Must Fix Fences

It is not unlikely that the real motive for the early adjournment is the necessity for the fixing of fences by members of the lower house. There is not any question that there are a great many members of congress who will have to explain to their constituents their votes on the Hepburn bill as it passed the house, and especially why all the amendments which were considered necessary for the strengthening of the measure were killed by the Hepburn-Williams com-

In order for a large portion of the people included in this bill to reach their respective courts they must travel from seventy-five to four hundred miles. This bill proposes to locate the court where they can reach it much more conveniently and by a great deal

Del Rio is a town of about six thousand inhabitants and is well prepared to accommodate a court, having a large and commodious county court house and good hotel accommodations. The new divison will border about four hundred miles on Mexico, from which a good portion of the criminal business of that section of the state is drawn, therefore it will be a saving to the government in the way of expenses for witness fees, in that they will have to travel a much less distance to attend the court than at present besides the great convenience it will afford to the general public of this territory. The mere fact that under the present division of the western district people have to travel from seventyfive to four hundred miles is sufficient reason, it is believed, within itself to authorize the passage of this bill.

Simplicity and Richness Marked Wedding Details

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 17.-As announced previously, Miss Roosevelt had no attendants. She swept across the room in her shimmering white satin and point lace gown over which hung the magnificent court train of Oriental silver brocade in a conventionized lily design, the gift of the Empress of China. Her veil was arranged about her head in a crown effect, held by orange blossoms, and swept half way down the train to the hem of her gown. It was a plain tulle, while the point lace of her wedding frock was an heirloom belonging to her grandmother, Mrs. Lee. Had No Train Bearers

A notable feature was that Miss Roosevelt had no train bearers and she allowed it to sweep along the polished floor in her progress to the altar. Observing this, one of the ma-

It had been announced they would leave the White House at 4 o'clock, but it was after 5 when the young couple suddenly darted out of the White House and began the flight to Friendship. Most of the reporters were taken unawares, but one party which nad taken the precaution to secure an automobile, observed the movement, and when the honeymoon automobile darted up Fifteenth street at a rapid pace the other was closely behind. Mr. Longworth took the long way around, going by way of Georgetown and the ear was soon out of sight.

Surprised and delighted, Mr. and Mrs. Longworth answered the salutes with waving hands as the automobile spinned along the various roads. Flags were waved at them as they passed and the flight soon became a triumphal procession, which lasted practically until Friendship was reached, at about 5:30 o'clock. There Mr. and Mrs. Longworth were again surprised, for the photographer was there ahead of them and took a snap shot of the car as it bowled up to the place.

heartily, but declined with a vigorous shake of their heads to pose for another picture, and an instant later Mrs. Longworth disappeared into the house. Mr. Longworth remaining only long enough to explain that he thought they had paid full tribute to the photog-

Tests to Be Continued by Pennsylvania Company

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.- That American passenger locomotives are superior in point of speed, economy and power to the best of those constructed abroad has just been demonstrated by a six months' test. The test was begun for the Pennsylvania Railroad Company at the Louisiana Purchase Exposition and involved the expenditure of $250,000. Exhaustive tests were made under the direction of the advisory committee consisting of three members of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers and three members of the American Railway Master Mechanics' Association. It is understood that plans are now under way with a view to establishing the testing plant permanently at the Altoona shops of the Pennsylvania railway and continuing the work begun at St. Louis by making further investigations of American and European locomotive performances.

Interesting Incidents of White House Ceremony

Miss Roosevelt ascended to the altar the marine band ceased playing, and then there was a perfect hush. Almost immediately the impressive tones of Bishop Satterlee's voice, as he spoke the first words of the Episcopal ritual. were heard. Miss Roosevelt's replies were sharp and clear. She was the most composed of all those present.

When the bride was asked the formula of the ritual: "Do you promise to love, honor and obey?" she tilted her head in a firm frank manner and replied most decisively, "I do."

President Shows Emotion

In the second part of the ritual services when the bishop asked the ques-"Who giveth this woman? President Roosevelt stepped briskly forward and took the hand of his daughter and placed it in that of the young Ohio congressman, and as Alice radiantly turned her face toward him, he exclaimed strenuously, "I do." Then he stepped back toward his wife. The President himself showed deep emotion during the ceremony. The color came and went in his face and as he gave his daughter he gulped once or twice as if from excess of feeling.

The first to hurry forward to greet the bride was her step-mother, who grasped her hand and kissed her affectionately upon the cheek. The bride then turned swiftly toward her father, to whom she cried out softly: "Oh, hello, papa!" and she clasped him lovingly about the neck and kissed him with a marked show of feeling. One of the most cordial in his felicitations was Sir Liang, who swept up in his imperial robes, extended his hand in foreign fashion and exclaimed: "My best wishes to the fairest daughter in this land." He then shook hands and congratulated the young Mrs. Longworth formally and passed on. SUPERVISOR RESIGNS Cherokee Naton School Official Will

Special to The Telegram.

MUSKOGEE, I. T., Feb. 17.—Benj. F. Coppock, supervisor of schools for the Cherokee Nation, has resigned and will move to California. It developed here today that his resignation was tendered Jan. 31, to take effect Feb. 26.

Mr. Coppock came to Indian Territory from Oregon in May, 1900, and assumed his duties as supervisor of the Cherokee schools, with headquarters at Tahlequah, capital of the Cherokee Nation. Since that time has given his attention to school work alone. It is said of him that he has not bought or sold a single foot of ground since he has been in Indian Territory, so closely has he applied himself to school work. He is held in high esteem by the Cherokee Nation, as well as the officials.

Some time ago when Mr. Benedict, superintendent of Indian Territory schools, had resigned, the Indian officials came to him and asked if there was anything that they could do for him, stating that they would be pleased to see him get the place. They further presented him with a signed statement which expressed their senti-

Mr. Coppock has supervision over 8,000 white children and 8,000 Indian children in over two hundred schools and is one of the most widely known men in the nation. He has often been called "The White Indian of the Cherckees" from the fact that the Cherokees have three times as many native Indian teachers as are employed in the entire government Indian service. Some time ago Mr. Coppock made the statement that it was a great deal the school affairs of the largest, most rivilized and most prosperous tribe of Indians in America.

Mr. Coppock will leave the Territory for a time at least, and will reside in Southern California. He has not yet determined whether he will go into business or continue school work, although he has received some flattering offers lately in the latter capacity.

286 BANKS IN FIVE YEARS Texas Forging to Front Among Financial States of America

Special to The Telegram. WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 17 .-Texas is continuing in its glant strides of prosperity since March 14, 1900, and has already eclipsed such states as and Ohio, this is, if bank reports may be taken as a criterion. Texas is only eclipsed by the state of Pennsylvania, in which state 286 national banks have been established since March 14, 1900, with a representative total capitalization of $22,112,000. Texas during the same period organized 307 national banks with a total capitalization of $13,325,000. Most of the Texas banks, in fact 213 of them, were organized with less than $50,000 capital. The capitalization of the smaller banks of Texas exceeds that of Peraisylvania by nearly $2,500,000. Qt the larger banks in Texas, ninety-four were established with capitals greater than $50,000. New York in comparison can show a total capital invested of but $10,622,500, divided mostly among larger banking institutions, although there were ninety-eight national banks established in New York during the pe-

That Texas is gradually taking the lead in the number of national banks established and also in the capital invested is something not generally known. Its rapid growth foreshadows the comparatively early surrender of the Empire and Keystone states. Texas will then have the proud distinction of being the Empire state of the union. DEFICIT REDUCED

Missouri Powder Factory Is Partially Wrecked

Special to The Telegram. LOUISIANA, Mo., Feb. 17 .- Three men were killed outright and twenty girls injured in an explosion at the Hercules Powder Company plant, ten miles north of here, at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon.

The dead: Booth, Wright and Nord of Hannibal, Mo. The explosion occurred in the new punching house, which is equipped with machine punchers. In the old punching house adjoining the girls were at work punching the dynamite into the molds. This building was wrecked by the explosion, but fortunately there was no explosion in the house. The plant is one of the largest in the United States, comprising about thirty buildings, and is worth about $500,000, employing 200 persons.

THE WEATHER

Washington Forecast Special to The Telegram.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.-The forecast for the southwest is as follows: Louisiana and East Texas-Partly cloudy Sunday and Monday; variable Western Texas-Fair Sunday and Monday.

Shortly before 2 o'clock this morning a heavy fog settled over the city, so dense that one could hardly see for more than twenty feet. Belated pedestrians were dismayed at the prospect of walking block after block with no other guide than the erring instinct of abnormally unlucky who miss the last car. The last heavy fog which visited Fort Worth was Jan. 19, that date being one of the many numerous heavy fogs visiting the city during this win-ter. During the month of December, 1905, one of the heaviest fogs known here in twenty years was noted. Freupon by many observant persons,

And Why?

Tomorrow morning when we open the doors of the big store the main aisle will be filled with a gorgeous display of unusual nature, gathered on the big tables, while other stores have not received these newest wash goods. This store with its usual promptness is more than ready and tomorrow we say come to this exquisite gathering of spring dressiness that fills the air. Pause at the counters where these elegant messengers of coming spring are displayed, tossed in graceful folds and artistic arrangement and enjoy the sight. And why this sale, you say; why so soon? A lucky purchase came our way, as many times occurs, and we were able to secure about 3,000 yards of a beautiful line of Wash Goods in handsome, sheer effects, printed in dainty tints on light ground, made still more beautiful by its fine crepe effect, a material that we could easily place on sale and sell at 25c, but with this store's liberal policy we place on sale tomorrow morning So broad and sweeping is this offer that we do not place the usual limit that is placed

The extreme eastern part of Johnon county has a black waxy soil, extremely fertile and productive. To the vest of it lies the cross timbers secion, with a rich, sandy soil, suitable for all kinds of small fruits and vegetables. In this section there is one community of from seventy-five -to one hundred families, all of which are making prosperous living on tracts from five to thirty acres. This land has doubled in value within the past few years, and its owners are thriving on bits of earth early Texas ranchmen would have considered too small as a corral ground for one of their herds.

The county is well watered. The Brazos flows along the southwestern border and Nolan's river traverses the entire length of the county from northwest to southeast. Several minor streams also flow at intervals. The un-derground water supply is varied. To the west of Cleburne fine crops of cotton, wheat, oats and Kaffir corn are making money for the farmers, who settled here a few year ago with small capital and large faith in the black soil. The cotton yield runs from ne-half to one bale an acre. It was ot unusually large the past year, but the good price made the staple growers money. Oats yield from sixty to one hundred bushels per acre. Cleburne's railroad facilities give it an important advantage over even some larger Texas towns. Three lines of the Santa Fe enter it, the main line from Fort Worth, the Dallas branch and the Mineral Wells branch. The Missouri, Kansas and Texas, operating over the leased line of the Dallas, Cleburne and Southwestern, gives connections with all its passenger trains, north and south. Indigestion FINDS BODIES OF ABORIGINES

Discovery by Cowman, in Arizona Cave, Recalls Story of One of the Bloodiest Border Contests Known in Southwest

Jeff Adams, a well known cattleman, rode into Phoenix and said that in the Superstition mountains he had found a cavern 35 by 100 feet in area, heaped up with the skeletons of 200 Indians. The cavern is upon the side of a precipitous gorge, reached only by a dangerous trail. Adams has discovered the long lost trail where, in December, 1872, the Fifth cavalry accomplished the greatest job of Indian killing in the history of the army. Captain W. J. Ross of Tucson, being interviewed in regard to the cavern, said that it was substantially correct, and gives the following account of the expedition to the Tucson Citi-

"Brevet Major William H. Brown, captain of the Fifth U. S. cavalry, was ordered from old Camp Grant, situated 11 miles from the nouth of the San Pedro river, to take the field against the hostiles, and like all the rest of the detached commands, he was to move over and operate against the Indians in the Tonto basin. Major Brown was a most capable officer, who had been promoted from the ranks, a man of sound judgment and much experience in Indian affairs. His force consisted of two troops of the Fifth cavalry and 30 Apache scouts, and he had as his junior officers Captain A. B. Taylor and Lieutenant Jacob Almy of the Fifth cavalry, Lieutenant John G. Bourke of the Third cavalry and Lieutenant W. J. Ross of the Twenty-first infantry, the last two officers being aides de camp on the staff of General George Crook. "Crossing the Pinal mountains in the early part of December, 1872, which at that season were covered with snow, Major Brown encamped in a small valley near the northwestern extremity of the range. From this place the troops moved over the various Apache trails, sending the Indian scouts in advance under their guides and interpreters. McIntosh, Felmer and Antonio Besias. But, although the advance had one or two small skirmishes with the hostiles, the main body of the command did not get near

The Task Undertaken

"On Christmas day Major Brown's detachment was joined by Captain James Burns, of the Fifth cavalry, in command of troop G of that regiment, and 80 Pima Indian scouts, with Lieutenant Earl D. Thomas as his subordiannounced to his officers that he was about to undertake the capture of one of the Apache strongholds, located somewhere in the canyon of the Salt river, and which had been frequently sought for by the troops, but its location had never vet been discovered. although for a long time it had been suspected that there were two or three large Apache strongholds somewhere within that gloomy defile. Major Brown had in his command a friendly Apache scout called Nantaje, who had at one time lived in this stronghold, and he had agreed to guide the troops there if they would make a night march, as otherwise they would most surely be seen and destroyed on the trail, for the Apaches, if forewarned, could easily defend it against any number that could be sent to attack

"Leaving his pack train in camp under the charge of 'Yank' Bartlett, with an ample guard to protect it, Major Brown and his troops, led by Nantaje and the other scouts, took the trail on a cold, starlit December night, and started up the hitherto undiscovered Apache trail in the can-

The Indians Located

"In a short time McIntosh and Felmar came back with the information that the light they had seen must have been made by a band of Apaches that had evidently been raiding the whites and peaceful Pima Indians in the Gila valley, and had just passed through the mountain above on their return to the stronghold with their of played out horses and mules in a little depression on the mountain side and gone on to their rancheria, and from all indications, within a very short time previously. Major Brown ordered Captain Burns with troop G of the Fifth cavalry and his Pima Indian scouts to go to where the abandoned horses were and hark back on the trail, in case any more Apaches were coming up. He then ordered Lieutenant Ross of the Twenty-first infantry to take 15 enlisted men, together with all the mule packers who had come along as volunteers and who were excellent shots, to go ahead on the trail, led by Nantaje and Scouts McIntosh and Felmer, to prevent any attempt at a surprise in that direction, as it would soon be light, and the situation was not particularly reassuring. In the meantime he would form his command and await a report from Lieutenant Ross as to what was in his immediate

"Standing perfectly still, Nantale eaned forward, evidently listening intently. A moment later he turned to McIntosh, who was almost touching him, and whispered 'Apache.' Motioning the others to stand fast. Nantaje, McIntosh, Felmer and Lieutenant Ross crept slowly forward to where there was a turn in the trail, knelt down and glanced carefully around. One quick glance and Ross had taken it all in. Less than 40 yards beyond the angle in the trail behind which he was crouching, was the Apache stronghold. About 400 feet from the crest of the rocky wall of the canyon was the wide mouth of an open cavern: A few feet in front of this opening was a natural rampart of almost continuous great blocks of stone, 10 or 12 feet higher than the trail that led up to it. and just at the mouth of the cavern in full view by the light of a camp fire. was a band of warriors singing and dancing, while half a dozen squaws were busy cooking them a meal on their return, red-handed, from their raid in the Gila valley. After a whispered consultation, the men silently crept forward on the trail, and under instructions from Lleutenant Ross each man carefully cocked his piece and then, by the light of the Indians camp fire, each singled out the Indian that was his best mark, and at the word, all fired together. The crack of the rifles and the deafening echo of the canyon were succeeded by wild shrieks from the startled Indians as A Buffalo physician in speaking of the six of their braves fell dead at the first volley. The frightened savages for a moment or two sought only safety in the interior of the cavern and behind the natural stone rampart in front of it, but Lieutenant Ross rapidly as possible into the open cave and at any Indian brave whom they could see. early morning light. About this time, however, Lieutenant Bourke, at the head of 40 or 50 men, came rushing and leaping down the narrow and dangerous trail with a recklessness only warranted by the desperate need that Ross might have for reinforce-

Reinforcements Arrive

"Major Brown having thrown Bourke and his men forward instantly on hearing the echoing roar from the Salt rives canyon which told them that Ross was engaged with the Apaches; and Bourke came none too soon to save Ross and his men from a counter attack from the savages. In a few moments Bourke and Ross had taken positions on either flank of the Apaches' cave and sheltered their men behind the adjacent rocks, so that they were comparatively safe from the Apaches' fire. Lieutenant Bourke had been told by Major Brown not to attempt to do more than hold the Indians in case he found they had attacked Lieutenant Ross, until he could get up with the rest of the troops. So Bourke and Ross simply kept up a sharp fire on the enemy's flank and waited.

