THINK THEY HAVE TRUNK STEALER

Officers Will Go to Waco After Man Arrested There

A charge of theft of over $50 was made in Justice Charles T. Rowland's court Tuesday against George W. Barrington and a warrant was issued and placed in the hands of Constable Henry Cantrell, who will go to Waco Tuesday night after Barrington, who has been arrested and is now in jail at Waco.

This charge and arrest follows the theft of a large trunk containing twelve sets of new harness from one of the railroad cars at the depot by means of a lost baggage check, which was found by the man who is alleged to have secured the trunk by having the check for it presented at the depot baggage office.

E. F. Rice, a traveling man for a saddle and harness factory, arrived in Fort Worth Monday with a lot of samples of harness, there being twelve sets of new harness in one of these trunks. The trunk was found in his pocket and it was later picked up on the street by a man who secured an express wagon and giving the check for it to the driver told him to go to the depot and get the trunk and take it to the Concho wagon yard.

The matter was brought to the attention of Detective A. Ray, who before night located the harness and recovered the trunk, which had lodged, but it had been ruined by the water. The harness was also recovered by the detective and the man who got the trunk had disappeared.

SUBURBAN NEWS

Horse Has Electric Shock and Kicks Aged Man

F. W. Griffin, an aged man who lives at 1001 Bessie street, East Glenwood, had a narrow escape Tuesday morning in what might have proven a fatal accident. He was driving a light-colored sedan in Front street near the union depot and in crossing the street car tracks his horse stepped on one of the rails immediately receiving a gentle electric shock, the ground and the track being wet in the rain. An old horse was all at once young again and his heels flew high into the air several times, his driver was thrown forward and the frightened animal, Mr. Griffin was kicked twice, once on the left knee cap, badly breaking the bone and once on the arm, the shoe leaping into the air and striking the driver, who was taken immediately to Glenwood, where Dr. P. L. Hooper dressed the wounds and other bruises, waiting the steady to take several sutures at the elbow.

TRAIN DERAILED; OH, FUDGE! DID MAN BRINGS SUIT

Man Brings Suit

The petitioner alleges that July 11, 1916, the plaintiff was a passenger on defendant's train near the town of Harrod, when the train was derailed and went into the ditch and was overturned, throwing plaintiff violently against some obstruction not to his known, causing him to sustain injuries in the groin besides badly bruising him, the injuries causing hernia, which has disabled him from following his usual vocation, that of a commercial traveler.

Western Union is Defendant

C. C. Gibson of Tarrant county, has sued the Western Union Telegraph Company for $2,000 alleged damages on account of the alleged failure to promptly deliver a telegram announcing the death of plaintiff's father, G. H. Ghen, Ky., June 19, 1916. Because of said failure plaintiff alleges he was prevented from attending the funeral of his father.

Street Car Damage Suit

W. J. Inman of Fort Worth, has sued the Northern Texas Traction Company for $5,000 alleged damages on account of injuries sustained by plaintiff's wife, Mrs. Mattie G. Inman. The petition in the case alleges that July 7, 1916, Mrs. Mattie G. Inman was a passenger on one of the defendant's cars, and while endeavoring to alight from same after it had come to a stop was thrown from the car, and while starting up, thrown to the ground and seriously injured, her injuries being both external and internal.

Another Damage Suit

Mrs. Mary Wilson of Fort Worth has filed a damage suit against the Texas and Pacific Railroad Company, seeking to recover $2,000 on account of alleged personal injuries.

The petition charges that while plaintiff was a passenger on defendant's train between Dallas and Fort Worth, on June 25, 1916, owing to a wreck the train was sidetracked in the yards at East Dallas; that while said train was standing on the side track plaintiff went to the water cooler to get a drink of water, and that while standing there the train, without warning, moved up with great violence, throwing her against the side of the car and to the floor, inflicting on her bodily injuries, from which she suffered great pain and mental anguish.

Damage Suit Against Swift

Peter Martin has sued Swift & Co. for $2,000 alleged damages on account of alleged personal injuries sustained while in the employment of defendant at their packing house in North Fort Worth.

The petition alleges that during April, 1916, plaintiff, under direction of his foreman at the packing house, to assist in stacking a lot of lumber that was lying on the floor of one of the rooms at the packing house, and that in carrying out his orders the plaintiff, who was new at the work, stepped into a sewer or drain that was in a darkened corner, and was thrown violently to the floor, sustaining injuries of a permanent character.

MAJ BECOME PART OF TEXAS

The people of eastern New Mexico have for years been extremely desirous of statehood on almost any kind of terms. While they would naturally prefer to come into the union as a state upon an equal footing with other states, they are willing to accept joint statehood with Arizona or any other proposition that will safely land them in the union. But there is a very large element of New Mexico that is opposed to the idea of joint statehood with Arizona, and say it is better to rock along as a territory than to be forced into a disagreeable and incompatible union with a state that will entirely blot them out of existence. But the statehood upon any terms delegation has sprung a new and disconcerting proposition, which is nothing more or less than the annexation of Chaves, Eddy, Roosevelt, Lincoln and Guadalupe counties to Texas. Judge U. S. Bateman of Roswell, one of the leading statehood advocates, is said to be the father of the scheme, and it is highly probable that it will develop into a great vote maker for joint statehood with Arizona. Judge Bateman is a democrat and says he wants to get into the union before he dies on some kind of terms. He says:

Believing there will be no show for many years to have single statehood for New Mexico, and believing that it will be a great benefit to the Pecos valley, which I consider the best portion of New Mexico, to be annexed to Texas, I shall be in favor of such annexation if joint statehood should be voted down.

If Arizona should be convinced that the eastern portion of New Mexico would be annexed to Texas if joint statehood should fail, would it not also be convinced that it was to its interests to vote for and thereby assure joint statehood, because it would see there would be no chance to become a separate state, and would prefer not to lose this, the best part of the territory of New Mexico.

In the event that statehood should be turned down by the people of Arizona it will settle the question with them of gaining admission into the union for many years to come and if this portion of New Mexico should be annexed to Texas, Arizona would ultimately be forced to accept the remaining portion of New Mexico, if it ever became a state.

The great majority of the people of New Mexico, and especially the Pecos valley of New Mexico, will show by its great vote for joint statehood its desire to become a part of the union. This fact would increase the possibility of this section of New Mexico being annexed and becoming a part and parcel of the "Lone Star" state. I frankly admit that this proposition of annexing this part of New Mexico to Texas is rather vague at the present time, however, it is not improbable or impossible.

