

BLANKETERS ARE GIVEN BLACK EYE IN SENATE

Fierce Fight Continues Two Long Days FINAL VOTE 15 TO 13

Deadlock Now Exists Between Houses and Session Likely to Be Prolonged

Special to The Telegram. AUSTIN, Texas, March 31.—The senate this evening refused to concur in the house blanket primary amendment...

It seemed during the day that the advocates of the blanket primary would, as they were, the battle, while the majority, the small majority, remained silent and let the advocates of a blanket primary talk.

The contest began Friday morning in the senate and lasted until after 7 o'clock tonight.

As soon as a vote was taken the result was conveyed to the house, which had been patiently waiting for the result, and when it was announced the advocates of a blanket primary felt rather sore in the law.

This means that the legislature is likely to be in session all of next week, and possibly the entire thirty days, as members of the senate were heard to express themselves tonight that they would never vote to concede from their position and adopt the free conference committee report providing for merely correcting the error in the law.

As soon as a resolution was announced in the senate, Lieutenant Neal appointed the following free conference committee on the part of the senate: Senator Looney, Faulk, Stafford, Davidson and Hill.

Senator Faulk is the only member of the committee who favors the blanket primary amendment. In the house committee composed of Greenwood, Brelford, Johnson, Hudspeth and Brown of Karnes, Greenwood, Brelford and Johnson favor the blanket primary, while Hudspeth and Brown are for merely correcting the error in the bill.

Thus it will be observed that a majority of the committee are against the blanket primary amendment, and favor merely correcting the error in the bill. As an evidence of what may result, Senator Barrett proposed the following resolution and read it, but did not introduce it in the senate this evening:

Resolved, that the secretary of the senate be instructed to deliver to the house this ultimatum: Recede from all amendments, accept the bill sent you, or we will remain thirty days and adjourn, permitting a fraud to be perpetrated from our statutes.

Contest Waxing Hot. AUSTIN, Texas, March 31.—When the senate met this afternoon, Senator Brachfield spoke against the adoption of the blanket primary amendment. He declared the legislature had been called for a specific purpose, and we owe it to the chief magistrate to stand up like men, and vote for the correction of the error in the election law," he said.

Senator Looney again spoke, concurring in the amendment. He declared that one of the reasons the blanket primary was introduced is that it does not provide for a uniform test. He declared that the call for a special session was started by a newspaper and then picked up by the legislature, and the state, which agitation finally resulted in an application being made to the governor to call the legislature for the specific purpose of correcting section 120.

Senator Looney then read letters from some of the senators who agreed to come to Austin and correct the mistakes in the law.

Denied Combination. He denied that he was in a combination with Governor Lanham for furthering the interest of any candidate for governor.

He said he supposed the governor was for his former lieutenant in the legal department of the state government, while he (Looney) was for Brooks for governor, so he said they would indeed be strange bed fellows.

Senator Glascock said he was one of the 108 who were willing to come here and serve free of cost and he intended to do it. He was in favor of the blanket primary and felt free to act in the matter for what he thought right.

STORY OF WILD FEUD OF ODESSA

Bloody History Covers Six Different Dates

Special to The Telegram. ODESSA, March 31.—Melkhi, near Tiflis, is the scene of a feud unexampled even in the bloody history of the Caucasus. It sprang from the old troubles between Tartars and Armenians. Here is its diary:

Jan. 22.—The Tartar, Abdul Bey, butchered in cold blood an Armenian peddler, Majorian.

Feb. 7.—Majorian's friends burned down the Tartar's house. The Russian authorities pursue their usual course of non-intervention so long as no Russians suffer.

March 11.—The Tartar seized Majorian's 10-year-old orphan son, put out his eyes, burned a crescent on his back, hanged him over a fence and sent his body to Majorian's village.

March 13.—Armenians, led by a renegade Tartar, captured Abdul Bey, poured carbolic acid in his mouth, thrust a stake through his body and threw it to be eaten by dogs.

March 15.—Abdul Bey's adherents, 70 strong, raided an Armenian village, killed a man and two children but were driven off. In the retreat, two wounded men left behind were hung up by the feet, one dying from exhaustion.

In wrath the Tartars raided the house of an entirely innocent Armenian, fired a volley into his wife, who opened the door, and made off.

This feud will probably continue until their foes, relatives and their friends are exterminated. The Russian authorities pursue their usual course of non-intervention so long as no Russians suffer.

TIME HANDICAPPED

Greenwich Smokestacks Likely to Interfere With Telescopic View

Special to The Telegram. LONDON, March 31.—The electrification of London, which is progressing rapidly under the county's court order, threatens to interfere with the accuracy of the chronometers.

In Greenwich, the council has had a huge generating station erected, the smokestacks in place, the plans of the meridian which, by which the clocks are set. It is feared that the stack will obscure the great telescope observatory staff observe as they cross the hair line, the lens and thus fix the un-derstand of time.

WACO EXPECTS CROWDS

WACO, Texas, March 31.—The Firemen's carnival next week promises to draw many people to the city. The firemen have taken a great deal of interest in the proposition and have advertised the gathering thoroughly, having secured a popular carnival company. The selection of a queen for the carnival is in progress.

FREIGHT WRECK; TWO ARE KILLED

Southern Railway Train Collides With Wild Cars

FIRST METHODIST CHURCH TO BE AN IMPOSING STRUCTURE

The new Methodist church, designed by Taylor, is one of the most beautiful ever built in the south. It will be finished in strict classic style and will be built of gray pressed brick, trimmed with stone. The entrance will be on the south side and will have six large columns, supporting a pedimented portico. The auditorium will be directly behind the main floor and the balcony alike.

The seating capacity of the church, including the Sunday school, will be about sixteen hundred. When the balconies are built in the church the capacity will be about two thousand. The committee in charge of the selection of plans was composed of Rev. Alonzo Monk, pastor; Q. T. Moreland, A. J. Anderson, J. B. Baker, C. Cotner and H. B. Francis.

It is estimated the building will cost approximately $75,000, total cost with interior fittings being $100,000.

JAN LIBERAL PARTY DEFEATED

Reaction Triumphs in Primary Elections of Peasants

VOTERS ARE FRIGHTENED

Per Cent of Franchise Holders Who Appear at Polls Very Small Compared With Grand Total

Special Cable to The Telegram. (Copyright, 1906, by Hearst News Service.) ST. PETERSBURG, March 31.—Reaction triumphs. Russian liberalism is threatened with a complete overthrow in the domain elections. The primary contests among the two classes of peasants and petty free holders have resulted in the defeat of every extreme liberal, and of four out of five moderate liberals.

The system of elections is three-storied in the case of the peasants, small land owners and factory employes. The individual voters elect only delegates, who in turn, will elect district members. Hitherto, only the first story has been reached, and that only partially.

In this, so far, two factors—apathy and conservatism—have triumphed signally. The liberal voters have either been arrested, abstained or been frightened from the polls. In many districts hardly one voter out of twenty appears, and he is generally reactionary.

In the important and enlightened district of Tyre only twenty-eight appeared out of 400. If four delegates appeared in Mulschiki, 2,500 abstained and only 300 voted.

HABEAS CORPUS GRANTED

Lawton Man Charged With Murder to Be Released on Bond

Special to The Telegram. LAWTON, O. T., March 31.—Charles Simpson, charged with the killing of Worth Bailey in this city about two weeks ago, will be released in a day or two under a $4,000 bond. Judge Gillette yesterday granted a writ of habeas corpus permitting Simpson's release.

WIFE TO HEAR SPEECH

Mrs. Longworth to Occupy Balcony at Appomattox Banquet

Special to The Telegram. CHICAGO, March 31.—When congressman Longworth responds to his toast at the Appomattox banquet of the Hamilton Club at the Auditorium hotel, April 9, his wife, formerly Miss Alice Roosevelt, with the women of her party, is to be ensconced in a little balcony erected over the entrance to the banquet hall and from the balcony will look down upon the diners and hear the speeches.

This idea originated with J. F. Lenfesty, secretary of the banquet committee. The plan so captivated the management of the annex that it has decided to incorporate the idea in the new banquet hall to be fitted up next year and a number of such niches are to be provided around the new room. The banquet committee will arrange for 600 guests at the big affair.

ARMY DESERTER FOUND IN TEXAS

Private's Habit of Writing Wife Caused His Capture

Special to The Telegram. LAWTON, O. T., March 31.—John Henderson, a private in the United States army, who deserted from San Francisco about four years ago and has been taken to Fort Leavenworth and placed in a military prison for a term of five years.

After deserting Henderson came to Oklahoma City and operated a barbershop for about three years and then gave himself up to the military authorities at Fort Sill. He was court-martialed and sentenced to six months imprisonment in the guard house. As soon as his time expired and he was released he again deserted, having been given information from headquarters that it would not be possible for him to purchase his release.

Through correspondence that was passing between Henderson and his wife he was located in Texas and arrested.

PISTOL DUEL PROVES FATAL

Woods Dead; Castle Wounded, at Waller, Texas

Special to The Telegram. HOUSTON, March 31.—Joseph D. Woods lies dead at his home near Waller, Texas, killed in a pistol duel there this afternoon, and Phillip Castle is in the hospital with two bullets in his right hip and one in his right side. He has a chance for recovery.

Woods and Castle reside in Harrison county near the Waller county line and both are prominent cattlemen of standing and influence. A week ago the men engaged in a fight. It is alleged, Woods drove up in front of a grocery store in Waller, where Castle was standing and fired his pistol in the air. Immediately his two sons ran around from the rear with guns drawn. Ed Castle, brother of Phillip and T. Binford, also joined in the affray.

PAULSEN WILL ATTEND CHURCH

Mother's Will Withholds Legacy if He Fails

COURT MAKES DECISION

LaCrosse, Wis., Heir Forced to Attend Divine Services for Fifteen Years for $1,500

Special to The Telegram. LA CROSSE, Wis., March 31.—The mother of Peter Paulsen, a thriving young man, died, leaving $1,500 to Peter, but, by the terms of her will, it must be shown to the executors of the estate that the young fellow has attended church services every Sunday for each week of the fifteen years, in which event he will receive the annual stipend of $100.

If he don't go to divine service, he don't get the money. Peter didn't like it. The young man thought himself entitled to the residue of the maternal estate "without any such formal conditions."

He contested the will in the circuit court here. The court today rendered as its decision that Peter Paulsen do and hereby is to be directed that, if he wants the hundred per annum, he must attend church, as per the conditions of the will.

Peter will attend. If he goes to church every Sunday for fifteen years, he will have gone to church about 6,000 times and will have received about a half-dollar for each such service attended—counting that he goes but once each holy Sabbath day.

The young man has not been making 15 cents an hour at any time in his life and, calculating each service of church at about an hour and his compensation per service at about a half-dollar, taken all in all, Peter considers that the lines have fallen to him in pleasant places. He went to the law and the court said "Go to church," and so Peter will go.

ARRANGING FOR FESTIVAL

Waco Musical Celebration to Take Place in April

Special to The Telegram. WACO, Texas, March 31.—The Waco Musical Festival is being arranged for now, and details are being rapidly closed up. Professor H. L. Hargrove and two or three others are taking especial interest in the matter, one of these being C. F. Drake. The festival occurs April 20 and 21, and the growth of the sentiment in favor of classic music is shown in the interest already manifested.

JEROME ANXIOUS ABOUT INSURANCE PROSECUTION

RURAL RUSSIAN "LID" ON TIGHT

"No Vodka; No Crime," Say Village Fathers

Special to The Telegram. MOSCOW, March 31.—Puritanism, fierce and ruthless, is accompanying Russia's political regeneration. In the rural parts of Moscow, scores of village councils are waging merciless war upon drink and immorality; and even against such offenses as untrustfulness, ingratitude and other vices usually considered outside the scope of criminal law. The minister of the village of Mikhailove is now being proceeded against for ordering the flogging of all drunken men and unfaithful wives. The minister forced one of his own policemen to crawl naked through the street two miles for slandering a priest. In a neighboring village stocks were erected and a number held in them for eight hours for neglecting to take his weekly bath. Peasant courts have no power to inflict capital punishment. Despite this a drunken peasant was sentenced his head man to death for gross immorality. The officers were saved only by the arrival of a magistrate who had the proceedings quashed.

The village where it occurred distinguished itself by holding weird sessions of penitence, on the Salvation Army model. The inhabitants confess their sins and subject themselves to mutual flogging of merciless severity. Persons who have no sins to confess are regarded as hypocrites and several have been flogged for the sin of hypocrisy.

TO PIPE GAS

Ohio Company to Carry Natural Product to Ardmore

Special to The Telegram. ARDMORE, I. T., March 31.—It is learned here today that the gas company of Lima, Ohio, which has a gas franchise in Ardmore, is preparing to pipe natural gas from the gas and oil fields fourteen miles west of this city. Natural gas abounds in that vicinity sufficient to supply a town of 100,000 people—and its development means much for Ardmore. Cheap fuel will mean many new factories for the town and that Ardmore will double its population in two years is practically assured.

Special to The Telegram. OTTAWA, Ont., March 31.—The regular M. N. and W. express on the Canadian Pacific railroad, near Keenewa, not very far from Winnipeg, was wrecked yesterday. The train was broken up. Details are meager, but it is known that T. Gordon Elliott of London, Ont., was killed and over twenty hurt. The wreck and every care were taken for the wounded.

BLIND MAN GETS 5 YEARS SENTENCE

Cornelius Sentenced in Oklahoma for Attacking Child

Special to The Telegram. LAWTON, O. T., March 31, A. Cornelius, a blind man, who has traveled over the United States with a hand organ for a number of years, was sentenced yesterday to five years in the penitentiary for attacking a 12-year-old girl whose home was in Waller. Cornelius confessed the crime and asked the mercy of the court.

FEARED ALABAMA JOKER

John W. Gates Dodges Stud Poker Game at Birmingham

Special to The Telegram. BIRMINGHAM, Ala., March 31.—John W. Gates has left town and taken his bank roll with him. This is a cause of grief to some of the most noted poker players in the south. In noted poker circles, Gates is one of the smoothest and most influential steers in this section. Mr. Gates refrained from going to the Alabama Club, where it was hoped to engage him in a game of stud poker with the limit off. The pot of $40,000 made up by prominent members of the Alabama Club has been taken down by the "syndicate" and the room is tight.

As Mr. Gates has never shown a disposition to dodge a chance for a game there is some speculation as to why he declined the opportunity to be entertained here.

KISS AND MAKEUP SAYS COUNT BONI

But Anna Gould de Castellane Merely Waits

Special to The Telegram. PARIS, March 31.—The Castellane hearing is to take place in April. When Judge Ditté ordered it for March 21 the countess approved, but next day, against the wishes of her counsel, she requested the judge to postpone the hearing until the end of April, giving no reason for this. The unexpected action of the countess has produced the impression that she is still deliberating her final action and that she is not determined. The count has been living circumspectly. He continues his appeals to the countess to relent, but his letters are not answered.

Recorder Has Power to Delay Progress of Trial

ATTY. FEARS GOF

Magistrate Is Policyholder in New York Life—Further Proceedings Planned

Special to The Telegram. NEW YORK, March 31.—The Recorder Goff sits in general session Monday and charges the grand jury no one will be more deeply interested in what he says on insurance matters than District Attorney Jerome.

The recorder has the power to upon the carefully prepared plans of Jerome to put off investigation of criminal acts of insurance officials until the May term. The district attorney stands positively that he would not bring a criminal proceeding before Recorder Goff because the recorder is a policyholder in the New York Life, apparently suggesting that Recorder Goff might be unduly influenced. The recorder has authority to take up the insurance inquiry when it was left by Judge O'Sullivan and insists that the grand jury handle some of those other proceedings than that relating to political contributions.

It is understood that if Recorder Goff does not instruct the grand jury on insurance matters the district attorney will go before him and present his political questions similar to those given to the grand jury, but relating to syndicate operations.

Both Sides the Same

Mr. Jerome, it is said, takes the same view of syndicate operations as he did of political contributions. He intends, if Recorder Goff brings up the insurance inquiry, to have a presentation prepared, asking Recorder Goff to declare whether or not the insurance and trust companies participated in the profits while in cases which individuals profited, indictments will be asked for.

Mr. Jerome plans to go before Justice Scott and take up the serious criminal proceeding suggested by the evidence that has been taken by the Armstrong committee and gathered by a committee headed by Charles T. Hughes. Scott and take up the serious criminal proceeding suggested by the evidence that has been taken by the Armstrong committee and gathered by a committee headed by Charles T. Hughes.

Matthew C. Fleming, who was associated with Charles T. Hughes, has been retained by Mr. Jerome to join the work. There has been a vacancy in the district attorney's office since the resignation of Charles T. Hughes. Mr. Jerome will be appointed to have charge exclusively of insurance matters.

Forgery Indicated. Investigation has been directed to falsify which constitute forgery in the third degree, swearing to false reports, filed with the state insurance department, and to perjury growing out of the testimony before the Armstrong committee. In the district attorney's office. They will be used in demonstrating the methods used by these companies to conceal transactions, stocks and bonds, in connection it is expected that when the May grand jury concludes investigation a number of persons, long prominent in insurance circles, will be arraigned before Judge Scott on indictments for perjury.

Much interest is manifested in the order Goff on the gambling situation. Commissioner Elingham stated officially that he has a long list of gambling houses which cannot be closed because of lack of evidence. Other judges in charges to the grand jury have referred to neglect of duty by the police and it is known that Recorder Goff has strong views on the way police should enforce the law.

Mr. Jerome went to his home in Lakewood, Conn., today. He will return Monday morning.

STUDENTS WORK WAY IN LAW DEPT.

Plan Co-operative at University of Texas

AUSTIN, Texas, March 31.—"The student who earns his way is honored for his pluck, for the University of Texas is thoroughly democratic," has ever been the policy of the institution. The recent breaking up in housekeeping of the Sam Houston boarding club but illustrates this to a most remarkable degree. The personnel of the members of the Sam Houston Club was made up of some of the most popular students of the law department, and the university, and yet few except their closest friends knew how they were going through the university and other pluck.

The seven members of this club rented a house in East Austin, just a few blocks from the university, and furnished the house completely at a very nominal sum. After that they divided the work among themselves, some doing the cooking, others cleaning house, until the daily housekeeper's duties had been distributed throughout the membership. It is safe to say that this is the first time boys have cooked their own meals and washed their own dishes under like circumstances at the University of Texas, if not in the south. And surprising as this it is not more so than the nominal expense for rent and board each month. The highest assessment was reached when the amount amounted to $15, and it only reached that point once.

Edwin L. Green of South Carolina College wrote of Texas University students in an article published in the Nation for March, 1905, and the figures quoted there attracted quite a good deal of attention. He said: "The 504 students at the University of Texas, 258 made the money that was spent on their education, and the remainder contributed to their support." "Texas was then ten years more than ordinary high average for a southern college and the writer has a belief that southern students, if they were to make the money that was spent on their education, would not be able to venture an estimate that would still keep Texas in the lead." "An effort has been made to obtain the address of each of the 504 students of the university, and all invitations to the inauguration, President Houston, April 18, have been mailed to their addresses. They could be reached. Owing to the many changes in addresses it is possible that number of the 504 who will reach their final destination, but an official invitation will be mailed to each any every day, and promises to be one of the features of the inauguration. Ases, and will undoubtedly be one of the most universal interest of the day. At least this will be the largest gathering of students witnessed at the university, and will be a gala event in the history of the institution."

FOREIGN MARKETS
REMAIN INACTIVE
Continental Dull But Quiet for Past Week

NEW YORK, March 31.—Foreign markets were firm, although quiet. French rentes were slightly lower and discounts made a slight advance in Berlin. London was dull but steady with a cheerful tone reported. Americans in that market made small declines and this was a factor of the opening market here. In London there were reports of an early reduction in the Bank of England rate.

The bank statement was unfavorable, as expected. The loss in surplus reserves totaled $1,222,000, and this from now stands at $5,131,275. The loss in cash reported was $3,427,700. Loans decreased by $3,829,700, while the decrease in deposits was $3,730,800.

This statement was interpreted as indicating that the bank position is still by no means strong and any bull campaign at this time will have to be conducted with due consideration of this dearth of loaning resources.

COTTON MEN RAISE FUNDS

Business Men and Farmers at Waco Respond Liberally
WACO, Texas, March 31.—R. D. Hudson of Waxahachie, secretary of the Texas division of the Southern Cotton Association, left Waco yesterday, having been here since the meeting of the Southern Cotton Association three days ago. The executive committee of the Texas division met at Waco, and after the committee adjourned Secretary Hudson and one or two others remained here to see about raising some funds for the association. The business men and farmers met the proposition heartily, and several hundred dollars were raised for the association. It is proposed to organize here shortly, and there is already good interest felt.

TO DECORATE MINER

Cross of Legion of Honor for Frenchman Who Led Escape
PARIS, March 31.—The cross of the Legion of Honor is to be accorded to Henri Nemy Miner, who led thirteen of his comrades from the Courrières mine. The government commission reports that, if proper effort at rescue had been made, some of the entrapped men might have been saved.

HUMAN BLOOD MARKS

A tale of horror was told by marks of human blood in the home of J. W. Williams, a well known merchant of Bac, Ky. He writes: "Twenty years ago I had severe hemorrhages of the lungs, and was near death when I began taking Dr. King's New Discovery. It completely cured me, and I have remained well ever since." It cures Hemorrhages, Chronic Coughs, Settled Colds and Bronchitis, and is the only known cure for Weak Lungs. Every bottle guaranteed by Walker & Fielder, Holland's Red Cross Pharmacy, Renfro Drug Co. druggists. 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free.

The most healthful, upbuilding medicine known to science; gently soothes the liver and nerves, makes digestion easy, brings to all the sweet sleep of youth. Hollister's Rocky Mountain Tea, 25 cents. J. P. Brashear.

"Uncle Billy" Letchworth, Optimist and Veteran Sunday School Scholar

WILLIAM HENRY LETCHWORTH, CONFEDERATE VETERAN, 75 YEARS OF AGE, WHO EXISTED IN FLORIDA, NOW A RESIDENT OF FORT WORTH.
William Henry Letchworth, 75 years old, and one of the oldest Sunday school scholars in Tarrant county, and one of the oldest Confederate veterans in the south, carries a heavy Mexican cane, as all who know "Uncle Billy" as he is affectionately known, can testify. Many having felt the "soft end of this stick" either in a joking way or in serious examination of the gift, forwarded the cane to Uncle Billy from the Chief of Police W. M. Rea, who the Republic of Mexico several years ago. The cane is prized by its possessor, not by reason of his need for a staff for his declining years, for he is in-

SOME OF UNCLE BILLY'S SAYING

"After I'd been in the war for the year I volunteered for, they told me we were wanted for three years, or the end of the war, and I said, 'Gentlemen, put me down for three years, so today I'm glad that I did it. Any man who tries to make me feel bad about my part in the war is likely to feel the soft end of this stick.'"

"I tried to do my duty in the war and to my family after that, now I'm content to take it easy, and I'm sure going to do that so long as I live."

"I had to pay $24 a quarter for my children's education, I didn't have any, but I'm glad they got one, and we had to pay taxes, in those days, too. The world is getting better every day."

