "Potash and Perlmutter," a first National picture which is coming to the Olympic Sunday.

A pioneer in the industry, Mr. Goldwyn has been numbered among the leaders in every respect. He began his connections with a large company, where he rose rapidly until he became one of the figureheads. Then, seeking for "other worlds to conquer," he organized his own company, which rapidly assumed a position in the front ranks.

Mr. Goldwyn set about to make "bigger and better" pictures, and he gave evidence of his genius by enlisting the aid of the foremost writers of the day, realizing that the need of the industry was finer stories.

During that period he purchased the motion picture rights of "Potash and Perlmutter" from Montague Glass, the famous humorist. Nearly two hundred of these stories had appeared in the Sunday Evening Post, and were, without a doubt, the most popular which had ever appeared in book form and had played on the stage for many years.

Realizing the great value of the screen rights, Mr. Goldwyn patiently waited for a propitious time to film the story. He wanted the best cast and director he could procure, he did not intend to take any chances.

Barney Bernard and Alexander Carr had been playing the roles on the stage for years. Mr. Goldwyn determined that they were the actors he wanted. The third was Vera Gordon, who achieved instant fame for her characterization of the mother in "Humoresque." Finally the producer came to a decision as to who should direct it, and he assigned to Clarence Badger, for the important position.

Mr. Goldwyn then resigned from the company and started a producing unit, where he would be the sole person in authority. He gathered the company together and started work. The result is that "Potash and Perlmutter" is the outstanding success of the year, and has won the praise "The Perfect Picture," from hundreds of persons.

In it Mr. Goldwyn has achieved the goal before—that of producing pictures perfect in every respect.

Mr. Goldwyn's second production is "The Eternal City," which will also be released by first National. It is an adaptation of Hall Caine's novel and was made in Rome under the direction of George Fitzmaurice, with an all-star cast, including Montague Love, Barbara La Marr, Lionel Barrymore, Bert Lytell and Richard Bennett.

Oxford, Pa., is proud of Miss Anna Ochs, who, though blind since infancy, has been graduated from the local high school with highest honors.

Will Rogers as Ichabod Crane Is Gem Attraction

The many admirers of Will Rogers will find a treat in store for them at the Gem theater Monday when the Follies star and larist ex-pose will be seen as the picturesque character of Ichabod Crane in "The Headless Horseman" or "The Legend of Sleepy Hollow," a filmation of Washington Irving's most popular American classic.

Will Rogers, whose popularity extends from coast to coast, is undoubtedly the best liked and cleverest of comedians. In the role of Ichabod Crane, a character that has been studied and admired through the past generation, Mr. Rogers presents one of the most laughable characters of his film career, according to those who have already witnessed a pre-release showing of the picture of Will Rogers and Ichabod Crane, the old schoolmaster that could portray authentically and properly the peculiar Ichabod Crane and it was only after a diligent search for a character that would fit the part and in the words of a critic positively brings this time-honored schoolmaster of Sleepy Hollow back to life upon the screen.

The producer combed the motion picture industry for a character that could portray authentically and properly the peculiar Ichabod Crane and it was only after a diligent search for a character that would fit the part and in the words of a critic positively brings this time-honored schoolmaster of Sleepy Hollow back to life upon the screen.

It is felt by the producers that the millions who have followed the out-of-the-ordinary courtship of Ichabod Crane in book form will relish the good humor with which Will Rogers brings to this little love affair, and to those who have gaped at the terrible midnight prowling Goblin who has thrown fear into the hearts of all the Sleepy Hollow inhabitants will thoroughly enjoy the supernatural and "spooky" atmosphere and the exciting chase in which the hapless Ichabod was forced to flee for his life from the "Headless Horseman."

There are actors who are prone to take the best of every scene unto themselves. One who has a laugh reputation in this respect has left the comedienne now playing opposite him so short of opportunities to amuse the audience that one might be overheard muttering bitterly:

"It's lucky he's not a ventriloquist. He'd never give the dummy the answers."—New York Herald.

Speed
"Sam, I'll give you a pint of Scotch if you'll hurry over to my house and get my grip. Hurry, now! . . . What! Haven't you gone yet?"
"One? Two, is back!"—Nashville Tennessean.

MISSION THEATRE STARTS SUNDAY

TOM MIX in SOFT BOILED—WILLIAM FOX Special Production

Harold Lloyd in 'Why Worry' to Be Attraction Soon

"How does the boy do it?" you hear in awe-inspiring and admiring tones from those who have watched the progress of Harold Lloyd during the last three years, each picture setting a higher standard than the last, until it seems that surely he has reached the zenith of comedy production. But then comes his next Pathécomedy, and it is not only funnier, but is different in type.

Now we have "Why Worry" to not only laugh at, but to shake our heads at and marvel over. It is Harold's first serious attempt at straight faces. Here are real characters and entirely probable situations exaggerated to a state of absurdity that yet remains within the realm of possibility.

"Why Worry" is the story of an American youth, accustomed to luxury, who has a flare of adventure in his make-up. He goes to South America and promptly becomes embroiled in a fierce, fiery and flaming revolution. It is a story of intrigue and romance such as Richard Harding Davis would reveal in, yet containing surprises and twists such as O. Henry would give it, and it is a decided departure from previous Lloyd stories.

From the moment Lloyd is introduced being taken aboard ship on a stretcher to the final fade-out where he is lying up traffic, "Why Worry" is one mirthful, hilarious situation after another, each situation inextricably bound up with the plot, thereby producing a situation laugh effect throughout the entire development of a story that intrigues the interest, while adding the slow of romance.

Cowboy Actor Is Afraid to Face Mirror in New Fox Production to Start at Mission Theater Sunday

TOM MIX in SOFT BOILED—WILLIAM FOX Special Production

There may be nothing new under the sun, but Tom Mix behind horsemanship spectacles, wearing the latest garb from the shaft of a second-hand store, is a close approach to it. He appears in "Soft Boiled," his first special release, presented by William Fox, in a role so different than any he has attempted that he surprised even himself.

