

KILLED WIFE; MONEY OBJECT

Such Is Prosecution Trying to Prove in Case

SCENES AT TRIAL

Claimed Physician Visited the Nurse While Spouse Was On Death-bed

Special to The Telegram. TOMS RIVER, N. J., Oct. 12.—Dr. Walter S. Washington of Newark, medical expert for the prosecution, will go on the witness stand today at the trial of Dr. Frank Brouwer, who is charged with poisoning his wife. Dr. Washington is considered the most important medical witness for the prosecution, as he is expected to say positively that Mrs. Brouwer's death was due to poison. He was called to the stand late yesterday, but the prosecution blundered in not being properly prepared to question him and the doctor was hastily excused until today in order that a hypothetical question can be framed that will stand the attacks of the defense. Yesterday the referee successfully objected to the following question put to Dr. Washington by the prosecution, after he had stated that he had heard the testimony thus far given the court:

Defense Objects to Question

Raising your opinion on the testimony of those witnesses and assuming their testimony to be true, what in your opinion was the cause of death of Mrs. Carrie Brouwer?

The attorneys for the defense insisted that the hypothetical question must be framed so as to include all the pertinent testimony of the witnesses referred to, and Justice Hendrickson agreed with them.

Insurance in Mind?

The interest in the trial reached its highest pitch yesterday when the prosecution called witnesses to prove a motive for the crime. Testimony was introduced to show that Dr. Brouwer had been living beyond his means and had been using his wife's money at times to pay his debts; that her life was insured for $1,000 in his favor and that by her death he came into possession of property the value of which is variously estimated at from $6,000 to $10,000; that they had frequently quarreled, and that the question of divorce had been considered; that since Mrs. Brouwer's death, the insurance company has declined to pay over the money on her policy.

Wife Sick, Visited Nurse

Finally testimony was given that at the time Mrs. Brouwer was lying on her deathbed her husband was visiting a trained nurse, who was a patient in the Long Branch hospital, and that he purchased flowers from a Long Branch florist, which, he said, he was going to send to a patient of his in the hospital.

Brouwer listened closely to the testimony and consulted frequently with his lawyers regarding it. He also suggested questions to them in the cross-examination of witnesses.

One of the pathetic features of the trial is the prisoner's mother. She is a gray-haired woman with a fine face, and altho she seldom enters the court room, she remains near the court house, walking nervously up and down the sidewalk.

DEMOCRATS FOR HEARST

Meetings Held Jointly Under Auspices of Independence League. EL MIRRA, N. Y., Oct. 12.—William Randolph Hearst's letter accepting the Democratic nomination for governor will be sent to State Chairman Connors today. Meetings up state, at which Mr. Hearst is now speaking, are almost invariably arranged and held under joint Democratic and Independence League auspices and with the co-operation of the Democratic state committee. The precise nature of the letter could not be learned today.

RAISE SALOON LICENSE

Shreveport Ministers Determined to Stamp Out Dives. NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 12.—Specials from Shreveport say as a result of the determined work of ministers of that city, saloon licenses have been increased by $1,000 to $2,500 a year. About one hundred saloons are affected. The new law will be effective Jan. 1, 1907, and is intended primarily to stamp out disreputable dives.

MRS. DAVIS IMPROVES

Wife of President of Confederacy May Survive Illness. NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—Mrs. Jefferson Davis, who has been ill with a severe cold at the Hotel Majestic for several days, is reported to be somewhat improved today.

BOYCOTT ENDS

CHEER PRISONERS Ban Against American Goods Raised at Canton. HONG KONG, Oct. 12.—The boycott on American goods has been called off at Canton, the strategy has released the three ringleaders of the movement under arrest there. An enormous crowd gathered outside the prison and applauded the prisoners when they were released, expelling them from the character of the Chinese nation. The released men thanked the people for the demonstration of their sympathy. The magistrate gave a lenient pathy. The boycotters after they were set at liberty and they were also the recipients of congratulatory telegrams from the coast ports.

REFUSE TO GRANT WAGE INCREASE

San Francisco Street Railways Deny Concessions

By Associated Press. SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 12.—The United Railroads last night filed with the committee of arbitration in the controversy between the car men and the street car company over the question of wages and hours, that resulted in the strike, the company's statement and the answer to the men's demand for three dollars a day and a work day of eight hours. The company contends that the cost of living has not materially increased in San Francisco, and while admitting that rents are higher, declares this condition is but transitory. It states that a flat rate of wages is not advisable, that a graduated scale based on length of service as now in operation on the United States railroads, is better and that a work day of eight hours is not feasible. The company makes practically no concessions or admissions in its reply.

COTTON ON DECLINE

Lower Cables and Reassuring Reports of Frost Damage. NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—The cotton market opened easy at a decline of 12 to 18 points. In response to lower cables than were expected and reassuring reports of frost damage following the high temperatures in the belt. At first there was some irregularity and prices improved slightly, then sold off under heavy liquidation and selling for the scale downward. Prices in the middle of the morning were about 22 to 27 points net lower.

BATTLE FOR FOURTH GAME

Americans and Nationals Confident of Victory. CHICAGO, Ill., Oct. 12.—The fourth game of the championship series between the National and American Leagues was played today on the grounds of the latter club before the largest crowd that has as yet witnessed the contest. The disagreeable weather of the last four days gave way today to something like normal October conditions and it is possible to sit still for a few innings without courting pneumonia. The high wind, too, that has been such an unpleasant feature of the post-season games is thus far absent and this lent an added joy to the occasion.

WEATHER IS GOOD

Betting Slightly Favors Nationals Altho Americans Are in the Lead. It was announced before the game that the probable pitchers would be the same as those of the first game. The American League team and Brown of the Nationals were pitted against each other. Betting before the game favored the National League slightly, it being the general opinion that the American team could hardly put up twice in succession the game which enabled it to win yesterday. They were, however, slight favorites for the championship, but the odds were so close that they amounted to little more than even betting.

CATHOLIC LEADER DEAD

Rev. Andrews, Noted Writer, Passes Away at Hartford, Conn. HARTFORD, Conn., Oct. 12.—Rev. Samuel James Andrews, a leader in the Catholic apostolic church, died at his home here yesterday after a brief illness. He was a prominent writer of religious works and a prolific writer of verse and prose.

ALFONSO GOES ON BIG DEER HUNT

2,000 Animals Killed by Royal Spanish Party

By Associated Press. NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—A Madrid dispatch published here today tells of a unique hunt that was given this week in the royal forest near La Granja by King Alfonso. His majesty invited a battalion of troops known as the Casadores de Madrid to join him and the coat in a big shoot, and every member of the battalion from the colonel to the latest recruited private traveled to La Granja to take part.

Two Thousand Deer Killed. The slaughter of deer was terrific, dozens falling at a time. The reason for holding the hunt, which lasted thru Wednesday and Thursday, was that the forest had become so overstocked with deer that the pasturage was insufficient. The foresters estimated that it was necessary to kill 2,000 deer. The victims have not yet been counted, but probably the projected result has been achieved, while incidentally Alfonso has become the fool of the Casadores.

BAN ON UNION

Cortelyou Tells Clerks They Must Not Ask Higher Pay. CINCINNATI, Ohio, Oct. 12.—Postmaster General Cortelyou officially notified carriers and clerks that they must not organize a union for the purpose of agitating higher pay for union members. The letter says it is the department's duty, not the union's, to tell congress about the postoffice service needs.

SUBURB ONN FIRE

Hotel and Cottages Near Chicago Are Burned Down. CHICAGO, Oct. 12.—A disastrous fire broke out today in the suburb of Lake Michigan, thirty-five miles north of this city. A large frame hotel, known as Lake Bluff Villa, was burned to the ground and a number of summer cottages were destroyed.

Ohio Continues Suit to Oust Big System

DEED AS EVIDENCE

Testimony Taken Savors of Trust Owning and Controlling State Branches. By Associated Press. FINDLAY, Ohio, Oct. 12.—With the understanding that court would adjourn at noon today until Monday, the trial of the Standard Oil Company of Ohio for conspiracy against trade was begun by the state putting County Recorder Bloom of Hancock county on the stand. Mr. Bloom identified a deed of record of the county from which Prosecutor David read to the jury records of certain deeds transferring land to the Standard Oil Company of Ohio.

Oil Inspector Testifies. B. C. Shaffer, a local attorney and deputy oil inspector, was the next witness for the state. He described the manner of testing oil. The Standard, he said, had a distributing plant located near Findlay, Ohio, identified by the deed and record previously read as property of the Standard Company. The company has four tanks, three for that number of grades of oil and one for gasoline. This oil is retailed in tank wagons. Mr. Shaffer said this oil came from the Solar Refining Company at Lima.

TO CHEAPEN SALT

Improvements Will Lower Expense of Production Over Country. By Associated Press. NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—Official announcements made by President Fuller of the International Salt Company that the corporation has acquired a new process from foreign interests for the manufacture of salt and that the company has decided upon the erection of eight plants which will be equipped with the new apparatus. Of these eight plants, three are now being constructed, two in the western part of New York state and one in Kansas. As the result of this process, the International Salt Company, according to Mr. Fuller, will be in a position to turn out salt at a much lower cost of production.

AGREE TO FIGHT

"Philadelphia" Jack O'Brien and Tommy Burns to Meet. LOS ANGELES, Oct. 12.—Tommy Burns and "Philadelphia" Jack O'Brien yesterday signed a contract to fight twenty rounds before the Pacific Athletic Club in this city, Nov. 20, for the heavyweight championship of the world. The men agreed to fight for $12,000 purse, a bonus of ten per cent of which goes to O'Brien, the remainder to be divided up 75 per cent to the winner and 25 per cent to the loser.

300 KILLED IN BATTLE

Severe Fighting Reported in Arab-Turkish Conflict. CONSTANTINOPLE, Oct. 12.—The rebellion against Turkish rule in the Arabian peninsula, shows no signs of subsiding. Severe fighting occurred in the district of Azir, between the government troops and the tribes of Bedouin. The tribes were routed with a loss of 100 killed and sixty wounded. The casualties of the Arabs are estimated at 200.

ASK MILKERS TO SHED WHISKERS

Claimed That Germs Live in "Chin Parks". The Southern California Veterinary Association has declared war on be-whiskered dairymen. If it has its way, caretakers, milkers and milk deliverers in this country will have to go clean shaven. In a paper which was read before the association last night by L. W. Young, city veterinarian, the whiskers were denounced as the favorite rendezvous and abiding place of germs.

Legislation was demanded to force those who handle food to dispense with "microbe harboring parks" on their chins. Long experience in making the rounds of dairies has taught Dr. Young, he declared, that germs thrive on farms where milkers wear whiskers.

TIME SAVED CHILDREN

Phonetic Style Supported by Head of Scotland University. ST. ANDREWS, Scotland, Oct. 12.—At the opening of the winter season of St. Andrews University today, Principal Dr. James Donaldson showed himself to be an ardent supporter of spelling reform. Dr. Donaldson said that the cordially favored phonetic spelling of children and illiterates could learn thru the phonetic alphabet in a quarter or a third of the time required under the present system, and that the duties of the body can be attended to efficiently and conveniently by the state board of health, and in the biennial report soon to be submitted to the legislature take the unusual course of recommending the abolishment of the commission.

HOTEL BURNED

First Reported Saloon Was Destroyed, Which Proves Untrue. SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 12.—In a special telegram from Goldfield, Nev., to the Evening Bulletin, which was transmitted by the Associated Press, it was stated that a fire had destroyed the Palace saloon, owned by Larry Sullivan. The building burned was the St. Francis hotel. The item was also incorrect in crediting the ownership of the Palace saloon to Mr. Sullivan, who has no interest in it.

SUICIDE FOILED

Man Kills Sister-in-Law and Tries to End Own Life. WINCHENDON, Mass., Oct. 12.—Harry Wood, who is suspected of having killed and killed his sister-in-law, Mrs. Ira E. Wood, at her home here last night, was found in bed at his home today with the throat cut by a razor. The wound is not dangerous. Later Wood was placed under arrest on the charge of murder and removed to the police station. The motive for the murder of Mrs. Wood is not known.

FINANCIER IS STILL MISSING

Silvira May Be Headed for Venezuelan Port

FRIEND OF CASTRO

United States Intervention in Cuba Concerns Failure of American Firm. NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—No definite clew to the whereabouts of Manuel Silvira, the Cuban who absconded in his own steamer with $1,000,000 belonging to J. M. Ceballos & Co. of this city, which precipitated the assignment of the firm, has been gained. Speculation has been rife as to his destination and the guess which gains the most belief is that he has gone to Venezuela. It is stated that Silvira is a close friend of President Castro of Venezuela and from this it is argued that he will put into a Venezuelan port and use the friendship of Castro as a protection against arrest.

Investments Large

Inquiry among the most interested connected with Cuban affairs failed to discover any disposition to regard the failure as indicative of any general commercial demoralization. The general opinion was that the firm had engaged in new enterprises beyond the capacity of its own capital. These investments had been quite large in Cuba and the recent revolutionary developments there had been too great a strain.

So far as the defalcation of Manuel Silvira was concerned, it seems to be agreed that the intervention by the United States government had upset some very ambitious plans in that direction. What these plans were is not known, but they are supposed to be connected with the success of the revolutionists.

How Means Was Obtained

The exact means employed by Silvira in obtaining the money which he is said to have absconded with was explained yesterday by Attorney William Nelson Cromwell. Ceballos & Co. was one of the several local concerns which speculated heavily in the pay warrants of the Cuban revolutionary soldiers. These warrants, issued by a commission in different parts of the island to the men who had been in rebellion, were freely discounted by their holders about four years ago.

Delay in Negotiations

Because of the delay in the government's negotiations for a loan, these warrants were sold to speculators at from 20 to 50 per cent of their face value. Ceballos & Co. had used $2,000,000 of these warrants. Of this amount $1,000,000 worth of the papers was sent to Silvira for collection, while the balance was deposited at the treasury department at Havana. The Cuban loan was finally arranged thru Speyer & Co. and payment on the warrants was made.

While no statement of the completion of affairs of the firm will be ready for several days, it is understood that a number of banking houses in New York have quite large amounts of Ceballos paper, most of it well secured, however, by collateral.

Had Many Ventures

In the banking community the greatest sympathy is expressed for the members of the suspended firm. They are criticized occasionally for embarking in too many ventures, for being too impulsive in the development of Cuba, but it appears to be granted everywhere that their ability would have been sufficient but for Silvira's untoward action.

Silvira Small Man

According to Frederick Upham Adams, a magazine writer who has been with Silvira in Cuba, Silvira is a little bit of a man, not five feet tall and weighs less than ninety pounds. His wife weighs over 200. Silvira lived well, but not above his means. His offices were the houses in Havana, and he was celebrated for the originality and good taste of his entertainments. Ten years ago, according to Mr. Adams, Silvira was a clerk in a Havana bank. He became associated with Ceballos shortly after Cuba gained her independence.

STATUE FOR VERDI

Italian Societies of New York Honor Great Composer. NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—The monument to the Italian composer Verdi, erected at Seventy-second street and Amsterdam avenue by the Italians of New York, is to be unveiled today with appropriate ceremonies. The unveiling will be conducted by Italian Consul General Danchea, and will be preceded by a parade of 1,500 members of Italian societies. The opening address will be made by Admiral Sonetti of the Italian navy. Patrick McGowan, the president of the board of aldermen, will accept the statue in the name of the city.

SOUGHT DEATH IN LIONS' CAGE

Man Commits Suicide in Noyal Manner. NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—A Rio Janeiro dispatch published here says that Viscount Almeida, a well known member of society, committed suicide in a novel manner. He invited a number of his friends to dinner and afterward led them to a cage of lions that he had hired from a traveling menagerie. When all were watching the animals and chatting the viscount opened the door of the cage and entered. The lions pounced on him and he was fatally mutilated before he could be dragged out. It is said he was overwhelmed by gambling debts.

THE WEATHER TODAY

Temperature of Week Has Been Below the Normal

The following summary of weather conditions in Texas is issued from the United States weather bureau at Galveston:
This week just closed was unusually cool and generally favorable for field work. Fair weather prevailed until Oct. 4, when an area of cloudiness and showers passed over the state, but toward the close of the 5th clearing weather set in and fair skies continued until the end of the week.
The rainfall was copious along the coast and in adjoining counties, which received from two to three inches of precipitation, and became rapidly less toward the interior, a number of counties from Kerr and Runnels northeastward to Hunt receiving very little or no moisture at all. Beyond this dry-felt there was a gradual increase in the amount of precipitation toward the Panhandle, where the rainfall was very nearly normal.