"I've been in Fort Worth since '78, and haven't been sick three weeks in that time, and any man that tries to make me think Fort Worth isn't the best town in the state might get the soft end of this stick."

and one dose usually suffices to cure the "ailing" in this line.
Born Aug. 8, 1828, in Lenoir county, N. C., the father of Mr. Letchworth moved him with the remainder of the family into Florida when Uncle Billy was an infant. The family lived near Monticello, Fla., after the Indian war, about seven years, and it was at Thomasville, Fla., that the future wielder of the well known big stick in local court circles learned the carpenter's trade, at which he worked until the opening of the war between the states.
Before the war Uncle Billy had been a member of a military company for some time. This company was called the "Jefferson Rifles," and with the recession of the states and the formation of the Southern Confederacy, with the attendant calls for volunteers, Uncle Billy's company was for going into Pinley's Florida brigade to a man.
Uncle Billy Was "High Private"
"I was a high private in the front rank," said Mr. Letchworth to a reporter for The Telegram, "and I can say truthfully that I certainly got scared every time we went into a fight. Any man who tries to tell me that he can go into a battle when the bullets are screaming all around him and not be scared—well, that man never saw a real battle, and I don't want to talk to him. I don't mean any harm to any one, but he might feel the soft end of this stick."
Among the many instances of recollection of the stirring events that occurred during the war, one of the most interesting told by Uncle Billy is his experience at the battle of Lookout Mountain and Missionary Ridge. Uncle Billy says:
Battle Seen From Distance
"Our command was on Missionary Ridge when the battle of Lookout Mountain started. It was night and, to the best of my memory, the weather was pleasant, but not clear. We heard at first but a few cracks of muskets, and after that, line after line of sparks would flash out like lightning bolts. If it hadn't been for the fact that we knew lots of good soldiers were being killed, I suppose it would have been possible for me to stop, but I saw a fellow run through the crowd and under the general's bridle reins. It made me so furious to think that his men wouldn't pay attention to what he said that he cut with pistol and shot the man dead. When I saw that I stopped, because if I had to be shot I wanted the other side to do the shooting."
After the war Mr. Letchworth came to Texas, arriving at Longview, which was the western terminus of the railroad at that time, in 1872. With $50 and a few clothes he invaded Texas and had a job at $2 per day the first week after coming into the domain of the Long Star State. Working at that place for a few weeks, he took the stage for Dallas, and in October, moved to Fort Worth. He had lived in this city since that date, and to this fact alone attributes his physical powers today, which are remarkable for a man of his age.
His wife was Miss Talitha Woods, a native of South Carolina. Her parents lived at Monticello, Fla., at the time of their wedding. Mrs. Letchworth died here twenty-five years ago.
Texas a Great State
Of the three children of Mr. and Mrs. Letchworth, the eldest, Allen, lives at Dallas, a man of some fifty years, and a widower having several children. The next is Mrs. Lizzie Jackson, a widow, who resides near Mr. Letchworth in Fort Worth. The youngest, Miss Addie, lives with her aged father at 219 Pecan street, between First and Second, where Mr. Letchworth owns 6x160 feet, divided into two lots. There are two comfortable houses, one of which is rented.
"Any man able and willing to work can make a good living in Texas, and can save enough to make him comfortable in his old age," said Mr. Letchworth.
The accompanying photograph was taken especially for The Telegram, and shows Mr. Letchworth in a characteristic pose.

NEW MAYOR TO TAKE REINS

Official Duties Begin Monday a Week

Monday night one week will see the new mayor of Fort Worth installed in office.
Little doubt is expressed in the city that Judge W. D. Harris, democratic nominee, will be elected by a large majority, this very fact, however, having caused some apprehension in the minds of leading members of the party. Feeling of safety, it was urged Saturday, may result in the casting of a vote so light as to be endangered by active opposition.
Under the city regulations, the mayor and aldermen elected Tuesday can take office and enter upon their duties five days after election. As has been the custom in the past, Mayor Powell will call a special meeting of the council for that purpose. Oaths of office will then be administered to the new mayor by the city secretary, and in turn to new aldermen entering the council. New aldermen will represent the Third, the Seventh and the Ninth wards, at least Messrs. Parker, Henderson and Moreland retiring.
Five days after election, falling upon Sunday, the new mayor will not enter upon his duties until Monday. At this time Mayor Powell has announced he will call a special meeting. Being a special meeting, the inauguration of the new administration will be the only official act.
Opposing Judge Harris for mayor is William Wehrer, socialist candidate. Socialist candidates are also announced for aldermen and the past week has witnessed an active street campaigning, concluding today with an address at the city hall.
An independent candidate in the Third ward, J. G. Hendrick, is opposing R. F. Cook, democratic nominee.
NEW SKATING RECORD
Present Craze Declared to Exceed Even That of '60s
"Roller skating is a fad that is bordering closely on a craze," said Walter J. Hinson of St. Louis, to a Telegram reporter. "It is not local but it is sweeping over the whole country, from the northern lakes to the Rio Grande, and from the Atlantic to the Pacific. Rink companies are being organized in all large cities, and rinks, some of them costing many thousands of dollars are being built and the skate factories are rushed with orders to such an extent that factory forces have to be doubled. The whole country appears to be getting ready to sit on skates."
"Roller skating is no new thing, and I can't understand what it was that caused its revival just at this time with such enthusiasm. In 1868 and 1869 there was a roller skating craze in the country, but it never reached the proportions of the present one, since the time there have been spasmodic outbreaks of it, but for quite a number of years it appeared to be dying out. By when the revival came it came with a rush that caught north, south, east and west, and it would be no surprise to me if it would cross the Rio Grand to Mexico."
"There has been wonderful improvement in roller skates since the skating craze in the '60s, and the rinks that are being built now are just as far ahead of the old time rinks as the modern city is ahead of the old time one-rink affair. It is hard to tell how long the craze will stay, it may last for year and no doubt will unless some new fad gains favor. Rinks are making money in many cities. The people will take hold of a new thing if it is good and it looks as if roller skating has convinced them it is good. Judgment from the money that is being put into rinks it has come to stay for some time."
It's hardly ever safe to propose to girl unless she is married.

"What, in addition to other things," said J. M. Ware of Brandon, "thankful for the good market that Fort Worth has furnished us, and intend to show our appreciation by sending to market and to the fat stock show every year more and better stock to compete with the remainder of the state.

However, there are a class of our people who are not so fortunate as to have a large portion of the earth on which they live, and are not, in consequence, at liberty to do as they like.

FEDERAL CONTROL OF QUARANTINE

Texas Medical Association Issues Statement

PROPOSITION IN FAVOR

Declared Other Things Need State Attention—Tuberculosis Had Greater Death Rate Than Yellow Fever

Because of the imperfect telegraphic reports from Washington, and unsatisfactory interviews and editorials recently published in the Texas press, it seems advisable to state to the people of Texas the position of the State Medical Association on federal control of border quarantine.

This organization within the last two years has come to include 3,000 Texas physicians, or the larger part of the reputable regular practitioners of the state, and proposes to use its influence to assist every humanitarian and legal effort to protect public health.

The Texas medical profession advocates the control of border quarantine, because it will better protect Texas from yellow fever invasion, save us from unnecessary expenditures and help our health authorities to give more consideration to internal health affairs.

CITY SCHOOL REPORT

Following is the superintendent's weekly statement of average number enrolled and percentage in attendance in the Fort Worth public schools for the week ending March 30:

Table with columns: No. of Av. No. P. C. Building, Teachers, Enrolled, Attendance. Rows 1 through 12.

Totals ... 120 5,165 .95

Remarks—Bad as the weather may have been this week, building No. 1, rooms No. 4 and 7, averaged 100 per cent in attendance.

Individual Fights

Until the present the southern states have individually fought yellow fever. The cautious ones have suffered on account of the late onset. States have been arrayed against states and petty warfare marred united efforts.

Our legislators are conscientious and patriotic. They, however, know little of public health matters at first hand, and must depend upon outside information.

Have and Happy at 83

Mr. and Mrs. Abraham Fournier, Aged 83 and 76 Years Respectively, Who Recently Celebrated Their 57th Wedding Anniversary, Attribute Their Health, Strength and Longevity to Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey, Which They Have Been Using for Years.

MR. AND MRS. ABRAHAM FOURNIER

They take great pleasure in giving full credit to Duffy's for having prolonged their lives and kept them well and strong.

"Both my wife and myself are well on towards the century mark of life, thanks to Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey, which we have always used. I am past 83 and my wife over 76 years of age. We are both robust and happy, and are only too glad to tell any body that Duffy's has prolonged our lives by a good many years.

"We celebrated our 57th wedding anniversary on November 13th, and trust with the aid of your grand medicine to live to celebrate many more."—ABRAHAM FOURNIER, 613 Hickory Street, Syracuse, N. Y., Dec. 4th, 1905.

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey

If you wish to keep strong and vigorous and have on your cheeks the glow of perfect health, take Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey regularly, according to directions, and take no other medicine. It is dangerous to fill your system with drugs; they poison the body and depress the heart (quinine depresses the heart), while Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey tones and strengthens the heart action and purifies the entire system.

CAUTION—When you ask your druggist or grocer for Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey be sure you get the genuine. It is the one absolutely pure medicinal whiskey, and is sold only in sealed bottles—never in bulk. Look for the trade-mark, the "Old Chemist," on the label, and make sure the seal over the cork is unbroken. Price, $1.00. Medical booklet and druggist's advice free. Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey Co., Rochester, N. Y.

STATE OFFICIALS ARE EXHONERATED

Senate Committee Decides on Monday Report

Special to The Telegram. AUSTIN, Texas, March 31.—Committee appointed to investigate state officials and their connection with the Capital Bank and Trust Company, held a meeting tonight and decided to recommend in its report to the senate Monday that, as a result of its investigations, it has found nothing in the conduct of State Treasurer Robbins, Comptroller Stephens and other officials and state employes in their connection as stockholders in the Capital Bank and Trust Company to demand censure at the hands of the senate, and the committee fully exonerated them. A minority report will be filed, signed by Senator Hawkins, auditor of the resolution, in which he says that the connection of these state officials up to this time has not been detrimental to the public service, but if continued, might bring the public service into criticism. At the session this afternoon John

T. Smith, chief clerk in the comptroller's department, said that the matter of depositing money in the banks had been the policy of the department for many years. Smith said the department followed the most practicable business methods. Should an attempt be made to deposit this money in the treasury daily and segregate the different funds, it would require three more men in the department. It has also been the custom of the land commissioner to make deposits in the banks, said the witness, that is when witness was an employe of the land office. Custom of Comptroller Former Comptroller Finley testified that he deposited the funds of the department when he was comptroller, once a month. It has always been the custom of the comptroller to make a statement once a month. B. F. Teague, chief tax clerk in the department, was called and he explained the methods in vogue in the department of making deposits which confirmed the testimony of Comptroller Stephens. George L. Hume, cashier of the Capital Bank and Trust Company, was called again. He said his bank charged nothing for collecting fees and warrants and further that the president and cashier made all loans and purchases. At the request of Mr. Smith, Senator Hawkins was sworn. In answer to a question he said this matter had been brought to his notice through the newspapers and he assumed the responsibility for the resolution and would be accountable to the people. He denied that the resolution had been inspired in favor of any candidate for state treasurer. Senator Harbison asked the witness if he had told anyone that he thought he could do some good—to some candidate for treasurer by the resolution. The senator replied that he did not and, further, he had not committed himself on the race for treasurer. This concluded the investigation.

NOLTE TAKES CHARGE

New Man in Charge of United States Marshal's Office Special to The Telegram. SAN ANTONIO, Texas, March 31.—At a special term of the federal court today, the accounts of retiring United States Marshal George L. Siebrecht were audited and approved by Judge Maxey, and Eugene Nolte, who succeeds Siebrecht, took the oath, and is now in charge. Judge Charles A. Boynton of Waco, who succeeds United States Marshal Henry Terrell, is here today. It is his first visit since the appointment was made.

HEARING TUESDAY

Will Carter's Habeas Corpus Application Set for This Week Special to The Telegram. SAN ANTONIO, Texas, March 31.—Will Carter, one of the men placed in jail here, charged with violating the Texas game laws by wholesale trapping and shipping quail to other states, applied for a writ of habeas corpus before Judge Green of the county court today. Hearing was set for Tuesday. Carter says he is not guilty and asks to be discharged from custody.

FREE CONFERENCE COMMITTEE NAMED

Senate Refuses to Concur in House Amendment

WITNESSES ARE HEARD Terrell Enrollment Investigation Committee Will Continue to Work After Legislature Has Adjourned

Committee to Work Overtime

Special to The Telegram. AUSTIN, March 31.—Following the refusal of the senate this afternoon to concur in the house amendment to the correction of the Terrell election law, section 120, for which the special session was called, the house appointed six members to confer with a like number from the senate in a free conference committee to devise a plan whereby the solons of the upper and lower houses of the Texas legislature may come together in mutual understanding of what is to be done to correct the section of the law mentioned. Forecast of this action on the part of the legislature appeared in The Telegram Saturday afternoon. This means that the fight for and against a blanket primary will, instead of being participated in by Tom, Dick and Harry on the legislative floor—several of whom have been perturbed to the hair tearing point about a point which, they allege, is to be either the eternal salvation or perdition of the Texas democracy—the round dozen members who compose the free conference committee will either fight it out, frame it up or call it all off, according to the notions may strike them, or the forces be divided. According to some, whose names have been appearing in state news dispatches, the Democratic party of the Lone Star state is now at the parting of the ways, with the Red sea in front and Pharaoh's army in the rear, while the people, will it now seems, pay for the special session, are waiting for such decision as the august lawmaking body may see fit to make.

members who agreed to come for the special session, and the letters will be printed in the journal. Recess was then taken until the senate had taken some action on concurring in the house amendment to the election law. When the senate had acted on the bill, refusing to concur, the house appointed Representatives Greenwood, Brelsford, Johnson, Hudspeth, and Brown of Karnes, as members of the free conference committee on the part of the house. The house then adjourned until 10 a. m. Monday.

PRECAUTIONS IN RECONSTRUCTION

Czar Will Open Douma in Taurade Palace

Special Cable to The Telegram. (Copyright, 1906, by Hearst News Service.) ST. PETERSBURG, March 31.—The decision of the czar to open, in person, Russia's first parliament is the cause of the extraordinary precautions in the reconstruction work in the Taurade Palace, where the douma will assemble. Since March 15 no one has been allowed to enter the building without a permit countersigned by the security department of the police. The authorities fear that advantage may be taken of the reconstruction confusion to take the initial steps toward an outrage. Seven decorators have been dismissed as politically doubtful, and all new workmen engaged to carry out the ventilation works in the cellars underneath the hall of the session are first approved by the secret police. The dread of outrage is not only confined to the imperial family. The extreme revolutionaries, while boycotting the elections, declare that the douma is the worst enemy of popular freedom, and there is a genuine fear that some crazy individual may emulate the anarchist feat when a bomb was thrown into the French chamber of deputies.

PONY TAKEN FROM WELL UNINJURED

Horse Falls in Hole Forty Feet Deep and Lives

Special to The Telegram. LAMPASAS, Texas, March 31.—Going out into his barn lot and not seeing his horse, J. W. Earnest, after discovering that the animal had fallen into a well forty feet in depth, was about to shoot it, thinking to make an end of suffering, but was prevailed upon by his son, Edward, to allow the young man to investigate. Edward climbed down into the well and made the astonishing announcement to his father above that the horse was apparently as sound as ever and that beyond a few bruises sustained in the quick descent into the well the animal was practically unharmed. A rope was attached to the horse and the combined efforts of the men and a block and tackle finally rescued the pony. The horse enjoyed his breakfast as usual that morning.

He Loved Her Not

A little six-year-old girl friend of mine came running to me and threw herself into my arms, sobbing as if her heart would break. "God doesn't love me any more," she wailed. "God doesn't love me." "God doesn't love you? Why, dear, God loves every one," I assured her. "Oh, no, He doesn't love me, I know He doesn't. I tried him with a daisy." —Harper's Bazar.

All Fools' Time of Year Is Now Here

Don't kick a hat, or attempt to pick up a pocketbook lying on the sidewalk on your way to church. Today is All Fools' Day. All sorts of pranks are therefore permissible and a hearty laugh is, by custom, bound to replace the probable blow or sharp epithet following such pranks on other days.

The day falling upon Saturday will meet with little social observance, though a number of All Fool parties have been arranged for Monday.

All Fool Party A list of suggestions for such events has been prepared by a celebrated entertainer as follows:

Decorate the invitations with a water color pen-and-ink sketch of a court jester, and request each guest to relate the most "fool" thing he ever did or heard of. When the guests arrive have the house all dark, curtains drawn and very little light visible when the door is opened. Instruct the maid to say, "Not at home."

Offer a prize for the best "fool" story. When awarded, the box or package will be found elsewhere later on in the napkin at the table, to instance. The one who declines to tell any story, or the worst one, gets the prize at once. To choose partners for supper, take ribbons three-quarters of an inch long and shut between the folding doors, the men on one side, girls on the other. Each holds a ribbon, and when the door is opened the ones holding the same ribbon are partners.

The menu is deviled crabs, baked potatoes, asparagus, tomato salad, ice cream, coffee and cake. For the "bouillon" have creamed celery in old-fashioned soup plates. "Baked potatoes" may be mashed turnips, carrots and peas in baked potato shells, covered with grated cheese and browned in the oven. These are delicious. For the "asparagus" have large macaroni laid on toast, with cream sauce. "Tomato salad" may be a mixture of blood orange, celery and nuts served in cucumber boats. The "ice cream" may be the old-fashioned custard frozen. Puff pastry filled with mince meat will be the "cake," and will delight the men. "Coffee" may be one of the cereal preparations, but the real who wish it. Pass cigars and cigarettes should be provided for those rettes of chocolate. Tiny wands wound with ribbon, the end of each one bearing a bell, make charming souvenirs and place cards can be cut in shape of a dunce or fool's cap.

A DANDY FOR BURNS. Dr. Bergin, Pana, Ill., writes: "I have used Ballard's Snow Lintment. I always recommended it to my friends, as I am confident there is no better made. It is a dandy for burns." Those who live on farms are especially liable to many accidental cuts, burns, bruises, which heal rapidly when Ballard's Snow Lintment is applied. It should always be kept in the house for cases of emergency." 25c, 50c and $1.00. Sold by Covey & Martin, 810 Main street, opposite Hotel Worth.

BY JAS. J. CORBETT. (Copyright 1906, by Newspaper Enterprise Ass'n)

The McGovern-Nelson battle at Philadelphia demonstrated two things that will make the name of the Dane ring mous in the history of the prize ring. Probably the first and most talked of was his ability to use his head as a battering ram. The Dane is endowed with a head of shaggy hair and a skull that is as hard and tough as the armor plate on a battleship.

Everyone who has ever seen Nelson fight has agreed that he is a wonderful man to take punishment. His jaw is as if it was made of harveysteel. Fighter after fighter has tried in vain to send the Dane to canvas for the count with the wallop to the jaw—it's the blow that is recognized as the most dangerous by all pugilists. McGovern followed in the footsteps of the others, and while he rocked the head of Nelson, never once did he jar the thinking apparatus of the Chicago lad.

Before the fight the argument was made that if McGovern ever landed one of those terrible rights to Nelson's jaw or solar plexus the Dane's title would go glimmering.

But McGovern found out what Herrera, Corbett on two occasions and all the others have found out to their sorrow, that the vulnerable point on the Dane's anatomy has yet to be found. The Dane himself knows that his head was made purposely for the ring if ever a head was. And he uses it to good advantage wherever and whenever he can.

In his fight with Britt at Trisco "Bat" was charged with fouling Jimmy time and again, and in fact the pictures which were shown around the country afterwards confirmed the report that Nelson's efforts were greatly aided by his head, which always was kept close in to Britt's body.

McGovern's friends said after the bout the other night that Terry's body around the shoulders was black and blue from the continual bumps of Nelson's head. I am not inclined to believe all they say, but I am sure the qualified. What if the referee were to disqualify a fighter in America? What a noise would be raised. Why half the audience would make a stand against the referee and he would either be mobbed and killed, or roasted and humiliated so that as a ring official he would be forever an outcast.

But the sporting fraternity will wake up to the fact after while that the only way to run a fight is to have the referee stand off and order the men rather than run and fight with and wrestle them.

TO THE TELEGRAM

From a Painter Editor Telegram: I am a painter and paperhanger and a member of the Painters, Decorators and Paperhangers of America. We have asked an increase of our salary of 50 cents a day. Our salary now is $2.50 per day (eight hours). We are asking for $3 per day (eight hours). We have found that we cannot make a living at $2.50. In this writing I will show you that we cannot. I will give the correct items here. Our actual expenses are: Groceries, $5; one week's rent, $2.50; one week's wood, $1.00; six days' street car fare, 60 cents; washing overalls each week, 20c; fresh meat, $1.50; and water to drink, 25 cents. Total for each week, $11.05. Our salary for six days, $15.

These are only the things that must come every week. Besides this, we have to buy our overalls, putty knife, duster, paste brush, dry brush, shears, trestles. All of this we have to buy out of our wages. If we lose any time we are in a serious predicament at $2.50 a day. We average about $1.75 on account of rain or cold weather. Our average wage is $10.50 a week. You can readily see why painters are not very prompt about paying their bills. This is giving it to you just as it really stands. We are the poorest paid mechanics in Texas today. The boss painters will tell you that they will have to charge you more for your painting or paperhanging, or they cannot pay the $3 a day. I will show you that they do not. The prevailing price justifies our getting $3 now without any extra charge.

They charge you 25 and 30 cents a bolt for hanging your paper. The average is eighteen bolts a day for a man, so you can see our $3 a day is justified. On hanging paper eighteen bolts of paper at 25 cents a bolt is $4.50 they receive for my day's work.

For painting they charge you $1.50 per square for plain outside painting (two coats). The paint costs about 75 cents per square, leaving them 75 cents for the work. The average day's work for a painter is eight squares per day (two coats). That leaves them $6 for the day's work. They have to furnish paint brushes and ladders, which cost about $5 on $100. All other branches of the trade will run about the same, if not more. If you are the grocer sick or am out of employment a few days I have shown you that at our present wage you stand a chance of losing. The same will apply to all business.