"Soft Boiled" comes to the Mission theatre five days, beginning today, (Sunday).

No picture starring Tom Mix would be complete without Tony, his wonder horse. In "Soft Boiled" Tony plays his usual prominent part with his usual intelligence, despite the fact that he found his master scarcely recognizable in many of the scenes. Expecting coarse chase, soft shirt, spurs and sombrero, Tony encountered Tom Mix in checkered "city clothes" and spats. It may have been indignation or surprise that caused Tony to rear viciously when he glimpsed this, but it was equine intelligence that brought a hoarse horse whinny when he saw the horn-rimmed goggles.

In "Soft Boiled" Tom Mix plays the role of a young man named Steele, whose temper is quicker to flash than that metal sparks when it contacts with flint. How he learns to control this temper, first as a shoe clerk, later as manager of a questionable road house and eventually wins the girl and a fortune, combine to produce one of the most effective pictures in which the popular actor ever appeared. Billie Dove plays opposite him and J. G. Hyston, directing the picture, scoured the western coast for the prettiest girls in the daring cabaret scenes.

Whatever else may be said of "Soft Boiled," it will be conceded above all that presents Tom Mix in his most unique role with the result that action, romance and humor mingle throughout the picture.

The use of electric fans instead of the hand-pulled punkah and of electric lights instead of coconut oil lamps is rapidly increasing in conservative India.

AMUSEMENT CALENDAR FOR WEEK AT LOCAL THEATERS

Henry W. Savage's Newest Play Coming to Palace on Wednesday Tells Story of Charm and Appeal

"The Clinging Vine" which Henry W. Savage will offer at the Palace next Wednesday tells a story set to music that is as charming as the girl his title represents. The theme of "The Clinging Vine" is decidedly modern and American. Miss Zaida Sears, whose delightful "Lady Billy" for Nitty will be remembered in this city, has taken for the heroine of her new comedy a successful young business woman. The men who work for this girl stand in awe of her brains and business acumen. She is so absorbed in work that she forgets feminine frills and fancies and romances until she takes a needed vacation at the home of her grandmother. This bobbed-haired ancestor who wears the latest modes and is still attractive to men, takes her business-like descendant in hand for a course of training. She puts her into a new wardrobe and persuades her to adopt a new manner—the soft, gentle demure of a "clinging vine." The scheme works like magic and for much merriment.

features for sports, afternoon and evening wear. The production, sparkling in its wit and dazzling in its brightness, is Mr. Savage's reply to the question: "Why do we musical comedies?" The answer is simple—the American author and composer have at last come into their own.

'Steadfast Heart' Next Thursday at Strand Theater

Joseph Striker, the good-looking young man who plays opposite the winsome Marguerite Courtot in the screen version of Clarence Budington Kelland's latest novel, "The Steadfast Heart," which comes to the Strand theatre on Thursday for three days, has been long identified with both the stage and screen. Striker started his brilliant career in his parent's front parlor in New York. There he dressed up in his father's clothes and used candles for footlights, charging a penny admission to those children of the neighborhood who were sufficiently impressed by his histrionic ability to view the performance. After he had finished his education, he went to I. W. Britain, and there Striker joined a stock company and played with it for quite a while. He then returned to New York and played juvenile leads and won fame in "Tell It to the Marines." After which he was signed by John Golden for three years to play the leading role in the famous comedy, "Tara to the East." With this company he played in every state in the Union and in every province of Canada, which is some travelling even in three years. With the favorable press clippings garnered on this tour were strickled and to end they would go far toward reaching around the world. After this triumphal tour, Striker went into the motion pictures and has been starred in "Silver Wings," "The Queen of the Moulin Rouge," "What Fools Men Are," "The Wilderness of Youth" and other photoplays.

In "The Steadfast Heart," Striker plays the role of a youth who is attempting to beat down the barred doors of society to win the girl he loves, and in a series of thrilling incidents finally wins his goal. This role is amusing to Striker as he comes from one of the oldest and greatest families in America. There is a tablet on Columbia University, New York, commemorating the valor of Major Striker in the war of 1812, and his aunt was the national regent of the Daughters of the American Revolution, which fact is enough to give the young actor extra into the most exclusive circles of society both here and abroad. Striker is one of the finest, most unafraid actors on the screen today.

OCTOBER BREAKS OAKLAND RECORDS FOR PRODUCTION

PONTIAC, Mich., Nov. 17.—In October all monthly production records of the Oakland Motor Car Company, with the exception of October, 1918, were broken. The figures of the present October are three times larger than the production figures of October, 1927, and only 185 cars under the high peak month—October, 1918. The cars produced during the past month have already been shipped from the factory, which is increasing production in order to catch up with orders on hand. The company's program calls for a production of 15,000 cars for the present physical year and the output will shortly be brought up to 200 cars daily. C. J. Nephler, sales manager, states that based on orders on hand and the demand for increased quotas on the part of dealers, the sale of Oakland cars will be limited only by the production.

George Walsh, Bessie Love and Carmel Myers Starting Sunday At Strand in "Slave of Desire"

When Gilbert E. Gable, president of Achievement Films, Inc., and George D. Baker, the director, began casting about for the players to interpret the characters of "Slave of Desire," a picturization of Honore de Balzac's famous novel, "Le Peau de Chagrin" (usually known in English as "The Magic Skin"), which was made at the Goldwyn studio for distribution by Goldwyn-Cosmopolitan, they hit upon George Walsh as the ideal actor for the hero, Raphael Valentin. Mr. Walsh had recently been signed up by Goldwyn as a member of its permanent acting organization and arrangements were at once made for his services. He had but recently completed the role of Hawdon Crawley in Hugo and Mabel Ballin's "Vanity Fair."

