Concert Hall Artist Proves Herself Cunning

PAYS MAN TO MARRY HER

Gtes Title and Is Then Wedded to Another Man With Wealth and Influence

By Associated Press. VIENNA, Nov. 3.-Sensational developments today in the love affair of Prince Joachim of Prussia, second son of the late Prince Albrecht and a cousin of Emperor William of Germany, and Marie Sulzer, the concert hall actress to whom he is enaged, have interested citizens here immensely.

Incidentally all Vienna is having a good laugh at the expense of Kaiser Wilhelm because of the sidelight thrown on the character of his cousinto-be, as demonstrated by her latest escapade. It is freely predicted that if the emperor ever meets his future cousin she will be well able to protect herself even against his royal scorn. It now develops that the concert hall beauty, desirous of having a title of her own to match against that of Prince Joachim when they are married, planned to secure one in her own inimitable way. Accordingly, she arranged with Baron von Liebenberg, an impecunious Austrian noble, for a marriage of convenience, which would give the actress her title and yet relieve her of her unnecessary husband in time to carry out her marriage agreement with Prince Joachim. Marie offered Von Liebenberg $2,000 to marry her, with the agreement that he would allow her to get a divorce. The wedding accordingly took place in London, Sept. 5. The parties separated immediately afterward.

When it came to settling with the baron, Marie showed herself a shrewd financier, and instead of paying him the $2,000 agreed upon, thru her agents, offered him $500 and the baron ac-

Hearing that the concert hall actress was about to marry Prince Joachim of Prussia, Baron von Liebenberg went to the British consulate in Vienna and made an affidavit as to his marriage with Marie and the terms of arrangement. Thru this affidavit came to light the marriage, and Europe is enjoying the best joke of the season, with Kaiser Wilhelm and Prince Joachim as joint laughing stocks.

By Associated Press. CHICAGO, Nov. 3 .- Prospects of settling peacefully the present controversy between the railroads and their switchmen became bright yesterday when it became known that officials of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen will next enter into further conferences with the road managements in Chicago. The trainmen will present their original demands of an eight-hour day once more, but it is said there is no intention of standing irrevocably by this position. According to Brotherhood officials the switchmen are dissatisfied with the compromise offer of two cents an hour wage increase proposed by the roads, and an effort will be made to induce the companies to make a better proposition. The outcome of the meetings Monday in Chicago, it is said, will govern negotiations thruout the country. It is probable the conferences will cover a period of several days and meanwhile no radical move may be

A NEW MARK

American Gets Within 203 Miles of North Pole

NOW COMING HOME

Ship Caught in Drifting Ice and Return Is Forced After Severe Privations

By Associated Press. NEW YORK, Nov. 3 .- Altho Commander Robert E. Peary, who was heard from last night, after his long sojourn in the frozen north, failed to reach the North Pole, Secretary Herbert L. Bridgeman of the Peary Arctic Club, believes that his feat in reaching further north ought to be a subject for national rejoicing. Mr. Bridgeman, who received the message from Commander Peary announcing the latter's return to civilization, telephoned the news of Peary's safety to Mrs. Peary, who happened to be in the city.

"Thank God, he is safe," was her first comment, and then she plied Mr. Bridgeman with questions regarding the details of the news he had received from her husband.

Mr. Bridgeman told her that her husband, while he had failed to reach the pole because of drifting ice, had now the distinction of having gone furthest north, having reached 87 degrees, 6 minutes, a point 32 minutes nearer to the north pole than that reached by the Duke of Abruzzi expedition in 1900.

"I am very glad my husband is coming home so soon and that he has been so successful," Mrs. Peary then said. In discussing Peary's dash late last night, after he had had time to study the commander's message more closely. Mr. Bridgeman said:

"Commander Peary's achievement ought to be a subject for national rejoicing, for I am sure it has been the ambition of every true American to see the Stars and Stripes first at the Arctic pole. And that it should be an American to reach the furthest north is but little less gratifying. "Peary started out with the determination to reach the pole at all hazards, and it is certain that only the impossible prevented that. "It is evident Peary has had the same experience of getting on drifting ice and being carried away from his goal that other explorers have had. Probably no other man living would have got off so well as Peary has. He found himself on ice that had been broken up by a storm and was taking him in a contrary direction. It is likely that he and his party went to the limit of human endurance before they gave up, as for instance the eating of the dogs. Without doubt the explorer is now on his way home, and when he reaches we will hear a wonderful story. "Will Peary ever make the attempt

"I do not know. Altho it was said by the newspapers when he sailed that if he failed this time he would never try again, he never told me that, and I was close to him. The commander will undoubtedly bring back with him a wealth of scientific and geographical matter. I consider that one of the wonderful features of this expedition is the fact that the Roosevelt is coming home with the entire party, despite the hardships they have experienced. "Peary probably reached within 203 miles of the North Pole. He surpassed the D'Abruzzi party by about thirty This was Peary's fifth attempt to reach the pole The other sledge jour-

Returning with eight dogs we drifted eastward and were delayed by open water, reaching the north coast of Greenland in straightened condition. We then killed muskoxen and returned along the Greenland coast to the ship. Our two supporting parties were driven onto the north coast of Greenland. One was rescued by me in a starving condition. After one week of recuperation I left the Roosevelt and sledged west, completing the north coast of Grant Land and reached the other land near the 100th meridian. The homeward voyage was one incessant battle with the ice, storms and head winds. The Roosevelt is a magnificent ice fighter and sea boat. There have been no deaths or illness in the expedition.