SUPREME COURT DEFIED BY MOB

Hanging of Negro at Chattanooga, Without Precedent

EXECUTION STAYED

But in Face of Order From the Highest Tribunal, Citizens Effected Lynching

Special to The Telegram. CHATANOOGA, Tenn., March 31.—Morally in contempt of the United States supreme court, this county of Hamilton, of the state of Tennessee, is waiting to see whether grave complications will arise over the lynching of Ed Johnson, colored, after the highest tribunal in the land had ordered a stay of execution. The law was taken into its own hands, as has been so often done in the south, by a band of determined individuals to uphold the rather popular principle that crimes against the honor of white women her way home in the suburbs. She is a working girl. Johnson was convicted in the state court last Feb. 6, and sentenced to be hanged March 29. Four days later N. W. Parden and S. L. Hutchens, colored attorneys, attempted to file a motion for a new trial, but the supreme court of Tennessee reviewed the record and said no error had been committed in the trial. A writ of habeas corpus for Johnson was then sought of United States Circuit Judge Clark at Knoxville. He refused it. An appeal from his action was taken, and at noon on March 19 the United States supreme court granted a stay of execution. In the meantime preparations had been made for the legal hanging on the next day of Johnson, who was again in the Chattanooga jail. The city seemed quiet that evening. It was decidedly so at the jail. Except for Jaller Gibson, the coast was entirely clear. At 8 o'clock a dozen men, some with handkerchiefs over the lower part of their faces, strolled into the jail office. Then a few more came in, and after a while there were about seventy-five. About one-third of them were actively engaged in what followed.

While some of them argued with Gibson, two heavy doors were laboriously battered down. Just two and a half hours were consumed at the jail by the mob, and in the course of that time Sheriff Shipp was summoned to the jail by telephone. He endeavored to argue with the mob, but was locked up in a bath room. After securing him the mob dragged the negro through the street, vetoing the suggestion of several men to "kill him now." On the bridge all demands for a confession were met with the words from Johnson, "I'm ready to die, but I never done it." He was promptly hoisted off his feet by a rope around his neck. A fusillade of shots was turned loose and one bullet cut the rope, allowing the body to drop to the floor. No more time was wasted. The body had fifty bullets in it when it was found there by officers. Next day the negroes were given their dead and they buried Johnson. Since then the city has been in a ferment. Numerous clashes between whites and blacks have occurred, and at times it seemed as if the city was on the verge of a huge race battle. There is somewhat of a lull to see whether the supreme court or the federal authorities will act on this first nullification in history of an order of the highest court. If action does follow it will prove a grave matter. Results seem to hinge upon whether, under a strict construction of the law, the man Johnson was in the custody of the Federal court at the time he was taken from jail.

FORAKER REPLIES

Answer Made to Ohio Resolution on Railway Rate Bill

Special to The Telegram. COLUMBUS, Ohio, March 31.—Foraker's answer to the legislature's resolution calling upon Ohio senators and representatives to support the federal railroad rate policy was received today. The senator says the President wants the interstate commerce commission to have the power to substitute reasonable for unreasonable rates, "subject to judicial review," quoting the President's message. In this reply Foraker says this is denied by the Hepburn bill which he calls in effect, unconstitutional. "In view of your action in passing Door where the lynchers entered the Chattanooga jail, the turnkey and Ed Johnson, whom the highest court in the land could not save.

the law creating the railway commission to fix rates subject to the complete review in the courts. It is my duty to insist upon such amendment to the Hepburn bill," he adds. A NEW KANSAS RAILROAD The Salina, Tipton and Northwestern Has $2,500,000 Capital Special to The Telegram. TOPEKA, Kan., March 31.—A charter for a new railroad company, incorporated at $2,500,000, has been granted by the state charter board. The company is known as the Salina, Tipton and Northwestern Railway Company and will run from Salina in a north-westerly direction to the state line, through Saline, Lincoln, Mitchell, Osborne, Jewell and Smith counties. Several Kansas City men are named as directors.

IN THE LABOR WORLD

Hod carriers and mortar mixers of East St. Louis work eight hours at a 40 to 45-cent an hour scale. Members of the trades council of Cleveland are delivering lectures in the evening in the public schools. The strike of the Detroit capmakers has been declared off, officers of the union deeming it useless to carry on the fight. Street car men of Alton, Ill., have secured a new agreement and a wage increase. They will receive 23 cents an hour for nine hours.

submitted to the legislature of the state. After a long conference the Brotherhood of Carpenters made an agreement with the master carpenters in New York recently affecting 12,000 men, and the wages will be increased from $4.50 to $4.80 per day beginning July 1, 1906. The revised laws of the International Association of Bridge and Structural Ironworkers, which became effective January 1, provides that the per capita tax to the international organization be 25 cents a month, instead of 10 cents per quarter, as formerly. A women's union for the protection of the labor unions of men, has been organized in Jersey City. To establish a school to instruct women how and where to spend their money most beneficially for union labor will be one of the features of the new organization. The Master Carpenters' association of Passaic, N. Y., have placed the scale upon an even basis with the scale in Newark and Paterson. On and after May 1 the journeyman carpenters in Passaic will receive 45 cents an hour. The day will be eight hours.

By a vote of 27,367 to 11,760, the membership of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners has declined upon an increase in per capita tax in 1906. The capital is $2,000,000, divided in to shares of $5 each, par value, and it is to be sold only to trade unionists, salaried people, farmers, small dealers and professional people. The first official act of the new labor party of England has been to draft an education bill which is to be put forward on behalf of the trade union congress. It advocates secular education and the abolition of religious tests for teachers. State aide schools are to be provided everywhere by local authority at the imperial cost. Secondary and technical education also were required. Public medical examination and treatment and one free meal a day are also provisions of the bill.

It was not until 1825 that strike were begun for a ten-hour law by building trades in the ship yards, 1835 the ten-hour law was established in Baltimore and a presidential order in 1840 made it a rule in the government navy yards. In 1851 the mass and carpenters won their fight for ten-hour day in many cities throughout the country. Governor Folk of Missouri has sent out instructions to all the state mine inspectors of Missouri to enforce the eight hour law, which the United States supreme court recently decided was constitutional. The house committee on judiciary of congress has decided to make a favorable report on the Bates employers' liability bill in amended form. Representative Sterling of Illinois will draw the report. The Granite Manufacturers' association, by a majority vote, has decided to suspend work in the 120 shops at Quincy, Mass., represented in the association. The lockout will directly affect 1,500 granite cutters. Thomas I. Kidd, who is secretary of the Amalgamated Woodworkers' International Union for fourteen years, and an active trades unionist for twenty-five years, has retired from active service. The Painters, Paperhangers and Decorators' local of Lewiston, Me., is circulating a petition through Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont, asking their general executive to place a paid organizer in these states. The Lithographers' Association is one of more than 4,500 members and is one of the best salaried trades in the country, no lithographer being eligible to membership in the association until he is able to earn a salary of $25 a week. At a regular meeting of the Central Federated Union of New York a committee of five was appointed to cooperate with the National Association of lawyers in drafting labor laws to be submitted to the legislature of the state. After a long conference the Brotherhood of Carpenters made an agreement with the master carpenters in New York recently affecting 12,000 men, and the wages will be increased from $4.50 to $4.80 per day beginning July 1, 1906. Jewell-Kelly Stock Company

The Jewell-Kelly Stock Company, which comes to the Greenwall opera house all next week with matinees daily, commencing Tuesday, has had the most successful season ever known in the history of the popular-priced attractions in the south, says the press agents. People's prices, 10, 20 and 30 cents, will prevail throughout the engagement, with matinees at 10 and 20 cents. Ladies will be admitted free every night upon the usual conditions to see "A Fatal Step." Eight big specialties will be introduced between acts, including Edward Silvers, holder of the Police Gazette champion-ship medal as an all-around dancer, and the wonderful Edison moving picture machine. Such well-known successes as "A Fatal Step," "The Kentucky Gentleman," "The Golden West," "Lights and Shadows of London," "The Whole Dam Family," "Sunset," "Nick Carter," "Capital Versus Labor," "Under the Shadow of Mount Shasta" and others will be presented during the engagement. Matinees will be given daily, commencing Tuesday, and are now on sale at box office. The Lexington (Ky.) Herald, Sept. 7, says:

The Jewell-Kelly Stock Company had an engagement at the opera house last night to a capacity audience. Those who attended the performance were delighted. This organization was seen here earlier this season, and is the very best attraction seen here for the money. Mr. Kelly is an actor of unusual talent and has become quite a favorite with Lexington audiences. He has surprised himself with an excellent company.

Dramatic Gossip.
At a recent "tea," Miss Marie Cahill, star of the musical play, "Molly Moon," was the center of a group of admirers of the "but-in" type, who seemed possessed of the desire that she say something funny. Such is the art of having a reputation of being witty. Some of the persons about almost asked her in so many words to say something "comical," and poor Nancy Brown was very much upset. Then she decided to get rid of the bores. With much emphasis she announced that she had a really funny story to tell and the words of honey from her lips. "A boy," related Miss Cahill, "was crossing Brooklyn bridge on foot. He had a basket on his arm and in the basket were three loaves of graham bread and two of white bread. When about half way across the bridge he became tired of walking and climbed down from the footpath to the driveway and jumped on the tailboard of a grocer's wagon. The driver had on the regulation grocer's coat. I was in my cab just behind and saw a mounted policeman ride through and up to where the boy was sitting. He grabbed him by the collar and pulled him off the wagon. The force of the fall knocked all the bread out of the basket. A crowd gathered around. With rare presence of mind I left my cab and rushed to the spot. The boy was standing facing the policeman. His hair was rumpled and in his left hand he held a loaf of bread. Tearfully, but with the earnestness of a full-grown man, he pointed his finger first at the policeman and then at the loaf and said: 'You are a loafer.' And only the pouring of the tea could be heard."

Dockstader's Minstrels
The extraordinary success of Lew Dockstader and his minstrel show at the New York Theater during the month of January this year, excited a great amount of discussion among the critics of New York as to what it was that made Dockstader seem so funny. There were all sorts of opinions expressed. He produces his act ordinarily in a low tone of voice, and seldom shouts or yells. He resorts to none of the tricks usually employed by minstrels to get fun, whatever he does his audiences are always with him. No matter what he says, the public responds with laughter.

At the Majestic
The Majestic will, beginning Monday matinee, submit a program for popular approval which, in at least two respects, the management proposes the most elaborate and expensive show that has been engaged this season. It includes Ameta, the Parisian danseuse, who comes direct to the Interstate circuit from her matinee at the country at Keith's New York Vaudeville theater. It was necessary to transport from New York to Fort Worth her entire equipment of mirrors, containing electrical machines and heavy velvet hangings used in the production. Ameta is also accompanied by two expert electricians operating the swinging calcaus above her head and the flood fire from beneath the stage. An idea of the magnitude of this single attraction is obtained from the place she occupied on the Keith program. She was featured as the headliner. The management has provided for the same bill an attraction equally as great as that of Ameta. In fact it is played as a double bill. This feature is the famous "Hazardous Loop," invented and produced here by the veteran bicycle trainer, Tom Eck and performed by Miss Lillian Chick, champion woman bicyclist of the world. The "loop" weighs 4,000 pounds and stands higher than the proscenium arch of the stage. Miss Chick actually makes three complete revolutions of this great oval in her ordinary riding clothes. Other features of the same bill include Pete Baker, the eminent German dialect comedian, whose years of starring experience will be easily recalled. Baker, as big an attraction as either of the feature acts, Warner and Lakewood in an amazingly eccentric dance, "The Scarecrow and the Maid," Warren and Brockway, master comedians, and McIntyre and Bachus, black-face comedians, make up one of the finest bills that has been seen at the Majestic. The Majesticograph will present "Lil-seise No. 13, or the Hoodo Automobile."

The Hazardous Loop
Miss Lillian Chick, the beautiful 18-year-old girl, who is doing the daring feat of "looping" the Interstate circuit, and has accomplished other dangerous things outside of her loop ride. At Luna Park, Coney Island, she rode her bicycle down the chute, diving into the water at the bottom of the shot. She is the only woman in the world who ever rode a bicycle on what is called the "straight wall cycle wheel" or "devil's chimney" at Manhattan Beach, New York. She rode one mile, paced by a single motor cycle, in 1:46, which is considered fast time over such a sandy track. She is shot around the great circle three times before she checks herself by applying a powerful brake. The entire exhibition is illuminated by two hundred electric bulbs around the rim of the loop.

Amet
Amet dances before eight large mirrors, arranged in the form of a cyclorama and pined at varying angles. Her prouetting figure flashes eight reflections at the same moment. One second only three Ametas are seen in as many mirrors, as the dancer dashes close to one side of the stage, then eight appear. These sudden appearances and disappearances lend a certain ghostly feeling to the myriad dance. Meanwhile powerful calcaus of the most gorgeous hues are chasing the dancer in her rapid flight. The costuming of all the numbers of the performance is elegantly accomplished. Nothing so elaborate in detail and entire effect has ever been seen here.

Pete Baker
Old things are best. Old friends, old wine, old homes, old songs, old sweethearts, old comedians. Pete Baker will prove the adage in forty different ways this week at the Majestic, as the applause of the audiences will testify just as it has done everywhere that Mr. Baker has appeared since he entered the cornfield. Presumably the mat is rehearsing with the scarecrow to perfect her wiles for a leap year proposal to some flesh and blood youth whom she has long admired in secret. She sings a plaintively pretty love melody and vanishes in the shades of the night. Then the scarecrow comes to life and dances the most outlandish, the most elvish and inhuman dance they may be imagined. Here Mr. Lakewood shows his talent for a disjointed bit of the terpsichorean that is as fascinating as it is uncouth. The act has made a big hit—elsewhere on the Interstate circuit.

MARIE CAHILL, COMING TO GREENWALL'S SOON.

McIntyre and Bachus
Young McIntyre has an ambition to follow in the footsteps of his great sire and, while he is not as great a comedian, he shows that he is a rare chip of the old block. The briskness of the sketch and the alacrity of the young performers infuses a large percentage of what one might call ginger into their work, a quality that is particularly pleasing to the modern theater goer.

Warren and Brockway
After all the musical instruments and other instruments not musical which have been displayed by various artists at the Majestic, Warren and Brockway leave the conviction that not one-half of them have been seen, for they introduce into their sketch some brand new ones. Added to this surprise is the pleasing discovery that Warren is a first-rate black-face comedian, who mixes his fun with every instrument upon which he performs with fine results.
Majesticograph
"The Life of an American Policeman" in a great city makes a very absorbing series of pictures, and shows the Majesticograph at its best.

Every Mother Should Have Her Day Out
BY MARGARET E. SANGSTER.
(Copyright, 1906, by Joseph B. Bowles.)

Every one knows how exacting the cook and housemaid are about their much-prized privilege of an afternoon out. Very few household emergencies seem to them of sufficient importance to justify the slightest concession, so far as this pleasure of theirs is concerned. Illness in the family or affliction of the maid's visiting her own people on the day that belongs to her, and it is a very high-handed and independent mistress who ventures now and then to suggest a change in the program of the people below stairs. Indeed one cannot blame Nora for insisting on her vested rights in this matter for there is undoubted monotony in kitchen work and domestic servants get little opportunity for fresh air and sunshine, even when they are allowed a good deal of freedom in the evening when the master's work is over. There is an aspect of home life far too little considered in the numerous households where the presiding genius is a woman whose tastes incline her to stay much indoors, and whose ideal of duty compels her to feel that who-ever is absent, she must always be on duty. When the children go to school the mother is at the door to see them off and to watch them as they tramp merrily and sturdily down the street. When they rush in at the noon recess for lunch, mother is on the spot and her presence makes the noon hour the brighter for her boys and girls. When the husband leaves for business the wife waves a cheery hand to him from the window, and when he turns the latch key at night and she hears his click, she is ready to receive him with a smile and a greeting. Her position that of a monarch who cannot abdicate and who may not leave the precincts of her realm. In another phase it is like that of the soldier who cannot desert his post or ever so short a time under stringent penalties. Habit and routine have bound this wife and mother with fetters of silk that are stronger than iron. Nobody sees any particular goodness or virtue in the mother's devotion since it is only what is expected of her, and the sort of thing that has been expected from mothers for many a generation.

I am not alluding to the fashionable mother whose days are a round of brilliant functions, and who delegates her individual responsibilities to nurses, governesses and needy relatives. Nor am I thinking of the headless mother to whom duty is merely a name and whose selfishness leads her to shirk any claim that she can. In our country the vast majority of mothers are self-sacrificing to a fault, forgetting and effacing themselves that their children may have the right of way in every department, in amusement, in study, in comfort and ease, in dress, and in the small luxuries that are the embroideries on the rough garment of daily usage.

There are thousands of women growing old prematurely, losing health, beauty and elasticity because they almost never have any relaxation apart from their own households. A week, at least, the mother should have her afternoon out. She should take it as a part of her religion and should conscientiously insist for that time on being away from the loved ones who are so precious and yet so burdensome. Were the mother snatched from her drudgery and laid to rest under the spring violets, the children would be obliged to live on without her incessant care and brooding. Homes rise before me in thought in which a few brief months ago the mother was at once chief ruler and servant-in-chief. She is gone. The catastrophe of a sudden sickness and a swift death has wrecked the joy of the place where the mother's smile was the constant benediction. In more than one instance mothers who are thus lost to their families might have been saved had their vitality not been sapped by too strenuous and too unremitting toil and oversight, part of which might have been stified to other shoulders.

Several years ago in a large eastern city a woman whose life was immensely valuable to her husband and children seemed about to break down in nervous collapse. Her physician said she could be saved if she were in seven and drop the loads you are carrying, stay out of doors, go to see pictures, or to hear music, or spend the forenoon in the company of those who are something agreeable away from the atmosphere of your home." The prescription was followed to the re- lictary of the failing health and to the permanent advantage of the entire household.

To secure this afternoon out may mean a little effort in the beginning. Here the mother will meet the exigencies of some one who loves her and who is willing to take the initiative in friendly urgency. As going out without a definite object appears to the domestic woman almost unheard of and impossible, an objective point should be selected. The maid of course, has hers and it is to deter housekeepers. Farm lands and banks are full of water, the ground is thoroughly saturated with moisture and crop prospects are as promising as they could be. New people are flocking into the Panhandle and new farms are being opened up every day. Land prices are high, but that does not appear to deter housekeepers. Farm lands are rapidly changing hands in all that country. The demand is so great that there is danger in the price going too high."

David L. Blackman, of Corsicana, was in Fort Worth Saturday, having just arrived from Indian Territory. In 1891 Blackman was engaged in the practice of law at his home town, but was carried along with the rush in Beaumont, when Spindle Top broke out and in one deal drove him out of town. He is now in the oil business, and, as he said to a Telegram reporter, "live like a gentleman." "The first time I was ever able to enjoy a Pullman car," said he, "was after I closed out at Beaumont."

PETERMAN'S ROACH FOOD
A Boon to Housekeepers.

The most improved method to free a house of large or small roaches is to use the contents of a box of "Peterman's Roach Food" at one time. Shake it on joints so some of it will penetrate and remain to keep the premises continuously free. Roaches eat it as food; it is the most destructive remedy on this earth for them and will not scatter them to other places to live and multiply. "BEDBUGS"—Peterman's Discovery (quickster)—Bedbugs take it up in the circulation when going over where it is brushed on. It is invaluable if brushed on beds when apart, and on back of picture frames, moldings, etc. It will not rust or harm furniture or bedding. Odorless, not poisonous. "Peterman's Discovery" (liquid)—In flexible, handy cans for cracks, walls, mattresses, etc. Odorless, non-explosive. "Peterman's Ant Food"—A strong powder to kill and drive away ants, also water beetles or black beetles, in one night. "Peterman's Rat-mouse Food" makes rats or mice wild; they will leave and not return. Take no other, as time may be even more important than money. Originated in 1873. Perfected in 1905 by Wm. Peterman, Mfg. Chemist, 54, 56, 58 West 13th St., New York City, London, Eng., Montreal, P. Q. Sold by all druggists in Fort Worth and throughout the United States.

occasional leave of absence. It is less a plea for the mother than with her. She herself is usually the main obstacle in the way of her own vacations. She plans holidays for others and takes none herself. Mothers in general are much too unselfish. It is their beautiful weakness to be strong for others and sanity to the end of their days. Yet a weakness it is, and those who hope and prize them should do their best to cure them of it and make them thoughtful for their own well-being.

MAY ABOUT TOWN.

James R. Sharp, a man who jumped from an oil well driller in the Corsicana oil field to a half millionaire, at Spindle Top was at the Metropolitan Saturday. He is one of the phenomenal oil men of Texas, who took opportunity when it presented and swung himself from the lower to the upper rung of the financial ladder.

In the days of the Corsicana oil field Jim Sharp operated there as a well driller, and when Spindle Top broke out he went and struck it rich. From Spindle Top he went to Sour Lake, chance to Saratoga and from there to Humble and he never made a bad move. Wherever he sent his drill down he struck oil and made the biggest strike ever made in the Humble field, the first well brought in by him having a daily output of 29,000 barrels. "I am in Fort Worth for rest," he said to a Telegram reporter. "I like to come here, it's a good city and I like the people."

Speaking of the oil industry in Texas Mr. Sharp said: "Spindle Top is not what it once was, and it never will be. Sour Lake, Saratoga and Humble show decreased production, and that does not mean that the oil industry in Texas is on the decline. It is just at its beginning. Other fields will be discovered that will pay better than Spindle Top ever was. Where they will be no man knows; they might be near Fort Worth."

L. D. Southern, for many years a resident of Tarrant county, is just back from a trip through the Panhandle country, and says that he has never seen a country in better shape than it is.

"I was at Amarillo, Channing, Tascosa and many other places," he said, "and wherever I was I was impressed by the evidences of good time on every hand. There has been an abundance of rain during the winter, the streams and banks are full of water, the ground is thoroughly saturated with moisture and crop prospects are as promising as they could be. New people are flocking into the Panhandle and new farms are being opened up every day. Land prices are high, but that does not appear to deter housekeepers. Farm lands are rapidly changing hands in all that country. The demand is so great that there is danger in the price going too high."

So far as can be learned, no statements of rolling stock required under the Williams tax law to be filed with the comptroller before April 1 have been forwarded to Austin by any of the three railroads with general offices in this city.

At the offices of the Frisco it was learned that no report had been forwarded from this city, statement being made that in all probability the report would be sent direct from St. Louis. It is known definitely that no report has been sent from the Rock Island.

What action will be taken in the matter is problematical.

PURE FOOD SHOW BRINGS INDUSTRY Brown Cracker Company Secures Quarters

The pure food show of the Fort Worth Retail Grocers and Butchers' association has brought to Fort Worth a new distributing plant which will be opened here this week. The Brown Cracker company of Dallas established a booth at the show and the orders given by the consumers of this city were so large that at a consultation held in Dallas Saturday morning it was decided to open a distributing house here.

J. A. Durway of this city, who is connected with the Brown Cracker and Candy company, has charge of the booth at the pure food show and when the total of orders placed by the consumers through the booth was added up at the end of the show, he made a special trip to Dallas Saturday morning and talked over the situation with J. L. Brown, president of the company, and J. W. Bailey, secretary and treasurer. They decided that the field was so good here from the results of the show that a distributing house should be opened and a city salesman employed.

Mr. Durway will have charge of the installation of the house here and will be managing in this city where it is started. A location for the new distributing house was obtained Saturday at 1609 Houston street and the work of sending over the supplies will begin Monday morning so that the house may be opened before the end of the week.

When asked about the matter Saturday night, Mr. Durway stated that should the trade prove to be satisfactory in this city there is every reason to believe that a factory will be started here to aid in the production of crackers and other products of the company, all of which are made in Texas. The company is trebling its factory in Dallas. Distributing houses have been opened already in San Antonio and Houston.

