TEN STATES OUT
Many Have Declined to Attend on Account of the Expense Involved

Special to The Telegram.
WASHINGTON, D. C., May 25.—So far ten states have declined the invitation sent out by Assistant Secretary of War Oliver to send some of their National Guard organizations into camp with regular troops this summer. Colorado declined because the guard was too much scattered about the state to admit of easy concentration. The approaching trials for the murder of leaders in Idaho made it prudent for the authorities to retain the entire force of militia within the limits of the state, ready for any uprising against the legal authorities.

The territory press has used it ever since for a filler, always keeping in mind the fact that when editorial "dope" run low they could always take a shot at the Muskogee river navigation. But since the boats have been put into commission and making regular trips, there is nothing said.

LACK OF COW HAIR IS 'FRISCO'S WEAKNESS

Special to The Telegram.
SAN FRANCISCO, May 25.—Some say that the Lord had it in for "Frisco. Others, seeing no discrimination between churches and saloons in the general crumbling, say that it was a mere impersonal spirit of nature. Almost any stone mason would say that the mortar was the cause of it. Of course, the earth gave a great shake, and there have been over fifty little shakes since April 18, but practical mechanics maintain that much of the crumbling was due to outrageously poor construction, especially of brick edifices. The mortar, even in buildings now going up, seems to be of dirt, with little lime and no hair. A kicking cow burned Chicago, and disregard of cow hair may have had much to do with Frisco's combustion. It may be remembered that, two months ago, the telegraphic news contained an item about the crumbling of a new three-story theater at Copp and Sixteenth street. This building could stand unusual rain storms. In the un-

CHICAGO, May 25.—A dispatch to the Tribune from Washington says: The condition of some of the packing houses at Chicago was severely criticised by President Roosevelt yesterday, during an interview he had with William E. Skinner and W. L. Carlisle, representing the live stock interests of the country, and Representatives Madden of Chicago, Cox of New York and Brooks of Colorado. Mr. Skinner is the representative of the Union Stock Yards Company at Chicago and Mr. Carlisle is dean of the National Agricultural College of Colorado. These men, in accordance with the request of live stock interests all over the country, conferred with the packers Monday and then came to Washington to see the President. The President announced that he proposed to see conditions of which complaints have been made in the packing houses changed as promptly as possible; that the buildings should be remodelled in order to obtain better ventilation and more light; that ample toilet facilities should be provided for employes, far enough removed from the rooms in which meat was prepared for food to prevent contamination, and that there should be lavatories to insure personal cleanliness.

NEW YORK, May 25.—The Times today says: Samuel Lunderman, one of the most expert of the Park row pullers-in for the retail dry goods business, learned some things about the federal law yesterday. Recently he "pulled-in" Private R. H. Cusick of Company G, Fifth United States infantry, and induced him to dispose of his uniform, receiving in exchange a second hand suit of civilian's clothes. The clothes deal between the United States and Park row was reported to a United States marshal, however, and yesterday the puller-in was arrested. Judge Thomas in the United States district court yesterday broke the news to Lunderman that a law is in existence imposing a fine of $1,000 on anyone introducing the army uniform into the second hand business. His employer paid the fine.

MRS. TALLAFERRO SILENT IN CELL

Refuses to Talk About Crime With Which Charged

Mrs. Edgar Tallafferro, who is charged with killing J. S. Cree, her brother-in-law, at the latter's home in Humboldt street Saturday night, is in the Tarrant county jail, but declined to discuss the tragedy with a Telegram reporter Friday, her refusal to talk about it being advised by her attorney, Tom M. Hamilton of Waco. Mrs. Tallafferro was brought to Fort Worth from Waco Thursday night by Constable Lee Jenkins of Waco, who arrested her, and Deputy Sheriff Ralph E. Purvis of Fort Worth, who went to Waco after the prisoner. She remained the prisoner of the Waco officer until Fort Worth was reached, and at the Texas and Pacific depot Deputy Sheriff Purvis took charge of her and took her to the Tarrant county jail.

Friday morning a Telegram reporter called on Mrs. Tallafferro at the jail and found her in consultation with her attorney. Both Mrs. Tallafferro and her lawyer were smoking cigarettes when the reporter was introduced and continued smoking until he left. Mrs. Tallafferro is not over 20 years old, of slight figure.

The register of the Tarrant county jail shows that this is not the first time Mrs. Tallafferro has been confined there. In September, 1905, she was arrested and taken to jail and the charge made against her at that time was larceny. She was released soon after and since then lived with the family of her brother-in-law at 923 Humboldt street.

WEATHER DOUBTFUL

Clouds May Blow Away or Cause Showers Here

Thunderstorms were prevalent Friday morning in the section of western Kansas covered by the low barometer area of the official weather map. There was rain in abundance in both the Missouri and Mississippi river middle valleys. Outside the area described, the only rain of any extent occurred from the vicinity of San Francisco, Cal., to the region of British Columbia. The clouds that are expected to hover over Fort Worth and vicinity Friday night and Saturday forenoon may bring rain, or may be blown away by a brisk breeze that is likely to come up out of the Gulf of Mexico.

The Denver Road reports partly cloudy weather and calm along the line, with no rain. Temperatures at 7 o'clock Friday morning were: Texas, line, 52; Amarillo, 54; Childress, 51; and Wichita Falls, 62.

NEW CANDIDATES REPLACE MYERS

Two Official and One Friends' Announcements

The withdrawal of Joe S. Myers from the justice of the peace race, as announced in The Telegram, has not cut down the number of candidates for the position he was running for by any means. To the contrary the withdrawal of Mr. Myers has rather increased the number of candidates.

Friday morning following with the announcement that Myers had withdrawn it was given out at political headquarters at the county court house that Oscar Cook and Will Smith were both candidates for the place and the intention to make the race for the democratic nomination for the office.

Sixty years of age May 27, T. J. Maben has an experience ripe in legal circles. For four years, from November, 1898, to November, 1902, he was constable of Precinct No. 1. For the next two years after leaving this office "Uncle Tom" was in the employ of the Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph Company and, when J. H. Maddox went into office as chief of police the last time, "Uncle Tom" took badge No. 8, and has been detailed as sergeant of police since that time.

L. O. Cook, brother of Alderman R. F. Cook, has decided under pressure of friends to run for the place, announcement made yesterday afternoon. Mr. Cook is well known, having been born ten miles northwest of the city. The father of Mr. Cook was one of the first county commissioners ever elected in Tarrant county.

FATALITIES IN CYCLONE

House Demolished and Entire Family Injured

WAXAHACHIE, Texas, May 26.—The residence of J. D. Duke, a farmer living eight miles east of Waxahachie, was struck by a cyclone and completely demolished last night. The building was picked up and wreckage strewn for more than a quarter of a mile. Not a single person was left standing. An infant, 9 days old, was killed outright and every other member of the family sustained injury. A little girl, 4 years old will die of injuries received.

When the storm struck the house the family was unconscious of the impending danger. Suddenly a terrific roaring was heard and in an instant the house was struck and torn into fragments. A rescuing party went to work at the house and rescued the injured children from under the debris. The dead baby was the last one found. The path of the cyclone was about one hundred and fifty yards wide and more than three miles in length.

BOARD ACCEPTS ARMOUR REPORT

Matter Will Not Go to Attorney General

AUSTIN, Texas, May 26.—State Tax Commissioner Davie stated yesterday that the representative of Armour & Co. has filed a report which was accepted by the tax board, and it will not be necessary to refer the matter to the attorney general's department. The Swift people have not as yet filed a report which is acceptable, but Commissioner Davie said he had assurances from the corporation that the report would be forthcoming within a short time.