The heaviest rainfall occurred in Harris county, Houston reporting 3.19 inches. Thunder and lightning occurred in a number of localities during this short showery spell, but no damage has been reported.
The temperature averaged from 3 to 6 degrees below the normal, except in the Panhandle, where it was about normal, the departures being in general greatest in the coast counties in the region of heaviest precipitation. From the beginning of this week there was a gradual rise in temperature until the morning of the 6th, when a cool wave with a strong northerly wind advanced rapidly over the state and reached the coast by the morning of the 6th, the temperature falling from 19 to 16 degrees.
Usually cool nights continued during the remainder of the week, although the day temperature increased. Light frosts occurred in isolated and exposed places in some of the northern counties and heavy to killing frosts in some of the far western counties.
The highest temperatures reported ranged from 89 degrees at Galveston and Longview to 93 degrees at Beville and Ballinger, and the lowest from 34 degrees at Kerrville to 60 degrees at Galveston. At the close of the week clear skies prevailed over the state, except the southeastern portion, where it was cloudy and threatening.

To make an average of 200 pounds in six months, the pigs must never be limited in the amount of proper food. Good breeding will show out in similarity of form and form combining to make up an animal to fill the breeder's ideal.

DAN PATCH
HERE TODAY

Expected to Lower the Texas
Pacing Record

GREAT CROWDS

Alice Roosevelt Broke Texas
Half Mile Track Record
Thursday

Today was Dan Patch day at the races and the presence of that world-famous pacer was enough to bring to the grounds the biggest attendance in the five days of the meet. At 1:30 o'clock this afternoon fully two thousand people were at the track and the crowds were coming in droves. Harry Lawler, secretary of the fair association, stated that he expected at least twenty-five thousand people to witness the race of Dan Patch against time. All the early morning trains from neighboring hamlets were crowded with racers and the Interurban cars brought in many. The sporting contingent of Dallas is well represented here today, fully two hundred persons from that town being in the city to attend the races.

Friday morning hundreds of people journeyed to the park to get a look at Dan Patch. Cars were filled from 7 o'clock on until in the afternoon and the topic of every conversation was, "Will Dan Patch lower his record of 1:55 here?" Whether or not he lowers this record, the thousands of spectators went to the park today, certain that they would see the Texas record, now held by Dan Patch, lowered several seconds.

In 1903 Dan Patch raced at Dallas, making a mile in 2:01. The track is exceedingly fast and the only thing that will prevent Dan from making a mile in 1:55 will be a strong wind from the north. Of course, wind shields will be used in the race, but should the stiff breeze that swept the park Thursday afternoon prevail it will aid materially in keeping Dan from making the time of which he is capable. Dan Patch arrived in Fort Worth Thursday afternoon at 5:05 o'clock over the Missouri, Kansas and Texas, and was immediately taken to the track of the Fort Worth Fair Association. Dan comes from Lexington, Ky., where he gave a remarkable speed exhibition last Monday before some thirty thousand spectators. At that time he pounded a mile in 1:55, and it is expected he will beat this at the Fort Worth track. Dan was scheduled to go on the track at 4:30 o'clock.

Record Broken

The feature of Thursday's card at the track was the breaking of Texas records for trotting on a half-mile track by Alice Roosevelt, a sorrel mare of exceptional beauty, who pounded the mile in the goodly speed of 2:14. This was accomplished in the second heat of the second race, a 2:15 trot—and again in the third and final heat of the same event. The state record heretofore for trotting on a half-mile course has been 2:15.

First Event

The first race called Thursday afternoon by Starter Newton was a 2:15 pace, with Happy Hooligan, Lottie K.,

The sporting contingent of Dallas is well represented here today, fully two hundred persons from that town being in the city to attend the races.

Friday morning hundreds of people journeyed to the park to get a look at Dan Patch. Cars were filled from 7 o'clock on until in the afternoon and the topic of every conversation was, "Will Dan Patch lower his record of 1:55 here?" Whether or not he lowers this record, the thousands of spectators went to the park today, certain that they would see the Texas record, now held by Dan Patch, lowered several seconds.

In 1903 Dan Patch raced at Dallas, making a mile in 2:01. The track is exceedingly fast and the only thing that will prevent Dan from making a mile in 1:55 will be a strong wind from the north. Of course, wind shields will be used in the race, but should the stiff breeze that swept the park Thursday afternoon prevail it will aid materially in keeping Dan from making the time of which he is capable. Dan Patch arrived in Fort Worth Thursday afternoon at 5:05 o'clock over the Missouri, Kansas and Texas, and was immediately taken to the track of the Fort Worth Fair Association. Dan comes from Lexington, Ky., where he gave a remarkable speed exhibition last Monday before some thirty thousand spectators. At that time he pounded a mile in 1:55, and it is expected he will beat this at the Fort Worth track. Dan was scheduled to go on the track at 4:30 o'clock.

The feature of Thursday's card at the track was the breaking of Texas records for trotting on a half-mile track by Alice Roosevelt, a sorrel mare of exceptional beauty, who pounded the mile in the goodly speed of 2:14. This was accomplished in the second heat of the second race, a 2:15 trot—and again in the third and final heat of the same event. The state record heretofore for trotting on a half-mile course has been 2:15.

The first race called Thursday afternoon by Starter Newton was a 2:15 pace, with Happy Hooligan, Lottie K., and Taylor George also ran. Time of race, 1:15.

Sixth Event

This was for horses that had not won over one race since Aug. 1, seven furlongs—Jean Gravier won the race, making it in 1:30, with Cadillac second and Footspring third. Dutch Carter and Job also ran. This was the most exciting of all the running races, tho it also bordered on tanness.

Chat of the Course

Lennie Brooker, a jockey of note, who has been here during the races, will leave in the afternoon for New Orleans, where he goes to get in readiness for the winter meet there. Early Dake, a well known rider, who has been here looking on, will leave today for Atlanta, where he goes to operate a hand book. Most of the bookmakers at the track will get away tonight, as will most of the horse owners. Some will go to Dallas, but the majority will make for Atlanta, where a fifteen-day meet is being held. The Atlanta meets are always good ones and draw heavily from all sections. O. R. Menefee, Harry Lawler, Charles Long and Carl Evans are to be congratulated. They are the ones who have given their time in making the meet the success it has been. A society turned out in full force this afternoon to see Dan Patch. Most of the boxes were reserved and a great crowd was in attendance.

When Dan Patch arrived Thursday afternoon at the track there was a goodly crowd to meet him. However, he was covered with blankets and no one caught a glimpse. The bookies caught it hard Thursday. In fact, it is understood that they have been hit rather cruelly all the week. Professor Cox and his band entertained well. Had it not been for this organization the meet would not have been the success it has. But few people on this earth get the careful attention that is given Dan Patch by his driver, Harry Hersey, and a trained corps of rubbers, muscle-binders and feeders. The horse occupies the locomotive. He has a floor to his stall and this is covered with fresh hay, while the walls are padded so that the great horse cannot injure himself in any manner. When Dan left his car Thursday afternoon he was wrapped up like a human with a severe cold.

FIRE DAMAGES COTTON

One Hundred Bales Burned in Conflagration at Temple

Special to The Telegram. TEMPLE, Texas, Oct. 12.—Three flat cars containing a hundred and fifty bales of flat cotton and a carload of cotton seed were involved in a fire in the Missouri, Kansas and Texas railroad yards last night. A hundred bales of cotton was badly damaged. It is supposed the fire caught from a spark of a passing locomotive. Residence Destroyed Fire destroyed the residence and barn of George James Taylor at Valley, near Belton. The loss is estimated at $6,500, with insurance at $3,500. The origin of the fire is unknown.

FIVE HOUSES

Blaze on East Leuda Causes
Loss of $4,500

Fire destroyed five houses in East Leuda street Thursday night about 8 o'clock. The total property loss is about $4,500, which was covered by insurance. The origin of the fire is unknown.

The fire was first discovered in the residence of Mrs. George Wright, at 1106 Leuda. The alarm was turned in to fire station No. 6, but as the scene of the fire was some distance out, the flames two buildings owned by J. C. Ingram were occupied by Mrs. George Wright and Mrs. Glenn. The two owned by T. Y. Wright were occupied by H. W. Pemberton and R. G. Watson. The other house was owned by Tom Davis, who occupied the premises.

The furniture and household effects in all except the house occupied by Mrs. George Wright were for the most part saved. The fire started in the Wright cottage, while the family was at the circus, and nothing from this one was saved. Mr. Ingram knew nothing of the loss until told of it by The Telegram reporter early Friday morning.

CREDIT MEN ARE COMING

Will Spend an Entire Day in Fort Worth

Invitation and announcements have been received in Fort Worth for the first state convention of the Texas Credit Men, to be held at Dallas and the first day in Dallas and the second in Fort Worth. Over six hundred invitations have been sent to credit managers in Texas and in some few cities in the east.

The executive committee of the national association will be guests of honor at the convention. The members of the committee are expected to arrive Thursday, Oct. 25, and will also come to Fort Worth Saturday following.

All of the local committees, including the committee on entertainment arrangements, are diligently working that the visit of the credit men to Fort Worth may be an occasion never to be forgotten.

Arrangements have been perfected by the local association with the Northern Texas Traction Company and cars will be in readiness to leave Dallas at 9:30 o'clock Saturday morning for Fort Worth. The transportation of the visitors will be at the expense of the local association. On Fort Worth day the visitors will meet at 11 o'clock at Hermann Park, where an address of welcome will be delivered by Captain B. B. Padlock, Senator J. W. Bailey will then deliver the principal address, after which there will be an old-fashioned barbecue. The afternoon session will be held at the track, where the following program will be carried out: At 10 a. m.—Convention called to order. Invocation. Dr. George W. Truett, temporary organization; introductory address, J. Hay, president of the association; address of welcome, Hon. Curtis P. Smith, mayor of Dallas; response, A. P. Foute of Fort Worth. Texas vice-president of the national association; address by officers of the national association, O. G. Fessenden.

Saleswomen's Peril
GRAVE DISEASES, DUE TO STANDING

Facts About Miss Merkley's Dangerous Illness and Complete Cure

Have you ever thought why so many women or girls rather walk an hour than stand still for ten minutes?

Miss Margaret Merkley

It is because most women suffer from some derangement of their delicate organism, the discomfort of which is less trying when they are in motion than when standing. In some states laws compel employers to provide resting places for their female employees.

But no amount of law can regulate the hard tasks of these women. They must get the strength which this work demands or run the risk of serious diseases and the surgeon's knife.

Read the experience of Miss Margaret Merkley, 375 3d Street, Milwaukee, Wis. Dear Mrs. Pinkham—

Gradual loss of strength, nervousness, bearing-down pains and extreme irritation compelled me to seek medical advice. The doctor said I had diseased organs and ulceration, and advised an operation if I wanted to get well. I objected to this and decided to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial. I soon found that all the good things said about this great medicine were true. The ulceration soon healed, backache, headache and nervousness disappeared and in a short time I was strong, vigorous and perfectly well. I wish every working girl who suffers would try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a vegetable tonic which invigorates and strengthens the entire female organism, and will produce the same beneficial results in the cases of other sick women as with Miss Merkley.

TWO BURNED TO DEATH

Negro Children Play with Fire with Fatal Results

Special to The Telegram. MUMFORD, Texas, Oct. 12.—Yesterday morning about 11 o'clock a house occupied by Mattie Nutall, a negro, on the Edwin Willson plantation, caught fire, burning two children to death. A third was badly burned and cannot live. The mother and her sons were in the cotton patch a short distance from the house, but did not discover the fire in time to render assistance to the unfortunate children. Fire was left in the fireplace when the mother left for the cotton patch and the supposition is that the children were playing in the fire. No insurance and nothing saved.

CAPT. LYTLE BETTER

Rumors of Relapse Are Denied by Letter

A letter from Captain John T. Lytle denying the report of his recent relapse has been received in Fort Worth by Captain Burke Burnett, Captain Burnett said Friday: "I have just had a letter from Captain John Lytle, and he states that the rumors that he is very sick are not true. He had a headache and the foreman got rattled and wired for a doctor and the Captain's daughter. A doctor was sent for from Amarillo who treated him and he is getting along fine."

THE HEAVY TICK PROBLEM. Gentlemen located in the western portion of the state, and especially in those counties bordering on the state and federal quarantine line, are making a great deal of complaint over the presence of the fever tick this season, and declare that pest is more than usually abundant. They account for this state of affairs by declaring that it is the result of the wet season the country enjoyed, which produced rank vegetation on which the tick thrived and enjoyed unusual protection. Thousands of cattle have died, and it is reported that in some localities deaths are still occurring, every one of which can be traced directly to the presence of the fever tick.

The preparations being made by the federal government for a campaign of tick extermination in that section is meeting with hearty co-operation, from the fact that the necessity for immediate action has been brought home with such telling effect to the ranchmen of that section. The proposition of tick eradication, involving as it does but a simple matter of rotation in pastures, is such an easy solution, that it seems that but a very short time will be required to get the work very generally under way. But during the period when these pastures are being freed from ticks, there must be a time when losses will continue from the ticks already working upon the animals, and the best method of getting rid of these is a problem that confronts quite a number of ranchmen. Dr. A. D. Melvin, of the bureau of animal industry, makes the following suggestions as to how to get rid of the ticks on cattle:

"Cattle and premises may be freed from ticks by hand picking the cattle even though they are allowed to run on ticky premises, provided they are controlled and no other animals are permitted on the premises. The method of hand picking and greasing is most suitable in cases where there are but few animals, or for small herds where the condition for grazing cannot be changed. The method consists of carefully examining all the cattle daily and picking or scraping off the ticks. In this connection it must be remembered that horses and mules sometimes carry ticks, and therefore these animals must be thoroughly and frequently examined and the ticks removed. The greatest care must be exercised to collect and destroy all of the ticks removed. It is true that while this process is going on the animals will get more ticks on them if the premises are ticky, but by diligently destroying all the larger ticks the supply finally gives out on account of the seed ticks having perished.

"Arrange to examine all the cattle and pick the ticks at least every other day. All parts of the animal, especially the insides and back part of the thighs, should be examined for ticks. If any of the cattle are difficult to handle they should be driven into a chute or narrow pen made for the purpose and where good light is afforded. Ticks can be seen best in sunlight. Ticks must not be thrown on the ground, but should be placed in tin cans or other convenient vessels and carried to a suitable place and burned or otherwise totally destroyed, or they will lay eggs, and seed tick will hatch in countless numbers. Begin now to pick ticks and be sure that not a single tick matures on your cattle after September 15. As a result of your trouble in observing the precautions heretofore during the summer and fall the cattle and premises should be free from ticks by April 1.

"To assist in preventing ticks from getting on cattle the cattle may be greased at the time of picking or as often as may seem to be necessary. The greasy solution is obnoxious to the ticks, and if the legs and sides of the animals are treated in this manner, the ticks will be less apt to crawl on them. In greasing cattle use Beaumont crude petroleum or any crude oil, cottonseed oil, fish oil or lard. The following mixture will be found useful for this purpose: One gallon of kerosene, one gallon of cottonseed oil and one pound of flowers of sulphur. Any one of the above may be applied with a sponge, swab or brush and should be thoroughly rubbed on all the lower parts of the cattle and at least half way up their bodies."

Those who have tried these suggestions report that the method is very effective and has never yet failed to accomplish the purpose where the work of application has been properly done. The old rule was to grease the cattle with kerosene, but since the discovery of the crude Beaumont oil, it has been found to be a dead shot for the ticks no matter how it is applied. Contact seems to be all that is necessary to do the work, and for that reason this same oil has been made the basis for the dip that is used before allowing infected cattle to cross the quarantine line.

CLARIFYING THE REPUBLICAN PARTY.

White Republicans all over the state are being asked to sign an agreement which says: "We, the undersigned white Republicans, agree to go to the polls election day and vote, health permitting."

The peculiar part of this transaction is that it is said to have originated with Chairman Cecil Lyon, and clearly evinces that gentleman's determination to clarify the Republican party in Texas. It will be readily noticed that the pledge is taken by white Republicans only. There is nothing addressed to the colored contingent, but an apparently frigid resolve is evident to ignore it altogether.

This action is tantamount to Chairman Lyon releasing all strings to the colored brother, telling him to go where he chooses, vote as he pleases, and to hereafter bear in mind that the regular Republican party in Texas is to be a white man's party. It is understood to be a move on the part of the Lyon's forces to checkmate Colonel Ned Green and his associates in the reorganized Republican party. In the event the reorganizers receive the most votes in the November election, Chairman Lyon will be prepared to go before the powers that be and still demand recognition on the ground that his wing is composed of the respectable element of the party.

It is generally understood that Chairman Lyon is firmly of the opinion that the only way in which the Republican party can be built up in Texas is to entirely eliminate the negro. The holding of the last regular Republican convention at El Paso, which made it practically inaccessible to the usual horde of negro delegates, well demonstrated this point. His theory is that the large number of Republicans coming into Texas from other states can only be held in line thru realization that the Republican party in the new home of their adoption is essentially a respectable party from the fact that it is a white man's party.