Indians Surrounded

"Having invested the rancheria so strongly that escape for the Apaches was practically impossible, he ordered all firing ceased, and through his interpreters, summoned the Apaches to an unconditional surrender. Yells of rage, defiance and threats were the only reply. A second time he called on them to surrender, the interpreter telling them how hopeless it was for them to try to escape. The Apaches again defied him, saying that they would fight to the death, and daring the troops to come on. Major Brown then asked them to let the women and children come out, assuring them that he would see that they were protected and treated kindly. This was savagely jeered at, and the troops were again defied. For the next hour the two combatants closely watched each other, the expert riflemen on either side seeking an opportunity for a shot, but so well were both sides covered by lying behind rocks that there were very few, if any, casual-

Red Men Trapped

"In less than five minutes our fire began to tell. The Apaches soon rose up and began to fire over the than one of them as they exposed themselves. Soon the wailing of th women and children was heard, and Major Brown order the men to cease firing and as soon as it was quiet enough to make his interpreters heard, he again demanded their surrender, or in case the warriors would not surrender, he asked that they would at least let the women and children come out. For a few moments no reply was made and all was silent. The Indians had also ceased firing, and at seemed as though they might be consulting as to what course to take. Soon, however, a wild, wailing song or chant was heard, and the interpreter shouted: "That's the death song! They are going to charge! Here they And twenty or more superb looking warriors, fully armed, suddenly sprang on the ramparts and delivered a volley at the men nearest them, while from their rear another party of warriors quickly sprang down and tried to get around the left flank where the warrior who nearly got away in the morning tried to escape. Scarcely had they mounted the rampart, when nearly every man in the front line dashed from his cover and made straight for them, opening fire on them as they advanced, killing five or six, and driving them headlong off the rampart and back into the cave, while the second line headed off and drove back those who tried to escape by the right flank. The instant that they were behind the ramparts, however they renewed the fight, still singing and chanting the death song. Whole Force Attacks Indians

"Major Brown now brought up all his men on the first line, and sent a perfect hail of bullets against the roof of the cave, the incessant discharge of the rifles sending up an echoing roar through the canyon that was heard miles away. While this was going on Captain Burns and his command, who had been sent back on the raiding trail of the Apaches at daylight, and who had heard the firing and was on his way to take part in the action, reached the top of the precipice just above the Apache stronghold. Within five minutes Captain Burns had the whole command gathering up and sending great boulders and masses of rock down the sides of the precipice into the now writhing mass of entrapped Apaches. Still the Indians refused to surrender, and held on desperately, continuing their defense against the troops, especially from their left, where their medicine man and two or three braves kept up a steady fire. Finally even this gave out, and with it their shouts of defiance and war songs gradually ceased. Signaling Captain Burns o discontinue sending down boulders. Major Brown waited for the dust and smoke to subside, and then ordered an assault. As the troops, rifles in hand, sprang forward and entered the cave by the trail on each flank of the rampart they saw that the fight was over-The place behind the rampart and the

Margherita Preparing for Auto Tour of United States

Bu Associated Press. NEW YORK, Feb. 17 .- The report published at different times that the Dowager Queen Marguerite of Italy will visit the United States is againrevived today in a dispatch from Rome to the World, which says it has been definitely arranged that she shall start in May for en automobile tour of the United States. It has long been the wish of the widow of King Humbert to visit America, but she has been prevented from doing so for several years. Just now all the necessary arrangements have been made, a special machine seating six persons having been ordered at one of the most prominent Italian factories The dowager queen will be accompanied on her trip by Marquis Guissioli, her gentleman in waiting, and by the Countess of Villamarina and her daughter. Besides, she will be equipped with a maid and a special chauffeur, who is just now busy studying the English language and the road maps of the United States.

The queen will come incognito under the name of Countess Stupinigi, and has expressed her desire to go as far west as it is possible Her tour of the United States will last several months. ***********************

MISS MARMARA HENRY, CHICAGO. 5036 Forrestville Ave., Miss Henry says: "Before I began using Danderine my hair was falling out in great handsful, and I am pleased to say that Danderine not only stopped it at once, but has made my hair grow more than twice as long as it ever was."

Mrs. Eloise Atherton, Little Rock, Ark., says: "It is surely remarkable the way Danderine improves the hair. It has made my hair grow ten inches longer in five months and it is getting thicker and longer all the time. I believe in giving praise where it is due, and you can use my name as reference if you so desire."

215 Mohawk Street, CHICAGO.

Since it has become generally known that Danderine causes hair to grow just as abundantly on the heads of children as it does on those of matured persons, many truly marvelous cases are coming to our notice. Little Miss Russell, whose photograph appears above, is certainly one of the remarkable ones. Her beautiful hair is over thirty inches long and her mother says that "DANDERINE GREW EVERY BIT OF IT."

DANDERINE is to the hair what fresh showers of rain and sunshine are to vegetation. It goes right to the roots, invigorates and strengthens them. Its exhilarating, fertilizing and life-producing properties cause the hair to grow abundantly long, strong and beautifu. IT IS THE NATURAL FOOD OF THE HAIR, SCIENTIFICALLY CHARGED WITH NEW AND GENUINE LIFE-PRODUCING ESSENCES UNHEARD OF BY OTHER MAKERS OF HAIR TONIC. NOW at all druggists in three sizes, 25 cents, 50 cents and $1.00 per bottle FREE. To show how quickly Danderine acts, we will send a large sample free by return mail to anyone who sends this advertisement to the Knowlton Danderine Co., Chicago, with their name and address and ten cents in silver or stamps to pay postage.

THE INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

A DAY OF MIRACLES AT CAPER- | as Jesus was able to help and relieve NAUM

BY REV. WILLIAM EVANS, B. D. Director Biblical Department of the Moody Bible Institute, Chicago; Official Lecturer of the Cook County (Chicago Sunday School Association on the International Sunday School

(Copyright, 1906, by Joseph B. Bowles.) Scripture: Mark 1:21-34. Golden Text: "He healed many that Someone has said that in this lesson we spend a Sabbath with Jesus. We go with Him to church, listen to His preaching, watch Him when interrupted by a maniac cast out the evil spirit, and then make the cure a powerful aid to preaching. After the service we accompany Him to Peter's house and see Him cure Peter's aged mother of a fever, and there spend the afternoon in quiet and rest. Toward sunset we see the people of the village bringing to Him a great number of sick folk on whom He lays His hands and heals. Thus Jesus spent one of the days of His life. And a busy day it

Christ As a Teacher

Our lesson sets Christ forth as 'one who taught with authority, and not as the scribes." The teaching of Jesus struck the people like a panic. They had been used to the dry-as-dust teaching of the scribes; Jesus spoke a living, not a mechanical message. He explained the Scriptures not as a commentator, but as the author. Christ's message was first-hand. He spoke as Christ's Teachings Authoritative Today

Conscience is not the ultimate rule of life, the final arbiter in the questions of the soul. While we recognize that the conscience is the viceregent of God in the soul, the religious instinct in man, yet we must also be aware that is a faculty that can b warped, drugged, misguided and silenced. Therefore it cannot be depended upon as an absolutely correct criterion of truth and conduct. Reason Is Not the Ultimate Authority

A man may say that he needs no other revelation than his own reason. or that he will accept nothing in the Bible saving what accords with his reason, thereby making his reason and not the revelation of God the criterion of right and wrong. Inasmuch, however, as different men have different "reasons" for doing, believing and judging things, we become at once involved in a maze of conflicting standards of truth and we are left hopelessly in the dark. Reason therefore cannot be the ultimate authority in matters of faith and practice.

Words of Jesus Final and Authorita

When Jesus Christ has spoken there s nothing more to be said. When Christ has passed His judgment, there is no appeal from it. His words are final and authoritative. Jesus said: "He that rejecteth Me, and receiveth not My words, hath one that judgeth him: The word that I have spoken. the same shall judge him in the last Thus we see that the words of Christ are not only to be the standard of our conduct here and now, but the standard by which we shall be judged

Jesus As a Miracle Worker

Miracles were not the principal part of Christ's work. They were always subordinate. More than once Christ expressed the fear that men might be tempted to make miracles the most prominent part of His work, and thus advertise Him as a healer of men's bodies rather than the savior of their souls. That was the reason why again and again He forbade those whom He had healed to advertise the healing. sects today who make "healings" the principal thing, and soul-saving subsidiary. Miracles were merely incidental to the soul-saving work of

prove to the people that He was the Messiah. Indeed, the challenge to cast Himself down from the pinnacle of the temple was a temptation of the devil to make Christ miraculously prove to the waiting people in the courts below that He was the Messiah. This He resolutely refused to do. Nor were the miracles performed for the purpose of persuading men. They and Main street, 'North Fort Worth, | were tokens of Christ's willingness to relieve the distresses of men. In so far called upon so to do.

We Should Help Men

He was sent into the world by the Father, so are we sent by the Son. Our fellows are bowed down with spiritual ailments far more serious than the physically of Christ's day. The soul has its diseases just as well as the body. The spiritually blind, the moral leper, the man dead to the things of God, all these need the healing touch of the Christ. It is the duty of the church to see to it that these are brought into contact with the Great Physician.

Christ Casts Out Demons

Demoniacal possession was common in the day of Christ. Whether it is still in existence, whether or not men are still possessed by demons may be an open question. Returned mission aries from China, India and other foreign countries are very emphatic in the declaration of their belief in demon possession today. Possibly some forms of insanity may be attributed to this source. It may be said that there is nothing contrary to our present knowledge in the statement that evil spirits may and sometimes do gain control over men and to a greater or lesser extent govern their actions. "There is no certainty that such cases do not occur at the present time, and there is much to suggest that 'active agents of evil do beset the human spirit,' and this is the most reasonable way of interpreting the 'tragedies of human sin,' and the 'unexplained remainders of human life." Modern science is not in a position to deny the existence today of demoniacal possession. temper, vice, lust, lasciviousness drunkenness-these, wherever found, are indications that Satan is in con-

Christ can cast out these demons. Let us see to it that we who are His | charged with killing John Tier at Readisciples bring those who are possessed by evil spirits and habits to Christ. Even the demons are subject to His word and command.

Sousa and Wagner One of the stories which John Philip Sousa tells with especial unction-and he is a narrator par excellence-relates to an experience which he had in Leipsic during his recent European tour. Sousa and his band, at Greenwall's opera house Tuesday night, Feb. 20. The band was billed to play at the Crystal palace and in view of the fact that Leipsic has always ranked as an ultra-classical city in its musical tastes (it was the home of Bach, and later of Mendelssohn), Sousa dotted his program liberally with Wagner selections, and for good measure threw in an excerpt from a Handel oratorio, and a transcription from Richard Strauss' opera, "Feuersnot." Everything went well until the first Wagner number was reached. Just as Sousa rapped for attention and poised his baton, a long, loud, sibilant hiss made itself heard and floated up to the leader and the musicians. Sousa turned and again the hiss resounded, sharper than before. There was no mistaking the direction whence the sound had come, and Sousa looked full

In reviving "A Texas Steer" right in the heart of the season, and the Corner in Coffee" and his artistic production, "David Garrick," it should interrupt a seemingly interminable run in order to make room for another attraction desiring the contracted-for time. Of course in many instances the commercial acumen of theatrical management is brought to bear and by arrangement, purchase and the like, a success is enabled to enjoy its run to the end, but in other cases it is compelled to pack bag and baggage and depart for other fields, leaving behind a kind remembrance and much regret. FRANCE READY FOR QUICK BLOW

Should War Come, No Time Will Be Wasted

PARIS, Feb. 15 .- France is ready for a war with Germany, if the Moroccan conference does not pacify the bellicose kaiser. When the first war scare was at its height last summer, the French army was caught napping. It was not ready to take the field and would have been

EARLY SOUTHERN LITERATURE

In beginning a series of articles upon our Southern literature, it may be well to remind our reader that "the first lispings of American literature began upon the shores of the Chesapeake and on the banks of the James river." Captain John Smith wrote and had published in London in 1608 his book, "The True Relation," written in Virginia, thus really laying the cornerstone of American literature. In passing it may be pleasant to note here that Professor Link says that to John Smith also belongs the honor of having named New England, and even Plymouth, where the Pilgrims landed. About 1610 William Strachy wrote a vivid description of a storm and wreck among the Bermuda islands, which it is believed, suggested to Shakespeare the play of "The Tempest." Other writers about this time who wrote in the log huts of Jamestown, were George Sandys, who prea complete translation "Ovid," also John Pory, Alexander Whittaker and George Percy. Perhaps the necessity of knowing more of the old South and its writers may be apparent when we read what Hamilton Mable so generously asserted, that

"For more than fifty years in the early history of our country the dominating power of the nation came from the South. Nine out of fifteen presidents, Justice Marshall, vice presi-Chief army officers came from Southern soil. The cavalier blood of Virginia in the South did as much during this time for the government as did the blood of New England. The North has nobly preserved all her literature of this formative period. Naturally that of the South in all her earlier and her ante-bellum days should have much of interest, both historically and in sentiment for the whole reading people of America. Before the civil war the South was almost wholly agricultural and manly pursuits and profession of law, politics and statesmenship were the channels of study and promotion open to the educated classes, Writing and authorship was used as a recreation, and little or no effort was made by Southern people to push or perpetuate any of their books or For many years after the war the South was busted with the question of meat and bread. Now that prosperity has again spread over our fair land, the spirit of justice and pa-

ongs of your land any one may make its laws," was declared many years Among our early writers of note we have John Pendleton Kennedy, who was contemporary with Washington

The father of this writer was from the north of Ireland, and, emigrating America, settled in Baltimore and became a successful merchant. He married Miss Nancy Pendleton of Martinsburg, Va., in 1794, and the next year was born John Pendleton Kennedy. Even in boyhood this author began to show a strong tendency to the profession of literature and, although he studied at school all the various branches taught, yet a miscellaneous kind of writing was continually pursued by this ambitious boy.

In 1809 his father bought a cottage ome in the country, called Shrub Hill. from which John Pendleton Kennedy rode daily to Baltimore college. Later, Mr. Kennedy studied law and was admitted to the bar in 1816. However, he practice of law was distasteful to im, although he had a great admiration for lawyers. Baltimore was a city much culture, and the association with such men as Pinkney, Hoffman, Poe, Pierpont and Sparks kept alive his passion for literary work. He was a friend also of Washington Irving, and together, on horseback, they traveled over Western New York. He was elected to the Maryland legislature in 1820, and later to congress, in 1838. During Mr. Fillmore's administration he was secretary of the navy, doing valuable service for the government.

Mr. Kennedy married a daughter of Judge Tennant of Baltimore, but she died soon after, and his second wife was a Miss Elizabeth Gray, with whom he lived for forty-one very happy years. He devoted much of his time to literary effort. His frequent visits to Virginia with his mother, which were continued sometimes with his wife, and often alone on horseback, gave him an intimate knowledge of the habits, life, hospitality, manners, plantations and romances of Virginia, the state endeared to him by many ties. When his story, "Swallow Barn," appeared there had been few really faithful pictures of Southern life, and the and South. Professor Link says, "No history can afford to neglect the pages of 'Swallow Barn.'" The demand for this book has been so continued that G. P. Putnam & Sons brought out a new edition in 1895.

Kennedy traveled to Europe and there became acquainted with Thackeray, for whom it is said he wrote a chapter in Vanity Fair, the fourth chapter of the second volume. When in America he traveled much on horseback, which gave him time and opportunity for meeting many characters whom he cleverly reproduced in his novels. He was the true and tried friend of Edgar Allen Poe, ever ready to help him and ever believing in his genius. Kennedy's style of writing fol-lows closely that of his friend Irving, and Donald G. Mitchell says, "He wrote with grace and threw a good deal of the humor and easy persiflage that equip Bracebridge Hall, around all his sketches of old Virginia' His principal works are "Swallow Barn," "Horseshoe Robinson," "Bob of the Bowl," "Red Book," an anonymous collection of prose and verse, "Annals of Quodlibet," "Memoirs of William

ANCHOR FENCE CO. HAS BIG CONTRACT

Fort Worth Firm to Build Sea Wall Fence

CAST HERE

Special, Heroic Treatment to Be Given Posts to Be Used in Protec tion of Galveston

Special to The Telegram. HOUSTON, Texas, Feb. 17 .- J. F. Shelton, general manager of the Anchor Fence Company of Fort Worth, passed through here today en route home from Galveston, where, on yesterday he captured the contract for the building of the iron fence to be erected upon the sea wall. This contract was taken in competition with the world, and that the contract should have fallen to a progressive Texas institution will be the source of gratification to every resident of the state, and, of course, Manager Shelton was highly elated.

When accosted by a correspondent for The Telegram and asked to what he attributed his coup, Mr. Shelton said: "We captured that contract because we are equipped for turning out a first class work that cannot be duplicated anywhere in the country, and by having facilities for this line, we had no trouble in clinching the business, which the county of Galveston offered in the great work now in progress of completing the minor details of the Island City." In detail, as described by Mr. Shelton, the fence is to be two railing. securely anchored by posts leaded into the sea wall.

The fence will be cast in Fort Worth, and the posts and rails then be sand pickled in diluted muratic acid, and will then be boiled in a cauldron of potash. After this heroic treatment the fence will be scratched with pumice stone and will be copper plated and galvanized. Upon this will be placed two coats of graphite paint of

As will be noted in the method of finishing, the special and most unusual equipment is necessitated, and the splendid plant of the Anchor Fence Company is the only one in this section that is prepared for such work on

In erecting the fence upon a long stretch of sea wall, provision will be made for expansion and contration at intervals of fifty or 100 feet. At the main entrance there will be a stretch of 100 feet on either side of the gateway, built of the famous standard ornamental fence put out by the Anchor people. It will be treated in the same manner as the other portions of the sea wall fence. In entering into the competition to secure the contract for the great sea wall fence the Anchor Company faced a business undertaking of gigantic proportions, but they clinched the business with "Anchor Fence Company" dispatch and certainty.

Major General of U. C. V. Calls Attention to Reunion at New Orleans

Following was issued yesterday: FORT WORTH, Texas, Feb. 17, 1906. -General Order No. 68: The major general calls the attention of those in command of camps of the state to the near approach of the sixteenth annual reunion of the Association of Confederate Veterans for 1906, the same to held in the city of New Orleans, April 25, 26 and 27, and to the necessity of making due preparations for at-

Nowadays we get all the beneficial effects of sulphur in a palatable, conentrated form, so that a single grain is far more effective than a tablespoonful of the crude sulphur.

In recent years research and experiment have proven that the best sulphur for medicinal use is that obtained from Calcium (Calcium Sulphide) and sold in drug stores under the name of Stuart's Calcium Wafers. They are small chocolate coated pellets and contain the active medicinal principle of sulphur in a highly concentrated, effective form.

Few people are aware of the value of this form of sulphur in restoring and maintaining bodily vigor and health: sulphur acts directly on the liver and excretory organs and purifies and enriches the blood by the prompt elimination of waste material. Our grandmothers knew this when they dosed us with sulphur and moasses every spring and fall, but the crudity and impurity of ordinary flowers of sulphur were often worse than the disease, and cannot compare with the modern concentrated preparations of sulphur, of which Stuart's Calcium Wafers is undoubtedly the best and most widely used. They are the natural antidote for liver and kidney troubles and cure constipation and purify the blood in a way that often surprises patient and physician alike.

Dr. R. M. Wilkins while experimenting with sulphur remedies soon found that the sulphur from Calcium was superior to any other form. He says: For liver, kidney and blood troubles, especially when resulting from constipation or malaria. I have been sur-Stuart's Calcium Wafers. In patients offering from boils and pimples and even deep-seated carbuncles, I have repeatedly seen them dry up and disappear in four or five days, leaving he skin clear and smooth. Although Stuart's Calcium Wafers is a proprietary article and sold by druggists and for that reason tabooed by many physiclans, yet I know of nothing so safe and reliable for constipation, liver and ey troubles and especially in all forms of skin diseases as this remedy."