Commissioner Davie is fast completing the list of certificates of the intangible assets of all corporations in the different counties in the state where these corporations do business. There are about 1,000 of these certificates. Tax Commissioner Davie and his assistants have been kept quite busy for the past month or two figuring the intangible assets of these corporations.

Following Mr. Atwell's argument, the court announced his decision. There was just the suspicion of a smile on his face as he said, at the outset, that he would not construe sections 60 and 121 of the Terrell election law.

"I shall overrule defendant's first exception. I shall sustain the defendant's second, third, fourth and eleventh exceptions, and overrule the remaining exceptions. As the plaintiff declines to amend his petition, the court thereupon dismisses the petition. To which plaintiff in open court excepts and gives notice of appeal. I shall also hold that Mr. Lyon is not an officeholder within the meaning of the Terrell election law."

WATER PRICE DISCUSSED

No Official Action Taken Regarding Rates Now in Force

The proposition to raise water rates is now being discussed.

The discussion has not assumed official proportions, but the members of the water works committee have talked the matter over among themselves before bringing it up in council, while it is the personal opinion of the water works superintendent, H. L. Calhoun, that the rate should be 30 cents a thousand gallons.

The present minimum rate for water service is $2.55 for three months. This permits the user to consume 3,000 gallons, about three barrels a day. The present discussion seems to point to the raising of the rate to $1.15 a month, or $3.45 for the quarter year.

LYON WINS IN SUIT AT SHERMAN

Republican Leader Defeats Efforts of W. M. McDonald

SHERMAN, Texas, May 25.—After a legal battle, which lasted all day, Cecil A. Lyon, chairman of the republican state executive committee, succeeded in defeating W. M. McDonald of Kaufman, better known as "Goosenock" Bill, here yesterday. McDonald had applied to B. L. Jones, judge of the Fifteenth judicial district, for an order restraining Mr. Lyon from issuing a call for the republican state convention to be held in El Paso in August.

Following Mr. Atwell's argument, the court announced his decision. There was just the suspicion of a smile on his face as he said, at the outset, that he would not construe sections 60 and 121 of the Terrell election law.

"I shall overrule defendant's first exception. I shall sustain the defendant's second, third, fourth and eleventh exceptions, and overrule the remaining exceptions. As the plaintiff declines to amend his petition, the court thereupon dismisses the petition. To which plaintiff in open court excepts and gives notice of appeal. I shall also hold that Mr. Lyon is not an officeholder within the meaning of the Terrell election law."

Miss Elsa Lemp Left Large Fortune in Trust

CHICAGO, May 25.—A dispatch to the Record-Herald from St. Louis says:

The will of Mrs. Julia Lemp, widow of William J. Lemp, millionaire brewer, was filed for probate yesterday. The value of her estate is estimated at $1,000,000. Miss Elsa Lemp is left one-seventh of the estate, which is to be held in trust until she is 30 years old by her brothers, William J. Lemp Jr. and Charles A. Lemp. She is to get $1,000,000 on the day of her marriage, and if she dies without issue, before she is 30 years of age, her share will revert to the other heirs.

Each of the other six children get equal shares of the estate, but some of the bequests are conditional.

J. T. Lynn Preparing Grand Jury Evidence

War on the so-called souvenir postal cards which transcend the border of decency and public morals has been declared by J. T. Lynn of Fort Worth, who has been investigating the slot-machine card vendors with a view to getting grand jury evidence.

Mr. Lynn says that in some of the slot machines cards are given for a penny, which are barred from the United States mails. He has served notice on one slot-machine proprietor, he says, warning him that if his stock of cards is not withdrawn by Saturday night he will give evidence to the grand jury.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

"Why, how are you, Ada?" said the old lawyer, extending a hand. "Sit down; glad to see you. How's ma and Archibald?"

"I think you ought to know how ma is," said the old lawyer, who had confronted old Lawyer Tomlinson.

"Well, if you don't mind, Tomlinson, there are other lawyers," said the young woman, angrily.

"Oh, there's your $100," she said, stooping down and producing a bunch of bills from a receptacle cherished by women—one which, ever since they have heard of men's pockets being picked they have adopted.

"This is certainly not ethical," said the old lawyer, looking at him. He liked Ada, he liked Archibald, and far better—the other lawyer.

JOSEPH MYERS LEAVES RACE
Surprise Sprung in Political Circles
A political bomb was exploded Friday morning with the announcement that Joseph S. Myers, candidate for justice of the peace, running in race No. 1, has withdrawn.
Mr. Myers, who ran third in the general justice of the peace race last time, having but a small number of votes, less than the two successful candidates, C. T. Rowland and J. L. Terrell, both of whom are candidates for county judge this time, is generally believed in political circles to have had a good lead in the present race, with fine chance of nomination. Announcement of his withdrawal proved a great surprise.
When seen in regard to the matter Friday morning Mr. Myers confirmed the report.
"I have withdrawn from the race," he said, "and though many of my friends think the step an ill-advised one, it is a matter I have considered carefully for some time and I feel that it is best."
"Together with Robert M. Rowland, I am acquiring a valuable law practice, and I do not believe it would be wise for me to devote my time to seeking or holding the office of justice of the peace at the present time."
W. D. Lessing and Frank Leatherman are left in the race.

CORN NEEDS RAIN
F. A. Graves Talks of Conditions in Milam County
F. A. Graves, a stockman from Milam county, came in with five cars of steers for the market. "We are needing rain for our corn, not suffering, but it would do the corn a power of good just now. Corn did not grow as it should for the reason that the ground has been so cold. Stock are doing well and there is no sickness of any kind that is of an epidemic sort among the cattle. Outside of the need of rain at this time everything is going along just as well as could be expected and people are too busy here to think of anything else. There seems to have come a change in the speed with which the railroads deliver stockmen from the country to the city that of the Belt Line, which is encouraging to say the least, but there is still much room for improvement, and the exchange should continue its good work. We have got them for help in these matters and we do not think that they will fail us in the end."

FRUIT IN TERRITORY
Stockman Says Crop Prospects Are Excellent
J. C. Rea, formerly a Texas man, but now a resident of the Indian Territory, living near Roff on the Frisco, was swapping views around the Live Stock Exchange when he ran into a reporter. "It has rained most too much for our greatest good," he said, "and this has held up things a little like the congress is holding up the statehood bill, but as we can't prevent either we ain't kicking, but are going ahead and doing the best we can. Grass is fine and cattle are all right. No sickness that I have heard of and calves coming above the average. We have got a few cows, and whenever we ever get the congress to get to work and give us a chance to buy the land and put it to use there will be a rush and grand settlement by people from everywhere. Our fruit crop is very good. Peaches, pears, apricots, plums and as fine berries, both straw and black as man ever laid eyes on. It is astonishing how well they are doing. I must say that the specimen of fruit they bring in compares equally as well as the best grafted fruit."