COAL STRIKE OUTLOOK NOT BLACK AS PAINTED

Only 5,000 Men to Quit in Pittsburg District

MEN ARE SATISFIED

Majority of Mines to Begin Paying Scale of 1903 and Big Fight Ends

Special to The Telegram.

PITTSBURGH, March 31.—When the crisis in the coal strike comes Monday morning it is probable that more than 5,000 men in the Pittsburg district will go out. These represent approximately the union forces employed by the independent operators who will refuse to sign the 1903 scale. Francis L. Robbins, who on his return from Indianapolis this morning, declared that the Pittsburg Coal company would sign the scale is also authority for the statement that the company's action will be followed by all the other operators in the district aside from one or two obstinate independents.

Robbins' victory at Indianapolis means the triumphant culmination of a keen business movement. However much disinterested philanthropy and idealism may have inspired him, it is well known here that Robbins fought the Ryan resolution because he knew that if it were set aside and individual agreements were permitted to be made with the mining companies, the anthracite people would never consent to grant a wage increase. This would force a strike in the hard coal field while leaving south of the soft coal operators a chance to make an agreement with the miners a chance to dispose of their surplus stocks of coal at handsome profits before the struggle ended. At the same time it would give the miners a chance to make a strong fight against the anthracite people and it was this argument, it is said tonight, that led John Mitchell to give his sturdy support to Robbins' scheme. The Pittsburg Coal company will not be slow in taking advantage of its opportunity for Mr. Robbins said today:

Pittsburg to Ship Coal

Lake traffic will begin next week and the Pittsburg district is making every preparation to begin the shipment of coal to the northwest in large quantities.

Meanwhile the Pittsburg district miners' convention is assembled here impatiently awaiting the report of its tellers on the election of successors to Dolan and Belligham, although from authoritative sources it is certain that Frank Freeham is the new president.

Dolan Claims Presidency

Pat Dolan, who returned from Indianapolis today, declared that when the convention convenes Tuesday morning he will preside. Trouble, even of a physical nature is looked for Tuesday morning should Dolan try to carry out his intention of presiding if it was even had this afternoon, although the miners are trying to hush the matter up. Dolan, it is said, came into the convention with great hardiness and several of the delegates that he laid hands on him to thrust him out violently, when calmer counsel prevailed and Dolan made his exit peacefully.

Return to 1903 Scale

From Punxsutawney news came tonight that the Berwind-White, John S. Leavy & Son and the Allegheny companies will begin paying the 1903 wage scale Monday, and that the Buffalo, Rochester and Pittsburgh companies will probably follow suit. Twelve thousand union miners are affected.

Men Are Satisfied

At Irwin, the mass meeting called by the union leaders was decidedly a frost, only 150 men attending. Reports from the miners in the district are that the men are satisfied with the advance and will be at work Monday. Violent demonstrations have begun against the non-union men employed at the tough shaft of the Pennsylvania company, where a strike is in progress and today all the guards employed by the company were taken to Greensburg and sworn in as special officers.

Not So Large as Expected

Special to The Telegram. INDIANAPOLIS, March 21.—After all the talk and bluster of two miners' conventions and joint conferences, developments of today indicate that the strike will not be of great proportions as was at first supposed. The fact that the miners have decided to make partial agreements by the districts promises to prevent a great hardship to the public. The signing of contracts of operators in western Kentucky today is taken as an indication of what may be expected elsewhere. Application was received at the national headquarters of the United Mine Workers today for the signing of all the mines in the territory and the authority was transmitted at once by telegraph. The 3,000 miners this region will continue at work. The national executive board of the miners held an all day meeting arranging to carry out the policy committed to them during the convention which closed Friday afternoon.

No general strike order was issued

By the miners today. The district officials and board members notified the local unions that the men might quit work at the expiration of the old contract at midnight tonight and remain out until they were ordered back to work under the new contract.

Bennett Brown, representing several large mines in southern Illinois, made personal application to President Mitchell today to be allowed to sign the new contract. It was said also that all the mines in Indiana, south of the Baltimore & Ohio Southwestern railway have made application to be allowed to sign the scale. It is true that the owners of none of these mines are members of the operators' association in the central competitive field, but it is believed that the effect of their example will bring the members to terms to save their markets.

On the other hand, the members of the association declare that there is no prospect of a weakening in their ranks. President Mitchell refused to discuss the situation today and would not make any statement regarding his declaration in convention that 50 per cent of the central states mines would sign within ten days.

FT. WORTH YARDS BEING IMPROVED

Unusual Demand for Roses, Trees and Shrubbery

PLANS AT CITY PARKS

Thousands of Valuable Plants to Be Set Out Soon for Beautifying Pleasure Grounds

"The demand for trees, rose bushes and shrubbery is twice as great this year as for any previous year in the history of Fort Worth," said W. L. McCarty, landscape gardener and custodian of the city park Saturday night. In telling of the unusual movement that is being manifested among Fort Worth property owners to improve the appearance of their homes.

The movement for beautifying yards and lawns seems to have come with that for improving sidewalk facilities, and a general tendency to increase property valuations by attractive and ornamental additions seems to be shown by both demands.

Plans at City Park

Mr. McCarty has made extensive plans for beautifying and improving the city park this year. He will have seventy-five varieties of roses scattered among fully 3,000 cuttings. Two new varieties of roses will be grown this year, one the Richmond Red, originated by E. G. Hill of Richmond, Ind., and the other "Baby Rambler," a variety originated from the Crimson Rambler. The Richmond Red is a very large double rose, deep red in color and one of the most popular curiosities of the present time.

Some of the roses at the city park are expected to begin blooming the latter part of this month.

In addition to the roses, the following are some of the plants Mr. McCarty will have at the city park this year: Twenty new varieties of Camas, including a number of varieties introduced for the first time at the World's Fair in St. Louis. Mr. McCarty purchased large numbers of valuable bulbs after the exposition closed.

Five thousand geraniums of thirty varieties.

Two thousand "elephant ears," ornamental plants.

Two hundred Lantanas.

Two thousand foliage plants.

One thousand verbenas.

Two thousand alstroemerias.

Five thousand hibiscus.

Five thousand plumbagos.

A large number of banana plants, asparagus ferns, Boston ferns and palms.

Mr. McCarty believes that palms can be more successfully grown in Fort Worth than in any other city in the case, and will make special efforts to produce many varieties.

STATE OFFICER MAY NOT LIVE

Assistant Attorney General Undergoes Operation

Howard Martin, assistant attorney general of the state, was in such precarious condition at St. Joseph's Infirmary in this city Saturday night that it was feared he would not live until morning.

Mr. Martin has been at St. Joseph's Infirmary since Wednesday, coming to this city for an operation for gall stones which was performed by one of the leading surgeons.

Saturday his condition became more serious. The wife, father, mother and brother of Mr. Martin are in the city, having been called by the seriousness of his condition.

JEWS PREPARE FOR PASSOVER

Important Feast Is Observed 3393 Times

The Orthodox Jewish congregation Aharath Shalom is preparing to celebrate the feast of the Passover, which begins on Monday, April 2. Services will be held in the synagogue Monday night at 7:30 o'clock. Tuesday morning at 8:30 o'clock, and Tuesday night and Wednesday morning in honor of the feast.

Suitable services will also be held by congregation Beth-El.

This occasion is one of the most magnificent of Jewish holidays. For eight days following the passover the members of the congregation eat only what is called matzoh bread, which is made entirely of flour and water, with no yeast.

The services of the first two nights constitute the Jewish Seder. This time is especially pleasing to the members of the Jewish congregation, as they are a liberty-loving race, and this ceremony is in remembrance of their liberation from the Egyptian ruler.

Nearly 3,400 years ago, according to the chronologists, the last of the plagues came upon the land of Egypt, and the first born of every household and of every beast and bird was smitten. It was then the angel of the Lord passed over the homes of the Jews bondage in Egypt, and before the nation went out to journey to the Promised Land the Feast of the Passover was instituted.

This year the Pasch, or Passover will begin at nightfall on Monday, April 2. Then, through eight days of leavened bread will be eaten by the Jews who are careful of tradition and religious requirements. There will be worship in the synagogues all over the world. It is said that never has there been a failure to observe the feast, and that this is the year 3393 since the founding of the feast.

JUDGE FOUND DEAD

Lexington, Ky., Man's Death Said Due to Morphine at Cincinnati

CINCINNATI, March 31.—Judge W. H. Bickers of Lexington, Ky., was found dead in his room in a hotel here by a bell boy, who was sent to wake him this morning. Death was due to morphine poisoning, according to the examination made by the physician who was called. Bickers registered at the hotel Monday and had been drinking during the week. He had plenty of money and did not seem at all despondent.

Before retiring Friday night he was reproved for his conduct in the bar room, and said it made no difference what was said about him, as he had only two more days to live. He asked to be called the next morning at 10 o'clock. An empty morphine bottle was found in his bed. In his pocket was found a note. It requested that his body be cremated.

DAVIS BACKED BY LARGE CLUB

Platform of Mayoralty Candidate Announced

W. D. Davis, candidate for mayor of North Fort Worth, is backed by a club of 450 members bearing his name, active urging of his fitness by the organization being a feature of a campaign now drawing to a close.

Mr. Davis has resided in Texas ever since he was 3 years of age. He has lived at Rossmore and at Sherman, Texas. He has been in North Fort Worth for the last five years. Although 38 years of age, he has never been a candidate for any office. As a member of the equalization board of North Fort Worth he refused to sign the papers reducing the valuation of the packing houses.

Mr. Davis is a man who has a knack of accomplishing whatever he starts out to do. He has promised the voters of North Fort Worth, if elected as mayor to serve for a term of two years, that he will see to it that the affairs of the municipal government are conducted along business lines, and that the workings of the various departments will be put on a business basis.

Seeks Harmony

He deplores the lack of harmony existing in the city council for the past two years, and states that this condition must be remedied if the town of North Fort Worth is to continue to grow and become a city of importance; and that he will undertake to keep the aldermen in line and have them pull together for the betterment of conditions.

Favors Street Commissioner

Mr. Davis is in favor of good streets, and recommends that there be appointed or elected a street commissioner, who will be personally in charge of the improvements, and who would have authority to work the city prisoners on the streets.

Mr. Davis recommends that the city of North Fort Worth build a suitable prison, in which to confine the prisoners.

Would Extend System

He takes the position that the present water works system does not extend to all the citizens of the town equal favors, obtaining water, and that every citizen, no matter where he may be located, is entitled to the privilege of obtaining water from the city mains. He believes that one of the first things the city should undertake is the building of a sewerage system that will be large enough to accommodate the needs of the city many years hence. He also declares for ample and adequate fire and police protection at all times. He is in favor of building a city hall at the proper time, and as near the business center of the town as possible.

February the boys exceeded the girls by twenty-two, and during January the boys had twelve majority. This is unusual, according to general statistics, as it is most usually the case that the births of girl babies exceed the boys.

During March, according to the reports, there were born in Tarrant county 115 children, 66 of them being boys and 49 of them girls. This makes a total of 23 more boys in three months than girls.

During March the births, as reported to the county clerk, footed up 145 and the deaths 50, the difference in favor of births being 95.

Y. M. C. A. HAS HALF PLEDGED

Bulletin Board Saturday Night Showed $6,000

The red lines in the thermometers on the Young Men's Christian Association bulletin board at Seventh and Main streets, kept rising yesterday, although it was Saturday.

The whistle was again blown in the morning, indicating that the half-year mark, $6,000, had been passed. This amount early on the sixth day again showed ahead of time, as the sixth day was not closed until last night. Everything indicates that the people will again hear the toot of the whistles on Monday morning, which will show that $7,000 has been pledged by the people of the city in six days. There are six more days to complete the amount, as the canvass closes at 6 o'clock sharp on next Saturday night.

The association, the business men and the city are pledged to win the race against time and close with at least $12,000 next Saturday night.

There will be general rejoicing when this amount is reached, as the people of the city are watching with great interest to hear the whistles, which show each additional $1,000.

Hardly a person passes Seventh street without stopping to see how the temperature is standing in the different thermometers. Four have reached the top and two more are nearing that mark. They are No. 8, B. A. Ross and W. H. Grove, and No. 6, composed of B. B. and W. B. Paddock.

The Wells-Fargo boys are passing a subscription list among themselves, and will early in the week hand in a nice amount to apply on the employed men's committee.

The solicitation by letter and telegram among the traveling men has been going on, and those who know the big-hearted men of the road best predict that there is no thermometer on the board big enough to show their temperature by Saturday night. So far this has been a canvass with no large amounts, but the directors still expect large amounts such as are given in every movement of this kind in the country.

Both telegraph companies will submit free of charge messages relative to subscriptions.

TO THE TELEGRAM

Rotation in Office

Fort Worth, Texas, March 30, '06. To The Telegram.

Being highly in favor of the "five" city commissioner form of government for every reason that can be advanced for a strong centralized municipal organization, along the same lines that banks, street, steam railways and all other large concerns are managed, I would go further than has yet been suggested by having rotation in office; that is, at the first election, vote for all the duly authorized candidates as the commencement of the new plan, the five receiving the highest number of votes of course being those chosen, but with this proviso: the one receiving the greatest number of votes, of the five selected, to be installed for five years; the next highest, for four years; third, three years; second, two, and the lowest to serve but one year unless elected the next year, he then to serve five full years.

By this means, after started, only one commissioner year to be elected, leaving or board all the time old and experienced, obviating the misfortune possible entirely new lot entering office at one time without any knowledge of what is expected of the City affairs cannot be too well understood to make a complete success. Get the best results at the least expense, for men work and caring early for what has gone before, move every temptation of political influence, possible graft or wasteful through neglect or ignorance short, a strict business combination with only time for the city's good.

Respectfully yours,

W GOLF COURSE
BEST IN STATE
Worth Club Members
Delighted With Links
QUIRES GOOD WORK

Fort Worth now has the "bravest" course in the state, having none, new nine-hole course was opened at Arlington Heights Saturday, and a number of the members of the club were present to have a first look.

The links are in much poorer shape than the old course, which has been done, but after the proper amount of work has been expended, they promise to be as good in the state, besides being the most difficult. Guy Crooks, the new professional at the club, announced his first round on Saturday that course is the most difficult upon which he has ever played.

Natural obstacles so abound on the course that it has been found almost necessary to add any more hazards, putting on the eighth hole, where a pit has been added, in natural ways, deep ravines form the great source of trouble. To the members of the club who have visited over the old course it is only necessary to state that the ravine at first hole on the old course is the best of four such crossings, and even the hole has been moved back yards in order to give a longer carry to the ravine.

Course Is Rolling

The entire course can be easily seen from the plaza of the Country Club, which is just high enough to overlook various ridges upon which the course is laid. Rolling land cannot be seen in the state which will furnish an opportunity for a golf course very hole is laid along natural golf that seem to have been made for purposes. On every hole the course is straight line from tee to hole in such a way that a slice or a hook is sure to find more trouble than ordinarily expected upon a golf course.

The difficulties of the course are not the delight of the golfer, but the harder the course is, the more becomes the interest of the golfer and the pride in the course that much greater.

The greens of the course are yet in shape as work has been done on account of rain, and they are not given sufficient time to harden up. That is a small improvement, however, as the more play that is subjected to the harder they get. The method of the club in building greens, while an experiment in line, has had sufficient testing in matters to know that with a time they will prove successful.

The green is sloped more or less so that when once the green is hardened the water will drain off, the most picturesque spot on the course is the ravine on the third hole, which must be crossed on the drive, not very wide and a fair drive carry it, but this is the only ravine that one must descend into in order to get to the next hole. Bogey is the highest of the course. To play the Colonel one must do a bogey of five. This hole plays as an easy play, as there are no ruts. The hole here is the farthest from the club and the last three holes almost in the same direction to the club house.

The hole No. 7 is 405 yards and has a bogey of five. The going is easy unless slices out of bounds beyond

SHOE PRIDE

It is not an uncommon thing to be proud of one's New Shoes, but how many people can you find that are willing to acknowledge that they are proud of their old shoes. Yet one of our customers told us recently that she was proud of her old shoes, because they looked like new, and were so comfortable.

You know what they were—A Famous Shoe.

the fence, which is rather uncomfortably near.

The eighth hole is 300 yards, with a bogey of four and lies near the beginning of the ravine near the club house. Play here is also easier than the first half of the course, except for the fact that the green slopes away from the tee and consequently is harder to remain on.

The home hole is just in front of the club house and is 173 yards from the tee. Bogey is three, and the carry of the drive must be over the end of the ravine in order to make the green.

Goos Around in 49

The record score on the near course so far was made Saturday by Crooks, the professional, who went around the first time he was on the course in 49, which is remarkably good, considering the fact that a good brassy lie is a rarity and the greens were entirely new to him.

The new course is 3,035 yards in length, which is about the length of all ordinary nine-hole golf courses, although perhaps a little longer than most golf courses of nine holes. The bogey for the course has been set temporarily at forty-two strokes, but this is subject to revision as the course is played over, and the manner of play necessary for each hole is considered.

The formal opening of the course will take place on next Saturday, when another match will be played with the Dallas team in this city. Two matches have already been played with Dallas, both of which Dallas has won. A strong effort will be made by the Fort Worth players on Saturday to win the first victory of the season.

FOOTBALL NOW DIFFERENT GAME

Gridiron Contest Changed by Rules Committee

Special to The Telegram. NEW YORK, March 31.—The knell of football as played last season was sounded today, and an entirely new gridiron game created when the members of the American Intercollegiate Football Rules committee, in their session in the Murray Hill hotel, passed the following resolution:

"That the rules as at present played have been finally passed, and that in the next session of this committee no changes will be in order except (1) changes in wording; (2) inconsistencies; (3) such other changes as may be allowed to come before the meeting by unanimous consent of all the members present."

The rules that were adopted cover principally the punishment and definition of all sorts of roughness and brutality.

All sorts of deliberate injury are barred by disqualification. Unnecessary roughness carries with it a fifteen-yard penalty.

Another umpire has been added to the staff of officials, and all officials have been given power to report roughness and have them penalized. Tackling below the knees is barred in open field, and all sorts of hurdlings barred, as is also the forward pass.

The much discussed neutral zone, which prevents the two lines of scrimmage men from bucking against each other at the snap back, has become a reality.

After a kick by teams both teams will be on one side hereafter, as soon as the ball touches the ground.

With these changes effected the rules committee is confident that an open game will result, while all the bad features of piling up and flying tackles have been eliminated.

The heavy punishment for roughness is calculated to put an end to all sorts of brutality, because not only the guilty man but his team also suffers. It is expected that no team will retain a player who is consistently rough in his tactics.

All that now remains for the rules committee to do is to prepare the rules for the book. In order to have a final agreement on the wording of the rules, another meeting will be held in the Murray Hill hotel April 4.

COWAN BUSY ON AMENDMENT

Fort Worth Attorney Preparing Addition to Rate Bill

FOR ROOSEVELT

Ideas Embody Wishes of President—Burden of Proof to Be Placed on Railroads

Special to The Telegram. WASHINGTON, D. C., March 31.—After repeated consultations with President Roosevelt, Senator Dooliver, Senator Clapp, Attorney S. H. Cowan and others have taken the ground that if there is to be any amending of the railroad rate bill in the direction of a court review provision, it must be done by the friends, and not the enemies of rate regulation. Accordingly S. H. Cowan, by consent of the President and those who have been supporting him in his long campaign in behalf of the people, has requested the committee to draw up a moderate court review amendment which will meet the views of the administration and which will represent, it is hoped, the maximum concessions which his friends in the bill are willing to see introduced into it.

Cowan Working on Solution. Mr. Cowan was one of the real framers of the Hepburn bill. He was consulted at every stage of its progress before it was introduced by Senator Dooliver. He has had repeated consultations with the President, and the amendment he is at work upon will naturally represent the point of view of the real friends of the bill as opposed both to great lawyers like Senator Knox, who has not only constitutional objections, but economic ones, and to democrats like Senator Bailey of Texas, whose friendliness to real rate regulation has been notoriously open to suspicion.

From Mr. Cowan himself and from others of the influential friends of the bill, your correspondent has obtained an outline of the proposed rate review amendment to be submitted by the administration element after it has been drawn by Mr. Cowan within a day or two. The substance of this administration amendment is now given to the public for the first time.

In the first place, it will aim to provide that, in those cases where it is brought before the Interstate commerce commission, shall have the right to file suit in equity against the commission as defendant to assert and for the purpose of securing a writ guaranteed to the railroads by the constitution. Immediately upon the filing of this suit the court will be required to hear the case, and to secure this result the court will always be deemed to be open and the case will proceed without formal pleadings in equity, and it will take precedence of all other cases on the docket.

Burden of Proof on Railroads. Then the amendment will provide that the plaintiff, which will be the railroad in each case, will be required to file with its petition for review certified copies of the conclusions and the order of the Interstate commerce commission. The acts of the commission shall be presumed to have been lawfully made and shall be deemed correct, unless, and until, the contrary is determined.

This means, of course, that the burden of proof immediately will be placed upon the railroads. The decision of the commission will stand unless the railroad has produced sufficient evidence to upset it on a fair hearing.

In the amendment Mr. Cowan is now drawing up, at the suggestion of President Roosevelt, it is proposed that when a suit in equity is brought there shall be filed in court a certified copy of any part of the evidence or proceedings before the commission which shall be necessary for the decision of the case in court.

If it shall appear the carrier has withheld or failed to present any evidence of proceedings before the Interstate commerce commission, which, in fairness, should have been called to the attention of the court, the court may thereupon dismiss the bill filed by the common carrier without further proceedings.

Furthermore, the amendment will provide that appeals shall be directly to the supreme court of the United States, and they must be promptly taken. These appeals will not suspend any action of the circuit court confirming any action of the commission, so that if the rate is fixed in the lower court, the rate fixed by the commission will stand until the supreme court of the United States has finally passed upon the case.

Settles Question of Injunctions. Most important of all will be that section of the proposed amendment which provides that no restraining or interlocutory orders shall be granted on any ex parte affidavit. This is the point which was especially insisted upon by Senator Raynor of Maryland when he crossed swords with Senator Spooner last week and demonstrated his ability as a constitutional lawyer.

All of the friends of rate regulation have realized more or less that the rate fixed by the commission pending adjudication, provided it is not so manifestly unfair to the railroad that it would result in practical confiscation. What friends of rate regulation have been afraid of was the passage of a court review amendment which would really make it obligatory upon the courts to suspend every rate as soon as the case was presented to them and keep it suspended until a decision could be reached as to its reasonableness.

Mr. Cowan will endeavor to draw up an amendment which will prevent the suspension of a rate by means of an injunction or interlocutory order merely upon the ex parte affidavit of a railroad company charging the Interstate commerce commission has fixed an unreasonable rate. On the contrary, the proposed amendment specifically will provide that after the railroad has filed its suit in equity the commission may also have the right to file a cross bill asking the court to enforce its order in the same case by an injunction. The court thereupon would have presented to it two directly opposite petitions, one asking it to suspend the rate fixed by the commission and the other asking that the same rate be made binding upon the railroads by force of an order of the court.

