We Announce

Our Spring Opening

Millinery, Costumes and Tailored Suits

HIS is the Fashion Event of the Entire Season, depicting the correct styles to be worn this Spring and Summer... It is an occasion of the initial showing of the most beautiful creations of the foremost style-designers, embodying all that is new and beautiful. Altogether it is a season of striking originality and artistic effects; becomingness and individuality in the broadest sense are the dominant features... Consider this a personal invitation to attend this Opening Display Tomorrow & Tuesday.

The Millinery---An Exquisite Fashion Show

UR Showing may be accepted as being indicative of the current trend of fashion, and baving the stamp of our high standard, the styles will be quickly adopted as proper... We will display entrancing conceptions from European Milliners as well as the beautiful effects from the skilled fingers of our own designers... To enumerate all the shapes that will be good this season would be an impossibility... The wearer is given greater scope than ever in exercising her individuality and selecting forms especially suited to her requirements.

The Sailor Hat will be a feature and great prominence is given the Leghorn; horsehair effects are also worked up into a great variety of styles. As regards trimmings flowers of every kind are used and quills, wings and ostrich are very prominent. Tomorrow and Tuesday are their coming out days and the hats are awaiting the appreciation you are sure to display.

Authoritative Styles in Spring Outergarments

N spirit and letter you may accept this display as an exposition of the season's most charming Outer garments for Women and Misses; it is a comprehensive collection of the new Spring and Summer models that are distinctive in character and displaying all the grace of master creations ... Simplicity of outline and unostentatious detail. This is the fashion story for Spring - Summer, 1906.

The new note of the season is the union of the princess and Empire effects typified in net and lingerie costumes and demi-costumes of Rajah silk; these will be the things for evening, carriage and reception wear... The tailored suits are shown in several models—the Eton blouse and "Pony suits" are successful styles ... The skirts are full and graceful, and round in length ... The seperate waist holds a place of honor in the early showing ... We are displaying many new ideas in silks, nets, laces, linens, etc ... The lingerie waists are much sought for and our showing fully covers the demand.

seat upon the floor, as red now as she had been white before, and stood shrunk back into the shadow until the congratulations between her parents and the visitor were over. "You haven't changed a bit, Hetty," he said; and she, laughing now, assured him that if his name had not been announced she would never have recognized him at all. His three years of rough life had certainly wrought a wondrous change in him, and there were now a decision and manliness in his bearing. Hetty had not as yet trusted herself to take a full and comprehensive view of him, her sidelong glance having been sufficient to cause her heart to beat rapidly and her eyes to become dim and misty. "I have always loved you, Hetty darling!" he had said—and oh, how low and tender his voice had been! And she had swept his declaration aside with a laugh. A week later, Harry had gone on his long trip to Australia without so much as a word or a line of parting, and she had never forgotten that hopeless, dreary winter's day. Harry's home-stay was limited to one month, and the days sped swift-Three weeks passed. In two more his ship sailed. She had gone into the village that While dining at a Bohemian cafe, Comstalk, the man telling the story, decides to attend a ball masque of which he reads in a copy of the Times several days old, learning that he invitations are packs of cards dealt out haphazard, placed in envelopes and addressed at random to the guests. A girl, attended by her uncle, seated near Comstalk in the cafe, becomes interested in his occupation and the three engage in conversation, neither the man nor the girl being aware that each is intending to attend the masquerade as a friendly "impos-

They attend the ball, meet and learn that the loss of about $10,000 worth of jewels has been discovered, the police have been telephoned for, all entrances have been guarded and no one will be allowed to escape until the jewelry has been accounted for.

Another masker at the party is the real thief, disguised as a celebrated New York detective. He also has a ten spot of hearts. The man Comstalk and the girl, Miss Hawthorne, nouncement of the theft is made. Realising their peculiar position and knowing by instinct the dullness of the police, they hide in the wine cellar, reaching it just as the doors are locked. They encounter a burglar in the cellar, who covers them with a gun and makes his escape by a win-

The girl and I were free to go whither we listed, and we listed to return at once to New York. Hamilton, however, begged us to remain, to dance and eat, as a compensation for what we had gone through; but Miss Hawthorne resolutely shook her head; and as there was nothing in the world that would have induced me to stay without her, I shook my head, too. It seemed to me I had known this girl all my life, so closely does misfortune link one life to another. I had seen her for the first time less than eight hours before; and yet I was confident that as many years, under ordinary circumstances, would not have taught

"Mrs. Hyphen-Bonds need never know," replied the girl, smiling inscrutably. "In fact, it would be perfectly satisfactory and agreeable to me if she never heard at all." "I will call a conveyance for you," said the defeated M. F. H. "I shall never forgive you, Dicky." "Yes, you will, Teddy. A lovingcup, the next time we meet at the Quarter of an hour later Miss Hawthorne and I, wrapped in buffalorobes, our feet snugly stowed away in straw, slid away to the jangle and quarrel of sleighbells, toward Moriarty's Hollywood Inn. The moon shone; not a cloud darkened her serene and loveties holding identical cards are to ly countenance. The pearly whiteness of the world would have aroused the poetry in the most sordid soul; and far, far away to the east the black, tossing line of the sea was visible.

An artists' model, thought I. Never in this world. I now understood the drift of her uncle's remark about her earning capacity. The Alice Hawthorne miniatures brought fabulous prices. And here I was, sitting so close to her that our shoulders touched; and she a girl who knew intimately emperors and the worldly-rich. I admit that for a moment I was touched with awe. And it was beginning to get serious. This girl interested me marvelously. I summoned up all my courage.

"Are-are you married?" "No-o." "Nor engaged to be married?"

'No-o. But you musn't ask all these questions." "How would you like to ride around

"Are you always amusing like this?" "Supposing I were serious?" "In that case I should say you had not yet slipped off your fool's motley." This directness was discouraging.

"I wonder if the ten of hearts is lucky, after all," I mused. "We are not in jail. I consider that the best of good furtune.' '

"Give me your card," said I. She gave me the card, and I put it with mine.

"Why do you do that?" "Perhaps I want to bring about an enchantment,"-soberly. "As Signor Fantoccina, or

We entered the general assemblyroom. It was roomy and quaint, and somewhere above us was the inevitable room in which George Washington had slept. The great hooded fireplace was merry with crackling logs. Casually I observed that we were not alone. "And as for me, I never dreamt I could be so unromantic. Now," said I, pushing aside my plate, and dropping sugar into my coffee, and vainly hunting in my pockets for a cigar, "there remains only one mystery to be cleared up."

"And what might this mystery be?" she asked. "The whereabouts of the bogus Haggerty?"

"The bogus Haggerty will never cross our paths again. He has skipped by the light of the moon. No, that's not the mystery. Why did you tell me you were an impostor; why did you go to the cellars with me, when all the while you were at the ball on Mrs. Hyphen-Bonds' invitation?"

"Shall you ever be able to solve such a mystery?"—quizzically.

"It all depends upon you." "Mr. Comstalk, you will not mar the exquisite humor of our adventure by causing me any annoyance. I am sure that some day we shall be very good friends. But one does not talk of love on eight hours' acquaintance. Besides, you would be taking advantage of my helplessness; for I really depend upon y u to see me safe back to New York. It is only the romance, the adventure; and such moonlight nights often superinduce sentimentality. What do you know of me? Nothing. What do I know of you? Nothing, save that there is a kindred spirit which is always likely to lead us into trouble. Down in your heart you know you are only temporarily affected by moonshine. Come, make me a toast!" lifting her

"You are right," said I. "I am a gentleman. But it was only consistent that, having been the fool, I should now play the ass. Here's"-and I held up

But neither of us drank; there wasn't time.

For the door opened quietly, and in walked the two men we had seen upon entering the Inn. One of them gently closed the door and locked it. One was in soiled every-day clothes, the other in immaculate evening dress. The latter doffed his opera hat with the most engaging smile imaginable. The girl and I looked up at him in blank astonishment, and set our cups down so mechanically that the warm amber liquid spattered on the table-cloth. Galloping Dick and the affable inspector of the cellars stood before us!

"The unexpected always happens," began the pseudo-detective, closing his hat, drawing off his gloves and stuffing them into a pocket. "As a friend of mine used to say, it is the unexpected that always surprises us. We never expected to see these charming masqueraders again, did we, Wil-

LITTLE HEARTS GLAD WHEN FAIRY

Waved Magic Wand and Tenement

Do you believe in fairies? In Peter Pan, that entrancing play of makebelieve, where real, live fairies wing their flight in air and all is beautiful, Maude Adams nightly asks the question of her youth thrilled

The other day Miss Adams, who is king of all the fairies, carried her magic wand off the stage into the home of a New York woman who told the actress a story fit to wound the heart of any fairy. She said that she knew of 100 little children who live in the crowded tenements of Madison street. They never heard of fairies.

Maude Adams waved her magic wand and in the lady's hand fell 100 bright red tickets. Each one invited the holder to come to her theater, without cost, to see and believe. The next day the lady took her tickets to a club on Madison street where many poor little children are taught to play and study. sweet faced girl who, for love, presides over this pleasant house in a world of misfortune was deeply anxious when told of what had happened. Story of a Great Indian Fighter

Captain W. F. Drannan is of French descent. He was born in mid-ocean and left an orphan at the tender age of 4 years.

When but 15 years old he left his foster parents and walked from Nashville, Tenn., to St. Louis, Mo., a distance of over 500 miles, where he met the noted and famous trapper and Indian fighter, Kit Carson. He immediately adopted Kit as his protector, and off to the plains they went to hunt game and trap for a Captain Drannan soon became an

Many Girls Still Obey Silly Traditions That Destroy One's Peace of Mind -Presenting Edged Tools, Spilling Salt and Thirteen at the Table-Some Superstitions Cause More Fun Than Fear-Illusions of the "Peter Pan" Sort Are Good for School Girls-The Practical Fairies That Fight for One in Daily Life Are Order, Promptness, Obedience, Courage and Love

BY MARGARET E. SANGSTER.