BOY DROWNS IN SWIMMING POOL
Ben Elkins Groom Victim of Fatal Accident
The funeral of Ben Elkins Groom, the 14-year-old son of Mrs. Nettie Everett Groom, 1009 Lamar street, who was drowned Thursday night in the swimming pool in the Natatorium building, will take place from 10 o'clock Saturday morning and interment will be made in Oakwood cemetery, this city.
Thursday night being reserved for women with escorts, Mrs. Ella M. Elkins, an aunt of the boy, was swimming, the lad being with her, while his mother was visiting friends in another part of the city. None saw young Groom sink, but, as his aunt prepared to leave the water, she was unable to locate him and hastily called diving in to get him. A good many of the pool manager, who got down to the bottom, but found no sign of the water. The body was found near the curb, where ropes stretched indicate the beginning of water deeper than a few feet.
Two doctors were called even before the body was found. They worked more than two hours in the effort to save the boy, but he failed to show signs of returning to consciousness and was pronounced dead shortly before midnight.
The body was taken in charge by L. P. Robertson, who has the undertaking rooms. It will remain until Saturday morning, the time set for the funeral.

MAYOR CORRECTS REPORT OF VETO
Technicality Not Cause of His Non-Approval
"It was not a technicality or, rather, irregularity in the proceedings ending in the veto of the bill, but the addition of the police force of eleven men that caused me to veto that proposition, limiting the addition to five men," said Mayor W. D. Harris Friday morning, "as it was never published statement would indicate."
"The statement I refer to reads thus: 'At your last meeting by a vote of 8 to 1 you adopted that report. Owing to the irregularity of the matter in being considered by the judiciary committee only I hereby enter my objection to the action in so far as it allows additional policemen exceeding the number of five.'
"The correction I desire made is embodied in the following substitute for the second sentence of the paragraph: 'The irregularity of the matter in being considered by the judiciary committee only, I withdrew, but I hereby enter my objection.'"
"It was not understood," continued the mayor, "that it was not on account of this irregularity that I exercised the veto limiting the additional police officers to five instead of eleven men. The reason that I did this is because I think five additional men sufficient to meet the present needs of Fort Worth. For the additional protection of the residence section of the city to my mind, five men will be better than none."

LOCAL LIVE STOCK NEWS
DRY IN NEBRASKA
Visiting Cattleman Says Texas Has Advantage
S. T. Napper, from faraway Nebraska, was spying out the good 2-year-old heifers in the stock pens hoping to find the stuff that he wanted to take home with him. "I am down here for the purpose of buying some young stuff to ship home," said he, "and hope to find some before I go back that will suit, both in condition and price, but I have found nothing yet in the yards up to this time. I have heard of a bunch or two down in the San Saba country that from the description given, ought to suit as to quality, but the price is what will have to be fought over. Texas people seem to be holding on to their stuff at present better than in former times and don't want to sell unless the get what they ask. Cattle conditions are not just as good now with us as could be wished. It is dry and pretty dry at that for this time of the year. It rained all right early in the season, but suddenly stopped short off and has refused to sprinkle ever since. The ground is baked hard and only a good rain will relieve the situation. But for this thing, stopped short off and usual probably, for the winter was mild and cattle went through all right."

PEANUTS FOR FEED
Smith County Cattleman Partial to Goobers
The Jersey King—S. A. Overman of Tyler—a member of the firm of Overman & Presley, is on hand again with a car of milk cows and calves. "This makes the fifty-second car of Jerseys that I have shipped to this market," said he, "and they have sold readily enough, showing that people are viewing the value of this grade of cattle from a different point than heretofore. Cattle are not doing well down in Smith county, for the reason that we had too much rain and the grass has

RHEUMATISM CURED
WAS HEREDITARY THROUGH THREE GENERATIONS.
The Disease Yielded Readily to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills After Other Treatment Failed.
Dr. Williams' Pink Pills cure rheumatism because they supply the necessary elements to the vitiated blood and enable nature to cast out the impurities and effect a cure. Mrs. A. Baker, of No. 119 Fitch street, Syracuse, N. Y., will furnish living evidence of the truth of this statement. "There has been rheumatism in my family ever since I can remember," she says. "My grandmother was a great sufferer from muscular rheumatism and my mother also had the disease in a mild form. About a year ago I had a hard cold and rheumatism caught me in my left knee. There were sharp pains, confined to the neighborhood of the knee and they seemed to go right into the bone. The pain suffered was intense and at times I had dizzy spells. I consulted physicians in whom my family had every confidence and took their medicine faithfully but it did me no good at all that I could see."
"The doctors called my trouble uricatic and sciatic rheumatism. When I didn't get better under their treatment my brother-in-law suggested that I try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I bought three boxes, and, by the time I had taken them, the pain and dizziness had entirely left me. I wanted to make sure of a cure so I bought three more boxes, but I didn't take quite all of them as I found that I was entirely cured before I had taken all of the sixth box."
"Before I took the pills the pain was so severe that I had to cry at times and when I was cured I was so thankful and grateful that I have advised many people to try the pills and I am glad to recommend them to every one who suffers with rheumatism."
Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have cured severe cases of rheumatism, sciatica, nervousness, partial paralysis, locomotor ataxia and St. Vitis' dance that have not responded to other modes of treatment. They are also a specific for anemia, chlorosis, or green sickness, and the special troubles of women and growing girls.
All druggists sell Dr. Williams' Pink Pills or they will be sent by mail, postpaid, on receipt of price, 60 cents per box, six boxes for $3.50, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y.

POLICIES EXCHANGED
Transfer to Hartford Insurance Company Being Made
Since the Traders' Insurance Company of Hartford, Conn., went into the hands of the receiver on Saturday, May 5, local representatives have been busy transferring the Traders' fire policies into the Hartford Insurance Company of Hartford, Conn., who are assuming the fire risks. It is reported that between four and five hundred policies have been transferred since May 5.
That a reorganization of the Traders' company will be effected as soon as possible was announced on Thursday by a local agent. The assets of the company amount to $3,000,000, and the San Francisco fire losses are estimated at $3,250,000, and the idea now thought to be current among the officials is to exhaust the assets of $3,000,000, then raise the other quarter of million from the stockholders. If the losses far exceed the estimation this hope would be shattered and a long receivership proceedings would be inevitable.
In case losses can be met in this way reorganization will take place in the near future.

CURBING THE TRUSTS.

It is expected that within the next few weeks there will be added to the federal statutes a new law designed to defend the people against the further encroachments of corporations. When the railway rate regulation is finally passed it will be the capstone for a series of laws all having for their object the protection of the people against corporate ruthlessness.

The first law in this great series was the interstate commerce act, which was passed in 1887. This was at its best but a feeble measure, as it was short of its legitimate effects by designing politicians who knew how to amend it in the interest of the corporations. The commission was given the power to declare, but not the authority to enforce in full degree. This has resulted in the commission being hounded in the courts openly by the railways, defied and generally disregarded. Yet its emasculation by the politicians has been the very thing that is ultimately bringing the desired relief.

The next great measure along this line was the Sherman anti-trust law, enacted in 1890. For a long time this measure was a dead letter so far as practical results were concerned. The big corporations laughed at it and the most gigantic combinations were formed all over the country. The great Northern Securities merger was the most stupendous deal of the kind undertaken, and when Attorney General Knox knocked that great scheme into a cock hat under the provisions of the Sherman act, the big corporations began to look about them with some evidences of uneasiness apparent.

The next attempt along these lines was the Elkins anti-rebate law of 1892. For years the body politic had been complaining that the railways of the country were violating the spirit of the interstate commerce law by publishing their rates in accordance with the law, but getting around the situation by the payment of secret rebates. The Elkins bill is supposed to correct many of the evils of rebate giving, but somehow or other it has never seemed to meet the real requirements of the situation, and this has brought about the demand for the present railway rate regulation measure, which is yet pending in congress.