Complaint No Expense to Shippers. Inasmuch as the railroad will be forced to file with the court evidence taken before the Interstate commerce commission, and as the commission will have the right to file a cross bill in each case, it is believed that the court will merely review the evidence and determine whether the rate fixed by the commission was justifiable or not. The tendency, of course, would be against the issue of any temporary injunction on either side and the courts naturally would proceed to a decision of the case at once. As soon as the decision was made in the circuit court the rate either would be suspended indefinitely or it would be enforced by injunction, and both shippers and consumers would have an opportunity to be heard.

Furthermore, it will be evident from the wording of the Cowan amendment that the government in each case, as represented by the Interstate commerce commission, will be party to the suit and the stippler who made the original complaint will not be compelled to bear the burden of the cost of litigation. Before the amendment finally is drawn other features may be introduced, but those given represent the point of view of the administration and the friends of the Hepburn bill as it has been formulated by a series of conferences concluded today.

LOST ON TEXAS RANCH

Missing Thirty Hours—Cowboy Tricks Played on Tenderfoot. SINTON, Texas, March 31.—E. W. Root of Washington, son of Secretary of State Root, who is learning to be a cowboy on the Coleman-Fulton ranch near here, has been subjected to many rough pranks by the cowboys. He has taken them all good naturedly, however, and no longer is regarded as a "tenderfoot."

The old-time joke of having him mount a trick bucking broncho was played upon Root. In this case the doughty young easterner stuck on the back of the broncho until there was nothing to do but jump, the saddle and bridle having been bucked off.

It is an easy matter for a stranger to get lost upon one of these big ranches. Young Root was greatly surprised that kind a few days ago. He was sent out in the morning to take a message to a fence rider who was lost for thirty hours. He discharged his pistol time after time until all his ammunition was exhausted. He slept little during the night. He suffered greatly from cold and was forced to get upon his feet at intervals and walk around briskly to get his blood in circulation and restore a degree of warmth to his body. He came in about noon almost exhausted from hunger and loss of sleep. Forces of cowboys had been hunting for him all night. Young Root undertook western life in an effort to recover his health, broken by hard study at Harvard.

OVERFLOW IS ALLEGED

Injunction Now to Be Argued to Compel Railroad to Remove 300 Feet of Embankment

Special to The Telegram. WAXAHACHIE, Texas, March 31.—In the district court here the suit of J. H. L. Jackson against the International and Great Northern Railroad Company, which had been on trial about a week, was concluded. The jury awarded a verdict in favor of the plaintiff, giving him a judgment against the road in the sum of $853.20. The amount sued for was about $2,000. The plaintiff alleged in his petition that the railroad built its dump on the bank of Cottonwood creek near his farm, and to protect the same deposited rock and drove piles in the creek banks, thus the obstructions caused his land to overflow, washing away his growing crops and permanently injuring him.

The case was submitted on special issues, the jury finding in the affirmative on all of them. The jury also found the facts sufficient to sustain an injunction. The attorneys will argue the injunction before Judge Dillard as soon as he can hear it. Should he sustain the jury's finding of fact, a writ will issue compelling the railroad to remove about 300 feet of its embankment and clean out the channel of the creek.

SARCASH KILLS GRAB

Mississippi Legislator Kills Boarding House Trust Argument. Special to The Telegram. JACKSON, Miss., March 31.—When the proposition was made to the house, backed by the indorsement of the Judiciary committee, to raise the salaries of the members of the lower body from $400 to $500 for a regular session, Representative Errington made a three-minute speech against it that drew from members convulsive shrieks of laughter. After he sat down a vote was defeated, the legislators deciding that they were not entitled to the change.

"You say you want an increase of salary," said Mr. Errington, "because the boarding house rates are high in Jackson. Why, some of you are living in Jackson in $6 a week boarding houses on better grub than you ever had in your life at home. If old Solon Draco and a few more of those old fellows were to take a look at this bunch they would turn over in their graves. Raise your salaries? Confound you, some of you ought to go home without a cent."

Under Suspicion

It was the disappearance of Bellamy Store from the diplomatic service know if the decision reached was sudden. Mr. Shaw did not reply directly. "Out west," said the secretary, "there is a tenderfoot who struck a new town just as a funeral procession was coming out. He stood and watched it file by, and then inquired of one of the bystanders who the deceased was."

"Was his death sudden?" inquired the tenderfoot. "Sudden" said the resident. "No, stranger; he's been under suspicion a long time."—New York Times.

CORNER SIXTH AND HOUSTON STREETS

TO CLEAR NAME GIRL ENDS LIFE

Articles She Was Accused of Taking, Afterward Found

Special to The Telegram. OWENSBORO, Ky., March 31.—One of the saddest tragedies ever enacted in western Kentucky occurred at the little town of Hartford, the capital of Ohio county. Miss Prudie Ford, a beautiful 18-year-old girl, humiliated by a charge of theft, took arsenic. She then seated herself on the banks of Hough river, near Hartford, and, as her life was ebbing away, she wrote two letters, one to her parents and the other to her sweetheart, to whom, it is said, she was engaged to be married at an early date.

"I am dying," ended the letter to her parents, and she left the missive on the banks of the river and waded into the water. Her body was not recovered for two days, at the end of which it was found about 150 yards from the spot where she entered the water.

The saddest phase of the case is that the articles reported stolen were found in the home of the woman who missed them.

The tragic suicide of Miss Ford has cast a gloom over Hartford. The young woman had been there for six months attending Hartford College. She was preparing herself for teaching. Her parents, poor but respectable, lived several miles from Hartford on a farm.

A woman, at whose home Miss Ford had been, expressed the belief that the girl could tell where some money, a watch and some clothes she had missed could be found.

This gossip continued till it was carried to County Prosecutor Woodward. While the prosecutor's informant was talking to him, Miss Ford appeared on the street. She was called into the court house for an explanation.

She strenuously denied the charges and told the men they might search her trunk.

The girl left the court house and resumed her journey to the college. On the way she stopped at a drug store and purchased some arsenic. About 2 o'clock in the afternoon she asked permission from her teacher to leave the school.

She went immediately to the river bank and sought out a favorite spot frequented by the college students. She swallowed the drug and began to write to her sweetheart, Lawrence Gray. Her letter was as follows:

Letter to Sweetheart. "Lawrence, Darling: Since I left she has accused me of stealing some things from her, and God knows I am innocent. She says she will have me prosecuted, but I hardly think she will. I am now at the old water mill, ready to jump in. I love you, and have been true to you, but rather than see the shootin' stars! I thought tuz good as Fort July, but pa kicked like a mule. I guess he doesn't like his friends to be a April fool!"

The letter to her parents was in the same strain, and was written after she wrote to her sweetheart.

The last person to see Miss Ford alive was ex-Sheriff Keown. He was duck hunting across the river and saw her sitting on the bank writing. He paid little attention to her, and when he passed near the spot again the girl was not there.

Following the finding of the body a mass meeting of the citizens of Hartford was held. It was attended by 200 persons. Resolutions testifying to

LUCK DRAWN FOR JACK DOUGHERTY

Punished Roughly by Gardner He Sticks Out

Special to The Telegram. BY CHIP. CHICAGO, March 31.—Jack Dougherty, who at present enjoys the distinction of being Milwaukee's "favorite son" in the pugilistic line, went against the real thing this week in the shape of Jimmy Gardner, and was awarded the luckiest draw that even a Milwaukee fighter has received for some time.

The best thing that can be said about Dougherty's showing in the fight was that he stuck to his guns from first to last, and although badly punished by Gardner, with a badly swollen face and blood pouring from his mouth and nose in the last rounds, he fought like a tiger, and his game rally in the seventh and final sessions helped to mitigate somewhat the apparent injustice of the referee's decision.

Although outclassed by Gardner, Dougherty showed that he had the right stuff in him and with more experience will doubtless "pan out" all right.

This young Dougherty has fought hard for every inch that he has risen in his ring career. Starting in as an undeveloped lad some five years ago with some little science, but with a punch that would hardly hurt a muskito, he was nearly beaten to death for a couple of years by the sturdier lads of his class—he was then a featherweight. But Dougherty stuck his muscles grew harder and he commenced to fill out, and finally he was able to occasionally win a fight.

Now although still far from being a fighter of the burly type, he weighs 140 pounds in condition and has developed a punch that is terrific for a man of his build, and this, combined with a fair degree of boxing ability, make him a hard customer for pretty nearly any man in his class.

But last Tuesday's fight was Gardner's, beyond a doubt. That is the verdict of every Chicagoan who saw the fight. Jimmy gave full evidence that he has regained all his old-time speed. He outboxed and out-generalized Dougherty and came out of the fight with scarcely a scratch, while the Milwaukeean was pretty badly used up.

The game in Milwaukee, however, is pretty much the same proposition as in California, and possibly a few other places. The "native son" is a draw "me card" as long as he remains unbeaten, and the club promoters take pretty good care to see that he is not beaten. Their first effort in this direction is to appoint an "official" referee, who is also a product of home talent. And as long as their boy is no knocked cold, the rest is easy. Al this, however, is well understood by the visiting fight impresarios, and there is generally nothing said about rank decisions in consequence.

The Famous Ty Bells With The Great Sells-Floto Shows

SELLS-FLOTO SHOWS

Has an Immense Parade—Here Monday, April 9

A distinguishing feature of the Sells-Floto Shows is the monster free open den street caravan. Who does not like to see the circus parade? Who would not view the gaily colored cages come along when Madame Valletto is seen spanking the nose of a large lion with a little whip while cheers greet the act? The "Rube" clown, who gets arrested for blocking traffic on the streets, with his mule and cart, was once a great feature. He is well known now, but the inventive minds of circus men will have another novelty to replace him. Another event of moment in every small town, and large one, too, for that matter, is the early arrival of the circus train. Long before the long train pulls in on the sidetrack near the depot the crowd is there. There is an army of juvenile volunteers, who are willing to carry water for the elephants just to get a fine pastebord entitling them to admission to the show later in the day. Men are there—to see that their boys, who have passed a sleepless night—do not get hurt. Even women find some excuse for going down to the railroad yards and taking a long look at the canvas-covered cars. Boys, who have gathered and sold enough old iron, rags and bones to get 50 cents, enjoy a memorable day and the streets leading from the farming district to town are covered with every imaginable kind of vehicle.

Like the others, the farmers come to bring the children. The feed dealer, who supplies hay, oats and corn for the horses on a contract made with the advance man, wants several extra tickets—just for the children. The same is true of the butcher, who supplies the meat for the cook team. As soon as the sun is out there is bustle and activity every place. If the superintendent of the public school is wise he will declare a holiday. What boy or girl can think of geography, spelling or arithmetic when there is a circus in town? In the language of the German comedian, "It is to laugh." The circus does a land office business, and as the crowd is pouring into the circus tent from the menagerie at the night performance, the army of employees of the show starts to take down the canvas which shelters the cages and the work of loading the outfit onto the train begins. Thousands of tired boys and girls retire, after having seen the show, peaceful and contented. The following morning the antics of the clown cause merriment at the breakfast table and some youths who reside near the circus lot hurry through their morning ablutions in order to go over near the ring and see if any change has been dropped by the spectators of the previous night. The great Sells-Floto Shows will be here Monday, April 9.

STURDY FARMERS KEEP OFF ALL CATARRHAL ILLS BY TAKING PE-RU-NA

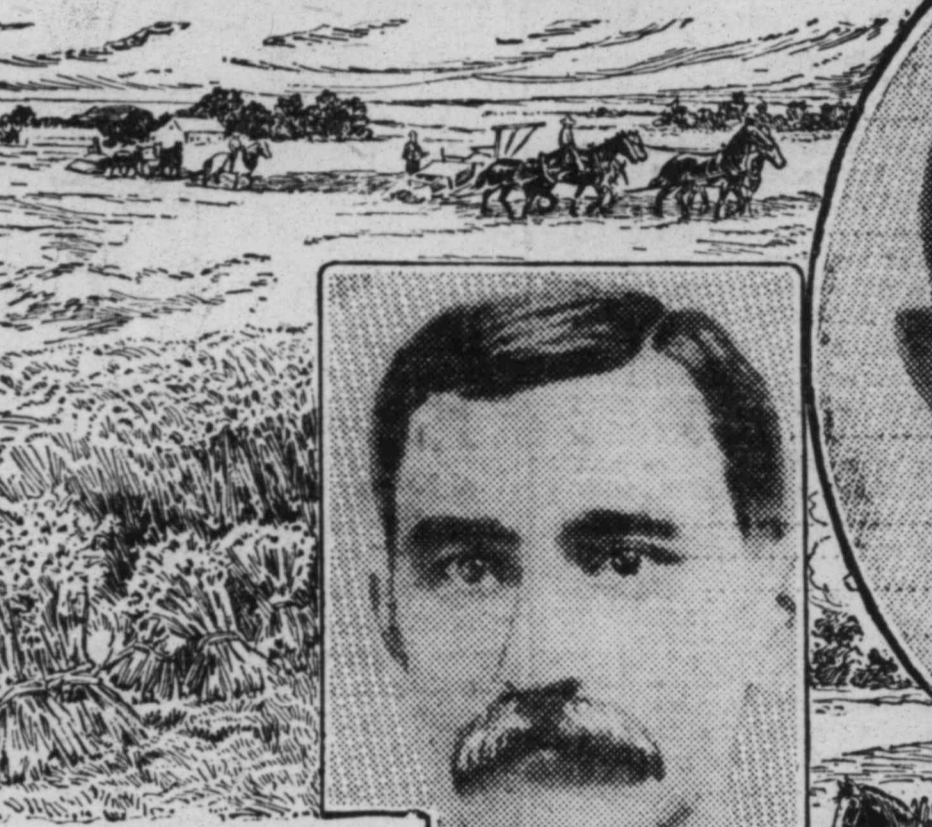

MR. GEO. H. THOMPSON, At Work on the Farm and Feeling Well All the Time.

"I have been cured of catarrh by your medicines, Peruna and Manalin. I had been affected with catarrh of the stomach about all my life, and was taken bad every Spring and Summer.

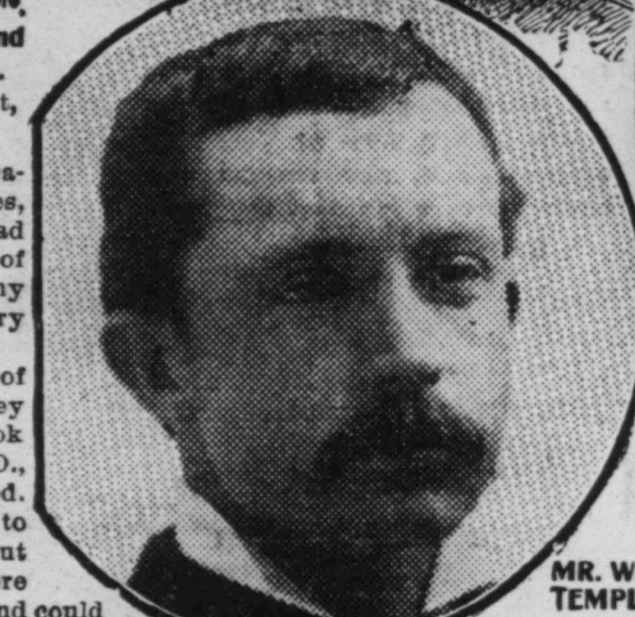

MR. GUSTAV SCHMIDT.

Pe-ru-na, the Most Reliable Remedy For All Climatic Ailments.

Chronic Catarrh of Head and Throat Lasted Thirty Years.

A Letter Praising Pe-ru-na.

MR. W. J. TEMPLE.

Climatic Ailments Overcome by Pe-ru-na.

Mr. W. J. Temple, R. F. D. 3, Delaware, Ohio, writes:

"I am a farmer and so necessarily must be exposed to all kinds of weather.

"One doctor called it ulceration of the bowels, another called it colitis. Another doctor helped me temporarily.

"Then a druggist recommended Peruna and I followed his advice. I took altogether five bottles and I consider myself a well man.

"Before using Peruna, it was utterly impossible for me to do a day's work, but now I can do farm work without the least trouble or fatigue. I consider Peruna the best medicine and tonic on the market.

"I had not eaten a meal for five years without distress until I took Peruna. I have recommended it to several friends with good results."

Mr. Gustav Schmidt, Spring Valley, Ill., writes: "I had catarrh of the head and throat for over thirty years. It became worse every year. About three months ago I commenced to take Peruna and Manalin, and now I am entirely cured of that troublesome sickness.

A TALK TO FARMERS.

THE farmer is the salt of the earth. Without the farmer, the industrial world with all its furry and immense wealth could not exist for a day.

It is upon the soil that we all depend for our living. No matter how far one may be removed from tilling the soil, or how little he may know about the farmer's vocation, he is vitally dependent upon the things which grow in the soil.

Farming is the basis of all wealth and is the bulwark of all civilization. The farming class is rapidly becoming intelligent and shrewd in business management.

The reuben and the country bumpkin have disappeared and in their stead a practical well-trained business man, capable of the highest form of commercial activity, has arisen.

Peruna is a very popular medicine among the farming class.

Many a family depends largely upon Peruna as a family medicine and the family physician.

Some farmers are far removed from physicians, and in any case they are far more self-reliant and more liable to depend upon a household remedy than people who live in the cities.

Dr. Hartman, who for many years was a farmer himself, and who still owns and manages one of the best farms in the State of Ohio, is a friend of the farmer, and it is with the farmer that the immense bulk of his correspondence is conducted.

The millions of booklets published and distributed by Dr. Hartman every year circulate chiefly among the farming class.

A large number of unsolicited testimonials concerning Peruna come from the farmers every year.

MR. J. B. ALEXANDER.

A Necessity in the Home. J. B. Alexander, publisher of the "Fruit and Floral Guide, a Magazine of Horticulture," published in Hartford City, Ind., says of Peruna:

"I was afflicted with catarrh of the throat and head for over ten years. I was treated by many physicians, but grew worse until I was seldom able to go out in cold weather.

"About one year ago I was advised to try Peruna, which I did, and I am now entirely well of the catarrh.

"Peruna is a necessity in our home. With the first symptoms of a cold we use it, and are never afflicted with catarrh.

"I advise all who are afflicted with catarrh to try Peruna. There is certainly nothing equal to it as a catarrh medicine."

Dr. Hartman Interested in Farming.

Notwithstanding Dr. Hartman's busy professional career, he still continues to be interested in farming. He is the owner and manager of one of the largest farms in the State of Ohio, with several thousand acres of the best land in the Middle West, and with hundreds of the best blooded percheron horses ever imported or raised in this country.

Pe-ru-na, a Household Friend.

Mr. Henry Schroeder, Estey, Mich., writes: "I suffered for almost ten years with catarrh of the stomach and all doctoring of Peruna and two of Manalin and am now entirely cured.

"I recommend the medicine to all who are afflicted with this disease. It is my household friend."

One of Dr. Hartman's Grateful Respondents.

Mr. W. R. Callahan, Proprietor of Big Hill Farm, and prominent fruit grower and stock raiser, Glenvar, Va., writes: "I write to express my kindness toward you and your good medicine, Peruna.

"I had a very bad spell of sickness and could not eat anything at all. My head, stomach, in fact, my whole body ached, and it looked as though nothing would do me any good. I had almost given up.

"I decided to try a bottle of your Peruna and before I had taken half the bottle my appetite came to me and my head became all right. In fact, I was all right all over. Peruna cured me."

While Peruna is not confined to any one class of people, yet it is probably true that the farming class more than any other, rely upon Peruna for the prevention and cure of all climatic diseases.

At Work on the Farm and Feeling Well All the Time. Geo. H. Thompson, Craft, Miss., writes: "I have been cured of catarrh by your medicines, Peruna and Manalin. I had been affected with catarrh of the stomach about all my life, and was taken bad every Spring and Summer.

Weddings are in the air! Engagements are in vogue; they are contagious; more than that, they are epidemic in Fort Worth!

A number of our most popular girls have formally announced their engagement and besides there are rumors of "dark horses."

The first wedding of social prominence is that of Miss Mary Malone, one of our dearest and most talented girls, to Card Garnett Elliott. The ceremony will take place Wednesday evening, April 4, at 8 o'clock, at the Broadway Presbyterian church, Rev. Junius B. French officiating.

The attendants will be Misses Virgile Paddock and Mary Harrison, Messrs. Guy Richardson Pitner and Louise Malone.

They will make a four weeks' trip to California and will then make Fort Worth their home.

The second of our girls to leave us will be Miss Celia Nail. Miss Nail is accomplished, being an excellent linguist, having studied several years abroad. Her fiancé, Morris J. Silson, whom they say is a veritable Adonis, is well known in Sherman, both in the business world and socially. He is division superintendent of the Southwestern Telegraph and Telephone Company there.

The wedding will take place Easter Monday at 7:30 o'clock p. m. in the First Presbyterian church, Rev. Wm. Caldwell performing the ceremony. Only the relatives and most intimate friends will be present. Immediately after the wedding there will be a reception at the Worth.

After a two weeks' honeymoon to Monmouth, Ill. and St. Louis, Mo., they will be at home to their friends at their new home, 482 North Travis street, Sherman, Texas.

Miss Helen Waples during her short residence in Fort Worth has attained quite a remarkable popularity. She is a girl of excellent common sense, wears very smart gowns, has plenty of confidence and is always admirably at ease. Miss Waples will be married to Loyd Hawley McKee April 18.

The ceremony will take place at 8 o'clock Wednesday evening in St. Andrew's parish. Bishop Garrett officiating. There will be a reception at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Waples after the ceremony.

Mr. McKee, formerly of Macon, Mo., came to Fort Worth about a year ago, and has made many friends. He is a partner of Axtell & McKee and we are glad to know that they will make Fort Worth their home. Miss Waples' maids will be Misses Myra Foster, Helen Oldham, Mary E. Atchison, and Mrs. Edna Foster.

With the date of Miss Teddie Edgington's wedding set for May 1 we reach the climax of the wedding. Miss Edgington has lived in one home since her childhood and is beloved by old and young, rich and poor. She has held a unique position socially, being the most general favorite. She is well traveled, is blessed with a beautiful voice, and the most magnetic personality. All Fort Worth will miss her when she moves to a far distant home. Miss Edgington will be married to Charles A. Penn of Reidsville, N. C., at 8 o'clock Tuesday evening, May 1. Rev. B. B. Ramage will perform the ceremony in St. Andrew's parish. Miss Edgington's bridal party will include Misses Anita Penn of Reidsville, N. C., Marguerite Crawford of Dallas, Elizabeth Tarlton of Austin, M. A. Phelan of Atlanta, Ga., Ray Saunders and Burnie Newlin. Messrs. Will Edgington, Jefferson Penn of San Francisco, Richardson of Reidsville, N. C., E. T. Lednum of Wilmington, Del., Edwin Bewley, Harry Wynne, Frank Schoeber, Drs. Lyman Barber and George Adams. Immediately after the wedding there will be a reception given by Captain and Mrs. H. C. Edgington at their home on Lamar street. They will go to California and the Hawaiian Islands, after which they will make Reidsville their home.

