THIRST AFTER FIRE AND EARTHQUAKE

Thousands of San Franciscans Suffering From Lack of Food and Drinking Water---Heroic Measures Taken for Relief

THE BLAZE IS SLOWLY EATING ITSELF OUT

By Associated Press. SAN FRANCISCO, April 20.—The people of San Francisco, homeless and starving, are facing the awful calamity which has swept the great city practically out of existence with a spirit of resigned fortitude that must command the admiration of the world.

Appalled for the moment, the undaunted bravery exhibited by men, women and children in the face of the overwhelming disaster is evidence that the race is destined to arise stronger than ever out of the ruins which now surround them.

The water is in better supply, but is of little use, apparently, against the headway gained by the fire. The great new Flood building, built by James Flood at a cost of $4,000,000, and only occupied about a year ago; the new Merchants' Exchange building in California street, erected at a cost of $2,000,000; the Crocker building, at Montgomery and Market street, a $1,500,000 structure; the Mills building, at Bush and Montgomery streets, costing the same sum; the new Shreve building, at Post and Grant streets, costing $2,000,000, and occupied by the largest jewelry store on the coast, are some of the new business structures destroyed by the flames.

The Shreve Jewelry Company carried a stock of $2,000,000 worth of jewelry. In Market street, the Phelan building, one of the earliest attempts at pretentious work of architecture in the business district, is gone. The city and county buildings, erected at a cost of $7,000,000, are now half-sprawled ruins, while with the buildings are probably destroyed the city and the county records.

The beautiful St. Francis hotel, facing Union Square and erected at a cost of $4,500,000, and the Fairmont hotel, at California and Powell streets, the most magnificent location in the city, are both to remain. The Fairmont was built by Mrs. Herman Wolferts at a cost of $2,400,000. The magnificent group of buildings at Van Ness avenue and Hayes street; St. Ignace College and cathedral, probably worth $2,000,000, and the St. Dominic's church of oriental type in Sutter street, are all wiped out.

Devastation Complete. In the city from north to south devastation appears complete. The branch of the United States mint in Fifth street, near Market, was not destroyed, but is damaged to a considerable extent. Two blocks west of the mint stood the splendid new postoffice building, finished about six months ago and erected at a cost of $2,000,000. It was destroyed. Down in the older business sections were many old land marks, but they exist no longer. The Occidental hotel in Montgomery street was for years headquarters of many army officers that visited San Francisco. The old Lick house, built by the philanthropist, James Lick, the old Russ house, also in Montgomery street, the Nevada bank block, the Hayward building at California and Montgomery streets, a modern structure of ten stories, then to the eastward a splendid example of Gothic style, the California National bank, the First National bank, the First Canadian Bank of Commerce, the London and San Francisco bank in California street, the London, Paris and American bank and the Bank of British North American in Sanson street, the large German American Savings bank, also in California street, are a few of the notable buildings destroyed in that district.

Among the splendid apartment houses destroyed are: In Geary street, St. Augustine, Alexandria and Victoria. In Sutter, the Pleasanton, Waldeck, the Granada. In Pine street, Colonial, the Loma Vista, the Beuna Vista. In Ellis, Dufferin, Hamilton, Ellis, Royal, Ascot, Hart and St. Catherine. In O'Farrell street, Eugene, Knox, St. George, Ramon and Gotham. In Taylor street, In Eddy street, Alhambra. In Turk street, Netherlands. In Berk street, Savoy. In Bush street, Plymouth.

Famous Restaurants Gone. San Francisco was famous for the excellence of its restaurants. Many of these-known wherever a traveler discussed good living. Among them were the "Pup" and Merchants' in Stockton street, the Poodle Dog; one of the most ornate, distinctive restaurant buildings in the United States was Zink's at Plaza and Market streets. The famous Palace Grill in the Palace hotel and scores of Bohemian restaurants in the old part of San Francisco are no more. At the junction of Kearney, Market and Geary streets stood the great newspaper buildings of San Francisco, the Call, the most conspicuous structure in all the city, seventeen stories high. Across the street was the Hearst building, the home of the Examiner, and to the north of this on the opposite side of Market street, the Chronicle, a modern ten-story newspaper and office building, with a sixteen-story annex under course of construction. All were destroyed. Two blocks north on Kearney street were the Bulletin and Post buildings. They are also gone. Every mammoth department store is destroyed.

Caring for Sufferers. NEW YORK, April 20.—The Western Union Telegraph operator who made the tour of the city with a military escort last night sent the following dispatch to New York today: "Thousands who spent last night out of doors were fairly comfortable, most of them being sheltered by tents. Considerable distress was caused by a heavy fog, which came up during the night, and also by the dew. Chinchamen are in evidence about the ferry house by the thousands, all of them waiting anxiously to get out of the city. All are carrying bundles. The principal food of those who remain in the city is composed of canned goods and crackers. Refugees who succeed in getting out of San Francisco are met as soon as they enter the neighboring towns by representatives of the Red Cross, who have made large supplies of bread and who immediately deal it out to the hungry people."

