The costumes are of the most elaborate description, and the scenery, and electrical effects and other accessories quite in keeping with the rest of the show. Musically, "The Fortune Teller" stands out as the most tuneful score Victor Herbert ever vrote. Some of the best known names the realms of comic opera are to be und in the cast of "The Fortune Teller" this season. Grace Orr Myers, whose triumphs as a prima donna and comedienne are familiar to all theatergoers, is seen to advantage in the dual role that first brought Alice Neilen to the front, and it is said that Miss Myers is the only who has ever been able to satisfactorily fill the parts amerly played by Miss Neilsen. This part is most exacting, from a musical, as well as a histrionic standpoint, requiring a subtle comedy instinct, as well as a voice of power and wide range. The difficult basso numbers are well handled by Harry Turpin, while Grafton Baker is capital in the tenor role. The comedy situations are in the hands of James McElhern and Herman Hirshberg. Others in the cast are Irene Langford, Irma Bell, Flossie Foreman, James Feeney, Charles Phil-

She is, without question, one of the most popular histrionic stars in the country, and in scores of cities where she plays her receipts stand as the banner receipts of the season. Miss Holland delights all by her brilliant acting, her melodious voice, and her exceeding grace of manner. As an actress she possess all of the attributes and requirements of a truly great artist. "The Lily and the Prince" is one of the most elaborate productions of romantic drama ever staged. The scenery and costumes are alike costly. The Kansas City Times said: "Miss Holland is well adapted to the lighter scenes, but rises with even greater success to the stronger requirements of the play. She is a most earnest actress and has endeared herself to a loyal public in those cities in which she has appeared annually since she became a star. In her new role she has fine op-

Mme. Emma Calve, the most celebrated singer before the public today, makes her first concert tour of America at a time when she is in the very zenith of her power and popularity. More praise has been lavished upon her in the last decate than ever has been given any artist of the operatic stage, and at this moment she more fully deserves these encomiums than at any other time of her career. There is-nay, there can be only one Calve. The programs have been arranged with a view to pleasing the public in the matter of selections made, as well as to permit Mme. Calve and the other artists to appear at best advantage.

"Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch" is going south after touring the east, the middle west and the Pacific coast, with a success that has made the production a bonanza to Liebler & Co., who made the production on the advice of James A. Barrie. Mrs. Wiggs is a southern woman created by Mrs. Alice Hegan Rice of Louisville in her two great novels, "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch" and "Lovey Mary," and dramatized by another Louisville woman, Mrs. Anne Crawford Flexner.

John Griffith, the well-known and very popular tragedian, is booked for "King Richard the Third." This announcement will be welcomed by theatergoers who patronize only the leading plays and stars, for Mr. Griffith always makes good and his scenic, costume, electrical and mechanical equipment is adequate for the most thrilling effects, and evenings spent at his performances are intellectual treats to his hearers. The production of "King Richard the Third" is about twice as expensive as "Macbeth," in which Mr. Griffith starred for the past three seasons, but his management feel assured the public will serize and appreciate the fact that the desire to-please it will be rewarded.

Among the big cast of artists who compose the Aborn Production Company's revival of the famous comic opera, "Robin Hood," is Maurice Hageman, who will sing the comedy role of Friar Tuck. Nature has peculiarly fitted Mr. Hageman for the role of the friar. Outside of his appearance he has a highly cuitured voice, and for the past ten years has been associated with the finest singing organizations entour. "Robin Hood" with a company of fifty, which includes a strong niale chorus and scores of pretty girls, all having finely trained voices, appears in

"The Player Maid" was first produced at the Academy of Music, Baltimore, last February, and has since been presented in all leading cities of the country meeting with the success and receiving favorable comments which entertainments of its caliber deserve. "The Player Maid" is almost in a class by itself-the even, smooth-running plot, the gentle, refined comedy, the beautiful costumes and elaborate scenic effects are a combination that make this entertainment one of those come-

The company supporting her contains some of the best singers this country has heard-the tenor particularly. Ashton Stevens, the well known San Francisco dramatic critic, speaks of his as "the little Caruso with delicious reed-like that recalls the Agostini of the first "Boheme" performance.

absurdly amusing contremps—due to a servant taking too literally an order. This sketch is played by Miss Jane Courthrope and Mr. Charles Forrester. The other sketch gives a view of love and war, into which comes the quality so strangely different from both-money. There is humor in it; but at times the audience forgets this fact and is quite ready to shed tears for a pair of lovers, who, fortunately, get all their trouble at once and come to the "happy ever after" stage. Miss Kizzie B. Masters is the central person in this playette, which she calls "A Romance of the Red Cross."

Laura Burt.

Miss Laura Burt's career has been interesting. She first came into prominence as Madge in "In Old Kentucky." She originated the part, and rode many stage victories as a girl jockey, who was equal to the occasion. After four years of this experience, she went to London. She toured with Sir Henry Irving through England, Scotland, Wales, Ireland and America. When she was in Scotland the management of the Odeon Stock company in St. Louis found itself in need of a leading lady. Cable negotiations with Miss Burt were begun, and when she had accepted the terms offered she immediately began the longest trip ever made by a star to join a company. At New York she was given the manuscript of her part as "Glory Quayle" in "The Christian," and, studying it on the train, was ready to take the stage on her arrival in St. Louis. Stock company preved too hard for Miss Burt, however, and after a few weeks she accepted a flattering New York offer. This season she has been exclusively in vaudeville. She recites Eugene Field's "Seein' Things at Night," and makes her own famous 'Stump Speech on Woman's Rights." Interesting immitations of the late Sir Henry Irving as Shylock, and in his speech from Gilbert's "Comedy and Tragedy," are parts of her act.

Don Carlos and His Lions and Dogs. Don Carlos has a trained animal show that is materially different from all the others that have been over the circuit. His dogs are famous as dancers. They perform the cakewalk, dance "Turkey in the Straw," and perform other strange acrobatics. Then they appear in disguises that would do credit to the hero of a dime novel. Jimmy is the canine comedian par excellence. A hospital corps, under the management and direction of the dogs is a new feature. A remarkable trained lion is a feature of the act. He does tricks with the largest of the dogs at the conclusion of the act.

* * * Everybody cannot know everything. The query, "What does he do?" indi-cated neither ignorance nor lack of intelligence. There are many excellent citizens of education and a fair quality of gray matter who probably do not know that Lave Cross will play third with Washington this year, Or even should the knowledge be thrust upon them they might fall to be moved to excitement over the potential possibilities the information conveys to another and equally large portion of the American public.

It is not so much the point of view as what is included in the visual angle.

Since Gadski is to be here under certain conditions hereinafter to be set forth as "Exhibit B." it may not be amiss to announce that the correct mode of address is Mme. Johanna Gadski. This simplifies the choice of pronoun and may prevent a more ingenious inquirer resorting to "What does 'it' do?" However, as the information most wanted was upon the nature of the performance it is here and now set down without verbiage or comment: Mme. Johanna Gadski Sings

That is all! Every generation has it group of song birds that the musical world worships for their divine gifts and charming personality. Gadski happens to be one of the present-day recipients of public favor. As Patti, Jenny Lind, Christine Nilsson and Alboni thirty years ago, so do Gadski, Nordica, Eames, Sembrich and Meiba rule the musical world today. While Gadski is called the conmporary of the grand opera singer of the Metropolitan Opera Company of this country and the royal opera companies of the European municipal cities, there is a big gap in their years. Sembrich, the oldest, is nearing 60. Gadski was born in 1872. Any expert can do the sum.

The following sketch of Mme. Gadski's professional career may tell those who are not yet familiar with her achievements what those achievements

Born at Stettin, Mme. Gadski began to study singing when she was ten years of age, with Madame Schroeder-Chalupka, one of the most famous singers and teachers of the day. In May, 1889, Mme. Gadski made her debut as Undine to Lortzing : opera of that name at Kroll's theater, Berlin. She was then seventeen, and her success with the public was so remarkable that Engel, the director and proprietor of the theater, engaged her for the following seasons inclusively till 1893. During this period the sang leading parts in many of the standard of eres, and appeared with such artists as Lilli Lehmann and Marcella Sem-

In 1894 Madame Gadakt made an extended concert trip through the principal cities of Germany and Holland, and appeared at the Royal Opera House in Berlin. It was there that Mr. Walter Damrosch heard her sing and immediately offered her a most flattering engagement in the United

March 1, 1895, Mme. Gadski made her debut at the New York Metropolitan opera house in the role of Elsa in "Lohengrin," and during two more seasons her repertoire, progressing from merely lyric to heavier dramatic parts and thereby growing in public

In 1898 Mme. Gadski became a member of the Grau Opera Company at New York. When Grau retired, in the spring of 1903, Mme. Gadski received and accepted a flattering offer from Heinrich Conried, Mr. Grau's successor at the Metropolitan opera house. Besides her American engagements, Madame Gadski found time to appear at Covent Garden, London, during the season 1899, 1900 and 1901. She also sang Eva in the Meistersinger performance at Bayreuth in the summer

Last summer Madame Gadski added materially to her reputation abroad by her singing in Munich, where her services were secured as star of the Wagnerian Festival. So signally successful was she in the three "Ring" performances in which she was featured, that Prince Regent Luitpold bestowed upon her a high decoration, King Ludwig's Order for Art and Science. The prima donna likewise aroused enthuslasm with her portrayal of the countess in "The Marriage of Figaro." Madame Gadski's triumph when she opened her season early in November with a series of appearances with the Boston Symphony Orchestra, is indicated by the following excerpt from the New York Sun: "Those who were in the house testified to their admiration of her art in no uncertain manner, and by loud and long continued applause paid a just tribute to the splendor of the freshest and most serviceable voice now to be heard in the later dramas of Wagner. This voice can be heard only in the concert rooms, unless one chooses to journey in the summer all the way to the Prinz Regenten theater in Munich, where it may be heard on the lyric stage. In the present dearth of young and rising Wagnerian singers the journey is almost worth while. "As for Madame Gadski, it was, as we have intimated, a joy to hear her.

Dickinson does not. Tuesday was the pausing time at one of the counters and Mrs. Dickinson invited in for dinner several of her husband's intimate friends. They were awaiting the coming of the gentleman with a birthday when he arrived in serene forgetfulness of the anniversary and ignorance of plans for its celebration. The guests witnessed Mr. Dickinson's evidences of surprise and cheered him with much raillery and friendly chaff. Eleven courses were served, the guests being seated at a table radiant with finest silver, cut glass and flowers and daintiest of napery.

The centerpiece was a cut glass violet bowl, filled with several hundred English violets, while smilax extended from the table corners to the chandeliers. Mexican drawn work and Battenburg lace appeared in table cover, dollies and buffet covers.

Rev. Alonzo Monk acted as toastmaster and there was an evident rivalry among the guests each to outshine all others in wishing Mr. Dickinson many returns of the anniversary, every one to be marked by joys and prosperity.

The guests were Rev. Monk, Dr. E. D. Capps, Messrs. C. B. Holt, E. W. Tempel, D. O. Modlin, W. L. Ligon, George Colvin, J. A. Stafford, H. J. Adams, Verdo Woods and J. W. Dick-

The rifts within the lute which are said to mar the harmony of the relations between musicians has some exceptions. When Ernest Gamble last Thursday night addressed his audience at St. Paul's regarding the preeminence of Madame Gadski as a singer, especially a concert singer, it was an eloquent evidence that accomplished musicians are quick to recognize genius and delight to honor it. Mr. Gamble expressed conviction that Madame Gadski was the greatest of all grand opera singers, outshining them all, especially in recital.

OUR LAY SERMON

One of the most successful business men the world has ever known was Marshall Field, the Chicago merchant prince, who was called to his final reward only a few days ago. Like all successful business men, Marshall Field had certain well defined rules which governed his line of action, and now that he has gone, leaving a record behind him that is absolutely untarnished, those rules by which he acquired success are well worth the serious consideration of every young man in America. The rules by which this great man achieved his success in life are portrayed in a letter to an Ohio minister, and are as follows:

"Rev. Z. B. Campbell, Ada, Ohio, -My Dear Sir; Replying to your favor of Nov. 20, would say that I regard honesty, truthfulness, temperance, thrift, purity of character, truthfulness, perseverance and thoroughness in whatever a person undertakes as the most essential elements of true success.

"It is too often the case in the present day that boys starting out in life rely too much on what they call chance to bring them success, and the haste to become rich by whatever method is becoming so prevalent that too much emphasis cannot be placed upon the importance of their starting in life with the one idea of winning success through patient and earnest endeavor to discharge faithfully and honestly every duty that may develop upon them, be it great or small. It is too often the custom to do little things in a careless mariner because they are little, and that, as a rule, determines the character of a person doing it. If a matter is worth doing at all it is worth doing well, and by this I mean, that they shou'd be thorough in everything.

"The element of thrift is sadly neglected by young men of the present day, and the tendency to live beyond their income brings disaster to thousands continually. A young man should cultivate the habit of always saving something, however small the income. Be particular in his choice of friends. Have the courage to say no and mean it when tempted to do what he knows to be wrong. Aim to earn a character for candor, veracity and strict integrity that will win the respect and confidence of all with whom he may have the foregoing ideas cannot fail, in my opinion, of attaining success to a greater or less degree if possessed of good health, and, while he may not become rich, is, I believe, reasonably certain of gaining a comfortable livelihood. "I will close by giving an extract from an article recently published in the Baltimore American touching upon this subject, and which I heartily indorse: "It is simply a question of the man himself. In this country he has the opportunity. If he uses it well, If he employs his purposes to high ends, if he determines that each day shall be to him an increase in knowledge or means, and that he will work honorably for success in life, he will succeed. There is no limit to the possibilities of honest, sustained effort in a good MARSHALL FIELD." cause.' Yours truly.

The young man who is honest will never lack for opportunities in this day and time when real honesty commands a premium. There are so many ways of being dishonest, however, that the young man just starting out in life must bear in mind that honesty must be absolute. There must be no temporizing with anything that will not bear the closest scrutiny. The young man who is honest will know just exactly what this means.

The young man who is thoroughly honest must ed. Men are too prone to dally with truth and seek some means for evading its utter and absolute observance. They will twist a proposition until a loophole not do this. He must be truthful in all things. Th the indulgence. The use of intoxicating liquors is the most common form of intemperance, however, and has wrecked more young lives that had started on prosperous business careers than all other agencies combined. The young man who desires to succeed in life must remember that intemperance and business success pursue widely divergent paths. Sobriety is a Entered at the Postoffice as second-class mail matter. virtue that always claims its reward.

The young man who succeeds in this life must be thrifty. This is an age of thrift and progress-of energy and consuming ambition. There must be a disposition to not only make money but to save it-lay some of it by for a rainy day. The young man who is of a thrifty disposition and who manages to live well within his income never lacks for friends and

The young man in business must be careful to protect his purity of character, for it is one of the greatest assets of his business career, and when character is gone there is nothing else on earth that can take Its place, and the man who loses his character has lost his all. Young men just starting out in life should bear this fact continually in mind.

Faithfulness is a characteristic that all young men entering upon a business career should possess and assiduously cultivate. Faithfulness implies loyalty to your employer in his business, and qualifies you the more for your own career. So it is with perseverance and thoroughness. No matter if you are employed in a menial position, remember that you owe it to your employer to give him the very best service of which you are capable, and it is your duty to be thorough in all things. Whatever you find to do, do it well, and in the end you will become the safe business man, such as the one who laid down these plain rules.

MAKING GOO-GOO EYES AT SAM ROSEN

The citizens of the South side have taken up the matter of obtaining additional street car service by petitioning the Rosen Heights system to extend its line over in that section, and it is reported that something rather tempting in the shape of a bonus will be hung up in order to induce the extension. The Rosen people are said to have the matter under advisement, and it is believed that this has been under consideration

The Rosen line parallels the traction company's line F. A. Luther, 384 Main street; Dallas Book Store, 370 from the Texas and Pacific station to the stockyards, and runs thence to Rosen Heights, which is the present terminus. Extensive improvements are being made out at the heights, in the matter of providing various forms of summer amusements, and the purpose of these amusements is undeniably to attract patronage. As the over into the thickly populated portion of the South | and call it blessed. side it would unquestionably command more patronage.

> Another disadvantage the Rosen system has to contend with Is the fact that it does not reach the South side district, where many of the packing house employes reside. These are compelled to patronize the rival company or pay double car fare, and people are not going to pay double care fare twice daily when they will never be able to overcome this obstacle and become a real competitor with the the other line until it Invades more of the latter's territory.

Whether there is business enough for two great rival street car companies here or not, is a question that those concerned must settle for themselves. But there is one thing morally certain. The building of the Rosen line has greatly improved the service to North Fort Worth and the packing house district, and both companies seem to be carrying about all the business they can conveniently handle. It is said that competition stimpulates business and often improves service. If Rosen invades the South side residence district he will unquestionably find and develop more business.

These congressional insurgents seem to have gone up against the real thing when they undertook to so unceremoniously defy the Big Stick.

Those citizens who have been kicking over drinking Trinity water for a few days are now in position to thoroughly sympathize with citizens of Dallas,

Prospects are said to be good for the establishment of a wire fence factory in this city, and Fort Worth always extends the glad hand to any kind of business or manufacturing enterprise.

Still there comes no whisper from Mineral Wells as to work being about to begin on the proposed interurban that is to afford such convenient connection with this city. It is high time the promoters of this enterprise were getting busy.

She is a woman, and no woman should suffer death by hanging. It is not reasonable to suppose she would have taken human life without great provocation, and the story she tells seems a very straight one.

All Fort Worth rallways are compelled to increase their terminal facilities this year, in order to properly handle the immense volume of Fort Worth business. The purchase of fourteen acres west of the city by the Texas and Pacific recently indicates that the Old Reliable proposes to lead the procession. These terminal enlargements but serve to portray in a slight manner the rapidity of the city's progress and development.

Did you ever try to go for a whole week without speaking unkindly of anybody?

It isn't an easy job, I assure you. It's astonishing the number of snippy little things we say all the time without actually meaning to be unkind.

An all 'round sport should be a manysided man. Even the painless dentist is bound to hurt when he sends in his bill.

The best way to dissuade women from wanting to vote is to let them. The girl who thinks she is pretty is just as well

Misguided Mother Love DOROTHY DIX

We talk about the unselfishness of mother-love. In reality it is the most selfish thing on earth. No mother ever stops to consider other people's rights where her children are concerned.

There is probably no mother alive who doesn't think that it is an actual treat to you to hear her baby squall with the colic, or her little Johnny shriek up and down the hall like a young Comanche.

In making everything and everybody give way to their children, women are not consciously trespassing on other people's right. They are simply so besotted with affection that they cannot imagine any one not enjoying being trampled upon by their dear little Dickey.

Uncomfortable as this misguided mother-love makes the world for those of us who are forced to become unwilling and struggling victims to our friends' children, the chief curse descends upon the child himself. He has been taught to be greedy, overbearing, selfish, and that he occupies the center of the stage, Some mer are always on the offensive and others and it takes many a hard knock from experience to teach him what a very insignificant pebble he is on the beach. More than that, it is a hard saying, but worthy of all acceptance, that misguided mother-love is at the bottom of most of the failures. A woman's idea of love is softness and ease. Her conception of the way to prepare her children for the stern battle of life is to protect them from any hardships as long as she can, which is as sensible as it would be to train a prize fighter by having him loll arourd on silk cushions and eat checolate creams.

A mother washes and serubs and cooks that her daughters may keep their hands soft and white, and she takes in boarders that her sons may play on football teams in colleges instead of doing some sort of honest work, and the net results are the trifling, useless women and the dissipated young men that cover

Herrera Will Have Job to Make Good Against Kid Who Wants to Meet Nelson

Before the Pacific Athletic club, Febuary 9 (the day falls on Friday, too!) the "Northern Light From a Southern Clime," Aurelio Herrera, Mexican, puncher, conqueror of the former mas-ter of Terrible Terry McGovern in no less person than Young Corbett, will have to make good against a boy that is said to know the business from the trainer's quarters to the ringside, from the tap of the gong to a clinch or how take the count and catch a third breath-the all-inspiring and much praised Kid Herman, talked of over the Pacific coast and in other quarters, including the camp of the Mexican.

The doughty "Kid" has posted his forfeit of $500 as a surety to deliver his person in the ring and submit the same to attempted sluglike mashes from the glove-covered fists of Senor Herrera, and 'tis hinted among some of the alleged knowing ones that he, the Kid, looks on the preparations as great sport and is "just itching to come face to face with the man," whom he fully believes he can put out in short

Reports of the Pacific coast dope are strong in support of Herman and the opinion is that Herrera's exhibition will bear out the former assertion heard even following his defeat of Young Corbett, that he is a very ir-

FRISCO FORMS A "PUG" TRUST

James Coffroth Is the Ruling Power of "Octopus"

A fight trust is the latest wrinkle in the fistic world. Such an organization has been formed out on the coast, with James Coffroth as its ruling power. Associated with Coffroth are Eddie Graney, who will act as official referee; Willie Britt, brother of Jim: Morris Levy and one or two others, as directors. Coffroth, however, will be in control. He will make the matches, promote the shows and at the end of each month will divide with

This makes it rather bad for the fighters. Under these conditions, of course, there will be no bidding for matches and the pugs must take what the trust sees fit to hand them. It is safe to say that there will be few contests where the glove-wielders will split up more than 50 per cent.