THINKS HORSE STOLEN Animal Belonging to L. C. Hutchins

Disappears with Buggy Miss Bertha Hutchins of 404 Peter Smith street drove down town shortly before 5 o'clock Saturday afternoon and went into a music store not far distant from the place where she left the horse hitched. Making several purchases there, she went into other stores, and about 6 o'clock went back to Sixth street, only to find that the horse and buggy were gone. As the animal was gentle and used to being driven about the city, the thought that it was frightened and broke away is not entertained by Mr. Hutchins, nor was there any evidence that the hitch rein had been forced or broken. Mr. Hutchins thinks the animal and buggy The buggy had been recently repainted and was an open top.

PANHANDLE HAS TELEPHONE BOOM

Exchanges Being Established All Over Northwest Texas

Luke F. Wilson, a well known ranchman of Archer county, is in the city. Mr. Wilson states that he has never seen a better winter for cattle, and that stock is in fine condition in his section of the country. Mr. Wilson has just made a trip through Oklahoma and the Panhandle section of Texas, and he states that land is soaring everywhere. "The people from the middle and eastern states are willing to pay higher prices, though," said Mr. Wilson, "and they brag of their bargains at that. The majority of homeseekers who come out buy land before they return, and the settlers from the older states who have already bought are talking about what easy money they have made. Land in Oklahoma is selling at from $1,000 to $2,000 per quarter, 160 acres, and the land is changing hands very rapidly.'

"The most notable thing which I ob-"was the marvelous development of the telephone service in this hitherto undeveloped country. At the little town of Thalia, near Vernon, I found three systems of telephones in operation, and there is scarcely a village anywhere in the Panhandle which has not one or more systems in operation. Of course there are the usual complaints at the telephone service, but it places the people in touch with civilization and the larger cities quicker than any other way. Mr. Wilson was waiting for a long distance call when The Telegram reporter interviewed him, and as his wait was a long one, he was not as enthusiastic over the telephone service as he might have been otherwise. Mr. Wilson states that Fort Worth

Mayor L. G. Pritchard has issued a call for a mass meeting to be held at the city hall Tuesday night. This call is for the express purpose of getting all the candidates for city offices together and making formal announcements of their candidacy. There has been some confusion as to just who the candidates really were because some of those who first announced themselves have since withdrawn from the race and others have taken their places.

Surveyors are already in the field, and the work of construction will be commenced this spring. The other incorporators of the road are residents of Cisco, Rising Star and Brownwood.

PLANS SKATING RING George W. Armstrong to Erect New Building

George W. Armstrong has leased the lot on the southeast corner of Third and Rusk streets for the purpose of erecting a temporary building for the use of a roller skating rink. The plans for the building, which will be of galvanized iron, are now being made. The building will be 100x100 feet and will be fitted with a fine maple floor, which will be laid in sections. In case the roller skating rink proves to be a success the floor will be taken up next winter and relaid in the Natatorium, doing away with the water for the winter season. The meeting will be for the purpose of discussing and agreeing upon all-year one way rates from Texas to the eastern states. There may be others matters brought before the association, but this is the only matter which is on the schedule.

ROLLER SKATING TO BE REVIVED

Rink Will Be Opened in Jennings Avenue This Week

A skating rink will be opened up the first of the week in Foote hall, in Jennings avenue, by A. E. Quay, who comes here from Houston for that purpose. The rink will be opened to the public as soon as the paraphernalla arrives. The new skates for the rink have been shipped and are expected immediately.

The floor in the hall is a good one for skating and the space that will be used will be 70x100 feet. A corner of the hall is not included in the above dimensions and this will be used as check and skate fitting rooms and also as a place for refreshment stands. The present popularity of roller skating originated in St. Louis two years ago and has spread throughout the entire country as a fad that become popular. In Dallas, Houston and other Texas cities skating has supplanted many other amusements. In Houston, where Mr. Quay comes from. the roller skating habit has become a society fad, and more skating parties are given than anything else. In this city Mr. Quay intends to cater to the very best class of people, and will make his hall a first-class place. A detective will be employed at the beginning in order to see that The opening night at the rink will be free, as will the morning for awhile that beginners may learn. An orchestra has been engaged and will play during every night session. In the afternoon a pianist will be present. The rink will be open at night until 10 o'clock, and if skating parties are formed the rink will be closed to all but the part yat 10 o'clock, and they will have the remainder of the

Experienced skaters will be employed in order to give instruction to beginners, and the services of two or more women will be had for the ladies who may wish to learn. Two hundred skates of the best grade will arrive in a day or so. As soon as these arrive the rink will be opened. Another lot of skates of the same size has also been ordered and will arrive shortly. The skates are of the latest pattern, are ball-bearing and steel-wheeled.

It is the intention of Mr. Quay, as soon as the skaters of the city become efficient, to offer prizes for the best and the fastest skaters and also to have a masked carnival. Every feature known to the roller skating pub-He will be introduced and the rink here will be as fine as any in the state. There are three rinks in Houston and another will probably be opened soon. FT. WORTH STARTS WITH GOOD NINE

Prospects for Strong Panther City Nine This Year

FIVE PINE BLUFF MEN

Arkansas Town Well Represented Among Recruits-Seven Righthanded Pitchers Signed

From the number of players that Fort Worth baseball team will start the season with and from their known ability, the Panther City will have a nine this year that promises to be numbered among the best that has ever represented Fort Worth. Eighteen players have been signed by Manager Ward. They will be given a try-out and even more are expected before the season starts. This number does not include Boles or Gfroerer, who have not signed contracts as yet, or another new infielder, and also an outfielder, with whom negotiations are now going on.

The team this coming season promises to be the fastest set of youngsters that has ever played in the south, and although no claims are stated out and out that the Fort Worth team will win the pennant, whenever this question is asked of Manager Ward or Captain Cavender, the answer of "wait a while" is always given with a smile. Of the team that will represent Fort Worth next season, five of the men who will be given try-outs are from the Pine Bluff team of last year, if Gfroerer is counted among the number, as it is considered that he will probably sign a contract. Of these there are Captain Cavender, Gfroerer, Barry, Carlon and Clayton.

All Right-Hand Men

In the pitcher's box for the coming season will be numbered the following men, all right-handers, as not a single left-hander has been signed by Manager Ward for the coming season: "Long Tom" Huddleston, Walsh, Wicker. Dupree. Harris. Slack and Ort. Of these Huddleston, Wicker and Walsh are well known here for their work in the box for the past season and a description of their ability is not necessary. They are all known to be steady and hard working when pitching and generally manage to win or give the opposing team a hard run for the money if not winning their Harris was with Fort Worth for a while last year, but his arm went back on him and he was lent by Manager Ward to the Dublin team, where he played the remainder of the season. His arm got into shape again, and it is expected that he will be able to pitch gilt-edge ball again this year. Dupree is another West Texas League find. He comes here from San Angelo, where he made a big reputation in 1905. His home is in Topeka, Kan., and he formerly played with amateur clubs with which Walter Boles was connected.

Another new pitcher is Slack, who comes from Oklahoma. It will probably be his honor to pitch the first ball for Fort Worth this year in the opening game with the St. Louis team here on the first Sunday in March. Captain Cavender has stated that he will give Slack the opportunity for the first tryout in that game.

Harry D Ort. mention of whose contract was made in The Telegram this week, is a pitcher of about 24 years of age, who has made a record in the Saturday Afternoon League of Ohio. He is recommended by Barry, the catcher who has signed from Pine Bluff. His greatest record was made in a twenty-one inning game that he pitched on July 17, 1905, which he won by his batting in the final inning, and he has speed to burn. Of the pitchers who hold over from last year the averages are as follows: Harris won one game each from Tem- | An interesting program for that meet-His batting average for the season was .120 and his fielding .861. Huddleston pitched eighteen games for Fort Worth and won nine. He defeated Dallas four times and lost three games. Against Waco he split even with three won and three lost. He won three from best record was against Waco, from which team he won five games and lost three. His batting average for the year was .141 and his fielding average .952. Wicker pitched thirteen games, winning seven and losing six. His batting average was .224 and his fielding average was .866.

Two Catcher Candidates

Of the catchers there are two canlidates. Erwin of last year and Barry, the catcher of the Pine Bluff team of last year's Cotton States League. Erwin went through the season with a batting average of .293 and ranked as the seventh batter in the league, playing in twenty-seven games. His fielding average was .968, where he ranked as ninth catcher.

Barry, the newcomer from Pine Bluff, is a strong thrower to bases and is tremendously fast on his feet. His work at Pine Buff made him one of the favorites of the team. No one has yet been signed for first

In the Infield

The other three infield positions will have a number of candidates to try for them, the positions being assigned according to the ability of the players. Among others it is hoped that Walter Boles will again be with the team. The other infielders who will be given a. try-out are Harrol, Clayton, L. C. Johnson, Carlton and Whiteman, L. C. Johnson comes from Waverley.

Ohio, where he played in the Saturday Afternoon League with the Waverley team as a third baseman. He has been recommended to Manager Ward by several players and has a strong throwing arm. During the winter he has been teaching physical culture at a college in Ohio. He is a left-handed batter and is fast on the getaway. Carlon is another Pine Bluff man and played third base there for two years. He is but 21 years of age, and after the closing of the season at Pine Bluff last year he went to Mobile, where he continued to play ball. Clayton is 25 years of age and comes from Pennsylvania. He has played professional ball for six years. He is fast on ground hits and has made a hit as a speedy infielder. He played with the Little Rock team, but was compelled to guit there on account of malarial fever, and later played part of the season with Pine Bluff.

Whiteman comes from the Waco team, having been traded by Waco for Burleson, who was playing with Fort Worth. He is a good batter, his average last year being .241 and his field-Harrol is another infielder. He comes comes from Louisville, Ky., and will make his first break into league ball in this city. He has been playing independent ball at Louisville and was nmended by Gfroerer.

In the outfield there have been only two men signed so far, although negotiations are now going on with Groerer and one or two others. The two that have been signed are Captain Cavender and Wilson. Wilson played field for Austin and Fort Worth last year in 116 games, with an average of .940 for fielding and .256 for bat-

Captain Cavender Popular

Of the list Captain Cavender is one of the most popular of all. He will cover left field. At the beginning of last year, although a resident of Fort Worth, he was playing with the Pine Bluff team. When the yellow fever broke up that league and Pine Bluff was also dropped for this year he was left free to come to Fort Worth, his native town. He played here in thirtytwo games last year and ranged fourth among the outfielders in fielding, with an average of .988. His batting was also very fine, as he ranked as the second batter in the league, being but a few points behind Blackburn of Temple, who played in but eleven games, however. Cavender's average for last year was .330, he being the only Fort Worth player with an average of over .300.

MATINEE RACES NEXT THURSDAY

Attractive Program Promised at Driving Club Park

HORSES IN TRAINING

Two Score Fort Worth Trotters and Pacers Being Worked Into Condition for Spring Meets

The Fort Worth Driving Club is now going forward with big strides. There are about forty local horses in training at the track and some of these are very fast. Over $8,000 has been spent at the new track.

At present a new entrance to the center field is being made so teams can get through to the center field without going through the crowd. On matinee days the gate by the grand stand can be locked and the crowds kept off the race tracks at the time the races are going on. A rule has been made that hereafter no one will be allowed in the judges' stand except those who belong there.

Bankers to Be Guests

The next matinee will be held on Saturday, Feb. -, and the members and delegates to the fourth district meeting of the Texas Bankers' Association will be invited to visit the track and view the races. A polo game has also been arranged for the day on which two teams from the Polo Club at Arlington Heights will compete. The members of this club have a string of fine ponles and they have become quite expert at the game. The contest promises to be most interesting. The game will be called at o'clock.

Another matter that the driving club is now taking up is the Tarrant county fair, and it is expected that the first fair will be held next fall. The club will also have a good horse show and races in the spring, besides the regular bi-weekly matinee races.

Trainers Busy

The four trainers at the track are busy every day, and when the weather is good the horses are being worked from early morning until late in the

Heard, and although just broken, shows the earmarks of a race horse. Estes Boy is a fast horse, belonging to a Mr. Barkwell of Kansas. He goes on a gallop, going the wrong way of the track. but when turned around he is all business. Al Don, a two-year-old, owned by Gilland & Harwood, is a good gaited colt and although worked very little, shows steady improvement and will learn to pace well. Frank K. Allen, a horse owned by parties in Terrelt. I. T., is sixteen and one-half hands high and can step along fast. John S. Wilkins, owned by Mr. Lawler, is a good-gaited three-year-old colt, and can go fast. He is by Symboleer, 2:0914, who held the world's record for two-year-olds, secured by by him at Dallas. A four-year-old by William M. Hill, dam by Ashland Wilkes, is a good colt, and although having only about two weks' work, is learning fast. He is owned by Dr. Barnes. A gray mare owned by Mr. Berry is perhaps as good a prospect as there is at the track, as she is well gatted and paces all the time. Tommy Baron is a good gaited two-year-old colt and can step well. He has the earmarks of a good pacer and will do to watch. He is owned by Mr. Waynicks. Good Horse Coming

In W. F. Wilson's barn is some extra good material to be more fully developed, as good weather is coming on and this is the time of the year to do it. Mr. Wilson expects his fine horse, Todd Allerton, by Allerton, 2:0914, dam Loudena Wilkes, 2:1414, second dam by Patchen Wilkes, to arrive in a few days. Other good horses in his barn are Bicarbonate, by Carbonate, 2:091/4. He is owned by L. P. Robertson and will make a fine trotter. He is a dark iron gray.

In the next stall is Ren Defiance. 2:2914, dam by son of Happy Medium, owned by Dr. Ike Mayfield. He is a fine looking horse and is a pacer. In another stall is Fox Elkin, 2:2214. by Adfield, 2:221/4, dam by Gipsy Hal. He is owned by Mr. Wilson and is a fine looking bay horse.

gray filly by Rob Guy, 2:251/4, dam Dora D., 2:22, and is owned by Ben Waggoman. She is a fine looking filly and has a good prospect. In another stall is Murry L., 2:2414, by Lenial, dam by Lump, 2:21. He is owned by Walter Jones. A Good Track

Mr. Wilson, Cal Bates, Mr. Bostick and Al. Lawler all agree that Fort Worth has one of the best half-mile tracks in the country. In the same barn with Mr. Wilson are Cal and Dell Bates. They have two extra good prospective horses, one of which is er, is a fine looking gray, dam by Cosine, second dam Happy Medium.

Barn No. 3. Captain Bostick is in charge of barn No. 3 and has the following horses, among others, in training: Bay Stallion and Woldie, the property of Dr. Duke of Alvarado. Woldie was sired by Haskew, dam Nora, by Woodford Abdallah, and Dean Bell, standard bred and registered, sired by St. Bell, dam by Aberdeen, second dam by

Happy Medium. Br. Coon, owned by Mr. Coonrod, is a three-year-old by Governor Strong, dam by Prospect. Echo, owned by Ed Phillips, is a black gelding, three years old, by son of Gambetta Wilkes, dam by Campbell Brown. Lady Gross, a bay three-year-old, was sired by son of Electrite. This mare is standard bred and a trotter and is owned by Leon Gross. Frank Urquhart, a bay gelding, owned by Joe Urquhart of Greenville, is a pacer and was sirved

CHESS CORNER

 Four games in the first round of the Texas correspondence tournament have been adjudicated by S. M. Furman of this city, the referee. He still has on hand five more games, which will be adjudicated within a day or so. It is expected that several more games will arrive within a few days. In the analysis of the games, Mr. Furman has consulted with Will Monnig and Otto Monnig and the decisions which have been handed down are the results of the work of the three. The results which have been announced so far are as follows: Class 5-Tom M. Taylor vs. R. R. Hart, win for Mr. Hart; R. A. Hart vs. T. V. Mnnson, draw; E. P. Buford vs. R. A. Hart, win for Mr. Hart. Class 1-A. B. Peticolas vs. F. H. Seaman, win for Mr. Peticolas.

Nothing From Lasker

Still nothing has been heard in this city from Chess Champion Lasker, who in his last letter promised to make a tour of the state from Feb. 10 to 15 He has never written since his first letter of a month ago saying that his ttrip has been postponed. It is expected by the local chess experts that he will come later on and that the change has been due to a delayal of his plans. Word is expected from him

New Variation on Rules O. H. P. Rudesill of Houston spent few days recently near Pearland and he met some of the chess players of that section. They have a style of play that is distinctive, and some extraordinary rules that are much at variance with the international code. For instance the first player has two moves instead of one. He may move a pawn and then a bishop or a knight (usually a bishop) after which black makes his first play. Castling is an unknown move in the section and Mr. Rudesill's attempt to adopt it met with immediate opposition.

Answer From Fort Worth

Among the answers to Problem No. 116 in the Chicago Tribune, which was prepared by the late Rev. J. F. Moon, is noted the correct answer by T. P. Noland of this city. The problem was a very difficult one to solve and fooled many of the regular readers of the Tribune chess column.

POLY DEFEATS CLEBURNE TEAM

Basketball Game in Favor of Local Team

Polytechnic College defeated the Cleburne Y. M. C. A. at basketball Saturday afternoon by the score of 16 to 10. The game was hardly the best exhibition of basketball that has been seen in this part of the country, as the playing was slow and the team work and goal shooting rather erratic. Polytechnic started off well, and after getting a commanding lead dropped into a listless game, played also by the visitors. The ball was kept on the ground a large part of the time, the players in many cases rolling the ball from one man to another instead of passing it. At times the team work of both teams was very good, but a tendency to bunch together was shown, with a consequence that the game developed into a tussel to see who could take the ball away from his The end of the first half showed Polytechnic in the lead, with the score

10 to 4. In the second half each team scored six points. The best basket ball of the day was played by Anderson of Cleburne, who was fast on his feet. He lost many opportunities to score, however, from his inability to cage the ball. The feature of the Polytechnic game was the playing of Burdette and Wilson. The teams lined up as follows: Polytechnic - Forwards, Dought; and Burdette; center, Gregg; guards, Hinds and Wilson. Cleburne - Forwards, Moore and Wimberly; center, Man; guards, Anderson and Roper. Referee-Professo. Brown of Cle-

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Feb. 17 .- The recent declaration of Governor Pattison that laws must be enforced to the limit this year practically seals the doom of horse racing in Ohio during the coming season. Cleveland has not been allotted dates for a meeting, but preparations had been made to give this city a week if pools can be sold here. Now it is believed that pools cannot be sold and there will be no

races next summer. ROBIN HOOD HERE

Splendid Performance Witnessed by Only Fair House

The Aborn production of "Robin Hood," the Bostonians' famous comic opera, at Greenwall's last evening drew only a comparatively small house. The play, as put on here, deserves an audience that should have filled the theater. No better chorus work has ever been presented here, the famous old songs being sung with a dash and a go that would have pleased the most pessimistic critic. The piece was well staged and the costumes were fresh. Edgar Metcalf carried away the evening's honors as Will Scarlet, his excellent bass voice showing to splendid advantage in the old favorite, "Brown October Ale." Miss Brewster is a pretty brunette and wore some good looking costumes mighty well. She was suffering with a severe cold, and during the first act her voice was a disappointment. She warmed up to her work in the second and third acts, however, and redeemed her lost ground. Harold Blake, who played the part of Robin Hood, has a splendid tenor voice and was heartly encored in all of his work. F. Stanton Heck played the sheriff. His acting was all that could have been desired. wouldn't take any medals in a singing society. Campbell Donald isn't an actor, but he can sing. Friar Tuck was in good hands in the person of Maurice Hageman. There was no disappointment in "Oh, Promise Me," and sung by Miss Ethel Houston, who played the part of Alan-a-Dale. She possesses a sweet and strong controlt voice. Meta Carson is a clever little (Williams), 30 to 1, won; Theo Cass, bel being eminently satisfactory. actress, her work in the role of Ana-It is not to Fort Worth's credit that this company was not given the house it deserved.

