Dug Trenches for Safety

A newspaper man who happened to be in the burned district came out this afternoon and described the situation as appalling.

"We were near a lumber camp," he said. "There were nearly 200 persons The first we knew of danger was the black rolling smoke that suddenly came down on us. We were miles from a lake or a stream, but there were men who had been through similar fires and under their guidance every man was set to work digging trenches in the soft soil.

"Valuables were buried and when the danger appeared greatest the women and children were covered with earth, and then the tents and canvas sheets about the place were saturated with water and spread over them. The sixty-five horses were turned loose and given a chance for their lives. Some of them broke away, but the greater number remained about the old stables and this required great work on the part of the men to keep them from trampling on the women and children.

"After the flames came, it seemed but a few minutes when the great forest beyond was a mass of fire, while behind us was nothing but blackness and smoke.

"In the sod covered cabins all escaped and all were safely accounted for. The property loss in this vicinity will be upward of many million dollars, not a bridge, railroad or wagon survived the fire. Three children were burned to death at Quininneso and rescuers report finding the bodies of nine others killed by the fire." A Northwestern railroad relief train

PRESIDENT SHUTS DOWN ON PENSIONS

Roosevelt Notifies Committees to Quit Making Bills

Special to The Telegram. WASHINGTON, D. C., May 19 .-President Roosevelt has notified the chairmen of the house and senate committees on pensions that congress should desist in the allowance of pensions by special legislation. He states that he strongly disapproves of this class of legislation and "would consider it very unwise and unpolitic" to exercise the veto power. In other words, the President wants congress to stop grinding out pensions for old soldiers, many of whom have been unable to obtain relief through the pension bureau.

The members of the committees on pensions of both houses do not take kindly to this further evidence of White House domination. The President has interfered to an unprecedented extent with legislation. There is scarcely a member of either house or senate who has not been a victim of Presidential interference with legislative matters. Now the President wants all special legislation with reference to pensions stoped. It is needless to say, that the congressional pension bill will continue to grind. If the President deems it neecssary he can exercise his constitutional perogative and veto each separate bill. But he, as well as all the members of the house and senate well understand that if he acts adversely upon a single claim it will bring down upon his head the wrath of the Grand Army of the Republic. No one believes that the President will dare to veto pension bills passed by congress. Concealed as it has been in the past, there is no denying the fact that President Roosevelt is as susceptible to public opinion as any occupant of the White House since the days of old Andrew Jackson. Therefore, while he may disapprove of the operations of the congressional pension mill, he will not dare to exercise the veto power.

POPE'S ILLNESS CAUSES ANXIETY

Pontiff's Sisters Would Attend His Bedside

Special Cable to The Telegram, (Coppright, 1996, by Hearst News Service.)
ROME, 19.—Dr. Lappoini today annound that Pope Pius X was suffering from an aggravated attack of gout in the ight knee, accompanied by fever. He fild not anticipate any serious results It is learned that the attack began on Thursday after the pontiff had giv-en air audience to the Dominican friars, in connection with the beautification of the Dominican friars who lost their lives in a massacre in Lifkin, China, some years ago. This ceremony will take place tomorrow, but the pope will be unable to attend as he is confined to his bed by directions of his physician. At the best, Dr. Lappoint says, it will be several days before his distinguished patient will be able to be about.

From a source close to the vatican it is learned that there is more uneasiness for the Pope than those in an official position are willing to admit. The fever has proved extremely obstinate and instead of decreasing has continued to rise slowly but steadily. The sisters of the sick man are so worried that they have applied for permission to be at his bedside.

Apprehension at Vatican Special Cable to The Telegram.

(Copyright, 1906, by Hearst News Service.) ROME, May 19.-An intimate friend of Pope Pius X. is authority for the statement that the condition of the aged pontiff is causing decided apprehension at the vatican. Dr. Lapponi, who is in attendance, announces that his patient is doing as well as could be expected, but it is known that he is uneasy. Inquiries tonight develop the fact that the pope's attack of gout is unusually severe. One knee is greatly swollen and ratient is suffering intense pain. Not only is he confined to his bed but it is said at the best he will not be able to leave his room for a number of days. His condition is somewhat compromised by physical weakness and mental depression. This it what causes the greatest uneasiness. In any event it will be necessary for the pope to abstain absolutely from work for a little time. It was reported late tonight that Pius' fever had risen and that it refused to yield to the usual treatment. It is known that his sisters have asked to be allowed to attend him. One friend declares that unless the greatest care is exercised a fatal termination of the illness is not improbable. TRINITY RIVER FLOOD

Warren Fairbanks, vice president of the United States and presiding officer of the United States senate, with Mrs. Fairbanks and party, arrived in Atlanta shortly before noon today, this being the first visit the vice president has paid the south since his election. and also the first visit in some twenty years that he has made to this section. The vice president, with Mrs. Fairbanks, Mrs. C. H. Ackert, wife of the vice president of the Southern Railway and a friend of Mrs. Fairbanks; Russell Kin, private secretary, and A. W. Lowry, who represents several Indiana newspapers on this trip. On the way to Atlanta Vice President Fairbanks shook hands with the people who pressed around his car at Anniston. In reply to a question, Mr. Fairbanks laughingly remarked that the passage of the rate bill had nothing to do with his absence from Washington, or his return. He evaded any further coment on politics, but talked about the session of congress and the senate.

"Now that the rate bill is out of the road," 'he resumed, "I believe that business will be expedited in the senate and the house. While that bill was pending everything else, of course, was in a fashion, subsidiary. I see no reason now why we should not finish by June. This country, however, is a great one and it has a lot of business. When asked if there was a possibility of his becoming a candidate for the presidency of the United States in the next campaign, Mr. Fairbanks' manner was as conservative as it was gracious.

"You name has been frequently mentioned of late in that connection, was suggested to him. "Is that true?" asked the vice president with a half suppressed smile that indicated his own amusement at the surprise playfully feigned in his voice.

BULLET IN BACK

Victim Accuses Sister-in-Law Not Yet Arrested-Occurs in East Humboldt Street

While Joseph Kree is lying at his home, 928 East Humboldt street, probably fatally wounded by a bullet, his sister-in-law, Mrs. Taliaferro, whom he accuses of the murderous assault, is sought by the police, to whom her wherabouts are unknown. The shooting occurred last night at 9 o'clock as Mr. Kee was preparing to retire. His statement, made in the presence of Assistant Chief of Police Day, a reporter for The Telegram and attendents was to the effect that he had returned from work at the usual hour and eaten supper, and up to the time of retiring to his room, nothing had passed between he and his sister-in-law which would indicate any ill feeling. Although suffering and scarcely able to talk, the wounded man stated that while he was kneeling on the bed and reaching for a curtain the shot was fired, the builet entering his back. At first he thought it was an accident and caused by himself, but turning as he sank on the bed, he says he saw Mrs. Taliaferro standing in the doorway with a revolver in her hand. He says she stood there a moment and then ran out the back door.

Mrs. Kree, his wife, was in a hammock on the front gallery when the shot was fired, and ran to the room to find her husband shot and in agony, Mrs. Kee states that she caught a glimpse of Mrs. Taliaferro as she was leaving the house and that she still carried the pistol. Neighbors assisted her in caring for the stricken man, who was thought to be dying. Dr. Kelly was immediately summoned, but was unsuccessful in probing for the bullet, and held out no hopes for his Captain T. N. Blanton and Officers Lloyd, McGlathlin and Walker at once instituted a search for Mrs. Taliaferro, but were unable to find any clue to follow. Several neighbors stated that they saw a woman in the backyard, but are unable to say in which direction

Saturday, so it is stated at the Kree

home, Mrs. Taliaferro was given a sum of money by her brother-in-law, whom she is accused of shooting, for the purpose of purchasing clothes and to aid in the expense of a trip to Mineral Wells, where she intended going Saturday night. It is said that part of money went to buy a 38-caliber revolver, but that she was persuaded to give up the weapon, and that it was afterwards given back to her for the purpose of returning it to the store from which it was bought.

Mrs. Joseph Kree stated to a Telegram reporter that Mrs. Taliaferro had been living with them for the past five weeks, and that on frequent occasions ner actions were peculiar. "There are times," said Mrs. Kree, when my sister had no control of herself. Not long ago she was taken before the authorities and examined and it was decided she should be sent to an asylum, but since then she has been released." Chief of Police Maddox stated to a Telegram reporter that Mrs. Talifero was brought before him five months ago on a charge of insanity and the case was referred to the county authorities. Mrs. Talifero is of small stature, a blonde, and is said to be of handsome appearance. She is a young woman. Her name before marriage was Clark. Ralph Farmer, D. Brewer and W. A. Redford, who live near the Kree home, stated to a Telegram reporter Saturday night they had heard the shot fired and Sermon by Dr. Hemphill Already interest is beginning to cener in the coming commencement season, June 10-12. The commencement sermon this year Sunday, June 10, will be preached by Rev. Charles R. Hemphill, D. D., LL.D., of Louisville, Ky. Dr. Hemphill is no stranger in Texas. He was moderator of the general assembly of the Presbyterian church, which met in Dallas in 1895, and ten years later a member of the same body when it met in Fort Worth. He holds, a commanding position among Southern Presbyterians. He is now professor of New Testament exercises and hamilities at Kentucky theological seminary. For fourteen years he was pastor of the Second Presbyterseminary. In turning to teaching he was going back to his first love. In his earlier manhood he was professor of Biblical literature in Columbia seminary, and still earlier professor of ancient languages in the Southwestern Presbyterian university. Many of his old pupils are to be found in Texas. prominent among them being Regent Texans may feel that in hearing Dr. Hemphill they are hearing one to vhom for personal reasons Texas is dear, for he is the nephew of the first chief justice of Texas, the great and honored John Hemphill. His coming will be hailed with pleasure and with some degree of pride by a great many throughout the state and by those con-ected with the university.

A new book that will probably meet ith a warm reception in the scientific vorld, has just been issued by Dr. 7 H. Montgomery, Jr., professor zoology in the university. The title is "The Analysis of Racial Descent in Animals," and was just issued, May, 1906, by Henry Holt & Co., of Nev York. Having heretofore contributed about fifty monographs on histology and comparative anatomy, he is already a well known figure in the 'Lyrics of Love," by H. R. R. Hertzerg, LL. B., '92, is the title of a new ook that will no doubt be accorded a varm reception in Texas. He will be ssociated in Texas, and also by many ew acquaintances who had the pleasare of listening to the alumni address lelivered by him at the last commencement exercises of the university. The book is issued by the Neale Publishing Company of New York city, and it has been said "these love lyrics are illustrative of almost every shade and hue hich man's ruling emotion assumes."

"Cactus" (1906) Issued

The Cactus for 1906 is just out, and is a work of art that will attract nuch attention and praise for Editor Buckley and his associates. The cover is of a white grained leather stamped with a large bunch of blue bonnets, the design being contributed by Miss Lillian Walker. The make up and the material of the annual is one of the most satisfactory that has been gotten out. COTTON BELT TO HAVE HEAVY RAILS

Work Progressing Rapidly on Improvements

"The St. Louis and Southwestern railroad will in a short time be equipped from end to end with 70-pound steel rails, and when that is the case it will be the only and boss road in Texas," said John F. Lehane, general freight and passenger agent, who came to Fort Worth to have an interview with Mayor Harris Saturday.

"We are laying 70-pound steel now from Tyler to Waco, which will be continued to the Lufkin branch, and this will make the entire system heavy rail. Three steam shovels are at work between Redwater and Tyler re-establishing grades and bettering the roadbed generally, and they will be continued at this work until the entire system has practically been reconstructed, making the Cotton Belt second to no railroad in the state. "I want to tell you about the Cotton Belt: It's the people's road and run in the interest of the public. Its it, and the only it in the railroad line in Texas. I tell you Texas wouldn't be Texas right if it wasn't for the Cotton Belt. It's the ne plus ultra of

Pinkertons in Charge of Guns at Bridgeport, Ohio Special to The Telegram. BRIDGEPORT, Ohio, May 19 .- The Pinkertons guarding the property of the United States Coal company at Plum last night brought in several Gatling guns and the striking miners awoke this morning to find them mounted on the hilltops commanding the mine entrance and the camps outside of the works. Under the cover of darkness thirty strike breakers were taken into Plum run and a hundred more are now on their way from Pittsburg.

Removal Demanded

Special to The Telegram. SMITHFIELD, Ohio, May 19 .- Mayr Raiston has demanded that Sheriff Voorhees remove the guards from the mines, saying that they are a menace to the town. Voorhees says he will investigate and decide tonight. The posting of Gatling guns at several mines has caused great uneasiness among the miners.

CATTLE FEEDER TELLS METHOD

W. Black, the well-known and successful cattle feeder of Lyndon, Ohio, before the Ohio Live Stock Association at The oldest member of the United States senate, in answer to an inquiry as to what he would do were his life eight weeks on grass, when the cattle, to live over again, said: "I would go out into the middle of a big farm and if of the right sort and properly selected, should be ripe and ready for stay there." Fellow agriculturists, there is much food for reflection in market. that thought. I have just one suggestion to add thereto—to one and all who can and will, and that is, "Go out in the middle of a big farm and stay there; but build a good big feed lot and keep it well filled with cattle, and watch these cattle, for you must never forget that the eye of the master fat-From time immemorial things pastoral have engaged the attention of our best minds. No vocation or calling, as exemplified in the reflection of our oldest and most strenuous senator, seems so replete with soul-satisfying and purse-filling attributes as the feeding and breeding of cattle. The time was when the feeding of cattle presented phases not appealing to the over cautious; when the pathway of the feeder was strewn not with roses but with thorns; when we knew not what to buy or what to feed. But time and the ingenuity of man works wonders. as feeders we can now reckon with a fair degree of certainty the possible profit of a given number weeks, even months before market time, for in the past eight years the fluctuations in the price of prime beef have not been sufficient in my experience to be worth This condition of stability has been brought about largely by the packers of the country, a band of highwaymen, or robbers, if gauged or reckoned by the reports or conclusions of an inflamed daily press catering to the insatiate minds of an imaginative public, but to me, and I sincerely believe to the majority of the cattlemen of this country, an organization of men linked together by a chain of mutual business relationship, that represents in their directorate the best commercial mentality the world has known, and linked together not to rob the feeder, but to help him; for in helping him they help themselves. Far be it from my motives to dethrone the packers on a pedestal of love for the cattlemen. But these men, the packers and stock yards people, are men of breadth of mind, of force, men who can encompass in their deliberations the fact that their success or profits are in ratio to the profits of the cattlemen.

I am sufficiently eptimistic to sincerely believe that the cattle business, representing as it does the real source of animal food for our people and for all the civilized world, will adjust and take care of itself; that no combine or combination of circumstances will force us who are engaged in beef making to grow that great product at a loss, granting of course that reasonable judgment be used in the selection and purchase of material to be fed.

The varying phases of the feeder's or grower's business present many problems, and upon the proper interpretation of the ultimate ends depend argely the profits of his industry or labors, for, and let me say here and now to those prospective embryo feeders not yet actually engaged in the business, do not, for my sake and yours, and the steer's sake, undertake the growing of beef unless strenuousness is your watchword, for alone by the sweat of your brow and the expenditure of your brawn is success in this calling, as in all others, possible, I say it presents to the grower and the feeder many varying problems. Take for instance the virgin calf. fresh from the womb of the beefy mother, or a car load of the same, these in proper development present problems essentially different from that of the yearlings fresh from the range, if a profitable market is to be obtained for each. Let us suppose for practical purposes, a car load of good calves fresh from the upper, passed to you or to me from their development, the watchword to be "profit." How can I best market these calves? The grade or breed of caives will have nothing to do with the manner of handling, but in general I start with a little grain, gradually increasing to one pound of grain for every 100 pounds of weight, with abundance of roughage, clover hay, fodder, etc., increasing provender as cattle increase in weight. This is for the first winter. As I said before, the average car load of good calves, and the time has long since gone by for buying other than good ones, presents two distinct grades-about two-thirds should be and likely would be marketed as yearlings, the remaining one-third being more profitable marketed at from 24 to 26 months, being short in weight and age, and seriously reducing the popular yearling weight if marketed as such. Ample roughage in calves serves a two-fold purpose, importance of which is the gradual distention of the stomach, thus enabling them to consume a greater amount of provender as demands increase. When grass comes would turn out for a month or so, letting down gradually from grain to grass, giving a thorough cooling out with nature's greatest grower. Following period of grass commence light on grain with the addition of what is thought to be the best appetizer and assimilator. To me one of the most valuable adjuncts in the feeders formulary is the early green, succulent corn, of any variety, either the early sugar or ordinary field corn. This certainly is an ideal ration to tide over the period of drouth that applies to almost every section, still continuing to use the ground grain in liberal quantity.

In the case of range yearlings, and the range is the greatest source of supply for corn-belt feeders, they do not to me present the probable profit of the range calves, owing to a stinted supply of forage during the first winter. In the case of 2-year-olds, range bred or otherwise, marketed as 3s, which day of marketing has, in the minds of our best feeders, long since passed, I would feed in the plainest and cheapest possible way, because of the known fact that aged steers soon eat their heads off. As proof of this fact shall mention an instance of a drove of sixty 2s and 3s past fed by a neighbor that consumed as much grain per day as 180 short yearlings, the gain on which later was greater per head than the relative gain per head of the aged steers. Yearlings got in early fall months I should feed limited ration of shock corn or grass as long as grazing and you have a delicious meal without cooking.

Add Cream to four spoonfuls of

The following is an address by D. | lasts, continuing same ration well into the winter. During the last winter months I should commence with ground feed in limited quantities, continuing shock corn. About May 1, when turning to grass, would have on full feed of ground corn and cob meal, the same to be maintained for six to

> Conditions governing and having on hand, or buying to best advantage, the 2s and 3s before mentioned, I should feed about ninety days and turn to market; feeding for fall market shock corn as representing the simplest and cheapest provender, with live shoats to follow in the proportion of three to one, this ratio being somewhat greater than can be maintained from waste of steers alone, but insuring a thorough cleaning up of all droppings, to be supplemented by the addition of small ration of corn daily for hogs alone. After all is said and done ,and many strenuous days passed in careful feeding, the promiscuous buyer without due regard to selection of material, will find his profit, if profit at all, actually represented in the price paid for that great mortgage lifter, the hog. In closing let me say that whatever success I may have attained as a feeder, and my friends are charitable enough to maintain that I have been moderately successful, that success, great or small, has been attained through the medium of the best bred calves, bought on the range and brought upon farm and finished or marketed as yearlings or short 2s: as one of my best friends and ablest of feeders has aptly said: "I do not fat-ten cattle, I grow beef."

"But, my dear"-he called her "my dear" because he was old enough to be her father-"I could give you so much that you need; and I have not seen and admired your care of that delicate little sister of yours without knowing what a relief it would be to you both to have more money." Old Colonel Vancouver's rough and ready manner and forms of speech grated on Geraldine, but nevertheless he had touched her weak point. "Poor little Dorothea," she thought, "who wants so many things." "Couldn't you do it for little Dorothea's sake?" he asked gently. "When you will see how good I'll be to her, you might learn to like me a little for her sake.'

All Geraldine said was a weak little "But---" and Miss Mitten, the gossiper of the boarding house, who had been watching the two from the sitting room window, exclaimed delightedly to a number of other female residents: "It's done, it's done; she has let him take in age is really shocking. And now, I believe he is really going to kiss her. Come see! No, she won't let him Now they are coming in. It must be on account of his money-she has only known him for a week. My, my, my isn't such things awful!" And Miss Mitten sat back in her chair and straightened out her curls.

"Oh, Jill," said sister Dorothea, as she and Geraldine undressed that night, "wouldn't it be better to keep poor than to marry anyone you don't love? But you have to work so hard, poor But Tommy, what will he say,

"Hush, dear," said Geraldine; "let us go to sleep."

Tommy was the peculiar care of Geraldine and little Dorothea. Tommy thought he was a genius. His mother adored him; the others of the family took no stock in his aspirations. He was working on his-to him-great picture representing the triumph of Xerxes over the Spartans at Thermopylae. That finished, he was sure could claim Geraldine. Geraldine and Dorothea shared his ambitions; they both loved Tommy.