BILLIARDISTS WILL CONTEST

Cue Experts to Meet in Tournament

DATE: NEW YORK, APR. 9

World's Famous Champions to Have Series of Games of Difficult Type

JAKE SCHAEFER A prominent billiard figure for twentyfive years.

The international billiard tournament which is being projected for New York to begin Monday, April 9, in which Hoppe, Vignaux, Slosson, Morningstar, Cure, McCorey and other wizards of the cue will participate, has been given added interest throughout the world by the exciting contest between Hoppe and Vignaux in Paris, in which the youthful American wrested the world's championship from the aged French-

This tournament will settle two things-the extent of the improvement of the boy master of the cue, Hoppe, and the decline of that mar-velous wizard of the game, Schaefer, a man of wonderful kill, ner and stamina when in his prime, and with such attributes that have endeared him to the billiard-loving public of the entire country. The game will be at 18.2 balk line.

Whether the other participants in the tournament have improved is an open question. All, however, have been playing sufficiently long to have reached the zenith of their careers, and each should be seen at his best. A committee promoting the tourney is now arranging the details, and it is the intention of the promoters to make the affair the biggest ever known in the billiard world. Julius Balke of Chicago is one of the leading spirits in trying to get the top-notch professionals together again to stimulate the interest in billiards.

After the championship has been decided in New York an effort will be made to have the entire list of contestants go to Chicago to compete in a round robin tournament for some special prizes of considerable value. Although Hoppe is generally credited with winning the world's championship from Vignaux, Schaefer disputes the Frenchman's claim to the title and the tournament will go a long way toward settling a disputed question. After the death of Frank Ives, Scaefer held the trophy for more than three years. He was challenged repeatedly and refused to play. The conditions under which the trophy was donated made it obligatory for the holder to play within a specified time. Finally the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Company, donors of the trophy, decided that George Sutton of Chicago was the champion by reason of Schaefer's the trophy and another was donated. Vignaux and Sutton played for this emblem last March at 18-inch, one shot in, and the Frenchman won by 500 points to 387. Vignaux, in this game, played the open table French game, while Sutton favored the American nurse style of play. None of the experts offered to tackle Vignaux for the championship until Hoppe stepped into the breech. Age and accidents have not slowed up the wonderful cunning of Jake Schaefer, who has been prominently before the billiard world for more than a quarter of a century. Schaefer will be one of the contestants in the international billiard tourney, to

FRANCE READY IN CASE OF WAR

When the Algeciras Conference Met, All Was Prepared

ARMY, NAVY, FINANCES

"Will Be Thankful for Peace, But Ready for War," Says Official

(By Paul Villiers.)

Special Cable to The Telegram. Copyright, 1905, by Hearst News Service. Paris, Jan. 27. - The excitement which preceded the Algeciras conference has now entirely disappeared and with the lessening danger of war the various authorities who, a few weeks ago strenuously denied that they feared war are beginning to be less secretive.

Preparations Made The fact is that the day of the conerence opened every precaution had been made to be ready to meet a Gernan invasion. The activity was not only in the war and navy departments alone, it also extended to the institution which, first of all, would be called upon to supply the sinews of war, the Banque de France.

This is now admitted by M. Picard. the secretary general of that instituion, who said the other day: "Though, thank God, it now seems as if peace is assured, it is quite natural that we are still ready financially to meet any emergency.

"The financial problem which arises in case of war is at least as important as the military. It has been estimated that in case of a Franco-German war our expenses would be about 30,000,000 francs a day, or about 900,000,000 a month. The question was then, how should France procure the millard which represents the disbursements of one month of war?

Plenty of Money

"The French Republic does not possess, as does Germany, a special war fund, that is to say, funds which are at the immediate disposal of the government, and it is, therefore, more than probable, not to say certain, that the government would turn to the Bank of France for assistance, as it did in 1870.

"The Bank of France is not a state bank like the Bank of Russia: it is a private institution, with a capital of 182,500,000 francs. But the government, to a certain extent controls it though it ordinarily does not interfere in its affairs beyond appointing the governor of the bank.

"In 1870 the government fixed the value of all bank notes to prevent a too rapid exhaustion of the gold eserve. While a fixed value remains n force, the bank does not need to reeem its notes in gold, and it was beause of this measure that the bank was able to render such invaluable service to the government. Should we become involved in a war with Germany the same order will be issued by the government, and we are at this moment ready to assist the government with 5,000,000,000 francs, for which amount we are allowed to issue 20tes without any special law being passed Should the government need more, an order would be issued to allow us to issue notes for a considerably larger amount.

"In case of a war the money will be forthcoming without any effort, but we are all thankful that it now looks as if the war clouds are dispersing."

KAISER NOT WARLIKE

(By Malcolm Clarke.)

Special Cable to The Telegram.

BERLIN, Jan. 27 .- There is abso-Intely no truth in the rumor that the German people are in a state of great generally well informed that Kinlg auxiety concerning the outcome of the Algeciras conference.

To tell the truth, the people consider the conference of minor importance and the dispatches printed in the press concerning it are remarkably brief, showing that editors who always have their fingers on the pulse of the public realize that the whole affairs is of little news interest.

I have repeatedly heard the opinion expressed that the kaiser knows exacty how far he can go and that no matter how dangerous his politics may appear, he will know how to extricate nimself and avoid a war.

All classes are convinced that at a time when the war department is introducing a new field gun in the army instead of the Inferior kind Germany now possesses, the kaiser will not dare to incur the risk of losing all that was won in the war of 1870, and it is a surprise to the Germany people that the world at large, and especially the people of France, doubt the sincerity of his words a few weeks ago, when he said that he would consider war a crime against the nation he rules, and which has enjoyed thirty-five years of unprecedented prosperity.

The kaiser himself, indeed, does not seem worried at all, and has no other thought than the preparations for his silver wedding, which is to be celebrated February 27.

His state of health, I hear, is not absolutely satisfactory, and when he went for a drive Sunday last it was noticed that he was rather pale and rather thinner than usual, and the fact that he has ordered his yacht, the Hohenzollen, made ready for a cruise immediately after his silver wedding has lent some color to the rumor that everything is not quite as it ought Officially, this is, of course, denied, and it is said that his intention with the Mediterranean cruise is that he desires to meet his uncle, King Edward, who will be cruising in southern waters in the beginning of March.

ence over Morocco, in the result of which Spain is so deeply concerned. It is a peculiar coincidence indeed that Algeciras should have been selected as the meeting place of the delegates who will in all probability settle forever the future of the once great African empire. It is well known that it was from Morocco that Spain received its greater civilization, which was brought to the Spanish shores by the Moorish armies under Tarik. These armies landed at Algeciras. Since then Algeciras has always been prominently connected with all the Spanish enterprises in Africa, and the fact that it had been chosen as the meeting place of the delegates of the powers who will decide of the destiny of Morocco, is considered here a very interesting coincidence. Whatever the result of the conference might be, there is every reason to believe that Spain's attitude will be favorable to France.

Those who considered King Alfonso's visit to Berlin a political one are greatly mistaken. I am in a position to affirm that it was merely a call of courtesy and possibly a wife-hunting expedition, but the international policy of Spain was far fro mthe king's mind when he undertook his journey to the kaiser's capital.

CAMERA INVADES HAREM English Newspaper Woman Pierces Wall of Mystery With Kodak.

(By Lady Henry Somerset.) Special Cabie to The Telegram. LONDON, Jan. 27 .- The camera

has invaded the sancity of the Turkish harem, and there will soon be no enemy left to conquer in the whole scheme of woman's emancipation. A writer in one of the English magazines for January tells all that surely can be told of the modern women of Turkey.

The article is even accompanied by pictures of an unveiled Turkish lady, and such interesting stories are related of the indulgences accorded to Turkish women that the free women of the West, in the complexity of their engagements of work and play, might almost be tempted to sigh for the seclusion of the harem and the defence of the veil. One story is well woth quot-

A certain royal princess, a daughter fthe Sultan Mahmud, the reformer, and wife of Halil Pasha, had brought nome a very beautiful pearl necklace, and her husband in fingering it broke the thread and the pearls were scattered on the floor. The angry princess commanded the clumsy Pasha to pick up all the pearls and restring them again before reappearing before her. He obeyed unquestioningly, and it was the patient work of a whole night before his task was finished.

It is an easy matter to take things for granted when it is troublesome to get at the truth. And Turkish sultans have certainly not borne an enviable reputation in history, but the Central Asian society in London has just published some facts about Turkey and her rulers that are reassuring to the optimistic historian. In a chapter devoted to "Religious Tolerance" the following makes satisfactory reading to all who interest themselves in Christian missionary work and the spread of Christian ethics: "There are a considerable number of English and American missionaries working in Turkey, who seem to have little or no complaints to make as to their treatment by the authorities there. HELEN OF TROY WOMAN'S RIGHTS

She Was First to Assert Married Woman's Property Act

(By Lady Henry Somerset.)

Special Cable to The Telegram. London, Jan. 27.-I find side by side on my bookshelf this month two volumes that fain would exempt me on the golden path of a literary excursion. One is "The Legend of Fair Helen," by Dr. Eugene Oswald, and "The Life of St. Catherine of Siena as Shown in Her on to walk alone. This is why, now

What a contrast, and yet how curiously representative of the two kinds of power that women have always used with effect. In tracing the effect of the somewhat mythical Helen of Troy on the world's literature, one would scarcely expect to find an allusion to modern politics. Dr. Oswald, with some humor, discovers that Helen was the first to assert the principle of what is known in England as the married woman's property act, for when Menelaos sends a summons to Troy demanding restoration of wife and treasure, Helen declares that she will not go, claims the protection of Priam, and affirms that nothing was taken from Sparta but her own personal belongings.

The impression of St. Catherine conveyed in these letters of hers is wonderfully illuminating, for the translator, Miss Vida D. Scudder, gives the spirit of the writer truthfully.

In history St. Catherine stands just after the glory of the days of the great St. Francis of Assissi, and before the coming of Savonarola, and she combines the essential qualities of both. An ascetic, filled with mystical religious fervor, she is also a great force in purifying the political conscience of

> PLAYER CRIPPLED FOR LIFE "What was the most exciting game ever saw?" said Jack Powell, the St. Louis pitcher. "Well, I don't know, but one of the most exciting occurred at Toledo on July 4, 1896. I was pitching for Fort Wayne in the Interstate League. The race was a hot one and the rivalry between Toledo and Fort Wayne was intense. I had won the morning game and was also to pitch the afternoon game. The Toledo fans were redhot. They came out in the afternoon with firecrackers, revolvers, shotguns and more noise-producing devices than I knew were in existence. We got away in the lead and the fans were sore. They would hurl giant firecrackers at us as we stood at the plate or on the bases. I know some of the revolvers were loaded with cartridges, for I heard the bullets sing over my head when I was pitching. In the ninth inning a fan threw one of those big dynamite firecrackers at Mark Lynch, who was playing third base for us. The cracker exploded just as it struck his shoulder. LIVES ARE SPENT OVER EMBROIDERY

Years of Toil

(By Lady Henry Somerset.)

Special Cable to The Telegram. Copyright, 1905, by W. R. Hearst.

LONDON, Jan. 27. - From the earliest times pious women have given expression to their religious fervor by providing the most exquisite and costly decoration for church altars and banners and all the other ecclesiastical embroideries that they can work.

Often a life-time has been spent on a piece of intricate lace work of the most delicate fineness, and this beautiful practice, whatever the vicisitudes. of creeds or dogmas, is in no way likely to lapse. In an "art" shop in Old Bond street there is on view a very fine piece of modern work for an altar frontial. It is of cream white linen, worked with and all-over applique design of deep pomegranates and green leaves, both fruit and foliage outlined with gold thread, singularly rich in effect. In the center the Agnus Dei is worked in gold on a soft blue ground. There are also other fine pieces of the same class

Somehow, one never feels that work of this nature, however high the price may be, is adequately remunerated. Now and again one hears of an almost fabulous price being given for a fine plece of embroidery, and the princesses of the royal house have done splendid work in raising the market value of needlework.

Wonderful Altar Piece

Very often, however, considering the patient hours of close work, the impaired sight, the avoidance of all domestic work that would coarsen the hands, and the cost of the materials necessary for the work itself, these would seem far to outweigh any mere money payment. A rather pathetic instance of this other side of the picture came under my notice recently.

A poor widow, very proud of her skill in Honiton lace, made a most delicately beautiful handkerchief, and was buoyed up by the promises of more or less influential friends that she would be sure to find a ready market for her work. She got up at dawn to get the clear, morning light-a rather variable commodity in London. She worked at it patiently for a summer, and when French Actor Guest of France's finished it was really a very original and beautiful piece of work, and spotless as to daintiness. She then went the weary round of the lace shops, to be offered a guinea and even less for it. She tried all the likely people of her acquaintance, and all the people to whom they introduced her, but without success. In the end, on an easter Sunday, she presented it to the church, preferring to make her sacrifice an act of worship rather than to let her work be undersold.

SPAIN PROUD OF NEW NAVY

Wonderful Needlework Costs | Finishing Touches Given to Reina Regenta

(By Manuel Vizcaya.)

Special Cable to The Telegram. opyright, 1905, by Hearst News Service. MADRID, Jan. 27.-The finishing touches are being given at the Ferrol navy yard to Spain's new cruiser, Reina Regente, and it is expected that this latest addition to the crippled Spanish armada will be ready for launching early next month.

On paper the new vessel looks quite formidable, and in the opinion of the naval experts, the Reina Regente will be one of the best ships of her class afloat; but facts have demonstrated that it is not only the quality of the vessels that make a navy efficient. The Americans have said, and the world agreed with them, that the most important factor in modern warfare 'the man behind the gun."

And it is in this respect, precisely, that the Spanish navy is ridiculously

No one will doubt for a moment of the Spanish courage, but courage alone does not win battles nowadays. Of little or no use at all is a modern war vessel, armed with the best artillery and manned by as brave a crew as can be mustered together, if she has no good gunners aboard. Cervera's ill-fated squadron of cruisers, while inferior in number and in the size of the ships to the American fleet, would, in all probability, have given a better account of itself had its guns been manned by trained artillery-

As it was, not one single vessel of Schley's squadron was damaged by the Spanish shells, and it is safe to assert that had there been some efficient gunners on board Cervera's cruisers the American victory, although inevitable, would not have been so easily won.

M. Rostand hospitably opened his splendid country place to the convalescent actor, though many doubt whether M. Coquelin is a welcome guest. For many months he has made regular visits to M. Now that M. Coquelin spends his whole time at Cambo, he will undoubtedly not let up until M. Rostand turns over the finished manuscript to him, and M. Rostand hates to be hurried. The house of the famous poet at Cambo in the heart of the Pyrenees, is a real fairy palace and has cost money enough to bankrupt a millionaire. It is called "Amaga," which means the "Castle of Hearts" in the dialect of the mountain people. It is a type of the old Basque style, which is almost pure Moorish, with enormous reception halls and palatial salons arranged around a court yard with beautiful fountains. The long pergol is covered with vines, and each guest has a suite of rooms especially decorated to suit his taste, with his name on the door. The palace has swallowed up almost every franc which "Cyrano de Bergerac" and "L'Aiglon" have earned for their author, but this does not worry M. Rostand in the least, as he feels able to write greater masterpieces than ever before in these ideal surround-

WOULDN'T MARRY AN INDIAN MAIDEN AND WAS DRAGGED TO DEATH

Billy Jerome Lickins has recently returned from the Indian Territory to his old ranch on the Rio Grande a great deal wiser and a little sorer than when he left Texas a short time ago to look after one of his large herds of fat steers. For about 24 years Mr. Lickins has been considered a very fortunate individual. He was not exactly born with a silver spoon in his mouth, but he came howling into the world under a roof where silver and gold were abundant and where the deeds to vast leagues of fine lands reposed secure in old bureau drawers. From youth to young manhood Billy Lickins has had his own way. Old Thunderbolt ing. Lickins is the richest man in the valley, and for many years he has allowed his only son to ride in any direction, Fell in Sore With the Maiden Young Lickins has always had a pretty high estimate of all his attributes of character, courage and power over the feminine heart, being as he considered his most prominent traits. All of this in the face of the facts that a pretty girl who lived in a tent turned im and his million and his herds down for a cowboy, and a sheep-herder skinned him out of a fine flock during a single sitting by a nocturnal camp fire. Nevertheless, the cowboys said "Billy is all right; he spends Old Thunderbolt's money," and they were rather pleased when they learned that young Lickins to boss the big herd in the Irman grazing lands. Camp had no sooner been pitched and the boundaries marked on the leased Indian pasture lands than Mr. Billy Jerome Lickins straightway proceeded to fall nadly, wildly and violently in love with a pretty Indian girl who was circling about over the prairies mounted on a gayly caparisoned white pony. "Oh, ain't she a bird of paradise?" shrieked the young Texan, as the Indian maiden shot like an arrow between his staring eyes and the setting sun. "Looks like she had a rainlow about her neck and strands of it were streaming from her golden belt." Not many days passed before the love-stricken tenderfoot from the land of the Lone Star found an opportunity to make the acquaintance of the dusky beauty who had captured him, soul and body, at long range. She proved to have been the only daughter of the famous old warrior chief, Sea Horse, or Eat 'Em Raw, a dog-eating, seminaked savage of the Osage tribe. Eat Em Raw lived in a cabin in a dense joyed his hospitality.

Surrounded by Wolves Mr. Billy Lickins happened to be within ear-shot. "Rest easy, old pards," he said. "Splicin' for keeps | fered a very sudden surprise. A rope ain't in my line just yit." An Indian guide in the employ of the boss herder | tled horseman was jerked from his overheard that remark and he doubtless stored it carefully away in his memory as a valuable asset or a sharp weapon to be wielded later on when Cupid should signal an onset for all the Indian malden's lovers. That same evening when Mr. Lickins was about three miles from camp his horse shied and the next moment he found himself seated in the trail. On his left a band of cattle stampeded and the horse of the Texan went with them, his tail over his back and a Spanish saddle under his belly. On his right not twenty steps away sat a dozen or more lean, hungry, lobo wolves, grinning and licking their chops in evident satisfaction and eager anticipation of a feast on Lickin's flesh and the marrow of Lickins' bones. "You think I can't get up," said Billy, "you yaller, calf-eatin' hides!"-bang, bang, bang! "Now welter and kick. I expect you are the pack that eat up my thousanddollar polled Angus two-year-old bull." The young Texan was throwing the empty shells from the pistol when it suddenly occurred to him to examine his pockets. He did so, and to his horror he discovered that he possessed but a single cartridge. The lobos were tearing the dead wolves to pieces and howling like hell-hounds, frequently casting ravenous glances toward the now thoroughly alarmed young man, while bloody froth dripped from their of the wolves had already begun to howl and trot toward the seared youth. The Texan courageously faced his foes and, presenting his revolver, he waited until they were circling around him almost within reach of his hands. When a monster lobo, snarling and gnashing his white fangs, sprang at his throat, he fired. The moment the dying wolf dropped in the trail others sprang upon him, some lapping the to the wigwam of her father to nurse blood and others tearing his lean flesh her sorrow and wrath, and Lickins was to shreds. Then would come the words, "Billy, what in h-ll have you got there?" Falling on his ears like a veritable thunderboit, this would set him to executing some very interesting and surprising somnambulistic capers.

After regaining his strength the perplexed lover of the pretty Indian girl determined to venture upon the threshold of the father of his rescuer. He had never seen the old chief of the Osages, and he felt a strong desire to know just how Olena's father looked. He wanted to know what manner of man he would have to deal with in the event of trouble. He fully realized that he did not understand his own mind or heart. There were moments without the Indian maiden who loved him so well and had sacrificed so much for him, and there were other periods when the idea of being united to her for life made him shudder. Knowing the trail, he rode straight to the cabin of the Osages. Old Eat 'Em Raw met him at the door, "I know Lickins," he said, extending his hand.

Couldn't Eat Dog Meat "Well, maybe so," said the naked savage, looking his prospective son-in-law over. "You make good Injun-you eat dog all right-no eat dog, no good-fool Injin gal, Eat 'Em Raw kill Lickins." Congratulating himself over his narrow escape from close relations with Old Eat 'Em Raw, Mr. Lickins was fairly flying over the prairie in the direction of the railroad when he sufwhizzed through the air and the starsaddle and thrown sprawling upon his back in the trail. Managing to turn his head he looked into the fixed merciless face of the Indian girl, whose love he had scorned. "Why, Olena," dropped from his lips. "Speak not bad man," she said. "I ought to take out your black heart, but I will let you live to suffer as Olena must suffer." The noose was over the Texan's arms and the pony held him as he would have held a steer. As the Indian girl dismounted she held a cocked revolver toward her victim. "I am at your mercy," said the alarmed Texan. "Do you intend to murder me?" "No, you are too wicked," replied the girl. It did not take long for the mad maiden to disarm her victim and bind his arms to his side. She dragged him to a point of timber where the Texan saw one of his own yearlings lashed to a tree. The mad girl had prepared for the deviltry she had in mind by turning loose a yearling that had been necked to the one she had tied. Dragging the trembling youth close to the steer she seized the iron bar and quickly fastened the chain about his neck. "Now go and suffer," she said as she slashed the rope that bound the yearling to the tree.

Narrowly Escape Death

The half wild and thoroughly frightened animal did not stand on the order, red chops. Mr. Lickins started to run. and poor Lickins, regretting the day "That won't do," he said. Two or three of meeting the merciless Indian beauty, found that he also had to "Go," and go fast. The yearling ran as if the very devil was after him, and sometimes Lickins was down and sometimes up, turning somersaults. "I tell you," he has since said: "It was a circus, right, that would make the fortune of the man who could put in on the stage."

