ATHLETIC TRAINING

The Brownwood Bulletin is still opposed to the recognition accorded athletics by the educational institutions of Fort Worth. Commenting on an editorial extract from The Telegram, that paper says:

There is no sane man of the present day who objects to a reasonable amount of attention to the physical development of the growing boy and girl. No one would have college sports eliminated, nor the mind trained at the expense of the body, but the athletic craze has taken such a hold on some institutions that it has overshadowed the real purpose for which boys and girls are sent to school. In these schools there is but little thought of preparation for the next athletic contest and one only has to be thrown with the students of such institutions to find that athletics largely absorb every other thought. How to "pass" in the studies, how to "excel" in athletics too often becomes the purpose of the college trained athlete, and this becomes especially true where frequent contests are held between colleges. The Bulletin would not say that colleges shall not compete with each other in such things, but these contests should be so restricted in number as not to interfere with the studies and a literary contest should be expected for every athletic game. In other words, keep dominant the idea of educating the mind, for the average student needs but little encouragement to develop the physical and is prone to neglect the mental training. In the instance complained of by the Bulletin a careful reading of Fort Worth papers leads to the belief that at least one Fort Worth institution gives athletics by far the most prominent place. It is feared that the reason so many colleges now do this is because they realize what an athletic craze the young people now have and they believe that by catering to it and keeping other more important things in the background they will increase the college patronage. In other words, they think that if the boy will not go to school to be educated he will be tempted to go there to play. And it is this that causes some parents to hesitate before sending their boys and girls to such institutions.

In regard to the complaint of the lack of wearing apparel worn in some athletic contests the Bulletin only has this much to say:

If men should appear on the streets of Fort Worth clad in such abbreviated garments as are worn in some church college athletic stunts, and it could not be shown that there was the germ of some athletic association, they would promptly be arrested for indecent exposure and if women should appear dressed that way they would be promptly run in by the officers. The church is endeavoring to create the same standard of ethics and morals for both sexes, but it cannot be done by educating the men to believe that they can appear under the protection of a church school in costumes that would shock refined senses elsewhere. It is admitted that things are permitted in some places, not allowed elsewhere, but that doesn't make it right, however far from it public sentiment may drift.

The Bulletin's contention is that in catering to the popular trend toward athletics there is great danger that our boys are being made athletes instead of scholars and that lack of decorum in college sports will bring about lax standards of modesty and morality in after life.

The Telegram agrees to the proposition that college athletics may be carried to an extreme, but it is not prepared to concede that it is being done in connection with any college or educational institution in Fort Worth. The colleges here maintain a very high standard and the students who attend these institutions will bear witness to the fact that all other things are made subservient to the course of study. But the Fort Worth colleges believe in the development of the physical as well as the mental faculties of the student, and college athletics receive only the encouragement that is proper under the circumstances.

There are some people who object to these things, and their objections are entitled to respectful consideration. We desist any parent who does not desire his son to take a course in athletics can make the necessary arrangements to have it passed up. But some diversion is necessary. If the student can not have it in one direction he will seek it in another, and it is better to stick to what has become college custom than to permit diversions of a far more questionable nature.

VENALITY OF THE PRESS

Colonel Tom Campbell, the versatile and erudite candidate for governor of Texas from the piney woods of East Texas, made his opening speech in the campaign at Athens a few days ago, and the burden of his campaign song is opposition to corporations. Colonel Tom goes after every corporation he can call to mind and, incidentally, takes a shot at the venality of the state press, which, he declares, is under corporate domination. In fact, the doughty colonel has on his war paint, as is attested by the following extract from his Athens address:

The grafter is against me, the machine politician will fight me, every railroad corporation in Texas and every newspaper under their domination will oppose me with untiring effort. Their fiat has gone forth that I shall not be governor of Texas. We will see. The railroads are organized for political purposes. They are thoroughly organized throughout the country. They have their publicity bureau, with headquarters in Washington, and branches in New York, Chicago, St. Louis, Topeka and in Texas. They have, in addition to this publicity bureau, a political organization here in Texas known as the General Managers' association. These organizations operate through many newspapers and, without disclosing the source, they are flooding the country with printed matter and pamphlets designated to mislead and deceive the public.

