Assistant Makes Secret Visit to Fort Worth

TO PROBE FURTHER

Judge Lightfoot Says if Views Are Confirmed Office Likely to Take Further Action

That Judge Jewell P. Lightfoot, an assistant in the office of Attorney General Davidson at Austin, made a secret visit to Fort Worth last week for the apparrent purpose of investigating the conduct of business at the Fort Worth Live Stock Exchange and that he has not yet concluded his investigations became known last night when a dispatch to The Telegram from its Austin correspondent was received, telling of Judge Lightfoot's trip. The dispatch was as follows:

special to The Telegram, AUSTIN, Texas, April 7 .- The deon of the Kansas supreme court. which it held that the Kansas City Live Stock Exchange is a trust, was eceived with considerable interest by Attorney General Davidson, as the state of Texas is already prosecuting an investigation along the same lines In the state.

Attorney General Davidson was seen about the matter, and he referred your correspondent to Judge J. P. Lightfoot, office assistant of the attorney general, who is conducting the investigation. Judge Lightfoot said:

"I have already conducted an investigation along this line, assisted by County Attorney Jeff D. McLean of Tarrant county and Justice of the Peace John L. Terrell of Fort Worth. From the investigations that I have nade so far, I believe the Fort Worth Live Stock Exchange is being operated in violation of the anti-trust laws of the state. I prefer to make some further investigations. If they confirm my present views, the attorney general may take some action in the matter.' dge Lightfoot has just returne from North Texas, where it is believed he has been conducting this investiga-

Causes Surprise

Judge Lightfoot was in Fort Worth last week, but the statement that he has been conducting an investigation of alleged trust law violations in connection with the live stock business in Texas caused general surprise in Fort Worth. It was known by few if any in Fort Worth that the attorney general's office had taken any steps toward such an investigation.

But few knew that Judge Lightfoot was here last week and probably less than half a dozen were aware of the purpose of his visit, if he confided it.

News of the trip and its apparent purpose leaked out when The ram's correspondent interviewed Atorney General Davidson regarding the possible effect of the Topeka decision in Texas. Judge Lightfoot to whom he correspondent was referred, furnished the information that caused considerable comment among those whom The Telegram interviewed Satorday night.

The Topeka Decision

The decision made at Topeka Saturday, news of which was published exclusively in The Telegram, caused more comment among cattlemen and commission men of Fort Worth than probably any other item which has appeared for months.

The dispatch from Topeka, which is herewith reprinted, was as follows:

TOPEKA, April 7 .- In deciding the Wilson case today the supreme court declared the Kansas City Live Stock Exchange a trust. The decision pracically invalidates all the chattel mortrages on cattle given in Kansas to members of exchanges, and is one of he most far-reaching decisions in year's, as thousands of investors broughout the country hold Kansas cattle papers. Charles Wilson sold cattle mortgaged to a member of the Kan sas City exchange, was convicted and entenced to five years. He appealed nd the verdict was set aside today. The supreme court holds any associa ion which has by-laws forbidding members to buy or sell live stock on ommission for less than 50 cents

The Wilson case is familiar to rebably every cattleman in Texas. It has been a test case in the Kansas ourts for a number of years. Local cattlemen, attorneys interested in the cattle business, and commission men asked about the dispatch from Topeka, declared that the Kansas sureme court's ruling was one of the lost sweeping decisions ever made Cattle Raisers Interested

I. H. Burney, an attorney for the Cattle Raisers' Association, was much urprised Saturday night when notiled by The Telegram of Judge Lightoot's visit and his statement made n Austin. He said that so far as he enew, if Judge Lightfoot had been in Fort Worth, he had not only not ve of the Cattle Raisers' Associalon ,but had taken no steps to consult nn any officer of the association while here, Captain Lytle, secretary of the Cattle Raisers' Association, as just returned to Fort Worth, and ge Lightfoot did not see him. It will be remembered at the Cattle isers' Association convention re-

Villagers Flee From Vesuvius' Hot Spume

PANIC STRICKEN

Last Days of Pompeii Recalled in Lurid Scenes Attending Crater's Eruption

(Copyright, 1906, by Hearst News Service.) Special Cable to The Telegram. NAPLES, April 7 .- The white-hot lava from the belching crater of Mount Vesuvius, which has been flaming a thousand feet high for the past four hours, this afternoon completely destroyed the town of Bosco Trocase, on the southern slope.

The town had a population of 4,300, and many of the inhabitants had abandoned it before it was destroyed.

Very little could be learned as to how many people had been unable to leave the place before the streams of lava encircled the outskirts and prevented escape. It is certain, however, that all those who were caught by the descent of the flaming flow have perished. The lava in great sluggish burning streams had been coming down the western and southern slopes of the mountain side all night and could be plainly seen by the light of the terrible eruption, incandescent stone and earth rising a thousand feet above the crater's mouth.

Villagers Panic-Stricken

The inhabitants of Bosco Trecase and also of Terre Del Greco, with a population of 30,000, and Ottajona, with a population of 20,000, fled panicstricken. The people of the latter two cities gathered all their effects and left their homes as quickly as possi-It was believed that all those in the town of Bosco Trecase had also left, but it now appears that some of those who had witnessed previous eruptions of Vesuvius misjudged the violence of the disturbance and remained in their houses.

Another Town Threatened

While Bosco Trecase was completely wiped out, literally being destroyed by the fire of the lava, it was reported late this afternoon that the city of Ottajano was also being surrounded by ROME, April 7.-Queen Helena found the descending streams of flaming rock and would also meet the same fate. The streams of lava were broadened and deeped this afternoon by the openwas poorly clade but pretty and ining of fresh craters in the mountain telligent. The queen talked with her side. At first great volumes of steam issued from these huge fissures, but this was quickly followed by bursts of burning rock.

Some of the streams grew to be 1,000 feet wide, and the main stream flowing down the southern slope of the mountain side became 1,500 feet wide. As the lava, over which hovered imward, every living thing in its path crumbled up as the heat blasted it and then disappeared utterly. All sorts of farming material and isolated houses were destroyed like a pinch of gun-

Then it swept over houses, streets, public buildings and churches. All were utterly obliterated. In the city of Terra Del Greco, the inhabitants were panic-stricken this after noon. Whole families had moved their household effects into the streets and stood by them, trembling with fear and not knowing which way to turn. littered streets made it practically impossible for any sort of property to be noved. Unless help comes to them or they can be aroused to leave their property behind them they will be caught by the descending lava.

Special Prayers Ordered

Cardinal Joseph Prisco, archbishop of Naples, this afternoon ordered special prayers to be offered in all the churches for the safety of those who are in peril of their lives. He expects to go to the scene of the devastated town and aid in getting those who have escaped to places of safety. He is anative of Bosco Neale, one of the smaller villages, which is in great

POSTPONED AGAIN

New Trial for Albert T. Patrick to Come Up Monday

NEW YORK, April 7 .- Albert T. Patrick's motion for a new trial on the charge of killing William Marsh Rice came up again yesterday. District Attorney Jerome immediately moved for a further postponement, which Patrick's counsel resisted. When Attorney Olcott, counsel for Patrick, said he had Texas witnesses waiting to testify today and that they would be under heavy expense by the delay, the district attorney replied that New York county is willing to meet any necessary expenses for them.

During the discussion which followed Mr. Olcott presented four new affidavits of Texas witnesses which he asked Mr. Jerome to accept. Mr. Jerome said that Patrick would die a natural death, in all probability, before his attorney stopped filling affidavits. Judge Olcott replied that the object in view was two-fold, impeachment of former witnesses and a scientific attack upon the method of death.

Mr. Jerome said he was willing to co-operate with Mr. Olcott in any legitimate inquiry in the case, but that if the judge sought the technical, legal right of the convict that he would oppose all such action on merely technical grounds. Recorder Goff, before whom the hearing was held, at this point interrupted the discussion to adjourn the hearing until next Monday

LAUNCH CAMPAIGN OF W. D. WILLIAMS

Friends Hold Meeting at the Courthouse

ENDORSE HIS CANDIDACY

Recommended for Support of Texas Voters as Candidate for Railroad Commissioner

The campaign of William D. Williams of Fort Worth, candidate for railroad commissioner on the democratic ticket, was opened under flattering auspices at a meeting held in the Seventeenth district court room Saturday afternoon, at which resolutions were adopted heartily endorsing his candidacy and presenting him to the democracy of the state as a man and democrat eminently qualified to

The meeting, the weather considered, was well attended, there being present both city and county democrats who are prominent in business and politics. There was no speechmaking, the meeting simply doing that for which it was called and then

Judge Sam J. Hunter called the meeting to order and nominated Colonel R. M. Wynne for chairman and he was elected. J. B. Roberts was elected secretary. Colonel Wynne on taking the chair briefly stated the object of the meeting to be to start the campaign of a distinguished citizen of Fort Worth, W. D. Williams, who is a candidate for railroad commissioner. "It is not necessary for me to indulge in any lengthy speech telling who and what Mr. Williams is. You all know him to be a man well worthy of your confidence and eminently fitted for the responsible office to which he aspires. We are here to endorse him and present him to the democracy of Texas. What is the pleasure of the meeting?" On motion of Judge S. J. Hunter committee of ten on resolutions was appointed as follows: S. J. Hunter, chairman; W. P. McLean Sr., C. A. McMeans, W. A. Hanger, J. S. Myers, Clarence Ousley, W. D. Harris, Q. T.

Moreland, B. R. Webb and F. E. Dy-The committee retired and in a few moments reported the following resolutions which were unanimously adopted: Whereas, William D. Williams, for more than sixteen years a resident of the city of Fort Worth, is a candidate for the democratic nomination for state railroad commissioner, and,

Whereas, We, his neighbors and friends for many years, have known him in public and private life, as a modest, lovable and honorable citizen and as a fearless and devoted officer, who can neither be persuaded nor driven from his duty, and,

Whereas, It is eminently proper that we, among whom he has lived so long and so well, should testify to the people of Texas the regard and esteem in which he is held at his home. Now, therefore.

Be it resolved, That the honorable and unblemished life, the steadfast democratic faith and the able and untiring public service of Mr. Williams do of themselves speak for him, and entitle us to command him to all citizens as worthy and well qualified to be entrusted with the arduous and difficult duty of ascertaining and weighing the facts and of regulating justly and fairly the rates to be charged upon the internal commerce of Texas, and, be it further

Resolved, That in Mr. Williams we present to the democratic voters of Texas a man of unquestioned devotion to the ideals of democracy, a man who believes implicitly in the right of the people to govern themselves, who would restore to the voters every part of the machinery of government to be by them held and used for the common good as determined by the will of the majority; a man who will execute the law as he finds it, without fear or favor; a man whose intelligence and training fits him to meet representatives of special interests upon an equal footing, and to combat all unjust demands with a full understanding of their injustice; a man, in short, who can be relied upon, un der every condition, to act fairly. without fear or favor, and who will never, under any compulsion, be recreant to the public, and, be it further Resolved, That we do most heartily endorse Mr. Williams for his course in the state legislature in opposition well as in his efforts to secure an equal and just apportionment of the burdens of government, so that the weight of taxation should no longer rest unduly upon the producers of our wealth. By his democratic and manly stand upon these questions Mr. Williams has shown peculiar fitness to be entrusted with the adjustment of transportation charges to the end that

Legislative Committee Reports on Section 120

ALL AN ACCIDENT

'Clerk in Transcription of Terrell Law Probably Got Paragraphs Mixed"

Bu Associated Press.

AUSTIN, Texas, April 7.-Report of the legislative committee appointed to investigate how the error occurred in the enrolling of section 120 of the general election law was filed this afternoon in the secretary of state's department, together with the mass of testimony adduced at the investigation. The report and testimony will also be printed in the house journal.

As stated in vesterday's dispatches, the committee did not find any evidence which showed fraud or intentional wrong doing on the part of any nember, officer or employe of the house, or any other position. The committee finds, however, that the evidence indicates that error occurred in free conference committee room, and that the section was enrolled from the original Smith amendment.

In the first sentence, which is also the first paragraph of the amendment, there is a cross mark in pencil, which is partially erased and a marginal pencil reference to the free conference committee amendment is opposite the second paragraph only. The committee decided that the clerk in turning to the free conference committee amendment, saw the first sentence of the Smith amendment was to be left in and then, turning to the original Smith amendment, the clerk enrolling section 120 decided from that pencil cross mark that the first paragraph was to be considered as a part of the amendment and, therefore, began enrolling with the second paragraph and enrolled the first sentence of the second paragraph.

An important feature of the report is the recommendations made for fu ture legislatures. The committee recommends that the system be changed, in that an expert at proper compensation shall be appointed to compare each enrolled bill with the papers from which it is en-

That the committee on enrolled bills shall still be retained with the same powers and duties and that no action shall be taken up by the house with reference to any bill which is to have the force of a general law within forty-eight hours prior to the hour of sine lie adjournment of the session except to enroll the same, and have such measures properly signed by the speaker of the house, president of the senate and the governor

The committee also finds and calls attention to the fact that the election bill, before and at the time of its engrossment and after its enrollment, the papers in reference to the bill were for a time in the hands of persons who were not the legal custodians of same. On this point the committee recommends that such papers be better preserved and that each officer of the house be held strictly accountable for the safe keeping of all

300 Cases in Past Forty-eight Hours Makes Total of 1,342 Special to The Telegram.

PITTSBURG, April 7.—Pittsburg is wrestling in the throes of the worst epidemic of typhoid fever in the history of the city. Statistics compiled by the bureau of health show that the increase of the disease during the last ten days has been unprecedented. Nearly 300 cases have been reported in forty-eight hours and until people boil every drop of water they use from the city's mains, the disease will continue to increase. The water of the Allegheny and the Monongahela rivers is no less than diluted sewerage, and every gallon flowing through the city mains is alive with baccili. Up to noon today 1,342 cases of yphoid fever have been reported since March 1, 1906, to the bureau of health, which shows that there are 1,246.1 per sons out of each 100,000 residents ill with the disease.

Boulder on Track Might Have Killed 40 in Pennsylvania

Special to The Telegram, PITTSBURG, Pa., April 7.-With his train going at seventy-five miles an hour, the engineer of the Pennsylvania special eighteen-hour New York-Chicago train, was horrified this morning to see the headlight playing on an immense boulder lying directly in the path of the flying train. That a majority of the forty passengers did not meet death is due to the clear head and courage of the en gineer who stuck to his post. No. 29, the westbound section of one of the two fastest trains in the country, pulled out of Pittsburg at 12:45 p. m. and had just time to get up to the high speed that is possible on the fine stretch of track which extends between this city and Rochester, when the rock was discovered. An instantaneous application of the air brakes and reversal of the engine reduced the speed of the train, but the front of the engine was lifted from the rails when it struck the boulder, which had rolled from the cliff above. The engine settled slowly back to the rails with its pilot crushed and the front damaged. Passengers were shaken about in their berths and some thrown out, but none were injured. With as little delay as possible, the trip was resumed, after a new locomotive had been obtained.

Deposed Zion Leader Touched by Demonstration of Confidence of Followers

CHICAGO, April 7 .- Today was the most picturesque day of all the dramatic and picturesque days that has Dowie just a week ago. Day by day following the sensational action of Zion in casting out the leader who had been followed blindly for a decade came new sensations-the charge that he had taught polygamy; that he had made love to Ruth Hoffer; that he had beaten and abused his wife and planned to divorce her; that he had misappropriated $2,500,000 of Zion's money and lost a cool million in Wall street speculation; that he planned polygamous colony in Mexico where he was to espouse seven wives after divorcing Mrs. Dowie; that he was insane, or perhaps "possessed of demons," and that he planned to form a band of seven "vestal virgins" who were to be his personal attendants in

Today, however, came the crowning climax. The following accusations became public: That he secretly married the Hoffer woman in Europe, thereby becoming a bigamist; that ha was a devotee of Scotch high-balls and a lover of Italian wines and kept a secret store of liquors in his basement; that he planned to drive his wife and son from Zion as outcasts; that he was too atentive to every pretty woman he met and caused women in Zion to rebel by bestowing the "apostolic kiss" too frequently Following these sensational revelations General Overseer Wilbur Glenr Voliva made preparations for the stern battle, with Zion City as the stake, that comes nearer every moment as Dowie hurries northward from Mexico, breathing threats of vengeance and destruction upon his "pigs of enemies.

The new leader of the city and tha faithful gathered together his forces, gained signed pledges of support from nearly every leader; furthered his plans to finance the city under the new plans and prepared his bombshell for the great meeting of all the faithful tomorrow, when it is expected he will hurl the bomb that will defeat

Dowie even before the battle begins. New and Terrible Charge

Before every Dowieite-or former Dowieite-that can be crowded into Zion tabernacle, it is expected he tomorrow will make public a mysterious and terrible charge, which he affirmed would make the earlier charges look like beatitudes. Of course, Voliva refused to state what this charge would be, but it is the general belief in Zion that the bigamy charge, based on the alleged marriage to Ruth Hoffer, was the trump card Voliva was holding up his sleeve. This charge was made public by a dignitary of the Zion church until recently a deacon and who is daily in close touch with the plans

Special to The Telegram, SAN ANTONIO, Texas, April 7.—In the best of health, self-confident, selfpossessed, hurling anathemas at the "traiterous hounds who have usurped power in Zion City," and declaring that he will scourge from out of the Holy City his wife and son and Voliva, John Alexander Dowie arrived here this afternoon. He was driven to the Menger hotel, where he will remain until Monday afternoon at 1 o'clock. His legal advisers from Chicago are expected here tonight and an important conference will be held here tomorrow. He left the car without assistance on his arrival and walked to the carriage, a smile playing over his features, walking upright and jauntily and every action belying the published statement that he is a weak and decrepit wreck. He was met at the depot by a loyal band of 200 Dowieites of this city, and their enthusiastic greetings and assurances of support caused him to break down for the

Dowie Deeply Touched

As they surrounded him, shaking his hand, speaking to him in loving tones, his voice broke, tears welled up in his eyes and between sobs he assured them that he believed his people in Zion City would rally around their divine leader even as the San Antonio Zionists had done. His walk to the carriage was an ovation and after he was seated he raised his hands for silence. Instantly everyone bared their heads and he began to speak. His first words were assurances of the appreciation of the love and loyalty of the small band which had gathered around him and he asked God's blessing on their heads and said that when he had come into his own at Zion City he would remember with places of honor the loyal band of Texans who had welcome back a man supposed to be deposed.

Aroused to Fury "Your deposed leader," he cried in a fury. "How can the created depose the creator? I am going back to scourge out of Zion City the treacherous dogs who thought that I was touched by God's death finger, and they would take advantage of it to become the leaders. God always wreaks vengenance on the heads of usurpers and I will yet live to be the instrument. I will east these men out of high places and send them howling like the dogs they are through the streets of alien cities. I lead them out of darkness into light and they have bitten the hand that fed them. - Chey hoped I was dead. Look at your leader! Do I look enfeebled? Like a dead man? Am I not yet able to fight the battles of the righteous?

Received H. B. Dorsey, secretary of the Texas Grain Dealers' Association, stated Saturday afternoon that the reports that he had been receiving from the members of the association indicated that there was a decrease in the acreage of wheat and oats in Texas this year. He stated that he had not examined the reports very carefully as yet and consequently could not state what the actual decrease will be.

A complete report will be issued by Secretary Dorsey during the coming week, giving additional information. The condition of the wheat and oat crop throughout the state is generally good, as indicated, although throughout the heavy black land, on account of the heavy moisture, the crop is not so promising. Condition of the corn crop is reported rather poor on account of the cool, damp weather. The corn acreage is about the same as last year.

the demands of business, the wants of the family, the requirements of society, more numerous. The first effect of the praiseworthy effort to keep up with all these things is commonly seen in a weakened or debilitated condition of the nervous system, which results in dyspepsia, defective nutrition of both body and brain, and in extreme cases in compleet nervous prostration. It is clearly seen that what is needed is vigor and tone to the nerves, and keep the digestive and assimilative functions healthy and active. From personal knowledge, we can recommend Hood's Sarsaparilla for this purpose. It acts on all the vital organs, builds up the whole system, and fits men and women for these high-pressure days.

NEW YORK, April 7.-With her ten naked little toes, her slender ankle, a bit of well turned calf and her body from the jacket line to the waist line darkened to a rich East Indian brown and clearly exposed, Ruth St. Denis, a barefooted feminine wriggler, has been dancing in this city midst the "Ohing" and "Ahing" of the ultra-fashionable

At 10 o'clock Sunday at St. Patrick's church distribution of palms will be made by Father Brannon of Weatherford, who will have charge of the services. Sunday evening will mark the opening of a series of lectures which Father Brannon will conduct during the week. There are to be eight of these lectures. All Saints' church of North Fort Worth will observe Palm Sunday by two services. Mass will be held at 10 o'clock in the morning and at 7:30 o'clock at night. The distribution of palm emblems will take place at the morning service. Origin of Day in the Greek and Roman Catholic and Lutheran churches in commemoration of the triumphal entry of the Lord into Jerusalem, on which occasion the multitude cast branches of trees before him. These branches are represented by the sprays of the palm tree. In the other countries where the palm does not grow other tree branches are substituted. These branches are blessed by a priest and distributed among the congregation, who wear them for the rest of the day. The custom of gathering the palms and saving them to be burned afterward, the ashes serving for use on Ash Wednesday, is also observed, the ashes of consecrated wood and old altar linen being also used. There was another ancient custom of bringing leaves of the palm to the Sunday service on Palm Sunday. It is out of these early Christian customs that the present celebration of the day has come, Like many other of the present-day celebrations it is modernized to meet the needs of the resent age of civilization and for this reason is slightly different from the

A Young Girl said to a Cooking School Teacher in New York: "If You Make One Statement as False as That, All You have said about Foods is Absolutely Unreliable."

This burst of true American girl indignation was caused by the teacher saying that Grape-Nuts, the popular pre-digested food, was made of stale bread shipped in and sweetened. The teacher colored up and changed

There is quite an assortment of traveling and stay-at-home members of the tribe of Ananias who tell their falsehoods for a variety of reasons. In the spring it is the custom on a cattle ranch to have a "round up," and brand the cattle, so we are going to have a "round up" and brand these cattle and place them in their proper

This also includes "demonstrators" and "lecturers" sent out by a certain Sanitarium to sell foods made there, and these people instructed by the small-bewhiskered-doctor-the head of the institution—to tell these prevarications (you can speak the stronger word if you like), This same little doctor conducts a small magazine in which there is a department of "answers to correspondents," many of the questions as well as the answers being written by the aforesaid

In this column some time ago appeared the statement: "No, we cannot recommend the use of Grape-Nuts, for it is nothing but bread with glucose poured over it." Right then he showed his badge as a member of the tribe of Ananias. He may have been a member for some time before, and so he has caused these "lecturers" to descend into the ways of the tribe wherever they

When the young lady in New York put the "iron on" to this "teacher" and branded her right we sent $10 to the girl for her pluck and bravery.

Editors of "Trade" papers known as grocers' papers. Remember, we don't put the brand on all, by any means. Only those that require it. These members of the tribe have demanded that we carry advertising in their papers and when we do not consider it advisable they institute a campaign of vituperation and slander, printing from time to time manufactured slurs on Postum or Grape-Nuts. When they go far enough we set our legal forces at work and hail them to the judge to answer. If the pace has been hot enough to throw some of these "cattle" over on their backs, feet tied and "bellowing," do you think we should be blamed? They gambol around with tails held high and jump stiff-legged with a very "cocky" air while they have full range, but when the rope is thrown over them "it's · Should we untie them because they bleat soft and low? Or should we put the iron on, so that people will know the brand? Let's keep them in this pasture, anyhow.

THIRD PASTURE Now we come to a frisky lot,

the "Labor Union" editors. You know down in Texas a weed called "Loco" is sometimes eaten by a steer and produces a derangement of the brain that makes the steer "batty" or crazy. Many of these editors are "Locoed" from hate of anyone who will not instantly obey the "demands" of a labor union and it is the universal habit of such writers to go straight into a system of personal vilification, manufacturing any sort of falsehood through which to vent their spleen. We assert that the common citizen has a right to live and breathe air without asking permission of the labor trust and this has brought down on us the hate of these editors. When they go far enough with their libels, is it harsh for us to get judgment against them and have our lawyers watch for a chance to attach money due them from others? (For they are usually irresponsible). Keep your eye out for the "Locoed" editor.

Now let all these choice specimens take notice:

We will deposit one thousand or fifty thousand dollars to be covered by a like amount from them, or any one of them, and if there was ever one ounce of old bread or any other ingredient different than our selected wheat and barley with a little salt and yeast used in the making of Grape-Nuts, we will lose the money.

Our pure food factories are open at all times to visitors, and thousands pass through each month, inspecting every department and every process. Our factories are so clean that one could, with good relish, eat a meal from The work people, both men and women, are of the highest grade in the state of Michigan, and according to the state labor reports, are the highest paid in the state for similar work. Let us tell you exactly what you will see when you inspect the manufacture of Grape-Nuts. You will find tremendous elevators containing the choicest wheat and barley possible to buy. These grains are carried through long conveyers to grinding mills, and there converted into flour. Then the machines make selection of the proper quantities of this flour in the proper proportion and these parts are blended into a general flour which passes over to the big dough mixing machines, there water, salt and a little yeast are added and the dough kneaded the proper length of time. Remember that previous to the barley having been ground it was passed through about one hundred hours of soaking in water, then placed on warm floors and slightly sprouted, developing the diastase in the barley, which changes the starch in the grain into a form of sugar. Now after we have passed it into dough and it has been kneaded long enough, it is molded by machinery into loaves about 18 inches long and 5 or 6 inches in diameter. It is put into this shape for convenience in second cooking. These great loaves are sliced by machinery and the slices placed on wire trays, these trays, in turn, placed on great steel trucks, and rolled into the secondary ovens, each perhaps 75 or 80 feet long. There the food is subjected to a long low heat and the starch which has not been heretofore transformed, is turned into a form of sugar generally known as Post Sugar. It can be seen glistening on the granules of Grape-Nuts if held toward the light, and this sugar is not poured over or put on the food as these prevaricators ignorantly assert. On the contrary the sugar exudes from the interior of each little granule during the process of manufacture, and reminds one of the little white particles of sugar that come out on the end of a hickory log after it has been sawed off and allowed to stand for a length of

In Full Garb of Easter Readiness

With Easter dress needs yet to be bought by a great many women, this news is of extraordinary interest and substantial benefit. Those lines which bear the close relation to the Easter season offer values that make "the store ahead" the natural providing place for all people who want the best that money can buy for the least. Our ability to offer the most timely bargains is a matter known to all—and helps the store to greater popularity all the time. Stocks and service are keyed up to the highest pitch of excellence for your Easter needs. Milliners are working like beavers night and day to keep pace with the Easter millinery demands, and every other line that will be caled upon during the next six days, is perfect in its completeness—superior in its values—reliable in its qualities.