(Copyright, 1906, by Jos. E. Bowles.) Superstition is almost as old as the human race, and even school girls do not entirely escape its fascination. No matter how strong most of us may be in our resistance to foolish fears and fancies, we have somewhere in the back of our minds little feelings about certain signs and we begin very early in life to shape our conduct by them.

For instance, very few of us care to make a present to a friend of an edged tool. I know several otherwise sensible people who tell me that some of their most prized friendships have been cut in two because they gave or received a knife. I myself would not object to receiving a knife as a gift, whether it was intended for carving a roast, or dividing the leaves of a book. All sorts of knives from those of finely tempered steel, intended for the table, to dainty little pearl-handled affairs that may be carried in the pocketbook, appeal to me as particularly desirable ssessions. Yet I know very few ersons who do not like to add a bit of silver or copper to such an exchange, that it may seem to be a matter of barter and sale, rather than of gift-

"Don't give Mabel a knife on her birthday," I heard Priscilla's mother gravely say to her daughter, "for as surely as you do you and Mabel will

The same superstition about spoiling friendship clings to the spilling of salt on the tablecloth. It is held to be most unlucky to do this, and it is supposed that it forebodes friction between those who are sitting nearest the spilled salt. Of course, this superstition and the other date a long way back to those primitive times when men settled everything speedily by knife thrust or blow, so that knives were dreaded weapons instead of useful tools. This superstition harks back to the period when a man pulled off his glove in greeting a friend or neighbor in token that he had nothing concealed, and so gave the naked hand, The other about the salt has an oriental origin. In the tent of the Arab, though he might be a robber, there was hospitality for the wayfaring guest, and if the latter shared bread and salt with his host, his life and property were sacred. So you may easily read between the lines that salt is an emblem of friendship, and that its spilling signifies a breach of friend-

I should be sorry to think that the girls of today who will be the women of tomorrow, were in the least under the bondage of silly traditions in which there is very little common sense. Why should anyone dread to pass under a ladder except for the reason that the ladder may fall? Why should the howling of a dog give one uneasiness or there be any meaning attached to the dropping of spoons and forks? Why do some people hesitate to sit down at the table when the company numbers 13? If the family should happen to consist of father and mother and eleven children, would there al-ways be one who had to wait for the second table? This latter superstition of Jesus with His disciples, when one of the group proved to be a traitor.

Nearly everything we do, say or think strikes deep roots into the past, if we can find and trace them out. In my school days girls put themselves to an immense amount of trouple when walking on the street that they might avoid stepping on a crack in the pavement. It was sure to cause trouble in the school room in the way of imperfect recitations and badly-drawn maps if one unfortunately touched a crack with the toe of her foot. Older persons were sometimes surprised at the erratic progress of children who were bending their energies to this careful sort of walking. A school friend of mine had a theory that nothing would prosper with Helen if she did not put her shoes at night in a particular spot and set them precisely side by side. It took her a long time to get settled in bed, as she had to jump out a number of times in order to be sure that her shoes were standing exactly as they should to a hair's breadth.

There used to be, too, a proverb regarding Indian givers. These were generous in making presents, but they regretted them afterward and wanted them back, a sorry thing in itself and rather mean. Bargains once concluded should stand fast, as we all know. Some of us had delicious fears that we greatly enjoyed about passing a certain place in a forest not far from the school. Here there was a tumbledown cottage falling into ruins, the haunt of bats, rats and spiders. scurried past it with frantic haste, lest something we knew not what should spring forth and seize us. You remember James Whticomb Riley's poem with the line:

"The goblins will catch you if you don't watch out."

That was what we dreaded and yet we had great fun in running races past the enchanted corner and eluding the witches and elves who were hidden behind those broken window panes. Superstition of every kind is a sort of poetry. This is why unlettered races deal so much in beautiful folk lore. As we become learned in mathematics and science we cease to believe in fairies and elves. For my part, I am glad that a great throng of school girls have gone to see the pretty drama of "Peter Pan." There are some illusions that never ought to be destroyed. Whether you agree with me or not. I must tell you that it does you no harm to believe in the fairles. Perhaps you may never have the good fortune that befell a dear little Irish maid who used to work in my kitchen. BURGLAR-ARTIST'S BRAIN REMARKABLE

Crook's Cranium Contents Interesting to Science

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., March 10. the University of Pennsylvania, formed for biological research, have found that the brain of Edward Dunlap, burglar-artist, as its owner believed in life, is remarkable

Dunlap who, after a life of success ful crime, died at Jefferson hospital a reformed crook willed his brain to the Wister institute for microscop hese was that there existed, perhaps, germ crime. In any event, he said he was certain his brain would be found to be unusual, and the study of it might enable science to suggest a way to combat criminal instincts in

"Dunlap's brain in many respects i the most remarkable specimen we ever have had here to examine," said Dr. Milton J. Greenman, who is in charge of the institute. "In no other brain we ever have seen have the fissures been so wide, deep, and strangely marked. What does this mean? I cannot say. It may mean nothing. It may be full of meaning. If the same strange marking in Dunlap's brain should appear in others of criminals the matter would become of even more,

In Dunlap's autobiography, speaking of his intention of leaving his brain to science, he said: "And so perhaps I, who all my life have been an enemy to society, may, through my death, prove its benefac-

Tillman - Gillespie Resolution MASS MEETING CALLED on Next Week's Program

Special to The Telegram. WASHINGTON, D. C., March 10 .-The house program for next week includes a discussion of appropriation bills carrying $29,000,000.

There is also prospect of a lively discussion on an attempt to amend the Tillman-Gillespie oil monopoly investigation resolution, in accordance with the President's wishes. The President has already signified his opinion that the bill in its present form can accomplish nothing unless appropriation is made for the expense of the interstate commerce commission in holding the investigation suggested. The President has suggested an appropriation of $50,000 for this purpose. In the Senate

In the senate the railroad rate griesion will be considered daily until definite action is reached. What are considered to be the two issues fatal to a passage of the bill are whether the courts shall have a broad or a restricted review of commerce commission decisions, and whether a rate fixed by the commission, as provided by the bill, shall remain suspended or go in force pending a judicial review.

The baby boy was born to Mr. and Mrs. Carver in Wisconsin thirty-three years ago. Three months after the child's birth Carver left Wisconsin and settled in Northeast Nebraska. A few weeks ago he received a letter from a Kansas town signed "John Carver." The writer proved to be the son of this Nebraska. John Carver one day accidentally saw a paper from Pierce county, in which was a little personal concerning D. H. Carver. He knew that this was his father's name. He wrote and asked if the Pierce man had ever had a son, thirty-three years ago, In Wisconsin. A letter that took the next train back to Pierce said that this was the case, and the Kansan immediately started for Nebraska. He was met at the train by his father, and the two men clasped each other in affectionate embrace.

HE FOUND MONEY

Now Point of Law Will Be Tested at Cleburne

CLEBURNE, Texas, March 10.-An interesting point of law is to be tested in a case now on trial in the district court here, wherein the defendant i charged with the theft of over $50. IIt seems that the defendant found the money, and it is alleged that he failed to return it to its rightful owner. Out of this an indictment was lodged against him, charging him with theft. The question before the court is that of the admissibility of testimony. Two of the state's main witnesses have moved to California. The higher courts have heretofore held that a lower court could not reproduce the testimony of witnesses absent from the state of trial. One of the presiding judges dissented and later Judge Brooks has dissented. Acting on this, Judge Lockett has admitted the testimony of the state's two main witnesses from stenographic notes. Triple Alliance Now a Thing of the Past

BRITAIN IS BLAMED

Kaiser Is Bitter Against English Royal Uncle for Interfering in Moroccan Affair

Special Cable to The Telegram. (Compright, 306, by Hearst News Service.)

(Br Malcolm Clarke.)

BERLIN, March 10 .- Now that the Merocco question may be considered selved, it is the kaiser's intention to attempt to strengthen Germany's position by new alliances. The Algeciras conference has shown that Germany stands isolated, and that the triple alliance is a thing of the past.

Italy has been won over by French diplomacy from an alliance which has, in fact, never been popular in the country. What the kaiser looks forward to now is a new triple alliance between Russia, Austria and Germany, which would hold the balance of power in Europe, even if Italy and Spain should enter into an alliance with England

The kaiser is very bitter at present against his uncle, King Edward, who more than anybody else, frustrated his plans in Morocco and who caused France to remain firm against the German demands when the French government was about to give in rather than run the risk of another war with the power that deprived her of Alsace-Lorraine. The kaiser thinks that King Edward's visit to Paris was made for the only purpose for thwarting his

Kaiser Would Teach Canal Digging

As if to show the United States how to conduct the digging of the Panama canal the kaiser has personally laid down the rules for the regulation of labor on the new canals which are to be dug this spring and the total length of which is to connect the Atlantic and Pacific oceans, although they do not present any engineering difficulties.

Nearly 50,000 men will be employed on the work, most of them Austrians and Italians, and for these the government has built barracks which, in comfort, far surpass the average working-

Each man will have his own bedroom and only fifty men will live together in each house. To pay for the maintenance of the libraries, gymnaslums and reading rooms, which each house contains, a nominal charge of 2 cents a month will be charged. Only temperance canteens will be established in the camps and no alcohol will be permitted to be sold within a mile of the works.

Usurer Is Ostracized

Count Rudolph Festitch, against whom Princess Louise of Coburg made the charge that he had taken advantage of her distress to charge an interest of 400 per cent on a loan he made her, has been ostracized by Hungarian society and will probably be forced to leave Vienna and retire to his estates. He will not attempt again to collect the note which Princess Louise gave him, and which calls for a payment of $20,000, though the princess only received $11,000. The count was in this city the other day evidently with the intention of taking up his residence here, but gave it up as everybody in the clubs and the military casinos gave him the cold shoulder.

SUICIDES SHOCK PLAYFUL PARIS

Of 723 Self-Killers, 21 Were Under 20 Years of Age

Special to The Telegram. PARIS, March 10 .- This city, usually complacent at grewsomeness, is shocked at the wave of suicide which has spread over the French capital.