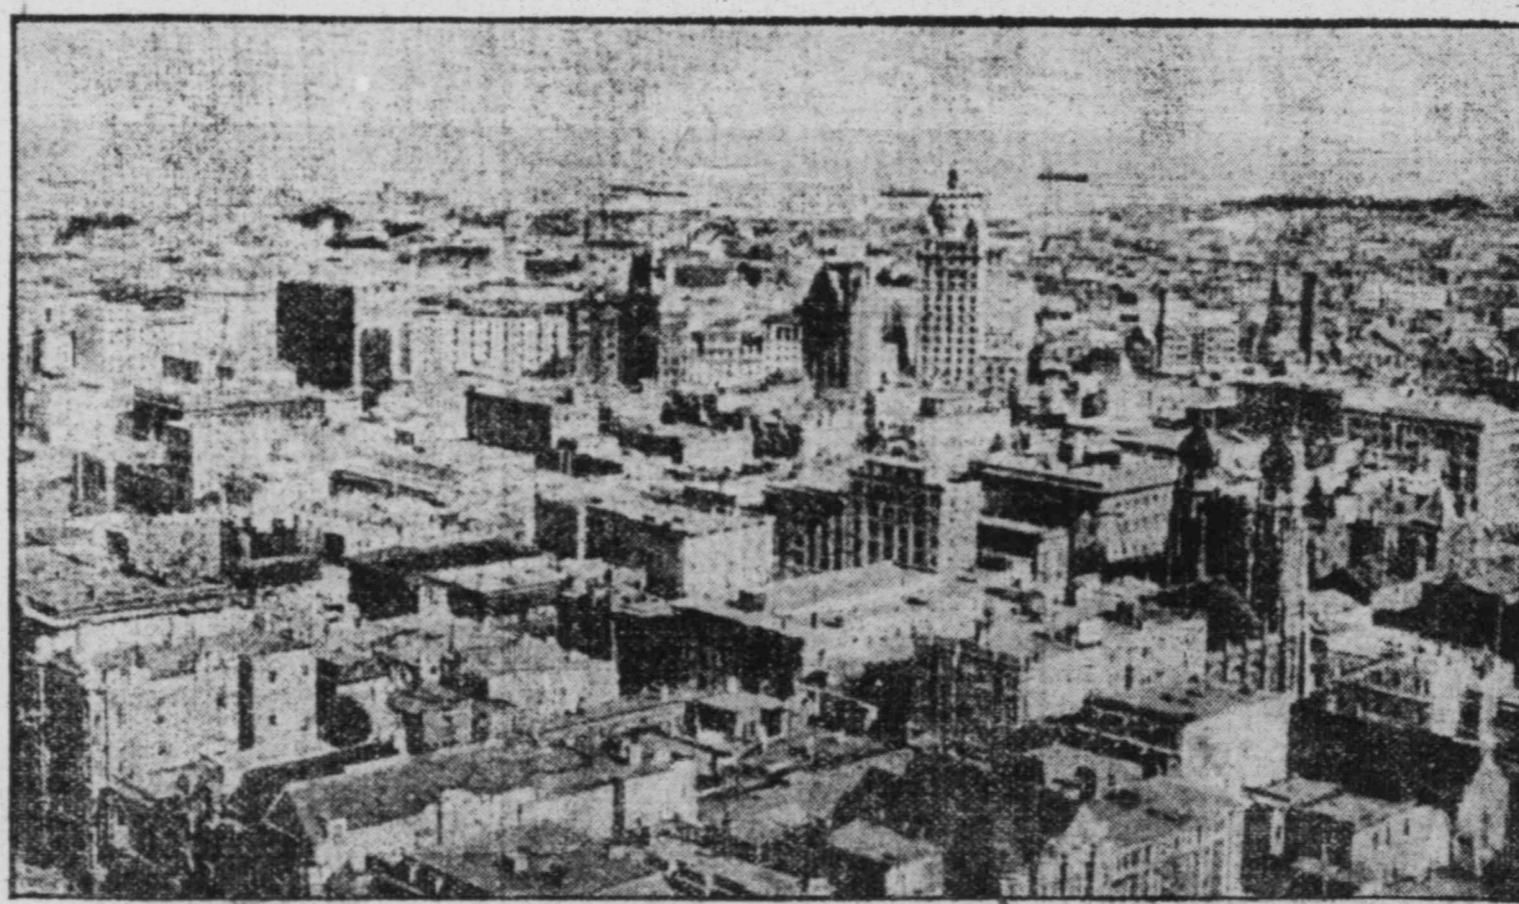

Warships Not Injured. WASHINGTON, D. C., April 20.—The navy department today received a telegram from Rear Admiral McCall, commander of the Mare Island navy yard, stating that the warships under construction at the Union Iron works are unharmed. He also stated that the loss of life has been much exaggerated.

Fear for Government Officials. WASHINGTON, D. C., April 20.—The treasury department has so far failed to locate the assistant treasurer or his deputy at San Francisco and grave fears are entertained that they lost their lives.

Funston Sends Report. WASHINGTON, April 20.—The following Western Union dispatch was received at the war department today from General Funston: "San Francisco, April 20, 5:18 a. m.—The fire, which heretofore had crept around the base of Telegraph Hill and left but few houses standing there, has crept back from the west, and is now in full possession of the houses on the hill and will no doubt take everything down to the water front on Van Ness avenue and west of there."

The main fire has reached Octavia street and is going at a fast rate. There has been no one in from the fire since midnight. At that time it started afresh on the south end of the fire line and was burning fast. The ferry buildings present a fearful scene—men, women and children and the few articles they tried to save. They are all here to leave the city by the first boat they can get away on. The roads leading from the ferry north and around the shore of the bay as far as Fort Mason are strewn with all sorts of vehicles, broken-down carriages, wheelbarrows, etc., that cannot stand the loads over the rough way and have been abandoned, in some cases, with their loads. The fire came very close to Fort Mason last night, and the big Foundation warehouses and nearby canneries will no doubt go today. I think the world will be a clean sweep of everything as far as Golden Gate Park. I would not be surprised to see it like the Eucalyptus trees that line the park and burn the shrubbery to the ocean beach."

Prices of All Food Now Soaring Upward. SAN FRANCISCO, April 20.—Bread $1 per loaf; sardines, $1.50 per can; an ordinary short lunch costing $2.50 is the latest hardship that is being worked on the people here. Canned goods is about the only kind of food left in the city and even this is growing scarcer every hour. Conditions are simply beyond the power of description, being heartrending and pitiful beyond comparison.

Birdseye view of San Francisco, taken before the earthquake, and just received by The Telegram from California. The tall building to the right of the center is the home of the San Francisco Call, which was destroyed. All of the buildings shown in this picture were wrecked by the earthquake, burned or dynamited in an unsuccessful attempt to stop the spread of the flames.

Gov. Sparks at Georgetown, Tex., Has Message

Special to The Telegram. GEORGETOWN, Texas, April 20.—Governor John Sparks of Nevada, who is here, received the following message: "San Francisco, Cal., April 20.—Have wired your mayor for help for 300,000 shelterless and foodless in San Francisco. Help is needed immediately."

Governor Sparks immediately sent telegrams to Attorney General Sweeney and Secretary of State Davis at Carson City, Nev., to secure help from the people of Nevada. Governor Sparks' daughter, Mrs. Maud McKenzie, lives in San Francisco and in the list of names of the dead the name of McKenzie appears, but is on a parallel street.

Governor Sparks is greatly distressed. Charles Sparks lives in San Francisco, and Leland Sparks was a student of Leland Stanford university. They had formerly lived in Georgetown. Mrs. Sparks wires from Reno, Nev., that the shock was felt there and that all communication was cut off. There are fifty Williamson county people in California and many in San Francisco. Among them are the Booty's, Caseys, Captain Page, Colonel William Kelecher and many others. The sad news causes great distress here.

Elks Give $5,000. LOUISVILLE, Ky., April 20.—Grand Exalted Ruler Robert W. Brown, who has already forwarded $5,000 in the name of the B. P. O. E., leaves tonight for San Francisco to personally direct the distribution of the relief fund that will be raised under the call issued today by him.

Hillsboro Raises $200. Special to The Telegram. HILLSBORO, Texas, April 20.—Mayor Quickenstedt and his committee to solicit contributions for the San Francisco sufferers, have already raised approximately $200, which will increase this afternoon to $300. Hillsboro sent to the Galveston flood sufferers between $500 and $600 and a car load of supplies. To Snyder, Okla., sufferers $100, and to the Navasota overflow sufferers several years ago a car of supplies worth $500.

Roosevelt Gives $1,000. WASHINGTON, D. C., April 20.—C. H. Keep of the treasury department of the National Red Cross Association today received a check for $1,000 from President Roosevelt as a contribution to the relief of the earthquake and fire sufferers of San Francisco and one of $500 from Senator P. A. Knox of Pennsylvania for the same purpose.

Shreveport Gives $3,000. Special to The Telegram. SHREVEPORT, La., April 20.—At a mass meeting held at the Board of Trade today those present gave $3,000 toward a fund for the San Francisco sufferers and a committee was appointed to solicit additional funds.

FROM WASHINGTON

Tents and Food Going Across Continent for Relief of the Stricken City

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 20.—Speeding across the continent from army headquarters here, a special train of twelve cars, carrying such supplies as could be gathered here on short notice, has unobstructed right of way from the capital to the city of the Golden Gate, and every possible effort is being made to make a record trip in the hope to alleviate some of the pitiable sufferings that are being reported here for each time the hands of the clock make a revolution of the dial. The train is composed of express cars and is loaded to the utmost capacity with tents and commissary supplies. From Chicago the train will travel over the Northwestern, then take the Union Pacific and last the Southern Pacific. Every effort is to be made to cover the distance in three days.