An Exclusive Selection of Easter Millinery

Creative genius is strongly evidenced in the unparalleled display of stylish hats in our millinery section this week. Very modish master-pieces created for this Eastertide.

The great Easter show of Millinery is announced. The prevailing modes as shown here will attract thousands of smart dressers, as the women of Paris, Anteuil and Longchamps, to see the masterpieces of the great designers, so the women of Fort Worth have learned to come to this store for the brilliant new millinery conceptions. Experience has taught them that this is best. The styles are as beautiful as they are varied, and the collection as a whole cannot be surpassed in the South : : : The imported Millinery is reinforced by magnificent productions from our own workrooms. Many of these charming hats are reproductions of the imported ones. For weeks we have been preparing for this Easter event, and the result is a collection that does honor to this store. Prices $5.00, $8.00, $10.00, $15.00, $20.00, $25.00, $35.00.

A Grand and Bewitching Display of Fine Outer Garments

Your Easter gown could not be bought more advantageously than here. Direct from the hands of the master designers of Paris and the fashion centers of America, we are showing representative creations in fashionable apparel that correctly depict the proper modes for spring and Easter wear for women, misses' and children. Our preparations were made with the aim of surpassing all previous achievements, and our magnificent displays of Gowns, Costumes, Tailored Suits, Wraps, Waists and Skirt excel any ever attempted, and fully sustain our reputation as "The Store Ahead" and the style store of the South. Many of the exquisite conceptions are Paris productions or direct copies of the highest class foreign models, and they will be exclusively shown here and not duplicated again this season. We trust that the ladies who want an Easter gown will come early in the week, giving us time to do the alteration, if any necessary.

Turkey's Easter Eggs

The egg, of course, is regarded by Christians as a symbol of the resurrection, and, strange though it may appear, the Mohammedans are themselves firm believers in the idea that Christ will return to this world some day. Indeed, a promise of this event written in the Koran, and there is ! an understanding to the effect that the Savious will descend upon a certain minaret of a particular mosque in Damascus. So it is not surprising that osme of the Mohammedans in Turkey should dye eggs or buy them in the shops at Eastertide. Usually the eggs are dved red, but this is the case also in other countries, the color being in a manner emblematic of the crucifixion.-New York Mail.

What Liquozone Is.

The virtues of Liquozone are derived solely from gases, by a process requir-ing large apparatus, and from 8 to 14 days' time. No alcohol, no narcotics are in it. Chemists of the highest class direct the making. The result is to obtain from these harmless gases a powerful tonic-germicide. The great value of Liquozone lies in the fact that it is deadly to germs, yet harmless to you. Germs are of veget- | stroy vital organs, as in Consumption able origin; and this gas-made prod-$1,000 for a disease germ that it can ! ly every serious ailment is a germ

SELLING AT Wholesale Prices

A stock of merchandise shipped to a merchant in a town near Fort Worth by one of the largest St. Louis wholesale houses was sequestrated on account of the failure of the consignee about the time of their arrival at destination, and sold to us at

······ A NEW STOCK

These goods are all new. This lot does not contain one single item or article of old goods. They represent entirely a single purchase of new goods from one house. All with factory folding and tieing plainly in evidence—crisp, fresh and new.

OF MOST STAPLE VARIETY

This purchase consists in the main of dry goods and notions of the kind you buy and use every day. Domestics, Sheetings, Prints, Percales, White and Figured Lawns, Laces, Braids, Embroideries. Hosiery and Knit Underwear for Men, Women and Children, Dress Linens, Table Linens, Napkins, Towels, etc., etc.

NECESSITY

compels us to price these goods for quick selling. Our already crowded store is too small to contain this stock together with other goods bought and now arriving for spring and summer.

.... GOOD LUCK

enables us to sell you these most staple of goods-yards at the bolt price; single items at the gross price-at retail for wholesale prices, with fair profit to ourselves.

A LIST

in detail of the several items in this purchase would be practically a catalogue of the dry goods and notions usually carried in a department store. Cost of advertising space forbids this. Here are a few sample prices out of hundreds equally as low-

As shown it is made of white crepe de chine combined with German Valenciennes lace. but among the silks are a great many fabrics. Chiffon cloth is always lovely and there are similar materials galore and, in addition to the familiar wool fabrics, those of silk and cotton and silk and linen are much to be commended, all the familiar weaves, mousselines, tissues and grenadines, being exceptionally lovely.

The waist is made with a fitted lining, which is faced to form the yoke when that is used and cut away when it is omitted. The full fronts and the full back are tucked at the waist line and gathered at their upper edges. The bertha is finished with a frill that makes its own heading. The sleeves are mounted over fitted foundations and can be either tucked or gathered at their upper edges.

The quantity of material required for the medium size is 41/4 yards 21, 31/2 yards 27 or 21/8 yards 44 inches wide, with 11/2 yards of allover lace and 3 yards of insertion to make as illustrated.

The pattern 5298 is cut in sizes for a 32, 34, 36, 38 and 40 inch bust measure.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

The Old Detective Wants You to Figure Out What the Shoplifter Did with It

BY ALBERT H. MODRICKER. That criminals are possessed of rare ingenuity and talent-adepts, some of them, in their particular line-is selfevident: indeed, clever criminals are men of brains. With organized detectives constantly on their shadow, they must have a superior intelligence to that ascribed to them by the un-

One of the many incidents of the criminal's ingenuity that came under my motive occurred while I was after a trio of Canadian crooks.

A jeweler had on exhibition in his window a diamond necklace valued at $2,000. One day a fashionably dressed oung man desired to examine the necklace. It was taken from the vindow by the proprietor himself. The eweler understood his business, and although his customer might be a milionaire for aught he knew, he kept a sharp watch upon the precious jewels. Presently, with the diamonds still in his hand, the young man asked to see a beautiful bracelet close at hand and the jeweler half turned to get it. It took him but a second, yet, when he again faced his customer, the neck!ace was nowhere to be seen.

Quick as a flash the jeweler grabbed the young man by the collar and called to his clerks for assistance. Protesting his innocence and apparently indignant at such a suspicion, the young man turned out all his pockets and invited a thorough searth.

There was nothing to do but to call the police, and accordingly the young man was led forth and the jeweler trudged on behind. It was not long before the usual mob of gamins and loungers were tagging after, and the poor jeweler was jostled by the crowd and questioned until he was well-nigh

At the lockup the young man was again examined, but it was to no purpose-the jewels could not be found. Had it been a single stone it might have been conjectured that he had swallowed it, but with a necklace such feat was an utter impossibility. The shop was again thoroughly gone hrough, but the mystery remained.

What had become of the necklace? Absurdly simple, yet I think I should be safe in giving most anyone a dozen guesses on it-yes, twenty. A week or so later the young man-

for, of course, he was released, as nothing could be proved against himand his gang were arrested for another crime, and the whole story came When the jeweler reached for the bracelet the pretended customer simply dropped the necklace into the jeweler's own coat pocket. On the way to the lockup an accomplice among the gamins easily picked his pocket of the prize be did not know he was carrying, and when the young man was iberated they divided the swag. Pretty neat trick, wasn't it? It certainly revealed the ingenuity of one criminal,

But for downright cleverness: One of the large restaurants in New York had been losing its silver in the most unaccountable manner. A number of waiters were discharged and detectives worked on the case without avail. Finally the trick was discovered.

respectable-looking person entered the restaurant and gave his order for dinner. During the meal he conveyed one or more articles to the under side of the table, fixing them there by means of wax. Should the waiter miss any of his spoons or other articles, the rogue was still in no danger and effered himself to be searched with an air of feigned innocence. Of course, he was allowed to depart, but immediately an accomplice entered, ordering his dish, seating himself at the same table, whence he removed the secreted

The way the trick was discovered is an instructive illustration of the ingenuity of the criminal pitted against the skill of the detective. The detective who was on watch noticed the disappearance of some silver at a certain table. He had the diner searched with the usual result, and was compelled to tender his profuse apologies to the indignant guest. Returning to the table, the detective seated himself with his back to the table and buried his face

MYSTERY OF DIAMOND NECKLACE | in a newspaper. A large pier glass was affixed to the wall on the opposite side.

Soon the confederate entered, seating himself at the table, and, while taking his soup, began his work, little dreaming that the peaceful-looking person opposite, with his back toward him, was watching every movement in the looking glass, through a hole in the ewspaper which he held before his face, pretending to read.

No sooner had the rogue succeeded in transferring the last of the forks and spoons to his pocket than he rose very leisurely, walked to the cashier's desk and took out his money to pay for his meal. But at the same moment there was a hand laid upon his shoulder, and the detective slipped a pair of handeuffs upon his wrists. The missing acticles, of course, were found upon his person.

FAREWELL HERE PROVES FINAL

George Keger Dies After Parting With Son

George Koger, 51 years of age, who for some time has been employed as drummer for the Southern hotel, 1508 Jones street, died in his room at the hotel Saturday afternoon at 5 o'clock from an overdose of poison supposed to be strychnine. Justice Charles T. Rowland held an inquest but had not returned a verdict in the case Saturday night.

Koger came to Fort Worth from Aubrey, Denton county, and had been in the employ of the Southern hotel as a drummer at the Santa Fe depot. He had a wife with whom he had not lived for some time, and a son who lives in Fort Worth. Saturday the son informed his father that he intended going to Kansas City Saturday night. The father objected, saying he did not wish him to leave him here. The boy insisted, however, and the two separated with that under-

Screams heard coming from Koger's oom in the hotel attracted those who found him in convulsions and in great agony. A physician arrived too late to help Koger, who died in a few minutes after being discovered. Koger was a member of the Wood-inen of the World.

"Marie Cahill"

"The Chorus Girl's First Make-Up," by Ernestine Brady, of Marie Cahill's "Molly Moonshine" Company, in which most of the girls are spending their first season on the stage.

The "make-up" on woman's face May sometimes tend to her disgrace And yet again enhance her grace, So made-up woman's woman still;

With her delightful two-way's will. In my school days a dear old preceptress of mine used to wrinkle up her face in a mesh of smiles when one made a pun. She stated that she considered it a proof at least of a healthy

And so in no silly attempt to disgrace her memory, but simply in che word that I have written something for reaches her cloistered ears to remind her that I still think of her and that no artificial calcium light can dim the light of other days, I am going to be so unliterary and so un-newspaperish as

And now, may all the dear old ancient scribes forgive me, for surely they must get a spirit edition of The Telegram in order to be happy, and therefore must, of course, read this. "Here is it"-as the laugh maker

If "make-up" on a girl's face detracts from her looks, how can she have the face to look in her mirror at her face; she ought rather to make up her mind instead of her face and conclude to face about when she is tempted to look in her mirror.

All of which may mean my brief experience on the stage has changed my mind instead of my looks.

Nevertheless, however, and to be sure, it is perfectly clear and cannot be denied that after the novelty wears off there is nothing so boresome to a real woman as the scraping pigment of the makeup box. No rabbit's foot is soft enough to cause one to forget the hardness of it all-this painting one's face to suit the colors in the scenery of the costumes.

But what a delight to sit before a broken piece of mirror, which some experienced girl has had the foresight to bring, and just paint one's self into an unrecognizable state on the night of one's first dress rehearsal. And after just wallowing in rouge, crayon strokes and powder, the "call" comes banging down the stairs. The old girl rushes to the help of her inexperienced sister. First she laughs at the perfect daub on the novice's face, and then scrapes and washes until some semblance of skill is shown in the makeup:

"Come down here," yells the stage manager, "You - you - you Miss what's your name. Oh, you in pinkcome here until I see your dressthere-no down here-get to one side of that flower pot. Here, property man, you-can't you get that junk out of the way-now, come here, Missthere-Ellen! Ellen! Ellen"-and the voice of the wardrobe mistress an-

"'Ere, sir." "What is the matter with these petticoats-where is that costumer's man -here you, look at that skirt-it doesn't hang right-you will fix it Ellen-all right, Miss, you may go." You turn to go, and then-"No, come God's sake go and wash your face!" And you do wash your face with the tears of disappointment, and after using the other means-there is your natural face so red and rosy that you feel like rushing out and asking the nasty old manager, if that won't do. A girl has to be game to go on the stage and look steadily at the finger which is pointed at her, for if her "makeup" is right she can grab the finger and bend it backwards until it points at the pointer.

And that really suggests the chorus your school committee rooms and talk over the price of a new piano for

So there it is-and it isn't very pleasant-this chorus girl's makeup. I expect it gets on one's nerves becaute it must be done and must be done at a certain time and in a certain way. What horrid thought-"one's face must be made to match the scenery."

"Buster Brown"

There is an unusual story of an unusual dog. In the first place the dog isn't a dog at all and this may sound foolish until explained. The der is Impersonated by a human being. Those who desire to see this may do so at Greenwall's opera house Wednesday and Thursday nights, with matinee Thursday, April 11 and 12, when the "Buster Brown" company will be presented. In proper person the actor who plays the dog, is a respectable young man, but on the stage he acts like a dog-the highest compliment that can be paid him, for he has made a life study of acting like a dog. When this individual was very young, he ran away with a circus and the story how he became an animal impersonator sounds very much like fiction. However it is the truth, as many old timers will testify. The circus which he joined was a little one-ring affair, ouring through the small towns of the middle west. They carried but one animal besides the horses and that was the performing bear. The principal actor had to take care of the brute. when he was not working. One day the bear died and the manager tried to figure out what he would do to replace the attraction. The actor came to the rescue. He had the bear skinned and mounted by one of the circus men. This done, he got inside the skin and went into the ring. Of course the audience realized the deception, but

Dockstader's Minstrels

His press agents says: "Dockstadr occupies the unique distinction of being the only minstrel who plays in any of the Broadway theaters in New York, and his enormous success at the New York theater during the month of January this year may keep him off the road altogether next season. He has rejected numerous offers to establish a permanent minstrel theater in New York, giving as his reason that even New York would possibly not support a minstrel show in a large theater, and that there is much more money for him in appearing for several weeks in New York and filling in the remainder of the time on the road. His last engagement of six weeks in New York was so extraordinarily successful that the next one will undoubtedly continue for at least three or four months." He will be here at Greenwall's opera house Thurs-

The tens of thousands who have istened to the Ellery Band and watched Ferullo direct it have learned that back of all the young man's sensational mannerisms there is a substantial basis of rare artistic sentiment and musical knowledge. Ferullo belongs to a family that has been distinguished in music for many generations back. A Neapolitan by birth, he entered the Royal Conservatory in his native city at the age of 11 years, and there, for seven years, pursued his studies in harmony and counterpoint, chosing for his instrument the difficult oboe, of which there are but few real masters in the world today. Ferullo will lead the Ellery Band on its appearance at Greenwall's opera house, Friday and Saturday, April 20 and 21.

AT THE MAJESTIC

Variety is not only the spice of life The same diversity of entertainment is the very life of vaudeville. The human appetite for amusement demands something different, every week, that it seeks to be satisfied. With this end in view the Interstate Amusement Company provides for this week, says the press agents, a program of features distinctly at variance with those which pleased large audiences last week at the Majestic. Comedy drama heads the list of attractions. James Newton Drew and company will offer Myles McCarthy's serious study of a character outlawed by society, in the play, "Jim's Brother Bill." The peculiar and unfamiliar dialect employed by these underdogs of creation, furnishes the act with very unusual atmosphere. At direct contrast is the travesty presented by Richard Barry and Virginia Johnson. Their burlesque, "Held For Ransom," is a series of satirical slaps at the barnstorming tragedians and tank drama actresses. Everything is done on the most absurd scale with seeming seriousness. The management bespeaks a hearty interest in Sam Du

Their the more serious drama, then he has act will appeal strongly to lovers of fine music. The Majestograph gives a good laugh in store at the Majestic. The scene of the sketch is laid in a "License No. 13 to the Hoodoo Autorailway station at a water tank. Mr Barry assumes the part of a "legit" James Newton Drew and Company

"Jim's Brother Bill" is a realistic story taken directly from life. The story was written by Myles McCarthy, who is well known in vaudeville and who is now playing "A Race Tout's Dream." Mr. McCarthy was playing at Leavenworth, Kan., several years ago and was invited to appear before the convicts in the penitentiary there. He accepted the invitation and made a decided impression by his singing. Two years ago while he was appearing in Chicago, he received a card from a man who wished to see him. Mr. McCarthy found that the man was one of the convicts before whom he had sung at Leavenworth. This man told him the story of his life, upon which the play is based. The title role is a double character arrangement, and the star, James Newton Drew, in this double role, makes his changes so rapidly and so completely as to make it seem impossible that two men are not playing the parts. Drew assumes the characters of Jim and his brother Bill. Bill is the convict who is serving innocently for the sins of his brother. Here is a strong situation, especially since the convict has long been secretly in love with the young woman in the play, whose affection, according to the story told by the brother, has been given to the guilty but free man. Her liscovery of this base deception which has been responsible for the incarceration of Bill, makes her woman's nature revolt against Jim and she saves him from pursuit and re-capture, after his escape from the penitentiary. The whole fabric of the story is told with

The Fort Worth Fencibles had an enjoyable smoker at their armory in the court house Friday night, that was attended by nearly the entire roll of the company, besides a number of invited guests. When her babies are big enough to hop about safely and play, she is a picture of good feeling. but if they get out of her sight or hearing then her worrying nature comes to the top, and she becomes so wildly anxious that nothing will soothe her until the little ones are restored. These three youngsters bid fair to upset the theory that tigers can not be raised in captivity. They now romp and wrestle and tumble about playfully nearly all the time they are awake. When a boy or girl is full of energy and bounces about this way, it doesn't take a doctor to read that he is sound and growing. "Baby tigers are like baby kittens in nature. They will box and roll and chase each other until tired out, and then curl up together and sleep soundly. Tigers are bundles of nerves, and, like nervous people, they must fidget and twitch like all possessed. You know there are a lot in the world of this kind for nervous and highly sensitive humans. The way to bring up baby wild animals is pretty much the same way that you bring up baby humans. When you find that a boy or girl jumps around and raises merry Ned all day nority were removed and he was ad- and worries grandma almost to death, making a man with plenty of getup and go, who will hold his own in the rough scramble of the world. When a baby tiger, or baby lion, jumps around and shows a playful interest in things it makes a keeper's heart glad, because there is no better token of growing strength."

Patience of Mother Tiger

"The tiger has a bad name, and he deserves it, for he is much like a man that goes through the world with his hand raised against everybody. Most animals are capable of attachment, even with those of a different family, but the tiger lives only for himself, and only makes trouble when mixed with other animals. The love of their young, however, is marked and beautiful. They watch over their, babies like a young mother, and caress them with the same fond pride. So long as the little ones are soft in bone and unweaned they always sleep with one eye open. Tip toe to a tiger's den in the darkest hour of the night and you will find this so. The babies will be curled up close to the mother's body and breathing deeply, but the mother will be dozing and alert to the slightest noise. The wear and tear of babies on a mother tiger, drags her down just the same as with the sensitive human mother. It is always an unpleasant duty to take the little ones away from their parents when they get big enough to shift for themselves. This has to be done gradually. That is to say, the youngsters are put in an adjoining cage, so that they may be seen and heard by the anxious and made of, and the mother, a hand- mother; and even when well grown it some creature, does not seem to worry over these attentions." The speaker was a man who had spent his life in the study and care

"You know that the tigress is a suspicious creature and apt to go off suddenly. When babies come into her care she is worse than ever, and it is just as well to keep out of her reach, even though she lies still and doesn't snarl. The reason she does the unnatural thing of eating her little ones is because of fear that they may be taken away from her while still helpless. She is much more fond of her bables than the lion, and worries about them longer. When lion cubs get big enough to shift for themselves the mother becomes indifferent. She acts as if she had cherished them as long is a good plan to keep them within sight, or at times to bring them together, where they can sniff and caress each other, after the manner of their kind. They have had roller curtains set in the sides of their cage home, so that the light may be softened at any time the cubs look tired, and their lids 'droopy.' The more good sleep they get, the more flesh and bone nature will give them. It is interesting to see the mother, an itensely nervous creature, settle into a deathlike quiet when the babies relax in sleep. When they are awake she moves like a ball of perpetual motion. This ceaseless going and coming, and waving of body and head, is meat and drink to the health of the wild creature.

"The patience of the mother tiger with her little ones when they get big enough to move about nimbly is beautiful, They will bite the tip of her legs, and munch the soft spots in her shapely ear, but she takes it all good naturedly. and when they tumble in her way she will step carefully over them or stand stock still until they pick up their fat little bodies and

STOCK BROKERS NOT TERRIFIED

High Interest Rate Hurts the Traders Only

BY THOMAS C. SHOTWELL. Special to The Telegram NEW YORK, April 7 .- The so-called inside interests that are forcing a higher market expect to use the growing business boom of Europe as an object lesson for the American public. The great public in the United States has been over-educated on stocks. It lost faith in the leaders just when they began to tell the truth. It threw away its stocks at panic figures and the Wall street leaders have grown richer by hundreds of millions as a result.

Call money at 30 per cent has not terrified the big stockholders the past week, because they are borrowing but little. Only the traders have been hurt by the money corner. There has been less money borrowed in Wall street this spring, when the prices of stocks are considered, than ever before. The colume of money in circulation in the Inited States is the largest per capita in the history of the country. But it has been employed in places where a dollar means nothing but one hundred cents. In Wall street a dollar means four hundred cents and the millions that are busy in the west at par would carry burdens at four times their value in the hands of professional money handlers of the east. For this reason the volume of circulation per capita is abnormally small. The big stockholders understand this law and finance and high money rates temporarily do not terrify them. For a decade Europe has been living in constant dread of war and has been hoarding its gold. It has not kept pace with modern improvements as the United States has done. Now that all fear of war has been suddenly removed, Europe is alive with industrial activity. Wall street leaders expect business in Europe to become sensa-tionally active. But even at its best it can do no more than catch up with what has already been done in the United States. The leaders expect that Europe's awakening will make Americans realize their own wealth and bring them into the stock market. It is in anticipation of such a thing that prices are being held so firm.

Easter in the Early Church The proper time for the celebration of Easter occasioned no little controversy in the early church, the great mass of the eastern Christians cele-

FREE BOOKLET ON BRIGHT'S DIS-EASE AND DIABETES.

We desire to place in the hands of those afflicted with Bright' Disease or Diabetes a 36-page pamphlet that is saving human lives. It is not an ordinary pamphlet, but is principally made up of reports of scientifically conducted tests in a large variety of cases, showing 87 per cent of recoveries in these hitherto incurable diseases. This booklet is for thoughtful people-people who can discriminate between common patent medicine literature and a carefully prepared report of a patient, serious and profoundly important investigation.

The specifics employed in these tests are known as the Fulton Compounds and the results obtained prove conclusively that these dreaded diseases so long fatal have at last yielded to medical science. Mrs. Eichberg and her friend were introduced to Mr. Carnegie by Mr. Phelps Stokes. Mrs. Eichberg congratulated Mr. Carnegie upon the speech he had made on the south and upon southern women.

"You are such a fine looking lady," said Mr. Carnegie, with enthusiasm, "that I am going to kiss you for all the rest here," and with that, before Mrs. Eicl berg knew what was happening, he hisred her fair and square. Then Mrs. Elchberg's friend was kissed among the younger beauties. "I wouldn't jake anything for it," proudly said Mrs. Eichberg.

OLD SHAKESPEARE SOLD FOR A SONG

Now Offered to London Library for Mere $15,000

Special Cable to The Telegram. (Copyright, 1906, by Hearst News Service.) LONDON, April 7.-How a first folio edition of Shakespeare's works was deposited on publication in the famous Bodleian library at Oxford, afterward sold out of the collection as a "superflous" book and is now again offered to the library for $15,000 is told by Mr. Nicholson, the chief librarian. The precious book, which is considered the only really authentic copy existing, since it was selected for posterity, was sent to the Bodleian library in 1623. After being bound in Oxford it was placed on the library shelves, to which it was chained, as was then the custom with valuable books.

Between September, 1663, and September, 1664, the Shakespeare seems to have been disposed of among some "superfluous" library books sold by the order of the curators, and the whole lot being purchased by an Oxford dealer for $120.

The folio was next heard of in 1705 as being in the possession of a Derbyshire squire named Turrbutte, whose descendant, W. G. Turrbutte, is the present owner. Fifteen thousand dollars has been offered by an American collector for this volume, but the Bodleian library has been given the

BRIGGS NOT GUILTY

Chicago Trial on Charge or Murder Results in Acquittal

CHICAGO, April 7.-"Joco" Briggs was found not guilty of the murder of Hans Peterson, in a verdict returned this afternoon. At 3:40 o'clock, when the jury had been out fifty minutes, word was sent to Judge Chytraus that a verdict had been agreed upon. The attorneys were summoned and bailiffs were sent to Briggs' cell to bring the defendant into court.

Within five minutes the court room was filled with spectators and the jury filed into the box and handed down its verdict to the clerk. The envelope was opened and the verdict was read. A demonstration of applause was started which the bailiffs were unable to check. Briggs' two little children threw their hands over their heads and screamed for joy. When the room was quiet again Briggs walked straight to the bench and facing Judge Chy-

INSPECTOR URGED BY CITY OFFICER

Dr. Barber Approves Grand Jury Action

Dr. Lyman A. Barber, city health officer and member of the faculty of the medical department of Fort Worth University, endorses the recommendation of the grand jury that there be appointed at Fort Worth an inspector whose duty shall be to inspect all food products of whatever kind offered for sale in the county, and in the city especially.