And the clericality with which the reorganizers proceeded to call and hold a state convention of their own, is conclusive evidence that they realize the issue is sharply drawn. They are aware of the fact that they have been summarily booted out of the regular organization, and henceforth if they call themselves Republicans they must do it thru the maintenance of an organization of their own.

It is an interesting situation, and the chasm between the Republicans and goosenecks is widening and deepening daily.

ROOSEVELT FOR SENATOR.

A report from Washington says President Roosevelt wants to be senator from New York to succeed Senator Thomas C. Platt. The President, on the authority of men who are intimate with him, not only desires to be senator from New York after he ends his present term, but frankly admits that such is his ambition. Moreover, he considers the trend of things in New York politics at this time distinctly favorable to his ambition, as do his friends. He is being looked to more and more as the leader of New York Republican politics and is being consulted by State Chairman Woodruff and the other leaders almost daily.

That President Roosevelt brought about the nomination of Charles E. Hughes while avoiding the appearance of doing so, is declared by his closest friends. The President's warmest friends say that a New York legislature will be elected pledged to him for the United States senate, and the President is determined to keep his word not to accept a third term, but get into the senate if possible, and there stamp himself on the national legislation of the country.

SHOULD KEEP OUT OF POLITICS

In his speech at Guthrie, O. T., a few days ago, William J. Bryan, the great Democratic leader, spoke in no uncertain tones concerning the connection of public servant with the great corporate influences of the country. In that address Colonel Bryan said: "I have no objection to a man representing trusts or corporations as counsel, but I do believe that the man who does it ought to have the decency to keep out of politics, and if he has not the people ought to have respect enough to kick him out."

CULBERSON SETS PROPER EXAMPLE

The state of Texas has one public official in the person of her senior United States senator, around whom there has never clustered any suspicion of wrong doing, and the Culberson standard is worthy of emulation in more ways than one. The Houston Post says: "The views of Senator Culberson upon the question of corporate influence have been made public, not by a statement but by the public recitation of an incident that occurred many years ago. It was recounted by a high official in the employ of an express company now doing business in Texas.

Before Senator Culberson was elected to the office of attorney general for Texas he was the legal representative of the express company, to which his associates are still associated. Immediately upon his installation into office his employment with the corporation was severed.

In spite of this fact the usual courtesies were extended. The manager for the express company issued his regular and yearly allotment of "franks." The privilege of using the express accommodations of the company free of cost was offered to the man now acting as senior senator from Texas.

A few days later the frank was returned. Accompanying was a letter of unmistakable import. Mr. Culberson, when he assumed the position of a public official, severed all other associations. He could not even accept the courtesies of the company by which he had been so long employed.

IMPROVING WEST TEXAS PASTURES

Messrs. J. L. Baldwin, T. E. Ballard and Major Smith, all oldtimers in the west and familiar with the subject, were discussing the prairie dog evil the other day and they all agreed that the damage these pests do in the destruction of grass is much greater than most persons have thought it to be. Pastures were mentioned that were almost barren of grass a few years ago, but which have become well sodded in the two or three years since the owners had the prairie dogs killed, and which now furnish fine pasturage. A good many land owners have had the dogs killed, but others have neglected it and are not getting half the benefit from their pastures that they would get if they were to clear them of dogs.—Luskell Free Press.

And that has been the common experience with all west Texas pastures. Where the prairie dogs have been killed the large stretches of land that had heretofore been almost entirely denuded of grass and all other vegetation have become covered with fine grass again and cattlemen are actually surprised at the manner in which the grazing capacity of their holdings has been increased.

For a long time the killing of the prairie dogs had no appreciable effect on the situation, owing to the fact that the killing was not sufficiently general. But a new law was passed which enabled the people of any county to vote for general extermination and compel all land owners to kill their dogs. The wisdom of this law has already been fully vindicated.

TEXAS TALENTS IN DEMAND

Dr. Alonzo Monk of Fort Worth has been transferred to Louisville, Ky., as pastor of the Broadway Methodist church. Dr. Sam R. Hay of Houston was recently transferred to St. Louis. So it goes. Texas is sending some of her best preachers, her best railroad men, best insurance men and best physicians to the north and east. Not that they are all gone, but the tendency is against us. The concentration of wealth in the east is drawing our best talent away to broader fields. Our money is building up the great railroads, insurance companies, trust companies and now the demand is for our best ministers. How long, O how long, will these things continue? Let us awake and claim our own.—Georgetown Commercial.

It is something of a misfortune that Texas is being called upon to furnish gray matter for other states in so many different directions, from the fact that so many able men are being taken from the state. But in their new locations they are standing advertisements of what this great state is able to produce and are doing men's parts in bringing their new surroundings up to the Texas standard.

The time is not far distant when this great and glorious state will be the dominant factor in the affairs of this nation. That fact has already been seen and recognized in many quarters, and may account for the manner in which the call is being steadily extended for brains and enterprise such as we produce in Texas.

The federal government has been making some experiments in Texas now for several years in an effort to devise a means of stopping the onward march of this great enemy of the cotton producer, but those efforts have not resulted in anything that was practical. The Guatemalan ant theory has proven to be about one of the silliest ideas that was ever conceived, and is the best of cotton producers from one end of the state to the other. In many parts of Texas where the weevils were formerly quite abundant, they are now reported a very scarce quantity, and it may be hoped from this that nature is finding a method of her own of settling this problem. Certain it is that the efforts of the federal government in this direction in Texas have not been productive of very hopeful results.

According to the latest reports from Cuba, that island is bordering on a condition that is not far removed from anarchy. And the duty of this government in dealing with that kind of a situation is too clear to admit of any kind of argument.

From every section of the state comes reports of big real estate transactions involving the cutting up of big ranches for homes. One big ranch in Live Oak county has just been converted into 4,000 farms. And this is indisputable evidence that the waste places in Texas are being rapidly converted into prosperous and happy homes.

Editor Ouseley says he is a personal friend of Senator Bailey.

Senator Bailey is a personal friend of David R. Francis.

D. R. Francis is a personal friend of Henry Clay Pierce.

Whose personal friend is Henry?

Cullen F. Thomas of Waco talks just like a free-born Texas citizen who is able to deliver the goods.

After they grow up most boys quit crying for jam and are thankful if they can get all the plain bread they want.

The next legislature should not forget that the salary of the governor of Texas is immeasurably short of the honor, dignity and necessities of the occasion. Give us a constitutional amendment increasing the pay of the executive to $10,000 per annum.

Fort Worth has just had the honor of being entertained by the second circus this season, and lots of Fort Worth cash has gone to join that which immediately preceded it.

Dallas is going to be greatly disappointed when Senator Tillman gets off the train without an actual pitchfork in evidence. Dallas always was a great agricultural community.

All the men who differ with us as to lines of policy are not necessarily liars and thieves and scoundrels. Some pretty good sort of fellows sometimes differ on points they cannot see just exactly alike.

FROM DIANA'S DIARY A Story of a Summer Flirtation

"IT WAS COOL INDIFFERENCE THAT I HANDED HIM."

TUESDAY.—He has come. We have now with us at Pine Cottage Sir Chauncey Scadley-Chasington, Bart. He is a PERFECT LOVE, and there was a flutter among the girls as he hopped lightly from the bus, clad in tweeds—the Bart, not the bus. He had a brand new "bag," as he called it, which must have cost $5. Because I KNOW, Taffeta & Balbriggan's handle that make, which is an exclusive one manufactured only in St. Louis.

All the girls fell over each other to meet him, which, honest was SUCH COOL WORK that I nearly bust out laughing. It was cool indifference that I handed him. Mrs. Summergraft was compelled to bring him to WHERE I was sitting on the piazza reading. I greeted him with THAT RESERVE appropriate to an heiress who is going to have a lot of dough left to her by a rich papa, who made his money in fertilizer. I gave him the lozenge's mitt, so to speak. Say, it made an instant hit. The Bart is becoming attentive.

THE TEXAS PRESS VERJEST THAT RING

A FORLORN MINSTREL.

Dearest, I'm out where the blossoms are quaking, And crickets are chirping their lay in the pass; The silvery leaves of the poplars are shaking, A silverfrog is croaking in yonder lush grass. Come to my arms, for my arms are so empty, And bid with me here in the saena of the moon; Bring me a sandwich—and drop me a twenty— My stomach's as flat as a busted balloon.

Dearest beloved, I've sat here an hour, Picking away on this raspy guitar, I have warbled sad love songs the best in my power, But I doubt if you listened or care what they are, I wish you would sneak to the kitchen and get me A mother-made doughnut or wedge of mince pie, I'm hungry as thunder, so long have I sat me Here in the dew where the skeeter-bugs fly.

Loved one, get busy and peek o'er thy casement, Look from thy lattice down here where I sit, Cause me not, dearest, to suffer debasement— Hurry—E'en bordering close to a fit. To thee have I wandered, a minstrel to tickle These strings that they soft to thy chamber might reach.

But I know from thy snoring I'm left in a pickle— O, Imogene, dearest, t'ou'rt surely a peach! —Washington Star.

RAILROADS IN POLITICS.

It will be necessary to get the railroads out of politics as they are before much headway can be made with the political argument against public ownership. It was only the other day that the president of the Atchison system was publicly defending the railroad practice of mixing in politics on the ground of being a big taxpayer, and now evidence is being brought out before the Minnesota railroad commission going to show that the Minneapolis and Omaha Company spent considerable sums of money in helping the effort to defeat Governor La Follette of Wisconsin for re-election. It even went so far as to detail many of its employees to work against La Follette at the polls. If any administration under public ownership of railroads should ever venture to get the employees into politics as deeply as that, the fact would be quickly known and it would not help the administration with other voters.—Springfield (Mass.) Republican.

NEWS OF THE TEXAS RANGE

FAMOUS RANCHES PASSING

Advance in Value of Land Causes Big Tracts to Be Cut Up

TAYLOR, Texas, Oct. 12.—The continued advance in value of the black land soil of Williamson county marks the passing of a number of the well-known ranches of this section, the soil of which is so well adapted to the purpose, becoming too valuable for stock raising, and the passing of these haunts of the cowboy bold and causes a feeling of sadness. Following the disintegration of the old Hixie Flag Springs ranch, east of town, a few years ago, which carried with it many pleasing memories of the almost forgotten past, now comes the closing of the famous Turkey Creek ranch, four miles northwest of Taylor and owned by G. E. King of this city. This valuable tract of 8,000 acres was purchased by William King sixteen years ago at $14 per acre. A short time ago he sold 200 acres of this ranch for considerably more than the price originally paid for the entire tract. A few days ago he sold another slice of this land to Frank Stefka, a Bohemian farmer, for $25,000, at $125 per acre.

Thus passes one of the most famous ranches in Texas, known throughout the southwest as the home of registered Durham cattle. The ranch originally had China hogs, sales and shipments of which have been made to nearly every state in the south and west, over one hundred head of high-grade Durham cattle having been shipped during the last year to points in California and Mexico, and eighty head of registered cattle, mostly going to the irrigated farms of Governor J. Gonzales Trevino of the state of Coahuila, Mexico.

Being recognized as one of the best stockmen in Texas, as is attested by the fact that for four successive years he has been chosen as judge of the Fat Stock Show held annually at Fort Worth, the live stock interests of Williamson county will suffer by the retirement of Mr. King from the industry. While he realizes that he received a fair price for the land, he regrets to part company with Turkey Creek ranch, which must be vacated by the first of next January. For this reason he decided to sell the remaining land and stock and retire for the time from the stock raising business.

Exterminating the Ticks

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, Oct. 12.—Joseph W. Parker, the federal inspector in charge of tick extermination work in Texas, is back from a trip to both Colorado City and Quanah, where the initial work has been inaugurated. He says that the work of investigating the pastures, the tick-infested, is being done in a most efficient manner, and that there is no opposition among ranchmen to the work, and that those whose shortcoming is aptly are exhibiting more interest in the work than at its inception. Another matter that should inspire the cattlemen in the twenty-two counties now under special quarantine to a united effort toward co-operation with the federal authorities is the statement by Dr. Parker that in his opinion the ticks in those counties are more plentiful now than they have been at any time during the past five years. Dr. Parker will leave in a few days for Sanderson, in Pecos county, where work is to soon begin under the direction of Mr. Gourley.

Two Texans Appointed

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, Oct. 12.—Two Texans have just been accepted by the bureau of animal industry for field work in the state on the tick eradication proposition. One of them is Tom M. Gourley of this city, who served a long period as customs guard in Eagle Pass and who is familiar with every phase of the tick problem below the quarantine line. The other is J. W. Loving of Jacksboro, a son of Abner Loving, one of the leading cattlemen of that section of the state and at present a member of the executive committee of the Cattle Raisers' Association of Texas. Young Loving is a graduate of the Agricultural and Mechanical College of Texas, and having been raised on the ranch, is equipped both by experience and education for making a valuable addition to the forces under Dr. Parker. Mr. Gourley will be stationed at Sanderson, and Mr. Loving will join the force at work in and around Colorado City.

Fifty Lost by Fever

ROSCOE, Texas, Oct. 12.—Don Carlisle was here a few days ago from the ranch in the southern portion of the county, and says his father and himself have lost more than fifty head of cattle this summer from fever. Mr. Carlisle gave it as his opinion that ticks were the cause of the fever. He says there are more ticks this season than ever before known in the history of the country, and believes the unusually heavy rainfall has had a great deal to do with their propagation. The Carlisle ranch is located right on the border of the state and federal quarantine line, and is one of the largest and best ranches in this section of the state.

WASHER BROS. FALL OPENING

Attention to Feminine Taste a Feature of Arrangements

Special attention to the influence of feminine ideas on what men, youths and boys wear, was a feature of the annual fall opening of Washer Bros., clothing store, corner Eighth and Main streets, Friday.

Special attention to the influence of feminine ideas on what men, youths and boys wear, was a feature of the annual fall opening of Washer Bros., clothing store, corner Eighth and Main streets, Friday. The new and exclusive section of a clothing store is a Fort Worth idea, and Washer Bros. originated it. Since then the idea has received favorable notice in the journals over the country and it has been widely copied.

A reception was given at Washer Bros. from 2:30 o'clock to 5:30 o'clock Friday afternoon. The interior of the store had been lavishly decorated. Snailix was twined about every pillar and beam, even covering the portico over the street entrance. Potted palms were banked along the gallery on which the Majestic theater orchestra played an elaborate program. More than fifty dozen roses were scattered about in vases on the show cases of the first floor. Every woman visiting the store was given a souvenir, a hand mirror of convenient size. Men were given a clever souvenir in the form of Lee Russell, the well known stockman of this place, met with a serious accident near Atchison, Kan., a few days ago. Riding in the caboose of his train of cattle, which was being shipped to St. Joseph, Mo., without the least intimation the train was run into by an engine coming on behind. The caboose was smashed to pieces and Mr. Russell was thrown on to the boiler of the engine which caused the disaster.

Max Martin Buys Cattle

MASON, Texas, Oct. 12.—Max Martin has been out the last few days receiving several hundred head of 2-year-old steers he has bought from different parties. Among them was 100 head bought from C. C. Smith at $10 per head. J. D. Eckert sold 120 coming 28 to W. J. Moore of Llano at $19 around.

Good Outlook for Cattle

AMARILLO, Texas, Oct. 12.—The winter outlook for cattle in this section of the state is just about as good as anyone could desire. There has been an abundance of rain all the year and the grass is very fine. The largest feed crops in the history of the country have been raised and unless the winter is unusually severe not much loss is expected. Cattle generally will go into the winter in the very pink of condition.

Interior Remodeled

A noticeable feature at the opening was the manner in which the interior of the store has been remodeled during the past summer. An effort has been made to have each department so complete that a customer entering the hat department finds himself in a complete hat store, when he goes into the shoe department, in a shoe store, and so on.

Men's clothing occupies the central part of the first floor. Along part of the east and the south side is a complete line of men's furnishings. Along the remainder of the east side and part of the north side is the hat department. Between the first and second floors is a gallery, on which are the offices, shipping and mail order departments. The northeast section of the second floor is devoted to one of the most complete boys' furnishing departments in Texas. Even the furniture is of special and exclusive design and the stock is the best obtainable on the market. A waiting and toilet room for women have been provided in this department. On the second floor also are the merchant tailoring and uniform departments and a large work room.

