FOUR KILLED, MANY HURT IN DEVASTATING TORNADO

Twister Demolishes Houses,
Stores and Factories
DEBRIS IN STREETS
Passes Over New Orleans,
Causing Great Excitement.
Air Full of Timbers

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 4.—A small tornado passed diagonally across the residential portion of the city about 3 a. m. today, taking off the roofs and tearing down fences and doing other damage. No one is reported injured. The tornado crossed the river about Jena street, in the upper district, and cut across to the rear of the Third ward, one side of which is bounded by Canal street. The air was filled with flying planes and other debris. Great excitement was caused in the districts affected by the twisted winds. A warehouse at the corner of Liberty and Poydras streets was blown down. A heavy iron car there was turned upside down. Streets Full of Debris
The tornado, crossing the river near Audubon Park, swept in a northwesterly direction over the city, passing the canal to the west of the Clairborne. It was preceded by a thunderous noise. Along its whole path of three miles or more damage was done. Both telephone and telegraph poles were prostrated, and communication with many parts of the city rendered impossible. Debris was strewn along the car tracks and put the Peters avenue line temporarily out of business. At the corner of Tule and Saratoga streets, a new market in process of construction was leveled. Five new residences in that neighborhood were razed. A negro in Douglas Square was picked up bodily and blown away. Some damage was done at the gas works in the rear of the Third ward. Much damage was done at an oil mill in the same neighborhood.

Houses Blown Down
Further reports of the tornado indicate that a number of houses were blown down by the wind in different parts of the city, lying in the track of the storm. At First and Magnolia streets a house is reported demolished and a woman and child severely hurt. A factory at Erato and Magnolia is also reported to have suffered severely. Skating Rink Destroyed
The Jal Alla skating rink, at the corner of Milan and Carondelet streets, was blown to pieces and the debris from the structure was scattered in every direction. As reports come in the damage in the way of houses destroyed is increasing. There are reports also of people hurt by flying timbers.

Tornado at Other Places
NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 5.—A special from Hammond, La., on the Illinois Central, about fifty miles from New Orleans, says that a tornado struck Pontchartrain, near there, this morning and did heavy damage to property and killed four people. A number were injured.

Deaths Not Confirmed
A report brought in from neighborhood of Lake Pontchartrain, outside the city limits, that lives have been lost there. Later the report of a man named Howes was reported at the lake, but these reports lacked confirmation. Although several deaths were reported from New Orleans, investigation showed that probably not a life was lost here. Many of the injuries occurred near Roberts street and the river front, where the Columbia oil mill and the Jefferson sawmill were badly damaged. A woman and child were injured by the blowing down of a tree at First and Magnolia streets. The wind accompanied by a low hanging cloud and heavy rumble. It traveled northward until it reached the fine residence portion of the city at St. Charles and North avenue. Here the damage was the lightest done in any part of the city. From St. Charles street the wind proceeded straight ahead to the windward of the river front, where it veered sharply to the northward and in this direction passed out of the city.

Path Fifty Feet Wide
The path of the tornado thru the city was from thirty to fifty feet wide. This narrow path was strewn with bricks from demolished chimneys, detached boards, uprooted trees, fallen telegraph poles and an occasional roof. The peculiar feature of the disturbance in the city was the fact that few persons within a half mile of the tornado's path knew there had been a storm.

AUTOMOBILE WILL PENETRATE THE WILDERNESS OF THIBET

LONDON, Oct. 6.—One sequel to the British intrusion into the forbidden land of Tibet, from which agelong custom excluded western inventions, will be the immediate introduction of the automobile. Captain O'Connor, the British trade agent at Cyantze, is taking an 80-horse power motor car for the use of the grand lama of Thashi Lhampa. The incongruity is increased by the fact that neither cart roads nor carriages are known in the neighborhood of Thashi Lhampa, and the motor will be the first wheeled vehicle the natives have seen. The Thashi Lama will have a road made to Cyantze, where there is a new British road. The car will be delivered in pieces at Calcutta

Boy Dies

HONG KONG, Oct. 5.—Further details have been received of the wreck of the emigrant steamer Charter House, voyaging between Hoi Pow and Hong Kong, which foundered off Hainan head on Sept. 30, with the loss of more than sixty lives. The North German Lloyd steamer Kohsi Chang picked up a raft belonging to the Charter House, on which were Chief Engineer Dowse, twenty-three of the crew and two women, after they had been drifting for forty-three hours. On the third and last evening, Oct. 2, the survivors on the raft discovered smoke on the horizon. On observing the Kohsi Chang's hull, there was great joy and the Chinese of the party became frantically happy at the prospect of quenching their maddening thirst and appeasing their hunger.

Little Boy Dies
Captain Rosofsky of the Kohsi Chang rescued the survivors, including a little boy. They had almost collapsed from exhaustion, and were carried on board the Kohsi Chang, being unable to walk. Despite the doctor's unremitting attention the boy died an hour after being taken aboard. Chief Engineer Dowse has been removed to a hospital. The crew of the Kohsi Chang gave unbounded attention to the surviving passengers. Among those who went down with the Charter House were drowned, Chief Engineer Dowse, Second Officer Farquharson, Second Officer Grigor and Engineers Forbes and Maumann, besides the ship's doctor and sixty others.

Enginer's Story
Chief Engineer Dowse, who was among those picked up, in his statement made today said: Previous to starting on the voyage to Hong Kong, the Charter House landed 700 emigrants at Hoi Pow. She departed at 3:30 o'clock the afternoon of Sept. 28, bound for Hong Kong with ninety-seven people on board, including six British officers, the doctor and a full cargo of sugar. Six hours later she was overtaken by a typhoon and the vessel was unable to ride out the gale. The officers were posted at their respective stations. The wind increased, carrying away the masts and rails, the vessel sustaining considerable damage from the sea. The engines were slowed down, but the wind increased and the chances were slight for the vessel to weather the storm. Between 8 and 9 o'clock on Sept. 29 the weight of the storm was encountered and the word was passed that the ship was foundering. The boats were made ready and the crew was lined up on deck.

People Keep Calm
Owing to the heavy sea it was found impossible to launch the boats, but the passengers and crew got into them and awaited the sinking of the steamer, hoping that they would chance to float when she went down. Despite the darkness and the immediate danger of drowning, there was an entire absence of panic. The officers did their duty calmly while the Chinese passengers and crew emulated the officers by their courage in the presence of death.

Ship's Officers Lost
When finally the Charter House sank between the waves only the after boat got away. The other boats were smashed. The ship's officers were in the after boat, which capsized. They managed to reach a raft containing seven Chinese. The Thashi Lama saw another raft. They called out to me that they were all right. I afterwards learned that I met a raft carrying the two firemen. We kept together all day and toward evening found a vacant raft, which I lashed to the one I was on. We were cramped for space and found it impossible to lie down to sleep. We drifted until Monday afternoon, Oct. 1, when we sighted a lifeboat, which disappeared the following morning.

The motives and purposes of the resignation of Mr. Green were discussed at length and the committee unanimously voted to accept the resignation. On his motion, Dr. Alex W. Acheson of Denison was declared the nominee of the party by the unanimous vote of the committee. Dr. Acheson was present and accepted the nomination, delivering a lengthy speech, giving in detail the causes which led up to the reorganization of the party in the state, and closed by saying: "I will give battle to them as long as there is breath in my body and will make a thorough canvass of the state." The committee then proceeded to discuss and block out plans for a vigorous and active campaign in the state.

ACHESON NAMED

Declares He Is Unable to Give
Time to Campaign—Supports the Ticket
DALLAS, Oct. 5.—E. H. R. Green, nominee for governor on the reorganized Republican ticket, declined to serve as the party nominee in a letter sent to the state executive committee of that party, and acting upon this resignation the state executive committee nominated Dr. Alex W. Acheson of Denison to head the ticket. As it is now Dr. Acheson and J. C. Gibbons head the ticket of the reorganized party.

In the letter of Mr. Green, which follows, he declares his allegiance to the reorganized party and pledges his support to the nominees of that party. To the State Chairman of the Reorganized Republican Party of Texas: Dear Sir: Your official notification of my nomination for governor by the reorganized Republican party of Texas was received today. I note with appreciation the confidence and esteem in which your organization holds me, but I cannot see my way clear to accept the nomination; not that I am out of harmony with the aims and purposes of your organization but from the fact that the nominee should be able to give all of his time to the canvass and should personally present the claims of the party and organization to the voters. I find it absolutely impossible for me to do this. I think that the contentions which determined the Republican voters of Texas to reorganize the party are well founded and should appeal to every patriotic voter in the state. The nominees of your committee, as well as the state chairman selected to conduct this campaign, will have my earnest, sincere and best support. I think that Dr. Alex W. Acheson is an able, clean and aggressive leader, and I hope all of my political and personal friends can see their way clear to support him at the polls with their votes. Thanking you for the respect and confidence in which your party holds me, I am, respectfully,
"E. H. R. GREEN."

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Oct. 5.—At least seven were killed this morning in an explosion of gas in the Rapid Transit Company's subway. Fourteen are in the hospital. It is believed that an explosion of gas in the Rapid Transit Company's subway, between Fifth and Seventh streets, is wrecked. Pedestrians were hurled in the air. Six bodies were dragged out of the subway, of whom one is a workman and the others pedestrians. A cart drawn by horses was blown in the air and fell into the burning gas and was cremated. A private telegram was received in this city Friday to the effect that a terrific explosion occurred in Philadelphia, resulting in fifteen killed and twenty missing in debris. The force of the explosion caused the subway at Market and Fifth streets to cave in, carrying workmen and pedestrians to death.

HOUSTON, Texas, Oct. 5.—A Mich has occurred in the Bailey-Crane debate scheduled to occur here Saturday night. Committees representing the respective speakers failed to agree on the division of time, and on which man should open and close. A positive announcement is made that M. M. Crane will speak at the auditorium. It is expected that Senator Bailey will use some other hall. The committees may yet get together on a joint debate, but this is considered very improbable. The committee representing Senator Bailey thus far positively declines to allow Mr. Crane to open and close the meeting.

Crane to Houston
DALLAS, Texas, Oct. 5.—M. M. Crane left for Houston this morning, where he will engage in a joint discussion with Senator Bailey. General Crane went alone in order to avoid the crowd. He declined to discuss the matter of division of time for the debate. The impression is that he will leave the matter to his friends.

CARDEN FEARS PARTY STRIFE

Asks Democrats to Cease Agitation Over Bailey

URGES HARMONY

Declares Party Should Stand
by Primaries and Send Him to Senate
DALLAS, Texas, Oct. 5.—Hon. Geo. A. Carden, chairman of the democratic state executive committee of Texas, gave out an address to the democrats of Texas, in which he urges that further agitation against Senator Bailey be not indulged in, for the reason that he deems it conducive to strife in the party ranks. Following is the address in full: DALLAS, Texas, Oct. 4.—To the democrats of Texas: I have waited some two weeks to discover the trend of public sentiment with respect to the matters and things charged against J. W. Bailey, democratic nominee for senator in the congress of the United States. At four places public meetings have been called to discuss the question of the propriety of Senator Bailey's action in accepting professional employment while serving a term as United States senator. At the Minnesota meeting eighteen persons are reported by the press to have been present, seven of them out of sympathy with the object of the meeting. At Quitman thirty-nine persons and at La Porte twelve persons are reported by the press to have been present and participating. The democratic executive committee of Jefferson county considered the matter and by a vote of ten yeas and two nays has recommended that the congress of the county call to call meetings. It is therefore clear that among democrats there is no general indorsement of this agitation. The matters now urged against Senator Bailey were known before his election in the late democratic primary and before his nomination by the late democratic state convention, and were either then urged against him, or if not urged, could have been urged. He was elected in the primary without opposition and unanimously nominated by the convention. I deem it my duty as chairman of the state democratic executive committee to remonstrate against the further agitation of this matter as being conducive to strife and division in the democratic party, and to suggest that, holding as he does the title of democratic nominee for senator in the congress of the United States as clearly as does any other nominee of the state convention, party loyalty demands that as democrats we uphold this nomination and discountenance all efforts from all sources to discredit the same. This is peculiarly true in view of the fact that for the first time in the history of the state a senatorial nomination had been made at a general primary held under the law of the state, which law was made to apply to United States senators in answer to the general democratic demand that they be elected by the people. In the enactment of this law Texas was a pioneer, and it would be singularly unfortunate if, at this particular juncture, any serious effort was made to disregard this nomination.