When the rate bill is finally enacted into law it will be in some respects the most radical example of governmental control of business and industrial affairs ever attempted in this country. The most important provision in the bill is the authority given the interstate commerce commission to declare that a rate fixed by a railroad is not just and reasonable, and to state in terms what is a just and reasonable rate. This rate is to stand and be enforced unless it is enjoined, suspended or set aside by the court. The railroad company will have to go into court and spend its money to contest the prescribed rate, the government defending in behalf of the shipper, who is not compelled to put up one cent of cost.

The railroads are content that they have the fullest right of appeal to the courts. They have insisted upon all the time and finally secured it. The year is expressed that the railroads will use this power to hang up contested rates and keep the unjust rate in operation pending tedious legal operations, but it is hardly probable. The authority of the interstate commerce commission is broadened to cover pipe lines, express companies, switches, terminals, storage facilities, icing charges, and all the side issues of railway transportation which in the past have lent themselves to discriminations against small shippers in favor of the large corporations.

These special privileges made most of the old trouble and under the old laws the commission could not reach them. The commission can in the future compel railroads to connect with short private lines and give facilities to shippers off the main line. There is also regulation prohibiting after May 1, 1908, railroads from owning coal, lumber or other properties, which will give private owners of mines equal transportation facilities. These are the main broad features of the prospective new law.

THE COMMISSION IN POLITICS.

The Telegram has heretofore vigorously commented on the evils arising from the prevalence of politics in the railroad commission of Texas, and that The Telegram's position in the premises was well founded is evidenced by the following dispatch from Austin to the Dallas News:

AUSTIN, Texas, May 23.—At the outset of the hearing of the proposition of the railroad commission to reduce passenger fares on the Houston & Texas Central railroad to two and one-half cents a mile, and half that for children, a motion was filed on the part of the railroad asking that Commissioner Colquitt recuse himself, or that the other commissioners should be disqualified to sit in the case. The motion declared that Mr. Colquitt in his speech at McKinney, opening his campaign for governor, irrevocably committed himself to reduce the passenger rates as aforesaid, and it was argued that because of this pledge Mr. Colquitt was not free to pass upon the case according to the evidence, as a judicial officer, in consequence of which the railroad company was denied the protection of the law.

Mr. Colquitt filed a lengthy answer to the motion, whereupon Commissioners Storey and Mayfield decided that they had no jurisdiction to disqualify a brother commissioner, and Mr. Colquitt announced that he would not recuse himself.

Judge Garwood, general attorney for the Houston & Texas Central, asked that an exception be noted. He had previously explained that the motion should not be taken as a reflection upon Mr. Colquitt personally nor officially, but was made purely as a legal proposition to save the point for his client and for any further proceedings in the matter.

Here we have a practical illustration of the point: The Telegram has labored so earnestly to impress upon the minds of the people of this state. A member of the railroad commission—a body created for the purpose of assuring both the public and the railways a square deal, in an effort to further his own interests politically leaves the duties of his office unattended to and from the public rostrum delivers an opinion on a matter he is yet to pass upon, to the detriment of the interest involved. He seeks to impress the people of this state with the belief that he stands for reduced passenger rates and commits himself irrevocably to that policy in advance of any proper consideration of the subject, and apparently for the sole purpose of ingratiating himself into the good graces of the suffragists.

Commissioner Colquitt may feel that he has violated none of the proprieties in the action taken, and may insist that as an individual he has an indelible right to express himself upon any question of procedure connected with the administration of the affairs of his office. And if Commissioner Colquitt had taken the precaution to resign his present position before taking the stump for governor he would have been free to express himself, for then it would have been the individual and not the official who was talking. But as matters stand it is Commissioner Colquitt who is doing this talking, and his every utterance upon the stump is flavored with more or less officialism.

It may be true that no real harm has been done by the procedure already indulged in, but it is evident that the great railway corporations of the state have been impressed by these campaign declarations to believe they cannot obtain justice at the hands of Commissioner Colquitt, and when an official creates this sentiment he soon passes the point where he is of much usefulness. It is a reflection upon the State of Texas that such an allegation is made and based upon facts that cannot be controverted.

These are some of the reasons why the people of Texas must take some action to take the railroad commission out of politics. The Texas railroad commission must be freed from the political burden it is now being compelled to carry.

THE LOGICAL LOCATION.

Dallas, San Antonio, Fort Worth and Mineral Wells are candidates for the state convention and will present their claims to the meeting of the state executive committee at its meeting at Austin next month. Houston and it in 1904, San Antonio had the Presidential convention in the same year. Mineral Wells couldn't take care of the delegates if it got it, and Fort Worth seems to be the logical candidate for the convention—Denton Record and Chronicle.

No other city in Texas can put forward so many sound and sane reasons for being the place of assemblage of the next democratic state convention as Fort Worth. And these facts are quite generally known and appreciated. The only thing that can be argued against it is the fact we have two candidates for state office, and that objection is untenable, as the result in both cases will be established prior to the holding of the convention.

It is hoped the members of the state democratic executive committee will see the matter in its true light and defer to the wishes of the people of Texas by ordering the convention to assemble at Fort Worth. It is truly the only logical location.

Cotton seed oil mill men are claiming that they have made no money during the past three years, but the manner in which new mills are being built in different portions of the state would seem to indicate there are some people who think there is money in the cotton seed oil mill business. It is reported that big mills are soon to be erected at Merkel, San Angelo and Colorado City, away out in West Texas where it was so long believed that agriculture was an impossibility.

The big ranches out in West Texas are being steadily cut up and sold in small bodies to the people who are flocking into that section in search of homes. The prediction is now being made that the time is near at hand when big ranches in that section of the state will be so rare as to almost constitute a memory.

The first water melons of the season are due to arrive from South Texas this week, and the colored population is in a perfect flutter of excited expectancy. There is nothing in small chunks that can bring joy to the heart of the sons of Ham so completely as an average sized water melon.

The opening speech of Judge Bell was just what the people expected, and its effect will be far-reaching.—Fort Worth Telegram.

The people of Texas are fully satisfied with Judge Bell and his platform in the present campaign, and it looks as if his election is assured.—Amarillo Herald.

The Telegram observes that "Fort Worth is growing so fast her very joints are continually cracking." Just which "joints" is not stated, but there are some in the packing center that need cracking—with a stuffed club.—Mineral Wells Index.

THE TEXAS PRESS

The opposition to Judge Bell have dubbed him "The Conservative Candidate." No higher compliment could have been paid him, for no one but a conservative man should be elected governor. No crack brained, one develops mild indications of hydrophobia at the bare mention of his name." Partly The Telegram is correct. This paper does believe that Judge Bell is the administration candidate for governor, and the Judge practically admits the truth of the charge by indorsing the Lanham gang of incompetents, sepiolists and pap-suckers, and announcing the intention, if elected, to give a similar administration. That alone should be sufficient to condemn the Judge with the honest democracy of the state without taking into consideration the corporations regard him as their candidate and are giving him a support which implies an understanding. The Judge's official record is also against him, and like Colquitt, he has nothing other than an official record, as he has been berated on the public ever since he became old enough to qualify for office. His failure as attorney general is, however, the conspicuous feature of his public career. It is claimed that during his tenure of that office, penalties were collected from corporations than by any of his predecessors. The claim will not be disputed, but Judge Bell did not do the collecting. To the contrary, during the time he was attorney general a gang of legal blackmailers sprang into existence at Austin, and in the name of the state brought suit against everything from which they believed they could get compromise money. Attorney General Bell did not figure in these suits, neither did he take steps to put an end to the blackmailing industry. Those were the character and kind of penalties collected against corporations and alleged trusts while Judge Bell was at the head of the legal department of the state. It is probably a more coincidence that after Judge Bell left office the gang did not long survive, being broken up a few months after Attorney General Davidson qualified.—Beaumont Journal.