One evening he visited them. He had heard of Geraldine's engagement, but seemed to consider it very amusing, which made Geraldine's heart very and rubber boots. He was smoking a clay pipe. Poor Jill's heart sank within her at the sight. He entered, smiling. "I am your Uncle Bill," he said, winking at Tommy.

"I don't understand," said Jill, in "I didn't, either, when I made a fool of myself making love to you, but when I found Tommy and discovered that you and Dorothea were my nieces, I thought I would keep up the joke. BUSY SESSION FOR ALDERMEN

North Fort Worth May Lease Dumping Ground

A great amount of important business, it is known, will come up before the North Fort Worth city council at its regular meeting next Tuesday night,

First, the plans for a city jail will probably be submitted by the public improvements committee. W. T. Kelley, as chairman on tthat committee, has advertised for construction bids which will be presented before the council for vote next Tuesday night. Appointment of a waterworks superintendent will be discussed again and it is emected will result in a final ac-

At the last regular meeting of the council a vote was carried which repealed all ordinances passed heretofore y the council providing for a city cavanger, and the city attorney was nstructed to draw up a new ordinance creating the office of city cavenger, stipulating his duties and making it a penal offense for any one to do scavenger work other than the regularly appointed city scavenger. It is understood that a movement is low on foot by which if sanctioned by the council, the health committee shall ease the city dumping grounds to a cavenger for a stipulated sum, thus relieving the city of making collections for individual work. The officer shall then have the exclusive right to the dumping grounds. The ordinance providing for this action will also state the duties of the scavenger.

FABLES REVOLUTIONARY

Literature Subtly Shows Russian Peasants Conditions Special Cable to The Telegram. (Copyright, 1906, by Hearst News Service.)

ST. PETERSBURG, May 19.-Revolutionary literature of a strange nature is being circulated among the peasants by some unknown agency. It consists chiefly of fairy tales, poems and stories estensibly innocent, but in spirit revolutionary enough to be understood by the dullest peasant. Some of the stories contain only a few lines. Here is a specimen:

Special to The Telegram. CLEBURNE, Texas, May 19 .- Dickon pitched a splendid game today, letting the visitors down with four hits and scoring a shutout. He was ably supported. The locals had a batting streak on and pounded Jackson and Phillips for eleven safeties. Whiteman, formerly of the Fort Worth Panthers, made an especially good showing, landing two triples and a double out of five times up. Both Jackson and Phillips were a trifle wild at times, each making wild pitches. The attendance was large. The score: Cleburne

HOUSTON, Texas, May 19.—After Short, dropping as though fatally stricken upon the ball field, had been borne from the arena by his comrades, McGill, the Austin pitcher, went to pieces. In a fusillade of hits the champions managed to acquire a total of six runs, five of which were earned. Short's injury did not prove to be as serious as at first supposed. A ligament from the spine became loosened and the shock to his nervous system was severe. First slightly hurt in receiving a throw to second, he reached for a line drive from Crawford's bat, caught it in his mit and fell as though paralyzed.

The intermission served to put Pitcher McGill out of form. After twirling a beautiful game he went 'cold" and was found for six hits, besides allowing a base on balls. The score: Houston000 000 0 6 x-6 7 Austin000 000 000—0 3 1 Batteries—Austin, McGill and Gordon; Houston, Nelson and Massing.

REPUBLICANS TO MEET THIS WEEK

Question of County Ticket Is Likely to Be Settled

The executive committee of the Roosevelt Club held a meeting on Thursday last, in pursuance of a personal call made by the president, J. N. Winters. The purpose of the call, and what was said or done at that meeting was not given to the public The call was issued from the president's office. It has, however, developed that there will be an executive session of the executive committee at 7:30 o'clock Tuesday night at the office of Winters, Daniel & Co., corner Main and Fourth streets, and that there will be a meeting of the club at the same place at 8:15 o'clock the same night. That the republicans will take an active hand, particularly in the county election this fall, is now apparent. What will develope at the club meeting on Tuesday night time only will demonstrate. There is a movement on foot for a cnic, under the auspices of the club at Lake Como, the White City or othel parks, about June 25. This is expected to be largely attended by the menibers of the club with their families, their friends and invited guests. I is intended to be a grand rally of the republicans of the county, and to secure a large representation of the leading republicans of the state. Frank B. Stanley, prominent in republican circles. Saturday was asked if it is the purpose of the republicans to put out a county ticket. Mr. Stan-there would be county tickets put out by the republicans in many, if no all counties in the state. "I am not authorized to state what will be done," said Mr. Stanley, "but my understanding is that county republican tickets will be put out. Sam

ley disclaimed any positive knowledge on the subject, but said he believed about this than I can." Mr. Davidson could not be seen by a reporter Saturday night, but another prominent republican said that there was hardly a doubt that there would be a republican ticket in Tarrant county from constable up. "If it is put out," said he, "and I believe it will be, it will be composed of good material-of men whose standing in the county will compare favorably with the list of men who are now candidates for the democratic nomi-

Of all the functions of human anatomy 'vision' seems to lead them, as an optical apparatus the eye in its anatomical construction the most complete, requiring many years of study to fully understand it, and its treatment is case of disease or its refactive errors, whether acquired or inherited. The tissues that protect it from injury, its muscles that guide it, the iris to screen excessive light and its enlarged pupil in darkness, the cillary muscles that assist its accommodation in convergance for near work, and none of man's faculties can give better expression to the transverse emotions of the mind. The eyes will flash with indignation, kindle with emotion, melt with sadness, and brighten with love or sympathy, staring with fright, lear with villany, paling with revenge, firing with energy, twinkling with mirth, and gleaming with mischief, denoting with accuracy pain, pleasure, wrath, surprise, indicating all the activities of the mind and passions. The eyes, the greatest gift our Creator has bestowed upon the human race, is mentioned many times in the scriptures. Still, given us as a blessing, how we misuse them from neglect or disease, where a little forethought would have prevented their deterioration. The eye protests from overstrain when ametropic, deteriorating all the nerve forces of the body and through ages man has through neglect and want of knowledge of its proper treatment inherited those deficiencies that can now be remedied with the proper lenses, ground to make these deficiencies so perfect that one can see both far and near without strain on the system. A few of these defects are common in eighty out of every 100 eyes hypermetropia, myopia, astigmatism, strabismus, muscles im ballance, and finally after a certain age, prebyopia. The above are only the more common deficiencies to be met every day by a refractionist therefore, many sufferers from headaches, neuralgia and general enervation are only relieved by the proper spectacles or eyeglasses. Old Age Doesn't Make a Good Store

We Americans, being such a young nation, are prone to attach much importance to things that are old and enterprises which are long esablished. This may work out well in some things, but old stores (unless they have a change of management every dcade or two) are apt to be afflicted with dry rot, old foggyism and conservativeness. Stores and store methods are improving every year-every day, almost-and the old stage coach ideas will not keep up with the procession. We are improving every day, but we are far from perfect yet; we advance, but we are not contented with today's moving forward; we have modern equipment, but we do not let it rest at that.

We renew our youth every season; the old, last season's goods have been sold, they do not cumber our counters—everything is fresh and new again. We are not old but young.

Friday and Saturday were banner days, from the early opening hour until late Saturday evening, this store was the busiest place in Fort Worth. It's values that bring the crowds. Throngs will come in response to these offerings. Sales in every department Monday.

Cotton Goods

Cotton Goods have not been so high in many months as they are today. We anticipated this long before it came and bought quite a quantity of Bed Sheets, two brands of which cannot be duplicated for 25 per cent more. These two brands will go in this week's sale at the old price. The one-our Daylight brand-many thousand have been sold in Fort Worth, and it's so well known, it goes without saying that it's the best sheet sold in any store in the United States. The other brand is a hard linen finished sheet, and the brand is WEAR LIKE IRON.

SALE OF SWISSES

Owing to the very bad, rainy weather last Monday and Tuesday, many were unable to attend our Swiss sale. There-

STOCK EXCHANGE AID TO BUSINESS

St. Louis Editor Tells How Organization Began

PREVENTIVE OF FRAUD

Secures Prompt Settlement for Shippers and Makes It Impossible for Sharpers to Ply Their Trade

The following history of live stock exchange organizations and the purpose of exchanges at the various markets of the country has been written by Philip H. Hale, editor of the National Farmer and Stock Grower. Mr. Hale was for five years a member of the St. Louis Live Stock Exchange. Mr. Hale was formerly editor of the Texas Stock Journal, published at Fort Worth, which is now consolidated with the West Texas Stockman and published as the Texas Stockman-Journal. During his residence in Fort Worth Mr. Hale had a wide acquaintance among the cattlemen of Texas:

BY PHILIP H. HALE.

The United States government passed a law that railroad freight rates should be open rates and no rebates should be given. The Live Stock Exchange passed a rule in live stock matters that commission rates should be open rates and no rebates shall be given. There may be some people who will approve of the government action on the one hand and condemn the Live Stock Exchange on the other. Such people are not entitled to any consideration.

The government passed a law saying in substance: "Thou shalt not The Live Stock Exchange passed a rule saying: "Thou shalt not steal from one customer and give it to another in order to deceive them both.' There are people who dare not advocate stealing, but they will condemn the Live Stock Exchange because they don't know any better way to 10 away with the safeguards of the mar-

The bankers' clearing house is necessary organization in large cities for the purpose of expediting and regulating banking business, and something of the same nature as a live stock exchange. The charter of the St. Louis Live Stock Exchange states that the object for which it is formed is to promote uniformity in the usages and customs of merchants; to provide for the speedy and satisfactory adjustment of business disputes between its members; to facilitate the movement, receiving and distribution of live stock: to provide for a rigid and careful inspection of live stock, thereby guarding against the sale or use of unsound or unhealthy meats; to establish and maintain a commercial exchange of gh honor and to protect shipper and owners of live stock from unscrupulous or irresponsible dealers, as well as to obtain for its members benefits of co-operation in the furtherance of their legitimaet pursuits.

How Exchange Started

In the beginning, business interests are constructed with scraps and pieces. In the beginning of the live stock trade of St. Louis, the stock yards were scattered in all directions. The buyers did not know where to look for stock and the stock in the different stock yards did not ever get a chance to see all the buyers. At the stock yards of the city of St. Louis the regular charge for selling cattle was a dollar a head, but at the National Stock Yards, by agreement, the charge was reduced to 50 cents a head. This was in effect the action of an informal organization of what finally came into full existence as a Live Stock Ex-

In olden times buyers would purchase cattle and then forget for a time to pay for them. The want of system often led to many abuses and losses. So soon as the market was sufficiently centralized to do so the trade regulation required buyers to pay for cattle on the day of purchase, and this enabled the commission firms to send returns to country shippers also on day of sale. In order to give the shipper of live stock the opportunity of reshipping stock out to other markets, if considered expedient to do so, arrangements were made to divide the commission charges between the firms at the two markets rather than charge the shipper two commissions.

The actual necessity for the organization of the St. Louis Live Stock Exchange grew out of disputes which business should be conducted. This led to the formation of the exchange, which was given the power to settle disputes. A good many disputes grew out of the arbitrary dockage of hogs by interested parties, which were all settled by the exchange being authorized to hire a competent inspector to act impartially in this capacity. For a long time before government inspection was instituted the exchange was the only authority which inspected and condemned such animals as were unfit for food. Again, no fixed hours were specified for the opening and closing the market until it was regulated by the Live Stock Exchange. In the beginning, with all circumstances favoring irregular and dishonest practices, it was necessary to formulate rules and penalties for dis-honorable conduct not punishable by the courts of law, and it is proper to state that in several instances members found guilty of crookedness were expelled from the exchange and therefore unable to retain the confidence of the live stock shippers. Notwithstanding all that may be said by well-meaning people who are ignorant of the Live Stock Exchange, the shipper of live stock has learned to regard the exchange as a guarantee under all circumstances that he will receive a square deal.

Power of Co-operation It is also well understood that in many negotiations with the stock yard company, railroads and other interests the exchange, representing the entire trade impartially, may succeed where individual effort surely does fail. The exchange has not at any time adopted a rule that would shut out the individual from selling his own stock upon the market, enither does it discourage the individual buyer from operating on his own account. It requires its own members to comply with the rules they themselves have made in the interest of good government and honorable dealings.

It should be remembered that business is transacted to the amount of five hundred thousand dollars a day, and although this traffic is regulated by the rules of the market as made by the exchange, so high is the standard of business integrity that all sales are made by word of mouth supported by the honor that requires no scratch of pen to bind it.

The exchange, then, is organized on the broad principle of truth and right, and it annually confers great benefits not only upon producers and consumers, but upon those dealing in

Furthermore, although the organization is supported mainly by dues paid in by its members, the exchange is always ready with its influence and funds to respond to any call for aid when the people of our country are in distress, and for service where live stock interests are concerned. It has frequently rendered valuable assistance toward securing favorable legislation by sending committees from its membership to Washington for the purpose of advocating laws or the repeal of laws, as the best interests of the American stockman may require.

As stated at the head of this article, the Live Stock Exchange is not conducted for profit; it does not buy and does not sell any live stock, and as the entire purpose is to encourage and facilitate business in an enterprising, honorable manner, it cannot with reason be classed as a combination or monopoly in restraint of trade.

If the members of the live stock market have not the right and privilege of regulating their own charges for their own services, then they have not the right which is accorded by law and custom to every other individual or class, and the subject of charges is the only one which has brought Live Stock. Exchanges under public criticism.

Lake Como Trip

Invitations are being sent out by the officers of the Arlington Heights Traction company to all the ministers, public officials and newspaper men and women accompanying them, to go over the new line in a private car.

The party will stop at Lake Como long enough to be conducted through the new park on a tour of inspection, and listen to addresses by Mayor W. D. Harris and Captain B. B. Paddock. The formal opening of Lake Como will take place Saturday, May 26, at 4 o'clock, on which day the trip will be made by the officers and party.

Robert Smith Meets with Accident at Chickasha

Word has been received in Fort Worth by a brother that Robert Smith, an employe of the Rock Island road, has met with a serious accident at Chickasha, I. T. The brother left Saturday for that place. The information here is that Smith was climbing to the top of a train, when the hand rail gave way and he fell to the ground. How badly he was injured is not known, but the telegram to the injured man's brother asked him to come to Chickasha at once.

SCHOOL CENSUS SHOWS INCREASE

North Fort Worth in Lead of Those Reporting

Nine school districts have made returns of the scholastic census taken by the school trustees, and the returns show an increase of 161 children within the scholastic age. The returns from the different districts for the years 1905 and 1906 follow:

Johnston Station, 134, 169; Littles, 60, 64; Haslet, 16, 28; Ratcliff, 16, 28; Eiderville, 40, 50; Honnetta, 37, 43; Salem, 43, 42; Pleasant Run, 94, 102; North Fort Worth, 934, 1,005. The greatest gain made by any school district is that in North Fort Worth, the gain there being 71, which according to the rule, means an increase of 450 in population since the last school census was taken.

Since the former scholastic census was taken there has been a change in the ages of children included. In 1905 the census was of children between the ages of 8 to 17, the present census includes children between the ages of

PROMINENT ST. LOUIS DRUGGIST

Looks Up Record of Philanthropist Cooper

Will Fort Worth be affected with the same astonishing demand for the new preparations extolled by L. T. Cooper as has visited St. Louis and the leading cities of the east?

The question is brought forth by the fact that a local druggist has secured the agency for the much-talkedof preparations that are producing such a furor, and about which the newspapers of the United States have devoted columns.

In fact a discussion of Cooper's preparations and the unheard of demand for them wherever introduced has appeared in a greater part of all the leading dailies of the country.

The recently published statement of Mr. Wolff, president of the Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., of St. Louis, which appeared in the Post-Dispatch and Globe-Democrat of that city, would seem to indicate that with no exception these preparations produced the same results in all sections, regardless of what pressure is brought to bear against the medicines.

Mr. Wolff's statement is as follows: "This talk about St. Louis going mad over Mr. Cooper is absurd. If his preparations did not do all that is claimed for them there would be ro demand. Mr. Cooper has nothing what-

"The idea that his personality has something to do with the sale of his medicines, and that the people of this city only imagine they have been benefited is too far-fetched to be seriously considered.

"One physician says the people have a disease called 'Cooper-mania.' This may be clever, but it certainly is not "I have sold these preparations on trial ever since Mr. Cooper made my store his headquarters. Any one can receive whatever they pay for the preparations instantly if they are not satisfied. If the people are infatuated with Mr. Cooper, as is claimed, and therefore buy his medicines, why don't they come and ask for their money after they have taken them? Out of the thousands of bottles we have sold almost none have been returned. "As a matter of fact, St. Louis is no exception in the immense demand for these preparations. Before Mr. Cooper came to this city, I received letters from leading druggists throughout the east telling me that wherever he goes his prepartions are sold almost to the exclusion of all others. "Every city in this country where these medicines have been introduced has had the same experience as St. Louis. This ought to be proof-positive that the people know what they are about.' In the light of this statement it will be interesting to see how these preparations are received in Fort Worth.

In this connection we would make special mention that near the town of Mt. Vernon on the Cotton Belt, there are more than seventy-five acres in Elberta; one orchard of fifteen acres within sight of the court house is now in full bearing, a thing of beauty to all who see it and a present pleasure and profit to the owner, C. S. Martin, who says he will make two thousand bushels the present season.

This innovation of fruit culture in east Texas and its profitable remuneration to the propagators, is largely due to the high facilities now offered for the prompt handling and transportation by competent carries. This duty will fall to the Cotton Belt rail-

To those who would break their allegiance to the impoverished hills of the old states and are setting their faces Texasward, we say: When you enter the gateway at Texarkana, look along the Cotton Belt and stop over. CAPT. FERG KYLE DEAD IN HAYS CO.

Statesman and Confederate Veteran 65 Years of Age

Special to The Telegram,

AUSTIN, Texas, May 19.-News was received here tonight to the effect that Captain Ferg Kyle, representative in the Twenty-ninth legislature from Hays county, died at his home in Kyle, Texas, at 8 o'clock tonight.

Captain Kyle was well known throughout the state as a statesman and a Confederate veteran. He was about 65 years of age, and was a candidate for re-election to the legislature. He suffered with a liver com-

Sketch of Captain Kyle

Captain Ferg Kyle was one of the most prominent men and most highly esteemed in southwest Texas. He was a man of sterling integrity and beloved of all who knew him. The length of his service in the Texas legislature won for him the title of "Nester" of that body, and no man ever commanded more respect from his confrers than Captain Kyle.

His military record was that of a gallant soldier in the army of the southland, but he quit fighting when the war between the states ended, and bent his energies to combat sectionalsim and build up Texas. From the Rio Grande to Red river, from the Pecos to the Sabine, he was known and honored and, in his death, Texas loses one of her best and most patriotic citizens.

ENDEAVORERS TO PLAN EXCURSION

Expect to Go to Houston Meeting in Special Car

Plans for a trip to the state Christian Endeavor convention which meets in Houston June 5, 6 and 7 will be formulated at a meeting of the local Christian Endeavorer members which will be held Monday evening in the Christian Tabernacle, Fifth and Throckmorton streets. The meeting will begin at 8 o'clock. An entertaining program has been prepared and it is expected, at the meeting, to discuss arrangements for going to Houston from Fort Worth in a special car, chartered for the occasion. It is not yet known how many delegates expect to attend the state convention, but a large number of C. E. members already have signified intentions of

But Buggy and Harness Are Still Missing

A horse, buggy and set of harness was stolen at Cleveland several days Fort Worth Saturday. The animal was found on the streets, but the buggy and harness are both missing. Officer Tom Snow made the find. The property belongs to T. P. Turner of Cleveland, who, accompanied by Marshal C. H. Green of that place, arrived in the city Saturday night and will search for the rest of the stolen property before returning.

