SUSAN B. ANTHONY

Participation in the affairs of the National Suffrage organization, had been comparatively quiet. In spite of her 88 years her mind was clear and strong and even in her last sickness she was actively engaged in planning for the future.

Since she retired from the presidency of the suffrage party about three years ago Miss Anthony had traveled widely.

In 1894 she went to Germany to attend the international congress of women, the result of a plan which she devised in 1898 at the fourth anniversary of the first woman's rights convention.

Miss Anthony was received at the Berlin court by Emperor William and his wife, whom she charmed by her simple manners and dignity.

In the following year Miss Anthony was at Portland, Ore., at a great gathering of woman's suffragists. This year she went to Baltimore and it was this journey that overtaxed her strength.

Last Public Appearance Miss Anthony's last public appearance, which was at the national woman's suffrage convention in Baltimore a few weeks ago, was really the beginning of the end of the great suffragist's career.

Miss Anthony was greatly beloved in this city, which had been her home since 1845. She lived to see a decided change in sentiment from the time in the winter of 1861, when she was hissed and hooted when she attempted to give a lecture on abolition in Corinthian hall.

With the exception of Julia Ward Howe, Miss Anthony was the sole survivor of the early suffrage advocates who took part in the movement inaugurated in Seneca Falls in 1848, which was the first woman's rights convention.

The laws for the equal property rights of women were first advocated there. Miss Anthony has said almost every reform which she advocated has been accomplished with the exception of the right of suffrage.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 13.—"Corruption in Politics and Publicity as a Cure for the Evil," will be given an airing this week by the house committee on elections, which began its hearings yesterday. Senator Tillman will appear in the attempt to substantiate the charge that national banks habitually make campaign contributions.

New Scientific Appliance, Always a Perfect Fit—Adjustable to Any Size Person—Easy, Comfortable, Never Slips, No Obnoxious Springs or Pads—Costs Less Than Many Common Trusses—Made for Men, Women or Children.

Sent on Trial

I have invented a rupture appliance that I can safely say, by thirty years' experience in the rupture business, is the only one that will absolutely hold the rupture and never slip, and yet is light, cool, comfortable, conforms to every movement of the body without chafing or hurting and costs less than many ordinary trusses. There are no springs or hard, lumpy pads, and yet

Jas. Britton, Cured of Rupture by C. E. Brooks.

It holds the rupture safely and firmly without pain or inconvenience. I have put the price so low that any person, rich or poor, can buy, and I absolutely guarantee it.

I make it to your order—send it to you—wear it, and if it doesn't satisfy you, send it back to me, and I will refund your money without question.

That is the fairest proposition ever made by a rupture specialist. The banks or the postmaster here in Marshall will tell you that is the way I do business—always absolutely on the square.

Here is what Mr. James Britton, a prominent manufacturer of Bethlehem, Pa., writes:

"C. E. Brooks, Esq. Dear Sir: I have been ruptured six years and have always had trouble with it till I got your appliance. It is very easy to wear, fits neat and snug, and is not in the way at any time, day or night. In fact, at times I did not know I had it on. It just adapted itself to the shape of the body and clung to the spot, no matter what position I was in. It would be a veritable Godsend to the unfortunate who suffer from ruptures, if all could procure the Brooks Rupture Appliance and wear it. They certainly would never regret it. My rupture is all healed up, and nothing even did it but your appliance. Jas. Britton."

If you have tried most everything else, come to me. When others fail, where you get my greatest success. Write me today and I will send you my book on Rupture and its Cure, showing my appliances and giving you prices and names of people who have tried it and been cured. It is instant relief when all other fail. Remember I use no springs, no harness, no ties, just a straight business deal at a reasonable price. C. E. Brooks, 1459 Brooks Bldg., Marshall, Mich.

PUPILS ENTER NEW SCHOOL

North Fort Worth Building Now Occupied

FINE INSTRUCTION

Large Auditorium Feature of Plan Followed in Construction

North Fort Worth's new school building is now in use, school being held in it Tuesday morning for the first time. This, however, is not the formal opening for the public, and no special program was rendered.

The formal opening of the school will take place April 13 when the Teachers' Institute meets in the new auditorium. At that time a program will be rendered and dedicatory services held.

The new school building is one of the finest in the state. It is built of red pressed brick and trimmed in white stone. There are twelve classrooms, which accommodate 600 pupils. A large school auditorium is one of the best features of the building, and has a seating capacity of 600. The seats are opera chairs, and all the fittings are the best. The floor of the auditorium has a three-foot slope from back to front, and there is also a raised platform or stage which will enable every one in the room to see the speaker with ease.

The exterior of the building is neat and attractive; the red brick and white stone trimmings make a contrast with the black slate roof. The building is filled up with dirt. Already there have been close to 150 loads of dirt hauled, and there is a contract for 300 more loads. When the grading is finished up and sodded with nice grass the building will be a beautiful structure with its heterogeneous of trees.

The classrooms are large and light, with much blackboard room. The ceilings of the rooms are all finished in light color, and the walls in a reddish color easy on the eyes. The halls and stairways are wide and roomy; the stairways are very easy and stone so gently that the small child will have no trouble or danger in climbing them.

Besides roomy halls and stairways, there are two rest rooms on each floor. These rooms are to be fitted up so that the teachers or pupils can enter them at will and rest without being disturbed. Another good feature of the building is that it has plenty of light provided by large windows, the seats in most cases being so placed that the light will come over the student's shoulder.

Growth of School

The total cost of the new building will be between $35,000 and $40,000. That such a large building is necessary will be seen from the fact that nearly double the number of teachers were employed at the beginning of this year than were employed at the opening of school last year. In a very few years the school has grown from one to two teachers and a few pupils to attendance more than 500 daily. Three years ago there were but four teachers employed. Now there are thirteen teachers, including the superintendent, and it is probable that more will have to be added at the opening of school next year.

Staff of Teachers

The present teachers are as follows: M. H. Moore, superintendent; A. D. Fincher, principal; J. F. Wharton, seventh grade; Miss M. J. Eskins, sixth grade; Miss Florence McFadden, fifth grade; Miss Lucy Boyd, fourth grade; Miss Julia Christian, third grade; Miss Sadie Moore and Miss Nannie Ozeo, third grade; Miss Mary Egan and Miss Ray McCoy, second grade; Mrs. M. E. Williams and Miss Maggie Moore, first grade. These teachers compose one of the most efficient corps in the state, and are all thoroughly fitted for their work.