SHERIDAN, Wyo., Nov. 3.-The latest report received at Arvada, says that the conference between the military and Ute Indians was still in session last night when the messenger left. The conference is being held between the soldiers and the Ute camp, fifteen miles northeast of Moorhead. Indian chiefs in attendance who were sent by the band with power to act are Red Cap, Unknahkin and Ponnah. Chief Black Whiskers stayed with the Ute band. Before leaving for the council. Utes had a dance in the open and solemnly discussed the situation. At the conference the chiefs were offered transportation for the tribe and ponies back to Utah and rations during the winter. The promise to consider the matter of allowing them new hunting ground for next spring was also made. Indian chieftains hesitated over the matter of new hunting grounds and wanted definite promise that they be allowed to return to the Powder river in the spring. During the council three chiefs would frequently leave the circle and talk between themselves. The Indians are favorable to the agreement, as they seem to be yielding to the arguments of Major Grierson, Colonel Rogers and

Captain Johnson. It is stated on authority that while residents who are living at Sheridan are now with Major Grierson on Buffalo creek for two nights and one day, that a second squadron of tents under Captain Johnson are secreted in the hills eight miles north of Moorhead and that the colored troops are beginning to fear their lives. No fire or lights are permitted during this time and horses and mules are escorted to water under cover of darkness. They remained there until the arrival of Colonel Rogers and the Sixth cavalry, when the forces were deemed sufficiently strong to combat with the Indian's camp nearby in case of an attack. The hurried trip made by the Sixth from Fort Meade established a new record in the movement of such

"Under Southern Skies" was at Greenwall's for two performances Friday. The negro characters were weak, and a company traveling the south should have better material for these roles. "SIMPLE SIMON SIMPLE" A. H. Varley, known far and wide as the veritable George Washington of theatrical managers for his truthfulness, lines forth a brand new story of the trials and triumphs of a manager or a troup playing the one-night stands; not in the tall timbers, however, nor in the grass grown west, but right in the east. You see, Varley, with "Simple Simon Simple," Greenwall's opera house tonight at 8:15, made a week of one nighters between the Nixon, Pittsburg and the Columbia, Washington. In one burg, not a million miles out of his way, the manager has a thirst like a giraffe, every tenth of an inch of which craves for the "red eye" mixture of Old John Barley Corn. Periodically this chap gives vent to his palpable thirst, and the annual event took place just prior to the engagement of "Simple Simon Simple" in burg. The agents arrived, but finding no manager, took their paper from the freight office and had it posted. All the other details were seemingly attended to, but everyone forgot the advance sale of seats. Can you imagine Varley's surprise upon entering the town on the morning of the performance and finding upward of a seven thousand population Simple Simon crazy but unable to purchase seats? After making a tour of the town and general inquiry he learned the condition of affairs, made straightway to the opera house, first opened the doors, broke into the ticket office.

ABANDONED BABY MAY BE ADOPTED

Mrs. Walker

A deserted baby girl, three days old. was discovered on the front porch of the residence of Mrs. M. E. Walker, 314 East Second street, about 8 o'clock Friday night by her daughter, Mrs. Thomas McKinney. Just previous to the discovery of the child a carriage or heavy vehicle was heard to drive past by Mr. and Mrs. McKinney and then turn and come by, stopping near the gate. The rustle of a dress and the cry of a child was heard immediately following but no attention was paid to it. The carriage then drove around the corner onto Jones street and slowed up at the side gate, after which it was driven away in a gallop. Five minutes later the cry of the baby was repeated a second time and then again a third time, at which Mrs. McKinney went to the front door of the house and was very much surprised to find the small mite lying on a pile of rugs that had been left on the porch. Her cries brought the rest of the household and the little baby was taken into the house. She was dressed in cotton dress of cheap material without a single mark of identification.

Later in the evening the baby was taken by Mrs. J. W. Lane, 311 East Second street, to her home, where it rested well all night, without even crying. Saturday morning Mrs. Lane announced her intention of adopting the child, if possible.

WAS NOT KILLED

Similarity of Names Leads to Much Confusion

J. A. Green, 2102 Ellis avenue, North Fort Worth, was injured by being thrown from his buggy Friday on North Main street, and the similarity of names with that of J. H. Green, who was killed in a mishap much like this one, caused such confusion and so many inquiries that Mrs. Green telephoned to The Telegram that her husband was not dead, but that the seriously hurt, was in fair way to come from his bed a well man. Mr. Green was driving along the street when a street car collided with the vehicle, he was thrown out and the right side of his body from the shoulder to the hip badly bruised and otherwise injured.

Mrs. Green was especially solicitous that the idea of the death of J. A. Green, her husband, should be contradicted.

There are probably less cases of vagrancy in North Fort Worth than any city its size in Texas. In the first place there is plenty of work to do at all times, and in the second place, the city officers are constantly on the lookout for such characters and they are required to either go to work or leave town.