The reception Friday afternoon was given by Leon Gross of the firm of Washer Bros. received visitors at the Main entrance, together with Gabe Washer. Arrangements for the reception and plans for the decoration were chiefly the work of F. T. Crittenden, advertising manager of Washer Bros. Friday, explaining the development of the idea. "When the young man himself takes an interest in better clothes you will find he is doing it to make himself attractive to some young woman and the young woman remains the cause of his interest in clothes until marriage. Then he gets so engrossed in business his wife has to look after his wearing apparel, and so the chain is complete. From beginning to end woman is interested in men's clothes and therefore we believe they are entitled to every consideration."

Restores Vigor in Old Age

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey

If you wish to keep strong and vigorous and have on your cheeks the glow of perfect health, take Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey regularly, according to directions, and take no other medicine. It is dangerous to fill your system with drugs, they poison the body and depress the heart while Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey tones and strengthens the heart and purifies the entire system. It is the only whiskey that is recognized as a medicine and contains no fusel oil. This is a guarantee. Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey has stood severe tests for fifty years and has always been found absolutely pure and to contain great medicinal properties.

CAUTION.—When you ask your druggist or grocer for Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey be sure you get the genuine. It's the only absolutely pure medicinal whiskey and is sold only in sealed bottles—never in bulk. Look for the trade-mark, the "Old Chemist," on the label and make sure the seal over the cork is unbroken. Price $1.00. Medical booklet and doctor's advice free. Duffy Malt Whiskey Co., Rochester, N. Y.

Mrs. Eliza Scheirer, who lives at Macungie, Pa., and who has passed a very strenuous life, found at the age of 76 some of the old time vigor and energy lacking. She felt that she needed something to give her strength in her declining years. For over a year she he has used Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey as a tonic-medicine and has found in it the very thing needed for one at her time of life.

She writes the following and cordially recommends Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey to both young and old:

"I would say that I am now in my seventy-sixth year. Have always lived an active life. About a year ago I began using DUFFY'S PURE MALT WHISKEY as a restorative, and I can heartily recommend it as a very valuable preservative for young and old." Mrs. ELIZA SCHEIRER, May 6, '06.

DR. PRICE'S Cream Baking Powder

Has a dietetic value greatly beyond the conception of any one who has not used it. It will make your food of a delicious taste, a moist and keeping quality and a digestibility not to be obtained from any other baking powder or leavening agent.

But more important than all else, Dr. Price's Baking Powder carries only healthful qualities to the food.

As every housekeeper can understand, burnt alum and sulphuric acid—the ingredients of all alum and aluminum phosphates—must carry to the food acids injurious to health.

Avoid the alum powders—study the label

A BIG CROWD AT THE CIRCUS

Street Cars Scarcely Able to Transport People

The great Ringling circus tent was packed to its full capacity at its two performances Thursday. The street railways also had a colossal proposition to handle the crowds that were in the city from every part of the county to see the giraffe, feed peanuts to the big elephant and drink red lemonade, and the peanut, pop-corn and lemonade vendors did a land office business, as it were, as some of the street cars were lined up for a long distance above and below the circus grounds at the close Thursday night, and a great rush was made to get in on time. The negroes were hanging on all sides of the cars, and the conductors of some of them were forced to stop the cars in order to collect fares, as it was impossible to get thru the car.

Every one was well pleased with the performance and in spite of the inconveniences and the late hour of the crowd was a good-natured one, as are all circus crowds.

SHIPPING LABORERS

148 Workmen Sent from Fort Worth to Cotton Fields

One hundred and forty-eight laborers were shipped out of Fort Worth Thursday night over the different railroads to the cotton fields, others to the lumber districts and others to work on railroad construction. Of the number, forty-two were negroes who go to the cotton fields, sixty were sent for railroad work and the remainder go to the lumber mills in East and Southeast Texas.

Labor agents in Fort Worth report the greatest demand for labor in all sections of the state ever known, and they are all behind in filling their orders notwithstanding the steamships are landing many at Galveston, who are secured by the agents as soon as they land. Of the immigrants, Italians, Russians, Romanians and Greeks are in the lead as to numbers, and they are a better class of people than those who flocked to the United States from those countries several years ago. Among the Russians, the Jews are in the majority, large numbers having been sent out of Fort Worth to work on railroad construction and in the lumber mills.

F. M. ETHERIDGE TALKS ON BAILEY

Dallas Attorney Expresses His Views and Criticism

Special to The Telegram.

DALLAS, Texas, Oct. 12.—F. M. Etheridge, a well-known local attorney, was principal speaker at the so-called anti-Bailey meeting held here last night.

"My Fellow Citizens: I am here tonight without the remotest desire of either representing or opposing any political preference, solely to discharge what I conceive to be my patriotic duty of opposing the re-election of the Junior Senator from Texas.

"Assuming for the sake of argument that Mr. Bailey violated no propriety in interceding, and that being guileless and unspontaneous, his confidence was imposed upon by Pierce's assurance, yet it remains to inquire what has been Mr. Bailey's conduct subsequent to the confession of Pierce on Sept. 10, last.

"The receipt of this letter doubtless occasioned Mr. Bailey very great surprise, but it came voluntarily, and it attests, in so far as a perjurer can attest, to the citizenship of Texas that Pierce represented to Mr. Bailey that the Waters-Pierce was an independent concern and bore no relation to the Standard Oil Company.

"In commenting upon this letter, Mr. Bailey tells us: 'The statement of Mr. Pierce to me, published to the people of Texas, is contrary to his financial interest and contrary to his moral standing.' In the name of heaven, in the name of an outraged and justly indignant people, behold the spectacle of a senator from the state of Texas publicly proclaiming that H. C. Pierce, confessedly a perjurer, possesses such a thing as a moral standing.

"Would it not be better, in view of the probabilities of the happening of such contingencies, for Mr. Bailey either to resign from the senate or to resign from the Pierce syndicate? This question I submit to the candid judgment of an unprejudiced and thinking public. It is not for me to suggest that Mr. Bailey should have called his friend Francis to account for arming Pierce with a favorable letter of introduction, and if Mr. Francis had asserted his innocence in the transaction, then it is passing strange that this same Francis should not himself have called Pierce to account for his position next to the presidency itself, and enter the domain of commercialism and money making unnumbered by the trusteeship of the people's opposition to the interests. He may not feel that he is at present attempting to serve two masters with conflicting interests. If so, it is because he fails to see himself as others see him, if he better understands the belief that his fees, wholly disproportionate to any service rendered, are the result of his knowledge of the law, and do not result from his influence as a senator, he should awake to the realization of that fact, as it so obviously appears to the public mind, and he should select the one of the two masters most agreeable to him to serve with such a devotion as will to serve either inclination or time for the service of the other."

JOHNSON BOY KNOWN HERE

Boy Murdered at Amarillo Lived in Fort Worth

Special to The Telegram.

Luther Johnson, the boy who was murdered at Amarillo, was formerly employed by the Knight Dry Goods Company, 15 Fort Worth, and is well remembered by R. P. Lary and others connected with the store.

"With a fixed grasp, he still clings to the responsibility for Pierce and associates. Not only that, he defiantly tells us that he will continue to practice law, and that without any intimation that Pierce is to suffer elimination from his catalogue of contributors and clients. He makes no intimation that there has been or ever will be the slightest breach of either personal or professional relations with Pierce. Not only that, he flaunts to the bewildered gaze of an outraged people a letter received by him at Gainesville from Pierce, in which the latter states that Pierce represented to Mr. Bailey that the Waters-Pierce was an independent concern and bore no relation to the Standard Oil Company.

"In commenting upon this letter, Mr. Bailey tells us: 'The statement of Mr. Pierce to me, published to the people of Texas, is contrary to his financial interest and contrary to his moral standing.' In the name of heaven, in the name of an outraged and justly indignant people, behold the spectacle of a senator from the state of Texas publicly proclaiming that H. C. Dallas Democrats Declare Senator Should Lose Seat

SCORE HIS RECORD

Resolutions Passed Urging Texans to Oppose Re-election to Senate

Special to The Telegram.

DALLAS, Texas, Oct. 12.—Resolutions declaring that Joseph W. Bailey is disqualified from further serving as United States senator from Texas were submitted to an affirmative vote at an anti-Bailey meeting held in Dallas last night.

"Whereas, He has announced that in the event of his re-election as senator from Texas he will resign such employment; now, therefore, be it resolved, by the democrats here assembled, That the accepting of employment from recognized trusts and monopolies like the Standard Oil Company and public service corporations and their allied interests and representatives is inconsistent with the duties of United States senator.

"Resolved, That in our opinion, as we have announced his purpose to continue to accept such employment, that we now here declare that that disqualifies him; that he has no right to accept $5,000 a year to represent the people of Texas in the United States senate to protect them against illegal exactions and deprivations of such corporations and thereafter to be on the pay rolls of the same combinations and corporations against whose greed and rapacity he has been paid our money to protect us. Be it further

"Resolved, That in our opinion his conduct and purpose declared as to what he intends to do in the future absolves all contrary to his position as the nominee of the party, for the reason that the rights of the people to representation in the United States senate by representatives not on the pay rolls of the monopolies and public service corporations is imperative and paramount to a technical right which he claims arising from his position in the party because all the facts now known to the public were not known at the date when his nomination was made.

"Resolved, That we call upon all citizens who believe in the public service and who are opposed to filling the United States senate with attorneys of the interests against which we seek to protect ourselves to advise their representatives of their views in the premises."

Many a Man Has Failed Because His Face Was a Picture of Calamity

It takes sunshine to produce a rose, a perfect rose. And so man, to be successful, must have sunshine inside. The life which has no sunshine has no health and no happiness, is sour, surly, pessimistic, and a failure. The world abounds with too many vinegar faces, faces which have no sunshine, but which want joy, comfort, sunshine, and will cling to the man who has it, who radiates gladness and triumph wherever he is and under all circumstances.

Some people have a genius for seeking out the disagreeable, the crooked, the bad and the ugly. These are the destroyers of the world. They travel in schools, they herd together for they love their kind, and the cheerful part of the world will have nothing to do with them.

There were calls for Judge Cockrell, but he declared that he would not talk, as it was getting late. He would have been visiting with Terrell Saturday night, he said.

and purposes a representative of the Standard Oil Company; and,

"Whereas, He has announced that in the event of his re-election as senator from Texas he will resign such employment; now, therefore, be it resolved, by the democrats here assembled, That the accepting of employment from recognized trusts and monopolies like the Standard Oil Company and public service corporations and their allied interests and representatives is inconsistent with the duties of United States senator.

"Resolved, That in our opinion, as we have announced his purpose to continue to accept such employment, that we now here declare that that disqualifies him; that he has no right to accept $5,000 a year to represent the people of Texas in the United States senate to protect them against illegal exactions and deprivations of such corporations and thereafter to be on the pay rolls of the same combinations and corporations against whose greed and rapacity he has been paid our money to protect us. Be it further

"Resolved, That in our opinion his conduct and purpose declared as to what he intends to do in the future absolves all contrary to his position as the nominee of the party, for the reason that the rights of the people to representation in the United States senate by representatives not on the pay rolls of the monopolies and public service corporations is imperative and paramount to a technical right which he claims arising from his position in the party because all the facts now known to the public were not known at the date when his nomination was made.

"Resolved, That we call upon all citizens who believe in the public service and who are opposed to filling the United States senate with attorneys of the interests against which we seek to protect ourselves to advise their representatives of their views in the premises."

Watch The Busy Corner

with a large party at Haines' Park Thursday afternoon and evening. The Ringlings are popular hosts and so greatly eclipse the ordinary hostess in amusing guests that no one will attempt to entertain on Ringling day.

When I was a little girl I went home from the circus filled with ambition to ride bareback, four horses at a time, or else repeat the wonderful acts of agility on the slack rope. I remember once having a broken nose trying to do the wire act. I feel now that if I only could drive a pacer sitting in one of those funny little sulkeys, with my feet hanging anywhere there is room, life would be worth living. I never mastered a bareback ride nor a slack-wire walk, so I will not press the matter of driving in a sulkey.

The folk in the grandstand were not more intent in gazing at the racers than were the horses lined up against the fence in the infield. It was worth the admission to see the almost human expression of the eyes of the good, servicable animals that are always depended upon to "stand hitched." The horse that obeys and is faithful stands a chance of winning a good home and affectionate treatment. The cast-off racer, old no longer a winner, faces uncertainty of home or kindness for his old age. There is a moral here.

Social Events

Mrs. Tom Slack entertained today with a 5 o'clock luncheon for Mrs. Dodson of Ardmore.

The Current Literature Club will meet Saturday afternoon with Miss Lula Stearns.

The Woman's Shakespeare Club met Friday afternoon with Mrs. J. S. Andrews, "King John" act 2, scene 1, was studied.

Announcement is made of the marriage Oct. 3 at Los Angeles, Cal., of Miss Jennie Wille to J. O. Ming. The bride is a sister of Mrs. A. L. Jackson and on visits here was much admired.

When the afternoon closed the good Dobbins that had been watching their speedy kin pranced away as if their legs had been limbered up for show. Too most of them said quite plainly, "It's all a matter of accident. If I only had a chance I could trot, too. See me!"

Horses have it on men. When the runner or trotter finishes his exertions he has a half dozen attendants with blankets. He gets covered and rubbed and cozened as if he were china-ware and might break. When I finish my hard drive I feel mighty lucky to have a bed and nice warm cover to creep under, and am deeply thankful if I escape a few fault-finding knocks.

Colonel Crawford Declines

When he had concluded there were cries for Senator Shaw and Cockrell, Judge Edward Gray moved that Colonel W. L. Crawford be heard from. The demand for Colonel Crawford was insistent, but he would not reply.

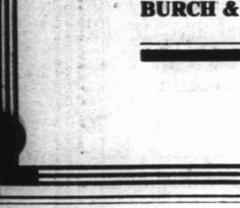

There were calls for Judge Cockrell, but he declared that he would not talk, as it was getting late. He would have been visiting with Terrell Saturday night, he said.

Resolutions Are Offered

Mr. Shaw moved his resolution. The chairman declared that they had the resolutions already prepared and he produced a typewritten copy, which was read. It follows:

HEARD BETWEEN HEATS

Wanted—A bunch of preachers direct from Kentucky. For particulars apply to Fort Worth Driving Club.

For a town suffering from an acute attack of preacheritis the attendance Fort Worth day and Dan Patch day was not so bad.

Who would have thought even a racer would be so particular? The start-er announced an error of names on the program. Flora Lee should have been Cora Lee. A name worth having is worth being known correctly.

The messenger boys who took bets from the grandstand looked downcast. They should take heart. Next year we will do without chewing gum for months, so as to have the cash to make it worth their while to talk with us.

The faithful feminine baseball fan studied the book of etiquette as to the peanut and popcorn habit for the races. The etiquette writers had forgotten the races. It was found later that popcorn went, but the peanuts and soda pop were barred. It is said the horses objected.

A brilliant cue tied to the side of a horse's head looked mighty queer to the prayer meeting lady. Pity that society cannot fit a stick of some sort to the head of the frisky woman with an inclination to toss her head until she pulls away out of the straight and narrow way.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Restored Wrecked Nerves to Normal Condition and Good Health Followed.

The sufferer from sleeplessness too often resorts to habit-forming drugs in order to secure the coveted rest. But sleep obtained by the use of opiates is not refreshing and the benefit is but temporary at best.

Mrs. H. A. Fletcher, of 69 Blodgett street, Manchester, N. H., is living evidence of the truth of this statement. She says: "I received a shock of an apoplectic character. It was so severe that the sight of my right eye was affected, causing me to see objects double. I was confined to my bed about four weeks, at one time being told by the doctor that I could not get well. When I could leave my bed I was in such a nervous state that I could not sleep at night. I would get up and sit on a chair until completely tired out and then go back to bed and sleep from exhaustion."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have cured many severe nervous troubles, headache, neuralgia and sciatica as well as discases of the blood such as anaemia, rheumatism, pale and sallow complexion and many forms of weakness. All druggists sell Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, or they will be sent by mail postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box, six boxes for $2.50, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

Ware's Black Powder

Cures Catarrh of the Stomach and Bowels, Constipation, Indigestion and All Stomach and Bowel Troubles.

Cure is a strong word, but we use it with full confidence. No matter how many remedies you may have tried without success, we now offer you a cure, and we won't ask you to take our word for it. We give you proof that can't be disputed.

This is to certify that my mother, Mrs. L. D. Drake, now living at Ann Arbor, Mich., has for the last eight years been suffering from an intestinal trouble, due to intestinal indigestion. After spending several hundred dollars for various prescriptions from doctors, I sent her a package of Ware's Black Powder. She is now at the age of 87. I received a letter from her stating after taking Ware's Black Powder, it relieved her so greatly that she feels confident she can make the trip back to Texas to see her children.

One of the biggest ice cream manufacturers in the state says that "Ware's Black saved my wife's life; General W. L. Cabell told me to try it. F. W. BOEDECKER, Dallas, Texas." All troubles begin with the STOMACH and end with the use of Ware's Black Powder. For sale by all druggists.