Advance Is Resumed

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—The cotton market opened strong and excited today at an advance of 17 to 36 points, which carried the prices to a new high level for the season as a result of much higher Liverpool cables than was expected. The movement of stop-loss orders on the short side and a broadening speculative demand. Bad weather in the south and reports of a squeeze of October shorts were the bull factors. There was tremendous realizing on the advance, but the offerings were taken up and prices held the initial advance, with May selling at 11c. One of the features was an advance of 77 points for December contracts in New Orleans.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Oct. 5.—The cotton market today advanced sharply upon the news of a tornado in this city. December, which closed yesterday at 10.11c, went to 11.24c, while January rose from 10.29c to the same price. Later December fell to 10.92c and January to 11.02c.

TO VISIT U. S. SCHOOLS

500 English Teachers to Probe American Educational Methods
NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—Alfred Moseley, the English educationalist, who sent a commission of Englishmen interested in education to America in 1902, is coming here at the end of this month preparatory to bringing over 500 teachers of English schools. They will come in battalions of fifty or twenty soon after his arrival. A committee of ten headed by Mr. St. Aubin Miller of the education department is now preparing a classification of the public schools of Greater New York, if possible, to make it possible for each visitor to see the kind of schools in which she or he is most interested.

ASKS CRITICISM

First Refuses Dramatic Comment Now Beseeches Newspapers
NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—A London despatch to the Times states that Mr. Boucher of the Garrick theater, who when he produced "The Morals of Marcus" early in September, practically excluded the dramatic critics from the theater, has repeated. He now writes to the editors of the London papers and humbly entreats them to allow criticism of his play to appear in their columns. He says he asks this in justice to the author of the play and those cast in it. The chances are that the editors will retain their Bismarckian attitude toward Mr. Boucher and let him continue to stew in his own juice.

URGES REPUBLIC

South Americans Declare Revolution Necessary to Change Government
NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—A Buenos Ayres dispatch brings news that the congress of Spanish republicans, composed of representatives of Spanish societies in the Latin-American republics, has just closed. The congress closed with declarations that most of the present politicians are incompetent and that revolutionary action is necessary to establish a republic in Spain. They declare the disasters of the war with the United States should be attributed to the political incapacity of monarchial institutions.

MEXICAN WOMEN WORK NINE YEARS MAKING A $40,000 DRESS

CITY OF MEXICO, Oct. 5.—After nine years of most painstaking toil Senora E. Leon de Aguascalientes has completed a dress which is valued at the princely sum of $40,000 gold. She was assisted in the making of the dress by three hundred expert needlewomen, all of whom were well paid. The dress was first intended for the Mexican exhibit at the Paris exposition. As it was at that time incomplete it was decided to display it at the St. Louis exhibit at the Paris exposition. As the dress still saw the work unfinished, Aguascalientes is famous for its drawnwork and needlework and its embroidery artists, but this dress exceeds anything ever attempted or completed in that city. The dress is an exquisite and wonderful example of woman's skill, patience and artistic conception. It consists of a full trained skirt, Eton jacket and bertha, and is made of the sheerest linen, the thread for which was imported from Paris and made in France. The dress is made of the finest linen, the thread for which was imported from Paris and made in France. ORIENTAL GOVERNMENT ASKED TO FORBID EMPLOYMENT

Death of Celestials Under the French at Isthmus Raises
Scare Among Race

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 5.—Officers of the Isthmian canal commission are busily engaged examining proposals recently submitted by contracting firms for furnishing Chinese labor for work on the canal at Panama. Because of peculiar conditions surrounding importation and employment of aliens in this work, complicated in part by the adjustment of some international features which probably will arise, several weeks must necessarily elapse before any conclusions are reached and the contract awarded.

TRouble EXPTECTED

Some doubt is expressed whether the contractors will be able to carry out the contract which may be awarded for supplying coolie labor. Preferably on account of climatic conditions, the Isthmian commission desires that any laborers sent to the Isthmus shall come from the southern provinces of China. In this section reports received at the Chinese legation show that not a single Chinese newspaper favors emigration of Chinese to Panama and the experiences of those who went there for the French canal company are still fresh in the minds of the people. The Chinese were unable to withstand the conditions then existing and it is said that about 75 per cent of those who went there died.

PETITION CHINESE GOVERNMENT

Petitions from Chinese residents in Peru, San Francisco and Panama have been sent to the government at Peking, asking that it refuse its sanction to any proposition proposing to permit contract laborers to go from China to Panama. Thus far, however, the Chinese authorities have remained entirely passive in the matter. The suggestion has been made that if the Chinese government interposes an objection to permit the departure of the coolies for labor on the Isthmus, the contractors as an alternative may report to the Philippine islands or to the Straits settlement, over which the Chinese government has no jurisdiction, for laborers. Any contracts for furnishing coolie labor which may be drawn by the Isthmian canal commission, will before being executed be submitted to the state department for inspection with the view of avoiding any possibility of international complications.

MURDER CHARGED

Trial of Doctor Accused of Killing
Wife Begins Monday
NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—The trial of Dr. Frank Brouwer, charged with the murder of his wife last September, is scheduled to begin next Monday in Toms River, N. J., before Supreme Court Justice Hendrickson. The case has attracted much public attention. The doctor will be defended by I. W. Carmichael of Toms River and Edmund Wilson of Redbank, who will be aided by medical experts. Prosecutor Brown will have with him Franklin McDermott of Jersey City. The state will have as experts Dr. H. W. Cattel of the University of Pennsylvania, who performed the autopsy, and Professor F. A. Guth of Philadelphia, who made the chemical analysis. For the defense Professor John Marshall of the University of Pennsylvania, who watched the analysis, will be a witness. Forty witnesses have already been subpoenaed by the state.

TO LEASE ORE LANDS

United States Steel Corporation After
Great Northern Properties
NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—Further conferences by directors of the United States Steel Corporation were held in the office of J. P. Morgan & Co. yesterday to consider certain phases of the proposed lease of the Great Northern's ore lands to the Steel Corporation. It was announced that progress has been made in the negotiations, but that the matter had not yet been brought to a conclusion. That more or less work remains to be done before the lease can be closed seems indicated by the fact that no call has yet been issued for a meeting of the directors to pass formally upon the terms of the lease. This would not be done, it was explained, until all the questions under discussion have been settled to the satisfaction of both parties to the deal.

NEGRO CHASED ACROSS TEXAS

Black Diamond Brought Here After Capture

FACES DOUBLE CHARGES

Accused of Burglary and Attempted Assault—Prisoner Afraid to Go Back to Mineral Wells

George Williams, alias "Black Diamond," a notorious negro wanted in Mineral Wells on charges of burglary and an attempted criminal assault on a young white woman, was brought to Fort Worth by Marshal John Willie of Mineral Wells Thursday night from Shreveport, near where he was captured, and Friday morning was taken to Weatherford, where he will be for the present confined in jail.

The pursuit and capture of this negro was a good piece of official work and reflects credit on Marshal Willie. The burglary and alleged attempt at criminal assault was made last Saturday night, the negro being arrested by Marshal Willie shortly afterward, but he made a dash for liberty and escaped, receiving as he ran a pistol bullet in his left arm.

After his escape at Mineral Wells the negro made his way east and was again arrested near Weatherford, but again made his escape and came to Fort Worth. Marshal Willie followed the trail to Fort Worth, but when he reached the city the negro had left and was said to be in Dallas. Reaching Dallas, Marshal Willie enlisted Detective Alex Peogues in the hunt for Williams, whom Peogues knew. The trail of the negro from Dallas was soon found leading to the little town of Forney, where four houses, it is alleged, were burglarized by the fugitive in his flight, $25 in money being secured and a certified check for $100.

While being brought back from Shreveport the negro was anxious to know where he was to be taken, and asked the officers not to take him to Mineral Wells.

The meteorological summary compiled at the local weather bureau for the month of September has been issued and shows that during the just closed month of thirty days seventeen days were clear and thirteen were cloudy or partly cloudy. This accounts for the total precipitation for the month of 4.16 inches. Beginning with the 24th four cloudy days followed and the greatest precipitation occurred on the 24th and 25th, being 1.77 inches. This is the record for the month in any one period of twenty-four hours.

Barometer records show storm ranges during the month, the highest atmospheric pressure being 30.11 on the 20th and the lowest 29.36 on the 25th. The mean pressure is 29.98. The highest temperature recorded is 94 degrees on the 2d and the lowest was 56 degrees on the 30th. The mean temperature for the month is 77 degrees, which is lower than the mean for the past two years by 1 degree. 1904 and 1905 were 78 degrees. The mean temperature for September for the past twelve years is 77 degrees and 1906 causes no excess or deficiency.

GALVESTON PORT RECEIPTS GROW

Exports for Last Week in September Reached $11,000,000

The value of the port of Galveston as a shipping point for European exports is growing in the estimation of shippers and the week ending Saturday broke the record for clearances from the port and arrivals at the port.

The value of the exports from Galveston for the last week in September is nearly $11,000,000 and the number of vessels arriving, ocean-going steamers, was nine, while the departures were ten steamers.

The grain shipments for the month were much in excess of any previous month, the wheat alone gaining over five fold in volume, or increasing from a rise of 700,000 to over 3,738,000 bushels. There was also a big increase in the corn and flour shipments. The cotton movement had really just begun and yet in September over 150,000 bales were sent abroad, most of it to Liverpool.

STOCKHOLDERS MEET

Directors of Rock Island, Pacific and Gulf Elected

The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Rock Island, Pacific and Gulf railroad was held in Fort Worth Thursday afternoon and the following directors elected: B. L. Winchell of Chicago, President; J. B. Wilson of New York, S. B. Hovey of Fort Worth, W. G. Newby of Fort Worth, W. G. Turner of Fort Worth and J. B. Wilson of Dallas.

The directors elected the following officers: B. L. Winchell, president; S. B. Hovey, vice president and general superintendent; Fred E. Smith, secretary and treasurer. The expenditure of the necessary sums of money, indefinitely stated as a large amount, was authorized to place the road in the best physical condition, particularly that part between Fort Worth and Dallas, and the yards at Fort Worth, which are to be double-tracked. On the Fort Worth-Dallas line concrete culverts, new steel bridges and permanent betterments are to be made. There was no change in the official family.

WANTS OWN EQUIPMENT

Rock Island Issues Stringent Orders Regarding Thru Freight

The Rock Island-Frisco combination has issued orders, designed to retain its own equipment on its own lines. The combination controls twenty-four different roads and in view of the shortage of cars for the district handling freight when the car supply is short, has prompted the order. When transferable commodities are shipped in system equipment the same must be transferred at the junction points.

It is forbidden to load non-transferable commodities in the cars of the first result of the enforcement of that order may be the loss of a small amount of business, but the advantage of having its own cars for handling of its own business will, it is thought, outweigh the small loss.