If it should ever come to pass that this portion should be annexed to Texas, the remaining portion of New Mexico would be republican in politics with sufficient number to control and would always control the state that would ultimately be formed out of that portion of New Mexico and the present territory of Arizona. This would put the democrats in the new state in the minority, as they should be for deciding not to come into the union with the entire territory of New Mexico.

If statehood should fail to carry, I believe I voice nearly unanimously the sentiments of the people of the Pecos valley.

The annexation of this portion of New Mexico to Texas would be of vast benefit. The boundaries that would be wiped out, taxes decreased probably 50 per cent, we would have the benefit of the excellent laws in Texas regulating the railroads, benefit of the enormous school fund Texas has, and one of the greatest benefits of all would be that we would have the right of suffrage as American citizens, and by our vote have a voice in the affairs of the national government. Eastern New Mexico is the best portion of the territory, is largely settled by former Texans, and while Texas does not specially need that section in her business, if they want to come over and attach themselves to the greatest state in the union no obstacles will be placed in their path. It is understood the matter of annexation has already been taken up by the people concerned with several United States senators, and there have been some valuable promises of assistance given.

RECENT GOVERNATORIAL CAMPAIGN

The trouble with the Telegram is that it did not have the foresight to see when its candidate was defeated nor the good judgment to quit a hopeless fight. The Telegram was right in supporting Judge Bell; he fully deserved its support, but when the people spoke in the primaries and the returns all clearly indicated that there was no good reason in continuing to claim that Bell would be nominated and insisting that he should be in the face of the wishes of the people. The Telegram may contend in justification of its course that there was not a show of a chance to elect Bell, but if so the Telegram did not show the defeat fair enough to acknowledge its perpetuity in its course. There is no foundation for the Telegram's charge that Judge Bell has not had a clean deal from the papers of the state. He has been ardently supported by many papers, and even those which have opposed him have treated him with all respect and courtesy, but most of them, with keener powers of discernment than the Telegram, have not butted their heads against the solid wall of public expression, when they recognized his defeat as inevitable. The thrust at its morning contemporary, the Record, in the above editorial, in the light of subsequent events, must appear now even to the Telegram as entirely out of place. The Record, while ardently supporting Bell, even at times appearing extreme in its advocacy of his interests, was merely trying to make its knowledge of defeat when it saw it and to insist that the people be given a square deal in the selection of a candidate for governor. Bell, himself, with the fairness and broadness of character for which he has always been noted, could not find fault with the treatment he has received from the Record or the other papers of the state that supported him, simply because they have been willing to admit the possibility of his defeat, when it appeared to them inevitable. Nor will the charges made by the Telegram weaken the esteem of Bell's most ardent supporters in such papers.—Brownwood Bulletin.

Judge Bell was a candidate for governor of Texas subject to the action of the democratic party of Texas in convention assembled. The state primary established nothing, except to indicate the four men who were candidates for governor were running neck and neck. Judge Bell was a candidate up to the moment of his withdrawal and commanded the Telegram's support up to the very minute. Certainly, Bell had as much right to expect support from the vote of the dropped candidate as any other man before the convention, and he was third in strength and there was no reason in the world why he and his friends should have been at all dismayed over the prospect. The Telegram stood with Judge Bell on the proposition that there was no defeat until the convention had taken final action.

As to the press and Judge Bell, that is a matter of no moment now. He was treated nicely by a portion of the press and steadfastly misrepresented by another portion. The Record had a perfect right to flip to Tom Campbell if it wanted to, but that was no reason why the Telegram should do the same thing. The Houston Post was a supporter of Colquitt—would the Bulletin have had the Post discard its candidate the morning of the convention and declare in favor of another man? The Post did not concede Colquitt's defeat until his candidacy had been considered by the convention. It did not print a red line across its front page the morning of the convention and declare that Colquitt was leading a forlorn hope.

CATTLEMEN CONFER WITH WILSON

Colonel Ike T. Pryor of San Antonio, president of the Cattle Raisers' Association of Texas, in company with Judge Sam H. Cowan of this city, attorney for the same organization, attended an important conference in Chicago a few days ago, called by Secretary Wilson of the department of agriculture, relative to the ante-mortem inspection of live stock after it has been weighed to the buyers. The new rules and regulations were scheduled to go into effect this week, and the conference which included leading cattlemen from different sections of the country, was not called on account of any objection to the new inspection law, but because of a desire on the part of cattlemen to learn how it was to be interpreted.

The chief question on which the cattlemen desired information was when the inspection was to take place, before or after weighing. After considering the situation Secretary Wilson announced that the inspection is to take place after weighing, and this is generally interpreted to mean that all losses from this source in the future will have to be borne by the big packers. It was held, however, that all cattle shipped from quarantine districts, where diseased cattle are common, are to be inspected on the hoof before weighing, and in case they are condemned they will be returned to the shipper. This decision on the part of Secretary Wilson was agreeable to those present and no objection was raised to it.

Regarding the interpretation that the loss shall fall upon the packers the packers themselves have given no indication of what they intend to do in the premises. They have not yet issued orders to their buyers regarding such cases, but it is suggested that the cattle will be inspected more closely than ever in the future by the buyers, and cattle that look suspicious or seem to be diseased in any way will be cut out of the load before it is permitted to cross the scales. These cattle will then be weighed separately, subject to inspection, the buyers declining to receive such as do not pass inspection at the price agreed upon for the load. It is hoped this plan will prevent nearly every diseased animal that can be detected in ante-mortem inspection from reaching the packing houses.

The wording of the law provides: "Said examination and inspection shall be made in the pens, alleys or chutes of the establishment at which the animals are about to be slaughtered." The wording quoted would naturally be taken to indicate that the inspection must occur at pens closely attached to packing houses, but Secretary Wilson interprets it to imply the inspection may be made in the pens of the yards close to the scale and immediately after the cattle have been weighed. Thus, the pens of the yards in which the packers are holding their cattle are regarded as the pens referred to in connection with the establishment at which the animals are about to be slaughtered.

WILL ENFORCE LAW STRICTLY

All government inspectors in Texas have received a copy of the revised 28-hour law, approved June 23, 1906, and with it a letter of instructions ordering them to report all violations of the law coming within their notice, so that proper legal action may be taken against the transportation companies at fault. The intention of the Federal authorities seems to be to enforce this law very strictly, and shippers should be on their guard in the matter of its possible infringement.

The new law provides that upon the written request of the owner or person in custody of the shipment the time of confinement may be extended to thirty-six hours. This request, however, must be separate and apart from any bill of lading or other printed railroad form. The matter of estimating the time of confinement is the same under the new law as it was in the old. The time during which the animals have been confined without rest, food or water on connecting roads is included. The new law does not require that when the 28-hour period expires in the night time that sheep shall be unloaded, but they may be carried on in a continuing transit to a suitable place for unloading until daylight, subject always to the thirty-six hours limitation.