As soon as the students and teachers are well located in the new building there will be efforts made to get the school well organized. This has not been necessary because of the location of the buildings. Library and other rooms will be fitted up and school literary societies will be organized.

The trustees of the North Fort Worth school are: J. F. Capps, president; J. E. Collins, treasurer; J. A. Dryden, secretary; T. P. Hopkin, J. D. Farmer, J. L. Lydon and J. W. Moore.

WARM WEATHER RETURNS AGAIN

Steady Advance of Temperatures Since Sunday

Weather in Fort Worth has moderated considerably within the past thirty-six hours. At 7 o'clock Tuesday morning the thermometer registered 42 degrees, the highest since Sunday, having steadily gained from the lowest point on Sunday night. Prediction for Tuesday night is for warmer weather also.

A small rain fell in Fort Worth about 4 o'clock Tuesday morning, amounting to about a sixteenth of an inch. It was prevalent all over the country also, thirty-two of the forty-nine stations reporting rain from a trace to .32 of an inch, the heaviest, which fell at Modena.

Official statement of conditions is as follows:

The low barometer area in the middle west yesterday has spread out and somewhat decreased in energy, dominating the southwest, three-quarters of the country being more or less influenced, causing snow from Oregon to New York City, and from the Canadian border to the Gulf of Mexico, and the District of Columbia on the south, rain falling south of the snow line to Middle East Texas, thence northeastward to Virginia. The Texas reports show a thunderstorm and a maximum wind of sixty miles an hour.

"The cold wave conditions have moderated, the freezing rain being no longer south than the south border of Kansas."

Pugilist Finishes Training for Bout With Terry McGovern

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., March 12.—Batling Nelson has practically completed his hard training for his coming battle with Terry McGovern on next Wednesday night. The Hegawich boy is still hovering around 132 pounds and he says he might make the required weight at any time.

Although there is lots of interest in the battle, there is practically no heavy betting. The odds are that Nelson will win. The favorite wager, however, is based on whether or not there will be a knock-out. The fact that the fight is limited to six rounds makes the probability of a knock-out the more remote.

WARM WEATHER RETURNS AGAIN

Steady Advance of Temperatures Since Sunday

Weather in Fort Worth has moderated considerably within the past thirty-six hours. At 7 o'clock Tuesday morning the thermometer registered 42 degrees, the highest since Sunday, having steadily gained from the lowest point on Sunday night. Prediction for Tuesday night is for warmer weather also.

A small rain fell in Fort Worth about 4 o'clock Tuesday morning, amounting to about a sixteenth of an inch. It was prevalent all over the country also, thirty-two of the forty-nine stations reporting rain from a trace to .32 of an inch, the heaviest, which fell at Modena.

Official statement of conditions is as follows:

The low barometer area in the middle west yesterday has spread out and somewhat decreased in energy, dominating the southwest, three-quarters of the country being more or less influenced, causing snow from Oregon to New York City, and from the Canadian border to the Gulf of Mexico, and the District of Columbia on the south, rain falling south of the snow line to Middle East Texas, thence northeastward to Virginia. The Texas reports show a thunderstorm and a maximum wind of sixty miles an hour.

"The cold wave conditions have moderated, the freezing rain being no longer south than the south border of Kansas."

THE GOVERNOR'S OPINION

Advices from Austin are to the effect that it is the opinion of Governor Lanham that the impending special session of the state legislature cannot go beyond the particular object specified in his call in the matter of legislation. He says he worded his call very carefully with that end in view, and believes that he has kept it within the constitutional requirement which says that a legislature at a special session shall consider only such subjects as may be recommended by the governor.

It cannot be seen how the legislature can take up the whole election law subject under this call of the governor. It is up to them to either adopt or reject the subject of legislation which he has submitted to them. If they see fit to inject new matter into the law, which would be to legislate on subjects not embraced in the governor's call, the latter might very properly see fit to veto such measures. He could do this and leave the election law just as it now stands, which, in the opinion of many well-informed people, is a better measure than would be turned out by the legislature if they were given a free hand at the special session.

It is said that at least one candidate for governor, who favors the proposed blanket primary system, is already busy lining up his supporters among the senators and representatives to favor that provision. This accounts for some of the changes in the views of members of the legislature upon this particular subject since the adjournment of the regular session.

There may be candidates for state office who favor taking up the whole election law fight for the purpose of gaining some real or fancied advantage in the impending state campaign, but so far as the people of North Texas are concerned, they favor no such procedure. Our people look to the legislature to meet in accordance with the governor's call, pass only upon the subject of legislation that he has embodied in that call, and when that work is accomplished, adjourn and go home.

ANOTHER ROAD FOR FORT WORTH

The Santa Fe Central railroad, a New Mexico proposition which came into much prominence a few months ago on account of some sensational financial transactions in the state of Pennsylvania, has passed into new hands and its owners announce that it is to be extended to this city, after being built from its present terminus to Roswell. It is announced that the work of extending to Roswell will be completed within a few months, and the Texas extension will then be pushed through.

There is considerable speculation as to the new ownership of this line of railway. Press dispatches from Pittsburg, Pa., declare the property was purchased by Tallmadge Bros., well known immigration agents, for the sum of $2,600,000, and these gentlemen are in very close touch with the Santa Fe system. Naturally, it would be considered as a Santa Fe proposition, but there are additional rumors. There is a persistent rumor to the effect that the Santa Fe Central has fallen into the hands of the Gould interests, and the new purchasers were only acting for the Gould interests when they acquired the property.

There are several reasons why the Gould proposition looks the most feasible. All that section of West Texas that has so long been monopolized by the Texas & Pacific is just now in the throes of rapid railway building. The Orient, the Santa Fe, the Frisco and other lines are getting so far west that the Gould people have awakened to the fact that there must be something done. A preliminary survey was made last year for a line to be built as a spur from Roscoe, in Nolan county, to Lubbock, but it is believed now this plan has been abandoned in favor of a new move. Preparations have been in progress for some time for an extension of the Weatherford, Mineral Wells and Northwestern from its present terminus at Mineral Wells to the Northwest, and actual work is now about ready to begin. Just where this extension of the Mineral Wells road is going is not known, but those who have an eye on the indicator believe they can see something that looks good for Fort Worth.