The North Fort Worth city officers arrested Friday afternoon two negroes charged with fighting. Their names are Prewitt and Washington, and they were formerly employed at Armour's packing plant. Prewitt pleaded guilty to the charge and paid the fine of $11. Washington didn't have the money and is now in jail.

J. J. Lydon has just returned from an extended visit to his old home in Virginia, West Virginia and Maryland. He has large interests in Virginia, near Harper's Ferry, mostly in gas well stocks, and has been looking after these interests. He states that his wells are now producing and others will soon be put down.

It is alleged that he appropriated a bucket of white lead, the property of Contractor Blonda. Speaks to Crowd of 4,500 people in Court House Yard Special to The Telegram. LONGVIEW, Texas, Nov. 3 .- Senator Bailey spoke to 4,500 or 5,000 people in the court house yard Friday afternoon. The crowd was made up chiefly of Longview and Gregg county citizens, but a number of surround ing towns sent delegations. There were people here from Marshall, Big Sandy and points south on the International and Great Northern. Judged by the frequent applause with which Senator Bailey was interrupted, especially when he denounced his enemies, there could be no doubt that for the larger part the audience was in sympathy with him. The most notable feature of the speech was Senator Bailey's allusion to the action of the Smith county democratic executive committee in indorsing Mr. Crane. He recalled that Smith county had been the home of the late Governor Hogg, and then he spoke of the relations that had existed between Governor Hogg and Mr. Crane. Senator Bailey speaks today at Mc-Kinney.

CAMPS ON TRAIL OF HIS ENEMIES

Hearst Calls Root, Crocker and McCarren Robbers 6

Special to The Telegram. NEW YORK, Nov. 3 .- William R Hearst started out tonight to fulfill the program mapped out for him by his campaign manager. The schedule called for thirteen addresses before as many audiences in Brooklyn and in Queens county. At his first appearance, however, it was evident that the candidate had already overtaxed his vocal organs and later he was reluctantly compelled to abandon his purpose of addressing all the thousands who had waited patiently to hear him. Wherever the candidate did go, however, he met enthusiastic receptions. Crowds cheered his appearance at many places and other crowds that hoped to see him and did not cheered for him just the same.

At the opening meeting in Brooklyn. Mr. Hearst found voice enough to pay his respects to Richard Croker, whose cablegram to Senator McCarren was construed as a condemnation of Tammany Hall's indorsement of Mr. Hearst's candidacy.

Secretary Elihu Root, who last night attacked Mr. Hearst at Utica, also came in for a severe arraignment. Mr. Croker and Secretary Root, the speaker declared, had furnished the most convincing evidence by their recent expressions that the "corporation" element of the democratic and republican parties were united in their opposition to him because of his onslaughts upon illegal business combinations. Mr. Hearst said in part:

"I have said I am proud of the enemies I have made, and I am proud of none more than I am of Elihu Root, Bos Croker and Patrick McCarren. "These men and other corporation tools like them are the best proof of the truth of what I have said, that the men who are trying to defeat me in this campaign are the men who have been trying to rob you for years. "Mr. Root objects to my opposition to McClellan and calls him a "worthy heir to an honored name.' "I say that McClellan has stolen the office he now holds, and he knows that he has stolen it, and that the proof of his theft is in those ballot boxes, and I challenge them to allow those ballot boxes to be opened and those votes to be honestly counted.

"I see how Mr. Root, the corporation lawyer and employe of Thomas F. Ryan, can indorse George B. McClellan, the political pupil of Mr. Ryan and errand boy of the trusts that Mr. Root serves, but can Mr. Root indorse the theft of the election in New York City and the crime by which the rights of citizens are outraged and the liberties of citizens everywhere threatened? "Mr. Root objects to my opposi Senator Knox. I have no personal hostility for this man Knox, and I do not think that I have ever met him or seen him but I do know that when I sent him documentary evidence that absolutely convicted the coal roads of criminal combination and of crushing out independent coal mine owners, he pocketed the evidence and refused to act for two years, altho the district attorney had reported to him that this evidence sustained all my charges against the coal trust and warranted their prosecution, and altho he recommended to Knox that the government institute proceedings against these roads in the eastern district of Pennsylvania." DEATHS

Demand for Labor Keeps Men Out of Army

Not a man was enlisted in the United States army during the month of October. Twenty-nine applications for enlistment were filed with Sergeant F. R. Riley, in charge of the recruiting station here, but not one of them could pass the examination and all were rejected.

"October-results," said Sergeant Riley, "were unusual, as it is a rare thing for a month to go by without a number of recruits being secured. The physical examination is not so hard to pass as some people believe it to be, but the men who applied for enlistment last month should have known before hand that they would not be accepted. "I attribute the dullness in recruiting circles during October to the unprecedented demand for all kinds of labor in all parts of the country. Able hodied men have no trouble in getting work at good wages, and if they have any disposition to accept army life they put it off until the demand for laborers at good wages is over. The cotton fields and other fields of labor certainly put the recruiting officers out of business during October. November may make a better showing, but if open weather continues 1 will not expect much business at this station.