The exception found in the old law that when animals are carried in cars, boats or other vessels in which they can and do have proper food, water, space and opportunity to rest, the provisions in regard to their being unloaded shall apply, is also found in the new law.

Stockmen generally are very well pleased with the new law, which is regarded as a great improvement over the old measure, which was framed when shipping conditions were vastly different from those prevailing today.

SPEAKING OF FORT WORTH

Fort Worth is doing all that a city of her size can do to increase her bucket brigade and her efforts are putting her right to the front. Her large packing plants and her other industries, fostered by the free gifts of front and she is challenging greater Dallas for the first manufacturing position. That little city has given more money to bring railroads and factories and packing plants to her than any other city of her size in the United States.—San Antonio Light.

"Little City" is a good one. Fort Worth today has more than 50,000 live and progressive citizens within her borders and is growing faster than any other city in Texas or the southwest. There are more new business buildings going up on Main street alone than in all of San Antonio. It has cost our people a great deal of money to bring this condition about, but it has been a good investment. And we are still investing good money along the same lines with the very best effect.

Fort Worth wants more people, but Fort Worth realizes that in order to obtain the class of permanent citizenship necessary to support and sustain the largest city in Texas employment must be provided for those who come here. It is along this line Fort Worth is now concentrating her energies and the new factories coming will permanently increase the tin bucket brigade—the most potent town builders in the world. More new factories are promised this city than any other in Texas, and the indications are we will soon be able to add "the greatest manufacturing center" to our former claim of being the greatest railroad, live stock and packing center.

Fort Worth is setting a very warm pace for all Texas these days, and is just now getting well into her growing clothes. There is absolutely no question as to the future of this live and hustling city.

The time is up on that fat stock show proposition, and the people of Fort Worth are anxiously awaiting the verdict of those who are expected to take the required amount of stock in the proposition. The time is now at hand when something must be done. The money must be raised or the great enterprise that promises so much for this city will go by default.

The latest report from Oyster Bay is that President Roosevelt says Uncle Joe Cannon will be the next executive of this nation. Evidently President Roosevelt has not heard of the manner in which the common people are turning to William J. Bryan.

Colonel Tom Campbell is still busy receiving the congratulations of east Texas in the matter of receiving the nomination for governor.

THE TEXAS PRESS

There were four candidates for governor in the late democratic primary and it cost them nearly $50,000 to get through the primary. Campbell's expenses were more than $15,000, Brooks' over $13,000 and Bell's and Colquitt's nearly $10,000.—Gainesville Messenger.

Texas is a big state and any kind of a campaign costs big money when an effort is made to cover it. The people of the state would do the proper thing by increasing the gubernatorial salary to $10,000 per annum.

Fannin county elected a woman for district clerk. She is at home around the fireside, or in the hospital, and we always thought she looked well pushing a go-cart, but when she enters politics she ought to put on breeches.—Mount Pleasant Eagle.

The success of the Fannin county lady will doubtless stimulate many feminine aspirants for office in Texas two years hence. And masculine eyes are raised in horror over the prospect.

The chief of police of Fort Worth has issued orders for the arrest of all the "fillets" found getting women on the streets in the Panther City. The new order is said to have made the "mashies" scarce. The women of the city are high in their praise of the chief for his action in relieving them from the insults of the animal who has the form of a man without his brains. Other officials in Texas might profit by his example.—Newark Observer.

And other Texas officers should emulate the Fort Worth example. The masher is an animal that should not be permitted to roam at large in any respectable community.

Votes in Bexar county cost the candidates $3 each. Before the Terrell election law was enacted $2 was the highest price paid, and the quotations usually hung around a dollar.—San Antonio Gazette.

San Antonio voters are thrifty. They know how to put up the price on a valuable commodity and make hay while the political sun is shining.

Texas can get along very nicely without political bosses and when a disposition to pose as a boss shows itself it is up to the people to put that particular politician right.—Denison Herald.

Texas will not submit to political bossism from any source. And that is one reason for the growing unpopularity of the Terrell election monstrosity.

The Fort Worth Telegram very wisely insists upon the indorsement of William Jennings Bryan and a demand for the repeal of the Terrell election law by the Dallas convention.—Clarksville Times.