LIKE THE SOUTHWEST

B. F. Yoakum and D. G. Reid Speak at Banquet

Colonel B. F. Yoakum, chairman of the executive board of the Rock Island-Frisco lines, was one of the two speakers at a banquet given at St. Louis Thursday evening. D. G. Reid, the chairman of the combined board of the two systems, being the other. The evening was devoted to the subject of the southwest. Colonel Yoakum took occasion to say this: "When the formation of the present Rock Island and Frisco system was completed, I had supreme confidence in the southwest. "The enthusiasm I then felt could

SALTON SEA RISING

Southern Pacific May Have to Move Again Soon

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Oct. 5.—Altho the work of the Southern Pacific is going rapidly forward to check the rising waters of the Salton sea, officials in charge of the work have given orders to construct a new track farther from the path of the rising sea. The water of the Salton sea is already lapping dangerously near the present roadbed of the Southern Pacific. It is calculated that if the present rate of inflow is maintained the tracks of the Southern Pacific will be submerged in a few weeks; in fact, before it has been checked by the new dam.

READY TO MOVE

T. & B. V. Will Come to Fort Worth When Building is Ready

General Manager Mike Sweeney of the Trinity & Brazos Valley was in Fort Worth Sunday and expressed the opinion that the line will be finished by the middle of the month and in actual operation to Houston by Nov. 1. But he puts in the proviso that this will be done if they can get the men they want for the work still necessary; and that is not a certainty by any means, for there is a great shortage of laborers for railway work and the Brazos Valley suffers in this respect, as well as the others. Mr. Sweeney also said that as soon as the building was ready headquarters would be moved to Fort Worth.

TOO MANY LUNCH ROOMS

International & Great Northern Takes Service Away From Lessees

Information has been received from the company's headquarters in Palestine that, beginning with November, all lunch houses and dining stations along the line of the International & Great Northern Railway, from Longview to Laredo and its branches, will be operated exclusively by the company. This is a new departure and means the surrender of leases of lunch stands along its lines now operated by firms and individuals. These stands will doubtless be under the same management as is the dining car service of the road.

Orient Collects Subsidy

The Orient has collected from the Mexican government the second installment of the subsidy granted that line of railway by the government for the building of the road. It is $1,200,000 in amount and is for the second 100 kilometers of the Sierra Madre line, or for the line between Mumaaca and Topolobampo, Mexico.

Railroad Notes and Personals

The stockholders of the Gray's Point Terminal Railway Company held a special meeting at the Cotton Belt general offices, Equitable Building, St. Louis, Monday, September 25. The meeting was called for the purpose of electing a new board of directors. The following were elected: J. B. Wilson, president; S. B. Hovey, vice president; Fred E. Smith, secretary and treasurer. The expenditure of the necessary sums of money, indefinitely stated as a large amount, was authorized to place the road in the best physical condition, particularly that part between Fort Worth and Dallas, and the yards at Fort Worth, which are to be double-tracked. On the Fort Worth-Dallas line concrete culverts, new steel bridges and permanent betterments are to be made. There was no change in the official family.

By Associated Press. WASHINGTON, D. It has already been determined that there must be an election and machinery for a fair election must be constructed by the provisional governor.

SUFFERED AGONIES FOR FOUR YEARS

Whole Foot Nothing But Proud Flesh - Tried Different Physicians and All Kinds of Ointments - Could Walk Only With Crutches - Ohio Man Says:

CUTICURA REMEDIES THE BEST ON EARTH

"In the year 1899 the side of my right foot was cut off from the little toe down to the heel, and the physician, who had charge of me was trying to sew up the side of my foot, but with no success. When he found out that wouldn't work, he began trying to heal the wound with all kinds of ointments, until at last my whole foot and way up above my calf was nothing but proud flesh. I suffered untold agonies for four years, and tried different physicians and all kinds of ointments. I could walk only with crutches. It is sixteen months ago since I began using Cuticura Soap and Ointment for my limb and foot. The first two months the Cuticura Remedies did not seem to work, but I kept on using them both. In two weeks afterwards I saw a change in my limb. Then I began using Cuticura Soap and Ointment of an during the day and kept it up for seven months, when my limb was healed up just the same as if I never had trouble. It is eight months ago since I stopped using Cuticura Remedies, the best on God's earth. I am working at the present day, after five years of suffering. The cost of Cuticura Ointment and Soap was only $4, but the doctors' bills were more like $600. You can publish my name and refer any one to write to me about Cuticura Remedies. I will answer all letters if postage is enclosed. John H. Lloyd, 718 S. Arch Ave., Alliance, Ohio, June 27, 1905."

DAY OF BETTER CATTLE IS COMING

V. U. Hildreth Vents Opinions of Conditions

V. U. Hildreth is among Tarrant county's best known stockmen, and is an authority on the merits of the Shorthorn variety of cattle, of which he has made a study and is a past master in "judging their merits."

"My ranch is on the line of Tarrant and Parker counties," said he, when in town a day or two ago. "I am a native of Kentucky and have been accustomed to attending fat stock and other stock shows, and thus have had the bloom, so to say, rubbed off when it comes to shows of this sort. Still I make exhibits at the Fort Worth fat stock show and anything that is of interest to the stockman, and that is likely to advance his interests. The day is approaching when all Texas will attend to the business of raising better and fatter stock of all kinds. The business is at present only in its infancy. This show will, no doubt, branch out to a regular breeders' and feeders' show, where cattle will be judged not alone by the fat that they carry, but also upon their carcasses, but also upon their points. This is as it should be and will bring many others to the show with their stock that are barred out now."

"My stock are all Shorthorns. I do not know that I have the best in the world, but mine are as good as the best, any way. Cattle are doing fine and everything indicates that the winter will be a good one for them in so far as feed is concerned. "Crops are all good with us. I have 100 acres of my land in cultivation, which will bring not less than three-quarters of a bale of cotton to the acre certain. There is no weevil and weevils show no evil intentions so far, that will damage the crop to any extent. "The grass will be benefited by this dry spell too, and while the coast of Alabama and Mississippi has been deluged this week we have been lucky and are getting dry."

COL. WYNNE TO PARTY

Urges Democrats to Protest at Criticism of Bailey

An open letter to Texas democrats has been written by Colonel M. Wynne of Fort Worth, urging them to protest against criticism now being directed at Senator Bailey. Colonel Wynne says in part:

"I am glad to see a loyal democrat in Texas to stand by our nominees, each and all of them, without distinction, and brand as bores all democrats who dare assail any one of them or the platform of the democratic party. The true test of democratic faith and party fealty has ever been to accept without question or protest the will of the majority as to nominees and platform and to vote the ticket without distinction or discrimination, and any man claiming to be a democrat who has ever in the past bolted either has had to wear the brand of bolter and stand politically cursed, and so it must be if our party action is to prove of binding effect and the party hope to accomplish needed reforms demanded in the interest of the people of this state. "Democrats have heretofore always made their fight in the democratic party as between democrats before the primary and before the conventions and urged their objections to men and measures then, and never a word after, and if we hope to accomplish anything by party organization, we must maintain with the strictest and most rigid rule that party discipline that permits no shadow of variance. Not only party fealty demands this, but the personal honor of every man that participates in the primaries or conventions of the democratic party. "Senator Bailey needs no defense at my hands, nor at the hands of any democrat in Texas. His splendid official record as a representative in congress for fifteen years, both in the house and senate, places him so high above the puny efforts of his traducers that there can be no possible danger to him. In truth, it is a condescension for him, or any democrat, to answer these sensational assailants, who are not democrats, but socialists and republicans, as is well known. "As to the democrats participating in them, these assaults would be powerless if made before Senator Bailey was the nominee of the democratic party."

SOCIAL SEASON

The Mayo-Lewis Wedding Miss Eva Mae Lewis was married Thursday evening to Ragsdale B. Mayo and a very beautiful and winsome bride she was, but the smiles and tender words of affection were not called out by her beauty so much as by sympathy with the happy realization of a sweet love story that began so long ago that neither bride nor her groom remember when. Both families have been friends for more than twenty-five years—more years in fact than either is old. Every guest at the wedding Thursday evening knew the story and was glad. The decorations were effective, southern smilax and asparagus ferns being favored for festoons and draperies. Behind the nuptial corner was a bank of palms, and festoons of smilax and ferns were held back by bows of white satin ribbon. In the dining room where the ices were served after the ceremony, La France roses and pink ribbons were used, while in the punch room were deep red roses and carnations. The punch bowl was set in a bed of Chinese fruit of rich coloring. The music before the ceremony was rendered by Miss Grace Devenport, who gave a violin number, and Miss Helen Murdock, who sang "I Love You," by special request. The Rev. J. E. French officiated at the ceremony. Miss Edna Lewis, the bride's sister, was the maid of honor. Charles Sykes being the groom's attendant. The bride's gown was white linen, with plisse skirt trimmings and lace bertha for the bodice. The veil was fastened with lilies of the valley and the bouquet was of bride's roses. The maid of honor's frock was of Paris muslin, with bands of Venetian embroidery. She carried bridesmaid roses. The presents number more than a hundred articles, those attracting the most attention being a set of china and a tapestry panel painted by Mr. Mayo's mother, both being greatly admired. From the employees of the Nash Hardware Company came a punch bowl, tankard and water bottles of imported Amsterdam ware. The King Candy Company remembered their valued employe with a silver electrolier with green shade in Tiffany ware with silver and crystal beaded fringe. Mr. and Mrs. Mayo will take a bridal trip of two weeks and will then be at home in Daggett avenue in the cozy cottage, all ready and furnished for them by M. J. Lewis, the bride's father.

The Friendship Study Club will meet with Mrs. Lennon on South Daggett street next Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock for election of officers. All members are requested to be present.

There will be an interesting musical program at the Broadway Presbyterian church Friday night. A large attendance is anticipated.

A number of friends of Mrs. H. H. Ingram surprised her Thursday evening by making her an unexpected call. Lunch was brought along. Mrs. Ingram was called upon, however, to furnish the coffee, which she promptly did. Music and games furnished the amusements.

The Daughters of the Confederacy will hold their monthly meeting this afternoon in the camp room of the veterans. The officers for the ensuing year will be elected.

The Kensington Klub The Kensingtons began their contributions to social activities Thursday by holding with Mrs. V. S. Wardlaw a happy meeting with all the members present. A few guests enjoyed the afternoon's pleasant conversation. Interchange of needlework ideas and the appetizing luncheon prepared by Mrs. Wardlaw. The members present were Mesdames Judd, Ryan, Fruit, Covert, Lassiter, Gray, Ellison, Waller, Jordan, Hart, Jesse Melton, J. H. Melton, Moore, Williams, Darnell, Want and Miss Mattie Melton. The guests were Mesdames John Moore, Burch, Taylor, Harper, Felder, Talbert, Hubbert, Misses Mamie Willing, Moore, Taylor, Murphree, and Clarke. Mrs. John C. Ryan will be the hostess of the club Thursday, Oct. 18.

FANCY FOOD HIGHER

Olives, Sardines and Canned Goods to Advance Olives, sardines and other fancy groceries will be short in supply this fall and winter, according to advices received from the larger markets of the north and east, and higher prices are predicted. For the first time in years the local fancy grocery market is anticipating a stiff advance in prices. The words comes from the canneries that this winter will see fancy canned good leap skyward, while olive packers declare that they are running months behind with orders, some of which will never be filled by reason of the olive crop being short. The destruction of two of the largest canning plants and olive bottling establishments in San Francisco at the time of the fire and earthquake has had a lot to do with the present situation. The smaller plants throughout the country have had more than they could attend to.

No other female medicine in the world has received such widespread and unqualified endorsement. No other medicine has such a record of cures of female troubles or such hosts of grateful friends as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It will entirely cure the worst forms of Female Complaints, Inflammation and Ulceration, Falling and Displacement, and consequent Spinal Weakness, and is peculiarly adapted to the Change of Life. It has cured more cases of Backache and Local Weakness than any other remedy the world has ever known. It is almost infallible in such cases. It dissolves and expels tumors in an early stage of development. Irregular, Suppressed or Painful Periods, Weakness of the Stomach, Indigestion, Bloating, Nervous Prostration, Headache, General Debility quickly yield to it. Deranged organs, causing pain, weight and backache, instantly relieved and permanently cured by its use. Under all circumstances it invigorates the female system. It quickly removes that bearing-down feeling, extreme lassitude, "don't care" and "want-to-be-left-alone" feeling, excitability, irritability, nervousness, dizziness, faintness, sleeplessness, flatulency, melancholy or the "blues" and headache. These are sure indications of Female Weakness, or some derangement of the organs, which this medicine surely cures. Chronic Kidney Complaints and Hiccups, of either sex, the Vegetable Compound cures. Those women who refuse to accept anything else are rewarded a hundred thousand times, for they get what they want—a cure. Sold by Druggists everywhere. Refuse all substitutes.