KEENE COLORS WIN

'Court Dress" Takes Fashion Stakes at Belmont Park

Special Cable to The Telegram. NEW YORK, May 19 .- One of the most interesting events of the turf and social life of the metropolitan racing circle occurred here this afternoon when the rivals, the Whitneys and the Kennes, came together in a sharp tilt ovr the running of the $15,000 fashion stakes for 2-year-old fillies at four and one-half furlongs.

Though the late W. C. Whitney and J. R. Kenne fell foul of each other on the turf times innumerable in past years, the Whitneys generally outbet and outran the familiar Keene "blue and white dots."

Today the Keene representative, "Court Dress," won handily, with H. K. Knapp's filly, "Clare Russell," second, and "Jersey Lady," holder of the four and one-half furlongs stake record running in H. P. Whitney's colors, James R. Keene, who has been ailing pretty much all winter, made his first appearance of the season at the races. He looked haggard but found much elation in "Court Dress" triumph. The club house, bustling with prominent social personages, looked on the Whitney-Keene engagement with interest. H. P. Whitney, H. P. Durea, Alfred Vandervilt and others of that faction wagered thousands on Jersy Lady, while the Keenes bet confidently but moderately on Court Dress. After the finish great jubilation centered with the Keene following. James R. Keene recalled the bitter defeat his colors sustained when the late W. C. Whitney beat Tommy Atkins and Olympian in the $10,000 futurity by bringing Tod Sloan from England to ride Ballyhoo Bey. The Whitneys lost $12,000 in bets.

The famous Rose Ben redeemed himself before the turf world in the opening race, a race for 3-year-olds, and a race of seven and one-half furlongs, by winning in a mild drive and breaking a track record of 1:33, hung up by Ezourty on May 18.

COMING TO FORT WORTH

Dr. William Gentry Will Speak in City

Dr. William D. Gentry, editor of The Word and director of the Bible College and Missionary Training School at Lake Kerr, Fla., will commence a protracted meeting at city hall in Fort Worth Thursday evening, May 24.

Meetings will be held twice daily, at 3:30 and 7:30 p. m., except Saturday, during the month of June. There are many throughout the state who have heard Dr. Gentry. He is said to be a man of unusual faith, and true to the teachings of the Scripture in all points. He gives preference to the neglected themes in the gospel, as casting out of demons, healing the sick, the truth regarding the obedience of faith, sanctification, perfect love and holiness. His purpose is announced as follows: "To secure Christian unity, according to the Scriptures, and to exalt Christ and the kingdom of God, above party or sect, and God's word above all human creeds. Dr. Gentry does not charge admis-

GOV. FRANCIS' LIFE THREATENED

Head of St. Louis Fair Warned to Beware of Assassination

Special Cable to The Telegram.

ST. LOUIS, May 19.—David R. Francis, president of the Louisiana purchase exposition, is in daily receipt of letters threatening his immediate assassination unless he immediately pays to the writer $,000. Francis is not intimidated by the threats but his friends and the members of his family are, and he is watched with the greatest care. The matter has been put in the hands of Police and Chief of Detectives Desmond and his men are working hard on slim clues. The first letter was received by Mr. Francis several days ago. In it the writer said the recipient must have $5,000 or he would kill Francis. The missive designated the manner in which the money should be turned over, naming the place where is said to be somewhere on Kong's higway. Laughed at First

Mr. Francis, according to his friends laughed at these demands and tossed the letter aside. In the first mail of the next day another letter came in the same handwriting and more urgent than the first. It gave further particulars of the place of payment and the details of the maker of meet-

This communication, the former governor gave to Chief Desmond, who advised secrecy and silence. Another letter arrived shortly afterward, followed by a fourth one, which, it is said, came today. This last warned Mr. Francis against trying to put the police on the track of the writer or against proving treacherous "in any way." "If you do I will get you sure," the warning is said to have read. I will have one bullet for you and another for myself. You will get yours first and then I will look out for my-

Mr. Francis is not alarmed at this persistency and took all possible precautions. The directions given in the letter were followed several times but without result. It is stated that Chief Desmond, former Governor Francis and several others went to the appointed place tonight and spent a long time in the neighborhood. Nothing came of the visit, however. The police search is still on and the utmost vigilance will be observed.

"The difference between persever ance and obstinasy is that one often comes from a strong will, and the other from a strong won't!"—Beecher. In advertising, both the will and the won't are useful-the one to plan the campaign, the other to "fight it out on that line if it takes all summer."

Clothes for the Ewes

The heavy snow of Thursday stoped the sheep shearing at Rawlins, Wyo., but there will be no loss of ewes, owing to a new innovation put in effect this season for the first time blanket each, put on as a horse blanket is put on with straps and bands. It worked like a charm and the blankets paid for themselves with this one storm. By the use of these blankets early shearing can be practiced without danger of loss from bad weather.

A Simple Design for the Home Dressmaker.

By Dorothy Dale.

Major Hur the milita
The reverse ention of complares as Next will be ed office Color Backb medal stand sees make very pretty pictures, they are often not practical or are too elaborate for the home dressmaker to In the large illuteration and the two smaller plates, however, I have sketched a frock which, although far from commonplace in design, is still well within the scope of the average woman who makes her own flocks, the design being one that would be appropriate either for lightweight cloth or tilk, or for wash material, such as linen, batiste, etc. The gown from which the model was taken was in the new Rajah slik, which will be so much in favor this spring, both for street gowns and for more elaborate costumes, in light colors. This sort of silk-which resembles pongee somewhat-is most effective, however, made up without too much trim-ming or elaboration, and the costume bodies and its simple guimpe style bodies and its decoration of handwork, would be found an excellent model for a gown of such material. The skirt was made on one of the plaited models, for which a pattern can be easily purchased. The plaits in this case were stitched in the deep voke death to give the spail. to a deep yoke depth, to give the small hip line so much fancied at present. The

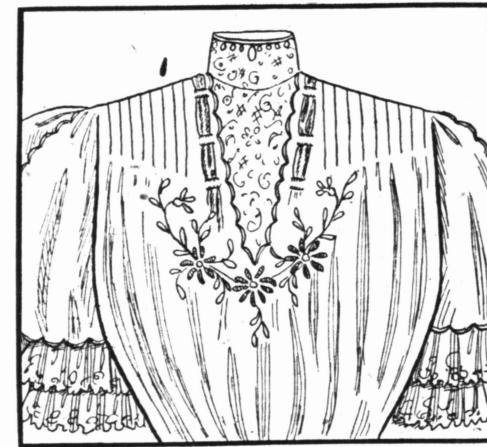

A great many of the fashion sketches; by way of finish, the skirt being in round length. The skirt and also the bodice was made without a lining, a fact which greatly simplifies matters for the home

A great many of the gowns recently seen are made in this way, without a lining, the bodice being held in place about the waist by a well-fitted and careboned girdle, and especially for spring and summer wear these unlined are much cooler and more comfortable than those made with a drop skirt and boned waist lining. Of course, the material for these unlined gowns has to be of sufficient body, unless the gown in question is ot be of the semi-transparent lingerle order, but even if the material used is volle or such a fabric and a silk lining is necessary, the home dressmaker will not find it necessary even then, if a design on the order of the gown shown in the drawing is selected, to have a tight-fitted lining, as the waist lining can be made on shirtwaist lines. This lining is cut very much like the outside of the bodice, although with possibly rather less If, however, these unlined frocks are worn over a washable white skirt and underbodice, it is obligatory, to obtain the best results, that the undergarments fit well and are property cut. Many women do not seem to realize the importance of having one's undergarments carefully fitted and are contented to wear underskirts ready made and adjusted by a draw string about the waist. Of course, among the more expensive grades in the ready-made garments, very well fitting garments of this sort can be had, but it is nuch more economical to make these things and have them properly fitted to the figure. The ready-made corset covers, mless the very expensive sort are purchased, are also seldom of the proper cut, and very pretty ones can be made at home which would give the proper lines to an unlined bodice. In my next article shall treat on this subject more completely and shall have some drawings showing the correct cut for these underbodices and skirts. To return to the subject of the gown description, from which I have digressed: The bodice was first embroidered, the walst being cut on a shirtwaist pattern with a group of stitched tucks on each side of the front collar being finished by a very narrow bias band of the blue silk, with loops formed of two or three strands of embroldery silk couched down just below this top band. If desired, however, a washable yoke could be used as shown the larger figure, this yoke and collar being made of a'ternate strips of "baby" The sleeves of the gown were very un usual in design, having two sections, scalloped on the edge with a puff between for each sleeve. This puff portion was fitted to the arm into a band, two plaited friis of lace which ran up the outer arm in a point being used as a finish. If a washable guimpe is used these friis could be of three inch wide Valenciennes, and either plaited or gathered to a band so they could be easily removed for laundering. The girdle was quite a feature of the gown and gave a very slender effect about the waist. It was made of the material over one of the three strap tape foundations for sale in the shops. A very neat and pretty finish was given by having the tapes covered with bias strips of the silk of which the gown was made, each edge being finished by double strands of embroidery silk couched down. The girdle, laced in front, being boned to the content of the front and lack and fulness. The front of the bodice was cut out in a very deep V shape, the edge being done in scallops in embroidery silk. To do this embroidery, lightly pencil the outline of the V-shaped opening, then mark your scallops, using a thimble of a state large size as a guide. The scall mark your scallops, using a thimble of a rather large size as a guide. The scallops should be "padded" a little first with embroidery cotton or silk, the work then being done in silk to exactly match the material. In the model gown the material was in light blue Rajah, the silk used for the embroidery being of the same shade. In figure 2 is sketched a larger drawing of the upper part of the bodice to show the embroidery design used across the front, the design on this model gown being a simple flower spray, the work all being rather heavily padded. On each side of the front and across the back just below the collar, sits of eyelet holes were buttonholed in the material as a study of the sketch will explain, and through these slits a scarf of plain, and through these slits a scarf of ribbon or a bias strip of slik was threaded. Double ends, one a little longer the foundation girdle in the back were stiffened pieces of silk, shaped as shown in the third figure, the edge being scalloped and the piece being further decorated with embroidery.

In the third plate is also shown a small sketch of the back of the gown and a decorate of the proposition of the ambroidery. sign for the embroidery figures to be used on the back, the design shown being a very simple one, so that it would not be too much work.

The value of a little handwork such as described can hardly be over estimated and even a very simply designed gown with some handwork cleverly placed. with some handwork cleverly placed with some handwork cleverly placed will often be more effective and have a "smarter" air than a much more elaborately designed gown trimmed with applied ornamicntation in lace figures, appliques, et cetera.

So both from an economical as well as from an artistic point of view it is well from an artistic point of view it is well for the girl who makes her own clothes to learn to do fagotting and simple embroidery, as even a little handwork of the sort about the neck and sleeves of a lingerie blouse or simple wash gown gives the garment an air of distinction it would not otherwise possess.

Double ends, one a little longer than the other, with drop ornaments formed of tiny balls covered with shirred silk, were allowed to fall on each side of the front, as shown in the full length figure. Lingerie Bed Pillows. It has been a fad for several years to sleep on a small rather flat pillow, most women much preferring this style pillow to the large, full, old-fashioned kind, which, although still seen on a great many eds, are usually removed at night and small, flat pillow substituted. Most women prefer to carry their own sleeping pillow even when traveling or visiting, so that the question of pillow slips for these dainty little "baby pillows" is of interest to a great many women. The lingerle or washable pillow slip is also in myself out of an old down pillow of a larger size, using fine tucking for the case, with a slip cover of pale blue washable scalloping being done in colored wash cotwith a slip cover of pale bine washable silk, over which the top slip of white linen is buttoned. A little fine torchon or German val lace is sewed on across the German val lace is sewed on across the end in which the pillow is slipped, with a "fly" having buttonholes which fasten to three pearl buttons on the other side. Another good plan for making a simple slip is to use handkerchiefs of the large size used by men, two handkerchiefs being required for each slip. Overhand three of the sides together, using narrow lace the living room, sitting room or on the veranda la summer, and these washable overs have many advantages over the ordinary flowered silk or brocade cover. I have even seen them used in very handsome drawing rooms or reception-rooms, the slips being of one handkerchief linen or lawn, embroidered or lace trimmed. or lawn, embroidered or lace trimmed. The effect of these dainty white slips, ruffled and lace trimmed, over a pillow covered with light colored or white slik or satin is most attractive. They look so dainty and fresh, and there is no danger of solling the lightest and most perishable of frocks when cushions covered with these washable slips are used for one's chairs and divans. For the bed pillows mentioned rather a small size is used, the perfectly square rather than the used, the perfectly square rather than the oblong shape being usually seen. A very good size is a 16 inch square. I made mine great favor for the divan pillow used in as edging if desired, and embroider your the living room, sitting room or on the monogram or initials in the upper left

Washable Bureau Covers. The shops are full of bureau scarfs and embroidery on liven, and although some of these possess very good wearing qualities, the linen or lawn cover made at home to fit the bureau or stand where it home to fit the bureau or stand where it is to be used is generally much more satisfactory, and can be made for a fraction of what a bought scarf of good quality would cost. One very pretty style of scarf seen recently would be an excellent model for the home worker, the material used in this case being white pique, the edge of the scarf being scalloped and buttonholed in white wash cotton and the owner, intitals being embroidered in the owner's initials being embroidered in one corner. These little pique scarfs are

For a plainer scarf, which could be quickly made, hemstitched linen can be bought by the yard in various widths, each edge being bordered by a wide hem, with the openwork hemstitching above. All the work that would be necessary in making such a scarf would be to hem the ends, although an embroidered initial in one corner is always an addition.

Another easily made scarf is manufactured out of plain white linen lawn hand-kerchiefs, joined with lace, with a flat edge of narrow lace around the entire edge of the finished scarf. If the bureau or stand is a narrow one, one row of handkerchiefs, each one joined to the other by a strip of fine Torchor or Valenciennes lace, would do, although for a wider space two rows of handkerchiefs would be required.

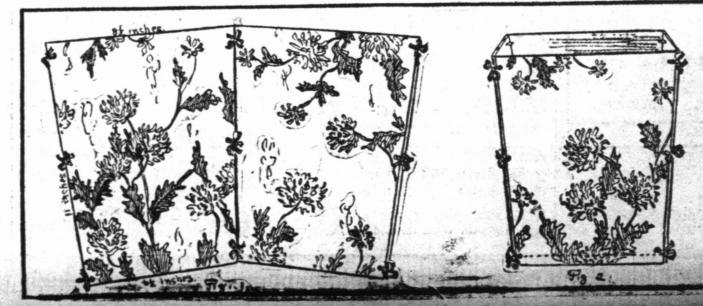

A Novel Waste Basket.

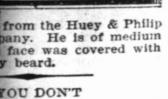

chiefs would be required.

A Novel Waste Basket.

In the fourth illustration on this page is sketched two views of a folding waste-paper basket made out of cardboard and covered with cretonne, the model being a very easy one to follow if the parts are carefully measured in the beginning. These little baskets are also made in miniature size to hold balls of twine, or as "catch-alis" on one's desk, but the method of making, whether the basket be large or small, is exactly the same. For the large basket from which the sketch was made heavy cardboard will be required for the foundation, two pieces of cardboard being used for each of the four sides. These pieces of board should be cut by the dimensions indicated in the first diagram, the two being 8½ inches in width, the bottom 6½ inches and the sides 11 inches long. The cretonne used for the covering should then be cut slightly larger all around by about an inch and securely glued, the edges being fastened down on the inner side of the cardboard. Rather heavy paper is then cut the correct size and glued to this inner side, this paper forming the facing or lining, as it were, to the finished basket. When the four sides forming the basket have been so prepared small round holes are stamped or punched through the sides at the top and bottom and in the middle of each section and ribbons are slipped through and tied.

The bottom of the basket is used on both sides of this bottom section. This piece should be cut a trifle less than six and a half inches square, so it can be folded up inside the basket when it is folded flat, as shown in the first figure. This bottom part is fastened to one of the sides by a strip of muslin, which has previously been securely glued between the two sections of cardboard forming it. The bottom part was adjusted to the sides about an inch from the lower edge of these sides In diagram No. 2 I have drawn a dotted line to show where this bottom section should be placed.

Roofing Supply Reaches New High Mark

Price of tin is rising high. Not day passes but it rises some points. Roofing tin is now worth $11.50 a box. This is as high as roofing tin has ever been and the chances are it will rise still higher. Pig tin is 45 cents a pound and in bars it is 48

The metal cannot be supplied fast arge demand for all kinds of tin. conton and New York dealers are offering all kinds of bids for spot supplies of the metal, but there is not enough supply to satisfy the dealers, as the consumption at present is heavy. There is no indication of a corner in tin at present, but it is claimed that the demand of tin being so much more than the supply is the cause of the rapid advancement in price. Tin enters largely into all business using metals, including babbitt metal and others and the advance has become a serious matter in this part of

In a corner in tin about fifteen years ago, a French syndicate got all the apparent suply and ran prices to 55c-the highest they have ever been. The day after 55c had ben established as a price New York firm unloaded hundreds of tons of tin about which the French syndicate knew nothing and the corner was broken. the Henry-Bell Hardware Company entertained the general freight agents of all the railroads in Texas and the hardware jobbers in right royal fashion with a lamb barbecue at Lake Erie Thursday night. Seventy-nine guests sat down to the ables where the lamb was served with pickles, cheese, delicious sandwiches and refreshments at each place. Special cars on the Inteurban carwhen the conductor came through for the fares, instead of collecting, he distributed return tickets, good on any cars. This was surprise No. 1. When they reached the lake there was no admission fee. Surprise No. 2. Two of the men tell of the evening's pleasures in rather an amusing manner. They say that after the barbecue they strolled down to the lake and took a boat ride. When they came in and asked the customary "How much?" the boy in charge replied, "Al paid for, my friends." They naturally thought such three days I was able to return home, unusual treatment strange, and being warm they stopped at the cafe and or-they found so to their liking that they

In like manner some tried the shooting gallery, others the flying jenny, pop corn man, lemonade stand, and a great many the skating rink, and not one man was allowed to spend one penny, so for once money was of no avail.

CANDIDATES DRAW PLACES JUNE 18

County Committee to Meet to Plan Primary

The democratic primaries for county nominations, and to vote on state and district candidates, will be held July 28, and under the Terrell election law the county democratic executive committee must meet previous to that date and arrange districts for the primaries. William Capps, chairman of the democratic county executive committee, Saturday announced that under the law the committee must meet on the third Monday in

This meeting will be held, as the law directs, at the county seat, and at it the committee will determine by lot the order in which the names of the candidates for each nomination or position requested be printed on the official ballot, and decide whether the nominations for county offices shall be by a majority vote or a plurality vote, and if by a majority vote then the committee will call as many such elections as will be necessary to make nominations.

In the event the committee fails to decide whether the election shall be a majority or a plurality-election, the election will be a plurality election, the candidate getting the largest number of votes to be the nominee for the office for which he may be a candi-

"The committee will also pass on the matter of the expenses of the primary election, making the assessments against each candidate according to office for which he is a candidate said Mr. Capps. "What the committee will do in the matter of plurality or majority election I am not prepared to say. I have no information on which to base an opinion."

PICNIC AT ARLINGTON

Candidates Meet Citizens From Eastern Part of County There was a big picnic at Arlington

Saturday and all the candidates for county and other officers foregathered there. There was a big attendance of voters and people who are not voters, and the day was a most enjoyable one for all who attended. The list of candidates that presented themselves at the picnic embraced seekers for every office from constable up to congressman, and there was oratory galore floating around in the at-

Among the speakers were James W. Swayne and T. J. Powell, for congress: W. A. Hanger and O. S. Lattimore, for state senate; A. J. Baskin and W. P. Lane, for the legislature; W. L. Fitzhugh, for floater, and John L. Terrell, for county judge. There were present candidates for county and district clerk, county collector, county assessor and other county offices, but none of them spoke from the platform, preferring to made a still hunt for voters and conduct a fence corner campaign. It was a big picnic, the candidates say, and everybody enjoyed themselves.

see that the article delivered is the article bought or bargained for.