The lovers had parted forever, Olena, or Little Stream of Love, returned tle, necked to a wild yearling. "I might

"In all that region from Junction City west to Dodge City, Kan., and south to the middle of the Cherokee strip in Oklahoma, there is not a town without some humorous incident of cowboy manufacture," said Marchant. complained. If Prairie-Dog-Hole Dave or Cimarron Pete took a pot shot at it and drilled a newly painted sign with a 45 bullet, the owner looked on and smiled, for it was but a display of Dave's humor or Pete's joking proclivities. And if a merchant had protested a dozen or more comrades would have rallied to the support of their 'partners,' and a fusilade would have totally destroyed the object of the joke. Never but once, in my knowledge, was anything said about such pleasantries, and that was when the ornate gilt sign of a young lawyer from St. Louis fell a victim. He offered a reward of $5 for information as to who did it. An hour or so after the report of the reward became of general circulation, one-Armed Miller from the Bar X ranch rode to the young lawyer's office door money, which Miller put in his pocket. 'Now,' said Miller, 'I fills my part of the deal. I done it partner, with this here gun.' The cowboys were fooled, though, for instead of a terrified 'tenderfoot,' makng rapid time toward the town, they were greeted by a polite bow, 'How are you, gentlemen?' the stranger said. 'It pleases me greatly to be received with such marked distinction.'

'The cowboys were speechless in amazement. Here was a new specimen; something altogether different from anything in the 'tenderfoot' line they had ever seen. From a bustling, active western town and a cattle shipping point, it has become but a hamlet among the sand hills of the Kansas border. There are many old cowmen who recall the killing of the young woman and who declare that the town has been under a curse. That night the rounders took the keys of the calaboose from the marshal's pocket, conveyed him thereto and locked him in. They thoughtfully sent him his supper and a message that he would be released in the morning. The town ran wide open until morning, when the roysterers left. No one was hurt, no property damaged, for, as one of the participants remarked, 'We were just into it for the fun.'

tune, the sweetest companion in peace, and at all times the most courageous of women.-Barbara Winslow."

This toast to one of the most lovof fiction, taken from the book of her name, by Elizabeth Ellis (Dodd, Mead & C.5, may be understood as uttered in a pure simplicity and from the fullness of a true heart, and its sentiment is that of the reader both at the point in the striking narative where it is offered, and at every other point throughout the story.

Here is a story of a woman who was driven by the tide of the times, the happenings directly following the illfated expedition of the Duke of Monmouth in England, from the highest point in rural family pride and posttion to the fate of being a political prisoner and having a most grievous and disgracing sentence passed upon her at the hands of the most revolting character of contemporaneous British history-Lord Jeffreys.

Here is a story of a loyal, ambitious captain in the army of the king who, for the love inspired in him by the undaunted spirit of the heroine, sacrificed the service of government and, later, placed himself in the position of a disgraced officer whose rank has been removed and his sword taken from him and who finds himself waiting in gaol for trial by court-martial and probable death at the climax of

Here is a story of the flight of two whom misfortune has thrown strangely together and whose paths seem at times just ready to diverge as they had earlier, when by a turn in the wheel of fortune they are bound closer and closer together, until, at the last, she gives "her life to him for all its Winslow." Details are not woven in which are likely to cause some misgiving in the mind of a reader who has a penchant for English history. Each pivotal point in the tale has for its foundation the known customs and recorded facts of the period following the unsuccessful attempt of Monmouth to secure for himself the throne of England. Even to the language put in the mouth of each character, the tale is consistent and one showing a deal of research into special subjects of a historical and grammatical nature.

Some carp at that class of fiction portraying periods when men were willing to "draw" and defend their "honour" with rapier; or cross swords in compliance with a certain strict code known to "gentlemen;" but, in Barbara Winslow, none need fear to encounter any swash-buckling, hot-air heroes who bandy words and are ill at ease out of a drawing room; the men of honor written by Elizabeth Ellis are such, her women have the charm of being real, while all the characters are maintained without fault or flaw to the drawing of the veil at the finis.

And the end of the book is deserving of special mention in that the reader is not troubled with needless explanations as to what became of "so and so and who married and who died," etc. The story's true charm lies in that fact, for, not having told us more than was necessary at the beginning, the volume ceases while yet the freshness of the tale clings persistently about its chief actors.

One thing likely to strike a persistent reader of good fiction in connection with "Barbara Winslow" is that further action by at least a part of the main characters would justify another volume, complete in itself as to history and plot, yet much in the sense of a The facts of history need neither to companion story to the choice work be perverted, stretched nor narowed which finishes in a kiss, literally.

Feb'y Magazines

"Frenzied Finance," Mr. Lawson's remarkable history of financial crime, closes with a bang in the February Everybody's. It is not unlikely that this installment, with its brilliant sidelights on the story of Bay State gas, its candidly humorous description of that marvel of financial jugglery, a "voluntary association:" its unforgettable pen-portraits of those eminent personalities, J. Edward Addicks and George Wharton Pepper-will be considered the most fascinatinf Mr. Lawson has ever written. By no means its least interesting paragraphs are those relating to Mr. Lawson's long anticipated remedy, which he will begin to set forth in the next issue of the magazine.

Do you believe in government ownership of railroads? There may be reasons for and against this system; in Germany, according to Charles Edward Russell's brilliant narrative, "Soldiers of the Common Good," it is an unqualified success. The story of Von May- city editor's chair with composure. bach, the "man with the jaw like a snow plow," who alone secured railroad ownership for Germany; the efficiency of the present administration of the railroads and its advantage for travelers, as well as certain of its humorous superficial aspects-make a narrative ford to miss. The system of compulsory life insurance for German workingmen is also included in Mr. Russell's highly readable installment.

In the Woman's Home Companion for February, Charlotte Perkins Gilman reviews the advance and the present status of woman in a strong essay, "Good Things of Women." Other features are the illustrated articles, "Wild Animals of the Stage," "The Carnival Queens of the South," and "Dog Heroes of St. Bernard;" "Home Catering," by Fannie Merritt Farmer; "Smart Frocks for the Little Folks," by Grace Margaret Gould: "Afghans-Artistic and Comfortable," by Helen Marvin; "The Secret of the Open Fireplace." by Samuel Howe; "Suggestions for a College Boy's Room," by Evelyn Parsons; "In Honor of St. Valentine," by Lillian Baynes Griffin, with abundant material for the festivals of the month, Washington's and Lincoln's birthdays and St. Valentine's day.

A portrait of Mrs. Potter Palmer is the frontisplece of the February Smart Set. This new feature of the magazine has met with universal appreciation. and the publishers announce that future issues will contain equally fine portraits of beautiful and prominent John Regnault Ellyson, in "The Wolf Prince" has written another of his fantastic tales; and "The Face," by Stephen Chalmers, is almost equally weird. In the February Delineator there is much of housewifely interest. Isabel Gordon Curtis' helpful household serial called "The Progress of a Housewife," touches upon the kitchen and its utensils. Delicious recipes for onions and cakes and desserts are supplemented by an interesting and instructive article on "Meat and Its Uses," and the pages of Illustrated Cookery are extremely suggestive. Gardening and house furnishing are other topics of particular interest in the home.

The cover for the February number of Holland's Magazine is a remarkably striking one in yellow and purple, showing Prince Pu Lun of China in native garb. In a copiously illustrated article, "The Way They Do Things in China," Gilson Willets gives an interesting account of his interview with the prince and describes at length some of the peculiar ways and customs of the Chinese. Holland's is the first standard magazine to be issued in the south and the publishers state that their expectations in the way of circulation have been far more than realized. It is a credit to its founder,

Frank P. Holland, of Farm and Ranch. "Yes, yes," answered Jacob Schiff, Secretary Shaw and practically every banker in the country. "Not so," replies Albert Griffin of Topeka, Kan., author of the "Hocus Pocus Money Book," in an article in the forthcoming February number of Watson's Magazine, written long before Mr. Schiff's recent speech. "We want stable money, a stable currency -not one that fluctuates." Mr. Griffin shows that while in 1888 the bankers drew interest on $3.41 of loans for every dollar of loanable capital they owned, yet by 1905 they had managed to draw interest on $256.80 of loans for every dollar of loanable capital belonging to them. In 1888 they had $1,-700,000,000 more deposits than they had cash to pay with, and in 1905 they had $7,300,000,000 more deposits than cash

Yellow Journalist

Being an experienced newspaper woman, many people have often wondered why Miriam Michelson, the well known writer of "In the Bishop's Carriage," did not write a typical newspaper story.

She has written it. Making quite a decided "hit" in her first volume of worthy effort and following it with "The Madigans," in which she continued to "make good," Miss Michelson, who considers herself quite an adept at the intracacles of modern metropolitan journalism and with some excuse, succeeds (to the probable satisfaction of a large number of her readers) in imagining herself a girl reporter on a most yellow daily in a most huge city. She carries the imaggination to exceeding great length and to unheard-of quantity when, with wonderful equanimity, she has the girl reporter, called by the rythmic cognomen of Rhoda Massey, to maintain her seat in the

The way the female city editor noses to all aspirants to that high and mighty position and, in a way, serves notice on all these estimable gentlemen that, some day, perhaps, women will take up their abodes in their sacred places and, that no thoughtful citizen can well af- | with the proverbial pertinacity of the sex, Produce "yellow" stories that will sell extras by the dray load. In the picture of this wonderful city editor one can almost see her busily figuring out a four-column, two-inch "stringer flash head" of some three or four lines.

Rhoda Massey scents all sorts of ensations. She unearths private scandals; she chases down the grafter and the peculating official; she sits on a cornice outside of a grand jury room and hears the exposition of official criminality; she chases down political schemes and scents all sorts of political sensations. In short, this precocious young woman has, in a few years, all the exciting experiences that come to a half dozen first-class masculine reporters in a decade-and still manages to fall in love.

The story rambles along in an interesting, although amazing way, until, in a supreme moment, she resigns, like others have, just at the time when the paper probably needed her services the worst and flles with her true

This book has the quality of being inreal, but in a most fascinating way after all, and worth the reading, if for nothing else than that it will show the general public that a newspaper life is not the easy thing they probably imagine it to be.

REPORTERS MALIGNED

People Eager to Read Scandals, but Detest Men Writing Them

"A common charge brought against newspaper reporters is that they are heartless, that they revel in laying before the world the closely guarded secrets of individuals. It constantly happens that a reporter must do unpleasant things because others have been guilty of those violations of custom, law or convention that make news. The opprobium that belongs to the real offender is not infrequently reaped upon the innocent newsgatherer. There is no work a reporter detests so much as that involving a social scandal, and there is no story that a large percentage of readers will devour more eagerly. There isn't a good reporter living who has not been guilty of that blackest, least forgivable of all journalistic crimes, 'throwing down' his newspaper, to protect a helpless person innocently involved in a legitimate news story that is a matter of public record. On the whole, the newsgatherers are a tender-hearted folk and generous, and that which often passes for cynicism is an intense hatred and contempt for shams. If they appear suspicious it is because long experience has taught them that they must constantly guard against deception. There is no walk of life a good reporter is not compelled, sooner or later, to invade, and his position is the trying one of being compelled either to gain the confidence of or outwit those he meets there.-Hartley Davis, in "Reporters of Today," in Everybody's Magazine for February.

THE BARBAROUS CHIEF

BY ELLA WHEELER WILCOX Copyright, 1906, by American-Journal-Examiner.

THERE was a kingdom known as the Mind, A kingdom vast and fair; And the brave king, Brain, had the right to reign In royal splendor there. Oh, that was a beautiful, beautiful land, Which unto this king was given-Filled with everything good and grand, And it reached from earth to heaven.

But a savage monster came one day From over a distant border; He warred with the king and disputed his sway, And set the whole land in disorder. He mounted the throne, which he made his own; He sunk the kingdom in grief. There was trouble and shame from the hour he came-Ill-temper, the barbarous chief.

He threw down the castles of love and peace, He burned up the altars of prayers; He trod down the grain that was planted by Brain, And scattered thistles and tares. He wasted the storehouse of knowledge and drove Queen Wisdom away in fright, And a terrble gloom, like the cloud of doom.

Shrouded that land in night.

With a ruthless heel he trod.

Bent on more havoc, away he rushed To the neighboring kingdom, Heart; And the blossoms of kindness and hope he crushed, And patience he pierced with his dart. And he even went on to the Isthmus Soul, That unites the Mind with God. And its beautiful bowers of fragrant flowers

To you is given this wonderful land, Where the lordly Brain has sway; But the border ruffian is near at hand Be on your guard, I pray. Beware of Ill-temper, the barbarous chief, He is cruel as vice or sin; And your beautiful kingdom will come to grief If you once let him in.

Greek View of Life

Messrs. McClure-Phillips are to bring out in this country an early work of G. Lowes Dickinson, "The Greek View of Life." This paragraph is taken from the preface: "The following pages are intended to serve as a general intro duction to Greek literature and thought for those primarily who do not know Greek. I have hoped that such an attempt as the present, to give with the help of quotations from the original authors, some general idea of the Greek view of life, will not be regarded as igbor thrown away. Varied and manifold as the phases may be that are presented by the Greek civilization, they nevertheless group themselves about certain main lines, to be distinguished with sufficient clearness from those which have dominated other nations. It is these ideas that I have endeavored to bring into relief."

"Social Progress for 1906" will be published March 1, revised and with many new statistics. The value of this book and the unique plan of postponing its publication until March, so that it may include the official statistics of the previous year, have given it a fixed place, and there are few editors, ministers and social workers who do not give it credit for containing exactly the material that they have been at their wits' ends to find.

MECHANISM OF A MOTOR CAR Leroy Scott in the American Illustrated

Magazine

The working principle of the motor which has given the automobile this wonderful new life is roughly the principle of the rifle. The charge of gas is the equivalent of the gunpowder, and the piston is the bullet; the gas is exploded and the piston flies forward, and the piston rod delivers its motion to the crank shaft after the fashion of the piston rod of the steam engine. In the steam engine the steam works against both sides of the piston; in two revolutions of the flywheel the steam presses against the piston four times. In the explosion engine, according to the prevailing system, the gas operates against only one side of the piston (the end of the cylinder through which the piston rod works explosion but once in two revolutions of the flywheel-that is, there is but a sinble explosion to four movements a single explosion to four movements are: the power stroke (caused by the explosion in the cylinder), which supplies the energy to drive the automobile and the force required to complete the three non-power strokes; second, a backward stroke which pushes the exploded gases out of the chamber through a valve which opens for this purpose; third, a forward stroke which sucks the charge of gas into the chamber, through an inlet valve;

with any degree of force. The book is real. It is true to life. There are people in Fort Worth who have known men in Georgia (and elsewhere) who were Pole Bakers. It is even hinted that some of his peculiarities, such as getting drunk and neglecting his family at periodical intervals, are possessed by men in the Lone Star state. It may also be true, but probably is not known to many, if indeed so, that other of his qualities are possessed by men in the same station of life in many countries upon the globe; but the average reader can but agree that, such as he is painted, he is worthy of consideration, while his admirable qualities, such as sticking by a friend in need and, through the workings of a character having for its foundation strength long dormant, taking up the tangled threads of a hap-hazard existence and, in the end. proving himself worthy the utmost trust; these qualities are worthy of subject.

There is swearing in the book, done in the most natural and devil-maycare fashion-just like men swear; there are colloquial expressions distributed through the pages as often as the characters engage in conversationthey talk quite a bit, especially certain of the women; there are pistol shots at random and a white-capping beeone expects semething of the kind north of Atlanta occasionally; there is a girl who persists in being in love with a man much older than she and not as religious as the preacher her mother has picked for her-mothers are great match-makers, sometimes; there is the usual "skinflint," after his pound of flesh-an unnecessary incldent to the plot; there is the skinflint's partner, big-hearted and puzzling as to motive and character-at the beginning of the book-men change, sometimes; but, through the main points of the plot, the influence of Pole Baker shows what one soul, through genuine expression of real, true sentiment, may perform, if the object is kept ever in view when dealing with the intended

Tommy Postoffice The Field of Glory

"The Adventures of Tommy Postoffice" is written by Gabrielle E. Jackson and published by A. C. McClurg & Co. It purports to be and very likely is the true story of the life of a cat. Cats are nice things and books are the same; therefore this story will appeal to children. The logic may not be proper, but it applies-in this case.

Tommy's early years are teeming with funny incidents from kittenhood up, his inhabitation of a postoffice and unintentional transfer to another and the attendant complications are such as to delight the young and, at the same time, form the habit of wanting to read books that are probable in plot, consecutive in character arrangement and ideal in sentiment. There probably is not enough sentiment in the span of feline years in this life to appeal very strongly to those of more mature years, especially one who formerly engaged in the pleasurably cruel pastime of "chunking" various and sundry, wooly and meowing Toms, but, in the present instance, there is a deal of other matter entered such as when even Uncle Sam's business was made to wait while the clerks chased or rescued Tommy from sly interference, and these give to the book a tinge of interest which is quite likely to hold some beside children.

Tommy possesses wondrous intelligence and independence. He was able to hold his own with annoying cats or dogs. Many little tricks were taught him by his postoffice friends, and once he entered a cat show, where his clever performances assisted him in winning the blue ribbon. His subsequent behavior was not all it should have been, and several thrilling experiences were his before he again reach-

Probably one of the most interesting announcements in the world of books is that offered by Messrs. Little, Brown & Co., in the forthcoming publication of "On the Field of Glory," which is nothing less than a new novel by the popular author of one of the best productions of modern literature ("Quo Vadis"), Henry Sienkiewicz of

Not the least important fact connected with this announcement and one which will be hailed by book-loving America as a proof of the allegation. sometimes taken as "strange, dontcherknow" in England, is that good literature has a ready sale and a general appreciation by the masses, as well as the higher classes of the people of the United States, "On the Field of Glory" will be produced in America before it is issued in either Poland, Russia or Germany. Jeremiah Curtin, the authorized translator of the works of this distinguished writer, has translated the story direct from the original manuscript and this fact is another important factor in the expected popularity of the book, for many readers will remember that literary "pirates" took advantage of "Quo Vadis" in a manner at once irritating and troublesome to bona fide publishers of authorized versions of that famous work.

There is an international copyright law between this country and Russia, which, of course, includes Poland, and the discerning need know no more as to the authority of the publication. The scene is laid in Poland during the reign of John Sobieski, just previous to the Turkish invasion (1682-83). It is a love story of passionate intensity-when Stenkiewicz writes in the "vein intense," his readers know acting expectation.

GOSSIP FROM STAGELAND-

SEVEN PARTS BY ONE ACTOR

Marvelous Work of Henri De Vries, New Dutch Star

Acton Davies Gives Highest Possible Praise to Importation From Holland

(BY ACTOR DAVIES.)

NEW YORK, Jan. 27 .- A very remarkable actor made his American debut at the Madison Square theater last week-Mr. Henri De Vries of Holbe fittingly described as unique and seven-fold. He appeared in a short character drama by H. Heyermans en-titled "A Case of Arson," and as this little play came as an after-piece to pne of the stupidest farces, "The Braisley Diamond," his really marvelous impersonations in this play came like a gleam of sunshine after a very heavy rain. In this little play Mr. De Vries acts no less than seven characters. They are no mere frigoli lightning changes of masks and costumes, but each role is a distinct creation, utterly different, bearing no resemblance to any of the others.

In its way, this achievement of Mr. De Vries is the most wonderful feat of acting that the New York stage has even shown, and, mind you, it is all remarkably fine acting. Any actor who could play any one of Mr. De Vries seven roles as artistically as he plays them would have great cause to feel proud of himself. Each role was more than a characterization, it was a portrait. As he presented them one by one, accomplishing his changes of costumes and make-up in the space of time which it took to exit by one door and enter by another, these characters laid a held upon you which, as the play progressed, became a grip of absorbing interest. The final climax found an audience absorbed in a scene of breath-

Story of the Play

This little play shows the unraveling of the crime in a little Dutch village. The scene is the office of the justice of the peace. The character, remarkably well played by Mr. Henry Vibart, and the messenger, who announces the various witnesses, are the only characters. A little cigarmaker's shop has been burned down. Arson is suspected, but the 3-year-old child of the cigarmaker has been burned in the fire, and for a time this fact keeps the father

The first witness called is the halfwitted brother of the cigarmaker. He comes in with a vacant look in his face and sabots in his hand and answers the magistrate's questions in a dull and stupid way. He admits that he had had a quarrel with the little child on the day of the fire at dinner. She had spilt a glass of water on his bread and gravy. He did not kill the little girl; he loved her too much. The last he had seen of her she was going out for a walk with her father, and they had locked the house after them. The magistrate asked him to explain how the child could possibly have got back in the house after that. It was very simple, the boy explained; one of the ground floor windows had a broken clamp. The child was in the habit of raising it and creeping in. Father of the Child The father of the child was the next witness-a big, burly Dutchman, dressed in black and bowed with grief. His answers came swift and sure. He and the child had gone for a walk. He was carrying a box of cigars to the father-in-law, and he had his walking stick in his hand; also the key of the house, which was a large one, The child asked if she might have the key to play with. He handed it to her. Then she grew tired and said she did not want to go over to see her grandfather, but would await his return in front of their own house. She left him. This was the last he saw of her alive. Next comes the police officer, a gaunt six-footer, who told briefly of finding traces of paraffine among the ruins of the house. Then came the paralyzed old father-in-law. Had the cigarmaker brought him a box of cigars that Sunday afternoon? No, sir, why should he? He didn't smoke. Besides, his son-in-law wasn't in the habit of giving him presents. He owed him money. The cigarmaker was very hard up. Then came the loquactous groceryman, a comedy character, which set the audience in a roar. In the week of Jan. 8 Pauline Hall appeared at the Willis Wood theater, Kansas City. A howl went up against the posters which Miss Hall's press agent had put out. On her arrival at Rock Island, Ill., Miss Hall sent the following letter to the Kansas City Editor Kansas City Journal:

Gentlemen-Will you kindly allow me space in your valuable paper to reply to that noble body of Christian workers (?) the W. C. T. U., who, for lack of home duties and fearful of their own-if they have any-see fit to attack my posters and those of my sister artists.