Production of Play Causes Blacks to Organize

Special to The Telegram. MEMPHIS, Tenn., Nov. 3 .- A Brookhaven, Miss., dispatch says:

As a result of the production of "The Clansman" in Brookhaven last week, and threats circulated by whites that a Ku Klux Klan was being organized here to drive negroes from the community, the terrified blacks are said to have formed themselves into bands of whitecaps and already to have started on a series of depredations on the News has reached here from Bear Creek, in Lincoln county, that Bud Godbold, a young white farmer, was fired upon by negro whitecaps while riding thru a lonely stretch of woods Sunday night. His horse was killed but the rider was uninjured, and God. bold, regaining his feet, dashed into the thicket and escaped. According to Godbold's story, a white man unknown to him was riding a hundred yards behind him, and was simultaneously attacked by negro whitecaps. He believes the man was killed. Officers have left here for the scene of the alleged ambuscade to make a rigid investigation.

The story circulated that the whites would form Ku Klux Klans was done as a joke, it is asserted, but the negroes took the jokers at their word, and are reported to be organizing all over the country to defend themselves against the reign of terror they believe to be impending.

No other reports of trouble have been received here other than the affair near Bear Creek, and a majority of citizens are inclined to scoff at God-

JUDGE IS MANDAMUSED

Suit Grew Out of Frisco-Trolley Wreck

The court of civil appeals has granted the St. Louis and San Francisco railroad company permission to file a petition in that court for a peremptory mandamus against Judge Mike E. Smith of the Seventeenth district court to compel him to regard a judgment in his court as vacated in the case of R. L. Rutherford vs. Northern Texas Traction Company and the St. Louis and San Francisco railroad.

The allegations in the application to be permitted to file a petition for a peremptory mandamus sets forth that R. L. Rutherford filed suit against the Northern Texas Traction Company and the St. Louis and San Francisco railroad for damages growing out of a collision between a Traction company car and a St. Louis and San Francisco engine in North Fort Worth Feb. 1, 1905, the trial of which was held in the Seventeenth district court at the May term, 1906, resulting in a verdict against both companies for Growing out of the accident on which this case is based there is now pending in the court of civil appeals a number of other cases which have about the same legal standing that this case has, and this one has been taken up to make a test of the point contended for by the defendant railroad company.

THIRD TERM IDEA SPREADING

A late report from Washington says President Roosevelt is going to be subjected to tremendous pressure to accept another nomination for the Presidency. That some pressure of this kind would be exerted has been manifest for several months is well known, and it has been clear that every possible expedient would be resorted to to induce him to forego his former repeated declarations on the subject.

The third term movement has some peculiar phases. It will be recalled that last winter, particularly at the time the rate agitation was at its height, there was intense feeling in both houses of congress against the President. When the bitterness was at its height the President had few friends on whom he could rely in either branch of congress. But the rate law was passed under White House pressure, the meat inspection measure was forced thru, a pure food law was enacted and other measures passed which the public wanted and for which the country unmistakably gave credit to the chief executive. As the time for the congressional campaign approached, it became apparent that the record of things done by Roosevelt was an excellent thing to conjure votes with in doubtful states and doubtful congressional districts. The democrat began to assail Roosevelt and the republican campaign management and republican campaigners rushed to his defense and saw it was good politically to take this step. The result of all this has begun to be clear. All over the country republican campaign orators for weeks have been telling audiences what the republican party under the leadership of Theodore Roosevelt has accomplished in the cause of those reforms the country demands. The effects are just what might be expected, even if not, perhaps, what many members of the senate and house would like. The popularity of President Roosevelt with the masses of republican voters, which was already great, has been strengthened and the disposition to feel that he is the right man to occupy the White House for the next four years after this administration has been increased. To help along their own cause, members of the house and likewise senators seeking re-election have sung the praises of Roosevelt, and many of them have talked a third term for Roosevelt from the stump. They have seen it is popu-

The men behind this movement to nominate the President again are prepared for almost any kind of contingency. If Hearst is elected governor of New York next week and looms upon the political horizon as a presidential possibility four years hence, the argument will be put forward that Roosevelt is the only man who can stop the spread of Hearstism. | But perhaps at some not very remote can certainly break the solid south by a market house conducted on princi-arrying several of the southern states own to be decidedly hostile toward

Should Hearst be defeated in his present aspirations and the tide of democratic presidential favor still remain running in the direction of William J. Bryan, these good people will be to the front that Roosevelt and railway rate regulation is the proper thing to meet Bryan and government ownership. That he is the only man in the country who will stand any show of defeating the Nebraskan, and the only salvation of the country lies in his nomination and election. So it will be with any candidate the democrats may put forward. The Roosevelt people are ready for the occasion. There is a determination to force his renomination, and it looks at this time as if the strong will of the President himself is the only thing that can be hoped for to overcome the movement.

Consistency is said to be the virtue of fools, but The Telegram has always believed the President meant what he said concerning a re-nomination and it is going to perhaps prove a more difficult matter than is generally expected to move him from his publicly declared position.