Special Cabinet Meeting. WASHINGTON, D. C., April 20.—President Roosevelt and members of the cabinet today devoted the greater part of the session in discussion of the calamity which has befallen San Francisco. It was decided that Secretary Victor E. Metcalf of the department of commerce and labor, who is a resident of Oakland, should proceed at once to the stricken city as representative of the national government. Secretary Metcalf will leave for San Francisco this afternoon. It will be his effort to consult with the governor of California and the municipal authorities of San Francisco and advise the national administration what if anything may be done to alleviate the distress there.

EARTHQUAKE FELT IN SOUTH TEXAS

River Men Note Action on Surface of Neches

Special to The Telegram. BEAUMONT, Texas, April 20.—Information from numerous sources confirm the story that the earthquake was felt and evidence of it seen at the Neches river. River men up and down the Neches, a distance of twenty miles apart, say that about 7:15 o'clock Wednesday morning the water in the river rose three and four feet along the bank and receded and rose again, repeating this several times. The action of the water resembled the effect of a steamboat passing, or of the surf on the beach.

Extras in Russia. ST. PETERSBURG, April 20.—The calamity at San Francisco has created a profound impression here. Although yesterday was observed as a holiday, all the papers printed extras, giving the latest news, and everywhere expressions of sympathy were heard.

Summary of Disaster. SACRAMENTO, Cal., April 20.—C. H. Leach, who has made a complete circuit of the earthquake devastated districts around the bay, including San Jose, Niles and Alameda, arrived in Sacramento early today and gave the following review of the catastrophe as he viewed it from the automobile in which the tour was made.

"After as thorough an investigation of the ruins in San Francisco as could be made by him, Professor Durand, an eminent engineer of Stanford, returned to the university yesterday. He made the statement that the shock was much greater in Palo Alto and vicinity than in the devastated city.

"All telegraphic communication with the nearby cities is cut off. Professor Durand and Professor Greene, accompanied by myself, started for Sacramento in an automobile carrying over four hundred telegrams to be sent to friends and relatives in the east and abroad.

"The roads skirting the bay were slightly injured in places by fissures, but no serious faulting of the underlying rock was observed.

"At San Jose the loss of life is not as great as was at first reported, only fifteen dead being reported up to date.

"The Vendome Annex is completely ruined, as well as the court house and all brick and stone structures. From San Jose to Alviso the road is lowered in places by the shock and the front of the principal hotel at Alviso has sunk at least ten feet.

"Beyond Alviso toward Niles the road is in very good shape and the only evidences of the shock are tumbled-down fences and water tanks.

"Haywards escaped damage comparatively, the only damage being confined to fences and smokestacks.

"President Jordan in an address to the students after the shock, asked them to remain at Stanford and help clear the debris. He thinks the university will be rebuilt as soon as possible. Though he was recently tendered the presidency of an eastern university, he will remain with Stanford. He said that the university did not depend entirely upon its buildings.

Fire Still Raging. SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., April 20.—10:30 a. m.—The fire is still burning. The main blaze has eaten its way westward and as far as Octavia street in the residence district many fires are still raging. Telegraph Hill is all ablaze. Estimates of the loss are still vague. They range from $200,000,000 to $300,000,000.

Martial law is still in force and although lines of communication have been established, no one is allowed by the soldiers to enter the city. Relief trains are bringing in tents, food and clothing for the sufferers and these are being transferred by ferry to San Francisco rapidly as possible.

STOCKMEN FINISH AMARILLO MEETING

Roswell Chosen as Place for Convention in 1907

AMARILLO, Texas, April 20.—The seventh annual convention of the Panhandle Stockmen's Association closed at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon after one of the most successful sessions in all of its bright annals.

At the opening of the session Treasurer R. Tol Ware's annual report was read and accepted. The capitulation figures were as follows: Balance on hand at year end, $164 10 Amount collected for fiscal year, $194 43

Total disbursements for year, $6,558 53 Balance on hand April 1, $1,170 96 The resolution offered by F. W. Tomlinson of Denver, secretary of the American National Live Stock Company, in regard to the thirty-six hour law was amended to read as follows, and unanimously adopted:

The resolution offered to endorse a plan to classify public lands in arid states and territories, etc., was not considered. The election of officers next took place, and all of the present members filled the same offices for the ensuing year.

Then the local brass band started up a two-step tune, and while the musical notes were floating over the heads of the assembled members and guests, those present noted two kinds of badges dangling from the coats of the Panhandle stockman.

One badge read: "We have done our best, Amarillo, 1907." The other read: "Roswell wants you, 1907." George Slaughter nominated Roswell as the place of the next convention and after a felicitous ten-minute speech, depicting the many advantages of the New Mexico city, called on T. T. D. Andrews of Fort Worth to say what he had left unsaid.

Picturing the glory of the Pecos valley and its beautiful city of Artesian wells, Mr. Andrews seemed to convince the members that life would not be worth living unless they should see Roswell. For Amarillo, T. G. Turner made a delightful response, finely listing the many advantages of convening again at Amarillo.

The vote resulted in Roswell's victory, 42 for, 34 against. Then the motion was made unanimous. The convention adjourned sine die, to meet next April in Roswell. The band celebrated the victory by playing "Dixie" and the closing scene was a royal good picture of smiles and joy about the man, who carved out the paths of progress for the Panhandle plains of Texas.

The stockmen were royally entertained with a reception at the handsome home of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. L. Smith from 5 to 10 o'clock. The trains leaving Amarillo Thursday night were crowded to the limit. Buyers were few and exceedingly lukewarm, few trades being closed. One produced with offerings of 3,000 head told a Telegram correspondent that he was unable to find anything like a satisfactory market.

The herds of sales were fairly well attended throughout the three days' session, rain interfering to some extent, yet prices paid were not as good as anticipated. A few good horses were sold at average figures. There is one deal pending, involving $100,000, in which Panhandle produced are interested, but it is likely that this trade will not go through, on account of refusal of sellers.

LANHAM AT SANTONE Governor to Participate in Battle of Flowers There

AUSTIN, Texas, April 20.—Governor Lanham left this afternoon for San Antonio, where he will attend the battle of flowers and preside at the ceremonies in connection with that event. A few days ago a delegation of citizens from San Antonio were here representing the Business League and Spring Carnival company of San Antonio and officially invited the chief executive to visit the Alamo City on April 21, the day of the battle of flowers.

DEBEQUE RE-ARRESTED Additional Charges Are Filed by City Against Him

Frank DeBeque has again been arrested on a charge of selling liquor at the Grand opera theater. Three different cases having been made against him for alleged violation of the city ordinance prohibiting the sale of intoxicating drinks in a playhouse or adjacent property.

Wednesday he was found guilty by a jury in the corporation court and fined $30. Officers were present at the Standard theater that night and on their complaint warrants were issued and the arrest followed.

The three cases are expected to come up for trial next Tuesday before Judge Prewett. The new law under which the cases are being prosecuted was enacted last December. These cases were conducted by Assistant Attorney Parker.

Rear Admiral Evans to Probe Kearsarge Disaster

NEW YORK, April 20.—A cable dispatch to the Herald from Calmanera, Cuba, says: "Rear Admiral Evans, the commander-in-chief of the Atlantic fleet, has issued this general order: 'The commander-in-chief regrets to have to inform the fleet of a deplorable accident which occurred on board the Kearsarge on the afternoon of Friday, April 13, 1906, on the target grounds off Cape Cruz, Cuba, as a result of which two officers and seven men lost their lives and five other men were seriously injured while unloading the left thirties-inch gun, which had been left loaded at the end of a run over the target range.'