Would the esteemed Journal have Judge Bell refuse the friendship of Governor Lanham just because the Journal does not love the Lanham administration? Governor Lanham is a Democrat, and the Democrats of Texas are responsible for his administration, be it good or bad. Judge Bell is also a Democrat, and has indorsed the Lanham administration because it is a Democratic administration, and as such is entitled to the support and indorsement of all Democrats. He has not promised an administration modeled after that of Lanham, but has asserted fixed policies of his own that will be inaugurated in the event he is made governor.

If the corporations of Texas are favorable to the candidacy of Judge Bell it is not because of any friendliness of his in that direction, but on account of the confidence that is felt in the integrity and unwavering allegiance to the principles of right and justice that has always been manifested by Judge Bell. The corporations have no right to expect any special favors from him, but they are right in the assumption that he can be depended upon to give every interest in the state a square deal.

The fact that Judge Bell has long held official position in Texas is but a strong card in his favor. If he had not proven himself worthy of the confidence and esteem of the people in every position he has ever occupied his tenure of official position would have been distressingly brief. The fact that he has been so long in office proves that the confidence of the people has never been in the slightest manner misplaced.

As to Judge Bell's official record while attorney general, the aspersions of the Beaumont paper are best answered in the language of Judge Bell's recent Waco speech. He said: "I have been accused of failure, while attorney general of Texas, to enforce the law against trusts. While in this city my attention has been called to such talk going around. If the records do not show that during the period of my service as attorney general there were a greater number of charters and permits of corporations, foreign and domestic, forfeited for failure to comply with the law than were forfeited during eight years prior to my incumbency, I will retire from this race. If the records do not show, also, that as attorney general I collected more money in penalties from corporations, for violations of the trust law than was collected by all of my predecessors combined, I will withdraw from the race for governor."

It would seem now that there is excellent opportunity for the esteemed Beaumont paper to retire Judge Bell from the gubernatorial race if it is able to get down to actual facts instead of indulging in glittering generalities. The challenge of Judge Bell seems to fit the emergency to a nicety.

COMMENTS ON JUDGE C. K. BELL

banking on Bell proving himself to be the Bell of the whole bunch.—Irion County Record.

Bell's Strongest Supporters. The people who know Charlie Bell beat are his strongest supporters for the governorship.—Killeen Messenger.

Running on His Merits. Judge Bell could have held on to the office of attorney general and used its prestige to boost his candidacy for governor, but his view of propriety caused him to retire to private life and make the race on his own merits.—Granbury News.

The Even Tenor of His Way. Campbell, Bell and Brooks have made their opening speeches in the contest for the democratic nomination for governor of Texas, and the average man can discern no difference between them on matters of principle. Colonel Campbell is hunting the octopi and tickling the farmers; Judge Brooks is making special appeal to the prohibitionists, and Judge Bell is pursuing the even tenor of his way, agreeing abjectly with his two chief competitors, but occupying a safe, conservative position between their more or less radical views. As to Colquitt and Moore, they are out of the running and have never been in it much.—Wilhamson County Sun.

Fearless and Steadfast. Judge Bell is a man who came up from the bottom. He has known what it is to struggle against adversity. He has had struggles in life, but he has surmounted every obstacle. In all his career he has never known to utter an intemperate remark to secure favor, but all his utterances have been such that no class would be arrayed against another class, and are the utterances of a calm, judicial mind, not easily prejudiced, fearless in its convictions, but steadfast in purpose. Such a man is C. K. Bell.—Llan Times.

A Man of Honor and Integrity. General Bell is a man who strikes one with a belief in his honor and integrity and that he would do exactly what he promises, no fear as to his in power so to do. He is not a fluent speaker, but tells what he wants to in plain language without any effort at high-sounding phrases. He has many friends here and throughout the state and is said to be the administration candidate, whatever that amounts to. He is also what some will term a conservative candidate. He is not radical along any line of policy.—Sherman Democrat.

A Brains Man of Clear Convictions. The address delivered in the Knights of Pythias hall Friday evening by Hon. C. K. Bell, in advocacy of his claims for governor, was well received by an intelligent and appreciative audience, though, coming as it did at the evening hour, but few people attended from outside the city limits. He discussed in an earnest, plain and dignified manner some of the subjects contained in his published announcement platform, elaborating and explaining his position with marked clearness and force. He also presented his views on many other subjects, not forgetting to deal fittingly, though forcefully, with some of the policies advocated by his opponents. He is a brains man of clear convictions, which he presents in a remarkably convincing style, without effort at oratory or the seductive wiles of popular declamation. Being a man of rare ability and long experience in the public affairs of Texas, during delicate and critical periods of her history, he has been a successful, useful and honorable participant, fairly winning the distinction he now holds among the people of his state.—Whitesboro Record.

No Taint of Demagoguery. Upon the whole, Judge Bell's speech will impress the people favorably, because it is free from the slightest taint of demagoguery, and he speaks an honest and capable man. It is plain, clear, frank and transparently sincere. There is in the whole address no flamboyant oratory, not a trope metaphor or flight of fancy, but it is an address which the humblest citizen who can read can understand. The following language is in gratifying contrast to that which has been used by other candidates for governor: "I do not intend to dodge any issue or feel the popular pulse as a judge for my conduct. I call you to witness that I have never in any public discussion or in the walks of private life uttered one word which was calculated to array one class of our citizens against another; that I have never appealed to ride into office by appealing to prejudice or attempting to excite passions." There is no assault on corporations and no charge that graft permeates the offices of the state and counties, but, on the contrary, Judge Bell asserts the belief that such charges are not well founded, and are unjust and incapable of being proved. The relation of the state toward corporations is set forth clearly and correctly, and the amendments suggested to the law for the formation of corporations other than railroads are most wise and are in the interest of safety to the public. With all those who know Judge Bell his speech will certainly dispose of the charge that he is a candidate of the corporations, a charge absolutely without foundation. It would be doubtless news to many that Judge Bell is the author of both the present local option and anti-trust statutes, both having been enacted while he was state senator.—Houston Chronicle.

ZANGWILL TELLS NEED FOR A JEWISH STATE
 Gifted Author and Prime Mover of Plan to Found an Independent Colony Outlines Reasons for Advocating "It"

Another form of the homing instinct that is asserting itself among the Jewish people and which has found an expression in the Zionist movement, has resulted in the formation of the ITO by I. Zangwill, the gifted author of the race. The word ITO stands for Jewish Territorial Organization, the object of which is to procure a territory upon an autonomous basis for those Jews who cannot or do not wish to remain in the lands in which they at present live.

In this article, written especially for The Telegram, Zangwill tells of the principle of the movement and the demand for it. The ITO has already effected an international organization.

Just where the Jewish state will be founded has not been determined. There has been some talk about cession of a portion of East Africa by Great Britain, but the organization is looking all over the world for a procurable territory large enough, fertile enough and healthy enough.

ISRAEL ZANGWILL

BY I. ZANGWILL.
 Written for The Telegram.

The tragic problem of the Wandering Jew grows daily more insistent. In the language of Dr. Adler, chief rabbi of the British empire, the question of the hour is: Whither?

At least 100,000 Jews wander forth each year from the lands of poverty and oppression, whether in quest of better life conditions or actually to escape death by starvation or massacre.

