Among those who enjoyed both performances of the English opera company were Miss Estelle Burns and Senor Roure and their party of Tyler friends. They came over from Dallas, where they went to join Harold Bauer after his Fort Worth engagement. The great pianist has achieved what Texas friends have failed in. He advised so strongly on further for Miss Burns leading ultimately to an operatic career that consent has been gained on the point. I went to hear Harold Bauer Thursday night. When a world character like Bauer comes to town it means something out of the ordinary. Every community has its local celebrity, at whose shrine the faithful worship, but when a famous artist comes we give our homage from a sense of hero worship if nothing else. I went to hear Eauer, confident of his power. One would be bold to make any criticism in favor or against this great artist. Even were there features of his playing that one did not like, catholicity of taste would compel one to attribute the fault to the inability to appreciate on the part of the listener.

Bauer delighted his audience and went away with another city captive to his marvelous music. Bauer belongs to the world. The other participant in the program belongs to us-a delightful, beautiful, winsome Texas girl. I do not place Miss Burns on the same plane with Bauer. She has not reached that mysterious era o fa career in which everyone vies in proclaiming her a voice marvel. Many artists of rare attainments do not stand in the limelight of publicity. But when Miss Burns comes to town it is worth your while to listen. She has not chosen concert singing as her forte in music, though she has admirable qualifications for it. Had she given to this phase of her art the time she has devoted to teachi I fancy we would not have heard Miss Burns under the same circumstances. I have never heard a voice of finer her voice, beautiful and superbly trained as it is, and her charming stage presence Miss Burns has but to enter her own. She owns it to herself and the world to make this her career. Continued study can do wonders with such a combination PEARL HULETT BEADLE.

. . . CLUBS

The lecture on pottery by Mrs. Brackelton of Chicago in the Woman's Wednesday Club, Carnegie building, last Thursday afternoon, was an event of educational importance. The value of handcraft in beautifying the habitations of civilized people was emphasized in the illustration by the gifted lecturer, her clay and wheel being skillfully manipulated as she spoke in her pleasant manner of the history and ideals of the potter's art. She added to the works of her own, examples of the leading potteries of the country. A part of her lecture was also given to the value of clay. Her information that workable clay was to be found in the vicinity of Fort Worth was received with satisfaction by a number of women who became imbued with a desire to work in the plastic. Mrs. Frackelton spoke highly of the work being done at the Kindergarten College by Miss Florence Ward. The lecture was under the auspices of the Woman's Wednesday, the '93 and the Sorosis Clubs. Variance of Calendars Athenians began the year in June, the Macedonians in September, the Romans first in March and afterward in January, the Persians on August 11, the ancient Mexicans on Feb. 23, the Mohammedans in July. The Chinese year which begins early in February is similar to the Mohammedan, in having 12 months of 29 and 30 days alternately; but in every 19 years there are seven years which have 13 months. This is not quite correct, and the Chinese have therefore formed a cycle of 60 years, in which period 22 intercalary months occur.

OF EVERY KIND AND QUALITY

As a rule the Dining Room is the pride of every home, and much more attention is given to furnishing and arranging the Dining Room than any other room in the house. We have a beautiful line of Sideboards, Buffets, etc. The one shown in this ad. is a winner. It has taken all blue ribbons and medals when it comes to

EPILOGUE

In Three Pictures Note-The three pictures all synchronise. The episodes they portray take place five years after the day upon which Sir Robert Llwellyn died .- G. T.

I. The Grave.

Two figures walked over the cliffs. The day was wild and stormy. Huge clouds, bursting with sombre light, sailed over the pewter-colored sea. The bleak magnificence of the moor stretched away in endless billows, as sad and desolate as the sea on which o sail was to be seen.

The wayfarers turned out of the truggle of the bitter wind into a slight depression. A few scattered cottages began to come into the field of their

Soon they saw the white-washed buildings of a coast-guard station and the high, square tower of a church. "So it's all settled, Spence," said one of the men, a tall, noble-faced man, dressed as a clerk in Holy Orders. "Yes, Father Ripon," Spence said. "They have offered me the paper. It was one of poor Ommaney's last wishes. Of course, we were injured in our circulation by the fact that we were the first to publish the news of the great forgery. But in two years Ommaney had brought the paper to the front again. He was wonderful, the first editor of his age.

"I was there with Folliott Farmer and the doctors when he died. Fancy, it was the first time I had ever been in his flat, though we had worked together all these years! The simplest place you ever saw. Just a couple of rooms, where he slept all the daytime. No luxury, hardly even comfort. Ommaney had no existence apart from his work. He'd saved nearly all his very large salary for years. I am an executor of his will. He left a legacy to Farmer ,and to me also, and the rest to the Institute of Journalists. But I am persuaded that he did not care in the least what happened to his money. He never did. He wasn't mean in any way, but he worked all night and slept all day, and simply hadn't any use for money. A good-hearted man, a very brilliant editor, but utterly detached from any personal contact with life." Father Ripon's keen face, still as eager and powerful as before, set into lines of thought. He sighed a little. "A modern product," he said at length. "A modern product, a sign of the times. Well, Spence, a power is entrusted to you now such as no priest can enjoy. I pray that your editorship of this great paper will be fine. I believe that the Holy Spirit will be with you." They rose up towards the moor "There's the church," said Spence, "where she lies buried. Gortre sees that the grave is kept beautiful with flowers. It was an odd impulse of yours, Father, to propose this visit." "I do odd things sometimes," said the priest, simply. "I thought that the sight of this poor woman's restingplace might remind you and me of what has passed, of what she did for the world-though no one knows it but our group of friends. I hope that it will remind us, remind you very solemnly, my friend, in your new responsibility, of what Christ means to the world. The shadows of the time of darkness, 'When it Was Dark,' during the 'Horror of Great Darkness,' have gone from us. And this poor sister did this for her Savior's sake." They stood by Gertrude Hunt's grave they spoke. A slender copper cross rose above It some six feet high.

"I wonder how the poor girl managed lt," said Spence at length; "her letter was wonderfully complete. Sir Michael-Lord Fencastle, I mean-showed It to me some years ago. She was wonderfully adroit . I suppose Liwellyn had left papers or something about it. But I do wonder how she did it."

"That," said Father Ripon, "was what she would never tell anybody." "Requiescat in pace," said Spence. "In Paradise with Saint Mary of

Magdala," the priest said softly. THE SECOND PICTURE Quem Deus Vult Perdere

The chaplain of the county asylum stood by the castellated red brick lodge at the end of the asylum drive, talking to a group of young ladies.

The drive , which stretched away nearly a quarter of a mile to the enormous buildings of the asylum, with their lofty towers and warm, florid architecture, was edged with rhododendrons and other shrubs.

The gardens were beautifully kept. Everything was mathematically straight and clean, almost luxurious,

"Oh, yes,' said the chaplain, "you will only see those from a distance; we keep them well locked up, I assure you.

The girls laughed with him. The party went laughing through the long, spotless corridors, peeping into the bright, airy living rooms, where

"Oh. Maisie!" said the eldest. "Surely you remember. Why, it's only five years ago. He was the Manchester millionaire who went mad after trying to blow up the tomb of Christ. I think that was it. It was in all the papers. A young clergyman found out what he'd been trying to do, and then he went mad-this Schuabe creature, I mean, not the clergyman."

"Everyone likes to have a look at this patient," said the doctor. "He has a little sleeping-room of his own and a special attendant. His money was all confiscated by order of the government, but they allow two hundred a year for him. Otherwise he would be among the paupers." The girls giggled with pleasurable

The doctor unlocked a door. The party entered a fairly large room, simply furnished. In an arm-chair a uniformed attendant was sitting, reading a sporting paper. The man sprang up and saluted as he heard the door open.

On a bed lay the idiot. He had grown very fat and looked healthy. The features were all coarsened, but the hair retained its color of dark red. He was sleeping. "Now, Miss Clegg. you'd never think that was the fellow that made such a stir in the world but five years since. But there he lies. He always eats as much as he can, and goes to sleep after each meal. He's waking up now. Here, Mr. Schuabe, some ladies have come to see you." It got up with a foolish grin and

RABBIT'S EYES FOR BLIND MAN

Wonderful Operation to Be Performed at Washington

Special to The Telegram. WASHINGTON, Jan. 20 .- If the opday upon Wilton Heinard of 1208 N street northwest, in the Episcopal Eye, Ear and Throat Hospital, is successful. Heinard will see the world again through rabbit's eyes.

Heinard was blinded by a concentrated solution of lye, which was dashed in his face two years ago. By cutting out the eyes of a live rabbit and grafting them in the sightless sockets in Heinard's head, it is hoped that his lost vision will be fully restored. The operation, if successful, will be one of the most wonderful feats ever performed in the history, not only of science, but in the world. Restoration of sight to the blind has been always considered as beyond any but Divine power, and if it can be accomplished in this age it will be one of the greatest achievements of modern science. The delicate mite of cornea will be taken from the eyes of the martyr animal and quickly applied to the optics of the patient. In the summer time it was gay with those sweet scented flowers, though it was really named for the second wife of the pugilist, who died a few years ago. His wee daughter is named for her mother, whom she has never been permitted to miss, for not only is she a great pet with her doughty father, but is tenderly cared for by the pretty stepmother who came last summer to be the angel of that attractive home. NEW RIVAL FOR SYSONBY Trainer Thinks Ort Wells Will Make Good

Special to The Telegram NEW YORK, Jan. 20 .- Enoch Wishard, the trainer of John A. Drake's horses, says that Ort Wells may be the horse to dispute Sysonby's chances in the big handleaps this year. Wishard recently paid a visit to John Hynes' horse infirmary up in Connecticut, where the King Eric 5-year-old is wintering, and was greatly encouraged at his condition. "Ort Wells has been fired for the splint behind, which bothered him last season and in the fall of 1904," says the noted trainer, and his legs are as clean today as a new foal's. If he does not train again and win some of the big stakes I shall be greatly in error. When fit and well no horse can part over him."

WILL KID HERMAN HANDLE HERRERA

Pacific Coasters Think They Have a Wonder

Kid Herman, conqueror of Eddie Hanlon, is the person that the fight fans of the Pacific coast now urge is able to defeat Herrera, the youngster who put Young Corbett (William Henry Rothwell of Denver) out of business at Los Angeles Jan. 12. That date, Jan. 12, fell on Friday, and it proved an unlucky Friday for the Denver Wonder, as young Corbett has been called in the past by Otto Floto, and now those ever ready and eager to bring out new star with aspirations in the fistic arena think they have spotted the boy to finish the pugilistic career of 'Aurora Borealis Herrera," as they call him in Frisco.

In the ring Herrera is as lazy as the sleepy Spaniard sunning himself in front of his little casa. He is Young Corbett over again. He stands upright, seldom crouching, but his black eye is ever on the alert for an opening. This shoe button eye of his has picked out bunches of jaws that other eyes passed up. The other fellow never knows just how fast this Mexican can get one over and thinking him as slow with the punch as he is with the stride. often makes the mistake that the count only can make him remember.

Herman, in the eyes of his present hangers-on, is of championship timber, and possesses the mental caliber to back up his youth, strength and skill in the use of his mitts. He is said to be a "two-handed" fighter, and able to nunishment like a second Nelson It will be remembered that Herman scored a decisive victory over Eddie Hanlon, and it is probably due to his cleverness in that clean contest that he now has a larger host of admirers than any younger pug of the entire aggregation—and they are not without number, like the proverbial sands of

After inspecting old Mexico, Frank Bancroft decided that the Cincinnati Reds would not train in that benighted country. Was it the red peppers they eat down in that country or the bloomin' girls with red and yellow kimonos that did it?

The Western Jockey Club is pre-paring to carry its war against the American Turf Association into Louisville, and will next year have a rival track there. The jockey club is also preparing to wage a vigorous fight throughout the south against the association, and all chances of peace between the two organizations seems to have gone glimmering.

American Law Requires Pay. ment of Twenty Per Cent Tax on Canines

NEW YORK, Jan. 20 .- Master Merlin, the great champion bulldog, is coming to this country, having beenpurchased by C. G. Hopton, who has owned many champions in his day. Master Merlin is a prolific prize winner, and even as a puppy was the possessor of the most wonderful head in the bulldog world. As the head practically is everything in that class at a bench show, counting 25 in the scale of points, as the card reads, but in reality counting for half a hundred if the dog is well shown, Master Merlin is very likely to do well in New York.

An effort is being made in England just now to get outside the American law that requires the payment of an ad valorem duty of 25 per cent on dogs whose pedigrees are unknown, and rmits the free entry of dogs when the pedigree for three generations is

Mr. Corbett does not see anything humorous or at all extraordinary in the fact that he, the former fistic champion of the world, should be playing in a comedy by George Bernard Shaw in Daly's theater, which for many years was held almost sacred as the home of the classic drama.

Ring Habits Still Strong The fact that Mr. Corbett's habits of the ring are still strong with him was shown when he came into the dressing room after the second act and handed his coat to his dresser.

TALKS FOOTBALL

Suggests Several Rules to Reform the Game

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 20.-There have been many suggestions made in the last six weeks as to the best methods of reforming the game of football, and those interested in the sport are now awaiting with some impatience definite action on the part of the two rules committees. The views of Phil King, formerly of Princeton, as published in the current issue of the Illustrated and Outdoor News, are

"I am heartily in favor of changing the distance to be gained to ten yards in three downs, providing some other rule is passed to prevent the widening of the line of defense, which would be the case should the above rule be adopted. "I am primarily against passing any rule that would require stated positions for the defensive team. "Ten yards to be gained will certainly be a hard proposition for any team unless some other rule, such as the above, is passed, which will give a team an opportunity of regaining the ball long enough to make a score. "Another means of opening the game will be to require the side having possession of the ball to keep seven men on the line of scrimmage at all times. "Abolish the try at goal after a touchdown. "I would define more closely unneccessary roughness, and, in addition to disqualification, give a penalty distance against the offending side, although, after all, the rules can be enforced properly by competent officials. "Do not add to the number of officials, for there is already a scarcity of good ones. Enlarge the duties of the linesman by making him also judge of all outside plays in scrimmages."

Special to The Telegram. ORMOND, Fla., Jan. 20.-Alfred Vanderbilt has entered a 250 horsepower automobile, by all odds the most powerful machine of its kind ever constructed, in various events to be decided at the Ormond-Daytona Beach Although several members of the

Vanderbilt family have been prominently identified with automobiling, this is the first time on record that a Vanderbilt has built a car. W. K. Vanderbilt, the young man's relative, was one of the very first to take up the sport of racing high-power cars in this country, and his mile record of thirty-nine seconds, made at Ormond in 1904, was sensational at the time and for some time afterward. That record was made with a German Mercedes. All the Vanderbilt cars have been foreign and their successes have been credited to builders abroad. Alynne Guynne's racing machine last year and the year before was a ninety horsepower Fiat, built in Italy. With Sartari driving, it finished seventh in the big cup race on Long Island last fall. The monster is to make a bid for American prestige in motor car building. There is no guarantee that 250 horse power can be controlled by the hand of man, but Mr. Vanderbilt believes it possible and is desirous of crediting the achievement to home industry. Estimates as to the cost of providing for the congress should it come here range from $20,000 to $50,000. The latter amount seems more probable when it is considered that some extraordinarily large building would have to be procured, a small fortune in prize money distributed and an army of attendants employed. OUR LAY SERMON

A cat show was recently held in New York city, at which the costly Angoras, Manx and Persian cats from aristocratic homes were entered for prizes. A little German girl, whose home was in a squalid part of the city, read of the show in the newspapers. She was the possessor of one wee, forlorn little kitten which she called "Liebling." Liebling has only one eye and there are bare patches of skin on its sides from which the fur has been rubbed off through going between the palings of the picket fence. Liebling's tail also stops short of artistic completeness, having been cut off by a oal wagon with which the cat once disputed the right of way. Yet this little girl loved her lone kitten with a love as intense as any that was lavished upon the pampered thoroughbreds by their aristocratic misresses. Hence Liebling, in the eyes of its young misress, is the equal in beauty of any of the feline tribe. Securing the money for the entrance fee, the little girl look her kitten to the show and entered it for a prize. The keepers at the show noted how the red and brown fur ran together until it took on a scrambled egg appearance. But the little girl had the entrance fee, and her cat was set down among the smug, immaculate Angoras and Persians which already occupied the ages. And so the judges conferred hurriedly, and the ananimous verdict was: "Give the beast a prize and let her take it away." The prize was given. It was not a first prize-not a second-nor a third. It was not any prize listed in the books of the show. It was 1 special prize, and was awarded for special distinction. The little girl felt certain that it was for special merit. The judges admitted the distinction-

HAS THE RIGHT RING

The Telegram is pleased to see so able and fair a newspaper as the Dallas News fall in line with the suggestion made in this paper to the effect that Judge Brooks and Commissioner Colquitt should resign the important offices they now hold since they have become candidates for governor. The News claims that the precedent established by other eminent Texans in that direction does not apply to the gentlemen in question, from the fact that there is absolutely no parallel President is forced to deal with the boss in Texas politics for the position they now occupy. of the senate as the representative of No man has ever been made governor of Texas from the positions they now occupy, and the News would keep the judicial ermine and the railroad commission out of the mire of state politics. In a well written editorial on the subject, the News says:

That is not all. The offices held by Messrs. Brooks and Colquitt are elective. The governor has authority to fill them by appointment when a vacancy occurs, and then only till the next regular election, when the people shall be given an opportunity to select the men they want. If either Judge Brooks or Commissioner Colquitt should be elected governor it cannot be said that a vacancy has "occurred" in the office of judge or of railroad commissioner. "Produced" would be a better word. The people would be deprived of their right to fill the office for two years. There attaches to the office of governor authority to appoint certain officials; but these officers are appointive by statute, and are not to be classed with the two under consideration. The situation is that Judge Brooks expects to be elected governor and to create and fill a vacancy in the court of criminal appeals. Commissioner Colquitt expects to be elected governor, and to create and fill a vacancy in the railroad commission. Having designs to create a vacancy which the people have a right to fill, they ought to resign now and give the people an fully measures up. opportunity to exercise that right.