The Telegram has long been under the impression that the Texas press was a pretty decent sort of an institution, and always ready to lend a helping hand to any deserving proposition that presented itself. It is certain that there is no greater factor in promoting the growth and development of different Texas communities than the press, and it is much more of a bulwark in the protection of the rights of the masses than the ebullitions of flannel mouthed orators who seek to stir up passion and prejudice among the masses that they may float into office on a great wave of so-called reform.

The respectable newspapers of Texas seek to do even and exact justice to all interests, and are not the organs of either men or measures. Their first mission is to give the news as free from bias and prejudice as it is possible to shape it, and in doing this they are bound to recognize the fact that corporations have a right to existence, else they would not be permitted to exist under the laws of our country. The next thing to be considered by the representative newspaper of today after serving the public with the news is the best method of protecting and promoting the interests of the community in which it is published, and there is not a newspaper in all Texas that is not measuring fully up to every detail of duty in this direction.

Perhaps the fault of the Texas press in the eyes of Colonel Tom Campbell is that it has not lent the expected support to him in the crusade he has undertaken against Texas corporations. If the press had proclaimed the sage of Palestine as another Peter the Hermit and followed where his white plume led the way he might have expressed himself differently. Texas newspapers of the class attacked by Colonel Campbell, have not sold themselves to the railway industry, as he so broadly intimates. They are simply engaged in a labor of love for their people in seeking to undo some of the ill-advised work performed by other patriots of the Tom Campbell class in the past. In other words, they are but striving to bring the railroads and the people of Texas to a better understanding in order that false premises may be avoided in the future.

CORPORATIONS USEFUL AFTER ALL

There are people who almost have a convulsion fit at the bare mention of a corporation, and politicians who foam at the mouth every time they see such an institution. But there come times within the history of all people when the corporation proves its right of existence and can also lay some claim to being something of a public benefactor. It may be treason against Colonel Thomas M. Campbell in his race for governor of Texas to make such a declaration, but The Telegram is not only going to make it, but is prepared to prove it.

According to estimates now made 105 insurance companies with outstanding insurance in the city of San Francisco will be called upon to pay approximately $144,500,000, and it is believed that with possibly two or three exceptions the companies will pay all legitimate claims. No such general insurance insolvency as followed the great Chicago fire is now threatened. Company treasuries will in many instances be relieved of the last farthing, and stockholders will be compelled to submit to the additional woe of heavy assessments, but the money to pay for these terrible losses will be forthcoming.

The habit of railing at corporations for the past few years has become a great popular pastime. Examining the figures of normal years complaint has grown that fire insurance premiums have grown too high, reaching a level almost tantamount to robbery. But such a calamity as just experienced at San Francisco is well calculated to remove the strabismus of that view. What would conditions be out in the stricken district if resources equal to at least half of the total loss were not immediately available? San Francisco has discovered that corporations, and particularly insurance corporations have their functions.

Except for the association of resources which the modern corporation provides and which can be furnished by no other agency, San Francisco would have vastly more cause for mourning. Philanthropy is doing much for the stricken city, but diligently would the hat of the nation have to be passed to gather in the enormous sum of $144,500,000. Except for these selfish corporations, these artificial creatures which so often forget their Creator, these instrumentalities against civilization against which every loose jaw in the nation is unlimbered, it would take a generation or more to repair the damage now likely to be undone in less than half a decade.

The corporation is an awful bad thing, according to the politicians, but there comes a time when even these despised and much maligned institutions serve a wholesome purpose.

The idea being advanced by the different candidates for governor to the effect they are just on the eve of opening the campaign is an utter and unqualified mistake. The campaign for governor of Texas has now been in full blast for nearly two years.

The Texas doctors have all fallen in love with Fort Worth, and many of them would feel tempted to make their homes here if the city were not so distressingly healthy.

Fort Worth is to have that promised new and modern ten-story office building after all. Difficulties temporarily besetting the enterprise have been overcome and work will begin about June 1.

TEXAS PRESS

In a poll of the representatives and senators recently at Austin it was found that C. K. Bell, of Fort Worth, stood first for governor. Judge Bell is a man of clear mind and private, and in addition a man of ability, and statesmanship. Judge Bell is the man whom the Democrats should unite upon for governor, and from all indications such will be the case.—Foard County News.

The people of Texas are showing themselves in thorough accord with the candidacy of Judge Bell and the principles he represents. The politicians are doing a lot of howling and seeking to obscure the real issues involved, but this is one time they cannot pull the wool over the eyes of the people.