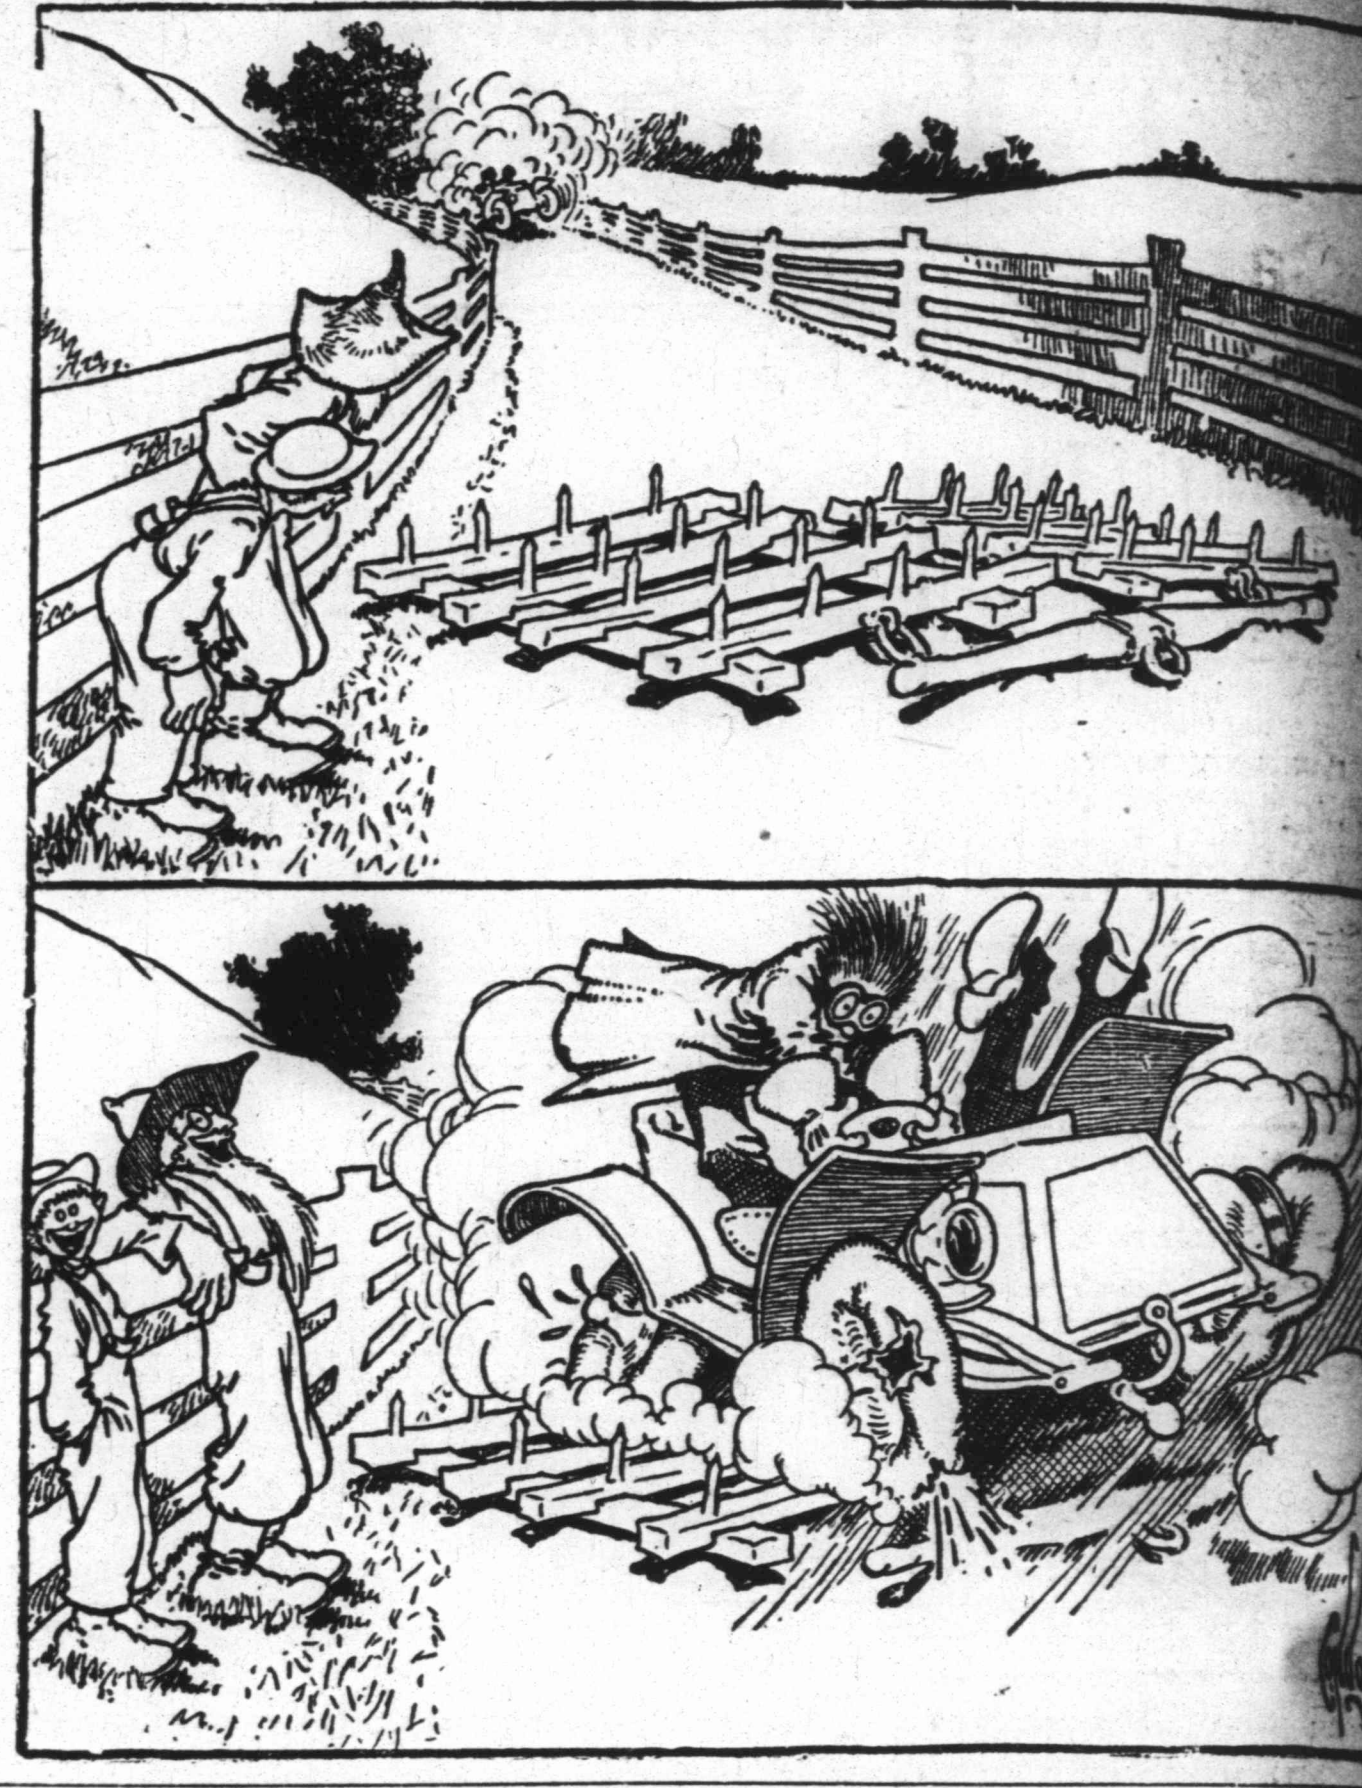

And both propositions will be attended to. The Telegram is always in line with Texas democracy.

The democracy of Texas is extremely fortunate in selecting Commissioner Storey to succeed himself instead of naming W. D. Williams of Fort Worth, the man who said the harshest things about Bryan uttered by any Texan in 1896.—Sherman Register.

If Judge Storey is the choice of Texas democracy for re-election he will be nominated. But it looks very much as if Judge Williams has a majority of the popular vote.

Had Colonel Wade of Quinlan remained in the race, his convention vote would have caused a scramble. He knew that he would have to maintain headquarters in Dallas for a few days, and perhaps that caused him to withdraw.—Houston Chronicle.

THE TELEGRAM AND THE TEXAS PRESS

LESS POLITICS AND FEWER POLITICIANS

Less politics and fewer politicians is what we need in Texas at this time. It is getting so the people have no time to attend to legitimate and necessary business.—Fort Worth Telegram.

At all events we do not want a fresh campaign or a dozen of them opened up by a resort to the "recall" every thirty days. The terms of men in state and county offices ought to be extended to four years, and more of the people ought to go to the polls and do their duty.—State Press in Dallas News.