If they are not willing to do that, if they are unwilling so soon to separate themselves from their present offices, then they should by all means announce the names of the men whom they expect to appoint in their stead. Then the people could pass upon these names as well as upon the platforms of the respective candidates. Judge Brooks and Mr. Colquitt, when previously candidates, declared that it was quite important who should be selected as judges of the court of criminal appeals and as railroad commissioner. Hence partly the desire now for information as to what they have up their sleeves in that line. The plans of these gentlemen seems to be somewhat similar to that of Chinese cooks who appoint their successors. It is, however, dissimilar in one particular-the Chinese cook invariably announces the name of his successor in advance.

Of course the very narrow view of one of the eager partisans of Judge Brooks and of Commissioner Colquitt, that anyone who believes it wise and proper for them to resign their present offices while standing as candidates for governor is necessarily their opponent, cannot be shared by these gentlemen themselves. They both understand that often a faithful friend is the very person who advises one to do something which one does

The points brought out by the News are well worth the serious consideration of the intelligent voters of Texas. Judge Brooks and Commissioner Colquitt both occupy important positions which they are trying to utilize as a stepping stone to something better. If either should be elected he would be afforded the right to name his successor, and while the election of either is quite improbable, it has developed a state of affairs that should be promptly remedied, whether the resignations asked for are forthcoming or not.

The next legislature should by constitutional amendment provide against the creation of another such emergency. Make men who occupy judicial positions and members of the railroad commission ineligible for election to any other office until they shall shall not be permitted to go unchallenged in this great have served out their respective terms and a decent interval has elapsed. Keep the higher judiclary and the railroad commission out of politics, and compel those who are exalted to those official positions to not only serve out their terms, but to devote their time exclusively to the duties of their position. When this is done we will have clearer political skies in Texas.

A Dallas murderer has just been awarded the death penalty, and this is in marked contradiction of the San Antonio Light. has been in the direction of turning 'em all lose.

The Dallas fair troubles are about to be adjusted on a satisfactory basis to the warring elements, and it is hoped that peace will soon prevail. Dallas cannot afford to permit such differences to exist.

BY MARLEN E. PEW.

PROVIDENCE, R. I. Jan. 17.—Boss of the United States senate, recognized ruler of national commercial politics, high dictator of legislation affecting the American people, is Nelson Wilmarth Aldrich, of Rhode Island, many times a millionaire.

Aldrich impersonates the threat of the financial autocracy of the day. He is the shaft of the wheel within the wheel of the Washington system, in league with vested interests, corporate power, trust invasions, inherited wealth. money, gold, coin of the realm. John Kean and Stephen B. Elkins were present at this conference. They are United States senators. That same day Aldrich took a fast train to New York. I did not follow him and therefore I cannot say that he reported to Wall street or to 26 Broadway.

IN THE LISTS FOR THE TRUSTS

When President Roosevelt agitated for an anti-trust law, in his former term, Aldrich voiced the opposition in the senate to the president. The compromise that was eventually made was made to Aldrich. Roosevelt then recognized Aldrich as the representative of Morgan, Rockefeller and the "street" in general.

At about that time the Standard Oil trust had the audacity to send telegrams to its representatives in the senate demanding that they fight the question of exposing the records of the trusts. President Roosevelt is in possession of those telegrams. Aldrich got one.

There is no mistake in what Aldrich represents. He is candid enough about it. It is his record. He does not hide that he is the willing servant of one class of Americans.

Starting life as a clerk in a fish market, Aldrich's first public office was as member of the Providence city council. Aldrich owes his start to Senator Henry B. Anthony, who for many years was the boss of Rhode Island's corrupted politics.

Do not underestimate the man. He is an able statesman, a diplomatic orator, a dignified personality, and he possesses great and admirable mental force. He has long been recognized as one of the authorities on financial measures, protective tariff and all legislation which would vitally affect the financial interests of the country. Aldrich has concentrated himself upon that phase of affairs of state which would be of most importance to his real constituency-Wall street.

At present he is to be seen as the administration's enemy in the railroad railroads who object to equal freight

Sugar, Sugar, Sugar

Col. A. K. McClure once told in Boston a story which Aldrich has never denied. He declared that Aldrich, as chairman of the finance committee of the senate, added to the house tariff schedule one mill to the duty on sugar. That was worth $3,000,000 to the sugar trust. When this notorious bill came to the senate Aldrich gave the sugar trust an additional one-tenth of 1 cent. Along about this time this public-spirited senator was again before the legislature for re-election

Col. McClure afterward alleged that the sugar trust put up large sums of money to assist the Aldrich cause and, it being Rhode Island, he went back to the senate.

Tragedy of a Grab

Aldrich made a record as a municipal franchise grabber that would almost put to shame the Philadelphia crowd. He organized a company that, with loans obtained from the sugar trust's Central Trust company of New York, quietly bought up and made a monopoly of practically all of the public utilities in and around Providence. The legislature paved the way by granting the privilege of exclusive franchise. Through multifarious high finance devices the Rhode Island company got what amounted to perpetual franchise. Then the people revolted.

When the motormen and conductors of the street car line cried out for the ten-hour day, the Aldrich gang lost control of their senses and let the legislature pass a ten-hour law. The object of the company had been to sell out to the famous "U. G. I." Philadel-

Neither did it appear to worry the princess, for, it must be known to the reader that Priscilla had imbibed much of the teachings of her old schoolmaster and desired nothing better than a hut with a pallet for her couch and common bread and meat to eat for the remainder of her life-this was her idea of being free and being at the bottom of the world's ladder. Concerning the ladder the following extract will be readable and available for publication. Of the Princess Priscilla is being explained that she has decided to run away, it being presumed that the reader will be deeply interested in the running, the book says:

"Her plans were these "First. That having had twenty-one years at the top of the social ladder she was now going to get down and spend the next twenty-one at the bottom of She explained her conviction that beautiful things grow quite naturally round the bottom of ladders that cannot easily reach the top; flowers of self-sacrifice and love, of temperance, charity, godliness-delicate things, with roots that find their nourishment in common soil. You could not, said Priscella, expect soil at the top of the ladders, could you?"

The Princess runs away. The Hofbibliothekar likewise runs also. The maid, Annalise, is carried along in the current of the flight and finds herself in a sleepy little village of Somersetshire, England, where, after many adventures, everything turns out right, despite the efforts of the numerous wagging tongues of the place and the fact that history has hardly given any example of a prospective king marry, ing a young princess who has at some time ran away with a schoolmaster. True, the pedagogue was old-old enough to have probably been the grandfather of the princess, leaving out the Westphalian pig watching, but, as explained at the first few glimpses in the beginning of the volume, princesses who think too much, or who long for freedom and an ordinary time, or who want to ride in railway trains with the common herd; such princesses are not eagerly run after by the heirs to thrones, even if these monarchs-tobe do, occasionally, say "bosh."

Senator Bailey's reason for deeming himself unsuited to leadership of his party in the senate is at least suggestive. "I have not acquired," he says, myself in a position where a failure to do so is certain to result in constant personal annoyance and might result in serious embarrassment to my party." The senate has a special social atmosphere, where "courtesy" is followed far beyond the line of moral soundness, and, if no other good results from the advent of Mr. La Follette, it is to be hoped he will at least do something to destroy this privateclub-like harmony of intercourse, Elsewhere, certainly, in American pol-

Lady Bobs, Her Brother and I A unique story is "Lady Bobs, Her Brother and I," by Miss Jean Chamberlin (Putnam), for a bright account of a pleasure trip in the Azores vies with scintillating wit and a capricious love story for predominant attention.

A young actress enjoying a vacation in the Azores meets an old friend, the indispensable, irresistible Lady Bobs. Were Lady Bobs another kind of a woman the fact that she is the sister of a filted lover might have been embarrassing; as it is, she so tactfully circumstances that two wounded hearts are salved in mutual happiness. It is a fascinating little story, copiously illustrated with photographs of Azoran scenery.

THEORIGINALVIRGINIAN

John Henry Hicks, manager of the big "T. O." ranch in Mexico, just across the Rio Grande, about 150 miles south of El Paso, the original of Owen Wister's "The Virginian," - has just gone to his ranch with his bride, formerly Miss Katherine Adams, daughter of Edward L. Adams, editorial writer for the San Francisco Chroncle. He met the young woman when she was in charge of the industrial school a Temple, Ariz, and ranch life is not new to her, though she has never lived in Mexico. She is a bright scholar and he is a Yale Graduate. He came west when he was 18 years of age, and saw Arizona before the present capital of Phoenix was located. He says the first time he rode over the site of what is now a city of 25,000 people he would not have given his horse for the whole town.

Mr. Hicks is a modest man, and declares he does not believe that Mr. Wister picked him out as the hero for his "Virginian." "Why," said he, "every man at the head of a big ranch fits the character, and Mr. Wister has said himself that the hero of his book was a composite character."

Notwithstanding this, those who have known Wister say he would naturally hide the identity of his hero. and friends of Mr. Hicks declare there is too much in the book that fits him, and him alone, for somebody else or some composite character. Most all of the little stories of cowboy life in the book can be identified with the range ife of John Hicks, they say, and the hero of "The Virginian," they declare, is none other than he.

"I am trying to live down this conection with 'The Virginian,' " said Mr. Hicks, "for I hate notoriety; but it seems that it will not down. It is ometimes mortifying, and I wonder at times if Mr. Wister does not think I am out here posing as his hero. I shall write him today and tell him that I

Noted Frontiersman Talks of Buffalo and Hunting Trips

DENVER, Colo., Jan. 20 .- Howard Eaton, a noted frontier character, stockman, hunter and traveler, and for several years nearest neighbor to Theodore Roosevelt, living on the adjoining ranch in the bad lands of Dakota, passed through Denver yesterday.

Mr. Eaton is the only western man appointed by President Roosevelt on the national park commission to prevent the extinction of the buffalo. He is well acquainted with the wild game of the west, is one of the owners of buffalo on the Flathead reservation, and knows the President, one might him on the range and on the roundups for several years.

"The commission was appointed by the President for the purpose designated by its name ,its main object being to secure by purchase all the buffalo obtainable at a reasonable price, for the government," explained Mr.

"The Pablo herd, on Flathead Indian reservation, is the largest and finest in the west; there are at present between 350 and 400 animals, and it consists of virtually almost half of the buffalo in America and about onethird of all in the world.

"The President has helped the buffalo business along all he can, and will do all he can, having mentioned it in his message to congress. Just after his a speech to newspaper men at Washington, speaking of this scheme for the city park of Denver this buffalo and domestic cattle. The speech was copied all over the coun-

Mr. Eaton spoke of one of the most profitable propositions at the present time in the buffalo line-the crossing of the buffalo with the Galloway, for both robes and meat. "The Galloway crossed with the buf-falo makes a heavy fur over the en- wild game. Outside of its being a tire animal, while with the wild buffalo the fur and hair is very long on the head and shoulders and short on the hind quarters. With the Galloway cross there is long hair all over, and a very thick, rich fur underneath, making the best robe obtainable, exceeding both the buffalo and Galloway robes. I was recently offered $125 for a cow buffalo robe." said he.

Hunted with the Baron von Hagen And Secured Many Specimens

Mr. Eaton has just finished a three months' hunt with Baron von Hagen of Germany. They first went to the Jackson hole country, south of the Yellowstone park, where they secured some exceptionally fine specimens of antelope and elk. They went to the Flathead reservation, where the baron bought two fine buffalo bulls and shot them in order to take the heads and hides with him to Germany. He paid Mr. Eaton $500 each for the buffalo. They went to California and Arizona to El Paso, and from there into Sonora, around the head of the Yaqui river, where they got cougar, mountain lion, bear, wolf, Canada lynx, gray fox, deer and turkey, and also some fine specimens of ivory bill woodpecker, gambles, quail, tragans and other strange say, intimately, having ridden with birds. The baron filled a bottle with horned toads, scorpions, tarantulas and centipedes, taking the collection

He enjoyed the hunt so much that some of his friends, especially among the Uhlans, are coming out next year. It is probable Count Berntsorff, who took a simlar trip with Mr. Eaton last year, will also come. They have sketched out a trip to Alaska, then to the Jackson hole country and Mexico, and hope to get some more buffalo.

This was Mr. Eaton's fifty-first trip through the Yellowstone park on hunting and sightseeing expeditions. With his brother he owns a large hostelry at what is known as Eaton's ranch at Wolf, near Sheridan, Wyo.

Mr. Eaton has furnished more buffalo for the zoos and parks of North America than any other one man. He return from Yellowstone park he made | furnished the new shipment of buffalo, through his friend, W. F. Kendrick, to saving the buffalo, and crossing the and has supplied parks from Winnipeg to Texas and from New York to San Francisco. Every zoo man in America knows Howard Eaton.

When it was suggested that a game preserve be started in the vicinity of Denver, Mr. Eaton was very much interested and said if practical lines prevalled he would be glad to join in the "fad" or pleasure, it could be made very profitable, in his opinion.

Big Prices for Antelope and Buffalo Intended for the Zoo As an illustration, Mr. Eaton said: "I will take at the present time all the antelope I can secure at $50 a head. A good buffalo cow is worth $500 right on the range, and the bulls at $400. A pair of buffalo today is worth, delivered at the zoo, from $1,200 to $1,500 per pair, according to the location of the zoo." Mr. Eaton visited City park and expressed himself as much pleased with the bear enclosure.

"It is the largest and most complete of anything of the kind in America," was his verdict, and he continued that it is not only a humane act but a new

ing them so much freedom, with trees to climb. He likes the idea of mixing the bears, wolves and covotes, and believes that mountain lions could be added by proper arrangement, if their housing is such that they can be kep away from the wolves in case of at-

Mr. Eaton said: "I give Mr. Hill great credit for his handling, not only of the antelope, but all the animals, for, taking them altogether, they look as well or better than any animals I ever saw'in captivity. I was delighted to see the buffalo which I sold the city last spring looking so well."

One criticism, however, was that of the policy of allowing sheep near the other animals; the ticks and other vermin from the sheep, and often the diseases common in the head of sheep, departure in the keeping of bears, giv- are easily transmitted, especially to the

Little Big Springs Is Thriving and Awake

FUTURE HOLDS PROMISE

Pleasant Homes, Busy Streets. Municipal Improvements

on Every Side

By a Staff Correspondent. BIG SPRINGS, Texas, Jan. 20 .- So many east and north Texas people have heard of Big Springs as a railroad town, division headquarters for the Texas and Pacific railroad, and also seat of that company's west Texas shops and round house, that the town itself has been neglected for its own real worth as a type of the solidly prosperous Texas community which represents one of the Lone Star state's leading sources of present and future

For it is the growing, thriving towns (not boom villages) which, scattered at regular intervals throughout the big western country, mean much to the ultimate settlement and development of a region which until a few years ago was known wholly as a cattle country and a short time before that only as a profitable place for killing buffalo.

Foundation of the City

Big Springs was founded in the early eightles, when the Texas and Pacific railroad pushed westward from Fort Worth and selected it as a division headquarters. The town got its name from a seeping spring in a little canyon, two miles south of the present town site. The "big spring," which was supposed to have existed at one time, was never seen by white men and probably not by Indians. The water of the spring, rising from some inexhaustible subterranean source, was nearly all drained off in the loose sands that covered the canyon's bottom and but little reached the surface. But the early buffalo hunters knew there was water there in great bundance, and that by digging down obtained, so the "springs" became a noted camping place and for years were seldom without a party of hunters in their vicinity.

Ground Covered With Dead Buffalo The buffalo knew of the water as well as the hunters. John Birdwell, now of Big Springs, who came to this country in an early day, says he has seen the bottom of the canyon covered with carcasses of bison after a stampede for water, after the surface lakes on the plains had been dried up. The bison would rush to the springs by the thousand and, while

BIG SPRINGS FARMER PRODUCES FINE CROP Long Distance Communication Rapidly Extended

BIG SPRINGS, Texas, Jan. 20.-The telephone systems in this section of Western Texas are to undergo considerable improvement during the next few months. At present a line is being constructed from Lubbock to Gail. The Western Telephone Company already has a line running from Big Springs and it is planned to rebuild this line to make connections with the line to Lubbock, giving Big Springs. conections 110 miles to the north. The Western Telephone Company will also, during the year, put in a copper metallic circuit to Abilene, giving greatly improved service to the east. edge of the little cliff to overlook the brackish pools of water below, the impatient, crowding animals behind would push them over until they were crushed to death on the bottom of the carryon by the fall and the weight of the other buffalo coming in behind.

Famous Feeding Ground

At one time the Big Springs country v. as probably the most famous feeding ground for buffalo in Texas. In 1877, the last year killing buffalo was profitable in west Texas, John Birdwell shot in the neighborhood of 3,000 for a Fort Worth hide dealer. Un til that time the buffalo would allow the mounted nunter to ride close and a good shot could trirg down bison as fast as he could reload his Sharp's rifle without alarming the rest of the herd. After '77 the buffalo became so shy that the funt for hide practically ceased and so one of the earliest Texas industries went. A few bison remained in the vicinity for some years later, but today not even a horn can be found on the grassy plains where the animals once roamed by millions. Early west Texas stockmen used Big Springs as a watering place after the buffalo hunters finished their work. but there was never any attempt to collect the water in any quantity or find the extent of the subterranean stream which fed it, until two years ago. The story of that effort will be told at some other early day.