The rule of the club is for the hostess to provide the table accessories and the guests to bring with them the substantial. The rule works admirably and the knowledge gained of culinary skill of the members puts admiration into eloquent phrase.

Miss Burnie Newlin was the hostess of the S. S. C. Friday afternoon. Miss Anita Penn won the silk hose in a cut with Miss Stella Root. The guests of the afternoon were: Misses Leafie Sloan Orcutt, Tom Slack, H. L. Warwick, Richardson of Rochester, Minn., Ed Burns, H. Hardy, John Tewksbury, James Gray, Misses Teddie Edgington, Anita Hunter, Grace Hollingsworth, Nita Hollingsworth, Stella Root of Houston, Anita Penn of Reidsville, N. C., Mary Terrell.

Mr. and Mrs. T. G. Knight entertained with a family dinner Wednesday evening. The occasion was the celebration of the birthday of Mrs. W. A. Durringer and Mrs. Knight, and also the fifty-first wedding anniversary of Mrs. Knight's mother and father. Mr. and Mrs. Rambo, of Des Moines, Iowa. Clever toasts were drunk to their birthday dinner. Mrs. L. Bowman and her two lovely daughters, Misses Gertrude and Inez, entertained the Seriatim Club most graciously Friday afternoon. Sixteen games of whist were played and the club prize, a sofa pillow, hand-painted, in the colors of the club, was won by Mrs. A. F. Conlisk; the consolation, a hand-painted sash, went to Mrs. D.

Green and white were the colors used throughout the dinner. Green burning tapers formed pistons in Easter lilies, round tables, most artistically decorated with heart-shaped baskets of stately Easter lilies. The place cards for the girls were of Easter lilies, and bouquets of lilies of the valley for the gentlemen. The colors were carried out in crepe de minthe. Miss Mary Saunders toasted the groom, Miss Teddie Edgington, the bride-elect, and Miss Burnie Newlin the honeymoon. The hostess and toastmaster were also toasted.

After the luncheon the guests were given the daintiest hand-painted cards on which was a pretty bride. On these cards they wrote clever advice to the bride. A number of these were in verse and were very good. These were presented to Miss Malone in a lovely case as a souvenir of the afternoon.

The luncheon was also a sashet shower and the honoree has many sweet souvenirs of the day.

Mrs. Burton's guests were: Misses Ray Saunders, Teddie Edgington, Mary Terrell, Martha Jennings, Phillips of Tyler, Mary Harrison, Burnie Newlin, Virgile Paddock, Mary Malone, Mrs. R. E. Buchanan, Mrs. I. H. Burnie.

WILL YOU START A GARDEN?

Spring is here. It is time for flower lovers to begin planting their gardens. It is the time when the average amateur gardener makes his worst mistakes.

Too often he buys seed which he does not handle properly, with the result that bare spots in the garden show where he expected beautiful blossoms.

The amateur should make a start now by sowing the seed of many kinds of showy annuals in boxes or pots, to be kept indoors for awhile. The boxes should have holes for drainage in the bottom, but should not be so open as to keep the soil dry.

WHEN THE PLANTS GROW The box should be set by the window and given plenty of light, but at the same time shielded from the hot sun. When the plants have grown to a fair size, it will be warm enough outdoors to set them out in the garden.

To Re-raise Roses

Wilted roses, seemingly fit only for the rubbish heap, may be completely revived and freshened. Put the stems of the roses in a tumbler of water and then place the tumbler and roses in a vessel of sufficient size to allow the entire bouquet to be covered.

Mrs. Davis Says: "Texas Is the Country"

Mrs. E. Davis, head trimmer and designer for the Golden Rule millinery store in Houston street, is a native of the south of England, and has been in the United States for the past fourteen years. Because she has had her training in her business in the best millinery establishments in the world she is the chief reason why the people of Fort Worth so liberally patronize the Golden Rule, but the general opinion in the Panther City is that, wherever she had her education, training and experience, it is the beautiful designs created under her supervision that won for the Golden Rule the envy of Fort Worth milliners places exclusively.

previous to her recent connection with the Golden Rule, has been in the millinery department of the Parker-Low dry goods company. There is an able corps of young women in the Golden Rule and the number of hats turned out by the place is wonderful when it is taken into consideration that patrons of millinery establishments are very exacting as to the appearance of spring bonnets. The Golden Rule fails to disappoint any of these and the result is that the place is doing a business that is remarkable—even in Fort Worth—the best city in Texas.

Regard for Texas, with Mrs. Davis, the English trimmer, has now taken the form of now regarding herself a "seasoned long-horn"—she arrived from Denver, Colo., in September, 1905. In Denver she was employed by the Daniels & Fisher stores and was previously connected with such firms as Hitchcock & Williams, London, O'Neil, Sixth avenue, and Alken, Fifth avenue, New York. The Holland Millinery company of Denver, also claimed her services for some time.

showing the prospective customer both herself and the head gear in their most effective appearance, for nothing tends to delight a woman more than to see the reflection of herself and a beautiful hat in a perfect mirror.

Mrs. Davis won some renown in England by winning the first prize offered by the earl of Devon, for four consecutive seasons in table decorations in wild flowers. Having graduated from the amateur class into a full fledged professional decorator, it can be readily seen that her creations in hats for women are things of loveliness and joy—until next season, when all will be expected to get a new hat.

A Clamor for Endowment

For years our dramatic critics and lovers of the art have advocated and urged the endowing of theaters devoted thereto. New York is entitled to congratulate herself on the public spirit and interest in the higher forms of drama and music to which she shall owe her endowed theater. But shall she have the only endowed theater in the country? What has she that other great, wealthy and progressive American cities lack? Chicago, Philadelphia, Boston and Pittsburgh should severally have their endowed theaters and "opera houses," for each has the requisite culture and means. The movement is worthy of the heartiest encouragement.—Chicago Record-Herald.

To Make Shoe Polish
An excellent shoe polish is made by dissolving 4 ounces of gum arabic in 1/4 of a pint of good black ink. Add to this 1 1/2 ounces of molasses or coarse brown sugar triturate in a mortar or shake them together for some time, gradually incorporating 1 ounce of sweet oil. Then add 2 ounces of strong vinegar and, lastly, an ounce of rectified spirits of wine. A paste blacking after a famous German formula is made as follows: Ivory black, 1 part; molasses, 1/2 part; sweet oil, 1/2 part; mix, taking pains to add the oil slowly. Then stir in a mixture of hydrochloric acid 1/4 part; oil of vitrol 1/4 part; each separately diluted with twice its weight of water before mixing them. Both liquid and paste polish are greatly improved by gently simmering over a slow fire for eight or ten minutes, a few hours after the conclusion of the mixture of the ingredients, but before adding vinegar or acid. After heating, your preparation must be allowed to cool under cover, and finally given a vigorous stirring while mixing in the omitted ingredients.

deliberately abridged the supplies of her table. I had a vision of her husband somewhat scantily fed and of her children anemic and pallid, in order that she might hold her own with the wives of wealthier men than Edward. I had great respect for John of the sturdier fiber, and for his sensible wife, the emphasis of living on dress and spends so much for clothing that neither body nor brain can be furnished with a diet that makes good red blood and maintains physical strength at the highest point of excellence.

I do not think that many American women make this egregious blunder. The alphabet of frugality is so little understood by most of us that we expend far more than we need on the table, the same rate of lavishness running straight through all our daily conduct and through the ordering of our homes. Undoubtedly there is some truth in this; many women have had no preliminary training in taking care of left-overs and of odds and ends, and others having not the faintest idea of what and how to buy. A course in marketing should be a part of every young woman's education and a course in catering would do few girls any harm.

The ordinary cook and housemaid survey with scorn the mistress who keeps tally of the sugar, butter and eggs that are used in the kitchen, and regard with disfavor the thrifty habit of keeping on the back of the range that pot-au-feu. Into which every housekeeper in France puts the scraps and bits that combine to make a savory soup.

A good table is one on which at every meal appetizing and nourishing food is placed in sufficient variety to tempt the palate and build up the system from the brain to the grandfather, in health and vigor. We hear a great deal in these days about food adulteration, and it is safe to say that people who depend largely on canned goods and prepared foods should buy only of the best manufacturers, and avoid those whose wares cannot stand the test of chemical analysis.

To say that all such foods are adulterated is to speak foolishly, and to utter a sweeping censure that is not deserved. There are firms whose very names guarantee their responsibility and whose imprint on any brand of meat or vegetables may be instantly and fearlessly accepted. Here there is peril in choosing what is offered at a bargain. The cheapest vendors on the grocer's counter are not invariably the best. Probably a day is coming when goods of every kind will be submitted, as milk and cream are now, to critical inspection, so that homes may be guarded from the subtle poisons that

What constitutes a good table? The answer will be made in accordance with our different tastes. Nature provides liberally for human sustenance in delicious fruits, Union Mark vegetables and grains that are abundant in varying and full of nutriment. We should begin the day with fruit, either in the natural state or well cooked. Here there is large room for choice. Baked apples and stewed prunes would in many cases shut the door on bitter fruits and portions once considered inevitable as part of the diet of children. Is there anywhere a man or woman growing old who has not disagreeable ends, and others having not the faintest idea of what and how to buy. A course in marketing should be a part of every young woman's education and a course in catering would do few girls any harm.

NOW'S THE TIME TO CURE THAT TIRED FEELING BY PHYSICAL CULTURE

EXERCISE, BUT DO NOT OVERDO IT

DR. W. R. C. LATSON.

Special to The Telegram.
NEW YORK, April 1.—"Why do pugilists fall at a time when they are apparently just in their prime?" This question, directed at Dr. W. R. C. Latson, world famous as a writer, lecturer and practitioner of physical culture, met with a quick response. "The fall," he said, "is because they train and fight in ignorant disregard for the simple laws which rule the human system. People forget that the body is a machine and must be treated just as such. I have long observed that just as soon as a prize fighter begins to stiffen under violent and unnatural training, just then he is doomed to meet defeat. Pugilists who have stayed

DR. LATSON TO TELL OUR READERS HOW

The Telegram has arranged for Dr. W. R. C. Latson, famous as a writer, lecturer and practitioner of physical culture, for a series of illustrated articles on common sense physical culture for men and women, school boys and school girls. These practical stories will, or should, at least, be of special interest to the tired business man and desk man, who thinks he is wearing out.—Editor.

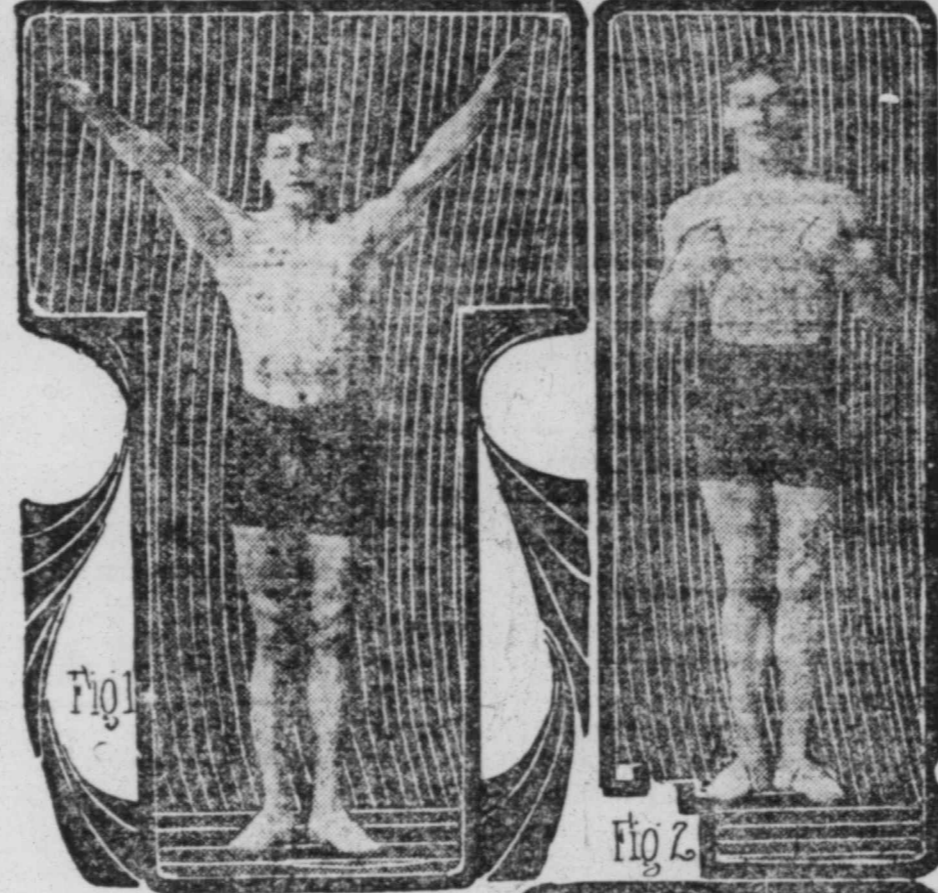

In the hard game longest are those who have not been deceived by the crazy notion that a man must run ten miles a day, while gripping cork handles; lift a few tons of sand after breakfast, and crack stone after supper until every muscle is strained and aching.

Dr. Latson is no theorist. Though under-sized, as men go, and busy in his profession, he is a marvel of strength and perfect physical development. No day passes that he does not have a few rounds with some of his athletic friends, some of the professionals, with the gloves. "I believe," he said, "that ever man and woman should give their bodies a square deal. The majority of the human race go on from day to day without a thought for the protection of the very thing which makes more for happiness and success than any other in the whole scheme of life. We all say that perfect health is our most precious possession, and then we eat like pigs, neglect and abuse the rules of hygiene, sacrifice the joys of exercise, walk with a shambling gait, head down, shoulders crowding chest, our vital organs all cramped out of place, and the law of gravitation tugging at us from half a dozen angles. "You know a man is just as old or young as he feels. That is literally true. When a person begins to complain little aches and pains, when he frets and worries about trivial things, when he totters along the street, his flesh a burden to his bones, then that man is old. I do not care what his years may be. "The way most people stand and walk is simply appalling. The letter S about describes it, and there is absolutely no chance for health to come into such a body. "I find that two meals a day are sufficient and that the diet must be strictly selected. I advocate less meat and more olive oil. Perhaps some day Americans will learn the value of the latter vegetable product as a nourishing and health-giving food. People who do not drink two quarts of water a day, and never at meals, are abusing the physical system."

EXERCISE FOR THE ASPIRING ATHLETE

"How can I increase my athletic powers?" is a question often put to me by some bright and aspiring young athlete. Perhaps he is a sprinter who wants to cut down the hundred-yard record. Perhaps he wants long-distance honors, and knows that for success he must have endurance and wind. Perhaps he is a tennis player and wants to increase his quickness and muscular control. He may be a boxer, a wrestler, a "gym" man.

To all of these my answer is the same. I advise, quite outside the special training on the track, the court or the mat, the daily practice of such exercises as will help to general bodily development—such as will increase the chest capacity, stimulate the vital organs and limber up the muscles. The following are specimens of the kind of exercise which in the best sense of that much abused word are, I believe "natural."

Exercise No. 1, for carriage and development—Heels together, arms hanging. Take breath raising arms. (See Fig. 1.) Holding breath cisp the hands over the head and stretch firmly upward.

Exercise No. 2, for chest power and "wind."—Heels together, lightly closed fists resting over the nipples. (See Fig. 2.) Now inhale full breath, and while holding the same expand and contract the chest so as to bring the clenched hands first nearer together and then farther apart.

Exercise No. 3, for muscular flexibility—Take weight on left foot. Swing the right freely back and forth. (See Fig. 3.) Swing left in the same manner, taking weight on right. Use least possible effort. In the same way swing the arms both singly and together.

EXERCISE FOR OFFICE MEN

BY DR. W. R. LATSON.
Articles and Photographs Prepared Especially for The Telegram.
No class of men suffer more from lack of exercise than office men. Sitting all day over a desk, in a cramped position, with only the brain and the pen hand busy—this is not only the hardest kind of work, but work which interferes with the proper action of the lungs, heart, stomach, liver and other important organs. The office man needs abundance of exercise. The following I have prescribed many times in such cases, with most satisfying results: Exercise No. 1—Stand with feet together, arms hanging easily. Take full, slow breath. Then, holding the same, stretch the body upward and forward. (See Fig. 1.) Take in all the air you can; make the chest as big as possible; away as far forward as you can. Keep the head up. After about ten seconds exhale the breath and relax the muscles. Repeat six to ten times.

Exercise No. 2—Inhale full, deep breath. Then while holding it take a long step forward with right foot and extend body and arms forward and downward toward the floor. (See Fig. 2.) Repeat three to five times.

Exercise No. 3—Simply walk up and down the room on all fours. This means on hands and feet, not on the hands and knees. This movement calls into play every important muscle of the body, and is one of the best general exercises I know.

WORDS OF PRAISE

Buffalo, N. Y.
Dr. Thurmond:
I cannot find words to express my gratitude for what your wonderful Lons Star Blood Syrup has done for me. I have been suffering for nearly two years with rheumatism in my hips, and it then run down in my legs and it pained me so bad I could not walk. My son got me two bottles of your valuable medicine and I took it according to directions, and I now feel scarcely any pain and I believe one more bottle will entirely cure. Please send me one more bottle.

Yours truly,
ELIZABETH SELLARS.

W. T. Scott, one of the leading merchants of Pilot Point, Texas, says: "My wife was in extreme bad health. She only weighed 119 pounds when she began using Dr. Thurmond's Blood Syrup. She has taken four bottles and her health is entirely restored and her weight is now 138 pounds. The Blood Syrup is a boon for such cases. If you suffer, try it."

EXERCISE FOR SCHOOL BOYS

The average school boy gets quite a little exercise—baseball, prisoner's base, tennis, football and other games. But, while such sports are good in their way, there is not one of them that is sure to give the boy a big chest, a straight back and an erect carriage.

For the purpose of gaining these, as well as for the development of the muscles and for the "wind," I know of no exercise better than the following: Exercise No. 1—Stand with heels touching, toes turned slightly out. Take in a long, slow and full breath, at the same time moving the arms in a wide sweep upward and backward (see Fig. 1), so that when the lungs are full the hands will be over the head. Then, without holding the breath, exhale it, slowly bringing the hands down in front of the body. Make the movement slowly. Don't strain. Don't bend the elbows. Notice that the hands move in a wide circle. Repeat from six to ten times several times a day.

Exercise No. 2—Stand with feet slightly apart. Place the backs of the hands against the body just under the shoulders. (See Fig. 2.) Now let out the breath slowly, at the same time throwing the head backward, as shown by the boy in the photograph, (Fig.

2.) Then sink the head and bend the body forward, at the same time inhaling the breath so as to expand the back. This exercise is especially useful in straightening the back, squaring the shoulders and expanding the chest.

Blacklayers' Superstitions
Bricklayers believe it is unlucky to lay the top brick at the north corner of a building. Some of them would lose a day's pay rather than imperil their future by doing such a piece of work. A bricklayer often breaks up in the hollow of a wall a horseshoe with a cent tied to it. This he does for good luck. To lay the first and last brick of any building but a church brings good luck to the bricklayer. It is bad luck to break a trowel.

Mean Insinuation

"I'm afraid
That my darling Jim
Won't love me when I grow old."
Said he, friend,
"I'd not spend
Any time on him.
He's already growin' cold."
—Cleveland Leader.

Impatience

Only to follow you, dearest, only to find you!
Only to feel for one instant the touch of your hand;
Only to tell you once of the love you left behind you—
To say the world without you is like a desert of sand;

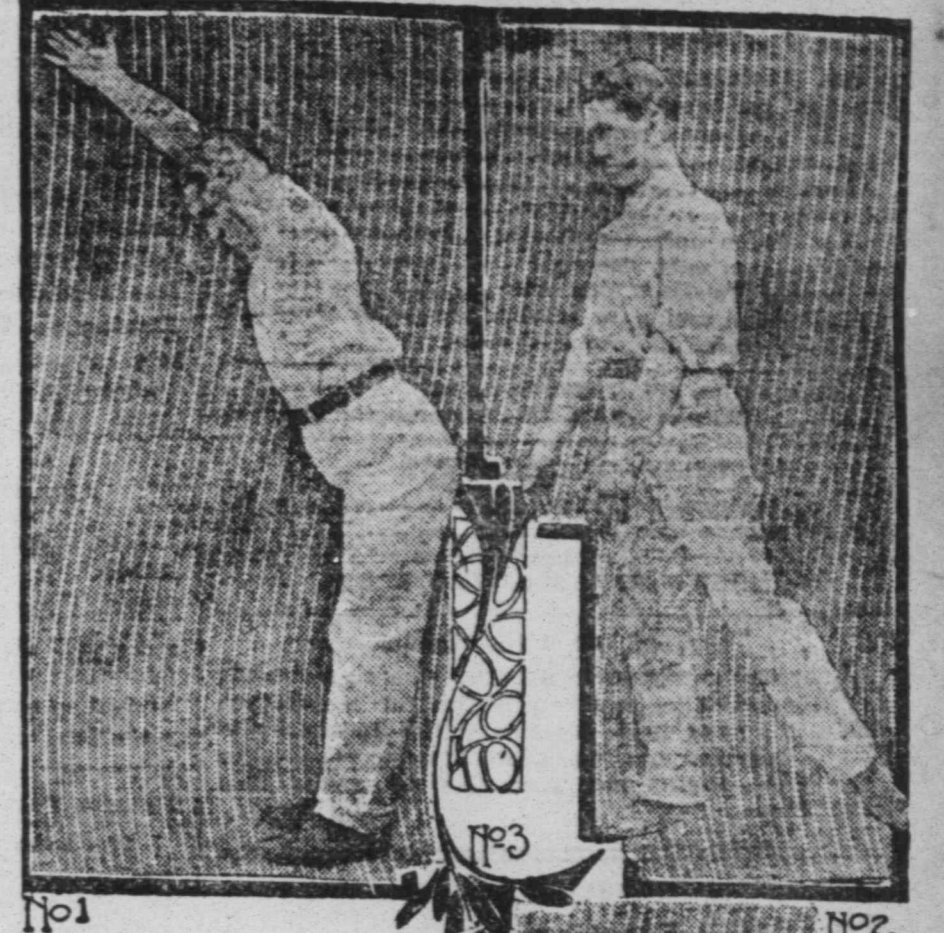

That the flowers have lost their perfume, the rose its splendor,
And the charm of nature is lost in a dull eclipse;
That joy went out with the glance of your eyes so tender,
And beauty passes with the lovely smile on your lips.

I did not dream it was you who kindled the morning
And folded the evening purple in peace so sweet;
But you took the whole world's rapture without a warning,
And left me naught save the print of your patient feet.

I count the days and the hours that hold us asunder;
I long for Death's friendly hand which shall rend in twain,
With the glorious lightning flash and the golden thunder
These clouds of the earth, and give me my own again!

EXERCISE FOR BUSINESS MEN

EXERCISE FOR YOUNG WOMEN

BY W. R. C. LATSON, M. D.
Article and Photographs Prepared Especially for The Telegram.