"Conditions imperatively demand the appointment of such an official," said Dr. Barber. "There is no doubt that food products are offered for sale in Fort Worth and sold to consumers that are not fit to eat, and that endanger the lives of those who eat them. During the time that I have been city health officer a number of cases of the traffic in food products unfit to eat have come under my observation and I have prosecuted the parties, but so much of my time is required by the city's sick that cannot look after the food products placed on sale as they should be. "To do this properly and if it is no done properly it might as well not be done at all, will require the constant attention of one good man whose duties should be well defined and who should be given such authority as will enable him to protect the public from impure or diseased food prod-

"There has been a demand for such public official in Fort Worth for a umber of years and as the city grows and the population increases the demand becomes more urgent. The appointment of an inspector and the strict enforcement of the laws against the sale of impure or unsound food would indeed be a wise step. There are many people who buy food products who are imposed upon by unscrupulus dealers. This class of people need just such protection as an nspector who does his duty could give them. I hope the recommendation of the grand jury will be acted upon with the least possible delay. It is due the public.

'The Pansy Girl'

Jack McGuire was in search of a ew experience. He was editor of the Daily Graphic, and he was so tired of neeting editors and reporters and folks who talked "shop" in the same old way, that he searched for and found a ittle resturant that seemede lost in a side street of a great city. There was one vacant seat at a able, and the other occupant was a girl who noticed his hesitancy and sked him to sit down. "You, as well

His food choked him. "I'll wager she doesn't get enough to eat," he thought, and that hurt away down deep. He wanted to offer her mone but refrained. There are some folks to whom you cannot offer charity. Suddenly he heard an exclamation. The girl was looking at her check and then at the waiter. "I thought-I thought-why, I was told that lunches were cheaper in this place," she said. "There's your check, it speaks ffor itself," snapped the waiter, grimly. "The Pansy Girl," for that was the name McGuire had given her in his thoughts, was evidently in trouble. Not enough money to pay for the food she had eaten. "Let me be of assistance," he said.

The girl hesitated and he added: I'll simply be your banker. It is right and proper, only a kindness. You and I will probably meet in a newspaper office some day, and then you can repay me.' "It is very little I know about the nside of a newspaper office," said the girl, hopelessly. "I write to them but they do not want me. She fished a bundle of manuscript

In Portugal

The Portuguese decorate their hurches in the most gorgeous manner for Easter, and the services are especially elaborate. Children's choirs are employed, and from the richest to th epoorest all girls are dressed in snowy white. The peasants celebrate Easter by a practice known as "lifting," commemorative of our Saviour's rising from the grave. Three or four persons take hold of each arm and leg of one of their friends, or a stranger, for that matter, and life him or her up three times in a horizontal position. Sometimes the lifting is done in a chair lined with white cloth and decorated with ribbon

Midnight Mass in the Greek Church Midnight mass is said in churches of the Greek faith, and just on the stroke of 12 a loud knocking commences at the door and is repeated several times. On the door being opened the priests and their choir hurry in, crying to the worshippers, in imitation of those of old who brought the news of the first resurrection to the disciples, "Christ is risen!" It requires but a minute to change the scene from the gloom of the half lighted church to one ablaze with many lighted tapers.

is the intention of these gentlemen to stay in this city until Sunday morning, April 22, when they will leave for the grand lodge at Galveston. The Fort Worth Pythians have arranged a program of entertainment covering the two days of their stay, comprising a barbecue and ride over the city, and winding up with a reception Saturday night at the Castle hall, to which every Knight of Pythias in good standing within the gates of Fort Worth at that time will be invited. Under the management of J. J. Parker, chairman general committee, and his assistants from the five lodges, these guests will be looked after, and every lodge will be invited to

Already the following distinguished knights have accepted an invitation to be guests in this city on that occasion: Grand Chancellor O. P. Thomas of Abilene: Henry Miller of Weatherford, grand keeper of records and seal; John T. Bonner of Tyler, supreme representative; Henry P. Brown of Cleburne, supreme representative; W. F. Skillman of Sulphur Springs, grand master of exchequer; W. W. King of Ennis, grand inner-guard; C. H. Powell of San Angelo, grand master at arms and a number of past grand officers and representatives. It is anticipated that a large number of representatives to the grand lodge will stope over in Fort Worth for the reception Saturday night. The program contemplates addresses by the supreme officers and responses by prominent Fort Worth Pythlans, among whom are Mayor-elect W. D. Davis of North Fort Worth and Captain B. B. Paddock, secretary of the Board of Trade. Trip to Galveston On Sunday, April 22, the entire party will leave for Galveston on a special train for the occasion, leaving Fort Worth at 8:30 a. m. Lodges along the route will be furnished with the time of stops so they will know exactly when to expect the train. The special car containing the officers will decorated by the Fort Worth knights, and will advertise this city and the great order to which so many

Fort Worth citizens belong. A large party will go from here, among whom are Past Grand Chancellors W. Alex Abey, John T. Mont. gomery, E. T. Hollis, W. R. Thompson, John M. The soil and climate of the Bermudas are especially favorable to the growing of the Easter lily. There bulbs and blossoms are raised in great quantities for the American market. The Illy grower separates the bulbs into parts. Each part is planted. Not till the second year does he deem the new bulbs fit for transportation. Not until the fourth year can he produce the larger bulbs, three inches in diamter, whence spring the tall stalks crowned with many blossoms. In Bermuda may be seen lily fields covered with plants varying in height from a few inches to three feet or more. The latter are the four-year-olds, the perfect product, especially intended for the United States. The St. Joseph, or annunciation, lily is the favorite at present, though the calla lily has attributes which make it retain much of its old time popularity, especially in church decorations. It is the more robust of the two.-Century Life In America.

Figures gathered by the Financial Chronicle of this city show that the world's production of gold is still steadily mounting. Each of the last three calendar years has seen a new record made. Up to 1903 the biggest annual output had been 15,220,263 ounces, valued at $314,630,233. That amount had been mined in 1899, the year before the Boer war suspended operations in the Transvaal. In 1903, with the Johannesburg region again tranquil, the 1899 record was broken: production reached 15,788,016 ouncesvalued at $326,159,991. In 1904 it rose $16,739,448 ounces-valued at $346,-034,521. In 1905 a still greater advance has been registered, the output reaching 18,211,419 ounces-valued at $376,462,811. Since 1896 the world's annual gold production has virtually doubled .- New York Tribune.

CHAPTER II.

THE STORY OF OLD FAITHFUL. I left the office and started down town. After getting dinner at a favorite restaurant I strolled about the streets for an hour, when I entered one of the theaters. A popular play was on the boards, but I had little idea of what took place on the stage, for my mind was still puzzling over my experiences in Denver. Although I did not reach my rooms until a late hour I passed a restless night, and in the morning concluded it was best that I remain away from the office until aft-

At 1 o'clock I entered the office and anxiously inquired if the reports asked for had been made to the chief. "Not yet, Mr. Wallace," was the reply, "but they will be ready in about ernoon. I was on vacation and need

It seemed an age to wait, but lighting a cigar and picking up a newspaper, I located myself as comfortably as possible, determined that I would forget that I was waiting for anyone or

The time dragged slowly but finally I heard Dozier ask if the chief was engaged, and knew that the time for action had arrived at last. What the outcome would be I could not conjecture. The faces of the clerks gave no sign, the work to them was an everyday affair, so much so, that while they were pleased when able to supply important information, they never grew enthusiastic over the results they had

Fortunately the chief was not engaged and requested us all to come to his room at once. I endeavored to conceal my anxiety in every possible way, but I fear I did not wholly succeed, for Mr. Adams, in an effort to reassure me, said:

"Now, Wallace, don't be too much disappointed if we fail to find all that we hope for. This may not be our lucky day." I made some reply, just what I do not now recollect, for I was thinking of the methods employed to arrive at the report we were about to hear. It was usual to attempt to arrive at an opinion by the process of exclusion, something after the method by which physicians arrive at the correct diagnosis of obscure diseases, which is, by tracing up all the points of interest presented in the case, and then exuding all those foreign or incompatwith the conclusions finally ar-In the present instance the clerks had traced each item separately to the point that showed conclusively that it could have no possible bearing on the matter in hand, when it was dropped and the next one taken up. I know that in this way they had laboriously gone over the long list of items, both written and printed, referring to incidents in which valued or noted dogs had been prominent actors. Some of these gave the pedigree, while others merely mentioned the fancy prices paid for those of the St. Bernard breed, others told of dogs that had been stolen and a more extended list described accidents, robberies, rescues and other incidents of more or less interest in which dogs had taken a part. From this mass of material Mr. Dozler had selected some fifty or sixty items which he deemed it advisable to submit to the chief and he began reading them, one after the other, without comment. As he passed from one to another, there seemed little that bore upon the case, and although the pile of slips were fast disappearing. I did not. for some unexplained reason, feel greatly discouraged.

Finally, when the material was nearly exhausted, he unfolded a long newspaper clipping and remarked: "This is a long one. It may not bear on the case at all, as the dog is dead, but for that, it might prove of more interest. Then beginning with the headlines of an article cut from the local pages of Worcester, Mass., daily, he read the

the boy in an attempt to rob him of his pocket money. "During the past eighteen months Faithful has spent much of his time at the store of Benny's father, M. T. McVicker, the diamond merchant on Tenth street, acting in the capacity of guard, being on duty both day and night. His services were highly valued, as he seemed to possess the faculty of easily detecting suspicious characters. So expert was he in this line that Mr. McVicker placed explicit confidence in his powers of discrimination, and on three different occasions convicted thieves were taken to the store for the purpose of testing his ability, with the result that the excessive temper exhibited by the dog left no trace of doubt in the minds of those. present that Faithful understood the character of the criminals with whom he had to deal. In only one instance during his entire term of service at the store was he known to have made a mistake, and it is supposed that in this case his aversion was due to some peculiarity of the person herself, rather than to any suspicion the dog may have had of her honesty. The lady referred to is Madame Harrington, who lately opened and is now conducting the millinery emporium on Ninth

"In person and manner, Madame is a most charming lady, who enjoys the esteem and friendship of a large circle of acquaintances. Like many others, she was a great admirer of Faithful, and made many attempts to make friends with him. He, however, would allow no intimacy and instead was disposed to make open warfare. On one occasion when madame had called at the store to make a purchase, the dog was on the street with Benny. Mr. McVicker waited upon her in person and after selecting the goods desired, had given madame a seat in the private office, as she expressed a desire to wait for a friend. Having an important engagement Mr. McVicker excused himself, leaving Madame the sole occupant of that part of the store. Soon after he had gone she was startled by a deep and angry growl, and looking, saw Faithful coming toward the office door. Realizing her position might prove dangerous, Madame quickly closed the door and looked about for a place of safety. The office door being constructed of light material, with the upper half of glass, would afford little protection should the dog attempt to force an entrance. This he did do, as his enormous weight thrown against frame work, burst the door from its hinges, shattering the glass into fragments. Madame, in the meantime, had caught up a step ladder, and placing it against a tall safe, had mounted it throwing the ladder to the floor.

"The uproar brought the entire force of employes to the rescue, but their attempt to relieve Madame by calling the dog away was a failure, for he refused to obey. It was not until the return of Mr. McVicker that Madame found it safe to come down, as the least movement on her part excited Faithful into a display of rage that was appalling in the extreme. Upon the return of his master. Faithful reluctantly followed him out and Madame de scended and accepted the profuse apologies tendered, gracefully treating the affair as a joke. Since then she has attempted to get into the dog's good graces, but without success, and it is probable that she will learn of his untimely death with as deep regret as will any of his other friends.

"In appearance Faithful was a noble specimen of the canine race. Tall and well proportioned, deep-chested, with a neck and head fit for an artist's

"The circumstances surrounding his death are somewhat obscure, as his body, mangled almost beyond recognition, was found near the railway track under the Fourth avenue bridge. Just there the bridge covers the track at a sharp curve, and it is supposed that in the darkness the dog failed to see the train in time to escape. Almost the entire train must have passed over the body, as it is in such a condition that if it were not for the collar on which was engraved the name of the dog, there might be some doubts as to whether or not old Faithful was the victim. It is safe to say that no dog in Worcester will be missed by so many people, and his young master can rest assured that his friends extend their sympathy in his misfor-

When the reading was completed we all felt relieved, as it had proved rather a tiresome article, and we were anxious to get something more definite and satisfactory. Turning to the next Dozier re-

"This is from another paper in the same town, but is dated two days later. It speaks of the same dog, but may be of no importance.' The chief requested him to read it, however, and he read the folowing: "DIAMOND ROBBERY."

"Our readers will be startled to learn that Worcester has been the scene of one of the most audacious robberies lately perpetrated, and more especially so when they know that Mr. M. T. McVicker is the victim. Some time during the latter part of last night his place of business was entered by expert cracksmen and nearly a hundred thousand dollars worth of diamonds and other valuables were taken. Until his death, which it will be remembered occurred only a day or two ago, old Faithful, an exceptionally fine St. Bernard dog, well known throughout the city, guarded the premises, but as Mr. McVicker had felt no apprehension for the safety of his stock, he had been in no haste to engage special guard service to pro-"The number of persons engaged in the robbery has not yet been ascertained, the police, however, claim to have clews that will lead to the capture of the villains within a few days, at most."

This concluded the items in hand and I could not help feeling disheartened at the meager amount of information we had obtained. The fact that the St. Bernard was dead precluded all idea that the one mentioned and the one I had seen in Denver were identical, and there was nothing to indicate that the robbery was in any way connected with the matter. Turning to the chief, I said:

"Mr. Adams, the description of the dog that was killed would fit my dog equally well, but you see, he is dead, consequently the two could not possibly be the same."

"It does appear that way," he re-plied, but the mechanical way in which he made the observation showed me that he was thinking intently and had answered at random, or more from FORT WORTH'S LARGEST DEPARTMENT STORE

WHEN AL HERRON PLAYED FOOL A Funny Story Told by the Old Detective Himself

After the successful issue of a foregoing case, I finally succeeded in "roping in" a very slick young crook who, for some time past, had been working the country banks of the South for considerable sums. I was put on his trail and tracked him to a hotel in Memphis. He was a handsome young fellow, small of stature, and with a hand and foot like a duchess; and, noting this the moment I got sight of "my man," I suspected that he was not a stranger to female disguises.

My evidence against him was a trifle shaky, and I concluded not to arrest him immediately, but to give him an opportunity to make a play that would securely "bag" him. That evening a very stylish young lady occupied the seat next to me at the supper table. I fell into conversation with her, learned she was from New Orleans and the daughter a wealthy banker. I forgot to watch "my man," and spent the evening with the young lady in the parlor. She was an expert at the piano, and had a most beautiful voice, and sung sentimental songs to me until my heart crawled over to her. She intended to go away the next day, but persuaded her to postpone her departure and paid her assiduous attention to such an extent that opera tickets, suppers, carriages and flowers spoiled a $100 bill in two days.

I suddenly discovered that my bank worker had flown, but I did not worry much-the banker's daughter interested me far more than the banker's

the piano and I was-was playing the fool. I was begging for one of her beautiful yellow curls, but she stoutly refused and I made a pretense of cutting one off, at which she sprung from the piano in playful, girlish resentment-the curls caught on the music rack, the wig came off and my fly check manipulator stood before me! I was the worst sold man that ever played the sucker, but I had sense enough not to show it, and at once placed him under arrest.

In the taking of one Leroy Bras comb, a "refined" thief was nabbed. He was an expert stenographer and made a specialty of suit cases. This refiged criminal-for he really was refined-51 year old, once was one of the switest stenographers in Great Britain, and he generally stole the suit cases and grips from the different railway stations in the larger cities,

"I am glad you caught me," said Brascomb to me at police station, "for I might have thrown myself in the river if allowed to go free much longer. I have been drinking hard and am a nervous wreck." Bascomb trembled and his general appearance bore out his story. His clothes were shabby, his eyes bloodshot, and his face haggered and drawn, His conversation showed that he had been well bred and educated. It was with reluctance that he told that he came from Edinburgh, Scotland, where he was an elder in a church. He conducted a shorthand school in Edinburgh and took Wm. E. Fladstone's speeches in the campaign of 1844 for The Edinburgh Scotsman, which published them verbatim. In 1884, he said, he came to America and got work at bookkeeping in Cleveland. He became an embezzler and served fifteen months in prison. He claimed that drink upset him. He pleaded guilty to simple larceny and was fined $50, with the alternative of ninety days in the house of correction. He served the time.

STRIKE COSTS MINERS' MILLION

Laborers Lose While Operators
Grow Opulent

TO MEET MONDAY

Operators' Session to Consider

Plan to Submit Question

for Arbitration

Special to The Telegram.

NEW YORK, April 7.—After less than an hour of conference today the committee of seven of the anthracite operators adjourned with all their plans completed for meeting Monday next, at the request of the mine workers that their demands be submitted to arbitration.

It was stated today that last week's suspension of work has already cost the miners $1,500,000 in wages, while the operators have profited by the false condition which has arisen. They have continued the winter rates in effect which are 50 per cent higher on the ton than the rates which annually go into effect April 1. In consequence the operators have actually made a huge profit by the suspension, while the miners have lost $1,500,000.

Another meeting of the operators will be called Monday at noon, an hour before the conference with the miners. At this meeting the operators will consider and formally approve in all likelihood the formal proposition which will be drawn by Robert W. De Forest, general counsel of the Central Railroad of New Jersey. This counter proposition will undoubtedly provide that the question as to whether or not new conditions have arisen in the last three years, shall be submitted to a board of arbitration for determination.

That there will be a clash Monday is not certain, but there is slight like-lihood that the miners will eventually yield to this shelving of their request for real arbitration.

President John Mitchell today was asked to explain his seeming inconsistency in demanding arbitration of the dispute with which the anthracite operators and his failure to accede to a similar demand from the bituminous operators.

"I have not said that I was opposed to arbirtation with the bituminous operators," said Mr. Mitchell. "President Winder's request for arbitration has simply been passed up to the executive board who have power in the matter. I am without power to accede to arbitration."

"But you have a personal opinion in the matter," Mr. Mitchell was pressed.

"You are known to favor arbitration.
What is your position with reference to President Winder's request?"

"I have no right to anticipate my recommendations to the executive board," as the way Mr. Mitchell side-

TEXAS WOMAN TO TAKE STAND

Mrs. Ann Ellen Wright to Testify in Patrick Case

Special to The Telegram, NEW YORK, April 7 .- When the hearing before Recorder Goff in general session is continued Monday afternoon in connection with the application for a new trial for Albert T. Patrick on the grounds of newly discovered evidence, there will appear in court a little middle-aged woman, v'ho will insist that her testimony be taken, She desires to tell all she knows about Charles F. Jones, the former valet of Walliam Marsh Rice, the Texas millionaire, for whose murder Patrick is now awaiting death. This woman is Mrs. Ann Ellen Wright, wife of George Wright, a farmer of Harris county, Texas. It is because Jones has betrayed Mrs. Wright's daughter that the former valet and informer is now a fugitive from his own home near ouston, Texas. Mrs. Wright was brought to this city from Texas by ounsel for Patrick. District Attorney Jerome and his assistant will do all they can to prevent the woman from giving her testimony, but Judge Olcott will insist that Mrs. Wright be heard. He will do this because after all the hearing before the recorder is not a trial, but an inquiry only, and that in such a proceeding the broadest latitude should be given to the defense because human life is at stake. Mrs. Wright her affidavit says Jones told her that he did not commit the crime, that he was induced to make the statement that he did on the witness stand; that he wanted to get home, and that he was told that the only way that but that Mr. Rice died a natural death,

When asked by a Telegram reporter if he would make any special issues in his race for the legislature William Lahey said:

"Yes, I will spring two or three issues which I will talk to the people about and urge certain measures that in my opinion will not only interest, but benefit the people if they should become laws.

"I am opposed to the commission form of government for Fort Worth, believing as I do that no more good would result from it than could be accomplished by a system such as we now have; probably not so much. I favor some amendment of our present charter, however, which provides for an alderman only from each of the nine wards. The nine-aldermen feature is all right as far as it goes, but in my opinion there should be three additional aldermen elected by the city at large. As it now is the smallest ward in the city has just as much representation as the largest. This is not democratic. The three aldermenat-large, if selected from the three wards having the largest vote would about even up matters and would be nothing but right and justice; and that's what I stand for.

"I also favor a law that will enable property to be taxed direct for building sidewalks in Fort Worth. This is the only way in which a good system of sidewalks can be secured, and that is what Fort Worth needs. I am also in favor of creating the office of inspector of food products; we need that. "Tarrant county has been sending lawyers to the legislature for years and the working man has had no representation there from Tarrant county, and my candidacy is in their interest. I stand for the common people.

"I am opposed to any legislation affecting the homestead law. That is sacred with me, and it is the best protection Texas women have. I oppose the legislature being made up of lawyers, for they are trying to amend the homestead law in order that they may have more business.

Two Men Killed and Two Injured, One Fatally

Special to The Telegram.

CUMBERLAND, Md., April 7.—A runaway Baltimore and Ohio railroad yard engine crashed into a string of cabosses standing on a sidetrack in the Keyser, W. Va., yards this evening, smashing the cabooses, killing two men and seriously injuring two others, one of whom soon died. The dead:

man, Martinsburg, W. Va., broken leg and back injured.

Two yard engines sideswiped in the Keyser yards, one tearing away the cab of the other, which threw the engineer and firemen out and threw the throttle of the wrecked engine wide open. This engine ran away down the sidetrack into the cabooses and crashed into them, telescoping three cabooses, in which several trainmen were sleeping.

$10,000 WORTH OF HOPS FOR MEXICO

Carload Passes San Antonio En Route to Monterey

CAR SEAL IS BROKEN

Probable Accidental Occurrence Causes Inspection of Valuable Export
by Customs Officials

SAN ANTONIO, April 7.—A carload of hops, raised in Bohemia, was held up by the San Antonio custom house here for a few hours, on the way to Monterey, Mexico. The hops are the finest grown in any country and will be used in making a high grade of

The hops were packed in thirty-four cases. The cases were hermetically sealed and of zinc, for that is the only way the hops can be shipped so they will retain the rich aroma, a quality necessary in the manufacture of high grades of beer.

Somewhere in transit the seal of the car had been broken, and a rule of the custom house is that when bonded transit freight is broken open the car must be stopped and inspected at the first custom house.

C. M. Ferguson, deputy inspector of customs, inspected the car to see that none of the precious hops had been taken from the car. No duty was charged on the hops, as they were not to go to the United States except in transit.

Free Zone Abolished

The finest imported hops are worth 55 cent a pound, and the carload inspected here yesterday was worth a total of about $10,000. The duty on the carload, if they were to be used in the United States, would be nearly $2,000.

Behind this shipment of hops to Mexico is a story wwhich has brought grief to brewing companies in Texas. Within the last few years the art of making American beer has been learned in Mexico, and at Monterey a brewery is turning out a beer which answers the purpose as well as American beer.

Up until last September there was a free zone in Mexico, extending from El Paso to the mouth of the Rio Grande and fifty miles into the interior.

No duty was charged on Amdican products shipped into this territory, and the Texas breweries supplied practically all the beer used in this territory. In September the free zone was abolished and breweries in the United States have been unable to compete with the breweries recently established in Mexico.

The art of making beer has been taught in Mexico, and the Americans who invested capital in the breweries in the republic think they will make big money on their investment. Mexico is becoming a beer-drinking country. The people of the United States who have gone there prefer that to any other kind of beverage, and the Mexicans, too, are learning to like it.

Keg Beer Trade Ruined

Until last September the value of the San Antonio beer alone which went through the custom house here to Mexico was $10,000 each month. During the month of February the value of the beer sent out of San Antonio was $800, and during no month since last September has $1,000 worth of beer been sent out of San Antonio. According to these figures the San Antonio brewers have been losing $9,000 worth of trade a month.

The new law making goods of the United States dutiable in this zone ruined the keg beer trade of the United States in Mexico. The duty is paid by weight, and as the kegs weigh nearly as much as the beer no brewer could afford to pay the duty imposed on the kegs. Not a keg of beer from the United States has been shipped into Mexico since last September.

The development of the manufacture of beer in Mexico has been principally within the last year, although last fall the Mexican government made an exhibit at the San Antonio international fair of beer manufactured at Monterey. Otto Koehler, president and manager of the San Antonio Brewing company, said that the loss of trade because of the Mexican tariff on United States beer had been small and was surprised that the figures should show a loss to San Antonio brewers of $9,000 a month. He said the trade to the Mexican border had been small recently, but expected it to grow much lawer during the summer.

MUSEMENTS

Fort Worth Skating Rink

There were over 300 skaters on the floor at the Fort Worth rink, corner Third and Rusk streets, last night. The music was by Connor's band and many were in the balcony to watch the fancy skating by numerous patrons. The feature of the evening was the jump by De Ariel, the only man in the world who leaps the gap. There is a long toboggan slide from the ceiling to the center floor. De Ariel starts at the topmost point. Standing erect, he is carried by his own weight along the smooth surface, his skates rolling very fast. At the bottom of the toboggan he leaps a gap of twelve feet, alighting upon an incline, and he makes a skate slide down this. It is a perilous leap and before it is undertaken, the management exacts of nim an agreement that whatever befalls him is his own responsibility. The Fort Worth rink has been open the public less than a week, but ernoon and evening sessions are well attended, the ladies particularly being pleased with the excellent floor and good skates. The instructor at the Fort Worth rink is one of the most competent men in that line in the pro-

Eleven Cars Derailed on Texas and New Orleans Near Dayton

Special to The Telegram.

HOUSTON, Texas, March 7.—Word was received here at 8 o'clock tonight of the wreck of a freight on the Texas and New Orleans railroad east of Houston, near Dayton. The information was meager and it was not stated whether there were any injured.

Eleven cars are off the track, and traffic will be delayed for the night.

In the British museum are books written on oyster shells, bricks, tiles, bones, ivory, lead, iron, copper, sheep-skin, wood and palm leaves.