Infant's Slip 5320.

Such a simple slip as this one should be found in every infant's outfit. It can be laundered with perfect ease. It is dainty and charming and involves the least possible labor in the making. In the illustration fine French nainsook is finished with hangings and frills of lace, but embroidery can be substituted for this last if better liked and all the materials that are used for infant's slips are appropriate. The little garment is made with fronts and back and is gathered at the neck edge and drawn up by means of tapes inserted in the casing. The sleeves are in bishop style and the closing is made invisibly at the back. The quantity of material required for the medium size is 2 1/2 yards 38 inches wide with 2 1/4 yards of insertion. The pattern 5320 is cut in one size only.

Terrell-Lane

The marriage of Miss Fay Lane to Walter Terrell, which took place at the Christian Tabernacle Thursday evening, was an event of great interest, especially to the younger set, of which this bride is a popular member. The church was crowded before 6:30, the hour of the ceremony, and all were eager for the first glimpse of the bride.

The church was decorated with roses and palms. Pronuptial music was rendered by Miss Carolyn Keller to the accompaniment of Professor Maximilian Euter. The march from Lohengrin, played by Miss Nina Coppage, introduced the bridal procession.

From the door beside the rostrum the bridesmaids, Misses Pickering of Victoria and Cecil Calhoun, descended the steps leading to the body of the church. They proceeded to the front door, where they gave way to the attendants, V. R. Ford and R. B. Crow, and followed to the pulpit. The bride and her father, W. P. Lane, came last. Rev. E. F. Wilson of Dallas, a family friend of many years, and Rev. E. A. Dubber availed the bridal party. The opening prayer was by Rev. Mr. Dubber, the closing ceremony being conducted by Rev. Mr. Wilson. Mendelsohn's wedding march concluded the ceremonial.

The bride's gown was of silk mulle with hand-whipped rows of Valenciennes lace on flounce set under lace sleeves and yoke. The veil was fastened with lilies of the valley. The bride bouquet was of white roses.

After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Terrell left for a visit to New Orleans, and will be gone until May 1. The going away gown was of gray cloth with lingerie waist, hat and gloves matching.

The bride's favors for her wedding maids were gold heart pins.

Among the guests were Mrs. G. E. Anis of Wile and Mrs. W. S. Newman of Dallas.

The gifts were unusually beautiful and the number was eloquent of the admiration and affection of many friends. The gift of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Lane, was a home all furnished complete for their occupancy.

The first hat is a French sailor shape in mauve straw. The roses surrounding the crown are shaded from mauve into pale rose. The satin taffeta ribbon which is looped high in the back of the hat is shaded in the same tints as the roses.

The second hat has a pastel blue Neapolitan straw crown in Tam o'Shanter shape, which entirely covers a rough blue straw brim. It is held down over the brim with tiny bouquets of pink moss roses surrounded by the mossy foliage and blue satin ribbons. The shade of plum which rises from the left side of the hat over the crown is shaded from white to deep blue.

The third is a walking hat of two pieces of straw, practically a double hat. The outer straw is of a larger shade of violet than the inner. The crown is domed in fedora fashion. Two violet quills rise from the side of the front. Violet satin ribbon is looped in the back as the hat is tilted far forward.

Care of the Eyes Bathing with equal part of witch hazel and water is very restful to the eyes. Another plan is to bathe the eyes with warm water in which are dissolved a pinch of powdered borax and two or three drops of spirits of camphor.

The eyes should never be used when they are tired or weak from illness, and should they be exposed to a strong light at any time. The light should always fall on the work or book from over the left shoulder.

To preserve the round shape of the eyeballs occasionally rub them gently, and always toward the nose. As one grows older the eyeballs have a tendency to become flat. Gentle rubbing or massage helps to preserve their shape.

If the lids are inflamed by cold or study a little rose water is good for bathing them. Cold, weak tea, weak salt water, and warm milk are also good for occasional use. The milk should be diluted with water.

To Renovate Wicker Chairs To renovate a shabby wicker chair first cleanse the wicker thoroughly, using a scrubbing brush and plenty of soap and water. When dry the chair will be greatly improved with a coating of two or three coats of green stain.

For the seat make a cushion of green linen or a pretty greenish cretonne. Another cushion for the back may be liked, and it is easily made. Make it of the same material as the seat cushion and of bag shape, longer than wide. It may be fastened to the chair by means of tapes sewed at the top and bottom.

If a loose cushion is preferred a pretty yellow linen would look nice and contrast well with the green. Make the case slip fashion, so that it may be easily washed. An unbleached calico bag will be good enough for the vegetable down with which the cushions are filled.

The party composed of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold, Mrs. Mattie Dargess, Mrs. J. E. A GREAT FAKE There is a "trick" in every trade, but perhaps the optical business has more than any other. Especially in Texas, where there is a long history of the practice of optics. The result is that no other state has as many fake opticians and peddlers and no state with as many defective eyes as the result. From any large city in the country comes the tramp optician, who could not practice in his own state, on account of the laws. There is only one protection to the eye sufferer; that is consult an oculist, because the state requires them to pass a very rigid examination before they are permitted to fit glasses or prescribe medicine. They must know anatomy, physiology and pathology, while an optician is not required to know anything except where to buy cheap glasses. We do not mean to say that there are no reliable opticians; we refer to "The Emminent Doctors," the "Optical Expert" and "Fly by Night Optical Co.," that spring up like mushrooms and dry up as soon as public light shines on them. Appreciating the fact that so many have been "humbugged" with asses, we decided to employ an oculist (a graduate in medicine who has passed the state medical board), one of 15 years' experience. We are sure our work is correct and that glasses have not been prescribed when medicine was needed. So sure are we that we refund your money if not satisfied. It does not cost any more to consult an oculist than it does to let the inexperienced guess what your eyes need. Our offices are the most complete in the south. WORTH OPTICAL CO., 509 Main Street.

CITY SPRINKLING TO BE STOPPED

Company Will Not Run Risks of Collections Under Veto

Thursday and perchance also on Friday, it will not matter for the rain has sprinkled the streets, but after that the citizens of Fort Worth will face a no-sprinkled condition of the streets, and judging by some past experience, they will not enjoy it. The Fort Worth Sprinkling Company will not work for nothing, and as the contract made with the city is vetoed, the management of the company anticipates such a large increase in the trouble of making collections from individuals, never easy or good at the best, it will not go into a contest over the small sum of profit there is in the sprinkling under the most favorable conditions and certainly will not be handicapped as it will be, as the officers claim, with the difficulties of making individual collections.

HEART AND LUNG TROUBLE

Mrs. Mary Horn-Lockwood, who could not lie down on account of coughing and smothering spells is restored to strength and health by Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey.