Trice spring has awakened the sap in the Glenarm wood since that night. Yesterday I tore March from the calendar. April in Indiana! She is an impudent tomboy who whistles at the window, points to the sunshine and, when you go hopefully forth, summons the clouds and pelts you with snow.

As for myself—Marian is tapping the floor restlessly with her boot and I must hasten—I may say that I am no idler. It was I who carried on the work of finishing Glenarm house, and I manage the farms which my grandfather has lately acquired in this neighborhood. But better still, from my own point of view, I maintain in Chicago an office as consulting engineer and I have already had several important commissions.

LOCAL LIVE STOCK NEWS

CORN YIELD GOOD

Oklahoma Stock Farmers Says Crop Was Never Better

Q. E. Sasse is a young stock farmer of the famous Oklahoma farming country, living near Walters, on the Rock Island, and who, a native of Texas, moved from Coryell county some eight months ago to the Territory. "We lost lots of small grain on account of the constant wet weather and the cotton was affected to some extent from the same cause, the plant growing too much to weed. That has stopped, and there will be a lot of cotton after all. All crops are good up with us, corn especially, which is the biggest thing of its kind I ever saw and has the largest ears. There will be no end of feed-stuffs and there will be in consequence much feeding done by an increased number of feeds. Stock is a good investment in a country where the feed can be depended upon every year, and most of the people who make a business of farming will make stock raising and feeding a part of the yearly program. There is no better part of the country for fruit than the section I live in, and although not very many peaches have as yet been planted, still those that are doing nicely and bear much and fine fruit. There are plenty of other fruits and berries, and besides supplying the home consumption, there is a surplus for market, and as every little helps, this source of revenue adds to the aggregate and is that much toward the general prosperity of the Territory."

AN OKLAHOMA ENTHUSIAST

Tom Crowder Talks of Elk City and Mills County

Tom Crowder is an original Texas product, having seen the light of day over in Franklin county, near Mount Vernon. But he, like many others who are young and hopeful, wandered away from the old homestead and is now located in Oklahoma, having selected for his domicile the productive section of the county of Roger Q. Mills, probably as a souvenir of his old state. "My home is at Elk City," said he, "and I wish to say just here that ours is about the loveliest burg for its age that ever grew up in a week. It is located in Mills county, on the C. O. & G. railroad and has thus communication both east and west. Elk City is only about five years old, but it is a lusty infant, and has grown to a population of 2,500 in that time. It has all the modern improvements, or nearly all, and will have what is left in short order when she knows about them. We have electric lights, waterworks, cotton gins, a big cotton oil mill, costing $150,000, owned by Texas parties and Oklahoma citizens, which will open for business Oct. 15. We also have a large creamery, which buys up all the surplus milk from the farmers and thus encourages the breeding and raising of cattle. Ours is the greatest hog country in the Territory, more of that kind of stock having been shipped from our station this year than any other. Cotton will make a good yield, despite the reports of boll weevil, boll worm and other pests. The weed is full grown, being as tall as a man's head. It has stopped growing now and gone to work making cotton. Corn is certainly immense and beats anything we have ever seen. There are seventy-five to eighty ears will shell a bushel of corn, and this is no exaggeration, sure. We plant the red corn, or, as it is called, the "Bloody Butcher"—why, I do not know. It is a very dark red corn, almost black, but it surely is a sooner for yielding. Yes, I have heard of the odd rows on corn, but never saw one, and the only way I know of to produce the result is to cut out a row when it is young and let it grow up and fool people. Ours is a fine fruit country and the fruit produce is as good as any I ever saw in East Texas. I have eaten the famous Elberta of East Texas, but never have eaten any better than we have. "Yes, a majority of the people up with us are Texas people, or rather, the largest proportion, Missouri coming next in numbers, and then Arkansas, and the balance of the union. We elected our delegate to the constitutional convention last week and sent a Texas man to fill the bill. "While speaking of the products of Mills county I forgot to mention one of the chief, and that is broomcorn. This is no better part of the country in our soil and the climate does the rest. At this time of the year hundreds of wagons are on our market, loaded with this product. It sells for about $60 a ton and an acre will yield about that much of good saleable broomcorn. There is no better crop to produce money."

Powell and Gibson to Answer for Condit Family Murder

Special to The Telegram. EDNA, Texas, Oct. 12.—Felix Powell and Monk Gibson were jointly indicted by the grand jury here yesterday for the murder of each of the five members of the Condit family. District Judge Wilson issued a bench warrant for Monk Gibson, directed to the sheriff of Bexar county, and placed in the hands of Sheriff Egan, who, in company with Captain McDonald of the Rangers, left here this afternoon for San Antonio to serve the bench warrant and bring Monk Gibson back to Edna.

Negro Jerked About and Hammered as The Child

Special to The Telegram. SHERMAN, Texas, Oct. 12.—Dan Chiltes, colored, was caught in a broken belt while at work yesterday with a steam wood saw and received serious injuries. His right wrist was almost cut in two and the bones were broken and shattered. Although a large man, Chiltes was jerked about by the belt as tho he were a child and his body badly bruised. Amputation of his right hand will probably be necessary.

NEGRO EDUCATOR WARNS HIS RACE

Booker T. Washington Urges Better Observance of Laws

Special to The Telegram. NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—The annual session of the National Afro-American council, which has been in session here, was brought to a close last night with services in Zion church.

Booker T. Washington made the principal address. He took for his subject, "The Requirements of Citizenship." The church was crowded, a large number of those in attendance being from the southern states. Mr. Washington said:

"Booker T. Washington Speaks. "In the season of disturbance and excitement, if others yield to the temptation and give away to passion and prejudice, let us, as a race, teach the world that we have learned the great lesson of calmness and self-control; that we are determined to be governed by reason rather than by feeling. Our victories in the past have come to us through our ability to be calm and patient, often while enduring great wrong."

"Again, I am most anxious, and I know that in this respect it is the sentiment of every conservative member of our race, that our race everywhere bears the reputation of a law-abiding and law-respecting people. If others would break the law and trample it under foot, let us keep and respect it and teach our children to follow our example. "In this connection I repeat what I have urged on a recent occasion; every lot of influence that we possess should be used to get rid of the criminal, rash and intemperate utterances. Before giving advice to the negro in the south, the negro in the north should be very sure that what he advises is that which he himself would be willing to take into the heart of the south and put into practice. Be careful not to assist in lighting a fire which you will have no ability to put out."

ASK ANNEXATION TO UNITED STATES

Guatemala Appeals to Roosevelt to Save Country

Special to The Telegram.

CITY OF MEXICO, Oct. 13.—Dissatisfied with the existing conditions in their country, Guatemalan political refugees have appealed to President Roosevelt to bring about the annexation of that republic to the United States. A proclamation has been issued by the revolutionary junta in New Orleans, and copies and copies of that document are being circulated in the City of Mexico by the opponents of President Estrada Cabrera.

The appeal, dated New Orleans, La., Oct. 1, and signed "Several Guatemalan Emigrants," is as follows: "To the American People: The Stars and Stripes, the emblem of civilization, order and progress, is at this moment proudly waving over the land of Marti, Maceo and Maximo Gomez. "The Cubans have started a war where brother has fought against brother, and the government of Estrada Palma has not been able to check the revolution which has filled that country with desolation and ruin. The Republic of Cuba will in the very near future be annexed to the United States of North America. That is a proper and necessary step to take. "President Roosevelt, ought to do the same with Guatemala. Over 10,000 of honest Guatemalans have had to abandon their homes on account of the revolution which almost daily are started to overthrow the famous tyrant, Estrada Cabrera. "We want Guatemala to belong to the United States of America. We want America the administration of Estrada Cabrera is hated, and all Guatemalans hate him like the Romans hated the Emperor Caligula, who, at that time symbolized crime in the prodigious Roman Empire. "Roosevelt, your intervention in the destinies of Guatemala would be the salvation of the whole of Central America."

Indian Territory Negroes Angered by Jim Crow Agitation

Special to The Telegram. SOUTH McALESTER, I. T., Oct. 12.—At a mass meeting of the Afro-American Suffrage League held in this city late last night the negroes decided to repudiate the republican ticket for the constitutional convention unless the separate car and separate school agitation on the part of the Indian Territory republicans is stopped. In a fiery speech, Parson H. A. Storms, the head of the league, declared that similar action would be taken in every district in the territory unless the party resolutely its attitude on the school and coach question.

BIG HOLLISTER'S LONG SHOT

BY JOHN B. CARRINGTON, San Antonio, Texas.
 It had not rained for five months and the grass on the Big Divide was a scorched, white-brown fun. The hot sirocco-like wind stirred now and then, its course marked by puffs of fine white dust. In the mud of a nearby ditch, a white horse stood a sorry-looking bunch of scrawny cattle. On the hillside above lay the latest dead, dropped down that morning among the corruption of week-old carcasses whose stench reeked in the air. Overhead buzzards circled and flapped, an ascending spiral reaching up toward the brassy skies, a living signal of disaster, that steered a thither the unhappy owner of this ranch.
 Big Hollister, trotting his pony through the brush, looked himself gaunt, and drouth-ridden. His face was lined and seamed, and showed the hard look of utter desperation, the bitterness of a man who felt that the forces of life were leagued against him. He looked at the dead cattle on the slope above and the gaunt, famished creatures trying to suck moisture from the dank mud, and a groan burst from him.
 "God!" he exclaimed, clenching his hands, and the stress of his sympathy with the poor dumb brutes made his oath almost a prayer.
 He dismounted and, dropping his bridle over his pony's head, lighted the blow-lamp he carried and began to burn the stickers off of a clump of prickly pear near by. The cattle watched him in dumb misery for awhile, then recognizing the animal of superior intelligence shambled closer in a dull, bovine curiosity. Big Hollister threw several of the broad, succulent leaves into their midst and watched them eat with avidity.
 "Poor devils!" he exclaimed, and his lips quivered as he flung out his hands with a gesture of despair.
 The fight with Big Hollister had been for a greater stake than mere money. Over the hills forty miles away toward Ancona, lived a girl, or rather the girl. Perhaps she did not wait with grace, and her figure did not measure up to the Paris standard. She was too unburned, maybe; too much frank, fresh, wholesome young animal. But the Queen of Sheba never appeared half so radiantly beautiful to King Solomon as Betsy McCarty did to Big Hollister. Indeed, the charm of her overhelmed him and held him tongue-tied.
 She was the belle and the hress of all the countryside, a creature compounded of fire and snow, a tyrant of the tyrants who bullied and browbeat her frontier lovers with the utter composure of absolute power. They followed like dogs and trembled in her presence, in her absence cursing themselves for fools. Few indeed had the temerity to talk of love to her, and those few to their sorrow and undoing.
 But Big Hollister, the ugly duckling, the man without a chance, was one who dared to face her without flinching. Not that Hollister was her match in words or was reckless enough to provoke the unequal combat of the tongue. Indeed, he was more than usually silent in her presence. He followed her like dogs and trembled in her presence, in her absence cursing themselves for fools. Few indeed had the temerity to talk of love to her, and those few to their sorrow and undoing.
 About noon the cowboy of the Kinchloe ranch, and motherly old Mrs. Kinchloe welcomed Betsy and put her to bed, soothing the hurt spirit as well as the hurt body of the girl. Kinchloe, Hollister told his story. The old man scratched his head.
 "It's a good riddance, killing those horse thieves, but I don't believe I'd say anything about it if it weren't for there with the girl till-till you marry her."
 A groan burst from Hollister.
 "My God, I hadn't the idea of that. I can't marry her. I'm a ruined man. I'm worse than a beggar—I'm in debt."
 "Let me call Sally, she'll know what to do."
 Old Mrs. Kinchloe took the same view. It was agreed to say that Betsy had ridden over to go to the Ancona picnic with Mrs. Kinchloe's Mary, and having arrived too late to see the exact time that everybody from the ranch had gone to the Ancona picnic except the two old people made the matter simple.
 That afternoon the cowboys returned from town and Hollister rode off with them to find the missing horses of the McCarty ranch, and if possible catch the escaped thief.
 A month later the mortgage on Hollister's ranch was foreclosed and the place was sold from under him. He started to town with the remnant of his cattle which a ranchman fortunate enough to have running water had purchased.
 A few miles from Ancona the sheriff came out to meet him.
 "Your dogies look bad," he said to Hollister.
 "Darn bad," said Hollister grimly.
 "What are you going to do?"
 "Sell out and quit the country," said Hollister shortly.
 "I'm sorry to tell you I have a warrant for you," said the sheriff.
 "For going to Spotty Bowers' house on the Fourth of July, setting fire to it, and shooting Spotty?"
 "Out on the roof, to put the fire out."
 "Oh, I didn't do any such thing."
 "Where were you on the Fourth of July night? You were in town."
 "On the Fourth of July," repeated Hollister blankly. "Why I was at my ranch."
 "One of your men was before the grand jury and testified that you left there early that morning and didn't come back until the next afternoon."
 "Did he?" said Hollister curtly. "Well, I guess that's straight."
 "Well, would you mind telling me how you spent the night of the Fourth of July?"
 "I reckon that's my business," said Hollister.
 The sheriff struck his right thumb carefully into the belt over his pistol holster.
 "You'll come along with me to jail without any trouble," he asked.
 Hollister burst into merciless laughter.
 "Hell, yes, if you'll first help me drive these dogies over to Bob Walker's."
 "I reckon I ought to tell you," said the sheriff, "that the case is pretty strong against you. First Spotty Bowers has stole cattle from you, you have shot at him and threatened his life, then you was missing on the Fourth of July, and last, and worst of all, you are the only man in the country who could have killed Spotty Bowers the way he was killed. He was shot from the side of a mountain 750 yards away, and shot plumb through the heart first time. You are the only man on the Big Divide that can shoot that straight."

 Hollister smiled grimly.
 "I can shoot a little," he said, "but considering I was something over forty miles away from Spotty Bowers on the night of the Fourth of July I don't believe I can shoot well enough to put a bullet through his heart at that distance."
 "But where were you on the night of the Fourth?"
 "That," said Hollister, "is my business, I reckon."
 "That was the only answer that he would give during the trial at Ancona the next week. Why would he not tell where he was on the Fourth of July? Had he not threatened this man's life? Besides he could shoot, Hollister could, he had given evidence of it at picnics and turkey shoots, as well as in the field. And the sheriff's conviction in giving testimony to the widow's testimony, a phenomenal hit at 750 yards by moonlight.
 "Things were looking bad for Big Hollister. The worst of it all was his taciturn attitude of grim indifference. He had failed, failed utterly, and quietly with himself there would be a little theatrical satisfaction in dying to protect the good name of the woman he loved.
 But that was one person whom Hollister reckoned without. Word of the trial reached her, and the understanding that Hollister's guilt lay in his inability or refusal to prove an alibi. Bud Doble had told her a little jeeringly of Hollister's failure at the selling of the cattle. The meaning of what Hollister had done flashed over her, and the chivalry of what he was now doing to protect her roused the woman in her. She mounted her horse and galloped to Ancona.
 It was a startled court room that listened to her fiery outburst. With number 10 she served throughout the day, and nothing should be allowed to interfere with her diet. Some patients require food served frequently, in small quantities, while others require only the usual three meals a day, with possibly a cup of broth between. Remember, especially, that food which is to be served hot, should be very hot when it comes to the bedside, and when a dish is intended to be served cold, it should be really cold. One of the greatest difficulties experienced in a hospital is the serving of so large a number of patients at one time, with food that is really hot and really cold, and this is the source of the loudest complaints we hear from the patients themselves. In the case of those who are very, very ill, do not get the idea that it does not matter how the food is served, so long as it is well cooked and wholesome. It is quite within the possibilities that the patient is too ill to speak of defects, but refuses food because of them.
 Softened hands, or apron, an obtrusive handkerchief used at an inopportune moment are among the glaring defects, minor ones are the spillings over the side the contents of cups or glasses of liquid, allowing the soup to get over the side of the plate and then recede to the bottom, leaving a stain where the soup has been. Neglecting the glass of water, with which an invalid's mouth should always be bathed and rinsed before eating anything, and afterward as the soup is tasted and nibbling on the part of the nurse as she brings the tray to the bedside, as well as the absence of a sufficient number of spoons or knives and forks, these are some of the smaller, but no less important, breaches of sick room etiquette.
 If medicine is to be served before bringing in the tray, and after it is given, put it quite out of sight. This applies also to food. Clear away everything at once, quickly and quietly, so as to leave as much time between meals as possible. One feeds with the eyes as much as with the lips, especially in the case of a long illness, and anything that will tempt the eye as well as the palate is not too small to receive attention.