Why are there so many politicians? Because the people love them. If a man comes into the community the question is asked: Who is he? If it is said he is a farmer, blacksmith or printer or some one that has to slave for a living, nine times out of ten there will be an elevation of noses. You let it be said that the newcomer is a politician and that he carries a certain district in his pocket, he will be invited out to dinner. If his name is "Joe" seventeen new babies will be named after him at once. It means something to be a politician. Everybody needs the services of a politician. He can make and break the laws whenever he pleases and have the legislative body to fix things so his other political friends can "get in" and hand out the pie. If more districts are needed all he has got to do is to set down to his typewriter and have them cut to suit the occasion. If he finds that he has landed in the wrong bandwagon he can board the next one and everything is then safe and sane. Do away with some people, if you will, but save the man that lives by his wits.—Cleburne Enterprise.

EVERY GRUNT WILL HELP.

Fort Worth people are taking stock in the new organization formed to exploit and maintain the fat stock show. When a certain work has to be done the better for all interests concerned, Fort Worth must speedily come to the front in the matter of that subscription.—Fort Worth Telegram.

FORT WORTH ALWAYS HUSTLES

"And now the report is that home capital is also going to embark in the cotton factory business, and instead of one big cotton mill, Fort Worth is to have two of these great enterprises. As one can not possibly conflict with the other, and Texas needs all the cotton mills that can be induced to locate in the state, Fort Worth is to be congratulated on the prospect. Two big cotton mills will make things hum in this city."—Fort Worth Telegram.

REFLECTIONS OF A BACHELOR

Some men are so fond of work they get all tired out over what they are going to do tomorrow.

The expensive thing about drinking too much is the presents you have to buy your wife to convince her you don't.

If there was only one person in the whole world and it was a woman, guess she would want to dress up just the same.

Anyway, when a girl marries a rich husband there is a great deal of happiness in having the masculine woman often enough to hate the sight of her.

QUAKER REFLECTIONS

Some people impress us, and others oppress us. At a wedding the best man can't always prove his society is hollow. At least it takes a good bit to feed it.

Some fellows never make a stand so long as they can run.

VERDICT THAT RING

WAITING

Serene, I fold my hands and wait,
Nor care for winds, or tide, or sea;
I rave no more 'gainst time or fate,
For lo! my own shall come to me.

I stay my haste, I make delays,
For what avails this eager pace?
I stand amid the eternal ways,
And what is mine shall know my face.

Asleep, awake, by night or day,
The friends I seek are seeking me;
No wind can drive my bark astray,
Nor change the tide of destiny.

What matter if I stand alone?
I wait with joy the coming years;
My heart shall rear where it has sown,
And garner up its fruit of tears.

The waters know their own, and draw
The brook that springs in yonder height;
So flows the good with equal law
Unto the soul of pure delight.

The stars come nightly to the sky;
The tidal wave unto the sea;
Nor time, nor space, nor deep, nor high,
Can keep my own away from me.

These were my yesterday's, but today I sat in Arthur Pickering's office in the towering Alexis building, conscious of the muffled roar of Broadway, discussing the terms of my Grandfather Glenarm's will with a man whom I disliked as heartily as it is safe for one man to dislike another. Pickering had asked me a question, and I was suddenly aware that his eyes were fixed upon me and that he awaited my answer.

"What do I think of it?" I repeated. "I don't know that it makes any difference what I think, but I'll tell you, if you want to know, that I call it infamous, outrageous, that a man should leave a ridiculous will of that sort behind him. All the old money-bags who pile up fortunes magnify the importance of their money. They imagine that every kindness, every ordinary courtesy shown them, is merely a bid for a slice of the cake. They are unappreciative of their money. He was a splendid old man, though God knows he spent some of his money in unappreciated ways. I'll bet $1,000 if I have so much money in the world, that this scheme is your, Pickering, and not his. It smacks of your ancient activities, and John Marshall Glenarm had none of that in his blood. That stipulation about my residence out there is fantastic. I don't have to be a lawyer to know that; and no doubt I could break the will; I've a good notion to try it, anyhow."

"To be sure, you can tie up the estate for half a dozen years if you like," he replied coolly. He did not look upon me as likely to become a formidable litigant. My staying qualities had been proved weak long ago, as Pickering knew well enough.

"No doubt you would like that," I answered. "But I'm not going to give you the pleasure. I abide by the terms of the will. My grandfather was a fine old gentleman. I shouldn't drag his name through the courts—not even to please you, Arthur Pickering," I declared, hotly.

"The sentiment is worthy of a good man, Glenarm," he rejoined. "But this woman who is to succeed to my rights—I don't seem to remember her."

"It is not surprising that you never heard of her."

"When she's not a connection of the family—no long-lost cousin whom I ought to remember?"

"No; she was a late acquaintance of your grandfather's. He met her through an old friend of his—Miss Evans, known as Sister Theresa. Miss Devereux is Sister Theresa's niece."

"I whistled. I had a dim recollection that during my grandfather's long widowhood there were occasional reports that he was about to marry. The name of Miss Evans had been mentioned in this connection. I had heard it spoken of in my family, and not, I remembered, with much kindness. Later I heard of her joining a sisterhood, and opening a school somewhere in the West.

"And Miss Devereux—is she an elderly nun, too?"

"I don't know how elderly she is, but she isn't a nun at present. Still, she's almost alone in the world, and she and Sister Theresa are very intimate."

"Pass the will again, Pickering, while I make sure I grasp these diverting ideas. Sister Theresa isn't the one I must marry, is she? It's the other ecclesiastical embroidery artist—the one with the x in her name, suggesting the sign of the cross, is she?"

"I read aloud this paragraph: 'Provided, further, that in the event of the marriage of said John Glenarm to the said Marian Devereux, or in the event of any promise or contract of marriage between said persons within five years from the date of said John Glenarm's acceptance of the provisions of this will, the whole estate shall become the property absolutely of St. Agatha's School, at Annadale, Wabana County, Indiana, a corporation under the laws of said state.'

"For a touch of comedy commend me to my grandfather! Pickering, you always was a well-meaning fellow—I'll turn over to you all my right, interest and title in and to these angelic sisters. Marry! I like the idea! I suppose some one will try to marry me for my money. Marriage, Pickering, is not embraced in my scheme of life!"

"I should hardly call you a marrying man," he observed.

"Perfectly right, my friend! Sister Theresa was considered a possible match for my grandfather in my youth. She and I are hardly contemporaries. And the other lady with the fascinating algebraic climax to her name—she, too, is impossible; it seems that I can't get the money by marrying her. It'd better let her take it. She's as poor as the devil, I dare say."

"I imagine not. The Evans are a wealthy family, in spots, and she ought to have some money of her own if her aunt doesn't coax it out of her for educational schemes."