Strange how figures can be switched about. At Fort Worth they changed mayors last week. The outgoing official gave a final message showing how the city had prospered during his six years' service. The incoming mayor a few days afterward gave his first message showing that six years ago the city had a hundred thousand balance on hand, while now it had a sixty thousand deficit. Figures never lie, but they do get badly twisted sometimes.—Memphis Herald.

The outgoing mayor left behind him a record of one of the best and most successful administrations ever given Fort Worth, and if those who come after him can equal that administration Fort Worth will continue to shine as the best governed municipality in all Texas.

THE MARATHON MYSTERY

BY BURTON E. STEVENSON

COPYRIGHT 1906, BY HENRY HOLT & COMPANY

CHAPTER II. A TANGLED WEB. "No need for an ambulance," said Simmonds tersely. "He's dead."

The words roused the girl from the ecstasy of horror which possessed her, and she buried her face in her hands, shuddering convulsively. Godfrey caught her as she swayed forward, and led her gently to a chair.

"Perhaps you don't remember me, Miss Crofton," he said. "Godfrey's my name. I'm the fellow who was with Mrs. Delroy's met you. It was Jack Drysdale who introduced me—you know I'm an old friend of his."

"Yes," she murmured indistinctly. "I remember quite—"

An exclamation from Simmonds interrupted her. He had picked up a small, peach-colored revolver from the floor in the corner.

"Is this yours?" he asked. She nodded faintly. He snapped it open and looked at the chambers. One had been discharged.

Godfrey's face hardened as he turned to the janitor, who had regained his breath and stood staring on the threshold.

"My friend," he said, "shut the door."

He stopped as he heard the tramp of heavy feet approaching along the corridor.

"Wait," said Simmonds. "There come my men. I'll be back in a minute."

Godfrey nodded curtly, and waited until Simmonds closed the door.

"Now, Miss Crofton," he said, "tell me quickly how it happened. I can't help you unless I know the whole story, and I want to help you."

The gentleness of his voice, the quiet assurance of his manner, the encouraging glance, combined to calm and strengthen her.

"There isn't much to tell," she began, striving to keep steadily. "I was coming to the office for my chain carriers for each day's services, $5."

"My construction of the item marked (a) is that a county surveyor is entitled to pay for each mile actually run at $3, also entitled to pay for any expenses incurred, such as car fare, meals and chain carriers used in making surveys; also for such fees as are allowed for office work."

"Paragraph marked (b) I construe to mean that a county surveyor is entitled to pay for a day's service at $5 while designating a homestead; also is entitled to as much as is necessary to pay the chain carriers."

A trip to the scales at the end of the week showed it was hopeless.

PANTHERS LOSE THE FIRST GAME

Doyle's Effective Pitching Is Largely Responsible

By a score of 6 to 5 the Fort Worth Panthers were defeated in their opening game of the Texas League season at Greenville Wednesday. Doyle's effective pitching was largely responsible for the defeat.

Walsh was in the box for the Panthers and struck out five of the home players. Salm's home run was the most sensational feature of the game, bringing in two men besides himself in the fifth inning. All of the Panthers' runs were made in this inning.

PASTOR WANTS DIVORCE Big Scandal in John D.'s Church by Sensational Charges. Special to The Telegram. CLEVELAND, Ohio, April 26.—The Rev. I. R. Arnold, associate pastor of the Euclid Avenue Baptist church, the religious home of John D. Rockefeller, yesterday filed suit for divorce from Adella Arnold. He charges her with deserting him to live with a band of colored lovers of "Holiness" religion in Chicago. They were married in 1867 and have five daughters, all adults. In his petition the Rev. Mr. Arnold says that "he found employment for his daughters, but she (his wife), compelled the girls to abandon their work and go with her to reside with a company of colored people in Chicago, because, as she said, it was wicked to earn money or engage in any business."

Health and Beauty

Beauty is the external proof of health; with failing health comes failing beauty. Woman's delicate organism is frequently over-taxed by arduous household duties, and the demands of society. The constant drain upon her vitality weakens her nervous system. The penalty is a tired, worn-out, exhausted condition which destroys her appetite, robs her of rest, and at intervals causes much suffering and distress. When these conditions exist, the weakened nerves must be strengthened. Dr. Miles' Nervine will do this. It stimulates the action of all the organs, brings refreshing sleep, and drives away that look of care.