During the past twelve months, 723 persons killed themselves, and twentyone under twenty years of age. Want is responsible for about 15 per cent; morbidness from reading unhealthy literature, or from grave organic disorders, accounts for about the same proportion. Difficulties in love affairs cause alone some 50 per

The most romantic of recent Paris suicides was almost a repetition of the story of Romeo and Juliet. Juliette Gaubert, aged 23 years, loved a young civil engineer, Eugene Lariche, from the provinces. Eugene began the tragedy by denying nothing to his adored one. Flowers, candies, watches, rings rained in upon Juliette, who thought she had found not only a lover but a gold mine, and demanded more and more. Then one day Eugene woke up to the fact that starvation would face him unless his parents would take his scrape in good part. "I shall be back in forty-eight hours," he said to Juliette. "If I have not returned by. that time, you will know there is no "Then what will happen?" asked Juliette. "Death alone remains," He answered melodramatically, without weighing his words. Two days passed, and a third and a fourth, and still Juliette heard no news. At the end of a week she ran down to the Seine and drowned herself. And meanwhile Eugene won over his parents. Returning to Juliette's house, feeling no apprehension for the future, he met the bier bringing her body home. Eugene then tried to commit suicide, like Romeo, but he did not succeed. The most vicious form taken by suicides in Paris is where one of the PARIS, March 10 .- As I hear, the French policy holders in the three touched the former president. great American life insurance companies intend to ask the French government to induce the American government to investigate the companies and force them to set aside a sum large enough to pay all claims of French citizens against them.

Since the revelations concerning the management of the companies became known here I am told that not a single policy has been issued in France. The event of the past week was undoubtedly the visit of King Edward, whose visit was doubly welcomed here because it displeased the kaiser. The king's appearance belies all rumors of his failing health and it was evident that he enjoyed his visit thoroughly, although he went out but very He has grown considerably stouter and seemed to walk with some difficulty, owing no doubt to his sprained ankle. It was President Folliere's first meeting with a crowned head and he was quite a little nervous about it, but the king's easy and cordial tone and unaffected manners soon put him at ease and it was evident that both were well pleased with each other.

Although the king's visit was entirely without any political significance it has done much to unite the two countries even more closely than before. It is said that Prince Louis Napoleon, who has just visited his mother and sister in Italy, has decided to leave the czar's army in which he holds the rank of general, and that there is a tacit understanding between him and Czar Nicholas that he will not again return to Russia, where he is anything but popular. He will probably take permanent lovers also kills the other. Charles Appianazi and a pretty little binder, Henrietta Paquette, furnish an instance. Charles' father died, and having to support his mother he informed Henriette that all was over between them. Henriette seemed to take the news calmly and made a farewell appointment at a small hotel. The next day in their room the man lay dead on the floor and the woman also, a revolver in her hand. The most singular suicide through love despair is that of Luighi Saltari, 14 year of age, an Italian cabin boy, vho came to Paris to see the sights. The first night he went to a variety show and was completely fired when a dancer's random kisses to the audience seemed to come his way. He inquired her address, and then presented himself with a bouquet of flowers. The dancer was so amused that she received Luighi and flirted with him for a good half hour. Luighi thought he had decidedly made a conquest, and he returned next day. But the dancer refused to see him, and so it was the

BY EMANUEL VISCAYA. HAVANA, Cuba, March 10.-I was received by President Estrada Palma today in his studio at the palace of

Plaza de Armas. I interrogated him about the recent bloody uprising at Guanabacoa, a suburb across the bay from Havana, where, on the night of Feb. 23, a party of armed men, led by a negro named Ramon Miranda, entered the "cuartel" of the Buardia Rural, killing four and wounding seven guards before they were put to flight by Captain Portela and his men. President Palma told me that it was the opinion of the government that the uprising was the work of the liberals, who cannot console themselves for the defeat they suffered at the polls, and want to create difficulties to the government.

"The Guanabacoa bandits," declared the president, "are closely pursued by the rural guard, and I expect at any moment to hear that they have fallen in the hands of the law." Asked what punishment they will suffer if captured, the president replied that it was a question for the courts of justice to decide, "but," he added, "I am afraid there will be no occasion for the courts to act, for I am informed General Rodriguez, commander of the rural guards, has instructed his soldiers not to bring them to Havana alive. The party is composed of negroes, a majority of whom have served terms in prison for different offenses.

A project is on foot to erect by popular subscription a magnificent monument to the memory of the soldiers and sailors of the United States, Spain and Cuba, who lost their lives for the cause of Cuban independence. The idea has been enthusiastically received by all classes, and it is expected that the required amount

($150,000) will soon be raised. The monument will be of grante and marble and of colossal proportions. It is to be raised in the Malecon

PARIS, March 10 .- Loud are the lamentations which are heard in the Spanish colony here. All the Spaniards in this gay capital, and they are legion, cry out in protest against their young monarch's forthcoming marriage.

They cannot get over the shock caused by the fact that he, a Bourbon in other words, a prince of the noblest house in Europe, slould have chosen for his wife the descendant of a dancer, They accuse him of raising to the throne of Charles V and Philip II, a young woman of Protestant origin and worse than that even, they cannot forgive Alfonso XIII for imposing upon them a queen who is not at all pretty. In the salons of the Spanish aristoc racy much indignant comment is heard concerning the humiliation which the nobility considers that it has received at the hands of the sovereign. It is said that the queen mother kept the king so closely tied to her apron strings throughout his minority, that once he was his own master he fell in love with the first girl he saw; not because of her beauty, but because she was of the opposite sex.

It is said also that the ex-Empress Eugenie meddled too much in the affair, through a sheer love of intrigue, and also prompted by a sentimental notion of paying a sort of love debt to the child of the woman who had been loved by the prince imperial. Discontent grows apace among the Spaniards here, and this is only an echo of what is going on in Spain.

Will the little princess be able to withstand the current of disapproval which seeks to sweep her away? It seems doubtful.

No race in the world is so proud as the Castilian, and no country is so senve to the charms of woman's beauty as that which boasts such cities as Seville and Granada. For a couple of mules, a bull or two, or a pretty girl, there is not a Spaniard who would not forsake riches, castles and comfort.

Aristocracy Invited

Great excitement reigns in Parisian society in anticipation of the fete which is shortly to be given by the Countess de Bearne, and to which the cream of aristocratic society in the French capital will be invited. By her birth, her position and her fortune the Countess De Bearn attracts about her the social and intellectual elite of Europe. When she was at Venice recently, she received among other distinguished guests aboard her yacht, the famous Italian actress

Eleanora Duse. A warm friendship sprang up between the two women, each a great lady in her way, and each standing at the very head of the class which she represents. Wishing to return the courtesy she received from the countess, Duse, who is now in Paris, has proposed to her friend that she should invite a number of guests to an artistic evening at which she, Duse, would give several recitations-hitherto unheard in

So it is that great preparations are afoot in the sumptuous mansion in the avenue du Bosquet, and that much conjecturing is going on in society as to who will be invited and who not.

The Countess de Bearn admits no obstacle when it comes to making a success of an artistic demonstration, and her Duse reception will surely be one of the finest things of its kind which has been seen in Paris since the Second Empire, when such fetes were more frequent than they are in our day.

So strong a hold has the love of literature upon the minds of Parisians that when a distinguished man dies, be he politician or ecclesiastic, if he has been also a writer, public opinion judges him first from the point of literary merit, and subsequently considers the manner in which he occupied the position he held.

We have just had a proof of this in the comment which has arisen upon the death of a man who played in the ecclesiastical world of France a preponderant role. Cardinal Perraud, who was one of the most ardent defenders of the policy of Leo XIII and of Cardinal Rampolla, and consequently a par-tisan of the submission of the church to the government in France, is on the morrow of his death judged, not ac-cording to the part which he played in the politics of his country, and yet his influence was considerable, but as a writer and member of the French

OUR LAY SERMON

The first and greatest of all the ten commandments laid down for the guidance of the human race is as follows: "Thou shalt love the Lord, thy God with all they heart and with all thy soul and with all thy mind and with all thy strength."

And the second commandment is like unto the first, for it lays down the great rule that is to govern our action toward our neighbor. It says: "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself."

There is no other commandment greater than the second one, except the first, which lays bare the duty we owe to our Creator. But few are there of the human family who live up to the principles of either of these great commands that come down to us with all the force of personal communication from the lips of Omnipotence.

If we love God as we love ourselves few of us would ever stray from the straight and narrow way. We are prone to studiously avoid those things we know will being persoral grief and sorrow, such is our consuming love for ourselves. And if we experienced the same love for God we would just as studiously seek to avoid the things we know grieve and anger Him. But we do not consider God in the situation at all. We are willing that He shall go and tell His troubles to a policeman, while we continue in the ways that please us most. That is human nature the world over.

And when it comes to loving our neighbor as ourscif, we are never equal to the task. We usually love our neighbor in about the same proportion as the devil is said to love Holy Water, and we show our affection by backbiting, whispering, and a thousand other little ways which proclaim the fact we cannot live up to the second great commandment. But there are fortunately, some rare exceptions.

From the state university of Missouri comes the story of one who rendered a literal obedience to this great second commandment. The man who did this was a distinguished surgeon, dean of the medical faculty of the Missouri university. He was on his way to luncheon, accompanied by some of his students, when a distracted father rushed from his residence and implored the physician to come in and save his child, who was rapidly passing out of this world with a bad case of diphtheria.

Dr. Arnold, for such was the name of this modern hero, started one of the students on the run back to the lecture room for some instruments. He entered the house and kept up respiration in the almost lifeless form until the instruments were brought. An incision was made in the thorax with a keen bladed knife and a tube inserted. But it was without avail. Respiration was surely ceasing.

Immediately the surgeon knelt, placed his lips to these of the apparently dying child, and started respiration.

By that one simple act he sealed his own death

He was suffering from a severe cold at the time, and his bronchial tubes were highly inflamed. Three cays later he died, and he doubtless knew when he began treatment of the child that his own life would pay the penalty.