Few young women get proper exercise. Most of them either get no regular exercise at all, or practice exercises which do them more harm than good. I may say at once that I am strongly opposed to all violent gymnastic work for women. Basket ball, dumbbells, chest weights and other apparatus—all these are far too arduous for the woman's delicate nervous system.

As for the monkey-like "stunts" of the gymnasium, they are not only injurious, but what is perhaps worse—they are ugly. Among the results of this kind of "physical torture" are drained nerve centers, ungraceful movements and strained, prematurely aged faces.

Women should exercise to gain three things—erect carriage, grace of movement and better health. For such purposes the following exercises, which fatigue neither mind or body, are most valuable:

Exercise No. 1—Feet together, arms hanging easily at the sides. Inhale full breath at the same time swaying the body forward. Then, holding the breath away still farther forward, allowing the head to fall straight back. (See Fig. 1.) After a moment let the breath out, relax the muscles and return to position. Repeat from three to six times.

Exercise No. 2—Take full breath, and while holding it twist the body straight around as far as you can to the right. After a few moments of firm stretching relax muscles and resume position. (See Fig. 2.) Then take another full breath and turn toward the left. Repeat each exercise four to six times.

Exercise No. 3—Walk easily up and down the room, relaxing all the muscles as much as possible imitating the gait of one staggering from the effects of fatigue or drugs. This exercise develops ease and grace of motion, and when properly done is a cure for weakness.

The average business man gets too little exercise—and far too much to eat. If he will cut down the food taken to two-thirds or even one-half of his usual quantity; and if at the same time he will devote ten minutes twice a day to properly and systematic exercise, the result will be that he will improve his health, increase his earning powers and add much to the "joy of living."

The following movements are among those which I have found most useful for uplifting and expanding the chest, for invigorating the general health, and also for relieving muscular tension and nervousness.

Exercise No. 1—Stand with feet together, inhale full breath slowly; at the same time raising arms straight out at the sides until the palms meet above the head. Then, holding the breath, bend forward toward the floor. (See Fig. 1.) Repeat five times.

Exercise No. 2—Feet together, arms hanging at the sides. Take full breath. Then, holding the same, bend the knees until the finger tips, reaching downward, touch the floor. (See Fig. 2.) Repeat six times.

Exercise No. 3—Stand easily, feet well apart. Swing the body from side to side as on a pivot, allowing arms away as they will. (See Fig. 3.) Continue for about two minutes, using in the movement the least possible amount of force.

child craves and needs. The result too often is a weak body, small, undeveloped muscles, a flat chest and out-flaring shoulder blades. The following movements, if regularly practiced, will do much to prevent these faults, or, if present, to correct them. Ten minutes two or three times a day is quite time enough for them at first.

Exercise No. 1—Stand with feet together. Take breath and hold it while you stretch. (See Fig. 1.)

Exercise No. 2—With feet together, bow forward, and without bending the knees try to touch the floor with the finger tips. Keep knees firmly back. (See Fig. 2.)

Exercise No. 3—Stand easily. Swing the arms back and forth, swaying the head and body in time. (See Fig. 3.)

EXERCISE FOR THE CHILDREN

Children need much more exercise than adults. A healthy child wants to be forever on the move, running, jumping, playing, romping. And in a romp with his elders he is almost always sure to tire them out. This fondness for bodily exercise on the part of the child, and his remarkable power of endurance, are merely signs of the child's needs. After much thought on the subject, I am convinced that the greatest need of the young child is free motion.

But at school the child is forced to sit still. At home he or she has studied, piano practice, or some other task. So there is very little chance for the continuous and free motion which the Bad Stomach Makes Bad Blood.

You can not make sweet butter in a foul, unclean churn. The stomach serves as a churn in which to agitate, work up and disintegrate our food as it is being digested. If it is weak, sluggish and foul the result will be torpid, sluggish liver and bad, impure blood.

The ingredients of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery are just such as best serve to correct and cure all such derangements. It is made up without a drop of alcohol in its composition; chemically pure, triple-refined glycerine being used instead of the commonly employed alcohol. None this glycerine is of itself a valuable medicine, instead of a deleterious agent like alcohol, especially in the cure of weak stomach, dyspepsia and the various forms of indigestion. Prof. Finley Ellingwood, M. D., of Bennett Medical College, Chicago, says of it: "In dyspepsia, it serves an excellent purpose. It is one of the best manufactured products of the present time in its action upon enfeebled, disordered stomachs; especially if there is ulceration or catarrhal gastritis (catarrhal inflammation of stomach). It is a most efficient preparation. Glycerine will relieve many cases of pyrosis (heartburn) and excessive gastric acidity. It is useful in chronic intestinal dyspepsia, especially the flatulent variety, and in certain forms of chronic constipation, and in the treatment of chronic and excretory functions of the intestinal glands."

When combined, in just the right proportions, with Golden Seal root, Stone root, Black Cherry bark, Queen's Root, Blood-root and Mandrake root, or the extracts of these, as in Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, there can be no doubt of its great efficacy in the cure of all stomach, liver and intestinal disorders and derangements. These several ingredients have the strongest endorsement in all such cases of such eminent medical leaders as Prof. B. Bartholow, M. D., of Jefferson Medical College, Chicago; Prof. Robert A. Hare, M. D., of Medical Department, University of Pa.; Prof. Laurence Johnson, M. D., Medical Department, University of New York; Prof. Edwin M. Hale, M. D., of Hahnemann Medical College, Chicago; Prof. John M. Scudder, M. D., and Prof. John King, M. D., Authors of the American Dispensatory, and scores of others among the leading medical men of our land. Who can doubt the curative virtues of a medicine the ingredients of which have such a professional endorsement? Constipation cured by Doctor Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. One or two a dose.

OUR LAY SERMON

"Gee, but it's hell to be poor." Those were the last words of a suicide in Kansas City a few days ago—an individual made after the image of his Maker, and who was so desperate in the fight for existence that he did not hesitate to usher himself unbidden into the presence of his God.

That fellow was a fool. He was just as unfit for habitation in this world as in the one he sought by taking his own life. Poverty is not always a blessing, but there are many things worse in this life and the life to come.

It is not a crime to be poor. If a man has health he can work, and if he can work, he can by his own honest efforts get enough to eat, enough to wear and enough to keep him comfortable and warm when Old Boreas is howling about his humble place of abode. These are, strictly speaking, the necessities of life and with them supplied a sane man with a sprinkling of philosophy in his makeup can enjoy life infinitely better than many of those who are the possessors of millions.

The sun, up in God's blue sky, shines just as brightly for the poor man as for the rich. The birds come and sing just as sweetly in the trellised vines over the entrance to his humble home, as in the windows of the rich man's conservatory. The petals of the rose—the queen of flowers—smile just as sweetly for the poor man's child as for the scion of some opulent house born with a silver spoon in its mouth, and the fragrance of the lily tickles the nostrils of him without the almighty dollar in his jeans just as delightfully as it sheds its perfume on the olfactory nerves of him who ranks as a modern Croesus.

The man is poor who is not delighted with the song of the wild bird. He is poorer still if he has ceased to note the beauty of the lily of the valley, or the fragrance that exudes from the red heart of the rose. He is abjectly poor when his soul is not stirred by the laughter of his children, or his heart is not thrilled with the finest emotion of human kind by the holy kiss of mother, wife or children.

These are the pleasures of life that come to men who live right. These are the real sunbeams that break through from heaven, and dollars are not required to bring their rays within the humble homes of the poor as well as those who sport plethoric bank accounts. They come to bless the poor as well as the rich—they always come to those who are prepared to receive them. "As a man thinketh, so he is." Contentment and happiness come not with the acquisition of worldly riches, neither do they stay away from him who is able to acquire much gold. A frugal and contented disposition is one of the greatest of the riches with which humanity can be endowed, and the man who curses fate and decries the world generally belongs to the class who labor under the delusion that the world owes them a living without the necessity of exchanging therefor good honest sweat of the brow.

"Gee, but it's hell to be poor."

There are thousands of men in this fair land of ours who would today be willing to exchange all the wealth they have been able to accumulate for a return of the happiness they knew before their lives were clogged by the weight of their dollars. John D. Rockefeller would today give the best part of what he possesses for the digestion of the fellow who decided it was hell to be poor, and this brings to mind the further thought that the poorest men on earth today may in many instances really be those who are possessed of the most of this world's substance.

The man—poor though he may be, who will deliberately lay down the life with which he has been endowed, with the remark that his conception of hell is embraced in his existence of poverty, is a misanthrope and all around misfit who has closed his eyes to the realities of life and is content to pin his faith altogether to mere speculation. It may be hell to be poor, but only to those who are so blinded they will not see the light.

All men cannot be rich, so far as the accumulation of this world's goods and chattels are concerned, but there are greater riches than those ordinarily confided to the strong box. And the man or woman who cannot rise to an appreciation of this fact is to be greatly pitied.

The poor man in his hovel can be just as rich in many things as the rich man in his palace. This idea that poverty is a crime is one of the greatest errors into which humanity can fall. Poverty is not always a blessing, but in many instances it is the best thing that can be measured out to the individual.

There are many men in the world who are equally positive that it is hell to be rich.

FEDERAL CONTROL OF QUARANTINE

The matter of federal control of quarantine matters is one that is attracting considerable discussion, not only in the state but at the national capital. The Texas delegation in congress is presenting a solid front in opposition to the federal government taking over the control of quarantine in this state, but the claim is made that the State Medical Association, which meets in this city next month, is in favor of such action. The Houston Post says:

The news comes from Washington that Dr. Chase, secretary of the Texas Medical society and editor of the Texas State Journal of Medicine, has written to John Sharp Williams that the 3,000 physicians which constitute the membership of the society are in favor of the federal control of the quarantine. The Post will not contradict the statement, but it does not mind saying that it does not believe the statement to be true. Dr. Chase will have to show the Post.

Has he received letters from these 3,000 physicians or has he conversed with them personally, or has he merely assumed that his own preferences necessarily govern the other members of the society? The Post knows that many of the leading physicians of this section of the state are bitterly opposed to the federal control of the quarantine, and among these are physicians who have had much experience in dealing with quarantine and yellow fever.

Certainly if Dr. Chase made those representations to Mr. Williams with authority, he was well within his rights, but otherwise he has perpetrated an injustice upon the large number of physicians who do not favor federal control of the quarantine.

Of course, the members of the Texas delegation will not relax their opposition to the bill because of Dr. Chase's position. There are many grave questions involved in the bill. It is pregnant with disaster to both the health and commerce of the people of Texas and, still worse, it strikes at the sovereign powers of the state itself.

The state of Texas has demonstrated its ability to keep yellow fever out and no consideration of transferring the trivial expense of the health department to the federal government would begin to compensate for the right of the state to take at all times such measures as may be deemed necessary to protect the health and business of the Texas people.

The Telegram does not know Dr. Chase's authority for the statement that the 3,000 members of the medical profession in Texas constituting the state association favors federal control. He has doubtless satisfied himself in this direction, else he would not make such a broad statement. But those 3,000 medical gentlemen do not constitute but a small proportion of the population of Texas, and their position in the premises cannot be taken as indicative of Texas sentiment.

The people of Texas as a whole do not desire any interference with quarantine matters on the part of the federal government, in the judgment of The Telegram. The general sentiment among Texas people is that there is already sufficient interference with matters of state by the federal authorities. The late James S. Hogg, who is universally conceded to have been one of the greatest patriots Texas has ever produced, has more than once warned the people of this sovereign state of the dangers to be encountered from the steady encroachments of federal authority, and especially in the matter of the judiciary. That there are grave menaces from that quarter is palpable, else James S. Hogg, the true and tried friend of the people, would not have expressed such concern over the situation.

The federal government is all right in its place, and it is the duty of every patriotic citizen to support and sustain that government. But the matter of state government is a little closer home, and a man's first duty begins at home. If the ideas of those who believe in a strong and centralized form of government could be carried out our state governments would soon be governments in name only. Washington would be the center around which all else would revolve and our form of government transformed from that of a republic very largely into that of a despotism.

There is too much disposition on the part of some of the people to run to the federal government with their every conceivable complaint, and too much desire for federal regulation of everything. The state of Texas, as the Post well says, has demonstrated its ability to handle quarantine matters in a safe and effective manner, and not until the state falls down will there be justification of the idea of turning these things over to our obliging Uncle Samuel.

THE SOUTH IN CONGRESS

In the March number of his magazine, Tom Watson, the voluble populist leader of Georgia, declares it would make no difference to the south or to southern people if the representation of the southern states in congress and the electoral college should be cut in accordance with the Keifer program. While the proposition emanating from a northern republican of the old civil war and reconstruction type like General Keifer has attracted but little attention, the indorsement of the scheme by Tom Watson, who is a southern man, has elicited much comment and vigorous protest.

The Keifer schedule, thus indorsed by Watson, is a great outrage, and would reduce southern representation in congress as follows: Alabama, from nine to five; Arkansas, from seven to five; Florida, from three to one; Georgia, from eleven to six; Louisiana, from seven to three; Mississippi, from eight to three; North Carolina, from ten to six; South Carolina, from seven to three; Tennessee, from ten to eight; Texas, from sixteen to twelve; Virginia, from ten to eight. The total reduction in these states would be thirty-eight, the representation standing at sixty instead of ninety-eight as at present.

But that is not all. If the Keifer-Watson program could be carried out it would result in the south having a paltry representation of 100 in the next electoral college, out of a total of 476, and would forever settle the matter of republican supremacy. There would be little hope left for the democratic party, and it is clear from these facts that the Keifer plan is a much deeper proposition than appears on the surface. It is a scheme concocted for perpetually saddling republican rule upon the people of this nation, and it will be resisted to the bitter end. Congressman John Sharp Williams, the democratic leader, was asked: "Is it of interest or value to the people of the south that their present representation in the house of representatives and in the electoral college should be maintained?" Following is his reply:

It is a curious question to ask a sane man. You might as well ask me if it was of no interest or value to a man to cut off one of his arms with which he fights and with which he resists.

The answer seems so obvious that it is hard to answer at all. In addition to the ordinary legislation concerning rivers and harbors, rural free delivery and the hundred and one other things in which each part of the union is interested in seeing that it gets justice and fair dealing, there are the great principles of a fundamental character, concerning which people differ, not only as individuals, but as sections. The less votes a section has, the less its power to do its own will, or to resist others, when they would do their will against it.

If the south had had less representation than now, the republicans would have had a two-thirds majority—and therefore a constitution-changing majority—in a half dozen congresses, where they have not had it. In addition to all this, there are sentimental reasons why the south wants to remain as strong as possible in the popular body of the national legislature. Her traditions and ideals are strong in proportion to her representation.

There is not much probability of the Keifer plan being adopted, and the greatest interest attached to the situation is the fact that it portrays Tom Watson of Georgia in his most characteristic light—that of a man who would make any sacrifice, even of principle, in order to accomplish the complete annihilation of the democratic party. But Tom is powerless, save for the ammunition he thus affords the republican party.

The testimony adduced in the investigation of the wounds conferred upon section 120 of the Terrell election law, now in progress in Austin, has shed but little light on that very peculiar transaction. And Judge Terrell, the father of the measure, is still far from satisfied that it was but a common every day error.

Advices from Austin indicate that the adherents to the blanket primary proposition are feeling almost strong enough to attempt to run the proposition over the governor and tack it on to the election law whether such action would be legal or not. And this is very bad policy. The only safe and proper thing to do is to wait until the thing can be done legally.

Mineral Wells indignantly repels the idea that the prohibition state convention could be any more appropriately entertained in that city than the state democratic convention. And still, it is generally conceded that Mineral Wells is riding into prosperity and renown on the water wagon.

The big railroads of the country are seizing all the coal they lay their hands on, and this may be accepted as a pretty straight tip that the long expected coal strike is almost dead sure to materialize.

When Fort Worth has a big fire the work of rebuilding always begins by the time the ground cools off. That is the Fort Worth way, and accounts for the fact that Fort Worth is always a winner.

More packing houses for Fort Worth are said to be slated for the very near future, and Fort Worth needs several more packing houses in her business. The field here is a fine one for all who choose to come.

A DINNER DE LUXE

Mr. Platos, the well known publisher of subscription sets, gave a de luxe dinner last Thursday evening to the authors connected with his flourishing house, and not since the Mark Twain banquet has so distinguished a group of men of letters been seen as that which gathered at the old Clarendon hotel. Among those present were Sir Walter Scott, Charles Dickens, William M. Thackeray, Alexander Dumas, George Elliot, Honore de Balzac, Jane Austen, Anthony Trollope, Louise Muhlbach (Klara Muller), and Mr. Plutarch. Letters of regret were read from William Shakespeare, Edward Gibson and Henry Fielding.

The after dinner speaking was unusually brilliant. The following toasts were responded to:

Miss Austen: "Pessimism and the Modern Lady Novelist."

Mr. Dumas: "Some Indiana Romancers Who Have Influenced Me."

Mr. Dickens: "Good Literature on the Installment Plan; the Age of Coupon."

Mr. Balzac: "My Debt to Henry James."

Mr. Plutarch: "The Commercialization of Literature."

Mr. Plato: "Hands Across the Sea."

Mr. Plato said in part: "Ladies and gentlemen, I am grateful for this opportunity to express my pleasure in the fact that the cordial relations existing between you as authors and me as publisher have never been subjected to the slightest strain. The TEXAS PRESS

According to the statement made by Superintendent J. S. Turner of the North Texas Hospital for the Insane, it will be June before the new buildings will be ready for occupancy. At that time the condition that has too long characterized the treatment of the insane of the state should cease. The fact that for years many of the insane of Texas have been compelled to live in the jails with the criminals is a disgrace to the state. Such a policy is unworthy of the greatest state in the union, and should cease at the very earliest possible moment.—Terrell Transcript.

It is gratifying to know that even in June room will be provided in the proper manner for the hundreds of insane people now confined in the county jails. And it is sincerely to be hoped that the legislature will never again permit such unfortunate and unnecessary conditions to arise.

Dallas may boast of her postoffice receipts and of the wonderful growth of Uncle Sam's business in that city, but Fort Worth has her skinned a city block when it comes to having an advertised or dead letter list. That city has the largest lists of undelivered mail from week to week of any town in Texas and little if any less than St. Louis.—Denton Record and Chronicle.

Fort Worth leads in the dead letter business just as she does in everything else. The reason is that people out of the state believe Fort Worth is the only city in Texas, and by addressing their letters here they are dead sure to reach the proper destination.

The outcome of the race for the mail contract between the Gould lines and the Frisco-Katy combination, has been finally determined by the announcement of the discontinuance of the Cotton Belt fast mail train between Texarkana and Fort Worth, today. That daily swift flight of the Katy fast mail wasn't for nothing.—McKinney Gazette.

The Katy-Frisco combination was a winner from the very beginning. It was a combination effected to do things, and it has been able in every instance to deliver the goods.

The world owes every man a living and will pay the debt if approached in the proper manner.—Clarksville Times.

The world owes no man a living who is unwilling to pay for it with sweat of the brow. And unwillingness to part with the sweat is responsible for the army of fakers abroad in the land today.

satisfied with the amount of advertising which is spent on pushing the sales of his works. I am happy to say that I have never received a line of complaint of criticism from any of my authors. On the other hand, you will give me credit for printing your masterpieces in the best of deluxe bindings and making them known to appreciative millions. It cannot but please you to learn that, although none of your works are listed monthly among the "Best Selling Books," they sell steadily from year to year in countless thousands. It is true that I have never sent you a sixpence in royalties, and I appreciate the delicacy with which you have refrained from mentioning the matters; you understand the great publishing expense I was under. Still, I am ready to pay each and every one of you an honorarium of £10, which is, I believe, the usual thing in such cases. Ladies and gentlemen, I drink to your continued health and deathless popularity."

The department of superintendents has recommended to the National Educational Association that the spelling of twelve words be changed in all schools in the United States; some of the new words being "enuf," "tung," "fether," "thru." The ingenuity of the spelling reformers might be more profitably employed in other channels. They ought to be writing street car advertisements for the manufacturers of such useful commodities as "Klee-Nit" soap and "Nufangl" pants.

THE CARE OF BOOKS

The following little helpful "Nevers" should be framed and hung up in every library:

Never cut bread on a valuable book. It is likely to injure the binding.

Never use your spectacles or false teeth for a bookmark. You will never know where they are; besides, it injures the book.

Never cut the leaves of a book with the carving knife until you have first wiped it clean.

Never cut leaves with any sharp knife. Use a safety razor.

Never turn leaves with your thumb. A pair of small tongs, such as come with boxes of bon-bons, is the best thing to use.

Never put a hot iron on any open book, unless it is a Roycroft book, in which case the pyrography will be likely to improve its appearance.

Never throw a book at the cook unless it is a cook book. It injures the corners and delays the dinner.

Never rub dust from books. Telephone for a compressed air wagon.

Never set a very young baby down on an open book, especially a valuable book.

Never use your books, and they will keep an indefinite time.

VERIFIED THAT RING

GOT ENOUGH

He cursed the little paper that was published in his town, He'd never lose a single chance to run its methods down, "Why, I could print a better sheet," said he; "I'll do it, too!" One day he bought the paper just to show what he could do.

Next day the doggone press broke down and for a week or so, He turned his paper out by hand and soon he had more woe.

A paper shipment was delayed; his printer got a jag, And for more pay the "devil" hung around and chewed the rag.

And then—the cash came in so slow!—he learned that people got

Real mad when he sent bills to them, and harder grew his lot;

A hundred men he'd known as friends would cut him on the street,

They'd call him grafter, liar, thief, and other names as sweet.

The poets brought him worry by just flooding him with stuff, And when he wouldn't print their rhymes they'd lean him in a huff; And often he'd forget to say, "Bill Smith's old cow is sick."

And next day Bill would drop around and register a kick.

One day a husky farmer came to see him, rearing sore, He grabbed the owner of the sheet and with him mopped the floor;

The editor came to next day and then, still weak and pale, He hung this sign up on the shack:

"THIS PAPER IS FOR SALE."—Denver Post.

QUAKER REFLECTIONS

One way to encourage a thing is to pass a law prohibiting it.

Some people take things as they come, and others offer them.

Even cold cash has been known to burn a hole in a fellow's pocket.

A man may mind his own business even when he employs a private secretary.

Appeal to a woman's reason first, and, if that doesn't work, appeal to her vanity.

Wagg—"They say Bluffett is fabulously rich." Wagg—"Yes; I guess his wealth is all a fable."

Dress doesn't make the woman, either. You may always tell the typewriter by her ribbons.

Sillicus—"But all marriages are not failures." Cynicus—"They would be if they had half a chance."

Tommy—"Pop, why did Diogenes live in a tub?" Tommy's Pop—"I suppose because there were as many in those days."—Philadelphia Record.

REFLECTIONS OF A BACHELOR

A man's wife takes on weight very fast when she is sitting in his lap.

Even when a woman brags about the way her belt can play the piano she is ashamed of it.

A girl is awful cute to pretend it wouldn't be right for her to let you kiss her if she were a few minutes older.

The man who says it doesn't please him to have a pretty girl flatter him, though he realizes she is flouting him, is only a liar.

The same man who thinks a fine bed is uncomfortable if he comes home early, could enjoy sleeping in a picket fence after 2 a. m.—New York Press.