"After doctors and medicine failed to help me, Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey saved my life, and I never felt stronger or better than I do today." The grateful lady writes:

"It gives me pleasure to have you use my photograph and testimonial in behalf of Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey, which saved my life when two of the best doctors had given me up to die, and declared that no medicine could help me. I was taking Duffy's at the time, and kept right on as I had great faith in its wonderful curative powers. I had lung trouble and a weak heart, and for six months was unable to lie down at night on account of coughing and smothering spells. I was reduced to ninety pounds, and was going into consumption. The impression of both my friends and the doctors being that I could not live. Despite their opinion, I gave up medicine, and after taking four bottles of Duffy's my condition was greatly improved. This was in the Fall, and I continued the use of your grand medicine all winter, the result being that by Spring I weighed 125 pounds, and after taking twenty bottles my health was fully restored and I never felt stronger or better in my life. I advised a number of friends who had throat and lung trouble to take Duffy's, and it never failed to cure them."—MRS. MARY HORN-LOCKWOOD, 828 River avenue, Indianapolis.

THE CATTLEMEN WILL FIGHT

Reports from the meeting of cattlemen held in Denver Friday indicate a fixed determination to organize for the purpose of fighting the commission men comprising the various live stock exchanges of the country that have seen fit to arbitrarily advance the price of selling stock consigned to them for sale.

Every possible effort has been made by the shippers and producers to have the commission men removed from their announced determination. Conferences have been held and all kinds of overtures held out to reduce the commission firms to hold their charges down to what the other side considers a legitimate and proper basis, but the appeals have apparently fallen on deaf ears. The commission men have stood flat footed in the determination to exact additional tribute, and in so doing they have invited consequences that promise to be quite serious.

The announced plan of the shippers and producers is to organize independent live stock exchanges at all the offending market centers, composed of commission firms who will be satisfied with the reasonable rate of commission charge willing to be paid. The plan is said to embody an organization with a capital stock of $100,000 at each of these market centers, and the various organizations are to be possible. This means the beginning of what will probably be a long and expensive war, in which the commission firms will lose much more than the amount they are now contending for. It also promises to be even more far reaching than that.

One of the results of the fight is certain to be an appeal to the courts of the country to determine whether or not the existing live stock exchanges are being operated contrary to the provisions of the anti-trust law. The agitation that has already resulted from the introduction of that feature of the situation has resulted in the exchange at Kansas City coming under the ban, so far as the supreme court of Kansas is concerned, and there are indications of grave disaster. Right here in Texas there is an agitation on this subject that is sure to provoke trouble.—Fort Worth Telegram.

It is about time that the Texas cattlemen and those of other states as well, stood on their rights and called down the commission firms that have combined to make such rates for selling cattle as to destroy the profits of the cattle raisers. Year by year the profits of raising cattle have grown less and less, and the rates of the commission men have not receded. What the result of the fight that the cattlemen are about to engage in no one can predict, but a conclusion that there is a cattle commission trust will not be so hard to reach.—San Antonio Light.

At the Denver meeting referred to, the cattlemen not only launched the movement for independent live stock exchanges, but they also adopted the following resolutions:

Resolved, further, That said committee procure a legal opinion from the attorney of the American National Live Stock association, upon the following points:

First—Whether the live stock exchanges are acting in violation of the anti-trust laws of the United States or of the several states in which they are doing business.

Second—If so, what remedies and procedure should be adopted to enforce such laws and prevent such violation.

Third—Whether the laws of the United States, or of any of the states, require any amendment, in order to fully reach such combinations as may be found to exist among the live stock commission men or exchanges.

Resolved, further, That said committee embrace in its report such recommendations as it may see fit to make with respect to proceeding against the live stock exchanges under the existing laws.

The attorney for the American National Live Stock Association is Judge Sam H. Cowan, of this city, and his opinion on this very subject was freely expressed to the commission men at the first conference held in Kansas City. They were warned at that time that unless they receded from their announced program steps would at once be taken to ascertain whether or not they were operating contrary to the laws of the country. The commission men have not receded, but are standing pat, and the matter here in Texas has evidently already been called to the attention of the attorney general from the several investigations that have taken place, some of which are yet pending.

Whether the live stock exchanges of the country are being operated contrary to law or not, it is certain the cattlemen are preparing to have them investigated along that line, and this means the beginning of a long and bitter fight between two interests that should dwell together in perfect harmony. The commission men cannot exist without the producer, and the producer is obliged to have the services of commission men. Under such circumstances it would seem that good judgment would dictate a coming together of the belligerent forces and an adjustment of differences along lines that would be mutually satisfactory. A long and bitter fight in the courts is going to hurt somebody financially, and the disruption of existing relations will occasion friction that it will require many years to obliterate. Almost any thing is better than the promised fight. The commission men and the cattlemen should get together.

OUR RUSSIAN VISITOR

For the past week or ten days the daily press has been filled with matter pertaining to Maxim Gorky, and the experiences that have fallen to his lot in New York and other places, some of which have not been of a very pleasant nature, but there are many people who do not know Maxim Gorky and the principles he stands for.

Maxim Gorky has been called the poet of the vagabond and the proletariat, and he is today one of the greatest individual forces in all Russia. Some reviewers have linked his name with that of Tolstoy, but Count Tolstoy is a mild old farmer compared with this unbridled, irreconcilable, freedom-inspired revolutionist. He is proud of the fact that he has come from what he terms "the bottom of life." He has known much of human misery, and much of what he has written is in reality but a portion of his own autobiography. That fact explains the vivid, passionate appeal it makes to the Russian nature.

It has been said that Gorky has done more to stir the Russian people to revolt than any living man. That he of all latter day Russian writers is the only one who has really voiced the great spirit of unrest that is afflicting his nation. In him the common people hear a voice they know as their own, and it is not a voice of calmness or culture, but one that continually breathes defiance. There is a cry now and then of the sufferer who has known the brutality of life in all its horrors and hurls his defiance in the teeth of his oppressors, but there is never one single note of supplication. It is eternally the voice of demand.

In Russia Gorky appeals to the young. He has given rise to a new school of Russian literature that includes among its members Leonid Andreyev, whose "Red Laughter," a diary of the late war in Manchuria, made almost as much of a sensation in Germany and France as it did in Russia. The Russian army is exposed as it was never exposed before.

Gorky comes to the United States as the envoy of the republic that is to be. He is broken in health but not in spirit. The hard, bitter life of those days when he was an outcast and of later days when he peered from behind prison bars for his revolutionary utterances have sowed the seeds of disease. But physical ailments count for but little with such an intense character as Gorky. He thinks, plans and dreams of nothing except raising the yoke from the neck of the Russian people.

The reception this man met when he landed in free America must have been a very keen disappointment. His failure to obtain accommodations at leading hotels must have opened his eyes to the fact that things over here are just a little bit different from what he expected. Many of his former admirers turned coldly from him on account of the "conventional wife" story, and whether true or not, that incident greatly dimmed the brilliancy of his cause.

The great Russian revolution that is destined to mark the birth of a new republic Maxim Gorky thinks is near at hand and that nothing can stop it. The autocracy is doomed. That much is already certain. A few months ago it seemed as if the government was about to fall. Anarchy reigned in scores of cities. Hundreds of women and children were slaughtered, and the army seemed about to desert the czar. But things have quieted down. Was this simply the prelude—the curtain raiser to the great tragedy yet to be enacted? Maxim Gorky thinks so, but time only can tell.

Texas cattlemen did not evince any disposition to fall over themselves to turn their cattle loose at the Amarillo convention. And this may be accepted as a sure indication of the fact that the Texas producer has fully come to the determination that henceforth he is going to have just a little more than the bare cost of production.

Visitors to Fort Worth are amazed at the rapidity with which the city is growing, but here at home it is regarded only as a natural expansion and excites but little comment. But the fact remains all the same that we are leading all other Texas cities in the matter of rapid development.