The great movement of western immigration which followed the opening of the country along the Texas and Pac'fic brought its share of early settlers to Big Springs, but the establishment of the railroad shops gave the town from the start a solid foundation which some of the other towns could not obtain in spite of the prosperity of those days.

The result was that Big Springs was spared the cyclonic experience of a boom period, with its inevitable depressing after effects, and the town has grown along at a fairly rapid, but never unbealthful, pace.

Big Springs now has probably from three thousand to three thousand five hundred inhabitants. They are nearly all Americans. Probably less than a

There is not a vacant house in the town, and many new buildings are being erected. Among the large store buildings being erected is one for the estate of the late John P. Hughes of Fort Worth. limestone. Some are fronted with red sanustone from the Pecos country and for attractive looking buildings extends to the residence sections, as well as the business houses, and the result is wide streets, big lawns and pleasant homes. There are several brick and stone houses and one built of concrete blocks, the product of a new industry for the town. Solid Prosperity

An example of the town's solid prosperity is shown in the bank deposits, according to the statements made at the beginning of the present year. There are two national banks with a combined capital and surplus of $205,-Their combined deposits exceed $500,000, a sum equal to nearly onefourth the total property valuation shown on the tax rolls of Howard ounty. The monthly cash pay roll of the Texas and Pacific at Big Springs is from $15,000 to $25,000. Money is easy this winter and on ac-Merchants report collections excellent and with cotton selling in the neighborhood of 11 cents, are enjoying more prosperity than they have seen for several years. As a result, merchants are stocking up largely for next year's trade and traveling men report good sales in all lines. Modern Improvements

The town has electric lights, a telephone system and water works. The water is supplied by gravity from a reserveir two miles south of town. There are seven churches, a good independent district school and nearly all lodges are represented. The Masonic Temple is one of the new buildings, and that lodge is in excellent condition. The railroad Y. M. C. A. is open to citizens of the town as well as railroad men and has a membership of over five hundred. A new postoffice was recently completed and a new court house probably will be built next Big Springs is not incorporated, except for school purposes. The peace of the community is looked after by the sheriff and his deputies.

Principal Industries The Texas and Pacific shops still furnish the principal industries. From 150 to 200 men are employed in the shops and roundhouse. The other industries of the town include a cotton gin, a concrete block factory and two new ice plants, which are to be built this year. There are two thorough-bred stock farms near town, both devoted to Herefords. A. B. Jones is proprietor of one and W. H. Brennard of the other. Several citizens also engage in fine poultry raising and ship pure-bred fowls all over the state. Pleasant Location

The town expects soon to have sanitarium, which will supply one of the community's present needs. There are two harness and saddle manufactories and two weekly newspapers. SALT INDUSTRY GROWING Believed That Great Future Awaits Howard County Mines

Staff Correspondence. BIG SPRINGS, Texas, Jan. 20 .-Persons familiar with the geological formations underlying Howard county believe that there it has a great future in the development of the salt industry. In several places artesian wells have been sunk to a depth of 900 feet. When a flowing stream was encountered. This stream when it came to the surface was strongly impregnated with brine and the brine in Abilene. Some of the leaves measwhen evaporated yielded an excellent quality of white table salt. It is estimated that a vein of salt, in some places more than 100 feet in thickness underlies a portion of the county and that by sinking flowing artesian wells the brine could be brought to the surface without pumping, and the salt secured with no additional cost except the providing of shallow tanks for evaporation. It is not believed that the county contains mineral in any great quantities aside from the salt deposits. The rock formations are mostly soft limestones, suitable for foundations as well as building purposes. The limestone withstands heat well and is apparently quite dura-

DEATH VALLEY SAFE

Traveler Dispels Illusions Regarding Famous Alkaline Vale

Staff Correspondence. BIG SPRINGS, Texas, Jan. 20 .-Many of the illusions regarding the far-famed Death Valley of Nevada are dispelled by L. H. Clark of Hempstead. Texas, who is now visiting here and who has just returned fro ma visit to the new gold region.

"Anybody could go into Death Valley at this season of the year," says Mr. Clark, "and be in no danger. The snow from the surrounding mountains furnishes enough water, and when water is supplied there is no trouble in going through the valley. During the months of June, July, August, September, October and November it is unsafe for any traveler to enter the valley, as there is no water to be had and the traveler, as well as his horses or mules, soon dies of thirst.

Skeletons of Travelers "The valley is about one hundred and fifty miles long and from sixtyfive to twenty miles wide. In some places it is 5,000 feet deep. Its bottom is an alkali sand. IMMIGRANTS FLOCKING

Shoals of Settlers Flooding Into Plains Country-Houses Dot Plains

Staff Correspondence.

COLRADO, Texas, Jan. 20. - As every freight train going east from western Texas used to have a heavy per centage of cars loaded with cattle in its make-up, so now every freight train from the east is bringing carloads of immigrants' goods and lumber. The amount of lumber coming into western Texas' is hard to estimate on account of the big section through which the demand is divided, but it's

As an example, it can be stated that he Orient railroad, now running fifty-three miles north of Sweetwater, will take to the new towns along its line 300 carloads of lumber, probably within the next week, if it can be gotten to Sweetwater in time. New towns are springing up everywhere, but rivalling the new towns in the demand for lumber are the new settlers locating on half section and section tracts, all over Nolan, Mitchell, Howard, Scurry, Fisher and surnding counties. Houses Dotting the Plains

A great many large ranch owners are selling over three to five-section tracts and putting purchasers on every quarter. In the northeastern part of Mitchell county it is said to be an easy task to count a score of new houses dotting the plains within the range of evesight.

Scurry county, especially, is filling rapidly with small settlers and the little inland town of Ira is enjoying a boom, twenty miles or so from the nearest railroad.

Recently the new town of Loraine was opened on the Texas and Pacific, twelve miles east of Colorado. Already 300 lots have been sold and new homes and business houses are going up in every direction. As a result there is a big demand. not only for lumber, but for all kinds of building materials and workmen. The present rush is expected to continue until crop planting time next trict here, which is regarded as very popular by merchants. It is believed that the railroad company would find a quick sale for the block if it were

C. H. Lasky Is Pioneer of Orchard Industry in Colorado, Texas This merely make slippery the passage

MONEY

By a Staff Correspondent. COLORADO, Texas, Jan. 20.-C. H. Lasky of this place is the pioneer in developing the fruit and vegetable industry in Mitchell county. Mr. Lasky is a grocer. Though a pioneer, Mr. Lasky is not an experienced fruit raiser. When he started his venture a few years ago, he knew very little about the varieties of fruit and vegetables which could be successfully raised. So he started on the same basis of business as he uses in running his store He leased three acres of land, entered his little farm as a debtor on the books of his grocery store, charged it up with the cost of seed, trees and planting, and then when the farm began to bring results, credited it with its net income. He has been doing that way ever since and he now declares the farm is the best customer he has

on his books. Big Cash Balance

The original three-acre tract had grown last year to thirty acres, and the cash balance in its favor on Mr. Lasky's books showed it had cleared for him more than $1,100. The farm will be higger next year. Instead of renting land Mr. Lasky now buys it. He has about fifty acres now which will soon be all in cultivation as orchard or

The varieties of fruit in the orchard include peaches, plums, grapes, apples, blackberries, pears and apricots, grapes. In the garden are raised sweet potatoes and nearly every other kindof vegetable. Last year Mr. Lasky, besides raising enough vegetables for his own store and selling much on the local market, shipped the products of his farm to El Paso, Fort Worth, Dalles, and even occasional consignments to Galveston and Houston. When he first opened his store here a few years ago he shipped practically all his fruit and vegetables into Colorado from Weatherford.

Started by Accident

He went into the business by accident. The cost of shipping in vegetables and fruits was great, but being unfamiliar with the soil of Mitchell county he did not know how to improve the condition. One day while east of the town he noticed a couple melons growing on a wild vine. Then he made up his mind if wild melons could grow in Mitchell county, other varieties would thrive. Next year he leased his first tract and began his fruit raising venture with a melon patch. He not only raised good melens, but sold them at a big profit After that he went into the fruit and vegetable business in earnest.

Peaches Grown in Mitchell As a result of his experiments and bservations Mr. Lasky has found that il varieties of peaches thrive in Witchell county. In all his experience he has never seen a wormy peach, and no insects have ever bothered them. He is raising all varieties of apples, tut pays most attention to the early maturing and summer varieties. He finds the trees begin bearing best after about six years. Pears do well and begin bearing after seven years.

Embryo Vineyards Apricots and plums are easily raised and produce big yields. Grape are still at an experimental stage with him. Last year his crop suffered with blight, but he believes that with spraying this can be avoided. He has tried the California varieties of grapes, but they do not thrive. Cherries do well and blackberries fairly well. He has never tried strawberries, currants or gooseberries. Of the vegetables, sweet potatoes and elons of all kinds are easily raised.

Will Try Irrigation None of Mr. Lasky's orchards or gardens are irrigated. They have to depend on the moisture nature supplies. Mr. Lasky believes that by irrigation his yields could be greatly inreased, but he has not yet made the experiment. As an example of how trees will thrive he states that last spring he planted over 2,300 fruit trees. The ground was moistened when the trees were planted in order to make the ground settle on the roots. They received no other attention all last summer or fall. More than 2,200 of them are now living and thriving.

How a Lake Was Created in a Dry Place, Despite Wiseacre Engineers

By a Staff Correspondent. BIG SPRINGS, Texas, Jan. 20 .- At Big Springs the Texas and Pacific railway has a water system which probably surpasses that enjoyed by any railroad in the state. It is a system whereby they get an inexhaustible supply of soft water "easy on the boilers," with a gravity pressure sufficient for all the purposes of its shops, roundhouse and water tanks, at a minimum

Formerly the railroad got its water from the town waterworks, but as the town grew with the shops, this supply grew smaller until it threatened to seriously handicap the work. Now, water for ordinary purposes is not scarce at Big Springs, but water soft enough to use in engine boilers is hard to find anywhere. Big railroad systems spend thousands annually either in search of such water, or, as in the case along many of the northern roads, in "softening" the water they already have, by John Birdwell Crops Up Again About

Two Years Ago When the water supply began to show signs of giving out here, John Birdwell, who used to locate watering places for the ranchmen in the 60s and early 70s, suggested to the railroad the possibility of using the springs from which this town gets its name. As the springs have not run within the memory of man, and the quantity of water at the surface near the location is ordinarily trifling, Birdwell's suggestion wasn't received enthusiastically, but nevertheless an engineering party was sent out to look it up. Birdwell went along with the party and took them to the canyon two miles south of town, in which the springs are located. The bottom of the canyon is covered with gravel. The engineers saw the gravel and also the few pools of greenish water on the surface That these could supply enough water for the railroad's needs looked impossible, and they expressed as

Teaching Engineers to See "The water's there," said Birdwell,

This gravel on top is only a few feet deep, and when the water from the spring rises until it reaches the gravel it runs off down the canyon without ever coming to the surface. "Besides this," said Birdwell, "if you build a dam across the canyon down here below the springs, you'll catch enough rain water to do everything you want. "It wouldn't rain enough in ten years," was the answer Birdwell got. but he was persistent.

The engineers finally ran augurs through the sand and found its greatest depth five feet. Beneath that was solid rock. They decided to build a dam to collect soft water for use if the water from the springs should prove insufficient or too hard. River Was Dammed Poor

The dam hadn't been up long before there came a rain. It was a good rain for West Texas, and the water poured down into the canvon at a great rate. It encountered the dam, and the dam decided not to stay. Instead of waiting ply the shops for a year if it didn't rain any more for that period. Meanwhile the engineers were experimenting at the supposed site of the old springs. They got down a few feet and soon encountered water. The further they went the more water they got and the better was the quality. They went down forty feet altogether and struck a supply which has been keeping the shops for months, without pumping a drop from the big lake. Besides this, the water is soft enough for all purposes. A pump was placed in the well hole and the spring water pumped to a reservoir, from where it is allowed to run downhill about two miles to the shops, making a descent of 180 feet in that The lake, now that there is no other

INDIAN POLICE TO DISBAND

Picturesque and Heroic Body to Go Out of Commission

Special to The Telegram. TULSA, I. T., Jan. 19.-If next March marks the complete end of Indian supremacy in Indian Territory, no one feature of this romantic domain will be missed more than the picturesque Indian police, which as a system has been in vogue over a quarter of a cen-

The Indian police force was created by the interior department on demand of the Indians themselves, primarily to stop interloping or intruding. At the time of its creation the whole territory was infested with nomad Indians, whose practice it was to take possession of homes, in case they came upon them in the absence of the family on the hunt or elsewhere and in many instances refused to leave on the return of the rightful owners, and in this way Indians were cheated out of their

Eventually the duties of the police were widened to include all classes of cases to which an Indian was a party and their services have been invaluable in the alloting of lands.

The Indian police force consists of commander or captain and twentyeight policemen. The commander holds appointment direct from the Indian agent and the policemen are appointed by the agent on recommendation of the principal chief of the nation to which they belong and a certain number of responsible citizens of the town or district in which they re-

Captain West stands six feet four and weighs 270 pounds. His father was also a giant, six feet seven and three-quarters inches in height and tipping the scales at nearly 300 pounds. The elder West was so powerful a man physically that he became feared throughout the length and breadth of the Cherokee nation and in the forties the national council passed a law making his right arm a deadly weapon. For him to strike an opponent with his fist was regarded in the same light before the law as a drawing of a pistol

He was a soldier in the memorable war of 1883." Trouble arose over the murder of two Cherokee boys near Wagoner by Creek freedmen in retaliation for the lynching of twelve negro outlaws in the same neighborhood by Cherokee Indians a few days before. To obtain revenge, 1,700 Cherokees armed and banded themselves together and started for the scene of the murder. At the junction of the Grand and Arkansas rivers near Wagoner they came in sight of a large armed band of Creeks, who, hearing of the comng of the Cherokees, had made haste to get on the defensive. When the two armies were within three-quarters of a mile apart and on the qui vive for the fight to begin, in terrible haste up rode William P. Adair, Cherokee representative at Washington, to the ranks of his tribesmen. He had come all the way from the national capital to settle this trouble. By a wonderfully eloquent speech, remembered to this day, he persuaded his countrymen to desist

AMUSEMENTS

Theater goers will be asked to consider West & Vokes and Margaret Daly Vokes in their favorite characterization of "Percy" and "Harold," at Greenwall's opera house Monday night and Tuesday matinee and night, Jan. 22 and 23, as two Pinkerton detectives this season. The proposition sounds funny and as that is the sole purpose of West & Vokes and Margaret Daly Vokes-the making of fun -it is a good beginning. "A Pair of Pinks" is the vehicle of jollity in which these two merry hobo dromios will disclose how much real genuine fun there is in a well regulated jail when filled with a big company of fun furnishers. That it will be a musical entertainment, goes without saying, as "Percy" and "Harold" have always been identified with the best and largest musical fun affairs, and it is promised that this year the music is all new, catchy, and that special kind that is whistled as soon as it is sung. Extravagant investment has been made this season in new scenery, costumes and effects, and its numerical strength and individual capabilities will be found far superior to any oftering ever made by the well liked

Shepard's Moving Pictures

Archie L. Shepard's marvelous moving pictures, which come to Greenwall's opera house Wednesday matinee and night, Jan. 24, affords two solid hours of wholesome entertainment that never wearles. The program, which is made up entirely of the very latest sensational novelties that the art and science of animated photography has presented to the world, embracing beautiful scenes of travel in foreign lands, excellent dramatic productions and sparkling comedy creations, is presented with all the realism that advanced ideas and improved mechanism can produce, every scene being an artistic masterpiece. An especially prepared matinee program presented for the school children at 2:15 p. m., owing to a misunderstanding in the booking, two attractions having been booked for the same night, Manager Greenwall will give his patrons two attractions the same night for the one admission. "Dora Thorne," a dramatized novel of the present season, marks a new leparture in melodrama. The story of the play follows the book accurately enough to permit the use of the title, but the playwright has chosen the cellent taste, and woven them into a play that is interesting in the extreme. "Dora Thorne" at Greenwall's opera house Wednesday matinee and night, Jan. 24.

"Paul Gilmore"

"Captain Debonnaire," Paul Gilmore's now famous romantic comedy, which will reintroduce this favorite young star at Greenwall's opera house Thursday and Friday nights, Friday matinee, Jan. 25 and 26, presents several uncommonly picturesque scenes. One of the most interesting is a garden party at one of the finest homes of old New York overlooking the Hudson river. Into the frivolity of the Dutch swains and damsels steps the intrepid French gallant, Louis le Debonnaire, with all of his savoir faire, grace and courtliness. He comes to win the hand of the betrothed of the Dutch attorney general, a girl whom he has never seen but with whom he declares himself in love because of her resemblance to an ancient miniature long in his possession. Debonnaira had learned in Quebec, where his regiment, the Carignan-Salleres, was stationed, that a maiden enough like the picture to be its original, was in the city far to the south. On not more than five minutes' notice he started for New Amsterdam, wagering 2,000 crowns that he would return before Christmas night with the lady, either as his wife or his betrothed. In the role of this dashing gallant, Mr. Gilmore is making the greatest success of his career.

