AUSTIN, Texas, Feb. 24.—"We the jury find the defendant not guilty as charged in the indictment." This was the verdict returned by the jury in the case of Roland Browne, charged with the murder of Congressman John M. Pinckney, this afternoon at 6:15 o'clock, and the defendant, accompanied by relatives and friends, left the court room a free man.

Arguments in the case were concluded at 3:30 o'clock and it took thirty minutes for the court to read the charge, consequently it was exactly 4 p'clock before the case was turned over to the jury, as was indicated would be about the time in today's noon dispatches. The charge of the court was not as liberal to the defendant as some of the attorneys and others had hoped for. It gave a general review of the ease, presenting the law in connection

Jury Out Short Time

It took the jury exactly two hours and fifteen minutes in which to reach a verdict. It was learned that on first ballot taken eleven of the jurors were for acquittal and one for conviction. The man who stood for conviction is said to have been one of the four colored men who sat on the jury. and it is said he voted for a sentence of manslaughter, the least offense that the defendant could have been convicted of under the charge. However, after reading the charge again and discussing the case, the second ballot resulted in acquittal. Only two ballots were taken and the verdict was then prepared and brough In. Aldrich, in moving that Tillman report the bill, believed that the combination of Tillman-Hepburn-Roosevelt would bring enough odium

The domestic had been sent to Mrs. Malsi by a Sister of Charity, who knew nothing of her, but it is known now she has had fits of insanity. Mrs. Malsi told Miss Foley she would have to go. Without any warning save a wild shriek, her eyes rolling, the crazed woman picked up her mistress and with a maniac's strength hurled her across the kitchen floor against a table. Before she could recover her assailant was again upon her and bewith the manifest intention of throwing

At this juncture, when Mrs. Malsi was vainly fighting off her assailant the little child, frightened but courageous, ran to the crazed woman, and seizing her dress, tugged with all his little strength till finally the domestic loosened her hold and turned to see who was behind her. In that instant Mrs. Malsi made the door she had been striving to reach. At that moment she was overtaken by the maddened domestic, who seized her about the waist and sank her teeth in the unfortunate woman's right arm, held on until she shrieked with pain. As she loosened her hold with her teeth Mrs. Malsi again made a desperate attempt to escape, but again she was seized and again the woman sank her teeth into Mrs. Malsi's arm. money was transmitted to Rudolph K. Hynicka, the county treasurer, who yesterday admitted that thousands of dollars had been paid to him by bankers as compensation for patronizing them with the county funds. The day opened with George W. Scott, the cashier of the county treasury, on the stand. He testified that the taxes for a year amount to over $7,000,000, of which 80 per cent was received from taxpayers in checks. These checks were distributed among more. On these deposits the bankers paid at the rate of 2 to 21/2 per cent, he stated, and sent the money to him in plain, unsealed envelopes with no velopes at some place for a trusty agent from the treasurer's office to get it. Scott took the money from the envelopes and passed it on to Hynicka without telling him where it came from. Hynicka testified yesterday that he was wise to the source. The bankers told of doing it up in envelopes but had difficulty in explaining to the committee the reasons for following the peculiar method they did in sending the money to Hynicka. President Leopold K. Leybolte of the Western German bank said his institution paid Hynicka about $1,500 a year. Others who testified were N. S. Keith, secretary of the Cincinnati Trust Company; Charles A. Hinch, president of the Fifth National bank; E. A. Donnolly, cashier of the Market National bank; Louis Kuhn, private banker; W. W. Brown, cashier of the Merchants' National bank, and others connected with smaller institutions. They were unable to tell the amounts paid, but promised to produce abstracts and other papers to reveal them. They said the practic, had been going on for years. On the scalp and extending from the ears to the nose are thirteen district horns of a hard bony substance. These horns vary in length from an inch to three and one-half inches and all grow from the hide, except the longest one, which springs from and is directly connected with the skull bone. When the animal moved the horns rattled together similar to the sound of a rattlesnake. "I was out in the cornfield hunting," said Mr. Kidd, "when the dog scared up this thing, whatever you may call it, and it ran down the rows toward me, rattling its horns as it ran, so I got aside and let it pass. After it got a short distance I shot it. My dog goes and gets the rabbits when I shoot them, but in this instance when he got to it he turned, tucked his tail and ran howling in an opposite direction. The rabbit, if such it could be called, was very fat and about a cross between a jack and a cottontail. I sure got away from it myself-never saw anything like it and would like to find out what it is." Mr. Kidd has the scalp of the rabbit at his home and intends to have it mounted and may dispose of it to some museum. Senator Knox of Pennsylvania, in commenting on the amount of work that he had to do as United States senator, said that he would never have undertaken the job if he had known of the strenuosity. He is compelled to

ROMANTIC WOMAN IS A SCIENTIST

LONDON, Feb. 24.—It has been over England, has started out as a the path of man, making the road perprophet, and in the last number of the haps a little easier over which he has already passed, but that to lead, to invent, to discover, will never be her province. Miss Martha Craig claims, however, to have made discoveries which will not only destroy this theory, but will upset all the scientific teachings which is now generally accepted as the natural laws which govern the universe. All modern science is based on the theory of gravitation, but Miss Craig has ruthlessly overthrown the accepted idea of the solar system, she denies the principle of gravitation or the attraction of matter, and in its stead she places a system of vortices. | plish her purpose she endeavored to She says that every constellation has its own vortex which holds the par-

The history of this remarkable woman is interesting and romantic. She was born in an Irish valley, the descendant of Scotch convenanters, who took refuge in the Isle of Saints, nearly seeing nothing but the towering mountains which surrounded her, and as these offered little new in the way of study she turned her childish at-above them. "Why do they not fall down?" she asked her father, who promptly quot"I do not believe Sir Isaac Newton," answered the little girl. To this her father gravely replied. "Then you will have to find out for yourself," and child registered a vow there and then under the night heavens that she would discover the secret of the balance of the stars. In order to accomobtain information from the village school master, who was a quarryman,

Then she came to an old minister from England, but she gained nothing but the theory advanced by Newton. At this time little Miss Craig wrote such a remarkable poem, that she was adopted by a lady of means, and was sent to school in England, and afterthe stars remain in their places?" When she grew up, as it was necessary natural laws, physics, geology and astronomy, and wandered over the face of the earth pursuing her studies. It then occurred to her that she must leave the paths of civilization if she tion, that she must go into the wilder. ness where she would be better able to get closer to the mirables of nature She therefore went into Labrador and penetrated the wilds, with only two North American Indians for her guides, and it was at the very furthest north she tells us, that she discovered truths which she holds will upset the existing foundations of science. The fesult of her brave attack upon accept-ed scientific dogma will be of the deepest interest.

Contractors Bombard Rock With Care

The erection of large buildings makes deep excavations necessary in order to reach bedrock for the founda2 tion to rest upon. The rock encountered often requires the use of powder to break it up, and this within a stone's throw of a crowded thoroughfare. Under such conditions the powder must be used with great discretion to prevent accidents to passersby and to surrounding property. During the past week powder has been used frequently having prevented all accidents.

in the center of the city, care however, Dynamite, or giant powder as it is generally known, is plain "powder" to the men who use it. This product is a mixture of about 60 per cent sawdust and forty per cent nitroglycerin. This percentage varies, however, in various states. Some states have enacted laws prohibiting the sale of the product containing more than 40 per cent of the explosive. In mining a special kind is generally used that has

60 per cent of the explosive in its com-The powder used in making the excavations mentioned is the 40 per cent kind, and is used in very small quantities, only enough being used at each thot or blast to break up the rock without throwing it out of the way. To get just the right amount of powder each hole is something that makes ts use uncertain. Occasionally the rock is so hard that a shot will go off with but very little effect on the rock because it happened to be an unusual-

the court of civil appeals. The pleadings show that the relator is the county attorney of Tom Green county, and the city of San Angelo has a corporation court, of which one of the respondents is recorder; that the recorder has refused to permit Upton to represent the state in criminal cases involving violations of the penal laws of the state, and that the other respondents prevented him from receiving any fee in all such cases, and the writ of mandamus was to compel them

The court of criminal appeals held that the county attorney, Lee Upton, could represent the state as the con stitution provides, but the legislature makes no provision for his compensation. The court says: "There is no such constitutional provision in reference to the city attorney, and therefore we think it must be held that neither the city of San Angelo nor the legislature can depive the relator (Upton) of his right to appear and represent the state in any criminal cases charging a violation of a state law, but as a matter of fact the legislature has not attempted to accomplish that result. Upon the contrary, the act of the Twenty-sixth legislature establishing corporation courts provides that in state cases prosecution by the city attorney, the county attorney, if he so desires, may also represent the state, but shall not be entitled to any fees or compensa-

Forty Head Murdo MacKenzie, who at one time was president of the Texas Cattle Raisers' Association, and is now president of the National Live Stock Association, recently lost a herd of steers in a peculiar manner.

A few days ago two cowboys on the Matador ranch, near Channing. were dipping cattle in oil. They found one unbranded steer and after dipping it branded it. The heat of the branding iron set fire to the hair of the animal, which was soaked with oil and it immediately dashed into a bunch of steers which had been dipped in the same fluid a few minutes before, set ting them afire, from which forty died.

They are the master nerves and every vital organ is their slave. The common name for these nerves is the "sympathetic nerves"-because each set is in such close sympathy with the others that weakness anywhere

The one remedy which aims to treat not the Kidneys themselves, but the nerves which are to blame, is known by physicians and druggists everywhere as Shoop's Restorative, (Tablets or Liquid.) of the bottling interest here, and if my plans work out, I will return to Fort Worth and put in a bottling plant in this city for celery-cola, distributing through the southwestern territory from Fort Worth. Just now I have such an extensive business in St. Louis and Chicago that I must give that my attention, but I am confident that there is an excellent opening here in Fort Worth for a plant such as I contemplate establishing in this city There are over a hnudred cases of soda water being shipepd out of Fort Worth every day now, and during the summer per day. Jehn Griffith in "Richard the Third" closed a good week's business at Greenwall's Saturday matinee and night, before two good-sized audiences. In point of the number of people attracted to the theater, the week was one of the best of the present season and the quality of attractions that drew them was equally worthy of mention.

Griffith, like Olcott, was here a year ago. Griffith appeared in "Macbeth," and The Telegram afterward, in speaking of the performance, praised his manly legs, his muscular arms and the tremendous vigor of his voice. They were perhaps unusual qualities to praise in a presentation of "Macbeth." but they were mentioned because of the promise they gave that Griffith would yet do better things. Griffith's "Macbeth," it will be remembered, raised quite a storm among the local critics. Shakespeare probably never got more free advertising in Fort Worth than he did during the days after Griffith had gone elsewhere. Both Shakes bare and Griffith have survived. Griffith came back Saturday and redeemed nearly all the promises his arms, legs and voice had made. True, the arms in "Richard the Third" are always closed and nothing of their miscular play can be seen except in the terrific sword battle with the Duke of Richmond. The legs, too, following the historic tradition, do not get a chance, as one must always be drawn shorter than the other.