MURDER CHARGE AGAINST VETERAN

Capt. Silven Indicted by Dallas Grand Jury

DALLAS, Texas, Feb. 17 .- Captain E. H. Silven, who fought in the Seventh cavalry with Reno and Custer in the tragic Little Big Horn campaign of 1876, was today indicted by the Dallas county grand jury, charged with the murder of Bernard Philipson, who perished in the Gaston National Bank fire in Dallas on the morning of

Jan. 9, 1906 Captain Silven is accused of hurning the building. He was arrested on at affidavit a few days after the fire are released on $7,500 bond. His indictment annuls the bond and he was again placed in the Dallas county jail. After the Custer massacre Captain Silven served as a lieutenant in the British army in India and later as major in the Chilean war with Peru. He has been considered a leading architect in Dallas for more than &

dozen years. CHARGED WITH FISHING Negro Alleged to Have Taken Money

DOCTOR REPORTS

POISONING CASE

County Mystery Announced

HILLSBORO, Texas, Feb. 17 .- Sher-

stomach and its contents of Mrs.

On Jan. 30, 1906, I received by express from Sheriff Satterfield, Hillsboro, Texas, a box in which was packed and sealed a two-quart jar said to contain the stomach and contents of Mrs. Arndt, deceased. The same day the jar was opened and the contents removed. The stomach was found tied at both ends. Some decomposition had taken place. It was opened and contained about two ounces of dark reddish-brown semi-liquid material, with a bad odor of decomposition, was into small pieces, thoroughly macerated, and divided into two portions. One to be subjected to inorganic or mineral poisons, the other for volatile and organic poisons. The process of separation, extraction, purifying and testing for poisons continued from this date to Feb. 13, 1906.

Many poisons were tested for during the various stages of extraction, all with negative results except morphine, of which distinctive tests were obtained. No other poison was found. My only conclusion, therefore, is that a small amount of morphine was

RALLY MEETING TODAY

Sunday Club of Fort Worth Peculiar in Texas

Less than a year ago the Sunday Chib was organized in the parlors of the First Fresbyterian church. It was among the first organizations of its 1 kind in the south-the first and only one of its Find in Texas. It was crgarized to give men a place to spend an hour Sunday atternoon.

The plan of this clug was originated by Rev. Dr. William Caldwell, pastor of the church, and W. E. Bilheimer. The management has been chiefly in the hands of Mr. Bilheimer, formerly a Y. M. C. A. man.

The membership has stedily in creased until it now numbers over 300 Today is the club's rally day. The subject of discussion this morning will be, "The Sunday Club." The evening sermon will be address to the members of the club.

The Trinity Quartet of Waxabachie will sing at the meeting at 4 o'clock this afternoon and at the evening service. Mrs. Morton will render a violin solo at the afternoon meeting. A general invitation has been extended

ATTACK WOMAN

Mrs. J. E. Wilson of 945 College Avenue the Victim

MEN FRIGHTENED OFF

Scared Them Away

A bold but fruitless attement at highway robbery occurred at 11:30 o'clock last night. Mrs. J. E. Wilson of 945 College avenue was the victim, and she was frightened so badly that she was on the verge of nervous prostration when the officers arrived at her airs. Wilson had been in town and was returning home. She got off the Henderson street car and was walking home with her 10-year-old son. Between Terrell and Henderson streets, on College avenue, two men tried to rob her. One of them caught hold of her and said: "Give me your money! He had a handkerchief over the lower part of his face, but she knows that he was a white man. Mrs. Wilson told him that she had no money. The man then released her. Just at this time the wagon of Turner & Dingee came by and Mrs. Wilson hailed the driver, who phoned for the police.

Mounted Officers D. E. Lloyd and Tom Snow responded to the call. Mrs. Wilson informed them that the men had run across the campus of the Fort Worth university, and they made a careful search of that vicinity, but failed to locate the men. Mrs. Wilson states that both of the men were of about medium height, and that one was heavy built and the other medium weight. The man who grabbed her, she is positive, was a white man, but she does not know whether the second man was white or black.

TERRELL ELECTION VIOLATION CHARGED

Man Arrested on Grand Jury Indictment

Section 170 of chapter 11 of the election statutes of Texas says: "Any person who loans or advances money to another knowingly to be used for paying poll tax of such other person, is guilty of a misdemeanor." A misdemeanor, under the terms of the law, which is the Terrell election law, is a fine of not less than $200 nor more than $500, or hard labor on the county road for not less than sixty days nor more than one year, or both such fine and labor on the county

The foregoing is the letter of the law, as given out by the county attorney's office Saturday as the basis for the indictments returned by the Seventeenth district grand jury, which has adjourned for three weeks.

WEDDINGS

Boman-Blair

Miss Eula Boman of Crockett, Texas, was married to Dr. C. C. Blair of 1209 Main street at 5:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon in the county clerk's office by Justice Charles T. Rowland, thus culminating a pretty romance, the leading feature of which is the fact that Dr. Blair arranged for the bride to make a visit to Fort Worth friends, while she was unaware of his plans for the marriage during her stay in The ceremony was performed late in the afternoon, after the usual office hours of the numerous office force of County Clerk R. L. Rogers, and very few were present at the time. Dr. and Mrs. Blair will reside at 814 East Belknap street, this city.

FAIR COUNTESS TO WED AGAIN?

Rumor Has Another Thread to Castellane Family Tangle

(Copyright, 1906, by W. R. Hearst)
By Cable to The Telegram PARIS, Feb. 17 .- According to a ruor which is discussed in the clubs tonight, a son of James B. Eustis, former minister to Paris under Cleveland, will marry the Countess de Castellane as soon as she gets a divorce from Count Boni. The club whisperers add that the count's indiscretions are only the surface reason for the countess seeking her freedom. At two clubs the Hearst News Service correspondent was given this version of the family trouble. When the Marquis de Castellane was told of the talk he said: "I cannot confirm nor deny the report; it simply surprises and interests me." The late James B. Eustis left two ons, James B. Jr., who is married, and Newton B., who is unmarried. At the Knickerbocker Club, where the latter Mr. Eustis lives, it was stated tonight that he had not been there for a week.

BARBARITIES CEASE Military Atrocities Ordered Stopped by Order of the Czar

Special to The Telegram. BY ROBERT CROZIER LONG. ST. PETERSBURG, Feb. 17.-The repressive military atrocities which have threatened to break up the Witte cabinet continue everywhere. Near Vindau, in the Baltic provinces, four new columns are operating, destroying every village where even a dagger is to be found. In the past week seven batches of prisoners were ruthlessly shot at Remershiff. Owing to the intervention of the ezar in the Witte-Durnovo quarrel, these barbarities are to cease. The czar has decided not to punish officers guilty of the artocities, fearing a revolt in the army, but has ordered the wholesale execution stopped. Last night in St. Petersburg armed Hooligans, usurping the police power, stopped, searched and menaced every suspected revolutionist in several of

PARIS, Feb. 17.-President-Elect

Special to The Telegram.

Fallieres has cooled the elaborate preparations made for his inauguration tomorrow, and has instructed those in charge to make the ceremony as simple as possible. President Loubet gave a farewell reception to the diplomatic corps today. The corps was fully represented, the only ambassador absent being Robert S McCormick of the United States, who is on his way back from a visit to America, and who is not due in Paris until tomorrow. The secretary of the American embassy expressed the embassy's regret at M. Loubet's departure from the presidency. M. Loubet replied: "I shall carry into my retirement esteem not only for the American embassy, but for the American government and the American people whom,

most of all, I admire." COLQUITT DISSENTS

Railroad Commissioner Not in Line on Lumber Tariff Special to The Telegram. AUSTIN, Texas, Feb. 17.—Railroad Commissioner O. B. Colquitt today

jority of the railroad commission concerning the new lumber tariff issued by the commission last Tuesday. The dissent covers twenty typewritten pages, and covers every phase of the number question as it affects Texas as compared with other states. The rates in other states as compared to Texas are discussed with a view of showing that the new rates as promulgated by the commission are not sufficiently low. The dissent says in "I cannot give my approval to the tariff agreed upon by a majority of the commission." (Storey and Mayfield.) "Motion. First: I move that a general tariff on lumber be promulgated, reaching a maximum of 16 cents per 100 pounds in common point territory "Second. That the tariff be adjusted on a 46 cents per 100 pounds maximum basis, and if necessary group the state so as to bring milling points in different sections of the state into competition with each other, and on a rate basis fair to each.

TEXAS RAILROAD LINES EXTENDING

Five Principal Lines to Cover Two Thousand Miles

TEXAS IS A GREAT STATE

Orient Is Among Prominent Railroad Builders Now Developing the Southwestern Country

Charters have been issued for the building of 2,000 miles of railroads in Texas during 1906, and other lines are projected which will bring the total up to fully 3,000 miles. The bulk of the building projected is in the way of extensions to the great systems now already in operation, which insures the completion of the mileage chartered. Some of these lines are already building, and work on the others is to begin in the near future. Among the railroads projected are the following: Kansas City, Mexico and Orient, 650 miles: Santa Fe, 345 miles; Texas Central, 390 miles; Abilene and Northern, 100 miles, and the Prisco system, 350 miles.

The Kansas City, Mexico and Orient is building its road across the state from north to south, a distance of 500 miles, and will build a branch line from San Angelo to Del Rio, an additional distance of 100 miles. This road will penetrate a section of southwest Texas which has been almost exclusively devoted to cattle grazing in the past, but the building of the road will open this territory to homeseekers, and will hasten the development of the country. It will cross the Rio Grande at a point near Presidio del Norte, bringing that locality in direct communication with the outside world and opening a section of the country which will be as important in the future as the Brownsville country. Construction of this road is now in progress south from Sweetwater toward San Angelo, and north from Sweetwater toward Redriver. On his recent visit to Texas President Stillman stated that the road had ample funds on hand and that the construction would be pushed to completion as rapidly as possible.

The Santa Fe is building a branch line from Canyon City, on its Pecos Valley division, to Plainview, which will afford transportation facilities to a rich section of the country which shown wonderful development during the past few years. This line will be seventy-five miles in length.

The Santa Fe has also chartered a cut-off from its Transcontinental line in New Mexico to Brownwood, Texas, a distance of 275 miles. The Texas Central railroad will be built from Stamford to a connection with the Rock Island in New Mexico, 250 miles distant, and this road has two other extensions proposed which will add 140 miles to this estimate. The road now extends from Waco to Stamford, and the extensions have been planned as stated. The Abilene and Northern railroad is to be built from a point on the Texas

Central to Brady, a distance of 100 miles. The Fort Worth and Denver City is to be built from Quanah to El Paso, a distance of 400 miles. This road will pass across the corner of New Mexico. Then comes the extension of the Frisco from Brady to San Antonio, a distance of 150 miles. In addition to the above, there is the Carizzo Springs road, which is planned to extend from Corpus Christi, the extension of the St. Louis, Brownsville and Mexico, to San Antonio and to Houston and Galveston. The building of these roads will aid in the rapid development of the territory tributary to them, and the projecting of the lines shows that capitalists

GAMBLING WITH DEATH

What Many of Us Are Doing Three Times a Day. For everything we get something is ways. Some men in power dole out their souls for it. They can't have soul and power at the same time. And so, in this quick-living age. most of us can't have energy and health at the same time. One or the other must be lost, and it is usually We know we are doing wrong and would like to reform, but we have a morbid fear of being laughed at if we aim to live and eat according to conscience and good sense.

Some of us break away for awhile and enslave ourselves to a diet. We read about the hardy Scotsman being fed on porridge and oatcale, making soldiers of muscle and dash, and how Caesar's army was fed on corn. But the diet doesn't last long. We quickly swing back into the great line, eating and drinking to fulness like the rest, eating anything and everything, at any time, and any way we find it. We say "what is a stomach for if it isn t to obey the palate."

But there is really no one rule applicable to everybody's stomach. What one man may eat another may not. But the dyspeptic should remember that the death list has a dark shadow hovering over it with a long bony finger pointing to "died of heart dis-Physicians will tell us that there are few cases of heart disease that do not come from a stomach de.

Acute indigestion means that you have even chances for death or life. That's the gamble you are taking. That precious gastric juice decides, as a rule, whether you continue to live or not. Therefore, if you feel your food lies like a "lump of lead" on your stomach, beware! Your gastric juice is weak. It can't dispose of the food in time to prevent fermentation. OPEN AIR CURE FOR PNEUMONIA

New Method Being Watched by Local Physicians

Experiments are being made in the treatment of pneumonia by one of the New York hospitals. While this new treatment is not exactly a reverse of former methods, it is quite different from the methods generally supposed to be best for the treatment of this

The new treatment is the open air method, very near the same as the one used in the treatment of consumption. The patients are kept in a tent and all the fresh air possible is admitted, a stove being used to keep the temperature from getting too low. By this new method of treatment a much larger amount of oxygen is obtained than would be possible to have in a hospital

During the three months which the new method has been in use there has been but one of the cases treated in open air that was lost. Thirty cases were tried as the opening experiment, and only one of these was lost. This is said to be much less than the average death rate of pneumonia cases in New York. By this new method fully 75 per cent of the patients recovered the deaths, with one exception, being cases of alcoholics suffering with

While this new method of treating pneumonia is being closely watched by the doctors of the city, there has not been any cases tested by the new method. The local physicians decline to state their opinions concerning the outcome of the method. They say however, that it is at present only in the experimental stage, and that there will not be any facts outside the ones mentioned from which to draw conclusions for some time.

PLEASED WITH FORT WORTH Kansas City Man Sees Packing Industries-Texas Great State

C. C. Safford, wife and baby, of Kansas City, are in the city for a visit to Texas, and will remain here for a week. Mr. Safford is engaged in the real estate business in his home town, and was decidedly impressed with the magnitude of Fort Worth's packing industries and the large amount of building that was going on over the city. "It is a very satisfactory evidence that the claims are the progressive citizens are not 'hot air,' " said he, "and indicates that this improvement is in no way a 'boom,' but a substantial, steady growth. I shall get a rig and drive my wife all over the city so that she can enjoy the sights as well as myself and be prepared to substantiate my statements as to what your city is."

PARTING HUG DECLARED RUSE

Wife Stepped on Train, Says Husband

A parting hug is alleged to have been a ruse by which his wife secured possession of one of their children, according to John Lloyd of Dallas county, who was in Fort Worth Friday night in quest of his wife and two children. Mr. Lloyd made a statement to Chief Maddox of the police department regarding his domestic affairs, saying that as a result of a disagreement he has been arrested once in Lawton, Okla., on a charge of kidnaping his own child. He was subsequently released and brought the child to Dallas, where his wife followed and recovered the child. Mr. Lloyd says he does not know where she now is, but believes that she has returned to

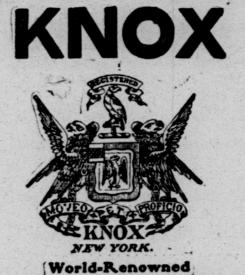

According to the statement made by Mr. Lloyd to Chief Maddox, there is now a divorce proceeding pending which will come up for hearing on Feb. 24, and he has been endeavoring to get his wife and child to remain in Texas until after the hearing, in the hope that the court would award the children to him. The court cannot award him the children while his wife is outside of the state.

Mrs. Lloyd first went to Oklahoma with the children and Mr. Lloyd followed her. He recovered one of the children and got as far as Lawton, Okla., with it when his wife had him arrested. He was subsequently released, however, and brought the child to Dallas. His wife, he says, made an agreement that she would permit the children to remain with him in Texas until after the trial, but that when she went to leave on the train she took the child in her arms as though to hug it and tell it good-bye, and then stepped on the train with it. He followed to Fort Worth, expecting to stop them here, but in this he was unsuccessful. Assistants Appointed Special to The Telegram.

BELL SUPPORTERS ON THE INCREASE

Judge Webb Says Friends Are Legion

Judge B. R. Webb has returned from a trip to Monterey, Mexico, and reports that section of country enjoying great prosperity. Judge Webb an enthusiastic supporter of General Charles K. Bell of this city for governor and informed a Telegram representative that Bell supporters are •0 thick in Texas they are being crowded over into Mexico. He said: "Even away down at Monterey, Mexico, I found quite a number of ardent supporters of Judge C. K. Bell for governor. They were Texans visiting there, and as they will all be at home on primary election day with a poll tax receipt in one hand and a Bell ballot in the other, it will not fit this case for anyone to remark that the Monterey vote will not count in the election. At Laredo, Texas, a well-informed public man said that Judge Bell would lead in that section unless Southwest Texas had a local favorite son in the race in the person of Colonel "'And if that happens,' I suggested, 'it is still to be presumed that your delegates to the state convention will reflect the preference of their constituents on the second and subsequent ballots as well as on the first?" "'Of course, of course,' he replied, apparently not catching the drift of my remark. "'Thanks,' I said; I feel sure Judge Bell will not in the least degree begrudge a favorite son a nice complimentary first-ballot vote on the part of his county or section. "Then the man of Laredo smiled, but cheerily still, as it occurred to him that the Terrell election law in the section regulating the balloting in convention supersedes pro hac vice that part of the scriptural declaration which says the last shall be first. "'I see,' he said. 'Well, if our tion should not get in its own favorite son Judge Bell will suit us all right, for we know him to be a man of ability, high character and sound judg-

* * * ANNOUNCEMENTS

Thursday, March 1 East Side Whist Club with Mrs. Swayne and Mrs. Burgess, West Side Whist Club with Mrs. James Gray.