"And who on the map are these lovely creatures to be found?"

"Sister Theresa's school adjoins your preserve, Miss Devereux has, I think, some of your own weakness for travel. Sister Theresa is her nearest relative, and she occasionally visits St. Agatha's—that's the school."

"I suppose the embroidery altar cloth together and otherwise labor valiantly to bring confusion upon Satan and his cohorts. Just the people to pull the wool over the eyes of my grandfather!"

Pickering smiled at my resentment. "You'd better give them a wide berth; they might catch you in their Sister Theresa is said to have quite plucked your grandfather."

"St. Agatha's spectacles, the gentle educators of youth and that sort of thing, with a good-natured man for their prey. None of them for me!"

"I rather thought so," remarked Pickering—and he pulled his watch from his pocket and turned the stem with his heavy fingers. He was short, thick set and sleek, with square jaw, hair already thinning and a close-clipped mustache. Age, I reflected, was not improving him.

"I had no intention of allowing him to see that I was a little irritated. I drew out my cigarette case and passed it across the table."

"After you! They're made quite specially for me in Madrid."

"You forget that I never use tobacco in any form."

"You always did miss a good deal of the joy of smoking," I observed, throwing my smoldering match into his waste paper basket, to his obvious annoyance. "Well, I'm the baby boy in my inheritance has a string tied to it. I'm about out of money. I suppose you wouldn't advance me a few thousands on my expectations—"

"Not a cent," he declared, with quite unnecessary vigor; and I laughed again, remembering that in my old age I had been represented in large figures. "It's not in keeping with your grandfather's wishes that I should do so. You must have spent a good bit of money in your tiger hunting exploits," he added.

"I have spent all my money," I replied amiably. "Thank God I'm not a child! I've seen the world and paid for it. I don't want anything from you. You undoubtedly share my grandfather's idea of me that I'm a wild man who can't sit still or lead an orderly, decent life; but I'm going to give you a terrible disappointment. What's the size of the estate?"

Pickering eyed me—uneasily, I thought—and began playing with a pencil. He never liked Pickering's hands; they were thick and white and better kept than I like to see a man's hands.

"I fear it's going to be disappointing. In his trust company boxes here I have been able to find only about $10,000 worth of securities. Possibly—quite possibly—we were all deceived as to the amount of his fortune. Sister Theresa wheedled large sums out of him, and he spent them liberally. Pickering's hands; they were thick and white and better kept than I like to see a man's hands."

"I was restless under this recital. My father never liked Pickering's hands, size, and I had dismissed the will. My conscience pricked me as I recalled an item of $40,000 that I had spent in my grandfather's lifetime. I was not a small fortune as those things are reckoned."

Safe-Guarding An Advertising Investment

You will grant that an investment in advertising should be safe-guarded in every possible way—its security as carefully scrutinized as that of any other investment you make.

BUT strange to relate, when it comes to advertising, the average business man often accepts the mere "judgment" or "opinion" of some advertising man whom he becomes convinced is more or less "expert at the game."

We do not ask the business man to accept alone the ripe judgment developed by our 34 years experience and the largest business of its kind in the world.

No Sir—a tangible, definite basis underlies the advertising investment we ask the business man to make.

We want you to know what we do to eliminate the waste in advertising due to the use of wrong copy and wrong mediums.

We want an opportunity to explain to you in person our tangible basis for advertising, i. e., the Lord & Thomas Record of Results, the ONLY practical

SAFE-GUARD FOR AN ADVERTISING INVESTMENT.

We want to tell you how we can infuse some of the Western Spirit—Initiative, Energy, Aggressiveness, backed by facts—into YOUR advertising.

We want to tell you how our unique position in the advertising world has brought us the $5,000, $10,000, $20,000-a-year brains of the business to focus on your problems—your entire business.

One of our representatives is in your city every few days looking after the interests of some of our present clients. That is why we are advertising in this newspaper—to you—NOW.

Market Feverish But Bull Control Situation—Monetary Causes Some Alleviation

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—The market was feverish and unsteady, a disposition to take hard spots being apparent.

Despite the obstacles the situation well in hand and ceasants as occurred before were as a result followed by only a few issues sold at yesterday's final.

The volume of business during the early hours was estimated last Friday, but the ordinary sales to $1,100,000, and to noon, $1,657,500.

Reactionists Take Heart—Market Outlook More Promising and Selling Pressure Waning. Special to The Telegram. NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—The reaction talker was in his glory today for, while cotton prices did not rise materially, there was less pressure to sell and for the first time in several days new low levels were not established, but upon about during yesterday's late trading expanded several points during the early hours. There was considerably less activity noted than during recent sessions and upon the whole the market ruled very steady.

Liverpool at the start furnished an upward movement by sending reports of higher prices than due, to which the local market responded, prices on the first call being 2 to 4 points higher. But this advance soon gave way to a decline of 10 to 12 points, brought about by profit taking upon the part of the other hand, which in turn was offset by higher prices than that rain was interfering with picking in Texas. This caused some good buying during the early hours, but still above the ordinary sales to 11 a. m., being $13.40, and to noon $13.50. The London news was not conducive to American securities being reported as heavy with prices 1/4 to 1/2 below parity. Nevertheless the opening was generally firm, being supported by a point or more in prices for the leading issues during the first hour. Stocks conspicuous for their strength prior to noon were C. F. D., which sold 3 3/4, and an advance of 1/4.

With the rise of the rate for call loans to 6 per cent during the final hour liquidation became heavy and a general slump occurred, prices dropping a point and more at each sale of the leading issues, the lowest point being reached at the close which was 2 to 3 points lower, with prices 1 to 3 points below parity for the majority of the high priced issues. Sales to 2 p. m. 1,791,400 shares, today's addition to the increased dividend with a rumor to the effect that American Sugar would be placed on a 12 per cent basis.

CHICAGO GRAIN

Lack of Animation Principal Feature in All Pits—Wheat Prices Trifle Higher. Special to The Telegram. CHICAGO, Ill., Aug. 21.—The wheat market again ruled quiet, but firm cables and more crop damage rumors caused shorts to seek cover, imparting strength to the market. Trading, however, was in light volume and prices did not advance with celerity, the upward movement being very gradual, with prices at a net gain of 3/4. The market closed steady with prices at a net gain of 3/4 to 1/2.

Corn The corn market was dull and without feature worthy of note, fluctuations being narrow and final prices unchanged to 3/4 higher. Local receipts 263 cars as compared with 181 this day last year. Estimated receipts for tomorrow, 36 cars.