The channels sought are principally the United States and England, but Canada, the Argentine, South Africa, etc., etc., all have their streams of Jewish immigration. In all these centers of refuge, the tendency of the immigrants is to remain near their friends and relatives already in the land, and thus to form great ghettos, unhealthily congested, and engendering all the spiritual ills which must inevitably accompany the confusion of atmosphere and ideas attendant on a too rapid assimilation with its hopeless alienation of parents and children.

Nor is the sum of spiritual evils lessened if the wanderers are deported in families or small batches to rural solitudes, where they feel themselves exiled and sundered from the brotherhood of Israel.

From the financial standpoint great economic waste occurs in these migrations. The Jews of New York, and of the United States generally, are enormously taxed in helping the immigrants to settle down. Sums sufficient to contribute to charity without any permanent solution of the Jewish question.

But this immigration into particular centers cannot even go long unchecked. The stream of emigration, following the line of least resistance, flows into countries with the least anti-Semitism, but by its flowing it increases the local anti-Semitism, till saturation point is reached, and the immigration is restrained by law.

And here be it remarked that the stream of Jewish emigration, to which so many people object on so many grounds, is not a curse but a blessing to the lands over which it flows. The Jewish labor force is in truth one of the most potent reservoirs of life and energy in the world. Not its impotency but its competitive potency is the true ground of the shortsighted objections to its advent. It is a Nile which, split into small streams, flowing everywhere, loses its force as a Jewish power, though it performs work for other powers in every quarter.

The obvious consideration suggests itself, is it impossible for Jewish labor and capital to create the desired land of refuge? The world still holds—though it will not long hold—vast tracts of comparatively unexploited or neglected territory. Practical organizers conversant with Jewish psychology could soon prepare the territory for the reception of the general mass of emigrants.

The territory must be a publicly recognized, legally secured home. In this one place of all the world the wanderer must feel himself received, not grudgingly, but with the cry of "Peace be to you." Moreover, we have not the right to burden any other nation with the problem of governing our emigrants, a task with which we ourselves are best fitted to grapple.

SPIRITUALIST'S WILL IS BROKEN
 Jury Decides Man Was Irresponsible for Bequest

Special to The Telegram.
 BLOOMINGTON, Ill., May 25.—In backing out the will of old James T. Crumbaugh, a jury has just decided that he was irresponsible upon the subject of spiritualism and was unduly influenced when he left a $250,000 estate to found a spiritualist church at the town of LeRoy.

Crumbaugh was a typical old farmer and country banker. He was married, but his only child, born forty-two years ago, lived but six weeks. Most people had never heard of this child, a son, until 1898, when Crumbaugh became a spiritualist. Nightly seances were held at his house, so wrapped was he in the belief, and at one of these seances the son manifested himself, Crumbaugh said. The spirit of the child was named "Bright Eyes" and the old man lavished on "Bright Eyes" all the affection that had sought an outlet for years. "Bright Eyes" guided Crumbaugh in his most trifling and most important actions alike, a spiritualistic seance being necessary each time to provide communication. Instead of a baby, "Bright Eyes" was known to Crumbaugh as a big, strong man with black hair, large features, a neatly trimmed mustach and blue eyes. "Bright Eyes" had continued to grow. He told Crumbaugh that there were better barber shops in the spirit land than here. "Bright Eyes" came to his bed at night and kissed him. "Bright Eyes" when he had fallen in a brush fire on one of his farms, pulled him out. "Bright Eyes" told him to dispose of his interest in the bank, and did so.

In his home hung a large portrait of "Bright Eyes," framed in heavy gilt. There also was a picture of Indian Chief who was Mrs. Crumbaugh's guiding spirit.

Mrs. Crumbaugh died in California

Bright Eyes

a few months ago and left a will which ratified her husband's will.

If the verdict against Crumbaugh's will stands, his wife's estate will get more than $150,000, and practically all of this will go to the church just the same. Now her heirs proposed to break her will also.

OIL RULES TO BE REVISED
 Government Orders Leases to Be Withheld

Special to The Telegram.
 MUSKOGEE, I. T., May 25.—Dana H. Kelsey, United States Indian agent, has orders from the secretary of the interior not to forward any more oil leases to the department of the interior until the new rules and regulations are received here, which are now being prepared by the department at Washington. A prominent oil man here said yesterday that this would not stop the oil men from taking and filling leases with the department, as they did not know what would be the status of the new rules, and they would get in all of the leases under the old rules that they could, until the new ones were out, as they had that privilege.

SERG. ROBBINS HAD HIS NERVE
 Waved Stick of Dynamite to Warn Companions

Special to The Telegram.
 SAN FRANCISCO, May 25.—Sergeant Robbins is going to live. A whole lot of people out here are deeply interested in this, because Robbins mite in his hands. They rescued him very carefully and took him to the General hospital at the Presidio. "It was conscious all the time," said Robbins to a representative of this paper at the hospital today. "As well as I could I was digging my way out, and when I got a hole through I stuck out my hand with the dynamite in it to show the rescuers that death was likely to come to all of us at any minute. It was tough lying there alongside enough dynamite to blow a big building sky high, but I'm coming out all right."

WEDDING AT CLEBURNE
 Fort Worth Young Men Wed at Cleburne

Special to The Telegram.
 CLEBURNE, Texas, May 25.—Marion E. Harle, formerly of Cleburne but now of Fort Worth, is to wed Miss Esther Simmons of this city Wednesday, June 6, at the Main Street Methodist church. The wedding is to be one of the prettiest of the season, both of the young people being very popular.

The marriage of John Mahan of Fort Worth and Miss Emma Weldon of this city is to take place Wednesday, June 6; Mr. Mahan is a newspaper man, a Cleburne boy, but now holding a position with a Fort Worth paper. The bride is also of Cleburne.

SERG'T CHARLES H. ROBBINS

was not only one of the heroes but is known as the man who had the closest of all the close calls from death. Sergeant Charles H. Robbins, First Battery of Engineers, was engaged in dynamiting walls at Turk and Mason streets. A wall fell just as Robbins was planting his explosives. For over two hours he lay beneath tons of brick, badly crushed, but somewhat protected by fallen timbers.

It was a close call. But wait! As the rescuers dug down to him, they saw him waving his arms, trying by signs, being speechless, to tell them something.

"Look out!" suddenly yelled a rescuer. "he's got his hands full of dynamite!"

Sure enough Robbins had lain there all that time with tea sticks of dynamite in his hands.

WINE OF CARDUI Woman's Relief

"My back ached every month" writes Mrs. Francis J. Ashburn of Clarkrange, Tenn., "till I could scarcely stand on my feet. I had pain low down and headache—not a day without it—and awful pain in my right and left sides. I could hardly lie down, and could not sleep nights. Doctors tried, but failed to give me permanent relief. I began to take Cardui, which soon benefited me, and now I feel like a new person." Cardui is a purely vegetable remedy, for all female diseases. It acts gently and specifically upon the sick womanly organs, and by strengthening and fitting them to do their natural work, it has restored to health thousands of hopeless invalids. Try it.

If you can't sleep it is because your nerves will not let your body rest. Women's nervous troubles come from female diseases. Their delicate organism is a network of intricate nerves. No woman can suffer from female irregularities without eventually ruining her nervous system. Get rid of female disease and the perfect sleep of childhood will return.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

cures all female troubles and restores nerve equilibrium and brings sound, restful, healthful, natural sleep. Thus does this wonderful remedy operate to bring health to suffering women.

Wakefulness and Nervousness Cured

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—Last spring, I lost my appetite, had headaches, and bearing down pains with cramps so that I was in perfect misery. I became wakeful and extremely nervous.