But the voice-the vice is there with much of the roughness of a year ago smoothed away, more vibrancy in the tones, more naturalness in the aside passages and with none of the old thrilling powers sacrificed. Griffith has a great voice and his audience Saturday fell under its spell time and

Happened in Atlanta recently. The old, conservative News came out flat-footed and announced in a two-column editorial that there was a great actor in town. It went farther than this. It said: "Those who missed hearing Creston Clarke in Booth Tarkington's exquisite romance, 'Monsieur Beaucaire, missed one of most dainty and elegant refinements of our winter season."

The good people in Atlanta were amazed. They couldn't believe that the editorial page of their favorite newspaper had News regretted only that its editorial had not been much strong-acting ability has improved in the year he has been away from Fort Worth. He succeeded Saturday, even before the end of the first act, in getting the Duke of Gloster cordially hated, while at the same time his audience was praising him for his skill. Griffith's best work came at the assas nation of King Henry, in the woolng of Lady Anne, and in the famous tent scene. In the last named, Griffith's skill reached its highest pitch. The ghostly visitation was given with a thrilling realism and at the climax Griffith was greeed with a spontaneous outburst of ap-

William Lloyd, as the Earl of Richmond, was generously appla ded by Saturday's audiences. Elwar lage, as Queen Elizabeth, also came in for a good share of favor. She is the possessor of an excellent voice, with not a little music in it.

The presentation of King Richard, as a whole, was one of the bes, ever given in Texas. The electrical and illusionary effects in the tent scene were skillfully arranged. The battle of Bosworth field was brilliantly suggested by the spirited sword plays and the final duel between Richmond and King Richard. The groupings in practically all the scenes, except possibly that the street in London, were effectively made. In that scene there were some awkward movments in which the mind of the audience was at times distrated from the argument of the story. It would have been improved by less movement, Lady Anne's across-stage rushes tending somewhat to confuse.

"The Yankee Consul"

Two years ago the name of Vera Michelena, now the prima donna of "The Yankee Consul," which will be seen at Greenwall's opera house Thursday, matinee and night, March 1, was unknown to the musical stage. Slocum, the manager of "The Yankee Consul," according to the press agent, is credited with the discovery of this rare artist. As director general of one of the largest touring organizations he found himself in San Francisco one morning minus that most essential commodity, a prima donna. He must have one or abandon the tour. He heard of Miss Michelena and he sought her out.

While an understudy from the chorus was endeavoring her best to render the trills and roulades of the principal role, Mr. Slocum was trying to persuade Miss Michelena that nature had ordained her for a comic opera career

HARRY BERESFORD, IN "THE WO MAN HATER," AT GREENWALL'S TUESDAY MATINEE AND NIGHT

Miss Michelena referred the enthusiastic manager to her father. The latter's consent was finally obtained. One week later the country rang with the praises of this wonderful young woman, who had come out of the west to fill the position once so proudly held by Lillian Russell and Alice Nielson. "Her two years'/training have served to enrich her voice and give her the dramatic schooling which she needed. From a dozen applicants eager to crecomedy success Mr. Slocum has again cities the enthusiasm aroused by "The Yankee Consul" when it was first produced at the Broadway theater, New

Harry Beresford

It is said that an exceptionally good company has been placed on the road by Manager J. J. Coleman to support Harry Beresford in the merry comedy, "The Woman Hater," from the no of David D. Lloyd. "It may be said," says the advance agent, "that in comedy on the stage today has been more productive of laughter than this one and it does not seem possible that any other player could be found capable of infusing more naturalness into the part of this unsophisticated, awkward, eccentric 'Bundy' than does this young actor, who has been said to be versag tile, inventive and clear in his business,' spontaneous and great in his acting and artistic in his treatment of details and withal so throughly convincing and interesting that he commands the attention at all times, playing upon the human soul, while he appeals to

"In this case, however, the emotions are only those pleasurable ones which act upon the risibilities of the audience, with the result that all who hear 'that odd fellow,' go home at peace with themselves, each other and the world, for they have laughed away all their cares." Creston Clarke

There can po question concern ing the unusual excellence of "Beaucaire," the comedy romance that was such a pleasant factor in Creston Clarke's tour last season, which will again be presented in this city at Greenwall's opera house Friday, matinee and night, March 2, with Mr. Clarke in the title role and in all the glory of the elaborate scenic inventiture that characterized last season's triumphant tour. The Clarion-Ledger of Jackson (Miss.) had the following to

"It was a very beautiful performance of 'Monsieur Beaucaire' that Creston Clarke gave at the Capital theater last night, with the assistance of one of the best companies he has yet surrounded himself with. Not because it is old, but because of the dress and manners of the period, the stately courtesy and ceremony, the elaborate ostumes of the grand dames, the picturesque dress of the dandles of that day-dandies, however, who, in spite of their almost effeminate taste in the matter of outward apparel, were men of warm blood, good drinkers, good fighters, good gamesters. And among the foremost bloods of England the Dauphin of France, masquerading as Monsieur Beaucaire, was the master spirit in all that manhood stands for in that generation. DRAMATIC NOTES

Modjeska's Farewell For her farewell American tour Madame Helena Modjeska has selected from her extensive repertoire three plays with which her fame is most closely associated, "Mary Stuart," "Macbeth" and "Much Ado About Nothing." No three could be chosen that are more calculated to reveal the great Polish actress' many sidedness. The vindictiveness of Lady Macbeth, the witchery and refinement of Beatrice and the tragic pathos in the life of Mary, queen of Scots, are contrasting elements that will greatly tax the skill of any one woman who would protray them. Madame Modjeska will appear in this city in one of these three plays, the exact one to be announced after the voting contest on the part of the public and which takes place in connection with the advance sale. "The Maid and the Munimy," Richard Carle's most successful musical piece might well have been named "The Maids and the Mummy," for there is only one nammy to thirty girls in the cast. The management has been careful to take only the prettiest girls for the chorus that is to present this mery musical melange this fall and winter. Wilfred Lucas, who plays Bud Young n "The Heir to the Hoorah," aside from being a good actor, is an excellent singer. He was first baritone in the Carl Rosa English Opera Company before he found out that character roles furnished him more congenial Denman Thompson's ever verdant, ever popular "Old Homestead" is a coming attraction here. It seems altogether unnecessary to say that this quaint chronicle of New England farm life will be as joyously welcomed as it has been in seasons past. This is the twentieth annual tour of the New Eng-

At the Majestic Attractions big and little and of all sorts will hold forth at the Majestic morrow matinee. "Jack, the Giant Killer," in condensed form will be put on by Captain George Auger, the tallest man in the world, and a well picked company of Lilliputians, who are accounted the handsomest and cutest atoms of humanity in existence. Mr. and Mrs. Gene Hughes, who made a terrific hit in London, will produce "A Matrimonial Substitute;" the De Moneies, graceful limberologists; Morris Manley and Dolly Sterling, travesty sketch artists; Tom Ripley, monologist; Hardie Langdon, songstress; "The Night Before Christmas," kinotagraph and Phyllis Hob, illustrated songs, will comprise the bill.

Mr. and Mrs. Hughes are cultivated, educated linquists, who know a great deal about acting naturally, artistically, getting the good side of an audience bombarding a repartee of wit flashes and yet holding one on the qui vive of expectancy, with a finish full of surprises in "The Matrimonial Substitute." Mr. and Mrs. Hughes have the knack of pleasing in a way that many professionals envy but cannot attain. Their interpretation of American comedy in England made a lasting impression. Press and public joined in declaring them to be the Mr. and Mrs. Kendal of vaudeville. Their twenty minutes flits by seemingly in ten, everything is told well and, unlike most of the usual variety vehicles, it has both plot and cause for being.

The chief charm in this talented couple's work lies in the fact that they seem totally oblivious that hundreds of eyes are peering through the proscen-ium arch at hem. Not once do they use those stereotyped pauses that seem to say: "Here is where you applaud" We will not analyze the plot; good wine needs no sampling.

Captain George Auger can justly boast of having the biggest act in vaudeville. Auger is over eight feet tall, weighs about 400 pounds, has a nose as large as an oridnary man's face, and is built perfectly otherwise in all his proportions. With Captain Auger are a half dozen Lilliputians, who are clever singers, dancers and deliniators. Clements and Rose Coughlan, made a Until contracted by the Interstate and the midgets were the features of their own company. This will be their last public appearance before joining the Barnum & Bailey circus for the

Tom Ripley is a drawing room entertainer in burnt cork makeup. He tells of his daily experiences in a quaint, droll manner that gets generous response. His trials and tribulations at the hands of "father," and his everyday confession of how he is the victim of circumstances that are ludicrous but real, comprise topics in Ripley's witty monologue that are palatable.

Manley and Sterling are a prepossessing team of singers and dancers whose songs are of their own composition. Morris Manley is an author. His musical conceptions are published by York concerns and have made decided hits. Their skit is on the travesty order with a good seasoning of comedy. Burlesquing melo-drama acting is their long suit. Miss Sterling is a pretty and demure miss with a captivating stage presence.

Hardie Langdon, a remarkable female baritone, sheds amiable luster in topical songs, such as the audience cannot refrain from joining in with "Barney" is one of her best selections. There are but few female baritone singers in the theatrical profession, Miss Langdon being the most pleasing of the lot. The De Moneios have an elegant stage setting with electrical effects on which they give an exhibition of equiibrism and contortion. Mlle. de Monejo, a sprightly and shapely artiste goes through gyrations in unison with Monsieur De Moneio that have never been seen in any other vaudeville of circus act. It is a distinctly original novelty possessed of many high class

"The Night Before Christmas" will be depicted in wonderfully clear and unblurred, life-sized pictures on the kinotagraph. The subject is a production in itself, correct in detail and Illustrated songs will be sung by

Phyllis Hobb, a captivating warbler of popular numbers, who will make as good here as she has in all the vaudeville houses of the east.

KING'S HEALTH ALARMS COURT

English Monarch Shows Signs of Physical Breakdown

Special Cable to The Telegram. Copyright, 1906, by Hearst News Service.)

LONDON, Feb. 24.-The condition of King Edward's health does not please his immediate entourage in Buckingham Palace. His majesty bears every external evidence of ill health and it is plain to everyone that he is not strong. When the king appeared at the opening of parliament many persons were shocked at his appearance. His face was ashen and his voice husky when reading his speech. The reading was frequently punctuated with gasps as from a man suffering with an internal malady. When his speech was finished he looked around for his cane, which was three feet away. He apparently hesitated to fust his legs to reach for the cane and the court chamberlain placed it in the king's hand. His majesty suffers keenly from his injured ankle and walks with a limp. If any man bears on his face signs of an early physical break-up it is King Edward.