Oats Oats traders were afflicted with the same lethargy which surrounded the wheat and corn pits and the market shared in the general dullness, lack of activity, if anything, being more accentuated. Closing prices were 1/4 to 1/2 lower. Local receipts 446 cars as compared with 542 this day last year. Estimated receipts for tomorrow, 181 cars.

ALDERMEN DISLIKE AUCTION METHODS

Scheme Comes in for Condemnation at Council

ALSO DEAD ANIMALS Practice of Burying Defunct Rodents in the Open Air Decried—Waterworks Report Discussed

The city council meeting Monday night had before it as the most important subject for consideration the report of the waterworks committee on the present conditions of the waterworks as to the cost of operation and the solution of the difficulty which it is well understood to be serious. The plant does not pay and yet there seems to be a settled belief that at least the city should be throwing the waterworks on a paying basis. The subject was received with serious attention after a brief discussion referred back for more definite information, especially as to the cost of making the suggested changes. The difficulty the city has to contend with in the matter of throwing small dead animals into the streets was made the subject of discussion and the city marshal and the sanitary officers were directed to learn, if they can, what the offenders were and prosecute them to the extent of the law. An alleged mock auction which is run on lower Main street was made the subject of serious complaint by Alderman Maddox, and if a remedy can be found it is to be rigidly applied. The meeting was wonderfully harmonious and businesslike and the nearly two hours session a vast deal of work was done. The meeting was called to order at 7:40 Monday evening with the mayor presiding and six of the aldermen present, Aldermen Zurn and Armstrong being absent from the city and motion of Alderman Waggoner were excused. A number of reports of the finance committee were read and approved. The assessment of the city for the hold effects of W. J. Deen was cancelled. The cost of providing for the drainage and other desired improvements of Oak street was estimated at $400 and the matter was laid over until such time as the financial condition of the city is better. This same course was followed as to the improvement of the Main and Leuda streets crossing, the cost being estimated at $400. The assessment on the personal effects of Adam Conrad was reduced to $100, the original intent of the assessor. The assessment on the Ben Stoll was fixed at $100. The proposition of A. W. Caswell to settle a tax claim of the city for $200 was accepted. There was such a lack of certainty in the description of the property that the collector reported it was doubtful if the claim could be collected. A quit claim deed was ordered made in favor of Mrs. Sallie A. Capps, the need for it growing out of some irregularities in a tax sale. A warrant was drawn on the general fund for the payment of interest, etc., on some of the bonds, for the sum of $4,010, the $10 being for exchange. Some minor claims were allowed. A list of four or five special opera houses, was reported and approved. After Auction Salesmen. This prompted Alderman Maddox to speak of the need for a special or lower lease a temporary officer on lower Main street to stop people from being dragged in or roped in or coaxed in the streets, to a mock auction, as he called it, only he used stronger terms, saying while it was called an auction, it was a robbery for the matter. City Marshal Maddox stated there was no way to reach these people. He really believed he had arrested them, or some of them, twenty times, and had just as often found that it was impossible to make the cases stick. The county attorney had told him that he could do nothing for they were licensed to run their business and as long as they did that they could not be touched. The only thing a special officer could do would be to warn the men who might be tempted, that it was a game where they would surely get into the street and be taken to the police station. After further debate, the mayor suggesting caution, it was decided that the mayor and city attorney should look into the city's authority in the matter and if they could find the power to act to notify the city marshal, who would then have the authority to make the arrests. The city marshal asked that the patrol driver be made a regular policeman. He said it was often necessary for the driver to make arrests and he was referred to the claims committee. Dr. Barber, city health officer, reported he had a lot of business buggies, etc., which had been removed from the streets, now stored at the pound, and he wanted authority to dispose of them in some way by sale or in whatever way might be deemed best. Kindergarten Gets Park. Applications made for the use of the city park for an Easter egg hunt in 1927 were received from the Free Kindergarten Association, the Young Ladies' Building Society of the First Methodist church and the Ladies Aid Society of the Christian tabernacle. Mrs. Kindergarten Association was voted the use of the park. The invitation to take part in the Labor day parade was accepted. A communication from L. S. Leveridge, about his claim for extra work done on the new waterworks, was referred to the waterworks committee. The Royal Academy of Music, the use of the city hall, Sept. 6 and 7, for the purpose of holding their district meeting. Complaint was made by some of the south side citizens that the street gang in its work had torn up some of the crossings over the gutters in front of the premises of the complainant. Mr. Frush spoke to the question and his complaint was referred to the street and alley committee. Dead Animals on Streets. Claims growing out of alleged neglect of the contractor to remove a dead dog after notification was made the subject of some debate, the result was it was by a statement from Dr. Barber that he had sent notifications, which were not heeded. The most of the complaint was about dead rats and dead chickens, which, in defiance of the law, are thrown out into the streets. Several suggestions were made, all of which were the subject of a remedy and at last the final subject was referred to the mayor, the health committee and the city marshal, who have powers to remove the small dead things not covered by the contract with the Southwestern Mechanical Company. Mr. McCutcheon was present and stated that he knew nothing of the troubles alleged to exist and as a matter of fact he had several times had his men remove rats and chickens, sackful of them, when it was merely a matter of good will and not of those things he was required to do. Alderman Cook wanted the sanitary inspectors to look after the removal of the small dead things complained of, but that idea found no encouragement. Immediate steps are to be taken to have the Seventh street bridge repaired and the two street car companies are to be asked to cooperate with the city in the premises. Alderman Cook made the condition of the parts of the street on Main and Houston adjacent to the street car companies' rails the subject of serious complaint. There were some explanations, but finally the subject was referred to the mayor and city engineer to see that the repairs were made. The council then adjourned.

DO YOU KNOW That Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the only medicine sold through druggists which does not contain large quantities of alcohol? It is also the only medicine especially prepared for the cure of the delicate diseases peculiar to women, the maker of which is not afraid to take his patients into his confidence by printing upon each bottle wrapper all the ingredients entering into the medicine. Ask your druggist for this medicine. It is the "Favorite Prescription," too, is the only medicine for women, all the ingredients of which have the unqualified endorsement of the leading medical writers of several schools of practice, recommending them for the cure of the diseases for which the "Favorite Prescription" is advised. Write to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., for a free booklet, and read the numerous extracts from standard medical authorities praising the several ingredients of which Dr. Pierce's medicines are made, and don't forget that no other medicine can show any such professional endorsement. This of itself, is of far more weight and value than any amount of so-called "testimonial" so conspicuously flaunted before the public, in favor of the medicine. The "Favorite Prescription" cures all women's peculiar weaknesses and debilities, such as backache, dizziness, nervousness, and dragging-down sensations in lower abdomen, accompanied by weakening and disagreeable catarrhal, pelvic drains and kindred symptoms. Dr. Pierce and his staff of skilled specialists may be consulted by addressing as above. All correspondence is treated as sacredly confidential. By consulting in this way, the disagreeable questioning and personal examinations are avoided. The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser contains some very interesting and valuable chapters on the diseases peculiar to women. It contains over one thousand pages. ASKS EXPERTS TO LOOK INTO CITY WATER WORKS

Alderman Tells Council Defects Should Be Remedied

REPORT RETURNED

Mayor Harris and Committees to Consult With the City Engineer

The reading of the report of the waterworks committee, prepared by the chairman, Alderman Harold of the Ninth ward, was listened to with profound attention by the city council at the meeting Monday night...