PLAN A SURPRISE FOR INVALID'S TRAY
 No wise nurse ever asks the patient what he or she craves to eat, says the Housekeeper. Indeed, meal time is never mentioned, and all slight and sound of cookery is kept from the sick man. It is the unexpected that is eaten with the keenest relish, and one may rest assured that as soon as a patient is sufficiently convalescent to think up different sorts of food, he is on the way to speedy recovery, and will not be at all backward in making known the suggestions of an appetite which, in the case of long illness, is oftentimes ravenous.
 The physician will set the time for serving a patient's meals, and the number to be served throughout the day, and nothing should be allowed to interfere with his dicta. THE DAYLIGHT STORE

COR. EIGHTH AND HOUSTON

SPECIAL TRAIN OVER DENVER

Many Local Knights Go to New Orleans

A special train over the Denver road will arrive in Fort Worth Friday evening about 6 o'clock, bearing the Colorado contingent of the Knights of Pythias, en route to New Orleans. The train equipment consists of two baggage cars, one of which is arranged to be used as a dining car, in which the Knights are operating their own mess; two day coaches and two standard and three tourist sleepers. The train was made up at Denver and there Knights bound to New Orleans were concentrated from other Colorado points and some from surrounding states.

The special train was given to the Denver two hours or more late at Texline, and as it will get here in ample time even if it arrived by 6 o'clock, there will be no hurrying along to make up any of the time. It was originally scheduled to reach Fort Worth at 11:15 o'clock.

As soon as that train is delivered to the Houston and Texas Central, probably a half hour or so after its arrival here, it will be run out of Fort Worth toward its destination as a special.

A number of prominent members of the Knights of Pythias will start from Fort Worth for New Orleans Saturday morning. Among those who are expected to go will be John M. Adams of Fort Worth, one of the supreme representatives of the enormous Sulphur Springs, grand master of exchequer; Mrs. J. T. Cotton and Mrs. H. C. Shropshire of Weatherford, representative of the Rathbone Sliders, will accompany the party.

Ruby Company No. 65, Uniform Rank, Knights of Pythias, will also leave Saturday morning, as will all of those named, via the Texas and Pacific.

Railroad Rumbblings

MANY CLAIMS PAID

Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen's Disbursements $12,959,758

In its twenty-three years of existence, the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, according to a statement issued by A. E. King, grand secretary and treasurer, has disbursed in death benefits $12,959,758.75. This was up to Aug. 1, 1934. The first seven months of this year showed payments of $953,148.95 and the entire year will probably be about $1,600,000.

The men on the car did not notice him, and therefore, could not give him admission from the steps, where he hung, to the inside of the car. An out-going city car motorman noticed the clinging man, stopped his car before reaching the interurban and tried to signal a warning. That was ineffectual and the man was smashed against the standing city car, as the interurban swept by it, and knocked from the car. The blow struck on his head and he may be badly injured, though it is possible that the full extent of the injuries will not be developed for a few days.

There is possibly no stronger witness to the extra hazardous work in which the members of this organization are engaged than in the fact that the ratio of claim payments is as one to fifty-eight. That is, one member out of fifty-nine dies or is killed in the service.

Railroad Notes and Personals

The International will run the last special Galveston excursion for this season Saturday and the fare will be $4.85 for the round trip.

John Sebastian, the passenger traffic manager of the Rock Island-Prisco system, will arrive in Fort Worth Friday afternoon about 3 o'clock. He is accompanied by a party of friends and members of the fraternal district during the pending campaign. Senator Culberson will, doubtless, comply with the request of the committee.

At the instance of the governor of Oklahoma the attorney general of that territory has filed injunction suits against the Rock Island and the Prisco to prevent them from charging arbitrary rates on the shipments of grain from certain named towns. The contention of the attorney general is that the roads add to the sum of the local rates where they do not amount to the export rate, an "arbitrary" which brings the total up to the export rate. All of the Prisco stations, from Mountark to Eldorado, are named in the petition. Specifically it is stated in the petition that the arbitrary is 9 1/2 cents on corn and 1 1/2 cents on wheat.

At the instance of the governor of Oklahoma the attorney general of that territory has filed injunction suits against the Rock Island and the Prisco to prevent them from charging arbitrary rates on the shipments of grain from certain named towns. The contention of the attorney general is that the roads add to the sum of the local rates where they do not amount to the export rate, an "arbitrary" which brings the total up to the export rate. All of the Prisco stations, from Mountark to Eldorado, are named in the petition. Specifically it is stated in the petition that the arbitrary is 9 1/2 cents on corn and 1 1/2 cents on wheat.

THOUGHT DEAD RETURNS HOME

Body Buried Supposed to Be Man Who Is Alive

WHEELING, W. Va., Oct. 12.—Harry Bishop, of Wheeling, a boy who was supposed to have been murdered a week ago, returned home today and his father faintly away when he saw him. The body supposed to have been Bishop's, was found in the water and buried in the family tomb, after the coroner had returned a verdict of murder after the insurance company had paid the insurance on Bishop's life. Bishop says he was at Kittanning, Pa., when the supposed murder occurred. The identity of the dead man has not been established.

NEGRO MAYS HANGED

INJURED BY PASSING CAR

S. V. Sparkman Boarded Car on Wrong Side

Thursday afternoon about 5 o'clock, S. V. Sparkman, who resides at No. 1111 Daggett avenue, ran out from one of the lumber yard offices, near Boaz and Front streets, jumped on an incoming interurban car of the Northern Texas Traction Company and on the wrong side of the car, that is the side next the other tracks.

The men on the car did not notice him, and therefore, could not give him admission from the steps, where he hung, to the inside of the car. An out-going city car motorman noticed the clinging man, stopped his car before reaching the interurban and tried to signal a warning. That was ineffectual and the man was smashed against the standing city car, as the interurban swept by it, and knocked from the car. The blow struck on his head and he may be badly injured, though it is possible that the full extent of the injuries will not be developed for a few days.

LEST WE
 forget—Baby is restless, can't sleep at night, won't eat, cries spasmodically. A bottle of White's Cream Vermifuge never fails to cure. Every mother should give her baby White's Vermifuge. So many times when the baby is pale and fretful, the mother does not know what to do. A bottle of this medicine would bring color to his cheeks and laughter to his eyes. Give it a trial.—Sold by Covey & Martin.

CAMPBELL AND BAILEY AT RUSK
Jollification and Barbecue at Next Governor's Home

Special to The Telegram.
 RUSK, Texas, Oct. 12.—Having won the highest office within the gift of the people of Texas, Thomas M. Campbell returned to the place of his nativity yesterday and addressed the people of his boyhood home in a grove hard by the sawmill site where he worked in the beginning of his career. Because of limitations placed upon him by his physicians he spoke but briefly, responding graciously to the cordial reception given him by his old friends and neighbors and then renewing with emphasis the pledges which he had made during the campaign.

Senator Bailey was one of the speakers of the day. His presence was noted by Colonel Campbell, who spoke of Senator Bailey as the regular nominee of the democratic party. In that connection Colonel Campbell repeated what he had said during the campaign in opposition to members of congress accepting employment from trusts, and said that he understood that Senator Bailey and all other democratic nominees were in agreement with him upon the subject, whereupon Senator Bailey bowed his assent.

Senator Bailey's own speech differed very considerably from those which he had been delivering recently. He did not devote a great deal of time to answering his critics, but after a brief notice of them, requested anyone in the audience who had any objection to offer to his services to state it or anyone who desired him to explain anything to ask such questions as he pleased. He repeated the invitation several times, promising not to make fun of anyone who might ask such questions. There being no response to the invitation, Senator Bailey proceeded to make a democratic speech very much along the lines of his Fourth of July address at Abilene. He was very frequently applauded and seemed to have the crowd with him.

 Nebraska Declares Governorial Nominee Exponent of Democracy
 Special to The Telegram.
 DALLAS, Texas, Oct. 12.—State Chairman Carden of the democratic executive committee last night gave out the following letter:

JACKSON, Miss., Sept. 22.—George A. Carden, Dallas, Texas.—My Dear Mr. Carden: I am just in receipt of your favor and regret exceedingly that I cannot accept your invitation, I know the nominee for governor, watched his career and I rejoice that you have so able an opponent of corruption and that you are in your state fight. If he needed my assistance I would cancel engagements elsewhere and come to Texas, but of course, it is only a question of the amount of his majority, and there are other places where the vote is close and where I think I am needed.

DISCOUNT IS ATTRACTIVE
Many Pay Taxes Now to Get 2 Per Cent Rebate

W. E. Sandberry, city tax assessor and collector for North Fort Worth, states that collections are much better since the publication of the notice that a discount of 2 per cent will be allowed on all payment of taxes made before Dec. 1. While it was formerly the practice of the city council to allow this discount, it has been thought by most of the tax payers to have become void in operative, but the resolution was renewed at the last sitting of the city council, and the discount is being taken advantage of by many of the heaviest tax payers.

Lease at 10 Cents Per Acre
 Special to The Telegram.
 JUNCTION CITY, Texas, Oct. 12.—W. B. Miller has sold the Tarleton ranch, 1,030 head of 2s and 3s, to Quisenberry & Davis at $15 and $21.50. He also leased the north pasture of the old Tarleton ranch, containing some 7,000 acres, to the same gentlemen at 10 cents per acre per annum.

John Orchard of Beaumont was presented with a pair of cuff buttons.
 Mrs. Kate M. Bryant, on behalf of the members of the grand chapter, presented Past Grand Patron L. S. Garrison with a huge bouquet of flowers.

DAN PATCH'S CAR
 The Great Peacor Travels in Equine Magnificence
 When His Royal Equine Highness Dan Patch, King of the Turf, travels, he travels in style, no potentate in the world being more carefully looked after and watched over than he is. The car in which he travels is a veritable equine palace, built expressly for him by the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis and Omaha railroad. It is built on three-wheel trucks and the inside finish is almost as fine as the finest Pullman. On either side of the car outside is a painting of the celebrated flyer in harness, with his pedigree and record and the record of his sire and dam.

MORE VICTIMS FOUND
 Four Bodies Recovered Near Mobile. Echo of Hurricane.
 Special to The Telegram.
 MOBILE, Ala., Oct. 12.—Reports from the south coast, the scene of disaster during the hurricane Sept. 21, tell of the find of the following bodies:

 W. A. STEINER.
 All were badly decomposed and recognized only by their clothing.

A MOST WORTHY ARTICLE
 When an article has been on the market for years and gains friends every year, it is safe to call this medicine a worthy one. Such is Ballard's Horchound Syrup. It positively cures coughs and all pulmonary diseases. One of the best known merchants in Mobile, Ala., says:
 "For five years my family has not been troubled with the winter coughs, we owe this to Ballard's Horchound Syrup. I know it has saved my children from many sick spells."—Sold by Covey & Martin.

NO EXCUSE FOR SUFFERING WOMEN!

Do you realize how wrong it is to remain an invalid, and suffer every month the pangs of unnecessary pain? Wrong to yourself! Wrong to your relatives and friends! Wrong to your children that are, or are to be! There is no excuse to be sick. No matter how far away it may seem to you, good health can be acquired by right living, right care and right treatment of your body.

For all women's diseases, begin by taking

and use it as a foundation, upon which to build a new state of health, happiness, and freedom from misery. Mrs. Sallie A. Green, of Winchester, Ky., writes: "I wish all suffering women would take Cardui, as I did, and be cured and built up and made well and healthy again, as I have been. I had suffered terribly with weakness, due to female trouble, and awful pains, headache, palpitation, etc., every month. But now, thanks to Cardui, I weigh 165 lbs. and feel better than in 7 years." Try it for your trouble.

DISCUSSION OF CITY CHARTER

Reports of the Committees Are Very Brief

A meeting of the general committee, which is framing a new charter for the city of Fort Worth, called for Thursday evening, was held at the mayor's office in the city hall; at present Mayor W. D. Harris, the chairman of the committee, and Messrs. Bergman, J. W. Swayne, Mountcastle, Paddock, Adams, Wheedon, Matlock, Scott, Cooper, Randle and Wise and Secretaries Baskin and Lane.

Captain Paddock, the chairman of the committee on revenue and taxation, reported. There are several novelties in it and among them may be named a provision for a franchise tax after the year 1918 begins; provision for the issuance of bonds to the amount of $150,000 for permanent improvement of streets and school houses; one assessor and collector, a three-year term of office; a provision for a prorata abatement of the budget appropriations in the event the assigned revenue falls below the estimate; the maximum discount on the taxes for prompt payment to be 6 per cent; all taxes, when the delinquencies begin, to bear 6 per cent interest and a 5 per cent penalty in addition. There is no attempt at legislation or ordinance making in the proposition submitted by the subcommittee, as the chairman said, but merely an attempt to formulate the fundamental law, the details to be worked out by the proper law making authority.

As an example of the brevity of the report, as compared with the existing charter, it was stated that the article on taxation in the city charter embraced forty pages of printed matter, while the report contained all that was deemed essential to go in the charter, on that subject, on two and a half pages of type-written letter-size paper.

Captain A. L. Matlock, for the committee on water, lights and sewers, made the report for his committee, the other members being Lee Stephens and Thomas D. Ross. It too, was brief, covering only the general principles and is much on the lines which are now followed.

There was some anterior discussion as to the proper mode of procedure, the point being made that it was the expressed intent of the committee at the last meeting, that all of the reports of the subcommittees should be submitted to the general committee of five chairmen of the subcommittees, by that committee harmonized, and then the final result submitted to the whole committee.

After several motions had been made the mayor suggested that if the subcommittees would give him their reports, as they were prepared, he would have four other reports made and sent to the chairman of the general committee, so they might be considered together and conflicts eliminated as far as possible. It was further suggested that the several committees should facilitate matters if they would note the points of difference with their fellow-committeemen, and bring that note to the general meeting of the members of the committee would thus have at once pointed out to them what they were to discuss with the view of reaching an agreement. This was approved.

Waterworks Superintendent One of the features of the report of the committee on water, lights and sewers, was the provision for the election of the waterworks superintendent by the people. This was promptly opposed by some, who had experience in city affairs, and who pointed out that the experienced and practical man was required for the work and for the position and the city had suffered untold losses from the incompetency of the former where trained skill or experience was needed. Captain Paddock stated that he believed that the city could not afford the damage done in the election of sewers alone, for less than a million dollars, the direct result of the election of incompetent city engineers, by the people, was written on the face of the losses to the city, by default of appointed officers of the city could be measured by hundreds of thousands of dollars.

This was only an incidental discussion, but it developed the fact there was likely to be some contest over the question of election of officers by the people, or the appointment by the commission if that form of government is adopted by the legislature.

As soon as the subcommittee's reports are ready and the copies made by the mayor, he, on motion of Mr. Mountcastle, will have the authority to call a meeting of the general committee, but that was coupled with the request that all of the committees consult the promptness of the two committees, which have already reported.

The meeting adjourned subject to call.

INTEREST CONTINUES

Plan to Hold Big Meeting Sunday Afternoon

Great interest continues in the revival at St. Paul's and every night for the last two weeks there have been a number of professions. As the meetings draw to a close in the great Sunday audiences. Tonight he will preach at 7:45 o'clock, and plans are being made to accommodate a large crowd.

A feature of Sunday services will be the jubilee meeting at 3 p. m., where it is expected and desired that all converts of the revival will gather, together with the members of the church and friends of the church. Reports of these meetings from other places indicate that they are particularly joyous occasions.

AMUSEMENTS

Live Longer by Going to Shows

A leading writer in the London Lancet, contends that people who attend shows and various other entertainments, on the aggregate, live from five to ten years longer than people who refrain from enjoyment obtained in this way. In the thousand cases of crime and insanity, nine hundred and thirty-seven of the former had rarely, if ever, visited the theater. The writer continuing, claims that an afternoon or evening spent at the theater is better than a dose of medicine for those who are suffering from any nervous disorder.

To those who are not in the habit of attending the theater and are desirous of testing this theory, the opportunity is given in the performance of the Haverly madstone minstrels, which will appear at Greenwall's opera house Saturday matinee and night, Oct. 13. This organization has fun doctors, who will make you forget every ache or pain.

"Foxy Grandpa"

Chub and Bunt, the youngsters so much in evidence in Foxy Grandpa, the clever cartoon musical comedy, which will be presented at Greenwall's opera house Tuesday, matinee and night, Oct. 15, have the Foxy Grandpa never saw each other before the company was assembled on the Casino roof in New York by the manager.

TIMELY HINTS ON WOMAN'S TOILET

PRETTY STYLES IN THE FALL COIFFURES

Fashions in hair dressing? To be sure there are, and they change twice a year, along with fashions in frocks. The changes are often so subtle that the lay mind can hardly distinguish them, but nevertheless the hairdressers find it necessary to go to the fashion centers twice a year to study the new styles which more often than not centers merely in giving a new twist to the coil and a different direction to the waves.