Before his death, when asked by his friends why he did not give directions and let the child's father save the patient, this noble hearted physician quietly replied: "Because he is the father and the child needs him. I am a bachelor."

"As I have loved you," said the Great Master in the art of human loving.

This man was a member of a profession that has furnished many saints worthy of canonization at the hands of men. But they are too often entirely for-

Such an act could only be performed by one of God's noblemen who had dedicated his life to poor frail humanity-who loved his neighbor even better than he loved himself, who needed no special inspiration as to courage, and who as a matter of course put his life into the balance for the sake of another life.

Society knows not what it loses when such a man, of whom this world is not worthy, quietly lays down his life on the altar of self sacrifice. It may know, too, but it does not seem to care. Society has grown callous and is only interested in some sensation of a vastly

We go on through life with our eyes closed to the deeds that should make the whole world nearer akin, and we soon forget the heroes who give tangible evidence of the fact that they love their neighbors even better than they love themselves.

If we loved our neighbor with the same selfish love that marks our affection for self, this world would almost seem to revolve on a different axis.

MATTER OF PURE FOOD

The matter of pure food is one of much moment to every member of the human race, and every article of food that is dispensed by the dealer should be sold for just exactly what it is. We all know that unscrupulous dealers and manufacturers do not stop to figure on the poisoning of the human system when they begin the work of adulteration, but are solely interested in the matter of more revenue. The adulteration process is steadily going from bad to worse, and as the desire for additional gains inspires the manufacturer he will adopt the adulteration that promises him the greatest revenue, regardless of its effect upon the consumer .- Fort Worth

And while the Fort Worth Telegram was penning this truth for its readers the Texas delegation in congress was camping on the trail of the pure food law in congress, with the intention to defeat it, because it was treading on the toes of state rights. Ye gods and little fishes! This state right to sell impure food is so holy that the federal government must not touch the ark of its sacredness with one of its little fingers. What a consistency we are!-San Antonio Light.

If the Texas delegation in congress have camped on the trail of the proposed pure food law, it must be because they are firmly of the opinion it violates some of the principles of state's rights, and that is a question that is still paramount in the minds of all those who are opposed to the trend toward centralization in the national government.

The Texas congressmen and the peop'e of Texas as a whole are willing that the federal government shall discharge all its proper functions, but they are unafterably of the opinion that there is a well defined point where federal authority ends and state sovereignty be-

Texas does not experience any necessity for the national government to pass a pure food law other than interstate commerce. When it comes to regulating this matter within the confines of the state it is a duty that is up to the state legislature.

ROBERTSON NOT A CANDIDATE

In a letter to the Fort Worth Telegram, A. B. Robertson of Colorado announces positively that he would not accept the presidency of the Texas Cattle Raisers' Association if tendered to him unanimously. His business relations are such that he could not give the necessary time and attention to the affairs of the association .-Big Springs Herald.

Sug Robertson has not only declared himself not a candidate for the position of president of the Cattle Raisers' Association of Texas, but has stated positively and unequivocally that under no circumstances will he permit the use of his name in that connection. This action on the part of the gentleman in question has involved considerable disappointment to his large circle of friends, but they are satisfied that he means just exactly what he says, and have accepted his declaration as a finality, so far as the next two terms are

It is believed, however, that after Colonel Ike T. Fryor has filled the office for the usual two terms, Mr. Robertson will have his business matters in such shape that he can afford to give the proper time and attention to this important position, and his friends say they want to serve notice on the public generally that A. B. Robertson will be president of the great association as the successor of Colonel Ike T. Pryor.

TARRANT COUNTY CITIZENS SUFFERED

There recently appeared in the Austin Tribune a statement to the effect that out of the 6,000,000 acres of school land placed on the market since the first of last September, but seven and one-half sections have been found to have faulty titles. These sections were purchased by citizens of Arlington, Tarrant county, and the land in question is alleged to have been sold to them while under lease, the mistake occurring by virtue of failure to properly record the leases at Austin. Such is the statement made in the Austin paper, but it has not served to satisfy the editor of the Grand Prairie Hustler, who has been doing a little investigating into the situation, and thus comments on the Austin paper's allegations:

On the whole this is a very soothing application for an unsuspecting public, and reads like an inspired message. But to those who have come in contact with the cold facts, it stirs a thrill of distrust-and to them evinces a tendency of the land department to shirk its own blunders or clerical errors, and to place the consequences upon the shoulders of the uninstructed and innocent purchasers. They are the losers and seemingly have no recourse—get no consolation other than a soothing regret from that authority which should be better posted than to permit homeseekers to be so grossly wronged.

Referring to the claim that "only seven and a half sections of the entire 6,000,000 acres put on sale were found with faulty title," the statements of the five Arlington gentlemen do not bear out this assertion. These men, who are real home-builders-developerslive within the sphere of the Hustler's local territory, and a representative was sent out among them to inquire relative to their experiences and losses by their purchases when the above referred to 6,000,000 acres of state lands were put on the market. Their purchases in the aggregate were forty sections in El Paso county, and of this number only eight sections proved to be free from what is called the Fred Cockrell lease-which said lease skips around and takes a section or a quarter of a section here and there, seemingly with the purminimum rental acreage. From these gentlemen these statements were gleaned: J. T. Crim purchased seven and one-half sections. which purchase was canceled because of lease. He was put to considerable expense, which has proven

J. C. Young purchased four sections in a square. He had a house about completed when he was notified that a quarter of each section, forming a square in the center of his block, was under lease. He loses this section and his plans are much disarranged. Bill Miller purchased five sections, of which 227 acres in each section was under lease, and he doesn't know yet whether the entire purchase has been can-

H. H. Burch purchased eight sections, all of which was canceled to him after he had a house almost completed. His loss is about $800. Ed Wilkinson was the purchaser of five sections, none of which was titled to him-to his great disappointment and disgust.

were lost to him after his time and expense of going 500 miles for a home.

F. M. McMurray, a local man of El Paso county, also lost his purchase in this Cockrell lease. And he had gone to the expense of building. H. C. Clark, J. T. Smith and William Merritt, Si from other parts than Arlington, were also said to be losers under this lease. This much suffices to refute the seven and one-half section claim; and somebody is to blame for such blunders and should be responsible for losses to innocent purchasers under such circumstances.

The plea that this lease error was one made by the preceding land commissioner, being a clerical error, so claimed, should not justify the present commissioner, who was chief clerk under his predecessor.

When these blunders became known and the aggrieved purchasers began to complain, it was then that Commissioner Terrell summoned these Arlington gentlemen to a conference at Hotel Worth, in Fort Worth, and advised them that all purchases touched by the Cockrell lease were canceled, and forbade them again entering on said lands as owners. He expressed regret, but counseled their patient and silent waiting, as publicity and agitation would be detrimental. And this statement is vouched for by gentlemen who attended the conference.

And Texas people wonder at the mystery that is wont to surround the state's land department!

The above may be the only dissatisfied purchasers among the number seeking homes on the 6,000,000 acres, but the waters are very turbulent where these reside. A "square deal" and in the open, is all that homeseekers ask.

The Austin Statesman says that Candidate Colquitt will establish his political headquarters down by the sad sea waves in the city of Galveston, when it was generally understood he was satisfied with deep water prospects in Dallas, and would establish headquarters there. Commissioner Colquitt evidently intends to closely cultivate the south Texas vote.

The St. Louis Globe-Democrat notes with pleasure that Texas will likely produce 4,000,000 bales of cotton this year. If we do and suffer, let us blame no one but ourselves .- Waco Times-Herald.

We should prepare for the emergency by building nore cotton mills. Texas will never solve the cotton problem until she has provided the proper and necessary manufacturing facilities.

Congressman Gillespie has learned something of Republican peculiarities and knows when to strike so as to make it effective. The fact that he was able to overcome a clear Republican majority proves that he was at least on the alert .- Alvarado Bulletin.

That is just the way Judge Williams impresses the people everywhere he goes. They quickly come to a realization of the fact that he possesses the qualities of an ideal railroad commissioner.

Fort Worth is trying to rid herself of the worthless loafers who infest that city. This is a move in the right direction, and one that many other towns and cities in Texas could emulate with credit to themselves. Texas is no place for the loafer. There is plenty of work throughout the state for those who are willing o do it.-Alvarado Bulletin.

There is no excuse for loafing in any part of Texas. The entire state is enjoying an era of great prosperity and there is plenty of work for all willing hands to do. The loafer in evidence in this city is practicing his vocation from choice and not from necessity.

* * * * Are the real estate agents and Jefferson county and owners awake? The Fort Worth Telegram says: People are coming into Texas in perfect droves these days, over 5,000 entering the state at one time a few days ago. These people are looking for cheap homes, and are sensible enough to realize that the era of cheap homes, even in Texas, will soon belong to the past." If Jefferson county could get 1,000 farmers from the west or middle west they would make the country blossom like a rose and triple the value of every acre of unsold land .- Beaumont Journal.

Referring to the effort to drag ex-Senator Chilton into the race for governor, the Fort Worth Telegram

Horace Chilton is one of the brainy men of Texas, but his life has been full of political disappointment. The brief term he was permitted to serve in the United States senate was but a mockery, and doubtless involved the most cruel disappointment.

Didn't Senator Chilton announce at the time that he voluntarily withdrew from the race for re-election or account of declining health?-Houston Post.

Sure. And thousands of other candidates have experienced the same kind of heart failure and quit the race in the very same manner. Failing health can always be detected in a candidate who finally comes pose to entangle as large a scope as possible with a to the relaization of the fact that he is up against a thing that is loaded.

. . . . The boys of today learn to smoke at a very early age, just as their fathers did before them. The cigarette habit is a villainous one, and should be suppressed in some manner, but it is hardly fair to abuse the boy for following in the footsteps of his father. There are few boys in this world who do not feel privileged to do just as their fathers do.-Fort Worth Telegram.