W. C. T. U. TO MEET AT BOSTON IN OCT.

Representatives From All Nations Will Be Present

(By Lady Somerset.)
Written for The Telegram

LONDON, April 7.-The English branch of the W. C. T U. is making extensive preparations to visit Boston and other American cities in October next. The object of their visit will be union, which will be held in Boston from October 17 to 23. Representatives will be present from all foreign mall foreign countries and the meeting promises to be one of the largest and most important in the history of this great temperance movement. English branch of the W. C. T. U. has grown to a wonderful extent. Twentytwo years ago Miss Willard wrote a pamphlet on the aims and objects of the union in the form of a petition, which was presented to the International temperance congress at Antwerp, and here the firct W. C. T. U. was organized on the continent of Prited slips were sent with forms to workers all over the world, and when filled in were returned to Chicago. Thousands and thousands of these signed forms were mounted on muslin on strips half a yard wide until they made a strip of 2,200 yards long. This great petition for the cause of temperance was draped from the galery at the world's convention of the society in Boston in 1891. At Albert hall, London, in 1895, at Toronto in 1897 and in Washington in 1895, and was finally presented to President Cleveland by Miss Willard. A copy of the signatures was bound and presented to Queen Victoria in 1896. The petition had 1,121,200 signatures of actual signers and 5,000,000 signers by attestation.

The petition read in part as follows:

"The united voices of representative women of every land beseech you to raise the standard of the law to that of Christian morals and strip away the safeguards and sanctions of the state from the drink traffic and the opium trade and protect our homes by the total prohibition of these curses of civilization throughout all the territory over which your government evtends."

The W. C. T. U. workers feel much encouraged with the result of their work. Many places of New Zealand have abolished the liquor traffic. Many pronounced temperance men were elected to the new parliament in England while throughout Canada several hundred towns have abolished the sale of liquor. In Canada the W. C. T. U. is preparing a vigorous campaign against cigarette smoking. Canada has also established a department of scientific temperance instruction.

In June or July of next year a white ribbon convention will.

ribbon convention will, if possible, be held, in which Norway Sweden, Denmark and Finland will take part. At Budapest, Hungary, a branch of the W. C. T. U. has just been organized by the young folks. It is reported that it has been harvesting much good. The movement is also making progress in Scotland. Scotland will send seven women delegates to the world convention in Boston.

Efforts are being made to organize prospect of success. In South Africa a flourishing union is in operation at Maritsberg. From Australia news is received that the government has appointed a commission to inquire the working of inebriate houses at the request of the W. C. T. U., Fourteen and a ha'f million pounds were spent in Austral, for liquors last year.

In New Zealand new districts have branches throughout India with every recently been added to the prohibitory area. At the recent local option poll the temperance folks made a decided gain and for the first time a prohibition majority was polled for the whole colony and the temperance cause generally is advancing rapidly.

The coming convention in Fosten wil decide on plans for extending the work all over the world, the organization of a large band of mission workers who will work for prohibition in legislatures throughout the civilized world. It is a well known fact that the sale of spirituous liquors has fallen off in England. This is possibly due to the fight being made by trades unions against the traffic. John Burns, the abor leader, is doing a great work in this connection. Besides this the overcrowded condition of the labor market has made it almost impossible for drinking men to secure employment. Large employers have hundreds of men to pick from in every location, and when they have work it always goes to the sober. Many of the trades unions have made it a rule that men on building jobs are not to be paid off in public houses, and so altogether the temperance folk in England feel more encouraged over the progress of their work than they have for years.

OPPOSITION FEAZED

Compromise Looks to Adoption of Indian Bill by Both Houses Special to The Telegram.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 7.—
Opposition to the five civilized tribes bill as it is to be reported by the conferees Monday, has totally disappeared. The bill will probably be adopted by the house and senate with little or no opposition.

A compromise was reached by agreeing to insert in the Indian appropriation bill some of the provisions for which some senators have been fighting for so persistently.

The milk in the cocoanut has all along been the provision which requires an approved freedman to establish citizenship by documentary evidence. A freedman, or course, is not a citizen. About 2,000 people are personally interested in the fate of

Owing to the recent late freeze, it was thought the crop would be cut short, but Mr. Dixon reports to the contrary. He said:

An official report will be made by Mr. Dixon to the society at an early date.

Lady Abbington's Necklace

The man was strolling discontentedly up and down the woodland path. He was plainly annoyed, but looked pleased when a girlish figure appeared before him.

"Got 'em?" he demanded.

"No!" she replied unflinchingly.
He scowled. "You must," he said.

"It is not for you to think. I have not asked you to steal, Cousin Carrie. I simply want possession of Lady Abbington's famous necklace for a week and you can get it. I have a friend who wants an imitation necklace made. You can replace it and no one will be the wiser."

The girl was not convinced. True, she was as honest as the day, and his request looked wrong.

"I will not do it," she insisted.

The girl broke away from him and left him puzzled, so much so that he determined to consult Lady Abbington. He told her that there was something on his sweetheart's mind, and begged for information.

Lady Abbington left him for an hour, and then returned with a grave look.

"It is as I suspected," she said. "There are certain things that you should know, although they have never seemed important to me."

The administration's proposal is now at the front. It is designed to make just as little change as possible from the original house bill, while giving a full recognition of the right of court review.

Senator Aldrich is the great legislative organizer of the senate. He is untiring; he has power, influence and a personal charm of manner that makes his colleagues like him, however much they may disagree with his opinions. He has been conceded from the beginning the leadership of the anti-administration forces.

Senator Allison is to put his forty years of experience, his prestige as dean of the senate, his power as head of its most potent committee, his skill as a manager of legislation, his tact in handling men and situations, his goodnature and the genuine affection of his associates for him, against the skill and accomplishments of the senator from Rhode Island, who is conceded to be the anti-administration leader. It is going to be from this time forth a test of Allison's mettle against that of

Contest of Manipulation

The fight from this on will not be a forensic contest, but a struggle in tactics, manipulation and legislative management; and, in this contest the two wisest managers, probably, in the nation, will pitted against each other. Senator Aldrich is believed to be killing time, so far as the debate is concerned. Unlimited debate, in the senate, is usually, on any great question, a cloak for the real work of or- I natives of German Southwest Africa.

ganization and formulation. In the present instance, while Spooner and Bailey, Tillman and Foraker, and the rest of the constitutional lawyers are putting on a very good representation of a tourney over law and constitution, the real climatic scene is being arranged back behind their curtain of unlimited debate. The stage managers who are getting ready for this next scene are Aldrich and Allison, and has been able to control in their preliminaries. Senator Aldrich is confident; he says so; but he has not shown anybody his list of votes, by which he is going to put his amendment into the bill. On the other hand, he has suffered a distinct setback lately, in the definite announcement that Senator Elkins is with the administration. Elkins' position is supposed to sig-nify much as to that of his colleague, Senator Scott. They are powerful and influential men; and it may be said then that the administration's court review proposal, while it has had anything but a cordial reception in the senate, has yet served a most useful purpose in giving these gentlemen footing on which they have squarely aligned with the administration.

Local Chapter Formed by Enthusiastic Palestine Meeting Special to The Telegram,

PALESTINE, Texas, April 7 .- A chapter of the Daughters of the Revolution has been formed here and will he known as the William Findley chapter. The organization was completed at the residence of Mrs. A. R. Howard, wife of the secretary of the International and Great Northern Railway Company, in Sycamore street, and the following officers were elected; Mrs. A. R. Howard, regent; Mrs. E. J. Ezell, vice regent; Mrs. Julia Wright Jones, secretary; Mrs. Lucius Gooch, treasurer; Mrs. Neil Carothers, historian, and Miss Bertha Moore, assistant historian.

Following the election of officers Mrs. Howard entertained those present at an eight-course colonial luncheon, the prevailing colors being buff and blue.

The chapter is called for William Findley, who was a captain in the Continental army and, later, a member of the congresses of 1791-1799, 1803-1817. This distinguished soldier and statesman was one of the few confidential advisers of President Washington and bore the title of 'Father of Congress" on account of his efforts to establish that body as a dignified council of dignified men. The Findley chapter elected Mrs. Nell Carothers to be delegate to the national congress of the Daughters of the Revolution to be held at Washington, D. C.

SNAPSHOT OF TOMMY CORCORAN AT THE CINCINNATI TRAINING

"Year by year baseball becomes more | tered its fine points are certain to fall of a train than ever," says Tommy Corcoran, the veteran shortstop of the Cincinnati Reds.

"The compensation for good ball players is better now than when I began playing the game, but the exactions are greater. In the old days baseball was more or less of a lark; now it is business, and our business is to win. "The player must study the game as a medical student pours over therapeutics, or the law student over his books. So scientific has the game become that the men who have not mas-

by the wayside, because the final result may be determined by some trifling circumstance that a thoughtless player might overlook or stupid one fail to grasp. "Baseball demands the best a man has got and the demand is made on him every day that he plays. A man who understands the game, studies its fine points and can play it successfully should, if he takes care of himself, be able to lay by a nice little nest egg for his maturer years. I am not saying how many players do that; I merely say it can be done."

THIRTY YEARS ON CHARGE OF MURDER

HILLSBORO, Texas, April 7 .- The murder trial of Harmie Horne, who, together with Jack Early, was indicted for the murder of Deputy City Marshal Terrell Calloway, of Mount Calm, who was killed on the night of October 24 last, while endeavoring to arrest Horne and Early for alleged drunker culminated at 2 o'clock this afternoon in a verdict of guilty of mustier in the second degree, the penalty assessed being thirty years in the penitentiary. The verdict was a compromise, one of the four jurors first holding for last term of court Early was convicted and given fifteen years.

TEAM PREPARES FOR BIG MEET

High School Boys to Contest at Waco

The High School Athletic Association will give a general entertainment at city hall April 20 for the purpose of raising funds to defray the expenses of the beys who will go to the Central Texas High School Athletic Association track meet at Waco, April 28. At this meet all high schools and preparatory schools within a radius of ne hundred miles of Waco will likely be represented.

The association is composed of the teams from high schools at Waco Fort Worth, Corsicana, Cleburne, Belton and Temple. T. E. Edwards of Waco is president and Mr. Hubbard of Belton is secretary-treasurer. A program of track work will be arranged for the event ,and it is expected that there will be a fine delegation from each high school in the association, as there is strong interest felt and shown.

NEW FOOTBALL RULES

(By Enoch J. Mills, Coach Fort Worth University Football Team.) In response to the general demand

made on the part of the public, not the players, the American Intercollegiate football rules committee has at last adopted rules that will tend toward opening the game more than has ever been done in the past. The peculiar feature of the cry against football is the fact that public demand has brought about the change, wihtout the influence of the players. Since the game has been changed please the public it is easy to understand how it is possible that the danger element may not have been lessened. This, I believe, is the case, for to my personal knowledge and experience there have been more players injured in the open style football than there have been in the so-called mass plays. There is a reason for this that be understood by all whether football players or not. In open playing the player with the ball generally gets well under way before he is tackled by an opponent. In this way the men come together with such force that frequently both are momentarily disabled or even injured. In mass plays the men are usually worn out without having been severely bruised or injured. In such plays there is no great momentum; the advance is made mostly on account of the weight and strength of the men. Open playing will place a premium more than ever before on fast runners and for this reason the force of the collisions will be more than ever By establishing the "ten-yard" rule the distance to be gained in three downs has been doubled and for this reason the kicking game will undoubtedly have to be developed to degrees never before reached. This s the case because in the average football game the distance is often barely made by inches, so that if double the distance be required to be gained in three downs it is easy to understand how hopeless it will be to advance the ball in the usual manner. Danger of Running Back It is true that the public has denanded what it likes most-that of seeing the ball sail high in the air and down the field-but at the same time it has inaugurated the style of football that is hardest on the player. Ask any player if the trial of catching a punt or any kick be easy. Also ask him if the danger be greater in running back with the ball in the open field. The chances are that nearly every player will tell you that the handling of the ball on kicks is one of the hardest feats in the game. Then, too, you will find that this is also the play in which the most men have

Candidly, it seems to me that the public has demanded and has had inaugurated a style of play that is likely to prove even more dangerous than the old style. Still if this be the case, there will be no complaint heard from those who play the game. This is because of many reasons, the principal one of which is that the average football player is absolutely fearless as far as personal injuries in the game are concerned.

It seems to me that the rules committee has done only the things it has been forced to do and that it has done these things without a murmur as to the probable result of the

Choice of Officials

There is now a board of control that is to pass on the competency of the officials for the game. This is undoubtedly a good rule. Still there is serious objection to this. There has never been any great objection or question as to the ability of the officials. The question and trouble is and has been to get the officials to do their duty. As long as the public and the schools will support games that are governed and played under men who know better than they do, there is little chance for the game to be improved no matter what changes be made in the rules. Officials, in my estimation, are to blame more for injuries received by players than the game itself. This is because they are either partial or do not have the courlingsworth of this city states that the age to stand up and do their duty. These objections are especially true where football is not well understood by the spectators. After all, the fact remains and will remain that accidents will happen whether in football or not. Football, it is true, has its list of killed and will find that the list of injured in bottles.

football is smaller than that of most of the other sports. As an instance of this fact the statistics will show that there are more boys drowned while swimming every year than are killed in football. Horseback riding, rowing and many of the other sports all have their lists of killed which exceed that of football. In conclusion I must add the thing which I have so often asserted, that the public has grown prejudiced against football through misrepresentation and through the fact that all accidents occurring in the game are always aired with much space by the press. So far this season in Fort Worth there have been more accidents in baseball than there were in the entire football season. Still it is a feat that most people will be surprised to

Frisco and Southern to Meet on Neutral Ground

NEW ORLEANS, April 7 .- Today carpenters are working on the buildings owned by the New Orleans Terminal Company. They have started in to remodel them in order that they can be rented on long leases.

As to the future of the union pas-senger station, it is well to read just what was said by President Davidson of the Frisco when asked just what he thought of the matter, replied: "It was, of course, to be regretted that the plans for a $1,000,000 passenger station on Basin street had city authoriites. The facilities would have been open to all lines entering

He could not say at present what course would be pursued by the terminal company in relation to the property purchased for the new terminal station. That was a matter for further consideration, he said, but the joint needs of the Frisco and the Southern would probably be met by the construction of a passenger terminal on neutral ground, costing not more than $125,000.

Mrs. Laudenbach had not made bond last night and was returned to the federal jail. It is probable that she will be released on bond this week.

LYONS UNDER BOND

Will Resent Effort to Take Him Back to Memphis

Louis Lyons, who was arrested here Tuesday by Detective Al Ray, will be taken back to Memphis, so the police of that city say. Lyons has been released on $1,000 bond here and has retained attorneys to defend his case. He will not be taken back to Memphis if his attorneys can prevent it, says Walter Scott. It is roprted that there is an indictment at Memphis against Lyons, charging him with embezzlement of $450 of the funds of the firm of Moore and Brookshire. Lyons came to Fort Worth from Memphis and was with his father here at the time of his arrest. Lyons denies the charge and will appeal the case if he be convicted n a lower court. CALLS CONFESSION MAN'S INVENTION

Minister Attacks Westminster Articles of Faith

NEW YORK, April 7.-Renewing his attacks on the Westminster confession of faith of the Presbyterian church, in the face of the fact that his earlier criticisms almost brought about his New Orleans, and the city would have trial for heresy, the Rev. Samuel T. Carter, D. D., of New York, has sent a H. Roberts, D. D., of Philadelphia, stated clerk of the general assembly of the denomination, in which the con-

"The Presbytery of Nassau overfurned the general assembly a year ago, asking that the brief statement of doctrine be substituted for the Westminster confession, as the confession of our church. By a practically unaniomus vote of the general assembly this overture was rejected and the Westminister confession of faith retained by this action of the assembly many ministers are compelled to declare their acceptance of a confessional which they do not heartily believe. "Many years ago, when I was ordained to the ministry of the gospel I declared in the most solemn manner that I believed the Westminster confession as the truth of God. Now in an equally solemn manner I declare that I do not believe it to be the truth of God; that I utterly reject it as a setting forth of the character of the Heavenly Father. "There never was, there is not now and there never will be such a God as portrayed in the Westminster confession. It is an idol of man's invention as truly as any worship in Delhi, Pekin or Africa. I believe that the great and true God is infinitely and exquisitely good and gracious; that the one thing we can neither fully receive nor declare is the boundless love of God: that all the noblest exhibitions of human love are but bright and beautiful sparks from that intense and di-

A Simple Way to Make a Princesse Gown.

By Dorothy Dale.

requires very expert workmanship to be success, and the little "home seamstress" or the "woman who makes her own clothes" must perforce be satisfied with some less exacting style.

But in the gown illustrated some of the most difficult features of making such a gown have been evaded, as a more detailed description will explain. The usual princesse frock is cut in one, from shoulder to hem, the material being gored, tucked or shirred about the walstline. Such a frock is, however, most difficult to manage, and an inexperienced dressmaker would be apt to make a failure of the attempt. The gown shown in the two drawings is much simpler to manage, the

The princesse gown, as a general thing, three inverted plaits on each side of requires very expert workmanship to be the front to give fulness over the bust. The gown was made with a deep-pointed yoke in guimpe style, this yoke in the model gown being of embroidered creamcolored batiste, with inlet designs of "baby" Irish lace. Almost any of the fine allover laces, such as mechlin, chantilly or repousse, lined with white mousse line or chiffon, would be equally suitable, however; and for a street gown such as the model shown, one of the hand-em-broidered lingerie yokes would be charming and also practical, as it could be so

an inch wide or a little over when finished, these frills being arranged in a very graceful effect about the lower part of the blouse. The join of the skirt and blouse was hidden by a row of this plaiting, and a very broad shoulder line was given by a row of the plaiting put on over the top of the sleeves, as a study made that it could easily be removed and laundered when soiled. The elbow-length sleeves also showed lingerie lace frills at the elbow, the lace of the drawing will make clear. The sleeves were made in loose puffs to the elbow, the fullness of the puff being tucked into a band just below the turn of the elbow, this band being of the applique silk figures fagotted to strips of the silk material, as on the upper part of the bodice.

Three rows of the narrow plaitings trimmed these short sleeves. The gown was made over a low necked lining of blue taffeta silk, the lining extending only to the waist line. It was carefully boned and fitted, the overdress being fastened to it by invisible stitches about the corselet. The gown illustrated being of silk, which was not transparent and rather close and heavy in texture (somewhat on the order of pongee), did not require a silk drop skirt, a carefully fitted washable white petticoat with embroidery flounces being used. Such a gown would be a very smart looking one for afternoon wear, calling or for church, and if made at home would silk used in the gown sketched comes for about 75 cents a yard in all colorings, in plain shades, about 13 yards being required for the average height. The only other expense beyond the material being the applique figures used for the band trimming, the lace for the yoke and sleeves and the yard and a half of silk used for the low necked lining, other minor expenditures being for embroidery silk and the plaiting of the frilis. For house and evening wear the same method of making a princesse gown by joining a blouse upper part to a princesse skirt could be used, the idea working out equally well in all materials. I saw a charming little frock made in this way, the material of which was white silk mousseline, the joining of the waist silk mousseline, the joining of the waist and skirt being concealed by rows of narrow gathered ribbon of thin white taffeta, put on in rather an elaborate fashion in scrolls and loops. For the summer gown of organdle, batiste or muli the same idea could be used, although in these very sheer gowns a less severe skirt model would be advisable. Lace insertions are inset into these frocks as trimming, the lace bands also being used at the joining of the waist and bodice. One more word as to the princesse gown, and that is be sure the fashion is suited to your figure before adopting it. The mode is a most graceful one on a well-proportioned woman of sufficient height and slenderness, but is not to be advised for everyone. The ideal figure for the princesse gown is rather tall, and, although the shoulder line is broad, the hips and waist line should be very slender. The woman with large hips should beware of the tightly fitted princesse motifs in the model gown were in shades skirt, as its plain lines only accentuate too ample curves, and a gown with a girdle effect will be found much more beof blue, a good deal of tight old blue being worked in with most artistic effect. A pretty finish for the top of the collar coming. Later on I shall illustrate one is also shown in this smaller drawing, important feature of any room, and many a room which seems of a very ordinary sort by daylight is changed into a very charming one at night, when the lamps and candles are lighted. I often wonder why so many housekeepers seem satisfied with the ordinary gas jet or electric light, shaded only by a white glass globe, as a means of lighting their living and sitting rooms, when much more attractive and artistic effects could be gained by the use of a lamp or two, with pretty soft-colored shades. It is really not a matter of expense, as one or two good lamps of the double-burner variety will often give enough light in a small room often give enough light in a small room without using the light fixtures of the room at all—a great saving, of course, on one's bills for illuminating light.

Home-Made Lamp and Candle Shades.

Very well-designed lamps can be bought, too, for very moderate prices, those of rather simple design in glass or pottery being most desirable. Pressed glass made in imitation of the old colonial shapes can be had both in large and small can be had both in large and small lamps, and large silver or brass candle-sticks fitted with a glass globe, burner and chimney, all of which parts can be bought separately at a small price in any department or lamp store, are very much liked and not expensive. Do not, though, on any account invest in one of those atrocious colored china lamps of ornate design which come with a round globe to match. They always remind me of the sort of lamp given away with trading stamps or soap wrappers or something of

and a very good idea, and one that does not seem to be very well known, is to use a chimney of colored glass to give a warmer light when the lamp is lighted.

These chimneys are especially good in effect when they are of ruby-colored glass, which gives a lovely glow to an otherwise colorless shade when lighted. Bead fringe has been quite the rage as a finish for lamp and candle shades for the past shades are quite high in price in the shops, it is not at all difficult and a great saving of money to make the fringe one's-self by buying the glass beads in bulk and stringing them. Sometimes a pat-tern is formed on the fringe by using various colored beads at certain intervals, but making this sort of fringe requires a but making this sort of fringe requires a little more work, as the beads would have to be counted. The quickest way is to use beads of the same color, or else in several different light colors, stringing them, with no particular rule, on very long lengths of strong cord. Do not string the beads too tightly on the cord, allowing for cutting it afterward in sections. Cut these sections in pleces twice as long as the fringe is to be and fasten each end securely. Then attach to the lamp shade in the exact middle of the strand, each section thus forming two lengths of fringe. In the second shade illustrated in the drawing, the fringe was of pale yel-

The Y. M. C. A. was organized in this city seventeen years ago with Harry W. Stone as secretary. Rooms were rented on the corner of Sixth and Main streets. About five years ago the lot at the corner of Seventh and Taylor streets was purchased for $5,500, which was owned with the residence on the lot as an association building until sixteen months ago, when the lot was sold to the First Methodist church south for $18,000. A complete reorganization of the association took place at that time. The association at the time of the reorganization was between $7,000 and $8,000 in debt, but owned the valuable lot on Seventh street. This lot was much larger than was needed for the association building and was sold and the Captain Day property, Texas and Monroe streets, purchased. This prop-

Chicago equal suffragists are agitatng for a clause giving women the right o vote in the new city charter. It may not be granted now, but it will. The Record-Herald has published a symposium of the views of several prominent civic workers of Chicago. Among them was a three-column statement of reasons why women should te, written by Miss Jane Addams. It is a calm dispassionate presentation of facts of history. Most men never heard of them because most men are not very

Their information is contained in the little scimps picked up during a sojourn of four or five years in the grammar schools

The pith of Miss Addams paper, however, is where it says that the reason women put municipal housekeeping, which properly belongs to her sphere, into the hands of men who are not housekeepers, even municipal housekeepers, is because women have an idea that it is "unladylike" to vote, and the vote is necessary in order to keep a city well cleaned.

The "ladylike" suggestion strikes at the root of much of the opposition to woman suffrage. Every woman wants to be considered "ladylike" and so thoroughly has she been trained into her ideals of what constitutes such behavior that she strangles many of her real desires out of deference to public opinion and her education.

The conditions of this age differ rom any that have preceded. The struggle for bread has taken ace of the battle with arms to hold and keep territory or empire. In this struggle for bread women are to be reckoned with. The woman who by her own labors earns, a sustenance, whether that labor be in school room, behind the counter, in factory or in stic occupations, is a fighter who what warfare is. Whatever nen demand for the protection of their abor, the wage-earning woman should emand, too. In this battle men are not protectors, but foemen of women. den are the foes of men. The thin veil of gallantry is a bit of pleasantry

The dollar is the standard of the age. All agree to that. Take the dollar standard for the woman's suffrage question. When a man pays the bills it is his right to lay down such rules for guidance as he may desire, whether it be on skating or voting. But how many men pay the bills of all their own women folk? If men were universally doing that would the great army of women wage-earners be in

Unrest and dissatisfaction with a dependent position is what has sent to the ranks of the wage-earner the thousands of women earning their liv-There are thousands of others who, having no excuse for entering into gainful occupations, voice their envy of those who are filling an individual place in the industrial world. Once it was not considered "ladylike" to do anything except to keep boarders and to teach school. Further back women did not even teach school. It was then only "ladylike" to stay indoors and get whatever attentions a drunken lord, either husband or father, might extend.

When women themselves agree that it is "ladylike" to work the day is not far distant when the suffrage, its logical sequence, will also have the ban lifted from it by the women them-

"I have just been introduced to the feelings I will have when I attend my own funeral," confides a Fort Worth woman. "I had occasion to visit one of the big office buildings and reached there just as the office men were going out to lunch. The car was full when I entered and at once a dozen or more hats came off with a pronounced sweep. It was exactly the gesture and attitude of the mourners at a funeral when the coffin is being carried out of "I feel pretty sure that I am not a 'dead one,' but I had a sensation that I will not try to describe.' The attitude of the man in the elevator car and the man at Handley getting a car returning home would make a pretty study in contrasts.

No woman will ever be reminded of her own funeral, street car time at Handley, and she has to be very much alive to keep from needing a coffin in her struggle with the male animal for

By actual count there are three women in Fort Worth who have not visited the skating rinks and who say they do not intend to vist the skating rinks. They do not skate, have not tried to skate and think they could not learn to skate, though each puts 't differently. Says No. 1: "I know I am a sensible woman. No. 2: "My husband thinks I am not strong enough to skate."

They have agreed to form an exclusive club, but are not harmonious in choice of a name. Whether to call it the "Dutiful Wives" or the "Clique of Cowards" or the "Women of Wisdem" has so far delayed the organization. They are sure they will have an exclusive if not a large membership.