Socially, it is the same story. Who pretends to believe the things heardand reapeated? "I hear" is excuse a plenty for making conversation, whether it is a woman's good name, a man's financial dealings or the cost of the refreshments at a party. Everybody is at once interested, even though the entire story is prefixed with "L was told," a neat phrase that holds no one responsible. Why should not the occupant of a high office use a distinctly American phrase, in communicating of his dealings with poor, trusting, artless democratic senators? There is not a woman with social experience who could not have told Senator Tillman and all the rest of the wise wearers of togas that the President meant nothing at all, and never intended to be taken seriously. His little flirtation was nothing more than the privilege claimed by every true, loyal citizen of America, male and female, to make a bit of pleasantry without any of the responsibilities of a written contract. Do not girls, young and not young, disport their attractions so as to charm without serious intent, to bind hard and fast in matrimonial noose? Do not young men pay pretty compliments at the dance and elsewhere, without thought of being called upon for theater tickets or carriage for a very. very smart cotillon?-in this day and time sure liners on matrimonial inten-

Girls know better than to take the smiling bits of flattery nonsense from the men as honest, sure enough, heartto-heart opinois. Men know that the smiles and nods and cuddlings during the two-step or waltz do not indicate a heart overflowing with tender sentiment. It is all a part of the game every good American feels called upon

As to promises and the old-fashloned notion of their being binding, who will confess to being an old-fogy by pretending to keep one? In the family, in business, in society, the keeping of promises is most decidedly a by-gone fashion.

In business a promise is kept only when it means a dollarful gain. In the family, even the form has been practically discarded. A hostess giving a card or other party may have the promises to attend—her acceptances, as they are called—all in. But does she expect these promises to be kept? Not one giver of a party throughout an entire season will have her expected guests present, even when she has received their promises to be

The one social event that has so far stood the strain has been the dinner party. Just why this is so is open for anybody's solution that cares to think about it.

In the more impersonal relations to society, the promise to discharge certain duties in a public or philanthropic way are laughed at, even by those who receive them. The chances on the failure of being kept may be chalked up on the board for certainties.

We are a great people. We say so ourrselves, and we ought to know. There really is no necessity for us to keep faith, to keep primises, to be bound in thought, or action, by unwritten obligations that old-time honor demanded. We can get along without them. of Europe, to all the ignorant and ob-

EVENTS OF WEEK

Merry Wives

The Merry Wives were delightfully entertained by Mrs. W. T. Humble Thursday afternoon, complimentary to Mrs. James C. Lackland of El Paso. Many vases of sweet peas and La France roses made the card suite most attractive. The score cards were cunning little Dutch figures, painted by Mrs. Humble's little daughter, Elizabeth. Mrs. James Collett, scoring the highest among the club members, won a handsome silver bread tray. Mrs. John Phelan, scoring second highert, was presented with two brass candle sticks. Mrs. William V. Newlin won the trophy given for the best score among the guests, six lovely Japanese tea cups, while the souvenir, a half dozen doilies, fell to Mrs. Winfield Scott. Each guest was consoled with a bouquet of sweet peas. Creme de menthe was served during the game, followed by a delicious collation. Mrs. Humble's guests were: Mesdames Richard Van Zandt, Robert Mc-Natt, C. G. Elliott, Julien Andrews, J. C. Lackland of El Paso, E. W. Schenecker, C. W. Connery, Bertram Rose, Frank Gale, Robert Harrison, Winfield Scott, William V. Newlin, John Phelan, James Collett, Berney Anderson, Ernest Stephens, Olive Edrington Scott, Morris Berney, James Gray, Sam Henderson, George Clayton, Will McLean, Emma Fakes, L. H. McKee, Massey, Jerry Ellis and Evans; Misses Nita Barton and Burnie Newlin.

I. H. T. C. Mrs. Martin Lavin entertained the I. H. F. C. Thursday afternoon, which was a thoroughly pleasant occasion for Mrs. D. Howe, Mrs. Dehn, Miss Pari-sa, Miss Agnes Dehn and Miss Katheryne Lavin assisted Mrs. Lavin in receiving and looking after the pleasure of each guest. The score cards were dainty bits of color representing the "summer girl" and her admirers. Ice cream and the best of home-made cake were served at the close of the play. The prizes were handsome and the vinners were given a jolly bit of envy for their good luck. Mrs. Capera won a hand-painted puff box in a cut with Mrs. Stanbery, those of the guests making the high score. Mrs. Hinckly cut with Mrs. Byrne for the club prize, half dozen cups and saucers of Haviand's most beautiful designs.

Scoring was done by Misses Gerrude Doherty and Agnes Dehn, and each was presented with a lace fan. The club members present were Mesdames O'Neil, Nicoll, Ryan, Harroll, A. Rabyor, Byrnes, N. T. Hinckley, Kennedy and Katie Baker. The guests were Mesdames Hubbard of Dallas, Lovelass of Chicago, Conlisk, Stanbery, Liston, Capera, Davidson, H. V. Mesdames Montgomery and Newby's Reception The prettiest affair of the week was the reception given Wednesday afternoon by Mesdames William Montgomery and W. G. Newby in honor of Mrs. James Cooper Lackland of El.

They received from 3-6 o'clock at the home of Mrs Montgomery, 612 West Third street. The invited guests showed their appreciation of the privilege of meeting Mrs. Lackland for, hough the affair had been postponed, there were over 350 callers. The drawing room was lovely with quantities of bridesmaids roses and asparagus fern. The mantel was banked with roses and made an effective background for the receiving The lights were shaded with pink and shed a roseate hue over the Here Mrs. Montgomery received, first introducing Mrs. Lack-Mrs. Montgomery's gown was of white wash chiffon with elaborate Van Dyke points of Val. lace.

Mrs. Lackland wore a handsome gown of white chiffon with elaborate trimming of Val. lace in serpentine design about the skirt and bodice. Mrs. George Want was gowned in an especially pretty frock of white Paris mousseline with hand made Val. lace medallions. Mrs. Newby wore an effective gown of French gray and pale blue plaited chiffon taffeta, with a transparent lace yoke and turquoise passementerie. The reception hall was decorate in Richmond roses and asparagus fern. In this room, on a dals banked with palms and ferns were Misses Mildred Bennett and Ella Hogsett, keepers of the guest book, where each guest signed her name and wrote some remark, a propos of the occasion. The ounch room, or library, was in red, Richmond roses and crimson rambler were used. The mantel was banked with the rambler. Misses Montgomery, Stripling, McCart and Newlin served delicious punch.

In the dining room were many baskets of the wild coreopsis. The sideboard was banked with them and a tall basket tied with scarlet satin ribbon formed the centerpiece for the table, with tall compotes of mints and ginger. Bisque ice cream, almonds and cake was served.

Those who assisted in were: Mesdames H. T. Edgar, Emma Fakes, W. G. Turner, A. E. Want, Joseph Montgomery, James Swayne, Wm. V. Newlin, G. W. Parker, Mac Templeton, Stovall, Ben Tillar, A. J. Lawrence, Charles Goetz, Lella Tidball, E. H. Yowe, Sam Henderson, T. J. Penniston, E. E. Fosdick, James Gray, Willard Burton, Robert McNatt; Misses Mary Montgomery, Florence Smith, Laura Hogsett, Anne Newlin.

Miss Bess Rintleman entertained the "Wags" very enjoyably Friday afternoon in honor of Mrs. F. O. Paine. The club prize, a souvenir spoon, was won by Miss Esther Connell.

The guest prize, a very pretty water color, fell to Mrs. Walter Terrell, while Miss Alice Lusk won the consolation, an attractive Dutch stein. A delicious luncheon was served after the game to the following guests: Misses Mary Montgomery, Girlie Mc-Carthy, Esther Connell, Elizabeth Wells, Alice Lusk, Lillian Douglass, Lillian Fuller, Hazel Hull, Annie Mae SOCIAL DATES

> N N N Afternoon Tea

Mrs. H. H. Cobb and Miss Jane Church, assisted by Miss Marie Crane, gave a delightful tea Friday afternoon complimentary to the senior class of the Fort Worth Kindergarten College. The decoration of the dining room was carried out in the class colors yellow and white, with daisies and ferns artistically arranged on a dainty tea table. The hours were from 5-7 a number of men calling the last hour. The faculty and senior class assisted in receiving. They were:

Misses Ward, Hammers, Portman, Hawkins, Minnie Williams, Flora Lee Blair, Florence Drake, Marion Davis, Hazel Halstead, Louise Walker, Mercy Oldenbush, Flora Cunningham, Ruth Coleman, Sarah Carb, Ida Brown, Pauline Hogdon and Anne Newlin.

Dance at Oak Ridge

The Hunter Wilson's had a company of callers Friday night and a delightful dance at the pavilion of Oak Ridge followed the cordial welcoming of host and hostess. So attractive is Oak Ridge that the Friday night folks have organized the Skidoo Tennis and Dancing Club with "23" members. All the girls at the Wilsons Friday night hold a charter membership. This list includes Misses Pendleton, Hunter, Anderson, Elliott and Swayne, Mrs. Wharton, Mrs. Thompson of Philadelphia, Mrs. House of Houseton and Miss Porter of Dallas; Dr. McLean, Dr. Chilton, Messrs. Scheuber, Henry Beck, Miller, Lednum of St. Louis, Conway of Houston, Van Buren, Andrews, Gahagan and Gladney.

Daisies Miss Edna Mae Card was the hostess for the "Daisies" Saturday afternoon, restricting herself to club members. A pair of silk hose was the trophy given for the best score to Mrs. Robert May. The consolation, a large bunch of carnations, fell to Miss Mary Dingee. A refreshing repast was served after the game to the following guests:

Misses Elizabeth Wells, Mary Montgomery, Anne Newlin, Mary Dingee, Ida Crowley, Annie Mae Kennedy, Madge Hosmer, Bess Rintleman, Bess Webb; Mesdames Robert May, Reddick, John Bartels.

Skating Party

Masters John and Nathan Reynolds chartered the Summit avenue rink from 1 to 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon and invited a large number of their friends to join them there for a skating party. This crowd of young people rival the older folk in their skill. The afternoon was a great success and the guests loathed to leave the rink. The party included Misses Mattie Shelton, Mary Trigg, Florence Sledd, Nellie Vickery, Goldie King. He sees Raquel in the streets of Los Angeles and again flees. He learns that she has left Los Angeles and is ill. Her husband, Rafael, remains in the city. A boy is sent with a letter to Rafael, asking his immediate presence at her bedside. The boy is intercepted by a party of officers. Bryton being among them. He vouches for the boy's sincerity and goes to investigate the illness himself. He sees Raquel and she recovers. Later he is wounded and carried to Rafael's home. Dona Angela, widow of Teddy, is there and has enticed Rafael to run away with her, the two planning to take away plenty of money and jewels. El Capitan is there, caring for Keith, disguised as a priest. El Capitan learns of the plot to run away and decides to use the boat himself, taking care not to leave the cargo of money behind. The night of the planned runaway, Raquel catches sight of Rafael and Dona Angela gathering up the jewels. Rafael slips away and leaves Dona Angela, who is stabbed to death by Raquel. Keith Bryton goes away, leaving Dona Angela's little girl, Teddy's daughter, in care of Raquel and Rafael. The jewels Dona Angela would have taken away with Rafael, according to Raquel, are to be given to the little daughter. After the battle of Chickamauga,

The Past is gone. The years and months; The weeks, the days; the very hours And moments too, sometimes, like leaden weights, Make Effort, Toil and Hope To drag their weary way In ghostly shadows drear, while Love and Life Seem doomed to walk apart, Until the Light of lights shall shed Its first glad ray Across our lonely path, And Sorrows of the Years, forgotten all, Be drowned in Yesterday. The Past is gone.

Two words: "My Friend"---what breach or gap, Or yawning cleft, these words refuse to cross? Through life they shall sustain and yet in death Their echo still in cadence sweet, shall By the latest gasp be wafted to Eternity. Then, who will say that on The Other Side, when Night is past, When Dawn shall break, these words must cease? They shall not cease, for man, though born To die, shall live again---and then Will memory fail as life begins Eternal Truth to be? Nay, Without end are they: "My Friend."

"All the far-flung islands of the Pacific will shortly be bound together with the invisible chains of wireless telegraphy," writes J. Mayne Baltimore in Technical World magazine for June. "From tall towers, already standing on the top of a California mountain, an electric current of unprecedented voltage will flash signals which may be heard not only in Hawaii and far-off Samoa, but even on the eastern shores of Japan and the Philippines; while, at the same time, ships, moving like atoms across the face of the waters, may keep in constant touch with land.

"Rising 300 feet into the air, the two great towers have just been placed in position on the very crest of Mount Tamalpais, in Marin county, California, about twelve miles on an air line north of San Francisco. These two gigantic towers were constructed and hoisted into position by the Pacific Wireless Telegraph company, and are to be used in connection with its great Oriental and Pacific coast system."

THE GIRL GRADUATE

"The 3is' Graduate; Her Own Book," designed and illustrated by Sarah K. Smith and Louise Perrett, whose clever and novel volume, "Recipes; My Friends' and My Own," has met with such unusual approval, has just been published by the Reilly & Britton Co., Chicago. It is one of the most attractive of the spring novelty gift books and sure to prove popular.

As was the case with "Recipes," "The Girl Graduate" will contain about 200 pages, which are blank except for some twenty headings, such as date, flower, colors, class yell, social events, the teachers, programs, etc.

The paper is of fine quality with a good writing surface and there is pienty of room in which to write and paste in photographs and other remembrances of school days. The several headings are printed in two colors and the binding is of white vellum with paper side-matching the pageshandsomely chased in gold with a trellis of roses in tints—a most delicately harmonious effect; each book is attractively boxed.

"The Girl Graduate" is equally proper for young misses leaving high school and their older sisters who "have finished" at boarding school or college. -----

Another feature of unusual interest is the first instalment of a two-part story, "Mr. and Mrs. Nevill Tyson," by May Sinclair, whose recent novel, "The Divine Fire," brought her both fame and fortune. James Branch Cabell, author of "The Eagle's Shadow," has a charming tale called "The Casual Honeymoon"; Mrs. C. N. Williamson, who wrote "The Princess Passes" and "My Friend the Chauffeur," a story entitled "Lady Pam's Bridge Debts"; Kate Jordan a charming little tale of child life called "The Maternal Instinct," and George Hibbard an automobile story, "The Price of Victory." Popular

On the news stands this month you will find a magazine, the cover of which is adorned with the picture of a charming Western girl mounted on a spirited bronco. This is the May issue of the Popular magazine, and if you will take our advice you will invest 10 cents in a copy at once, for it contains a complete novel that is well worth reading. It is called "Rowdy of the 'Cross L," and the author is B. M. Bower, whose specialty is writing rattling good tales of ranch life, such as is this. There are plenty of other interesting features in the number. One of them is a serial story called "The Malefactor," by E. Phillips Oppenheim, who wrote "A Maker of History," "The Betrayal," and other novels which have been reckoned among the "best sellers" during the past few years.

Those who sympathize with the cause of freedom in Russia-and who in America does not?-will feel their blood quicken and their hopes rise in reading the personal narrative of Ivanovitch Narodny, the Russian revolutionist, now in this country. It is told by Leroy Scott in the American magazine for May, and reads like the most exciting fiction. It tells the secret of the Russian movement better than history. The author has escaped from prison time after time and lives today with a price of 15,000 rubles on his head.

Delineator The tendency among men this spring and summer will be to wear the quietest clothes possible. Some wonderful creations in the way of waistcoats have been introduced to go with the dinner coat, but the plain black remains the only correct form. It is cut U shaped, and has three buttons. There will be no loud patterned shirts or brilliant ties so much in favor some time ago, and the variety of queer greens introduced last season will be used only in mixtures. There is a general tendency to be informal and to discard afternoon dress. In America top hats are rarely seen after May. In fact, at two fashionable country weddings last spring, the bridegroom and ushers wore business suits and straw and felt hats. Comfort above all things is to be desired in the spring and summer, and this cannot be found in a stiff hat. A straw hat that can be made into any shape will come with the blossoms of May and remain the entire summer.

Leading characters in the book are Nicanor, the teller of tales; a Roman lord's daughter, who forgets he is a slave, and Eldris, a Greek maiden. The tale through the sad condition of Varia, the Roman girl, shows the same force working in a character essentially the opposite, physically and mentally, of Nicanor. Fidelity to historical facts, many of which are typified by the stirring incidents of the tale and a true picture of the ever modern human passions, as controlling the strong characters of an early age, make the book one that holds the interest from first to last.

TITLES DECEITFUL.

Many book titles convey no idea of the nature of the contents; many tell the motive of the story, and others create wrong impressions as to what is to be found in the volume.

For example, "The Jungle" is not a story of India, but of the beef packing trade in Chicago; "The Spur" is not a horse story, but of a New Zealand sheep shearer; "The Rat Trap" is not a story of rodentia, but of adventures on an island; "Black Beauty' is not a story of a pretty colored girl, but of a street car horse. There has just been published another book with a misleading title. It is called a "A Lame Dog's Diarv." and its author is S. Macnaughtan. The "Lame Dog" is no' a dog at all, but a soldier who at Magersfontein was shot in the legs. Slowly recovering at home from his injuries, under the care of his devoted and clever sister Palestrina, he is recommended to relieve the tedium of his convalescence on the sofa with wood carving, worsted work, and what not. But he finally adopts the advice of the bewitching young widow. Mrs. Fielden, and starts a diary. On this diary hangs the delightful story; for to it the "Lame Dog" confides all his petulant remarks about the widow's waywardness and incomprehensible caprices, but when at last he fully sees the beauty of her character and puts a right interpretation on herways, he goes over the diary and substituted "beautiful" for "affected," "lovely" "gayety" for "frivolous," and introduces even more significant amendments. Mrs. Fielden demands to see the diary, with the result which every reader will approve.

BOOKS AND AUTHORS

Although his first book was pubished in England little more than a year ago, Mr. Alfred Noyes has attained very high rank in that country as a poet. The scholarly and critical English reviewers speak of his work in terms which they use of not more than two or three other living writers of poetry. The belief is evidently held in many quarters that Mr. Noyes bids fair to take a very high rank among the poets of the new century. So far his work has not appeared in this country. It is now announced that Mr. Noyes has recently arranged with the Macmillan company for the publication of his new work. The title will be announced later.

WASHINGTON, May 18.-Persons who believe that Chinamen have no sense of fun are invited to pay attention to this story

Washington has had the roller skating bug for the past three or four months. It is a revival of the roller skating craze of a couple of decades ago. Convention Hall, which has been turned into a roller rink, has one of the biggest floor spaces in the United States, and the floor is packed with skaters of all degrees at each of the three daily skating seances. Many of the toffiest people in town, men and women, and some of them middleaged persons who roller skated before most of the present generation of roller skaters, came into being, gyrate around on the floor of this Washing-

The "diplomatic bunch"-as Washingtonians offhandedly call the legation people, patronize the rink during the morning session, from 10 to 12 noon. None of the ambassadors or ministers plenipotentiary has yet been seen actually skating, but the attaches and the women folk of the legations have fallen for this sport with a thud, and they cavort around on the wheels while the ambassadors and ministers look on from the benches.

About a month ago one of the leading secretaries of the Chinese embassy accompanied a crowd of the legation people to the rink at a morning session. He is a short, rather fat Mongolian, with an ever-smiling visage. He took a seat with the staid lookerson and watched the antics of the beginners with great obvious amusement. A number of the young attaches of other legations begged him to put a pair of skates on and have a try at the American sport. He shook his head over these suggestions for a long time, but finally he yielded. When the other legation people saw the Chinaman being led out on to the floor by one of the instructors they all stood by for fun. They had the fun. The Chinaman on skates was a joke. The secretary exhibited all of the Chinaman's natural lack of agility as to foot and leg work. He wabbled like a rundown top and his legs refused utterly to stand perfectly upright and still. But he was game, and he gave the thing a dozen trials. His flowing green silk garments were of the color of oily mop rags when he finally had the skates removed from his feet. But throughout the whole performance the pleasant. engaging smile never left the Chinaman's face. If Chinamen ever are hard losers, they rarely or never show it. The legation people had a great lot of fun over the clumsy Chinese secretary's thumping falls. They pretended to sympathize with him keenly, but their winks and grimaces when he wasn't looking indicated how much enjoyment they were having. When he had the skates taken off the Chinese secretary of embassy resumed his bench seat and benevolently watched the rest of them skate for the remainder of the morning seance.