Bessie Love was also setting for Goldwyn in Marshall Neilan's own screen story, "The Eternal Three," and she was engaged to play the role of Pauline Gaudin, the heroine for the part of the beautiful and sensuous Countess Fedora a special type of flaming, dark beauty was required. Carmel Myers, one of the most beautiful of film stars, was engaged for the part because of her beauty and her great ability as a screen actress. With these three important roles filled, Mr. Gable and his director determined that the rest of the cast should be of ability to measure up to these three. Wally Van, one of the oldest comedians on the screen, who used to act with the late John Bunny, was cast for the part of Rastignac; Edward Connelly, famous character actor on both stage and screen, was given the small but important role of the Antiquarian through whom George Walsh as Raphael comes into possession of the magic skin. Eulalie Jensen was cast as Pauline's mother and Herbert Prior as her father. William Orlamond, a Goldwyn player who has given the screen some remarkable character roles, was cast as Champrose. Lesser parts fall to Nicholas de Ruiz, one time grand opera singer, William von Hardenburg, Harmon McGregor, George Perlat, Harry Lorraine and Calvert Carter.

Firm, Plump Flesh!

MANY are the eyes that are turned to gaze with keen admiration on the well developed, healthy girl no matter where she may be—on the rapidly moving thoroughfare or gliding gracefully over the dance floor. All eyes turn because we all appreciate the girl with the figure so firm and plump—the girl with radiantly red cheeks, cheeks that carry a touch of roses from nature's own garden—the girl with the sparkling eyes, keen and sharp—the girl with buoyancy and the spring of youth.

Not necessarily an out-of-doors girl. Just a girl with ever increasing blood cells. Just a girl filled with the vim and vigor of youth. S. S. S. since 1834, has stood for increased blood cells. S. S. S. means restored strength—rekindled vitality—added energy. Take S. S. S. and watch the bloom of youth return to your cheeks. Watch that sallow, ill nourished flesh fade away before flesh that is firm and plump. Red blood cells will do it and S. S. S. will build them. It contains only pure vegetable ingredients. S. S. Changing of Classic Novel's Titles
When Brought Out in Films Persist

The habit of changing the titles of great novels or popular plays when they are brought out in film form persists. Whether or not the reason which led to this giving of new titles to famous stories is valid, is no concern of ours, at present, except that producers are of the opinion that there is a "movie" or box office, title which is quite distinct from the literary or play title in "pulling power."

The changes in title are often for the best, as the screen public is less, scores and often thousands of times as great as the public which any novel or play can command. It is fair to assume that 90 per cent of the persons who see a motion picture have not read the story upon which it was founded and that 50 per cent have not even heard about it. For the movie, addressing itself to the eye almost exclusively, is the great universal art.

When Gilbert E. Gable made a screen adaptation of Balzac's early notable novel, "The Magic Skin," he changed the title to "Slave of Desire" as being more attractive to audiences and as giving an inkling as to the theme of the story. Raphael Valentin is the slave of his desire; he comes into possession of the magic skin which will grant his every desire, and he proceeds to wish for friends, wealth and position—things that, in the end, come close to accomplishing his ruin.

There is authority in the great novel. Balzac called his novel "Le Peau de Chagrin," literally translated as "The Piece of Shagreen" or "The Wild Ass's Skin." He confessed that it was a bad title, but that he had used it for want of a better. Balzac was never noted for his titles—they are apt to be stiff and colorless. The usual English title for this novel, "The Magic Skin," is little better. It stresses the physical or mechanical side of the story to the exclusion of the inner, spiritual meaning of the theme. "Slave of Desire" is a better title for it reflects the theme of the novel, is more attractive in its wording and its sound and has the quality which makes it in the words of motion picture producers, "a box office title."

Slave of Desire
Adapted from the immortal story "The Magic Skin" by BALZAC with GEORGE WALSH, BESSIE LOVE, CARMEL MYERS
Directed by George D. Baker Distributed by Goldwyn-Cosmopolitan

COMING THURSDAY "Steadfast Hearts"

Carmel Myers and Bessie Love are staging a little Damon and Pythias act all their own.

When they first entered high school together they became inseparable companions and planned their studies and free moments together. Without any preliminary planning they were suddenly swept into motion pictures, both getting their first work at the old Griffith studios. And when Bessie was given her first big part, Carmel got here and they were in the same picture, "The Flying Torpedo." Bessie played the ingenue lead and Carmel the dark-eyed siren.

Ten years have gone by and during all that time they have continued their friendship, but have never played together, not even so much as at the same studio. Then almost to a day from the time they played together in "The Flying Torpedo" they were both cast in "Slave of Desire," the film version of "The Magic Skin," the Balzac story which is entertaining theater-goers this week at the Strand theater. Their parts are the same as before. Bessie plays the Countess Fedora, the young girl heroine and Carmel the dark-eyed siren.

WHAT FILM STARS WOULD DO WITH $1,000,000

Director and Players in "Slave of Desire" Tells How They Would Spend Such a Sum

What would you do with a million in cash? What would be your first impulse, if some morning when you were wishing there was no such thing as work, someone would present you with an even million?

Would you forget your job, indulge in a shopping spree, a trip to Europe, or go on working?

This query arose recently at the Goldwyn studios during the filming of "Slave of Desire," taken from Balzac's story, "The Magic Skin," no doubt suggested by the theme of the story, in which a young man finds his every wish satisfied by an enchanted wild ass's skin. A varied assortment of answers flooded in, some humorous and all very interesting.

George Walsh, who plays the role of the post Raphael in "Slave of Desire," and holder of many swimming medals, said:

"I'd see that swimming was established as a part of the curriculum of every school and then, until my money gave out, I'd establish free swimming pools in all the large cities so that every one between the ages of 4 and 94 could enjoy the finest exercise in the world—swimming."