EVENTS OF WEEK

Elliott-Malone Wedding

The prettiest affair of the week was the wedding of Miss Mary Olive Malone to Card Garnett Elliott at 8 o'clock Wednesday evening in the Broadway Presbyterian church. The rostrum was elaborately decorated with potted palms, Easter and calla lilies. Misses Frances Connor, Willie Lewis, Mary Belle Griffin and Ethel Thomas gowned in short white mouseline frocks with wreaths of locust blossoms and carrying Easter lilies, and Robert Noble, Henry Dingee, George Connor and John C. Ryan were the ushers and seated the guests. Miss Mat Lester Senter of Dallas played a violin solo, Schubert's "Serenade," and Mrs. Ducker sang "Were My Song With Wings Provided," by Hahn. The bridal party entered the church to the strain of Lohengrin's wedding march and departed by Mendelssohn's wedding march, played by Mrs. Prigmore. First came the four girls, Misses Frances Connor, Willie Lewis, Mary Belle Griffin and Ethel Thomas, next the two maids, Miss Mary Harrison, followed by Miss Virgile Paddock. Both were gowned in white wash chiffon with insets of "Val." lace, and carried arm bouquets of Easter lilies. Last came the bride, in a gown of silk mulle, made Princesse, with a lace bolero and medallions of scrolls of Valenciennes lace. The long veil was held in place with sprays of orange blossoms and she carried a quaint old fashioned round bouquet of bride's roses and ferns. She came in on the arm of her brother, Louis Malone, and they were met at the altar by the groom and the best man, Guy Richardson Pitner, who entered by a side aisle. Rev. J. B. French performed the service, while Miss Senter played "Traeumerie" soft and low on the violin.

Little Rosalind and Hunter Gardner, dressed all in white, were the ribbon bearers.

One noticeable feature was the number of high school children in the wedding party. The gallery of the church was filled with them. All were there by the special invitation of Miss Malone and all came, showing how dearly loved she was in the hearts of her pupils. Mr. and Mrs. Elliott will spend three weeks in California, after which they will make Fort Worth their home. They left on the morning Denver train.

Skating Party

A number of the married people chartered the Summit avenue skating rink Tuesday evening and gave a skating party from 10 to 12 o'clock. Never has any fad caused such wild enthu siasm in Fort Worth as skating. There was a good orchestra and just enough people to make the skating thoroughly enjoyable. Coffee and sandwiches were served at 12 o'clock.

The guests of the evening were Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Sloan Jr., Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Wharton, Mr. and Mrs. Jere Ellis, Mr. and Mrs. Morris E. Berney, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Burns, Mr. and Mrs. Will Edrington, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd

MISCELL ANEOUS

Wednesday is surely the popular day for weddings. There will be several weddings for each Wednesday for the next few weeks. June has always been the favored month for weddings, but we can't believe it possible that there will be as many in June this year as in this month. If there are, I fear Fort Worth won't have any spinsters left. One of the popular girls of the younger set soon to take this step is Miss Ruth Hosmer, who will be married to John Osgood Bartels at 9 o'clock Wednesday evening, at St. Andrew's Parish. Rev. B. B. Ramage will officiate. Miss Hosmer's attendants will be her sister, Miss Madge Hosmer and Joseph Lea. Another popular girl of the same set soon to marry is Miss Julia Fay Lane, who marries Walter Lawrence Terrell at 6:30 Thursday evening, April 19. The ceremony will be performed by Rev. B. F. Wilson of Dallas, in the Christian Tabernacle. Miss Lane, will be attended by Misses Celia Calhoun and Marguerite Pechering of Victoria, Texas; Messrs. V. R. Ford and Bruce Crow. Mr. and Mrs. Terrell will take a two weeks' trip to New Orleans and will be at home to their friends after May 1, 910 West First

A young lady who has endeared herself to many friends and wod will soon go elsewhere to live is Miss Ethel Bostick. Miss Bostick will be married to Will McIntosh Ritchey of New Oreans, at 7:30 o'clock Thursday evening, at the First Methodist church, Rev. Alonzo Monk officiating. Miss Bostick's bridal party will be composed of Misses Phi Chester Bostick, Dearie McComb of Van Alstyne, Eva Monk, Ada Dunlap and Maggie Connor, and Messrs. Ollie Reese of New Orleans, C. H. Tully of Enfanta, I. T., J. E. McComb Jr. of Houston, A. J. Sandegard and John Bostick. There will be no cards issued in the city. One of Fort Worth's handsomest girls soon to marry is Miss Floy Elizabeth King, who will be married to Jim Edward Burgess, at 6:45 o'clock Wednesday evening, at the First Christian church. The bridal party will include Misses Floy Brown of Cleburne, Bertha Roberts of Abilene, Maggie Connor, Ethel Young, Louise Barr and Mrs. George West, and Messrs. John Burgess, J. Wiley King, Warfield Burgess, Tony Day and Dr. Grenville Williams. They will go to to the City of Mexico and California on their trip, and will be at home after May 15, at Haslet, Texas. Keen interest is felt in the new hotel, The Touraine, corner Throckmorton and Seventh streets, which will soon be formally opened. The opening night will be quite an event socially, and nearly all the tables have already been engaged. The banquet room is handsomely finished and would be a credit to any city in the country. This room is wainscoted in After the game, ices in the shape of solid oak with side lights and twentyfour drop lights. The walls are hung in good dark shades, which add to the richness of the room. Off this room are several private dining rooms, artistically finished in Dutch style, with Dutch lamps and quaint old Dutch friezes. For the first time the people of Fort Worth will have an attarctive place to go for little suppers after the theater. Another attractive feature to the smart set will be the tea garden, in the court on the second floor, a delightful place for tea and ices on hot summer afternoon. The tapestries in the dining room which occupy wall spaces ten feet high and four feet wide, are by Mrs. Clifford Sharon, an artist of English training and education, well known to local art lovers through her china and oil work. These tapestries are copies of three world famous pictures, "The Reading of Homer," Alma-Tadema, "Song of Bacchus," Ugart, and "Sappho," Alma-Tadema.

TAn "unshowered" bride is surely not a Fort Worth girl. The showers now brightening the social sky are widely distributed.

For Miss Fay Lane several ar announced. Monday, April 9, Miss Cecil Calhoun will give a stocking shower, and on the following Monday, April 16, Miss Nina Coppage, will invite in a number to participate in a shower of Miss Louise Barr will give a shower for Miss Floy King, Wednesday afternoon, April 18.

EASTER HATS

Beautiful Array Offered to Patrons of the Golden Rule

The artist who said he mixed brains with his paints would see the reason were he a milliner, why Golden Rule hats are so superior to the usual styles at the price. A Reboux would detect the difference at a glance. She would see that indefinable halo of excellence called style that irradiates from perfection and that is copied by many, but which only genius attains. An Easter group just from the hands of our experts-smart little hats, pic turesque hats, suit hats, walking hats. dress hats-hats and toques for all occasions. A noticeable feature in many is the absence of trimmings on the srown; all the effort for efefct being hats for the misses and the little girls are equally as pretty as the ladies' hats in The Golden Rule. The dress hats for girls are exceptionally pretty, all trimmed with ribbon in plenty, maline, flowers and the color of trimmings represents every desired shade The tailored hat seems to take on a greater beauty each season, for never were the tailored models so handsome as now. The smart dresser will appreclate the high standard of milliery excellence displayed in The Gollen Rule Salon this season.

Of course, you have to pay something for style, but it is the policy of concern to see that the prices on hats they sell are in every case justified by the value of the materials of they are composed.

Mrs. Davis' long experience in this and foreign countries, catering to the finest trade, exceptionally qualifies her for helping the ladies of Fort Worth to select just the hat suitable in our line for any style of beauty, combining colorings to suit complexion and gowns. In the selection of an Easter hat, the ladies of Fort Worth and vicinity will consult their own best interest by visiting The Golden Rule, corner Fourth and Houston streets, where prices are moderate and styles par-exFOR EASTER-Cards, Novelties, Eggs, Booklets Books, Oxford Prayer Books and Hymnals and Bibles in Large Assortment

UR Millinery department has been thronged for the weeks since the spring opening; on every side there have been heard exclamations of pleasure at the lovely summery Hats. Time and again we have been assured that nothing like this year's display of The Fair has been seen in Fort Worth. Women ask to see the pattern Hats, of which we are showing a great number, and then exclaim at the little difference between them and the creations from our own skilled milliners. Every woman who has her Easter hat yet to buy should see this authoritative gathering and note the fair prices of these distinctive hats. We have made a strenuous effort to make the display this week before Easter one to be long remembered.

I have been editing the Stuart Ledger for six years. Before this I wrote for the Des Moines papers for a few years. Owing to poor health, which kept me in a hospital at various times, I was forced to come out here. I took the Ledger on a lease contract, just to do the editing for a venture. I employed a foreman, a typesetter and press boy. In six months I had such a good business that I purchased the plant on the payment plan. For three years, after county had gone Republican and the Ledger had a good patronage from the county seat, I made more than any paper in the county. I now have a nice farm and residence and business property in Stuart.

In the meantime, I had many afflictions. It seemed an impossibility to get a printer who could keep his head and feet. So I buckled into the work and learned to set my own type and to do the job work. The thing that first made the Ledger quoted over the state was a series of articles entitled "Highgee Stories," also

TE LET Men at Courrieres Treated

Worse Than in America

FRENCH MINERS AT

Special Cable to The Telegram. (Copyright, 1906, by Hearst News Service.) BY PAUL VILLIERS.

PARIS, April 7.-The recent terrible disaster at Courrieres, where more than 1,200 miners lost their lives, has brought to light the fact that the coal miners are treated worse and paid less in France than in any of the monarchies of Europe. In Germany the kaiser has done very much to improve both the wages and the working conditions of the miners, but here, as in the United States, these men have been left to the mercy of the mining companies, which have never cared for anything but to get the most coal mined at the smallest cost.

It has been proved beyond a doubt that the catastrophe at Courrieres was due solely to the neglect of the companies to take even the slightest precautions against firedamp explosions or to get rid of the coal dust which not only invited just such a disaster which happened, but which was a continual danger to the health of the miners.

The catastrophe has created a storm of indignation all over France, that the mine owners are hurrying to put in all the improvements found in German mines and have also announced that the wages of the men will be raised. Public opinion is a mighty power here and it now calls for government ownership of all mines, so it is exceedingly doubtful if the belated repentance of the coal magnates will do them any good now. The French are not a nation which believe much in "divine rights," if the mine owners should attempt to use the arguments of their American colleagues.

New Torpedo Steerer The electrical force which scientists call "Hertzian waves" has been put to a very interesting use which is apt to give the military authorities of Germany many sleepless nights.

Hitherto these waves have been used practically only in wireless telegraphy, but now the invention of & French electrician has enabled naval officers to use them to steer a submarine vessel from the shore or from the deck of another vessel.

In the works of Creuzot hundreds of torpedoes are now being constructed under the eyes of the inventor, the electrical engineer, M. Lalande, which may be steered from the deck of the discharging vessel until the moment they strike the target they are aimed

Equipped with these weapons, the vessels of the French navy will run practically no risk of being hit. From a safe distance they can discharge their dirigle torpedoes against the enemy, who is absolutely at their mercy.

Would Abolish War

The inventor hopes that his invention will make future wars impossible. A Paris journalist who is a personal friend and admirer of Count Leo Tolstoy, and who has just visited the famous philosopher and writer at his estate near Tula, says that the count seems to have grown younger since he saw him a year ago.

"I found Count Tolstoy in excellent health," he says, "and a firmer believer than ever in the rejuvenating power of hard work. "When I arrived at Yasnaya Poliana

it was bitterly cold, and I was greatly surprised when told that I would find the count at a small pond cutting ice, but, sure enough, there he was, loading a cart with ice which he had cut him-"Unbeknown to him I watched him for some time before making my presence known. "He works as hard as a day laborer, but with infinitely more skill. Every little while he takes an interval of rest, and, sitting down on a block of ice covered with matting, takes out his favorite Ruskin or Emerson and reads a few pages, always aloud if any intelligent person is within hearing. "Looking at his rude, powerful face, red from exertion, with burning eyes, looking at his rough peasant sheepskin 'tulup,' his high boots and rough hands. rang out like a young man's. He is particularly careful to cut only clean and flawless ice, and rejects any defective block."

"Viceroy of Caucasus"

"To show you how highly we estimate you." the czar sald to Prince Louis Napoleon the other day, when he received him in audience at Czarskoe Selo, "we have decided to make

Simple Life for Vatican

There is to be no more display of wealth in the vatican, no more operas in the basilicas, no more complicated protocols or unnecessary red tape. Gently, but none the less firmly Pope Pius X is compelling those around him to adopt the simple life. When some time ago he ordered the church ceremonies simplified the cardinals grumbled, and the council on rites presented a formal protest. It was of no use, the pope would not listen, and the cardinals left him greatly disappointed, but they obeyed, as they will continue to obey, in spite of their preferences, their hopes or their ambitions when the pope will make known his last resolution concerning the church of France. The cardinals accuse Pope Pius of being too saintly, too ascetic, to think too little of worldly affairs, and to care too little for politics. Their general opinion of him is best expressed in the words which escaped one the other day: "His Holiness knows as little about politics as a Venetian gon-

ENGAGED TO 50 MEN AT ONCE

Postmaster General Stops Mrs. MacCumber's Flirtations

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 7 .-Mrs. Ida Grace Macumber has been having the time of her life, being engaged to fifty different men at once, and each of the fifty has been sending her rings and bracelets and dress patterns and cute little slippers and

What makes this story peculiarly interesting is that Mrs. Macumber is now, and has been for many years, an inmate of the state asylum for the insane in Nebraska.

She has been sending out letters to all kinds of men, telling how young and pretty and plump and pleasing and rich she was, and out of all the letters she sent she chose fifty men for her own true love.

She has a stack of presents piled up in her room that would start a small sized department store. The superintendent of the asylum wondered where on earth all the letters and presents came from, and, according to the laws of Nebraska, he had no power to open the letters, or to intercept the bundles.

So the postmaster general was asked to step in, and vesterday he issued a fraud order, denying the use of the mails to the giddy and fascinating Mrs. Macumber.

THE GIRL IN RED

Twenty years ago Pierre Roquet and his family, consisting of Mme. Roquet and two sons, reached Coloado direct from France. As America was to be their future home, this family of ploneers decided it would be wise to follow the profession of stock raising on a higher plane than was ever known in the west. Strange to say, in this story of foreign adventure into new lands, the family was comparatively rich in this world's goods, and not of the poor immigrant class so well known in western history. The sons were well educated and brought up as becomes parents of intelligence in the old world. Shortly after their arrival a baby was supreme, for now the big brothers had a little wee pet sister. Marie Roquet grew to womanhood in the free open air of Colorado, and under her brothers' tutelage became the foremost horsewoman in the entire west. Pierre Roquet decided then to visit the scenes of his early career, and little Marie begged to see her parents' old homestead in France. At this time M. Roquet conceived the idea of a convent education for the beautiful daughter. But after her free life in her wild western home, she not only rebelled, but for ten years was an unknown quantity in the family, all the while keeping her mother and brothers informed as to her welfare.

One might, after a performance at the Circus Carre, Amsterdam, of "The Girl in Red," a gray-haired old Frenchman pushed his way through the throngs to the dressing tent, and while the applause of the multitude resounded in his ears he embraced the most famous circus rider of the day, exclaiming, "My little Marie!" Now known throughout the old world as "Mam'selle Rouge," this same little Colorado girl had become celebrated as the champion premiere equestrienne of circus world. After a year's negotia tion it has finally been contracted for her appearance twice daily the coming season with the great Sells-Floto Shows, and her many admirers and acquaintances will most readly recognize "The Girl in Red." The big shows come to Fort Worth next Monday. Milam has decided that at every street crossing eight signs made of brass letters shall be inserted in the pavement.

KAISER'S HOBBY IS MILITARY BALLOON

German Emperor Is Keeping Pace With France

(Copyright, 1906, by Hearst News Service.) Special Cable to The Telegram BY MALCOLM CLARKE.

BERLIN, April 7 .- After a comparatively quiet peiod which has lasted since his silver wedding and during which the anxiety and uncertainty over the Morocco question kept him from carrying into effect any new ideas, the kaiser has now awakened to new activity.

His latest hobby is the military balloon, which he is convinced will play a very important part in the wars of the future. France, which has always money to spend on her army and navy, has found the Lebaudy aerostat practicable for war purposes and, of course, the kaiser could not bear the idea of being left behind.

Suspecting, and probably not without reason that the reichstag might not be inclined to let him have the necessary money for experimenting, he invited to dine with him a number of rich financiers, known to be eager to bask in the rays of the imperial sun, and when his gracious smiles and choice wines had put them in the proper humor, the kaiser broached the subject of dirigible balloons and deplored that Germany, because of lack of money, had not been able to take the lead. The hint was understood, and several financiers with ambitious buttonholes, immediately declared that they would be delighted to supply funds for such a patriotic

The outcome of the discussion was the formation of a committee, the nucleus of a club to promote aerial navigation and with a capital of $250,000. A dirigible balloon with which the military balloon corps has ben experimenting near Augsburg has not been much of a sucess, but a new improved one will now be built and tried.

Book Causes Sensation A second book from the pen of Councilor of State Martin on the "Future of Russia" has created quite a sensation here, principally because of the efforts of the Russian government to have the book suppressed. The author, who is thoroughly familiar with the political and financial conditions in Russia, predicts the financial collapse of the czar's empire in a very near future and declares that even the Russian government knows that it cannot suppress the revolution now begun and that Russia will be a republic before ten years have passed. Councillor Martin's first book, "The Future of Russia and Japan," was the principal cause why German fianciers refused to participate in a new Russian loan, though the kaiser used all his influence to help the czar.s govern-

Since then, however, many things have changed, and when the Russian authorities asked the German government to suppress Martin's latest book, they found deaf ears. It will take some time before the kaiser forgets that Russia took sides with France at

A sensational rumor, the origin of which I have not been able to trace, is afloat here. It is said, and so far it has not been officially denied, that an agreement has been made between the kaiser and the czar whereby Russia will transfer to Germany her Polish provinces in return for a very large amount of cash, of which the Russian treasury is sorely in need. If the rumor is true Russia will surely be the gainer. She will get rid of a veritable hotbed of revolution, the people of which she is at present unable to control; she will get money, which she needs more than anything else, and she will have given Germany enough to do for years to come. I do not in the least doubt that the kaiser would be glad to add Russian Poland to his empire, nor that the czar would like to get rid of it, but I do not see where the money is to come from, for it is safe to say that the reichstag will never impose new taxes on the overburdened German people for 'he sage of buying a hornets' nest. Everybody is delighted that the Algeciras conference did not mark the beginning of a great European war, as many who know how keenly interested the kaiser was in the question involved, had feared it would. What made the kaiser feel less warlike was probably the fact that it has been discovered, though of course not admitted, that the new German field

Still Walting for Money Because a Prussian lieutenant borrowed $5 from an humble waiter five years ago, a colonel, two captains and the lieutenant all have been expelled

Finding himself temporarily penniless in Berlin five years ago, the lieutenant borrowed the money from the waiter in the cafe where he usually took his meals. The waiter waited patiently for his money for a long time, but at last complained to the colonel commanding the lieutenant's regiment. Being a German officer, who could not possibly appear in default to a common person, the lleutenant gave the colonel his word of honor that he had repaid the loan, intending to do so immediately. This he, however, forgot to do, and so the waiter once more went to the colonel, who laid the matter before a "court of honor," which acquitted the lieutanant, but the persistent waiter went "higher up," and the case came before a court martial, and in this manner it reached the ears of the sentation on any railroad board.

Kuhn, Loeb & Company will continue to act as the fiscal agents of the entire Union Pacific system. One change that caused comment in Wall street was the retirement of James Speyer and Charles H. Tweed, both of the firm of Speyer & Company. It was these two men who negotiated the sale of a controlling interest in the Southern Pacific to the Union Pacific company and it was supposed that the relations between Syepers and Harriman were friendly. A member of the firm of Speyer & Company said that the retirement of Speyer and Tweed was without "particular significance." He added that this event did not foreshadow the resignations of members of Speyer & Company from the boards of any other corporations with which they were connected. The New Directors Four of the new directors have been subject for some time to E. H. Harriman's orders as employes of the Union Pacific-Southern Pacific systems. Evarts and Lovett are legal advisers. A. K. Vandeventer is assistant secretary of the Southern Pacific company and Thorne is director of purchases for the Harriman lines. Ogden Mills and Robert Goelet represent their own individual investments in the Southern Pacific company. Mills is the son of E. H. Harriman, through his own personal holdings and the large block of stock owned by the Union Pacific company, now controls more than two-thirds of the Southern Pacific stock. The Huntington interest is relatively small. RAIN AT BAIRD

Prospects for Farmers and Cattlemen Improved

special to The Telegram. BAIRD, Texas, April 7.-Callahan county, of which Baird is the county seat, has just had a fine and sufficient rain. It was beginning to be needed for all purposes. The grass, corn, wheat, oats and all vegetation in fact has been relieved of the dryness which was retarding their growth. The people are now jubilant over the prospects for this year, and land values which are already on the rise, will go upward, and farming lands being the principal class of lands changing hands will in a few years be as high as those in middle Texas are now, be-

A Wonderful Record.

As made up by improved and exact processes Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a most efficient remedy for regulating all the womanly functions, correctlating all the womanly functions, correcting displacements, as prolapsus, anteversion and retroversion, overcoming painful periods, toning up the nerves and bringing about a perfect state of health. It cures the backache, periodical headaches, the dragging-down distress in the pelvic region, the pain and tenderness over lower abdominal region, dries up the pelvic catarrhal drain, so disagreeable and weakening, and overcomes every form of weakness incident to the organs distinctly feminine.

"Favorite Prescription" is the only medicine for women, the makers of which are not afraid to print their formula on the bottle wrapper, thus taking their patrons into their full confidence. It is the only medicine for women, every ingredient of which has the strongest possible endorsement of the most eminent medical practitioners and writers of our day recommending and writers of our day, recommending it for the diseases for which "Favorite Prescription" is used. It is the only put-up medicine for women, sold through druggists, which does not contain a large prescription of alabels as tain a large percentage of alcohol, so harmful in the long run, especially to delicate women. It has more genuine cures to its credit than all other medicires to its credit than all other medicines for women combined, having saved thousands of sufferers from the operating table and the surgeon's knife. It has restored delicate, weak women to strong and vigorous health and virility, making motherhood possible, where there was barrenness before, thereby brighten ing and making happy many thousands of homes by the advent of little ones to strengthen the marital bonds and add sunshine where gloom and despondency had reigned before.

AND WE CAN

The Great Danderine Never Falls to Produce the Desired Results

AISS Lewis' hair was very thin and it was less than two feet in length when Miss Lewis hair was very time. She says her hair and scalp are now fairly teeming with new life and vigor.

That's the main secret of this great remedy's success as a hair grower. It en livens, invigorates and fairly electrifies the hair glands and tissues of the scalp, causing unusual and unheard-of activity on the part of these two most important organs, resulting in a strenuous and continuous growth

The following is a reproduction of Miss Lewis' last letter:

January 3, 1905.

Dear Doctor Knowlton:-

You know I told you in my first letter that my hair would not reach much below my shoulders, and that all of it together only made one tiny braid.

I am sending you my photograph, which I had taken at Stevens Bros. It tells the whole story better than I can tell it. Everybody I know is using Danderine, so you see I am doing something to show my appreciation.

Sincerely yours, (Miss) EVA LEWIS.

Danderine makes the scalp healthy and fertile and keeps it so. It is the greatest scalp fertilizer and therefore the greatest hair-producing remedy the world has ever known It is a natural food and a wholesome medicine for both the hair and scalp. Even a 25c bottle of it will put more genuine life in your hair than a gallon of any other hair tonic ever made. It shows results from the very start.

NOW at all druggists in three sizes, 25 cents, 50 cents and $1. per bottle

GILBERT REPLIES TO J. J. TERRELL

2572 Hamilton Avenue, Chicago

Candidate Comes Back at the Land Commissnoner

Special to The Telegram.

AUSTIN, Texas, April 7 .- C. E. Gilbert, candidate for land commissioner, has given out the following statement concerning land matters in the state: On Tuesday Commissioner of the Land Office Terrell made a statement to the public through the governor's office—that is, he writes a letter to the governor and gives it out to the laily press-presumably for campaign purposes. Mr. Terrell makes a strong ffort to make a good showing for his land law, and makes a comparison of sales the past six months under his new law with two terms of Baker, two of Rogan and his first term. In doing this he states now that his sales have been 1,966,619 acres for the six months. Of course, it was to be expected that there would be increased activity in sales the first six months, with $4,000 spent in advertising and after buyers had been held off under a suspension of all sales about six months, but there is good reason to believe Mr. Terrell has made two of his usual errors in this last statement (to the governor) as to the extent of his sales. On Nov. 18, the commissioner gave a statement to the daily press that of the 6,000,000 acres he had placed on the market, about one-half of the land had been sold." One-half of 6,000,000 is 3,000,-Then, on March 21, he gave the daily press another statement, in which he said the sales under the new law "had not been as great as expected," and for six months "is not much in excess of one million" acres. Now, two weeks later he says nearly two million acres have been sold the first six months to March 1. Goes to the Record

In as much as it seems difficult to get an accurate statement as to the number of acres sold since Sept. 1, let us go to the books of the comptroller and state treasurer and get the actual result of land sales in cash, and from this exhibit a correct idea can be formed as to how the free school fund one term each of three administrations, has been protected and where it has I find that Baker's correspondent

Story of a Great

fallen off. The cash receipts from all land sources constitute about the safest land sale barometer I can find, and shows, too, that the falling off in revenue from the leases cannot be due to sales, as suggested, or else the receipts for sales would show a corresponding increase.

If Commissioner Terrell has really sold as much lands as he claims during his three years and three months of service, at, as he claims, larger prices, how is it that the receipts from sales (even with interest on preceding sales) is so much less than any other year since 1899? With land sales claimed to be averaging with other administrations and at prices claimed to be larger, is there any reason to the ordinary mind why receipts at the sury should decline each year of Mr. Terrell's administration?