"I have taken Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine for years, as did my mother before me. Whenever I feel tired, worn-out, or have headache, I always take the Nervine and it strengthens me. I consider it a great remedy for nervousness or debility."

REPORT A REVELATION OF COLOSSAL COMBINE

Secret Agents and Commissioner Have Investigated

FOR PROSECUTION

President Roosevelt, Pleased With Inquiry, Will Forward Result to Congress

Special to The Telegram, WASHINGTON, April 26.—Beyond question, the monumental economic sensation of this era of sensations is the report on the Standard Oil monopoly, which at last has been submitted to the President by Commissioner of Corporations Garfield.

This report represents the result of fourteen months' patient investigation by Commissioner Garfield and numerous secret agents. These officials have ransacked every oil field in this country, almost every state in the country, and even have visited Europe for information to enable them to describe clearly and impartially the operations of the most colossal combination of modern times.

The information has been incorporated in a voluminous report and it will be sent by the President to congress, probably during the present week or early next week, in order that it may guide that body in the enactment of remedial legislation for some of the evils disclosed. In the meantime, it is being considered by the President and the attorney general with a view to the institution of legal proceedings against the officers of the Standard Oil and various railroads with which they have been in collusion.

Discloses Trust Conspiracy.
The allegations which the report presents include charges that the Standard Oil Company has been guilty of:

Granting and receiving rebates.
Conspiracy in restraint of trade and commerce.
Conspiracy for the purpose of crushing competition.

It would seem upon the facts brought to light that there could be no question of the prosecution of the company and its officers and the railroads and their officers with which they have been in collusion. But in the early stages of the investigation Mr. Garfield unfortunately pursued the same methods he observed in the inquiry he made into the beef trust. He personally went to Kansas, to California, to Cleveland, and to New York, and talked with the officers of the Standard Oil—not all of them to be sure—not with Rockefeller and some of the others "higher up."

The men he saw will claim immunity for themselves in the event of prosecution and for the other officers, blanket immunity. To quote the Humphrey decision in the beef packers' case, Attorney General Moody and Mr. Garfield have discussed this question and the next few days will determine whether or not the government will take legal action.

Delve for Corporate Secrets.
The Campbell resolution, passed by congress, under which the investigation was made, directed the commissioner of corporations to ascertain the facts regarding the oil situation and report them to congress "as best he can, before or after the passage of legislation or by the department of justice as a basis for legal proceedings."

It was understood a few weeks ago, when congress directed the investigate commerce commission to investigate the oil situation, that Commissioner Garfield would co-operate with the commission. Mr. Garfield consulted with the commission, and the latter began the investigation with a hearing at Kansas City. The commission returned to Washington and upon arrival found a letter from the President directing that it suspend its operations so far as the oil question was concerned.

In directing this to be done the President was actuated, it now has developed, by a desire to have Mr. Garfield complete his work and report to him, so that his investigation as an independent affair might be submitted to congress.

Trust Buster as Counsel.
Now that the Garfield report is in the President has authorized the commission to continue its inquiry. As the first step it has appointed Francis S. Monnet, former attorney general of Ohio, who has prosecuted suits under the Ohio anti-trust laws against the Standard Oil, as special counsel to assist in the investigation. The next hearing will be held in Chicago early in May, then the commission will go to Cleveland, and perhaps thence to New Orleans. It proposes to finish its report as promptly as possible in the hope of having it ready for transmission to congress before the close of the session.

The edge will, of course, be taken off the commission's report by the disclosures which will be made by the Garfield document. The latter gives specific and detailed answers to the six points marked out by the Campbell resolution for inquiry. These are:

1. Describe the causes of the low price for crude oil or petroleum in the United States and especially in the Kansas oil fields.
2. Why have there been unusually large margins between the prices of crude oil or petroleum and the selling price of refined oil and its by-products?
3. Have these conditions resulted in whole or in part from any contract, combination in the form of trust or otherwise, or conspiracy in restraint of trade or commerce?
4. Have the prices fixed been controlled in whole or in part by any corporate or individual company, or corporate combination?
5. Has such corporation boycotted, blacklisted, or in any manner discriminated against any particular oil field?
6. Describe the organization, capital, profits, and management of the business of the said corporation.