Director George D. Baker went a step further and named this plan. "I'd charter steamboats and take all the orphan children on a trip around the world."

Bessie Love, heroine of "Slave of Desire," declared:

"I'd invest every cent of it in Los Angeles real estate."

Carmel Myers, famous star, when asked the question replied:

"I'd look the check over carefully, that it was fake, consult the calendar and probably learn that it was the first of April and then go back to bed."

Perhaps I'm wrong—so off it man—
But for a moment let's suppose Someone took off your shoes and hose
Just when the evening fun began,

Suppose you did not wish to sleep,
Were not yet wearied of the day
But had no power your wish to say,
Would you not loudly start to weep

Let us suppose some giants,
As large to you as you appear
Unto the baby crying here,
Held you in arms of tenderness,

But forceful arms, against your will,
And whispered often: "Now keep still!"
Would you believe the world all wrong,
Or would you listen to her song?

Would lullabies, however sweet,
Steal from your mind its utmost thought,
That sleep was something to be fought
With flying hands and kicking feet?

Would you not try, beyond a doubt,
To wear the lady's patience out?
Yet every night our roughish miss
Is made to go to sleep like this.

TODAY'S TALK
By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

TRY TO INTERPRET.
One trouble with this world is this. There are too many people who have no idea why they are here.

They look around and finally come to the conclusion that if they are allowed to stay at all, they must at least be able to keep out of the way—and can't keep out of the way unless they have a little food, so they have to do a little work anyway. The rest of the time they merely stand around and wonder.

But the others—and I am glad to say that they are in the majority—see something very much worth while in this world, and they spend very little time, if any, wondering why they are here.

These are the interpreters of life—the doers.
The more you know, the more you grow, naturally.
And if you understand why you grow, you know just how to grow more.

It is not enough to do willingly the thing that is set before you to do. You must know why you do it and just how it is going to benefit others.

Try to interpret life through the everyday acts and kindnesses and happenings that come to your door. Don't try to understand what no one else understands. There are too many people at that job already.

Moral Illness Pandemic,
Needs Care, Says Marshall

By THOMAS R. MARSHALL
Former Vice President of the United States.
There has been just one man in all recorded time who had the undoubted right to call his fellow men hypocrites. He knelt not only what his fellows were saying and doing, but the motives back of their words and conduct. Since His time I doubt that any one has had the right definitely to label a fellow a hypocrite.

It is startling how many Christian men and women are regarded as hypocrites by their fellows who are good citizens, but not avowed Christians or church goers. I have talked to all grades of legislative bodies to disregard motives in defining crime and giving its penaltities. I hold that a man is not a criminal unless he possesses a criminal intent. Likewise, when it comes to judging a man, we should make a member before finding him guilty of hypocrisy that there was a hypocritical intent behind his seemingly hypocritical conduct.

ARMOUR COMPANY SELLS STOCK TO EMPLOYEES

The five million dollar allotment of preferred stock of the Armour Packing Company offered employees of that company was quickly oversubscribed.
More than forty thousand employees of the packing company will become stockholders.

The Armour Company is not the first of the big industrial corporations to sell stock to its employes.
Several of the big railroads and many other corporations have offered stock to the workers. A notable example is the United States Steel Corporation.

As Senator Sheppard pointed out the other day when he spoke before the business council of the chamber of commerce here the tendency in recent years has been to assemble workers into huge industrial plants taking them from the farms, their own little shops and factories into these huge plants in which until quite recently they have owned no part, and yet only in a very few. American workers, he pointed out, were losing the independence, the stability and the incentive that comes from the ownership of their homes and the industries in which they labor. He declared that if this condition continued they would also lose their political independence.

Senator Sheppard's address was calculated to provoke serious thought. What will be the lot of the American workman if he is herded with great multitudes of his fellows into industrial centers and given employment in industries in which he owns no part and which require no particular skill and which are dull and spiritless? Certainly there can not be much to hope for from such a condition.

The ownership—partial ownership at least—by the workers of the great industrial corporations is a partial remedy of the condition to which Senator Sheppard called attention to plainly and forcefully.
The owners of these great industries, such as the Armour Packing Company, through the offering of stock to the workers are beginning an effort to bring this about. The overwhelming response of the workers indicates how strong is the desire of workers for ownership.

NEW AND REVIVED INTEREST IN THE BIBLE.

Thirty-six thousand persons attended a Bible class at Long Beach, California, last Sunday.

These coast cities are growing so rapidly that it is difficult to keep up with their population but we believe we may safely say that Long Beach has not yet passed the hundred thousand mark in population.
If that assumption is correct then one person in every three in Long Beach attended Bible class last Sunday. Perhaps some special effort was made to bring out such a large number, but we are prepared to believe that Bible classes everywhere are growing larger.

It seems that the Book of Books is being more generally read and studied now than ever before. Its teachings are helpful no matter what may be one's view of its inspiration. It cannot be read, even by the most skeptical, without profit. And everywhere men are turning to it for light and more light.

Two significant books of the year are Papia's Life of Christ and Van Loon's Story of the Bible, or perhaps it may be better to say that the widespread interest in and comments upon these two books are among the significant things of the year. Printed in additions that are comparatively costly these two books are enjoying a big sale and are perhaps being read by many who hitherto have taken no great interest in the Bible. Reading of either of these books can hardly help but prompt the reading of the Bible itself.

It has been noted, too, that a number of newspapers are printing the Bible in installments, book by book. It has been found a popular feature.

Realists can find plenty of things in this day to give exercise to their pessimistic thoughts. But should not these evidences of new and revived interest in the Bible be an occasion for optimism?

every proper sentence should begin with the pronoun "I." When he speaks of a great subject he stands with his thumbs caught in the arm holes of his vest, and before delivering himself of an opinion he always holds forth in a manner that is very impressive and dignified.