May I inform those dear, good earthly saints, notwithstanding that my posters so shocked their sensibil-itles, that I am received in the homes of the best people in the country, and my many years before the public and its confidence in me-whether playing parts requiring a display of tights or otherwise-is based on so substantial a foundation that I shall continue to display those posters through the country with absolute disregard to the objections of these noble Christian (? sisters of Erebus.

My young daughter, who has now attained the age of 10, and is attending one of the seminaries of New York state, shows decided histrionic talent, both vocally and dramatically, and with the help of the Almighty Father, shall follow in my footsteps. I never miss an opportunity to permit her, in company with my young nephew, to see such admirable artists as Sara Bernhardt, Mme. Modjeska, Julia Mar-Henrietta Crosman, Maud Adams. The next instant the alf-witted brother is recalled. The judge speaks gently to him now. He tells him that he is free; that he may go home. "But my brother," says the boy, apprehensively, "can't he come, too?" "No, he will have to stand his trial." The boy bursts into tears and declares that it was his brother that committed the crime. The judge pats him kindly on the shoulder, tells him to go home once more, and the play ends as the lad shuffles sobbing out of

PROTEGE OF A PRESIDENT

Elsie Janis Owes Stage Career to McKinley

Elsie Janis, now appearing in "The Vanderbilt Cup," owes much of her popularity to her imitations. Not very long ago the Gerry Society haled Miss Janis into court on the ground of her extreme youth. She will not be seventeen until next March, but even as a child she is said to have imitated such actors and actresses as she had seen. When she was 8 years old she wisited Washington with her family and called upon the late President McKinley. Some years later Mr. McKinley saw the child again, and remembering her imitations, asked if she still did them. Miss Janis explained that she did, and offered to do one of Kyrle Bellew, who was at that time playing with Mrs. James Brown Potter. The little girl gave a rather notable suggestion of Mr. Bellew's personality, and Mr. Mc-Kinley, turning to Mrs. Janis, said: "Your daughter should try the stage. THREE SALARIES AT ONE TIME

Fat Salaries, Too - Enviable Lot of Guy Standing

Guy Standing, who plays the role of Beauty Murrray" in H. V. Esmond's 'Grierson's Way" is in a somewhat remarkable position from the managerial point of view. Mr. Standing is at present under contract with Chrales Frohman, who loaned him to Maurice Campbell, who in turn loaned him to Henry Miller. Mr. Standing has thus the somewhat unusual privilege of drawing a salary from three managers at one and the same time.

A friend of Henry Miller in "Grierson's Way," told a story the other night about the actor that seemed to flash several sidelights of characcry at will over anything. I could cry terization. While he playing "Joseph Entangled" some months ago, Mr. Miller was in his dressing room one night when a message was brought to him from the stage door written in French by a man who claimed to be an old acquaintance and requested the loan of $20. Mr. Miller read the note aloud to the friend who was waiting for him, threw it down impatiently, and reached for his pocketbook.

NEW FARCE BY

Story of War Corresondent's Misadventures

A new farce by Richard Harding Davis, entitled "The Galloper," with Raymond Hitchock in the title character, is the attraction which Manager Henry W. Savage is offering at the Garden

In this play Mr. Davis sets forth the adventures which befall a popular and devil-may-care New York clubman, Copeland Schuyler by name, who goes to Athens during the late Graeco-Turkish war, and there assumes the role of a war correspondent in order to win the girl of his choice, who has gone to the front as a Red Cross nurse, and incidentally to aid a prominent newspaper in procuring the latest war news. As his experience in news gathering is limited, his tribulations are amusing. He personates Kirke Warren, a star reporter and an experi-enced correspondent, who has been through many campaigns, and has in reality stirred up the numerous com-plications which bring about the

The other characters in the play are also Americans, who have gone abroad with varied interests. There is a demure and ingenious young girl of good family, who enlisted as a Red Cross nurse; a music hall performer, known as "The Human Fly," and who is the divorced wife of the star correspondent, Kirke Warren; a Newark widow, also in the pursuit of the newspaper man; a flery Irish captain of the foreign legion at Athens, always on the lookout for a duel, and a coterie of newspaper correspondents who have gone to the sceen of action to describe the conflict between the Cross and the Crescent.

The company in support of Mr. Hitchcock includes Nannette Comstock, May Buckley, Helen Lackaye, T. Danlel Frawley, Edgar Davenport, Harold Vizard, Herbert Cothell, L. Rogers Litton, E. B. Tilton, Scott Cooper and

TWINKLE, TWINKLE, LITTLE CORBETT

How Former Champion Looks Before Footlights

BY ACTON DAVIS.

NEW YORK, Jan. 27 .- James J. Corbett's appearance as a star at Daly's in a dramatizatoin of George Bernard Shaw's "Cashel Byron's Profession" was a decided flash in the pan for the popular fistic champion of other days, and, as a matter of artistic justice, it must be recorded that the blame for the failure does not lie at Mr. Corbett's door. As a matter of fact, he personally made a rather agreeable impression. He certainly is a hard worker and evinces no end of enthusiasm for his new art. The play does not show him to nearly as good advantage as either "Gentleman Jim" or "Pals" and a very large majority of the first night audiences were grievously disappointed that he did not have anything to do with his fists. If the play had had some action and a little more backbone, it would probably have floated Mr. Corbett successfully through this season at all events. It still may do so on the road, as his season at Daly's ends tonight, but it has not been definitely settled yet whether or not the play should go on tour. As a matter of fact, in these days, when failure succeeds failure, you can't blame the managers for thinking twice before risking any more money on a play which has already failed to draw Broadway's approval. One of the evening papers remarked the other night that if the succession of failures goes on at this rate there will be no failures for next year, and this is by no means an exaggerated statement of moment. The managers are literally at their wits' end for an attraction, not only for New York, but to keep the country. Scarcely a day goes by now which does not bring the announcement of the closing of some play which started out in flying colors less than two months ago.

"If he had studied the art of acting, would have found a fly ought to know a spider when he sees one, and if he knows the habits of a spider he mustn't walk into the parlor and then complain because the spider bites pieces out of him. "Each man who has made his mark has chosen his character—the character best adapted to him-and has played it. Abraham Lincoln had his idiosynerasies, his gestures; Daniel Webster never, never lost an opportunity to act, and Grant chose for his model William of Orange, surnamed the Silent. The first thing a man thinks of when he has to face an ordeal, be It a coronation or an execution, is 'How am I going to ook? Shall I appear calm and dignified or happy and pleased?"

All stageland was electrified by the announcement contained in this little notice that Viola Allen is and has been for a year the wife of Peter Duryea, a Kentucky horseman. Miss Allen herself declined to be intervieded on the question, but her brother, Charles We Allen, has been issuing frequent and emphatic denials, which no one in the least believes.

Rev. Frank W. Hardy, who per-formed the ceremony, refuses to admit that the bride was Miss Allen. But of the two witnesses given on the certificate, Mrs. Sarah Allen is the mother and America Wagner the maid of the

Spent Summer Together

Miss Allen, with her mother and maid, spent a portion of last summer at Walnut Hall, near Lexington, the guests of Peter Duryea. Mr. Duryea, questioned at the time as to the identity of his guests, denied that they were the Allens,

C. Leslie Allen, father of Miss Allen, is a member of the company. He is 67 years old, but thus far has been sufficiently active to elude the newspaper men and baffle them in their quest for a formal verification of his daughter's marriage to Peter Duryea. When Miss Allen opened in "The Toast of the Town," at Daly's theater. New York, on Nov. 27, Mr. Duryea occupied a box. He was frequently noted in the company of Miss Allen during the New York engagement. This circumstance put in circulation a report that they were engaged, which was promptly denied by the Allens.

She Is Alabamian

Miss Allen was born in Alabama forty-one years ago. She comes of a family of actors. In 1892 she played Lydia Languish in Joseph-Jefferson's production of "The Rivals." She won her greatest success as Glory Quayle in "The Christian." She has starred also in "The Palace of the King," "Twelfth Night" and many other plays. She is recognized as being in the front rank of American actresses. Mr. Duryea is a cosmopolitan well known to the turf, society and Ken-

At New York Hippodrome "It is the most wonderful, the most beautiful production I have ever witnessed. Were it in London it would run for years. The famous Empire ballet, England's pride, is outclassed by your conception, 'The Song of the Flowers,' while your final tableau, 'The Court of the Golden Fountains,' so far surpasses any spectacle ever viewed by human eye for grandeur that the spectator is breathless with amazement. As a whole it is indescribable. Its like is unknown and its equal is nowhere." This was the comment of an English globe-trotter after witnessing "A Society Circus" at the New York hippodrome. It expresses the popular verdict on the most stupendous production the world has conceived. Drama opera and circus, the best of each, constitute a program that pleases the most captious critic. Four new European acts, including the Bonhair-Grigory troupe of acrobatic marvels; Mlle. Leris, bareback rider eccentrique; Ralph Johnson, bicyclist, who turns sommersaults on his wheel, and the four Dunbars, aerial artists, will be seen in the same tournament for an extended engagement. Matinees are given daily.

Sothern and Marlowe Break With Theatrical Syndicate

NEW YORK, Jan. 24 .- Another victory has been secured by the Shuberts, whose war with the theatrical syndicate is convulsing theaterdom. E. H. Sothern and Julia Marlowe today announced an arrangement whereby they will appear next season under the direction of Sam S, and Lee Shubert, head of the independent movement. Sarah Bernhardt has already been secured by the Shuberts as well as a great number of other well known players which have been frightened away by the alleged autocratic methods of the syndicate, and the conditions, said to be tyrannous, which they impose on those whom they present at their circuit of theaters. Sothern and Marlowe will open early in the autumn at one of the local independent theaters in a repertoire, which will include three Shakespear- | for several months, and a piece as yet ean works and two new plays. Big Heart of the Old Confederate Goes Out to the Little Sister.

written:

Somewhere among the archives of I any more. I'm all alone in the world, the Confederate government may be found a document dated Sept. 2, 1864, wherein Joseph Wilson was ordered to be shot, and on the back of which is the indorsement: "Approved-Jefferson Davis, President."

You see, my companion was then in Virginia, and it was war time of a certainty. We rebels were hard pushed on all sides, having little to eat and less to wear. Some of us were philosstalked up to the bar and asked for ophers enough to endure what we couldn't cure, but the young men, especially the chaps who had been conscripted, were terribly uneasy. They were willing to give it up for a lost cause and start for home. Well, this feeling, coupled with starving rations, ragged uniforms and daily fighting, sent a good many of our boys over to the Union lines as deserters, and this brings about my story. One of the conscripts of my company was a boy of 17, named Joe Wilson. All of us fellows of 30 or thereabout felt like a father to him, as, aside from his youth, he was poor and pale, with not much of fight in him. The idea of little Joey Wilson helping to breast back a Yankee line of battle would have set us all aroar. He should have been home with his ma, and none of us felt anything but pity

One night, after the desertions had gone on and become so numerous that the big officers had to take notice of suspects, a trap was set, and lo! our poor little Joe fell into it. Yes, sir-nabbed "in the act of deserting to the enemy," and maybe you know what that signifies, especially when that enemy isn't cannon shot away? It was a surprise to us that the lad had plucked up courage enough to make a break, but I reckon he was desperate, and hoped in some manner to get back to his home. It was determined to make an example of Little Joey, and I guess it was not over ten days before he was convicted, the sentence approved at Richmond, and an order read that he was to be shot at a certain hour. I suppose it was all quite proper and according to army regulations, but it must have gone hard on the men on the court martial to convict him. Had he been guilty of murder I could not have aided to bring in a verdict against

Nobody had seemed to care whether he had relatives or not, and so our surprise was great to learn on the day before he was to be shot that a sister had arrived in camp to plead for her little Joe's life. It was too late. She had been denied by the president, and of course nobody in the field had any right to stop the execution. She was in camp all day long, and most of us got to see her. If I should tell you she was the brightest, chippest, smartest gal of 19 I ever saw I would be telling you the truth. She was exactly like Joe in looks, 'cept a few points handsomer, and she had his size, walk and ways. When I saw that girl-I believe her name was Nell -breaking down under the news and realizing her helplessness, I'd have been willin' to let them shoot me in Joe's stead. 'Deed I would, though I say it so long after. I just wanted to lay my hand on her head and say:

and nobody'll miss me, and I'm going to take Joe's place."

However, that couldn't be done. Joe Wilson was the deserter, and Joseph must be shot to death as the penalty. While the big officers couldn't promise anything they did grant a favor. She asked for an hour's visit with her brother, and they gave it to her. We had him shut up in the granary barn, and on that very morning I was given six men and told to guard him until he was wanted for execution. It was thus that the girl came to me with a piece of paper on which was

Pass Nellie Wilson to see the prisoner for one hour. See that she carries no weapons.

It was signed all straight and I could not question her right. I was directed to see that she had no weapons hidden away, but Lord save me. d'ye think I even referred to such a thing? No. sir! When she looked up into my face her eyes filled with tears and her heart beating like that of a wounded bird, I says to her, says I: "Go right in, my dear, and may God bless you for what you have tried

Well, now, in about twenty minutes after she had passed in what should enter my head but an idea which lifted my heels clean off the floor. If that gal was as smart as I took her to be she had a plan to carry out. What? Why, to change clothes with Joey and send him out in her place. That was the idea, comrades, and for about five minutes I couldn't make up my mind what to do. I figured it out by and

Upon one pretense after another another I got all the guards except one away from the door, hung the lantern up so as to throw the shadow where I wanted it, and while waiting for the gal to reappear I says to the guard, says I: "Jim, that gal must feel jest awful."

"Sartin, she does,' he answered. "And when she does come out she'll be crying." "Reckon she will."

At last there was a knock at the door and I opened it. I just felt in my bones that it was little Joey, and

"Well, my child, I'm sorry for you, are to blame." With that I hurried her out as fast as I could, and then had to sit down for the weakness of my knees. Next morning-what? Jist as I told you. Why, when they opened the door to lead Joe to his death they discovered his sister in his place, and she was just cute 'nough to smile at 'em, at that. Joe had been gone four hours and was safe inside the Yankee lines. Shoot her! No, no! They had to let her go, and it was such a smart trick that the big officers didn't want it talked about too much. Me? Well, they did start to do something or other, but Grant made a move just in the nick of time to bust up all the proceedings, and nothing further was done. Nobody thought I had any knowledge of the plot, but they hankered for a victim, and might have put me in a serious plight but for hav-"There, there, poor child. Copyright, 1905, by W. R. Hearst. PARIS, Jan. 27.-A novel, but it must be admitted at the same time very interesting, kind of sport is about to be engaged in by our young collegians. It is an international debate. The Cambridge Union, belonging to the celebrated university, has just challenged the French Students' association to a match of oratory.

Several young Frenchmen will go over to England and there before an audience composed of English students and many shining lights of the educational world will speak upon the moot question "Can a Government Declare War Without the Consent of the Peo-

Prices Show Further Weakness-Liverpool Firm But Has Only Temporary Effect-Close Steady

Special to The Telegram. NEW YORK, Jan. 27.-Bullish sentiment was materially increased over night as a result of the very flattering week end statistics, the spinners' takings for the week being especially favorable. There was a renewal of confidence in the foreign market as evidenced by the fact that Liverpool prices were much better than expected. The local market reflected the foreign strength, opening prices being 6 to 9 points above yesterday's finals. The advance brought out more long cotton and bears also took advantage of the higher prices to put out more short lines, while there was a total lack of buying power, as a result the early gain was soon wiped out, and the decline reached larger proportions, prices breaking in the first hour 13 to 16 points from the opening figures to a net loss of 7 points.

At the low point there was some covering by shorts, which imparted a steady tone to the market. The balince of the session was featureless, the close being steady with prices at a net loss of 2 points. Spots were quiet and unchanged at

Special to The Telegram NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 27-Although the week end statistics were extremely favorable to the bull side and Liverpool reported prices a great deal better than expected, the only noticeable effect here was an initial gain of 3 to 4 points, which was only about half what was due in response to the cables. Bears seem determined to hold prices down, and began early to renew their hammering tactics, which were so successful yesterday. The longs helped by liquidating and the market exhibited a weak undertone in the early trading.

Prices slumped 12 to 13 points from the opening figures before the end of the first hour. There were a great many stop loss orders caught at the low point and after these had been shaken out shorts took profits on a small scale, thus effecting a partial recovery. Secretary Hester has received a letter from the Galveston Cotton Exchange correcting the average weight of bales, making it 522 8-100 pounds per bale, for the first four months ending Dec. 30, instead of 536, as was first reported. This reduces the average weight of cotton to 515 6-100 instead of 519 48-100 as originally com-

LIVERPOOL, Jan. 27.-The cotton market opened steady with contracts 4 points lower for near positions and 3 off for distant months. Sentiment was rather more inclined to the bull side, however, there was no aggressive activity in evidence. The close was steady with prices at a net 5... 724 1.60 decline of 2 to 3 points. The hog trade closes the week with the highest market price of the year. This price, $5.621/2, was paid Saturday by a Cudahy buyer on a load of choice Oklahomas, averaging 242 pounds. The market has been active at strong prices all the week on good corn fed hogs, most of the days' sales going beyond those paid at any of the northern markets. Up to Saturday range and most hogs sold better than during the previous week, but on Saturday the bottom fell out, these undesirable hogs losing for 25c to 50c. Choice heavy hogs are quoted at $5.50@5.62½; mixed packers, $5.35@5.50; lights, $5.00@5.25. Most hogs have sold up to $4.85, but are much lower at the week's close. Pigs,

No sheep have been on offer, and the supply has come from local feed Sales 1,050 bales, including 800 to lots previously contracted for at prices within the range of $4,65@5.00.

Stock Yards Notes

The price of hogs was somewhat boosted yesterday by the presence of an outside buyer who succeeded in getting six loads.

Among the shippers of cattle on yesterday's market were T. E. Battle of | flat country, he replied: Riesil, with steers that sold at $3.65, $3.50 and $3.25; Coffin & Stone of pounds average at $3.90; J. D. Duncan of Toyah, with 174-pound calves that brought $5.25, and More & Berry from Eucinal, with 830-pound cows that brought $2.85.

Jones & Richardson of Mountain View, O. T., had the top hogs of the early market. They sold 68 hogs of 275 pounds average at $5.60. They were an exceptionally fine load.

Steers were so scarce that a bunch of 51 was ordered in from a local feed lot. They were short fed and sold at $3.25 on a 958-pound average.

Cattle are not fat and will not be ready for market for thirty days. However, everybody is taking an optimistic view of the future of the cattle market, and buyers are more anxious to do business than sellers. Should rain not fall some to enhance the growth of the 'tallow weed,' it is probable that cattle will not be ready for sixty days, and the movement will, in consequence, be extremely light. Every thing looks well enough down there, but it is problematical as to the

E. E. Teague, manager for Sterling Clark on his Runnels county ranch, passed through the city Thursday. Mr. Teague was accompanied by his sister, Mrs. John Clack, the wife of a prominent stock farmer of Hylton, Nolan county, and both brother and sister were on their way to the bedside of their mother, whom a message announced was very ill at her home in Crowley.

Mr. Teague said there had been no snow or rain in his section, and that fine weather prevailed when he left.

South Texas Needs Rain

R. W. Edwards, who has a place near Cotulla, Texas, in La Salle county. was in the city and was found at the Fort Worth Live Stock Exchange. He came up with a car of steers and two cars of cows, the stock belonging to Johnson Bros, of Millett, Texas. "Rain is needed in my section," Mr. Edwards said, "or in a short time cattle will begin to lose flesh. The grass is fine, but dry as chips. Range cattle are in good ordinary fix, but suckling cows are very thin.

"The tallow weed is coming in great shape, and is a surprise to us, as it has never shown up in our country over 60,000 pounds of tankage. This before. Down below us, in the country around Bodro, the weed is also "Shipping cattle will be scarce un-

NO MERCY IS SHOWN

Two Hundred Castles Have So Far Been Burnt by Peasantry in Livonia

By Associated Press. (Delayed in Transmission.)

WEDEN, Livonia, Thursday-Pacification of the Baltic providences is reaching final stage, so far as Agrarian movement is concerned. Nearly 250 revolutionists have been shot, several thousand are under arrest, 5,000 rifles have been captured by the troops. Generals Orloff, Meinhardt and Wendt are now operating in Weden district with 10,000 troops, completing a circle in which revolutionists are being gathered.