The Chinese secretary appeared at the rink at 9 o'clock on the following morning, sought the proprietor of the rink introduced himself and announced that he was going to learnhow to roller skate. He wanted to to the ground and started to skate learn while there was nobody else on

He arranged for private instruction in the art of roller skating from 8 to 10 in the morning, 12 to 2 in the afternoon and 5 to 7 in the evening, at which periods the rink is closed to the public. The proprietor of the rink detailed one of the instructors to attend the Chinese secretary during these hours. When the Chinaman turned up at the rink on the following morning he wore an American sack suit instead of his Chinese official robes. He had regular skating shoes on his feet, and he had a pair of brand-new roller skates, the finest purchasable for money, slung over his arm. The whole immense rink floor space belonged to the Chinaman and his instructor, and they went at it. The Chinaman practiced roller skating for six hours that day, six hours the next day, six the day after that, and every day for three weeks. He was as as prompt as the town clock, and there wasn't a minute of the entire time that his smile didn't look to be unusually large "diplomatic bunch," including a couple of ambassadors, there to look on, had already assembled at the rink when the Chi-

They huddled at one end of the rink to give the Chinaman all the room he'd need. They had no intention of allowing him to knock them down in sprawling around, and, anyhow, they wanted to get together so as to enjoy the fun more.

skates-as difficult a feat as any roller skater ever tries. He got away with in great shape. Then he dashed forward on one skate, wheeled in midcareer, still on one skate, and propelled himself backward in a huge circle on the one skate, winding up by doing a most perfect "split" on the heel wheels only if his skates. All the time the expression on his face was just such a one as he might have worn with equal appropriateness while engaged in picking wild flowers. Then, as a final stunt, the Chinaman raised himself to the toe wheels of his skates, began to revolve slowly to the right, and in eight seconds he was spinning around on those toe wheels like an Indian whip-top, making so many revolutions to the minute that his features could not be distinguished. The Chinese Ambassador, sitting up on a high-tier bench, looked smiling and happy; while the members of his official suite glanced at one another and made low-toned, gurgling remarks. The legation people huddled at the far end of the rink and looked chapfallen, but when their first amazement was over they showed that they were fair by surrounding the Chinese secretary and overwhelming him with congratulations.

him, rather superfluously. For the remainder of the morning session the Chinese secretary skated around the great rink arena with the prettiest girls of the legation crowd and taught them how to do the more simple rollering stunts.

"The joke is on us," they all told

The Chinese secretary hasn't said a word to any of the legation people as to how his "reversal of form" came about, and most of them believe that he fooled them the first time by pretending not to know how to skate, professing to hold it impossible for anybody to achieve the Chinaman's roller skating proficiency in the space of a month. They don't know anything about the Chinaman's six hours of determined practice a day for a month, and they say that he must have learned roller skating in San Francisco, where he was stationed before coming here. But the facts are as here given.

Holy Father Draws Line at Women Politicians

(Copyright, 1906, by Hearst News Service.) Special Cable to The Telegram.

BY PAUL VILLIERS. PARIS, May 19,-Though considerably more liberal and modern in his views than his predecessor, Pope Plus X draws the line on women poli-

"Women have no political ability and wherever they have entered that field they have made themselves a general nuisance," he said to Fraulein Thiemer, a leader of the feminist movement in Austria.

"I do not want to disparage the ability of women," he continued, "and women should rather consider my words a praise, when I say that they lack the cool judgment and heartless calculation which must ever be a predominant trait in the character of the successful politician. Feelings are entirely out of place in politics, and I believe, thank God, that the woman without feelings is yet to be discovered.

Fraulein Thiemer asked his holiness his views of women activities in the trades and professions.

Fraulein Thiemer asked the pope if he approved of the feminist movement. "Certainly," he replied, "whenever it does not conflict with Christian morals.... I see no reason why any restriction should be put upon the studies pursued by women. Apart. from theology, I think women should study everything. Lawyers and doctors I think it quite proper for women to be-especially doctors. No one can minister a sck child, or woman, as her own sex."

"I also believe in woman teachers. It is right that the education of a child should be entrusted to a woman. Are not women, through their influence upon children, the instructors of The pope expressed frank disap-of the woman politician and the female orator. "Oh, no! I do not approve of women deputies at all. Men make a bad job enough of politics as it is without permitting women to step in and make matters worse.

Survivors Start Show

Neny and Prouvost, the leaders of the thirteen miners who escaped from the pit at Courrieres after having been shut up in the mine for twenty-one days, have started a dime show. They themselves are the entire exhibition. They have hired a room in a hotel near here, and a sign outside informs the public that the miners are on view three times a day for an hour at a time.

A hawker stands by the door and shouts at the top of his lungs: "This way mesdames this way messieurs; step inside and see Neny and Prouvost, the escaped miners. Only ten cents.' Everybody is disgusted with their behavior, and public sympathy has been completely withdrawn from During their recent visit to Paris

Will Move Museum

The prince of Monaco has notified M. Briand, minister of public instruction, of his intention to move his famous museum of oceanagraphy from Monaco to Paris. The entire collection, with the aquariums, laboratories and dependencies will be brought to the French capital. The museum will be housed at a building erected for that purpose in the Rue of St. Jacques, and the prince of Monaco has set aside a sum of 4,000,000 firancs for its maintenance.

The collection is valued at over ten million francs.

Necklace Redeemed

The wonderful 150,000 francs pearl necklade of Queen Marie Antoinette, about which so many stirring novels have been written, has once more figured in the French courts. The necklace is now the property of Don Jaime de Bourbon, the son of the pretender to the Spanish throne. A couple of jewelers are suing Don Jaime for a commission of 50,000 francs on the sale of the necklace. which sale never took place. There is no need of alliances, no call for treaties between France and the United States. The solidarity of interests and sentiments which exists between the two nations guarantees their political union.

"Every year the number of Americans who visit France, and the number of French people who visit America increases, and this alone is a guarantee of the affection and esteem which is steadily growing up between these two nations. "We accept the augury which this brings with unreserved joy."

French Like Miss Farrar

With one exception the French press has been loud in its praises of Miss Garaldine Farrar, the American singer's appearance in the new opera, the "Clown." The exception is the Bil Blas, of which hardly an issue appears in which slurring remarks of one sort or another are not cast at America and Americans. The dramatic critic of this paper, M. Nosiere, says: "For more than a month we have heard about the talent of Geraldine Farrar. They are exaggerated. To Form English Colony

A syndicate has been formed to establish an "all English colony" at Monte Carlo. An estate of ten acres close to the Mediterranean shore has been purchased and a hotel with several outlying villas will be built. This scheme is the result of the lack of accommodation at this popular resort during the winter months. The season now at an end has demonstrated that the present hotels are insufficient to meet the requirements of the visitors and of the increasing number of English visitors; the syndicate believes that their scheme of having an exclusively English colony will be financially and socially suc-

LONDON, May 19-An exhibition of ted trades, which has just been ened by Princess Henry, of Battenat the Queen's hall in Lanham ace comes at this moment very apt-It follows on the same exhibition eld in Protectionist Germany, and hows how little the fiscal policy of a country really has to say to the conditions of the mass of the toiling classes when individual cupidity steps

Twenty-two homes or sweating dens are represented in the exhibition, planted from the slum of London, and men, women and children are seen making clothes, match boxes, brushes. artificial flowers and folding Bibles and prayer books. To my mind no scene in Dante's Inferno could be more tragic. A woman engaged in this latter occupation (and surely if any trade should not be sweated, this pious industry ought to be exempt) works twelve hours a day, and manages during six months in the year to make nine to ten shiflings a week, eight shillings and six pence is required as rent for the three rooms which house her and her six

One penny per 100 sheets is the price paid by the Oxford Bible Press. Nevertheless, I rejoice that this leadly product of our so-called civion should be brought out from the shades where it poisons human existence into the glare of publicity, and I fancy that the sorrow and misery that it depicts must have sunk deep the heart of the princess who ed it, and who was accompanied by her daughter, who is about to become the queen of a nation which has or the last 200 years been struggling against overwhelming poverty.

the tie of marriage the higher is the moral standard of any people. Church Opposition

The church of England is very strongly antagonistic to any increased facilities for divorce. The stricter the law of marriage, she maintains, the better it is for the happiness of the greater number. The church of Rome has never deviated from the position that marriage is indissoluble, except on rare occasions when papal authority intervenes, and the example of the United States comes to us as one that does not tend to make us believe that the effect of relaxing the marriage tie has been good.

It is now some time since Mr. Lecky. the historian, warned us against "that kind of inferior and unstable marriage much like the Roman concubinatus, which is in danger of growing up."

Education Bill a Puzzler

The education bill in England! and still the education bill! occupies the thoughts of all thinkers, and it appears to me that almost every one distrusts and dislikes the "state made makeshift of religion" which it is proposed should be adopted, and certainly when we look around on the paralyzing indifference of the masses to all religion nothing could be more short sighted than to assume that instruction from which all vital truth and foundation principles have been elliminated in order to suit all minds, is going to be of any value whatever to the future religions life of the children in our schools.

Once separate children from any body of Christians to which they belong, and you have created a religious individualism which is one of the greatest barriers to that corporate life which is the very essence of Chris-

To teach the facts of the Old Testament and the Gospel story is simply to lay the foundation, to give the material out of which religion is made, and I see no harm in giving this foundation if it is clearly understood that this is not teaching religion, and that parents must not be misled with the idea that this sort of instruction is any substitute for the teaching of Christianity, but the impasse is very

The church is ranging itself against the great liberal party, and unfortunately the whole question is taking on a political aspect. Personally I see no way out of the dilemma but by adopting a system of secular education. At any rate that is honest, and it leaves to vital religion the power of making itself felt.

The struggle in this age will always be between materialism and vital religion, everything else must drop to the ground. It is no longer on the individual interpretation of Scripture that Christianity depends, but it is on a due understanding of those foundation creeds upon which the whole fabric is built, and such instruction cannot be left to the casual favor of local authorities, nor can religious controversy enter into every local

PREDICTION OF EARTHQUAKE MADE

Cuban Masses Alarmed Over Possibility

Special Cable to The Telegram.

(Copyright, 1906, by Hearst News Service.) HAVANA, Cuba, May 18.—This is the day in which, according to Dr. Nowack of Vienna, the city of Havana and several other important towns of the island of Cuba will be destroyed by an earthquake.

In spite of the assurances to the contrary given to the people of the official observatory, there is great consternation among the inhabitants at Havana and hundreds of them are leaving the city, some for the United States and many to the rural districts, where the dangers of an earthquake are lessened by the absence of large buildings. The storm that swept Havana a few days ago, although simply a tropical storm, identical in every respect to those which usually visit Cuba at this time of the year, has been taken by the masses as a sure indication of future calamities, and panic reigns among the poorer classes and among all those who for one reason or the other are not able to leave the city.

So intense has been the excitement created by Dr. Nowack's predictions that the Academy of Sciences of Havana summoned the Austrian professor scientists and explain his theories.

Dr. Nowack, whose prophesies are based on the study of certain tropical plants, which, according to him, mark unerringly the approach of any seismic disturbance, is firm in his belief that Havana will be destroyed today, and, seated in the seismic cabinet of the Belen College Observatory, he waits with true scientist courage the hour of death.

The day is fine and there is no visible indication of anything resembling an carthquake. The collapse of the Gener cigar facory, where several men, women and children met an awful death, has created the greatest sensation here, and the press is unanimously demanding that a commission of architects be appointed to go to the United States to study the American methods of steel frame building, with the object of employing them in Cuba.

The opening of a bank with a capital of $25,000 in Tioga, Pa., would not, under ordinary circumstances, constitute a notable event; but as the bank is organized under the auspices of the State Grange, is owned and managed by Grangers, and is designed to be the first of a series of Grange banks, its opening is very interesting.-Philadelphia Record.

That "ragged" is not confined strictly to the army is shown by an extraordinary occurrence which is now the talk of the stock exchange. About two weeks ago a man posing as a wealthy Belgian arrived in London from Paris and engaged rooms at a fashionable hotel. He obtained introductions to several stock brokers and at once commenced "plunging" in the markets. On his first deal he lost a considerable sum, but did not pay up on settling day. He then transferred his business to a second lot of brokers with the same result. The third lot of brokers, however were not content with the Belgian's polite letter of regret. Notes had been

Miss Parrish III

Americans in London who enjoyed much former hospitality at the beautiful house in South Kensington, owned by Mr. and Mrs. A. Alfred Parrisa have heard with regret of the serious illness of their daughter, Cora, one of the eleverest and most attractive girls in the American colony.

Mrs. Parrish gave up her London home some time ago on account of her husband's health and has lived with him in various parts of Italy. The other day Miss Cora Parrish came to London to see old friends and was taken seriously ill. The Parrishes have now purchased a beautiful villa at Cadanavia, the property of Piatti, the great violincellist, and they are also furnishing a flat in Rome.

Their house in London was built like a country house with a large garden, but they are still unable to sell it Royalties Must Be Entertained

Few people realize the immense sacrifices made by the Duke and Duchess of Devonshire in their entertainment of royalty. They are the most intimate and devoted of all the friends of the king and queen, but it is considered a little hard on them that they should be called upon to do so much, seeing that they are by no means as affluent as they were.

Queen Alexandra was so distressed to hear that her absence from all the important festivities would spoil the season and be bad for trade, that she has consented to appear at the first court to be held on the 25th, and she has asked the duchess to start the season with a big ball at Devonshire house.

This the veteran duchess had not contemplated as she is not in the best of health, but in the circumstances she could not well refuse.

Consuelo, Duchess of Manchester, has also consented to give one or two small dances in Grosvenor Squire, to liven things up, and it is hinted that Lord Rosebery will emerge from his shell and give a big ball in Berkley Square.

An important medical discovery generally means something we can't eat. A man's idea of an ideal wife is one who thinks she has an ideal husband, Genius is usually eccentric, but mere eccentricity doesn't constitute genius.

Work Done at Request of Russian Authorities and Shelved in War Department

(Copyright, 1906, by Hearst News Service.) BERLIN, May 19.-Immediately after the end of the Russo-Japanese war. it was said and generally believed that the kaiser had expressed the opinion that he expected to live to see another gigantic struggle for the supremacy in the far east between the two empires.

This opinion has now been confirmed in a most remarkable book on the situation in that part of the world by J. P. Bashenow, who is probably better posted on this subject than any man living. In this work, which is dedicated to the Russian minister of war, and which was written at the request of the Russian chief of staff, General Palizyn, M. Bashenow declares point blank that it is his firm belief that the peace of Portsmouth is to be considered as a mere armistice only, and that Russia will be implicated in another war with Japan within five or, at the Bashenow's book is so much more worthy of notice, as it is remembered that he, in 1897, wrote a similar book, also at the request of the Russian general staff, in which he foretold the ecent war as something which was bound to come and also predicted the defeat of the Russian arms. At that time his book was ridiculed everywhere outside of Japan, and General Kuropatkin who read it, declared that t was to be shelved in the archives of the war department and not to be al lowed to be sold.

The responsibility for the second Russo-Japanese war will rest on Japan, M. Bashenow says, because it s the unchangeable intention of the mikado's government to drive Russia back from the Pacific coast, an end which they tried to accomplish already in the recent war.

In the name of the people of Russia M. Bashenow implores the minister of war to prepare for the coming inevitable struggle and points what he thinks ought to be done to insure the success of the Russian arms. Twothirds of the armies now in the far east should be kept there permanently and should be ready for war at any time, and the Russian government should by colonizing the eastern part of Siberia make it possible to get a large number of recruits in the immediate neighborhood of the places where the next great battles must be

The construction of a second track along the whole length of the Trans-Siberian and Ussuri railroad should be pushed with all speed possible, and the Amur railroad should be built immediately. The fortifications of Vladivostok should be made impregnable, and the place made a first class naval base and fortifications be built along the whole frontier, no matter how strongly Japan might protest

A mighty Russian navy should be built, not in the government yards, but in foreign countries, preferably in the United States or better still, by American ship builders in Vladivostok. Forts for the defense of that city hould be built in a line reaching from ape Poworotny to Possiet bay and all the islands in the outlet of the Amur river should be strongly fortified.

Suicide From Drink

Alcoholism is now said to be the eason of the numerous cases of suicide among school children which have caused so much alarm in Germany during the last years, according to a statement made the other day by the association of teachers who are total

That the use of alcoholic beverages among children is on the increase has long been suspected and is borne out by an investigation made a short time ago in the city of Brunswick. Ten thousand two hundred and seventyeight boys and 7,080 girls were questioned with a result which has startled the whole country. In the lower public schools forty-seven children were in the habit of drinking wine daily, 880 drank beer, 55 whisky, 122 brandy, rum or similar beverages. Sixty-five children admitted that they were in the habit of taking a drink before going to school, 2,340, or almost 25 per cent, drank regularly with their midday and evening meals, and 3,989 said they liked to do so, but did not do it regularly. Among 246 children who attended a school for the weak minded, 118, or nearly half, admitted that they were fond of liquor. Of the pupils in schools for the middle classes, 1,334 boys (32.7 per cent) and 853 girls (28.3 per cent) were in the habit of taking alcoholic drinks with their meals. Further investigation showed that. with practically no exceptions, all these children were nervous and unfit to receive the proper benefit from their studies, and nearly 40 per cent of them were melancholy and morose. The statement of the teachers backed up as it is by these statistics has made a very strong impression upon the empress, who has always been intensely interested in the temperance movement, and who will undoubtedly use all of her influence to stop the pernicious habit of giving alcoholic beverages to children.

Prince August Wilhelm of Prussia, the fourth son of the kaiser, is said to be very much disappointed because it has been decided to send him to the university of Bonn, where two of his brothers have already studied.

Every since the vist of his uncle Prince Henry of Prussia, to the United States, the young prince is said to have tried to get permission to spend at least a year at an American college, preferably Harvard, but this will now be out of the question.

At Bonn the prince will take up the studies of law and national econo and he will have to remain at the university at least four years. He is said to have objected to entering the military career which the kaiser had planned for him.

OUR LAY SERMON

He that trusteth in his riches shall fall.-Proverbs

We can all call to mind the time, which lies not very remotely in the past when the few really rich men we had in the United States were held up to the rising generation as examples worthy of general emulation. Their careers were published to the world and the story was told of how they made the!r first dollars. Their struggles for success in the acquirement of dollars were held up in glowing terms and Young America was assiduously importuned to go and do likewise. But today it is different.

Today the man who has managed to accumulate great wealth is in constant danger of being held up to the world as a person to be eschewed and shunned and many of them are showing themselves worthy of

Many of them who have accumulated great wealth have apparently at the same time imbibed the idea that its possession entitles them to do anything they please. The fact that they have lordly bank accounts gives a form of impunity from the consequence of acts that elicit punishment for those whose bank accounts are smaller. This thing has been repeatedly demonstrated during the past year. Look at the new school of so-called high financiers. They represent a fine type of those whom the lust for wealth has apparently run

But the men who believed that the possession of great wealth granted them immunity from punishment for the consequences of their acts are rapidly coming to grief. Men who obtained their wealth through questionable or dishonest methods are being pilloried from one end of America to the other, and our people as a class are rapidly recovering from the former craze of

For several months that great corporation famous the world over as the Standard Oil Company has been held up and pilloried before the public and the President of the United States has recently made public facts that seem to substantiate all that has been alleged concerning Standard Oil and its people. The millions of dollars possessed by the members of this combination will not be sufficient to protect them from the wrath of an aroused and indignant people. The idea that great wealth guaranteed them in the practice of lawlessness in going to be thoroughly dispelled.

Within the past few months the men who have been at the head of the so-called beef trust, most of them millionaires, have been indicted as common criminals, and although they have escaped legal punishment on a technicality, in the minds of the public they were convicted of a serious crime.