The Daughters of the American Revolution met Saturday afternoon, four new members being admitted to the local chapter, the Mmes. Bell of Weatherford, Mrs. Richardson, transferred from a Vermont chapter, and Miss Jennie Church. Those present were Mmes. Kane, Dickinson, Lofton, Bostick, Matlock, Cobb Richardson, Hull, Scott, Gilliland and Roe. Mrs. Lofton will entertain the chapter at the March meet?

Mrs. John F. Swayne and Mrs. John Burgess will entertain the East Side Whist Club Thursday, March 1.

A young man discovered with a library of auto catalogues confessed: "I think to own an up-to-date machine. I have been the possessor of burros, ponies and horses for riding and driving, but have never succeeded in getting over ground to my satisfaction and the animal's at the same time. If I tried to spur my steed to anything like distance covering I felt I was cruelly abusing it. If I left the matter to the animal, I suffered aggravating impatience, even though the animal was evidently jogging in comfort of body and spirit.

Now, the auto offers the opportunity of getting there or somewhere with a conscience free from the pangs induced by the teachings of the humane

Those who are much on the streets of Fort Worth see many abuses of horses by the drivers of grocery, coal and lumber wagons. In fact, there is scarcely a firm that considers their horses when drivers are selected. Watching the abuses day after day suggests that there is a wide field open for the humane societies in educating firms employing horses to substitute some form of the auto for their haul-

There is hardly a firm that does not put a heavy whip in the hands of their drivers, who may or may not be ignorant and brutal. Many eyewitnesses claim they are often both. They then load the wagons many times the pulling capacity of the horse, who is seldom above 1,000 pounds in weight.

A few days ago one of the lumber companies loaded thousands of pounds of cement on one of their wagons drawn by two horses-not draft horses, either. At the corner of Fourth and Main, one horse, unable to pull his part of the cruel burden, slipped upon the brick pavement. His legs Were eaught under him and badly strained from the fall and weight. It took an hour and the labor of several men to extricate the helpless animal. Hundreds of people stopped to pity,

Had some form of motor been used when a wagon struck a halt, the worse for the passerby would have been a display of language pyrotechnics and the ministrations of the clergy. It has been noted that the dry goods men of Fort Worth give few occasions for the observer to criticise. Their horses show that they are well cared for as a rule, and there are few whips in the hands of their drivers.

The president of a big business that employs a large number of men and teams will not allow a whip in the hands of a driver. "If he knows how to drive he does not need it. If he does not know how to drive I do not need

The condition of the streets of Fort Worth should cause ceaseless activity on the part of the humane societies and their friends. The paved streets are a constant menace to horses who are in the hands of reckless drivers. Falling and slipping are of daily occurrence, men and women being equal-ners at a dangerous speed. In the suburbs the mud makes an impassable bog for the loaded wagons, but the whip is continually seen, while the wagon is loaded to its excess ca-

. . . The absorbing interest shown in the case of Lou Dillon and the charges that she was doped in her last race wherein she lost the championship of the trotting world, has grown with each chapter of testimony. A feeling of horror has spread over the country at the insinuations that have accompanied the charges. It is not the racing world that is most interested. Every friend of the horse and every person of humane feeling is stirred because of the charges that not only was the great mare doped for temporary defeat, but | son, Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Ware, Mr. and never appear upon the grand circuit again as a rival or champion.

The cruel malignity that belongs with the story has seldom been matched in the annals of the turf. Side by side with the story of the injury to Lou Dillon is the account of the treatment of Billy Buch, the most sensational performer on the grand circuit a few seasons ago. Billy Buch was an undefeated gelding, bought for $15,000. The owner raced him without mercy, and even after the horse went lame insisted upon his filling a race entry. He won, but pulled up a hopeless wreck. When this was a certainty the man who had caused the wreck discarded him without pity or conscience, because he was no longer a money winner.

Therefore, among the big public, among those who are neither horsemen nor "pony players," are comments that tell how deep rooted in men is the conviction that a man who is not merciful to his own beast has no mercy for aught else.

Dogs share with horses the affections of the human race. A little crippled dog lying helpless in the animal hospital brought forth from a man the query to its owner: "What do you want with that dog?" "If you had a good and loyal friend would you not want to keep that friend as long as possible?" was the answer.

And that is the thought of the heart universal. The love that lies in the heart of a dog surpasses that given to man to even guess. And life has not yet brought to any man anything bet-

A young man no longer receives invitations to a home where he was once welcome. The hostess tells why. I heard him tell with evident satisfaction of having thrown poison broadcast where a number of dogs could get it because their barking in the night had awakened him. Since then I have felt a positive horror whenever I see him. Life is life. A man who would in cold blood poison an animal for no greater reason than that might even regard human life lightly. My feelings on the subject cannot be reasoned with. I know there are many dogs that are nuisances, but the proper thing is to have a system whereby the dog might be brought into court, and if the charges be true have the law execute him as the law provides for other criminals. But poisoning, as this young man boasted of, was to me wanton murder.

Country Club

Messrs, and Mesdames Oscar Menefee, Ed Tempel, A. B. Wharton, Hunter Wilson, Jerry Ellis, Forris Berney and Ben O. Smith entertained a few friends with an informal german at the Country Club Wednesday evening. There were just enough to have a jolly time, free from any air of formality. A four-piece orchestra furnished the music and the night was sufficiently cold to make one enjoy a good dance. Bert Winfrey led the cotillon with Miss Swayne. The guests were: Mr. and Mrs. Glen Walker, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Hertford, Misses Ray Saunders, McCart, Nita Holingsworth, Aileen Humphreys, Burnie Newlin, Mary Swayne, Andre Anderson and Martin, Messrs. C. D. Reimers, William Paddock, Harry Wynne, Douglas Burnett, Henry Beck, Bert Winfrey, Frank Scheuber, George Kaufmann, W. V. Galbreath, John Miller, McKay, Hedrick and Dollars.

"Wags" Honored

Miss Esther Connell entertained her friends complimentary to the "Wags" Wednesday afternoon. The Connell home was attractively decorated with red carnations and the lights shaded with red globes. Whist was played with flinch cards. The score cards were little heart valentines. Mrs. Harold Maloney won the club souvenir. a very acceptable piece of lingerie. Miss Annabell Birdwell won the guests' souvenir, a lovely framed picture. A box of chocolates was the consolation, won by Miss Blanch Vallandingham. Dainty refreshments were served carrying out the valentine idea with cream, candies and cake in heart shapes, with a clever valentine on each guests' plate. The guests

They Threw Hearts

Miss Margaret Berney entertained quite informally with a heart throwing match in celebration of Saint Valentine's day. The guests met at the home of Mis Berney's sister, Mrs. Patterson, on Henderson street, and were introduced to hearts gay and gorgeous and very, very numerous. The heart that was used in tests of skill was ribbon twined and the throwing of it not easy. Mlle. Toucas won the ladies' prize, one of the popular books, and Mr. Rhea that for the men, a valentine.

Lewis, Mr. and Mrs. G. W. with bow and quiver well filled with golden arrows, arrows which were aimed directly at the heart of the admiring visitor. The crimson hearts paled into pink in the dining room decorations. Pink sweet peas formed an immense bouquet for the chandelier shade over the dining table, which had a border of wide pink satin ribbon enveloping with its happy cheerfulness a cover of handsome Battenburg lace.

In the center was a basket of ferns, the basket being three cornered. Each side had for decoration a pink heart outlined in pink carnations, reaching to the upper edege of green. Along all the mantel and buffet were solid rows of tlny valentines, dainty and artistic. The coffee room was given over to studies in the art of being beautiful though comic. The walls of the library, which was used as the coffee room, were lined with pictures of boys and girls celebrating the "festival of All the ladies of the house party

A cordial invitation is extended to all church members and their friends. Sacred Music

The Catholic church has long been noted for the excellence of its music. Many of the great composers' finest works have been written for her services and nearly every well known organist and singer has at some time or other contributed to the rendition of these masterpieces. At the present time much of this music is under a ban, as the church authorities are endeavoring to foster a love for the old Gregorian chants, which were once the universal music of the Catholic church. It is therefore doubly interesting to be able to hear some of this music on an occasion such as will take place next Tuesday evening, when the choir of St. Patrick's church will give a concert, assisted by several of the best known musicians in the city. The program is as follows: Organ solo-March in D.....

About the New Skirts

THE ADVENT OF THE ROUND LENGTH SKIRT HAS MADE POSSIBLE SO MANY DIFFERENT STYLES IN SKIRTS. EVERYTHING, SO TO SPEAK, IS SHORT, TAILORED SUITS AND SKIRTS FOR STREET AND MORNING WEAR, TO BE CORRECT, MUST BE ROUND IN LENGTH. THIS EVEN LENGTH IN A WELL TAILORED GARMENT ALWAYS IMPARTS YOUTH-FUL GRACE AND A CERTAIN DIGNITY OF ITS OWN.

These which we are now showing are so suggestive of early spring-worn with the dainty Lingerie waists and smart belts. As will be noticed, very little braid or other trimming is used; simply stitched folds, or bands of selfmaterial, and buttons also made of same.

THE illustration shows three of the models which we offer tomorrow. We are making a special effort in the skirt line and invite your approval of these stylish tailored

The skirt to the left is a charming style, showing the new adaptation of circular and plaited combination. The stitched dart-like plaits at waist and inverted plaits meeting at the hip line form a yoke and impart to the skirt a jaunty finish. Composed of Panama and mannish mixtures in new shades of gray, blue and white and black, $5.95

In the center is a two-piece circular style, showing tiny buttons the length of the front, and stitched blas folds around the bottom. This skirt is made of fashionable gray and white checks, black and white stripes or the indispensable plain blue and black panama, also the new "shadow plaids" $7.95 to $22.50

To the right is a pretty skirt complicated to describe, but good lines when on, the plaits giving it such a full, graceful flare. Made of panama, and light weight wool mixtures. Note the colors-oyster gray and medium shades in gray, broken plaids, plain blue and black,

The New 1906 Silks

A showing this week of early arrivals in the new effects for the spring and summer season. It would be impossible to adequately describe all the new styles in silks, but many of the newest silks have woven floral and other designs on a background of hair-line stripes and checks of the same color; then there are the new "Queen's gray" interwoven with crossbars and checks and forming a chic ensemble. These items for this week:

Miller and Gleed Take Over New Mexican Tract

EL PASO, Texas, Feb. 17 .- One of the large purchases of New Mexico ranch property made recently was that of two Kansas men, Frank C. Miller and Willis J. Gleed, who took over a tract of 80,000 acres in the Atrisco land grant on the Rio Puerco. They represent large capital interests and intend to stock the ranch with sheep and cattle and otherwise develop the property. Miller is vice president of the Kansas City Pioneer Trust Company and Gleed is a member of the law firm of Gleed, Ware & Gleed of Topeka. There are extensive coal deposits near the property and it is understood that it is also intended to develop the coal districts. Gleed and Miller passed through El Paso on their way home, after com-

No Complaint

Although the losses to the sheep of New Mexico from the recent storms have been heavy, the West Texas stockmen have no complaint to make. If the storms were of even greater duration than they have been, the El Paso county stockmen and those of neighboring counties would rejoice. There is every prospect for unusually early and abundant grass. The snow remained on the ground but a short time, while the rains were of great advantage to the range.

Shearing Under Way In Maricopa county, Ariz., sheep shearing is well under way. More than 200,000 head of sheep are to be sheared. Wool buyers from the eastern markets have been on the ground. The prices are expected to be at a higher level than last year. Both in Arizona and New Mexico the growers are elated over the prospect. Fine Stock in Mexico

Cattlemen are becoming greatly interested in the opportunity offered for breeders of fine stock in Mexico. Many men from Illinois and Indiana have made recent trips to the republic to investigate the possibilities of the business. They all express themselves as highly sanguine of success. Among the stock breeders who have recently announced their intention of embarking in Ind., and James R. Henry of Indianapolis, Ind. The communication was laid before the senate, and without reading was referred to the committee on privileges and elec-

The petition is similar to one filed by Mr. Post at the last session of congress. It said that Mr. Platt should be expelled because, as president of the United States Express Company, he is an officer in a trust or combination comprising all the leading ex-press companies of the United States for the maintenance of high rates, thus restricting trade and commerce in violation of the anti-trust act. The petition is accompanied, as before, by affidavits showing that Mr. Platt refused to support the Post check bill because it would decrease the money order business of the express companies. He is also alleged to have declared that he would oppose any other measure calculated to injure the business of express companies.

founded on the Yerkes affair, which probably contains enough visible raw material (in this day of strenuous journalism) to lay sufficient foundation for a story of absorbing interest that would appeal to every book-loving citizen in the United States. "The Traction Talisman" might be rounded out along lines as follows:

A young Quaker builds up an extensive banking and brokerage business. He fails, and is in debt to the city of Philadelphia for bonds sold on its account. He refuses to make the city a preferred creditor and is sent to the penitentiary. The sentence is afterward declared illegal. Marital difficulties are intermingled with financial difficulties. With a prison record against him and a second wife he starts anew, and succeeds in recuperating his fortunes out of the Jay Cooke failure, which brings calamity to almost everybody else.

Finally when he has capitalized the past, the present and the future he unloads his properties and turns his face toward the East, leaving to the city a legacy of corruption, economic mischief and socialistic discontent to plague more than 2,000,000 people for

Interjection Three

He goes to London and undertakes the reorganization of an antiquated and inadequate traction system there. He finds a different state of society and different standards of political responsibility. With true American genius he immediately adapts himself to them. Corruption is laid aside for sound business propositions. Instead of the curses that were justly heaped upon him in Chicago he is praised as a great benefactor.

He dies, and there is scarcely a handful of mourners at the funeral, notwithstanding the fact that the man had possessed a wealth of personal charm no less remarkable than his less laudable characteristics. The funeral itself is a grim and ghastly travesty on the vanity of riches. More tears fall upon the sod that covers an East side immigrant. His will is read, and it is found that he left the greater part of less collection of art treasures to the the city where he piled up the bulk of his wealth they forget the ancient admonition to say naught but good of the dead, while in London the columns of the great newspapers overflow with grateful tributes to the public services that he rendered.

Finis and Then Some

A month after his death the widow marries a man twenty years her While the bridegroom and his friends are celebrating the wedding at ing that a ceremony has been performed, only to admit two days later that there had been a "misunderstanding" and that she is a wife again. The widow is married; the protegees have retired to their palaces; the public is unmoved by the benefactions, and the curtain is rung down.

Could You Do It?

We could not expect Mr. Howells to deal with such a story. It is hardly think what might happen if Mr. James undertook it. The tale is too intricate and various and melodramatic for any living novelist who writes the English speech and is capable of grasping it. By divine right it is the property of Balzac, with Daudet as residuary legatee. Both are dead. The American school of novelists has learned to distrust truth except in her quieter and less demonstrative forms. In her larger aspects she is too strenuous and sensational. Fiction is properly scandalized by her excesses and is afraid of losing caste by being seen too much in public with her.

Experienced observers of the tides of literature have been awaiting the turn toward the reflective and spiritual in fiction. We have seen the high tide of historical fiction, and the tide of business fiction is at its flood. Now there is coming to replace these a deeper current of the sort of fiction that Dickens and George Eliot stood fornovels that deal with internal and invisible crises. The new fiction will replace the clash of arms with the clash of motives and the combats of champions with the invisible strife of conscience and desire. One of the advance guard of this new order of fiction is Miss Edith Rickert's "Folly," announced for early publication by the Baker & Taylor company. Miss Rickert portrays, with a delicacy and insight that will often recall George Eliot's portrait of Gwendolen Harleth, the struggle and victory of a soul. "Folly," the heroine, is a charming, high-spirited woman of the artistic temperament, who marries a man more because he loves her than that she loves him, and so leaves the door open for temptation. Temptation in the form of "the other man" comes and consequences follow which narrowly escape being utterly disastrous. How "Folly" recovers herself and returns by the old path of service and self sacrifice is told with touching delicacy and insight in the story. Herbert Quick, whose new novel, "Double Trouble" (Bobbs-Merrill company), is a popular success of the season, belongs to the coterie of writers who are making Iowa famous. He was brought up on the prairie when it really was prairie, and lived as the prairie boys lived in those days when almost everybody farmed and the simple life was generally practiced. Teaching school carried him into the law and the law into politics, as a Democrat among hopeless Republican surroundings. Once he was mayor of Sioux City, and many people say that Always Mr. Quick looked on life as a thing to be depicted; everything he did or saw seemed to him merely impresion preceding expresion. Mr. Kendrick Bangs' latest farcical story, "Mrs. Raffles" (Harper & Bros.) is a clever parody on the experience of the renowned and redoubtable Raffles, and a satire upon the high social circles generally. Mrs. Raffles, by daring coups, not only gains possession of all the jewelry worthy of notice in Newport's social circles, but, to use Mr. Bangs' words, gains possession of her landlord, her landlady's husband, and her neighbor's flance in one fell swoop, while her indefatigable Bunny is left with only a share of their winnings and the philosophic thought that with the ephemeral character of Newport marriages his loved one will revert to him. The book has many a est, a laugh, and a clever turn; is full of life and a rampant imagination. It is to be recommended for "blue" days.