It is believed the Mineral Wells road will be extended on to a connection with the Santa Fe Central at Roswell, and when that has been accomplished the Gould hand will be revealed. It will be found that the Santa Fe Central is to become a part of the Weatherford, Mineral Wells and Northwestern, and Texas and Pacific tracks used between this city and Weatherford to give the line the proper Fort Worth connections. The Gould people are not noted for taking the public into their confidence. But they are railroad builders in every sense of the term, and they are going to protect their territory from present rapid encroachments. There is a big game of railroading in progress in all the territory west of this city, and there are going to be some startling developments in the next few months. The big systems are trying to keep from exposing the game until matters are better in hand, but there are some very interesting developments just a little bit ahead.

Fort Worth is deeply interested in this matter, and will give the new line headed this way a royal reception. Amarillo has just experienced a very disastrous fire, and it was the largest in the history of that progressive young city. But Amarillo is not made of the stuff that repines under such visitations. By the time the ground cools off rebuilding will be in progress.

People are still picking cotton out in West Texas, and still there are those who say that crops are not to be relied upon in that section. When a people can raise more than they can gather it must appear that agriculture is a pretty safe and profitable avocation. According to official advices, the gubernatorial campaign is to get into full swing by the first of April, and this may be just a little matter of coincidence. It will be later in the season when several of the distinguished aspirants will find they have been April fool.

to protect themselves in the territory that is being invaded by so many rival lines. The Mineral Wells road is going to be pushed well into the Northwest.

Those Texas cattlemen who visit Dallas next week for the purpose of attending the big convention held there, will all remember that Fort Worth is only thirty miles west, and an ideal camping ground.

Good rains are reported from a large portion of West Texas, and this means additional prosperity for a large slice of Fort Worth trade territory which will be reflected in more business this spring.

The weather man is evidently laboring under a misapprehension. It is time that winter was taking leave of the lap of spring, for we have no need of any more March blizzards. It is corn planting time in Texas.

North Texas has no desire to make a political vassal of South Texas, and our good friends down there are becoming unduly alarmed over something that exists only in the fertile imaginations of some dreamy citizens of that section.

A Corsicana negro has just been fined $100 for being caught in possession of a pistol. Now, let the white pistol toters in Navarro county be administered the same kind of medicine. They are by far the most dangerous of the hog-leg tribe.

Amarillo has just experienced a very disastrous fire, and it was the largest in the history of that progressive young city. But Amarillo is not made of the stuff that repines under such visitations. By the time the ground cools off rebuilding will be in progress.

THE TEXAS PRESS

What has become of Colonel Peters? If conditions in the cotton market do not improve very soon he will be justified in talking back at the Southern Cotton Growers' association—Tyler Courier.

Colonel Peters is still on deck, and occasionally gives the cotton producers the benefit of a little sage advice to the effect it is a good time to sell. He is a little disfigured but still in the ring.

The Dallas Humane Society is urging legislation to prevent the sale of toy pistols in Texas. The toy pistol is a fruitful source of lockjaw and a deadly weapon. Its victims are as numerous as those of the pistol that is not a toy.—San Antonio Express.

The suppression of the toy pistol nuisance in a move in the right direction and should find support all over Texas. Fort Worth has furnished a number of victims to this deadly toy, and it is high time the matter received proper attention.

General Bell, candidate for governor, has been in Texas thirty years, and has served twenty-six of them in public office. It is said that he has been too busy holding office to even get married. He ought to have a chance, else he will soon be too old.—Groesbeck Journal.

Did you hear that, girls? Make him pop the question or else force him out of the race for governor.—Houston Post.

Judge Bell is too busy now to consider such delicate matters. Perhaps when his political aspirations are satisfied he may find time to turn in the direction indicated.

A Tarrant county citizen charged with violating the Terrell election law by furnishing money to pay poll taxes, has been fined $300 and sentenced to sixty days' labor on the county road. This is the first case tried in the county for a violation of the election law. Moral, pay your own poll taxes.—McKinney Gazette.

It is pretty hard proposition when a man cannot borrow money with which to pay his poll tax without being subjected to fine and imprisonment. But the only safe way is to go out and earn it by the sweat of the brow.

According to The Fort Worth Telegram, Representative Williams of Tarrant county stands pat on the free service proposition. It says: "Representative William D. Williams of this city, having once said he was willing to serve in an extra session of the state legislature without pay, is still standing pat on the proposition."

There are others, however, to whom "intangible assets" do not appeal so strongly.—Houston Post.

There are always "others" who do not see things in their proper light. Every member of the state legislature who agreed to serve without pay is in honor bound to stick to that agreement.

The Dallas Times-Herald says it is safer to murder a man in cold blood in Texas than to loan a neighbor $75 to pay his poll tax. That is a strong statement, but a Tarrant county jury fined a man $300 and sentenced him to sixty days' hard labor for loaning a man money to pay his poll tax. It is very rare that a man guilty of mere murder suffers any such penalty.—Houston Post.

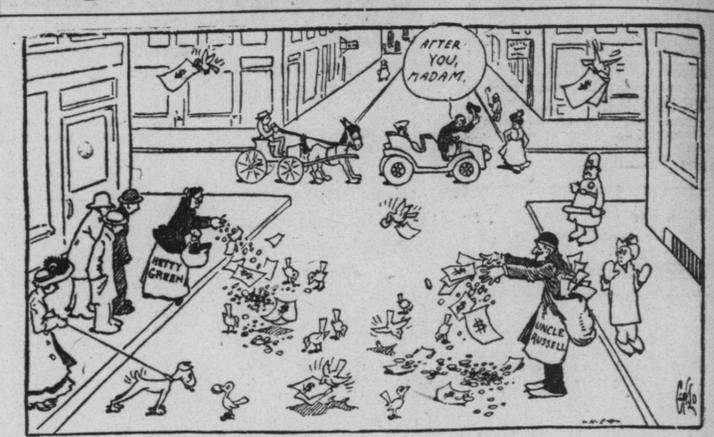

There is much connected with the Terrell election law just beginning to come to the surface that causes the people of Texas to indulge in a whole lot of hard thinking. And the probabilities are the next legislature will feel called upon to modify some of its most drastic provisions.

The following from Joseph W. Bailey has just reached the Chronicle: United States Senate, Washington, March 6. To the Editor of the Chronicle: The senate adjourned from Friday until Monday, and I was not in Washington when your telegram announcing the death of ex-Governor Hogg, and asking for a brief tribute to him, reached here. Had your telegram reached me in due time, I would, of course, have complied with your request. At the side of the grave the bitterness is silenced, and those who did not agree with him must concede that he rendered the state of Texas and to our people an inestimable service. Very truly yours, J. W. BAILEY.—Houston Chronicle.