Gives Up Smoking Since the king came to Sandringham to be examined by Sir Felix Simon, Dr. Treves and another physician, he has been compelled to give up smoking. The relinquishment of his beloved cigars makes his majesty very irritable. His majesty's irritation is increased by the slightest suggestion that he does not look well. Like all members of his family, he dislikes intensely to learn the truth of his condition. He is fearful of cancer, which he knows his family is susceptible to. His majesty's neck is massaged daily nd he rarely leaves Buckingham except for pressing business of state. The last privy council was not held n St. James palace as was usual, but n Buckingham palace. The change was made because there is no elevator n St. James, wherefore the king is empelled to walk up and down stairs.

Voice Weaker The entire court knows his majesty far from being a well man. Reynlds newspaper, the first London paper print the news of the king's illness four years ago, will say tomorrow that he unsatisfactory condition of the king's health was plainly noticeable by those present at the convening of parliament on Monday. Despite denials official and otherwise, it is evident that his majesty is not nearly so strong as ne was a year ago. His face is thin and haggard and his hair and beard whiter than a few months ago. His voice, too, has lost much of its former power. At times his majesty was juite inaudible as he read his speech. Under these circumstances it is imossible to doubt any longer that King Edward is really ill. This publication will more than any denial by Lord nollys or any other court official onvince the nation. Still, the usual ontradiction will be forthcoming.

What Sulphur Does

The mention of sulphur will recall to many of us the early days when ur mothers and grandmothers gave us our daily dose of sulphur and molasses every spring and fall. It was the universal spring and fall "blood purifier," tonic and cure-all, and, mind you, this old-fashioned remedy was not without merit. The idea was good, but the remedy was crude and unpalatable, and a large quantity had to be taken to get any Nowadays we get all the beneficial effects of sulphur in a palatable, concentrated form, so that a single grain is far more effective than a tablespoonful of the crude sulphur.

In recent years research and experiment have proven that the best sulphur for medicinal use is that obtained from Calcium (Calcium Sulphide) and sold in drug stores under the name of Stuart's Calcium Wafers. They are small chocolate coated pellets and contain the active medicinal principle of sulphur in a highly concentrated, effective form. Few people are aware of the value of this form of sulphur in restoring and maintaining bodily vigor and health; sulphur acts directly on the liver and exectory organs and purifies and enriches the blood by the prompt elimination of waste material. Our grandmothers knew this when hey dosed us with sulphur and molasses every spring and fall, but the crudity and impurity of ordinary flowers of sulphur were often worse than the disease, and cannot compare with the modern concentrated preparations of sulphur, of which Stuart's Calcium Wafers is undoubtedly the best and most widely used. They are the natural antidote for liver and kidney troubles and cure constipation and purify the blood in a way that often surprises patient and physician alike. Dr. R. M. Wilkins while experimenting with sulphur remedies soon found that the sulphur from Calcium was superior to any other form. He says: "For liver, kidney and blood troubles, especially when resulting from contion or malaria, I have been surprised at the results obtained from Stuart's Calcium Wafers. In patients suffering from boils and pimples and even deep-seated carbuncles, I have repeatedly seen them dry up and disappear in four or five days, leaving the skin clear and smooth. Although Stuart's Calcium Wafers is a proprietary article and sold by druggists and for that reason tabooed by many physicians, yet I know of nothing so safe and reliable for constipation, liver and kidney troubles and especially in all forms of skin diseases as this remedy. At any rate people who are tired of pills, cathartics and so-called blood

"purifiers" will find in Stuart's Calcium

Wafers a far safer, more palatable and effective preparation.

cotton market during the past week, and prices worked down to new low a cent per pound from the week premonth, and differences between March and May widened out considerably. The market this morning opened steady, with prices 3 points down to 1 point up from the previous close and during the first part of the day

The market gave some evidence of being pretty well sold out and prices rallied from the early decline with comparatively small volume

Week-end statistics were bearish, and the early spring, after an open winter, is confidently expected to bring out a large acreage this season. The movement to the ports has been a strong bear feature, cotton coming out freely, notwithstanding the fact that farmers were said to be holding and a good many well informed and conservative operators are inclined to the belief that the final crop showing will be considerably larger than the popular ideas. There was again a disposition on the part of operators to hold off until after Monday, first notice day for March contracts, as it was feared that deliveries might be larger than

Rich Motor Tourists Have Thrilling Experiences

NEW YORK, Feb. 24.—Thrilling experiences, have been reported by wealthy Americans motoring through Europe, notably Robert Goelet and E.

Mr. Goelet and his bride accidentally rammed a peasant's wagon loaded with vegetables in the Tyrol. Armed with various weapons, a throng of peasants gathered from the nearby fields and threatened the Goelets. Goelet and the chauffeur held them off with their revolvers until the police came. DISSOLUTION AWAITED Merchants in Territory Avoiding Payment of Creek Tribal Tax Special to The Telegram

There is no illfeeling on the part of the merchants toward the police, but they are merely waiting for the dissolution of the tribal affairs.

(HAINED TO A CORFSE

Doleful Punishment of the Ancients Duplicated in Our Modern Life. The Romans used to punish a murderer by chaining to his body the corpse of his victim. Wherever he went he dragged behind him the debris of his crime, the sleazy cadaver, revolting thing that was once a man.

Every day you see people dragging around with them the corpse of their sins. They can't get away from them. And many of them have become so intimate with these corpses that they become corpses themselves. The misery of these poor unfortunates has become constitutional with them. It fits them like an old shoe. They have become accustomed to it.

And there are thousands of humans who are walking the earth today with corpses attached to them-dyspeptic stomachs they can't get rid of. They have to get along the best they can with the stomachs they have. And the owners of said dyspeptic stomachs are to be found in every walk in life, sufferings from some form of indigestion, first cousin to dyspepsia.

They wear that forlorn appearance, their energy is at zero, nothing interests them, and they interest no one, their faces are shrunk, their nerves are wilted and their shoulders sag. Are you one of the myriads who dandle and gratify their palates, at the sacrifice of their stomachs? Are you one of those who allow their senses to run riot, eating too much, drinking too much, eating at the wrong time, eating the half-cooked, the queer and the

Are you bloated after eating, and imagine that it is your food that fills you? Do you have nausea when you look upon this or that, rebel at one thing and be hungry for it, too, at the same time? And have you got a whole lot of other things the matter with your stomach that you know about but nobody else does, and can't explain? If so, you have dyspepsia, real dyspepsia. And the chances are you have had it a long time. Your stomach is overworked, abused, fagged out. The gastric and digestive juices are weak, the muscles of the stomach are jaded, and the whole busi-ness needs new life. It needs something which will take hold of the food as it comes in and do the digesting, and let your stomach take a rest. Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets do that very thing. They contain a most pow-erful ingredient which helps the stomach in the process of digestion, cures dy pepsia, sour stomach, indigestion, heartburn, eructations, acidity or fermentation. They invigorate the stomach, in-crease the flow of gastric juice, and do two-thirds of what the stomach would have to do without them. That gives the stomach some rest, and a

Young Girl Says She Wanted to Cure Headache

Special to The Telegram. SOUTH BEND, Ind., Feb. 24.-Because she had been scolded for her conduct in remaining away from home until late hours, Miss Ethel Munn, aged 17, is alleged to have made an attempt to murder her mother, Mrs. Warner Adams, by putting strychnine in her tea. The intended victim, detecting the bitter taste, refused to drink, but the mouthful which went to her stomach was so deadly that she was almost immediately thrown into convulsions and, but for the prompt arrival of three physicians summones by her husband, who suspected the cause of her ailment, would have died. The police called to investigate the case were blocked in their efforts to make the girl confess because of the mother's apparent desire to shield her daughter. Mr. Gates was a member of the Kansas Club, together with other members of his party, and the play took place on Wednesday night, leaking out only today through attaches of the club and some of the Gates party,

Forty rounds of chips had Mr. Gates played away, but still smiling, he chased dame fortune just three more minutes, and Mr. Gates was $5,000 more to the bad. While some of these questions regarding Telegram advertisers appear very simple, there are others that are hard to solve. In fact, there are several that will cause a great deal of thinking and re-reading of the In other cities where these contests have been given, the successful contestants are usually those who verify their guess by phoning the advertiser and ascertaining if the reading notice refers to his ad. The merchant in every case will advise you whether or not it does. Contestants who usually lese are those who take too much for granted, and find after their list is inspected that they might have won a prize by merely telephoning or calling on the merchant. As a guide, it may be stated that each advertiser in the contest has used space in today's Telegram of 12 or more inches. Their ad. may be set down one column, or it may be across two or more columns. Their ad. may be considerably more than 12 inches, but not less.

Fort Worth merchants are alive to the importance of this contest, and the majority of them have made some very inviting bargains for Telegram readers. The last reports of the financial agents who are charged with the collection of indemnity of the United States on account of the Boxer outbreak show that, so far, not enough has been collected to defray approved claims of American missionaries, so that it is said to be at least premature to discuss the advisability of returning to China any undistributed balance of the total indemnity of $17,000,000 which will not be paid in under the present installment system for at least litteen years.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Feb. 24.-Sixtyfive persons in a street car of the Pittsburg Railway Company went over an embankment near Millvale late this afternoon, alighting on the tracks of the West Pennsylvania railroad, fifteen feet below. The car was demol-ished and all of the passengers were more or less injured, although none were killed.

Sixty-five Passengers Hurt in

Accident

The following were seriously hurt and may die: William Siefert.

Miss Koonznogle Mrs. Siatzbuski. Frank Sperling. The car was running at an ordinary rate of speed. When it reached the Butler plank road the rails of the track spread. The car ran along the ties for quite a distance and then toppled over the embankment. There was the wildest excitement among the passengers before the plunge was made and many passengers had to be prevented from throwing themselves from the car. Many women fainted and how fatalities were avoided is considered nothing short of marvelous. The motorman and conductor both remained at their posts and were injured.