FISHERMAN'S LUCK

It has been said that no truly bal man loves fishing. This is the art that promotes gentle, homely philosophy. Deep sea fishermen are always reverent. "They that go down to the sea in ships, these see the works of Jehovah," and their hearts bow down an I worship. It is not to be forgotten that Jesus spent much of his life and ministry by the sea. He could sleep in a storm-tossed boat as serenely as a child in its mothers arm. The caves of the sea and the life of the rough, gentle hearted fisherfolk were very familiar and dear to him. It seems as if the fisherman and the carpenter should be most sure of the sympathy Despite the throng that surrounded him, Jesus had time to think of Peter's plight. All night the fisherman and his partners had been out searching the sea, but they had caught nothing; now, with the cheerful fortitude of their calling, they were washing their nets preparatory to starting again. Jesus was touched by their poor fortune. This great rabbi was not an absent-minded brooder over celestial things; he cared for people and for the little concerns of their daily lives. So he bade Peter, "Put out into the deep and let down your net for a draught"-an appeal to larger enterprise, to daring, to boldness, and to venture that has been the text for countless moving sermons. It is a good word for today, when the temptation of many is to stay by the shore, to paddle in the shallows, to devote themselves to small things and small returns. The largeness of the world's commercial enterprises should be more than matched by the magnitude of the church's program. Indeed, the largest enterprise of civilization today is the church's foreign mission work. It is a more than Napoleonic venture; It is marked by nothing less than divine au-

To Simon, of course the Master's words meant only a definite direction -and seemingly a futile one. For though the Sea of Galilee teemed with fishes, they had been elusive that night. Peter, with all his impulsiveness, was a man of faith. He trusted his Lord's words before his own wisdom; and so he obeyed. When one can hear a clear direction from God then it is time to do nothing but go ahead. We who call Christ Master, "Dominus," should be willing to let Him master, dominate, our lives.

The miraculous draught of fishes resulted. Peter and his companion obeyed the Lord's words. The result was that the two boats were filled to the gunwales, from nets that had been crowded to bursting. Of course, they got fish. Whenever we work in God's way we win. Obedience alone insures success. "They who trust him wholly find him wholly true." What a long-shore event this must have been! The fishermen doubtless talked of it for generations. It increased the fame and following of Jesus, which jointly with His purpose to serve His disciples was the Master's design. By such signs as these he attested Himself the Son of God, the long promised Messiah. The astonishment of Peter at what he beheld developed into worship. He saw through the wonderful deed to the more wonderful character of the doer. Like a flood there surged over him a fresh conviction of the divinity of this One whom he called Master. The presclearly realizes his unworthines of his beloved. Very natural and commendable was Peter's prostration of himself when he fell down and cried, "Depart from me; for I am a sinful man, O Lord." It is when we are in the dust before Jehovah that He can lift us up to service.

Upon the amazed consciousness of Peter fell the assurance which so often recurs in Jesus' word, "Fear not." If this was wonderful they were yet to see more wonderful. This final evidence of Christ's character prepared them to hear His words, "From henceforth thou shalt catch men." The words made plain the miracle. He oared more for them. Under the fig-ure of summoning them to be fishers | ceive a hundred fold and shall inherit eternal life."

HER AMERICAN DAUGHTER

"Her American Daughter," a novel, | by Annie T. Colcock, is not precisely what one would term seasoned work, Many a better writer has failed to prove as fanciful, gay, tender and at-

The story is laid in Madrid, just before the outbreak of the Spanish-American war. The characters are Americans, Spanlards and Englishmen. The heroine is an art student from Charleston, chaperoned vaguely by an American artist and his wife, and protected more effectively by an energetic, commonplace but loyal young man from Rhode Island, a fellow artist. Raven Woodward is the name of the heroine and she is described as genuine and lovable for all of-or because of-"her sudden flares, her meltings, her sincerities, neither overwise nor unbeautiful." She awakes admiration in the opposite sex quite frequently and disconcertingly, and is the subject of a base wager among a number of Spaniards, who have watched her passings to and fro. Teodore, the most unscrupulous of the of a cafe, wagers that American womothers, who venture, young and unmothered, into a great city. He says: "Let us put this matter to a practical test. Is Francisco's pretty friend a fair type of the American senorita? us appoint her champion for the women of her nation. this hour of the night, in such company as I shall choose, unchaperoned." The nice little heroine, with her pretty pride, her honesty of purpose, her artistic enthusiasm, her poverty and her slowly growing love for a firstrate fellow from New York, novelist and traveler, is, therefore, subjected to many dangers. She appears to have a faculty of getting into predicaments, and this furnishes her American friends with no end of opportunities for exhibiting their ingenuity, loyalty and courage. The book ends just as the most amiable of readers would desire to have it.

But it is not in the story itself that the real charm lies so much as in the naive delight in old Madrid, her people, her streets and her customs. The Dolores, the lodging house keeper with whom Raven Woodward lives, and who, half in jest, adopts Raven, calling her "Her American Daughter," and throwing over the lonely girl the mantle of her mother love. Miss Colcock has a really charming fancy. Her book is fresh and innocent, her point of view healthful, and her attitude toward life eager and expectant. Her work needs pruning and she has much a learn as to style and method, but incontestably, she has promise

It is, take it for all in all, a much greater pleasure to read the bright and happy work of a new writer, even when there are manifest faults, than to drouse over the jaded work of a sophisticated and established author who keeps on toiling with his pen after he, and all the rest of the world, wish that he would take to farming. Not far from the White House, in Washington, stands an old brick house known as the Octagon house—a bit of the history of that city. In this mansion President Madison and his popuwife, Mistress Dolly Madison, nade their residence after the burning of the White House by the British in 1814, and here the ratifications of the treaty of Ghent were exchanged. For many years, however, it was untenanted, save for a well authenticated ghost, who made night a thing of terror for curious adventurers.

The Octagon House was again brought into prominence, recently, by the marriage of the niece of the caretaker of the mansion-the first time a festivity of any kind had been celebrated there during the last fifty years.

The fact that England has produced the best sellers in the American market a number of times within the past half dozen years, and that among the first six have frequently been two or more English products, has doubtless increased the activity of the American publishers in this field. A book which ontains at the same time those qualities which now seem to be most popular with the reading public and is also most English is "Hazel of Heatherland," a tale of country life on the Dee. It is written by Mabel Barnes-Grundy and was very well received in England. It is as quiet a story as the life which it depicts, but as Punch says, with "an originality of idea and a freshness of treatment that will rivet the attention of the most jaded novel reader."

An Australian novel by Randolph Bedford, an eminent Australian author, is announced by Herbert B. Turner & Co., of Boston, for immediate publication under the title of "The Snare of Strength." As the title implies, it is a tale of strong men, of life in the open, with plenty of action. It depicts, with the accuracy of one familiar with all aspects of the land, a succession of pictures of colonial life, in politics, among the struggling farmers of the back country, of prospecting in the wilderness and of the mining rushes. It is a picturesque tale told in a masterly manner.

ception whatever. It is seldom given to us to know whither the doors that we enter may lead. Enough for these fishermen to know that Jesus had bidden them follow Him, leaving all behind. They paid the price. There is always a price to pay. Arriving involves departing. Going up means giving up. To follow Jesus meant to leave father, and boats, and friends, and vocations. Nevertheless the sacrifice was worth while. No price is too great to pay for entering the school of Christ. These men were to hear Him say later, "Every one that hath left houses, or brethren, or sisters, or father, or mother, or children, cared for their day's fishing, but he or lands, for My name's sake, shall re-

The thread of mystery in Le Droit Conners' own life has made it possible for this principal of Samuel M. Gardenhire's "The Long Arm" (Harper & Bros.) as he was of a former book, to play the part of an amateur detective with success. The new book is a series of experiences accommodatingly arranged for Conners to show his ingenuity, and in which his friend and neighbor across the hall is permitted to play the imposing part of interlocutor. If the mysteries have too much the precision of clock work and cause and effect are amazingly linked together it is an intellectual diversion to read a book of this kind, a good accompaniment for truant hours.

BROWNES AND BROWNS

Herschel Hubert Browne was a handsome, fashionably dressed young man, with a big diamond on his little finger and a conventional smirk on his countenance. Miss Beatrix, his sister, was an artificial damsel. Their mother, Mrs. Bethune, was a ah widow, who kept up a great deal of appearance on very little solid foundation.

"If Herschel and Trix can only contrive to make good matches we shall ride triumphantly over all these difficulties," said she. So she had rented "Glenburnie," a pretty summer resi-

But Mrs. Bethune Browne and her son and daughter were doomed to loneliness that afternoon. Miss Harper, the New York heiress, had not arrived, as expected, by the afternoon train. Miss Harper, however, had intended to get there. The only mistake, however, she had committed was in leaving the train at Pine Bluff instead of

The ticket agent looked up at the sky, down at the daisies and then at the forlorn stranger. "I don't see no one," said he. "I am to go to the Brownes'," said

"They don't live such a piece up the road," said the agent. "I guess likely you might walk. Anyhow, there ain't no other way to go." "Up which road?" said she. "Is it very lonely?" "Bless you, no," said the agent. So Melicent Harper walked, French boots, Paris hat, tiny mushroom para-

It was a little cottage; and at the door there stood a young man, the handsomest she had ever seen. "Am I living the pages of a story book?" Melicent asked herself; "and is | pleased. this the enchanted prince?" "I am Miss Harper, from New York," said she. "I have come to visit you. Were you not expecting me?"

The man looked puzzled. "No," he "Then you never got my letter?" "Never," said the enchanted prince. "How provoking," said Melicent, "But I hope you are glad to see me?" "Yes, indeed, we are," said Harry Brown, instinctively polite, as he opened the door wide to admit the fair stranger. "Do come in. Marian Marian, a slim, dark-eyed young Di- BACK WITH THE ana, looked quite as bewildered as her brother.

"You are welcome," she said. "Please come to my room and take off your things." It was the tiniest of little rooms. In fact, the cottage itself looked to Melicent's eyes as though she was viewing it from the little end of an opera glass. But it was so neat, so dainty, so flower-scented and pure. Melicent was be-wildered still. Glenburnie, as described by Beatrix Browne, was a modern cas-Marian herself was also puzzled, until it occurred to her mind, "all of a sudden," that this Miss Harper must have been sent to their assistance by old Mrs. Telliff, who knew all sorts of nice girls in need, and who was also acquainted with the fact of their own mother's illnes..

"Do you know how to take care of sick people, Miss Harper?" she asked, as she was shaking out the folds of the muslin curtains in the "bedroom." "Not particularly," confessed Melicent. "Why?"

"Oh, because mamma is just recovering from rheumatic fever, and it would be so nice if you would help us nurse her." "Then I will help you," said Melicent, with a kiss.

"Harry is ever so useful," said Marian. "He is the dearest fellow in the world. But he can't do everything. He is downstairs now, broiling the chickens for dinner. Melicent's eyes sparkled. "He must be the best of brothers," said she. "He is." cried enthusiastic Marian. Mrs. Brown received the visitor with some of that puzzled air which Melicent found so hard to understand. And there was a cottage plano and a wilderness of wild flowers, and the young people promised to show Melicent a cascade up the glen, and a haunted dell still further on.

The next day when the grand carriage from Glenburnie rattled down the road, and Miss Beatrix Browne came to claim the waif and stray, Melicent Harper was more surprised than "Have I come to the wrong place?" said she. "Oh, they have been so good to me! The wrong Browne? No; that cannot possibly be. They are right, right in everything. But I shall not go away until Mrs. Brown is well enough to go around the house." And Melicent adhered resolutely to this determination, in spite of Trix's frowns and Herschel Hubert's blandishments. She remained nearly all summer at the cottage and spent only one little week at Glenburnie. "But one can accomplish a good deal

Lena Shared Up Afterwards The sick man lifted himself on the pillow, and looked eagerly, fearfully, in the face above him. For Elmer Livingston, dying, remembered the wrongs done by him in "the days of nature," and recalling a lucky adventure which, by enriching him, had beggared another, asked

"My boy, you will not refuse to make my last hour easier?" "Father, I would purchase you peace with my life, were it possible. But there is surely some other way than this, and I will find it."

"There is no other way," moaned the sick man; "and since you bid me unseal my lips, I will tell you how I gained my wealth, and planted my life with thorns of remorse, my son." And while the summer night closed in, gray and spectral, Clarence Livingston listened to his father's story of a credulous friend betrayed and wealth snatched from a too trusted hand, and bent his head in a humiliation wholly new and wholly intolerable.

Without, in clustering shade of the veranda, stood Lena Munroe drinking in the tale, with pulses beating as must be like paradise to her, after those horrid little cramped-up rooms and everlasting forests." Herschel Hubert made himself as agreeable as he possibly could to the visitor, and on the night before her return to New York he laid his hand and heart at her feet. "Oh, I am so sorry," said Melicent. "But I am engaged already."

"To Harry Brown?" said Herschel Hubert, grinding his teeth. "Yes," said Melicent, "to Harry. I was going to tell Beatrix about it tonight. I am so vexed that you should have committed yourself in that way. But please let's forget all about it." Herschel Hubert Browne muttered some sort of a lame congratulation, and withdrew from the scene as hastily as possible. "It's all a comedy of errors, it seems," he said, almost savagely, to his mother. "Here is our season wasted, our purse empty, tradesmen clain-(to someone beyond), here's Miss Har-per, from New York, come to see you." | in a week," said Mrs. Bethune Browne, orous, and Harry Brown down hopefully. If she loves me, it is with a childish love that his son to take that other's daughter will not linger. Rest content, father; she shall not suffer through your regard for me. I will give her back every Ill-gotten dollar." The girl, shaken by hushed sobs, turned from the silvery night, and glided into the house like a shadow.

> Six years later an accident occurred on a midnight train which filled a hospital with moaning life, of crushed or shapeless bodies in which was left scarcely strength to sigh. One nurse with two blue eyes, tender and pitiful, gave a low cry at last, as the surgeon, whose assistant she was, paused beside a cot on which a man lay uncon-

"After six long and bitter years, during which I have tried to forget your face, to see it so cold and white!" For the crushed and wounded man was Clarence Livingston, the kneeling nurse the girl whom he had refused his dying father to make offer of his hand -Lena Munroe. Long days and nights followed each other, and Clarence waked from stupor to mad delirium, in which he told his patient nurse all of which she already knew and much besides-told her of the wealth he had vowed never to touch, lying in his solicitor's hands for the girl he could not trace; of the struggle and trial he had gone through, which made her blue eyes dim. "My father loved you as a daugh- sclous. "And I will owe to you. Clarter," he said softly, "and he told me ence, that I have loved you always,

learn to love you?"
She bent her face and tears flowed silently from her eyes down her cheeks. It was delirium, she knew; but she, who had been unable to forget, remembered that long hour in the early night too vividly not to again feel some of his pain as she heard him.

It was weeks later when, after a long sleep, he awakened to full consciousness one morning at day dawn. The lights were low, the scene spectral, as his liquid eyes turned from object to object. At last they rested upon the quiet figure of his nurse, asleep "She may be all you say," came in her chair, and there they rested. How sweet and girlish the weary face under the stiff cap, and sad, as though this life was not such as her heart yearned for. The hands lying idly were so fair and white and slender, fair enough to be kiseri, but too frail and white for tearing of linen. A sort of memory came from him of those soft fingers on his brow; of that sweet face bent over him in his delirium, when he had taken it for the face of an angel. He had seen it be-fore, but where? Perhaps in one of his day dreams. Now he would never forget it, as his own eyes closing, he dropped off to sleep.

It was midday when he awoke "Lena!" he cried.

"You know me?" she said softly, turning paler. "I know you, and I want to tell you," he answered faintly and with under her eyes, cold and still, with a warm glow in his eyes, "you are strips of linen across his bosom, a an heiress; there is no need for broken, bandaged arm, a court-plaster | you to do this work. WORDS OF

Dr. Thurmond:

I cannot find words to express my gratitude for what your wonderful Lone Star Blood Syrup has done for me. I have been suffering for nearly two years with rheumatism in my hips, and it then run down in my legs and it pained me so bad I could not walk. My son got me two bottles of four valuable medi-cine and I took it according to directions, and I now feel scarcely any pain and I believe one more bottle will entirely cure. Please send me one more bottle.

our people are giving this branch of farming more attention every year. That our country is well suited to breed the finest strains of any class of stock it is only necessary to recall the fact that Mr. Reynolds, the great Missouri cattle breeder, has purchased land in our county and has brought in a lot of full-blood registered heifers and bulls to head his herd. A man of his experience would not have selected our county unless he was satisfied that it was in every way suited to the business. Of course, I am interested in_ hogs, but as a Texas man I naturally take an interest in all classes of stock. Texas, in my opinion, will be in the lead in fine stock of every kind in a few years, and in hogs there will be none to beat her. Fort Worth's market has settled that question. I have brought my little son to Fort Worth to have an operation performed on his

OUR LAY SERMON

Grover Cleveland, twice president of the United States, recently made a public declaration that is well worthy the serious consideration of the fathers and sons of men. He said that he would rather see his boy able to build a great structure like the Brooklyn bridge than to be president of the United States.

It almost seems surprising to hear such a declaration fall from the lips of a man who has tasted the joys incident to the very highest office within the gift of the people of this nation, but when we come to analyze the situation, it is only natural after all.

Grover Cleveland in his long and successful political career, has been surfeited with the honors that come from political success. He has come to the sensible realization that there is more in life than can be found the politics of the country, and the young man who capable of great mechanical effort such as building structure like the Brooklyn bridge, is a greater man . than he whom the world designates as great after having been elevated to the pinnacle of political success by the whirligig of modern political methods.

Richard Cleveland is the only son of his father, and the popular conception of parental ambition naturally is that he would desire that son to be a ruler and a leader of men. That he would voice the sentiment so ften expressed by fathers: "If my son cannot and foes not make a greater and better man that myself I shall be grievously disappointed." But Grover Cleveland's ideal points in a wholly different direction.

The young man who is capable of great mechanical effect and execution such as is involved in the contruction of the Brooklyn bridge, must have been born treat. He must have a greatness of mind and a reatness of soul that is wholly natural. He must be a renius, and native or natural genius must be supplemented by a practical education. All the French idioms and dead language phrases acquired in his collegiate career will be worth nothing to him when he essays the stupendous task that lies before him. But the great principles he mastered in his course of civil engineering added to the genius of his natural ability, will enable him to solve the problem and build for the service and admiration of man a monument that will ever stand to his credit.

The greatness that is achieved through a successful political career is as evanescent as the rainbow that appears after an early spring shower. No one knows this fact better than Grover Cleveland, once the idol of the masses, and later the accredited destroyer of his party, and it may be that his utterance in regard to the future of his boy also reflects to a considerable extent the pangs that have come into his own heart since his retirement from active political life.

man of today but a life of keen disappointment. Men | glad hand. Much of the future growth and development who spend the best years of life in a struggle for political supremacy find in the end they have been chasing a bubble, and must during all of that political career wink and connive at methods they would not touch in private life. In fact, it has about reached the point where a man cannot be successful in political life and retain his honesty, and that fact within itself explains the voluntary retirement of many men of high ideals from the political arena.