There was talk of antagonism between Hogg and Bailey during all the latter years of Hogg's life and he was the one man Bailey had to fear in the matter of retaining the grip on the United States senatorship. But Hogg never became a candidate, and if there was any bitterness between the two men it has been wiped out by the icy hand of death.

A woman is seldom satisfied when an old dress is forced to do her a good turn.

Things That Might Have Happened But Won't

PUBLIC OPINION

The Kansas City Journal says that Governor Ross, with his announced campaign of enforcement of law, is a "punctured bubble." It goes on to say: "The extent of his performance during his term as governor has been the enforcement of the Sunday closing law. Many other laws remain as dead letters on the statute books, but Mr. Folk has not raised a finger to enforce them. They are not spectacular reforms—just plain, prosy measures intended to promote the material welfare of the commonwealth. Such laws do not afford a single opportunity to declaim about 'civic righteousness' and so they neither appeal to Folk's love of notoriety nor would their enforcement furnish any material for flaming headlines in his campaign for the presidency. Mr. Folk's record as a champion of law enforcement, or as a practical reformer, does not compare favorably with those of Attorney General Hadley, Secretary of State Swanger and the other republican state officials who are quietly doing their duty without any flourish of trumpets."

Felicitating the city over the $1,000 license for saloons, the Chicago News says: "As for the saloon interests, they have received a stern notification that offenses committed by disorderly drinking resorts and their patrons will be condoned no longer. They have been accorded wide latitude. Because they would not respect the midnight-closing ordinance they were given permission to keep open their doors until 1 o'clock in the morning. This valuable concession did not satisfy them, for in very many instances they continued to sell liquor long after that hour. In other ways they showed their contempt for the laws and ordinances, feeling secure in the political influence which they deemed themselves capable of wielding. Now there are to be police enough to enforce strictly the regulations governing the sale of liquor, to break up the gangs of hoodlums that are fostered by saloons and to compel good order throughout the city. The results will prove of enormous benefit to the community, provided the citizens insist upon obtaining full value from the enlarged police force. The country will be glad to hear in six months from now how the thing has worked out."

The decision of the postmaster general that the literature of a bureau devoted to reforms of various kinds was not proper matter to go through the mails under a congressman's frank, the Philadelphia Ledger thinks, may be the beginning of a real reform that shall exclude all matter that is partisan or foreign to the public service. It says: "If temperance tracts, divorce reform briefs and the like are improper subjects for the congressional frank, much greater is the abuse when the government is forced to pay for the dissemination of documents bearing solely on partisan aspects of political questions. Perhaps it is utopian to look for action from congress for the total abolition of the whole franking system, but there is no manner of doubt that it ought to be controlled in some way."

QUAKER REFLECTIONS A lame excuse won't carry you far. Some men have no higher idea of dignity than a frock coat and side whiskers. Lots of us would hate to become vegetarians, but that seems the only way to down the beef trust. When a woman puts on her crown of glory she will probably want some extra trimmings and feathers. The man who turns out in the rain to go to church feels that he is entitled to a double measure of blessedness. When a man continues to go to dances after he is 30 it's a pretty good sign he will never amount to much. Blobs—"So you gave up $10 to that fortune teller, eh? What did she tell you?" Slobbs—"She said I was too easy."—Philadelphia Record.

POINTED PARAGRAPHS The trip hammer doesn't travel far, but it makes many trips. That stiffness which is due to rheumatism is seldom mistaken for dignity. The ocean life is filled with breakers; that is why so many of us go broke. Talk is so cheap that barbers are willing to give a lot of it with each shave. Did you ever notice that the size of trouble depends on whether it is coming or going? While the father's intentions may be good, the son usually tumbles into the same old pitfalls.—Chicago News.

REFLECTIONS OF A BACHELOR Even insurance grafters think politicians are a bad lot. It would be awful easy to be good if there was more fun in it. A girl can catch a husband with her looks; it takes tact to hold him. A man has to have a lot of courage to admit his baby looks only like a baby. When a man goes home with a package that his wife thinks is candy it is a sign it is a box of cigars.—New York Press.

NOT A DELIBERATE BODY Speaking of going some, the house passed 429 pension bills yesterday in seventy-two minutes. You remember what the late Mr. Reed said the house was not.—Indianapolis News.

NOT HIS DOCTRINE Your Uncle Samuel acting as the European policeman for Morocco, would be a sight calculated to shock several years' growth out of the late Mr. Monroe.—Richmond Times-Dispatch.

VERVET THAT RING

WAITING I'm growin' tired of waitin' for the rustlin' of the leaves When the wind sighs through the branches an' the night bird sits and grieves; I want to hear the chipmunk as he chatters overhead. An' I want the twilight's glory when the sun sinks big an' red; I'd like to find my way along the shaded paths and cool. That would, fern bordered, through the wood beside the swimming pool; I'd like to hear the swishing of the willow's graceful tips As they bent and kissed the water—like an ardent lover's lips. I'm waitin' for the violets like patience on a stone, But it's mighty cheerless waitin' when the world's so bleakish green; I hear the wind come whirling 'round the winder panes at night, And the trees they moan and creak—I guess it's 'cause of pain and fright! I can see the prairies billow with their garments white and chaste, And the stumps stand out like derelicts on an ocean's dreary waste; And when the crimson sunset tints the cold and dreamy west I don't take nary soul to tell me summer time's the best! I'm waitin' for the meadows where the daisies dip and gleam, Where each breeze that comes a-litling brings its hinting of a dream— And I want the dusty road that like a ribbon lies unfurled, Winding, winding, winding to some far-off, wondrous world! It's a heap of satisfaction, even though the wait is long, Jest to know the days are comin' with their loafin' time an' song. Let the man that deals the weather send his whirling snow and sleet— But he's got to give us summer—an' old summer can't be beat!—Milwaukee Sentinel.

WASHINGTON LETTER

WASHINGTON, March 13.—Assistant Secretary of State Bacon, in cleaning up his desk yesterday, found several ink-spattered, soiled, and rumpled pieces of paper there. With one index finger he touched a bell button for his messenger. With the other and the thumb that toils with it he lifted one of the dirty bits of paper. "Eddy," he said, holding up the blotted paper as the messenger advanced to his desk, "what is this?" "That, sir," replied the faithful messenger, "is your pay check." "And what is this?" said Mr. Bacon, lifting up another dirty piece of paper gingerly. "That also," said Eddy, "is a pay check." "And all these are also?" "Yes, sir, they are all pay checks." "Well, take the filthy things away and cash them, then," said the assistant secretary in a tone of disgust as he took up a confidential dispatch from Algiercas that had just been brought in fresh from the deciphering clerk.