O'BRIEN WANTS TO MEET BURNS

Philadelphian Issues Challenge to Conquerer of Marvin Hart

Special to The Telegram. NEW YORK, Feb. 24.—Philadelphia

Jack O'Brien, who, through his defeat of Bob Fitzsimmons, claims the heavyweight championship title, today declared his readiness to fight Tommy Burns, the conqueror of Marvin Hart. The decisive defeat of Hart takes him out of the front rank of heavies, according to O'Brien, and the Quaker boxer stands ready to give Burns a chance to win the title given up by

O'Brien will be ready to take Burns on after May 1, when his theatrical engagements end. He would like to have the battle come off between that date and July 4. O'Brien said today: 'Tommy Burns has proved his right to fight for the heavyweight title, and as I am always ready to give any worthy fighter a chance I will take himon. The easy manner in which he defeated Hart shows that he has to be counted a good man. "I have received an offer from James Coffroth to fight before his San Francisco club on July 4, and if that date suits Burns I guess we can have it out there. If Burns wants an earlier date he can have it any time after May 1. "I am also ready to fight Tommy Ryan for the middleweight title, and will do 158 pounds at 3 o'clock for

BURNS BEATS HART

Had Decided Advantage Over Kentuckian at Los Angeles

Special to The Telegram. LOS ANGELES, Cal., Feb. 24.-By those who took Marvin Hart's claim to the world's championship seriously, Tommy Burns of Chicago may now be considered the heavyweight champion. Burns decisively outpointed Hart tonignt at the Pacific Athletic Club pavilion and got the decision at the end of the twentieth round.

From start to finish, with the possible exception of the tenth and twelfth, when Hart had a small advantage, Burns out-fought him, out-generaled him and beat him at every point in the game of boxing. At times Burns made Hart look like a novice.

In the opening round Burns was very nervous and lacked confidence. After this he quickly sized Hart up and began a systematic attack on his face and body with straight lefts. In the third he started the blood from Hart's nose and kept it running in almost every round thereafter. In the fifth Burns caught Hart over the right eye and in the following rounds battered that optic until it was closed. The left eye was also badly marked and Hart's face was bloody practically throughout the fight. Hart failed to show any championship form of any His persistent attempts to rough it earned disapproval from the crowd. Burns' style was to shove his left to the face or body and step inside of Hart's swings, allowing them to go around his neck or ducking them. Hart could not land on Burns and toward the latter part tried to rough it. The fight was tiresome, one round lowing ones. In the last few rounds Hart, urged by his seconds, tried desperately to corner his opponent and secure a knockout. Hart weighed 195 and Burns' weight was given at 175.

TEMPLE BASEBALL LINE-UP GIVEN

Boll Weevils Have Seventeen Players Signed

Special to The Telegram. TEMPLE, Texas, Feb. 24.-The personnel of the Temple baseball team for the coming season has been given out today in part as follows by Manager Edens, who states that twentytwo men have been selected, seventeen of whom have signed contracts: Catchers, Kelsey, Northwestern League; McMurray, Pacific Coast League; Hughes, a Cincinnati corner lot receiver. Pitchers, Womack, Missouri Valley League, DeVore, a find recommended by Fred Clarke of the Pittsburgs; Montague, from Fort Scott; Brady, a veteran from the Cotton States League, and Con Lucid of the United First base, Hoffman, from South

Atlantic League. Second base, Yohe, from Missouri Shortstop, McCulley, Missouri Val-

Third base, Grant, from Virginia State League; Mooney, from South Outfield, White, a Kansas City amateur; Sullinger, Pacific Coast League, and Dewey, from the same league. There are five players who are still unsigned, although they have accepted terms and their contracts are expected

The men are ordered to report at Corsicana March 15, where the Cleburne team is also to report and, after spending five days in the Oil City training and practicing, getting acquainted, etc., the team will come to Temple for real hard work. By the time the season opens in the league the men will have demonstrated their respective qualities and permanene selections will be then made. The team is due a season of rigorous training and hard practicing, for much stress is laid upon the matter of condition Con Lucid, who is to be playermanager and captain has a reputation as trainer that he proposes to exercise to the utmost this season in licking the men into condition. Manager Edens will not indulge in any high colored claims for his team, for he says that the public knows just as much about what they can do as he does and inasmuch as the other five league managers have already won the pennant for their teams (in the newspapers) he is averse to claiming the honor for himself for a league in which every team is a pennant winner palls on the public taste and destroys all interest in the sport. For that reason he waives all right to the pennant in the newspapers and will be contented to let his players fight the issue out on the diamond.

FISH STARTS AN INSURANCE FIGHT

NEW YORK, Feb. 24.-Through the resignation of Stuyvesant Fish as a trustee of the Mutual Life Insurance Company today a battle has been inaugurated between the clashing elements of that company that, it is believed, will develop into one of the bitterest fights of recent years in Wall street, while it is certain to complete the destruction of all public faith in the sincerity of the "house cleaning committee" of the Mutual.

These events followed each other swiftly today in the fight in the Musigned as a trustees. The resignation of Mr. Fish as a trustee was announced my him in a personal letter to each of the other trustees, he having resigned as a member of the "house cleaning committee" a week ago. This action was followed by the declaration in Wall street that allied forces of the Rockefeller-Ryan-Peabody combine would at once begin a savage attack upon Mr. Fish as president of the Illinois Central railroad, with the intention of forcing him out of that position and destroying his influence in that corporation. This would mean the organization of nearly a billion and a half dollars against Mr. Fish by the powers he has antagonized by refusing to lend his assistance to the white washing of the Mutual and its former and present managements.

FEW REDUCTIONS MADE

Total of But $10,000 Taken From Last Assessements Made in This City by Board of Equalizers

Collections made by W. J. Gilvin, city collector, thus far this month are same period of the corresponding month last year. The total amount collected thus far this month has been $8,857.14, while during the same period last year it was $7,946.11. Of course, the busy season of the collector's office is now over, and, while there are still taxes to be collected, the receipts now are far below the average. During the first fifteen days in last September the collections amounted to $150,000, but now the remainder outstanding taxes are being gathered in as fast as the people will pay them. Money is going out of the city treasury faster than it is coming in, but Mr. Gilvin states that he thinks Fort Worth is in good financial condition. "If the valuations of the property here were as large as the real value of the property warrants, the taxable values here would be increase," said Mr. Gilvin, "and while I am not in favor of making the people pay any more taxes than necessary, I believe that it would be better to increase the valuations and reduce the rate of taxation if the revenue is more than is required to defray the expenses of the

"It has been the custom here in the past for about 25 per cent of the property owners to go before the board of equalization and secure readjustments of the assessments on their property, and this causes changes which create dissatisfaction on the part of others when they come to pay their taxes and find that their property is assessed higher than that adjoining it. They complain to the men in the office, but hese men have no authority in the

"I assess property at exactly what I would be willing to pay on the property if it belonged to me, and this seems to me to be as near right as possible. I furthermore have watched the property transfers and informed able to find enough transfers to gauge the property values pretty well in every block in the city. Prior to my incumbency in this office the board of equalization was making sweeping reductions in assessed valuations. The year before I entered the office these reductions were between $700,000 and $800,000, and they reduced them $300,-000 during my first year. Last time, however, they only reduced them $10,-000. I have made extensive investigations regarding the property values here, however, and if it was assessed at its real value, there would be an increase in the assessed valuations of the property here of fully $10,000,000. At present the assessed valuations of Fort Worth property are about $25,-000,000, and this could easily be increased to $35,000,000 without overestimating the value of the property."

The fireplace was banked with palms and the mantel had gorgeous pink roses within its cover of smilax. In a corner near the fireplace was the punch table, within its green depths resting the cut glass bowl filled with champagne punch. At the foot of the bowl the smilax was made gay by masses of pink tulips. In the east hall a screen of smilax extending to the ceiling hid the orchestra. In front of the screen stood a table from which frozen punch was served. The dining table with cluny lace cover and center vase holding several dozen Bermuda lilies held continuous admiration. The lily vase stood in a bed of Parma violets. Bowls set at the corners were filled with pink tulips and the dozen silver candlesticks had shades of tulip pink to which were attached bouquet covers of violets. On the table were bowls of crystallized fruits. In this room the guests were served to coffee and wafers.

NEW THEORY FOR TUNNEL TRAGEDY

Girl's Death Not Murder, But Result of Mania

LONDON, Feb. 24.—If certain specialists are to be believed, the tragic mysteries of two women's deaths in railway tunnels in the vicin- Reeves county. Capital, $10,000. In the Seventeenth district court ity of London within the year have a remarkable scientific explanation. It is asserted that they were not murdered but the victims of strange nervous diseases which became manifest only when the sufferers were shut up in a confined space. The facts of the latest cases are as follows:

Tilla Rochella, a French girl of 18 years, came to England several weeks ago to visit relatives near Rugby. In Rugby the trainmen found the door of the railway carriage open and a subsequent search revealed her mutilated body in the Crick tunnel. The police decided that she had been murdered and thrown out on the tracks, | San Antonio. The case was very similar to that of I tober. Miss Money's mutilated body was found in Merstham tunnel and the deduction was that murder had been

Now comes the mother of one victim, Countess Rochella, with a statement which is accepted by many as solution of the girl's death.

"My daughter ought never to have traveled alone," said the countess. 'She was always greatly agitated in fered from a sort of feeling of oppression or suffocation. "Last summer she spent her holidays with me in Paris. I met her half way in Dieppe. On getting into the Paris train she suddenly became terribly agitated. She rushed from one side to the other of the compartment, opentin et al. vs. Anderson & Bean, from | ing the windows and pressing her hands to her throat. Had I not caught her by her dress she would have certainly have fallen on to the line. She could not account for her nervousness, which was such that she would not travel inside an omnibus." Physicians say the statements seem ble, from Taylor; Sanborn vs. City of to prove that Miss Rochella was subject to a complaint which the medical hame of claustrophobia is given. The victim of this complaint, which is only found among the nervous or very highly strung, is afraid of being shut up in a confined space and is always liable to attempt to escape from that confinement. The victim is said to be suffering from an imperative idea and such ideas render men and women incapable of taking care of themselves.

Lady Strathcona Absent-Minded, but Remembers Faces

(Copyright, 1998, by Hearst News Service.) LONDON, Feb. 24.-Lady Strathcona, the wife of the great Canadian who has given a check for 10,000 guineas ($55,000) to the queen's unemployed fund, is one of the simplest and at the same time one of the most absent-minded of old-timers. She cannot remember a name, although she may have known the owner of it for years. Princess Louise, Duchess of Argyll, the king's favorite sister, told her friends just before she left for Egypt that Lady Stratheona, who has known her for fifteen years, came up to her recently and said: "I know your face, but I cannot for the life of me think of your name." The princess was highly amused, but Lady Strathcona herself was not in the least disconcerted.

Mr. Walker said that great improvements have been made and are daily being made in the iron foundry and machine shops at Rusk, which is conducted by the state under the supervision of the state penitentiry board. This is practically a new feature of the foundries. New machinery has been installed and modern appliances adopted wihch makes the venture a compleet success. There is a ready sale for these sad irons. The work in these foundries is done practically with convict labor, there being 200 men employed in this work. Mr. Walker said he did not know of any new developments in the proposed sale of the state's railroad out of Rusk, that the matter has not been discussed recently by the board one way or the other.