Another Error Made

Mr. Terrell certainly has another error in his statement that in six months he sold 1,865,693 acres of surveyed land for $3,407,424, and that, as he found it appraised at $2,042,949, in selling it for $3,407,424 he sold it for $2,464,474 more than the former appraised value. A little mistake of a mere million or so.

But, even if there should be no error in the number of acres he claims to have sold, it is not remarkable. The land commissioner of the Southern Paeific sold nearly that much last year; the land commissioner of the Texas and Pacific must have sold quite as much, while either Fort Worth, Dallas, Houston or San Antonio had a real estate transfer business exceeding that of the land commissioner of Texas, who controlled nearly 20,000,000 acres of land much in demand by people who regard his prices as low. If the land had been appraised too low, the law makes it the duty of the commissioner to reappraise it, advancing the price with the market. In view of the great demand for Texas lands the last three years, causing an advance in prices of 50 to 100 per cent even the older sections of the state, is it remarkable that the state should secure 60 per cent advance on a low minimum established years ago, averaging only $1.08 for that sold?

Expense Examined

As to the amount of work involved n 5,000 applications to purchase and the lack of help complained of by Mr. Terrell, I would suggest that Commissioner Baker in 1898 handled over 17 .-400 applications with less force and much less expense. And, comparing

Land Plenty and People Want It

There's millions of acres of good land and the state wants to sell it. There's hundreds of people who want to buy, and there's too many disappointed applicants. The proper effort on the part of the land commissioner to get the home-seekers and the lands together would mean a greatly increased school fund and greater prosperity for the state. Do away with technical obsta-cles to settlement, and the sales the first year will be quadrupled.

GUTHRIE, O. T., April 7 .- Horace Speed, recently dismissed from office as United States district attorney, has returned from Washington, where at his request, he was granted a hearing by the department of justice on the charges against him. No findings have been made as a result of this hearing, as the attorney general is awaiting the return to Washington of Inspector Glenn E. Husted, who made the report unfavorable to Speed. He will be given an opportunity to answer the statements made by Speed at his hearing. Mr. Speed refuses to discuss the hearing at the present time, but it is learned that he will in the near future make public a statement covering the entire matter from beginning to end. Inspector Husted is still in Oklahoma, although he has finished his investigation of the charges against John Embry and has sent in his report. OUR LAY SERMON

Some years ago there were two sisters, daughters of an American millionaire, and the inmates of a happy home, where they had all the comforts and luxuries that wealth could command. As they blossomed into a glorious womanhood one of them planned for herself a brilliant marriage. There was nothing in free and democratic America that could measure up to this young woman's idea of a brilliant marriage, and she accordingly invested her millions in questionable honor of a foreign title. She married the decadent scion of a blue-blooded French nobleman, and went over to Sunny France to reside.

But there are brilliant marriages that bring no more happiness than those that do not shine. This particular hymenial event was of the kind that brings no real happiness. In the course of events both of these sisters came into possession of large fortunes, but the possession of this magnificent dowry brought no happiness to that sister who had sold herself and gone into a foreign land. The brilliant husband had apparently married her for the money she was expected to bring into his depleted family exchequer and rumors of trouble began to come from across the blue waters. These rumors grew and grew until finally there came authentic information that the unhappy little wife had filed suit for divorce and would no longer live with the brilliant being she sold herself to long years ago.

And how is it with the other sister? She had refused steadfastly to bestow her affections and her millions upon the countless suitors who have sought her hand, but instead, has devoted her life to doing all the good she can in the world. Her riches have placed great responsibilities upon her and also great opportunities. In a quiet way she is using her money to benefit the poor in a practical way, not turning the work over to others, but loking after It herself. Her name is honored throughout the length and breadth of this nation, but there is no ostentation about her beneficence. Her money is not given to bring her honor, but for the good that it can do, Numerous contributions to worthy objects in Texas, including Y. M. C. A. buildings at Big Springs, Palestine and El Paso, attest the extent of her generosity and the tenderness of her heart. As her father made his millions in railway deals, it is but natural the daughter's beneficence should largely turn in relieving the wants of railway men. But she has not confined her disbursements entirely in that direction. She is loved and honored over all Texas, perhaps above all other women.

There is a lesson for ordinary folks in the story of these two sisters. Money did not bring either of them happiness, and the younger would have probably been better off without it, for in that event she might have made a really happy marriage at home instead of a brilliant foreign one. And the elder would get just as much joy and happiness out of life without wealth as with it, for she has elements in her own character that the possession of riches cannot affect. The younger made the mistake of seeking pleasure in position; the elder attained it by doing good to others. The chaplain of the Kansas state reformatory asked the elder of these two sisters to write a brief message to the boys and young men confined in that institution. She complied by writing the following letter, which is in her own handwriting:

Lyndhurst, Irvington-on-Hudson. To those in the Industrial Reformatory. Friends: Your chaplain has kindly invited me to send you a brief message, and while I accept gladly, I hope you will receive many from persons wiser and more eloquent than I.

Let me direct your attention to that most helpful book, the Bible. Each of you can, if you will, find in it a guide to the right living and high thinking. You will find also the beautiful and touching story of the one perfect life, that of Jesus Christ, and the wonderful offer. He came to make us of forgiviness, of redemption from the power of sin, and of eternal life; an offer we are at liberty to accept or reject. Only His power can transform us-any of us-so that our character will more nearly resemble His, and He is able to bring us into communion with our heavenly

Perhaps you will like to think of these verses which are favorites of mine: "Blessed are they, which do hunger and thirst after righteousness, for they shall be filled."-Matt. 5:6. "For God so loved the world that He gave His only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish, but have everlasting life."-John 3:16. "If any man will come after me, let him deny himself and take up his cross daily, and follow me."-Luke 9:23. "The wisdom that is from above is first pure, then peaceable, gentle and easy to be intreated, full of mercy and good fruits, without partiality and without hypocrisy. And the fruit of righteousness is sown, in peace of them that make peace."-James 3, 17:13,

And there is that beautiful promise in Revelation? 3:20, in a message from Jesus to the churches: "Behold I stand at the door and knock; if any man hear my voice and open the door, I will come in to him, and will sup with him and he with me." Sincerely,

HELEN MILLER GOULD. This is the tale of two sisters. What wise girl would not rather be Helen Miller Gould than her unfortunate and unhappy sister, the Countess Castellane?

HAD RISEN FROM NEWSBOY

One of the most prominent figures in the railway passenger world of today is E. O. McCormick, assistant traffic director of the Harriman system-Union and Southern Pacific and Oregon Railway and Navigation companies. A study of this man's career is certainly an object lesson to the young men of the country. Thirty years ago he was a newsboy in Lafayette, Ind., his birthplace, working for a man who later worked

Though nominally in charge of passenger affairs, he attends as many freight meetings as he does conferences dealing with the passenger business. Mc-Cormick graduated from high school about thirty years ago, and after he had served his time as a newsboy selling papers on the streets of his native town. From newsboy he became a clerk for the Lake Erie & Western railroad. Going over to the Monon a little later he worked his way up to the general passenger agency. Then he became general passenger agent of the Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton, The Big Four, the Southern Pacific and then to Chicago as assistant traffic manager of all the Harriman lines.

There are barefooted newsboys today in the service of The Telegram who may one day experience just as rapid rise to prominence and lucrative employment as this successful ratiroad manager who gained his first business experience selling newspapers. McCormick was not different from other newsboys, except that he was always noted for doing his work well. When he started out to sell newspapers he had no other object in view except to find a purchaser for every copy he carried out under his arm. He had a time to sell papers and a time to do other things, and the habit of doing things well he acquired while selling papers has stuck to him all through life and enabled him to continue to climb the ladder that leads to ultimate success.

The Telegram does not doubt for an instant that some of the great and successful business men of the coming years will date the period of their business success from the days they sold Telegrams on the busy streets of this city. The Telegram boys are all bright and manly little fellows, and they are today laying the foundation for that business success that is sure to come in the future.

Twelve thousand dollars' profit on a Fort Worth business lot within the brief period of four months serves to show something as to how real estate values in this city are holding their own. Four months ago J. M. Shelton purchased the corner adjoining the public library for $30,000. He has just sold it for Members of the United States senate are charged by the President's representatives in that body with helding close communion with railway presidents. And there should be nothing surprising in that kind of development. Many members of the United States senate are believed to hold their present positions by virtue of the railway influence. It is merely a case of the ox knowing his master's crib.

The cold wet spring is having a bad effect on the corn crop in many portions of the state. It is reported that many farmers are now plowing up the first planting and are committing seed to the soil for the second time. Secretary Taft gave Booker T. Washngton's school some very sensible talk along the proper lines. Taft is evidently one of the men who come down from the North with the belief that it does not profit the negro to indulge in dreams of social equality.

President Roosevelt is now said to favor the Bailey amendments to the railway rate bill, and it begins to lock as if the opposition of members of his own party will soon drive the executive to the point where he will be willing to accept almost any thing.

One of the defeated candidates for mayor of Dallas says he was sacrificed. And that is just the way a fellow always feels when he is included in the list of those who also ran.

Judge Parker is to address the American Bar Association, and this fact serves to remind us that it seems difficult for some people to realize that this distinguished gentleman is a dead one.

terprise, and the people of Texas all know just exactly what that means.

Sherman has a cotton mill that is run at a profit, and is an indication that cotton mills can be run profitably in Texas. This mill should be an argument for other mills to come to Sherman. Let's talk factories to factory people.-Sherman Register.

Fort Worth has no cotton mill, but affords an ideal location for one of the largest in the South. The success of the mill at Sherman and other Texas points goes to prove such an enterprise would be an unqualified success in this city.

If the legislature of Texas really wants to give the people of Texas a fair and honest election law, let them repeal the Terrell monstrosity and start all over again, with some intelligence and common sense, and with a view of serving the people and not the politiclans.—Sherman Register.

The time to remedy the general evils of the Terrell Turkish election law is at the next regular session of the state legislature, which will convene next January. The experience of the people with the present membership should be sufficient to insure the election of men capable of dealing with the situation.

Fort Worth folks are kicking against the town's system of sidewalks. The naughty people.-Clarksville

Fort Worth people have been waging a vigorous campaign for better sidewalks, and it has resulted in great improvement in that direction. If the present iick can be kept up this city will soon have more and better sidewalks than any other city in Texas,

Mr. J. S. Daugherty is right; the English spinners might solve the entire cotton supply question by moving their factories to the Texas cotton fields and saving the freight, and at the same time get a share of the American trade.-Houston Post. The time is not far distant when the cotton problem as it affects Texas will be solved in this manner. The existing opportunities for profitable investment in that direction will not much longer go unheeded.

The demand for the blanket primary sprang up in a night and members of the legislature fell over each other to obey the "voice of the people," forgetful of their pledge to serve for nothing in order to make a simple correction that could have been attended to inside of three days.-Waco Times-Herald.

Various candidates for state office are responsible for the attempt made by the state legislature to exceed its authority, but they are in position now to realize they had better let matters take their ligitimate course.

And then the government will have a harder job than it had finding a jail 10,000 miles long and fifty feet wide to hold and punish the Santa Fe road. The law is a wonderful thing.-El Paso Herald,

The beef trust corporations will go to jail just as the Santa Fe railway corporation did. The President established an unwholesome precedent in the Paul Morton procedure,

A carload of thoroughbred Durham cattle which had been exhibited at the Fort Worth fat stock show last week, were purchased by citizens of this and adjoining communities, and were brought in Monday by rail. They were one and two-year-olds, most of them were, and they were beauties, and will certainly make an impression on the stock of this country within the next few years, these being all registered Durhams .-

The Fort Worth Fat Stock show is doing a great work in the encouragement of fine stock breeding in Texas. Its work in that direction will be felt for years

WASHINGTON, April 4 .- Senator Allee and Representative Burton of Delaware went to the White House to urge the President to help them to get the new big battleship that congress is to put on the naval grogram this year named after their state. The President received the suggestion smilingly, but did not commit himself to its support.

When Allee returned to the senate he told Senator Dolliver about his errand.

"And you are willing to take all the risk of having a battleship named after your state?" asked Dolliver

"Yes, of course; why not?" asked Allee.

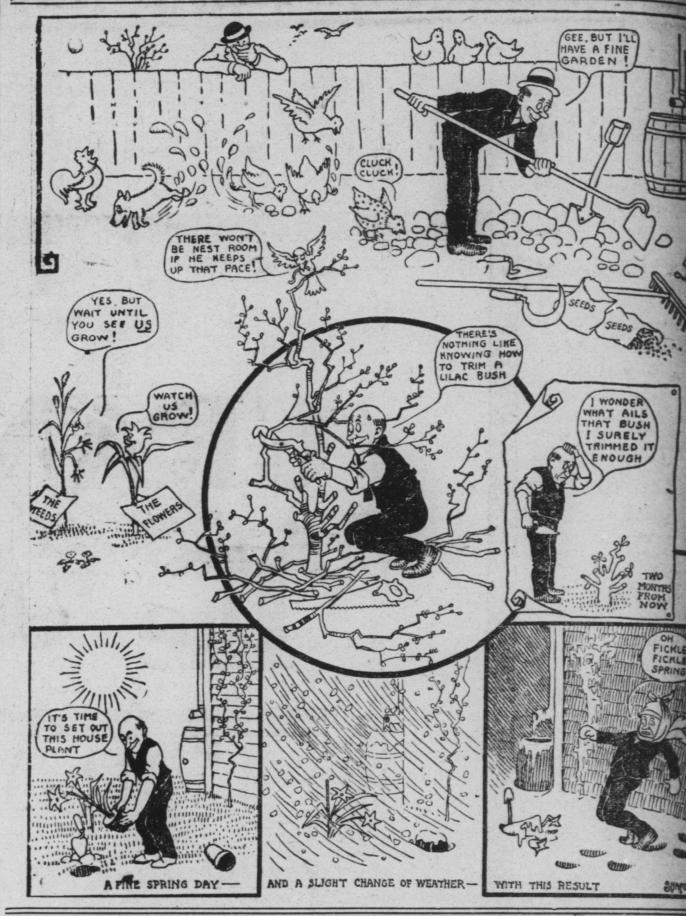

"Well, Allee," drawled Dolliver, "I think you are ecting rashly for your constituents. That battleship will be as big as your state, and your people will get corfused by seeing the name on the ship and go to bed there as often as on dry land." Representative Cassal of Pennsylvania received a remarkably delicate compliment from his colleaguesso delicate that it almost escaped the naked eye. The Pennsylvanias held a caucus for the purpose of electing one of their number to the republican congressional campaign committee. General Bingham, the dean of the delegation, took the floor and made a speech, the purport whereof was that the congressional committee was of no good on earth. He said it was a worthless piece of political machinery, and a hinarance rather than a help both to the national committee and the various state committees. In all the time he had been in public life it had never done any good, and had always been a nuisance.

The members listened with approval to this exposition of the functions of the congressional committee, and then enthusiastically elected Mr. Cassal to the

Now or never is the time to re-arrange the hardy border and rock garden for better mass and color effects, and plan to fill the gaps left by winter. A glance over the latest garden books and magazines exhibits an increasingly large output of advice for the amateur soil tickler, coupled with a natural impatience over his dilatoriness in ordering seeds and avoiding the spring rush of punctual nature. Among the newest things in backyard literature we cheerfully recommend the following: "How to Make Your Garden Lay Egg Plants," "Folding Flower Beds for Small Gardens," "When to Change the Pillows on a Hot Bed," "Seven Ways of Domesticating the Dish-Rag Gourd and Gaining Its Confidence." Poultry raisers who may have had trouble with their steam heated chicks are advised to read "The Incubations of M. Aurelius."

There is unwonted activity among the spelling reformers these days, but, although such eminent orthographers as Andrew Carnegie and Brander Matthews are of one mind, there is no special reason for alarm. We can understand Mr. Carnegie's wish for a simpler spelling of English words. Time is precious in business, and when the typewriter has been pushed to its limit a few precious minutes would be gained each day by dropping out "unnecessary letters." But we don't understand why Professor Matthews should wish to mutilate the English language; why a literary man should countenance what Mr. Swinburne properly terms "a monstrous, barbarous absurdity." If Mr. Matthewws and the other reformers have no sense of philological propriety, why the deuce don't they write in Esperanto, or Volapuk, or some other "logical lan-

He has fallen asleep with his toys.

The bad little boy wouldn't do as she told, For he has a will of his own:

And the room where he plays is a sight to behold The room where she shut him alone, "If you don't be good I'll tell papa," said she, As she left him and shut fast the door.

Artist Says Women Have No Influence

LEARN FROM MEN

Not Canvas Work But Domestic Decoration Is Adapted to the Fair Sex

(Copyright, 1906, by Hearst News Service.) LONDON, April 7 .- A well-known artist on being asked what was woman's influence on art, replied that he ould not say, as she had none, and on being pressed to define he answered hat women artists had only learned from men, and had never influenced

I am not concerned to disprove the fact with regard to the actual transorepared to say that woman has molded the taste of her day for the doery, the textile fabrics, decorations, have all been influenced by her taste, and therefore it is futile to say that woman has no influence on art. The uestion is, Has it been a good influence? And to that I am obliged to inswer sadly, In our day it has not. No one can go into the average house and see the heaped up bric-a-brac, ings and bows, draperies, cushions and the inappropriate use of things such as church vestments for screens and foot stools without realizing that unfortunately woman has not yet learned the secret and beauty of simplicity. Again, in the matter of jewelry, what can be more atrocious than the idea of having every conceivable animal set diamonds, such as pigs and horses, birds and flies? The want of a sense of fitness shown by this personal adornment is really lamentable. remember seeing a woman with diamond fox and a whole pack of hounds pinned round the edge of her evening gown, and it always seemed to be that lack of imagination could go

One of the most eminent decorators and architects of our time has imwomen to consider their rooms their backgrounds, and certainly nothing could be more disturbing and hideous than the mass of photographs, is the delight of the feminine heart. t is because woman has an artistic influence that she has a responsibility which she cannot and dare not shirk.

To Preserve Birds

The queen of England has realized this. She has condemned the wearing of the osprey plume. For some time an agitation has been set on foot to preserve these beautiful birds, and to prevent the horrible cruelty which is perpetrated for the sake of robbing them of that exquisite feather which only adorns the bird at breeding ime. Many of the rarest and most beautiful birds will soon cease to exist. Florida has almost been despoiled of its snowy herons, and in Mincing Lane, at the last feather sale, on the 13th of January, 327 packets of osprey feathers were sold, and 8,508 bird of paradise skins.

A league has been formed here, and I believe also in the United States, by which a certain number of women, headed by well known names, such as the Duchess of Portland, the Duchess of Somerset and the Marchioness of Tweedale, have pledged themselves to wear no come feathers save those of birds kille for food and the plumage of the osatch. The efforts of these adies have had, however, but very limted success, and they appealed to Queen Alexandra to use her great influence in the matter. The following letter was received at the annual meeting last week and read to the as-

"The queen desires me to say in answer to your letter that she gives you, as president, full permission to use her name in any way you think best to conduce to the protection of birds. You know well how kind and humane the queen is to all living creatures, and I am desired to add hat her majesty never wears osprey feathers herself, and will certainly do all in her power to discourage the ruelty practiced on these beautiful

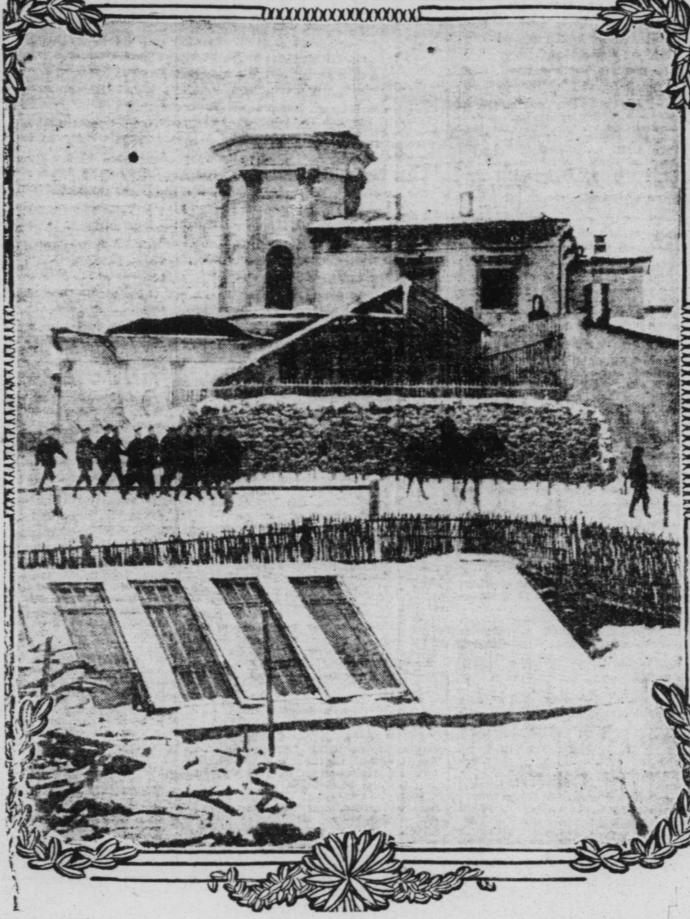

Women Servants Form Clubs

The lady servant is having an unleasant time. First of all, the etiquette as to how she is to be addressed has caused much heartburning and ontroversy. It is usual in England for mistresses to address their servants by their surname without a prefix. a cusom which I must say I have always hought detestable, and now that ladies have taken the office of domestic servints some are the daughters of offiers, others of clergymen, and are often on a social equality with their missses, it is painful to them to be adressed in this way. The Arachne Club has been opened in order to settle such tice points among those who are thus estically employed. One decision hey have arrived at, from which they immovable, is that they will not o rough work. They draw the line at solfshing boots or scowering the doorstep; but the feminine mind is ever ceady to jealously guard its charms, und the Arachne Club has been disussing how a woman can do the orlinary domestic work and yet maintain ler beauty, save her complexion from he scorehing heat of the kitchen fire, er hair from the dust which arises when she sweeps and her hands from he rough work which she may be callof to undertake. The lady servant is idvised to occupy an hour over her bollette every night, and the following schedule has been given to her as the necessary process in order to protect her charms: Deep breathing to free the

of imagination? Theatrical Instinct Natural

A very animated discussion has been going on in the press as to the advisability of going to the theater. Is the theater a place to be avoided by Christians or not? The acknowledged leaders of religious thought have been consulted, and the answers vary as widely as do the opinions of the writers.

The Rev. R. J. Campbell, the wellknown Congregational minister, says that the histrionic instinct is ineradicable, and therefore it is not in essence bad, but that the theater, like the novel, is a mirror of life.

The Rev. Father Adderley, who has much influence in the Church of Eng-"A Christian must ask himself, Do

The bishop of Kensington writes most sensibly as follows: "I believe what is needed is more discrimination, not wholesale condemnation. I am amazed at the guilty carelessness with which parents take their girls to plays which ought to be repugnant to themselves. But the Rev. F. B. Meyer holds a contrary opinion, and says: "I dare not relaz in any way the position which I have always held, that as Christians we cannot conscientiously support the theaters and music halls, even when they exhibit tableaux like that of 'Joseph and His Brethren,' or the modern problem play.

"I have always taken a deep interest in the subject of amusements for the people and I believe that a good play is as good for everyone as a good book, but I think that the tableaux of which Mr. Meyer speaks, of "Joseph and His Brethren," which have recently been given at one of our great places of entertainments, are really reprehensible, whereas I must say that while I would support a good play, I deeply regret the production of such representations, which are to my mind calculated to do infinite harm.

Centenary Celebrated

A poet has been celebrating the centenary of the author of "Sonnets from the Portuguese." It was fitting that Mrs. Alice Meynell of all women should be the one to lay the laurels on Elizabeth Barrett Browning's tomb, a hundred years after the day of her birth. "The Saints," said Mrs. Meynell, "are commercated on their death, but poets enter into their paradise on earth, and it is well kept in centenaries, for the clock of a nation's literature records centuries.

"No man or woman capable of the love of poetry can be insensible to hers, who was essentially a gentle poet. Does anyone hesitate at the word 'gentle poet'?" aswed Mrs. Meynell. "Mrs. Browning is essentially gentle, because she is at her best when she is so. However unequal may be the poetry of this illustrious woman, it has the breath of a spiritual creature, the beat of an ardent heart, it is moved by a generous passion, it has profuse beauties and no ignoble faults." The celebration was memorable. brate Ellen Terry's jubilee. Fifty Floral tributes from the garden of Information of a Jewish colony in the interior of China far away from the beaten tracks of travelers has come to England from Mr. Bainbridge, a traveler and anthropoligist of note Rumors have frequently drifted to the ports and places of traffic of Jewish people hidden away in the Far East, but these have been generally regarded as mere travelers' tales.

Mr. Bainbridge relates that in China a disguise and accompanied by an escort, he penetrated to Kai Fong Fu, near the junction of the old and the new courses of the Yellow river in about 115 east longitude, and about 35 north latitude. The district lies about 350 miles south of Pekin and 300 miles north of Hankow.

Here he found a Jewish people keeping as much as possible to themselves, and apart from the surrounding Chinese. They have a synagogue of their own, but worship in secret, preserving their own ritual and formulas. Recently the Yellow river, in one of its occasional changes of bed, had demolished the synagogue.

Mr. Bainbridge has been charged by the Jews with a petition to their brethren abroad for help to rebuild the fallen temple, and has brought back transcripts made from some of the stones of the old synagogue.

These people it would appear are descendants of Jews who found their way to this place about 700 B. C., after one of the subjugations of the Jews and from the occurrence of many Persian words in use among them, it is supposed that their original ancestors might have been carried into captivity by Persians and found their way eastward by the old trans-Atlantic caravan route up the Oxus river, across the Pamirs and along the margin of the Great Desert to the Yel-

The Marquis of Granby, who presided at the meeting, said that woman's fashions were still the greatest obstalces in the path of the society. "If ladies would give up the attempt which many of them were making to wear the breeches and at the same time renounce the wearing of aigrettes, they would be furthering the cause of humanity and doing more to establish their influence in the world than they were doing by their efforts to secure the suffrage," said the Marquis in conclusion.