Generals have named leaders of the revolutionists who will be tried by court martial when caught, and either shot or imprisoned. Many of those already executed are Lettish teachers

Revolutionists have stopped burning buildings, but they occasionally fire on the troops. Among the burned cas-tles is that of Baron Rosen Grossrop, about twenty miles north of Weden, which was destroyed with all its contents, servants who have been in the service of the baron for twenty years assisting in the work of destruction. Altogether the revolutionists in this district have burned 200 castles, valued at $4,000,000 dollars, without including the articles of value which they con-

Inter-Collegiate Athletic Association Meets at New York Special to The Telegram

NEW YORK, Jan. 27 .- The Inter-Collegiate Athletic Association met here last night, President W. L. Stillman of California, presiding. It was decided to amend the by-laws to permit each college to enter as many as twelve men and start five in each competition. Heretofore the limit of entries was eight for five starters. It was also decided to declare dividends to colleges entering for more men in the competitions, the distances that the men travel to the meets to be taken into consideration in the distrib The annual convention of the association will be held at the Fifth Avenue hotel, Feb. 26, and the track meeting probably will take place at Williamsbridge.

FATE RESTS ON MICROBE Invisible Bacillus Holds Life or Death for Kentuckian

Special to The Telegram. DANVILLE, Ky., Jan. 27 .- A microbe will either land Edward Williams in the penitentiary or set him free.

Last July Williams and Samuel Landy, a wealthy merchant, engaged in a quarrel over a trivial matter, and Williams struck Landy on the head with an old brick, fracturing his skull. Physicians pronounced the wound serious, although not necessarily fatal, unless complications should arise. Eight days later Landy died of lock-

Eight or ten of the leading physicians of the Blue Grass were summoned, and testified that lockjaw cannot be contracted unless by microbe. The attorneys for Williams claimed that unless it could be proved beyond a reasonable doubt that Williams caused the microbe to take up its abode in the wound he could not be held responsible for the murder. Evidence was produced showing that Landy, against the advice of his physician, had rubbed common tallow on the wound, and that upon another occasion had spread a horse blanket out in the yard and taken a nap upon it.

Salvini Awarded Damages for Broken Contract by Supreme Court Jury Special to The Telegra

NEW YORK, Jan. 27 .- A jury in the state supreme court yesterday returned a verdict for $20,000 in favor of Tamasso Salvini, the Italian acotr, who sued Theodore A. Liebler and George C. Tyler, comprising the firm of Liebler & Co., theatrical agents, to recover that amount for alleged breach

According to the complaint, Salvini and the defendants entered into a contract by which the tragedian was to come to the United States and give a series of thirty performances in various cities during April and May, 1904. Owing to the burning of the Iroquois theater in Chicago, a postponement of the tour was agreed upon, but the original contract was never carried out. Salvini assigned the claim to Miss Direce St. Cyr and she in turn assigned it to Charles Saughness, through whom the action was brought.

Bulgarian Police Discover Hidden Arsenal in Salonika

Special to The Telegram. VIENNA, Jan. 27 .- A bomb factory that might well be called an arsenal has been raided by the police in the Bulgarian quarter of Demi-Hissar, a town in the vilayet of Salonika. The police found 400 finished bombs, 1,200 others almost completed, an enormous demijohn of nitroglycerin, several in-fernal machines, and hundreds of Mannlicher rifles.

The Bulgarian quarter of the town has been occupied by troops and a large number arrests of persons supposed to know something about the manufacture of the bombs have been

Daughter of Trackwalker Averts Double Wreck

Special to The Telegram HARRISBURG, Pa., Jan. 27.-Two passenger trains on the Northern Central railway were saved from being wrecked by Mary Ann McCall, aged 16 years, the daughter of a track walker living at Clark's Ferry. The girl saw a huge boulder roll from the mountain side onto the tracks near her home. Taking a lantern, she ran down the track and stopped the Erie express within a few yards of the obstruction. She then hurrled in the other direction, stopping the Erle fast

The tracks later were cleared by a wrecking crew.

TEMPLE IS ACTIVE

Central Texas Town Anxious to Be in on Katy Extension Special to The Telegram.

TEMPLE, Texas, Jan. 27 .- The report emanating from New Orleans to the effect that the Katy railway proposes to gain a New Orleans outlet by the purchase of several small roads in east Texas, which it will connect up and then extend the Trinity branch to Waco, has aroused a great deal of interest in Temple. Temple has cast covetous eyes upon the extension that it is expected will be made from Trinity westward.

Years ago the matter was under contemplation and the people of Temple paid the expenses of a preliminary survey and had all but arranged the matter with the then officials of the road, the amount of bonus and right of way, etc., being practically determined Then ensued the agreement between the trunk lines of Texas to build no new lines for a period of ten years and the subject was dropped. During this time, however, Temple has had her eve on that extension and President Finney has given the citizens a promise that whenever the Trinity and Colmesneil branch is extended in this direction Temple will be given the opportunity to have her say. The city is prepared to offer every inducement to the road to build this way and believes it can prove that it is the logical point to which track laying should extend. Confidence is had in Mr. Finney's promise that the matter will not be decided until Temple has had her chance.

TRAIN IN A SNOWSLIDE

SALIDA, Col., Jan. 27.-After being religiously suppressed by the officials of the Denver and Rio Grande at this point, the news of the engulfing of a passenger and freight train by an enormous snowslide near the Pueblo mine, south of Crested Butte, has just leaked out. Information of the disaster was received at the Denver and Rio Grande headquarters here, but the tip was passed along the line that any employe who divulged the fact would be instantly dismissed from the service of the road.

The accident happened about 6 o'clock in the evening, and it is considered little short of a miracle that the entire train was not swept into a deep ravine and all of the train crew and passengers killed. As it was one engine was more or less damaged and the majority of cars were buried under snow.

The train, which consisted of twenty empties, one car of stock and two passenger coaches, drawn by two engines, left Gunnison at 11 o'clock north on the Crested Butte branch. All went well until 6 o'clock, when a huge slide came down as the train was passing the Pueblo mine. The train reeled for a moment as the avalanche of white struck it, but only one of the coaches, both of which were behind the engine, was derafled.

Had the derailed coach gone a few feet further it would have plunged over a precipice. The only passenger to suffer severely was a Mrs. Shaefer, who, because of her age, almost died from the exposure of going from the scene of the slide to Crested Butte, a journey that consumed two hours. Mrs. Shaefer fell exhausted several times and finally had to be carried to safety by members

The Ill fated train was not released . until nearly forty-eight hours and

Special to The Telegram. WASHINGTON, Jan. 27 .- A part of Spanish America is coming to the rescue of the United States. The more stable Central and South American governments are planning to take the burden off President Roosevelt and to promise that in the future they will do the required policing in the turbu-

It requires no special sharpness of observation or shrewdness of understanding to know that this proposal from the greater countries to the south of us has come after a pointed suggestion from this government that it would be well received. It has been the belief of the higher officials in Washington for a long time that such countries as Mexico, Brazil, Argentina and Chili should take some of the burden and worry of keeping the minor countries from fighting among themselves and from tempting foreign governments to make warlike demonstrations with their battleships.

DEADLY CURVE GOES

Pennsylvania to Eliminate Famous Horseshoe by Mammoth Tunnel

By Associated Press. NEW YORK, Jan. 27.-A dispatch to the Times from Pittsburg, Pa., says the famous horseshoe curve on the Pennsylvania is to be eliminated.

Two methods are proposed and four sets of plans have been prepared. Two plans are for tunnels through the Allegheny mountains, one nine miles and the other eleven miles long. Other plans are new routes across the mountains, one ninety and the other 105 miles long. The nine mile tunnel plan probably will be adopted. The tunnel would enter the mountains at or near Kittaning Point and emerge between Cressen and Lilly. This would be the second largest tunnel of the world. It will accommodate four tracks and will be ventilated with shafts reaching the crests of the mountains. All operations through it will be by electric power. The cost of the tunnel and making connections with the main line are estimated at more than $15,000,000.

Man Ossified Sixteen Years Ends Horrible Existence .

Special to The Telegram PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Jan. 27.-In death of Charles H. Conrad in the Episcopal hospital, a degree of Spartan courage was revealed in his life story that is almost without parallel in local medical circles. He was the "king of shut-ins," unable to move a muscle save that of his lower jaw. Following an attack of inflammatory rheumatism sixteen years ago, he was seized with rheumatoid arthritis, or the essification of the joints of the body. Exceedingly rare, the disease is incurable, and for nearly a score of years Conrad has lain in the hospital facing death to relieve him of his suffering. Conrad as a member of the German turnverein was giving an athletic exhibition one night, and at the close of it he lingered in a draft to speak with some friends. From the cold contracted in those few minutes his slow death

MAN ABOUT TOWN

H. M. Aerki, at one time a citizen and come to Fort Worth, which he intends to make his future home. He was born in Switzerland Aergan, Canton, and learned his trade, a baker and confectioner, in Geneva. He will spend a month here, then go to the territory, where he has some property, and in May will go to Galveston and sail from that port for Europe and his old home. He says the man from whom he learned his trade seventeen years ago is still doing business at the old stand. He will return in the fall to Fort Worth and open up a manufacturing confectionery somewhere in Houston street. "Fort Worth," he said, "is ahead of them all and in ten years will have

50,000 more people than Dallas."

J. E. Tilt, a shoe manufacturer of Chicago, is in the city today and is being shown about the city by Fort Worth merchants. He said this morning that this was his first trip through this section of the country. The trip was caused by the glowing reports that his salesmen had made of the country and had incited his curiosity. "The reports here were not half strong enough. Texas is the greatest place that I ever saw and I certainly am glad that I took this opportunity to come down and inspect your part of the United States."

Dodge Mason, one of the old west Toyas cattlemen, and one who has been connected with the cattle industry when Texas as a state was a prairie, and who resides at Kemp, in Kaufman county, was here today renewing his acquaintance with Heck Bell of Palo Pinto county, but who spends a great part of his time in this city. In speaking of the future of West Texas and matters in general in his section of the state, Mr. Mason

"People who want homes in Texas and especially west Texas, had better buy right now, as land is cheaper than it will ever be again in the section around Kemp or Forney. All the big ranges are being cut up into farms, and in former years where I used to handle about 100,000 head of developed steers I handle about 1,000. The country is settling up rapidly and more would come in if we had good roads. We have a bright prospect with a good future before us, but for the last several months we have had too much rain."

Colonel Ellwood Summersby of the Panhandle sat in the Hotel Worth lobby, chewing the end of a meditative cigar. Colonel Summersby made a fortune in a lucky cattle sale last fall and with the proceeds made a visit to New York, where he had never been. Formerly a member of the Texas cavalry during the war, and having lived all his life in the open air as a rancher, Colonel Summersby is well-seasoned and hardy. While in New York he met some friends, and having much money made numberless others. They all proceeded to show him a good time. Being a well-seasoned and hardy cavalryman, Colonel Summersby stood it all. "They certainly showed me a good time, sir," said Co'onel Summersby to the inquisitor. "For a whole week, suh, I never went to bed till 2 or 3 o'clock in the morning. It was a strenuous existence. "About the seventh day, however, I felt the need of sleep. I retired, if you will believe me, at 7 o'clock and slept for twenty-four hours. "During that twenty-four hours had a most remarkable dream. I dreamt I had died and gone to heaven. I walked up to the Golden Gate and there stood St. Peter with the keys. He saw my old gray uniform, and that seemed to be some kind of a passport, for he let me in directly. "Seeing that I looked sorter skittish in the crowd, St. Peter undertook to show me around. He showed me the golden streets, and the crystal rivers, and the orchards of trees, each bearing twelve kinds of fruit twelve months in the year, and the clouds of little cherubim floating around in the ruddy light, singing to their golden harps. All the spirits looked happy, and the music was very grand. It was all very beautiful and I was much impressed. "Finally we came to a spirit sitting on the ground, leaning against a wall in the sunlight. His wings trailed in the golden dust, his harp lay on the ground and his chin was in his hands. up to him.

"'What's the matter, my friend,' he asked. 'Aren't you happy? "The spirit shook his head. 'Miserable!' he said, moodily. "St. Peter was much astonished. He had never met a case like this before. 'What's the matter with you?' he asked. 'Don't you enjoy music? Don't vou like the golden fruit? Isn't the landscape pretty?'

"'It's all that,' replied the spirit, and he sighed. 'Then what's the matter with you?'

"'Well, I'll tell you,' he said, stand-ing up suddenly. "Two weeks I have been here. At first I was delighted, overjoyed, in ecstasy. But it gradually wore off.' He sighed again and shook his head. 'St. Peter,' he said, I have been here two weeks, and all that time I've been hunting for a familiar face. I haven't found one, haven't met a friend. I came from New York, suh, and I'm so d-d lone-

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Christian Tabernacle held an important meeting Thursday, and elected officers for the ensuing terms. Mrs. W. J. Gilvin was elected president, Mrs. Elmo Sledd, first vice president; Mrs. W. P. Lane, second vice president, and Mrs. Kennison, secretary and treas-

The Imperial Club's dance in honor of the Dunham-Larimer wedding party was a bright event of the social week. On account of the popularity of the young people a number of out of the club friends were invited.

The first exception this winter to the rule of "club" dances for club members only, was made at this party. Among those present were Mrs. Hunter Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. Nevers, Mr. and Mrs. Prible, Mrs. Bacon Saunders. Mrs. J. C. Saunders of Bonham. Misses Larimer, Geneviveve Tarlton of Austin, Courts of Galveston, Annie Newlin, Jenkins, Humphreys, Jordan, Stripling, McCart, Wombwell, Browne, Anderson, Saunders, Grace Hollingsworth, Juanita Hollingsworth, Chalk, West, Wilson, Fakes, Williams, Vogel, Cornelia Vogel, Crowley, Jordan, Mc-Cord of Coleman, Spoonts, Diehl, Stewart of St. Joe, Bourke of Austin; Messrs. Dear Sir.-I have been a sufferer from Catarrh since 1873. I contracted the disease during the Modoc war in that foggy climate of the Lovan I have tried almost all known remedies without any permanent relief.

Your Catarrh Cure was recommended to me and I decided to try it, although I had no faith in it. Up to the time I commenced using your remedy I had to use a handkerchief constantly during the night, many nights sleep being impossible. I have not used one bottle of your Catarrh Cure yet, and am not troubled at night at all, and but little in the daytime. I think your Catarrh Cure is the greatest blessing and friend to the people suffering with this disease ever discovered, and I would recommend it to all sufferers from Catarrh in any form. Sincerely yours, CAPTAIN W. F. DRANNAN.

PERSONAL'

TEXAS NATIONAL LIFE INSUR-ANCE COMPANY OF FT. WORTH. To the Public: About three months ago I was among you to promote the above company, and went so far as to have the plans up before the Board of Trade of this city, and they gave both my plans and myself indorsement. There has been so much agitation of past several months relative to life insurance that I have thought it but prudent for me to try and be certain before I go further. With this point in view, I have consulted with several of our best business men, and some of the leading members of the state legislature, and have concluded to wait for sixty or ninety days, and see what is going to be done in the special session, etc. I would have you remember that I have not given up the organization-not by any means. I will take the matter up again just as soon as I think it expedient to do so, and want to make this a purely people's company as far as we can all make it so. In the meantime I shall be among you representing several old line companies and will appreciate any favors shown me. If you have in mind to take out any life insurance drop me a note. It will do you no harm, and I may be able to do you good. My counsel will cost you nothing. J. A. BORDEAUX. Box 329.

MISSOURI SUIT AGAINST STANDARD OIL CO.

Mr. Henry H. Rogers Answers Important Question

MR. H. CLAY PIERCE'S STATEMENT

At the hearing yesterday, at 67 Wall Street, in the case of the State of Missouri against the Standard Oil Company, Republic

Oil Company and Waters Pierce Oil Company before Commissioner Sanborn, Mr. Henry H. Rogers, Vice-President of the Standard Oil Company, on the witness stand asked permission to answer one of the questions previously put to him.

Mr. Frank Hagerman of counsel for the Standard Oil Company, said:

"Q. Mr. Rogers, I understand you are willing to make some change in your testimony heretofore given."

Mr. Rogers replied: "A. Yes, I desire, in fairness to Mr. H. Clay Pierce, to change my answer to one of the questions propounded by the Attorney General, on page 195 of the typewritten transcript of the testimony which reads as follows: 'Q. Did you have some business transaction with H. C. Pierce in the year 1904, by which you secured either for yourself or the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey or the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, all or part of the stock of the Waters Pierce Oil Company?' I declined to answer that question the same as I did many others propounded by the Attorney General, solely on the advice of my attorney. Inasmuch as it now seems that my refusal to answer that question might injure Mr. Pierce, I now answer to the question that I never had any such business transaction with Mr. Pierce in 1904, or at any other time."

MR. ROGERS' STATEMENT | MR. PIERCE'S STATEMENT

"In addition to Mr. Rogers' amended answer, I may add that I did not in the year 1904, nor at any other time, have any business transaction with Mr. Henry H. Rogers, or with the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, or the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, or any other Standard Oil Company, or with any individual or bank, or other corporation, or any one representing or acting for or or behalf of any Standard Oil Company whereby Mr. Henry H. Rogers or any Standard Oil Company or any other corporation, persons or person received from me or otherwise obtained any of my shares of stock in, or other evidence of my ownership of the Waters Pierce Oil Company."

yesterday's market seemed to show with plainness that the week's selling movement had spent its force with the exception of the continuing liquidation and although the market generally behaved as though the stocks offering for sale were inconsiderable, the pressure on Reading continued and was a factor of unsettling influence. The market closed with an all around slow which developed about the beginning of the last quarter of an hour, under the leadership of Reading and Colorado Fuel & Iron. Union Pa-Scific was rather vigorously attacked but offered stubborn resistance. The selling movement had very much the characteristic of one of the raids that are likely to occur in a bear campaign and that a bearish campaign had started lately has apparently been indicated by certain signs that have been presented. The number of shares of stocks sold today was 756,713 against 704,255 the same day last year. The total par value of bonds sold today was $2.548,000, against $5,441,000

Disposition of Vast Estate of Marshall Field

Abstract of Terms of the Will Disposing of $100,000,000 to $125,000,000 Property Filed in Probate Court of Cook County

In the list of beneficiaries in the vast estate of Marshall Field of Chicago, appears the name of Edward Nevers, to whom a bequest of $10,000 is made. Mr. Nevers is the general purchasing agent for the Field wholesale house, and is an uncle of Edward Nevers of this city, well known in society circles and a member of the office force of Swift & Company here.

The will of Marshall Field was filed Cook county Wednesday night. In bulk it was a counterpart of the size of the estate it bequeathed, being the most extensive document of the sort that has fallen into the hands of the

The will, consisting of 22,000 words, makes disposition of an estate that doubtless exceeds $100,000,000, probably reach $120,060,000, and may go even to $150,000,000.

$25,298,000 Specifically Devised The document specifically provides including the Field residence at 1905 Prairie avenue and its contents, the value of which is not estimated, and which is left to the widow, Della Spencer Caton Field during her life. When she dies the house and household appurtenances will fall to Mar-for building and endowment of the Field museum of natural history. Remainder to Two Grandsons When the specific gifts and bein trust and direct, reaching above $25,000,000, are all made, some to revert at the death of beneficiarles,,

Among the bequests that of chief public interest is a gift of $8,000,000

there remains a vast residuary estate, estimated at from $75,000,000 to $100,-000,000, which is inherited by the two sons of the late Marshall Field Jr. These are Marshall Field III. and Hen-They receive the property, in an elaborate trust, in this proportion: Marshall Field, three-fifths; Henry Field, two-fifths. The trustees of this great residuary fund are Chauncey Keep, Arthur B. Jones, and the Merchants' Loan and Trust Company. The trust is not in any event to be dissolved until the elder of the two boys. now 12 years of age, is 50 years old. Will Get Estate Gradually Mr. Field, however, provided that the boys shall have gradually growing incomes, and specified, moreovera that when they reach the age of dis- Mrs. Sophia Scott Earhart, cretion they shall become associated velop through work and responsibility. The will says this provision is made with a view to the true happiness of the boys themselves. The residuary estate under the trusteeship mentioned will hold in its

with the trustees and executors, in order that their character may de-bulk the entire business of Marshall Field & Company, to be continued uninterruptedly and without change in the policy developed through a generation by Mr. Field. A Thoughtless Druggist.

ONLY a thoughtless druggist would offer a preparation without the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher when Castoria is called for; the "delicate, faint and flickering light" that joins baby's life to its devoted parents being too sacred. to the self-respecting druggist, to be trifled with.

For over thirty years Mr. Fletcher has given, and still gives, his personal attention to the preparation of Castoria. It has won the confidence of mothers and physicians everywhere-never harmed the tiniest babe. This cannot be said of Imitations, Counterfeits and the "Just-as-good" rot.

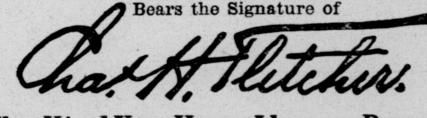

The thoughtless druggist only offers the counterfeit because of a few pennics more profit. Any new preparation can be but an experiment, and they are experiments-mere guess work--irrespective of what their sponsors may may for them. It is experience of over thirty years, against wild and injudicious experiment.

What is CASTORIA

Castoria is a harmless substitute for Castor Oil, Paregorie, Drops and Soothing Syrups. It is Pleasant, It contains neither Opium, Morphine nor other Narcotic substance. Its age is its guarantee. It destroys Worms and allays Feverishness. It cures Diarrhora and Wind Colic. It relieves Teething Troubles, cures Constipation and Flatulency. It assimilates the Food, regulates the Stomach and Bowels, giving healthy and natural sleep. The Children's Panacea-The Mother's Friend.