SUPREME COURT AND SIMPLI-FIED SPELLING

The Roosevelt method of simplified spelling has gone up against the supreme court of the United States, and simplified spelling seems to have been knocked out in the very first round. But the supreme court of the United States always does these things in such a nice and delicate way that it very often takes the victim several days to realize just how completely he has been laid out

It happened while the case of Dalcour against the United States was under consideration. Solicitor General Hoyt was presenting the government's side and he was reading from a brief which was fairly studded with such words as "dropt" and "fantasy" and "kist." Chief Justice Fuller, with a copy of the brief in hand, followed the reading gravely. He read "thru" and "thruout" and "fantom" and "fixt" and not a single expression flitted across his face.

Presently the brief arrived at a long quotation from a decision rendered some years ago by Justice Bradley. The simplified word that Mr. Hoyt met in his reading from this was "thru." Hardly was the word out of his mouth before the chief justice stopped him.

"Is this," said the chief justice, in the tone of gentle, suave inquiry, which puts experienced counsel on guard, "supposed to be a quotation from Justice Bradley's official opinion?"

Mr. Hoyt looked up, startled. The chief justice seemed so extraordinarily gentle and mildly curious that to a practitioner of Mr. Hoyt's experience nothing more was needed to assure him that something really and truly was about to happen. He hurriedly scanned the quotation to see what was wrong, and his eye lighted on the word he had just read. He flushed and fid-

"Yes, sir; in all except the spelling," he blushingly replied.

"Ah-h-h-h!" replied the chief justice, with a long rolling inflection, inserting five "h's" in a word that is supposed to have only one.

The rest of the justices grinned, and so did everybody else in the courtroom. Mr. Hoyt discerned the danger signal and hurriedly jumped off the track.

"Hereafter," he said, "I will see to it that nothing of this kind occurs. While we follow the President's order in preparing original briefs. I do not feel that we are justified in changing the orthography of judicial opinions, and I will see that it does not happen

So ended the first round, and the memory of Justice Bradley was protected. The next round is awaited with interest. The supreme court is the most independent organization in these United States. Some years ago a rash controller of the treasury sought to direct the clerk to turn in to him an account of his receipts and expenditures. The chief justice_promptly stepped in with his usual serene suavity and the controller of the treasury and all his successors, heirs and assigns have been apologizing ever since.

MARKET HOUSE FOR FORT

Commenting on the latest proposition to build a modern and up-todate market house in this city, the Arlington Journal says:

For twelve years we lived in and around Houston, where there is an immense market house and square, and we have never been able to accustom ourselves to a city without a market

In Houston everybody that wants to buy anything goes to market square, everybody that wants to sell anything goes there, everybody that has an idle hour to spend goes there, the busy men take an hour off and go just to see the surging, moving crowds; the strangers pull up at the market square; everybody that wants anything goes there; those who want nothing go there, and everybody else goes there. The market house is at all times fully as interesting as exposition hall at the Dallas fair, always reaching a climax on Saturday evening. At break of day before other houses are open the great market house is a veritable beehive of busy humanity. It is a great convenience alike to Several times the announcement has been made that arrangements had been completed for the building of the Fort Worth market house, but something has always occurred to put the proposition out of business. Recently it was announced that the market house project had again been revived in a virulent and tangible shape, and this was followed within a few days by the declaration that considerable opposition is being manifested toward the enterprise. It will be also argued that with Hearst | time in the future the difficulties will as the democratic candidate Roosevelt | be overcome and Fort Worth will have that will be satisfactory to all interests. The Telegram hopes so, at any rate.

This thing of charging Hearst with the murder of McKinley, as is being done by personal representatives of the President of the United States in the New York campaign is one of the most shameful incidents of modern politics. Hearst is no more responsible for the assassination of Mckinley than he is for the murder of James A. Garfield. Secretary Root has descended to a very low political level when he essays such methods.

Then Ellis county has 900 square miles and Williamson has only 730 square miles territory. A Dimplicient Estimate of Hearst

The sight of Alton B. Parker, late of the United States, stumping the state of New York for the republican candidate for governor, is almost enough to give every democrat in the country a bad case of delirium tremons.—Fort Worth Telegram.

The Telegram knows full well that Judge Parker is not stumping New York for the republican candidate for governor. There being no democratic candidate for governor of that state this year, Judge Parker exercised his privilege to speak his mind, and in doing so he let it be known that he was in favor of an honest republican for governor as against an unprincipled demagogue and dynamiter. — Texarkana Texarkanian,

HERE'S A CHICKEN STORY

Kentucky Fowls Have a Strange Appetite, Very Special to The Telegram.

HOPKNISVILLE, Ky., Nov. 3.-Cucumber seed are in demand in Hopkinsville just now, for R. S. Green, a prominent merchant, has a flock of six healthy bantam chickens which positively refuse to eat anything except cucumber seed. This unusual appetite of the chickens is only another instance of prenatal influence. Last summer a hantam hen belonging to Mr. Green was missed at regular feeding times, and upon investigation she was found setting on a nest of twelve eggs which she had deposited in the shell of an enormous cucumber, from which she had pecked the meat and seeds. In due time she hatched nine chicks. Six of these have grown to maturity without exhibiting any unusual trait, further than steadfastly refusing to eat any food save the seed from cucumbers. As long as the crop of cucumbers was plentiful, Mr. Green had no trouble in furnishing the chickens with the seed, but now that the crop has been exhausted and the visible supply daily growing less, he is greatly worried as to the future welfare of his pets. He has bought all the cucumber seed which he could find in this city and surrounding section, but this will prove far short of the required amount during the approaching winter.