What this old world of ours needs is plain practical men--men who are qualified to take up and deal with the problems of life in an intelligent manner. machinery that will revolutionize crude mechanical methods yet in use, and do a man's part in all things that come within their province.

There is a broad opening in the world for all the young men we can produce of this class. In fact, the world is hungry for them, and men with plenty of capital are daily hunting them. The rise of such men is phenomenal. They fit into the niche into which they are called with mechanical precision, and are only changed to be called up higher. They command good salaries and never lack for employment. The world

Grover Cleveland was right when he outlined the career he would choose for his boy, and there are thousands of honest American fathers who will agree with him. They had rather see their boys capable of such an achievement than to have them in line to serve. as future Presidents of this great and glorious republic, and they have formed the right ideals.

The young man must be naturally great to achieve they should be permitted to do so.

THE STATE DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION

After a careful survey of the situation, Fort Worth has determined to enter the lists as a competitor with other Texas cities for the honor of entertaining the next state Democratic convention, and will make a strong Any erroneous reflection upon the character, stand- and determined fight for the honor. It was thought presenting the claims of two candidates for state office would be sufficient to militate against the idea of bringing the convention to this city. But from letters received and expressions given, it appears this objection will not be seriously urged and there are thousands of Texas Democrats who want the convention held in | ing Texas money .- Houston Post. tors with Fort Worth for this honor, but it is believed that by using the proper efforts right now we can land the big meeting. It is known that Dallas has been engaged in a still hunt for the convention for several months, and has already done a considerable amount of work in that direction. About the only argument she can put up in favor of the convention going there is that Fort Worth has had a state convention since one was held in Dallas. But that kind of argument will not cut much ice with the men who will be called upon to settle the matter. Waco wants the convention and will make a strong and determined effort to get it, but it is not believed that Waco's strength will be dif- on the governorship ficult to overcome, from the fact that that city is not George Beletzer, 127 North Lamar street; Snyder & Co., | so well prepared to care for the visitors as Fort Worth. Mineral Wells is probably a stronger factor in the situation than Waco, but the lack of accessibility will overcome that plucky little city's other advantages, and the famous health resort will not be a very formidable competitor.

If the convention is given to North Texas, which and is in every way the best qualified to suitably entertain the men who will come together to name the next held here and delegates were delighted with the For-Worth brand of hospitality. If the matter could be left to a vote of the Texas democracy Fort Worth would win out by a great majority.

The city council should lead off in the matter of is on Lyon,-San Antonio Light. extending an invitation for the convention to be held in this city, and this should be immediately followed up with that character of earnest and persistent work as will serve to bring the convention here. Dallas is great on horns this year. In addition to the cattlemen's convention, to be held in that city in March, it is announced the state convention of Elks will be held there in May. And the Fort Worth Elks will be there in full force to do honor to the occasion.

A trunk factory is one of the latest enterprises added to this city, and will employ about twenty people as a starter. Every addition made to our tin bucket brigade but insures a Greater Fort Worth, and even small enterprises will continue to receive a cordial welcome.

According to common report, serious trouble is imminent in China. The success of Japan in dealing with burly Russia has awakened the yellow races to rather a broad conception of their strength and the future looks ominous when viewed in that direction.

The state treasury is now said to be receiving cash by the wagon load, but dumping it in the depleted state treasury is likened very much like pouring water in a prairie dog hole. There will have to be a steady and almost unending stream before the prodigious aperture can be filled and remain closed.

The cattlemen are pushing the measures they have pending before congress in a very determined manner and with a fair prospect of success. The only measure in which they are interested that appears to be on debatable ground is the Hepburn rate bill, which it is feared will be knifed in the senate.

Today's wedding was the tenth solemnized beneath the roof of the white house, and the bride is the fifth child of a President to repeat her marriage vows in the historic mansion. The first was Miss Maria Monroe, who wedded her first cousin, John Gouverneur, in 1820. Six year later two other cousins were married in the white house, tho groom being John, son of President John Quincy Adams, and the bride Miss Helen, a niece of Mr. Adams. Then, in 1842, Elizabeth Tyler, daughter of President Tyler, married William Waller of Williamsburg, Va. All of these weddings, however, were eclipsed by the nuptials of Nellie Grant and Algernon Sartoris. This marriage was performed in the East Room, within a few steps of where Miss Roosevelt and Mr. Longworth stood today, on May 21, 1874. Only 200 guests were present at that ceremony, but for days and weeks before the event, as well as for a long time after it, the gossips were talking about the "extravagance" of the costumes, the lavishness of the decorations, and the wealth and conseque of those present. REMARKABLE CONTRACT IN SUCCESS FURNISHED BY TWO MEN IN WEEK'S NEWS

TWO MEANINGS TO "SUCCESS"

Striking Contrast Furnished by Men in Public Life

M'CURDY STEPS OUT

Mitchell, Self-made, and the Champion of Labor, Again in National Limelight

Here's a study in success furnished by two men who figured prominently in the past week's news. Richard A. McCurdy

The two names need little introduction to readers of the daily dispatches. One stands for the former president of one of the largest insurance companies in the United States, a man whose yearly salary exceeded that of Presi-dent Roosevelt. McCurdy had a fine home-it is shown in the accompanying picture-he had position in the wealthlest and most exclusive circles of New York, apparently his life stood for everything that could be interpreted as meaning success from the common everyday standpoint.

The other name, Mitchell's, also stands for success, but of a type markedly different. Mitchell was born sof poor parents and began to work in a mine for a living when 13 years old. He is now 36, and stands at the head of one of the greatest labor organizations in the United States, the United Mine Workers' union. Mitchell gets a modest salary-less than that given an ordinary department manager in a modern manufacturing concern. His home is a modest little cottage, which is also shown in the accompanying

Instead of wielding millions, Mitchell wields men. His word is practically law with 500,000 laborers scattered all over the United States. The majority of these men came under his control by his own personal effort and they regard him as an infallible leader.

Last week's news dispatches had something to say of both McCurdy and Mitchell. A story from Morristown, N. announced that McCurdy had abandoned his handsome home there and expected to live hereafter in Paris. Paris is where James Hazen Hyde went after Charles Evans Hughes began investigating the affairs of the big insurance companies.

The same investigation interfered extensively with the living arrangements of several other insurance men. McCurdy resigned his presidency of the Mutual Life and became separated from his big annual salary. The newspapers had columns about McCurdy during the past few months. That was while he was a life insurance president. The announcement that he intended going to Paris to live was given only a few lines. In other words Mc-Curdy has stepped down and out of the limelight. The papers haven't printed a paragraph about James Hazen Hyde since he crossed the water.

Mitchell, the past week's dispatches have announced, is at the head of plans for the biggest coal strike in the country's history. It will be the first strike, according to forecasts, in which the forces of the bituminous and anthracite miners have ever been united. The big strike is scheduled to go into effect April 1.

Elsewhere on this page is a story of Mitchell's life. THEATER NOT FOR PROFIT New York Millionaires Will Found Playhouse on New Lines Special to The Telegram.

NEW YORK, Feb. 17 .- A movement by a group of well-known New York men to establish in this city a theater SAYS THIS PENNSYLVANIA PRIEST designed to foster and develop dramatc art was described today by Charles

T. Barney, one of the founders. "It will be run for the sake of art only, and not in any for the sake of profit," he said, "and its mission will be to stimulate art and to exercise that refining influence which makes the stage, if properly conducted, an educational agency second to none in effectiveness.

"Careful estimates of the earning capacity of the house convince us that t will not only be easily self-sustaining, but distinctly profitable for the creation of an endowment fund for a school of dramatic art, an actor's pension, and objects in keeping with the altruistic purpose of the enterprise."

That crusade revealed the fact that in Allegheny, which is famous for its many churches and beautiful public parks, the city officials collected graft from various sources amounting to over $200,000 annually; that in this city of 130,000 souls there were 410 brothels; that the city sheltered over 3,000 disreputable women and 500 known thieves, and that two wards were given over almost entirely to vice and

These facts were enough to arouse the ministers, and they have united in an organization known as the Federation of Churches in an endeavor to root out branch and stem the city administration at the coming municipal election, February 20, to which they attribute this appalling immoral condition of affairs.

Rousing mass meetings are being held almost nightly throughout the city, but they resemble church gatherings more than political rallies. A minister always presides, the meeting is opened with prayer and dismissed with the benediction, and a church choir of mixed voices relieves the monotony of speech-making by rendering such gospel songs as "Onward, Christian Soldier," and "I Need Thee Every Hour."

Wheat Prices Suffer Another Sharp Decline-Corn and Oats Steady at Sharp Decline

Special to The Telegram CHICAGO, Feb. 17.-Wheat-For a time local shorts displayed a disposition to cover, the market holding fairly strong. Later the entire absence of strengthening news and a private cable from Argentine placing the exportable surplus at last year's figures started selling anew. The May delivery made a new low record. Liquidation continues in Liverpool with reports of India and liberal Australian shipments additional incentives. The market closed 3-4@7-8c lower. Weather conditions throughout the winter wheat belt tend to allay apprehension. Further snow fall the last twenty-four hours affords additional protection. The demand for flour and cash wheat occasional reactions on oversold pit conditions. Local receipts were 9 cars, with 12 expected tomorrow. Northeastern receipts, 368 cars against 273 a year ago. Total primary movement 469,000 bushels against 340,000 last year. Clearances, 360,000 bushels. World's shipments were estimated at 11,200,000 bushels. Corn-Trade in corn was light and local, with lowest prices made at the opening. Thereafter the market proved steady compared with other grains. Pressure seems off for the time. Country acceptances were light, but receipts were liberal as compared with a year ago, and the demand continued slack. Clearances were moderate at 250,000 bushels. New York reported export sales of fifteen loads. The local sample market was steady. Liverpool declined 3-8 to 1-2c on cheaper offerings from Argentine. Local receipts were 291 cars, with 429 expected Monday. Primary movement, 618,000 bushels as compared with 291,000 a year ago. Oats-Pit buying strengthened this market the early part of the session, but liquidation of early purchases. when wheat developed weakness, carried prices back to the low point. There is little new development in the situation The local cash market was steady. Minneapolis reports further negotiations for export via the gulf. Local receipts were 118 cars, with 157 expected Monday. Clearances, 315,000 Provisions-A large general trade was a feature in the provision pit, with a good share of the increased business for outside account. Profit taking longs sold pork and ribs and packers sold the lard. Packers and shorts bought ribs. This market is in a strong position from a cash standpoint, and the hog situation is decidedly bullish. Estimated receipts of hogs for Monday, 54,000 head, and 235,000 head for

Usual Week-End Market-No Developments of Interest-Prices Show Slight Decline

NEW YORK, Feb. 17 .- The cotton market ruled extremely dull during the short session today.

Opening figures were 1 to 2 points higher for near positions and 1 point lower for later months, when, acording to the closing prices on the foreign market, they should have been 1 to 6 points above yesterday's finals. first hour, and the trading was of the usual week-end character. Activa months eased off 3 to 6 points under liquidation of long cotton, but soon worked back to the opening figures, under scattered covering by shorts. In the last hour there was some little selling pressure causing a reaction and the market closed barely steady with prices at the lowest of the day, showing a net loss of 5 to 6 points. Weekly Review of the Market marked the past week, and in consequence the market has advanced along all lines, heavy cattle selling fully steady, medium weight steers stronger and all passably killing steers 10 to | requested that it be known that he

The steer market is quoted as follows: Choice steers, full fed, 1,250 to 1,375 pounds, $4.004.60; like class weighing 1,150 to 1,200 pounds, $4,25 @4.40; 1,050 to _1,100 pound, $3,75% 4.00; 950 to 1,000 pounds, $3.50@3.75 light handy weight steers, $3.25@3.50. Feeder steers have been in sharp demand all the week, with the supply every day short of the requirements of the market and packers in the trade for all steers showing reasonable amount of flesh. The market for feeders has ruled strong all the week. Quotations run as follows: Feeder steers having quality, $3.00@3.50; medium steers, $2.60@2.85; common to plain steers, $2.25@2.75. The trade in butcher cows has been rushing all the week. At no time have supplies been equal to the demand from packers and butchers. In consequence prices have strengthened on everything above canners, 10 to 15 cents and 20 cents does not look too high in some cases. The movement has been active every market day. The trade is thus quoted: Best heavy fed cows in car lots, $2.85@3.25, with extra choice selling at $2.50@2.75; choice butcher cows, $2.65@3.00; good butcher cows, 2.40@2.65; medium cows, $2.90 @2.25; cutters, $1.75@2.00; canners,

$1.40@1.75. The supply of yeals has been light all the week and prices have naturally strengthened. The market closes the week from 50 to 75 cents higher, the greatest advance being on the medium weight sort. Quotations follow: Fine fat vealers, $4.75@5.25; medium fleshed of good quality, $3.75@4.00; extra fat heavy calves, $3.25@3.75; medium, $2.50@2.75; common and plains calves,

$2.00@ 2.25 Bulls are selling strong for the week with quotations at $2.50@3.00 for extra full fleshy; good bulls,$2.00@2.40; common thin feeder bulls, $1.75@1.90. Hogs have been very liberal in receipts and the quality was some better over the week previous. The market has shown improvement for nearly every day of the week, taking a slight set back on Friday, and closing the week 10 to 15 cents higher than the close of last week.

Tops at the close, $6.121/2 for choice Oklahomas; heavy fat and butcher hogs $6.05@5.121/2; mixed hogs, $5.95@ lights, $5.85@5.95; pigs, $4.25@ Pigs have advanced a quarter during the week. Plenty of Rain
J. C. Butler, from Carnegie, Okla., which is located in Caddo county, came in with a happy smile, which indicated that everything was going to suit him in town and also at home. He said that plenty of rain had fallen recently. and that a good season was now in the ground, which would make things better earlier than had been expected. Everybody was feeding more or less and the cattle in consequence would be ready for the grass when it puts in an appearance and pick up rapidly. Cattle in Demand Among the arrivals on the market from Stokes, Kiowa county, Okla., was G. H. Morgan, an intelligent stock farmer, who said that he had not come originally from Texas, but from Coloought to feel when he looked around on the great imprevements that had been made around Fort Worth in the last three years-very proud. "Stock raisers," he said, "are good shape, and the ranches are not all gone by a good deal in Klowa county. Grass is good and cows and heifers are plentiful, and are being sought for by buyers. The Indian lands are pretty much all leased to pasture men. I have 1,200 acres leased and grass about seven hundred head of cattle on it. There are not many shipping cattle now, nearly everything that could be was sent to market last year. My place is on the head of the Pecan creek, and has the largest spring on it in the whole territory. I only cultivate forty acres for stock

Predicts Early Spring R. A. Randle, the feeder from Caddo. 1. T., was on the market Friday, but had no cattle this time. "Lots of rain fell this week," said Mr. Riddle, "and we had a big snow two weeks ago and everything is now in as sloppy and muddy condition, such as would delight the heart of a Hill county man. The rain has done harm. not particularly to the stock, but to the agricultural interests, for the farmers cannot plow with the ground in as soppy a condition as it is. "Everybody is expecting a good season, and it looks like an early spring is bound to come. "Yes, I will be down to the Fat Stock Show, but will confine my endeavors to a car of hogs." "Did I see the fast mail? Well, I should say I did, and some cattle too. OF INTEREST TO WOMEN

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

OLD MAN BENDER

A Story That Recalls One of the Greatest Fiends America Ever Knew.

"I had been a pack peddler for more than twenty years," said the old man as he whiffed away at his pipe to get it alight, "and you may suppose I have met with some stirring ad-

"On two great occasions I ate dinner at the cabin of old Bender, the Kansas fiend. On the first occasion the old man was away and I saw only two women about the place. Six months later when I called again it was about 1 o'clock in the afternoon. Then I saw old Bender for the first time.

"The same two slatternly women were about the house and there was a young man whom I took to be old Bender's son. The young man disappeared soon after I arrived, and whether he hid in the house or rode off across the prairie I never knew. Bender's women purchased about $2 worth of notions, and the old man dickered with me an hour before he bought a gold watch. It seems he had but a small stock of cash, but he offered me personal property in exchange. He had three or four silver watches, all of which had been carried; two or three revolvers, two bosom pins made of lumps of pure gold and three of four pairs of valuable cuff buttons.

"Dinner was announced soon after. I took my pack with me, into the dining room, where I found the table set for one. There were three rooms in the house. The front room was a general sitting room and office combined. Bender kept a sort of tavern, you know, and travelers had this front room. The next room back was the dining room and family room combined. There was a bedroom leading off. On the walls of this family room were a few old-fashioned prints in old-fashioned frames, on the shelf stood a clock, and a few scant evidences of women's presence. The back room was the

"I had my eyes wide open when I entered the dining room, and the very first thing I noticed was that the table was set lengthwise of the room, and that my place had been so placed that my back would be toward the kitchen door, which was not over five or six feet away. Had it been at the other end my back would have been toward the office door. The first move I made was to turn the chair around to the side and sit down. I now faced the bedroom door, and had the other doors to my right and left, while there was no window behind me. The younger woman was in the room and she looked at me with a sort of queer, strange way as I upset the arrangements she had perfected. Bender did not look into the room for two or three minutes and then retired without speaking. A minute later he passed around the house and entered by the back door. While I could not see him I heard him and the woman whispering together, and I caught the words as spoken by her: "I tell you he did it himself!" "I could not catch a word from him, and directly he went out and she came in with the rest of the eatables. Her face was flushed and her manner was nervous. She put on a plate of bread and a platter of meat, and then went out for the coffee. As she set the cup and saucer on the board she partly upset the cup and spilled half the contents on the table. 'Excuse me-I'm sorry,' she sald, as shoved back to keep the hot liquid from dripping on my legs.

'Never mind-no harm done,' I re-"It was careless of me. You had better change your seat to the end while I sip it up "Oh, never mind, I'm not hungry and shall eat but a few mouthfuls, anyway. I forgot to tell you that I preferred water to coffee."