Captain B. B. Paddock of this city talked very plainly in St. Louis on the subject of those Missouri lynchings, and whether his utterances are generally indorsed or not, it will be quite generally conceded that Paddock is a man who has the moral courage to speak his honest convictions.

The President has sent a special message to congress on the subject of the beef trust, but robs it of just about all its good effect by the neat coat of whitewash he in turn applies to the yielding form of Commissioner Garfield.

From nearly every portion of Texas comes reports that the outlook for a big fruit crop this year was never more encouraging. Where are those fellows who heisted but a short time ago that the Texas Elberta was a goner?

Parker county has at last produced a candidate for the state senate, but with that much to her credit she is still behind Tarrant county. We have two candidates for the senate and three for congress right here in Fort Worth. Weatherford should get busy.

Commissioner Mayfield is entitled to one cross' mark at least. He put an elegant spike in the Colquitt reduced passenger rate gun, and the effect was to put that piece of artillery entirely out of business.

OTHERS KNEW IT FIRST

David B. Hill says that he is of it first, however.—Toledo Blade.

THE TEXAS PRESS

The Fort Worth friends of Hon. W. D. Williams met a few days ago and indorsed his candidacy for railway commissioner. Mr. Williams is the author of the intangible asset law and has made a study of railway problems. About the only thing that can be said in opposition to his election is in that event the entire commission would be from north Texas, hardly a fair thing. His election would not change the commission idea on the Galveston differential.—Childress Index.

The question of sectionalism should not enter into the selection of any candidate for state office. The rule should always be to choose the best material that can be found, regardless of location.

It was decided by the Kansas supreme court that the Kansas City Live Stock Exchange is a trust, and all cattle mortgages made through the members of that exchange are invalid if the far-reaching effect of this decision is beyond estimation. Millions of dollars' worth of cattle paper will possibly be affected by the decision. Now let our attorney general get in after the Fort Worth exchange.—Abilene News.

Why get after the Fort Worth Exchange? Has the News any information at hand to indicate this institution is being conducted contrary to law?

It would be well to know just what candidates for the legislature think about the Terrell election law, and whether or not they favor changes that would make the law understandable to the ordinary mind. Texas needs to have an election law that contains the elements of justice and the virtue of simplicity.—Sherman Register.

The people of each legislative district in the state should interest their nominees for the state legislature with regard to the Terrell law. That is the way to attain the proper results.

The citizens of Fort Worth were but a few days in subscribing $15,000 for the purpose of enlarging the Fort Worth University. It is no wonder a city composed of such enterprising people is rapidly becoming the leading city of the state.—Big Springs Herald.

The Fort Worth spirit was clearly manifested in the university matter, as it is in all others. The people of Fort Worth have large hearts, and do not hesitate to open their pocket books for all worthy purposes.

Capital punishment for the burglar who enters a house with intent to do murder, if that should become a necessary part of the enterprise, would not be unmerited punishment. The only objection to a law imposing the extreme penalty is the fear that, as in all capital cases, it would be too hard to secure a conviction that would stick. It is a good deal easier to send a man to the penitentiary than it is to hang him.—San Antonio Express.

There are a whole lot of people who do not believe in capital punishment for any crime, and especially for burglary. It would be rather a hard matter to determine whether or not a burglar entered a residence with murder in his heart.

The farmers of Texas are now engaged in putting in the greatest acreage of cotton ever known in the history of the state, and if the seasons hit right you may expect the biggest cotton crop the world ever saw.—Palestine Herald.

The farmers of Texas are going ahead with the matter of attending to their own business and showing the world that they are capable of running their own affairs. Every man engaged in the shouting of reduced cotton acreage is not a farmer. The real farmers are now busy planting their crops.

WASHINGTON LETTER

WASHINGTON, April 17.—When John Sharp Williams was fighting to get the quarantine bill through the house the other day the Texas delegation fought it tooth and nail. They denounced it as a violation of the constitution, and to a man predicted the downfall of that venerable document if the bill passed. The house, however, passed it.

Today Mr. Williams bumped up against Mr. Slayden of Texas in the cloakroom. It was the first time they had met since the fight. Slayden looked at Williams with sad reproach, but spoke not. Williams looked back at Slayden apologetically. Then he placed his hand on the Texan's shoulder.

"Slayden," he said comfortingly, "cheer up. Tomorrow I am going to introduce a bill to re-enact the constitution."

A nice old man from Ohio with his tidy wife were in the reserved gallery of the senate when Senators Foraker and Tillman were having their hot colloquy over the tariff and the rate bill.

After listening for two hours the old lady pulled the old man's sleeve and told him it was time to go. "They'll be doin' this for an hour more," she said, "and it's all alike."

"I know it," whispered the old fellow, "but it's a fine fight and I want to see how it comes out." "We'll be late to dinner."

"Never mind. They'll vote in a few minutes and I want to see which of those two gamecocks gets licked."

The old man's next seat neighbor explained to him that there would not be a vote for a month, and that nobody would ever know which had the better of the argument.

"You don't mean to say they don't settle a fight like that and say who wins? That ain't fair," and he reluctantly picked up his hat and coat and prepared to follow the old lady out.

QUAKER REFLECTIONS

An affinity is generally a person with money.

Peppery remarks should be taken with a grain of salt.

PUBLIC OPINION

Considering the Chinese question, the Chicago Chronicle looks with aversion on any alliance of this country with any other to keep order there. It says: "This scheme of policing, like the one proposed for Morocco, is an invasion of the sovereignty of the country policed. It involves subjecting that country to a superior power, consisting of an alliance of foreign powers. Is it the idea practically to destroy the independence of China and make it permanently dependent by preventing it from organizing and commanding its own armies? The whole scheme looks like one extremely likely to embroil European, American and Asiatic powers. It looks like an arrangement under which the organizing of Chinese armies under Japanese command with English and American naval and military support would be met by the organization of other Chinese armies under Russian and German command. Then what if these Chinese armies should suddenly pass under Chinese command? Altogether this giant policing project looks very much like an entangling alliance which Uncle Sam, big and rich as he is, had better avoid."

Under the title, "Keep Faith with Cuba," the Baltimore American discusses the status of the Isle of Pines, and, among other things, says:

"To make conditions in surrendering the Isle of Pines would be to keep the promise to the ear and break to the hope. If this country is hankering after the Isle of Pines or Cuba—and there is not a scintilla of evidence to that effect—it is not necessary to employ a lot of filibusters to work clandestinely in American interests. We have the army and navy with which to take possession and annex both of them. It is thoroughly obnoxious to the American spirit to be threatening and browbeating these little republics when they have a right to look for sympathy and protection. Cuba especially has had an unparalleled career of hardships and storms, and now that she is in a fair way of becoming a prosperous and happy little state this country should be the last to create sources of suspicion and hostility."

Concluding its editorial on Susan B. Anthony, the Chicago Evening Post says:

"True, she did not live to see the full realization of her ambition; but what significant progress she was able to make since, in 1872, she definitely joined the issue with her opponents by voting and being fined for voting illegally! Today women have the right of full suffrage in four states of the union; in twenty-three states they may vote at school elections; in New York they may vote upon questions affecting the taxation of property. Today women are found in practically every profession. Such are some of the fruits of Miss Anthony's unselfish life work. No woman of modern times has been more highly honored in her life; no woman of history has held a higher place in the world's esteem than that now reverently set apart for the enshrining of her memory."