These are but common instances serving to remind us that the man who trusted to his riches to secure him immunity from the censure of public opinion has fallen from the high pedestal on which he was placed only a few years ago.

He that trusteth in his riches shall fall.

That is one of the promises of God's holy word, and it is just as true as the other promises therein recorded. It may involve a doctrine that is incompatible with the desire of those who are falling, but it is a great truth nevertheless, and is being constantly exempli-

We have now really reached the point where the man of great wealth is regarded with a sort of suspicion until he has proven that he did not acquire his wealth by injustice or unfairness-that there is no smell of taint about the coin he has been hoarding. The day of the individual who is above criticism simply on account of his wealth is a thing of the past. It is gone never more to return. While there are doubtless many men of means who cannot be accused of acquiring their wealth dishonest- homination

ly, and who are worthy of the confidence and respect of the public, it is an encouraging sign that the Age of UAILY, SUNDAY AND WEEKLY BY THE FORT Gold-the age of commercial greed-is passing. The time will soon come when we will no longer be a nation of money worshippers-when we will place manhood and honesty on the pedestal. Honor will be greater than wealth, for the man who trusted in his riches has fallen.

It is better for the nation that this is so. Under the old regime we were fast drifting into depths that threatened to completely engulf us, and it was almost possible for money to accomplish anything it sought in the way of achievement. Men with money have bought all kinds of political advancement. Men with money have combined to make possible all kinds of achievements. The American people were slew to catch on to all that was involved in the situation, but when they did there has been a wonderful revulsion of public sentiment. We no longer bow to the Golden Calf-the man who trusted in his riches has fallen.

ALL ATTACK THE STRONGEST MAN

No higher tribute so the strength of Judge Charles K. Bell in the race for governor could be developed than the fight that is being made upon him by the other candidates. The remark has been frequently made that it is the field against Bell, and recent developments seem to indicate as much. Commenting on this feature of the situation, the Houston Chronicle, one of the leading afternoon papers of the state, says:

The Chronicle feels assured that a majority of the voters of Texas sympathized with it in its desire that the present contest and campaign for governor would be conducted on a plane of dignity and fairness proportioned to the importance, power and dignity of the great office.

No reason was apparent why the campaign might not be so conducted, except the danger that fear of defeat and the extreme zeal born of such fear might. as it seems to have done, betray some candidate or candidates into hasty utterance.

Mr. Moore, who really seems to take himself and his candidacy seriously, a state of mind which is shared by but a comparatively few of his fellow-citizens, grows vicious in utterance when referring to Judge Charles K. Bell, as the following testifies:

It is only natural that the powerful lawbreakers, the trusts, should unite in the support of a single candidate for governor in this campaign, and in uniting on one candidate it is eminently fitting that they should select, as they have selected, the gentleman from Fort For four years that gentleman was attorney

I tell you, my fellow-citizens, that the candidacy of the gentleman from Fort Worth is a menace to the prosperity and to the liberties of the people of Texas, and I pledge you that in this campaign I am opposed unreservedly to the principles and the policies represented by his record as attorney general and by his opening speech at Hamilton.

Now, a man who thinks he has intelligence, char-Texas should not indulge in such utterances. Mr. Moore does not know that there are any "powerful lawbreakers," nor does he know that there are any such influences supporting Judge Bell or any other candidate. He can prove no such allegation.

When he says "Judge Bell's election will mean that certain offenders will be assured that they can continue to commit crimes with impunity," and that it will further mean a menace to the prosperity and to the liberties of the people, he says what it is unworthy of any man to say, because there is no escape from the conclusion or deduction from such language that it not only charges neglect of duty, but moral unworthiness and official infidelity. The people of Texas know that such language does Judge Bell injustice, because there is nothing in his record to support such charge, and the people have the instinct to detect injustice and a caivalric impulse to resent it. Mr. Moore should remem-

Mr. Moore, however, is not alone in offending against the facts and good taste. Mr. Colquitt also takes a "flyer" at Judge Bell. Somehow it looks like at least two candidates think Judge Bell dangerous, because good political hunters are wont to use their ammunition first on the biggest game.

Mr. Colquitt even "out Herods Herod," and goes

Mr. Moore better (or worse): In this campaign these combinations of capitalists-these trusts-are supporting the namby-pambyist man in the race—a man who advocates nothing and deprecates scarcely anything: a man who apparently has only one purpose in view, namely, to get into office without offending anybody, and to stay in office without offending anybody; a man who promises everything and does absolutely nothing.

I have said that the railway trust is the greatest of all the trusts, and it is. But there is another trust that lives upon and gives life to the railway trust, and that trust, my friends, is the official trust of Texas. It is composed of men who spend one-half of their lives getting elected to office, and the other half to holding it after they've got it. They are now trying to elect one man governor in this race in order are working hand in glove with the railway trust in this fight. One-third of the members of the state senate are salarled employes of the railways. Do you wonder that your interests have been betrayed, your will thwarted and your plans defeated? These are the men who defeated the blanket primary and compelled you to name your governor by the convention system. These are the men who strike hands with the trusts and wrest from the people the fruits of their victory. These are the men whom Governor James S. Hogg fought and whipped in Texas when he was living and whom Senators Bailey and Culberson are fighting so valiantly in the

I know that they have conspired to defeat my aspirations in this race, and I gladly welcome the combat. I never yet have "sold the truth to serve the hour, or paltered with eternal God for power," and I shall not do

Mr. Colquitt even grows discourteous and bitter. and far more ridiculous than either, if possible, because he sees the specter of trusts supporting Judge Bell, and invokes the shadowy, unsubstantial "spook" of an official trust, and charges honorable, patriotic men. who assert a freeman's right to have a preference, with conspiring to betray the people, because they prefer another man to him. The charge that those in office defeated the blanket primary cannot be proved directly or by inference or circumstance, and to say they did and "compelled" the people to do anything is the veriest absurdity. Mr. Colquitt knows he has no proof of any such charges, and so knowing, has no right to make

When a man, for the sake of making votes, charges honorable men with unpatriotic conspiracy, and reflects upon their integrity of conduct, his case is desperate. The Chronicle has not rent, and does not intend to

IDLERS NOTE BOOK

SUNDAY, May 13.-Went to church today. Not in itself an item worth recording in my note-book, but given a place because it refers to a question that has bothered me some months. Query: Why do the hymns they sing at church nowadays never match the sermons? In the good old long ago when the minister would announce as the opening hmyn, "How Firm a Foundation," one could settle himself comfortably down in his pew with the assurance the sermon to follow would deal with building houses and the comparative merits of rock and sand as basic principles. Today the choir sang at the beginning "Throw Out the Life Line," and naturally I expected a sermon about Noah. Instead, the preacher talked forty-eight minutes on Standard oil rebates, foreign missions, the San Francisco earthquake and some college or other of which he'd recently been elected as a director and which needed money to buy gymnasium apparatus.

Only last week I went to near an old-fashioned sermen at a church where the minister still clings to firstlys, secondlys, thirdlys, fourthlys and finallys. The sermon was all right. It was about Jonah and the whale. If Jonan had have heard it, he'd have been ashamed of himself before the minister got to secondly, Even the sailors came in for a rap, and in fact the whole discourse was of the kind to make a self-satisfied sinner lose more of his conceit than the whale did of Jonah. But the choir. It sang "Bringing in the Sheaves" and "Work for the Night Is Coming" with all the volume of its lungs and then sat down with a smirk as if to let the congregation know the sermon might have been good and all that, but it was only incidental to the music.

Sometimes, I've noticed, the choir and the organist occasionally hit the mark. Probably it isn't intentional, but the result is just the same.

The other night after a rousing temperance sermon the organist played the grand march from "Faust" as a postlude. Now "Faust" is the name of a brand of beer which is well known in localities where the organist is probably not acquainted, but that was only incidental. Some years ago there was a burlesque production in which the music of "Faust" was used to carry some nonsensical lines. The lines for which the grand march furnished the air were peculiarly fitted from a rhythmic basis to the syncopated strains of the stirring music. They were

"No sir, I'll never get drunk any more. "No sir, I'll never get drunk any more. "No sir. I'll never get drunk any more

If you always will treat Whenever we meet, I never will kick up

A fuss in the street."

The organist probably didn't know it, but he certainly made a great hit in line with the sermon which had

He was almost as bad as an organist I heard of the other day who was selected at the eleventh hour to play for a church wedding. The organist had no experience with weddings, much less the church vatiety, but he practiced diligently on Mendelssohn's "Wedding March," thinking that it would be all the occasion demanded.

When it came time for the ceremony he was unexpectedly informed by the best man he must play something for a processional while the bride and bridegroom were advancing toward the altar.

"What will I play?" he asked in desperation. "I haven't practiced a thing and I was saving up Mendelssohn until the ceremony should be over."

"Oh, play anything," said the best man assuringly. "Some simple little thing will do. Everybody will be looking at the bride and bridegroom and nobody will be listening to the mustc."

So the organist played the first simple little thing that came into his head. As the bride, a vision of ioveliness, as they say in the society section, entered from the door at the left and started slowly up the aisle on the arm of her father, while the bridegroom and his best man marched Jowly across the church from the right, softly, but distinctly there boomed out into the ears of the expectant congregation the solemn notes of "Come ye Disconsolate."

The organist did his best, but it nearly broke up

I am told that the minister does not select the \diamond \diamond \diamond \diamond

hymns for church service any more. He leaves it to the choir leader. I know there's a reason for this and a good reason. In fact, it is probably a better rlan than the one practiced in a church where I once attended. The minister would announce a hymn he thought the occasion demanded. If the choir knew the tune, well and good. If it didn't, the congregation had the pleasure of seeing each of the singers loop half the pages of his or her book up in the middle, sing the words of the hymn the minister had announced. and the mustc of another forty pages away. Sometimes it would take the congregation until the third verse before it found the tune the choir was singing at. In fact, with the shorter hymns, by the time the congregation had gotten in tine with the music it was time to shut up the books and feel for the collection.

The old-fashioned plan of having one man lead the congregational singing by intoning one line and waiting for the congregation to repeat it after him, did away with much embarrassment, but it had its disadvantages. Sometimes the congregation was likely to sing what the leader had intoned without going to the necessity of looking at the books.

Such was the case in a little country church where the lamps, sometimes at evening service, were so poor reading by the congregation became an impossibility. The oil for the lamps, let it be said-by way of explanation, was furnished by a groceryman named Grimes. Grimes belonged to the congregation and gave the oil in lieu of subscription. It was not always of the best

One evening the lights were so bad even the leader of the singing could not see either words or music of the closing hymn, but he was not a man to be stopped by small difficulties.

He began intoning, in the music of an old familiar salm, the following words:

"The night is dark, the lights are dim, I cannot see my way." The congregation had never heard such a hymn before, but it sounded all right, so they sang it through and waited expectantly for the second line. The leader had been almost as surprised as the congregation when the words were sung, but having begun, he determined to see it through, so he intoned the next fine as follows:

"Our kerosene is water half, for that is Grimes's way!" The congregation did not sing the second line, but next week the church had better lights. THE IDLER.

ELEMENTS OF REAL SUCCESS By RUSSELL SAGE

· Contented at Ninety With Ninety Million

THRIFT is the first element of successful manhood. When you have made your fortune, it is time enough to think about spending it. Two suits of clothes are enough for any young man. The only thought that a young man need spend about his clothes is to look out for bargains at the lowest price. Let him be on the lookout for cheap hats, bargains in shoes, knockdowns in suits. He is fostering business traits that augur well for his success in years to come. The boy who knows bargains in socks makes the man who knows bargains in stocks. Fifty cents is enough for a straw hat; it will last two seasons. You can get for thirty-nine cents an unlaundered white shirt which is excellent. You can get a good undershirt for twenty-five cents. Silk is not for salaried men. Fine clothes bring sham pleasure. Don't try to rival the flowers of the field. If I had my life to live over again I am sure I should not attempt to move in what is termed "society." I would rather be one of a few gathered together by a bond of friendship than to partake of all the glitter and hollowness of what is called the "Four hundred." The friendship of a few outlives life itself. Friendship remembers; society forgets. In the home only is there true happiness. It is there that a man's best ideas get their birth and grow. If I had my life to live over again I would marry even earlier than I did. The tender care of a good wife is the finest thing in the world. I am thankful, indeed, that I have had this in the fullest measure. I think, if I had my life to live over again, it would be as honest, as simple, as home-loving as I could make it. I would try with all my power for home-like comfort, happiness and long life, as against show, shallow pleasure and a short existence. Home life is best. Clubs are only a place for idle old men and wasteful young men. Great wealth is not everything, by any means. The mere making of money is not the only criterion of success. Many men whose names are our common heritage have died in very moderate circumstances, or even in poverty. Money is not a measure of brains. Real success is often achieved after many failures. An active man builds success upon a foundation of failure; a passive man does not. A real man is not hurt by hard knocks. Hard knocks make character.

a rule Hagar was far too self-possessed to be impressionable; but there was something about Eustace Lornshe had the name pat--which attracted her not a little. From the short interview she had not learned much of him personally. He was poor, proud, rather absent-minded; and-from the fact of his yielding to her on the question of price-rather weak in character. Yet

"Shows how much you know of such things, my girl. It is a rare edition of a celebrated Italian poet, and it is "Really," said Hagar, dryly. "In that man sighed and relented. "Give me the £4," he said gloomily. "I might have messed that a Jewess would grind me down to the lowest." "I am not a Jew but a gypsy," repiled Hagar, making out the ticket.

"A gypsy!" said the other, peering into her face. "And what is a Romany lass doing in this Levitical tab-

"That's my business," retorted Hagar, curtly. "Name and address?" "Eustace Lorn, 42 Castle road," said the young man, giving an address near at hand. "But I say—if you are true Remany, you can talk the calo jib." "I talk it with my kind, young man; not with the Gentiles." "But I am a Romany Rye." "I'm not a fool, young man! Romany Ryes den't live in cities for choice."

"Nor do gypsy girls dwell in pawnops, my lass!" "Four pounds," said Hagar, taking no ice of this remark; "there it is, in old: your ticket also—number eight hundred and twenty. You can redeem the book whenever you like, on paying ent interest. Good night."

"But I say," cried Lorn, as he slipped ney and ticket into his pocket. "I want to speak to you, and-" Good night, sir," said Hagar, sharpvanished into the darkness of the thop. Lorn was annoyed by her was his second. After his departure Hagar put away the Dante, and, as it was late, shut up the shop. Then she retired to the ack parlor to eat her supper-dry and cheese with cold water book, so that closes the question." ed to think over the young man. As she liked his face, the kindly expression of his eyes and the sweetness of his mouth. But after all he was only a chance customer; and-unless he returned to redeem the Dante-she might not see him again. On this thought occurring to her, Hagar called common sense to her aid and strove to banish the young man's image from her mind. The task was more difficult

A week later Lorn and his pawning of the book were recalled to her mind by a stranger who entered the shop shortly after midday. This man was short, stout, elderly and vulgar. He was much excited and spoke badly, as Hagar noted when he laid a pawn ticket number eight hundred and twen-

"'Ere, girl," said he in rough tones, "gimme the book this ticket's for "You come from Mr. Lorn," asked Hagar, remembering the Dante.

"Yes; he wants that book. There's the brass. Sharp now, young woman," Hagar made no move to get the volume or even taken the money. Instead of doing either she asked a question. 'Is Mr. Lorn ill that he could not come himself?" she demanded, looking keenly at the man's coarse face.

"No; but I've bought the pawn ticket off him. 'Ere, give me the book!" "I cannot at present," replied Hagar, who did not trust the looks of this man, and who wished, moreover, to see Eustace again. "Dash yer imperance! Why not?" "Because you did not pawn the Dante, and as it is a valuable book, I might get into trouble if I gave it into other hands than Mr. Lorn's." "Well, I'm blest! There's the ticket!" "So I see; but how do I know the way you became possessed of it?" "Lorn gave it me," said the man. sulkily, "and I want the Dante."

"I'm sorry for that," retorted Hagar, certain that all was not right, "for no one but Mr. Lorn shall get it. "If he isn't ill, let him come and receive it from me."

The man swore and completely lost his temper-a fact which did not disturb Hagar in the least. "You may as well clear out," she said, coldly. "I have said that you sha'n't have the

Confounded by her coolness, the man

Hagar took down the Dante, looked at it carefully, and considered the po-wrong and Eustace was in trouble, else

why should he send a stranger to restore? In an ordinary case Hagar might have received the ticket and the was acting rightly in a legal sense, but Eustace Lorn interested her

"To find out a secret." "A secret, young man-contained in the Dante?"

"Yes. There is a secret in the book which means money.' "To you or Mr. Treadle?" demanded Eustace shrugged his shoulders. "To either one of us who finds out the secret," he said, carelessly. "But, indeed. I don't think it will ever be discovered—at all events, by me. Treadle may be more fortunate.

"If crafty ways can bring fortune, your man will succeed," said Hagar calmly. "He is a dangerous friend for you, that Treadle. There is evidently some story about this Dante of yours which he knows, and which he desires to turn to his own advantage. If the story means money, tell it to me, and I may be able to help you to the wealth. I am only a young girl, it is true, Mr. Lorn; still, I am old in experience, and I may succeed where you

It seemed to be her fate to have dealings with wills—first that of Jacob; now this of waited for her visitor, and—such is Lorn's uncle. However, she knew when to hold her tongue, and, saying nothing. angered with herself for this very she waited for Eustace to explain. This anxiety. She tried to think that it was he did at once. "My uncle, Benjamin Gurth, died six gar, always interested in financial mat-"That is the odd part about it," continued Eustace. "Nobody ever knew the amount of his wealth, for he was a grumpy old curmudgeen, who confided in no one. He bought a little house and garden at Woking, and there lived for the ten years he was in England. His great luxury was books, and as he knew many languages-Italian among others-he collected quite a polyglot library." "Where is it now?"

"It was sold after his death along with the house and land. A man in the city claimed the money and ob-

"I'm telling you, Hagar, if you'll only listen." said Eustace, impatiently. "Well, Uncle Ben, as I have said, was a miser. He hoarded up all his moneys and kept them in the house, trusting neither to banks nor investments. My. mother was his sister and very poor, but he never gave her a penny, and to me nothing but the Dante, which he presented in an unusual fit of generos-

"Then you may be sure, Mr. Lorn, that he intended to make you his heir. But what has your friend Treadle to do with the matter?" "Oh. Treadle is a grocer in Woking." responded Lorn. "He is greedy for money, and knowing that Uncle Ben was rich, he tried to get the cash left to him. He wheedled and flattered the old man; he made him presents, and always tried to set him against me as his only relative." "Didn't I say the man was your enemy? Well go on."

"There is little more to tell. Hagar. Uncle Ben hid his money away, and left a will which gave it all to the person who should find out where it was concealed. The testament stated the secret was contained in the Dante. You may be sure that Treadle visited me at once and asked to see the book. I showed it to him, but neither of us could find any signs in its pages likely to lead us to discover the hidden treasure. The other day Treadle came to see the Dante again. I told him that I had pawned it, so he volunteered to redeem it if I gave him the ticket. The result you know."

"Yes, I refused to give it to him," said Hagar, "and I see now that I was right to do so, as the man is your enemy. Well, Mr. Lorn, it seems from your story that a fortune is waiting for you, if you can find it."

"Very true; but I can't find it. There isn't a single sign in the Dante by it by way of experiment." which I can trace the hiding place." "Do you know Italian?"

"Very well. Uncle Ben taught it to "That's one point gained," said Hagar, placing the Dante on the table and lighting another candle. "The secret may be contained in the poem itself. However, we shall see. Is there any mark in the book—a marginal mark I mean?" "Not one. Look for yourself."