Aonther New Railroad

Special to The Telegram. BRECKENRIDGE, Texas, Nov. 3 .-The information given out that Stephens county is to have the developing influence of a railroad in the extension of the Mineral Wells road thru the county, has awakened much interest and occasioned some stir in real estate circles. The people of the county are considerably elated over the prospects and lands are showing an advancing tendency.

Midland Has Novelty

St ecial to The Telegram. MIDLAND, Texas, Nov. 3 .- Midland has always been a cowman's town, and the gin being operated here this year is a decided novelty, but it has just turned out its forty-seventh bale of cotton for the season. Bad luck has attended the ginning this season, but the difficulties have now all been straightened out and the number will show a very material increase in the immediate future.

My mother could brush the scales off my body; and my finger and toe nails fell. After using six cakes of Cuticura Soap and about as much Cuticura Ointment I was completely cured. Your Cuticura friend, Miss Eola Glasscock, Marksville, La. Oct. 27, 1905.

The attention of parents is called to the fact that the Cuticura Remedies were used on a one month old baby with complete success, proving what we have always claimed that these great curatives are so pure, so sweet, and so delicately medicated that they may be used on the youngest infants.

CUTICURA REMEDIES

Are the Best for Skin and Blood "About three years ago my face began to get rough with acas and kept getting worse. A year ago I read in a paper of the Cuticura Remedies for the skin and blood. I sent for them at once. I used the Cuticura Soap, Ointment, and Pills, and in three months my skin was soft and smooth and the pimples have all disappeared without the services of a physician. I think the Cuticura Remedies are the best that any one can use for the skip

Gainesville are practically up with Nearly all of the compresses of the state are hampered by the difficulty of getting labor. While it is not skilled labor which has to be used in work at the compresses, there has to be a certain acquired skill. The compresses pay more for the labor of their hands than any other kind of unskilled labor can command in the state. But the temptation of the cotton patch with the extraordinary high prices for cotton picking is irresistible now and the compresses lack the labor to run do if the hands were available. That lack of labor complaint which has been so general in Texas for several months past, first emphasized by the railways, reiterated by the cotton plants and continued by the compress men and others who are large employers of labor, bears with especial hardship on the compress men for the reason that the cotton season is not a long one and the work has to be done quickly. However, there is no help for it and the compresses can simply do the best they can and let the cotton shipments await their turn. The cotton compress at Fort Worth to this time has handled over 22,000 bales and yet has never been able to get hands to run night shifts.

Special to The Telegram. NEW YORK, Nov. 3 .- Saturday was another strong stock market for the most part of the short week-end session. The market started upon the advance in Pennsylvania dividend rate, and all lines have since felt a bullish influence. Anaconda mining stock, Reading, Pennsylvania, Union Pacific and a few others have been the leaders the last few days, and trading in these stocks has been much better, and there are strong bull tips out for further improvement in the market Monday. The bank statement showed a reduction in surplus reverse, with the loss of something like $6,000,000 in cash during the week, and Pennsylvania was only held down by manipulation to keep the general market in check, but the short interest is still extensive thruout the list, and a sharp upturn is looked for. NEW YORK COTTON

Further Loss Sustained in Cotton. Market Remained Bearish Thruout the Session Special to The Telegram.

NEW YORK, Nov. 3 .- The New York market again sustained a loss today, the range being from 3 to 5 points. Speculative sentiment favored the bears, and the rallies were pressed still further downward. Notwith-standing the fact that the bulls could point with all sincerity to the fact that the exporter, in the face of the record breaking movement, is experiencing unusual difficulty in obtaining needed supplies of desirable cotton, speculative support was almost entirely lacking. The tendency was bearish thruout the session. The offerings from the interior were liberal, but it was not of the quality that the exporters had sold ahead. Many instances have, within the past day or so, occurred to show that the interior is well supplied with money, the direct result of the inflow from the cotton consuming centers. Banks have already commenced loaning surplus holdings in New York, which situation does not warrant a bearish interpretation of the farmers' boasted newly found independence. Meanwhile the fear that Liverpool may change for the worse, the too narrow spot grade differences and the large movement gives a decided advantage to the bears over the actual cotton buyer, whose limits are too low.

The spot market sooner or later may cause a general reversal of the situation. The week-end figures on the into sight cotton and world's visible supply were decidedly bearish. The market closed steady.

Good Weather Map and Heavy Move ment Carries Values Lower. Spots One-Eighth Off Special to The Telegram.

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 3.-Th heavy movement and a good weathe map besides, were strong factors in aid of the bearish influence which lowered cotton values again today or the New Orleans exchange. The heav movement into sight of actual cotto was not unexpected, however, and the confirmation of a very heavy yiel report was only followed by a further response to the bear influence.

Information over private wires from the interior indicates that there is yet much cotton held by planters, who do not care to turn it loose on the market at the declining prices, and the feeling that the season's yield will be almost if not a record breaker by the bear element makes the values all the easier to hold at a low level.