"Parents cannot afford to commit petty or grave faults in the presence of children and not expect the child to think out some reason for it and perhaps imitate. It would seem to me that if parents expect much from their children, they must always strive to give the best of themselves to the child and do all they can to choke down and remove their own imperfections. I recognize this is difficult work, but regard it is fair to the child. "Children like the companionship

"Personally, I do not believe a normally strong child can have too much fresh air, nor too much rational physical exercise. There is a tendency to coddle young children to their own harm. If they were old enough to express their own opinion on the subject, am sure they would resent it. Wealth cannot make a wrongly kept child strong, and poverty cannot keep a sensibly treated child from developing. Mother love is very strong, but common sense ought to be stronger.

"Children must respect their parents, and they must learn that petty lying, petty acts of meanness, bring their own punishment. When the Angel Beameth in the Face

How many varied faces pass on either side Of life's rough path in never-ceasing tide. The purse-proud man looks scorn, the poor, most meek; Hale looks the strong, and feebly pale the weak; The good give kindly glance; the wicked frown; The trooping children mimic tricks of clown; The merry laugh; the sober seem most staid; The troubled, gloomy by their sorrows weighed. But they please most who charm us with their grace When bright the angel beameth in the face.

Beside the couch of sickness and despair They nurse the feeble with unwearied care; Anticipate each wish, each want supply, Calm anxious fear and hush the anguished cry. Should grief o'erwhelm, or sorrow's cup o'erflow, Or ruin strike with crushing weight of woe, By friends forsaken, first are they to seek The hand to press, the cheering word to speak. In darkest day some hopeful omen trace, While bright the angel beameth in the face.

Ah, when the angel beameth in the face The earth indeed becomes a heavenly place. The foe, a friend, all men as brothers dear: Then love prevails and friendship proves sincere. The same old world, but with a visage new. The flowers more sweet, the skies a deeper blue: Bird note and insect hum, each sight, each sound To sense more rapturous as the pulses bound; Till God's vast universe it doth embrace, When bright the angel beameth in the face.

so wistfully to the occult. Never has it listened with an expectation so painful, at that closed door behind which mysterious silences stretch away-the door of he tomb. I dare say it is natural enough. Always in epochs of unbelief, when the conservative forms of faith are weakened, there is an immense growth of vague supernaturalism. It was in the cynical eighteenth entury, when Voltaire had sneered religion out of fashion, that sorcerers, fortune tellers, magicians-all the Mesmers and Cagliostros-ruled the world. Our new century, quite as skeptical, is equally in love with the marvelous. only the fashion in wizards has hanged. The modern magician comes from the laboratory. He speaks in the me of science, for there is a science of the immaterial—a science of witchcraft-a science which has its profesplant world, the fairy tale of its greatsors and learned societies, its journals and magazines. The very ghosts that haunt the societies for psychical research have taken on a scientific air; they walk no more in windy corridors, clanking spectral chains; in a pracal, modern way they exhibit themlves to scientific congresses. World er, psychic phenomena are being studied by trained scientists. Dismissng theories, they give themselves to the observation of scientifically established facts. Their labors range from the study of hysteria, of hypnosis and the transmission of psychic forces, to the time-old mysteries of enchantment

THE RE-SHAPING OF THE FAR EAST

The importance of Mr. B. L. Putam Weale's recently published twocolume work on "The Reshaping of the Far East" (Macmillan company), has been fully recognized by the leading journals of America and Great Britain. The New York Tribune, at the beginning of a long and enthusiastic review, says: "The author of 'Manchu and Muscovite,' having proved himself to be no minor prophet in his able exposition of conditions in Manchuria prior to the Russo-Japanese war and in his forecast of coming events, has ventured now on an inquiry of much wider scope, leading up to a far longer look ahead. How true his prophecies may be in this instance time alone can tell; but if we accept his statements in regard to the present state of affairs national, political, commercial, industrial and diplomatic, in the far east, we can hardly take exception to the admirable logic of his prognostications. Whether the outcome is in accordance with his predictions or not, it cannot be denied that he has made in the two bulky volumes before us a remarkably searching, analytical, clear and comprehensive presentation of what is on the surface, and beneath it as well, at intricately complicated and perplexing

"Instantly arrests attention, and demands reading by every serious student of international politics," is the summing up of the Boston Herald. The editor goes on to say that the two volumes are copiously illustrated with excellent portraits and an admirable map, and that Mr. Weale "knows the ground intimately, and expresses that knowledge forcibly and with masterly power of illustration."

The London Daily Telegraph says: "There can be little doubt that by the publication of this work Mr. B. L. Putnam Weale, already favorably known by his 'Manchu and Muscovite,' has placed himself in the forefront of writers on the far eastern question. The book is, in truth, an extraordinarily. complete compendium for the student. of modern international politics in eastern Asia. The fifty-page prologue, dealing with the history of China, is model of what such a summary should be, and the author's singular lucidity of style and acuteness of observation never desert him throughout the thousand and odd pages of his two volumes. Whether he is relating a sequence of historical events or is recording his own personal experiences. he is equally perspicuous in his descriptions and shrewd in his com-The value of the book is enhanced by an excellent map and a large number of admirable photographs. BOOKS AND AUTHORS

The announcement of a new novel by the celebrated English writer, E. F. Benson, author of "Dodo" always arouses great interest. Perhaps no present day novelist has been so successful in depicting English society life, or wields such a versatile pen as this popular author. During the past year, the J. B. Lippincott company, Philadelphia, issued two of Mr. Benson's best novels, "The Challoners" and "The Image in the Eand," both of which became very popular, and they have just published his new novel 'The Angel of Pain." The scenes of this book are laid in the beautiful and fashionable English country districts, and it tells the story of a great sacrifice for love. The character of Tom Merivale, with the power to convey message to a bird or a beast, is a listinct creation.

If marriage had been a failure this ivilization would not be here. So many men are brave after the intellectual fashion is all for materialism. For the rest there is only an easy incredulity. And yet-the paradox is curious-never was the world so ghost-ridden. Never has it turned (Charles Scribner's Sons.)

Miss Geraldine Bonner so leads the reader of "The Castle Court Diamond Case," (Funk & Wagnalls) to believe; that the return of mysteriously stolen diamonds because they are paste brings brings a gay, extravagant society woman to confess that she pawned the originals and to find hereafter her greatest happiness in a husband's love and quiet country air. There is a certain daring in the story, as we look back in it, but it is such a puerile piece of work, the tawdry effusion of imrence even in fiction. Nevertheless,

A poem which has enjoyed the popularity in this country as well as in Germany, which has been accorded Julius Wolff's Hartzian legend "The Wild Huntsman," is worthy of an. English translation. Mr. Ralph Davidson of Laporte, Ind., has undertaken the task. He has paraphrased loosely in some cases, omitted and condensed. but on the whole his given a rhythmical rendering of the spirited German poem. A translation is seldom satisfying, much less a translation of German poetry, and, no doubt, Mr. Davidson has done his task as well as any but an Andrew Lang could do. He has retained the meter of the German, at illustrations and designs are after Woldemar Friedrich, and in paper and workmanship the book leaves little to be desired. (G. P. Putnam's Sons.)

W. W. Ireland, who has already some reputation for historical research, especially in England, during the Caroean period, has written an extremely interesting "Life of Sir Henry Vane," the younger, and the events of his day. While the author has little tolerance for either Charles I. or II., he manages to give a fair picture of the royalist side of the great, popular struggle. The strong and stable character of Vane, his services to the people, his fortitude and admirable patience under injustice from royalist and puritan alike, are capitally brought out, and the book is on the whole an excellent bit of biographical work. (Eveleigh Nash, London; Oliver & Boyd, Edinburgh.)

"Occupations For Little Fingers," by Elizabeth Sage and Anna M. Cooley, is a manual for grade teachers, mothers and settlement workers." From each class it will receive a welcome, for the occupations are carefully graded, both as regards difficulty of execution and material at hand, from the tying of string and paper cutting to simple knitting and crocheting. In nearly every case the per capita expense is stated, which ranges from 1 to 12 cents, the more elaborate results not necessarily entailing the greater expense. Judging from the numerous illustrations both useful and beautiful articles can be wrought and those in which the children will be interested.

The success of Hearts' Haven, Mrs. K. E. Blake's novel, dealing with life in the Rappite community at New Harmony, Ind., recalls the fact that Mrs. Mary Hartwell Catherwood was engaged upon a romance with the same locale at the time of her death. Indeed, there has been a persistent rumor to the effect that Hearts' Haven is Mrs. Catherwood's novel completed by another person, and inquiries have even been made whether "Mrs. Blake" is a real woman. As a matter of fact, the author of "Lazarre" had made but little progress with her story when death stayed her hand, and it dealt with a theme and period quite different from Hearts' Haven. Further, Mrs. Blake is a very real person, as her wide circle of friends in Minneapolis will testify.

OUR LAY SERMON

It was as sad a funeral cortege as you ever wit-

There was the grave digger, of brawny arm and long-handled spade in a muscular grasp, turning up the mould to make room for a wee coffin, all covered with black velvet and other somber habiliments that speak of consignment to Mother Earth, and the tiny grave was soon finished.

And the funeral cortege moved slowly out of the big white house with the closed blinds, and wound its dreary way to the site of the new made grave 'neath the shade of the big mulberry tree.

There was a beautiful, fair-haired woman, her blue eyes suffused with tears. There was a little blue eyed girl, her breast heaving convulsively with the grief that saddened her tender little heart. There was the big man who dug the grave under the mulberry tree, with the suspicion of a tear in his eyes, and there was Black Bill, the family cook and general factotum. The cortege moved slowly, for every heart was sad with a sense of great personal loss. It finally stopped under the big mulberry tree, and the little coffin was lowered into the waiting grave, and slowly the grave was filled in. It was rounded off nicely, and the sorrowing little girl gathered flowers and grasses and planted on the new made mound. A headboard was placed to the grave and it bore the single word

But that word "Rastus" was sufficient to bring a the Chinese lion had been permitted to slumber unflood of tears to the eyes of that tender hearted child for long months afterward. It was the name of her dearly loved kittie. Rastus had been taught from his early infancy to play hide and seek and other innocent games with his loving young mistress. He was a plain cat, but he seemed possessed of more than ordinary intelligence. When the hand of death was laid upon him and he was called out of this wicked world it was more than the little girl could bear. For days and weeks and months she cried for her pet, and tended that little grave under the mulberry tree as assiduously as if its occupant had been human. Today there is no other cat half so smart and half so attractive. There | that can be induced to accept nomination should be is no other pet that can ever take its place, and the little girl will still have a sense of loss even after she has reached womanhood.