The two comely young heads, one so fair, the other so dark, were bent over the book in that dismal and tenebrous atmosphere. Eustace, the weaker character of the twain, yielded in all things to Hagar. She turned over page after page of the old Florentine dition, but not one pencil or pen mark marred its pure white surface from beginning to end. From "L'Inferno" to "Il Paradiso" no hint betrayed the secret of the hidden money. At the last page. Eustace, with a sigh, threw himsalf back in his chair

"You see, Hagar, there is nothing. What are you frowning at?" "I am not frowning, but thinking, young man," was the reply. "If the secret is in this book, there must be some trace of it. Now, nothing appears at present, but later on-"Well," said Eustace, impatiently, "later on?" "Invisible ink."

"Invisible ink!" he repeated, vague-"I don't quite understand." "My late master," said Hagar, without emotion, "was accustomed to deal with thieves, rogues and vagabonds. Naturally, he had many secrets, and sometimes by force of circumstances, he had to trust these secrets to the post. Naturally, also, he did not wish to risk discovery, so when he sent a letter about stolen goods, for instance, he always wrote it in lemon juice." "In lemon juice! And what good

He had neither birth nor money, yet he drew back from mating himself with such a one. Thus, his mother was dead, and he was quite alone in the world-alone and poor. Still, if he found his uncle's fortune, he would be rich enough to marry. Hagar, did she aid him to get the money, might expect reward in the shape of marriage. And she was so beautiful, so clever! By the time he reached his poor lodging Eustace had put all scruples out of his head and had settled to marry the gipsy as soon as the lost treasure came into his possession. In no other way could be thank her for the interest she was taking in him. This may seem a hasty decision, but young blood is soon heated; young hearts are soon filled

Hagar was already waiting for him, with the Dante in her hand. She wore a black dress a black cloak, and a hat of the same somber hue-such clothes being the mourning she had worn, and was wearing, for Jacob. Averse as she was to using Goliath's money, she thought he would hardly grudge her these garments of woe for his father. Besides, as manageress of the shop, she deserved moor. Within the quadrangle there | the figures together they stand as were fruit trees-cherry, apple, plum and pear; also a large fig tree in the center of the unshaven lawn facing the house. All was desolate and neglected; the fruit trees were unpruned, the grass was growing in the paths, and the flowers were straggling here and there, rich masses of ragged color. Desolate certainly, this deserted hermitage, but not lonely, for as Hagar and her companion turned in at the little gate a figure rose from a stooping position under an apple tree. It was that of a man with a spade in his hand, who had been digging for some time, as was testified by the heap of freshly turned earth at his feet.

"Mr. Treadle!" cried Lorn, indignantly. "What are you doing here?" "Lookin' fur the old un's cash!" retorted Mr. Treadle with a scowl directed equally at the young man and Hagar. "An' if I gets it I keeps it. ord! to think as 'ow I pampered that old sinner with figs and such like-to say nothing of French brandy, which he drank by the quart!"

"You have no business here!" "No more 'ave you!" snapped the frate grocer. "If I ain't, you ain't, fur till the 'ouse is let it's public property. s'pose you've come 'ere with that thoughtfully. "'Ifico.' No." "Shows what eddication 'e's got!" growled Mr. Treadle, who was leaning Eustace raised her eyes to dart a withering glance at the grocer, and in doing so his vision passed on to the tree looming up behind the man. At once the meaning of the word flashed on his brain. "'Il fico!'" he cried, rising. "Two words instead of one! You have found it, Hagar! It means the fig treethe one yonder. I believe the money is buried under it."

Before he could advance a step Treadle had leaped forward and was slashing away at the tangled grass round the fig tree like a madman. "If 'tis there 'tis mine!" he shouted. Don't you come nigh me, young Lorn, or I'll brain you with my spade! I fed up that old uncle of yours like a fighting cock, and now I'm going to have his cash to pay me!"

Eustace leaped forward in the like manner as Treadle had done, and would have wrenched the spade out of his grip but that Hagar laid a detaining hand on his arm. "Let him dig," she said coolly. "The money is yours; I can prove it. He'll have the work and you the fertune."

with the edge of the spade, all the time laughing and crying like one demented. Lorn and Hagar drew near, in the expectation of seeing a shower of gold pieces rain on the ground when the lid was opened. As Treadle gave a final wrench it flew wide, and they saw-an empty box.

"Why-what," stammered Treadle, thunderstruck-"what does it mean?" Eustace, equally taken aback, bent down and looked in. There was absolutely nothing in the box but a pieec of folded paper. Unable to make a remark, he held it out to the amazed Hagar. "What the d-I does it mean?" said

Treadle again. "This explains," said Hagar, running her eye over the writing. "It seems that this wealthy Uncle Ben was a "A pauper!" cried Eustace and Tradle together. "Listen!" said Hagar, and read out from the page: "When I returned to England I was thought wealthy, so that all my friends and relations fawned on me for the crumbs which fell from the rich man's table. But I had just enough money to rent the cottage for a term of years and to purchase an annuity barely sufficient for the necess I s of life. But, owing to the report of my wealth, the luxuries have been supplied by those who hoped for legacies. This is my legacy to one and all-these golden words, which I have proved true: 'It is better to be thought rich than to be rich." The paper fell from the hand of Eustace and Treadle, with a howl of rage, threw himself on the grass, loading the memory of the deceased with opprobrious names. Soing that all was over, that the expected fortune had vanished into thin air, Hagar left the disappointed grocer weeping with rage over the deceptive tin box, and led Eustace away. He followed her as in a dream, and all the time during their sad journey back to town he spoke hardly a word. What they did sayhow Eustace bewailed his fate and Hagar comforted him-is not to the point. But on arriving at the door of the pawnshop Hagar gave the copy of Dante to the young man. "I give this back to you," she said, pressing his hand. "Sell it, and with the proceeds build up your fortune."

"But shall I not see you again?" he asked, piteously, "Yes, Mr. Lorn, you shall see me when you bring back Goliath." Then she entered the pawnshop and shut the door. Left alone in the deserted crescent, Eustace sighed and walked slowly away. Hugging to his breast the Florentine Dante, he went away to make his fortune, to find Goliath, and-although he did not know it at the time-to marry Hagar.

ADA COUNTY JAIL, WHERE MOYER, HAYWOOD AND PETTIBONE

The arrest of Moyer, Haywood and Pettibone was based almost entirely on the confession of Orchard, who told the authorities that they hired him to murder ex-Governor Steunenberg. Adams' confession relates to other deeds of violence, which he alleges that these officials of the miners' federa-absolute guilt of the prisoners. The charge of an "inner circle" in the miners' federation to give the members graft and great power and by terrorism to swell the influence of the organization has been published everywhere. The killings that have marked the warfare between the miners and mine owners during more than a dozen years are charged against this secret "inner circle," and the prisoners with the "Molly Maguires," who were destroyed largely through the work of the Pinkerton detective who has a leading part in securing the evidence in the present case. The statement Former Member Executive Board of lost to impress on the public mind, in is made and emphasized that evidence advance of trial, a conviction of the held in reserve by the state will not only convict the prisoners, but will cause a profound shock throughout the country.

So there's a trial by public sentiment while the plans for the other trial are going forward. There is a colony of private detectives quartered in this city. They make frequent trips to the mines in this state, Utah and Colorado, on trips that promise to produce evidence. Attorneys for the defense have been shadowed day and night on their trips through these states. It is ba possible, too, that they are keeping tab on their opponents. The sleu are in many guises. The trial of Moyer, Haywood and Pettibone will begin at Caldwell, unless there should be a change venue, about June 1. It may be few days before or a few days after that date. They are held in the co jail in this city. Orchard and Ad fessions and will be used as witness by the state, are at the state pen tiary, which is also in this city.

Place a pennyworth of salts of lemon in a quart of boiling water and soak the sponge in it. After an hour rinse thoroughly in warm water, or drop the sponge into water in which a large lump of soda has been dissolved, afterwards boiling slowly. Rinse in cold water, then give a sun bath until entirely dry. You should always rinse all soapy water from your sponge, then throw it into your basket, which should be hung just outside the bathroom

To Make Sausages

Take three pounds of pork, fat and lean, cut into small pieces, season with three dessert spoonfuls of powdered sage, half on ounce of salt, half an ounce of pepper. Mix all well together, and then press it through well cleaned skins with a sausage machine, and twist into lengths required.

Home Pastry

Lady's Fingers-Five eggs, four ounces of flour, four ounces of powdered sugar. Beat the yolks of the eggs and the sugar together, then gradually add the flour, and last of all the stiffly beaten whites of the eggs. Put through a pastry bag on a brown paper and baking sheet and bake in moderate oven.

Braised Beef

Take about three pounds of fillet of on the top; tie it into a neat shape with string. Melt two ounces of butter in a stewpan, put in the meat, and brown it nicely on both sides, then two carrots, one turnip, and two onions. Cut them all into large dice, put them into a pan with a bunch of parsley and herbs, one teaspoonful of salt, six water, and a dozen button mushrooms. Lay the beef on the vegetables, cover it with a piece of greased paper. Put the lid on the pan, and let the contents simmer gently for about one and a half hours, or till it feels tender when pierced with a skewer. Arrange it on a hot dish. Strain the stock into another pan, skim it well, and let it boil quickly with the lid off till a little more than half is left. Pour it round the meat. Garnish it prettily with little heaps of vegetables; round each fuls of sugar, and the grated rind of heap, pipe a neat border of mashed

Seems more modern to us, but as a fact the use of cheese for "savour" is old. Take a largish veal cutlet, lay a cabbage leaf upon it, on this put a tablespoon of Swiss cheese (or Parmesan), on this lay a layer of sliced onion, another cabbage leaf, young of course, a tablespoon of tomatoes, and a bay leaf. On this lay a small cutlet, trimmed and seasoned. Repeat the process and pin over the large cutlet for a casing above, skewer on some strips of bacon to mask the top. Fry the under side of this sack to sear, then put it in a pan with one-quarter of an inch of hot water and let it simmer, covered tight, one hour and a half. Have ready a cup of green peas, cooked without any addition but a little-salt. Do not add cream or cream sauce. Lift the cutlet sack out Fricasse of Macaroni Cook sufficient macaroni in boiling salted water in one saucepan and make a cooking water in another. For this take a large cup of cold water, three small onions, one bay leaf, half a lump of sugar, half a fresh lemon rind not cut or grated, and let them stew till the macaroni is done. Then lift out the lemon rind and bay leaf and put the macaroni, drained, cut in small and larger pieces, into the cooking water, to which has been first added two ounces of Swiss cheese. Add seasoning if required and a scant cup of rich milk. Simmer half an hour, or until a creamy mass. To be eaten with a fork and dessert spoon.

Eat Currants Only a few years ago nobody knew that there was any food value to the little dried Po-called Greek currant. Since then food chemists have demonstrated that there is far more nutrition in them than in lean beef. REAL ESTATE BARGAINS

LAND OF OPPORTUNITIES Openinf of Westbrook, Texas, on Great Texas and Pacific railroad. First-The Texas and Pacific Townsite Company of Colorado, Texas, is offering in this sale 600 lots in the new town of Westbrook, Texas, at the uniform price of $40 each, in four pay-worth from $100 to $1,000. Second-Our Guarantee and Proposition: Any person who purchases a lot or lots in this sale, and who, on the day of opening, can show that this company has, in any way, shape, form or manner, in its printed literature or correspondence, misrepresented this proposition, we hereby absolutely guarantee to refund to such person the price received by this company for all lot or lots purchased by him or her in this sale.

ments, 200 business lots each are

This sale is to cause immigration, which will be money for the railroad for years to come. We positively make the assertion that there is not a lot in this town worth less than $100 today. This town will be opened on the similar plan as Enid and Ponca City, Oklahoma, and Quanah, Texas. Lots that sold in these towns three years ago from $30 to $40 are worth today from $500 to $10,000.

Westbrook is located in the central portion of Mitchell county. Texas, on the main line of the Texas and Pacific railroad, ten miles west of Colorado, Texas, on the low laying uplands about two miles east of Morgan Creek. The surface of the townsite is almost level and there is not a waste piece of land or a poor lot in the town. Westbrook is about six months old and has a population of about 200 wide-DOCTORS wanted; two first-class awake, thriving, law-abiding people. It has about eight business houses, one cotton gin, one good lumber yard, one school house, one hotel and good church organizations.

Westbrook is sustained by as good a diversified agricultural country as can be found on the globe, and we venture the assertion, without fear of successful contradition, that no town west of the Mississippi has a greater portion of tillable land surrounding it that will raise all the crops (i, e.) corn, cotton, mile-maize, kaffir corn, potatoes, water melons and fruits of all kinds. This is the home of the elberta peach and the big red apple.

This is a good proposition and a safe investment. See our pamphlet. Investigate us. We pay telegrams both Remember—In this sale we have two four-room cottages situated upon two lots, which will be given away in the drawing to the lucky purchasers for $40, worth $800 each. With this proposition you buy this property at first sale and have the opportunity to make every dollar of profit there is in the investment. Don't neglect the best proposition that has ever been offered in Texas. Buy before it is too late, or you will regret it. You take no chance in this sale. It is all to gain and nothing to lose. Read carefully the terature on the town and country. For further information see our salesman at office at 208 West Tenth street, Fort Worth, Texas, or address Texas and Pacific Townsite Co., Colorado, Texas. New phone 588, old 4079.

BOGUS COWBOY TRICKS COWAN

Special to The Telegram. CASPER, Wyo., May 19 .- A marriage just celebrated out here in the "cattle country" was the culmination of an uncommonly interesting romance of the plains.

The heroine of the romance was a pretty, warm-hearted young western girl, a graduate of a fashionable boarding school and the only daughter of a gruff old cattleman, and the hero was a handsome, impulsive young college bred man from the east; and the romance itself was the story of how she inspired him to come out west, turn cowboy and win the championship of a range as a conquerer of outlaws and a roper of steers in order to carry out plans conceived by her to win her father's consent to their marriage.

Miss Maud Crissman and Robert Fielding first met at the home of a friend in New Orleans, whither they had gone to enjoy the Mardi Gras. Her beauty, wit and vivacity appealed to his fancy and touched his heart, while his handsome face, fine figure, easy bearing and well-bred manner won her admiration. They were much together during the great southern festival.

Fielding Proposes Marriage They were excellent friends when they parted at New Orleans and the friendship formed there had ripened into love and ensued in an engagement within a week after they met later in Washington. Fielding insisted that Miss Crissman marry him at once, but his proposal met with a flat ent to our marriage, else it cannot ake place," she said. "Oh, very well," said Fielding, making a lame attempt to disguise his disappointment. "I'll write and ask his consent at once."

"No; you must ask my father's con-

Fielding wrote the cattleman a frank letter asking his consent to their early marriage. But Mr. Crissman flew into a towering rage at what he conceived to be the young man's impertinence and presumption and his answer to Fielding's letter was scorehing with indignation and

The lover and his sweetheart were much depressed, but when they parted they renewed their pledge to be constant to each other and work for a happy issue out of their difficulties. Summons Lover to Task

A few weeks after Miss Crissman's return to her western home her lover received a letter from her saying: "If you still love and wish to take me to your own, come out west and turn cowboy. And you must be a good one; the best in this whole cattle country. I know you are big and strong and I remember what you told me about how splendid you were in athletics at college, and I am just as sure as I can be that you can become the best cowboy on the range if you just set your heart on it. Edward Barton, whose ranch adjoins ours, will give you a place. Go there, keep your identity a secret and let me know by note when you come. Then I'll see you right away and explain Fielding met Miss Crissman by apntment a few days after he alight. ed from the stage at the Barton ranch. He had assumed the name of Robert "When I came home my father talked with me about what he called my foolish little love affair," she said. "I told him it was not foolish; that you loved me and were every way worthy of me and that I loved you. At that he grew very angry and told me that he would never consent to my marriage to 'a young college

"Then I said: 'Father, Mr. Fielding is a college man, but he is not a dude Whom do you wish me to marry? Do you wish me to marry a cowboy? 'That would depend upon the cowboy,' he answered. 'I suppose one who could beat Bob Taylor at busting bronchoes and roping and hog-tying and cutting out steers would be acceptable to you, would he not?" asked. 'Yes; I guess one who could do that would do,' he replied.

"Before I was done an idea popped into my head. When my father said he would not object to my marrying a cowboy who could beat Bob Taylor I asked myself: 'Why shouldn't Robert Fielding come out here and be the cowboy to do that?' Then I began to ask my questions and to exact my pledges with a purpose in view. Our only hope lies in our carrying out these plans of mine. My father will never consent to our marriage unless we win his consent in this way.'

Agrees to Her Proposition "All right, sweetheart, we'll win I in that way," said Fielding, At college Fielding had been prominent in all athletic sports and he set imself to his new task with surpris-

During the time Fielding was on the oundup he contrived to meet Miss Crissman frequently. And he also made shift to become acquainted with her father. Mr. Crissman did not suspect that the young cowboy was his daughter's lover, nor did anybody else. Mr. Crissman soon came to regard him as an uncommonly fine young fellow and made no secret of his liking and admiration for him. "Father, you are always singing the praises of that young cowboy, Canfield." said Miss Crissman. "Is he really such a superior young man? Would you consent to my marrying him if he should turn out to be the champion buster of bronchos and roper of steers we talked of not long

"It's my epinion you might do much worse," answered her father. "At all events I think he would be preferable to that young college upstart who asked me so unceremoniously for your hand. Canfield is educated, but ne's not an educated ass." Miss Crissman's face dimpled and a roguish look crept into her eyes as she replied: "That young man wasn't half so ridiculous as you think he was, but of course he wasn't a cowpuncher!" she added.

Contest With Taylor Arranged Fielding's skill in conquering outlaws, roping, hog-tying and cutting out steers and rounding up the herd soon became a subject of gossip on the range. The growing fame of Fielding had made Bob Taylor envious, and so when a proposal was made to him that he challenge Fielding to a contest of skill he fell in with it without a moment's hesitation. A number of ranchmen and their families and a larger number of cowboys were invited to witness the contest between Taylor and "Canfield."

The contest took place on the Crissman ranch. The most vicious and ungovernable outlaw in the region was first brought out. It took some time to get a saddle on him. When that was done a rope was passed through his mouth and made fast by a slipnoose. Taylor sprang into the saddle just as the outlaw sprang into the air. The contest between the man and the beast was short. Nobody had ever before succeeded in staying long on the back of the vicious little steed, and Taylor was soon unseated. Conquers Broncho to Win Wife

The outlaw was given a rest and then Fielding vaulted into the saddle. The winning of a wife depended, as he believed, upon the issue.

The contest went forward in a cloud of dust and amid breathless excitement. Miss Crissman watched it with flushed cheek and glowing eyes, never doubting the outcome. Forward plunged the outlaw, then sideways, then backward, then up in the air and down with his four legs as stiff as pokers, plunging, rearing, jumping, kicking, bucking, but his rider remained in the saddle through it all. When Fielding dismounted a shout went up from the spectators.

Then came the roping and hog-tying steers. In these feats of skill Fielding won as easily and surely as he had won in the outlaw-conquering contest.

Two weeks later Mr. and Mrs. Crissman issued invitations to the marriage of their daughter Maud to Robert Fielding. The wedding was a quiet but a very delightful one. The father of the bride gave her away with a proud, happy smile upon his bronzed face.

Wind Causes Postponing of Exhibition in New York Special to The Telegram.

NEW YORK, May 19.-The balloon ascension planned for today by Dr. J. P. Thomas, who was to have gone up n his new French balloon of 8,000 cubic feet capacity, was abandoned because of the direction of the wind. Dr. Thomas and Charles Levee, who was to pilot the aerial ship, wished to sail north and as the wind would have carried them in the direction of Long Island along the line of Paul Nocquet's flight, it was decided to give up the trip. Dr. Thomas was onsiderably disappointed because he could not make a flight today, as h was anxious to test his new balloon, which is about the biggest thing of its kind in this country.

The balloon had been taken to the gas works to be inflated but was not even unpacked when it was found that the wind conditions were unfa-duty?" I asked the old engineer. He looked at me quizzically. "That's sort of leading question; I did once," he replied, "and so did my fireman. They'd kept us on duty nearly fortyeight hours, and we were running right through the depot, when Jim Stevens, another engineer, who was there waiting for his train, noticed something was wrong. Jim, he don't say nothin' but jumped right into the cab and stopped things. Then he backed us up, and poked us other two out from our peaceful slumbers. It was a pretty good thing he dld or we would have had a beautiful collision down the line.