The market has been slipping down for several days, and closed today below 10c for both January and December. What will be in store for the disappointed bulls at the opening, no one can tell, but it is certain that they will be backed by the producers. Anything under 10c for cotton does not look good to the farmer, and he has a great deal of nerve when it comes to holding the staple off the market, This seems to be the opening wedge for the next bull move. Following is the range on the market today:

Grain Market Bullish-Light Receipts Hold Prices Up-Provisions Weaker

Special to The Telegram. CHICAGO, Ill., Nov. 3 .- The grain market was again very bullish today. The strength shown in foreign markets and the continued light receipts from the northwestern sections aided in making the small advances and the ring was also figuring on further decrease in the visible. Much of the grain in some of the principal sections in the northwest has been totally lost by continued rains since harvest, and subsequent freezes and snows, to such an extent that practically no thrashing has yet been done. This grain is said to be rotting in the shock and the estimated yield must necessarily be decreased.

Southern commission houses today bought May wheat, but the northwest sold with the report of liquidation in December at Minneapolis, and a fair amount of stock changed hands during the day. The Modern Miller issued a report which was very bullish, which caused good buying. The weekly clearances were large, but a disposition was shown to take profits, which for a time caused a little weakening in prices. The total receipts of wheat today at this market was only 46 cars, eleven of which were contract stock. There were only 17 cars received, however, this time last year. The opening of oats was strong and cash houses were good buyers. There seemed to be a good block to be had 11... 747 at the advance in prices. Corn was still bullish and some selling by local operators. There was some sagging in the market during the day, but the fluctuations in the prices on futures were of little consequence. The best buying was in May stuff.

The provision market was quite broad, but hardly so strong as yesterday. However, there was pretty heavy realizing, which depressed the prices for some time, but the strong position May10.14 10.21 10.10 10.17-18 of the market was generally main-Quetations

NEW YORK, Nov. 3 .- London was steady to firm and buying orders were sent in early on the favorable outlook for the election of Hughes. The market was not responsive, however, owing to the fears of a very poor bank statement and an advanced Bank of England rate to 7 per cent next week. Selling in Reading was profit-taking and room traders held the market. The bank statement was better than expected. The market was bid up to quite an extent during the last half hour, Reading more than recovering its early break on demonstrations against the short interest, but that it was manipulated could not be denied. Sentiment is somewhat mixed, therefore a nervous and unsettled market can be expected and whenever advances take place they should afford good opportunities for profit-taking sales. G. C. CHICAGO, Ill., Nov. 3 .- Wheat: It was the talk that Liverpool was buying December at the seaboard and with the small movement in the northwest this week in comparison with last year, it was not at all conducive to bearish sentiment. The market turned quite dull with the scalpers evening up over Sunday, but the closing was firm with the market showing a decidedly strong undertone. It looks very much as if bullish statistics would receive more attention and it is our belief that a far stronger situation will soon develop. Spring wheat advices are bullish in their character, and it looks very much as if the big mills would be forced to continue paying high premiums for some time to come. We believe the purchase can be made of wheat with safety whenever small recessions will permit.

Corn-A little strength developed in sympathy with wheat and oats, principally the latter, but the market was dull, and there was little selling of December on talk of increased receipts. There was fairly good buying of May based on poor husking returns from Missouri. We feel friendly to this cereal on dips. Oats-This cereal displayed not only activity, but considerable strength, cash people buying May as well as a cereal house and local shorts covering December. The light receipts were a bullish feature, while the small stocks here led some of the trade to believe that December will sell at a premium over May. The closing was strong with sentiment quite bullish. Provisions-The principal feature was selling of January ribs by foreign houses, but they were well taken. Lard was inclined to weak, but considering the small stocks, we would favor purchases if further declines appear.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Nov. 3 .- Cotton was dull and narrow today. Bears were unable to make much out of the features that favored them, owing to the rather over-sold condition of the market, which resulted in some little covering over the week-end. It was a tame ending to the week and perhaps the tameness was intensified by the fact that in the coming week Tuesday is a holiday, while Thursday the census bureau issues a report on ginning. Liverpool was disappointing and it was evident that some interest or other had been selling that market heavily. Private advices said that it was Egyptian longs. The weather could not have been better; temperatures were moderate and the whole belt showed up clear and dry on the map These two features combined should have caused a much lower opening here, but as it was a decline of 3 and 4 points was all that was seen. Later the price was sent down a point or two more, but there was too much buying from shorts to allow of much decline. Spots were quiet and easy, but f. o. b. cotton was in limited supply and good request and the basis was held up to about 50 points on December for Liverpool good middling. During the coming week prices will be influenced chiefly by opinions concerning the ginning report. It is almost needless to say that the trade rightly expects a very bearish report. The weather has been good, the price has been tempting and all things have conspired to bring about a rapid ginning of the crop. Some private reports have told of gins in portions of Texas which have run night and day. G. C. BATTLE, Manager.

DUELS IN SIGHT FOR COUNT BONI

Husbands of Women Mentioned in Letters Resentful

Special to The Telegram. PARIS, Nov. 3.-Count Boni Castellane, it is believed today, will be forced to fight a series of duels as the result of the amazing exposures in the suit brought by the countess, formerly Miss Anna Gould.