NEGRO MUST DIE

Drops Insanity Stunt and Cries When Hears Sentence. Special to The Telegram. SAN ANTONIO, Texas, Oct. 5.—Judge Dwyer has fixed the date for the execution of H. L. Mays, the negro charged with insanity, for Oct. 12. As soon as the sentence had been passed Sheriff Tobin went at once to the negro's cell and informed him of the fact. Mays was doing his customary insanity stunt, but when he heard Tobin pronounce the death sentence he broke down and sobbed like a child. All pretense of insanity dropped from the negro like a cloak. Mays had only ten more days to live and there is every evidence that he is badly scared, as he spent all day today praying in the county jail.

WINE OF CARDUI

Young and Old. 'Tis truly pitiful, to think of the terrible suffering that girls and women of all ages endure, because they have contracted some disease peculiar to their sex. Female diseases do more than any others in breaking down natural strength, and in filling our homes with miserable suffering mothers and wretched weakly children. Every girl and woman who is subject to such sickness should take to strengthen, relieve or cure. Read this letter from Mrs. Maggie Stout, of Gabbatha, Tenn. "I suffered for a year, so bad I could not walk but a short distance. I took one bottle of Cardui and now I feel like a new woman and can do my house work." And Haskel Womack, the druggist in that town, writes in confirmation: "I sold Mrs. Stout the Cardui myself, and it has greatly relieved her." Cardui is a safe, pleasant, non-intoxicating, strengthening tonic, for girls or women. Try it. At Every Drug Store in $1.00 Bottles

WINE OF CARDUI

Synopsis of Previous Installments
 John Glenarm, a roving young engineer, is willed an estate near Annandale, Ind., by his grandfather, on condition that he live there a year, else it will revert to Marian Devereux of New York, niece of the elder Glenarm's friend. Young Glenarm, returning to New York from Africa, is informed of the terms of his grandfather's will by Pickering, a lawyer, his former schoolmate, whom he greatly dislikes.
 He accepts the term of his grandfather's will and, starting for Indiana, accidentally meets his chum Laurance Donovan. The two dine at Sbergy's, and see there Pickering, accompanied by a young woman whose face impresses Glenarm.
 While Glenarm is seated in his grandfather's house, the first evening of his arrival, a bullet whizzes by his head and flattens itself against the wall.
 He accepts the terms of his grandfather's will and goes to Indiana. On the night of his first stay he is shot at while seated by the fireplace, but falls to discover his mysterious assailant. Next morning he takes a walk to the nearby village and returning sees a fight between his long-servant, Bates, and Morgan, a villager.
 Twice, returning to the house, Glenarm hears voices and once while walking in the woods at night he comes across Morgan sounding the walls of his grandfather's estate with a hammer. Also a party, Morgan flings his hammer at Glenarm and the latter fires his revolver, but both miss. Glenarm becomes convinced that Morgan and Bates are engaged in a leagued and that it was Morgan who fired at him through the window the first night of his stay at his grandfather's house.

This belief is further strengthened when he, after a tour of his grandfather's house late at night, comes across Morgan and the two have a fierce revolver battle. Morgan is wounded and Glenarm learns next day, through Rev. Paul Stoddard, chaplain of St. Agatha's school nearby, that Morgan wishes word of his condition sent to Pickering.
 Adjoining Glenarm's place is a fashionable school conducted by Sister Theresa, of whom Marian Devereux is a niece. At various times passing through the woods and about the place Glenarm falls in with Olivia Armstrong, a mischievous school girl, who is finally expelled from the school for her pranks. Glenarm is at the school the day he leaves and confesses her, unconsciously, with Marian Devereux. The latter, carrying out the part of Olivia, challenges Glenarm to find her and visit her. Glenarm learns from the chaplain the identity of Marian Devereux, that she has gone to Cincinnati to visit the Armstrongs, and after going to his room and pleading illness to his servant, drops out of the window, catches a train for Cincinnati and finds Miss Devereux at the Armstrong home.

 Morgan was coming up with a club in his hand, making directly for me, two men at his heels, and the rest veering off toward the wall of St. Agatha's.
 "Watch the house," I yelled to the chaplain; and then, on the edge of the wood, Morgan came at me furiously, swinging his club over his head, and in a moment we were fencing away at a merry rate. We both had revolvers strapped to our waists, but I had no intention of drawing mine unless in extremity. At my right Stoddard was busy keeping off Morgan's personal attacks, but he seemed reluctant to close with the clergyman.
 I have been, in my day, something of a fencer, and my knowledge of the foil stood me in good stead now. With a tremendous thwack I knocked Morgan's club flying over the snow, and as we grappled, Bates yelled from the house. I quickly found that Morgan's wounded arm was still tender. He flinched at the first grapple and his anger got the better of his judgment. We kicked up the snow at great rate, and he caught hold of my belt with one hand and with a great wrench dragged me from my feet, but I plinked his arms and bent him backward, then, by a trick Larry had taught me, flung him upon his side. It is not I confess, a long business matching your brute strength against that of a fellow man, and as I cast myself upon him and felt his hard-blown breath on my face, I hated myself more than I hated him for engaging in so ignoble a contest.
 Bates continued to call from the house.
 "Come on at any cost," shouted Stoddard, putting himself between me and the men who were flying to Morgan's aid.
 I sprang away from my adversary, snatching his revolver, and ran toward the house. Stoddard close behind, but kept his hands well between me and the men who were now after us in full cry.

"Shoot, you fools, shoot!" howled Morgan, and as we reached the open meadow and ran for the house a shotman roared back at us and buckshot snapped and rattled on the stone of the water tower.
 "There's the sheriff," called Stoddard behind me.
 The officer of the law and his deputy ran into the park from the gate of St. Agatha's, while the rest of Morgan's party were skirting the wall to join them.
 "Stop or I'll shoot," yelled Morgan, and I felt Stoddard pause in his gigantic stride to throw himself between me and the pursuers.
 "Sprout for it hot," he called vengefully, as though he were coaching me in a contest of the most amiable sort imaginable.
 "Get away from those guns," I panted, angered by the very generosity of his defense.
 "Feint for the front entrance and then run for the terrace and the library door," he commanded, as we crossed the little ravine bridge. "They've got you all right."
 Twice the guns boomed behind us, and twice I saw shot cut into the snow about me.
 "I'm all right," called Stoddard reassuringly, still at my back. "They're not a bit anxious to kill me."
 I was at that time of speed now, but the clergyman kept close at my heels, I was blowing hard, but he made equal time with perfect ease.
 The sheriff was saying orders to the Irishman who awaited us before the front door. Bates and Larry were not visible, but I had every confidence that the Irishman would reappear in the fight at the earliest moment possible. Bates, too, was to be reckoned with, and the final struggle, if it came in the house itself, might not be unequal, providing we knew the full strength of the enemy.

"Now for the sheriff—here we go!" cried Stoddard—beside me—and we dashed suddenly to the fringe of trees that shielded the entrance. Then off we veered suddenly to the left close upon the terrace, where one of the French windows was thrown open and Larry and Bates stepped out, urging us on with lusty cries.
 They caught us by the arms and dragged us over where the balustrade was lowest, and we crowded thru the door and slammed it. As Bates snapped the bolts Morgan's party discharged its combined artillery and the sheriff began a great clatter at the front door.
 "Gentlemen, we're in a state of siege," observed Larry, filling his pipe.
 Shot pattered on the walls and several panes of glass cracked in the French windows.
 "All's tight below, sir," reported Bates, "I thought it best to leave the tunnel trap open for our own use. Those fellows won't come in that way—it's too much like a blind alley."
 "Where's our prisoner, Larry?"
 "Potato cellar, quite comfortable, thank."

It was 10 o'clock and the besiegers suddenly withdrew a short distance for parley among themselves. Outside the sun shone brightly; and the sky was never bluer. In this moment of respite, while we made ready for what weeding off toward the wall of St. Agatha's.

"You'll stay where you are," I said sharply, and I found myself restlessly fingering my revolver.
 "Very good," and the hurt look in his eyes touched me.
 "Bates is all right," Larry declared, with an emphasis that was meant to rebuke me.
 Chapter XXVI.
 THE FIGHT IN THE LIBRARY.
 "They're coming faster this time," remarked Stoddard.
 "Certain advance of the general has been cursing them right heartily for retreating without the loot. He wants his three-hundred-thousand-dollar autograph collection," observed Larry.
 "Why doesn't he come for it himself, like a man?" I demanded.
 "Like a man, do you say," ejaculated Larry. "Patience and you flatter that fat-head."
 It was nearly 11 o'clock when the attacking party returned after a parley on the terrace beyond the east-house. The four of us were on the terrace ready for them. They came smartly thru the wood, the sheriff and Morgan leading the rest of the others. I expected them to slacken their pace when they came to the open meadow, but they broke into a quick trot at the water tower and came toward the house as steady as veteran campaigners.
 "Shall we try gunpowder?" asked Larry.
 "We'll let them fire the first volley," I said.
 "They've already tried to murder you and Stoddard in in for letting loose with the elephant guns," proposed the Irishman.
 "Stand to your clubs," admonished Stoddard, while our weapon was comparable to the Scriptural weaver's beam. "Possession is nine points of the fight, and we've got the house."
 "Also a prisoner of war," said Larry, grinning.
 The English detective had smashed the glass in the barred window of the potato cellar and we could hear him howling and cursing below.
 "Looks like business this time!" exclaimed Larry. "Spread out now and the first shot will be over the balustrade gets a dose of hickory."
 When twenty-five yards from the terrace the advancing party divided, half halting between us and the water tower and the remainder swinging around the house toward the front entrance.
 "A look at that!" yelled Larry. "It's a battering ram they have. O man of peace! have I your Majesty's consent to try the elephant guns now?"
 Morgan, who had been well out between them a stick of timber from which the branches had been cut, and with a third man to help, they ran it up the stairs against the door with a crash that came booming back thru the house.
 Bates was already bounding up the front staircase, a revolver in his hand and a look of supreme rage on his face. Leaving Stoddard and Larry to watch the library windows, I was after him, and we clattered up the loose boards in the upper hall and into a great unfinished chamber immediately over the entrance. Bates had the window up when I reached and he yelled a warning to the men below.
 He had his revolver up to shoot, and when I caught his arm he turned to me with a look of anger and indignation. I had never expected to see on his colorless, masklike face.
 "My God, sir! That door was his pride, sir—it came from a famous house in England, and they're wrecking it, sir as tho' it were common pine."
 He was so full of grief of his grasp as the besiegers again launched their battering ram against the door with a frightful crash, and his revolver cracked snarling thrice as he bent out with one hand clinging to the window frame.
 His shots were a signal for a sharp reply from one of the men below, and I felt Bates start, and pulled him in, the blood streaming from his face.
 "It's all right, sir—all right—only a cut across my cheek, sir," and another bullet smashed thru the glass, splintering plaster dust from the wall. A fierce onslaught below caused a tremendous crash to echo thru the house, and I heard firing on the opposite side, where the enemy's reserve was waiting.
 Bates, with a handkerchief to his face, protested that he was unurt.
 "Come below; there's nothing to be gained here"—and I ran down to the hall, where Stoddard stood, leaning upon his club like a Hercules, my coolly watching the door as it leaped and shook under the repeated blows of the besiegers.
 A gun roared again at the side of the house, and I ran to the library, where Larry had pushed furniture against all the long windows save one, which he held up with a splintered revolver at the men who were now creeping along the edge of the ravine beneath us. One of them stopped and discharged a rifle at us with deliberate aim. The ball snapped snow from the balustrade and screamed away harmlessly.
 "Bah, those monkeys!" he muttered. "I believe I've hit that chap!" One man had fallen and lay howling in the ravine, and the rest, while his comrades paused, demoralized.
 "Serves you right—you blackguard!" Larry muttered.
 I pulled him in and we jammed a cabinet against the door.
 Meanwhile the blows at the front continued with increasing violence. Stoddard said that where I had left him. Bates was not in sight, but the barking of a revolver above showed that he had returned to the window to take vengeance on his enemies.
 Stoddard shook his head in deprecation.
 "They fired first—we can't do less than get back at them," I said, between the blows of the battering ram.
 A panel of the great oak door now splintered in, but in their fear that we might use the opening as a loophole, they scampered out into range of Bates' revolver. In return we heard a rain of small shot on the upper ravine and a few seconds later Larry shouted that the flanking party was again at the terrace.
 This movement evidently heartened the attacking party, and they rushed upon Bates, his men rushed up, and the door crashed again into the door, shaking it free of the upper hinges. The lower door, however, was wrenched loose an instant later, and the men came tumbling into the hall—the sheriff, Morgan and four others I had never seen before. Six, unusually and were smashing the small panes of the French windows. We could hear the glass crack and rattle above the confusion of the door.