Who can understand the heart of a little child?

Who can fathom the childish griefs and disappointments constituting grim tragedies every day all around and about us in Lilliput world? Many of those griefs are more poignant than those which come to the adult. We see the little one grieve over the loss of a pet and tretend that we feel sympathy for the bereavement. But too often we do not understand.

It is only a dead animal. Let it be carried out and thrown on the commons as dead animals usually are. And when it is done we dismiss the matter without further consideration. We take no thought of the little owner of that pet almost crying her heart out over of business. he great sense of personal loss she feels she has sustained. We do not care that this grief is accentuated by the realization that the object of her love is lying out on the commons neglected and treated as a mere matter of rubbish.

Foolish sentiment, did you say?

Perhaps so, but the world would only be the better for the prevalence of more of this sentiment. Humanity would be raised a few notches higher from its general observance, and the principles of Christianity and genuine refinement planted more generally in human

the view of the All-Seeing Eye, and if God Himself can afford to take cognizance of such small things as the fall of a sparrow, surely we, who are alleged to be made after His image, can afford to turn more to the small things of this life.

It is the small things of life that are the most important from the fact that they exert the greatest influence upon our future destinies. The big ones are not so generally neglected, from the fact that they are of sufficient importance generally to compel attention. HAMILTON COUNTY TAKES ACTION

Hamilton county, where Judge Charles K. Bell spent any years of his life, has taken the lead in the matter of organizing the first Bell Campaign Club. The Hamil-

Hamilton county has opened the campaign for C. K. Bel: for governor by the organization of a Democratic club bearing his name. A meeting was held at the court house last night, after the Business Men's Club had adjourned, and was called to order by J. L. Spurlin. On motion Dr. George F. Perry was made chairman of the meeting and G. H. Boynton secretary. The chair paid a glowing tribute to C. K. Bell, referring to his past life as an honored citizen of our county, whom the people had been proud to support for | stead as now on the state government. This is another various positions of trust and responsibility, and whom they would unanimously support for the office of governor. A motion was made by A. R. Eldson that a C. K Bell Democratic Club be now organized, the name of the club afterwards being amended so as to read "C. K. Bell Central Democratic Club of Hamilton | terference should end and state sovereignty begin. county." The motion prevailed and those who desired to become members were invited to hand in their

A large membership was secured, almost every one present having his name enrolled.

The club then proceeded to permanent organization by the election of A. R. Eidson, president; John L. Spurlin, George F. Perry and C. E. Horton, first, second and third vice presidents, respectively, and C. F. Williams, secretary and treasurer,

The following were among the committees appointed: Constitution and by-laws, George F. Perry, J. L. Spurlin and J. T. James; organization, J. L. Spurlin, J. L. Lewis and H. E. Chesley,

These committees will report at a meeting to be held at the court house tomorrow (Thursday) night. It is quite evident that the Democrats of Hamilton county, where Judge Bell spent his young manhood and where he is most intimately known, will give his candidacy for governor enthusiastic support. Judge Bell served the people of Hamilton county as district attorney, district judge, state senator and congressman, and he was never found wanting in any particular, always proving true to every trust imposed in him. As attorney general they felt a pride in him, and now that they have another opportunity of manifesting their faith

This is the first club organized in Texas in behalf of a candidate and the officers are al llife-long friends of Judge Bell. An invitation has been extended Mr. Bell to open his campaign here, which he will no doubt accept, on which occasion a reception will be tendered him by the people here, irrespective of political affiliations, that will be gratifying to his friends here and elsewhere and that will show the high and sincere regard in which he is held by those who know him best.

AMONG THE EXCHANGES

Fine buildings are being erected in every section of Austin, scores of them, and, as The Fort Worth Telegram suggests, people do not build houses in "a dead one."-Austin News-Tribune.

No: that fact is amply demonstrated by the rapid upbuilding of this city. Fort Worth is jumping like a West Texas jackrabbit

. . . . Fort Worth is to have another big packing house. If this thing continues there is going to be a regular Chicago aristocracy spring up where the panther laid down .- Austin News-Tribune.

Fort Worth expects to have several new packing houses in the future, as well as other important industrial enterprises. The aristocracy springing up here is of the kind that benefits all Texas, for it comes from honest effort to do things.

If we had a "pure legislature" we would have a pure food law, as well as other needed laws. But we can hardly look for it when the average legislator can be "fixed" by the manufacturer of adulterated stuff whose object is to make money at the least possible outlay, regardless of the health and life of those who buy the stuff falsely labeled.-Clarendon Chronicle.

The average Texas legislator is not "fixed" in matters of this kind. He is simply too busy looking after his own political interests to pay proper attention to the real demands of the situation. We are guilty of send too many pettifogging politicians to Austin as

THE DRIFT OF POLITICS

There is still some talk up the state of the Democrats taking up ex-Judge James Gay Gordon, Of course, Colonel Guffey does not favor such a scheme. But then Guffey was nearly beaten at Altoona by Gordon, and the Democratic machine is in a state of rattle now. It nearly shakes itself to pieces every time it strikes a stump. If some of the men who are seeking to land Mayor Weaver's nomination by the Republicans fail, they will turn to Gordon and seek to capture the Democratic convention. With a Democratic fusion ticket, they hope for victory. The Democrats are short of material of the right sort for the gubernatorial nomination. Ex-Judge Gordon is well known in the state. In addition to the notoriety he has attained as adviser to Mayor Weaver, he served a term in the state senate, and was popular with his colleagues.

There are also to be nominated in June next a secretary of internal affairs, to succeed Isaac B. Brown, who will not be renominated. Also a candidate for auditor general, to succeed William P. Snyder. The auditor general cannot be re-elected. The present governor has several appointments to make as the result of the passage of the personal registration and other bills by the legislature. The registration commissionerships will be good jobs, with work for about three months in the year.

* * * * From end to end the country is aroused on the question of oppression by the railroads of shippers of freight. In the soft coal regions of Pennsylvania, New York, Ohio, West Virginia and contiguous territory a great cry is going up against the monopoly of the mines which the railroads enjoy, and the discrimination made in favor of allied coal companies. Never before were the legal departments of the great railroads so busy as now preparing for investigations and combat suits for damages brought against them for discrimination in freights. George V. Some idea of the naval strength of Japan may be had when it is stated that Japan has now nine first class battleships each of more than 10,000 tons displacement; nine armored cruisers aggregating in tonnage 81,372; 20 cruisers of from 3,000 to 1,000 tons each; two cruisers of more than 6,000 tons each and five large modern coast; defense vessels, with an aggregate tonnage of 29,657. In addition to these the Japanes navy comprises 24 torpedo boat destroyers, 81 torpedo boats and nine submarine. Under construction, and soon to be completed, are 24 more torpedo boat destroyers, three first class battleships having each a tonnage of more than 14,000; three armored cruisers of 14,000 tons each and one cruiser of 3,420 tons. At the rate at which new ships are being added to the Japanese navy, it will not be long before that navy approximates the strength of the navy t the United States. The total tonnage of the United States is now 388,that of the Japanese navy is 321,-131. Japan has near completion ships aggregating in tonnage 106,740. Many of the ships in the United States' navy are of the antiquated, monitor type which would be useless except for coast defense purposes.

China's navy is not formidable. It was not very strong at the time of the China-Japanese war, and that did for what there was. A number of ships have been built since then, but they have been so inefficiently manned that they are little better than useless. Two of the new ships added since 1895 were lost through mishandling, one, an armored cruiser, was run aground and sunk, and another blew up in the harbor. Even the small section of the United States navy now in the Philippines would probably have no serious trouble in disposing of the remnants of the Chinese navy. Such, at least, is naval authorities in Washington The naval strength of the United States in Asiatic waters is represented the following vessels:

Weston, late commissary general of the army and recently promoted to be major general. Under General Weston will be Brigadier General Tasker H. Bliss and Brigadier General Jesse M. Lee, who has been ordered to sail March 5, in command of the Eighth Infantry.

General John C. Weston is probably the most popular man in the army. He is famed as an Indian fighter, a good story teller and a thoroughly competent organizer. He is a warm personal friend of President Roosevelt. General Weston was born in Kentucky and entered the army at the outbreak of the civil war as a lieutenant of volunteers. He distinguished himself for gallantry in many actions, and was voted a special medal by congress. During the Indian wars in the West he was with General Miles and he served in the Indian fights, and notably in the campaign against Geronimo. He lived through many hard fought and perilous campaigns and has probably had more experience with American frontier life than any other officer

General Weston is about sixty years of age, is thin, wiry and grizzled, with shrewd, humorous gray eyes, a hearty laugh and a vocabulary of purely ornamental profanity. He is adored by the younger officers of the army. Tasker H. Bliss is one of the young brigadier generals. He will be remembered by the public as the first collector of customs in Cuba under the Wood regime. He was a captain in the commissary department during the Spanish-American war, and for his musual ability displayed at that time, and while collector in Cuba, was marked by his superior officers as a man worthy of promotion. His promotion, however, to the rank of brigadier general, being as it was a jump over the heads of a score or more of older officers, provoked considerable

If I had not gone idly into Mouquin's cellar for dinner that night, I should have missed the most engaging adventure that ever fell to my lot. It is second nature for me to be guided by impulse rather than by reason; reason is always so square-toed and impluse is always so alluring. You will find that nearly all the great captains were and are creatures of impulse; nothing brilliant is ever achieved by calculation. All this is not to say that I am a great captain; it is offered only to inform you that I am often impulsive.

A Times, four days old; and if I hadn't fallen upon it to pass the twenty odd minutes btween my order and the service of it, I shouldn't have made the acquaintance of the police in that pretty little suburb over in New Jersey; nor shoud I have met the enchanting Blue Domino; nor would fate have written Kismet. The clairvoyant never has any fun in this cycle; he has no surprises.

I had been away from New York for several weeks, and had returned only that afternoon. Thus, the spirit of unrest acquired by travel was still upon me. It was nearing holiday week, and those congenial friends I might have called upon, to while away the evening, were either busily occupied with shopping or were out of ing-box, and excellent golf links. the Hunt Club was to give a charity

Two packs of playing cards had been sent out as tickets; one pack to the ladies and one to the gentlemen. Charming idea, wasn't it? These cards were to be shown at the door, together with ten dollars, but were to be retained by the recipients till 2 o'clock (supper-time), at which moment everybody was to

At my table-one of those long, marble-topped affairs by the wall-there was an old man reading a paper, and the handsomest girl I had set eyes upon in a month of moons. Sometimes the word handsome seems an inferior adjective. She was beautiful, and her half-lidded eyes told me that she was anywhere but at Mouquin's. What a head of hair! fine as a spider's web, and the dazzling yellow of a wheat-field in a sunshower! The irregularity of her features made them all the more interesting. Nobody interfered, doubtless because nobody knew exactly what to do in the face of such an act, for which no adequate laws had been provided. I put the card in my wallet, and was about to toss the rest of the pack under the table, when a woman's voice stayed my hand. "Don't throw them away. Tell my fortune first." I looked up, not a little surprised.