Freedom of Reserve Fund Is Necessary to Secure National Headquarters

That the Woodmen of the World will meet with hearty co-operation of the state in the endeavor to secure national headquarters of the organization for Fort Worth was shown at a meeting in this city Saturday afternoon between a committee of the Woodmen, Governor S. W. T. Lanham and State Senator W. A. Hanger, at which plans for an amendment to the state constitution relieving the reserve fund of the organization from taxation was

Request was made of the governor that he include in a special call of the legislature notice of consideration of such an amendment. The governor, however, pointed out that an amendment can only be made at a regular blennial session, the first of which will take place next January. Plan Approved

Governor Lanham assured the committee of his approval of such a course and declared his belief that it would be favorably met, but showed it to be impossible for him to act. · In discussing the matter with a representative of The Telegram, the governor declared it was a matter like that of the home for widows of veterans, one of which he approved, but concerning which he was unable under to Judge Curtis P. Smith, of the corporation court, the city of Dallas has the right to establish saloon limits. The test case was that of the city gainst Will Garonzick, who set up valous contentions against the validity of the ordinance, including imperfections in defining the limits, entrenchments upon the local options laws, excess of authority assumed by the legslature in granting certain powers to the city council of Dallas, and delegating to the city council powers that legislature alone can exercise. Judge Smith, in a lengthy opinion, sustains the validity of the ordinance, and also of the state law that authorizes the city council to enact the ordinance. When the war broke out he allied himself with the Confederacy and was attached to General Price's staff. WHITE CONFERS AND ACTS ALONE

Takes Bull by Horns at Moroccan Conference

(BY PAUL LAMBETH.)

LONDON, Jan. 27.—There is still an uneasy feeling in regard to the proceedings in Algeciras. It is thought that all is not as smooth as might the fund should be taxed in that | be, although nothing unfavorable has been learned officially. Still the uneasy feelings prevail, the same feelings that checked business on the London exchange several times this week, due to certain information received. Confidential Interviews have been had in Algeciras between Mr. White, chief of the United States delegation, > and the representatives of France and Germany, Mr. White taking the bull by the horns and in case, and acting without regard to the other delegates. What is now most feared is a collapse of the conference, owing to the strong disposition of France to let the whole thing come to naught, rather than consent to international control of the powerful military organization under the plenary powers, the policing of Morocco. This body is the crux of the difficulty, for its existence and management are of distinct bearing. M. Rouvier, the French premier, is believed to have abandoned the original Delcasse project for the peaceful absorption of Morocco into the French empire to the extent of being willing to see the principle of economic equality for all nations unanimously asserted by the conference. It is alleged with confidence, however, by conservative French journals, that the special position of France must be recognized if she is to join in the final

As the refusal of any member of the conference to acquiesce in any decision makes it nugatory, the question of the "police" rises to the first importance, and that of commerce retires into the background. "I Did Not Kick My Wife Out of Bed," Says Jas. Brodie in Answer

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.-James B. Duke, the millionaire tobacco mnaufacturer, filed a long and striking answer to his wife's sensational charges in the court of chancery in Trenton, N. J., today, denouncing her allegations as "scandalous, untrue and wholly unverified." Mr. Duke insists, however, that what he said about her is not only true, but that he will produce the servants of her own home to corroborate his statements. He alleges his intention of bringing out with great prominence her relations with Frank Huntoon. Some of the millionaire's

A striking feature of the answer is the manner in which the millionaire defends Miss Smith, his housekeeper, from his wife's attacks. "I deny that she is of common origin," he declares. "On the contrary, she is of respectable parents and has always been in good repute. Neither are her manners common in the sense of being low or disreputable. "It is true that she sometimes sat at the table with the defendant" (Mrs. Duke), the answer to the cross bill goes on to say, "but she always did so with the defendant's consent and Mr. Duke absolutely denies that he preferred the society of Miss Smith to that of his wife. Nor does he admit that he ever took her carriage or automobile riding contrary to the wishes of his wife. Mr. Duke, in conclusion, says that he never willfully attacked his wife's character, and that everything he has charged her with is true.

OVERTOOK TRAIN IN AUTOMOBILE

Houston Chief Catches Passen ger After Ex-Convict

HOUSTON, Texas, Jan. 27 .- A flying Galveston, Houston and Henderson passenger train was overtaken by Chief of Police Ellis and two detectives in an automobile this afternoon in effecting the capture of Martin Carr, an ex-convict of Wisconsin, thought to be connected with the La Porte, Texas, postoffice safe robbery of Thursday night. The train had departed with the fugitive about the time the officers discovered they wanted him. An automobile was pressed into service and after a nine-mile run the train was overhauled and Carr placed under arrest. He is being held here pending developments of the investigation in progress.

The chase lasted several minutes over unusually heavy roads.

HUMBLE OIL MEN STRIKE

Union Workers Are Now Out in Sympathy

FIELD NOW DESERTED

Final Test in the Other Texas Fields Will Be Made This Week

Special to The Telegram. HOUSTON, Jan. 27 .- At 12 o'clock today every union man employed in the Humble oil field went out on a strike in sympathy with the men of the Texas, Moonshine and Taber and Smith companies, and the field now presents a deserted appearance, except where a few non-union men are

Such is the statement made by Edward Perry, vice president of the Humble local union of oil and gas well

"Beyond stating that such is a fact," ontinues Mr. Perry, "there is nothing new to give out for publication. We are holding a meeting today to discuss ways and means of securing the ends for which we are striving, and at this meeting all union men will be present, as well as those who are not in the union, but still are in sympathy

A long distance message from L. H. Burton, chairman of the central council of oil workers, states that at simultaneous meetings held last night by local unions at Batson, Saratoga, Sour Lake and Spindle Top, it was decided not to go on strike yet, but to wait until Monday night, when more decisive steps might be taken. By that time the result of the strike at Humble will be known, and it will have been determined whether or not the men at Humble will have to call on the other unions to assist them. It is believed that, if such action is called for, the entire four other fields will also go

Did Not Get Anaconda Stock of Mrs. Marcus Daly

Special to The Telegram. NEW YORK, Jan. 27.- The many reports regarding the alleged sale by Mrs. Marcus Daly of her Anaconda stock to H. H. Rogers, or others, at private sale is authoritatively denied. John C. Lalor, agent and manager of the Marcus Daly estate, said this morning that it was not his custom to deny reports as a rule, but so many false rumors had been in circulation of late that he was willing in this instance to make a statement which was in substance as follows:

"Mrs. Daly has not sold her stock to Mr. Rogers or to any other party at private sale. There have been no negotiations with Mr. Rogers for any such purchase or sale at any price. Two parties who are in no wise connected with Mr. Rogers have made good offers for Mrs. Daly's holdings, but no specific price was ever even mentioned in these offers and both of them were turned down promptly without even being considered and Hrs. Daly today still holds her interests in Anaconda Copper stock."

COLONEL MANN UNDER ARREST

Aftermath of the Town Topics Case Begins

PERJURY THE CHARGE

Later Trial May Develop Sensationl Eclipsing Previous Revelations

NEW YORK, Jan. 27 .- Colonel William Edward Dalton Mann, editor-inchief of Town Topics, was arrested this afternoon on a charge of perjury growing out of his testimony in the libel suit against Norman Hapgood. The new move against Mann was decided upon in a conference between Mr. Hapgood's counsel, former District Attorney James W. Osborne and Robert J. Collier, with acting District Attorney Nott. The warrant was issued by Magistrate McAvoy on evidence that Colonel Mann had committed perjury when he denied having put his "O K" on the Count Reginald Ward letter, written to Moses Ellis Wooster in reference to the Rice syndicate stock deal, which was followed by complimentary references to the "Count," although he had been criticized and ridiculed before turning over the block of stock to Mann Was Waiting.

Mann had been apprised of the new move against him and was in his ofc fice awaiting the service of the warrant. Just before his arerst he said to a number of reporters: "Gentlemen, the man who has had the audacity to inspire this thing tried to hold me up for $2,500. I refused to come to time. "You see I am not very well off. I don't take much money away from here Saturday nights. Sometimes I take 15 cents and sometimes 20 cents.

Tonight I feel usually affluent. I have Bailed Out By Daughter.

The prisoner was arraigned before Justice McAvoy, sitting as a magistrate, and held for examaination next Thursday afternoon, bail being fixed at $10,000. It was furnished by Mann's daughter, Mrs. Albert A. Wray. The colonel then returned to his office. When he entered the special sessions court in company with Detective Flood, James W. Osborne, Robert J. Collier and Moses Wooster, who were chatting with Justice McAvov, arose. There was perfect silence, however, for a few moments. It was broken by the justice taking his seat and beginning to take the coloned's pedigree. Mann gave his age as 64 years and his home as 309 West Seventy-second street. He said he was an editor and

"You Are Charged With Perjury." "You are charged with committing purgery in a recent trial," said the court. "Do you desire to make any statement?" Mann, who was very pale, answered in a subdued voice: "In no way. I know nothing about it. I have been unable to reach counsel in time to "Well, I will read you the affidavits," said the justice. He then began to read the document, which was signed by Robert J. Collier, and charged that in the trial of the case brought by Justice Deuel for criminal libel the colonel had testified falsely that the letters "O. K., W. D. M." which appeared in a circle on a letter written by "Count" Reginald Ward to Wooster were not made by him and that he had never seen the letter. Letter Is Quoted.

The letter was dated in London, May 4, 1903, and read: "Thanks for yours of the fifth insant, the contents of which I have carefully perused and am looking forward with much interest to the paragraphs to which I refer. NEW 100-MILE RECORD MADE IN ORMOND RACES

(By Duncan Curry.) Special to The Telegram.

HOTEL ORMOND, ORMOND, Fla., Jan. 27.-After many preparations, postponements, and delays the much talked of 100-mile race took place here

A new record for the world, 100 miles in 1:15:45, was made. The winner, W. L. Clifford Earp, drove his Napler to victory after running sixtyfive miles without a tire on his rear right wheel. The time of the leaders was: W. C. Earp, 86-horsepower Napier, one hour and 15 minues, forty seconds. Cedrine, Italian car, one onds; Hilliard, 80-horsepower Napier, one hour, twenty-one minutes and five seconds. Earp's time clips 2:44 off Fletcher's last year's record. Cedrine, who also had tire trouble, finished second, fifty-nine seconds behind the winner, while Hilliard, of Boston, in a Napier car, was third in one hour, twenty-one minutes and five seconds. Lancia, who was doing well for a time, smashed his radiator and withdrew in the forty-ninth mile.

Other Events Postponed. The two-miles-a-minutes event and other events which were scheduled for today have been put over until Monday; but there will be few persons to witness them, as exasperating delays of the public, who make the game pos-have killed the interest in the races sible.

come popular, something must be done to control the drivers. They seem to think they are the only ones to be considered. They delay races for hours by refusing to start for some trivial reason and put on more airs than a metropolitan opera house prima donna. While the A. A. A. is supposed to have complete control over racing, they rarely seem to exercise their powers. As a result the chauffeurs un things to suit themselves, and start and stop when they please. If the game is not to be killed entirely the chauffeurs should be treated very much as the jockeys on our big race tracks are. They should be placed in control before the races start and not allowed to leave until their particular race is called. If they are not ready in five or ten minutes they should lose their chance by default to first start-

Would Prevent Delays. While this might work a hardship in some cases it would do much to popularize the sport, and would prevent these tiresome delays, which kill the game and drive away the support

ABILENE EPILEPTIC COLONY IS CROWDED

In Two Years the Institution Has Made Record

TEXAS A GREAT STATE

Four Hundred More Applicants Than Accommodations Arranged So Far

ABILENE, Texas, Jan. 27 .- Few people of the older settled regions in Texas are familiar with the work now being done at one of the state's newest institutions-the epileptic colony at Abilene. The colony was established only recently, just two years ago, and it has thus far been so crowded as to provide for only a portion of those who apply, hence probably many persons imagine the work being carried on here is largely of a preliminary nature and not yet of any considerable proporure true. The work is as yet preliminary in-so-far as the preparations of an institution to care for all of the state's epileptic patients is considered. But in volume of work accomplished and in the manner with which it is dispatched the epileptic colony at Abilene stands as one of the best examples among the whole list of Texas' eelymosynary institutions,

The colony is located on a 640 acre tract of land about two miles southeast of Abilene. Dr. John Preston, the present superintendent, selected the site which is unusually well adapted to the woods of a growing institution. The land secured by the state is a rich chocolate loam, very fertile, and well adapted to raising all kinds of farm products needed in supplying the colony's needs. The eastern part of the colony farm is higher than the Abilene townsite and from it a good view of the town can be obtained. From this elevation the land slopes gently to the west. The colony buildings are erected

At present the colony buildings num-

The hospital buildings are three stories high. The other two buildings in each row are two stories high, called "cottages" and provide accomodations for forty pa-

To the west of the hospitals and cottages lie the laundry, the bakery and the power house. All of the nine principal buildings on the colony farm are built of brick, of pleasing architectural design, although necessarily plain. The plan of the grounds on which they are located has been made with a view to an increase in the number of cottages in the group and likewise the number of "rows."

Between the rows of buildings are well-made graveled roads. There is a gravel bank on the colony farm and the roads have been made with no cost aside from the labor.

To the east of the administration building and the superintend dence, the grounds have been laid out for a park. Trees have been planted and walks made. Water for the colony is pumped from

Abilene lake to elevated tanks, which furnish enough pressure for all needs. The farm ground of the colony surrounds the buildings and has been divided for various purposes according to convenience. About 300 acres of the 640-acre tract are under cultivation. To better understand the work of the colony, the reader should know that the state's provision for its epileptics is along the line of similar institutions in some of the older states of the east and north. Craig colony in New York has at present about 1,-

000 patients. At Abilene there are now

To secure admission to the colony an epileptic patient must be neither an an imbecile, or infirm. There are three classes of patients-pay, nonindigent and indigent. The pay patients are those who are able to furnish the actual cost of their maintenance while at the colony. The average charge is about $5 per week. The non-indigent patients are those able to furnish at least part of their maintenance cost, usually clothing. The indigent patients are supported wholly at the state's cost. The present annual cost of keeping a patient at the colony, of the entire institution, is $250. Pay patients are received on the certificate of a phisician; non-indigent patients are usually assigned to the institution by courts as are lunatics to the various asylums of the state. Indigent patients come largely from the poor houses of the various counties. Epilepsy, as most persons know is disease affecting its victims both mentally and physically. It is estimated by experts that 1 in 500 persons throughout the United States are sufferers from epilepsy at some period in Sometimes the disease does not makes it appearance until old The treatment provided at the Abilene colony, as well as at the other colonies of the United States, consists largely in a system of right living, regular hours for sleeping and eating. a careful diet and regular exercise, but medical and in some cases surgical treatment is also extensively used. The treat of epilepsy is slow. A patient is not considered "cured" until two years have elapsed without the recurrence of an attack. Because of this long period required and the fact that the colony at Abilene has been established only two years, the number of "cures" contained in the institution's statistical reports is likely to be mis-

able to care for themselves. They can- | after competitive bids from three of not even serve as attendants in the cottages or hospitals. The most they can do is help in some of the work under the guidance of regular colony

This condition leads to the need of much attention on the part of the col-ony authorities. Each of the 222 patients is visited twice a day by Dr. Preston or his assistant, Dr. T. B. Bass. These visits are the same as any physician makes on his patients. In many cases medicines are prescribed, and in some cases preparations for surgical treatment have to be made. Any city physician who had one-fifth of the colony patients to care 222, although the buildings furnish ac-commodations for only 220. There hospital would consider the task an will be used exclusively for hospital cial study of epilepsy and at present

ardnous one, but under the present state appropriation for the work only two physicians can look after the work

When a patient is received, he or she is assigned to one of the hospitals or cottages. There are at present 400 more applicants for treatment at Abilene than there is room. Eight more cottages, according to Dr. Preston, are needed now to supply the demand. In the dormitory or hospital the patient has a bed in one of the plainly furnished but comfortable rooms. The rooms are so crowded that the patients have no sitting room except on the beds or in the halls, and the latter are narrow. On pleasant days the women get exercise by walking, as well as in helping care for their rooms. The men play baseball or help in the lighter farm tasks. There are no visible signs of discipline in the care for the patients. They are free to roam about the buildings or grounds, except when their illness is such as to require them to remain in their rooms.

A Huge Hospital

The appearance of the whole series of buildings occupied by the patients is that of a big convalescing hospital. The attitude of the patients toward Superintendent Preston borders on the affectionate, and he is regarded apparently by each one as his or her best friend in the entire institution.

Although the quarters at the colony are cramped, provision for the comfort of the patients is as adequate as possible. The buildings are probably better constructed than any other institutional buildings in the state. They are substantial, well lighted and ventilated, are heated by steam and provided with hot and cold baths. night they are electrically lighted, the light being supplied from the colony's own plant. The power plant also furnishes electric power for the laundry and steam for heating purposes.

purposes. In each there is an operating room, equipped with the most modern apparatus. Convenient to this operating room are a number of surgical wards. Life at the colony is simple. The days are spent quietly in rest, recreation or light tasks. The patients have a dance every Friday night. They have parlor games for their amusement during the day time. About three times a month church services are held. A few of the women patients engage in knitting or sewing. Of the patients now at the colony ninety-nine are female, the remainder male. All ages are represented. Some of the patients are progressing rapidly toward cures, while others are just beginning to make progress.

Some of the Needs Some of the colony's greatest and most pressing needs as outlined by Dr. Preston, are as follows: An appropriation of $150,000. Eight more cottages providing for forty patients each.

A three-story building to be used as a store room in the basement, recreation room, on the second floor, and assembly room or church on the third. At present the patients go to church in the second story of an old shed which the contractors left when they quit work at the colony. The recreation room is needed not only for that purpose but as a place where the patients may spend their time in bad weather. Now they are compelled to sit in their crowded bed rooms or the narrow halls. A small building of the character desired is now under construction, but when completed it will be inadequate for even the present

A school which the younger patients may attend while at the colony.

Magazines and pamphlets. The supply of these is limited and the charitably inclined people of Texas could do much to relieve the long hours spent in enforced idleness by many of the patients with a comparatively inexpensive outlay.

More attendants to care for the patients. The last legislature cut the colony force down ten. At present the total number of attendants including one cook and three nurses is in the ratio of 4 to 40 patients. A need of the colony, not suggested by Dr. Preston, is more time for himself to be spent in scientific investigation. This important work at present has to be practically omitted. Dr. Preston was formerly superintendent at the Terrell asylum and prior to that was assistant physician at the owing to his crowded hours, is unable to continue his investigations.

The Most Striking Features The most striking features of the colony life to the lay visitor are the excellent system with which it is conducted, the simplicity and smoothness with which the life of the patients is regulated, scrupulous cleanliness and neatness in the buildings and about every part of the grounds, and last, in no degree the least important the evident cheerfulness among the patients. The work at Abilene is being conducted unostentatiously. The majority of even Abilene's citizens The conduct of the colony farm is in itself so interesting that a separate

YOAKUM BUYS LLANO MOUNTAIN

Editor Boynton Says Magnate Will Develop Ore Deposits

AUSTIN, Texas, Jan. 27.—Benjamin F. Yoakum has acquired a major in Llano county, and will forthwith proceed to develop its immense mineral resources, says C. T. Boynton, editor and publisher of the Llano

From time immemorial there have been periodical rumors about the development of the fron mountain on the Bar M ranch, in Llano county. That it abounds in ore of a high qua is said by experts to be unquesti but the problem of developing the ore lodes into iron mines has not beer tackled seriously by capitalists.

The proximity of Llano to the Frisco lines, however, the need for some original source of supply for the rail. road's metal at this end of the system, and the unlimited capital hehind Yoakum for the development of Texas. lends more color to this story than to any of the previous ones. Mr. Boynton is positive, he says, of the intentions of Mr. Yoakum. He further says that the Frisco line will be extended from San Antonio to the inevitable result-kidney trouble. This tender nerve is only one of a great system of nerves. This system contiols not only the kidneys, but the heart, and the liver and the stomach. For s mplicity's sake Dr. Shoop has called this great nerve system the "Inside Nerves." They are not the nerves of feeling-not the nerves that enable you to walk, to talk, to act, to think. They are the master nerves and every vital organ is their slave. The common name for these nerves is the "sympathetic nerves"-because each set is in such close sympathy with the others that weakness anywhere usually results in weakness everywhere.

The one remedy which aims to treat not the Kidneys themselves, but the nerves which are to blame, is known by physicians and druggists everywhere as Shoop's Restorative, (Tablets or Liquid.) This remedy is not a symptom remedy-it is strictly a cause remedy. While it usually brings speedy relief, its

Weak Kidneys BROKERS BOUGHT FROM RAILROAD?

Charge Made in Damage Suit Petition

R. E. Barmon has filed suit against the Texas and Pacific railroad seeking to recover $2,000 damages, alleging that he was wrongfully ejected from one of defendant's passenger

The petition in the case alleges that

Barmon, on Dec. 22, was in the employ of W. N. Griswold, a ticket broker; that Griswold had an agreement with the Texas and Pacific railroad under which he would purchase at reduced rates books of transportation between Fort Worth and Dallas over the Texas and Pacific road, which he would sell at an advanced price to people going from Fort Worth to Dallas; that under the agreement Griswold was permitted to send his agent along with parties who bought transportation from him on the trains of the Texas and Pacific to pay the fare of his customer out of the transportation books he had bought, going as far as Handley in order to pay the fare of the passengers buying Griswold's tickets, and getting back the transportation books. That on the date mentioned the plaintiff, as agent for Griswold, boarded a train with a lot of passengers under the contract between Griswold and defendant, but was ejected from the train by the conductor one mile east of Fort Worth, and was compelled to walk back to the city.