The Galveston News had the following to say among other things: "Surely Mr. Paul Gilmore and his company of excellent players could want no better manifestation of unstinted approval than the storms of applause which rewarded their ef-forts last night. • Mr. Gilmore, still in his twenties, fulfills the predictions of those who saw him on former occasions in the 'Mummy and the Humming Bird' and the 'Tyranny of Tears.' His ability coupled with an attractive personality, makes him the true conception of a dashing, handsome cavalled of the swashbuckling type. In such he is eminently a

Raffles, a Crook with Character

No scoundrel from the worlds of reality or romance ever came with stronger letters of recommendation than does the gentle Raffles, plausibility and soulful eyes through the medium of dashing and handsome Kyrle Bellew at Greenwall's Opera House Saturday matinee and night, Jan. 27 Here is a crook with a "character." He is warranted to wear for three hours an evening and give complete satisfaction. It is not often that a burglar is welcome to town, but Raffles has been met at the depot of nearly every city he has visited-not by a deputation from the detective bureau, but by a brass Mr. Bellew and his artistic Liebler

& Co. production were seen in the metropolis winter before last for 200 performances, the record run of the year. No play has been more talked of in a decade. Mr. Bellew has not visited this section in some time and he will be warmly received. He is undoubtedly the leading romantic actor of the day and is now in his histronic prime. Featured in his support is that gifted actor, E. M. Holland, who plays Captain Bedford, the detective. Other prominent players in the cast are Clara Blandick, Lorena Atwood, Hattie Russell, Olive Wyndham, Mignon Baranger, Frank McCormack, Frank Roberts, Frank Connor and Thomas Thorne.

Coming Attractions

Earnest readers of these works can never go wrong, for they embody all the good there is in life. Shakespeare's works are the highest ideals of the classic drama-the drama that the intellectual world adores, and that the venerable pontiff, Pope Pius X, so heartily gave his benediction to last June, when interviewed on the subject by Alan Dale, the dramatic writer of the New York American. The most actable and satisfactory of the Shakespeare plays is King Richard the Third -the Colley Cibber version-as used by the famous David Garrick, Edmund Kean, Edwin Forrest and others actors who were really kings themselves by the divine right of intellect. Copper Shares Weaken Under Bearish Pressure-Steel Pfd. Very Active. Reading Leads Rails

NEW YORK, Jan. 20.-The stock market was unusually active for a considerable profit-taking in evidence, it had but little effect on prices and general list ruled strong throughout the initial trading. Speculative eyes were all turned on the copper shares, which were very active and made wide fluctuations during the first hour. Anaconda opened at 290, a gain of 7 points from yesterday's finals, increased the gain in the initial trading to a matter of 2 points from the opening figures and then dropped back to 285, where it was selling at the end of the first hour. Amalgamated was also in good demand, but was held in check by the stubborn fight from the bear interests, and after an initial advance of slightly under a point, was forced back to fractionally below yesterday's closing price. The railroad shares were not overlooked in the transactions, and as has been the case for the past few days, Reading attracted the greater share of attention in that quarter. It seems that there is no power to stop the upward flight of this stock, and today's session added its quota to the already marvelous record in the shape of an advance of 414 points during the first hour, carrying the price to 1581/2. The final price was % under the best of the day. There was no abatement of activity in the movement of St. Paul and that issue added 3% points to the gain of yesterday and closed at the best of the day. GRAIN

Free Liquidation in Wheat Followed by Good Buying-Closing Prices a Shade Lower

Special to The Telegram CHICAGO, Ill., Jan. 20 .- Small holders of wheat were eager to sell out at week-end session. Although there was the opening this morning, following the example set by some of the larger bulls yesterday. There was too much with the exception of a few issues the | unanimity of opinion and the selling was overdone, good buying developing in the neighborhood of 87c for the day. The close showed but a small loss for the day. High temperatures and unsettled weather prevailed throughout the belt today, and the forecast indicates a cold wave tomorrow. Considering the unprotected condition of a large portion of the winter wheat crop this was construed as a bullish factor. The trading was largely local. Liverpool closed ¼d to %d lower, affected by our decline of yesterday. Local recelpts 19 cars, with 12 expected Monday. Northwestern cars 435, approximately the same as a year ago. Total primary movement 619,000 bushels, as compared with 782,000 last season. Clearances 400,000 bushels. World's shipments for Monday are figured at 8,800,000 bushels. Australia cleared 1.-500,000 bushels of wheat this week, which is the largest shipment for several weeks back.

Corn Corn was firm, although trading was light. Wet weather affected sentiment considerably. Clearances were again large at 886,000 bushels and cash markets steady. The country is selling nothing and there is some complaint respecting the condition of corn in country elevators in some localities. Liverpool closed unchanged. Local receipts were 270 cars, with 309 expected Monday. The estimates for Monday's receipts include probable Sunday inspection. Total primary movement 547,-000 bushels.

Oats were firm without any material change in prices. The most encouraging feature is the unquestionable evidence of a better export demand. Direct sales have been quite liberal of late and the seaboard was an eager buyer today. Local receipts were 160 cars, with 215 expected on Monday. Clearances 10,000 bushels.

Provisions Provisions closed firm at a fair advance. The volume of trade was rather light, being restricted by small offerings. The selling was mostly in the way of profit-taking. Packers were credited with buying lard and there was investment buying of pork and ribs. The undertone of the market is strong and unless hog movement increases the values of products will go higher. Estimated hogs for Monday 57,000 head, and 230,000 next week.

COTTON

Market Was Dull-National Ginners' Report Effects Temporary

Advance Special to The Teleg NEW YORK, Jan. 20 .- Bullish sentiment was increased over night by the report of the National Ginners' Association, showing that 176,000 bales were ginned from Jan. 1 to 15, making the total amount ginned up to that date 9,897,021 bales.

The foreign market was not influenced by the report, as evidenced by the fact that prices were about as due on our close of yesterday. The local market was only temporarily affected, opening prices being 2 to 6 points higher, but the advance brought on further liquidation and in the first hour prices eased off to a net decline of 2 to 3 points. The loss was recovered in the last hour of trading and the close was steady, with prices one point above yesterday's finals. The session was absolutely without feature and the trading very light, even for a Saturday market. Spots were quiet and unchanged at 12.25c for Middling, with sales of 25 bales.

Special to The Telegran NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 20 .- The cotton market opened quiet with prices at an advance of 3 to 4 points, which was attributed to the bullishness of the report from the National Ginners' Association.

The gain was only temporary, however, and the market weakened immediately after the call. At the end of the first hour near positions were selling at a decline of

5 to 6 points from the opening figures. Shorts covered at the decline, and prices worked back to the opening figures. The closing tone was steady. Spots were firm and unchanged at 11%c for

LIVESTOCK

Weekly Review of Market The supply of cattle on the Fort Worth market for the past week has been only moderate, hogs have established a new high record. Sheep have come in light, and horses and mules have been in good receipts. Totals for the week are 11,900 cattle, 1,600 calves, 22,150 hogs, 1,350 sheep and 460 horses and mules. Summed up, there has been a draggy and lower steer market, cow trading has been done on an uneven basis, calves have sold satisfactorily and stockers and feeders have sold like-

The steer supply opened for the week in a liberal fashion, some 25 carloads being on sale. A fair share of these were southern grassers, the best of these sold at $3.70, others at $3.35 to $3.50. This was followed the next day by the arrival of some 40 loads of beef cattle. Bidders opened with lower offers and the market declined 10 to 15 cents. Supplies lessened thereafter and the market for the remainder of the week stood about as it had closd on Tuesday, say a decline of 5 to 10 cents on medium fed steers

J. H. Hamilton, Chico

G. W. Knox, Jacksboro and light steers steady. Feeder steers have been in good supply, but packers have taken the major portion in lieu of the butcher stuff when the latter was scarce, at prices slightly better than feeder men were disposed to pay. Cows were not on the market in sufficient volume during the week to supply the packer demand, and prices have generally ruled strong to higher. though during the latter part of the week prices were somewhat spotted. Good cows have held firm, while medium cows are 5 to 10 cents lower, and canners about steady. Top cows have brought $3, good butcher cows $2.65 to $2.90, fair to good from $2.15 to $2.55; canners and cutters from $1.25 to $2.10 Bulls have sold more slowly than last week. Fat and heavy bulls are fully steady, with a disposition to shade values on light feeder and thin butcher bulls. Calves were in high favor the early part of the week, but later lost strength. Best light veals are still strong, the loss of 25 cents being on heavier and light and medium sorts. Hogs The record breaking run of hogs noted above was largely made up of light range and mast hogs, under 170 pounds. All this was cold blooded and half fat, and has sold at an increasing discount all the week, the close finding it from 60 to 80 cents lower. This has brought down the price of pigs in about the same ratio. On well conditioned corn fed hogs, and strong, closing for the week 5 to 10 cents higher. Most of the sheep on the market have come from local feed pens, and have sold lower. A bunch of high grade Shropshires sold during the week at $6, while the common fed

An average day's run of hogs, that is for Saturday, made a fair market. The run numbered 1,450. Good hogs were still required by the packers, and the few of these sold steady, tops being $5.50. Late yesterday some extra choice Oklahoma and territory hogs sold up to $5.52. A general decline on thin mast hogs and ill-conditioned rangers of light weight was noted. Pigs sold as low as $3.50. TRADE ITEMS

It is better to own one good sheep The present activity in the wool trade is an important factor in encouraging increased investments in breed-The Yellowstone Valley of Montana is destined to become a great center for the winter feeding of sheep. It is stated that fully 300,000 will be fed there this season.

If you begin with a scrub you will constantly be reminded that, in the end, you will produce nothing but a cheap grade of beef.

This season lambs are selling on the range at from $5 to $6.50 per 100 pounds. That is an unusually high price, so that the raiser will reap a big profit for his flocks. Sheep are selling from $2.50 to $3 per head, which is also high for them

What the Shippers Say B. E. Ware of Bell county, Texas, reports good conditions for the past year, and a good outlook for the coming

Moberly Bros., the hustling speculators of Ellis county, were here on Wednesday's market with four cars of cattle, which sold at pleasing prices. J. R. Pettit of Milam county was in with three cars of hogs. Mr. Pettit is about as wide-awake a visitor as we often have, and a good friend of the Lewis Green, a well known business man and live stock dealer of Hood county, was here for the first time in quite a while. He says there is very little stuff to come from his country until May or June.

J. M. Brown of Live Oak county was in with a car of hogs that were a surprise to the trade. He is interested in cattle and says that the outlook for the spring is very favorable, though he does not think south Texas will run anything like the number of cattle they shipped last year, M. H. Hagaman of Eastland county,

Texas, was in with a car of seed fed cows which were good. He has several hundred steers on feed for the spring market, and says there will be very little come from his country for three or four months. Mr. Williams of the firm of Bond & Williams of Milam county, accompanied their first shipment to the Fort Worth market and was pleasantly surprised at the price of their hogs. They are wide-awake dealers and we hope to see them visit the market often. Edgar Purington and George Harris, dry peas, 4c per lb.; two of Pecos county's well known cat- peas, 5c; split peas, 5%c; lentels, 6c. tlemen, were here this week with their third shipment of cattle this month. Feeding at Eastland

W. H. Green Jr., an habitual attendant on the market and a well informed member of the stockman's guild, is again in the city, and as is usual with him, is looking for something good in the yearling line to take home to Eastland county and fatten for the Fort

"I see that you are still looking for information relative to things of interest to stock raiser," said Mr. Green. "I have nothing much to add to my last report except that conditions are just as good with us as they have been, The calves and yearlings I took out with me are getting along well and will be on the market in the spring, as yearlings and twos, as fat as 'butter

"The country in which my ranch is situated is composed of post oak knobs, and mesquite flats, and that makes a pretty good combination for cattle and produces good winter conditions that tend to shelter the stock and give them a good range at the same time.

"I intend to always supply myself with forage and other feed stuffs in the future, and to accomplish this I have begun to put in one hundred acres that I shall plant to stock feed alone. I raised 1,000 bundles of sorghum to the acre, each bundle weighing twenty pounds, or five tons to the acre, which is a pretty good yield. "My father settled first in Parker county, eight miles from Weatherford, when I was 9 years old, and I learned to ride and hunt cattle in that country, and when there was only one store and a blacksmith's shop in the town. I used to come to Fort Worth with my father when he came for supplies and lumber, for everything had to be hauled in those days on wagons and there was no railroad in Fort Worth

"It is evident that the main industry for the future among country people will be stock farming and, handled properly, it will pay well. I brought along, to pay expenses, a car of bulls, which sold well, and as it is dinner time, come along and help me get rid of some of my surplus. "We stockmen are getting so rich that we can afford to dine commission men and newspapers reporters at times."

HILL COUNTY FEEDER J. S. Newton, from Hubbard City, Hill county, was on the market Thursday. He is a feeder and betteves in the cow business. "For," said he, "that is the way I make my money. Cattle are scarce with us now, and we can only depend on buying from the farmers an occasional yearling, calf or cow. Feed is high and the farmers down our way, do not raise as a whole anything but corn and cotton and very little stock farming is being done or is likely to be done. Why! Well, because most of them are tenants and don't have any say as to what shall be planted. The owners of the lands desire some crop that can be readily and speedily turned into cash and when they make their yearly contracts they have it specified that cotton and corn shall be the crops put in. It is hard on the tenant and on the cow men who desire to feed, but it can't be helped, as it is the result of a system. "If the farmers owned the land they would soon diversify and become stock farmers and thus more cattle would be raised, more fed, and more supplied for the markets and a better class of cattle raised. "However, it is hardly probable that they will get hold of the lands for some time, for at the price they are held at from $50 to $75 per acre they will hardly change hands from present owners to tenant farmers. "I was born in Cherokee county, Texas, fifty-five years ago, and my father is still living on the old homestead at the age of 84. He came to Texas from Tennessee sixty years ago, and is still hale and hearty and works his little farm for exercise, as he says, for he need not work. He can throw the plow harness on a horse, mount without help and ride to the field. He was a member of the legislature as long as he wanted to go, but did not like Austin, as he said it confined him too closely. My oldest brother is 61 and my mother only died five years ago. My brother raises fruit and hauls it to the packeries and delivers it himself. He is of the kind of men who made Texas and her early cowmen great, and there will soon be none on this side of the divide to tell of the old times.'

Eastland County Range J. P. Martin, a citizen of Eastland county, who patronizes the post office at the county seat of the same name, came in Thursday morning with cattle. "Well," he said, "I see that you have in tow one of my neighbors in the cow business, W. H. Green Jr., so I will let him tell you the story of the good condition of both range and cattle, and a few other good things ha may think of. He is well informed upon all matters relating to cattle, the range and stock farming, so I will leave the matter in his hands, indorsing everything he may say in advance, Fort Worth is a good town to come to, however." West Texas Conditions Sam C. Young, better known to his friends as plain "Sam," is in the city, but whether he came down with Dave

Kauffman as a delegate to the Harness

Makers' convention or not he would "Yes, I am still living in Abilene, and as it is the best part of the world, I shall continue to live there. I have sold all my ranch interests out there except 7,000 acres that lie in the corner of Fisher, Jones and Stonewall counties, which I still own and on which I am still playing cattle raiser, that is compared to the old-time cow

"There is no better land in Texas than where this body of land is located, and it is good to raise almost anything. Corn, sorghum, milo maize, Kaffir corn, alfalfa, peas, beans and all vine crops grow and yield to perfection. As for cotton, it raises better crops than the famous black waxy, and a man can more than double the number of acres with us than farther east, for while ours is an exceptionally good grass country, we don't grow to any great extent that product of eastern civilzation, the famous 'crab grass.' "I never saw grass better and now that the prairie dogs are about exterminated, it has one enemy less to prevent its spreading. Cattle are in excellent shape and will come into the spring with the new grass fat, unless something unforeseen happens. "The farms produce a wonderful lot of roughness, and the second crop always provides pastures for stockmen if they desire to purchase and run their cattle on them. Lands are very high, but are taken up readily by farmers, who are pouring in from south Texas and other parts. I think Fort Worth great, and I enjoy myself always when I am here.'

Sam Young is a brother-in-law of Hon. W. John Bryan, the member of the legislature from the Abilene

POST DISCUSSES STRIKE SOLUTION

President of Citizens' Association Tells of Plan

C. W. Post, manufacturer of Postum, president of the mammoth National Citizens' Industrial Association, commonly known as the Citizens' Alliance, author of the Post check currency bill, and originator of the fight in New York against Senators Platt and Depew; the builder of Postumville, a model town; a foremost student of the science of advertising and, finally, a model millionaire, is at the Hotel Worth. He and Mrs. Post, with his only daughter and her husband, are visiting the home of his early years for a few days, preparatory to taking a trip down into Mexico, where they will join the party of A. E. Stilwell, president of the Kansas City, Mexico and Orient railroad.

'Dallas has lately organized a Citizens' Alliance, and I suppose Fort Worth will when the people understand the advantages," said Mr. Post last night. 'I am not here on that business, but it may be said the object of the Citizens' Association is to protect the rights of the common people, the general public who are not organized, when cryanized capital and organized labor get to scrapping between themselves. For lack of such organization the people have suffered much in the past. When the great coal strike of 1902 was on, for instance, the miners wanted a raise, the operators didn't want to grant it, and the people wanted coal. While they were settling their differences the people suffered. They didn't get coal." Majority Must Rule

"Now statistics show that one man out of every forty belongs to a trust, either a labor trust or a capital trust. So the two men in eighty who are organized largely control the seventyeighty who are not. And the seventyeight are beginning to wake up to the fact that they are in the majority, and that they have every right to rule. "You see, recple often make the mistake of confounding this Citizens' Association with the National Manufacturers' Association, or the Employers' Association, which are managed in the interests of employers and not in the interest of work people. But the Citizens' Association is not an organ of either labor or capital, but seeks to control the two and make them behave. Both workmen and employers are members, as well as the professional men, the business men, the homebuilders, whose rights suffer interference when there is a strike or

"There were on Jan. 1 437 local asabout 7,000. That in New York is very latge, but is a conglomerate mixture of associations. The associations have various names.