It was the beautiful young girl who had spoken. She was leaning on her elbows, her chin propped in her palms, and the light in her grey chatoyant eyes was wholly innocent and michievous. In Monsieur Mouquin's cella people are rather Bohemian, not to say friendly; for it is the rendezvous of artists, literary men and journalists-a clan that holds formality in contempt. Returned Traveler Says Feeling Against U.S. Is Active

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 10 .-Burr McIntosh, who accompanied the Taft congressional party on the tour cured 3,000 negatives on the trip. He had the aid of two assistants on the voyage, and carried along two tons of baggage and supplies. His enterprise cost him about $10,000. McIntosh sees a great problem in the orient. He says:

"The Japanese are a great people. They don't know anything about luxury. All they know is work and loyalty. But they have got a bad knock in the eye financially, and it is going to take them a great many years to get back on their feet.
"Many think there will be trouble between us and the Japanese some day, and that they are coveting the Philippines even now. But it is a fact that every night they are allowing speeches to be made in their towns against the Americans. And they all blame our President as the man who kept them out of their indemnity." . The Philippine question, he says, is 100 per cent bigger than anyone

"There are 1,800 of the islands, and there are 63 different languages spoken there. It would have been better if we could have gotten rid of the islands at the start, but we couldn't. We had to take them. It would have been like throwing a baby to the wolves to let them go. But we are perpetrating a big crime against them in this country today. The gentlemen who are interested in beet sugar are holding up the whole situation there

"Did you know there were 3,000,000 tons of sugar consumed in this country in 1904? Of that only 1,000,000 tons was produced by the United States and its dependencies. And all the Philippines ask is that they be allowed their share of that 2,000,000 "There is not a single congressman who is interested in sugar who, if he

Strong, active and healthy, they enjoyed the same tastes, lived a simple, happy, open air life, and had but scant affection for society. They built a little riverside house on the Itchen, just big enough for two and one servant, and here they used to pass happy hours fishing, reading, talking which Sir Edward was engaged, and consulting together on all important questions. The Agrarian leaders declare that in case of tariff war the United States and not Germany would suffer and that the trusts which own the government at Washington, would very soon have recognized their folly in closing the German market to themselves and Germany would then have been in a position to dictate terms.

The government, however, remains firm, but declares that whenever it shall become clear that the United States do not intend to make a permanent treaty it will no longer hesitate in declaring the tariff war, which it at present still hopes to avoid.

every morning to ask whether one of the "old witches" had not died during the night, and expressed disappointment if nothing had happened to them. Baroness Haeusler's love for her cat was in remarkable contrast to her harsh treatment of the human inmates of the home. A domestic servant was told off for the special service of holding an umbrella over it to protect it from the swn or rain during its strolls in the garden. The lady inmates of the establishment were frequently compelled to eat scraps of meat which the cat had left. When the cat died Baroness Haeusler compelled all to walk in a solemn funeral procession and to say prayers for the cat in the chapel. A fortnight later the dead body of the cat was exhumed, stuffed and placed in a glass case in the principal sitting room of the establishment.

Baroness Haeusler extended her maltreatment to the domestic servants of the establishment, whom she kicked and thrashed on every possible oc-

Before her return poison was administered to the coffee and Miss Wagner became seriously ill from drinking it. Only after many months Suspicion fell promptly on Baroness pecial to The Telegram. BY GIOVAMMI CONTI Copyright, 1906, by Hearst News Service.). ROME, Feb. 24.-"Il Carriere della Sera" has addressed the following questions to the most famous French, Spanish and Italian playwriter: "What is the state of your mind on the day of the first performance of one of your plays? How and what you feel? Are you afraid? Are you nervous?" And some of the answers received are very interesting. Only a few dramatists have had the candor to confess that they are afraid, Curel, while declaring that he does not feel any nervousness, admits that he has not the courage to go to the theater the night that one of his new omedies is to be presented to the publie for the first time. "I prefer," he says, "to go and enjoy myself at the Folies Bergere while the public applauds my play." Lemaitre Leaves Lemaitre declares that he does not stay in Paris on such days, but not because he is afraid of the public, but because he is afraid of his friends, who complimentary tickets of every kind. Richepin answers in the following deed. I am too indifferent a man to and when after the first act the public liked the play so much that I forgot for a moment it was mine-"

D'Anunzio Fears Actors D'Anunzio says that he only fears the actors lest they may spoil the play. Leoncavallo, the author of "Pagliacci." was so poor when he composed his masterpiece that neither he nor his young wife had clothes good enough to enable them to occupy a box or an orchestra seat on the memorable night of the first audition of "Pagliacci" at the Scala theater in Milan

They had to satisfy themselves with second balcony seats. "I was so nervous," says the young master, that I could hardly refrain from leaving the theater and going out. My wife, who sat next to me, endeavored to encourage me, but the poor girl was paler and more nervous than myself. It must be known that I really wrote "Pagliacci" with my tears. My wife and I were almost starving, and we based all our hopes in life on the success of that opera. Maurel Had Cold Sweat

When the curtain went up for the prologue and Maurel stepped down to The footlights saying: "Allow me, ladies and gentlemen. I am the prologue and the author sends me to you." I felt my forehead bathed in cold sweat. My wife held my trembling hands in hers. Every note of the romance I felt in my heart. When, at the end, the public shouted 'bravo' and the applause resounded from the 'platea' to the galleries, I felt as if I was going to faint. My wife, incapable of restraining her tears any longer, threw her arms around me and kissed me repeatedly, crying. "You win, Rugiero, dear, you win; remember I told you you would."

In Russia it is unlawful to give kisses in public. A kiss in the street is penalized by a fine of $3.75, and on a street car by a fine of $5.25. Declaration of love on a postal card renders the sender liable to a fine of $2.50. Arabians, when they meet a friend, shake hands six or eight times. Once is not enough. However, should they be persons of distinction, they embrace and kiss another several times, and also kiss their own hands.

She ran with radiant face to meet her returning husband at the door, and his face changed as he looked at her; with an impulse he had not felt for years, he kissed her and caught her in a lingering embrace.

Of course there are innocent secrets and harmless mysteries that belong to the joyous and peaceful conditions of the grandfather of a certain family in life, such as the happy secrets that make our homes so delightful at holiday times, or the forecasts of coming events important in the annals of a family. These may be and commonly are preserved intact for a time, or if they are told the telling does no harm. purely malicious? on occasion there are secrets affecting the honor and well-being of individuals or a household, and these should not so much as be whispered in the privacy of a closet to one's most intimate friend, if there is the slight-may result favorably. It is to the last degree unfortunate if some member of the family in strict confidence tell an outsider about the solicitude felt, adding the comment that there is a shadow over the house and everybody has the sensation of a sword suspended in the air by a thread. The friend is deeply sympathetic and very much impressed. She watches the man thereafter with a new and pe-

Sometimes this is done in a veiled and vague manner with hints and invendoes, and sometimes the story is related under pledge of silence to a third person who is supposed not to ! be acquainted with the people mentioned, and who on that account, may be trusted. Other good men and women supposed to be wise in counse are approached by the worried and wearied among their friends, and are asked for advice and sympathy. Often they give it, sometimes they find it difficult to restrain themselves from gratifying the curiosity of inquisitive folk who are sure they could speak if only they would. Few indeed are the unofficial counsellors in this world who have the strength and goodness to lock a secret forever behind closed lips. In certain families there are secrets supposed to be buried under the accumulations of long years. regret our speech. A delicate sense of honor should be cultivated by those who in any way become aware of secrets relating to the contentment, tranquility, and domestic stability of their friends. Secrets are not always told; they are sometimes seen. To witness what was not meant for one and then to reveal it, is to display a despicable and unworthy lack of reticence. SCHOOL GIRLS' CLUBS

lature and Literary Societies Afford Pleasure to Many School Girls Out of School Hours-Clubs for Recreation Just As Helpful in Their Line -Mrs. Sangster's Correspondence Club-Latin Names, Letters and Flowers Appropriate for Club

BY MARGARET E. SANGSTER. Copyright, 1906, by Joseph B. Bowles.) Your mothers and sisters and all our grown up friends are members of onged to a club, never attended a club function and never known anything bout the pleasure incidental to study and work in a literary or social club is so exceptional that we have to look for her with a microscope. Every town and village has its Mothers' Club, or its Four O'clock Club, or its club with the name of one of the muses, or its association of dames and daughters, so unless the girls have their clubs, too, they will really be rather out of date. You may if you like have a club just as the elders have, and for much the same purpose. We will suppose that your club has for its object nature study. This particular study has had what we may call a boom of late. The birds, the flowers, the trees, the rocks and stones, and everything that had to do with outdoor life afford interesting subjects for those who study

If, in your class work, you have taken up zoology and botany, a club or nature study will help along by vay of supplementary information and will be greatly approved by your instructors. You will have certain days for meetings and certain other days for long and pleasant walks, for visiting nature in her own haunts, watching the pirds, the butterflies and the bees, and seeking the wild flowers where they shame that we should live in a beautiful world with so much that is fascinating to engage our powers, and yet shut ourselves up within the bounds of four walls and know so little as we do about nature's wonderful works

English literature. In this case you will meet periodically, arrange a ourse of reading, and very likely write papers on topics assigned to different members. I am not sure that you will find it so popular a club as me that has outdoor life for its motive. Many girls think they have done heir whole duty to themselves and each other when their school work is inished. Yet a literature club would not be a bad idea, and in it there would be room for a good deal of what might be called a side reading. Your knowledge of books and authors would e increased in pleasant readings that should be voluntary and not prescribed by professors and teachers.