He concludes there was too little regard for the interests of the city in accepting the work done on the water supply and in supervising the construction and said that it is most desirable that some companies which did the work should send some of their experts here to examine the defects...

Largely at the suggestion of Mayor Harris the report was recommitted and to the waterworks committee were added the mayor, the finance committee and the city engineer...

Upon investigation I found a Ventur meter in this 18-inch main and I was advised by the acting superintendent of the waterworks that this meter in an 18-inch line should be replaced...

After looking into the matter and seeing that the meter was worse than useless and was really blocking and hindrance, I took the liberty of recommending that same be removed entirely...

Flushing of Sewers. I am further informed by the acting superintendent of the waterworks that the flushing of sewers is performed in the following manner...

Direct From Wells. It would be, in my opinion, more practical, and less expensive, to use water direct from the wells at this point for the cooling process...

into consideration, I am prepared to furnish an estimate as to the probable cost of such an installation, and respectfully suggest that I be permitted to make suggestions along these lines...

Knowing the amount of water pumped at each revolution of a pump, if the pump is in perfect order, and the number of revolutions per minute is known, it should be an easy matter to determine the amount of water pumped in a given time...

I would recommend, therefore, that during certain hours the pumps be closed down, and that water is used on hand in the standpipe. Further, that the pumps be kept in such shape that they will be ready to start up immediately and full force of pumps be turned into mains...

Some time since the cut-off valve on the 18-inch main to the new city mains was broken and had to be removed, and replaced at a cost of about $1,000. There is an 18-inch discharge from the old system to the city mains...

Upon investigation I found a Ventur meter in this 18-inch main and I was advised by the acting superintendent of the waterworks that this meter in an 18-inch line should be replaced...

After looking into the matter and seeing that the meter was worse than useless and was really blocking and hindrance, I took the liberty of recommending that same be removed entirely...

Flushing of Sewers. I am further informed by the acting superintendent of the waterworks that the flushing of sewers is performed in the following manner...

an extravagant and wasteful manner, and that there is no means of getting the amount of water thus used...

I am informed by the acting superintendent of the waterworks that he has at times found a 2-inch main open, and the water running from same into the sewer in an extremely wasteful manner...

When the 36-inch discharge is out of order it is necessary to use the 18-inch discharge. Upon investigation I found a Ventur meter in this 18-inch main...

I questioned the acting superintendent of the waterworks as to the purpose of this meter and was informed that it had been put there for the purpose of measuring the output of water from the wells and tunnel known as the "Mead system"...

In my opinion, also, a small meter placed in a large main, subject to such immense pressure, would register more water than actually passed through it...

Direct From Wells. It would be, in my opinion, more practical, and less expensive, to use water direct from the wells at this point for the cooling process...

Peptiron Pills Hood's Pills

Is packed to avoid leakage. The hours each pump runs should be noted as to starting time and stopping time, and the repairs on each pump should be kept separate to determine its efficiency...

Boilers, boiler walls, bridge walls, of all sizes and tubes should be watched to get good results. Much depends on temperature of boiler feed water in the coal consumption...

A daily blotter can be kept and later transferred to engineer's report. All indicators or counters can be read and when the displacement of the pump supply is seen how much is pumped daily or monthly...

The engineer's report should show at the end of each month the amount of coal, oil, etc., on hand. This report should be made in duplicate, one copy to the superintendent and the other to the street repair shop...

On a reasonable meter rate and judiciously managed, all water system should be self-supporting or made so. An amount should be taken annually from the general tax funds for fire and water supply...

SAYS PANIC IS GENUINE

Kansas City Man Arrives From Brownsville

ALL STAY INDOORS Women and Children in Terror Until Negro Soldiers Are Removed

John F. Watson of Kansas City was in Fort Worth Monday afternoon, en route home from the southern part of the state, where he had been on a prospecting trip. He left Brownsville Saturday and talked to a Telegram reporter about conditions at the border...

"There is a state of panic at Brownsville, and it will continue so long as the negro soldiers remain there. Nearly every white man in the town is almost ready to shoot, and what women have remained in the city, keep close to their homes, rarely being seen on the streets, and there only in company with their children...

"Many women of Brownsville have fled the city, going across the Rio Grande to Matamoros, Mexico, for safety. Business is paralyzed, and will not resume normal conditions until the negro soldiers are removed. It was a great mistake on the part of the war department to send them to Texas, or to any other southern state for that matter."

Officers Side With Men. "From what I could hear in Brownsville, there was a disposition on the part of the white officers commanding the negroes to shoulder the blame for the trouble on the citizens of Brownsville, or some of them at least. No matter who is to blame, and I believe the insolence of the negroes was the cause, there is but one thing to do by the government if further trouble is to be avoided, and that is to remove the negro troops out of Texas. If this is not done there will be more blood shed, and it will look as if the southern people are inviting it. A negro in uniform is a red flag in the face of southern people, and is bound to bring on trouble and riot. That reason the negro soldier should be kept out of the south. I do not name the southern people for their feelings on this point. If I lived in the south I would be just as they are about it. The south is no place for the negro in uniform, and that is surely known to the officials of the war department."

Fort Worth to Have Fat Stock Exhibition

HALL WILL BE BUILT

Show to Be Placed on Same Plane as That of the National Live Stock Association

Encouraged by the results of last week's canvass for subscriptions to the Fat Stock Show guarantee fund, those having the raising of the fund in charge has gone to work with renewed vigor and with the determination to get the sum required in Fort Worth. Delays are not only dangerous, but in this case may be fatal to the plans for the show next year. Months must elapse before the hall can be built and it will tax the resources of all concerned to provide any kind of a building for the show of 1907, and a building must be provided, for there is not in existence in this city today such a edifice as will provide the absolutely necessary accommodations for the exhibits, which will doubtless be largely increased next year. The fact that the stock yards people have determined to put the show on the same plane as the National Live Stock Exhibition at Chicago will encourage exhibitors and the result should be a greater number of exhibits than ever before and they have come to be of the number 100,000 class that compares most favorably with those shown anywhere.