FRANCE NOW HAS DUMB MINISTRY

M. Failere's Cabinet Is Ornamental But Not Troublesome

BY MARQUIS DE CASTELLANE. (Copyright, 1906, by Hearst News Service.) Special Cable to The Telegram.

PARIS, April 7 .- Monsieur Fallieres' advent to the presidency of France has been followed by the most complete upheaval of the republican party which has been known during the thirty years' life of the republic. As soon as Monsieur Rouvier's cabinet was dissolved it became necessary to constitute another, and at once we were treated to the extreme divergence of opinion existing among the men best fitted to undertake the government of the nation. No two among them wanted the same thing. Messrs. Briant and Clemenceau clamored loudly for one kind of regime, and Messrs. Barthou and Etienne would have things opposite ways. On no subject can the counc!l of state agree. Whether it be the question of the separation of church and state, or the income tax, or any other matter of first importance to the country, it is sure to give rise to dissensions among the ministers and lead to no ultimate decision.

In order to put a stop to this kind of thing M. Fallieres has had the luminous idea of creating a hitherto unknown body, a dumb ministry. All the members of his cabinet have pledged themselves not to interfere in any way with the doings of the legislative bodies. They have renounced their prerogative and will henceforth be content to be called "statesmen" without, in reality, being anything of There is no denying that M. Fal-

French capital to cast their dollars upon the shrine of Madame Mode. From end to end of the year foreigners may be seen treading the pavement of the Rue de la Paix, which is the center of the world's dressmaking art. Among the famous dressmaking establishments which front upon Dame Fashion's thoroughfare one of the most celebrated is that of Doucet, who is himself an artist to his finger tips. This man, this tradesman, mesdames, into whose hands you lavishly spill your bandnotes, has but one cherished dream-to build himself a little palace in which he can place the collection of art treasures which he has been collecting for the last thirty years. No private collection of painting in France contains finer canvases than that of M. Doucet, and a museum might well envy him his examples of the celebrated French painters-Boucher and Watteau. The house is built and the works of art are being disposed about its beautiful galleries.

It will not be long ere the fashionable foreigners who come to Paris to buy their gowns of Monsieur Doucet will be clamoring for permission to visit his residence. Who then shall say that dressmaking is an inferior art when it walks hand in hand with such connoisseurship as

Authoress Ends Life

Parisian society has been startled by the attempted suicide of the beautiful young playwright, Mme. Regine Martial. Mme. Martial is the authoress of a play which has recently been produced at the Gymnase, and is entitled "Sacha."

It is the story of a young man, Sacha, whose mother thinks that he does not know enough of life and the world, and choses a woman among her friends to "educate" him along the lines which in French society inevitably mean a love intrigue. She throws the two together as much as possible, countenances their intimacy when the inevitable takes place, and is pleased to find her son "waking up."

But, of course, he meets a young gril whom he is urged by his family to marry. He is willing to enter the bonds of matrimony, but the woman to whom he had attached himself by other ties objects. A stormy scene enmother shoots the woman of whom she had already made a moral victim in order to free her son.

Since the attempted suicide of th authoress has been known, it is alleged can.

I do not think it could have been an American, for so many come to the ago the real "Sacha" died. Since then ago the real "Sacha" died. Since that "Sacha" is her own life story, exact in every particular save, of

CANARIES ARE TRUE TO SPAIN

Last or Insular Possessions

Loval to Alfonso Special Cable to The Telegram. (Copyright, 1996, by Hearst News Service.)

By Manuel Vizcaya. MADRID, April 7.-Dispatches received from the Canary Islands tell of the enthusiasm caused there by the arrival of King Alfonso, whose visit to the African archipelago is the first ever made by a Spanish monarch to a Spanish ultra marine possesion.

Of all the once immense colonial empire of Spain, the Canary Islands alone remain under the Spanish flag, and, while the sovereignty of the Castilian monarchs over this group is de facto acknowledged and recoknized by all, the Spanish influence on the archipelago is less and less every day, owing to the ever increasing influx of British trade, which has necessarily introduced among the islanders a strong pro-British sentiment. Politically, militarily and religiously. the Canary Islands are Spanish, but commercially they are British; and, as there is no stronger bonds than those of commercial relations, it can be ascertained that the only remaining jewel of the Spanish colonial diadem is in imminent risk of falling into the greedy hands of Albion. The Spanirds have always dreaded the English competition in the Canaries, and the present visit of the Spanish king to the islands has no other object than to counterbalance British influence, stirring in the hearts of the stalwart natives the chord of patriot-

In government circles, of course, it is given as a reason for the royal visit the desire of the young king to acknowledge with his presence the appreciation of the mother country for the unshaken fidelity of the "Canarios" to the cause of Spain's national in-

It must be admitted, as a matter of fact, that among the insular subjects of the Spanish crown the natives of Canary have been at all times and under all circumstances those whose loyalty to the red and yellow banner has been more pronounced. Far from revolting against the metropolis as the Cubans and Filipinos constantly did, the "Canarios" always took up arms in favor of Spain and lost many lives on the bloody battlefields of the Cuban revolutions.

Mme. Martial has been very sad, and her friends had hoped that she would dressing department too high, and forget her sorrow in work. The play, whether he could do anything to reforget her sorrow in work. The play, however, has not turned out as great a success as she had hoped, and in a moment of utter discouragement she has sought oblivion in death.

The event has caused a great stir

Spanish custom associated with the queen of Spain will not be carried out by Princess Ena of Battenberg when she becomes the wife of King Alfonso, owing to a fear of wounding the susceptibilities of the nitra-Protestant party in England. The custom consisted in presenting the wedding dress to the Black Virgin of Atocha. The old church of Atocha, in Madrid, has been pulled down, and the image of the virgin transferred to the suburbs. This removal is given at the excuse for the breaking off of this ancient custom. Few people are aware that the bride-elect's mother always attended mass when she stayed with the ex-Empress Eugenie, and that she has always leaned toward the Catholic

Going to Olympic Games

It has now been definitely decided that King Edward and Queen 'Alexandra will both be present, as guests of the king of Greece, at the Olympic games which are to be held at Athens at the end of April.

The list of competitors is now filling up with the names of amateurs distinguished in all branches of sport Lord Howard de Walden, the greatest catch in the matrimonial marke and one of the richest peers in England, has decided to fence agains Lord Desborough, better known al-Mr. W. all-round sportsmen in England. Two young men belonging to the most distinguished families in the Jewish community in London will also take part in the games. Mr. S. S. Abrahams, who won a great many prizes for running at Oxford, has entered for two races, and Mr. Edgar Seligmann, who belong: to the English branch of the banking family of New York, will show what he can do with the foil.

It is feared that with so many soclety people going to Athens in the train of the king the beginning of the London season will be spoiled.

To Probe Art Purchase

The last has not been heard of the famous picture by Velasquez of "Venus With the Mirror," which has been secured for the nation at a cost of

Mr. Edmund Gosse, the author and art critic, is determined that the details of the purchase shall be probed to the bottom.

Whenever a great work of art is on sale in London, the dealers at once suggest that Mr. Pierpont Morgan is offering a huge sum to take it to his own country. This announcement, carefully circulated, is always sufficient to enhance the value of the object of art. In the case of this famous Velasquez olcture there is no doubt that something in the nature of a scandal will arise very shortly. Sooner or later, amateur art critics declare, the methods of certain art collectors who impose largely upon Americans of wealth, will be exposed.

At least amateur art collectors devotedly hope that they will be. If Mr. Gosse pushes his inquiries far enough it is believed that a very curious state of affairs will be revealed.

Thanks to the insistance of Patrick O'Brien the charges in the barber shop of the house of commons have now been reduced so as to suit the labor and Irish members. The question of the charges was raised in the house by Mr. O'Brien, who solemnly inquired of the first commissioner of works if he was aware that the members of the house considered the charges in the hair-

Reserve $2,500,800 Less Than Legal Requirements-Values Only Slightly Affected

Special to The Telegram. NEW YORK, April 7.-Stock values held up very well today, considering the existing conditions in the monetary situation, which portends an imminent crisis in the financial world, without . quick relief is forthcoming. The important development today was the bank statement, which traders had anticipated would show a very unsatisfactory condition, but hardly expected that it would be as unfavorable as the figures indicated when given to the public. The reserve is now $2,500,000 under the legal requirements, while the total deficit is $6,502,505. Prior to the issuance of the statement the market had been ruling rather quiet, with the principal activity among holders of long stocks, who, being averse to carrying their committments over Sunday, took refuge in liquidation, resulting in a fractional lowering of values. The bank statement served to rather increase operations of this character, and although support was sufficient to prevent a serious break, the market closed easy, with the majority of issues near the lowest of the day, showing substantial fractional declines, while Union Pacific lost 11/2 points. LIVERPOOL, April 7 .- The cotton market exhibited surprising strength for a week-end session. Opening prices were unchanged with the market quiet, but heavy buying supposed to be for the American bull crowd soon started prices upward and the close was firm, with old crop positions 5 points net higher and distant options 4 points higher. The enormous weekly rate of consumption indicated by the visible supply statement was the principal factor in the advance. Spots were steady with prices 4 points higher at 6.10d for American middling. Sales, 8,000 bales, of which 5,830 were American. Imports, 15,-000 bales, 9,800 American. Following are the opening and closing prices for futures:

Trade Notes Handle the bull just as you would dynamite. He is just as dangerous. Don't breed horses with weak feet. If the foot is no good the horse is useless.

Give all stock outdoor exercise and fresh air, but do not expose them to a cold rain. Don't be in a hurry to get the stock on grass. It is too julcy to contain much neurishment.

more or less of a burden. Somehow or other the former President connected this farm with his sentimental feeling

What deserving class of boys, he asked himself one day, are, as a class most frequently cheated out of a good He decided that it was the class of boys whose parents were poor and who had large families to support. The parents must count upon the help of their children. As soon as the boys were able to go to work they must go out into the world and assist in the support of the younger brothers and sisters. They had no chance of gaining the education they deserved. Cleveland confided his ideas to Professor Peter Froam, a young university man who relished the idea of studying social economics from close range, and so it was decided, very quietly, to | scheme and announced that the colony turn the farm over to Professor Froam must be abandoned.

and the sons of poor parents with large families. tory, which became very much cramped for space when Professor Froam's ardor in inviting boys to join the colony brought sixty lads, between the ages of 10 and 18, into the fold. At one time there were at least seventy-five boys in the small house. The settlement scheme involved work upon the farm by all of the boys. They were to cultivate corn, wheat, hay and garden products and the younger ones were to be mainly interested in raising chickens for the

Then Professor Froam was to tutor them all, imparting to them at least a skeleton of a university education. They were to consider themselves selfsupporting for the work they did on

One day Grover Cleveland went to inspect the workings of his new charity. The stories of what happened are conflicting. One is that he was much annoyed because of the large number of boys in small quarters. Another is that he was out of accord with Professor Froam's system of manage-

$5.00 CASH PRIZE FOR LINER READERS

DAY, APRIL 8, 1906

NA STYAE

The Telegram offers a prize of $5 to the person showing a receipt for the largest number of articles purchased this week through the medium of Liner Advertisements. Look through the Liner columns and see if there is not something advertised there you want. If there is, and you purchase one or more articles, be sure and take a receipt for the money you pay for your purchase. Send in a list and the cost of the articles so that it will reach The Telegram office not later than Monday noon, April 1, and you may have a $5 check mailed to you the next day. The Telegram will have three judges who will examine the lists sent in and in case that a number of people send in the same number of purchases or trades, they will award the prize to the person whom in their judgment, has secured the best bargain. Goods put up in packages will be counted as one article; such as a box of matches or a paper of pins, etc. In the case of a set of dishes for instance, each dish will be counted. The Telegram is offering this prize to stimulate interest in the perusal of the little Liner ads. The variety of articles advertised in the Liner column cover almost everything that can be bought or sold. Look the list over in today's Celegram. If you are not in the habit of reading the classified pages you will probably be surprised and astonished at the variety of things offered for sale or exchange. Get in the habit of reading these columns daily and if you do not get the $5 prize you will andoubtedly make a number of purchases in the course of time that will save you an amount far in excess of the prize money offered today. Should you become interested in the Liner, columns through this offer and purchase some one of the advertised articles, do not let the fact that you have only one purchase to send in deter you from entering the contest. Everyone may have the same idea and it may happen that some person wha only buys one thing may walk off with the $5.

Remember that if a number of people send in the same number of articles purchased, the prize will be awarded to the one making the best trade. This will give everyone a chance to win. The contest begins in today's paper and closes with next Saturday's issue of April 14. The prize will be awarded Tuesday, April 17, and announced in The Telegram of the same day.

Texas. Be it ordained by the city council of the city of Fort Worth: Section 1. It shall hereafter be unlawful for any person, firm or corporation to cut into the surface of Belknap, Weatherford, First, Second, Third, Fourth, Fifth, Sixth, Seventh, Ninth, Tenth, Eleventh, Twelfth, Thirteenth, Fourteenth and Fifteenth streets between Throckmorton and Calhoun streets in the city of Fort Worth, for any purpose whatsoever, unless upon the written permit of the city engineer. Section 2. Prior to the issuance of a permit for such work, the city engineer shall require a cash or equivalent deposit of a sum of money sufficient in his judgment to refill any cut about to be made into any of said streets with suitable cement concrete, and to replace any paving that Phone 2197.

may exist thereon, such moneys shall be deposited by the city engineer with the city treasurer who shall hold the same in a special fund until such time as the city engineer shall make cer-tificate that the work for which said deposit was made has been properly done and the trenches and paving properly refilled and replaced. However, as soon as said filling and repairs and replacing have been satis-factorily made and the city engineer shall have so certified in writing, the city treasurer shall refund the full amount of the said deposit to the party depositing same. However, in case the person, firm or corporation digging into the surface of the said street shall fail to properly do the things herein provided for and obtain the said certificate of the said city engineer, then the said city engineer shall be and is hereby authorized to do the same and charge the cost thereof against the deposit as aforesaid, and the party making the deposit shall only be entitled to receive the balance of his deposit after there has been charged against the same the cost of the work done as aforesaid. Section 3. Any person violating the provisions of this ordinance shall upon conviction in the corporation court be fined in any amount not less than ten dollars and not more than one hundred dollars.

Section 4. All ordinances and parts

WE WANT YOU TO

Come to the office of the North Fort Worth Townsite Company, on Main street, at head of Exchange avenue, in North Fort Worth, tomorrow, or at any time, and get acquainted with us. We have Real Estate for sale and want to take you out for a drive and show you what we have and tell you what we can do for you. You want a good place to live, don't you? All right, we have the best for the money you can get anywhere. You want to have your own home? You want it worth the money? And conveniently located? And certainly you want it where it will be a first-class investment? And you would like to buy on easy terms. If there is anything more you may want, come out and have a talk with us. What we want is to have you so you will be in a position to

OWN YOUR HOME

In a locality that will answer the above questions and many more. We have here in North Fort Worth everything that is making Fort Worth and its suburbs. What is that? Just what we said! Packing houses that are the most modern in the country, and which are increasing their capacity daily; stock yards that are the best anywhere, largest horse and mule market south and west of Kansas City, oil mills, cotton mills, ice factories, marble works, machine and car shops, elevators and any number of smaller industries, offering employment for several thousand people. We already have a city of some 10,000 people, but we want you too. We have as good artesian water as any place in the country; and piped all over town, electric lights, first-class graded schools, stores where you can get anything, and car service as good as in cities many times our size and three times as good as in Fort Worth proper,

WHERE VALUES GROW

Where a home purchased by the parents of children may be sold by those same children when they are parents for a hundred fold more than the original purchase price. How many people are there today who can look back to the time when their parents had opportunities to buy a home for the one-hundredth part of what the property they have in mind is selling for today? Remember that history repeats itself. Why should people continue to pay big rents and be subjected to the whims and caprices of grasping landlords when they can pay the same amount of money into the office of the North Fort Worth Townsite Company and have it credited up to their account? Every day of the year people are making up their minds to do this very thing; just as every day of the year children are being born into the world. Think this over. It sounds rather sermon like, but is true, every word of it, and the growth of North Fort Worth attests to the fact that hundrens have already been converted to the idea that it is a good thing to own a home. In North Fort Worth new houses, both business and residence, are springing up like mushrooms. We want to warn everybody that we will not be responsible for people not owning their own homes. If they desire to sleep a few days longer and then come to see us we can probably oblige them by saying that some other fellow has the lot they wanted. We have been selling more lots the past few weeks than ever, and no one need expect to wait a year and have the choice offered now.

All coal miners in the employ of the Albert Railway and Coal company at Lethbridge and Alta, 200 miles north of Great Falls, Mont., struck for an increase in wages and other concessions. About 100 men are out.

Nearly 7,000 new members were admitted into the order of Railroad Telegraphers the past year. During that time the order arranged new or revised schedules with thirty-four railroad companies.

Plans are under way at Minneapolis, Minn., for the formation of a consumers' league, the main object of which will be to combine the purchasing pow-ney factories had suffered. Mechanical Superintendent George W. Wildin of the Erie railroad company has issued orders suspending 10comotive repair work at all shops on the system. The action is said to be due to the threatened coal strike. The Sydney (Australia) labor council has passed a resolution congratulating the workers of Great Britain upon their successes at the recent elections, and expressing hopes for future Chicago, Ill., painters have won an important victory. They recently obtained an increase of 5 cents an hour in wages, which in the aggregate, means about $4,500 a day to the members of the craft. Because of the energetic attitude taken by organized labor in Santa Clara county, California, against the employment of Mongolians, at least one-half of the Chinese and Japanese have alrady been discharged. The French Chamber of Deputies unanimously voted $100,000 for the relief of the victims of the Courrieres coal mine disaster. The Miners' Association has voted $40,000 for the same purpose. A lady factory inspector in Pennsylvania discovered violations of the child labor law in the factory of the Lehigh Valley Silk company of South Bethlehem, and the president and superintendent of the company were arrested and fined. Charities for the seamen in New York and Boston will receive $350,000 out of a bequest of $1,250,000 set apart for such use by the terms of the will of the late Lord Inverciyde, president of the Cunard line, who died in Lon-

SOUTHERN TEXAS NEEDING RAIN

Rush of Cattle Expected if Conditions Do Not Improve

The great southwestern part of Texas, so long considered but a big cow ranch, has suddenly assumed importance as a producer of horticultural products and its lands have become in value the equal of the best in the

"I have lived in Texas now twenty years and have had charge of the Laureles ranch all the time," said Captain John Told, "and have seen some wonderful changes in that time. The Laureles ranch was the property of Colonel Kennedy at the time it was purchased by a lot of Scotch gentlemen, and contained 300,000 acres. It is located east of Corpus Christi and miles on the bay of that name, and is Madre, which divides it from Padre Island. It has a fine steamer landing, known as the Flower Bluff, and altogether is a very desirable place, not alone as a cattle ranch, but as a residence also. Several years after the purchase from Kennedy, 110,000 acres ere resold to the Kennedy heirs and the ranch new contains only 190,090 cres. It is a remarkably fine ranch and when ever the owners decide to sell it out for agricultural purposes it will be eagerly sought by farmers. Stock Thriving "All kinds of stock do well and, for stock farming, I do not know of a better part of the state. It is wonderful how vegetables grow and the great profit that is to be made per acre. Of course every one has heard of the fine onion crops that have become part of the history of our section, and all that has been said is so, but there are not many who have paid much attention to the money to be made in cabbages. Down in the center of the Laureles ranch there is a spot of about 15,000 acres that is so covered with chaparral that it is almost an impossibility to work cattle in it, and as it was a harbor for the wild stock of past days, it became a kind of sore place to the owners of the ranch. To relieve the situation, 'clonel Kennedy, who then owned the ranch, had a strong wire fence strung around the 15,000 acres. This land, or part of it, has been put into cultivaion and its fertility is something astonishing. One man with twenty acres in cabbage realizes $100 per acre and grumbles if anything should make him fail to realize that amount. We actually have cotton gins down there, and plenty of cotton to keep them

"Poll Durhams and Herefords are the class of cattle the ranch runs, about two-thirds Durhams and one-third Herefords. Water in Abundance

"We have plenty of water at a small lepth, and it is sweet and wholesome for man and beast. The land seems to hold water like a sponge, and it is no trouble at all to get it. The purity and softness of it is caused, I preume, by the surface water filtering through the sandy soil and settling on a hard subsoil of clay, and all impurities are removed by this natural process of filtration.

Raw Land $3 to $5 Per Acre "While the company does not care to sell its holdings, still land is going up all round the ranch, and in other parts of South Texas. Raw ranch lands are selling now at from $3 to $5 per acre, and in some places as high as $25, but this latter case is for spacial locations, of course. "It is calculated by the railroads and others who are in a position to know that there has been as many as 20,000 people settled down in that section in very short time, and there seems to be no end to the stream that is steadiy pouring in "Yes, the Laureles is a good bit of a ranch, but when you begin to stand it up along side of Mrs. King's 1,000,-000-acre one, it does not show up as such a big proposition. There are several other large ones, such as Kennedy's, 500,000 acres, and Ed Lasseter's of 1,000,000 acres. These are big propositions and will soon make the owners very rich, much richer than they are now. The Frisco system has built a road down through that country to Brownsville and back east to Houston and Galveston, and it runs right through the King ranch and that of Lassiter. Mrs. King has a division of the road established on her place, and Falfurias, a new town, has been located on Lassiter's ranch, and already is a place of considerable importance. "Grass down with us around Corpus Christi is in fine condition, as we have had plenty of rain and no frost to hurt at all. There will be a lot of stuff shipped out this year, and in good condition. Of course the seasons are much milder than up here, and everything is much farther advanced than here. Cotton is on the market down our way in June, that is the first bale is, and that is long before it has begun to grow very big up here. AlDon't Poison Baby.

FORTY YEARS AGO almost every mother thought her child must have PAREGORIO or laudanum to make it sleep. These drugs will produce sleep, and A FEW DROPS TOO MANY will produce the SLEEP FROM WHICH THÊRE IS NO WAKING. Many are the children who have been killed or whose health has been ruined for life by paregoric, laudanum and morphine, each of which is a narcotic product of opium. Druggists are prohibited from selling either of the narcotics named to children at all, or to anybody without labelling them "poison." The definition of "narcotic" is: "A medicine which relieves pain and produces sleep, but which in poisonous doses produces stupor, coma, convulsions and death." The taste and smell of medicines containing opium are disguised, and sold under the names of "Drops," "Cordials," "Soothing Syrups," etc. You should not permit any medicine to be given to your children without you or your physician know of what it is composed. CASTORIA DOES NOT CON-TAIN NARCOTICS, if it bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

Letters from Prominent Physicians addressed to Chas. H. Fletcher.

Dr. J. W. Dinsdale, of Chicago, Ill., says: "I use your Castoria and advise its use in all families where there are children." Dr. Alexander E. Mintie, of Cleveland, Ohio, says: "I have frequently prescribed your Castoria and have found it a reliable and pleasant remedy for children." Dr. J. S. Alexander, of Omaha, Neb., says: "A medicine so valuable and beneficial for children as your Castoria is, deserves the highest praise. I had it in use everywhere." Dr. J. A. McClellan, of Buffalo, N. Y., says: "I have frequently prescribed your Castoria for children and always got good results. In fact I use

Castoria for my own children." Dr. J. W. Allen, of St. Louis, Mo., says: "I heartily endorse your Castoria. I have frequently prescribed it in my medical practice, and have always found it to do all that is claimed for it." Dr. C. H. Glidden, of St. Paul, Minn., says: "My experience as a practitioner with your Castoria has been highly satisfactory, and I consider it an excellent remedy for the young."

Dr. H. D. Benner, of Philadelphia, Pa., says: "I have used your Castoria as a purgative in the cases of children for years past with the most happy effect, and fully endorse it as a safe remedy."

Dr. J. A. Boarman, of Kansas City, Mo., says: "Your Castoria is a splendid remedy for children, known the world over. I use it in my practice and have no hesitancy in recommending it for the complaints of infants and children."

Dr. J. J. Mackey, of Brooklyn, N. Y., says: "I consider your Castoria an excellent preparation for children, being composed of reliable medicines and pleasant to the taste. A good remedy for all disturbances of the digestive organs."

The average temperature during March was 8 degrees below that of any record with us. It has been so wet that oats have not been planted yet, and the people have become very much discouraged, indeed, and are afraid to come south to Texas and buy some of the good lands of the state. In fact, some have already come down and invested in and about Faifurias, in South Texas, and are delighted with the country and its productions. Land down there is going at from $5 to $25 per acre, and this is a good thing in the eyes of the people of Kansas, who have high-priced land and can only raise certain crops; that is if it don't get too cold or too wet or some other old thing interferes with

"There will be many thousands of people from up in Kansas, Iowa, Wisconsin, Nebraska and the other states of the northwest who will come to Texas, now that they have found out the good things that are in store for them down here, and once they are started the stream will not easily be checked. It is not much use to work for foreign immigration for Texas, when thousands of good true Americans will be coming this way to fill up the whole land. The die has been cast and nothing can prevent the American people from settling up the lands of Texas and Mexico in the near future, and when they do there will be no country on earth that will equal it in productive capacity, that will support more people to the acre than any other spot on the footstool. I will remain only a short time on this trip, but will come again soon. Easter Eve in Italy On Easter eve the people of all parts of Italy play upon instruments and sing before the shrines of the Virgin Mother of Christ with the poetic idea of assuaging her grief for the death of her beloved Son. Italy pays great attention to the decoration of the churches, and the Easter decoration in Italy is probably more elaborate than in any other country. On Easter eve young men and women assemble at the churches and aid in their decoration, a collation being served on the completion of the pious work.

Egg Smashing in Rural England Egg contests survive in many rural parts of England. A popular game is that of egg smashing. Eggs are pitted against each other in a shell breaking contest, the owner of the egg that cracks the other taking the spoils home in a bucket for an omelet. In Northumberland if a man asks a woman for an egg on Easter and is refused he may take off her shoes and keep them until she pays a penalty. If a man refuses the egg to a woman, she snatches away his cap and holds it for redemption by a money forfeit.

ASTER inspires the world of dress with renewed energies and ambitions. It's the inaugural of spring-spring dress is the correct dress. We take on lighter-lighter underwear-and the winter hats give way to hats for spring. This whole store is called into play to furnish the new, and imbibes the spirit of the new season and bows to her laws of dress.