He clerks at Howard's Grocery and gets fifty dollars a month and the privilege of buying his groceries at cost.

As might be supposed, he has very pronounced opinions concerning the relative importance of men and of women. He says woman's place is in the home, and that a man isn't doing his duty unless he maintains rigid discipline in his family.

He has a large family, and all of the children are girls. At times he speaks of "the burden of a family," but he is very fond of his wife and daughters and very proud of them.

Mrs. Wharton and the girls dress well, and all are modest, well-ma-

THE BUTCHER BOY AND HIS BRIDE

By Robert Quillen

JOSEPH: This Joseph was the son of one Jacob, who gave him a gorgeous coat and thus made the younger's brothers jealous. The jealous brothers sold him to travelers who were Egypt-bound, and reported him a casualty.

In Egypt Joseph was bought by a fellow named Potiphar, a captain of the guards, who took a liking to him and made him head servant
with a great deal of authority. Later he was charged by Potiphar's wife with an indiscretion and lodged in jail.

His ability as an interpreter of royal dreams got him out, and he so impressed the ruler of Egypt that he was made boss of the land with as much authority as a modern Premier.

His first official act was to levy a tax. For seven years he taxed them a fifth of their crops. Then famine came and he proceeded to sell back to them the grain he had taken from them. When their money was gone he accepted their cattle in payment. When the cattle were gone he made them deed their land to the crown and at last surrender their own bodies and become slaves. Heavy taxation, you will note, is not an invention of the moderns.

and something in his tone of voice
sounds like he was ashamed of me.
I think men can be the most unreasonable things in the world. I can't cook and dust and make beds and wash dishes in that old rose taffeta of mine, and no other woman could, either. Hiram sees me dressed for work and sees the others dressed for gadding about, and it isn't fair to make comparisons. I wish he could see some of them at home, with their hair tangled and their shoes unlaced and their wrinkled old house dresses on. He'd think me the Queen-of-Sheba the next time he saw me.

"I know a man likes to be proud of his wife, and Goodness knows I like nice clothes, but if I'd dress the way he wants me to, we'd both be in the poorhouse in a month.
You can be clean on nothing a week, but if you're going to fry potatoes in Poter's till it takes money."

She laughed and made a rueful face. "I'm not kidding," she defended. "I'm just telling you, and Hiram hasn't any room to complain.
He had four fresh shirts in his drawer this week, and yet he wore the same one from Sunday morning to Saturday night."

THE RICKENBACKER ROADSTER MODEL IS NAMED "SCOUT"

"Scout" was the name selected from among more than 10,000 suggested appellations sent in by many admirers for the new Rickenbacker roadster model.

"The decision as to the most appropriate name was a real task," says E. F. Everett, president and general manager of the Rickenbacker Motor Company.

"Captain Rickenbacker sent out a photograph of this roadster to five hundred judges and while hundreds had coincidentally hit upon the same term, still the variations were more than 1,000.

"Although 'Scout' was the one we finally decided upon, there was a close race between 'Ace' and 'Grayhound'.

"In fact in point of numbers, the latter exceeded all others—more than 700 writers suggesting that name as most appropriate and desirable for the appearance of the car.

"But 'Scout' was the word 'Rickenbacker' in a long one, we felt that the addition of nine letters would make it unwieldy—especially as a heading to an ad.

"'Ace' nearly won on his merits—but we excluded the war appellation on grounds of ethics.

"Captain Rickenbacker expected the name himself, but he left on a business trip to the Pacific coast shortly after asking for suggestions, and by the time he returned the flood had not subsided. In fact it was at high tide.

"We tried to limit our selection to letters mailed prior to a certain date—August 1st—but many addressed them to their local dealers, who then sent them to the home office by express—so we had to wait until they were about all in.

"Then came the time for his departure for Europe to attend the Paris Automobile Salon—and still the names were coming in.

"In his absence, we elected a committee and we tackled the job—and I don't want another like that!

"An interesting phase of this contest was the great number of children and women who participated. One woman just missed the prize as she was the second to suggest the name that was finally selected.

"We are so appreciative to the interest shown by those thousands of friends that every name has been carefully filed and each has been sent an autographed photo of America's 'Ace of Aces'—also a copy of the little brochure 'The Story of the Hat in the Ring' will be sent each.

"Oh, yes! J. H. Tolle of Deming, New Mexico, was the lucky man to win the prize as the post mark on his letter showed he was the first to send in his suggestion of 'The Rickenbacker Scout'."

NASH MOTORS HAS BIGGEST OCTOBER IN ITS HISTORY

Nash Motors had the biggest October in its history, and indications point to an unusually large business in November. October sales showed a ten per cent increase over the same month last year. Actual figures were 4,245 passenger cars shipped last month as against 3,829 cars in October, 1924.

"This has been the biggest year in Nash history," said E. H. McCarty, general sales manager of the Nash Motor Company. "Almost 12,000 Nash cars were shipped between January 1 and October 31, and while the spring and summer seasons are now behind us, indications from every section of the country point to an unusually heavy demand for cars throughout November.

"The strong position in the industry occupied by Nash Motors is due largely to the fact that the company always has endeavored to build honestly and to sell its product at the lowest possible margin of profit. This policy has resulted in outstanding value which the public has been quick to recognize. Because of this, rapid progress on a sound basis has been possible.

"New builders, now in progress of construction at the Nash Six cylinder car plant and additional equipment at the four cylinder car plant, will make possible increased production to meet the demand for Nash cars in 1924."

Nash cars are given an A grade rating for fire insurance. This means that the Nash, both six and four, carry the lowest automobile rate covering fire insurance.