Indians Declare Cameras Are Bad Medicine

Special to The Telegram.
SAN ANTONIO, Texas, Oct. 5.—Another party of "blanket" Indians passed thru here for the colony in Chihuahua, Mexico. As they go out from here on the regular California Sunset Limited they always attract a great deal of attention from the tourists. The Indians threaten to go on the war path unless they are given some protection from the kodak fiends and the inquisitive easterners. The Indians object very seriously to having their pictures taken and if he comes out of the coach for a little fresh air he is always kept on the dodge. "One day I will take a kodak into the middle of next week," said one of them, who knows English slang, "and I guess some of them will add-doo pretty quick. I say '23' for me for these kodaks."

CARNEGIE HOLDS ON TO MILLIONS

Story Canard He Would Part With $5,500,000

Special to The Telegram.
LONDON, Oct. 5.—The very pretty story of that $5,500,000 trust soon to be distributed by Andrew Carnegie for the benefit of humanity proved to be a canard. According to the Yorkshire Herald, which put the story in circulation, Mr. Carnegie had called upon the school boards and other public bodies of Scotland to advise him as to his disbursements, and it was gravely stated that Mr. Carnegie did not care much where the money might go so long as he should get rid of it, and that he made only one stipulation, namely, that no preacher should get a penny of the money. He was willing to buy any number of church organs, but preachers must look elsewhere than to him for their support.
Now the whole story has been denuded from Skibo castle, and the preacher is no worse off than anybody else.

BRYAN DROPS FIGHT

Sullivan Controversy Sunk Because of Greater Emergencies

Special to The Telegram.
CHICAGO, Oct. 5.—Congressman Henry C. Rainey, who has the long-sought distinction of being the only democrat in the Illinois congressional delegation, announced the more or less comforting news yesterday that William Jennings Bryan had temporarily abandoned his fight on National Committee-man Roger C. Sullivan and would campaign for the cause of democratic ticket. Democratic politicians believe this action is due to the ugly row that has been started by Hearst, who is leading the forty organizations in the west and working harmoniously with Tammany in New York City, and other public bodies, who are willing to sacrifice his pride in order to keep his record clear on party loyalty. In other words, he will be a "regular" democrat until after the state election, when he is expected to again go after the scalp of Sullivan. "Mr. Bryan's sudden changes—his mind very quickly," was the comment of Sullivan.

HALF NOT TOLD

More Light on Bailey-Pierce Texas Oil Deal

Special to The Telegram.
WACO, Texas, Oct. 5.—Speaking of the claim of Senator Bailey at Greenville that he had only interested himself casually while at Austin in behalf of the Waco-Pierce Oil Company, in seeking to allow them to continue business in Texas, a public man said yesterday afternoon:
"The testimony of C. F. Thomas of Waco before the legislative investigating committee would be powerful in itself and would certainly contradict the statement of Mr. Bailey, or show that he was taking much more than a passing and casual interest. It will show that Senator Bailey stopped off in Waco and held a long consultation with the attorneys in this matter, and an effort was made to adjust the actions against Mr. Pierce and associates. This fact was not mentioned by Mr. Bailey, who should have been more complete in details. That testimony would be interesting, and I would like to see it in print again."

HURT IN RUNAWAY

Team Crashes Into Carriage, Throwing Woman to Ground

Special to The Telegram.
TAYLOR, Texas, Oct. 5.—What came very near being a fatal runaway accident occurred on Main street yesterday afternoon. A farmer stopped his team at the public watering trough, when a bale of cotton on the wagon fell to the ground, barely missing the team and causing them to run away. The loaded wagon crashed into a buggy, and the driver, a woman, was thrown out of the street, injuring her seriously, and owing to her advanced age she may not recover. Further down the street the team ran into another buggy, which was empty, tearing a wheel off.

GORDON, Texas, Oct. 5.—News has been received here of the suicide of George Bell at the home of W. W. Johnson, in this place. Bell was working on Johnson's ranch and was thrown by a horse and pretty badly hurt. He was carried to the ranch house and insisted on lying on the porch, but was carried into a bedroom while Johnson went after assistance. When he returned he found Bell had placed a pistol in some way and placed it against his head, ending his life instantly by his discharge.
Bell was an Englishman and about 60 years of age. When picked up after being thrown by the horse he expressed the wish that his neck had been broken.

Government Pushing Experiment to Exterminate the Boll Weevil

Special to The Telegram.
PORT LAVACA, Texas, Oct. 5.—J. D. Murrell, government entomologist, is here engaged on an important mission. He is prosecuting an experiment in the matter of exterminating the boll weevil and has purchased the cotton from all the farmers on the Caracochua peninsula in the fields about them 50 cents per acre for plowing under all the stalks and bolls. Mr. Murrell is confident that if this is universally done before the weevil begins to hibernation, it will destroy the bug in such vast numbers as to ultimately exterminate his kind. The farmers of the district mentioned readily agreed to act upon his suggestion and at once began the work of plowing under the stalks, bolls, weeds and everything else, every two years he will announce the result of his experiment for the benefit of the agricultural world.

300,000 WILL SEE AUTOMOBILE RACE

Eighteen Fast Motors Entered in Championship Contest

By Associated Press. NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—Eighteen of the fastest motor cars in the world, representing America, France, Italy and Germany, will start at 6 o'clock tomorrow morning in a road race of 297.1 miles on Long Island, for the cup offered by William K. Vanderbilt Jr. The pilgrimage of automobile enthusiasts to the scene of the struggle has already begun.

That there will be the greatest crowd on record to view the race is beyond doubt. Every farm house and hotel within reach of the course will be filled tonight with men and women. Fabulous prices will be paid for sleeping accommodations. Cots will be placed in hallways and stables. Any discomfort will be endured in order to see the great race of steel giant cars.

Expect Crowd of 300,000

The Long Island railroad has arranged to transport nearly 200,000 passengers and as every foot of parking space along the thirty-mile course has been engaged, it is conservative to say that 50,000 persons will journey to the course in automobiles. It is estimated that more than 300,000 persons will be on hand.

Colonel D. H. Hoover, banker, stockman and general business ruler from Davis, I. T., was in town the other day. Colonel Hoover has some of the finest cattle in the west, which was evidenced by his capturing the sweepstakes prize at the late fat stock show in Fort Worth for all ages of bulls. He also captured the blue ribbon for the best single male.

Corn is a very fine crop generally, and where it has not been hurt by the waters in the river and creek bottoms. Cotton is in good shape, and very little worms are reported. AMERICAN MADE CUBAN GENERAL

Asked to Resign and Given $1,200 Salary

By Associated Press. WICHITA, Kan., Oct. 5.—C. A. Mosher of Wichita received a commission as a general in the Cuban army Wednesday and was asked to resign. His commission came directly from President Palma.

He intended to raise a regiment of rough riders similar to the one led by Theodore Roosevelt in 1898.

When Secretary Taft arrived in Havana harbor Mosher was asked to resign and return the commission sent him by the Cuban government. In the same letter a draft was sent him for his salary as a Cuban general since the date of his commission.

Mr. Mosher is more than 60 years of age and is an old soldier. He served in the Union army as a lieutenant in the Eighth Illinois infantry. Although he is more than $1,200 richer, he is sorry that Secretary Taft recalled his commission. His actual expenses of securing the commission was 29 cents.

TALK OF CHARTER FOR FORT WORTH

Meeting Held in the Office of Mayor Harris

The appointed committees of the various interested organizations who are supposed to represent about all of the interests in the city affected by the proposed formation of a new charter, which is to be submitted to the next legislature, met at the mayor's office Thursday evening to map out the general program for the guidance of the committee, and in a modified form, that suggestion was finally made the basis of a resolution which was prepared by Captain Paddock and Clarence Ousley and adopted by the meeting.

The resolution reads:

Resolved, That the chairman of this meeting appoint five committees of three men each to have charge of the following departments of the city, 1. Judiciary, ordinances and all matters of a legal nature. 2. Revenue and taxation. 3. Police, fire department and public schools. 4. Streets, alleys, public buildings and property. 5. Waterworks, sewerage and lights.

Resolved, further, that the chairman of these several committees shall constitute a committee on revision and report, whose duty shall be to harmonize the work of the several committees and provide for any omissions that may be found in the work of the several committees, and to prepare the charter to be submitted to the people for their consideration.

Resolved, further, That it is the sense of this general committee that the charter to be submitted to the people for a city government by commissioners to be elected at large.

Before the form was finally reached Messrs. Paddock, M. S. Harris, W. D. Williams, Ousley, McLean, Stephens, Woodman, Scott and maybe others spoke.

It was a thoroughly harmonious meeting and the only struggle was to clear the field for such action as would most speedily attain the desired result. The sentiment was general in favor of the commission form of government, and after all of the other-part of the work was done, the mayor offered a resolution, which was adopted, expressing as the sense of the meeting, that the draft of a charter prepared by A. J. Baskin be made the working basis for the committees.

Mr. Baskin explained some of the features of his plan for the charter.

Mayor W. D. Harris was named the permanent chairman of the committee and A. J. Baskin and W. P. Lane secretaries.

Those present were: City Council—Mayor Harris, R. F. Cook, Trades Assembly—Lee Stephens, J. E. Shanahan and C. W. Woodman, Board of Trade—J. E. Weeden, Clarence Ousley, Factory Club—E. H. Carter, Dr. J. L. Cooper, Bar Association—Thomas D. Ross and M. H. Harris, Butchers and Grocers—M. Bergman, Harry Adams and W. L. Wise, Others—A. J. Baskin.

The other members were W. P. Lane, A. J. Baskin, William D. Williams, A. L. Matlock, W. M. Knight, W. F. McLean, R. B. Paddock, W. D. Harris, C. W. Woodman and J. C. Scott.

adopted that system and refer to the beneficial results arising therefrom.

At the same time we do not feel authorized to declare for or against such a system, as such questions are peculiarly within the inalienable rights of the people, and for us to arrogate to ourselves this privilege would be an encroachment upon the people's sovereign prerogative and would in effect be a declaration in favor of a government without the consent of the governed. Whatever may be the character of the charter enacted by the legislature, we are unalterably in favor of submitting its ratification or rejection to a popular vote of the people, and we unmeasurably condemn any disposition to allow a particular class of persons to prepare a charter and procure its enactment by the legislature and adoption by the city council without the sanction of the people expressed at the polls, such methods would not only be undemocratic, but purely autocratic.