Two of them were pretty girls, visiting Washington. They listened with hushed attention to the words of wisdom that fell from the lips of the third. He was their Washington cousin and knew all about the capitol and was graciously explaining its sights to them. "And this," said he, stopping before a door in the capitol, "is the supreme court of the United States. That, you know, is the highest judicial court in the land. There are other courts in different parts of the country that are just as high, but this is the highest judicial court."

Down in South Carolina they are unusually solicitous for the personal comfort of Uncle Joe Cannon. Several articles of personal use and adornment have recently come to the speaker from that state, and yet South Carolina is not satisfied. That the outfit of clothing which began with a homespun suit and has been steadily growing, may be complete, Editor Hemphill of the Charleston News and Courier, has decided to send Uncle Joe a pair of real old-fashioned fancy calfskin boots. And to make the present more thoroughly representative he has asked for contributions of one cent. He has limited the subscription list to Republicans, and his notification to Uncle Joe of what he is doing says that by that means the boots will be a gift from the entire Republican party of the state. In fact, Mr. Hemphill is a little doubtful of there being enough Republicans in South Carolina at one cent apiece to make up 1,700 necessary to raise the price of the boots, but he says that if the lamentable suspicion of his proves to be well-founded he will cheerfully make up the deficit.

MONNIG DRAWS WITH LASKER Local Chess Player Worries Champion

Monday was an interesting day to the chess followers in this city. Dr. Emanuel Lasker, chess champion of the world, spent the afternoon and evening here in the room he has rented on "Chess" and in the evening played simultaneous chess and checkers with the Fort Worth players.

Monday night started promptly at 8 o'clock in the offices of J. L. Bushong at Fourth and Main streets. Tables were arranged in the two rooms in two rows so that Dr. Lasker could move between them and play as he came to the different boards.

ROCK ISLAND WILL EXTEND DRAKE AT DESK Says No Changes Will Be Made in Local Force of the Frisco

The Rock Island railroad will shortly extend from Graham, the present terminus, to Throckmorton. A number of prominent land owners of the section to be traversed by the proposed extension were here Monday, and the extension was definitely decided upon.

The extension will extend through Young county and its building will mean the enhancement of property values in that county. Chief Engineer Peter of the Rock Island has been instructed to send out a survey party for the purpose of making the necessary surveys, and the work upon the proposed extension will be commenced in the near future.

Dr. Lasker is not only a chess player but he is a well known mathematician and has had several books on mathematical subjects printed. He is 37 years of age at the present time, but has been world's chess champion for twelve years, winning it when he was 25 years of age.

Dr. Lasker was born in Borlinchen, Prussia, Dec. 24, 1868. He was educated at the University of Berlin, Berlin, Göttingen and Heidelberg. He studied mathematics from March, 1888, to March, 1891, and from May, 1896, to March, 1897. He was chess champion of England in 1892; of America in 1893, and of the world in 1894.

NEW BANK PLANNED Fort Worth Capital to Be in West Texas Institution

F. M. Long of Fort Worth and H. J. Hudderton, J. D. Skinner, N. H. Irvin and W. F. Martin have made application to the state for a charter for a new bank of $50,000 capital to be located at the terminus of the Texas Central in White Flat country near Roby.

Nothing definite as to the arrangements has been given out yet by the parties concerned. Wallace J. Ross, dispatcher in the Texas and Pacific west end office, is ill with the grip and Chief Dispatcher J. A. Hills is doing double duty, holding down his own trick and that of Ross.

Prof. Wm. Winslow lectured at Greenwall's opera house Monday night on Vitosophy. He discussed life in general but confined the greater part of his lecture to the subject of matrimony and illustrated why and how certain people are not fitted for certain other ones.

CHESS LECTURE men did not play an actual game of their own, but assisted at the other boards by consulting.

Dr. Lasker in his lecture stated that although few realized it, there were perhaps hundreds of chess players some of them dating back over a thousand years. He stated that contrary to the ideas of many beginners the proper way to learn chess was not to start by learning the books but by actual study of the game itself.

Dr. Lasker is not only a chess player but he is a well known mathematician and has had several books on mathematical subjects printed. He is 37 years of age at the present time, but has been world's chess champion for twelve years, winning it when he was 25 years of age.

The principles of brain development and configuration. Violation of the laws of health, he said, will cause the loss of character through degeneration; this is in constant operation whether known or not; the thing to do is to recognize such conditions and be able to remedy them.

He then pointed out why an uncongenial marriage will cause degeneration and crime. Heine, poverty and fear are largely matters of health, he said. "The weak individual, no difference from what cause he may have become so, is degenerate and the thing to do is to find and know the cause of the trouble that has reduced him from a normal condition to a weakening, tired and worn state."

OF INTEREST TO WOMEN

HEARTS AND MASKS HINTS BY MAY MANTON

By Harold MacGrath Copyright 1905, Bobbs-Merrill Co.

Not till the candles again sputtered with light, and William was securely handcuffed and disarmed, did I recall that I possessed the sense of emotion. The smoke of the powder drifted across the flickering candles, and there was a salty taste on my tongue.

"Horrible!" cried the girl, covering her eyes.

The master rogue and his valet were led out into the assembly room, and we reluctantly followed. I saw it all now. When Haggerty called up central at the club, he ascertained where the last call had been from, and hearing that it came from Hollywood Inn, he took his chance. The room was soon filled with servants and stable hands, the pistol shot having lured them from their beds. The wounded man was very pale. He sat with his uninjured hand tightly clasped above the ragged wound, and a little pool of blood slowly formed at his side on the floor. But his eyes shone brightly.

"A basin of water and some linen," cried the girl to Moriarty. "And send all these people away."

"To yer rooms, iverly one of ye!" snapped Moriarty, sweeping his hands. "Tis no place for ye, be off!" He hurried the servants out of the room, and presently returned with a basin of water, some linen and a basin.

We watched the girl as she bathed and bandaged the wounded arm; and once or twice the patient smiled. Haggerty looked on approvingly, and in William's eyes there beamed the gentle light of reverence. It was a picture to see this lovely creature playing the part of the good Samaritan, moving here and there in her exquisite gown. Ah, the tender mercy! I knew that, come what might, I had strangely found the right woman—the one woman.

"You're a good little woman," said the rogue, his face softening; "and a good woman is the finest thing God ever placed upon earth. Had I only found one!" He turned whimsically toward me. "Are you engaged to marry this little woman?"