What Sulphur Does

The mention of sulphur will recall to many of us the early days when our mothers and grandmothers gave us our daily dose of sulphur and molasses very spring and fall. It was the universal spring and fall 'blood purifier," tonic and cure-all, and nind you, this old-fashioned remedy vas not without merit. The idea was good, but the remedy was crude and unpalatable, and a large quantity had to be taken to get any Nowadays we get all the beneficial effects of sulphur in a palatable, concentrated form, so that a single grain is far more effective than a tablespoonful of the crude sulphur.

In recent years, research and experiment have proven that the best sulphur for medicinal use is that obtained from Calcium (Calcium Sulphide) and sold in drug stores under the name of Stuart's Calcium Wafers. They are small chocolate coated pellets and conain the active medicinal principle of sulphur in a highly concentrated, ef-

Few people are aware of the value of this form of sulphur in restoring and maintaining bodily vigor and health; sulphur acts directly on the liver and excretory organs and purifies and enriches the blood by the prompt elimination of waste material.

Our grandmothers knew this when they dosed us with sulphur and molasses every spring and fall, but the rudity and impurity of ordinary flowers of sulphur were often worse than the disease, and cannot compare with the modern concentrated preparations of sulphur, of which Stuart's Calcium Wafers is undoubtedly the best and nost widely used. They are the natural antidote for hver and kidney troubles and cure con-stipation and purify the bood in a way that often surprises patient and physician alike.

Dr. R. M. Wilkins while experimenting with sulphur remedies, soon found that the sulphur from Calcium was For liver, kidney and blood troubles, specially when resulting from constipation or malaria, I have been surprised at the results obtained from Steart's Calcium Wafers. In patients suffering from boils and pimples and $850. even deep-seated carbuncles, I have repeatedly seen them dry up and disappear in four or five days, leaving the skin clear and smooth. Although Stuart's Calcium Wafers is a proprietary article, and sold by druggists, and for that reason tabooed by many physicians, yet I know of nothing so safe and reliable for constipation, liver and kidney troubles and especially in STATE DEFICIT REDUCED. Another Call Issued For Registered Warrants By State Treasurer.

Special to The Telegram AUSTIN, Jan. 27 .- State Treasurer Robbins this afternoon issued another call for registered warrants. The call embraced all warrants up to and including 5146 and amounted to This reduced the net deficit to $1,-104,892.70. The number of warrants called in was 2,506. Mr. Robbins stated that the collections of taxes was not coming in as rapidly as could be expected, which accounts for the large deficiency which is still apparent to the credit of the general revenue fund. It was at first thought that the credit would be materially reduced by February 1, but now it is thought that the deficit will be below a million dollars at that

HUNTING PARTY RETURNS End of the Season Excursion to Smith-

The following men formed a party to Smithville Thursday: G. R. Carmack, John R. Durnell, J. W. Ogwin and Charley Moore. Mr. Carmack was the head of the party, and it was entertained in royal style at Smithville by Mr. Carmack's father and brotherin-law, M. P. Russell. The hunters report quail and rabbits in great abundance. They had no difficulty in securing all they wished for themselves and friends. A feature of the trip was an old-time country party at which they enjoyed the oldtime games of Snap and Ring-Arounda-Rosy. The entire party returned to Fort Worth highly pleased with their

Between Bargains of Commanding Importance!

Last week was another and most conclusive evidence of the confidence the people have in the statements of the Burton-Peel store when a sale is announced. The people of Fort Worth know that the facts are understated rather than overstated-no matter how closely bordering on the impossible they may appear to be, every shopper knows that the facts are exactly as stated, and that's what brought such a constant throng of people to this store every day the past week-early and late-busy buyers were rolling up the biggest week's business of the season. Of course stocks were reduced, but there must still be many thousands of dollars' worth of winter goods disposed of, and in order to accomplish it prices, where possible, have been forced still lower. You'll find many articles from the white sale reduced in this sale. Embroideries, Laces and Undermuslins. The wise will not miss chances such as are detailed below. Enlarged sales force for tomorrow will enable your being waited upon more promptly than the week past.

WHAT IT MEANS TO YOU Few People Realize the Importance of Good Digestion Until It Is Lost Many people suffer from dyspepsia not know it. They feel mean, out of states, peevish, do not sleep well. do not have a good keen appetite, do not have the inclination and energy for physical or mental work they once had, but at the same time do not feel any particular pain or distress in the stomach. Yet all this is the result of poor digestion, an insidious form of Dyspepsia which can only be cure i by a remedy specially intended to cure it and make the digestive organs act naturally, and properly digest the food eaten. Bitters, after dinner pills and nerve tonics will never help the trouble; they don't reach it. The new medical discovery does. It is called Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets and is a specific for dyspepsia and indigestion. It cures because it thoroughly digests all wholesome food taken into the stomach, whether the stomach is in good working order or not.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, by digesting the food, instead of making the worn-out stomach do all the work, gives it a much-needed rest and a cure of dyspepsia is the natural result. When you are nervous, run down

ALICES' WEDDING KEEPS ROOSEVELTS BUSY

Special Correspondence. WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.-Miss Alice Roosevelt will be compelled to eat two dinners each night and divide her evenings into several portions, if she accepts all the hospitality which is extended. Since the announcement of her engagement, she has suggested that post-nuptial entertainment was preferable to a whirl during a season which is trying to any bride-elect, but her friends have not taken the hint. Preparations for the wedding take

It has been estimated that invitations, cards to the reception and the announcement cards which will be dispatched all over the civilized world will make a grand total of 10,000. These cards the President has ordained must be engraved at his own expense and they must be addressed by clerks specially engaged for the purpose. As to thereception it is stated that if the President pays the slightest regard to official status, not less than 1,000 will drink to the health of the "American princess." The guests in the aggregate are estimated to reach 1,500. The breakfast is to be served in the state dining room and the finest caterers in New York have been retained. The delicacies will be brought from the ends of the earth. Already dainties are arriving at the White House from ambitious merchants who will like such an occasion to advertise their wares.

A Chinese merchant of San Francisco sent some especially fine conserved ginger with the hope that Miss Roosevelt would eat some on her wedding morning. It did not seem a particularly appropriate gift, and Mr. Longworth at least does not wish any ginger interjected into the proceedings, but Miss Roosevelt sent a letter of acknowledgment and the gift is duly re-

The President's daughter will be attended only by her youngest sister. Church Significance of the Day-Candlemas Couplets Suggesting Dinner Ideas-Progressive Medley BY EDITH A. BROWN.

(Copyright, 1906, by Jos. B. Bowles.) The last echo of Christmas comes with Candlemas on Friday next-Feb. 2-and although the day is not one of general celebration, some few countries adhere to its observance as strictly as to Christmas day itself. In its eccleslastical meaning the day is of importance in the Roman Catholic church, its very name being derived from the fact that on this day is given and those required for the remainder of the year are consecrated.

But the day has many meanings aside from its church significance. It is a civil day in Scotland and old weather-watchers have many prognostications hovering about the day. The

"If Candlemas is fair and clear, There'll be twa winters in the year." And the older generations of Americans, the great majority of whom were reared on farms, will remember the regular investigation on that day of the corncribs and the haystacks and other places where the food for the cattle and horses has been put for the winter, for the day meant that the winter was half over and-"Candlemas day

Half your corn and half your hay." already used meant the supply would The ancient Romans burned candles mother of Mars, and this gives the day a heathen aspect, with a touch of the myth. It was this heathen practice, in fact, that the Pope Sergius, unable to prohibit because of its ancient observance, turned into a Christian service by having the candles burned to the Virgin Mary instead.

This medley of meanings gives the day many avenues for entertainment. A dinner with the table laid one-half for winter and one-half for the approaching spring, in observance of the farmers' Candlemas couplet, could be made a jolly and novel affair for a would make an effective centerpiece,

BAY ST. LOUIS, Miss., Jan. 27 .-Because he wore a hat in a ballroom, Coban La Fontaine was killed by C. T. Smith, manager of the Gondon Naval Stores company here. Smith was released on $500 bond while La Fontaine lay in the hospital. He died, and the deputy was sent after Smith, but has so far failed to find him. His friends assert that he will be on hand for the preliminary trial. When La Fontaine walked into the ballroom with his hat on Smith ordered him to remove it. He refused, and a row was started. La Fontaine knocked Smith down and Smith on the ground pulled a pistol and shot the other in the stomach. With wild shrieks the girls scattered. Not a hand was laid on Smith, who surrendered when the officers came and was released on bond.

It is said they are meeting with considerable success, and numbers of converts are being shipped over to Utah. Recruits are being transferred into the state of Utah, it is said, to preserve the control of that state to the Mormon church, whose hold is being seriously threatened by the inroads of the new

YOAKUM QUIET; PEOPLE ANXIOUS

Unusual Taciturnity Awakens Wide Surmise

Advices have been received here that Colonel B. F. Yoakum, chairman of the Rock Island Frisco directorate, will be in Dallas Sunday and it is believed that he will also come over to Fort Worth. Colonel Toakum will be accompanied | said. by a party of Rock Island and Frisco officials, some of whom have been touring Texas with him during the past few days. The officials who were in Fort Worth a few days ago joined Colones Yoakum at Houston and the entire party visited Galveston and other

Dints in south Texas. Colonel Yoakum's visit to Texas was looked forward to by the railroad reporters all over the state, because of the numerous interests he now has in the state and the projects and reports concerning them, which would furnish material for good newspaper stories. It always easily approachable and arteous to the newspaper fraternity and that he had furnished many good interviews in the past. Reports from all parts of the state, however, go to show that during his present visit Colonel Yoakum is not willing to confide anything to the public and he has politely but firmly refused to divulge anything to the reporters throughout the state concerning his plans. Colonel Yoakum is now being referred to as a power in the railroad world and as the intellect of the southwest. Some idea of his power can be obtained when it is remembered that the Rock Island-Frisco system as consolidated under Colonel Yoakum's management consists of 15,000 miles of | track, extending through the northwest, rest, middle west and the far west. Inluding the lines which he is building the southwest and toward the Pacific northwest, the aggregate mileage of the roads which he dominates is

A coast line is now being constructed by Yoakum, which when completed will be 3,500 miles long. He also has a large number of small roads in the southwest. Roads in which he is the power are gradually extending from the southwest to the northwest in the direction of the north Pacific coast. Surveyors are now laying out a route from Marion, below Memphis, to Baton Rouge, from which point the Frisco will operate over the Illinois Central tracks to New Orleans, and it is only necessary to build a road from Burlington, Iowa, to St. Louis, to provide a Rock Island and Frisco line with tracks from Watertown, S. D. to St. Paul and Minneapolis to New Orleans.

Members of Party The officials who have made up the Yoakum party through Texas are as follows: B. L. Winchell, president of the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific; A. J. Davidson, president of the Frisco system; Frank Trumbull, president as follows: First 370, Second 477 of the Colorado Southern; W. B. Biddle, third vice president in charge of traffic of the Rock Island-Frisco system; John Sebastian, passenger traffie manager of the Rock Island: Jeff president and general manager of the Trinity and Brazos Valley line. A Washington dispatch says considerable surprise is felt in the White House that the letter which Secretary Loeb was said in the Hapgood trial, to have written to Justice Deul in 1904 was not introduced in evidence if such a letter exists.

Roosevelt's Side of Case.

The case was put in this way today by a friend of President Roosevelt: "A letter written by ex-President Crover Cleveland was exhibited during the trial and the fact that the alleged Loeb letter was not introduced is taken as an indication that there never was such a letter or if there was it is of no real significance so far as the Fads, and Fancies affair is concerned. Secretary Loeb has declared that he has no recollection whatever of having written the letter in question or of having marked the proof of a sketch of President Roosevelt and sent it to Justice Deuel. Secretary Loeb has caused a thorough search to be made of the letter copy books in the White House offices, and he declares that no record of the alleged correspondence Jerome May Have to Explain. "In all probability District Attorney Jerome will be asked in a personal way to explain this story of the Loeb letter. The White House authorities wish to know if there is such a letter. for they believe that if it was written at all, it showed on its face that the writer did not know of the Fads and Fancies scheme with which Justice Deuel was connected." It is intimated that the February grand jury will be asked to consider. some of the evidence brought out during the Hapgood trial, and that indictments for blackmail may be returned against several of those implicated in the Fads and Fancles scheme.

General Marston was attending court at Dover when a young attorney made a motion that was denied by the court. The young man remonstrated against what he thought was the wrong ruling of the judge. So vehemently did he remonstrate that he was fined $10.00 for contempt of court. 'An older attorney took the matter up, and he was fined a similar sum. Still another, who thought he stood a little better with the judge, endeavored to straighten the matter out, but he, too, was fined a ten spot for contempt. General Marston was then seen to rise in his seat and advance to the clerk's desk. Taking his long pocketbook from his pocket, he took out two $10 bills and laid them on the des. "What is this for?" said the court.

"I want you to distinctly understand,' said the general, "that I have just twice as much contempt for this court as any man here, and I am paying for it.'

PREACHER RUNNING FOR GOVERNOR OF GEORGIA

Rev. G. A. Nunnally, Baptist Pastor, Is Candidate

HAVE ANNOUNCED

Clark Howell and Hoke Smith Also Hear Gupernatorial Bees Buzzing

Special to The Telegram. NEWNAN, Ga., Jan. 27.-Rev. G. A. Nnunnally, pastor of the First Baptist church of this city, has announced tentatively his candidacy for governor of Georgia, in opposition to Clark Howell of the Atlanta Constitution, and Hoke Smith, Cleveland's secretary of the in-terior, who are now engaged in a sensationally vituperlive canvass.

Dr. Nunnally's Platform "There is widespread dissatisfaction with the manner and spirit of the campaign and with the issues which have been made. To the general publie it seems to be a struggle for personal advancement, and the people are growing tired of so much personality and so little principle, is the opening declaration. The preamble con-

"2. For the elevation of the commonwealth, and not for the promotion of the office seeker; "3. For the election of clean and consistent men to office, and not for the enthronement of the demagogue and the political schemer." "Square Deal, Clean Politics"

The ten planks of the platform itself are as brief as possible. The first three planks, all of which emphasize the absolute importance of a square deal between the state government and the people. Abolition of special privilege, better marriage and divorce laws, Sunday laws, abolition of child labor and care of Confederate veteran are the remaining planks.

Dr. Nunnally has the reputation of knowing more men personally than any other man in the state. He is accustomed to the platform, a versatile and forceful speaker, and is possessed of rare executive ability.

While engaged actively in the ministry he has always identified himself with all the political movements that been a leader for years in all temperance and educational enterprises.

SAYS HUSBAND MARRIED AGAIN

Mrs. Anita Crompton Asks an Absolute Divorce

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.-Returning from a vacation trip to Europe to find the man she claims as husband wedded to another woman, Mrs. Anita Crompton, daughter of Major General Crompton in the Garman army, tonight told an interesting story of a midnight marriage in a Broadway restaurant to a wealthy Wall street broker and Cripple Creek gold mine owner, William Crompton, whom she is suing for absolute divorce.

Incidentally she asks for alimony and the return of $30,000 which she says she invested in furniture for their home and in jewels which she says he now has in his possession. "I was only 18 years of age when I met and fell in love with Crompton,"

"He said he was a nephew of William Park, president of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad and a broker of the Duchess of Malakoff. He proposed marriage and suggested that we take advantage of the marriage laws of New York and become man and wife with-

"Mr. Crompton gave me a plain gold ring with the engraved initials 'A. C. W. C.,' and introduced me to his friends as his wife.

Whenever my husband went west to look after his mining interests, I went home to Germany. On my last trip abroad my allowance from my husband suddenly ceased and I was forced to seek employment in a restaurant in Vienna. When I returned I discovered that my husband had married Annie Hoper Perry of Boston." The present Mrs. Crompton indig. nantly declares that the suit is in-

AUSTIN, Texas, Jan. 27 .- The faculty committee having in charge the arrangement of the intercollegiate debates, have chosen Alex. Pope of Marshall and Sam Lattimore of Dublin to meet the University of Missouri team in debate at Columbia, Mo., this year. The debate promises to be of more than usual interest to the Missouri boys this season, as Alex. Pope, the best individual debater of the Univercity, held the same title last session, and helped to administer defeat to the Missouri boys on Texas ground. This. of course, will make the outcome of especial interest to Missouri, and her representatives have a double incentive in trying to win this year. John H. Keene of Austin and Robert Haynie of Brenham will meet the Tulane debaters here at the University auditorium, and will engage in a short polemic warfare over the same question that Pope and Lattimore will struggle with Missouri over, namely, the question of the regulation of railroad rates, and whether the plan should be adopted empowering congress to appoint a commission to hear complaints and to remedy the troubles. Joseph Worsham of Sulphur Springs will meet the Baylor representatives at Waco this year for debating honors. This is the initial of the series of debates between the University and Baylor, and promises to become very spirited as the series grows. Baylor men are said to be in earnest and aggressive on the platform, and it is prophesied that these debates will attract state attention. The same question will be submitted Baylor as the others will work on. Worsham's colleague has not yet been chosen.

AUSTIN, Texas, Jan. 27 .- The railroad commission today decided to dismiss the proposition to extend the demurrage time 24 hours.

It did not decide the lumber proposition, but former predictions in these columns regarding it are good; that is, that no reductions will be made in the present rate. The commission decided to recommend a uniform bill of lading to all roads according to Texas laws. The sugar and molasses tariff is to be amended so as to apply by delivering the product to the line hauling in the raw material. Rates on logs for box factories is fixed at 2 cents for twenty miles and less and 21/2 cents for thirty miles and over.

The proposition to extend demurrage time twenty four hours was dis-

He says $6,000 will be spent on entertainment features, which are to include a polo game, a barbecue and a vaudeville performance by a Chicago company especially engaged for the occasion. The committee expresses the determination to obliterate the grievance some of the cattlemen have complained of for alleged lack of cordiality on the part of Dallas the last time the state meeting was held here, nearly twenty years

TRICKS OF SMUGGLERS

Armenian Revolutionist Tells How Arms and Dynamite Are Smuggled Special Cable to The Telegram.

LONDON, Jan. 27.-A member of the Armenian revolutionary committee who is in London buying arms for the revolutionists in the Caucasus has described some of the tricks practiced by the rebels in smuggling arms. Innocent wooden boxes, labeled as ore, are shipped on vessels bound for Black Sea ports. Inside the boxes, wrapped in oil cloth, are revolvers and ammunition. A couple of revolutionists sign as members of the crew and at an agreed point off the coast they throw the boxes overboard. The rebels on shore row out and tow the cases of arms ashore. Butter Turned Out Dynamite. A barrel of Siberian butter miscarried, and was delivered to a peaceful scalp was torn open. His assailant merchant, who was astonished to find | escaped.

BEES TRAVEL IN U. S. MAIL

Only Living Thing Received by Postoffice

Bees can travel cheaper than any other ilving thing, being the only creature permitted to use the United States postal department as a means of fransbeen concluded with Norway which includes parcels containing live bees enclosed in appropriate receptacles. The bees have been allowed to pass through the United States mails for some time as it was discovered that they might be sent through all right with entire safety to the mail clerks The government also knew that the transportation of the queen bee would greatly aid the bee industry in this country. When the bees are sent through the mail they are placed in a piece of wood that has been hollowed out and wire gauze placed on both sides of the receptacle so that the bee will be sufficiently enclosed. This is the only specie of living thing permitted to go through the mail alone ,all others being excluded by the postal regula-

MANY DEEDS PUT ON RECORD

Total of Forty-four Filed Friday Alone

The number of real estate deeds filed at the office of the county clerk for the past week made a good record. The total number of transfers filed for the week was 150. Although the number of deeds was so large the total value of the deeds is the smallest for any week of this year as there have been an unusual number of small transfers filed. The record number for any one day of the year occurred Friday when forty-four separate investments were filed with the clerk. The total value of all deeds filed for Tarrant county for the four weeks of the year has now run up almost to the million dollar mark. The total to date is $847,659.46.

OF INTEREST TO THE SICK Following accounts of wonderful cures performed by Dr. James W. Kidd comes the announcement that he is now offering to send a trial treatment to all sick and suffering people, without any expense of any kind to the patient. Thousands are accepting this remarkable offer, and the list of cured patients is rapidly growing.

Dr. Kidd says: "I could not afford to make this offer if my treatment were not successful in most cases. I know what my remedies will do, by experience, and I can afford to prove to the people, at my own expense, what they will do. Kindly state to your readers that if they will send me their name and address, and tell me in their own words how they feel, I will send them a proof treatment absolutely free, postage paid." NORTH FT. WORTH'S NATIONAL BANK

Officers Are Chosen and Site Is Selected

It has been definitely settled to locate the new North Fort Worth bank on the corner of Central avenue and Main street. This decision was reached in a meeting held in the city hall at 11:80 o'clock Saturday

A building committee is now looking up materials, plans and other things and will report at another meeting to be held soon. Although it will not be finally settled just what kind of a building the new bank will put up, it is understood that it will be two stories and be of brick or stone, or both. It is to be a first class building with office room up stairs. The site selected is a triangular lot at the mentioned place, it begins with the point at Central avenue and runs north about 160 feet, being thirty-five feet wide at the back. The site was purchased of Bomar & Bomar at an inside price which has not been made

At the same meeting W. H. Grove was elected president of the new bank and V. S. Wardlow vice president. The other officers have not yet been building committee will receive plans for the new building and then ask for contracting bids. It is the intention to push the work and erect the new structure as quickly as possible.