FORD MOTOR CO. CONTINUES TO BREAK RECORD

DETROIT, Mich., Nov. 11.—Under the constantly growing demand for Ford products domestic assembly plants of the Ford Motor Company, working at capacity in order to meet these increasing requirements, established a new production record for the week ending Tuesday, October 28, the Ford News announces.

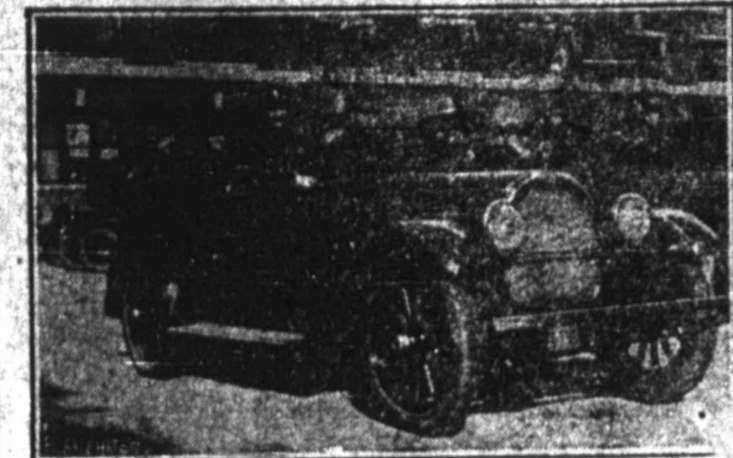

Daily output during the six day period averaged in excess of 7,000 and brought a total of 42,371 cars and trucks for the week ending October 28, the previous high mark set up during the week ending September 22. The lowest daily production of the last week was 6,850 and the highest 7,152.

The present record breaking production of the Ford Motor Company is significant, continuing as it does through this period of the year when winter months are at hand and when car deliveries are beginning to show decline. It reflects a generally prosperous condition in the country in which Ford products seem to be enjoying a large share.

The Fordson plant turned out 1,224 tractors during the week, a new record for the week ending Tuesday with an output of 222 cars, six more than the previous week with its record of 217.

Slight Falling Off In Combined Production Passenger Cars and Trucks; Increase in Exports

September witnessed a slight falling off in the combined production of the passenger cars and trucks of the United States and Canada. American car assemblies in foreign countries also decreased, but in spite of this, the department of commerce points out the ratio of exports to production, increased from 7.1 in August to 7.7 in September.

The value of passenger cars exported from the United States and Canada increased in value to $10,462,911 in September as compared with $12,812,990 in August, an advance of 23 per cent. Truck exports dropped from $1,611,123 in August to $1,412,464 in September.

One of the most striking features of the export statistics for the month was the marked increase in the number and value of passenger cars exported, which fell in the $100 to $400, and the $500 to $1,000 groups. In the former the September exports were more than twice as great, both in number and value, as in August, and the combined increase of both groups were sufficient to make more than counterbalance the slight falling off noted in the exports of cars valued at less than $100 and at more than $1,000.

In September nearly 3,000 more passenger cars, and the combined total of Canadian manufacturers, were shipped than in August. The combined American and Canadian exports of trucks, however, fell off approximately 25 per cent during the month.

Cuba Market for Accessories.
The position of Cuba as a preferential market for American automobile accessories is evidenced by the fact that from 90 to 95 per cent of all such accessories and replacement parts sold in the country come from the United States. The continuation of this condition, says Assistant Trade Commissioner Howard H. Tuckersbury, Havana, in a report to the department of commerce, however, will depend largely upon the attention which American manufacturers give to this excellent and convenient market, for German and French competition has already begun to make itself felt somewhat in certain lines.

American firms follow various methods in handling their Cuban business, some operate through agents in New York or Havana, or through their own branches in the island. And others sell direct to the larger dealers and jobbers. An important business is also done through the mails. The majority of sales are made against sight drafts drawn for 30 or 60 days. A factor which is favorable to importations from the United States is the 25 per cent ad valorem duty placed upon them, as contrasted with a 31.25 per cent duty on importations from other countries.

SEIBERLING ALL-TREAD HAS UNUSUAL NOVEL SIDEWALLS

Millions of tires have been ruined prematurely because of the failure of the sidewall to stand up under punishment, but now comes a tire, the Seiberling All-Tread, built to withstand the punishment that has wrecked sidewalls in the past.

As implied by its name the Seiberling All-Tread has a tread design carried down the sidewalls almost to the bead. The massive rubber tread bears armor the outer casing against curb cuts and against tread bars gripping and clinging in one piece with the tread the sidewalls on the Seiberling All-Tread are designed to withstand just as much punishment as the tread itself.

Another advantage of the Seiberling All-Tread is that the tread bars furnish additional traction. Chains are seldom needed when the car is mounted on All-Treads, the massive tread bars gripping and clinging and pulling through without stalling.

The story behind the development of the Seiberling All-Tread is one of tireless endeavor to bring improvement for the benefit of car owners. Frank A. Seiberling, who is responsible for the All-Tread, was the inventor of the straight side tire, which replaced the old-fashioned curved tire principle now used universally and he invented the tire building machine which lowered tire costs through volume production.

Two years ago when Mr. Seiberling organized the Seiberling Rubber Company he realized that the greatest tire evil was weak sidewall. He had seen thousands and thousands of tires put out of service by sidewall failure, even though the tread was not half worn out. He and his engineers set about then to strengthen the sidewall as the most important step in producing a perfectly balanced tire.

First experiments and tests showed that sidewall and tread could be built successfully in one piece of tough, tread rubber. This meant less tread separation and less sidewall failure.

Not satisfied with this long step forward Mr. Seiberling and the men associated with him continued their tests. They evolved the tread

THE GATE STATIONS

Where the outlet from the transportation lines of a natural gas company are tapped by a town, gate stations are necessary. These stations have two functions. One is that they measure the quantity of gas coming from the transportation line and thus provide a check against leakage. The other is that they reduce the pressure to a usable amount, otherwise the gas could not be burned in present appliances.