Triumph for Garfield.
It is apparent the resolution imposed a herculean task upon the commissioner of labor. The difficulty of getting information to enable him to describe Standard Oil employees either to mislead or to blind added to the labor. But it appears that this time, according to what administration officials say, Mr. Garfield has triumphed. He has not prepared another beef trust report. The facts he has given to the President stand the officials when they were brought to their attention. They had known in a general way the unsavory business methods pursued by the Standard Oil corporation, but they did not know they were as evil and foul as Mr. Garfield's report describes.

It is expected the President in the message he will make transmitting the report will describe what judicial action has been initiated or contemplated. He is greatly pleased with the result of Mr. Garfield's work, regarding it as a complete and satisfactory answer to the complaint in connection with the beef trust report of that official, that he had failed to ascertain the true situation. The oil report is slated to be published in the Congressional Record in congress will make an explosion that will astonish the country.

Pressler of Comanche, who left Dallas yesterday afternoon at 1 o'clock for his home, Fort Worth, made the announcement before leaving that he cannot be considered a candidate for the nomination for the position of lieutenant governor on the democratic ticket.

Senator Pressler had never formally announced for the race, but had been considering the proposition made by members of his legislative committee. Asked about the gubernatorial race in his section of the state, Senator Pressler said that Judge C. K. Bell of Fort Worth was the first choice of that part of Texas and that, if there is a second, it is Colonel Tom Campbell. Senator Pressler believes that Judge Bell will carry west Texas by an overwhelming majority.

"WHAT'S BUZZING ALONG THE LINE?"

Is Tillman Trying to Connect With White House?

Special to The Telegram, WASHINGTON, April 26.—Has Senator Benjamin Ryan Tillman of South Carolina been stung by the presidential bee? This question is being asked by some of the senators, while they openly assert that this busy little insect is buzzing about Tillman's head, and that the noise it is making is not at all disagreeable to him.

In fact, one republican senator said that he is convinced that Tillman is a full-fledged receptive candidate. "All his actions," said this senator, "indicate that Tillman is a candidate for the presidency. He loses no opportunity to jump into the arena as the champion of the people. Apparently he is aiming to become the democratic population what Roosevelt is to the republican masses."

"This same idea has occurred to other public men in Washington. It is generally thought that if Judge Parker's suggestion that a southern man be nominated by the democrats in 1908 is to be accepted, Tillman will be willing to tackle the job.

American Tourists Recite Avalanche Story

NEW YORK, April 26.—A cable dispatch to a morning paper from Geneva says:
An American named Kenrick and his wife, accompanied by two guides, ascended Point Dux Orny, the climb being a dangerous one at this time of the year, owing to the avalanches.

"As they began to descend, they suddenly slid downward at an alarming speed. They had started an avalanche. The guides to whom the Kenricks were attached by a rope shouted to them to keep their feet and not to sit down. The movement increased until they were going at express speed. I thought every moment that we would be dashed to pieces, as I knew of the huge precipices on the flank of the mountain."

New Branch of Institution May Be Opened Next Fall, According to Plans Awaiting Action

Polytechnic College may have a law school.
The matter has been under consideration by the board of trustees of the college and although definite action has not been taken, the project is looked upon with favor by a majority of the trustees.
It is stated by a member of the board, W. Erskine Williams, that a law course at the college is probable and that the trustees intend to give immediate consideration to the project. It is possible the new branch of study may be added to the curriculum when the college opens next fall.
There are a large number of young men graduating each year from the Fort Worth high school and other high schools in this vicinity, who, it is said, would be glad to take advantage of such a branch.

ONE SALOON; THIRD ELECTION
Antis Won Election by Six Votes Last Time

Local option election called for Stove Foundry school district May 12 will be the third election of the sort held in that district. The preceding election was a close one, the antis winning by six votes. Investigation shows there are less than sixty qualified voters in the district.
There is but one saloon in the district and that has merely a beer license. It is at Rushing Park and is operated by Tom Williams, who secured the business Feb. 1.
In discussing the election Wednesday, Mr. Williams, who was formerly engaged in the saloon business in this city, said that he had made no investigation as to the probable outcome. "I think there has been no objection to the operation of the saloon under my ownership," he said, "and if I cannot run the place in peace, I do not desire to continue the business. If the election goes against me, I shall move my business into Fort Worth."
Rushing Park is on the Stove Foundry Road in a grove near the Clear Fork bridge, and is largely patronized by driving parties from this city.
Polling place for the election has not yet been announced.

The linen articles were placed in an open umbrella of Japanese make and generous dimensions. This was unceremoniously tipped over at the proper time upon Miss Lusher.