It is a fact that the elaborate coiffures pictured in the fashion journals are rarely attempted, except by the professional hairdresser, but women who have a knack for arranging their hair prettily are wont to take the new styles and adapt them to their own ideas of what is becoming to themselves.

A woman can add or take off ten years from her age by arranging her hair becomingly. No detail of the toilet adds so much if the coiffure be carelessly arranged.

Who has not seen the pall woman who persists in combing her hair straight back in a tight little wad? And doesn't one's fingers fairly itch to get hold of that same woman and that same hair and to teach the former that she can be made really good to look at by the simple trick of fluffing out the hair.

To the girl who has mastered the trick of arranging her hair prettily the changes in fashions do not matter so much. She finds out by much practice just what arrangement is best suited to her and she follows it regardless of the varying fashions. If her hair is more becoming coiled on top of her head she puts it there, even if the fad of the moment is the low coil nestling in the hollow of the neck. If, on the contrary, the contour of her face is such that her good looks are increased by hair coiled low, she will resist every temptation to pile it into a topknot.

A general rule that may be safely followed is that every woman looks better with her hair fluffed about her face. Her locks may or may not be curly, but she always manages to give them a fluffy appearance. This does not mean that she curls them artificially, as the latter is never the most artistic arrangement. But she sees that her hair is exquisitely cared for, she brushes it until it shines like satin and she trims it in the way that it should go.

Those to whom nature has not been overly generous in the bestowal of hair do not hesitate to call for their aid, and there is a very general use made of braids for such use, but in case they have not enough the hair dealer will not find it difficult to supply an exact match for their own hair in color and quality.

The artificial aids to the coiffure are so artistically made nowadays that detection is practically impossible. The little soft braid of natural hair to wear under the pompous has almost entirely taken the plate of the one time "rat." The first essential to a pretty coiffure is cleanliness. No pretty arrangement of the hair is possible unless the tresses are clean and fluffy.

If possible dry in the sun. There is nothing like it for putting lights into the hair. If you can not have sun never use any artificial heat for it is highly injurious. A very simple shampoo is made by melting a cake of castile soap in a quart of boiling water and making a soap jelly, keeping it in a wide-mouth bottle. To use, take two tablespoonfuls and add a teaspoonful of bicarbonate of soda. Wet the scalp and run in the soap. It will not make a lather until more water is applied in the washing. The actual shampooing should be a constant rubbing of the scalp, rinsing with plenty of fresh water.

There is no better cleansing shampoo than an egg beaten with an ounce of water. This is always to be had and is massaged into the scalp. No soap is used with the rinsing.

Women with very dark hair can improve its lustre by beating a raw egg with a quarter of a teaspoonful of bicarbonate of soda in half a pint of California claret. This is massaged into the scalp and rinsed out. It will give a red light to the hair without in any way changing the color, and is stimulating to the growth.

While drying the hair after the shampoo a little good perfume, either fine cologne or some favorite extract, may be rubbed into the top of the scalp; this imparts a delicate and lasting fragrance to the whole head, while not enough to injure in any way.

A BEAUTIFUL ARM.

The beauty specialist was talking about the feminine arm beautiful.

"Nor arm is hopeless," she said. "We treat the worst cases with success. It is easier to work on the arms than the face, as the treatment can be more vigorous and prolonged. Often the arm is well developed above the elbow and the forearm straight and unshapely.

"And the forearm is the very part that shows with the short sleeves. 'Well, if your arm is ugly don't let it worry you. Just go to work. First, the skin must be whitened and the freckles removed. A strong dilution of lemon juice is one of the best things to bleach and colorless iodine is another that we use when the lemon juice will not work. Neither of these remedies should be used continuously. Wait a little after each application and use a good skin food for massage, to round out the contours.

"Hot water, softened with cranberry, makes an excellent beauty bath, especially if the skin is red or irritated. The bran may be used in the form of bags loosely filled and employed as wash cloths, or it may be added—a quart tied up in cheesecloth—to a bathtub full of hot water. After the skin has been well soaked in this mixture go carefully over it and rub off the outer layer with the fingers. Next scrub thoroughly with a bath brush and a splendid supply of good soap that is known to agree with the skin. Then rub in the skin food."

A girl can make a very attractive apron for chaffing dish parties out of dotted muslin. The dots should be large and far apart. Embroider each dot with yellow floss and around it work a circle of white leaves, so that the whole resembles a daisy.

Run down a heading at the top and run yellow or white satin ribbon through it to tie around the waist. The edges of the apron should be rolled and finished with a ruffle of lace.

CARE OF THE TEETH.

At this season of the year, when so much fruit is eaten, there is the added necessity of spending more than the usual amount of care on the teeth, for those fruits that contain acid effect the enamel and tend to make the teeth unusually sensitive so that after eating the mouth should be rinsed with water in which a tablespoonful of lime water has been added. If taken with water has been a tablespoonful of lime water has been added. If taken with water has been a tablespoonful of lime water has been added.

The prettiest belt buckle to wear with a white shirtwaist is one of white pearl. With more elaborate frocks buckles of gold or silver richly carved and set with stones are very popular.

Pleated tulle ruffles are even more popular than feather stoles or boas. Elephant and smoke gray, cinnamon brown and chestnut are the tints best liked.

To give the house a pleasant odor take some live coals and sprinkle ground cinnamon on them.

OBSERVE THE SMALL THINGS.

"When you had all that money you ought to have put it in one good suit," said a rigid woman economist. "But that's the way we do, and nobody ever would think of our looking as well dressed as you do, but in her small sister consoling to the friend who was being criticised for her plan of spending money.

The talk expressed the ideas of two schools of dress. The one means extra good tailor suits, which are replaced every year, and perhaps quite as often suits which are extra in price only and which do not turn out any better in cut than those which cost half as much. With this style usually go plain hats and few furnishings.

The other kind was seen in the person observed, who had on the simplest and plainest of dark blue linen suits. It was stitched for finish and had trimmings and elaborations which mark the expensive custom or ready made dress. It looked as if it might have been made "in the house." As the friend said, she had nothing back of it but a dark velvet, tailor suit of equally plain characteristics. But with it she wore a filmy, lacy waist with corresponding turning over collars and elbow cuffs, long white gloves and she handled a white parasol. A chapeau of pale blue "crin" with blue feathers and a light blue neck ruff completed the outfit. Its accessories replaced by a white linen shirt waist, black gloves, and a black hat, the dark blue linen was just as good for the plain morning outfit as for the dressy occasion on which it was worn.

Keep a lemon on the kitchen sink and it will be less trouble to keep your hands in good condition. Every time your fingers are stained turn them around in the lemon, and the stains will disappear and the skin around the nails will be softened and pressed back.

If the ribbon trimming on your hat is not faded on both sides it can be used to retrim the hat. Take off the trimming, press out the ribbon and use the other side out.

A COMBINATION OF PREVAILING MODES.

The princess, surplice and Empire mode combine to make a most fascinating frock for dress wear. The princess skirt is of a fine handkerchief linen, yoked and banded with a heavier linen on which are embroidered red coin spots in pale blue, and attached to the top of the high princess skirt is the surplice cape effect of the embroidered linen, banded with the plain material and trimmed with tiny white linen buttons.

Tea Nectar.
Make one pint and a half of strong tea and when it has drawn for three minutes, pour it into a quart of water. Sweeten to taste, adding the juice of a lemon and a wineglassful of lemon juice. Place on low for an hour, and decorate with thin slices of lemon cut into quarters and serve in small sherbet glasses.

Dandelion Beer.
Boil in five gallons of water two ounces of dandelion leaves, five ounces of ginger and a half ounce of hops. Strain off and boil again, adding three pounds of sugar. Allow this to ferment for twenty-four hours, and bottle for use. Tie the corks in securely.

Ginger Beer.
Pour a gallon of boiling water on one pound of loaf sugar, half an ounce of ginger, and one ounce of cream of tartar. When nearly cold add a tablespoonful of yeast. Strain, bottle and in six hours it will be ready for use. If root ginger is used, boil it in the water for twenty minutes.

Recipe for Punch.
Claret punch, one of the plainest and most easily prepared, is made by simmering one pound of sugar in a quart of water for twenty-five minutes. Then strain and add a pound of sugar and a thin sliced rind of half a lemon. Boil for six minutes. When cold turn in the juice of three lemons, six oranges and a pint of claret. Strain and dilute with water and serve in the punch bowl with ice.

Fruit Punch.
Boil two cups of sugar and one quart of water twenty minutes. Pour in boiling water the following mixture: Half a cup of each of sugar, two short pieces of ginger, a pound of sugar, one cup of canned strawberry juice, half a cup of canned cherry syrup and one cup of canned pineapple juice. When ready to serve, strain it, dilute with ice water and add one cup of fresh strawberries, quartered, one sliced lemon and half a cup of stoned cherries. Shake with aqua-martha if preferred.

Roly Poly Pudding.
Make a biscuit dough with one part of sifted flour, two level teaspoonfuls of baking powder, half a teaspoonful of butter and a cupful of milk. Mix and roll out on a floured board to quarter-inch thickness. Spread with any kind of jelly or jam, sprinkle with two level tablespoonfuls of sugar, and roll up. Bake in a quick oven fifteen minutes.

Scalloped Cabbage.
Wash and cut into coarse shreds half a head of cabbage. Put it into a kettle of boiling salted water, boil until tender and drain a colander. Put two teaspoonfuls of butter in a saucepan, and when melted add two level tablespoonfuls of sugar, a teaspoonful of salt and a little pepper. Stir constantly until boiling. After placing the cabbage in a baking dish pour over it the sauce, sprinkle with bread crumbs and bake in a quick oven fifteen minutes.

Soup of Leeks.
Wash and trim one dozen leeks, cut them in pieces half an inch long, discarding roots and tops, then fry them in one ounce of butter, with two stalks of celery and one carrot, cut fine.

Nut and Potato Salad.
Put cupful of English walnuts in boiling water with a slice of onion, a blade of mace, a bay leaf and half a teaspoonful of salt. Let them boil ten minutes, then throw them into cold water and drain. Slice four medium-sized potatoes white hot. Mix half a teaspoonful of salt, a pinch of pepper and four tablespoonfuls of olive oil. When mixing add gradually one and a half tablespoonfuls of vinegar and half a teaspoonful of onion juice. Mix the nut and potato salad pour on the dressing. Serve cold with water dress.

WATERPROOF AND ALMOST DUSTPROOF.

For any long outdoor trip the waterproofed motor suit is a comfort and a necessity. This smart suit of giffonette cloth is one of the natter models of the season. The skirt is groned and founced, and smartly trimmed with straps. The coat, quite loose-fitting, closes with a wide double-breasted effect in front. Big cloth-covered buttons are used, and as few standing trimmings as possible.

TAILORED SILK WAISTS TO BE "THE THING"

The lingerie girl may as well prepare for sad news. The rumor is current that the dainty lingerie blouse will not be used this winter, and that the tailored silk shirt waist will be given the preference.

Doubtless the change in fashion's whim will be approved by the medical fraternity, which has regarded the filmy white waists with strong disapproval for winter wear. But the lingerie girl, who loved the pretty fripperies, will be sorry to lay them aside.

She may take comfort from the announcement that the lingerie waists will still be popular for house wear, but for the street she may as well prepare half a dozen tailored blouses.

Black silk waists—so becoming to both girls and matrons, and to those who are stout as well as the slender ones—will be "leaders," with fine black and white novelty checks and Roman plaids much in demand.

These tailored silk waists are not severely plain, as the word "tailored" implies, at least those that are fashionable now; for though simply made, they are quite ornate, being trimmed with flutings of the materials of which they are fashioned, and with buttons, either covered with silk to match, a contrasting shade, or with ones that give a brightness that is a new departure from the regulation shirt waist patterns. Tucks and pleats are characteristic of these waists, and unless there are a series of three or four fine pintucks in the back or front, or two or three pleats, half inch size, in a semi-fitting back and a loose front, the models will lack the stamp of fashion that is essential for an up-to-date woman nowadays.

The sleeves, too, unlike those in the average shirt waist are dressy. They are tight fitting from the wrist to the elbow, and plain or with small tucks or pleats. Some of them are fastened on the underside with tiny pearl buttons or those in bright gilt or imitation silver to match the ones used on the waist.

Above the elbow the sleeves are large leg-of-mutton in shape, gathered into the shoulder and at the elbows with smocking, in tiny tucks, or with shirring. The sleeves alone give these waists a smart and dressy effect that is lacking with most such patterns, and will make them as appropriate for afternoon wear as for street use. Even the collars are unlike those usually accompany shirt waists, for they are made of a series of small plain tucks, alternating with smocking, or tiny gathers, with fluting at the top as a finish. These neck pieces are attached to the waists and fasten either at the back or front.

The following method of washing blankets will be found satisfactory. The chief point is that soap should never be rubbed directly on the blankets, but dissolved in water to gain the best results. Put the blanket into a tub of water in which a cake of good white soap has been dissolved, and wash them thoroughly; have ready another tub of water, in which soap has also been dissolved, plunge the blankets into this and repeat the process. After they have been thoroughly cleansed rinse them in clear, cold water and hang on a good, strong line in the sun. Pull and stretch them into shape before they are completely dry.

To give the house a pleasant odor take some live coals and sprinkle ground cinnamon on them.

THE THREE GRACES

HERE is my romance. You may take it for what it's worth. In any event, it has the merit of being true.

Not very long after I had got rid of the man mama recommended, Aunt Leasia discovered a stiffness of her left hand little finger's middle joint.

This five doctors and three specialists diagnosed as the first symptoms of "neural emotional gout" (they wouldn't have dared suggest gout without some reference to nerves and emotions), so aunt finally decided to visit the Lychmupfir Spa Hydro, at Clydrwrmpb, where the new Radiant Ice treatment was carried out with special excellence.

I was mildly attracted by the Lychmupfir Hydro pamphlets, so when aunt invited me to accompany her (because nobody else would go, I fancy) I decided to accept the invitation and to see if the bathroom floor justified the pictorial promises of the illustrated prospectus.

Mama also was quite willing for me to go, seeing that we had just been to the wedding of Lady Poynter's plain daughter, who met her bridegroom at a similar establishment.

When we arrived, however, I felt helpless and hopeless. How should I spend a whole month in this deadly building, the "center of evil" which looked like a prison.

There were "people, people everywhere," but not—as far as I could see by a brief survey—a soul to make pretty frocks worth while.

I went upstairs to dress for dinner in an altogether deplorable state of mind; and in consequence of not taking any pains with my toilette, I was ready a quarter of an hour too soon instead of being 10 minutes late as usual.

"I'll go and have a look at that bathroom floor and see if the prospectus compiler must be charged with libel," I thought.

The bathroom wasn't difficult to find, being situated exactly at the end of a very long corridor, and when I pushed open the swing doors I at once decided that the prospectus had been both conscientious and accurate.

Only a few lights were turned on, therefore there was an effective look of shadow which made the whole room seem full of possibilities.

"Oh dear!"

"Not under any circumstance whatever could I have suppressed this exclamation as, seated on two most unexpected chairs in a most unexpected angle, I came upon a man and a woman.

The woman (whom I subsequently learnt to be a widow—of course) was unbecomingly enough to be attractive, old enough to appear young, and well-dressed enough to be dangerous.

But the man—oh! the man was nice! And I'm sure he thought the same about me.

After that out-blurred "Oh, dear," I hurried away, but making up my mind as I did so that the Man the Other Woman wanted should be my reason for just as long as I stayed at Lychmupfir!

Afterward I shouldn't want him, seeing that mama undertook all the engineering of my life, but just for a month he would be very useful in keeping me from feeling dull, taking to amateur theatricals or going in for Radiant Ice Baths.

Just as I had arrived at this conclusion aunt appeared, and the dinner bell rang, so we turned into the huge dining room, where a discriminating waiter conducted us to a small table set for four.

The soup appeared, and with it a bulgy gentleman who took the chair next to aunt and drank lithia water. They got into conversation at once—the lithia water drew them together.

The soup continued, the fish arrived, and then the seat on my right was occupied by the Other Woman's Man!

"Late as usual, Mr. Randall," remarked the lithia drinker.

"Yes, I always contrive to pass the —er—soup!" he replied, putting up an unnecessary eye-glance and looking delightful.

We chatted with a beautiful efficiency till I quite felt that "Mr. William Egerton Randall—London" (as per visitors' book), must be one of those "twin souls" which psychic people are always talking and writing about.

"Doesn't—er—your—mother come into the dining room?" I inquired as the savories were waning.

"My—er—pardon—what?"

"Your—er—mother! The lady—er—in the bathroom. I thought—er—"

Mr. Randall put his serviette across his lips for nearly a whole minute before he answered my ingenious remark.