Gas is reduced from a pressure of 150 to 200 pounds per inch—sometimes higher—to a few ounces for domestic consumption. These gate stations in the smaller towns supplied make this reduction. In the larger towns they reduce the pressure to perhaps 25 pounds and feed the gas into intermediate lines, which in turn have their reduction valves and reduce the pressure to a few ounces for the service lines.

These installations are quite expensive because they call for automatic machinery, very highly developed, and even then demanding constant attention. The variation in the quantity of gas used requires foresight and ingenuity to keep the supply properly regulated.

CHRISTMAS GIVING OF MOTOR CARS IS ON THE INCREASE

"The choice of motor cars for Christmas gifts is greatly increasing," says Bill Robertson, local dealer in Durant and Star cars. "Nor is this motor car giving confined only to wealthy people. The man of average income, who can afford to own and operate an inexpensive motor car, may better make his purchase a Christmas gift than at any other season. It is profitable for him to do so, for he earns the distinction of having given a greater gift. He becomes a neighborhood personage. He only advances a few months the purchase that others make in the spring, yet the giving of a motor car to his family for a Christmas present is a supreme proof of his ability to choose the most practical gift.

"There are other advantages in buying a car for Christmas. The automobile merchandiser is always crowded with orders later in the season, but at Christmas time he can give the buyer a better choice of cars and insure delivery of the car at an appointed time.

"The smoother and slower a car is used during the first five hundred to a thousand miles of its operation, the better the car will be. Motorists know that, yet must have their motor cars delivered during the spring or summer season, when the going is smooth and there is a temptation to 'step on it.'

"When the car is bought at Christmas time it is used for shorter trips. Consequently it will be worked into service slowly and unobtrusively, with benefit to the motorist and all parts. When spring comes, the Christmas purchase will be a fine, smooth running machine, ready for a long season of use.

"Last Christmas many buyers thought of these things and decided to advance their orders for cars to holiday dates. They have since become enthusiastic about their decisions and say that never have they made more satisfactory purchases.

"Enthusiasm is contagious, and many to whom the idea has not before occurred seriously will consider Christmas automobile purchases this season. The new season's models being available for Christmas delivery make a purchase at this time especially interesting.

"Since the advent of the motor car, Santa Claus' pack has been filled with motor cars for little folks, and now the idea has spread to their elders. 'Dennis and Billings,' Chris Kringle's famous reindeer, will be packed by motor cars this year."

GOODYEAR-ZEPPELIN COMPANY RECENTLY ORGANIZED IN U. S.

AKRON, Ohio, Nov. 17.—Announcement was made this week by the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company of the formation of the Goodyear-Zeppelin Company, a subsidiary company organized to take over for this country all the rights, patents, drawings and designs of the Zeppelin company relating to rigid airships.

Formation of the new company, it is stated, places at the disposal of the United States government and of the commercial interests the cumulative experience of the Zeppelin company which has built 120 of the rigid airships constructed in the world.

The new company—American owned and controlled—will have exclusive rights to all Zeppelin patents, equipment, etc., for North America except Canada and non-exclusive rights in Canada.

It is planned to carry on construction work at Akron through extensions and additions to the Goodyear aircraft laboratories and workshops and its flying field and hangars at Wingfoot Lake.

The Goodyear company's active interest in aeronautics dates back to 1910 when it sent men abroad to study the experience of European nations in this line. The manufacture of aircraft fabric and shortly thereafter started its experimental construction work in balloons and gas bags.

With the opening of the late war Goodyear began the construction of rigid balloons, and when America entered the war began building dirigibles for the army and navy and became the largest manufacturer of lighter-than-air craft in the country.

The gas cells for the XR-1, now called the Shenandoah, whose successful flights have greatly stimulated interest in aeronautics were built at the Goodyear workshops.

The formation of the Goodyear-Zeppelin company will enable America to pick up where Germany left off in the construction and operation of rigid aircraft and will further give to this country the benefit of any other inventions and improvements made by the parent Zeppelin company.

THE NEW STAR CAR OFFERS SEDAN AND TOURING BARGAINS

The new Star car line is the first to offer the purchaser at such low prices both a touring car and a sedan in colors. This is a typically Durant stroke of leadership and is in keeping with the other advances W. C. Durant has scored with new products in the last two years.

The well-toned color finish, with harmonious striping adds exceptional beauty to the graceful and distinctive lines of the new Star car models. And in order that individual taste in this respect may be entirely satisfied, a choice of the two most popular automobile body colors is offered.

The special touring car comes in either radio blue with white striping, black running gear and wheels to match body and stripes, or in Durant special maroon with light ear-striping, black running gear and wheels in motor car red with black striping.

In either case, the top and curtains material is in olive green which harmonizes with both body colors and the seat cushions are in black, long grain composition leather.

The special sedan is offered either in a dark maroon with Durant striping, black upper structure and running gear and wheels to match body and stripes. In either case, the upholstery and other interior trimmings is high quality mohair of a neutral wood shade.

For either the special touring car or sedan, steel disc wheels with black demountable tires are optional and on both models the radiator shell and outside door handles are nickel plated to give the most distinctive effect.

These new Star car special models offer to the customer something never available before under a thousand dollars. The choice of either an open or closed car in colors at these prices is evidence of W. C. Durant's policy of giving the purchaser more for his money than is possible in any motor car other than a Durant product. It is one reason why the new Star car is the outstanding value in the automobile market.