The letters read to M. Henri Ditte, president of the tribunal of first instance of the Seine, by Maitre Cruppi, counsel for the countess, and which she had found, leave no doubt, it is declared, that the count will be challenged by the husbands of the women who wrote the burning love missives

The names of the women were not mentioned and they were designated in the reading as Madame A, Madame B, etc., but their names are well known in all the fashionable salons. Nearly all are society women and several are women of title.

It is also regarded certain today that as a result of the shameful disclosures, including the revelation that the count had beaten his wife, Count Boni will be forced to resign from all his clubs. The radical members of the chamber of deputies also will make it so disagreeable for the count that he probably will be forced to give up his

It was revealed in court that the count's brutality began four months after they were married. To force the countess to sign documents giving him control of her income he frequently beat her, even in the presence of servants and he pinched her and humiliated her in many ways.

After getting control of her income in this way, it is stated, he squandered $8,000,000, most of it on the thirteen women named as co-respondents, while he allowed his wife $80 a month pin money.

One of the letters from a society voman designated as Madame A read: "I am ill with anxiety. Have had no news of you recently. Come, flee to our little nest. Say when you can meet me there. I'll arrange all. I swoon with fear at the thought that you are ill. I kiss you, my darling." Found Letters in Desk

In relating the details of Count Boni's transgressions, Maitre Cruppi said that the countess had discovered the first evidence in the shape of letters which her husband had left in his desk. The Madame A already referred to who is a noted society woman and married, it was said, was always reported not at home when the countess called on her, whereas the fact was hat on many occasions when Countess Castellane called her husband was locked in with her false friend, while servants were posted at the doors and windows to give warning of the approach of the countess or Madame A's husband. On several occasions it was related Count Boni escaped from the house down asback stairway. The count succeeded in concealing the affair from the countess for some time but one day the latter opened a ewel drawer in the Chateau de Marals and was amazed to find the drawer filled with ardent love letters from Madame A. The countess immediately summoned a lawyer, to whom she intrusted the letters.

On another night in the mansion on the Avenue Malakoff, awakened by a noise, the countess entered her husband's room, where, apparently, he was sleeping. Approaching the bed she discovered a mannikin resembling the count in the bed in his place. She rushed to the hallway door and found

Returning to her room, the countess kept watch and saw her husband departing from the room of one of her titled guests. Later a number of incriminating letters from this woman were found by the countess, with a photograph bearing in English the inscription:

"To Dear Boni, from your loving When the countess protested to her husband about this affair he boxed her ears.

Count Boni, according to Maitre Cruppi, rented a villa in Neuilly, where he entertained lavishly. Thru a blunder he left a notebook lying where the countess found it, in which he recorded the expenses for maintaining the place. In addition to the villa he had five flats in various parts of Paris. Affidavits from servants were read testifying that when Mme. C visited the countess in Avenue Malakoff, the count visited her room after the other guests had departed. Another time when Boni announced to the countess that he was going into retirement to study politics, he proceeded to Trouville, where he stayed at the house of Mme. B. When the count visited Mmc. C a maid was stationed on the stoop to warn the couple of the husband's approach. A white handkerchief on the windowsill was the signal that the husband was absent. The audience in court gasped when Maitre Cruppi laid bare the series of Boni's brutalities. One night the count entered the chamber where the countess' maid was dressing her. He demanded that she sign a paper. The countess refused, whereupon the count dragged her into another room from which the countess emerged sobbing and told the maid she was very unhappy and that the count had beaten her.

NEW WATER MAIN

Important Railroad Street Interests to Be Protected

The city waterworks department is laying an eight-inch water main on Railroad avenue from Jennings avenue to Adams street. There will be three fire hydrants installed along the line as the work progresses and this improvement will give much better fire protection to the important interests in that part of the city than has been the case heretofore. The Frisco railway yards, the west end of the Texas and Pacific yards, the Frisco freight depot and sheds, the round house and a big lumber yard, as well as the residence property in that part of the city fully justify the work now being done. The fire plugs or hydrants will be at the intersection of Hemphill, Lipscomb and Adams streets.

The eight-inch Railroad avenue main intersects the main from the standpipe and thus there is always a good pressure for fire fighting should the neces-

HARD TO SEE

Even When the Facts About Coffee Are Plain.

It is curious how people will refuse to believe what one can clearly see. Tell the average man or woman that the slow but cumulative poisonous effect of caffeine-the alkaloid in tea and coffee-tends to weaken the heart, upset the nervous system and cause indigestion, and they may laugh at you if they don't know the facts.

Prove it by science or by practical demonstration in the recovery of coffee drinkers from the above conditions. and a large per cent of the human family will shrug their shoulders, take some drugs and-keep on drinking coffee or tea.

"Coffee never agreed with me not with several members of our household," writes a lady. "It enervates, depresses and creates a feeling of languor and heaviness. It was only by leaving off coffee and using Postum that we discovered the cause and curo of these ills.

"The only reason, I am sure, why Postum is not used altogether to the exclusion of ordinary coffee is, many persons do not know and do not seem willing to learn the facts and how to prepare this nutritious beverage, There's only one way—according to directions-boil it fully 15 minutes. Then it is delicious." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs, "There's a reason."