"Surely you love her!"

"Surely I do!" I looked bravely at the girl as I spoke.

But she never gave any sign that she heard. She pinned the ends of the bandages carefully.

"And what brought you to this?" asked Haggerty, looking down at his prisoner.

The prisoner shrugged.

"You're the making of a fine man in you," went on Haggerty generously. "What caused you to slip up?"

"That subject is taboo," replied the thief. "But I want to beg your pardon for underestimating your cunning."

"It was all due to a chance shot at the telephone."

"I kept you guessing."

"Merrily, too. My admiration is wholly yours, sir," returned Haggerty, picking up the telephone exchange book. He rang and placed his lips to the transmitter, calling a number.

"Hello! Is this the chief of the Blankshire police? Yes! Well, this is Haggerty. That idea I hinted to you was a mighty good one. Prepare two strong cells and have a doctor on hand. What? Oh, you will find your horse and carriage at Moriarty's. Good-bye!"

My money was handed over to me. I returned it to my wallet, but without any particular enthusiasm.

"It's a bad business, William," said I. "It's all in the game, sir"—with a look at Haggerty that expressed infinite hatred. "In our business we can't afford to be careless."

"Or to talk too much," supplemented his master, smiling. "Talk my friend, round me up with a bullet in the arm, and a long sojourn behind stone walls. Never talk. Thank you, Miss Hawthorne, and you too, Mr. Constable, for the saving grace of humor. If it were possible, I should like to give Miss Hawthorne the pick of the jewels. This is a sorrowful world."

"Ye'er car-r-r is coming!" shouted Moriarty, running to the window.

So the girl and I passed out of Hollywood Inn, leaving Haggerty with his mysterious prisoners. I can't reason it out, even to this day, but I was genuinely sorry that Haggerty had arrived upon the scene. For one thing, he had spoiled the glamour of the adventure by tingeing it with blood. And on the way to the car I wondered what had been the rogue's past, what had turned him into this hardy, perilous path. He had spoken of a woman; perhaps that was it. They are always behind good actions and bad. Hello-ho!

Once we were seated in the lonely car, the girl broke down and cried as if her heart would break. It was only the general reaction, but the sight of her tears moved me.

"Don't cry, girl; don't!" I whispered, taking her hand in mine. She made no effort to repulse me. "I am sorry. The rascal was a gallant beggar, and I for one shouldn't have been sorry to see him get away. There, there! You're the bravest, tenderest girl in all this world; and when I told him I loved you, God knows, I meant it! It is one of those inexplicable things. You say I have known you only eight hours? I have known you always, only I had not met you. What are eight hours? What is convention, formality? We two have lived a lifetime in these eight hours. Can't you see that?"

"To shoot a human being!" she sobbed. Her head fell against my shoulder. I do not believe she was conscious of the fact. And I did not care a hang for the conductor.

I patted her hand encouragingly. "It had to be done. He was in a desperate predicament, and he would have shot Haggerty had the detective been careless in his turn; and he wouldn't have aimed to maim, either."

"What a horrible night! It will haunt me like a live!"

I said nothing; and we did not speak again till the first of the Blankshire lights flashed by us. By this time her sobs had ceased.

"I know I haven't done anything especially gallant tonight; no fighting, no rescuing and all that. They just moved me around like a piece of stage scenery."

A smile flashed and was gone. It was a hopeful sign.

"But the rest is the same. You have admitted to me that you are neither engaged nor married. Won't you take me on—on approval?"

"Mr. Constable! It all seems so like a horrid dream. You are a brave man, and what is better, a sensible one, for you submitted to the inevitable with the best possible grace. But you talk of love as readily as a hero in a popular novel."

"I never go back," said I. "It seems incredible, doesn't it, that I should declare myself in this fashion? Listen. For my part, I believe that all this was written—my Tomfoolery in Moriarty's, my imposture and yours, the two identical cards—the adventure from beginning to end."

"Suppose I should say," the girl began, looking out of the window, "that in the restaurant you aroused my curiosity, that in the collars my admiration was stirred, that the frank manner in which you expressed your regard for me to—the burglar—awakened—"

"What?" I cried eagerly.

"Nothing. It was merely a supposition."

"Hang it! I do love you!"

"Are you still the Capuchin, or simply Mr. Constable?"

"I have laid aside all masks, even that which hides the heart."

She turned and looked me steadily in the eyes.

"Well," said I, "if I took you on—on approval, what in the world should I do with you in case you should not suit my needs?"

"You could return me," said I laughing. But she didn't.

Market Fairly Active—List Weak at Start, but Develops Strength During the Session
Special to The Telegram
NEW YORK, March 13.—Further rumors regarding the litch in the Moroccan conference affected the foreign market's advance, as evidenced by the rather heavy tone of American stocks in London. This caused a lower opening of the local market, but the selling noted was largely of a professional character and did not attract much attention following. One of the features of the early session was the weakness of Union Pacific, the heavy sales of this stock being especially for the Morgan & Hollis interests. The few specialties which were strong yesterday in the face of a declining market again exhibited a healthy undertone, American Smelter being the leader of the upward movement. A. C. P. was weak during the first hour, selling off over a point, but rallied sharply when it became known that a 7 per cent dividend had been declared on United Copper, common. There was a decided decrease in the supply of bull tips and advice from Pittsburgh were not at all optimistic regarding the labor situation in the coal fields. Nevertheless, after an early decline of over a point in leading there probably have declined further if the market had not closed at the low point. Local receipts 6 cars. The northwest reports 261 cars. Clearances 13,000 bushels. Bradstreet's report on the world's available supply shows an increase for the past week of 296,000 bushels.

NEW FIRE STATION

Building With Equipment and Seven Men for Seventh Ward
A new fire station is to be built and put into commission as soon as possible. This was settled by the committee which was appointed at the last meeting of the city council. Monday afternoon this committee met and discussed the petition of the south side people, who asked that a new station be granted them in the Eighth ward. At the same time the station asked for in the Seventh ward was refused, and it will not be established for the present at least. Chief Biddeker has recommended that the new station be equipped with an engine and a hose wagon, with seven men to man the apparatus. It will require some time to build and get the apparatus installed, and it is not thought that the new station will be ready for use before Aug. 1. The new station is to be on Bellevue avenue, near Travis avenue.