REFLECTIONS OF A BACHELOR

No girl would ever want to be a man, because he has to wear his hair short.

The fun about going to the races is you might win in spite of your judgment.

WHITEWASHED DIAMONDS THE EXPERIENCES OF JOHN WALLACE, DETECTIVE, Under JACMUTH ADAMS, CHIEF

(Copyright, 1905, by Orlando Kling.)

Synopsis. Jacmuth Adams, detective, in Denver, detects a secret sign used only by high-class criminals, made by a well dressed woman to a man, following her hurried exit from the Coliseum, where, during the dog show, a large Newfoundland canine expressed unbounded rage at the sight of her person. He goes to St. Louis to report the matter and his chief arrives at the conclusion that the antipathy of the dog may be traced to the fact that the woman is a criminal, believing that dogs possess an instinctive hatred for persons intending to commit crime. Records are searched, a possible connection is developed between the woman and the disappearance of a fine dog in an eastern city.

From what is found the chief decides that there is a connection between the disappearance of the dog and the antipathy of the Denver dog show canine and Wallace is detailed to have charge of the case, with assistants, among whom is a female detective who is introduced through the Denver press as an author. His attention is directed to Jackson's jewelry store, where many diamonds are being reset, after a fashion introduced by Mrs. Wheaton, whom the detective suspects of being one of a gang of high class expert robbers.

That Mrs. Wheaton had no intention of going to St. Paul, I felt certain, and was equally sure that she was now en route for Galveston. If I was correct, she would leave the train at Courtland and take the outgoing train south, enabling her to catch this train at Strong City. Her purchase of a ticket to St. Paul, and the checking of her baggage was to throw possible followers off the scent, while the baggage she really wanted was checked to Galveston. Of course, when I inform you that she is in one of the Pullmans, you will understand that she pursued exactly that course, although we should not have met here but for the delay caused by the destruction of the bridge. Mrs. Wheaton and Gilmore no doubt intended to meet somewhere farther south, but I do not believe they intended leaving the state by the same train. In fact, I question if they have yet discovered that they are doing so. I have telegraphed the officials at Denver, and if what I anticipate has occurred, has taken place, we will hear some startling news. Possibly we will be obliged to persuade our friends to return to Denver and defer this trip to a later date.

CHAPTER VIII. THE PLOTTERS FOILED.

In a short time we were entering the railroad yards at Trinidad, and Jerry and I were keeping a sharp lookout, lest Gilmore leave us. Mr. Adams came forward from the station with a message in his hand, the contents of which seemed to please him. Handing it to me, he said: "Just as I expected, Wallace, the whole town is wild, and the chief of police the craziest of the lot."

Opening the sheet, I read the following: "Whole town is in uproar. Savings bank looted of hundreds of thousands of dollars. Gilmore disappeared. Wheaton supposed to be en route Kansas City. For God's sake come back and assist in the matter." It was signed by Wagner, chief of police, at Denver. I handed it to Jerry, who seemed astounded to utter a word. Then to Mr. Adams I said: "Well, sir, I presume you intend making the arrests now?"

He nodded his head, and pointed to an official on the platform who, at his request, stepped into the car. From the conversation I learned that he was there in response to a wire from Mr. Adams, and at his request prepared to take the fugitives into custody. Gilmore took his arrest coolly, protesting that it certainly must be a mistake. It could be easily corrected, therefore he would comply with any reasonable demand. We then went back to the sleeper, where we found Mrs. Wheaton doing her best to appear comfortable. At the sight of the officer, she paled visibly, but quickly recovered her composure, and became highly indignant. The officer requested her to follow him to where he could provide a carriage to take her up town. She could only comply, and crossed the platform without making a scene. Gilmore was placed in another vehicle, and until their arrival at the jail, neither was aware of the misfortune that had befallen the other. When they met, both were visibly affected, and for a moment or two, it seemed as if they might decide to acknowledge that they had been caught red-handed. They recovered from their confusion, however, and each began sympathizing with the other for the stupid mistakes of the officers of the law.

By this time telegrams had been sent to Wagner, and he made the necessary arrangements for us to take the next train to Denver. Nothing of importance occurred on the trip, but our arrival was the signal for a demonstration by the depositors of the bank who had been robbed, that showed Gilmore that his personal safety depended upon the vigilance of the police.

Going to police headquarters, Mr. Adams and I learned the all of Mrs. Wheaton's servants were under arrest. Chief Wagner was overjoyed at the promptness with which we had produced Gilmore and Mrs. Wheaton, and could hardly comprehend how it was that we were so well informed as to their plans and whereabouts. Although Wagner was congratulated on every side for the prompt arrest of Gilmore, there was one incident in the affair that caused him untold anxiety and worry, which was the fact that he had expected to find upon the person of Gilmore, or among his baggage, at least a portion of the plunder taken from the bank. To his surprise and regret, Gilmore when searched, was found to possess a paltry $500, with absolutely no baggage at all, other than the hand-grip in which plunder could be concealed. The trunk which was looted between noon and 8 o'clock p. m., on Saturday, appeared certain, but how had the booty been disposed of, and where was it now? With this immense sum at his command, Gilmore was in a position to demand concessions, even to the extent of his personal liberty. The amount in cash and bonds was supposed to exceed $700,000; a sum so large that Gilmore's conviction and punishment seemed almost impossible.

Although urgently requested by the chief of police to offer a possible solution as to the location of the funds taken from the bank, Mr. Adams refused to attempt to suggest what had become of the plunder. Upon being pressed for the location of the funds that had transpired at Trinidad, Mr. Adams informed him that he had asked the officers not to allow Gilmore to communicate with anyone, either verbally, by mail, or by wire. He had, however, allowed them to give Mrs. Wheaton the privilege of mailing a package from that point. This was addressed to a party at Galveston, Texas, and from its weight, he judged it contained either coin or baggage checks. In his opinion, it contained the latter, as the three trunk checks were missing when she was searched upon her arrival in Denver. Chief Wagner was considerably annoyed upon learning this, and quite disposed to criticize his action in allowing it to be mailed. Mr. Adams merely saying in reply that he did not consider the checks of material importance. The matter dropped, and Wagner urged the authorities at Galveston to arrest the party who called for the package, or presented the checks and claimed the trunks.

Chief Wagner then called Mr. Adams and myself went to our offices where we found several telegrams awaiting us. Carelessly opening one after the other, he read them all, then handing them in their order of transmission, he handed them to me. The first was dated at New York, and after it was deciphered, read as follows: "Jackson arranging to leave the city. I shall follow him and look for instructions from you via New York office.—Somerton."

The next was dated at Fort Worth, Texas. Jackson arrived here last night. In accordance with instruction via New York is arrested. Can be held until requisition papers arrive.—Somerton." The third, dated at Galveston, read: "As per instructions have had Turlton arrested. Am sure he is the party wanted. How about requisition?—Page."

CHAPTER IX. JACMUTH MONTGOMERY'S TRIAL.