"I'm all right." "She gave me one of the queerest looks I ever got, first blushing up and then turning pale. Spilling that coffee was a put up job to get my back to the door. I suspected it then; a few minutes afterward I had plenty of horrible proofs. Before the meal was finished old Bender looked in from the kitchen door and drew back, and when I shoved away and went to the office he was not there and did not show up for five minutes. When I went to dinner a double-barreled shotgun stood in the corner of the office. When I came out it was gone. The old man came in after a while, and it was easy to see that he had to force himself to converse. I paid him no other house for miles, and it suddenly struck me that the younger man had gone on to hide in ambush and shoot me in case I escaped assassination at the house. For a minute or two quite lost my sand, and you can judge what a relief it was to me to see a team drive up with two men in vehicle and room for one more. They topped to water the horses and chat few moments, and readily gave me a lift on my way. I did not impart any suspicions to them, and it was not Bender and his family? You remember that I felt sure in my own mind what was a lonely road I had to travel, with a close call I had had. "Do you know what became of old prairie, with its horrible cellar underthat they fled the country, or that the papers so reported, and for months we used to hear from one locality and another of the fugitives being seen or captured. I have reason to believe the never got out of the state, or yet 100 miles from that lone tavern on the prairie, with its horrible celler underneath and its graveyard in the rear. Bands of men were riding in this or that direction, bent on vengeance, and one of these overhauled the party. I have been told this on the best authority. As Bender had shown no mercy toward the unsuspecting travelers who were shot in the back as they sat at his table, none was shown to him or his. They were planted where their bones will never be turned up to the

The year 1905 has been one of phenomenal growth to Fort Worth; so, too, has been the growth of its financial institutions. THE MUTUAL HOME ASSOCIATION has abundantly shared in this prosperity as attested by its annual statement, presenting a remarkable ratio of increase, by far the greatest since its organization in 1894. Deposits having increased 38 8-10 per cent for the year, while "Savings Deposits," the new department for nonmembers, has grown from $493.08 to $11,676.35. THE MUTUAL HOME ASSOCIATION provides unexcelled security to its members and depositors; its business is economically conducted under a safe and conservative

BY LADY HENRY SOMERSET

LONDON, Feb. 17 .- The little bronze medal most highly prized, the order which probably stands as the greatest emblem of courage and self-sacrifice, is the Victoria Cross.

Fifty years ago Queen Victoria founded the order, and after fifty years . the cross with the words, "For Valour" | gladness but thanksgiving. engraved upon it, is the most coveted of all the decorations given by monarchs or bestowed by governments. Neither high ranks nor length of service, nor wounds, nor any other circumstances can qualify for this badge, save a personal act of signal valour performed in the very presence of the en-

It had its origin in the Crimean war, and was intended to be conferred upon junior commission officers and rank and file. The queen desired to show special appreciation for the individual acts of heroism performed in the Crimean war, until then outwardly un-

The arst recipient of the decoration, which, by the way, is still made from the brobke guns taken at Sebastopol, was a man who won it in the Crimea, Admiral Charles Davis Lucas, who, in 1854, picked up a live shell from the deck of the Helcia and threw it overboard, and thus at the risk of a terrible death, saved the lives of many Lord Roberts forty-seven years ago won the same distinction during the Mutiny. The great general was then a Heutenant, and was following up the retreating army when he saw two Seloping after them, Lord Roberts overook them. When the men turned upon him he seized the standard and cut down the man from whom he took it. While he was in the midst of the struggle the other Sepoy leveled a musket and pulled the trigger, but it missed fire and young Roberts saved the flag. On the same day he went to the rescue of a Sowar who was being attacked by a rebel who was armed with a bayonet. Small of stature though he was, he managed with one blow to kill the huge Sepoy and brought the Sowar into safety. He is the only man on the roll of fame who possesses two Victoria Crosses, but the second belonged to his son, gained in his noble effort to save the guns at Colenso. The boy died of his wounds, but the cross he had won was given to him in death, and by special permission of Queen Victoria, Lord Roberts is allowed to wear the son's badge side by side with his own. It would be impossible to enumerate the splendid deeds which are engraven on this roll of fame-deeds performed in India, in Japan, in Ashantee, in Zululand, in Canada, in Egypt, and in every land where the Union Jack has

The most fortunate event of his life was his marriage with Princess Louise, niece of King Christian the Eighth, who had through her inheritance some right to the Danish crown, and consequently the young couple fixed their residence at Copenhagen, and here the king studied events as he found them, realized that great changes were about to take place, and awaited possible developments of which he could only make use by tact, patience and foresight, and in all these qualities he was ably seconded by his wife.

But not only in his public career was Princess Louise his good angel. Slender means obliged this royal pair to

The princess brought up her daughters with a simplicity which would have befitted a country farm, and yet she never lost sight of the fact that opportunity might give them a wider inheritance, and that they must be mentally fitted for any position that fortune might bring to them. Unable to command the resources of a dressmaker, her three daughters used to make their own frocks, trim their own bonnets, and learned to under-stand that dignify does not consist in the things that a man finds to do, but rather in the innate self-respect which can be the heritage of all. One day the three girls, Alexandra, Dagmar and Thyra, when walking by the seashore, were accosted by a Gypsy woman, who was coming toward them and asked to be allowed to tell their fortunes. THE INNER CIRCLE

Ghosts "Materialized" for Her Majesty Cause Medium to Be Called to the Palace

(Copyright, 1906, by W. R. Hearst) Special Cable to The Telegram.

BY PAUL LAMBETH. LONDON, Feb. 17.-It has just leaked out that a few weeks ago Queen Alexandra was actually present at a spiritualistic seance. There is in London a very exclusive spiritualistic set known as "The Inner Circle." They meet usually at an artist's studio in Regents Park. Sir Oliver Lodge and Sir William Crookes, the famous scientists, who take an interest in spiritualism, have often been to these seances, where spirits are "materialized" and phenomena have occurred which no one can explain away on ordinary grounds. A great friend of her masjesty's went to one of the seances about two months ago. The medium generally employed is a delicate little man about 30 years of age, but he is extremely independent, and will often refuse to take any interest in the proceedings, so that the seances are often cancalled. The one at which the queen was present so impressed her majesty that she told the king about it, and a "command" was given to the medium to appear at Buckingham palace. So many instructions, however, were given to the medium to insure secrecy and so elaborate were the directions as to the particular door he should enter refused the "command." World Still Revolves Most people appear to imagine that the death of King Christian of Denmark, Queen Alexandra's father, will make a serious difference to the Lonacross the square in Copenhagen, ac- | don season, and will rob the state opening of parliament of all its splendor. In regard to the latter there will be no difference, as every member of the royal family, except the king and queen, for the first time in many years the advantages of a republic over a | is abroad, and there was never an idea of a great procession. The state opening will resemble that after the late queen's death. Every peeress will be in black, but this only increases the brilliancy of the uniforms of the officers of state. In regard to the season, Queen Alexandra intends to make the mourning as short as possible, as she, like the king, is invariably concerned when London trade is affected. The season, in fact, promises to be a particularly gay one. Every one is heartily sick of politics, and the liberal hostesses are planning

King Reproves Knights

King Edward has had to call the old military knights of Windsor to order like a pack of naughty school boys. These military knights are a number of old army officers of good family and service, who are really pensioners of the king, and have little houses on the Windsor Castle premises and certain snug allowances and emoluments. They are practically guests of the king for life under a general scheme founded by Edward III, amended by Henry VIII and improved by Elizabeth.

All went well until quite recently, when it was discovered that some of the military knights of Windsor were quietly letting their houses to people who did not mind paying high rents for the privilege of boasting that they lived at Windsor Castle. Then there came quarrelings and bickerings and jealousies among themselves, some of them writing to the Duke of Argyll and Viscount Esher, the constable and deputy constable, respectively, of the castle, complaining that fellow knights had planted bushes or hollyhocks in their little front gardens and were shutting out their neighbors' light. So a few days ago the king appointed a strong man as the new governor of the military knights, in the person of Major General Courtney, who is well known in the British army as a strong disciplinarian. The knights are chafing at the introduction of what they call "an outsider" 'as governor, and urge that one of their own number ought to have been appointed. But King Edward had an object of his own in appointing General Courtney. His majesty is determined to have good behavior among the military knights, especially as their vagaries of late have tended to bring odium upon the precincts of Windsor Castle.

Mrs. Mackay Goes Hunting When an American gets bitten with the hunting fever she is far keener even than the English sports woma Mrs. Frank Mackay, who has her home in Warwickshire, not content with following the Warwickshire hounds and getting only four days' hunting a week, has now taken to driving in a motor car all the way to Melton Mowbray, in Leicestershire, where she is now hunting the two odd days, thus filling up and more of a hard rider, and is at ttimes a little dangerous to others in the field. Last week she thought a cottage in Melton would be a saving of petrol, so she has taken a tiny house in the High street from Lady Augusta Fane. There is just room for six in the dining room. Mrs. Mackay is now trying very hard to get her husband to make his permanent home in England. In a center of malicious gossip such as Leicestershire, the secret of Mrs. Mackay's great popularity is that she has never been heard to say a disagreeable or unkind thing of another woman.

American methods are gradually creeping into Almack's, society's bridge whist club. In the middle of this month a bridge match will be commenced on the American plan. Four of the best men players in London will choose women partners from the club, and the same hands will be dealt to each table, the winners being the couple who secure the largest number of points during the play of these identical hands. There are a number of splendid women bridge players in the club, and they are in a fever of excitement over the coming "selection" by the male players. One of the best women play-ers in the club is married to the stepson of James MacDonald of New York and Standard Oil fame. She won the principal prize in the bridge tournament last year, and is likely to be one of the women players selected.

Villagers Celebrate Victory There was a scene of tremendous en on-Thames when Mrs. Charles S. Henry (nee Julia Lewisohn of New York) arrived at the station with her husband, who had won his seat in parliament as a liberal member. For twenty-five years the division in Shropshire, which Mr. Henry contested, had been conservative, so that his triumph, which was in a great measure due to his American wife, was all the more conspicuous. Mr. and Mrs. Henry are almost worshipped at Waigrave, where they have a beautiful country home and dispense charity for miles around. As soon as they stepped into their carriage the villagers, almost 700 in number, unharnessed the horses and dragged the carriage up to the house, while a number of boys followed carrying lighted torches. Mcs. Henry proposes to give a big entertainment to the electors in Shropshire, and later on in March a big ball at Wargrave to celebrate her husband's election. Mrs. Henry has one boy who is now 12 years of age. He will be immensely wealthy, as he will inherit not only the bulk of the Lewisohn money, but his father's wealth as well. During the height of the election Mr. Henry received so many cables and letters from New York and Chicago that he was obliged to employ two private secretaries.

NEW PRESIDENT CARELESS DRESSER

M. Fallieres Little Concerned About Personal Appearance

BY MARQUIS DE CASTELLANE. (Copyright, 1906, by W. R. Hearst)

Special Cable to The Telegram.

PARIS, Feb. 17.—President Fallieres is busy organizing his household. It is superfluous to state that those who desire to belong to that institution are numberless. There is no end to the application for positions of secretary, of which there are to be ten, five adjutants, twenty cooks, thirty coachmen and grooms, not to mention valets and minor servants. It is only natural that under the circumstances a good many bits of gossip concerning M. Loubet's successor should be reported by those who have had an opportunity of approaching the erstwhile President of the senate. So, it appears, that above all other things, M. Fallieres is a lover of trees. There is nothing in the world he so much enjoys as to lounge in the | which, if they had appeared in a Geragination. His poetic dreams often manifest themselves in verse; which he reads to his friends, who, alas! belog mostly of the north, do not appreciate these impassioned stanzas. The fact of the matter is that the new president is merely a plain citizen, without family traditions or prestige.

He has not even got that quality which is generally considered essentially French; I mean an innate elegance of appearance. He is most careless about his dress, going about with a flowing tie, carelessly knotted, his coat all awry and his vest half buttoned. The worst of it is that he does not raserve this negligence of attire for the privacy of his home, but appears just so upon the most ceremor sions. Now, of course, this kind of thing can't be kept up in the Elysee, and since M. Fallieres can't be depended upon to have a mind to his personal appearance a new office will have to created for his benefit-that of keeper of the republican wardrobe. We shall then, I suppose, have the same kind of ceremonies as marked the reign of our most pompous kings, Louis XIV and XV, only it will be the "Lever of the President," instead of the king, when the members of the body known as the gentlemen of the bedchamber will stand around each with a garment in hand to place it properly upon the august person of the chief of state. Daring Races Planned The one subject of conversation has again become that of racing, and already plans are being made for mad competitions of speed in automobiles, balloons and motor boats. Every year at this season Parls gets an attack of racing fever, and the entire population is haunted with the one idea of the glorification of extravagant motion, whether it be on the sea or land or in the skies. So, I suppose, we shall again be treated to the spectacle of the handsome Mme. Du Gast clinging to the wreck of a racing motor boat and being rescued at great peril from a briny grave. Of course, everybody who goes in for these sports knows, or ought to take into account, that they are bound sooner or later to meet with a violent death. But much they care indeed! So long as they can establish a record, they don't mind sacrificing their lives-or anybody else's. Just now Mme. Du Gast is off the coast of Morocco training for the forthcoming Mediterranean motor boat races, while the natives stand on the shore and stare in amazement.

an absolute cure. Partly because of the jealousy of Perlin surgeons and partly because it was not thought wise to make public the fact that the kaiser's deafness had developed, the English surgeon was smuggled into the palace with the utmost secrecy and when a paper nevertheless found it out it was officially denied that any specialist had been con-

Temple School Board Says to Dislikes Police Guard and Re-City Council: "Give Us Place for Children"

President Roosevelt several years ago stated that when his term expired he was coming to Texas to write a history of the state and he also took occasion to promise that he would visit Temple, where he could have access to and documents pertaining to the history of the state. These papers are owned by Dr. A. Dienst. The members of the school board claim that the parents of Temple are preparing for the presidential presence in view of his promises to come here and his well-known views on the race suicide question. The board thinks Rooseveltian ideas that they would consider it little short of treason not to have added several acres more of children to the population by the time his term is at an end. At least this is one reason the school board assigns for its troubles, and it is now asking the council for an appropriation of $20,000 to enlarge the school buildings at present in use on the theory that the cradles will take care of themselves. The city has no ready money for the purpose, but its bonded indebtedness is the smallest in Texas, being only $35,000, and it is considering the advisability of issuing $20,000 in 4 per cent school bonds. The question will doubtless be submitted to the voters for approval and the slogan of the campaign is to be "Getting Ready for

SECRET SESSION HELD Santa Fo Labor Meeting at Temple Included Engineers

Special to The Telegram TEMPLE, Texas, Feb. 17 .- A meeting of organized labor representatives that lasted several days, behind closed doors, terminated here yesterday. The delegates were employes of the Santa railway, and every important point on the whole gulf system had its representative present. Attendance was confined to delegates from the engineers, firemen, conductors and brakemen, and the proceedings were closely guarded, lowed to filter out. Frominent labor leaders, when interviewed regarding the purpose of the meeting would only say that the same was held for "mutual protection." Others who are in a position to know, but who did not attend the sessions say that the result of the meeting will be of far reaching importance. It was called at the instance of the engineers, who, it is understood, are enjoying anything but pleasant relations with the company just now.

It is also an indication that the eagle eyes are seeking closer fraternal relations with the other railroad orders' more intimate than has obtained in the past. The engineers have always been regarded as the aristocrats of the organized labor fold, and indications point to a change of policy on their part that will eliminate this criticism and place them in close touch with other organizations upon whom they can rely for aid in case of necessity.

For years he has been used to taking a two hours' morning walk from his house through the boulevards and the Bols de Boulogne, which he will now be forced to give up, not because he fears any violence from anarchists any more than did M. Loubet, but because his face has become too familiar to the gamins, who during these last two weeks have followed him in crowds, pointing him out to everybody

The president understands that it would be against the dignity of his ofoughfare with a shouting cortege of gamins, and he will not be followed or surrounded by police agents to clear a way for him, so he has chosen to remain at home, even though lack of exercise may shorten his life.

Elysees More Democratic The Palais Elysees will probably be even more democratic under President Fallieres than under M. Loubet. He is a man of simple tastes, who hates display as much as he loves order. At no time will it be difficult for any French citizen to gain admission to his presence, and it is indeed

Socialists Responsible Unless something is done to increase the Paris police, this city, which proudly lays claim to the title of "the metropolis of the world," will soon be as unsafe as a western American min-

While the old city and the Fanbourg St. Germain are comparatively free from criminals, the boulleues are becoming places where it is hardly safe to venture out after nightfall unless you are armed to the teeth. The "Apaches"—those gangs of de-praved youths—are bolder than ever, and, though dozens of them are caught and sentenced almost every week, they seem to be like the hydra in the Greek mythology, new recruits taking the places of those captured.

The socialists in the municipal the United States and are filing on council are largely responsible for this, as they are opposing every plan to render the police more efficient, and expect to farm and are making prepit looks in many places as if the citiarations for such. Attorney General Hands Down Opinion Regarding Poll Taxes

AUSTIN, Texas, Feb. 17.-In answer to an inquiry from Comptroller Stephens, the attorney general's depart-ment today handed down a most important opinion relative to the commissions of county tax collectors for issuing poll tax receipts and exemptions. The attorney general holds that all tax collectors in any county in the state shall receive only 10 cents commission on each poll tax receipt or exemption issued, and not 15 cents, as heretofore. This decision is based on section 10 of the Terrell election law. The question was originally propounded to the comptroller by N. W. Hampton, tax collector of Gonzales county.

SECOND OPERA PLANNED Meeting of Auditorium Musical Association Held Saturday A meeting of the Auditorium Musical Association, composed of members of the musical societies of the city, was held Saturday morning in the Board of Trade rooms, and discussed plans for the coming spring and summer. Among the plans which were suggested were those for another opera, the last having proved a success. A cakewalk is also being planned. Considerable discussion was entered into on both and action was deferred to a future meeting. deferred to a future meeting.

Old-Time Indian Chief Gives Way to Successor

LAWTON, Okla., Feb. 17.-After a eries of nocturnal councils on the Fort Sill military reservation, Asa Diluke, an Apache scout, has been chosen official representative of the tribe to transact all its domestic and foreign affairs. This election practically dispossesses Geronimo, the chief and warrior, of all his authority over the tribe and gives to Diluke the full powers of chieftaincy

All the Apaches participated in the council and the affairs of the tribe were discussed in detail. The election was unanimous, Geronimo himself casting an affirmative vote. This will put an end to the Apache tribal differences and will institute in a sense a republican form of government.

For two days she had been mourned by her family and friends as dead. So death-like was her appearance that funeral arrangements had been made. Then the family were startled by the awakening of Miss Williamson from her proolnged

The case is one of the most peculiar that has come to the attention of the medical fraternity. It developed that Miss Williamson has been subject to traces in which she appears as if dead, ever since she underwent an operation seven years ago. The least excitement causes her to go into a comatose condition.