HOT DEBATE ON COTTON PLANTERS

Sensational Occurrence at National Convention

Special to The Telegram. WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.-Information has just leaked out as to a somewhat sensational occurrence which took place in the executive session of the national board of trade during its recent conventions here.

The report of the committee on resolutions was being read. Many members were absent, but among those who happened to be in the room was John M. Parker, a personal friend of President Roosevelt. The resolutions reported, among other things, complimented the agricultural department, but scored the southern planter for sending in false reports and for refusing, in some cases, to give any re-

The man from New Orleans was intantly on his feet. In a few polite out pointed words he stated that the gentleman who had drafted the resolutions had doubtless been somewhat hurried in the preparation, and, not intending any reflection on the south, would be glad to eliminate the objectionable words of the resolution. The author, white with rage, stated that for thirty-five years the resolutions as reported had been adopted by the board of trade, and he flatly refused to "change a word or a syllable." Thereupon the Louisianan vigorously denounced the resolution under discussion as untrue in fact, and an unwarranted slander on the southern planter. On his motion the resolutions were remanded to the committee by a vote unanimous save one, amidst great applause.

Increased Traffic Facilities Are Needed by All Roads

When L. S. Thorne, vice president and general manager of the Texas and Pacific, was here a few days ago he mentioned that the railroads in Fort Worth would all have to provide additional trackage facilities to accommodate the growing traffic through this point. This need is very clearly shown in the case of the Texas and Pacific by the conditions which now exist. A representative of the road stated Saturday that there were about 73,000 cars of the Texas and Pacific here and at the Stove Foundry, Mansfield and other nearby stations. It has been unofficially reported that the Texas and Pacific has already secured fourteen acres of land near the stove foundry for yardage and switching facilities, and the necessity for more room makes it appear that the report is well founded. General Manager Hawks of the Houston and Texas Central has also announced that his road will double its facilities in Fort Worth during the spring, and the crowded condition of other yards makes it appear probable that they will also follow the example of the Texas and Pacific and the Houston and Texas Central as soon as

All the cars were packed with ice to keep the delicious cargo in good condition on the long trip.

More Cotton Pickers Shipped Thirty more cotton pickers were shipped from Fort Worth to Seymour via the Fort Worth and Denver Friday, and the indications are that picking will continue in that country until it is time for the ground to be broken for the next season. The shipments Friday hold the record for late ship-Usually cotton picking is all over at this time of the year, but now the planters are making more efforts to get pickers than ever. They are offering great inducements in the way of high wages, and in some cases the planters give half of the cotton for Regarding other matters, the governor was more communicative. In reply to a question, he-declared that the retirement of his son, Frank, from the stage was only temporarily and that he would likely follow acting as a profession. His retirement from the Paul Gilmore company at Austin after appearing with the company in a number of cities in south Texas, the governor said, was for the purpose of completing "The Prisoner of Bunz," a play being written by him in conjunction with his brother, Fritz Lanham. Frank Lanham will return to the stage in this play.

Governor Lanham appears to be in excellent health, being complimented upon his rugged appearance by many friends who met him here.

THEY DID SING A BIT Tarrant County Singing Association

Mixed in Bit of Politics The Tarrant County Singing Association met at Smithfield Saturday and as there is always a big crowd at the meeting of the association the numerous candidates for county offices took advantage of the gathering to put a few rails on their political fences. Fifteen aspirants for office were at the meeting, the offices wanted grading from constable up to county judge, and those who were there and not candidates say that the work done by those who are candidates was peculiar to say the least of it. Every candidate had his followers in the crowd and there was as much electioneering as there was singing. About noon it was suggested that the candidates sing a song for the edification of their constituents and the suggestion struck the crowd so forcibly that the fifteen office seekers were lined up on the platform and told to turn themselves loose, but not for their lives to sing "Old Hundred." As a substitute for that old hymn it was voted unanimously by the fifteen candidates to sing "I Am Bound for the Promised Land," which they individually believed, and R. H. Buck was appointed to sing bass, and it is said he did so basely enough to satisfy everybody. John Kaiser was the tenor, but no one could catch on to the tenor of his music, while John A. CHINESE ARE CELEBRATING

New Year Being Commemorated by Various Feasts

The Chinese of Fort Worth are in the pldst of their New Year celebration. ly separate from the theater, and will | The Chinese New Year begins on the Aquarius, which makes it come between Jan. 21 and Feb. 19. This year, the beginning of the year fell on Wednesday, Jan. 24, and on that night all the Chinese inhabitants of this city who could get off gathered at the San Antonio restaurant, where everything was decorated for the occasion and celebrated with a feast. Numerous Chinese dishes were spread, besides the regulation tea and wine for the occasion. As many of the Chinese inhabitants were not present, another feast will be given in the near future, so that they can be there. In larger cities, where there are numbers of Chinese inhabitants, the celebration hasts for fifteen, twenty or even thirty days and only the shops which are absolutely necessary remain open. The others close up entirely for the entire period of the celebration. Permission is obtained from the city authorities and firecrackers are consumed in large numbers. The decorations of the Chinese quarter during the same time will be most elaborate. A large part of the time will be spent in feasting and other celebrations. The Chinese year is named after the age of the reigning emperor, so that this year is the thirty-second of Kwang Sui, this, translated into English, means "illustrious succession," for the emperor's own name is too sacred to be used in connection with such an ordinary event as the merging of one year into another. No other holiday is so important in the estimation of the Chinaman as the New Year, as is evidenced by the decorations in cities where there is a Chinese quarter. Stores are decorated and ordinary utensils and store fixtures are laid away, to be replaced by ornate chairs, fancy screens, tables covered with potted plants and gaudy coverings and hangings. The days spent in celebration of the New Year will be conspicuous in the total absence of work. All debts are settled before the beginning of the year, as the Chinese ethics hold that no Chinaman can be successful if he begins the new year in debt. A Chinaman will sell everything in his shop, if necessary, in order to start square with the

A southbound freight train on the Fort Worth and Denver was wrecked by spread rails just south of Sunset early Saturday morning, and two men were injured, but not fatally. The injured are John Beer, engineer, and T. B. Sandifer, fireman, both of Wichita Falls. They were brought to Fort Worth and taken to St. Joseph's infirmary. Saturday night they were reported as resting easily, their injuries consisting mainly of bruises. The wreck caused a blockade of the Denver Saturday, north and southbound trains having to be detoured over the Rock Island to and from Bowie, where the two roads cross.

MRS. EMILY E. WILSON. No. 916 Missourl Avenue, Fort Worth.

To The Telegram "The governor of Mississippi brutally beats a convict!" This did not occur in Russia, but in America, the land of the free and the home of the brave. A governor brutally beats a defenseless convict, who, forsooth, must black his boots. Has it come to pass in the United States of America in the twentieth century that the state must furnish white slaves to do the bidding of the rulers? Public opinion should brand this man a coward. If there are officers enough in that state who are not owned by the powers that be, the governor of Mississippi will be arrested, tried for assault and given the limit. Let him be turned over by the state to some bully to black his boots, and when he is not heeded by his master

he might have the privilege of staying in his hovel as all slaves should be content to do. Is it any wonder that all the manhood is crushed out of these prisoners and that all that is most brutal in them is developed under such a system? MRS. DELLA ARNOLD. Pure Food Campaign To The Telegram

From time to time the writer of this has noticed articles in The Telegram on the pure food question. This is a most important question. We talk about graft; and there is an agitation and a consequent growing sentiment that bids fair to uproot and destroy graft in some of its multiple forms. But the pure food question involves a graft that "hits us where we live." It is graft that is making us a nation of dyspeptics | we can stir up a public sentiment that and neuresthenics. It is a graft that is wasting our life powers and shortening our lives. It is a graft that is debauching our morals. We talk about the evils of the saloon and the liquor beverage traffic. But here is a graft that is feeding the saloon. The adulterated and poisoned food consumed, making the consumer dyspeptic, weak and nervous; giving him that "all-gone feeling," he flies to intoxicating drink for relief. He feels like he needs a "bracer" or stimulant and he takes it only to his greater injury, and in many cases to become a confirmed drunkard. Even when he doesn't take to drink he becomes peevish and fretful, a chronic grumbler, and makes the lives of his intimates miserable. It has been well said that dyspepsia is an enemy to grace. It is a drunkard maker, a producer of crime, a feeder of the divorce court and a cause of suicide. And impure food and the grafter who furnishes it is at the bottom of much of it. Bread, the staff of life, is poisoned with alum, ammonia and even sulphate of copper sometimes. Milk is watered one-half and formaldehyde is added. Alum and ammonia baking powders are sold. The writer has tested bread and he knows whereof he speaks. And at one time he worked in a hotel patronized by workingmen almost exclusively, and he saw the milk delivered there and then watered at least one-half. How much it was tvatered by the dairyman, if any, he does not know and cannot say. However, the addition of a large amount of water made the formaldehyde less dangerous. Now, much of this wicked business can be remedied, and why is it not done? Why do not our "city dads" pass an ordinance that will effectually put an end to this wholesale poison ing of the people? It is said New York City has an ordinance that effectually puts an end to the impure bread and milk business. Bread is tested and if it is found to contain alum or other poisonous ingredients it is confiscated and its bakers are arrested and heavily fined. Milk is tested and if not what it should be it is emptied into the sewers and its purveyors are heavily fined. "The teeth of the law is in the penalty." Let every man agitate for an ordinance that will at least put an end to the sale of poisonous baking powders, poisoned bread and poisoned and watered milk. We agitate for good sidewalks so we will not have to walk in the mud and so the children can get to school. And we need the sidewalks. But we also need wholesome food and then we can the better brave the elements. Then, too, the children will have healthler bodies and they can stand it to study when they get to school. Then there will be fewer little graves and more children to go to school. Some of the preachers have been agitating the sidewalk question. Let them agitate the pure food question. Let them preach on it. It is a matter that especially comes within their province. And let all of us agitate, agitate, without let up, and

Addresses Communication to Chief of Police

STREET CLEARED

The following communication has been sent to J. H. Maddox, chief of police, by W. R. Parker, alderman of the Third ward:

Dear Sir-On Seventeenth street, between Front and Jones streets, platforms have been constructed over the sidewalks in such a manner as to prevent their use as a passway by the public. The same conditions exist on Rusk and Calhoun streets, between Fifteenth and Seventeenth streets, also on Rusk between Ninth and Tenth streets, and on Sixteenth, between Rusk and Calhoun streets.

These sidewalks are intended as passways for the public, and not for private use, and the construction and maintenance of the platforms mentioned is in violation of the plain provisions of the city ordinances, each day they are allowed to remain constituting a separate offense.

"Much complaint has been made by persons having occasion to use these sidewalks, asking that the platforms be removed, so as to allow the use of the sidewalks as passways for the public, instead of being converted to private use, as at present. "I therefore ask you to proceed at once to remove, or cause to be removed, the aforesaid platforms and obstructions from said sidewalks, to the end that the public may have the use of same for the purpose for which they were intended.

"I also call your attention to some of the show windows on the east side of Main street, near the Texas and Pacific passenger station, which project more than eighteen inches over the sidewalk. This is also a violation of law and should be remedled at once. Very respectfully, W. R. PARKER.

Since Jan. 1, Fort Worth Has Grown in Wealth $1,235,000

The total capital of new companies chartered for Fort Worth for the year has already passed the $1,000,000 mark. There have been twelve companies chartered from Fort Worth since January 1, their total capital being $1,235,-000. The new companies have ranged in capital from $5,000 to $500,000. There have been a larger number of charters filed at Austin this year for the period that has passed than any other year. The increase is taken to show that the commercial prosperity of Texas is on an increase and in this Fort Worth has kept in the van. The great majority of the new charters are either for mercantile purposes or for manufacturing enterprises. The mercantile establishments are from the smaller towns in the majority however. The records of the department at Austin show that the record for this year has almost doubled the previous record for any other year in total

The waters of the Pacific Coast are infested by numbers of sharks of remark -able size and variety, which, while they never attack human beings, are more or less enemies, preying upon fish-laden nets, destroying edible fish, stealing hooks and lines, and in many ways emphasizing the fact that they are enemies of the meu who follow the peaceful avocation of fishing. The method of fishing on the West Coast is principally by the use of trawls, gill-nets and seins. I have seen a trawl, 1,000 feet long, with a book every two or three feet, come up almost entirely devoted to small sharks which weighed from 30 to 60 pounds. The majority doubtless had escaped, taking the book with them, but enough came in to fill the boat and discourage a professional fisherman. In passing an eight-oared barge threw a rope to me and for a few moments this unknown glant towed the barge, stern first; then the chain, a massive snood, broke and the shark went its way. The sharks at this place were easily baited up by throwing over the refuse of the slaughterhouse, particularly blood; and to watch the methods of attack on surface animals I had a dead cow towed to the locality and made fast to a stake buoy, then festening my boat to a coral patch with the aid of a coral book, I had my boatman turn over two or three pailsful of bullock blood and other rejectamenta of the slaughter-house. A result was appreciable in less than 10 minutes, and I recall no more disagreeable sight than the contemplation of these enormous sharks rising out of the blue channel beneath me in such increasing numbers that te water appeared to be literally alive with them. They came up under the boat to within 10 feet, and I watched them partly through a water glass which brought them practically within two or three feet. They would rise in curlosity, then turn, giving a flash of a white belly, showing the ugly gray expressionless eye and the enormous mouth line. The cow was inspected in this way for some minutes, then a very large shark, at least 12 feet in length, came alongside and swam asherman hand in the long line to find around it, as though to inspect it; then nothing but grouper heads upon the the monster turned, and instead of comnocks, sometimes only the lips, and in ing up and turning upon its back after a many instances the hook was taken, bit- fashion described in books, it advanced ten off as cleverly as though severed with on the surface and seized the animal and uge plece out of it. In this instance the shark's keen scent was leading it on, and the little band of striped pilots, which I plainly saw several times, were swimming beneath its head and by the gills, while the big black remoras were fast alongside. The shark is in every respect a coward, except when reckless from starvation, when it will attack anything, but even in the tropics I swam over and in a channel countless times where sharks were always present. Not only this, but these sharks were so little thought of as a menace to human life that I often, with others, dived overboard when sharks were in sight merely to frighten them, and the spectacle of several white bodies plunging down was always too much for the nerves

Stung by the deflance of Operator L. F. Robbins at the joint conference, Vice President Lewis of the miners promptly took up the implied challenge. Lewis stated it was true the miners were not able to organize and only two first choices won and one of control all sections of the country, but that the organization is now in a position to control all districts if the miners' demands are not agreed to. This was understood as a covert threat of a national suspension of operations.

LIEN FILED ON SCHWAB'S HOUSE

Claim of $6,628 Causes Trouble Between Contractors

Special to The Telegram. NEW YORK, Jan. 27.-A mechanic's lien for $6,628 was filed yesterday against the new residence of Charles Scwab, Riverside Drive, by the New York Mosaic and Marble Company. The lien is in favor of subcontractors, the general contract for the erection of the Schwab mansion being held by William H. Baumgartner & Co. The lien represents a claim for work done on the marble and bronze interior decoration of the house. William Baumgartner said the filing of the lien was the result of a disagreement between himself and the subcontractor over the payment for certain work. Some question had arisen he said as to whether this work was covered by the sub-contractor, and was to be paid for in addition thereto.

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.-Justice Deuel when seen today refused to comment on the verdict in his libel suit against Norman Hapgood. It was learned, how ever, that Justice Deuel feels that he has been very shabbily treated by the President and by the district attorney. A friend of Justice Deuel said today: "Justice Deuel received a personal letter from the President and aside from this letter was in correspondence with the President's secretary, Mr. Loeb. These letters plainly indicate the President' full knowledge of the scheme and his acceptance of one of the books. "Did it ever occur to you," said a friend of Justice Deuel, "that the actions and attitude of Justice Jerome. in the case just finished formed the most flagrant example of malfeasance in office ever seen in this city? Je rome, as counsel for the people, sworn to fulfill a duty, went over to the defense and announced that fact in court. Possibly the friends of Justice Deuel may ask Governor Higgins what he thinks of that."

Professionalism was discussed and all questions of eligibility left to a committee, consisting of Professor Bantell of Texas university; Kyle of A. & M. college, and Campbell of Trinity university. The time rule was cut from five years to four and graduates of one college will not be permitted to play on the teams of another. Notice was served that any college failing to be represented in a meet once in three years, if held in Texas, shall forfeit membership.

The executive committee was instructed to hold the next annual meet at Oklahoma City, May 18 and 19. Professor Homer Curtiss of Texas university tendered his resignation as president, which was accepted. No one was elected to succeed him.

STAGE TALK

Clara Morris is wroth over the continual laments over the "decline of the stage." She resents hotly the imputa-

"Decline?" she said. "Why, the modern stage is a prude beside the old! The coarseness and immorality of plays of the seventeenth century was so great that ladies had to wear masks at the first night of a new comedy to preserve their reputations. George II. en-couraged salacity. He ordered the restoration of parsages to translated plays. "Venice Preserved," for instance, which had been omitted because of their in-delicacy. These remarks are included in an essay on the decline of the stage, which was written by the former star, but has never before been published.

Is There a Decline? The decline of the stage is the burden of much theatrical criticism. Is the proach deserved? She says: Hamlet's scornful criticism of the players implies that Shakespeare himself had been often vexed by its failings. It was addressed not to a troup of obscure strollers, but to the "tragedians of the city," actors in whom the prince was "wont to take delight." Spectators on the Stage

The admission of spectators upon the stage was a serious annoyance. As the dress of the performers frequently closely resembled that of the quality

The year 1905 has been one of phenomenal growth to Fort Worth; so, too, has been the growth of its financial institutions. THE MUTUAL HOME ASSOCIATION has abundantly shared in this prosperity as attested by its annual statement, presenting a remarkable ratio of increase, by far the greatest since its organization in 1894. Deposits having increased 38 8-10 per cent for the year, while "Savings Deposits," the new department for non-members, has grown from $493.08 to $11,676.35. THE MUTUAL HOME ASSOCIATION provides unexcelled security to its members and depositors; its business is economically conducted under a safe and conservative management.

Kissed the Star The exclusion of the public was finally brought about when a man of quality kissed Miss Bellamy's neck as she crowded past him to take up her cue; and Lord Chesterfield applauded the spirit with which the actress resented the indignity. Just think of it for a moment how the drama was then afflicted, and how long it has taken to bring about the cure to its present healthful state, and thank your stars you live in the present age of true art. Pointed Paragraphs.

BUSTER AND GRAHAM MODERN NEWSBOYS

J. W. Buster and Fred Graham, The Telegram hustlers, are typical up-todate Newsies. To a New Yorker, Philadelphian or Chicagoan, this brief introduction would be all-sufficient, for upon him the Twentieth century newsboy has impressed his personality. His virtues and his vices are to him as an open book, but to plebeians, as effete eastern brothers and sisters are wont to call the people of the West, the terms up-to-date and metropolitan have little, if any, significance when compared to that comparatively modern institution, the newspaper

Here in Fort Worth those on the shady side of 40 have known and loved and cussed the same little hustler that heir fathers knew and loved, and-yes. cussed, too-back East-for old human nature is about the only thing that doesn't change or innovate. However, the newsboy, ancient, modern or up-todate, that hasn't enough energy to get himself cussed occasionally will never amount to much, either in this world or the one to come

Patrons have seen the little fellows' transformation from the newsboy of 8 and the intervening years to the copy boy of 12, the cashier at 21, the business manager at 30, and at 40 to the man owning the whole works and crying for other worlds to conquer; but alas and alack, they know very little of him as a newsboy of 15, and absolutely nothing of him as an up-to-

WHEELER SOLDIER PAY HIM TRIBUTE

H. O. Wood Served Under the Great Leader

Few of the men who served under General Joseph Wheeler survive him; ivil war. Mr. Wood is now 67 years of age and has a wife and family living. He came to Fort Worth thirty-two years ago. Mr. Wood was with the Eighteenth Tennessee infantry until the fall of When the federal Fort Donaldson. lines were tightening around Donaldson Wood and a few comrades cut their way out and escaped. Soon after this Wood helped to organize a company of scouts known as the Black Hawk cavalry; this company reported to General Wheeler whenever conven-In 1863 the Black Hawk cavalry disbanded and Wood reported to General Wheeler and was with the Fourth Tenthe attacks upon Sherman's line

nessee cavalry under him during the raid through middle Tennessee; was in the battle of Chickamauga and in through Georgia. During this march Wheeler's command hung ever close to Sherman; sometimes in front and sometimes in his rear, but ever near, Mr. Wood was still with Wheeler in Georgia when General Lee surren-After the surrender of General Lee,

Wheeler disbanded his army in Georgia. Mr. Wood then joined Jeff Davis and was with him when he was captured about thirty-five miles below Hawkinsville. After his capture Wood was taken into Hawkinsville, where his family happened to be living, and paroled

During his life as a soldier Mr. Wood was twice wounded the scars of which he still carries. When General Wheeler was mentioned to Mr. Wood his eyes lighted up with a kindly light and he said "You can say anything good about General Wheeler and I'll vouch for it. He was one of the best generals I ever knew. He was good and kind as he was brave and daring. He never asked his men to do anything in which he did not join them."