"Oh! that's not exactly my mother. She is Mrs. Studhouse—a widow—nice woman and very keen on curiosities!"

"Ah! yes—I thought so!" was my response, to which Mr. Randall only replied by one of the most pronounced eye-twinkles I have ever seen.

"And doesn't Mrs. Studhouse dine then?" I added soliloquously.

"Yes, in the private room. It's quieter there, and she says her nerves were the most sensible things about the theatricals."

However, they didn't keep her from being in the hall when we emerged from the dining room, or from asking Mr. Randall to get her a glass of hot water from the drinking fountain, or from trying to monopolize him for the rest of the evening.

I advisedly say "trying," because when an impromptu dance was got up after the inane drawing room entertainment, my turn came again.

"William Egerton Randall—London" and I had two waltzes together, after which I arranged so that he should be in the middle of a long description of West African Ju-ju rituals when the lancers began. Of course the description had to be finished, and for that to occur of course we had to sit out the lancers!

However, by the time 16 couples were bounding through the third figure, Mrs. Studhouse had evidently had enough of talking croquet and enlarged joints to a provincial mayor's wife, so with a dangerously delightful smile on her definite mouth, she crossed the room and deliberately joined our solitude of two.

"Forgive my self-introduction," she began, addressing me, with the dearest amount of cordiality, "but I have seen your name in the visitors' book, and I feel I must ask if you are related to the Altons of Berwick-on-Tweed—such delightful people, and you so strongly resemble one of the daughters."

I replied with equal cordiality that I didn't quite know where Berwick-on-Tweed was, and that I didn't know of any relatives living here; but as her Altons were such delightful people, I thought I'd claim relationship, at which Mrs. Studhouse laughed sufficiently and then slid into the chair "William Egerton Randall—London" had been forced to offer her.

And from that hour it was a war between 31 and 21—a wily widow and a simple spinster fighting hard with the respective weapons of experience, daring and relentless determination against a good complexion, two dimples and a series of vastly becoming frocks.

And in the end 21 came out victorious, while 31 smiled the perpetual smile of a vanquished foe.

I know it was a trying position for the dethroned Helen (she wrote her name with two accents and a final "e"), because 10 chances to one when a woman loses a lover she minds more because people see she really has lost him, than because she really had done so. Very often the man himself doesn't remotely matter (so few men do really matter), but it's what "they" say that hurts horribly.

One day the widow put her hand on my shoulder with a sisterly touch, and said:

"Dear Miss Alston, may I voice the question which the whole Hydro is asking, and say 'when is it to be announced?'"

I put on my most startled-fawn expression, hung my head, giggled, and did everything I could think of to make her believe the tender idyll had really ripened, without in any way compromising myself or my high sense of veracity.

I thought I had done very well till I looked up to see Helen—I mean "Helene"—regarding me with the expression of one who is just about to play the ace of trumps to the king of ditto.

And exactly two hours later I understood that look, also I understood that it is never wise to wrest prey from widows!

It was 7:30, and when I came down from dressing it was to find Mrs. Studhouse standing in the lounge surrounded by a couple of dozen of the Hydro's most industrious gossip-mongers, to whom she was introducing a meek lady-like little woman in brown, while "William Egerton Randall—London," stood three paces away pulling nervously at his nice fair moustache.

"Ah! dear!" cried Mrs. Studhouse, holding out her hand, "you are down just in time! I want to introduce you to Mrs. Randall, who has just given her husband a delightful surprise by arriving unexpectedly—and ah! but of course this is news to you, you didn't know Mr. Randall was married, did you?"

One second's pause, during which I gathered my annihilated emotions together, and then I brought off the triumph of my life.

"Well, if I didn't know it it must be very funny, when for the last time I saw Mr. Randall he was so flattered and confident concerning his domestic bliss!" I answered.

"And," turning to the little brown-clad lady, "I am so glad you've come, because now your husband will be able to talk to you instead of about you!"

Mrs. Randall beamed, "William Egerton Randall—London," shot me a glance of desperate gratitude, the gossip-mongers looked drenched and flattened, and Mrs. Studhouse—well, she just shriveled up as only a baffled widow can!

I afterward learned that the wily rascal had discovered (by means of a bribable hall porter who saw of the sorting of correspondence) that Mr. Randall was married, and also that Mrs. Randall had come down unexpectedly in consequence of an anonymous letter advising her to do so!

But I think I want one better when I told everyone how I had tried to look after poor Mr. Randall in order to keep a nice married man out of the way of danger—and widow!

And that ends the episode of the Man the Other Woman Wanted.

Outwardly, I scored, but really—well, I'm not so sure!

It certainly was a shock—a surprise, I mean—to find the "William Egerton Randall—London" had a wife!

TED'S ACTIVE PARTNER

FROM the moment Jimmie and Selwyn met they had formed a partnership—more or less silent—but decidedly firm.

Selwyn saw in the younger his own boyhood reproduced, and to Jimmie the sympathy and understanding of a grown-up was wonderfully comforting when the maternal hand did not spare the rod that spoiled the child.

Jimmie did not really mean to be a bad boy. There were times when afterthought told him that he had been in the wrong, but at the moment the temptation to do this or that thing was irresistible, and he simply followed his instincts.

He was standing against the rail of the summer house now, having politely declined Selwyn's offer of a seat.

"I didn't mean to hurt his old automobile," he explained, "but Mr. Taggart has been making such a bluff that I just wanted to see him a cropper. Say, it was worth a licking—wasn't it?"

"I'd have taken one myself," admitted Selwyn, chuckling over the remembrance of the picture Taggart had made as he had puffed up to the hotel porch in his racing automobile and the sorry figure he had cut a few minutes later as he limped up the drive after the auto tires had picked up the rope Jimmy had carelessly laid in the road after thoughtfully placing a few tacks through the strands to ensure its being picked up.

Had Jimmy known that the auto would upset he would not have done such a thing, but he was not altogether sorry, and Selwyn was delighted. In spite of his bragadoon Taggart seemed to have the inside track with Gertrude March and Selwyn hated him for it.

When it came to yachts they stood upon even ground, for Selwyn's Grace was a shade faster than Taggart's Gertrude, but Selwyn could not afford an automobile, too, and on shore he felt very much like a seal out on the beach.

Gertrude cared more for automobiling than she did for water.

To square things he suggested a trip down to the village for a soda.

They were still sipping their soda when Taggart came limping in looking for some liniment.

"Ah," he said, with a painful effort at geniality, "I perceive that the young man is receiving the reward of merit."

Selwyn flushed hotly. "If you mean that I put Jimmie up to his tricks," he said, "you are very much mistaken."

Taggart came at him like a bull, but in the end he was soundly thrashed, and having suffered two defeats, was willing to let Selwyn leave.

Had he kept quiet it would have been all right, but instead he made complaint to the proprietor to the vast entertainment of that individual and by noon the story was all over the hotel.

There were some who predicted still nice to Taggart, but she cultivated a taste for the water, and was on the Grace more often than she was in the racing car, to Selwyn's great delight.

Taggart, on the other hand, grew morose and sullen, and he seemed to take a delight in urging Jimmie to mistakes. The climax came when he bought some snuff and a powder blower and suggested to the boy that it would be a good joke to sprinkle the dark piazza with it.

That evening Jimmie marched up and down the porch and in his train followed a chorus of sneezes. Jimmie was caught red-handed and carried off to his room for punishment.

His explanation that he received the suggestion from Taggart was met with a flat denial, and that person smiled in satisfaction as presently through the open window came the sound of punishment.

Selwyn heard, too, and presently he sought out Taggart. He found him standing out on the cliff, apparently very much satisfied with what he had done. "You know very well," he began with preamble, "you put the youngster up to that trick!"

"I suppose you overheard the conversation," sneered Taggart.

"No," admitted Selwyn, "but Jimmie tells the truth, and I know that when he says that you put him up to it is so."

"What are you going to do about it?" he sneered.

"Jimmie got spanked for his share of the trick," said Selwyn meaningly.

"And I am to share his fate?" suggested Taggart.

"Precisely," agreed Selwyn, dropping his coat. "What's sauce for the goose ought to be sauce for the gander."

Taggart came at him like a bull, but in the end he was soundly thrashed, and having suffered two defeats, was willing to let Selwyn leave.

Had he kept quiet it would have been all right, but instead he made complaint to the proprietor to the vast entertainment of that individual and by noon the story was all over the hotel.

There were some who predicted that Taggart would abandon the chase after that, but it only made him the more eager. In some fashion he made Gertrude believe that Selwyn was making Jimmie the excuse for his behavior, and he turned toward Taggart in the days that followed.

This sent Selwyn into the dumps, and for a while he contemplated a retreat himself until Jimmie's counsel prevailed.

"I wouldn't go away," he declared, as they sat on the deck of the Grace. "I'd stay on and beat his boat in the regatta. The Grace can go lots more than his old boat. That's the best way to beat him."

Before the race Gertrude began to look with more favor on Selwyn, and as the time for the regatta approached it was whispered about that the "inner of the race would gain Miss March's hand as well as the hotel cup."

Both of the boats were laid up for a scraping, and the day before the race were taken out and turned up. The piazza was excited at the report that Miss March was to sail on the Gertrude, and that Jimmie had been appointed official mascot of the Grace.

It seemed odd that the March family should be so divided, but after Jimmie had licked a bigger boy than himself for saving that he was a hoodoo it was accepted that perhaps he might bring luck.

When they set out for the starting boat the Grace moved sluggishly and heavily through the water. Taggart got the best of the start and was over the line a full minute before his rival crossed.

That he improved his lead was apparent, for at the first leg he led by four minutes and a half, and at the second turn he had bettered this. When the finish line was crossed the Grace was half way down the last leg, and Ted Selwyn was sitting on the rail dejectedly.

Jimmie crept up alongside. "Say, Ted," he whispered, "if there was something the matter with the boat you could claim a foul, couldn't you?"

"How do you mean?" he asked.

"There was no fouling. The Gertrude kept too far ahead for us to do any fouling.

"It's this way," he explained, as the flush reddened through the tan. "You know I wanted to get hunks with Bill Taggart for putting me up to that snuff thing. I knew that it would hurt him most if he and Gert were to come in after you, so last night I sneaked out of bed and put a tin pall on the Gertrude. It was a big pall, you know, only I made a mistake and put it on the Grace. You switched places after I went to bed, didn't you?"

For a moment Selwyn's fingers worked nervously, then he turned to trial at your expense.

For a moment Jimmie's eyes filled, then he threw his arms impulsively around Selwyn's neck. "You're a brick, Ted," he said. "I didn't see what a row I was going to make."

It was hard for Selwyn to stand the good-natured licks as he crossed the line, but he took them with a smiling face, and as soon as he could he went up to the hotel.

He went down to dinner in no pleasant frame of mind. Jimmie had already gone out to the Grace to cut off the pall under pretence of having a swim.

Presently Taggart sprang forward as the Marches came down the steps, but with a smile Gertrude passed him and came up to Selwyn.

"I want to speak to you a moment," she said. "Will you come out on the piazza?"

She made for a corner where there were no guests, and turned to face him.

"I wanted to tell you," she said, with glowing eyes, "how splendid you were this afternoon. Jimmie couldn't stand it, and he told me all about it. You know how he dreads the idea of boarding school. I want to thank you for your goodness to him."

"You see," he explained awkwardly, "we were sort of fellow conspirators, and I couldn't very well spill on a nail."

"If there's any question you would like to ask me," she faltered. "Jimmie—said— he seemed to think—"

"You know what I want to ask," he said. "Is there any hope?"

She placed her hand in his. "I promised Jimmie you could be his brother-in-law if you wanted to be," she smiled. "That's why I proposed."

She went back to her party, and with singing heart he took his friends out to the Grace.

"Anything doing?" demanded Jimmie from the rail as he stepped on board.

"Ted smiled. "You ought to know," he said. "It was your doings."

"I told you I'd square on Taggart," exulted Jimmie.

CARL swung around in his chair. "Well, you look like a funeral," he remarked cheerily.

Elsie, pausing in the doorway, responded with a ghost of a smile. "I've come after something," she said.

"Haven't got a cent, sis. I've just finished next month's allowance."

"It isn't money, stupid. All I want in the world is a man's point of view."

"Ticked to death to see you. Sit down."

Elsie sat down. "It's just this way," she began. "I went to the theater last Thursday night with Jimmy Orchard and—"

"Well, my point of view on that," Carl interrupted, "is that you've been going to the theater with Jimmy Orchard pretty often lately."

"Now, I wasn't asking for your point of view, Carl. What I want is a man's point of view."

"O, of course, if you think mine isn't good enough—"

"Don't try to be clever, sonny, I'm in sober earnest. As I was saying, Jimmy called for me, looking like a dream, the way he always does—"

"Jimmie's the biggest dandy going," Elsie giggled hysterically. "That makes it all the worse," she murmured. "Well, I wasn't quite ready when he called—"

"As usual!"

"Nothing of the sort! I always have to wait for you to shave and lose a collar button and get your dress suit pressed when I'm going anywhere with you. But this time I had to finish dressing in a great hurry, and it was a case of running for the train and being late at the theater, even then."

"Just before I started down stairs I realized that the gloves that match my pale blue gown were at the cleaner's, and there wasn't a thing for me to do but to wear my black silk ones. I snatched them out of the drawer, and, regardless of Jimmy's fastidiousness, I didn't even stop to put them on before leaving the house. When we got on the train and I had caught my breath I said,

"Well, now I suppose I might put on my gloves."

"And Jimmy said, 'Please do,'" chuckled Carl.

"That's where you're mistaken. I never was so surprised in all my life. That conventional Jimmy actually drew those gloves out of my hand and calmly put them in his pocket. Then he said it was too warm to wear gloves anyway, and for his part he'd rather see my arms."

"Jimmy's catching on."

"Isn't he? Well, I felt easy, as long as he knew I had gloves, and my arms do look rather nice in that blue gown, Carl. So I didn't resist, and the play was lovely, and we had a splendid time. But of course Jimmy carried off those gloves in his pocket."

"Accidentally—on purpose."

"I never thought of that at first. What I did think of was that I needed those gloves for Sunday; so next morning I called him up by telephone and asked him if he couldn't drop that evening and return the gloves."

He came, and we had a pleasant visit, but he was going away without remembering what he came for. So I asked him for them.

"To my astonishment he stammered to the roots of his hair and claimed something to the effect that he had left them at home. It was so flimsy that I saw in a minute that he'd turned sentimental, and wanted to keep those gloves. I just decided that he shouldn't do it. I wasn't going to have him showing them around and, aside from that, long silk gloves don't grow on bushes. So I simply told him, in a matter-of-fact way, that I needed them for Sunday, and asked him if he couldn't stop on his way home from the office the next night and leave them. He didn't say he wouldn't, and so of course I thought he would. But, Carl, he let Sunday morning come without bringing those gloves."

"Cub!"

"I thought so, too, and I was just about as frigid as the north pole when he walked in, late this afternoon. He acted queer, and I flattered myself that my distant manner was making him nervous. He wasn't going to stay anyhow, it seemed, and after he had handed me a little box which supposedly contained my gloves he couldn't get out of the house fast enough.

"Of course I pulled open the box, and, Carl, Carl, what do you think I found?"

"Chocolates!"

"Chocolates nothing! Out tumbled a long pair of black silk stockings! I knew they were mine the minute I looked at them, from the shape of that awful hole my dancing pumps wear in the heel!"

"But how in thunder—"

"Goodness knows how they ever happened to get into the drawer with my gloves. Goodness knows, too, how my black silk gloves got stuffed in among my stockings. But, Carl, now for the point of view. What does Jimmy think of me?"

Carl considered. Then, "How big was that hole?" he inquired judicially.

Satisfied With His Lot.

"Don't you ever get any vacation?" plyingly asked the sleek thoroughbred.

"Vacation!" exclaimed the work horse. "I can go out to the stable yard and roll over, any day in the week, and I'll bet that's more than you ever get to do."

Real Friends.

"Well, I will tell you the trouble with Sterling. I admit that he's a fairly good business man, but there's a big element of luck in his success. He's insufferably conceited, too, and then it's merely his hypocrisy that—"

Just Discovered It.

"I thought Allcads was going to build a new house."

"He had some notion of doing it, but he could he could spend more money in fixing up his old one."

Satisfied With His Lot.

"Don't you ever get any vacation?" plyingly asked the sleek thoroughbred.

"Vacation!" exclaimed the work horse. "I can go out to the stable yard and roll over, any day in the week, and I'll bet that's more than you ever get to do."

Real Friends.

"Well, I will tell you the trouble with Sterling. I admit that he's a fairly good business man, but there's a big element of luck in his success. He's insufferably conceited, too, and then it's merely his hypocrisy that—"

"You seem to know him pretty well."

"Oh, yes; we're great friends."