If the government taxed men in a whole year for keeping clean and healthy what they will spend in one night on an after theater supper there would be a revolution.—New York Press.

TIRED

The grave pronouncement of scientist that "permanent fatigue" begins at 40 has a certain amount of confirmation in the fact that such statements make a great many people over 40 "tired."—New York Tribune.

ALLIANCE WITH UNITED STATES

Kaiser Wants Intimacy With Uncle Sam

BASIS COMMERCE

Business Matters Between Two Countries and Trade Increase Foundation of Hope

Special Cable to The Telegram. (Copyright, 1906, by Hearst News Service.)

BY MALCOLM CLARKE. BERLIN, March 31.—An alliance with the United States is now said to be the Kaiser's fondest hope after the Algeiras conference has proven how absolutely isolated Germany stands in Europe.

The preliminary arrangement which fills out the gap until a permanent commercial treaty between Germany and America can be concluded, and which assures the United States the privileges of the most favored nation, was the first step towards winning the friendship of the American people, it is believed by the Kaiser's friends as fast as they can be devised.

If he can bring about an alliance with the United States the Kaiser feels that he can defeat the other powers of the world while he and other German statesmen now see terrifying ghosts everywhere.

The time is long past when Germans could say as did the late Prince Bismarck, in one of his famous speeches: "We Germans fear God and God only."

The latest negotiations which were the result of German diplomats in an Anglo-Russian agreement with France as a third partner.

Thanks to the diplomacy of King Edward the breach between Russia and England which has existed for 30 many years is being closed and an arrangement is about to be made whereby Russia, against being given a free hand in certain countries north of India, binds herself not to lay hands against England's Asiatic empire.

Altogether the Kaiser feels that he has been shamefully treated by Russia in return for the many favors he has shown that country, both during and after the Russo-Japanese war, and which was repeatedly denounced by members of the reichstag, who strongly objected to the German government what they called "performing bootblack service for the czar."

With not a friend left in Europe, it is after all quite natural that Germany should turn to "United States, where so many Germans have found a friendly reception.

Spies in Japan With scores of German spies in Japan trying in vain to discover the secrets of the Shimura powder, the German military authorities are delighted with a new explosive invented by a chemist in a dynamite factory at Laubach.

The new invention is said to possess all the qualities of the Japanese powder and is cheap and not dangerous to manufacture.

To Have Horse Cars The joy of the inhabitants of Potsdam over the permission of the Kaiser to build trolley lines in their town has been short-lived.

The Kaiser is as much opposed to trolleys as ever and the brave Potsdamers will have to be satisfied with the antiquated horse-drawn cars.

Fury Against Father Gapon The Russian workmen are greatly incensed against Father Gapon, who, they are now convinced, betrayed them when offered a bribe of 40,000 roubles by Count de Witte, and thousands of eyes are now closely watching every one of their leaders.

When the Russ first told the story of the betrayal the workmen refused to believe in it and awaited anxiously an explanation from himself.

Nothing has been told them of their Mol's dissipation on the Riviera, and when the priest put in his defense they were terribly disappointed. Gapon stated it was not he, but his factotum, Matjuschenski, who received the prime minister's bribe, while he himself did not receive a kopeck.

Investigations by Russian revolutionaries in Paris, as well as the words of prominent French bankers, brought out that the Russian government paid Gapon's trip to that city and also that while he was there he acted as Russia's financial agent, assuring the financiers that they could safely grant Russia another loan, as he would guarantee that the workmen would remain quiet.

Many Paintings Exported According to the report of the American minister at Munich that city during 1905 exported to the United States 100 paintings to the value of $135,955, or about $13,900 more than the previous year.

The artists of Berlin who also endeavor to make a market for their works in America, are rather jealous, having sold only $70,048 worth of paintings to Americans. To unprejudiced art lovers this is, however, no surprise, but rather another proof of the good taste of the Yankees, as it is let in Paris, and the artists' studios at Munich is very much superior to that in this city.

All great German painters consider Berlin a good place to exhibit their works occasionally, but whenever it is to any way possible they prefer to work and live in Munich, and most American art lovers prefer to buy their paintings from Bremen, where they thereby cutting out the profit of the middleman.

Coming to United States Somewhere on the Atlantic Ocean a board a North German Lloyd steamer bound for New York, are two Russian students who were saved from being shot by the Russian authorities by two Berlin merchants.

The two students arrived in this city with a ticket from Bremen to New York, but absolutely penniless. As they could not show the emigration inspectors here the amount which they had saved from Bremen was sent to the New World, they were thereby cutting out the profit of the middleman.

Two Berlin merchants who accompanied them on their way back to Russia, were certain spectators awaited them accompanied by a gentleman who was to see them across the frontier.

Two Berlin merchants who occupied the compartment in the train to Berlin generously gave them three hundred marks and although the train was not supposed to stop until it had crossed the frontier, the conductor, who happened to be a man with a heart in the right place, on his own responsibility stopped the train before it left German territory long enough to enable the students to get off, greatly to the delight of the gentlemen who was disgusted with having to act as the henchman of the czar.

ITALIAN WOMAN MAY BE DEPUTY

Signorina Sacchi Is Likely to Stand for Election

(By Lady Henry Somerset.) LONDON, March 31.—While the female suffragists have been battering at the prime minister's door in Downing street, and have been obliged forcibly to be removed by the police, and are severely censured for their importunity, Signorina Sacchi, who has been granted the right to vote in Italy, and whose name has been inserted on the voting list, has set the example by her persistence in demanding the right to many others who have followed in her wake.

But at the moment of success these lists have to be submitted to a higher authority than the court in which she won her triumph, and it is possible that the desired permission may still be refused. Meanwhile something far more stirring has happened. A constituency has fallen vacant, and the electors have invited Signorina Sacchi to stand. They urge her to make all possible haste, in order that she may have a chance of doing so before the electoral lists are revised, and so this Italian woman, in a country which has hitherto been reckoned retrograde, may be the first woman deputy in Europe, and may have attained to the foremost ranks in the woman movement in a country where it was supposed to have no hold.

Suffragists Meet A great meeting of female suffragists was held yesterday at Battersea park, their program being to ask for enfranchisement, for better wages, for shorter hours, for the right to work, for improved social conditions, and to demand that women should be represented on juries where a woman prisoner was concerned. Mrs. Martel, who has contested a seat in the Australian legislature and received 20,000 votes, spoke in glowing terms of the effect of woman's suffrage in her country. Results were passed, and the women talked for many hours. From the main principles that they advocated few are now found to differ.

Woman's Trade Union A new woman's trade union has been formed in the west end of London among the dressmakers, and probably no union has been more needed, for no branch of skilled labor is worse organized. The London dressmakers' union has hitherto been a mere name about in such organizations is mainly in the fact that their leaders are now no longer women who stand among the followers as philanthropists or as lecturers, they are members of the class whom they support, and full of sympathy with their fellow workers, knowing every grievance, and realizing the actual conditions as none others can.

The most important speaker among the working women at this meeting was Miss Mary Elvery, who was born in a maternity hospital and educated in a board school, and began her working career as a waist-coat maker at the age of 14, for wages of three shillings a week. In 1904 she formed a branch of the tailors' union, and since then she is to be found on all the women's labor platforms in Hyde park or in any demonstration where their rights are demanded. She is small, dark and pretty, and dresses quietly but charmingly. Her speeches are full of point and intelligence, and she has vast influence over her fellow workers.

Camp Dinner Vulgar It is difficult to imagine anything more foolish or more vulgar than the dining camp dinner which took place last week in London. A well-known critic of South African millionaires decided to dine at a Strand hotel, and the sumptuous repast was to be a faithful representation of a dinner on the veldt. The hotel room was transformed into a copy of a South African mining camp, a deal board with forms at either side served as a table, tallow candles stuck in brown stone, ginger beer bottles served as lights, and the waiters were dressed as Boers and Kaffirs. The soup cooked by a French chef was boiled in an iron pot, and choice fish and viands were served in a like manner. It is almost incredible that the silliness of the whole performance should not have struck those who sat at their dinner under the calm gaze of the preposterous figures dressed as Boers and Kaffirs. Surely the contempt of the waiter must have been made aware of the real situation, for there is much talk of degeneration, such persons only point a moral to those who are pessimistic as to the

ALFONSO PARAGON OF YOUNG VIRTUE

Spanish Monarch Now Said to Be "Settled"

Special Cable to The Telegram. (Copyright, 1906, by Hearst News Service.)

(By Paul Villiers.) PARIS, March 31.—As the prospect of marriage suddenly put an end to the sowing of wild oats by the Kaiser's oldest son, who is now a veritable King Alfonso to Princess Ena of Battenberg has also, according to Madrid reports, worked wonders in the young king's mind.

The reckless, foolhardy, headstrong boy has with surprising suddenness become a man of most regular habits and a surprising capacity for work. At 6 he rises, takes an hour's exercise in his private gymnasium and after a cold shower he breakfasts in the simplest manner with his mother and sister.

After breakfast he tackles his mail, which is of proportions to make even a trained business man despair. Then he receives his "major dome," the duke of Sotomayor, and works on affairs of state until noon, stopping only once, at 11 o'clock when he appears at his window to watch the trooping of the colors.

At noon he receives in audience the prime minister, the captain general, the governor of Madrid and the chief of police.

At 1 o'clock he lunches on famille and the luncheon is followed by a long ride either in his automobile or on horseback. From 2 to 3 he is again hard at work or gives audience.

Dinner is served at 8 and to this meal a few personal friends of the king are generally invited and at 7 o'clock sharp the king retires to bed. As one may see the young king is thoroughly broken in harness by Moroccan Clouds Roll By

As the clouds of the Morocco question disappear efforts are made in both countries to pave the way for a friendly understanding between the two nations.

These efforts have the indorsement of both governments is evident from the fact that numerous communications are passing between the French and German ministers of education, with the view of establishing an exchange of professors and teachers.

The preliminary arrangements have already been made. German university professors, who must sign an agreement to lecture at French universities outside of Paris will receive a salary of $50 a month and board, while teachers at high schools are to be paid only $30, and French professors and teachers while in Germany will receive 200 and 150 marks respectively.

The expense will therefore not add

HORSE SHOW FOR LONDON

Anglo-American Exhibit Contemplated in Plans FOR IMPORTATION

Reginald Vanderbilt, Back of Scheme, Says it Would Increase Sale in England

Special Cable to The Telegram. (Copyright, 1906, by R. Hearst.) BY PAUL LAMBETH.

LONDON, March 31.—As soon as the king returns to London for good he will be approached by a number of well-known breeders of horses and asked to give his patronage to an Anglo-American horse show next year to be held in some large building in London.

The proposal originated with Reginald Vanderbilt and Judge Moore, who at the recent Hackney horse show spent nearly $60,000 on the first day of the show in horseflesh. Mr. Vanderbilt believes that such a show as he proposed would give an impetus to the importation of American horses into England.

For the past few years this importation has fallen off considerably. On the other hand Americans buy some of the finest stock in England to breed from. Sir Walter Gilbey, the greatest breeder of hackneys in the country; Sir Oswald Mosley and Sir Alexander Henderson, the owners of the finest Shire horses in the kingdom, are all enthusiastic about the Vanderbilt scheme.

It is expected that by June next a definite program will have been arranged—Olympia is suggested as the likeliest place to hold the show—which would include not only hackneys, but thoroughbreds and car horses.

Phippes Salmon Fishers Henry Phipps Jr.—usually known as "Hal"—having shot most of the big game he came across in East Africa, has now turned his restless attention to salmon fishing in Ireland, where he and his brother, Jay Phipps, are staying with the Earl and Countess of Donoughmore. The countess was Miss Phipps.

Even old big game shooters acknowledge that "Hal" Phipps, considering the short time he was in East Africa, accomplished a record. Besides some very rare specimens of antelope he secured a bull elephant and a fine rhinoceros. He brought back a wonderful collection of heads and horns.

Few Drawing Rooms Planned A number of American debutantes who had arranged to make their bows to court this season have been told by the American embassy that it is absolutely useless for them to even present their names.

The queen positively declines to appear at more than two drawing rooms this season, one in May and one in June, and as the courts are robbed of their chief interest when her majesty is absent, the king has decided to hold only the two and make these the shortest on record.

Over one thousand names sent in to the lord chamberlain were registered last week. Very few Americans will be presented, and of the English women only those with what is known as the "old list"—the families who have received "commands" to attend former courts, will be invited.

Duke's Denial Vehement Everyone is wondering why the venerable Duke of Argyll, instead of thanking so indignantly in his denial of his reported engagement to Mrs. Potter Palmer.

It was well known last season that the king himself, being, like his late mother, a born matchmaker, was most anxious that Mrs. Palmer should replenish the faded glories of some ancient and titled family.

Mrs. Potter Palmer's second meeting with the king was at Marlborough, and she had the satisfaction of knowing later that she had amused his majesty considerably.

After receiving a few complimentary remarks Mrs. Palmer, instead of thanking his majesty for his kind words, said in a motherly way: "I think you drive your motor car much too fast, sir. I do wish you would take more care."

The king laughed heartily and has ever since watched Mrs. Palmer's career with interest.

Mrs. Mackay to Entertain All the Americans in London are delighted to hear that Mrs. John Mackay, who from one cause or another—death in the family and illness—has determined to entertain on a large scale this season at her magnificent house in Carlton House terrace.

Her daughter, nee Colonna who married Count Jules de Bonvouloir, will bring her young French husband over to London in May, and Mrs. Mackay has arranged with a large ball in honor of the newly-married couple.

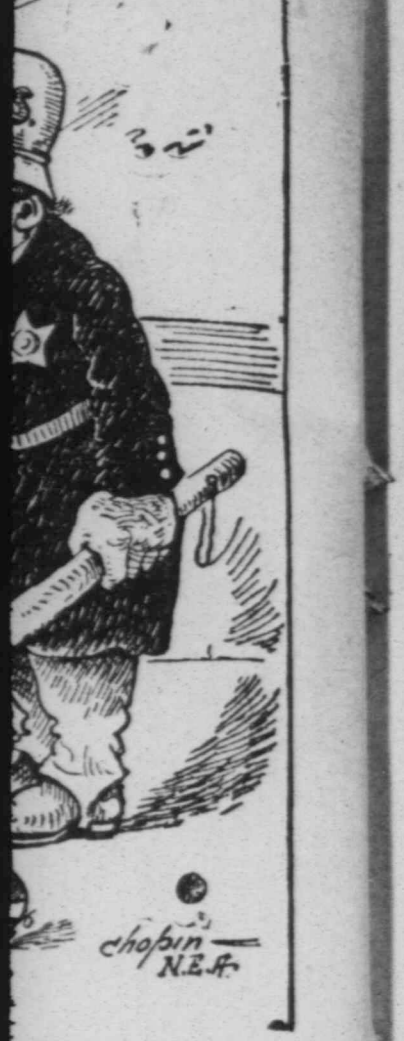

The count has not the extravagant taste of his father-in-law, and is described as a very steady and straight-forward young man.

Allowance Not Increased A number of young members of parliament are grievously disappointed by the statement made by the premier that there were no funds to provide members of parliament with a salary of $1,500 a year.

Some younger sons and one or two nationalists put up for parliament without the slightest idea of getting in. A notable example is Geoffrey Howard, whose father makes him a very small allowance. He put up for parliament "for the fun of the thing," not dreaming that he would be elected, and now he finds himself in an impossible situation, and with little more than keep up social appearances with the poor labor member, is Geoffrey, whose entire income is 50 shillings a week, but who, however, has no appearance to think about.

Funnily enough Mr. Howard's father, Lord Carlisle, is a unionist, while his mother is a pronounced Liberal. As Mr. Howard was persuaded into the matter by his mother, he is interested in Lord Carlisle absolutely declined to increase his son's allowance.

ITALIAN WOMAN MAY BE DEPUTY

Signorina Sacchi Is Likely to Stand for Election

(By Lady Henry Somerset.) LONDON, March 31.—While the female suffragists have been battering at the prime minister's door in Downing street, and have been obliged forcibly to be removed by the police, and are severely censured for their importunity, Signorina Sacchi, who has been granted the right to vote in Italy, and whose name has been inserted on the voting list, has set the example by her persistence in demanding the right to many others who have followed in her wake.

But at the moment of success these lists have to be submitted to a higher authority than the court in which she won her triumph, and it is possible that the desired permission may still be refused. Meanwhile something far more stirring has happened. A constituency has fallen vacant, and the electors have invited Signorina Sacchi to stand. They urge her to make all possible haste, in order that she may have a chance of doing so before the electoral lists are revised, and so this Italian woman, in a country which has hitherto been reckoned retrograde, may be the first woman deputy in Europe, and may have attained to the foremost ranks in the woman movement in a country where it was supposed to have no hold.

Suffragists Meet A great meeting of female suffragists was held yesterday at Battersea park, their program being to ask for enfranchisement, for better wages, for shorter hours, for the right to work, for improved social conditions, and to demand that women should be represented on juries where a woman prisoner was concerned. Mrs. Martel, who has contested a seat in the Australian legislature and received 20,000 votes, spoke in glowing terms of the effect of woman's suffrage in her country. Results were passed, and the women talked for many hours. From the main principles that they advocated few are now found to differ.

Woman's Trade Union A new woman's trade union has been formed in the west end of London among the dressmakers, and probably no union has been more needed, for no branch of skilled labor is worse organized. The London dressmakers' union has hitherto been a mere name about in such organizations is mainly in the fact that their leaders are now no longer women who stand among the followers as philanthropists or as lecturers, they are members of the class whom they support, and full of sympathy with their fellow workers, knowing every grievance, and realizing the actual conditions as none others can.

The most important speaker among the working women at this meeting was Miss Mary Elvery, who was born in a maternity hospital and educated in a board school, and began her working career as

Price May Sell Once, But Quality Wins Permanent Patronage

If we can sell you one suit of clothes we can win your permanent patronage. You'll like the way we run this house—you'll approve the price—but principally you'll like the garment we sell you. We claim to sell the best clothing that's made in America. Every man who has given us a chance to prove it will agree we claim no more than we can substantiate. The "other fellows" are the ones we're talking to when we ask for the opportunity to demonstrate to them we can give them at least what their ideal tailor can give them at far less than his price. It has never been our good fortune to find underpriced a lot in such quantities and in so great variety of patterns. Especial attention is called to the style embroideries suitable for panels and bandings for waists and skirts. We would remind you of the great advance in mill prices of embroideries. The valuation these embroideries were bought at was based on last year's price and not taken into account of the recent heavy advances. These goods will be displayed on six tables, and we'll add, don't fail to be present, for it will prove the most satisfactory sale of the season.

CHICAGO GRAIN

Wheat Prices Dominated By Bear. Corn and Oats Dull—Prices Lower—Provisions Firm

CHICAGO, March 31.—Bears attained supremacy in the wheat market and succeeded in forcing prices off 1/2c to 3/4c during the session.

The decline should probably be attributed as much to the lack of interest upon the part of the trade as a whole as to bearish pressure.

The market closed steady, with prices at a net loss of 1/2c to 3/4c. Local receipts, 127 cars.

Chicago Grain and Provisions

CHICAGO, Ill., March 31.—The grain and provision markets ranged in prices today as follows:

NEW YORK COTTON

Lack of Interest Principal Feature. Trading Light—Final Prices Show Small Loss

NEW YORK, March 31.—Lack of interest upon the part of the trade as a whole was the chief characteristic of today's cotton market.

The bulk of grown cotton on the market has been made up of steers, and of these the great majority were short fed.

The early trading covering by shorts influenced a slight upward movement and prices attained a net gain of 1/2 point, but the usual week-end profit taking soon made its appearance.

New Orleans Cotton

NEW ORLEANS, March 31.—The usual Saturday dullness pervaded the atmosphere of the Cotton Exchange today and was somewhat intensified by an oversight upon the part of the statisticians who had neglected to include the takings from the Bremen stock.

The week's market at this point shows an advance, but not equal to the gain at northern points.

Saturday's Review and Sales

The Saturday record for lifelessness on the market was not broken today, but the record was broken by receipts of all cattle were but 400 head, and among them were no steers.

Butcher Stock

Four cars of cows and calves, mixed, made up the full she-stuff run. The quality was very common for the most part.

Estimated Monday

Following is the estimated receipts for Monday at the three principal ports, compared with the receipts for the same day last year:

CHUMPEM, THE FOOLISH COP

"Excuse me, but will you watch my cart a minute or two while I go into the drug store and get some medicine? I've got a sudden attack of dizziness. 'Certainly. Go ahead."

"Here, you've got to move this cart. 'Have it? 'Yes, move it, and be lively, too. 'Well, I guess not."

"I'll show you a few things. When I tell you to move a cart you move it. You'll find it's a good deal cheaper. The next time you won't refuse to obey my orders."

"Prisoner, why did you refuse to move that cart?"

"Why, judge, it wasn't my cart. 'Officer Chumpem, you're the biggest fool on the force."

and bore her away. The singular news flew everywhere. Into the orchestra, below the stage and above it. It crept into the public by way of the papers. It also crept into the sick chamber of Beatrice. Despite her weakness, she raised upon her elbow as she heard of it, and looked into the teller of it with eyes that were far from kind and pleasant. She dragged herself, flushed and feverish, from her bed, and dressed herself.

Meanwhile Tessa, nervous, trembling, but full of faith in herself, came upon the stage and looked through the curtain. A thrill passed over her as she realized, for the first time, what she was about to do. She aroused herself and imagined grand triumph. She beheld herself courted and sought by members and petted by the public. She turned her thoughts homeward to the sick man and pictured his grateful looks at her victory. The play began and went on well. Two scenes and all was successful and then Tessa began to tremble and to turn pale again. The house was full and eager. Three seconds more would force her from her grateful shelter. A slight but firm hand was laid on her shoulder, and, turning, she beheld the beautiful Beatrice, with her large flaming eyes, her transparent skin, her dazzling teeth and her fairy-like dress, studded and gemmed.

"Stay here, Tessa," said Beatrice, "I am well enough," and she added calmly, "Many thanks for your kind intentions."

"Will you give me Beatrice's part?" asked she with a fluttering heart.

He gazed at her in astonishment. "You cannot sing, you cannot dance, you cannot act."

"Oh, but I can sing and dance and act. Think of my husband who fell from these very feet above us, a week ago, and who lies moaning and helpless at home. Come, Dumont, come. Hear me sing."

She began in a subdued voice Beatrice's most powerful song, one which was loved above all by the people. Her name was "The Sparrows." As she proceeded her voice rose higher and higher and penetrated to the farthest depths of the stage. It was touching, soft and beautiful.

They flew to her and embraced her

A DUEL IN SONG

Beatrice fled, but Tessa sang to the accompaniment of a Stampede

A story got around behind the scenes that the beautiful Beatrice had been taken violently ill, and in the course of time it had magnified to the report that the engagement would be broken. All were in despair. The rumor reached the ears of pretty Tessa. She approached the manager and beckoned him aside.

"Will you give me Beatrice's part?" asked she with a fluttering heart.

He gazed at her in astonishment. "You cannot sing, you cannot dance, you cannot act."