I decided to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and am pleased to state that I derived immediate benefit and soon enjoyed permanent relief.

Within eight weeks I was restored to normal health and felt refreshed and strengthened as though I had enjoyed a lengthy vacation.

Since that time I have recommended your Compound to a number of my lady friends suffering with female irregularities, and those who have used it report great benefit from its use.

THE MARATHON MYSTERY

BY BURTON E. STEVENSON
COPYRIGHT 1906, BY HENRY HOLT & COMPANY

An unknown man is killed at the Marathon, an apartment house, Godfrey, a reporter, and Simmons, his detective friend, finding Grace Croydon, an acquaintance of the newspaper man, standing in the room with a smoking pistol in her hand. She proves her innocence of direct connection with the crime and is freed from suspicion.

Part II
Lester, an attorney who knows Godfrey, takes apartments at the Marathon, the two thinking that Tremaine, who lives there and who becomes acquainted with Lester, has some connection with the murder. Cecily, the woman companion to Tremaine, so Lester learns in the course of their acquaintance, keeps a small pet snake called Pefe, whose species is such that a bite kills the person bitten in a very short time.

Part III
Tremaine visits the Delroys, Grace Croydon is there. Tremaine makes love to her and Drysdale, also one of the house party, becomes enraged as he is engaged to Grace. It is proposed to immerse a pearl necklace belonging to Mrs. Delroy in sea water, to restore its lost brilliancy, two men being engaged to guard it. The elder man, Cecily's friend, is killed and investigation shows that Drysdale was the only person supposed to be out of the house during the time just preceding the finding of the dead man. He is arrested, charged with murder and disband to jail in New York city.
Lester finds some clippings under a carpet in his room at the Marathon, the same room in which the first murder was committed. He thinks they have some connection with the first murder. He shows them to the newspaper reporter.
The two decide that Tremaine is the legal husband of Mrs. Delroy, Grace Croydon's sister; that Tremaine killed the two men, and that the first was

S.S.S. FOR THE BLOOD

The purifying action and curative properties of this great remedy have made "S. S. S. For The Blood" a household saying, and thousands who are today enjoying perfect health owe their recovery from blood or skin diseases to this universally used blood medicine. S. S. S. is made entirely from roots, herbs and barks which possess not only cleansing and healing ingredients, but building-up and strengthening properties to keep the blood in perfect order. No one can be well when the blood is impure; they lack the energy and strength that is natural with health, the complexion becomes pale and sallow, the vitality is weakened and they suffer from a general broken down condition. When the waste or refuse matter, which nature intends shall be thrown off, is left in the system because of a sluggish, torpid condition of the expelling members, it is absorbed into the blood, making this vital stream weak, sour and acid, and its condition is manifested by boils, pimples, rashes, blotches and other eruptions of the skin. S. S. S. goes into the circulation and removes every particle of blood taint or poison of every character, makes the blood fresh and strong and gives energy to the entire body. When the blood has been cleansed by S. S. S. all skin diseases and eruptions pass away and the smooth, clear skin, glowing with health, shows that the body is being nourished by rich, pure blood. Rheumatism, Catarrh, Sores and Ulcers, Scrofula, Contagious Blood Poison, etc., are all deep-seated blood disorders, and for their cure nothing equals S. S. S. It does not injuriously affect the most delicate parts of the body and can be taken with perfect safety by old or young. Book on the blood and any medical advice desired without charge.

THE SWIFT SPECIFIC CO., ATLANTA, GA.

"That's it; not only that he might be seen, but that Drysdale might see him. I wonder if this is the kind of paper he wrote on?"

"We keep a supply of it in all the guest rooms, sir," volunteered Thomas. Godfrey took it up and looked at it. It was a plain white linen of good quality, with the word "Edgemere" embossed in blue at the top. There were also on the table pens, an ink stand and two or three blotters. He turned the blotters over, but only one of them showed any sign of having been used, and the marks on it were very faint—yet they seemed to interest Godfrey. He bent over them with puzzled face; then he got out a little magnifying glass and studied them again.

"Lester," he said at last, "what do you make of it?"

"Somebody seems to have been scribbling a lot of disconnected letters on a piece of paper," I said. "I can't make out any words. The letters seem to be mostly B's and G's—yes, and here's an L."

"Thomas," said Godfrey, "will you go down and ask Mr. Drysdale if he has a sample of Mr. Tremaine's handwriting, and, if so, if he will let us see it for a moment?"

Thomas went out instantly and I looked at Godfrey in surprise.

"You think those marks have some value?" I asked.

"I don't know," he answered; "but it won't do any harm to make sure; and, besides, the handwriting of a man like that ought to be interesting."

"Here's a letter, sir," said Thomas, returning.

"He's a good penman," said Godfrey, handing me the sheet; "but it's quite a different hand from the one on the blotter."

He examined it again for a moment, then folded it up and handed it back to Thomas.

"Perhaps Mr. Delroy will want it again," he said. "Now, let us see Mr. Drysdale's room."

As he got up from the table, I noticed that he still held the blotter in his hand, and I saw him place it carefully in an inner pocket. After all, then, he did attach some importance to it.

The room was in great disorder. It was evident that Drysdale had been packing very hastily when he was interrupted by the arrival of the officers.

"Drysdale evidently didn't spend much time in bed that night," observed Godfrey, and indicated a pile of cigarette stubs heaped high on an ash tray on the table. "He must have had some knotty problem to wrestle with to need so many. Here's the diary," he said, picking up a little book which he carried in his pocket. "Heffebower didn't get it. Well, I guess I'd better see that he doesn't have another chance."

The diary slipped it unopened into his pocket.

"A man is a fool to make promises," he observed with a wry smile, and sat down at the table at "Hello, what's this?" he added suddenly, and, stooping, he fished from the waste basket beside him the fragments of a canister which he had broken in half. "This was a case certainly of at least ordinary strength, and yet it had been broken into half a dozen pieces and hurled into the basket."

Whistling softly to himself, Godfrey surveyed it for a moment; then he bent over the basket and examined the remainder of the broken piece by piece. There were scraps of letters, a torn envelope, a crumpled sheet of paper.

He sprang to his feet with a cry of triumph and waved it in the air.

"I've found it!" he cried, his face beaming. "It's found it, Lester!"

It was a sheet of the ordinary Edgemere note paper. Across it two lines were written:

Here's the percola at 9.
If I am late, wait for me.

"What?" I faltered; "well," it's the key to the whole problem. It's the light we've been looking for—with our eyes shut! It's the only possible explanation of the whole thing. Even after I saw that blotter, I didn't guess it! He had taken out a card, and as he spoke he wrote a rapid sentence on it.

"Here," he said to Thomas, "take this to Miss Croydon at once, please."

PART V

CHAPTER I

What Happened in Suite 14

Miss Croydon was standing by a window, looking out across the waters of the bay, and she did not turn for an instant.

I have seen few women more regal, more magnificent, yet there was about her such an air of utter misery that one forgot to admire her in the desire to be of service.

"You wished to see me?" she asked, in a low voice.

"Yes, Miss Croydon," replied Godfrey, more gently perhaps than he had intended to speak. "This is Mr. Lester, my friend is much too clever; he's caught napping that way. Thomas, I suppose this table is just where it was when Mr. Tremaine had the room."

"Yes, sir."

Godfrey sat down at it, measuring the distance from it to the window.