Wheat Sold Liberally in Response to Bearish Foreign Advice—Prices Break Sharply
Special to The Telegram.
CHICAGO, March 13.—Wheat prices in Liverpool did not respond to the market's advance yesterday, showing a general decline of 1/4 to 1/2. As a matter of course this weakened the position of the local market and initial prices were 1/4 to 1/2 lower, commission houses bought on the decline, picking up a million bushels during the initial trading. This brought some strength to the market and occasioned a reaction to yesterday's closing level. The attitude of the foreign market could not be ignored and this in connection with the unfavorable aspect of the entire absence of demand, while there is 4,000,000 bushels of No. 2 hard winter wheat in the local stock, influenced sentiment to the bear side, and the local crowd went heavily short, hammering the market persistently and sending prices downward with slight reactions at intervals. In the afternoon those who had bought early joined the throng who had sold and there was no semblance of support, prices broke 1/2 from the best and would probably have declined further if the market had not closed at the low point. Local receipts 6 cars. The northwest reports 261 cars. Clearances 13,000 bushels. Bradstreet's report on the world's available supply shows a decrease of 296,000 bushels for the past week.

New Orleans Cotton
Special to The Telegram.
NEW ORLEANS, La., March 13.—The cotton market was again with the volume of trade light. Despite the bullish character of the early news from the foreign market opening prices were unchanged to one point lower. However, as the market was evidently sold out and with no buying support other than the covering by shorts, prices eventually worked up to 10 to 15 points above yesterday's final. The close was steady with prices near the best.

Short Covering a Feature—Foreign Strength Causes Change of Tactics on This Side
Special to The Telegram.
NEW YORK, March 13.—Covering by shorts influenced by an improvement in the foreign market was the principal feature of the local trading today. Liverpool advices were very encouraging regarding the course of prices on the contract market and the heavy sending of orders was noted. The opening here was disappointing inasmuch as prices showed only a slight response to the foreign strength, the near positions being 1/4 to 1/2 higher on the first call. This was accounted for by the heavy accumulation of night of selling orders from the south. In the initial trading the local crowd went out after stop orders and a net decline of 1 point. But the stop orders were not uncovered and it was found that the large bear interests were absorbing the offerings, this causing a sudden reversal of tactics during the balance of the session the early sellers were good purchasers. Prices advanced steadily, reaching the best in the final trading. The close was steady with prices at a net gain of 10 to 15 points. Spots were steady with prices 10 points higher on a basis of 11 1/2 for middling. Sales, 800 bales. Futures ranged as follows:

Recently many negroes have come here from Texas, and for the most part they are of the shiftless, adventurous class. The Indian Territory being under Federal control, the negroes are not so numerous here as in Texas. They have their political clubs and their indorsements for Federal positions are sought. In some instances they have been sent to delegates to conventions and are not slow to accept any political honors that are to be had. The negroes are not so numerous here as in Texas. BANKER & OLDS FORGERY SUSPECT
Note Presented at Waxahachie Said to Be Bad
Special to The Telegram.
WAXAHACHIE, Texas, March 13.—A bold attempt to obtain a large sum of money from the Citizens' National bank this morning on an alleged forged note was frustrated by Judge Dunlap, president of the bank, who held the man who presented it under cover of a revolver until an officer's arrival on the scene. Soon after the bank opened this morning a young man presented a note for $15,000, which contained the name of O. A. Finley, a farmer, as secured by the signature of which is detected a forgery. Dunlap ordered the young man with a pistol, while officers were telephoned for. At the fall the young man gave his name as T. B. Turner. When searched another note for $15,225, drawn on the Waxahachie National bank, was found in his possession. To this note the name of H. P. Grimes, a farmer, had been affixed. Two complaints charging forgery were filed against Turner.

TWO VARIETIES OF BIBLICAL CRITICISM

Rev. M. B. Lambdin Talks of Biblical Investigation

TITLE AMBIGUOUS
Higher the Criticism, Lower the Piety, Declares Speaker at Ministers' Meeting

Following is the text of a paper read at the Monday meeting of the Fort Worth Ministers' association by Rev. M. B. Lambdin, pastor of the College avenue Presbyterian church:

Biblical criticism is the scientific method of the investigation of the Bible, which deals with the sacred word as literary and historical products, seeking to shed some light on them as they shall help to a clearer and fuller knowledge of their nature and contents.

This department of legitimate research naturally divides itself into two distinct branches, in accordance with the tasks which each has to perform. These are usually termed lower or textual criticism and higher or historical criticism. Why one is termed higher and the other lower is difficult to explain. It certainly does not mean that one is of higher or lower value than the other.

The lower criticism undertakes to settle the exact text of the Scriptures, for which reason it is sometimes known as textual criticism. It aims to discover what were the precise words and phrases used by the authors of the several books. The learned scholar in this department of inquiry examines the oldest manuscripts and various translations of the Holy Scriptures in the Hebrew, Greek, Latin, Syriac and other languages, that he may determine what was the text common to the original authors of the inspired writers. For the same purpose he also collates the numerous quotations of Scripture found in the Christian writings of the early centuries of the church.

The higher criticism, or as it is often called, literary or historical criticism, deals with the authenticity of the various books of the Bible. It handles the questions as to authorship, origin, date; it pushes the inquiry relative to the age in which they were written, their genuineness and authority. By a rigid scrutiny of literary and historical facts, it seeks to determine the contents themselves, and availing himself of all outside sources of information and assistance, the investigation in this sphere of inquiry endeavors to ascertain the sources from which the contents of the Bible obtained the materials for their composition. A great variety of questions in history, philology, etymology and comparative religions have also to be considered by the investigator.

The task of the higher critic then is to answer such questions as these: "Are the sacred writings as they are, what we can rely on their truth?" "Who were their authors and were they trustworthy?" "Were the real authors of the various books of the Bible?" "What was the actual mode of composition or compilation?" "What were the dates, places and circumstances of the production of the several books?" "To what extent, if any, were already existing literary materials used?" "What is the bearing of inspiration on all those questions?"

Any scholar who deals with these questions is, in the strict sense, a higher critic. His field is wide and his task is weighty. It is likewise a legitimate field of study and profitable in its results. The indiscriminate and untempered use of higher criticism is unjust and betrays ignorance.