Your club may be organized to study

ive so much hard work in school and home that you are entitled very fairly to such amusements as you like and such pleasure as you can take in company with one another. You might have a Saturday Evening Club, com- I teach than just this.

posed of a circle of congental girls who do not live too far apart from one another to make meetings early on Saturday evenings practicable. Sometimes you might assemble at 5 o'clock and have supper together at 6, finishing an hour or two afterward with games, music and story-telling. Of you might meet at 71 and separate at 9 o'clock. Have a program arranged beforehand and conclude with refresh ments. You might occasionally have a candy pull or make fudge, and once month your brothers might be ad mitted to share in the entertainment of the occasion. On the whole I recommend this idea as worth carrying out provided you can gain the consent and approval of your mothers and any other powers that be. A correspondence club affords a good deal of suggestion and satisfaction to its members. I knew such a club some years ago. It was composed of seven girls, not one of whom had ever seen any of the others. They made acquaintance through me because I was then writing some stories for girls which interested each of these widely separated correspondents. One wrote from Brazil, one from Syria, another from Bombay, still another from Berlin, and the remaining three from different parts of the United States. The seven sent me their letters and I forwarded them in a sort of Round Robin style, until everyone had read what the others wrote. You have little idea of the amount of information and of fascinating interest such a

A girl's club does not require much red tape. You will need a treasurer i you have anything for which money will be required. If, for example, your club does any work for the poor or engages at all in charity, you must have small weekly or monthly dues, and these you should take out of your own personal allowance, not asking your parents for them. The treasurer must keep an exact account of what she receives and what she expends, and must from time to time make a report to her club. A president and secretary are the only other necessary officers.

As for the club's name, it may be whatever you choose. A Latin name is often preferred because it sounds learned, and everybody is not supposed to know what it means. An alphabetical name is attractive because you do not have to reveal to the outside public what the A. B. C.s or the X. Y. Z.s stand for. If you choose you may take the name of a flower and be known by that. The pansy, the iris, the mignonette, the cosmos, the violet, are appropriate flowers for the christening of a club. When you select a motto let it be something inspiriting and brief, some line of poetry or apt quotation, some bit of wisdom from Shakespeare or Emerson, that will be a sort of marching order and help you on in the day's work. Do not belong to a club at all unless you are willing to do your duty as a member. If you undertake any obligation in this world fulfill it with conscience and punctuality. It is a great ing responsibility. We have each a fulfill this duty is one of the things we learn in club life. We learn, too, to yield our own wishes and work agreeably and smoothly with other

YEARLINGS ARE WAY UP IN PRICE

Prices Show Big Advance Over Last Year

"If prices continue as they have been this season. I'd be glad to know r it is better. A year ago at this time $12.50. Today they range from $13 to $15, with a few lots going lower and it least one bunch ranging along in the neighborhood of $16."

A case in point is that of Joe Irving of Alpine, who was in town yesterday. Irving is a breeder himself, and when he buys cattle in his own counry it is a good indication that he thinks they are worth having. He has bought about one thousand head of vearlings in the district near him, paying $14 a head.

All around Alpine, Marfa, Valentine and other West Texas stock centers yearlings are selling at from $13 to $15. W. T. Jones, at Valentine, sold one choice bunch at $16. George Chessman of Denver bought 5,000 head of yearlings around Deming for $12.50 or $13, according to the reported figures on the transaction. The buyers have been busy of late and there are comparatively few yearings left in West Texas. In New Mexico the demand has been more slack and prevailing prices have been rather lower, although there There has been a brisk demand for The stock averages fully as well is that in West Texas. T. M. Wingo and A. A. Cox, who took over the old Bob Hall ranch north of Van Horn, Texas, bought a bunch of about 1,800 to 2,000 yearlings around San Augustin at $12 and $12.50. As a rule the stock is not in as good ondition as a year ago. It has been rather too damp during the winter to place the grass in the best condition, and much of the grazing has been spoiled by rotting grass. The stockmen, however, are willing to put up with whatever temporary disadvantage the dampness has caused by the assurance of early grass, which will

Sheep in Fine Condition Sheep are in extra fine condition in Southern New Mexico. From the ranch of J. H. Nations, in the western part of Socorro county, comes the word hat conditions could not be better. There have been no losses in that district, as there have been in Northern New Mexico, especially along the line of the Rock Island, where deep snows

What Will Los Angeles Do?

"What will Los Angeles do?" That is a question that stockmen are ask-They declare that they can't. The packers of Los Angeles have relied of late largely on Texas for their fat stock. This year there are not onethird as many cattle on feed as ordinarily. How the shortage will be remedied in California remains to be seen. Unless the Californians are doing a large amount of feeding on their own responsibility in the Gold State. foreseeing the difficulty, it appears to be likely that they will face a sad dilemma. There was too little money in the feeding business last year to offer an inducement to the growers to continue. As a result most of them dropped out. They had found that the packers were not inclined to pay fancy prices when the supply was as enormous as it was. This year the supply has gone to the other extreme and the slaughter house may be forced to pay neat prices for what fat animals they secure.

UNDER INVESTIGATION

Alleged Fraudulent Texas Central Bond Issue Under Discussion AUSTIN, Texas, Feb. 24.-A report days that the railroad commission is making an investigation of the alleged fraudulent issue of $450,000 of the bonds of the Texas Central railroad, or rather bonds that were issued by the company without the authority or approval of "Yes," said Judge L. J. Storey, yesterday afternoon, when asked about the matter, "the Texas Central railway has filed an application with the commission to cancel an old issue of bonds and issue some new ones instead. The company claims that the old bonds were issued prior to the enactment of the stock and bond law. We have informed the company that before we and issue new bonds, we msut be satisfied that the old bonds were legally issued and were a valid existing lien against the company." Habeas Corpus for Miners BOISE, Idaho, Feb. 24.-The supreme court Friday issued a writ of habeas corpus in the case of President Moyer, Secretary Heywood and Committeemay Pettibone of the Western Federation of Miners, accused of the murder of former Governor Steunenberg. The writ is made returnable March 1, when a time will be set for hearing.

most eminent medical writers as cures for the diseases for which these medi-cines are recommended. Therefore, the afflicted do not have to rely alone upon Dr. Pierce's recommendation as to the curative value of his medicines for cer tain easily recognized diseases. A glance at the printed formula on each bottle will show that no alcohol and no harmful or habit-forming drugs enter into Dr. Pierce's medicines, they being wholly compounded of glyceric extracts of the roots of native, American forest plants. Dull and Sluggish Market-Trading Wheat Prices Steady-Corn and Oats Firm-Provisions Quiet.

GRAIN

Special to The Telegram. CHICAGO, Feb. 24.-Wheat ruled steady after reacting from the initial bulge, which was influenced by a 38 to 1/2c advance at Liverpool. The firmness abroad was on smaller Australian. shipments. The weather map showed rains throughout Kansas and Nebraska, and the forecast is for generally fair and cold weather tomorrow. The news lacked feature. One of the mills at Kansas City reported a sale of 15,-000 barrels of flour for export. Heavy shipments of flour from Minneapolis attracted some attention. Local receipts were 16 cars, with seven expected on Monday.

against 592,000 bushels last year, Pri-000 bushels.

sion, aside from the opening influence of a strong Liverpool, the favorable news was chiefly in respect to the cash situation. The sample market was firm, from 1c to 11/2c higher with a good local demand. The seaboard was in the market for corn. While receipts today overran the estimate, the indications for Monday are for but 290 cars. The weather conditions have been bad for the movement and the grading of corn. Liverpool at the close was ¼d higher. Local receipts, 479 cars, with 279 expected on Monday. Primary receipts, 660,000 bushels against 659,000 bushels last year. Oats were very firm throughout the session, advancing %c. There was no pressure to speak of on the market at any time and the relative positions of the futures and the cash market today were not encouraging to short selling of the former. The sample market today was steady. Local receipts were 179 cars, with 117 cars

The further advance in hogs made provisions firm at the opening. Very free realizing, principally for local traders, brought about a decline, the closing being quiet. Most of the of-ferings of May lard and ribs were absorbed by packers. Contract prod-

New Orleans Cotton NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 24.-Today's session of the cotton exchange was in no wise different from the usual weekend affair, the trading being light and fluctuations narrow. The undertone was good at the start and prices soon worked up to a net gain of 2 to 3 points under only a moderate volume of buying. At this level there was fresh selling on reports from New York that the Wall street crowd was unloading, and the market weakened, prices losing the No. Ave. Price. SULTAN'S R. R. PLAN FAILING

Line From Damascus to Mecca Needs Financing

CONSTANTINOPLE, Feb. 24.-Abdul Hamid's plans for the construction of a railway from Damascus to Mecca, for the use of the faithful on their annual pilgrimage to the tomb of Mahomet, are tangled for want of money. About $7,500,000 has been spent in the past four years in building 320 miles of line and it will require over $20,000,000 to continue the raflway to Mecca. It may become necessary for Abdul Hamid to go down into his own pocket to keep work

There is no necessity for the line, because few Mohammedans make the journey to Mecca overland. Most of the faithful go by boat through the Suez canal and down the Red sea to Jidda on the coast, and then travel inland about seventy-five miles to

The sacred caravan, which bears the sultan's annual religious gift to the sherifs of Mecca, however, is obliged to travel by land. The journey takes two months, the convoy traveling on camels. They are frequently attacked by irreligious Arabian tribesmen, and sand storms hamper them. The whole line from Damascus to

BIG GAS WELL NEAR TULSA

Capacity Nearly Thirty-five Million Cubic Feet Daily

ONE OF THE LARGEST

ding for Manufacturers

Special to The Telegram.

TULSA, I. T. Feb. 24.-The gas well recently drilled six miles northeast of Ramona is the greatest well in the Southwest and one of the four largest ever brought in in the United States. This well has a capacity of from 32,-000,000 to 35,000,000 cubic feet daily. One mile north is the second largest producer in the territory fields, its capacity being 15,000,000 cubic feet. Gas was struck at a depth of 1,200 feet and so tremendous was the pressure that Contractor Evans' string of tools, weighing almost 24,000 pounds, was blown to the top of the derrick and the heavy cable was knotted for a distance of several hundred feet. It took ten days to get the well under control and it is now shut down. Meanwhile the roar could be heard for many miles. The well may be utilized in supplying Kansas City with natural gas, should the people be successful who are now endeavoring to get concessions whereby hey can pipe fuel to that city from the territory fields Under normal conditions this great gasser would supply a city of 25,000 The gas fields of the territory have come to the front in the last two years, and one by one every city and town adjacent is being piped and supplied with it for use as fuel and light. Also many towns are offering cheap fuel as an inducement for attracting industries this way, and have succeeded in securing several good sized concerns. Should gas get low here at some time, as it is believed it will, manufacturing concerns will not find themselves in the condition left in Indiana and Ohio when the gas gave out there, as in the same locality here is an inexhaustible supply of coal practically indeveloped..

part now finished runs through the holy land to Maan, near Mount Sinai. The section on which the engineers are now working in a desultory fashon extends to Medina. When that is finished it will be a stretch of 200 miles to Mecca. The pilgrimage traffic will never make the line pay. There are no port terminals, and branches will be built to Khaiffa on the Mediterranean and Akaba on the Red sea, near the outlet of the Suez canal, to encourage freight traffic. Already Great Britain is beginning to be frightened at the proposed branch to Akaba, and the British ambassador at Constantinople may object to the line and order the sultan not to interfere with the Suez mo-