In Case of Strike

'Now suppose a quarrel arise beween the employers and the employes out here at the packing houses and he stock yards, on which as a matter of fact Fort Worth depends so largely for its daily inflow of money. If the dispute should be long drawn out there would be a stoppage of money in circulation and the whole city would suf-

"If you had a Citizens' Association to express public opinion it would say, 'No lockout and no strike,' submit your ifferences to the industrial jury made of an equal number of workmen and employers, all Fort Worth people. The testimony before that jury to be taken under oath. The decision of that jury, with its reasons to be published in the local press so that all the people ould form an intelligent opinion of the case, in this way. Public opinion is guided aright. Public opinion eventually forces an adjustment of all questions at issue in this country. It is a power too great to be withstood by any organization, whether of capital or labor. For instance, in the great coal strike, it was popular opinion which finally forced a settlement of the differences between miners and opera-

The State Must Rule

"Now the fundamental principle at the bottom of all this is expressed in the constitution. 'There shall be no state within a state' is the idea. No power shall rise up within the state which shall control any part of the state. No organization, whether church, lodge, eapital or labor, shall have any power above the power of the state. republic.
"While capital and labor are fighting like cats with their tails tied together slung over a clothesilne, the people, like the clothes on the line, get the worst of it, and all sides are tired of the suffering and loss. The principle underlying all trusts is the same, whether they be trusts of labor of of capital. The combination of men is made to increase the income or profit to the members. A plumbers' union would be silly if it raised the price of plumbing only when a union plumber wanted plumbing done. It would be no gain to the trust or plumbers' union to get extra pay from its own members. That would be simply changing dollars from one member's pocket to another member's pocket and back again. "The only place the union or trust can gain extra money is from the for the purpose of meeting trust orunion. So with the beef or oil trust. It would be useless to raise the price of beef and only sell it to members of the beef trust. That's no gain. The gain must come from the increased cost collected from the people outside the trust. I repeat, the plan is the same both with capital trusts and unions or labor trusts, and it is for the people to say how far they care to allow these trusts to increase the cost of commodities and living. "The widespread movement among citizens all over the United States is for the purpose of meetin gtrust organizations of all kinds, by superior organizations of citizens to again take back into the hands of the common people the power to control the municipality and keep business and industries from being interfered with to the detriment of all classes and peo-

"Some of the large cities have not yet become sufficiently accustomed to the peaceful means of the Citizens' Association, but still persist in an occasional strike. But there has been a tremendous gain in peace, all along the line and a corresponding increase in the prosperity of both workmen and business in general." Among other strikes brought before Mr. Post, as president of the National Citizens' Association, was the great 'bread strike" in New York last autumn, when over 400 bake shops were closed and hundreds of thousands of poor were deprived of bread. His association secured for the workmen better hours, better conditions in the shops and the wages they wanted, but declined to support their demand for a "closed shop." The bakeries were opened and peace has since prevailed. Mr. Post has been both workman and employer. Trained for the army, he left off when a very young man and ensociations in the United States. Passing out of that business he came to Fort Worth late in the eighties and lived here about four years. Since his return to the north he has built up the largest prepared food business in the world, and is reported by the labor bureau of the state to pay the highest wages in Michigan.

HOME ENTERTAINMENTS

BY EDITH BROWN.

(Copyright, 1906, by Joseph B. Bowles) Jan. 19 brought the anniversary of the birth of one of America's most famous men of letters Edgar Allen Poe, a man whose short stories have placed him in the foremost rank of writers of this particular branch of fiction, but whose one poem, "The Raven," had he written nothing else. would have entitled him to an envied place among the world's poets. Poe was born 97 years ago in Boston and his name suggests such a variety of ideas for the American poet's luncheon series that it is difficult to select A Gossip Party "which one." For instance, his cerie expressions give good chance for a phantom party; the titles of his poems alone make possible the arrangement of an excellent series of living pictures, the poems to be read in illustration. Either of these form good material for a club entertainment, but clinging to the luncheon series there is an excellent opportunity for expansion along the entertainment idea.

The tables may be made very effective and odd. "The Bells" give an idea for one table; the poem to a "Valentine" another; his "Bridal Ballad" suggests all kinds of dainty ideas for the decoration of another table, and of course, the central table must be decorated in honor of the "Raven." Between courses these poems might be read in turn, the reader to be seated at the table thus honored. The placecard mottoes for each table should be selected from the poem after which the table is decorated. So soon after the holidays the bell place cards, large enough to serve as menu cards also, should be plentiful and with Valentine's day drawing so near small folders, the outside cover of which is a valentine, may be secured easily for the valentine table. "The Raven" table may have place cards of white on which a raven is painted or ravens may be cut from black cardboard and the menu written in white ink there-

These club luncheons naturally must vary in elaborateness of service and decoration according to the community in which they are served. All lunchlon-or bouillon may serve as the second course, following oysters on the for this particular luncheon serve a and choose for the descriptive line, "A green isle in the sea," from the poem splendid at this time of the year-take this from "A Dream Within a Dream" Mushrootns are a dainty which the the story has passed, are read. hothouses must furnish at this time of the forest and the wild." ad-"Forms we can't discover," from "Fairland." and for the dessert and coffee-"Is but a dream within a" dream" from the poem of the same

The guests should be given the old, but interesting request to wear some token of Poe-a small raven, a goldbug, for his story of that name (although that takes it out of the realm of poetry), a valentine, a group of tiny bells, a picture of Venice for "The City in the Sea," a picture of the Coliseum for his poem to this relic of Roman power, a star for his "Evening Star," and so on down the list.

According to all tradition the invitations to a "gossip party" will make the women smile and the men frown, but each individual transcribes tradition to suit himself, and this special tradition may be "turned 'round" in many instances. However, a gossip party may be made very amusing and interesting. In the first place the novelties which the factories produce these days make any kind of a party possible. This holiday season seemed to have put forth more than the usual number of amusing oddities, and the small and complete telephones are not the least among these smile-producing knickknacks. The candy box 'phones are not new, but they may be made useful, but the small desk 'phones are a prodact of the year, and they make the cleverest of souvenirs. The centerpiece for a gossip luncheon may be a doll dressed as Dame Grundy, seated at a telephone, the receiver at her ear and an expression of delight on her face. Tiny spool wire should be arranged around the table, small candy sticks being used for telephone poles. At each place a 'phone of some kind should serve as a place card and the wires all lead to Dame Grundy's tele-

Two contests may follow the luncheon. The hostess may arrange these blanks, one for each guest:

"Jane Jones told me that Susan Brown said ----that Will Thompson told her that ----Eben Brown told him ----," and so on, indefieons, however, must open with bouil- nitely. The blank spaces should be filled in and the old "story" idea may be employed. The one to whom the half-shell or fruit. For the opening sheet of paper is first given should write the thing that Jane Jones told, clear bouillon sprinkled with parsley and doubling the story down and out of sight, passes it on to the right-hand neighbor, who fills in the next blank "To One in Paradise." CONDITIONS IN TEXAS

Farmer and Stock Grower, Philip H. Hale discusses the evolution of the cattle industry of Texas, from 1880 to 1905. Mr. Hale was in Texas in the late '70s and remained here until 1889. and during that time was in one posttion or another closely associated with the cattle-raising interests. For a large part of that time he was editor of the Texas Live Stock Journal. In the early '80s, when the cattle drive was a big thing, he found that speculative conditions governed the trade, and the cattle raiser had so many persons to deal with before he reached a market that there was no telling what would be the fate of a bunch of steers started marketward. Tracing the "I have now come to the time when I am able to give some personal testi-movement of change, Mr. Hale says: mony as to what was going on. It was in the year 1880 when the Texas and Pacific railway terminus was at Fort Worth. The rebate system was yet forcing shipments in the hands of favored firms. At Fort Worth, Robert Strahorn & Co., Wm. Young & Co., Hunter, Evans & Co., were the principal commission firms holding the rebates. Of the speculators we remember A. S. Nicholson, J. D. Beauchamp, C. T. Herring and J. B. Wilson of Texas. and Haas Bros. of Chicago. There were others whom we have forgotten. Then there happened to also be a set of speculating drovers who went as far west as the Concho river to buy cattle from the cattle raisers. The cattle were speculated to death. The cattle raiser sold them to a passing speculator took his profit at the shipping point if he could find anyone to buy. They were bought by a speculator in St. Louis and shipped to Chicago. If they were good enough for New York or Boston, a speculator had another whack at them. We did not follow any shipments beyond Chicago and few were good enough to go to New York. Chicago, St. Louis and Kansas City were beginning to put the cattle into cans and coolers and that shut out the speculator. "From the incidents of this period we cannot get away from the idea that it was the canneries which first made Chicago famous and first enabled a Texas stockman to find a market for the cattle he did not have grass to fatten. In those days it required $7 per head to ship and sell a Texas steer. Those who are now shipping to the Fort Worth market can figure what they are saving since Swift and Armour gave them a home market. In that year the writer first met S. B. Burnett, who recently entertained the President, and who is very wealthy from raising grass cattle: Mr. Winfield Scott, famous as one Texas stockman who says he lost neither sleep nor money by dealing with the packers, and J. B. Wilson, the great ploneer If you are too poor to be a Liner | Texas cattle feeder who has made the packers pay higher prices for Texas paying for the best natives. Trace the fortunes of these three millionaires and

> "We are obliged to go back to Texas in regard to these things because in the year 1880 Chicago received only 49,000 cattle from the western ranges. "On July 3, 1895, the governor of Texas sent a dispatch to the United States secretary of the interior, saying: 'There are now on the border about 50,000 cattle which are on their way to the northern ranges from Texas and federal officers have notified the owners that they cannot pass along stacle in the way or Texas commerce, to sacrifice his independence and his this, added for the purpose of getting sense of honor. In a late number of the National the cattle at nominal figures, will prove disastrous in the extreme. That was the last of the cattle trail. The packers now furnishing a home market for Texas cattle have saved southern Texas hundreds of thousands of dollars a year. The trail is actually forgotten in the better conditions which now exist.

HAVE CHANGED

Comparing the state of affairs with those existing now, Mr. Hale says: "I have seen every phase of the cattle market. Have seen prices paid which seemed reasonable; have seen cattle, hogs and sheep sell at prices below the cost of production: have seen the prices advance and advance until high and beyond all reason, and I could not have seen these changes if any man or set of men could arbitrarily set the prices. I never had any reason to arrive at a false conclusion and I studied the subject day after day, with quotations and changes of all markets before me, and I will say that I have more confidence in regard to live stock values from the standpoint of the producer than in any other class of product the farmer can raise. expect in this to receive the support of the educated, intelligent and experienced cattle raisers, from those who are best able to appreciate what situation they would be in without markets supported by the great packers.

"Entering the St. Louis live stock market in February, 1900, I was in the cattle yard for twelve years, doing reportorial work for the paper which I wned. I was in the confidence of every buyer and seller upon the market and retained that confidence to the end. I became acquainted with every influence having the slightest bearing upon the market. It was and is a free and open market. Any man who had money to buy and intelligence to back his money was at no disadvantage in buying so long as he was in the market. You cannot buy cattle in a live stock market without having the funds to pay for them. One man does not have any advantage over another. If any advantage is shown in the market it was by the commission men to small buyers. They would try to form combinations in order to hold three or four loads of cattle for buyers who could only buy one load each. I never knew a commission man to fail to squeeze the last cent out of a load of cattle in the interest of his client, and it was also the usual thing for the buyer to exercise his constitutional right to buy cattle as cheap as he could. The cattle yard is not a public auction, but it takes the best bid to buy cattle all the same."

Indian fighter of fame, and while but a mere youth he captured, killed and scalped five Indian warriors. For this daring feat he was promoted by Captain Elliott to the high honor of chief of scouts, which title the captain defended with many laurels for 31 years. He conducted and defended the first train of emigrants across the plains of the wild and woolly west to the gold fields of California and rescued the two Gordon girls from the redskins and killed their captors. He also captured Captain Jack, the noted Modoc chief, which was one of his most daring and thrilling feats.

Captain Drannan was commissioned by the managers of the St. Louis World's Fair to gather up the various tribes of Indians, as he is perhaps more familiar with the customs of the wild Indians than any man now He writes of the wonderful effects of Dr. Thurmond's Catarrh Cure as follows:

Lewiston, Idaho, April 19, 1903.

Dr. W. J. Thurmond, Dallas, Texas: Dear Sir.-I have been a sufferer from Catarrh since 1873. I contracted the disease during the Modoc war in that foggy climate of the Lovan I have tried almost all known remedies without any permanent relief.

Your Catarrh Cure was recommend d to me and I decided to try it. although I had no faith in it. Up to the time I commenced using your remedy I had to use a handkerchief constantly during the night, many nights sleep being impossible. I have not used one bottle of your Catarrh Cure yet, and am not troubled at night at all, and but little in the daytime. I think your Catarrh Cure is the greatest blessing and friend to the peo-

RECORD MARCH PLANNED

United States Regular Troops Wil Eclipse Napoleon's Retreat Bu Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Ill., Jan. 20.-Plans for the most remarkable march ever undertaken by an organized military force, and which will put two batteries of field artillery of Fort Sheridan to endurance at 50 per cent greater than that encountered by the armies of Napoleon when the French emperor led the powers of France to Moscow were announced today.

The artillerymen, under Captain L. G. Berry, will march to Fort Myer, Va., near Washington, and return, a distance of 1,500 miles. Seven months will be taken to complete the trip, counting the time spent for target prac-

The idea follows the suggestion made by President Roosevelt as a means of conditioning the troops for long and arduous drills. Troops all over the United States, it is said, within two years will be put on long marches. Napoleon, on his march to Moscow, led his troops 1,000 miles, which remained as a record until the Sixth United States battetry traveled from Fort Riley, Kan., to San Antonio, Texas, a distance of 1,100 miles.

THE TELEGRAM AND WEST TEXAS)

ANY complimentary letters and words of commendation have come to The Tele-IVI gram from readers in and out of the city who have been reading the letters now being printed daily in The Telegram from the staff correspondent, A. W. Grant, who is touring West Texas in behalf of the paper. Few people really realize the vast possibilities of the empire that lies to the west of Fort Worth, and it is with the hope of bringing that country nearer to Fort Worth through a little knowledge of the wants, the hopes and the aspirations of the people who populate it, these letters are being written. In Saturday's Telegram the story of the great salt mines at Colorado, Texas, was told in an interesting and breezy way. In The Sunday Telegram there is printed a four-column intallment of information concerning the country in and about Big Springs and Colorado City, and on the first page of this morning's paper is to be found a story of the new Orient railroad, now running, a fact which is no doubt new to many Telegram readers. Articles of this same character will be continued throughout the next two or three weeks.

They have heretofore fixed the computing date for ages at Jan. 1. but experience has shown that this date has a decided tendency to force exhibitors to exhibit their calves at too early an age and also entailed the expense of bringing along numerous nurse cows, to the annoyance of all concerned. Prominent Official Under Castro Says He Will Battle

By Cable to The Telegram CARACAS, Venezuela, Jan. 20.-The public that the French squadron had sailed for Venezuelan waters under sealed orders, and may appear at any moment at Puerto Cabello.

It is believed an attack upon one of the two ports is about to take place, and great military preparations are being made to receive the hostile French vessels with energy. A prominent government official.

holding a responsible position under Castro, said today that the government has decided to maintain its present attitude, no matter what the outcome "We have not given France a single reason to justify an attack upon us." he declared. "The action taken by Venezuela in the matter of the French Cable Company is just and strictly within the laws of this republic. It seems, however, that the laws of a small country are not to be respected by the pow-"We have been bullied for a long time, and have decided to maintain our rights, no matter at what cost. If it is war that France wants, war she will "The European republic will find out that we of today are not the Venezuela of some years ago. We have not got a strong army, it is true, but we certainly have a patriotic and united people ready to fight for tthe country. Right is ours, besides, and it is useless to fight against a people that defend a just cause."

GRAVE VIEW AT WASHINGTON State Department Fears Armed Trouble

May Result By Associated Press. WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 30 .-While the state department is without any additional advice on the Venezuelan situation, a grave view is taken here as to the danger of war between France and President Castro's government, and Secretary of State Root and M. Jusserand, the French ambassador, have held conferences. Unless Castro backs down, it is difficult to see how France can avoid making a naval demonstration against Venezuela. It is hoped, however, that Castro, as he has done in the past when brought to bay, will find a way of staying off an actually hostile movement.

Will Demand Apology

M. Taigny's treatment is expected.

An early demand for an apology for

Castro may refuse and then France will have nothing left but to strike a blow with her warships. The ports might be blockaded or a more drastic step taken and the custom houses seized. In military circles it is believed that Castro cannot be brought to terms without the employment of troops in case he determines to carry the matter to the point of armed collision Naval experts say that the French force in Venezuelan waters will be able to close the ports, hold the custom bouses and batter the fortifications in La Guayra and other ports to pieces. No Defenses at La Guayra

There has been much talk of the defenses at La Guavra, but officials who have been there declare that none of Castro's seacoast defenses are worth serious consideration. They are not up-to-date, and while there are a few modern guns, the Venezuelans cannot serve them. Castro, however, has been importing arms for his troops, and in the mountainous interior would make a stiff fight and might greatly embarrass the French. Communication with Caracas is difficult, as Castro has closed the cable offices. This hampers the state department in keeping in touch with Minister Russell. United States Keeps Out The French fleet near the Venezuelan coast numbers four vessels-three cruisers and a training ship-and these will be reinforced by two more cruisers. This country has plenty of vessels in West Indian waters, and the Denver has been sent on a special mission, supposedly to keep an eye on things in Venezuelan waters. It is not expected that the United States will be involved, in any event, as France will not strike without first consulting the state de-

Jewel P. Lightfoot of the department, known as the "trust buster, was very much interested at times. It is known that he has been for some time looking for something tangible that would aid him in securing evidence looking to the filing of suits against a so-called "lumber trust," that is said to now exist in the state. He was asked today if he discovered anything during the course of the hearing that would be of aid to him or the department in going after the lumber companies, in the way of antitrust suits.