The balloon will be shipped tonight to Philadelphia from where Dr. Thomas will make an ascension on Monday.

"But, talking about going to sleep. remember two most peculiar affairs. An old friend of mine, Engineer W. W. Herr, of the Louisville and Nashville, believes to this day that a dream saved his life. Herr in his sleep saw two trains dash together. The scene shifted to a cemetery in which was a long row of tombstones, each bearing the name 'W. W. Herr.' He was badly shaken by the dream and got a leave of absence. Pete Murphy, who was given Herr's run, was killed in the head-on collision near the Latonia race track, two days later. "I remember, too, of a "sleep" story where a man ran a race with a Santa Fe engine and won, by a margin so narrow that his life almost paid the Special to The Telegram. penalty for his bravery. This man was a policeman of Los Angeles. "I was driving the big locomotive when I saw ahead a man lying right across the tracks. There was no way for me to stop. Some feet away was policeman. He also caught sight of the man, and without stopping to think of danger he ran toward the man on the track, stooped while the breath of the engine fanned him and dragged the sleeper-for that's what the individual was-from the rails. It was herole work. In the fraction of a second more both men would have been ground under the wheels. Their escape was so close that the wind made by the speeding engine knocked them down. The worst part of the story is that the policeman didn't get any thanks

"The gent who had been slumbering in the path of death rubbed his "'What did you bother me for?" he asked. 'I'd been awake in a little while.' But, then, that's the best one gets at times for doing things"

lative Dealings Small-Inertia Liverpool Responsible For Another Downward Movement-Price Slump racterizes Week-End Session. Price Changes Unimportant on That Side Reflected Here Special to The Telegram. YORK, May 19.-The stock

NEW YORK, May 19.-Cotton Exchange transactions resulted in further profits for the short side of the account ,although the bulls held their own in a masterly manner and succeeded in confining the loss to small proportions, holding the market steady at all times and engineering a rally iff the new crop months, which resulted in those options closing above the initial prices. Liverpool was almost entirely responsible for the advance movement, inasmuch as the decline started on that side and cable advices were unfavorable regarding both contracts and spots. Weather conditions were also a bearish factor and with the week-end, evening up transactions to contend with, the slump is easily explained and, in fact, it was generally conceded that the market behave rather well under the circumstances.

In response to the foreign slump the opening was easy, prices being 6 to 10 points lower on the first call, with the July option relatively the strongest. Scattered liquidation in this option, however, soon increased the loss to about the same proportions as that of the new crop months. Offerings were well absorbed and after the first hour a gradual recovery was effected, prices on the upward movement touching a level 4 to 5 points from the lowest.

The market closed quiet and steady with prices at a net loss of 5 to 7 points. Spot cotton prices were lowered 5 points, middling being quoted at The market was quiet. Sales, contract prices there being some 2 to 6 points lower instead of 1 to 2 down, as expected, while the spot situation showed relative weakness. Bearish statistics and week-end realizing were the reasons ascribed for the decline. ted banks of New York City issued As a matter of course this market opened weak, prices being 7 to 8 points lower, but considering surrounding conditions such as favorable weather for the new crop and bearish statistics, prices held up well during the sesion.

After a further decline of 1 to 3 points local shorts appeared as buyers and a partial recovery was effected. The market was dull and traders seemed tired throughout the session. The close was steady with prices 7 points off for July and 3 points net lower for fall months.

Wheat Prices Gain 1/20-Corn and Oats Rule Steady-Provisions Trifle Cheaper

The state of the s

Special to The Telegram-CHICAGO, May 19.-Wheat finished about half a cent stronger after a session of light trade, with frequent fluctuations of %c to %c. The crop news, on the whole, is rather bullish with a great many points claiming more copious rains are necessary. The Kansas City Star, in reviewing a large area, makes the same assertion, and it seems probable, in view of the deficiency of moisture under normal so far this month that geenrous precipitation is getting to be a necessity in a good many sections. Aside from crop news there was little to influence the market. Minneapolis stocks decreased 225,000 bushels for one day. Liverpool was ¼d lower. Total primary movement amounted to 283,000 bushels, Clearances were 196,000 bushels. World's shipments estimated at 11,-Weather conditions will be 200,000 factor in making prices next week.

Corn . Corn held quite steady within a narrow range, for the distant months. The influences were largely bearish, but were contested by local operators. Receipts today were 259 cars, which overran the estimate considerably and of this quantity 161 cars were contract grade. Estimated for Monday larger, at 330 cars. Cash market was half cent lower and offerings to arrive are increasing daily. Country houses were the best pit sellers. Reports from the Illinois railroad shows loaded 150 cars on the 6th; number has increased to 500 cars today. This should give some indication of what may be expected in receipts next week. Liverpool closed from unchanged to 4d lower. Total primary movement, 433,000 bushels, or 240,000 bushels over last year.

Oats The far months in oats proved steady. Advices over night showed that showers were quite general throughout the dry sections, but no rain is shown on the morning's map. Indications are for clear and cool weather. The cash market was from %c to 1/2c lower. Local receipts were 146 cars, with 138 expected Monday. Clearances 51,000 bushels.

Provisions The prospects of an increase movement of hogs in the near future dominated the provisions market and influenced considerable miscellaneous selling. One of the largest packers sold July ribs on a liberal scale. Aside from this the demand was light and mostly to cover short sales. 39,000 hogs are estimated for Monday, and 145,000 all next week.

CHICAGO GRAIN CATTLE AND HOGS

Usual Saturday Slim Receipts on All Stock-Everything Sells

Steady Last week's run of cattle and calves have been improved upon during the current week, hogs show a decrease and the same is true of sheep and equine stock. For the week the totals are: Cattle, 12,620; calves, 2,150; hogs, 11,100; sheep, 775; horses and Trade conditions for the week have een most unsatisfactory to the selling Monday started the decline with a loss of around 15c on the second largest day's run of the year. All northern markets had plenty of cattle and as a matter of course lower prices. The initial loss of the week came mostly on medium and lower classes of steers, good to choice steers selling steady for the most part. Trading was very uneven, and low and high spots were in strong contrast. The same spotted condition prevailed on Tuesday to a very light supply of cattle. The following day receipts improved in volume and so did the trade, or at least that part of it on good to choice steers, for these had a better tone. Others made no better showing. Packers bought liberally on Monday's decline and again on Wednesday when the price got right, and kept out of the market for the rest of the week, only taking a few of the better class of steers. Thursday and Friday outside packers took offerings rather liberally and speculators made some purchases. The week's end finds the market still uneven, steady in some places and a dime worse in others. The erratic course of the market sent a good many steers north, and commission men report that such shipments made money. Prices have run about as follows: Corn fed choice beeves, $5@ 5.35; cake and grass steers, 1,100 to 1,-200 pounds, $4@4.25; fat, 1,050 to 1,150 pound steers, $3.85@4.20; 850 to 1,000pound grassers, plain to good, $3.40@ 3.70; common to plain light and half fat steers, $3.25@3.45; inferior steers,

$2.75@3.10. Butcher cow values have taken a tumble from the crazy high plane they occupied last week. The market weakened 10c to 20c on Monday, and no betterment has since been shown. Extra fat cows have shown less decline than common and medium grades, the latter now being 20c to 25c lower than a week ago. Good butcher cows. $2.75@ ; medium, $2.40@2.65; choice fed and fat grass cows, $3.25@ 50.

The demand for bulls has slackened, and trade is very quiet for all grades, with more weakness in sight. The extreme range in bull prices is $2.25 Calves have had a good run for the week, and prices have remained firm for the week. New Orleans stuff, however, met with a sharp decline at the close of the week

Hogs Very satisfactory conditions have prevailed in the swine market the past week. The supply has not been excessive and the market has steadily improved, closing the week with a 10c advance. Choice Oklahomas made the top for the week of $6.45, and best Texas hogs sold up to $6.371/2. Pigs have remained steady, selling from $4.65 to $5.05.

Sheep Sheep receipts are light and prices have advanced a quarter. The suply at present is mostly in dribbling lots of heavy wethers and lambs. Prices are quoted: Heavy wethers, $5 @5.10; choice ewes, $5; lambs, $5.50@ 6.00.

NORTH FORT WORTH, May 19 .-One could hardly write a story of a market that had only 160 cattle, 111 calves, 600 hogs and 27 sheep. Cattle receipts consisted of two loads of light steers, one load of cows, two loads of calves and one load of mixed.

Everything sold steady, and on a quick market. Steers sold at $3.35 to $3.40, cows from $2.50 to $2.75, with one top cow of $3.15. The calves had a toppy end at $450, with the bulk selling from $2.50 to $4.00.

Vivion Commission Company FORT WORTH, Texas, May 19 .-The cotton market sagged because of weak cables, good weather conditions, lack of fresh bull support and disappointing week-end figures. Opening prices, however, were the lowest and some buying came in at the lower level, but the improvement was not of much consequence. Trading was professional and there was some selling of July and buying of fall months. The May deal is still hanging fire and it remains for the future to tell the outcome, though it looks as if the shorts must pay a severe penalty.

Cables showed sales of only 7,000 bales of spots, but futures were off more than due, said to have been due to Alexandria taking profits. In this market opening levels were 6 to 9 points to the bad and a few points were taken off before the buying turned the tide upward. July touched 11.14c, but sooned worked to 11.19c, closing at 11.17c, a net loss of 6 points. The list was quiet and steady at the finish and to 7 points off. Spots lost 5 points, middling at 11.95c, but 900 bales were sold to spinners. The New Orleans market showed moderate activity, but no features different from New York. Spot business was quiet. The visible lost 109,000 bales for the week compared to a loss of 68,000 bales same week last year, making the relative loss 41,000 bales and putting the visible of all kinds 8,000 bales under the amount at this time last year. It was in spinners' takings that the disappointment was greatest, they taking but 214,000 bales, compared to 273,000 last year. The movement into sight was some larger than expected, but estimates for Monday look as if it is not going to keep up. The weather map was clear and warm and conditions as a whole were good, but the weekly summary of the financial chronicle said some sections claimed to need rain. Rain would do no harm, as it is not likely that they are suffering much, yet, unless it is to bring up the replanted cotton. The market looks as if it will continue the dull affair it has been for weeks, with the bulls still dominant and a serious decline not likely. C. T. VIVION.

Ware & Leland FORT WORTH, Texas, May 19.-The

week in the New Orleans cotton market ended with prices weak on unfavorable advices from Liverpool, which totally destroyed that confidence in the market aroused in some operators by the heavy trading in the actual cotton. The chief substantial feature of the week was the sales, which were put at 71,000 bales in Liverpool. The official daily returns added up made the total 81,000 bales, therefore, unless some blunder has been made in cabling the figures the sales during the week have been over-estimated 10,000 bales and daily sales were much nearer 12,000 than 15,000 bales. In view of this it would appear that a great deal of talk by the bulls about the enormous buying in Liverpool has been the hottest kind of air. One private cable said that the market closed heavy with operators showing a disposition to sell, and that spinners hold large stock of cotton. We have contended for several days that spinners who were buying in Liverpool were stocking up and were not supplying pressing needs. The buying was undoubtedly induced by the sensational reports of crop damage sent over by American bulls. One of the features of the session was the strength shown by the October position. When the evidence is all in there will be no doubt that a rather unwieldly short interest exists in October and December. Any good crop scare is liable to put the late positions up strongly, and they do not look at all attractive as sales right now. Much liquidation by longs in July will probably be done before the June bureau reports, and therefore July appears to be a good sale on all bulges. Grain

THE MARATHON MYSTERY

BY BURTON E. STEVENSON

Marathon, an apartment house, Godfrey, a reporter, and Simmons, his. detective friend, finding Grace Croydon, an acquaintance of the newspaper man, standing in the room with a smoking pistol in her hand. She proves her innocence of direct connection with the crime and is freed from suspicion.

Lester an attorney who knows Godfrey, takes apartments at the Marathon, the two thinking that Tremaine, who lives there and who becomes acquainted with Lester, has some connection with the murder. Cecily, the woman companion to Tremaine, so Lester learns in the course of their acquaintance, keeps a small pet snake, called Fefe, whose species is such that a bite kills the person bitten in a very short time.

Part III Tremaine visits the Delroys, Grace Croydon is there. Tremaine makes love to her and Drysdale, also one of the house party, becomes enraged as he is engaged to Grace. It is proposed to immerse a pearl necklace belonging to | son. Mrs. Delroy in sea water, to restore its lost brilliancy, two men being en-gaged to guard it. The elder man thus engaged is killed and investigation shows that Drysdale was the only person supposed to be out of the house during the time just preceding the finding of the dead man. He is arrested, charged with murder and taken to jail in New York city. Lester finds some clippings under a carpet in his room at the Marathon, the same room in which the first murder was committed. He thinks they have some connection with the first murder. He shows them to the newspaper reporter.

Then I glanced at Godfrey. His cheeks were flushed, his eyes were beaming with triumph. "Yes," he said; "they tell us the whole story, Lester."

A Study in Probabilities.

He got up from the desk and sat own in the chair facing mine. "We'll have to start with a few general observations," he said. "What light is it possible for these clippings to shed on the murder of Thompson? Obviously, it must be only by explaining motives. The majority of them seem to be concerned with the adventures of a Frenchman, who goes under various names, but who, I am sure, is one and the same person. He must, then, he either Tremaine or Thompson. But Thompson was evidently not a Frenchman, and Tremaine pretty evidently is, though his contact with the world has served to rub away a good many of the marks. I think we're pretty safe therefore in assuming that the Frenchman of these clippings is Tremaine. You agree with me thus far?"

"Perfectly," I said, "admitting that these clippings are really concerned with the case. "That, too, I believe, we'll soon be able to prove. We mustn't expect a story complete in all its parts-it's bound to be fragmentary. The wonder is that Thompson succeeded in keeping this many links in the chain. We'll begin with the clippings, substituting Tremaine's name for the one used. The first is merely a marriage notice, announcing that on the 23d of August, 1883, Tremaine married one Therese Bertigny, at Dieppe. Tremaine was then probably about 20 years of age. No doubt he was born in Dieppe, so that the name given here, Victor Charente, is his real one. You'll notice which is a bit of corroborative evidence." "Or a mere coincidence," I supple-"I'll wire our correspondent at Dieppe that he's retained his first name-to look up this Charente-perhaps he can get a photograph. That would set-

I nodded. "The second clipping," proceeded Godfrey, "shows us that our hero soon

FIVANITE

For Preserving, Purifying and Beautifying the Skin, Scalp, Hair, and Hands.

An unknown man is killed at the | row path. In the spring following his marriage-April 16, 1884, to be exactwhile assistant manager of the ship supplies house of Briquet, Freres, he abscends with 60,000 francs. It is discovered that he kept a mistress at Rouen. He is believed to have gone to America-to have been smuggled out of the harbor by a friendly American captain. Surely, it is not impossible,' he added, "that this friendly American captain was Thompson. "We'll keep that for a hypothesis, anyhow," he said, as he turned to the third clipping. "This shows us that he indeed came to America. It is dated July 23, 1885, and states that a young Frenchman and a tramp skipper named Johnson-ah, you see?" I did, indeed, see-here was the first appearance of Tremaine's "evil spirit" -of his familiar devil. I looked at Godfrey with the liveliest admiration.

"So that J on Thompson's arm was the initial of his real name," observed Godfrey, "I thought it was-it had been there a long time, and an effort had been made to erase it. For Johnson, then, we'll hereafter read Thomp-

"Well," continued Godfrey, "Tremaine and Thompson, then, were arrested in New York, July 23, 1885, at a low resort where they were having a carouse. They had beaten and robbed another sailor. It seems that nothing was left of the 60,000 francs and naturally Tremaine found it difficult to go honestly to work again. The fourth clipping shows that Tremaine and Thompson were sentenced to three years each in Sing Sing. But they didn't stay there so long," he added, turning to the next clipping, "at least Tremaine didn't. On the night of Jan. 2, 1886, in the midst of a tremendous snowstorm, they managed to hide themselves in one of the work shops, and afterward to scale the outer wall. In the morning Thompson was found at the foot of the wall with his head cut open and nearly frozen. Tremaine got clear away. Thompson was brought around with the greatest difficulty, and would say nothing except to indulge in terrible imprecations against his companion. You see," concluded Godfrey, looking up, "we begin to get at the motive." "Yes," I agreed, "it's very plain now you've started on the right track." Godfrey smiled and turned to the sixth clipping, the longest of them all. "It's that way with most mysteries," he said, "and here's the internal evidence that all this theorizing is pretty straight. It's the clew, too, which we've been seeking so long."

"It explains Miss Croydon's presence here?' asked, intensely interested and

"Just that!" he said. "Let us see if you can catch it. The clipping is in French. It is dated Suresnes, and is evidently a letter from a provincial correspondent to a Paris newspaper, who, like most provincial correspondents, is delightfully vague. However, I gather from it that on the night of Sept. 16, 1891, a beautiful young English girl-name not given-ran away from a convent school at Suresnes and that the next morning she was safely married to a 'gallant Frenchman'-Tremaine, of course-by the cure of the little village of Petits Colombes. The marriage was quite regular, for the banns had been published as required. "But still," I objected, "I don't see that that explains anything." "Let me help you. It was this clipping I happened to look at the night we found the body. I read two or three ines aloud, then Simmonds put it back in the pocket. It must have been those few lines which told Miss Croydon the nature of the clippings and their importance to her. The date line would have been enough to do that." "You mean Miss Croydon is the girl who ran away with Tremaine? But she couldn't have been more than 10 or 2 years old in 1891. "Eleven," corrected Godfrey as he ook a yellow paper from his pocket. "Let me read you two sentences from this old report concerning the Croydon family-you ought to have recalled them; my dear Lester." "Go ahead," I said helplessly.

'Eldest daughter, Edith, born in France, Aug. 26, 1874. Educated at school there, but broke down from overstudy and returned to Beckenham. Religion, Catholic.' Now." he demanded, "do you understand who it was married Tremaine at Petits Coombes in 1891?"

At last I saw it. This was the key the whole enigma. Miss Croydon had taken her sister's place, had tried to buy him off. It was Tremaine who had opened the door-it was Tremaine whom she had come to Marathon to meet. But-and I started upright in an instant the whole terrible position of the elder woman burst upon me. She was not Delroy's wife, she was-"So," I said hoarsely, "Tremaine is then the true husband of Mrs. Del-

"Let us finish the story of the clippings before going into that," suggested Godfrey. "I confess, I don't quite see the bearing of this next one. It's a New York dispatch, perhaps to a London paper, under date of Feb. 18, 1892, and chronicles the loss of the bark Centaur, with all on board, off the coast of Martinique. The Centaur was bound from Marseilles to Fort-de-France with a cargo of wines and muslins. Let us leave it for a moment and pass on to the next one, which is the

"This is dated Sydney, Australia, Oct. 23, 1896, and relates how a daring scheme to rob the Bank of New South Wales was frustrated by a sailor who had been a member of the gang. but who got frightened and informed the police. The ringleader, a Frenchman, was captured and would receive a term of years in prison. There are four copies of this clipping, which no doubt means that it is the one which Thompson was sometimes in the habit of sending to Tremaine, to remind him of that Australian experience.

CROPS ARE FINE

Wheat and Oats in Perfect Condition in Panhandle Special to The Telegram.

VERNON, Texas, May 19.-The wheat and oat crops of Wilbarger county and surrounding country were never finer at this time of year, and the prospects are very good for not less than an average yield of twenty bushels of wheat per acre, and stxty bushels of oats. No rust or insects are giving any trouble. The acreage is large.

Vernon already has two elevators, including a mill, and will have three new elevators, as quick as they can be erected, to handle this year's crop. All spring crops are in fine condition.

A conservative estimate of the Mohammedan population of the world was given as 200,000,000 by Dr. Zwemer, of Arabia. The Koran can be read by one-fourth of that number, while the Bible has been translated into every language spoken by the followers of the false prophet.