We do not only favor the election of the chief executive officer of the city, but we favor the election of the heads of all departments of the city government by a vote of the people.

We are opposed to placing any limitations or restrictions upon our present system of referendum, but are in favor of enlarging its sphere.

We favor the incorporation in our charter of the "recall" thru which any elective officer of the city may be removed from his office by a petition of the qualified voters within the district of the city from which he was elected, or of the whole city, if elected at large.

Such recall shall be upon the petition of not less than 25 percent of the number of voters cast for the candidate or candidates for the office to which the officer to be recalled was elected, and recall should be limited so that not more than one officer could be recalled on one petition.

Persons not qualified voters signing such petitions should not invalidate the petitions, but such names should not be counted in determining the result. Upon the filing of a petition to recall the city commission, or city council, as the case may be, should be required to canvass it and compare it with the petition of the mayor, and if the petition shall have contained the requisite number of signatures as before provided it shall be the duty of the mayor to remove the official from office and declare the office vacant and to proceed to order the election of such vacancy as provided for in case of the death, disability or resignation of an official.

In canvassing the names, or in voting upon a petition to recall, the officer against whom the petition is directed shall not sit or have a vote.

Nothing contained herein shall be construed as a bar to any officer who has been recalled becoming a candidate for re-election. Respectfully submitted,

J. C. MARTIN, A. H. McCARTY, Committee.

Adopted Sept. 27, 1906.

THEY CURE RHEUMATISM

A Particularly Painful Form of This Disease Yields to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

Of the many forms which rheumatism takes, that which is popularly known as sciatic rheumatism probably tortures its victims more than any other. That Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have cured this stubborn as well as painful trouble is a fact proven by the following statement, and no sufferer who reads this can afford to let prejudice stand in the way of trying these blood-making pills.

Rheumatism is now generally recognized as a disease of the blood. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills make—actually make—pure blood. When the blood is pure there can be no rheumatism. Mrs. Thomas Bresnahan, of 54 Mill street, Watertown, N. Y., says:

"My trouble began with a severe cold which I took about a week before Christmas in 1904. I began to have rheumatic pains in my back and limbs and after a time I couldn't straighten up. I suffered the most awful pain for months and much of the time was unable to leave the house and I had to take hold of a chair in order to walk and sometimes I could not stand up at all."

"The disease was pronounced sciatic rheumatism and, although I had a good physician and took his medicine faithfully, I did not get any better. After some six weeks of this terrible pain and suffering I tried Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and that is the medicine that cured me. After a few boxes the pain was less intense and I could see decided improvement. I continued to take the pills until I was entirely cured and I have never had any return of the trouble."

All druggists sell Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, or the remedy will be mailed postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box, six boxes for $2.50. The Dr.

O. L. Teachout Resigns and May Go to Michigan

The position of general agent of the mail department for the Gould lines, vacated by O. L. Teachout, will not be filled at once. The business will be looked after as usual, the chief clerk reporting to the general manager.

Mr. Teachout was the superintendent of the Eleventh railway mail service division for several years after the division was created, and during that time was a resident of Fort Worth. He resigned to take the position which he has now vacated.

Mr. Teachout will go to Adrian, Mich., where he is now in, and recent rumors assign him to important duties with another important railway system in that part of the country.

THEY CURE RHEUMATISM

A Particularly Painful Form of This Disease Yields to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

Of the many forms which rheumatism takes, that which is popularly known as sciatic rheumatism probably tortures its victims more than any other. That Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have cured this stubborn as well as painful trouble is a fact proven by the following statement, and no sufferer who reads this can afford to let prejudice stand in the way of trying these blood-making pills.

Rheumatism is now generally recognized as a disease of the blood. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills make—actually make—pure blood. When the blood is pure there can be no rheumatism. Mrs. Thomas Bresnahan, of 54 Mill street, Watertown, N. Y., says:

"My trouble began with a severe cold which I took about a week before Christmas in 1904. I began to have rheumatic pains in my back and limbs and after a time I couldn't straighten up. I suffered the most awful pain for months and much of the time was unable to leave the house and I had to take hold of a chair in order to walk and sometimes I could not stand up at all."

"The disease was pronounced sciatic rheumatism and, although I had a good physician and took his medicine faithfully, I did not get any better. After some six weeks of this terrible pain and suffering I tried Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and that is the medicine that cured me. After a few boxes the pain was less intense and I could see decided improvement. I continued to take the pills until I was entirely cured and I have never had any return of the trouble."

All druggists sell Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, or the remedy will be mailed postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box, six boxes for $2.50. The Dr.

TALKS ABOUT THE HOME AND DRESS

SEWING ROOM IN THE ELECTRIC HOME

ELECTRICAL DEVICES MAKE HOUSEKEEPING EASY

This is truly the age of the housewife. Inventors are turning their attention to her needs, and the new inventions that they are putting on the market for lightening her household duties are legion.

The latest household wonders have been wrought by means of electricity, which promises to turn the old drudgery into a joyful dream of easily accomplished tasks.

The kitchen without a stove is entirely practical, every particle of food being cooked by electricity. All the devices for cooking rest on the ordinary kitchen table. A simple turn of the wrist, and all is ready. The cook does not even have to go to the trouble of lighting a match.

The cooking outfit includes an oven, cereal cooker, frying pan, vegetable broiler, gridiron and meat broiler. She even has a regulating switch for securing high, low, and medium grades of heat, by a turn of the handle. In size it is about the same inside dimensions as the old style kitchen stove, or later designs of gas ovens. A novel feature of this oven is two glass windows in the door, through which meat or bread may be seen cooking without opening the oven. This arrangement is secured by placing an incandescent lamp in the back of the oven. The electric gridiron is nine inches by twelve inches in size. It requires but a couple of minutes to get it hot, after which the most delightful brown cakes may be cooked in a most convenient manner. The meat broiler is equally pleasing to handle, being regulated by the switch for two or three heats, as may be desired. The cereal cooker is a four-combination device. The first operation in the morning is to use it for heating water for coffee; combination two is to use it as a cereal cooker; combination three is to use it for boiling eggs, and combination four permits of steaming potatoes, using the perforated potato steamer. This device may be used consecutively for all four combinations.

The modern dwelling should have electric lights in every room, in every closet, in every dark corner. Instead of the conventional bell burglar alarm, the owner has an electric switch next to his head, by pushing which he can instantly turn on every light in the house.

In the sewing room a machine run by an electric motor saves endless trouble. On a table beside the machine is an electric fastener ready for use at any time. In this room there is also a telephone and an electric radiator for auxiliary heating. The dining room has an electric chafing dish, a corn popper, a coffee percolator and a luminous radiator. In the bedrooms there are electric heating pads instead of old-fashioned hot water bottles, which are always liable to burst and produce disaster. Here, too, are electric curling irons and flatirons. The bathroom is an astonishing place. An electric immersion coil heats the water when the house furnace is shut down in summer. There is a little boiler to supply hot water quickly for shaving. Here, too, is an electric radiator to take the edge of the chilliness of the air. In this room there is also a massage motor, which can be attached to any incandescent lamp socket and be operated by any one.

The laundry in this marvelous home is also fully equipped with electricity. There is no soot and no ashes, no unbearable heat in summer. The refrigerator attachment is an automatic affair, which will keep down the temperature in the ice box to any degree, for the motor starts to work as soon as the thermometer in the refrigerator gets above a certain point. The furnace regulator is also devised to keep the temperature at a fixed point by opening and closing dampers as the rooms get too cold or too hot. A thermometer and the electric current are the implements by which this feat of domestic wizardry is performed.

SMALL COATS FOR THE CHILDREN AND GROWNUPS

A smart little coat of buff-colored broadcloth adorned the winsome person of a curly headed girl of ten was worn recently upon a drive at this famous resort. Its simple lines helped to maintain the beauty of the material, for the coat was without adornment other than two rows of handsome buttons fastening it. The style was a simple double-breasted box, without a collar and with raw seams stitched flat. The sleeves ended in a wide cuff. The small lady's mama had wisely selected long black stockings and cloth top boots for wear with her little one's coat, thereby exhibiting rare good sense, as nothing is more incongruous than short socks with a coat of the material described.

Long driving coats for the older ones are the rule, with coats of hip length made of silk or cloth, the charming exception. Few of these short coats have appeared as yet. They will, however, allow of much adornment in the way of braiding and lace applique, both of which are very modish fall trimmings. Such coats are as serviceable, especially when worn over gowns of crushable texture, as the more severe and simply tailored long coat made of heavy material.

Of the colors slated for popularity in the new season's costumes, blue in its many shades and tones is much in evidence. Its quite universal acceptance may be due to the fact that it is a color becoming to almost every woman, but it's more likely that the real reason lies behind the fact that Paris has gone daft apparently over this color and is sending it to us in gowns, coats and hats—altogether with accessories in every conceivable shade. Browns also are to be much worn, with beguiling shades of green, apricot, mode and champagne in cloths, silks and crepes, but even with this wide color selection, blue loses none of its favor.

A wootlex walking costume of delft blue or royal blue shelma cloth, trimmed with gilt braided designs and gold lace was one of the modish fall morning gowns seen at Saratoga. The skirt was a marvel of tailoring, with its plaits and folds smoothly stitched and pressed so that not a wrinkle appeared to mar its well-fitted appearance.

A pale shade of blue, neither Alice nor turquoise, but as a witty observer remarked, "maybe a Mrs. Nicholas Longworth blue," was employed in a gown of fine blue voile, made over an orkedo silk lining of deeper shade. Quantities of velvet ribbon, placed in fanciful design, trimmed both skirt and bodice, the heavy effect of so much ribbon being lightened somewhat by clever applications of gull-pure lace, dyed to match the color of the voile exactly. Both ribbon and lace, by the way, as well as beautiful soft and pliable silk braids will be used extensively upon dressy afternoon frocks.

Paquin was represented at Saratoga by a wonderful gown of coleen poplin which was trimmed with this new braid. The influence of the princess mode was retained in the beautifully tucked bodice skirt, banded at the top by a clever Greek key design of braid that duplicated the wider braid design trimming the skirt. The delicate shade of brown of the poplin was greatly enhanced by this braid trimming, which appeared in a darker tone, while shoulder straps of the poplin, braid trimmed, were very effective, worn over a very much ruffled lace blouse, made of blonde and Chantilly combined.

TUSSAH COAT CLUNY TRIMMED

A dainty coat that may be used for both street and evening use is made of tan tussah silk, the hems interlined with haircloth, allowing the embroideries a good foundation, and is ornamented with medallions of cluny lace, although any other bits one possesses could be employed here as well. It fastens with knotted linen cords finished with heavy tassels.

THE NEWEST SACHET.

A use has been found for the little odds and ends of ribbon useless heretofore, yet too pretty to throw away. They are now used for tom-thumb sachets which are just the thing for birthday tokens, luncheon favors and for pinning into one's gown to impart a delicate fragrance. The tiny pocket which contains the sachet powder (about an inch square) is sewed to the ribbon, the ends of which are brought forward to cover the bag and are shaped to form a dainty flower. Of course upon the morsel of ribbon in hand depends the kind of flower to be made. Thus, pale pink makes a charming little wild rose, purple or pansy, yellow a buttercup, white a dogwood and so on. The shaping of the petals is most important as upon this as well as the coloring depends much of the naturalness of the flower. The center of the blossom is added by means of a few stitches in floss of the appropriate color, yellow being used for the wild rose and so forth. When employed as luncheon favors the little sachets may be sewed on to the place cards, or furnished with temporary stems of wire so as to hang upon the edge of the water tumbler.

From mistaken notions many housekeepers wrap the ice in newspaper or a piece of a blanket before putting it in the ice chamber and then marvel that though the ice keeps so well the refrigerator is nevertheless cold. When it is understood that the principal of the refrigerator rests upon the melting and evaporating of the ice, the reason becomes plain to anyone.