He admitted that while he had been a patient listener at the hearing, that at several stages he could have propounded some questions that might have developed some startling situations, he purposely refrained from doing so, as he did not think it proper for the department to muddle the waters of a pure rate hearing.

Will Be Big Suits He said that when the department gets some of the work off its hands, that is now requiring all of its at tention, that he will make an investigation of the lumber business in the state, and if he can uncover what he thinks he can, there will be some pretty big suits instituted by the Found the Octopus

It is well known that the people of the state are constantly sending in letters to the department telling it of a lumber trust, but never furnish it with anything on which to base a suit An investigation is to be made. Just how thoroughly it will be is not known, but it can be safely stated that every effort will be made to find the "octopus." GREENE AND GAYNOR TRIAL

Will Be Given Moody's Job. The Latter Retires

By Associated Press. WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 20 .- The President stated today that within the next few months Secretary Bonaparte will be transferred to the office of attorney General, in place of Mr. Moody, who will retire to private life.

No definite selection of a successor in the navy department has been made, but it is regarded as almost certain that the position will be offered to Mr. Truman H. Newberry, assistant secretary of the navy. Secretary Bonaparte, though a lawyer of high standing, has not been considered a successful secretary of the navy, and it is said he realized his shortcomings as well as did the President. He is considered erratic and too much given to disregard the advice of those whose long years of service give them the right to have opinions of great weight. His recommendations to congress concerning plans for the construction radically different from the board, as well as so divergent from the ideas of the President, that it is now said he will retire.

Work of Railroad in Develop ing Wonderful West Texas

CITIES SPRINGING UF

Cattle Counties Are Now Be coming Populated With

Actual Settlers SWEETWATER, Texas, Jan. 20 .-There are probably many people of Fort Worth who are better informed regarding the progress of the revolutionary movement among the peasants of the Russian steppes, than about the progress of building through one of the richest sections of their own state, a railroad system which will like the Pacific ocean with the central west and southwest and open up a new route from the United States to its eastern (or western) possessions in the Philippine group. Most readers of The Telegram are familiar with the Kansas City, Mexico and Orient project, a railroad to rui almost by an air line from Kansai City to the Mexican coast of the Pacific ocean, a distance of some 1,60(miles, or almost twice the length o' the Texas and Pacific from New Orleans to El Paso, but very few are acquainted with the work the Orient if now doing in developing and settling west Texas, in a territory only 20 miles from Fort Worth. It was for the purpose of finding ou about this work that a trip was made over the Orient from Sweetwater nortl to Sagerton, its present termipus ii Texas. From Sweetwater to Sagerton is a little over sixty miles, and the first trains ran into Sagerton las Being Built to Stay

At the outset it may be stated that the Orient is being built in Texas, no only as if it were meant to stay, but with the evident future plan of running big trains and running them rap. idly over the system. The present road from Sweetwater to Sagerton it smoother than that of dozens of Texas Worth. The grade is comparatively level, a solid roadbed has been prepared, sleepers have been laid close together, and on all new construction seventy-pound steel rails have been laid. For the first twenty-one miles out of Sweetwater the track is laid with sixty-pound rails because the railroad could not get heavier material at the time. These lighter rails are now being relaid with the heavier steel and the lighter material being used for switches. It may interest railroad men to know that the sharpest curve or the Orient between Wichita, Kan., and Sweetwater is only 4 degrees, and it lies in Jones county, between Hamlin and Sagerton. The switches used are of the latest and most improved pattern, and it is expected, as soon as the line becomes long enough, to install the latest block signal system yet devised. The Orient is now using its own rolling stock. It has two engines in use on the division from Sweetwater and a third is on Finest of Equipment Instead of a makeshift combination coach, such as might be expected on a new road, passengers have the use of one of the latest patterns in coach building, finished in quarter-sawed oak and dark green plush. It is hard," after a ride in this coach over the division, to convince a traveler the last twenty miles of his journey was made oyer a track in use less than ten days, Nick J. O'Brien, one of the Orient vice presidents, and a former Union Pacific man, is at the front in Sweetwater, making things move. That they are moving is evidenced by the fact that if even the present train schedule is maintained the railroad commission will have no occasion to take a hand n behalf of the traveling public, as to the real work of the Orient in this section of the state, for while it is building a railroad, it is building towns and settlements as well. Through Cattle Regions Orient passes through all or parts of Nolan, Fisher. Jones, Stonewall and

GOOD SCORES IN

The golf tournament on the Country Club links Saturday afternoon resulted in a victory for E. M. Schenecker, who completed the double round in 104 strokes, which, with his handicap of ten strokes, gave him a net of ninety-four strokes. The first prize for the tournament was the gold scarf pin presented by Captain Johnson of Great Barrington, Mass. The second prize, ten golf balls, was won by Harry Wynne, who made the round in the same number of strokes but his handicap was two less. The lowest net score was made by W. C. Humble. who played from scratch, making the eighteen holes on ninety-seven strokes, the only score of less than 100. The scores of the tournament were as fol-Handi-Stroke. cap. Net.

TRAINS TO STOP ON NORTH SIDE

Matter May Be Appealed to Commission

The effort of North Fort Worth to secure a postoffice has brought to light an unsettled question, that of having the passenger trains stop at a north side station. This has been unsettled and neglected until recently the citizens have again taken it up and are determined to have train service, even though they have to appeal to the railroad commission.

The Rock Island, Frisco, Cotton Belt and other roads run trains through North Fort Worth and at least one of them has promised to give the service asked. North Fort Worth has a station at Central avenue, three blocks east of Main street. This is a central location near the business portion of the city and yet convenient for pas-ness, but a symptom. It is a symptom the voluntary nerves that enable you to walk and talk and act-but the AUTO-MATIC STOMACH NERVES over which ir mind has no control.

I have not room here to explain how these tender, tiny derves control and operate the stomach. How worry breaks them down and causes indigestion. How misuse wears them out and eauses dys pepsia. How neglect may bring on kidney, heart and other troubles through sympathy. I have not room to explain how these nerves may be reached and strengthened and vitalized and made stronger by a remedy I spent years in perfecting-now known by physicians and Druggists everywhere as Dr. Shoop's Retorative (Tablets or Liquid). I have not room to explain how this remedy, by removing the cause usually puts a certain end to indigestion, belching, heartburn, these things are fully explained in the book I will send you free when you write. Do not fail to send for the book. It tells how the solar plexus governs digestion and a hundred other things every one ought to know-for all of us, at some time or other have indigestion. With the book I will send free my "Health Token" -an intended passport to good health.

The Clear and Double Mouna few creeks, are the only streams. There are a few stretches of broken country, but they extend for only short distances. North of Hamlin, in Jones, Stonewall and Haskell counties, there is a long stretch of level plain and the same character of land surrounds Sagerton. The appearance of the country in the vicinity of the last named place much resembles that near Channing, on the edge of the North Plains.

Land Sells From $12 to $20 an Acre

The country is just opening up as a farming region. Cotton, thus far, has been the leading and most profitable crop. What the total crop will be is hard to estimate, as scores of fields are yet unpicked, while many others have been gone through only the first time. Labor is scarce, and much of the cotton will remain unpicked for several weeks. It is estimated that Haskell county alone will produce nearly 8,000 bales. Probably 6,000 bales have been ginned in the county already. At Mc-Cauley, in Fisher county, is one of the most modernly equipped gins in the state. It has a capacity of fifty bales a day, and is said to have ginned more than 20,000 bales this season. Cotton this year did well. The weather was rainy during the growing period, and much of the plant went to stalk. Ordinarily the stalks in this section are short, but this season they attained unusual size. The staple is long, and practically all, it is believed.

season to clear the entire cost of the land on which it was raised. Other crops which have been raised successfully are corn, milo maize, Kaffir corn, sorghum, millet and wheat. Opinions as to the possibility of the region as a wheat country vary. There is no doubt about the ability to produce the Kaffir corn, milo maize, millet and cotton. G. W. Tanner, a farmer near Sagerton, raised 5,000 "bundles" of millet on ten acres. The average price of millet a bundle has been from 21/2 cents to 5 cent. An average crop for being paid range from 10.50c upwards.

THE VALUE OF CHARCOAL

Few People Know How Useful It Is In

Preserving Health and Beauty

Nearly everybody knows that charcoal is the safest and most efficient disinfectant and purifier in nature, but few realtre its value when taken into the human system for the same cleansing purpose Charcoal sweetens the breath after smoking, drinking or after eating onions and other odorous vegetables. Charcoal effectually clears and improves the complexion, it whitens the teeth and further acts as a natural and eminently safe cathartic

It absorbs the injurious gases which cellect in the stomach and bowels it disinfects the mouth and throat from the poison of catarrh.

All druggists sell charcoal in one form or another, but probably the best charcoal and the most for the money is in Swart's Charcoal Lozenges; they are composed of the finest powdered Willow charcoal, and other harmless antiseptics n tablet form or rather in the form of lorge, pleasant tasting lozenges, the charbeing mixed with honey.

The daily use of these lozenges will soon tell in a much improved condition of the general health, better complexion. ath and purer blood and the beauty of it is, that no possble harm can result from their continued use, but on

have been dry years, and they have had the effect of dry years produced in other parts of Texas. A farmer who has lived in Stonewall county sixteen years (and who does not have any land for sale) says that in that time the nearest his crop came to a failure was in 1896. He managed to get seven bales that a certain set of nerves is ailing. Not | of cotton from forty-five acres. For the sixteen years he estimates the average yield of cotton at one-third bale per acre. Wheat has run as high as forty bushels per acre, but more often 15 to Oats have not done especially well, although the grain weighed out

But while water for domestic purposes, the settlers says, is in most places not easy to secure, sufficient moisture to produce crops is never lacking. Therefore Insomnia, nervousness, dyspepsia. All of they are staying and likewise prosper-It may be stated that no attempt has yet been made to drill deeply for water, and whether or not a good flow of water free from minerals could be obtained at a depth of 200 feet or more is still unknown. The country is too young yet for experiments in artesian

So much, then for the railroad and the country it passes through. Here is what the Orient is doing for it: It is taking in settlers from Eastern and Central Texas on every train; hauling in household goods, implements and lumber as rapidly as equipment can supply the demand; hauling out cotton for shipment to all markets reached by roads running from Fort Worth; advertising the region, its literature being sent all through the north and midwest; offering special inducements omeseekers in the way of rates nd helping them find the kind of land suited to their needs; opening town sites all along the way and selling lots at a great rate. In its immigration and settlement work the Orient is now doing along its sixty miles of track he same kind of development the Fort Worth and Denver City, the Frisco and other roads leading from Fort Worth are doing in other sections of the state. Only last week the Orient opened a land and immigration office in Fort Worth and established an agent there whose duty it is to look after homeseekers coming into the Panther City and directing their attention to this

Towns Opened by Barbecue There are four growing towns aleady reached by the Orient. Sylvester, n Fisher county, is twenty-one miles from Sweetwater. It was opened by a big barbecue July 4, 1905. Sylvester has a new two-room depot, a cotton gin in course of erection, a store, lumber yard, hotel and several dwellings.

It is growing in every direction. There are probably > three hundred to four hundred residents at present and new buildings, store and residence, are being built as fast as lumber can be secured. A large part of the dwellings are two stories in height. At McCauley there is a gin which takes care, as has been stated, of fifty bales a day. The cotton crop in the vicinity this year was large. There is a lumber yard, several stores, a restaurant, a postoffice and a public school. The postoffice at the present time is the mail limit north of Sweetwater on the Orient. It is expected mail service will soon be extended to Sagerton. Railroad engineers are planning a large lake to furnish McCauley's water supply. Between McCauley and Hamlin there is a long stretch of black land, such as would please a Central Texas farmer. Much of it is in cultivation and the harvested crops make a good showing. Hamlin is in Jones county. It has a lake which supplies the railroad with water. It has a cotton gin, a few stores, and several dwellings. Hamlin has the only stock yards thus far built on the Orient. Sagerton, in Haskell county, is the present northern terminus of the Orient. It was opened only last week, yet there is a hotel, three lumber yards, several homes, and stores. Sagerton was named for W. M. Sager, a well known Stonewall county ranchman who still owns a large tract running up to the edge of the townsite. On his farms this year Mr. Sager raised good crops of Indian corn, some of which averaged nearly 35 bushels per acre. Sagerton is on the main stage road between Stamford and Aspermont and expects to get a share of trade from the regions tributary to both. Its townsite is usually level and is about a mile and a half from the ford in the Double mountain fork of the Brazes. To the north of Sagerton lies Rule also in Haskell county. Regular trains have not yet reached Rule but are expected to do so by the time President Stilwell of the Orient reaches this division, Jan. 24, on an inspection trip. By that time it is also expected a regular passenger schedule will be established with an extra engine to care for the freight. At present mixed trains leave Sweetwater for Sagerton at 8 a. m., arrive there at noon, leave for Sweetwater at 1:40 p. m. and arrive in the

City Park Property Right Is Contested

The North Fort Worth Townsite Company has filed suit against the city of North Fort Worth for tres-Townsite company from a ten-acre tract of land which the city of North Fort Worth claims.

The petition in the case recites that the plaintiff Townsite company was and is the owner of over ten acres of land in the corporate limits of North Fort Worth, a part of the J. Banch survey; that heretofore the defendant ejected the plaintiff from the land in violation of plaintiff's rights and has asserted ownership ever since. Plaintiff claims that if defendant ever had any claim to the land in question such claim is now barred by the statute of limitation, plaintiff having been in undisputed possession of the property ten years prior to defendant's setting up its claim, and that they had paid taxes for at least five years on the same. The property in question is generally known as city park and extends west from Ellis avenue between Fourteenth and Twentieth streets.

No Verdict Reached The jury in the case of the state of Texas against William Griswold and others, charged with swindling in connection with employment agency operations, failed to reach a verdict. The foreman stated to Judge Robert H. Milam of the county court at noon Saturday that the jury could not agree and asked to be discharged, but Judge Milam refused to release them and the six men went back into the jury room and remained there until after o'clock Saturday afternoon deliberating on the case and then could not agree. They were discharged.

Cocke County Election Is Involved in Case

Justice Stephens' opinion is a lengthy one and and closely reviews the case in point. It will be remembered that the contention of the local optionists, who were defeated, was that a sufficient number of voters were "bribed" by the payment of their poll taxes out of a fund raised by the anti-prohibitionists and by unlimited cigars and whisky, to throw the election against the local optionists by a majority of forty votes.

"The question to be decided," says the decision, "is, 'Has the court trying a contested election case the power to set aside a local option election for bribery where a sufficient number of bribed votes have been cast to affect the results?' This question, we think, should receive an affirmative answer. Article 3397 of our revised statutes empowers any court of competent jurisdiction (which is now the district court) to adjudge a local option election to be void when it is made to "appear from the evidence that the election was illegally or fraudulently conducted." We cannot well conceive of a clearer case of illegality and fraud in the holding of an election than one in which a fair expression of the will of the majority is defeated by ocnspiracy and bribery."

In conclusion Justice Stephens says: "A pure and untrammeled ballot is of far more importance to the people of Texas than the success or failure of any proposed local measure, howaver good or bad it may be. Because the court erred in sustaining the general demurrer the judgment is reversed and the cause remanded for a Great Natures Do Not Despair at Disappointment - They Look for Something Else to Do.

The broad-gauged man of today does not get blue just because things don't always come his way unless there is something the matter with him. If he "falls down" on one proposition he immediately starts to look up another. He always looks forward and keeps on hustling. A man with his health and faculties has plenty of opportunities and the man who gives up or even feels like it has either a small nature or some physical weak-

Dyspepsia certainly puts the best of men out of condition for work of any kind. You cannot blame the dyspeptic for getting blue. The very nature of his disease is most depressing and calculated to deprive him of ambition, energy and hope. There is hope for him, however, certain and sure.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are rec ognized throughout the length and breadth of the land as the one cure that's safe and sure. Their unbounded popularity-resulting from the thousands and thousands of cures they have effected, prove beyond the shadow of a doubt their greatness as a Wherein lies their greatness: In the very fact that they are Nature's own simple remedy. They do the exact work in exactly the same way that the digestive fluids of the stomach do, because they are composed of exactly the same elements and possess the same properties. They relieve the weak and worn out stomach of its burden of digestion and permit it without let or hindrance to rest and grow sound and well. The stomach will get well quick enough in its own natural way if it is let alone. That it what Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets do. They not only alone themselves, but make the food taken into the stomach do the same.

You can satisfy yourself of the truth of this statement by putting the food you would eat into a glass jar with sufficient water and one of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. The process of digestion will be taken up and carried out just as the gastric juice and other digestive fluids would do it. Their action is natural and they cause no disturbance in the digestive organs. In fact, you forget you have a stomachwhen they begin to do their work, so mild and natural is the operation. was put upon the various stations in the face of the prospective deficiency in the bureau's accounts. The necessity for curtailing expenditures had already been recognized and one of the methods adopted was shifting the cost of meat labels onto the packing houses. The packers during 1905 undertook a new enterprise which may result in some good for all concerned. O. E. Dyson, for many years the inspector in charge of the work of the bureau of animal industry in Chicago, was employed at a salary much larger than he was receiving or could hope to receive from the government, to watch the inspection by the government employes at the packing houses. It is understood that Armour, Swift, Morris and the National employ him jointly, and when he was in Kansas City Mr. Dyson visited all these plants. Richard Abbott, a few years ago one of the experts of the bureau of animal industry, is employed by Cudahy. As far as their operations have been observed, and as far as any information has been secured, their whole duty lies in seeing what the government in-

When Mr. Dyson left the government service the report was circulated that the packers would try to interfere with and would plan to fight the government inspection, in an effort to avoid the condemnation of part of the product now lost. This prospect is denied by the packers and is not borne out by any developments. The experts are, of course, familiar with the requirements of the government as to condemnations and they have simply attempted to see that the inspectors do not exceed their authority. They have started out along the line of working in harmony with and assisting the government.