We've prepared so well that selling well is bound to be the consequence. Shelves are full, tables are well weighted with the hundreds of garments you are likely to call for. We haven't passed a possible want. Suits in light fabrics, the new grays in profusion. (you know it's a season of gray), hence we're strong on grays in the fancy mixtures, checks and broken plaids and shadow weaves, that attest a store's ability and taste. We believe we've selected these fabrics as you'd select your own. We've gone further and got exclusive control here of the best of them. The blues and blacks are stronger in point of plentifulness, because every man wants a dark suit, no matter how many fancy ones he has. The several makers who have fashioned these cloths into finished garments for us have put their best efforts into them. The drafter, the cutter and every workman that aids in building these garments are experts. If you'd follow these garments through the process of construction you'd see how thoroughly the work is done.

NEWS, REVIEWS AND COMMENT OF THE NEW BOOKS AND MAGAZINES

, THE QUICKENING

A character somewhat new in literature, but well known in life in the southern part of the United States, is Tom-Jeff Gordon, hero in Francis Lynde's new novel, "The Quickening" (Bobbs-Merrill Company).

Some of the others in the plot, Nan Bryerson for instance, are like unto ple met both in literature and in real life, "The Quickening" being probably a nearer approach to reality on white paper and enjoyable type than any novel issued of late. The "Major" we have all met, known and loved. And he is not yet bombastic, white moustached, tippling braggadocio that have been encountered in other books containing the "Majors" of the southern type. He is genuine. Proud he is, who isn't?—but his pride is the result of eons of mastership born and bred in the bones of natural aristocracy. It is a pride known and revered in the southland for its frank, open expression. Hating an enemy In frankness, bitterly and without intermission, the "Major" was ever trae to his friends and practiced a chivalry that was not surpassed in the palmiest days of knighthood,

While the character of Tom-Jeff Gordon is somewhat highly colored, having at times a simplicity marked, when compared with his loftiness at other times, yet, in all likelihood, there are men who, actuated by the same natural kindly feelings, would have shown themselves forth as fools, in the eyes of their friends who think them innocent of wrong doing, and knaves, in the eyes of their enemies and "the rest of the

Ardea Dabney, daughter of Major Dabney, is a woman and true in every sense of the words that, especially to southerners, are synonymous, for a heroine must be recognized as a real woman and therefore "true blue." One objection to be found in the plot of "The Quickening" is encountered in the characters of Colonel Farley and his son, Vincent, who are drawn by the pen of the astute authar as promoters of the designs of the class capitalistic and having natures antagonistic to one whose confidence they gain, that is, Major, Dabney. Probably this injection of class feel ing aids the sale of the book and the receiver, for that matter, is not so nearly fit to judge of such characters in as intimate a view as that attempt ed by the author of "The Quickening," to be left to form a more decided opinion based on personal knowledge or belief. Further than this, it is also well for an alleged critic to remember that a poor character well handled often adds beauty to the crown of laurel placed on the modest hero's brow at the end of the last chapter. The reader, too, may gain in this a valuable suggestion, since a reviewer to be available for the good of the public (all newspapers are supposed to be for the people) must consider all books in a double light; from a known standpoint of modern literary merit as portraying scenes in good loca color, with decent diction and a definite plan of fiction, as well as from the vantage point of the great body of book lovers constituting the patronage of publishers. In "The Quickening" the characters of Colonel Farley and his son, Vincent are mild-mannered, scheme-making villains and, as such, receive the just condemnation of all right-minded people who read the book. There is some shrewd juggling performed by the writer in handling these Farley people, which is better appreciated in the second and third readings of the book. "The Quickening" will very likely be printed in several quickly consumed editions after other books too numerous to mention have had their copyrights expire disgustingly—deeply dead. It is a book to appeal to the masses of the American people.

NEW BOOKS

The Real "Sage Brush Parson"

Following hard upon the announcement that the name A. B. Ward on the itle page of "The Sage Brush Parson," the popular new novel of life in a Nevada mining camp, stands for Alice Ward Bailey, an Amherst, Mass., author, comes the disclosure that the hero of the book, drawn from life, is n reality George Wharton James, known from Boston to Los Angeles as a lecturer and writer on the Grand Canon of Arizona, the Indians of the Painted Desert region, Indian basketry and the old missions of California.

Mr. James' actual experiences in the sage brush wastes of Nevada twentyfive years ago would be sufficient to make an interesting book, but Mrs. Bailey has conceived an uncommonly absorbing plot, abounding in dramatic

As the story runs, Rev. Clement Vaughan, "the parson," a Methodist inister from England (where he has left his wife), settles down as a missionary in the mining town of Eureka in the early '80s. Eureka was known at that time as the roughest and most Godforsaken mining camp in Nevada. Vaughan, the striking hero, with his dual nature made up of religious fervor and human passion, discovers that the miners demand that their religion, as their whisky, go down like a buzz saw, and this Nevada sky pilot gives them what they want. An attachment between Vaughan and Kate Chisholm, a charming young widow, is ripening when Vaughan's wife arrives on the scene from England. There is a scene, a tragic denouement, and-well, the book ends happily.

While it is impossible for the ordinary reader to segregate fact from fiction in "The Sage Brush Parson," there still live many old Nevada miners who will recognize the truthful descriptions of the third chapter of the book, entitled "A Service at Lou Pugh's." Drinking, gambling and dancing were suspended to give the parson "full swing for an hour." to quote Lou Pugh. Vaughan's best friend was Jack Perry, a saloon keeper, who, strange to say, becomes one of the stanch supporters of the parson's "hanky-panky shop," as the mission is called. Jack Perry, as well as Pere Hyacinthe and Mat Kyle, who appear in the story, are well-known characters who lived in Eureka, Nev., twenty-five years ago, and it will not be difficult for people who lived there at that time to recognize the original of Haverford, the Episcopalian minister of the place—the very antithesis of Vaughan. The funeral of Charlie Davenport, the gambler, is also a true picture.

Charlie's record was not an enviable one, and Vaughan, who was requested to hold the funeral ceremony and "do the job way up in G," was at a loss to know what to say. To quote from the book:

"After the usual funeral service, when the religious rites had been observed at the church and the grave, the crowd still lingered. The funeral committee, Bill and Jim, made their way to the spot where the parson stood. "'Why don't you shoot off your demanded Bill in a low mouth?" whisper. 'The boys expect you to give They won't go home with-

"'Give 'em hell?" replied Vaughan, "'Mean? Why, give 'em some chin music hot on both sides and sulphur between. Give 'em hell, and be damn quick about it. The crowd's gettin'

"So that was what they wanted, thought the young tenderfoot clergyman; judgment, not eulogy. They wanted fire. They wanted their religion to 'go down like a buzz saw,' as the cowboy demanded of his dram.

Very well, they should have it." The funeral address, as given in the book, probably has no parallel in his-

Tales

The Russian novel, which appears complete in translation in the April issue of Tales, is a convincing evidence of the power and genius of the best Russian authors. Under the title "The Cult of Mammon," A. K. Mikhailov has written a story that stands as a classic in Russian literature. It is a remarkable work whether con sidered merely as an intensely dramatic and absorbing story, an exposition of manners, or a study of character. One critic has called it a Russian "Vanity Fair," and the comparison is not inapt, when due allowances are made for the difference between the Russian and the English point of view. The story appears in Tales in an adequate English rendering, and should be read by everyone who wishes to gain an idea of the qualities that have placed the Russians in the front rank of novelists of

THE SHADOW

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

TO get all you can and to keep all you get, That was the motto his young life set.

He spelled Success with letters of gain

Love went by him-he said, "Well lost,

"Toil, that tailors be housed and fed.

And heap on heap-'tis a goodly sight." Want, though worthy, and need, though great,

He held, as always, the spendthrift's fate.

Pleasure he pushed from his path aside,

And even Comfort he thrust from his door,

Friendship he scouted, "for what is a friend,

And ask no favors, and none bestow.

And serve me," he boasted, "for wealth is power.

"But whether men curse me, or whether they bless, Matters but little—I seek success."

A hideous shadow behind him crept.

She dogged his footsteps, and bided her time. "I am ready," she grinned, as he reached his prime.

She peered through the window, and chuckled to see How he counted his gold with a miser's glee.

Then close beside him he saw her stand, And he clutched his treasure with trembling hand.

"Nay, not your treasure I seek," quoth she, "Leave them behind you and follow me."

He shook with terror-"Not yet, I pray-Give me a year, or a month, or a day.

"I will scatter my gold, I will do kind deeds, I will seek my fellows, and give to their needs.

"Oh, much could I do ere another dawn!" Death answered briefly, "Too late, come on!"

But all his money he left. And so I trust he is musing on that same thought:

"I got all I could and kept all I got."

That wealth is a very small part of success.

as with the home of the very rich. But the abiding place of each is a home. Each fails when measured by the standard of the others. This very essential fact is apt to be overlooked by those who find it their duty to enlarge on the homelike qualities of certain homes and their absence from others. It is a serious mistake to deny homelike qualities to expensive dwellings .- From American Homes and Gardens for April.

"Shave Joe Wheeler"

A few years ago in a southern city, a man was arrested and placed in jail on a charge of involving a real estate transaction. He claimed to be a British subject and invoked the aid of the British government. The New York Herald requested its local correspondent to send a story of the affair with a picture of the man held in duress. The story was forwarded, but a photograph was not to be had. No pho tographer in the city had ever had the man before his camera and he could not be prevailed on to sit for a likeness. A snapshot in the dim light of his cell was out of the question, and the jailer resolutely refused to interfere. From the Herald after its receipt of the story, came a message by wire: "Must have picture." The correspondent pondered for a time over his inability to secure any sort of a likeness of the man and then it occurred to him that the prisoner bore some resemblance to a famous cavalry leader, minus his beard. Promptly he wired to the Herald: "Shave Joe Wheeler."—Walter B. Whitman in Holland's Magazine for

Of No Consequence

An official of a trans-Atlantic steamship line tells of the excitement on board one of his company's vessels several days out from Liverpool, caused by an accident to the steering gear, a mishap trifling enough in reality, but which rumor magnified. The captain was soon approached by a lady passenger. "Is it true, captain," asked she, anxiously, "that we have lost one of our screws?" "Not at all, madam," was the reply difficulty with one of them, but it has been repaired, so that now everything is all right." "Well, I'm very glad to hear that," responded the lady, with a relieved look, "although I was far from sharing the apprehension of the rest of the passengers. After all," she added re-

Elevated Road Hangs In Air To relieve congested traffic conditions in Berlin, Germany, it is proposed to erect a mono-rail suspended electric railway, such as has been for some time in successful operation between Eberfeed and Barmen, Germany, writes Dr. Alfred Gardenwitz in Technical World Magazine for April. The passenger cars in this system hang down from a single overhead rail and have no support whatever underneath. Advantages of the system are its perfect safety, the fact that the superstructure is comparatively simple and does not shut out the light and air as does an ordinary elevated structure and the further fact that in operation the mono-rail cars are almost completely noiseless. It seems probable that the mono-rail suspended system will be adopted in

Luxuries of Girlhood An interesting picture of a young girl's life in the palaces of the very rich is offered by Emily Harrington in her article, "Housekeeping on Half-a-Million a Year," in the April Everybody's. She says: "The luxuries to which these children, particularly the young girls, are early accustomed, are, it seems to an outsider, of dubious advantage. The 14-year-old daughter of such a home remarked one day, 'I was looking for a brooch that I missed and found nine that I had forgotten all about.' Every one of these brooches was studded with gems. This girl's private suite of rooms was as luxurious as those already described, although the ap-pointments were appropriate to her of the officer. "There was some little | age. Her sitting room was furnished sions. I myself enjoy clever, keen-witted, sparkling girls like Dorothy and her sister Elizabeth, but then, too, I am very fond of girls of an opposite type; girls like Janet and Nellie, who have to work very faithfully for all they get in the school room. I suppose the truth is that girls appeal to me just because they are girls. One thing flectively, "why should we worry, even I know, and that is that if anybody, if there was something the matter clever or dull, wishes to attain a high rank in study, she must grind. Let me with the screw? It's under the water and doesn't show."-Woman's Home put it in capitals—GRIND! Work hardest where you are least attracted.

> tenths of the youthful contributors to his magazine was their facility. "They do sketchy things and slovenly things and superficial things," he said, "because they have never learned the value of real work." Girls, a tiny diamond flashing like a dewdrop in the sun, or a single lustrous pearl, or green emerald holding the tints of the deep sea in its flashing heart, is worth a cart load of rhinestones. A very little bit of gold is worth more than a yard of gold leaf. What you win by resolute effort is yours forever. You have not only gained a certain amount of knowledge, you have not only mastered a certain theory, or found out how to state a certain proposition, but you have masthe German capital. tered yourself, you have made your mind obey you, and you have become the readier to undertake the next thing that dares to baffle you. I wouldn't, if I were Dorothy, say quite so broadly that I despised what I did not understand. There is many a mystery that unfolds itself to us in strange beauty, once we have penetrated beyond its gates. There are numbers of things that never reveal to us their secrets simply because we haven't learned their alphabet. I cannot believe that any schoolgirl of today would unwillingly endure to be classed among the lazy and the heedless and the trivial souls, who never see an inch of the way before them. In your last vacation, when you went to the mountains, you started one morning on a long jaunt. You walked and climbed and toiled up a steep and brier-haunted path, scrambling here,

Easter Goblins

Novelties in the Easter line are goblins made out of eggs. For this purpose the contents of an egg are removed through a hole in one end, and on the shell is painted a funny face. Then with a little ingenuity legs and arms are attached, and even a cap may be added, thus producing a very comic effect. Equally amusing is an "egg rocker," which is made by pouring sealing wax and then melted lead fractions, and never can find her way | through an opening in one end of an collect at the other end, the natural contents having been previously removed by blowing. Then the shell is painted with a comic face, and a dress and cap are added, the result being a figure of fun that will always persist in sitting upright, no matter how it is disturbed.

> An Odd Easter Festival An odd Easter observance was arranged by the management of the Hotel Majestic in New York for its guests and friends last Easter Sunday, says the New York Times. Some 400 guests and their friends assembled in the foyer. A barnyard scene on a large scale, with chickens, ducks and rabbits, had been fitted up, and there was a good sized hustic house with straw roof, in which a choir of eight adult voices and a boys' surpliced choir of ten voices sang a number of Easter hymns. On every pillar in the foyer were hung two bird cages, with a canary in each cage, and these sang all during the festival. An organ, chimes and orchestra furnished Easter

On meeting friends, relatives or even mere acquaintances on Easter morning it is the custom to exchange the same greeting that passed between the priest and people on the "Great Sabbath" service. The woman who is not busy is so rare that she ought to be labeled and exhibited in a museum as an obsolete specimen of the daughters of Eve. The woman who is at once busy and fussy, who makes a point of exploiting the fact that she can never catch up with her work, who is hurried, worried and preoccupied because she is cumbered with care, is to be met in almost every house on our block. The exceptional woman who being busy still keeps her frets and cares in the background, who is serene and tranquil and accomplishes things without haste and without waste, is the finest type of American womanhood. When we meet her we acknowledge that we are in the presence of a queen regnant. She manages her affairs; they do not manage her. She may sometimes be tired.

A man may inquire "what are women busy about?" Some of them, it may be replied, are very busy in making men comfortable. We are not now discussing those independent bachelors who have established themselves in apartments of somewhat forlorn luxury, aloof from woman's touch and presence, but of the great majority of men who go to business every morning and come home every night. They are fathers, husbands, sons and brothers, and their clothing is brushed and repaired, their beds are made and their tables are spread for them by the provident hands of the women they ily turning her head from side to side, trying the effect of her new Easter bonnet. Her hair is coiled a little too low for the new shape, and, as it is long before church time, she pulls it, down and proceeds to rearrange it. The average woman usually falls to thinking while fixing her hair, and she is only an average woman with the average human experience, so as she slowly twists and pins the long hair before she knows it her thoughts have slipped back over several years. Almost unwillingly she thinks of another Easter, when those streaks of gray were not seen in the brown, glossy coil and when the delicate, refined face which the mirror gives back was fresh and rosy and young. As she loops up a braid and turns musing to catch the effect she is living over again the Ash Wednesday preceding that faroff Easter when she had done the foolish thing which was to mean so much for her in after years.

It had all come upon her so sudden-

She stands before her mirror, daint- ly. She and her friend Jeannette had been talking of observing Lent that year, and each had determined to give up for that season the thing that she most delighted in. Then Jeannette had said laughingly:

"You'll not give up the one thing you care for most of all even for a short forty days. You would not fore-go the pleasure of being with Bob Adams, and that's your dearest possession. I know."

She remembers now how indignantly she had denied that she cared for Bob more than for any other young man, and when her friend banteringly repeated, "All the same, you won't cut him for the next forty days," she had impulsively taken up the challenge and had treated him with studied coldness or had shunned him persistently for the following five or six weeks.

It tires one so to keep the arm stretched above the head, so she lets her hair drop for awhile and leans her forehead against the cool surface of the mirror. She is thinking of the miserable days that followed that hasty resolve-how her own suffering had revealed to her how very much she had loved Bob-dear old Bob, who had seemed at first so grieved and perplexed by her altered behavior, but after a while had treated her with a colness to match her own. She did not see much of Jeannette during those weeks, and everything had seemed very dull and stupid. How she had counted the days to Easter! Pride made her keep her promise, but she intended to make it up with Bob on Easter morn-

The first church bells are ringing now, but she does not seem to hear

How daintily she had dressed herself on that wished for morning, and with what a glad heart had she walked up the aisle to her pew, which was just in front of the Adamses,' in which she saw Bob already seated. The music, the flowers, the sunshine, all come back to her now, but then they were all merged into one sensation of happiness, and it was voiced in the thought, "I'll speak to Bob after church and make it up."

How well she remembers how handsome Bob looked as he came forward to greet her when she entered the room. She feels again the awful leap of her heart as she met the glad, warm look in her eyes. All she could say was, "How is Jeannette?"

"Jeanette died in Rome," he answered gravely. "She bade me give this letter to you, and to give it on Easter Sunday morning. I arrived last night and had hoped to meet you first in church this morning. Missing you there, I came on to the old home.' She took the letter from him and opened it slowly. She remembers every word of that brief message: Dear Bessie: I did it all. I made you take that foolish resolve. I made Bob think that you did not care for him. I could not help it, for I loved I have been bitterly punished, for he has never ceased to love you. I have told him all. Lent is over; make him happy this Easter morning. Your repentant JEANNETTE."

She remembers how the evry life seemed to go out of her as she nonchalantly put the letter back in its envelope, handed it to hand and said: "Let us think that I have never had turned in her pew to greet Bob; but, to her surprise, he had gone out already. As she passed down the aisle she had slipped her hand in Daisy Marshall's, and Daisy had given her a loving little squeeze, whispering "What do you think of the latest?"

"What is the latest?" "Why, of course you know-Jeannette's engagement to Bob Adams. Jeannette told me last night. Are you going any way?

The last pin is in place. The new bonnet, satisfactorily adjusted, is very becoming to the sweet face under it. which at present looks a little pale and worn. She is a little tired now and sits down to rest while she draws on her gloves. She resolutely tries to bring her thoughts back to the present but they slip from her and fasten on still another Easter morning. Lent had come very early that year, and Easter morning had been too bleak for her to venture out. Her husband had gone to church alone.

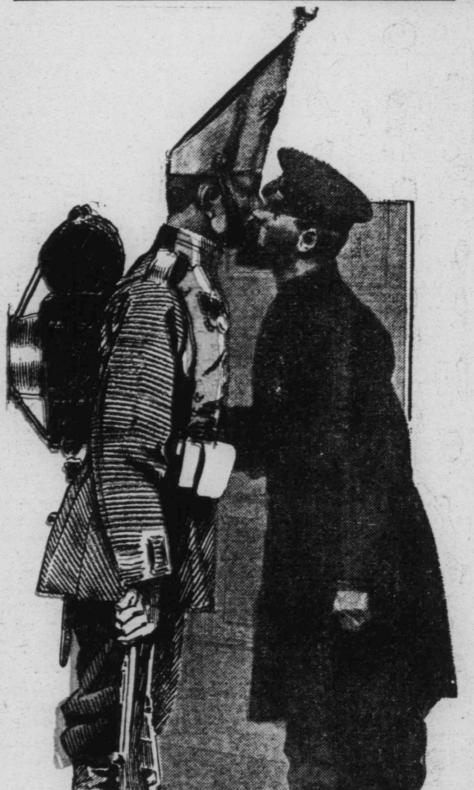

They were staying in the old home then to be with mother, who clung to her so. On that morning she was reading to her mother when a card was to her, and on it the name of "Mr. Robert Adams."

Jeannette and Bob had lived abroad since their marriage, traveling from place to place, and the card was the first intimation of their return. received this letter. I have been Garrett Leighton's wife for two years." Then he had turned and left her. The awful hour that followed-will the pain of it never leave her? When a heart breaks how can it continue to hold so much? Bob is dead now. She will be dead, too, some day, and now she has her home and her boy, and yet -and yet- No one can hear the bitter sobbing, it is so low and stifled.

A few minutes later the Garret Leightons walk quietly to their pew in the flower bedecked, beautiful old church. The little milliner in the gallery nudges her friend and says:
"That's my work on Mrs. Leighton's head. Ain't they a handsome couple? And just as happy as they can be. You ought to see them in their lovely home. Some folks do seem to have everything in this world."-Philadelphia Times.

Easter in the Philippines

Easter in Uncle Sam's new Asiatic archipelago is much more of a festival than it is in this country. All of Easter week in that part of the world is a holiday, and Easter Sunday is given up to jollification. On the morning of Eastern day there are religious processions with many gorgeous and striking accessories, headed by bands of music, followed by acolytes bearing crosses, wreaths of flowers and banners with pious inscriptions. Then come the images of saints, with picturesquely attired friars of various orders bringing up the rear. The afternoon is given up to secular amusements, among which chicken fights occupy a prominent place.

THERE IS A CUSTOM IN RUSSIA TO KISS THE FIRST PER-SON YOU MEET AFTER AWAKENING ON EASTER MORNING. THE CZAR HIMSELF LIVES U P TO THE SUTOM. THE SENTRY AT HIS BEDROOM DOOR IS ALWAYS THE FIRST PERSON HE MEETS, AND THE SOLDIER GETS THE ROYAL KISS.

JAPAN'S EASTER EGG

Triumphs of Art Are These Symbols of Spring

In Japan, where the coming of spring and the bursting into bloom of the cherry trees are made the occasion for an annual festival, the eggs of the Australian ostrich are greatly in demand as an important feature in the joyous festival. It is a far cry indeed from our travesty of an Easter egg, whose pure, delicate surface is actually disfigured by cheap dyes and crude. raw designs, to the exquisite works of art that the Japanese artist puts upon the market to welcome the spring. The Japanese artist always works as if imbued with the thought that God is Nothing that the nimble brown fingers touch is ever slighted, and upon the oval surface of these large eggs the Japanese artists lavish a very wealth of artistic efforts. The natural tint of the egg, a grayish blue, is often retained, and fairy landscapes are traced upon this background, which blends exquisitely with the blue of the sky, distant mountains or tiny lakes and rivers. Again, the egg will be tinted all over by the artist, and the designs are then chosen with great care relative to the ground color. Some of the are those which simulate specimens of cloisonne ware.

Such an egg, gorgeous in gold leaf and rare pigments and inclosed in a wonderfully carved ivory box, was once designed by an obscure artist and sent to the mikado, long years ago, just as the cherry trees were bursting into bloom. The royal recipient sent an immense sum of money to the artist as a mark of his appreciation and ordered him to leave the little country village where he had toiled unknown and come to the imperial city and honor and great renown became his through long years.

Many and various are the designs on the Japanese eggs-dancing geishas and grinning devils, wistaria covered tea houses, with a geisha smiling coy welcome from the tiny porch, and stately temples presided over by solemn, sad-eyed Buddhas, flowery landscapes smiling under sunny skies and lofty mountain peaks wrapped in lowering clouds. All the varieties of Japanese landscape and all the vicissitudes of Japanese life are portrayed on those eggs of the artist in Japan.

In some old countries Easter eggs were believed to have peculiar properties, and a maiden could awaken love in a man's heart by sending him an egg which she had got on Maundy most expensive eggs decorated in Japan Thursday and boiled on Easter eve.

GODDESS OF SPRING

The Pagan Ancestress of a Great Christian Festival

Many of the most popular and curious customs and observances of Easter and Eastertide are of remote and pagan origin. The name Easter itself is undoubtedly derived from the artistic appellation of an ancient Saxon goddess, "Eastre" or "Eostre." This bright lady, ' ll and flaxen haired, was popularly supposed to preside at the annual birth of the spring, when everything was renewed, when earth began to deck herself with flowers and beauty and heaven itself was clearer. She was evidently a relation of Siegfried, and before him of Baldur, all of them types of the glory and beauty that arose in the world when the early spring was born and the days grew longer, as the death of the great saga heroes was also typical of the decline of summer and its death at the hands of the cold and cruel northern winter.

Those beautiful myths appear to have been strangely suggestive and indicative of that great truth which was so soon to follow them-to be born into the world and never to pyramids in the distance.

leave it, come summer, come winterin the person of our Lord Jesus Christ. It was the policy of the early church to give a religious significance to all those ancient and heathen customs which she could not easily uproot. In this case of the not very devoted worship of the goddess Eastre, diluted as it was with the leaven of all manner of social gayety and festive rejoicing, the conversation was not a very difficult matter. The spirit of joy and festivity of the occasion was left untouched. The cause alone was changed, and almost unconsciously the Saxons accepted new reasons and sympathies without having to deviate from their established customs.

Where Eggs Are Worshipped All through northern Africa the worship of eggs is universal. No altar decoration is considered complete without its circle of pendent eggs, and few private houses are without at least one sacred egg. Special designs, appropriate to the purpose for which the eggs are intended, are used. On all eggs devoted to sacred usage a verse from the Koran is inscribed at either end, while the sides are embellished by views of the sacred Nile, with glompses of the sphinx and the