To peel ripe tomatoes without putting them in hot water press the back edge of the blade of the knife gently all over the surface of the tomato, then make an incision in the skin with the sharp edge of the knife, and it can be peeled off, and the tomato served immediately.

Food should never be put into the ice chamber of a refrigerator for it will become more or less tainted by coming in such close contact with the ice.

Put slices of cucumbers about the kitchen to drive away the water bugs. The insects eat the cucumbers and are poisoned.

Equal quantities of lemon juice, listerine and glycerine make an excellent mouth wash.

Dried beans of all kinds are much better when they are cooked in a double boiler.

ODDS AND ENDS

HOUSEHOLD HINTS.

To prevent a door from creaking, apply a little soap to the hinges.

A whisk or small dusting brush is the best for sweeping stair carpets.

Whiting or ammonia in the water is preferable to soap for cleaning windows or paint.

Moisture is the greatest enemy of the piano and it cannot be too carefully guarded against.

Windows should never be washed while the sun shines on them, as it is impossible to polish them without leaving streaks.

Table linen should be hemmed by hand. Not only does it look better and more dainty, but there is never a streak of white on the edge after being laundered, as with machine sewing.

If soot falls upon the carpet or rug, do not attempt to sweep until it has been covered thickly with dry salt. It can then be swept up properly and not a stain of soot will be left.

Yolks of eggs left over when the whites only are needed will keep for several days if they are covered with cold water. In hot weather it is well to change the water each day.

IMPORTED ODDITIES.

Austrian enamelware now comes in white with a red edge, so the aesthetic housewife who likes a red and white scheme in her kitchen if she thinks the universal blue and white is too ordinary. This is more expensive, but is very durable and attractive.

A recent offering in Colonial glassware is a berry set, which is unusual in that it has a berry bowl four and a half inches in diameter for serving the individual portions instead of the customary small, deep berry bowl. The berry bowl itself is of similar size and comes in three sizes or more.

NOVELTIES FOR FALL.

An lead tea set, one of the novelties in autumn, is a long-fest want. This has glasses with a handle, and a drip tray to catch. The glasses may be had with or without a handle and with or without a patent scalloped flange near the top that prevents the ice coming near the teeth and chilling them.

An all-glass perforated top on salt and pepper bottles is designed to do away with the corrosion of a metal top shaker. This has two glass prongs that extend down into the bowl and which revolve by turning the perforated glass top, making what is said to be a perfect grinder for loosening salt. The same idea in a larger size, and with a handle at the side, is for sifting sugar on fruits.

A pair of pale gray suede slippers with a trimming all around and covering the toe of cut steel.

Hair waver for making the Marcel wave. It is made of rubber, unbreakable, and does not injure the hair.

Long white silk gloves, the hand to the wrist of plain silk; the rest of the arm was open work silk in various designs.

A shoulder cape of haitite (white), with an edged with two three-inch ruffles of white German Valenciennes lace.

A necklace of dull silver, had two large blue stones on each side of a silver woman's time of Elizabeth and a blue stone attached to it by chains.

A Gladstone bag for a man had one side at the bottom, two flaps of the leather fastened with a strap and buckle, which, when lifted, showed a drawer which could be drawn out.

A belt of white leather had three narrow bands of blue leather, one at top, bottom and middle, about half an inch wide, and lined with a strap and buckle, which, when lifted, showed a drawer which could be drawn out.

JAVELLE WATER.

Laundress: Javelle water is invaluable for whitening clothes, and a cupful in a tub of water will loosen the dirt in the most soiled clothing. It bleaches perfectly. It will cut grease and dirt out of cooking utensils, sinks and drain pipes. Keep tightly corked and plainly labeled. To make Javelle water add one can of common washing soda—salsoda—to one gallon of water. Allow it to boil ten minutes. When cool turn into bottles.

The following is an excellent recipe for shampoo: White castile soap in shavings, 1 ounce; water, 24 ounces; potassium carbonate, 80 grains; borax, 120 grains; cologne water, 2 ounces. Dissolve the soap in the water and add the other ingredients.

Rub well into the roots. Rinse thoroughly in several waters. Then dry carefully.

Brushes and combs can be perfectly cleaned with clear water and ammonia. Do not let the handles of the brushes get wet. After thoroughly wetting the bristles, place the brushes, back downward, in the sunshine, and let them remain there until dry.

Using a soap that contains a generous proportion of vegetable oil, making a thick lather and rubbing it into the hands well, will keep the hands white and soft where one's employment is such that frequent washings are required.

Touch warts with castor oil. That sometimes removes them if persisted in and is a harmless remedy.

AN EARLY FASHION MODEL.

Dressy, separate waists are no longer a speculation, for they have come to stay. The little model shown is made of white flannel. Its plaited sides are draped over a chemisette of white chiffon that is outlined by a snappy little rolled collar of flannel, edged and embroidered with gold braid. Wide gold ribbon ties depend from the collar, the ends being weighted with imitation green jade balls.

FLORIAN AMIDON, bachelor banker in Hazelhurst, Wis. leaves town for Canada, leaving no directions as to his future address and saying that he wanted to vacation without business worry. He gets off the limited to Elm Springs Crossing to take the limited north. From that time until five years he loses memory of his identity and when he comes to himself finds that he is known as Eugene Brassfield, a wealthy oil operator. He goes to a New York clairvoyant for aid in solving the mystery of his five years lost identity.

"I suppose I'm to carry it with me, and when an acquaintance accosts me on the street, I'm to look him up in the index and find out who he is, before I decide whether to shake hands with him or cut him, am I?"

"Not exactly that way," said the judge, "that would be impracticable, you know; but it's ten to one you'll find his name there. I tell you, that compilation—"

"To classify into categories," broke in the professor, "according to the principles of botchik was the botchik's idea. A wonderfully ingenious bit. It will enable you—"

"Has it any plan of reference," interrupted Amidon, "by which I shall be enabled to find out who a man is when I don't know who he is?"

"Or, in such a case, to give me knowledge of my past relations with him, or whether I like him or hate him?"

"Of course," said the judge, "we only try to do the possible. The law requires no man to do more."

"Does this thing," said Amidon, shaking his head in evident disgust, "where I live in Bellevue, whether in lodgings or at a hotel, or in my own home?"

"Surely, surely," said the professor, "the most interesting phases of this case will arise in Bellevue. I grave to bristle with you under my operation until—until the last dog in the block! Let the despatch Church Blochett to spy out to land. In a day or two he can disclose to you the man Brassfield lives, were he fair. Let us go to the hotel, and then really get on to the legal situation. He will meet with us at the train, and see that we don't put our feet in it. We will dine at the restaurant, and having Alderman Brassfield, chairman of the street committee, asking to be taken to the street, we will go to the street to see his lodgings, and to see the face of Miss Waldron, basing her on the street with a cold, cold stare of unrecognition or embracing her young lady friend by mistake. Good-bye! Let us cutchee take his departure forthwith. Clara and I will be charmed and happy, my friend, to accompany you. Supremely considered, it will be great stuff!"

Chapter IX
IN DERKED PENNSYLVANIA
The good God gave hands, left and right,
To deal with divers foes in fight;
And eyes he gave all sights to hold;
And limbs for paining manifold;
Gave Tongue to taste both sour and sweet;
Gave ear for salad, fish and meat;
But, Christian, Sir, whose'er thou art,
Trust not thy many-chambered heart;
Give not one bow to Blonds, and yet
Retain a room for the Brunette;
Whoever gave each other part,
The devil planned and built the net,
And what he meant in a Double Locket.

Clara, Amidon and Blatherwick were on their way to Bellevue. The professor was in the smoking car, his daughter in the parlor car, and Amidon, his nerves strained to the point of agony, sat dreading the end of the journey, as one falling from an airship might shrink from the termination of his. Madame le Claire brooded over him maternally.

"Brassfield must have adopted some course of behavior toward Miss Waldron," said the professor, "and you must call her Elizabeth, said Madame le Claire, and—"

"And what?" he inquired, as she failed to break the saucer. "You found out—much about it from him?"

"Not so very much," she replied, "only she'll expect such things as 'dearest' and 'darling' times. And occasionally 'pet' and 'sweetheart'—and 'dear.' I can't give them all; you must extemporize a little, can't you?"

"Merced heaven," groaned Amidon, "I can't do it!"

"You have," said Madame le Claire, "and you must deal more. 'It was that scoundrel Brassfield,' said he, in perfect seriousness. 'More? What do you mean by more?'"

"He, not I!" said Clara, "I did not know that!"

"I think we may take that for granted."

"You really don't get a grain of good from your Brassfield experience," said she, "or you'd know better. Here ensued a long silence, during which Amidon appeared to be pondering on her extraordinary remarks.

"But, as to the fact," urged he at last, "how can you guess out any such state of things as you describe?"

"I've made him think that I— I have had a very hard time of it since I left," said he; "and have been far from well."

"She parted him lightly with the glove."

"You must be careful of yourself," said she, "and paused as if to let him supply her reason for so saying. "I hope your trouble is over, dear."

"Thank you," said he, "I am sure that after a few hours in my rooms, I shall be quite refreshed. Will you please put me down at the Bellevue House? I shall beg the privilege of calling soon."

"Your lodging at the Bellevue House," returned the judge.

"To my lodgings at the Bellevue House," announced the man who had reached his side, "this is terrible! Where do I want to go?—and for the love of Heaven, where does this house take my luggage?"

"Your lodging at the Bellevue House," returned the judge.

"Oh, yes!" said the little man; "nothing but her, now. But she isn't here. Hasn't been for over a week. Nobody here but me. Can't you stay white?"

"Say, 'Gene,' we put Slater through the lodge while you were gone, and he knows he's in, all right enough. "No, I must really go, thank you. By the way," said Florian, "where does Miss—er—I must go, at once, I think."

"Oh, I know how it is," went on his unknown intimates; "nothing but Brass, now. Might as well bid you good-bye, and give you a dimwit from all the clubs and lodges, until six months after the wedding. You'll be back by that time, thrifter than ever. By the way, that reminds me; the gang's going to give you a blow-out at the club. Kind of an 'Auld lang syne' business. 'Champany-rather an' cracked ice,' chimes at midnight, won't go home till morning, all good fellows and the rest of it. Edgington spoke to you about it, I s'pose."

"Only in a general way," replied Amidon, wondering who and what Edgington would turn out to be. "I don't know yet how my engagements will be—"

"Oh, nothing must stand in the way of that, you know," the little man went on. "Why, gad! the tenderest feelings of brotherly— Oh, you don't mean it! But I mustn't keep you. Bessie told me that the plans for your house have come. She's got 'em over there, now. I say, old man, I envy you your evening. Like two birds arranging the nest. Sorry you can't come in to good-night. And, say! Your little strawberry blonde is in town! Wouldn't that jar you?"

"Heaven!" ejaculated Amidon. "How am I ever to get through with this?"

"The genuine agony in Florian's tones fixed the attention of the little man, and seemed to arouse some terrible suspicion."

"Now, Florian," said Judge Blodgett, as they sat in Amidon's rooms, "search yourself, and see if you don't feel a dreamy sense of familiarity here in these rooms; it's so far from being lost, heir has when he crawls down the chimney as a sweep and finds himself in his ancestral halls, you know."

"No," said Amidon, "I have never joined a secret order in his life, and do you think we ought to talk these things named by the little man in the wrong house came to him as having been mentioned in the notes of the professor and the judge, Alvor, as the slinky little chap who took so familiar an attitude toward him—this was the judge's 'ministerial' friend! Yet, had there not been mention of 'ritualistic work' and 'Early Christians' in his conversation? And this woman of whom he spoke—it took no great keenness of perception to see that the 'strawberry blonde' must be the 'child of six or eight years' whom he had called 'Daisy,' and sometimes 'Strawberry!'