This new feature of the process by which unwholesome foods are kept from public consumption is a most commendable and hopeful one. In the packing business, as well as in all other lines, there are doubtless a few who palm off whatever they can upon the gullible public. The government aims to hold them in check and is fairly successful. The larger packers have in the main been very conscintious about selling meats which would be likely to injure. "I wouldn't eat it myself and this plant won't give it to anybody else to eat," is the statement made frequently by the manager of one of the big plants. While the packers are in this frame of mind the government can do no better than to receive their suggestions and work in harmony with their agents. The government agents have been remarkably efficient and active, but they have viewed the subject of meat supply from the simple standpoint of what they should throw out. Now specialists viewpoint of what might be included. The result should be valuable investigations of diseases and conditions of animals and foods which will benefit not only the industry, but the public. Kansas City Drovers' Telegram.

In the rush of sale times you would naturally think that we have but little time for details, but every garment passes a rigid inspection before it is included in the selling. That is part of our service-safeguarding your interests. More interesting than other sales of this kind, because the popular priced sorts are cheap only in price. More important than former sales because the quantities are greater and the values are even more extraordinary than in any previous trimmed neatly and carefully in such good taste that they all remind one at once of garments

FITZ' MANAGER IN FORT WORTH

Leon Friedman Here on Visit to Home

Leon Friedman, manager for Robert Fitzsimmons, pugilist, arrived in Fort Worth Saturday evening to visit mother, Mrs. A. Friedman, 617 East

After expressing himself as delighted to be in Fort Worth again, after an absence of two years, except for short periodical visits, Mr. Friedman said: "I left Mr. and Mrs. Fitzsimmons in New York, bidding them good-bye

I am the only person who has any suit and I cannot tell you anything of that. "I came home to rest for a couple of months and would rather, much rather, not be interviewed about any of Fitzsimmons' affairs.

"But I am willing to talk about Fort Worth. I am glad to be home again. I've been away, you know, for about two years now and have only been

"Yes, I presume the Fitzsimmons family will be at their Long Island place this summer. They are usually there during the hot weather. Not knowing exactly as to their plans, I can't say just what their intentions are. I guess I can't talk about them." Mr. Friedman, as indicated in his words, is at home with his mother for a rest of two months. He expects to spend the time quietly and is assured that the respite from constant work will greatly benefit him.

CAVENDER WILL CAPTAIN TEAM

Strong Left Fielder to Lead Panthers

The line-up of the Fort Worth baseball team for the next season has thus far been arranged is as follows: Mike Irvin, catcher; Tom Huddleston, Ed Wicker, Leo Walsh and O. P. Slack, pitchers: Walter Salm, first base; George Whiteman, second base; Harry Clayton, shortstop; Dread Cavender, left field; Owen Wilson, right field. It is also probable that Walter Beles, who was with the Fort Worth feam last year, will be back again and probably will play third base. Dread Cavender, who plays left field, will be captain of the team. Nearly all of the above are well known in Fort Worth, most of them having played with the pennant winning team last year. There are, however, some new men among them. O. P. Slack, who will be one of the pitchers, was with the Coalgate, I. T., team last season, and he has a record that causes him to be quite an addition to the local

Walter Salm, who will play first base next season, played with Temple and Corsicana last season, and he also did some good work, which attracted attention and favorable comment. George Whiteman, who will hold down second base for Fort Worth next season, was formerly with the Pine Bluff, Ark., team, which is a member of the Cotton State League, including Arkansas, Mississippi and Louisiana.

It is the intention to have the entire number requisite for the season signed by Feb. 15, so that other clubs will not have picked over the best before Fort Worth gets her choice. COTTON HAULED SHOWS DECREASE

Yield Along Rio Grande Less by 10 Per Cent

The Frisco as not completed and made public its figures regarding the amount of cotton handled during the past season and the preceding one, but one of their officials roughly estimates that the movement of cotton along the line of the Fort Worth and Rio Grande for the season now drawing to a close will be about 10 per cent less than that of the preceding season. The cotton in the territory traversed by the Frisco has not suffered as much as in many sections of the state, but enough is known now of the movement of the season to show that it will fall far short of last year.

The annual budget of the Fort Worth and Denver for the expenditures during the year 1906, has been compiled and placed in the hands of the higher officials of the company. Just what is embraced in this budget will not be made known until after it has been passed upon, but it is understood that the greater portion of the expenditures called for during the present year will be in the relaying of the tracks with heavy steel, a reference to which has previously been made in The Telegram. The method of replacing old bridges with more expensive steel bridges, which has been in progress during the past year, Will also be continued during 1906, and there will also be additional equipment provided for to take care of the growng commerce along this line.

California Shipments

Sixty cars of California fruit were handled here Saturday by the Frisco, and the movement is becoming heavier every day. It seems that the California fruit crop has been somewhat larger than usual, and the traffic this way has been further increased by reason of the fact that the northern routes have been handicapped by reason of snow, and that much of the traffic has been consequently diverted this way.

WHAT WEATHER BUREAU RECORDS

Daily Local Record Open to the Public

The local office of the weather bureau has a book of weather called the "Daily Local Record." This book has all the weather conditions of the year condensed and at hand in a moment's notice, a sheet being set apart each day, numbered and dated, and with the aid of the index any matter may be found at once. The book is pen kept and pen recorded, and every weather bureau station in the United States has one, giving the weather for each twenty-four hours at that particular station. This book is for public benefit, the matter always being condensed at

The contents of the Daily Local Record consists of the temperature for every hour in the year, the highest of day being set to itself, the lowest to itself, and the mean temperature of the day recorded. The direction from which the wind blew every hour and the velocity of the wind is also recorded in the proper hour space. The amount of rainfall for each hour is noted, when the rain began and ended, the total from 7 a. m. to 7 p. m., and the total from midnight to midnight.

The record is kept of snowfall. The character of weather is set apart, stating whether the day was cloudy partly cloudy, or clear, and the amount of clouds for the day. On this sheet of the day is given the hour and minute of sunrise and sunset at this latitude, also the phase of the moon and the hour and minute of the change of one phase to another.

Also the record shows whether the moon shone, or was clouded, or partly clouded. The prevailing wind direction of the day is recorded, the maximum velocity of the day, its direction and hour and minute of occurring, also the whole number of miles of wind passing for the day. On each daily sheet there is entered a miniature weather map, showing the barographic pressure, and isothermal lines, a duplication of the daily weather map issued

The department of agriculture has rdered each station official to have this Daily Local Record bound, and kept on the station as a condensed ready data emporium of weather of the

with a Greaser Territory In spite of the well-nigh unanimous protests of the people of Arizona against the bill to yoke the territory to New Mexico as one state of the union, the republican leaders in congress persist in making this a party measure. By a cunning device unworthy of the American congress the bill provides that the aggregate vote of the people of the two territories shall decide the question of admission, the anticipation that the numerical strength of the "Greasers" in New Mexico will completely overpower the citizens of Arizona. This tyrannous control of an ignorant and vicious maority in New Mexico over a minority in Arizona is what the republican leaders in congress and President Roosevelt call a "square deal" and a legitimate assertion of the rights of selfgovernment.

Should this double-headed deformity be admitted as a state, the New Mexican half would dominate over its yoke mate in all matters of legislation and government. Naturally enough, the iniquity has aroused a strong opposition among the republicans in both houses of congress; but whether it can be defeated by this opposition united emains to be seen. Even if the people of the two territories should separately consent to their admission as one state, such a state, with its enormous territory and sparse population of good citizens, is not desirable to the American people.-Philadelphia Record.

UNIONS TO FIGHT FOR 8 HOUR LAW

Ippose It's Repeal in Panama Canal Zone

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 20 .- A new embarrassment to the government has arisen in connection with the digring of the Panama canal. This time It is the likelihood of a fight with the labor unions over the question of whether the eight-hour day as enforced on the canal zone shall be repealed. The administration has made up its mind to abolish the law, but the labor organs have given notice that they will

The preliminary move to remove the eight-hour restriction has already been taken, provision to this effect having been made in the deficiency bill which is now before the house. As soon as this action was taken representatives of the labor organizations with headquarters in Washington served notice on Representative Gillette of the committee on appropriations that they would exert very influence in their power to prevent the repeal of the law. They are now endeavoring to stir up democratic opposition to the proposed amendment and it would not be at all surprising if the thing should develop into a big fight between the administration and organized labor. Secretary Taft said it is imperative that the eight-hour restriction be lifted from the canal zone. He believes that the success of the great enterprise will be materially hampered if the government is limited to an eight-hour day.

This view is heartily indorsed by Chief Engineer Stevens, who declares that the greatest present obstacles in the way of construction are the labor laws of the United States.

Administration officials say the men employed on the canal are mostly West negroes and Chinamen, would willingly work nine or ten hours a day. Then, again, the commission pays these men by the hour, so it is to the advantage of the laborers to get in as long days as possible.

Another interesting matter in connection with labor on the canal is the probability of a test on the alleged peonage system that is practically now practiced there. Negroes and Chinamen are employed in large gangs and the letters followed perilously near the peonage system, which has been held to be in violation of the Thirteenth amendment to the constitution.

WATER WORKS SERVICE BEGINS

North Fort Worth System Opened Saturday

Saturday afternoon the North Fort Worth water works plant was opened. The pumps were started and water is now being supplied to Swift & Co. In completing the system the city laid its portion of the ten-inch main, which is to connect with the stock yards and packing houses. At present several blocks of fire hose is being used to connect and furnish water to Swift &

The ten-inch main will be extended at once to the stock yards and a meter installed which will register the amount of water used by each com-

For a long time the water question has been a serious one with the packing companies, several times the plants have been short. This new source is welcomed by them, and besides it is a source of continuous revenue to the city. These companies will consume quantities of water and the money they pay is expected to meet a large part of the expenses of the system.

ACTIVE WEEK IN REALTY BUSINESS

Four Important Deals Were Closed Saturday

Saturday presented a fitting close to what was probably the liveliest real estate week Fort Worth has ever had, in view of the prices that have been paid for the real estate that has changed hands. There were four important deals closed Saturday.

The largest of these was the purchase by A. J. Long of the property on the southeast corner of Twelfth street and Jennings avenue, from Ed Otto, for $12,500. The property purchased is 25x84 feet, and is improved with a two-story brick bullding. This part of the building was not included in the purchase that Mr. Long made from W. J. Bailey about a week ago. At that time Mr. Long purchased the lot and building with the exception of the twenty-five feet purchased on Saturday. The price paid for the first deal was $35,000, the lot being 114x84 feet. Mr. Long now owns the entire block. The deal Saturday was made through Ligon, Dickinson & Company. Another sale of downtown property on Saturday was that of the southeast corner of Weatherford and Rusk streets, which was sold by George T. Reynolds to Adam Harder. The lot is 50x100 feet in extent, and was sold for $6,000. The lot is occupied by a onestory brick building. The deal was made through Tempel & Modlin.

Another deal completed on Saturday was for the residence and lot owned by S. C. Gage, who has moved to Cleburne. The residence is at the corner of Lipscomb street and Pennsylvania avenue. The deal was made through the Winters-Daniel Realty Company, and the purchase price was $3,650. The place was bought by J. A. Corbett. Dr. Gage purchased the place several months ago, but a change of plans compelled him to move from the city and part with his property.

A deal was also made by the Arlington Heights Realty Company on Saturday, whereby two solid blocks and two other lots were sold to R. W. lournoy for $4,800. The lots are well located in the property which the Realty Company is opening up on Arlington

Real Estate Transfers The past week has been a busy one for the county clerk, as the number of deals filed with him has shown no sign of abating. There were 135 deeds filed this past week against 136 for the previous week, and 111 for the first week of the year. The total value of the deeds filed for the week was $194.575.80. The total value

HEAD SPLIT OPEN

Fireman Found Wandering Unconscious in the Woods

BRISTOL, Tenn., Jan. 20.-With his head split open from the corner of the right eye socket to the upper corner of his forehead, a distance of more than three inches and particles of his brain oozing from the gash, William Geishter, a fireman on the Virginia and Southwestern railroad, was found rambling about unconscious in the woods three miles north of this city early this morning and brought to this city, where a doctor was found to dress the wound. Geishter walked the three miles, led by his finders, in his pitiable condition. He had ridden five miles in the country to a dance last night and was returning about 2:30 o'clock when he was confronted in the road by several men. Then came a blank and he knew nothing more till the doctor removed the fractured bone. The gash seems to have been made with a dull axe or a heavy club.

Mr. John A. Martin, district clerk of Parrant county, is a candidate for reelection, having served one full term and is now rounding up his second erm. He is one of the most generally known citizens of Tarrant county, and it is claimed by his friends that the county never had a better district clerk

Mr. Martin is a native of Tennessee, but came to Texas from Christianburg, Va., to which place his father's family moved from Tennessee, twenty-eight years ago. Mr. Martin came straight Tarrant county when he first came to Texas, locating at Arlington, which was then a very small town. He remained at Arlington eight years, coming from there to Fort Worth, where he has lived ever since. Both in Arlington and in Fort Worth he made many warm friends and they still cling to him.

He made his first race for district clerk in 1888 against one of the most popular men in the county, but was not elected. In 1900 he made the race against the late Dan McVean and lost by only two votes; it was the closest political race ever run in the county and evidenced the high esteem in which Mr. Martin was held by the people of the county.

In 1902 Mr. Martin was again a candidate and was elected by a good vote and was re-elected in 1904, the vote he received being a flattering indorsement of his first two years' work in the office; and it is claimed by Mr. Martin's friends-those who came in contact with him daily and who have official business with him that he has so well qualified himself for the duties of the office and his discharged them so well that his office ranks among the best conducted in Texas. No complaint of his work so far as known has been made by any member of the legal fraternity.

It is urged by the friends of Mr.

Martin that no man in the county is better or so well posted on the work of the district clerk's office as he is; that the close attention to the business that he has given has equipped him completely for his work; and they argue that it is not good policy to turn down a competent man, especially one who is as courteous to all who have business at the clerk's office, as Mr. Martin is. Mr. Martin's friends also claim that electing a competent man district clerk a third time violates no precedent of the democracy of the county, for in the past the party has done this. Mr. Martin is a staunch democrat who believes in voting the ticket straight and has always lived up to his belief in this respect; and It is claimed by his friends that he has never failed to respond to the calls of his party when help was needed; that during the dark days of the local democracy, in the 80s, when men were deserting to the populists, he stood firm, never wavering in his allegiance; and for these reasons they say that the county would not suffer by giving him a third term as district clerk.

BORDER LANDS WILD WITH FEAR

People of Alsace-Lorraine in Panic at Imminent War

BY MALCOLM CLARKE. Special Cable to The Telegram.
BERLIN, Jan. 20.—In spite of all the efforts of the government to assure them that there is not the slightest reason to fear that the Algeciras conference will be followed by war, the people of Alsace-Lorraine are in a state of excitement bordering on frenzy.

From Strassburg, Metz, and, in fact, from every town in these provinces come dispatches stating that the whole population has been seized with panic. Banks and savings institutions are being besieged by crowds of depositors demanding their money, and have for the first time in years been driven to demand the legal notice of withdrawal. The press continues to state that the outlook is very encouraging, but no one believes in its editorials.

But the plum tree has been well shaken during the past decade, for the profits have attracted an increasing number of men with capital, and the industry, which has been driven southward steadily with the depletion of the pine forests, now sees itself threatpaed with extinction at a period not imneasurably remote. From the pine reons of the Carolinas, out of Georgia, (ississippi and Alabama, the manufacturers of turpentine have been moving into the central portion of Florida, and every year the ax of the scorer blazes his way further and further down the penia-

At present these are palmy cays for Florida. The profits of a turpentinery are regular and considerable, and thousands upon thousands of acres are passing yearly into the hands of the manufacturer, who either purchases them outright or, more frequently, buys the privilege of extracting the resinous juices from the pine timber. From Jacksonville, on the northeast coast, almost to the Everglades, may be seen enormous areas of forest land wherein every tree shows at Its base the V-shaped nudity which the scorer leaves on his journeying.