"Now, Lester," he said, "you'll see that the table is so far away from the window that it's quite impossible for anyone to get on the ground outside to see the person sitting at it. Yet Drysdale saw Tremaine sitting at the table writing when he came back from that mysterious walk. What would you argue from that?"

"That Tremaine had moved the table nearer to the window."

"And why should he do that?"

"To get a better light, perhaps," I ventured.

"He might have done it, in the day-time, to get better light, but at night he would get a much worse one over there by the window than here. The lights will observe, hang from the center of the ceiling."

"Then he did it," I said, "in order that he might be seen from outside."

PART VI

CHAPTER II

The Key to the Mystery

Thomas led the way to Tremaine's room.

Godfrey cast a glance about it, then he went to one of the windows, opened it, and walked along the balcony to the end where the heavy crepe were, took a look at them, and finally came back to the window.

"That's all," he said. "Of course, I didn't expect to find anything here—my friend is much too clever; he's caught napping that way. Thomas, I suppose this table is just where it was when Mr. Tremaine had the room."

"Yes, sir."

Godfrey sat down at it, measuring the distance from it to the window.

"Now, Lester," he said, "you'll see that the table is so far away from the window that it's quite impossible for anyone to get on the ground outside to see the person sitting at it. Yet Drysdale saw Tremaine sitting at the table writing when he came back from that mysterious walk. What would you argue from that?"

"That Tremaine had moved the table nearer to the window."

"To get a better light, perhaps," I ventured.

"He might have done it, in the day-time, to get better light, but at night he would get a much worse one over there by the window than here. The lights will observe, hang from the center of the ceiling."

"Then he did it," I said, "in order that he might be seen from outside."

Some dealers keep a little JAP-A-LAC in stock, so that when you ask for it, they can say, "Oh yes, we have it, but here is something BETTER." Why do they say something BETTER? For the simple reason that they make more profit on the kind they SAY IS BETTER.

The Lawn

A lawn is not a meadow and the use of the mower is necessary to prevent its beautiful green turf from becoming a hay field. Now is the time your grass needs the mower, as the rains will make it grow rapidly. Our lawn mowers are easily used and the prices at which we offer them make it fully unnecessary for anyone to have an unslightly yard.

NO SET RULES TO GUIDE PITCHER, SAYS CY YOUNG

"There are no set rules for pitching a ball that will always hold good," says Cy Young, who, after seventeen years on the diamond, is still one of the greatest ball players that ever covered a seam with a crooked digit. The pitcher should know the style of ball the man he is facing prefers, though this knowledge will not always protect him. The pitcher must be mentally alert all the time, studying his man, trying to detect his weakness and playing to it all the time. Control is one of the points all young pitchers should seek to master—they should never grow careless in their delivery, but try to be able to put the ball over the plate whenever it becomes necessary. Another thing, they should never try to split the plate, but to put the ball over the corner at the hardest possible angle for the batsman to hit." Mr. Young advises temperance, regular habits, and constant practice as essentials for players who hope to attain more than ephemeral success on the diamond.

OLD SHIPPER TELLS VALUE OF EXCHANGES

(By a Shipper of Twenty Years' Experience.)

I consider it impossible as well as impracticable to handle a live stock commission business without the protection of an exchange for the following reasons. First, the rules in the Exchange give nine-tenths of their protection to the producer or shipper. When he loads his live stock on the car and gives the billing to the agent, the firm to which the consignment has charge and control of them from that instant until they are sold and the money placed in the bank for the shipper's credit. When they arrive in market they are received and yarded by his yardmen, fed and properly watered at the right time to give the customer every advantage possible. After this has been done the salesman takes the buyer into the pen, looks his stock over and if a price is agreed upon the sale is made and from that instant it is a violation of the Exchange with a heavy penalty attached for either the seller or anyone else to add or subtract from this consignment in any way for the reason all trades are made verbally, it being impossible to handle them in writing or to put up money to bind the trade, and the purchaser knows these cattle are going to be weighed just as they are sold and pays no further attention to them. After this deal is closed should the buyer discover a bunch of cattle he purchased much heavier than he was not permitted by the Exchange to back up on this trade for the reason it might be impossible to find another buyer who would give the same price and again the commission man would never know when he had a sale made until the money was paid in settlement of the purchase. This loss would naturally fall upon the shipper or producer. Now, if the buyer were to act in this manner with a member of the Exchange he could not purchase even one head of cattle from one of its members until he made this loss good. It is not this protection to the shipper that I have often seen cars of cattle sell 40c and 50c above the market. Now, if it were possible for the man making this purchase to refuse to take the cattle, on a thousand-pound steer the shipper would lose $4 or $5 per head, but the commission man would get the same commission on the selling. Then why should he lay himself liable to violation of an anti-trust law for a heavy fine when he gets no benefit? Then, you may go a little farther and we will say there is an unscrupulous commission man belonging to the Exchange, who might have a friend who had an inferior animal and after this trade was made he would put this animal in at the same price this car load brought, knowing what it weighed beforehand, he could easily deduct it from the original weight and give his friend the benefit of the sale price of this car load. Immediately after this was discovered he would be fined by the Exchange from $500 to $1,000 and expelled for an indefinite period for the first offense and for the second offense he would be expelled absolutely. This feature compels a commission merchant to be absolutely honest, whether he desires to be so or not, and were one of these commission firms to sell such a transaction as this has been made the tickets which show the weight of these cattle and which are put on there by the weighmaster, also show the party's name to whom they were sold, which makes it possible for anyone desiring to investigate a matter of this kind thoroughly. Who gets the benefit of this move? The shipper. It is a notorious fact and can be substantiated by every old commission man who has been in the commission business prior to the organization of the Exchanges and even for two or three years after they were organized, that will testify there were many unscrupulous men in the business in those days, who sold stock at one price and made returns to the shipper at another, and were not for the sake of the Exchanges but for the sake of their own pockets. There is no other class of business which requires the skill, the honesty and integrity that is required in this business that is handled for so small a compensation. In many instances the commission for selling a steer is less than the maximum rate of interest. I dare say it will not average over 2 per cent, taking the whole season through. "Commissions on hogs at the present time are the ratio of 1 per cent. An admission will average less than 90-100 of a pig cent. We do not wish to call best names of hares, but we do wish for somebody to investigate and find just one more trust that would handle business for such a small compensation. The maximum rate of interest is made to protect the shipper. It is advertised to the world and he knows exactly what he is going to pay before he leaves home, and the shipper is made to protect the commission men to make the business legitimate. Can any fair-minded man give any reason why anyone should not pay the same compensation for the services rendered by a commission firm? We will take the laws of the United States for our argument. The Interstate Commerce laws, which apply to railroads and transportation companies, which have the same effect, make it a heavy fine and imprisonment for one of these corporations to charge one individual more than another for the same service rendered. If this is fair, upright and legitimate, why should the other be a crime?" (To Be Continued.)

LIGHTFOOT HAS MORE EVIDENCE

Secures Information Against Standard and Waters-Pierce

AUSTIN, Texas, May 26.—Office assistant of the attorney general, Lightfoot, returned this morning from Chicago and Jefferson City, Mo., and other points, where he had been as that would be prejudicial to the prosecution of the investigation against the connection of Waters-Pierce Oil company with the Standard Oil company.

"I secured some valuable information and evidence," said Lightfoot, "which will prove of great value to the state in the investigation at hand. I got information which would have been procured except by personal investigation. I cannot go into details of the evidence obtained, as it is confidential, but it is of great importance to the state's interests in the matter." It is understood that it will not be long before some interesting developments are made in this investigation.