"Heaven!" ejaculated Amidon. "How am I ever to get through with this?"

"Heaven!" ejaculated Amidon. "How am I ever to get through with this?"

"The genuine agony in Florian's tones fixed the attention of the little man, and seemed to arouse some terrible suspicion."

"Oh, yes!" said the little man; "nothing but her, now. But she isn't here. Hasn't been for over a week. Nobody here but me. Can't you stay white?"

"Say, 'Gene,' we put Slater through the lodge while you were gone, and he knows he's in, all right enough. Bullwinkle took that part of yours in the catcombs scene, and you ought to have heard the bones of the early Christians rattle when he believed on the lecture. THE HOME CIRCLE

Home-Made Autumn Lingerie. By Dorothy Dale.

Home-made underwear is really much more satisfactory than the ready-made variety, which, except in the expensive grades and imported French sort, is apt to be rather coarse as to the materials used. Excellent working patterns can now be purchased for undergarments of almost any description, and as the fitting is of the simplest the work is delightfully easy and pleasant.

At the late summer sales pieces of lace, fine embroidery, inset medallions and short lengths of fine all-over tucking can be bought at remarkably low prices, so that a clever shopper can pick up enough trimming in this way to ornament any number of dainty nightgowns, chemises, petticoats and such pieces. If these trimmings are artistically used the effect is often most elaborate, even though the labor involved was by no means great, since most of the work can be done by machine. The effect of handwork is often given by the use of little medallions of fine French embroidery cleverly inserted between diamond or oval-shaped figures, chemises and corset covers or nightgowns, although some of the very elaborate petticoats and drawers are trimmed in the same way.

In buying material for skirts, nightgowns and so on, a fine grade of soft-finished cambric is very satisfactory, while for corset covers of the more elaborate kind, although cambric is often used, batiste of not too sheer a grade is generally selected. Drawers are made of the cambric with ruffles of lawn, inserted or trimmed with lace, or else entirely of French batiste.

The so-called French patterns for sale are usually preferable as models for cutting these various garments, as they are so designed that there are very few seams. Indeed, one of the most desirable corset cover patterns is exceedingly simple to make, as it is cut with no darts at all, the garment being cut with a straight fold in the middle of the back,

The Proper Way To Pack a Trunk.

One rule to bear in mind when packing a trunk is that when you do pack, pack lightly. Often an inexperienced traveler, fearful of crowding fine garments, packs loosely and lightly with the result that when the baggage man stands the trunk on end or upside down the heavy articles slip down, creating the lighter ones innumerable wrinkles. Before starting to pack it is an excellent plan to write a list of everything that will be required, a plan that will be apt to prevent things from being forgotten. Then collect all the things to be packed, arranging them on the bed or about the room, placing all the underclothing together, then waists, wraps, cloth skirts, shoes, gloves, until you see clearly what is to go in.

Books should be placed in the bottom of the trunk, as might sheet music, photographs and such flat articles. Fill up the outside spaces with the underclothing tightly rolled—not placed in piles—forming a solid layer. Next pack in heavy skirts, giving them all the length possible, fold-

Vegetable Dishes of the Season. By Sara Cranford.

Delmonico Potatoes.—Chop cold boiled potatoes to bits the size of peas; make a white sauce and stir the chopped potato into it, using a generous cupful of potato to each cup of sauce. Pour into a buttered pudding dish, cover the top with buttered cracker crumbs and bake about 15 minutes in a hot oven.

Steamed Squash in the Shell.—Saw off the top of a small, suitably shaped Hubbard squash, remove the seeds and stringy portion and steam the rest until tender. Carefully remove the pulp from the shell, keeping a large shell whole. Pass the pulp through a vegetable ricer, season with salt, pepper and butter and return to the shell; smooth the surface to a dome shape and score with a knife, then place in the oven a few minutes to reheat. Serve on a folded napkin.

Huntington Cauliflower.—Trim off the outside leaves and cut the stalks even with the edible portion, to stand level. Let stand head downward in cold salted water half an hour to draw out insects that may be concealed in it. Then steam the cauliflower in a lightly oiled kettle until tender, separate into flowerets and pour over these the following sauce: Mix one teaspoonful and a half of mustard, one teaspoonful and a fourth of salt, one teaspoonful of powdered sugar and one-fourth of a cup of olive oil. When thoroughly mixed add half a cupful of weak vinegar, in which half a teaspoonful of fine-chopped shallot has been infused five minutes. Cook hotter not water until slightly thickened, remove from the fire, add half a tablespoonful of curry powder, two tablespoonfuls of melted butter and one tablespoonful of fine-chopped parsley. Brussels Sprouts With Butter.—Boil one quart of Brussels sprouts in two quarts of salted water about 15 minutes, or until tender. Let drain on a cloth, then toss in a frying pan with a scant quarter of a cupful of butter until the butter is absorbed. Sprinkle with one teaspoonful of chopped parsley and a dash of salt. Mix and arrange in a mound on a serving dish. Surround with points of toast.

Stuffed Onions.—Cook 10 or 12 onions in salted water about an hour, or until tender, changing the water twice; drain and cool. Take out the center of each onion without disturbing the outside layers. To this add six mushrooms, sauted five minutes in butter, chop fine, and half a cupful of breadcrumbs and cream or white sauce to mix; season with salt, pepper and butter; then add the onion juice and bake about 20 minutes, basting carefully with a little butter and hot water.

String Beans With Bacon.—Cut one or two slices of tender bacon into cubes, and saute to a delicate brown; then add the hot cooked beans with a few drops of onion juice; toss them about a moment or two, then serve.

Candied Sweet Potatoes.—Pare and parboil half a dozen sweet potatoes, cut in halves lengthwise. After 10 minutes' boiling drain and lay them in a baking dish. Spread thickly with butter, sprinkle with sugar and, if desired, a little powdered cinnamon and a few spoonfuls of hot water, and bake until tender, basting often with the sauce in the pan.

Asparagus With Sauce.—Scrape the coarse scales from the branches, cut the stalks in equal lengths, and tie in bunches. Cook the asparagus in a small quantity of water, drain and dispose on a well-toasted and buttered slice of bread. Rub the yolks of three hard-boiled eggs to a smooth paste, and one-quarter of a teaspoonful of salt and a dash of pepper; then gradually beat into the egg enough butter, softened, but not melted, to make a sauce of the consistency of mayonnaise dressing. Mix the asparagus with the sauce and serve at once.

Spinach in a Crown of Eggs.—Cook a peck of spinach in boiling salted water until tender, then chop fine. Melt two tablespoonfuls of butter, and cook in it, without browning, two tablespoonfuls of flour. Add a grating of nutmeg and the spinach. When well blended add a half a cupful of hot stock, or water in which asparagus has been soaked. Form a mound on a warm dish. Cut hard-boiled eggs into thick slices, taking a little slice from the edge of each to make it stand upright. Chop these little pieces fine and mass them on the top of the mound. Arrange the slices on the dish, leaning them against the mound.

Frozen Desserts.

Coffee Mousse.—Add half a cup of clear, black coffee and two-thirds of a cup of powdered sugar to a pint of double cream. Then beat the mixture until it is solid to the bottom of the bowl. Turn into a mold lined with paraffine paper, filling the mold to the top. Spread a paper over the top of the cream, fit the cover in place and pack in equal measures of ice and salt. Let stand for two or three hours and serve in slices or in slender glasses with a spoonful of whipped cream on the top.

Mint Sherbet.—This is delicious for a warm weather dessert and is also served with small cakes for afternoon parties. Steep three tablespoonfuls of finely cut fresh mint in a cup of water for half an hour, place it on the stove and allow to come to a boil, then add the juice of two oranges and a lemon; while this is in progress boil together for five minutes, without straining, two cupfuls of sugar and one cup of water and pour into a freezer through a square of cheesecloth, adding a little more water and orange juice if more quantity is required, and freeze in the usual manner, adding when half frozen the stiffly-beaten white of an egg and a small cupful of whipped cream. Serve in slender sherbet glasses with a garnish of crystallized mint leaves and a sprig of fresh mint.

Hot Maple Sauce.—Boil a cup of maple syrup and one-fourth cup of condensed milk and hot water mixed to the thread degree, and pour while hot over a scant half cup of cream. If desired or more convenient a quarter of a cup of cream and a spoonful of butter may be substituted for the condensed milk and water.

Cantaloupe Frappe.—Three pints of cantaloupe pulp, two cups of sugar, the juice of three lemons or one-half cup of lemon juice. Mix the pulp, sugar and lemon juice together and pass through a fine sieve. Freeze as usual and serve from glass cups or from the chilled rind of the melon shaped into a basket.

Soap That Grows.

In the West Indies and in South America grows the soap tree whose pulp fruit is generally used by the natives instead of soap for washing. This substance is used in excess or too frequently injures the texture of the fabric, but it has such excellent cleansing qualities that it will clean as much linen as 60 times its weight in soap.

There is a tree in Peru whose bark is infusion yields a soapy liquid much valued for washing woolens. This bark is extensively exported to Great Britain, and also to other countries for this purpose. The juice of the soapwort, a weed well known in America as well as in Great Britain and Europe forms a strong lather with water, and was much valued by your grandmothers for use in scouring clothes. In California roots which grow there abundantly are much used for washing soap.

The plant has a strong odor and is rich in its leaves and stems, as well as in its roots. The Egyptian soap root and the Spanish soap root have been employed for washing from time immemorial in Southern Europe and Egypt, and are to some extent exported for use in cleansing articles.

Some of the tropical South Sea Islands produce a species of vine the thick part of whose stems when cut into pieces and softened by cooking produce in water a lather like that of the soap root. This is found in South America and the islands of the Caribbean Sea and is also used as a soap substitute. There are bodies of water which are so strongly alkaline in their nature that heavy fabrics rubbed in them for a few minutes produce a strong lather of a cleansing nature.

Terrible Poisons From Plants.

It so happens that all the most virulent poisons are of vegetable origin. There is a deadly acorn, which kills in small fractions of a grain, and strychnia, a fourth part of a grain which has killed a wild boar in a few seconds, and prussic acid, by prevention in botanical tribes. Then there are the deadly alkaloids of hemlock and tobacco and oxalic acid of treacherous fame, all derived from the vegetable kingdom.

COFFEE CAKE.

German Coffee Cake.—To one quart of light bread dough add one-fourth of a cup of melted butter, six tablespoonfuls of sugar, two eggs and two extra egg yolks. Beat these together, then add four to make stiff, and let rise until it has doubled in bulk. Cut down and knead slightly and divide in three portions, and braid in one long braid, binding the ends together to form a circle. Sprinkle generously with sugar and cinnamon and

About Chairs.

The first idea in purchasing chairs is that they should be really comfortable, a point that should not be sacrificed for appearance or style. Nowadays, however, very beautiful and artistic chairs meet all the requirements as to decorative qualities and still are built on practical lines, so that they yield comfort and ease to the occupant. The old English models, copies of one or two of which are shown among the sketches, are among the best types of lounging chairs with their high backs and deep seats, and among the less expensive chairs some excellent models are to be had in rattan and wicker. These are most attractive when cushioned with some of the new art tapestries or tiled in with gaily covered pillows.

Such chairs are considered appropriate in any but the most formal room or dining-room, and are particularly good when stained a soft green or red-brown. The colonial chairs in mahogany are very much sought for, and the tendency now is to select large, roomy chairs such as are shown among the drawings rather than the slender spindle-legged varieties which used to be so much seen. For small wall spaces, corners and certain parts of the room, however, these small, straight chairs fit in most suitably, though in purchasing them be sure to select those that are solidly made, avoiding gimcrack effect in the way of gilded banjo, colored inlay and the like.

The plates below show five excellent models suitable for living-room, library or dining-room, most of these shown being of mahogany upholstered in brocade, tapestry or velvet. The fifth chair at the bottom of the plate was of birch stained green with cushions to match, the model being particularly original.