Of course. But the mothers of the boys ought to keep them at home at nights, and not permit them to lean over the table when the old man is worrying himself to death to try and keep the other fellow from blocking out his double-six in a domino game.-Austin

The mothers of such boys and the wives of such men have enough to do in making a living for the family without being held responsible for the depravity of the male end of the contingency. The husbands and A. B. Cribbs purchased four sections, all of which fathers should set the proper example.

WHEATLY, Mich., March 10 .- Professor Villiers DeChamps, hailing from Montreal, came to Wheatly last week and solicited patients, or "students," as he calls them, for his "School for Stammerers," which was the name he gave his enterprise.

His theory is that stammering being invariably accompanied by a jerking motion of the lower jaw is controllable to the extent that one is able to gain mastery over this movement of his chin, and that, if this control were made perfect, the patient would not

There are several bad stammerers here, the worst of whom is probably Art Beasley, whose condition is so bad that, when he is in a hurry to say anything, he talks on his fingers or writes it. He cannot even sing, whistle, cough or sneeze without stammering, and whispering is entirely beyond his powers, as he only hisses shrilly while attempting it.

Every one told the professor that if he could cure Art he could get every other stutterer in the neighborhood to go to his school, and so he made a bargain with young Beasley that he would cure him for $100 and give him a rebate of $25 on every case he got on account of Art's cure. He then fitted him out with a piece of hard rubber exactly the size and shape of a common lead pencil, and this Beasley took into his mouth and held firmly between the double teeth on one side of his jaws, and then the professor put a strap fessor left town, around under Art's chin and over the top of his head. with a sort of leather cup under the chin and a cap over his head, and drew the strap up so tight that Beasley's chin could not move or even quiver a particle DeChamps then invited him to talk, and the boy, to his amazement, did not stammer at all. His voice was, of course, muffled by having to come out around the rubber piece and between his partially closed teeth, but the strap held the lower jaw from quivering and there could be no stammering.

The professor made the boy read long selections while bound up in this way, and claimed that practice would soon cure him entirely and the strap could then be dispensed with. But trouble was coming. DeChamps was anxious to get the other stammerers into the school, and so arranged for a public exhibition in the city hall at which Beasley was to read "Bernardio del Carpio," "Curfew Shall Not Ring Tonight" and other popular selections, and also repeat without stammering at all any phrase or sentence that might be given him. Everything went all right till a man asked Beasley to say over rapidly several times, "Peter Piper picked a peck of pickled peppers." Art essayed it, but his face grew red, his eyes glared wildly and when he was about half-way through the third time the strap broke under the strain, and before his friends could throw him down and hold him he had broken his jaw in two places in a perfect frenzy of stammering.

This, of course, broke up the school, and the pro-LE SUEUR LYRE.

"COUNT ME THY SOLDIER, LOVE, TODAY" Count me thy soldier, Love, today.

Give me thy spotless shield, And send me on thine errantry Forth to the fateful field. Give me thy banner, pure and bright, A sword that shall not fail, And lead me in thy glorious fight Till all thy foes shall quail.

The battleground lies far and wide, The hosts no man can tell; But here at hand I make a stand, One life to dearly sell. The laurel wreath may not be mine, Nor plaudits greet my ear, But in this place, a little space, For Love I couch a spear.

The triumph over dark and wrong, The victory for the light. Waits but each single soldier's stroke To put the foe to flight. Oh, do not doubt that far away Your comrades' cheers arise! Faith, and the blow that proves the faith Shall win the peerless prize.

Count me thy soldier, Love, today, And when the fight is won, Then come and walk the battlefield At setting of the sun. And let me join the glad hurrah, Or, on my grass-green bed, Let me but dream I see thee smile Above thy soldier dead.

The Berlin correspondent of the Chicago News quotes "a leading German commercial authority" as saying:

So long as Providence continues the bounteous favors of your soil you will be enabled to "stand pat" indefinitely. So far as Germany is concerned our only hope is that you will meet us half way out of sheer goodness of heart. It is now perfectly plain that there is no weapon at our command capable of coercing you. Our new tariff was constructed for that purpose and all the world has seen how it crumbled when it came to a showdown.

Although the new minimum tariff that goes into effect bears heavily on several of our important articles the Springfield Republican, commenting on the above statement, says:

The backdown, however, is a great triumph for the American standpat party, for the German authority quoted above admits the truth of what the standpatters have been claiming all along. If the argument of foreign retaliation ever had any weight with that element. it will fail to prove very impressive hereafter until some outside country capable of and willing to pay us back in our own coin has demonstrated its power for injury to American trade.

THE TROUBLE IN CHINNA

There seems to be no doubt that the vast and normally inert mass of China's population is now undergoing a species of fermentation, although reports emanating from the northern provinces are less alarming than those which come from the region south of the Yangtse-Kiang. One of the touching scenes of the book is where Nick, seized with a fit of remorse, lifts the body of his dead brother to his shoulder and carries it many miles back to the dugout. Here he buries Ralph, after which he seeks for the gold, to find it gone.

By the combined strain of his brother's tragic end, and the theft of the money, which he rightly attributes to Victor Gagnon, Nick's brain is turned and he becomes a raving mantac, with but one purpose in view-to find the friend who has thus basely treated the men who befriended him, and have his heart's blood.

For days he trails the elusive Victor, and when success seems almost within his grasp, finds that the wily halfbreed has eluded him. Then suddenly the phantom of the white squaw rises before him and flees over the mountains. No matter which way he turns, he can see her face before his vision and she is always beckoning, beckoning him on.

In a frenzy he follows the phantom far into the brooding wild-far past the outposts of the frontier into lands where nothing but the savage beasts of the wild ever trod before-farther, farther, as the phantom still beckoned, and on and on with a speed almost past human endurance. Pally he caught the object of his dreams as he supposed, and she clasped him in a tight embrace. Tighter and tighter it drew until he became perfectly rigid in her arms-tighter until his ribs fairly cracked beneath the pressure and his life seemed to be going from him. And there, with the fever of the fantasy mantling his brow, died Nick Westley, the last of his race—there in the brooding wild with naught but a pack of hungry wolves, a lone grizzly

EARLY MARCH BOOKS tivated by the heroine, Princess Dehra,

The Memoirs of Charles H. Cramp It is not often that the memoirs of a man cover the history of threescore years of active manhood. Still more rare is it that the period covered happens to be the most fruitful of progress known in the annals of mankind. And yet more remarkable, even to the point of the unique, is it that such a career, in such an epoch, should be inextricably interwoven with the history of one of the fairest arts and one of the most fascinating sciences-naval architecture and shipbuilding. All this is true of the subject of the memoir, Chas. Henry Cramp, written by Augustus C. Buell, author of "Life of Paul Jones," "History of Andrew Jackson," etc., and published by the J, B. Lippincott company, Philadelphia. Such phrases as "prominently identified with" or "an acknowledged leader in" his sphere of creative activity do not adequately express Charles H. Cramp's personal and professional relation, or rather his individual identification, with the maritime and naval history of his country. Those phrases' applied to his status and his rank would be commonplace. His impress is far deeper than that, and the association of his name and his personality

The hills of Bethlehem are full of caves - natural and artificial - and many of them have historic significance. There is the Milk Grotto, in which Joseph and Mary are said to have concealed themselves before their flight into Egypt to escape the evil designs of Herod. The snowy whiteness of the soft chalk out of which it is hewn is ascribed to the spilling of a few drops of the Virgin's milk when she nursed the Infant Jesus. Another grotto is pointed out as that in which St. Jerome, for more than thirty years led the life of a hermit, when bitter factional dissensions had forced him to leave Rome.

Economics and sociology are made the features of the March number of The Culturist, of Cincinnati. The leader is by Eugene V. Debs, who discusses the outlook for the socialist movement under the title "Toward the Sunrise." Other contributors consider socialism in its different phases. It would seem that the last word has long been said about John D. Rockefeller, but in an article "Regarding Rockefeller," the editor, Walter Hurt, submits the oil magnate to a new and novel treatment and succeeds in investing the subject, with unique interest. Professor Edgar L. Larkin, director of Lowe observa-tory, gives a strong psycho-sociologic study in "A Great Mentological Crime," dealing with the hanging of Mary Rogers. Professor W. F. Jamieson writes of the "Meaning of a Free Press" from the viewpoint of the reformer, to which the editor replies from the position of a practical newspaper man. In "The Fellowship of Dogs," Dr. Ralcy Husted Bell discourses delightfully concerning the only animal that has broken through the barrier of species and entered into comradeship with man. "The Sociologic Function of the Jew" presents the Jewish problem in a new light and offers a solution that certainly has the merit of originality. Other articles deal with various subjects of vital human concern, treated in a fashion that makes them remarkably attractive reading.