> For the present, however, the camp is very much alive. The house of the superintendent is set up, the store appears, the malodorous glue house, the barrel factory and the mule stables. Wells are sunk, barrels begin to cumber the ground in quantities, the laborers move in and the turpentinery is ready for operations. The appearance of the camp is not spectacular. but as the various elements gradually settle down to their own shares of the work, each camp assumes a typical and traditional aspect. To the strong platform, which has been raised horizontally with the top of the still, innumerable barrels of the crude material are being rolled up an inclined runway. A number are emptled into the retort, the furnace glows, the copper cap is fastened on, and soon the drip, drip of the turpentine issuing through the worm changes to a steady flow. Under his roof the barrelmaker hammers away merrily. Something like 20 songs go into each barrel that he makes, driven in to the melodious tap, tapping of his hammer; and if by any chance the barrel should be completed before the air of that particular melody which ushers in its birth, the cooper will continue tapping upon the woodwork till his song comes to an end. Florida may be set down at 900 casks a year, each of which holds 52 gallons of turpentine, besides 2,700 barrels of rosin. The residual matter thus amounts to three times the quantity of the distilled spirit. From these figures it will be calculated that the 600 stills in the state produce annually nearly 30,000,000 gallons of turpentine and nearly 90,000,000 gallons of ive them into rosin and turpentine. The first, consisting of chips, leaves, etc., is of some use in roadlaying, and is occasionally sold to municipalities in the neighborhood of the camp. As a rule, however, the sale does not repay the cost of transportation, and is either used in improving the roads around the camp where the soll is of deep sand, or is burned. Being exceedingly inflammable, the juxtaposition of a match may be productive of a conflagration, and it is, therefore, disposed of as soon as stiller, the latter being usually a free negro, whose salary runs high, the only serious problem which confronts the turpentine manufacturer is that of laborers. The pecuniary harvest is so plentiful and the risk of losses so slight that strenuous efforts are put forth to overcome this solitary difficulty, and the easiest solution is that of convict labor. Unfortunatelyor fortunately—the supply of convict labor in Florida is extremely limited, and the abuses of the Peonage Act of Reconstruction days have been effectively suppressed since the outcry that arose during the past year. Some have guitars and mandolins, and card games are indulged in. By good behavior they can gain 52 days a year off their sentences. Efforts at commutation are made in the case of deserving prisoners. Upon the expiration of his sentence each man receives $10 and a suit of clothes. The laws of Florida give excellent protection to these prisoners. Flogging, the only method of controlling the unruly, is permitted to be inflicted at the discretion of the captain of the guards, but is rarely resorted to, and then only in the case of a convict who is insubordinate or refuses to work. At the Ulmer camp it is inflicted in an informal manner with a broad leather strap, which leaves no scar. Elsewhere more rigorous means are said to be in use. An excellent provision lies in the appointment of state inspectors, who appear unannounced at irregular intervals and question each prisoner in turn, while the guards are ordered to stand off out of hearing. With such opportunities, attempts at escape are made occasionally, but they are almost uniformly unsuccessful. The actual flight has frequently succeeded, for it is easy to elude the guards while passing from tree to tree. In such cases bloodhounds, which are bred in the camp, are set on the trail of the fugitive; his photograph and a notice of reward are posted in 600 cities of the country, and his stripes, which are conspicuous, render his prompt recapture almost a certainty. SCHOOL FARM ATHLETIC ASS'N

Formal Organization of Texas Students

A meeting of the representatives of neveral of the high schools in this part of the state was held at Waco Saturday morning, which was attended by Homer Stokes as the representative of the Fort Worth high school. The meeting was held in the Waco high school building and was attended by the following delegates: Principal Darden, E. E. Edwards, E. E. McAnnually and Bart Moore, Waco high school; Superintendent Kimball, Temple high school; Principal Tom Fletcher, Temple high school; O. W. Long. Corsicana high school, Emmet Brown, Cleburne high school: L. H. Hubbard, Belton high school, and H. L. Stokes, Fort Worth high school. An athletic association was formed among the schools to be known as the Central Texas High School Athletic Association. The following officers were elected: E. E. Edwards, Waco, president; O. W. Long, Corsicana, vice president; L. H. Hubbard, Belton, secretary and treasurer; advisory board. E. E. Edwards, L. H. Hubbard and Tom Fletcher, Temple.

An athletic meet will be held at Waco on April 28, at which all the high schools represented promised to send delegates. It is expected that there will be several other members of the league before that time. Baseball games were also arranged between Fort Worth and Cleburne, Waco and Corsicana, Waco and Temple and Belton and Temple. The winners of these games will contest for the champion-

The object of the organization is the promotion of pure athletic of all kinds among high schools within a radius of 100 miles of Waco.

Quarters Available in Enlarged Federal Building

With the recommendation for the appropriation for $325,000 for additional room for the federal building in Fort Worth, has come the beginning of a movement to bring the headquarters of the climate and crop service to this city. Consequently the service is maintained in a rented

Not only is the service in Galveston maintained in a rented building, but Galveston is not centrally located for such service as is Fort Worth. There is only one way that mail can get into Galveston and every single letter from crop correspondents has to go at least 40 miles from the nearest point to reach the headquarters. The congressman from this district at the next session of congress will be requested by those interesting themselves in the matter of the change 3 the station from Galveston to Fort Worth to bring in a bill before congress authorizing the change. Other congressmen will be asked to aid. Advantages Here

Those who are interested in the movement claim that Fort Worth is the logical center for such a station, being now in the center of the agricultural district of the state. Within a few years the Panhandle of the state will become the leading agricultural part of the state. After this occurrence, Galveston will be farther than ever from the center of the district. One of the reasons that the station was established at Galveston was for the maintenance of a flood and storm station. Now that Galveston is being raised to a higher level there is little need for the flood station, although, of course, the storm reports are invaluable. Even at that the present observer at Galveston is not a forecaster and he received all his storm warnings from other forecasting stations, at New Orleans and Washington. The only thing that the observer there can do in case of a storm is to telegraph Washington that the barometer is acting queerly. All observers all over the country are ordered to do this, however, and it would not be at all necessary that Galveston be the crop and climate station in order to take care of the shipping, as the ordinary weather bureau could do this.

Force of Six Men At present there are six men employed by the government work at the Galveston office who draw several thousands of dollars from the government every year. In case that the bureau was brought to this city these men would be employed here. Fort Worth is the only central city in the state where there is a weather bureau with facilities in the federal building such that the service could be well handled. As soon as the new addition shall be built here there will be plenty of room.

Corpus Christi is as badly located as Galveston and so are El Paso and Amarillo. Palestine and Tyler are smaller towns that have not the rail-road facilities to handle the amount of mail that is sent out to all parts of the state. Abilene is also out of the

Work of Station

The cotton and crop station prints all its weather maps and bulletins on a printing press instead of from a mimeograph, as is done here. On that account a complete government printing plant has been installed there. Tho weather maps are printed from chalk plates. The office there issues the daily weather map, the daily cotton bulletin during the cotton season and the weekly climate and crop bulletin, There is also a monthly review of the weather all over the state that takes up several pages of matter. This last summary contains the reports from 200 stations in the state. There has been a belief here for a long time that Fort Worth is the place for this service and now that the appropriation has been reported, the efforts of the citizens will be redoubled. It is expected that the matter will be brought before the Board of Trade within a short time and co-operation asked in perfecting plans.

MAY COME HERE

Company Likely to Establish Plant in Fort Worth

Secretary N. B. Moore of the Home Factory and Industrial Association has received a communication from the Collinsville Manufacturing Company, which desires to move its plant to this city. The factory is engaged in the manufacture of the Menozen automatic acetylene generator and at present is of the weather bureau for this state employing about twenty-five men. In case of a removal to this city the plant will be largely increased in size. The reason given for the desired change is that the shipping and distributing facilities of this city are so much better. The officers of the company will be in the city next week in order to take up the matter and decide upon the removal of the plant from Collingsville to Fort Worth.

HORSE NEARLY GONE

Officers Within Thirty Feet of Animal at City Hall

A stranger, it is alleged by the police, attempted to take a horse from in front of the police station about 1 o'clock Sunday morning. Three officers were within thirty feet of the horse at the time it was taken and the horse belonged to one of them, Officer

Captain Blanton saw the man take the horse and arrested him before he mounted. The man was escorted into the police station and a charge of horsetheft placed against his name on the police blotter. He had evidently been drinking.

At first he refused to give his name, but he subsequently made it known under pressure and said that he had friends in Kennedale, Texas, who would see him through his trouble. He claimed that the horse was loose and that he only caught him without intending to steal him. Captain Blanton, however, declares that he saw him when he untied the horse.

LUMBER IN DEMAND

R. G. Brown Jr. of Longview, Texas, one of the largest lumber producers in the state and who has a large business in supplying the Fort Worth market, is in the city. In speaking of the recent advance in the price of lumber and of the demand Mr. Brown stated that there was an exceptionally heavy demand for lumber and that some of the prospective purchasers were willing to pay any price to get it. He says, however, that the timber which has been most accessible has been largely consumed and that it now takes longer to get the lumber. His concern has built a railroad track twenty miles long in order to bring the timber to a point where other transportation can be secured.

NEW YORK, Jan. 20,-General Fred Dent Grant will discuss his father's old foe, Robert E. Lee, in his address at the dinner of the Canfederate Vetern camp of New York in the Astor gallery of the Waldorf-Astoria next Wednesday evening. This fact alone would make the coming banquet unique in interest, but the southerners who are managing the affair have added another feature to the festivity that will attract widespread attention.

For the first time in the history of the camp, women will sit at the table with the men and take part in the affair. Instead of being relegated to the galleries and the boxes the women will add to the splendor of the occa-sion, adding to the gorgeous decorn-tions. BANQUET HELD BY CREDIT MEN

Dallas to Organize Branch of Association

Steps for the organization of a branch of the Credit Men's Association in Dallas to act in co-operation with that in this city were taken at a banquet held by the local organization Saturday night at the Worth hotel. A. H. Alexander of New York, who attended the meeting, made the principal address, urging the importance of the association and the good that would result both to those seeking and extending credit by such organization. In treating of the organization, he called especial attention to the adjustment bureau, a feature maintained in this city. This bureau is instrumental in securing a satisfactory arrangement for all creditors in cases where business affairs become entangled. Through its work it is asserted many firms have been saved from bankruptcy, with a possible payment of 10 cents on the dollar, with a result that all creditors

SAY SENATORS WERE JEALOUS

Few Appointments in South Alleged Cause of Opposition

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20 .- It is alleged that one of the reasons why George Lewis, oldest of the three, was kill the civil service feature of Secretary Root's consular reform bill was that neither Alabama nor Georgia has a single appointee in the entire consular service. This fact was brought out during the meeting in the foreign affairs committee at which Secretary Root was urging the senators to approve the bill. When Senators Morgan and Bacon declared that their states were without representation in the consular service, Secretary Root was forced to assent to the truthfulness of their statement. He said that he proposed in the near future to consult with the senators and ask them to suggest eligibles for positions as consuls. After the senate committee cut the bill to pieces. Secretary Root did not both Messrs. Morgan and Bacon about recommending candidates for office. The southern senators are opposed to civil service in the consular establishment because they think it will mean the appointment of republicans in these positions. They lived in the hope that at some future time the democrats will be in control of the government when they will have a chance to turn out the republicans and succeed them with good democrats.

M. Brooks today sent the following communication to press representa-

To the News-In your Issue of the 17th you take the position in an editorial that I should resign the office of judge of the court of criminal appeals on account of my candidacy for the office of governor of the state. I shall not resign the position I hold as a member of that court during my candidacy. I shall during my candidacy continue, as in the past, to perform the duties of that office with proper application and all fidelity, and if it ould become necessary that either the duties of that office or the interests of my candidacy shall suffer for want of personal attention, then my andidacy shall suffer and the duties of the office I now hold shall be faithfully performed. I was elected to the office I now hold by the people and after a service of six years was reelected without opposition. I believe it to be my duty to continue in that position until the expiration of my term of office, unless the people who elected me to it shall see fit to elect me to the office of governor and thereby place me in another field of responsibility to the people and the state. I trust that I have a proper sense of the proprieties which should govern a high judicial officer and that I do not lightly regard them, but I do not assent to the proposition that ethical grounds may be justly assigned demanding my resignation in view of my candidacy for governor.

I take little stock in the opinion entertained by some that the mouths of judges should be closed upon political questions of importance in which every good citizen should feel an interest and to which every good citizen should give consideration. The old idea that judges should be wrapped in gowns, adorned with wigs and rigidly kept separate from the people has long since been repudiated in this practical, progressive county. Here, when not discharging the judicial functions of his office, a judge is expected to mix and mingle with the people and help bear the burdens and responsibilities of government, and is permitted to take an active interest therein. Because he is a judge he should be no less a useful citizen, and as such, contribute his individual influence and strength to the proper settlement of public ques-tions. Otherwise, the individuality of a man on all lines, save that of the judicial, would be extinguished by the and funds a judicial office. For men of character them along.

> The city poll tax receipts Saturday were 157, the largest number issued on any one day thus far this year. The largest number hitherto issued was 151. The total number of receipts to this date issued by the city collector is 2,724. These receipts are divided among the respective wards as follows: First ward, 285: Second ward. $32; Third ward, 355, Fourth ward, 288; Fifth ward, 325, Sixth ward, 362; Seventh ward, 271; Eighth ward, 263; Ninth ward, 233. It will be observed that the largest number of receipts issued in any single ward thus far has been in the Sixth ward, with the Third ward a close second.

Only nine more days remain in which poll taxes may be paid, and City Collector Gilvin will continue to keep the office open until 9 o'clock each night for the benefit of those who have not time to come around to the office during the day. Mr. Gilvin-estimates there should be about 1,500 receipts issued during the remaining nine days.

Of the total number 3,778, including exemptions, were paid in Fort Worth; and Saturday was the record-breaking day since the payment of poll tax began, the number paid being about 400. There was not let up in the stream of taxpayers that poured into Collector Walker's office until 9 o'clock at night, and up to that hour Deputy Whyte had all he could do to wait on the voters.

There was a spurt of negro taxpayers Saturday and as late at 8:45 o'clock a bunch of fourteen, all from North Fort Worth, came in and qualified themselves to vote by paying their

is worked, but this feat was pulled off successfully by the Minneapolis team in a game with Kansas City at Nicollet Park, Minneapolis, July 1, 1905. Eels, the elongated pitcher of the Kansas City Blues, was doing the box work for Irwin's men. The Millers pulled off their stunt in the sixth inning. In that round Sullivan, the first Minneapolis player up, singled. Sully then stole second and a few minutes later was advanced to third by a neat single from Freeman's bat. Coulter watched four wide ones go by and walked. Schmidt then forced Sullivan at the plate and reached the first station on a fielder's choice. Freenan in the meantime had advanced to third and Coulter to second. With three men on bases and only one down, Eels became nervous, Manager Watkins, sitting on the Millers' bench, signaled for a triple steal. Schmidt was leading off first, Eels threw to Massey, the K. C. first baseman, in an attempt to nip the German. Quick as a flash Freeman started for home. Coulter for third and Schmidt kot under way for second. Freeman beat Massey's heave to the plate and scored. Coulter reached the third corner in safety; Catcher Butler threw to second to cut off Schmidt, but "Heinie" was resting on second and borrowing Jack Bonner's finecut before Butler's throw had passed the

By making assessments earlier than usual it will be ascertained definitely the extent of improvements at the beginning of the year. It is thought that each year a number of improvements escape taxes because owners claim buildings were not completed before Jan. 1. By preventing such tax dodging it is thought North Fort Worth will save a considerable sum of money. Many Poll Taxes Paid

Early in the season poll tax payments were slow, and a liberal estimate placed the total number at 400. There has been more than 370 receipts already issued, and Mr. Mulholland expects to issue at least seventy-five more before the end of the month. Total tax payments have now reached almost $20,000.

GRAND OPERAS WELL RECEIVED

Rigoletto and Lohengrin Sung Saturday

Verdi's beautiful and tuneful opera, "Rigoletto," was introduced to a good audience yesterday by a remarkably clever and capable cast of singers. The music of the opera is marked by all the partiality for grace and melody, rather than by bigness of orchestral effects that dominated the earlier efforts of the great composer. The cult for Wagner has to some extent obscured the love for melody, but in the reception accorded "Rigoletto" Saturday afternoon, there was evidence that here, at least, there is a latent inclina- Her breathing out of D flat at the close tion for the simpler musical expres-

The burden of the opera falls upon Winfred Goff, who carries the name role, and Miss Florence Easton, who sings the role of GMda. Joseph Sheehan as the Duke of Mantua sings, of course, the beautiful melody of the fourth act, "Lo Donnae Mobile," but vocally and dramatically Goff and Easton have the fullest opportunities. Sheehan was, during his first scenes decidedly out of voice. His famous high notes hinted of the falsetto, but later in the opera this tendency disappeared, and in the famous melody and the more famous quartette his voice was entirely satisfactory. Miss Easton is an undoubted jewel added to the Savage forces since last year's visit. She has a voice of such dainty quality, such tenderness, that the music of Gilda seems it must have brought out the beauties of vocalization both rare and greatly to be desired.

tion of scraping against the vocal cords, there was more than satisfaction in a singer who felt every note, who interpreted with dramatic intensity every phrase of the music, and who carried into minutest detail feeling and musical response. The choral and orchestral opportunities were not numerous, but those offering were of earnest effect. Lohengrin Lohengrin at night proved more than popular from the point of attendance, even though the reception of much of the opera inclined rather to be lukewarm. The orchestra was by far the best part of the performance unless the chorus and the rendering of the familiar bridal choral should be excepted. The chorus is large, the voices well balanced, the quality of the ensemble singing justifying highest praise. The orchestra was in sympathy with its work and the work of the orchestra in any Wagnerian opera is considerable. Schenck conducted and was credited with excellence. Miss Tennyson Elsa elicited controversy. The strain of continued devotion to Wagnerian music is apt to tell on most oices. There is a suspicion that Miss Tennyson is no exception. But in skill in using it in grace, sympathy and understanding there was no question as to her claim of exceeding merit. Ortrud was the part of Miss Rita Newman, who acted with convincing dignity and sang to hearty approval. Lohengrin was taken by Francis MacLennan, who is a singer of accomplishments. The most striking impression of the opera was the intelligence in arranging stage details, the massing of effects, the note of color that unconsciously demanded of the eye its share in approval. NEW OFFICE BUILDING

George T. Reynolds will soon have work started on a three-story brick office building, to be located upon the chased in Houston street, between Tenth and Eleventh streets. He owns the 150 feet from the corner of Tenth and Houston streets, as he owned the corner fifty feet before buying the adjoining 100 feet. The length of the building has not been decided as yet. Mr. Reynolds may build on the corner 100 feet first and then some time later add a building on the other fifty feet, or he may build the building on his entire lot. He has determined to build, however. No tenants have been secured for the new building as yet, and on that account the exact plan of the