Two Kinds of Criticism

But there is higher criticism and "higher criticism." There is a form of it which is not only scholarly and thorough, but reverent and conservative and orthodox. Not only scientific and exact, but loyal to the inspirational integrity of the Word of God. This form of higher criticism is constructive and conservative. There is another type, however, known as destructive and radical; so rationalistic in its methods, so arrogant in its claims of primacy and lordship in the domain of scholarship that it has well-nigh misappropriated to itself the name of higher criticism and rendered the title one of ill omen and suspicion. Its exponents are the higher critics who take the center of the stage and parade their theories and exploit their assumptions as worthy of immediate and unquestioned acceptance by all, lest the reflector be willing to wear the brand of an ignoramus in the scholarly field of research. The only scholarship worth the having, under their modest claim, is the type which professes to lead us into the line of claimants. Astruc (1654-1766), a Frenchman, professor of anatomy at Toulouse, was the first to publish his "Conjectures" at Brussels and Paris, in which the radical views of higher criticism were first set forth. It was this man who originated the distinction between the Jehovist and the Elohist in the Scriptures, and it was Astruc who affirmed and pointed out supposed contradictions and interpolations and numerous errors in the Book of Genesis. and systematic shape, and also affixed the distinctive term "higher criticism" to it was Eichhorn (1781-1854). His successes have been Criticus, De Witte, Strauss, Baur, Vatke, Keunen, Wellhausen, Von Ewald. It is not necessary to lengthen the list by the inclusion of other and lesser names, as Goethe has finely said, "There are many echoes; few voices." There is nothing new which comes from the schools of England and America. They simply reflect continental thought and borrow second-hand the rationalistic postulate of the schools of Göttingen, Labingen and Halle.

Genesis, according to the radical higher criticism, is a literary art gallery, designed for exhibiting things in a pictorial way. The record gives us in its early chapters, particularly of the creation, the origin of man, the origin of the fall in the Garden of Eden, not to be gravely accepted and understood as veritable history, the narrative of actual occurrences, literal events, if it is not to be taken as an allegorical and mythical. With many of these advanced "scholars" Adam and Eve were merely a pictorial pair. It is possible to believe that they were created or formed as the narrative, in its face, tells us they were; one out of the dust of the ground, the other from a rib of her mother's side. The poetry, along with the incidents of their temptation and fall. A favorite expression of these writers is, the "Adam myth."

The story of the Deluge has no place as credible history; it is a bit of Babylonian myth or legend, with a historical basis, which has been naturalized and become naturalized in Canaan. The tower of Babel and the confusion of tongues must be out of the court of rational acceptance as mere legends. The uncanny appearance of the Dead Sea, an occasion for the invention of the weird story of the destruction of Sodom and Gomorrah. The extraordinary character of the events are accredited as traditions, wholly unreliable in historical value, to be put on a par with the early myths and legends of Greece and Rome. The canons of this so-called destructive process, no less than ordinary and rational intelligence, now reject as the quotations of Scripture found in the Christian writings of the early centuries of the church.

Abraham, Isaac and Jacob are only poetic types, personifying clans, and representing the different ethnological groups. The stories clustering about them are, of course, to be understood as folk-lore, corresponding to the legends of other peoples. The delight of the religious imagination of all ages." Of course, the theophanies, the colloquies affirmed to have taken place between the patriarchs and other historical persons, and nothing more than oriental fancies.

Moses, however, runs the best chance of retaining a real character. But when the searchlight of higher criticism is focused on the wonderful incidents associated with his birth and preservation, his introduction into the palace of the Pharaohs; the series of plagues; the Exodus; the forty years' wanderings in the wilderness; the giving of the Law at Sinai; the construction of the tabernacle; the building of the temple; the death of Moses, the entire history of Moses to the entire five as the author, as a literary fiction.

The Pentateuch is thus not Mosaic, but a Moses.

But the books of the Pentateuch are not the product of one mind but of many. Higher criticism asserts can readily be seen by a scientific examination of the Pentateuch. The study of each book. Genesis, for instance, they affirm, is composed of materials produced by seven or eight men, and so on. The Pentateuch is thus not Mosaic, but a Moses.

The simple facts are these: The "Clan Jacob" once sojourning in Egypt; were oppressed, escaped in some unknown way to the wilderness under the leadership of Moses, who really made the tale which should command our credence. The plagues, the parting of the Red Sea, the fall of manna, the defeat of the Amorites, the giving of the Law, the building of the tabernacle, the elevation of the brazen serpent on a pole was an expression of it. Just as the rude Alaskan sets up his totem pole, so the Hebrews set up their legendary embellishments, to be disposed of upon naturalistic principles.

The exact genesis of this type of higher criticism is not definitely settled as yet. under the waters of a rational reflection of the preposterous story. With the skill, deftness and nerve of a surgical literary and historical surgeon, Elijah and Elilba are disposed of. The miraculous nourishment by the brook, the restoration of two dead boys, the vanishing and reappearing meal in the barrel and the oil in the cruse, the axe swimming on the surface of the water, the successive flashes of fire from Heaven destroying the bands of soldiers, the transition in a chariot of fire, these and many more besides are red-taped—"fabulous."

And what shall I more say? "Job is a dream; Jonah an instructive parable; other a romance; the Books of Samuel, Chronicles, Ezra, Daniel are unreliable history and puerile prophecy; that much of the prophecy of the Old Testament has been reversed by history."

Solomon did not write the Songs of Solomon; he is not the author of Ecclesiastes and only a few of the Proverbs are from his pen. Isaiah must be accredited to two authors; the reputed Isaiah and deuterio-Isaiah; that is the production of Isaiah I and Isaiah II.

Authorship of Pentateuch

The "bloody angle" of the critical conflict has centered largely about the authorship of the Pentateuch. These five books did not, as the traditional view has held it, come from the hands of Moses. The Pentateuch, as a whole, nor even in his day. "Higher criticism" can tell you just how it was done. Somewhere during the Israelite exile Babel, there arose a guild or school of "literary fellers," which continued in existence long after the captivity had terminated. During these times, somewhere about 800 or 1,000 years after the days of Moses, there were in existence a number of documents, representing various schools of thought, and their names, along with these there were in existence a considerable quantity of legends, stories, fables and folk-lore. The "literary fellers" after examining "odds and ends" and fragments of literary material, these literati or "redactors," as the critics term them, skillfully selected and combined the material in a logical way, so as to form a series of books, giving the title of Genesis to one, Exodus to another and so on. The Pentateuch is thus not Mosaic, but a Moses.

work of this character? Not a scintilla of evidence.

That certain rabbinical schools originated and flourished for the study of the Jewish holy books is well known, but that they undertook and completed such a task as the higher critic would have us to accept on his mere statement is a brilliant instance of an arrogant and pretentious structure built upon the mere dash of a pen at the vibration of the air.