The fiction feature of Holland's seem to grow better each month. The March issue contains a large number of excellent stories. Julia Truitt Bishop contributes "A Curved Glass Door," a tale of domestic comedy told in a style that is the author's own. "Judge Lynch and a woman," a story with a western flavor, is by Will S. Gridley. "Carrie," is a pathetic tale by Mary Elizabeth Daley, and in strong contrast is "The Resur-rection of Lois Mason," by Mary Lewis. ASPECTS OF BALZAC

It is a debatable question, says the New York Times' Saturday Review of Books, in an article on a book by W. H. Heim with the above title (James Pott & Co., New York, publishers), whether the lover and student of French literature will derive more enjoyment from the novels of Balzac by reading where chance or the advice of friends may take him, or by first preparing himself for a regular course of the "Comedie Humaine" by studying the author's scheme and reading the volumes in their integral sequence of this scheme. There is no doubt which method makes the most persistent, in-Prospectors and pack mule trains are tellectual appeal. Many books have trailing the mountains and deserts. And a funny manners, and morals, and exposition of the creed of fatalism-are described and analyzed, with the aid of other critics, so that the reader has a fair idea of how Balzac set about to paint "the human beast" without love and sympathy, but with a curious glee in diagnosing vices which obstruct intellectual and aesthetic progress. With a task greater than Herbert Spencer's, Balzac achieved more in volume and variety than any other student of social anatomy

"The Women of the Human Comedy," which is Mr. Helm's second essay, is a rebuke of that species of criticism illustrated by the statements that there are no snakes in Ireland, no owls in Iceland, no cats in the Bible, no gentlemen in Dickens, no intelligent women in Thackeray, and no good women in Balzac. That there are good women, even Puritanical women, in the "Comedie," Mr. Helm shows without much trouble. Of the three genuine or mythical seats of cogitation or impulse-the mind, the soul, the heartwhich are supposed by novelists to direct woman's actions, Balzac deals almost entirely with the heart. His women are moved more by instincts than by logic or spiritual inspiration. In proof or this theory the essayist cites in an entertaining manner from descriptions and dialogues of the dramatis personae without, however, losing sight of the fact of the author's yearning for luxurious and even intellectual companionship in woman. The same method of citation and explanation is pursued in "Men of the Human Cothedy." Like the names of his characters, Balzac took his men as he found them. He employs little time in an attempt to analyze their hearts, and confines himself for the most part to their mentality. Women readers can learn little of the opposite sex from Balzac, and this little is derived from appearances and the results of human conduct-studiousness, labor, laziness, etc.-without any retrospective analy-

The limitations of Balzac, as far as the expressions of reality drawn from experience are concerned, are set forth in "Balzac's 'Comedie Anglaise'" and "Balzac and Dickens." However we may follow Balzac into the lowest depths of social degradation or into the mansions of wealth and luxury, we feel that it is the illusion which fascinates us, the intense power of visualization, the gift of imagining the Interior by the exterior; not the faithful reproduction of reality. The actual naturalism and realism of the author are confined to his middle class or bourgeoisie pictures.

The "Literary References in Balzac" are confined almost entirely to English writers-Richardson, Scott, Fenimore Cooper, Sterne and Byron. Beyond this, his references are either pedantic or almost entirely at second hand and tempered with that Gallie point of view which is so annoying to Anglo-Saxon. In fact, he regards "Clarissa Harlowe" as a human document rather than a work of the imag-

The "Humor of Balzac" Mr. Helm discovers and sets forth in a thoroughly English fashion—witticisms, play upon words, figures of speech, etc. and penetrates with some success the author's genuine examples of Gallie humor, which is so akin to English wit, But he just misses, we think, the French point of view in a broader sense when he says that Balzac was, for the most part, "not notably spiritual in his jesting, that his finest wit was that of characterization and suggestion rather than of phraseology, and that humor of a high quality is inherent in his pictures of social and individual types and experiences, humor which, if sometimes forced in order to produce the effect desired, and often bitter in its taste, is the elixir of life in the gigantic body of that mass of tragedies, the 'Comedie Humaine'," and almost persuades us thereby that Balzac badly needed a Cruikshank and "Phiz" to give him satisfactory pictorial expression.

THE LADIES' LUNCHEON A BOON TO WOMEN

As the bright spring weather sets our pulses dancing and wakens sluggish blood to a quicker flow in our veins, the social instinct reasserts itself. We want some form of festivity that suits the season, something that may be enjoyed in the daytime when every shower passes off with a rainbow, and the sunbeams glitter on new leaves and budding flowers.

A majority of the women's clubs and patriotic societies have chosen the spring as their time for anniversay occasions, when dames and daughters rally at a central point of convergence and when all kinds of questions are discussed with the frankness and good temper that at present characterize parliamentary conferences of women. Too much can not be said in praise of what the woman's club has done for the home in giving wives and mothers a congenial outlet for energy, superfluous in housekeeping, and in furnishing them with an interest keen enough to cheat domestic life of monotony. Added to this, women have had an advantage worth prizing in the lessons they have learned in self-control, in tactful address, and in the art of putting personal wishes in the background, as they have convened in their social clubs. Indirectly all this is a great benefit in home life, where suavity, gentleness and cheerfulness are solvents of many troublesome problems. What has all this to do with the meal distinctively known as the ladies' luncheon? The answer is familiar enough to those of us who have had now and then the great pleasure of participating in the annual feast of a great convocation of women like Sorosis or the Fortnightly or the Wednesday Morning or any other gathering of women young and old. It may be a New England society or an alumnae association or some other assemblage that invites one to its tables in the middle of the day. The program is usually the same. The president and executive committee, with the guests of honor, receive an hour before the time for proceeding to the dining room. All the ladies are arrayed in the glory of their finest gowns. Most of them cannot resist the temptation to retain becoming headgear, and the effect of 200 or 300 brand new spring bonnets is that of a field of variegated bloom. Everybody looks fresh and unworn and joyously expectant, the grandmother not less than the dainty maid recently a debutante. A few women have the courage to appear with only the adornment of their own beautiful hair, but the woman without something in the line of millinery on her head is exceptional. This rule, let it be noted, obtains as generally at a luncheon of any formality in a private house where the guests are limited to a few, as in the larger and more public functions. Doubtless the reason for this is found in the fact that luncheon prepposes something else at a later period in the day. It is usually over at an hour in the afternoon admitting of further engagements on the part of many of the ladies.

The menu, of course, includes delicate ylands, daintily prepared and deftly served. If the luncheon be given in a hotel or other public place, there is a corps of waiters whose training enables them to manage the changing courses with silence and dexterity. The president and her party have a table on a slightly raised platform. A little below this are the tables of the other members of the club and their individual guests. The presiident raps with her gavel and indicates the moment for beginning the feast. Frequently in women's meetings of American ential and earnest and yielding a tribute of praise to the Giver of all good when they come together in this social way. As for the refreshments, every woman knows their 'order from the preliminary course of fruit to the final ice or bonbon. Wine is never introduced, and the only sparkling beverage that foams in the cup is some harmless mineral water. Women honor temperance in their common observ-

Instantly a hush falls on the room and eyes are fixed on the woman who, in queenly self-possession, awaits the attention of the company. The president may or may not be the toastmistress. If that gracious office has been assigned to some one else, the president introduces her, and leaves the carrying out of the program in her hands. Nothing has been left to accident, speakers and topics, musical numbers and every portion of the exercises having been carefully arranged weeks earlier. The after-luncheon speeches ar never dull and are often witty and brilliant. Women are good reconteurs, and the stories they tell on these occasions are amusing, entertaining and refined, without the least tincture of malice. If, as it often happens, the people present are old acquaintances, or near neighbors, they have so many subjects in common and they know one another so well that there is no lack of fun and pleasantry as the proceedings approach the climax and the

In home life the ladies' luncheon has its uses as, for example, when a daughter's engagement is announced, or a matron desires to pay a graceful compliment to her son's fiancee. The favors at such a luncheon should be sentimental in design, and carry with them a thought of Cupid's dominion over youthful life, even though St. Valentine's day may be far in the back-

A woman going abroad for an indefinite period may invite a group of her most intimate friends to sit at her table and wish her bon voyage. A daughter or granddaughter may take the opportunity of the birthday of a mother to pay her honor and bring to see her and wish her well a few old and wellloved friends.

Sometimes old schoolmates gather informally at a luncheon and compare notes about the different lives they have led since they left their alma mater. In our land and time, girls who spend four years together in college drift widely apart either in professional careers or in marriage, and find their moorings in distant states. Any opportunity that unites them for an hour or two around the table of one or the other is hailed with the same delight that one feels at sea at the sight of another sail or a familiar

Taking it all in all, no other function surpasses in interest and elasticity the ladies' luncheon. It has taken the place of the old-fashioned tea party, and send its guests home with a new gladness and a new stimulous that tend to make life fuller and hap-

Market Quiet and Featureless-Liquidation Lowers Values-Close

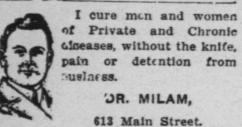

Special to The Telegram. NEW YORK, March 10 .- The stock market was quiet and featureless today. Although sentiment was friendly to the long side, owing to the expectation of a favorable bank statement and the possibility of gold imports in the near future, the trade as a rule was averse to carrying its holdings over Sunday and after a rather active opening the market sagged. Most operations were for evening-up purposes and prices never varied materially from yesterday's closing level. There were plenty of bull tips in circulation, but a great many traders are inclined to believe that the recovery has been too rapid and consequently are afraid of a setback. There were large blocks of Steel common for sale around the opening figures and also good selling of the preferred at 107. This depressed prices for both issues and a decline of % of 1 point respectively was effected. The market closed easy, with a majority of issues showing fraction losses.

Prices Advance Owing to Report Showing Smaller Farmers' Reserve Than Expected

Special to The Telegram. CHICAGO, March 10.-Until a short time before the government estimate of farmers' reserves was made public a few covered, and one interest was a buyer in sufficient quantities to take the surplus off the market. A short spurt followed the estimate of 158,000,-000. This is considerably less than all private figures, save those of the Kan-sas City Star. On the bulge the early buyers took profits, the market falling somewhat. Cables were firmer than was to be expected after the sharp decline here yesterday, Liverpool closing but %d lower. World's shipments are estimated at 10,000,000 bales. The weather is unsettled today, with snow forecast for Iowa, Nebraska, Kansas and Missouri. Local receipts were 12 cars, with 1 expected for Monday. Northwest cars, 374 against 252 last

Corn Corn was dull and somewhat easier during the forenoon, with local bears exerting some pressure at times. Pricas rallied sharply on government report of 1,108,000,000 reserves in farmers' hands. These figures are somewhat more moderate than the open character of the winter and the saving in feed have led many to believe. Liverpool was comparatively steady, declining but 14 @. %d. Local receipts were 133 cars, with 150 expected Monday.

Oats acted very much as did corn, rallying sharply when the government report was issued, easing off some later. Reserves of 80,000,000 bushels are about 30,000,000 in excess of last year. Local receipts, 138 cars, with 108 expected Monday.