VALUE OF HIGHWAY TRANSPORT TO THE FARMER IS SHOWN

Facts proving that every community which has shown an increase in motor car sales has also shown an increase in productivity were cited by Thomas O'Brien, assistant sales manager of the Olds Motor Works, Lansing, Michigan, during a speech before the joint session of the north and central division of the National Highway Traffic Association and the Michigan State Good Roads Association. The meeting was held at the Michigan Agricultural College in East Lansing and other speakers included C. Lloyd Goodrich of the state educational department; George H. Frida, treasurer of the national association; Harry Metzger, of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, and Arthur H. Blanchard, president of the highway association and professor of highway engineering at the University of Michigan.

Mr. O'Brien was asked to speak on "The Value of Highway Transport to the Farmer," and he dwelt at some length on just what are the desires and needs of the farm owner, enumerating four requirements of a successful farmer. They were, he said:

1. The ability to make a comfortable living from the land.
2. To rear a family carefully and well.
3. To be of good service to the community.
4. To leave the farm more productive than when he took it.

In his talk on the benefit of the automobile, truck and good roads to the farmer, Mr. O'Brien, who has made an exceptionally thorough study of this work, said in part:

"Good highways greatly widen the area of distribution. They enable him to go to points where better prices are obtained, and with motor transport he can do this with greater saving of time and time means money in handling farm products.

"A farmer must be able to move his products rapidly when the demand is active, especially if perishable, and thus the element of transportation is of vital importance to the modern farmer.

"The motor car and motor truck have greatly added to the farmer's ability to increase his business, and every community that has shown an increase of car and truck sales will show an increase in productivity.

"The modern farmer must be efficient. There is no favorable outlook for the inefficient in any line of business.

"Living on a good highway with quick transportation at his command, the farmer has become an important political factor in the life of his community. Now he meets with neighboring villagers and farmers in town and district meetings and voices his opinions on af-

20,000 CHILDREN KILLED BY CARS IN SINGLE YEAR

One of the most imperative needs of the day is for safer and saner automobile driving, according to D. M. Mason of The Mason Tire & Rubber Company.

"When you consider that of the 75,000 accidental deaths that occurred last year a great majority were caused by automobiles, you will see the vital necessity for devices that tend to make safe driving simpler and easier," says Mr. Mason.

"Of that large number, 20,000 were children under fifteen years of age—and half of those were little tots, babies of less than five years."

"In other words, in 1927 automobiles killed more Americans than Germany did in the entire course of the world war. The annual total amounts to more than all the deaths of importance to himself and others.

"The motor car aids him to attend divine services on the Sabbath, go to lectures by prominent men, take part in the university extension courses and aid in the organization of such agencies that are helpful to the community.

"Thus the farmer is greatly aided in fulfilling the Third requirement. To be of good service to the community."

"Fourth point. To leave the farm more productive than when he took it. In order to do this the farmer has at his command the motor car.

"Now he reaches better and more diversified markets and by consequence, is able to relate his crops, thus enriching the soil he works. Motor transportation makes easy the hauling of artificial fertilizers of the proper composition.

"The automobile has so shortened the distance that county and state agents, both experts in their line, can visit him often and recommend the proper crops for his soil."

American troops engaged in the Spanish American war. And bear in mind that in addition to this astounding number, there were hundreds of thousands of automobile accidents of a minor character in which the extent of the injuries received and the damage done to the cars themselves, is practically incalculable.

"With thirteen million cars in active operation, in addition to motor-cycles, buses and trucks, the streets of every city and town are necessarily congested. Even on rainy days these streets—wet, oil soaked and slippery—are crowded to their utmost capacity. Every holiday and Sunday during fair weather the country roads are literally cluttered with cars. And Monday morning the papers are filled with casualty news.

"I am stating this merely to show the absolute necessity of cutting down the increasing number of automobile accidents.

"No one knows this better than the average American motorist. And no one desires safety more keenly.

"The biggest improvements in the motor car have not been made by motorists are those that add to the safety of driving.

"Safety is the one big reason for the sudden popularity of the four-wheel brake. It is the reason back of the instant success of the new Mason Safety First Cord—a tire we sincerely believe has eliminated the danger of skidding.

"Statistics show that most automobile accidents have been due to the fact that the cars could not be stopped suddenly without skidding or slipping. Time after time it has proved absolutely impossible for the driver to stop his car—even when traveling at a comparatively slow speed—in time to avoid hitting a pedestrian or another car.

"For the last three years my company has been working in an endeavor to perfect a tire that would be a real non-skid.

"I am proud to say that we have finally reached our objective. We have developed a tire that is really skid-proof as it is possible for a tire to be. We call it the Safety First cord. The tread of this tire is covered by 507 scientifically designed safety grips that bite through water, oil, snow or ice, in a firm footing.

"People who have driven on Safety First tires tell us that they can travel along slippery asphalt or rain-soaked wood blocks without the semblance of a slip. They say that on a rainy or snowy day they can bring the car to a safe, swerveless stop even when they jam on the brakes, as must be done in an emergency.

"When this tire was in its experimental state, our engineers tried in every conceivable way to make it skid. It is only after knowing the result of these experiments that we offered Safety First to the American public."

The end of colonization, it is estimated, will be reached in about 200 years' time.

'ESSEX CARS ARE INCREASING IN POPULAR FAVOR

"There has been certain rumors current throughout the country to the effect that the Essex motor car of the Hudson-Exess line is to be discontinued. Lloyd Weaver, president of the Lloyd Weaver Automobile Company Saturday, "How such a rumor ever originated and why it should gain such momentum is beyond the apprehension of the Essex manufacturer and dealers.

"The Essex has been one of the most popular cars in its class ever offered by any motor car manufacturer and that it has made good in a short time is evidenced by the fact that over 15,000 Essex cars were manufactured this year. For next year 18,000 Essex cars will be produced, according to the program now contemplated by the factory.

"Essex is here to stay and we are looking forward to the greatest year in the history of the car, with increased production and a car that has made friends by making good."