When I finished reading, the chief said: "Well, Wallace, I think we now have them all in our hands and can take a rest. The chief of police can attend to these requisitions, and when our birds arrive in Denver will see the most sensational trial in all her history. Of course you comprehend that under my advice, the New York office has advised Denver what we will need, before Somerton and Page had the arrests made. Thanks to your obtaining the clues in time, we were able to be on hand on the four co-operators in this deal. If we choose to do so, we could hold them back until satisfactory rewards were offered, and then chain them all, but we will make enough out of it without doing that, for I am confident we will get the money offered for their apprehension for their other escapades, all of which will be our own. Just for the fun of the thing, I would like to be in New York, and believe that those chumps have found out how nicely Jackson has swindled them. They are expecting to be able to collect the amount of his drafts from him, personally. He played them a smooth trick, and it was a sure winner, too. You see, all he had to do was to present Gilmore's check of credit, and they would swallow the bait, as the Savings bank's signature was good for twice the amount. They fell into the trap and let him draw $200,000, but before the drafts could reach Denver, Gilmore looted the bank, and Jackson now, in his eyes, appears to be one of the victims. In the meantime, he makes tracks for Texas; the whole flock intending to rendezvous at Galveston. A special venire of sixty men has been summoned from that city, and I am surprised when Somerton had him thrown into jail, and must realize that some one has had him under surveillance for some time. If he had been the poor devil, but thief-catching is our business, so he can blame no one but himself. But come along over to police headquarters and we will see the chief stars, when we ask for the requisitions."

We left the office, and went to call on Chief Wagner. In spite of the vexation he had felt, he greeted us cordially, and inquired anxiously if we learned anything new. In answer Mr. Adams handed him the telegrams, and asked if he could get the governor to act. The surprise he exhibited was ample proof that he was totally unable to comprehend the complex nature of the problem with which he had to deal. After studying the messages again, he exclaimed: "Get the requisitions, I should say I could. A hundred thousand dollars are needed, for I tell you right now, Mr. Adams, there's no use of my trying to do anything.—In this case, alone,

GREAT LOSS OF LIFE. NEW YORK, April 20.—Since 1137, when the first reliable records apparently were made of such disasters, 1,098,000 persons have lost their lives by earthquakes. This total does not include the destruction wrought by kindred catastrophes like the burial of Pompeii and Herculaneum. In periods earlier than the twelfth century the losses were doubtless correspondingly great, at least, but history is vague or silent on these events. It is supposed by scientists that many parts of the earth's surface now quiet were in ancient and primeval periods the scenes of terrific shocks. No earlier earthquake remains recorded than that of 425 B. C., when the island of Euboea was formed. What loss of life there was then not even a legend relates. An earthquake accompanied the eruption of Vesuvius in 79 A. D. In 724 A. D. Syria, Palestine and other regions were devastated by a series of shocks which destroyed more than 500 towns and hundreds of thousands of persons. Sicily's earthquake in 1137 took 15,000 lives, and from that time history is replete with records of similar catastrophes. In six minutes the city of Lisbon was laid in ruins in 1755, when 30,000 lives were lost. Cilicia lost 60,000 persons in 1768, Naples 40,000 in 1456, 70,000 in 1626 and 6,000 in 1805. Sicily had a terrible disaster in 1693, when 100,000 persons died.

Thousands of Women ARE MADE WELL AND STRONG

Success of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Rests Upon the Fact that It Really Does Make Sick Women Well.

Thousands upon thousands of American women have been restored to health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Their letters are on file in Mrs. Pinkham's office, and prove this statement to be a fact and not a mere boast.

Overshadowing indeed is the success of this great medicine, and compared with it all other medicines and treatment for women are experiments.

Why has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound accomplished such widespread success for good?

Why has it lived and thrived and done its glorious work for a quarter of a century?

Simply and surely because of its sterling worth. The reason no other medicine has even approached its success is plainly and positively because there is no other medicine in the world so good for women's ills.

The wonderful power of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound over the diseases of womanhood is not because it is a stimulant—not because it is a palliative, but simply because it is the most wonderful tonic and reconstructer ever discovered to act directly upon the female system, positively curing disease and displacements and restoring health and vigor.

Marvelous cures are reported from all parts of the country by women who have been cured, trained nurses who have witnessed cures and physicians who have recognized the virtue in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and are fair enough to give credit where it is due. If physicians dared to be frank and open, hundreds of them would acknowledge that they constantly prescribe Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in severe cases of female ills, as they know by experience that it will effect a cure.

Women who are troubled with painful or irregular periods, backache, bloating (or flatulence), weakness, displacements, inflammation, ulceration, that "bearing-down" feeling, dizziness, faintness, indigestion, nervous prostration or the blues, should take immediate action to ward off the serious consequences, and be restored to health and strength by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Any way write to Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., for advice. It's free and always helpful.

TEXAS GOING TO COLORADO SOON

Preparations Being Made for Big Tourist Traffic

H. M. Holleman, manager of the Texas-Colorado Tourist Agency, passed through Fort Worth last night en route to his Houston headquarters. Speaking of his tour through Colorado, Mr. Holleman said that all the resorts to entertain summer guests next season. They have great respect for Texas patronage, which is greater than that of any three other states. Last year over twelve thousand Texans visited Colorado, and indications are this number will this year be largely increased.

At Boulder the chalet grounds are being enlarged and beautified. The Bowen hotel and the Chaletauqua buildings are being painted and several new ones in course of construction. The Y. M. C. A. building and a $100,000 hotel planned for early construction. The president of the chaletauqua is a prominent educator at San Antonio, and the majority of teachers who attend the chaletauqua are Texans, and will doubtless continue in future years to capture many honors for this state.

In Denver all interest centers in the grand reunion of the B. P. O. Elks, which occurs July 16, 1906, and nearly every day some mention is made of the Texas Elks whom they expect to entertain in large numbers. They have assigned the Houston Elks to headquarters adjoining the main railway offices in the new annex to the Albany hotel, near the grand language hall, which is an honor eagerly sought and greatly desired by all lodges in the United States. One member who favored the location of an eastern delegation, after the decision remarked to me: "The result was inevitable to any one who looks at the matter from all sides. Texas is not only the largest state, but is a neighbor, tributary to Colorado, and the appearance put up by Texas lodgers at Chincinai and Buffalo was enough to convince any one of the leadership of Texas, and I would have cast all my votes for her, but policy caused me to advocate another state as a compliment to my native home."

"The railroads are certainly anticipating increased travel," said Mr. Holleman, "and making extensive preparations accordingly. I saw a number of new and modern coaches and several latest model passenger engines which had just arrived for use of the Fort Worth and Denver City railway, and some record-breaking time may be made on the Pike's Peak line."

"Manitou and Colorado Springs are both favorites with Texans, and hundreds spend their vacations there under the shadow of Pike's Peak. The Alta Vista hotel has for years drawn the largest patronage from Texas, and it is quite entertaining to see among the familiar faces seen in Colorado Springs was Judge R. M. Cash of Galveston and ex-Mayor Higgins of Waco."

"No sir; there's no doubt about the esteem in which Texans are held by Colorado people."

while exercising near Sixth and Elm streets, rear wheel of truck struck a large rock, jerking tiller wheel loose from tillerman and running rear wheel into fire hydrant, springing rear axle and gear.

Feb. 11, 1906—Chemical engine company while answering an alarm from box 86, wagon struck by an interurban car at Fourth and Main streets and apparatus badly demolished; one horse killed.

Live Stock Destroyed During Year May 9, 1905—Three horses owned by J. H. Griffin burned to death in barn at 709 Huffman street.

Sept. 21, 1905—Two horses and one mule burned to death in box car in Missouri, Kansas and Texas railroad yards near Leuda street crossing.