Provisions Provisions were steady, with packers the buyers of lard and ribs, presumably against cash sales. The selling was from miscellaneous sources and very light. The closing was firm at slight advances. This market shows a strong undertone. Estimated hogs for Monday, 48,000 head, and 180,000 head for

Review of the Week's Market Receipts of cattle have been light on this market the past week, though heavy steer cattle have been present in larger force than for many weeks. Heavy cattle have declined in value from 10 to 15 cents, while steady prices prevail for medium steers and half fed steer stuff is stronger. These last named have gone to packers mainly to take the place of butcher cows, which have been scarce. Good cows have been scarce, and these have all sold at strong prices. Medium butcher cows, along with cutters and canners, have developed no strength for the week. Bulls are still in strong demand by speculators, and the bulk of the full trade has gone in that direction, although packers are taking a few.

The calf trade has been active at strong prices for the week, tops reaching $5.25. No strictly choice vealers have been offered. These would. probably bring $5.50. Outside buyers have kept up the demand for fleshy heavy calves. The cattle market is quotable as follows: Prime beeves, 1,400 pounds and better, $5.00@5.15; full fed steers, 1,-200 to 1.350 pounds, $4.25@4.40; same weighing 1,150 to 1,200 pounds, $4.15 @4.25; fed steers, 1,050 to 1,100 pounds, $4.00@4.10; 950 to 1,050-pound $3.60@3.85; choice grassers with flesh and quality, 1,000 to 1,100 pounds, $3.60 @3.90; 950 to 1.000-pound, $3.50@3.70; light thin steers, $3.25@3.40; feeder steers with quality, from $3.00@3.50; medium feeders, $2.75@3.00; common kinds, $2.50@2.75. Best fed cows, choice in quality, $3.75@4.00; full fed, in car lots, $3.20@3.50; fat grass cows the same; choice butcher cows, $2.65 @2.85; good butcher cows, $2.35@2.60; mediums, $2.00@2.25; cutters, $1.75@ 2.00: canners, $1.40@1.75; strictly choice fat vealers, $5.25@5.50; choice fat, $5.00@5.25; medium calves, $4.00 @4.50; extra fat heavies, $3.25@4.00; medium fleshy, $2.75@3.00; common, $2.25@2.50. Full fdl stags, $3.00@3.50; fat bulls, $2.75@3.00; good bulls,

$2.40@2.60; common kinds $1.75@2.15. Hogs have been in liberal supply, with the general run good to heavy corn fed. The market advanced on Monday but suffered a decline on Wednesday which was continued Thursday. Friday a part of the loss was recovered, with the week closing 10c higher than a week ago. The high point of the year was reached or Wednesday, 40. The week's closing tops, $6.25, bulk $6.00@6.20, butchers $6.15@6.20; mixed $6.10@6.20; lights $6.00@6.10; pigs $4.25@5.25. Mast hogs $5.00@5.50.

Sheep have been in light supply on the market with prices fully steady. Saturday's Review and Sales Market receipts of cattle were very light on the closing day of the week, only 181 head. Yard receipts consisted of twenty-one loads of feeder steers that went to the country district, and six loads of cattle. Steers Beef steers sold steady. Only two loads were on offer, and these of only medium quality.

Butcher Stock Butcher cows came in four loads, all of common to medium quality.

Packer buyers took these quickly at steady figures, and the yards were cleared before 10 o'clock. Sales: No. Ave. Price. No. Ave. Price. 8... 722 $3.00 28... 847 2.55 5....746 2.75 Calves

Trade Notes Even in fattening hogs it is better to give only what is eaten up clean at one

Do not blame the pig for being dirty until you have given him a chance to be Pork is not often made profitable when more corn is thrown out than the hogs can eat up clean.

In feeding hogs the principal value of cooking the food is in furnishing a Usually a sow will raise better pigs when from 2 to 4 years old than at any other age. A. J. Farrington of Yoakum brought in this morning a car of calves, which averaged 162, and sold for $5.25. Noah Weaver, a shipper from Wor-

S. AMERICA WILL SEND DELEGATES

Pan-American Congress at Rio Janeiro This Summer

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 10 .-Considerable interest is felt in government and diplomatic circles in the arrangements now being made by the different South and Central American countries for sending delegates to the third Pan-American congress that will be held at Rio Janeiro this summer. It is supposed that about threefourths of the states will send delegates, but several, for different reasons, will refrain from taking any part in the coming congress. In the case some of the smaller republics of Central America the matter of expense is an important consideration and, although most desirous to send a delegation, they are prevented from doing so through the high expenses attendant on such a mission. It can be stated with certainty that Venezuela will not be represented, robably because of her objection to lny general arbitration proposal. ombia is not likely to send a del-Igate, because she has not yet solved her difficulties with the United States, krowing out of the loss of Panama. he republic of Panama will probably e represented, as this will be almost the first time it can participate in a public affair as an independent coun-

ROLLER SKATING POPULAR

New Rink Opened at Denton Promises to Be Success

special to The Telegram, DENTON, Texas, March 10 .- This place has succumbed to the roller skating craze that, from press dispatches, seems to be sweeping over the entire state of Texas. There have been only two sessions held here, the place having been opened Thursday hight, but there is every indication that it will be a success in every way. Inquiry among several older citizens who came to Texas from states across the Mississippi, notably Kentucky, bring out the fact that this same craze swept over that section of the counby the preachers of the old school to be a device of Satan and many were the sermons related to have been preached against this form of amuse

SOCIETY SNUBBED IN QUAKER CITY

Richest Philadelphia Woman to Live Over Store

Special to The Telegram. PHILADELPHIA, March 10 .- Mrs. Annie Weightman Walker, said to be the richest woman in America and heiress to the $50,000,000 left by William Weightman, the quinine king, of Philadelphia and New York, is going to live over a store. The announcement has fallen with the force of a thunderclap on society in New York, Philadelphia and London. The dream that Mrs. Weightman Walker's millions were to fall in a golden stream over society is shattered. It is not altogether the motive of economy or the desire to add to her little income of $2,000,600 a year that has influenced Mrs. Walker in her action. She said to her business representative just before her departure for the West:

"When the provisions of my father's will were made known, the first thing that I heard after the period of mourning was over was of the duty I owed to society. On every hand this was dinned into my ears. It wasn't long before I discoveed that I was expected to do my duty by watering society with gold.

"This was not exactly my own view of my position. I have vainly tried to make my friends understand that, having been a practical business woman for a number of years, I intended to remain a business woman. My mental horizon is not bounded by a house at Newport, a house in New York and a third establishment in Park lane. I had not the slightest intention of paying tribute in London to the crowd of female harpies, titled and untitled, who find their chief source of income in the ambitious American woman.

Three Are Charged with Conspiracy to Steal

ROSWELL, N. M., March 10,-Word has come through private advices sayin Mexico, awaiting the arrival of the sheriff of this (Chaves) county.

Pridemore was formerly manager of the El Capitan Land and Cattle Company here, and is wanted on the charge of conspiring to steal 973 head of cattle. It is claimed that Pridemore, as manager of the company, sold 1,973 head of cattle to Morris & Bivins and made returns to the company for only 1.000 head. Morris & Bivins, the purchasers, is a well-known cattle firm, and they are charged with being parties to the alleged immense embezzlement. They have been arrested, but the officers suppressed the news, lest the publication might result in thwarting justice. When the report that Pridemore had been arrested reached here the whole story was given out.

The last grand jury indicted the three men, and they will be tried at the coming term of the district court. Pridemore went to Las Cacas Grande, Mexico, where he has been operating a mine. He was living with his family there when apprehended. He is one of the old-time cattlemen of New Mexico, and is well known in the stock circles of the leading cities of the country. Sheriff Woodruff has left for Mexico, and will return with the prisoner in a few days.

THE real advantages of buying rather than renting are that:

7. It prompts you to take an interest in the home and improve and keep. it neat and healthful-it makes a home in every sense of the word.

2. It helps you to save and urges you

3. It gives you the value of the property at the end of a short time and stops all rent forever after that time. In other words, it gives you a home while you are getting it and all the

While walking to the village church at Simmenthal (Switzerland) with his fiancee, on the way to their wedding, a bridegroom slipped in the snow and fell. His bride, instead of being sympathetic, burst into laughter at his discomfiture. White with anger, the young man at once broke off the match and the sorrowful bride had to continue her way alone.

The prettiest and most desirable addition to Fort Worth. This beautiful piece of property lies one-half mile northwest of the packing houses and stock yards, and is on high, rolling ground overlooking the city to the south. It is about 300 feet higher than the main part of Fort Worth, hence there is no healthier place. The Azle Boulevard, a well-graded 60-foot road, runs through the property from southeast to

Fort Worth property is increasing in value more rapidly than any other city in Texas. Highland Park lots will increase in value as all other property in the city is increasing, and if you buy now and get in on the ground floor you will double your money in a very short time. Buy now, as these lots will all be sold within six months. For full information, see agent or write

Large Number of Transfers Are Recorded

Real estate transfers for the past week continued to keep up the good record of the year, and again totaled considerable over the $100,000 mark. The deeds for the week were to a large extent small ones, and a large number of these were filed.

The total value of the deeds filed during the week was $124,281.77. The real estate market in this city, as evidenced by the number of deeds files. has been the most prosperous one that Fort Worth has ever had, the average week this year being about 200 per cent more than the corresponding week of 1905. The total for either one of the first months of this year was far beyond the total for both months together last year.

In the week which has just passed there were none of the deeds for large transfers such as have been happening almost every day of Main and Houston street property ever since the first of the year. It takes but two or three large deeds to bring the total value way up, but it is the total number of deeds filed that shows the real number of transactions taking place.

The total number for the past week are as follows: Monday 15 $19,390.00 Tuesday 31 34,158.50 Wednesday 10 5.468.37 Thursday 25 32,301.80 Friday 24 21,623,10 Saturday 12

one in the sale of down town property. The high price lots during the week was the second heaviest of the year, being only surpassed by the one week in January when so many sales were made one after another. Several of the deals within the past six days have been large ones, and several have also been made with the intent of making improvements upon them in the shape of new buildings immediately.

Mrs. Mary Winn Smoot, the Aunt Lucindy of favor and affection of Texas newspaper readers, has launced a venture of her own in the "Texas Woman," published at Sherman, the first issue being dated March 2, 1906. The Texas Woman is a "good looker" and if the subscription list is in keeping with the merits of the paper, Aunt Lucindy's heart will rejoice greatly. N N N

The Maple Club Mrs. Kennison entertained the Maple Club most delightfully at her home in East Weatherford street Wednesday afternoon, March 7. The following ladies responded to roll call with quotations: Mesdames Koyte, Lantz, Wilcox, Stewart, Moore, King, George, Kennison, Luther, Hinkley, Dooley, Wilkinson, Harney, Kee, Beck, Gilvin, Butchilor. The lesson in Texas history was directed by Mrs. Batchilor. This lasted one hour. Many good

Is Disease a Crime Not very long ago, a popular magazine

published an editorial article in which the writer asserted, in substance, that all disease should be regarded as criminal. Certain it is, that much of the sickness and suffering of mankind is due to the violation of certain of Nature's laws. But to say that all sickness should be regarded as criminal, must appeal to every reasonable individual as radically

It would be harsh, unsympathetic, cruel, yes criminal, to condemn the poor, weak, over-worked housewife who sinks under the heavy load of household cares and burdens, and suffers from weaknesses, various displacements of pelvic organs and other derangements peculiar to her sex.

Frequent bearing of children, with its exacting demands upon the system, coupled with the care, worry and labor of rearing a large family, is often the cause of weaknesses, derangements and debility which are aggravated by the many household cares, and the hard, and never-ending work which the mother is called upon to perform. Dr. Pierce, the maker of that world-famed remedy for woman's peculiar weaknesses and the mother is called upon to perform. Dr. Pierce, the maker of that world-famed remedy for woman's peculiar weaknesses and ills—Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription—says that one of the greatest obstacles to the cure of this class of maladies is the fact that the poor, over-worked housewife can not get the needed rest from her many household cares and labor to enable her to secure from the use of his "Prescription" its full benefits. It is a matter of frequent experience, he says, in his extensive practice in these cases, to meet with those in which his treatment fails by reason of the patient's inability to abstain from hard work long enough to be cured. With those suffering from prolapsus, anteversion and retroversion of the uterus or other displacement of the womanly organs, it is very necessary that, in addition to taking his "Favorite Prescription" they abstain from being very much, or for long periods, on their feet. All heavy lifting or straining of any kind should also be avoided. As much out-door air as possible, with moderate, light exercise is also very important. Let the patient observe these rules and the "Favorite Prescription" will do the rest.

AMERICAN WOMEN SOOTHE PARLIAMENT

Party Factions Feel Influence and Tact Displayed

Special to The Telegram. (Copyright, 1906, by Hearst News Service.)

(By Paul Lambeth.) LONDON, March 10. - American women with their tact and adaptability are doing much to soothe the rather bitter feeling which is the note of the

In spite of the glowing accounts in the newspapers there never was a more lugubrious opening of parliament. A sort of pall hangs over the unionist party. Fortunately British politicians, however bitterly they oppose each other in parliament, invariably shake hands at social functions.

The other night at one of the big political receptions Mrs. Lewis Harcourt (nee Burns, of New York), made a particular point of singling out Mrs. Joseph Chamberlain (nee Endicott, of Boston), who more than answered the advances. In fact the two Americans were together practically the whole evening, notwithstanding the fact that their respective husbands are bitter political foes. Mrs. Harcourt will be one of the chief liberal hostesses this season, now Lady Wimborne is in mourning for the late Lady Howe.

Burns Wears Uniform

There was a scene of excitement in the humble home of Mr. John Burns, the labor president of the local government board and member of the cabinet, when his gorgeous state uniform arrived from the tailor

Mrs. Burns was in tears, as she had never seen her husband in anything but a blue suit, and John was as disturbed as his wife. He entreated the king to be allowed to wear the old blue suit on all occasions, but his majesty would

At Lady Campbell-Bannerman's reception Mr. Burns looked as well as any one and was very good humored when chaffed by his friends about his feathered cocked hat and gold trappings. Mr. Burns is, though short, a finely built man and his uniform fitted him to perfection. The thing that really worried and hurt him physically was the high and stiff gold braided collar. He has never worn anything but a low Shakespeare collar in his life, and as soon as he left the reception he tore the offending collar open and walked to his home in

Mrs. Campbell, Fortune Teller

The latest "spook" craze among society women requires a head for mathematics. Mrs. Campbell, the wife of an Indian army officer, has started the craze in a professional manner. She has taken rooms in Bond street, and women come to her for the usual fortune telling by hand. But in addition to palmistry and crystal-gazing Mrs. Campbell will tell her clients, by making intricate calculations, whether their names "harmonize" with their husbands', what dates in the future they should beware of, and many other things which she declares she learned from the wise men of the east. Several women have been so impressed by the knowledge that they have been born with a name which "clashes" with the "vibrations" caused by the husband's name that they have adopted pet names. The calculations made to arrive at the correct solution occupy at least half an hour, and perhaps that is why certain women with nothing whatever to do are so interested in the new "In-

One of the prettiest American debutantes of the approaching London season will be Miss Gladys Grace, who is to make her bow at court some time in May. She is the youngest daughter of Mr. Michael P. Grace, of Battle Ab-

Another pretty American, Miss Kate Lee Harman, who is a great friend of the Grace family, and is being chaper-oned by Lady Moncrieffe is already a great success. She has been "booked up" for engagements of all kinds for three months ahead.

Warwick Tourists' Mecca

Warwick, one of the most picturesque towns in England, will be the necca for hundreds of American tourists in July, when a medicval pageant, following on the lines of the successful show given at Sherbourne last year, will occupy the grounds of Warwick castle for three days.

The director will be Mr. Louis N. Parker, and at least 300 of the townsnen will appear in the play in armor doublets and hose. The countess of Warwick, who affords an almost perennial topic of gossip for the whole of the county of Warwickshire, will be the central figure of the pageant. The Warwickshire folk have tired of exchanging stories about the countess socialist and labor friends, and are now talking of nothing else but the pageant. The countess, it appears, was approached by the acting manager the other day and asked what part she would like to play.

"Anything but Lady Godiva," answered her ladyship, promptly, an answer which paralyzed the bashful aeting manager. Finally it was decided that the countess should appear as Queen Elizabeth. Lady Warwick has no intention of making herself as homely as Queen Bess. She will be her beautiful self and will make her entrance superbly and correctly dressed n a white charger.

Quarrel About Furniture

King Haakon and Queen Maud of Norway (King Edward's daughter) have been a devoted and happy conple, but they have had a slight "tiff" recently over the question of furniture and an English home.

Their place in Christiania is still extremely bare of furniture, especially in the bedrooms, and the king suggested that the queen should send for her pretty furniture from Appleton, her cottage near Sandringham.

This the queen absolutely declined to do. Then the question of giving up her English home cropped up. The king argued that the Norwegian people would not like her to keep up an Eng-But here again Queen Maud was firm and declared her intention of not only leaving every article in its place, so that she can go there at least twice Appleton was settled on Queen Maud by King Edward. It is now something more than a cottage. In fact, it is a very comfortable and large country

Eighteen Months Sentence for European Adventuress

Special to The Telegram, LONDON, March 10. - "Princess Soltykoff." the most remarkable adventuress who has appeared in Europe for many years, has been sentenced to eighteen months' imprisonment for defrauding a hotel.

She is the daughter of a poor Cheshire joiner, and her career of crime

"PRINCESS SOLTYKOFF"

This picture is from a portrait for which she posed when she was the false "Lady Muriel Paget."

was due to the fact that she had a passion for posing as a member of the nobility. That she often succeeded is due to her aristocratic type of beauty. She is cultured and refined appearing. The princess has become an alleged convert to Mohammedanism and her oath in court was taken in a spectacular manner. In the witness box she removed her shoes, placed one hand on the Koran, another on her forehead, palm outward, and bowed low three times, making her palm touch the book. At the age of 18, after leaving her home, the princess made the acquaintance of the late Lord Anglesey, who ran himself into bankruptcy through his inability to resist feminine charms. Carlo with him, and afterward she assumed the name of Lady Mauriel Paget, Paget being the Anglesey family name. With this title she went to fashionable shops and had wares sent to her house. After she got the goods she left her boarding house without paying her bill. This trick she constantly repeated. Later she took the name of Princess Soltykoff, claiming she had married a Russian prince in Scotland. She testified in court that her prin-capital drink was vodka, two bottles of the flery liquid a day. She also took quantities of morphine and opium. The princess took up the profession of nurse as a pastime, and pesing as a lady of title and well-to-do, induced a young student at Guy's hospital, named Prebble, to marry her. When Prebble's relatives discovered she was an adventuress they cut him off and he joined the army, where he is now a corporal at $3 a week. Her husband tried to keep her straight, but nothing could stop her periodically recurring celire to pose as a woman of title.

INDIAN MARRIES A DUTCH WIDOW

Mrs. American Horse Now Lives on Lake Erie

When It comes to hymen we Americans are pretty swift. There's Ameria can Horse, the Iroquois Indian chief, who has just returned from the old

The second day Johanna Elizabeth was introduced to American Horse. The third day American Horse showed her around the camp. The fourth day Johanna Elizabeth took American Horse around The Hague in a carriage. The fifth day American Horse took possession of Johanna Elizabeth's heart and they were engaged.

American Horse is a big buck, good looking for an' Indian, and pretty smooth, even if he can't read or write. The widow's relatives were given a look in on the arrangement and there was no objection. American Horse suggested minister right away, but they have a slow Dutch way in Holland of standing up for a two weeks' nocountry with as pretty a little Dutch | tice of coming marriage. So the red-bride as any man would want. And she was a widow, a cute, bright-eyed, plump little widow from over The Hague way.

American Horse, with all his feathers, moccasins, tomahawks (made in Pittsburg) and deer skin pants, went across the water last year as part of a show. There was an Indian village with scalp dances, war dances and other scenes popularly believed in England and the continent to be common in Buffalo and other frontier American

The show was at The Hague a week. Among the first day visitors was Mrs. Johanna Elizabeth von Domelen, the pretty widow, whose husband had left her single and with much good coin of the realm of Wilhelmina.
