Accident Off Coast of France Wednesday Night STEAMERS COLLIDE Shock Caused Panic Among Passengers on Board the Two Vessels

By Associated Press. CHERBOURG, France, Nov. 22.—Details of the collision yesterday between the North German Lloyd's steamer Kaiser Wilhelm Der Grosse and the British Royal Mail steamer Orinoco show that it occurred at 3 o'clock last night.

On the Orinoco three men and a woman were killed and six women and a man injured and five persons knocked overboard and drowned.

The Kaiser Wilhelm Der Grosse was steaming at the rate of seventeen knots an hour from Cherbourg, after having touched her on the voyage out.

The captain of the Orinoco ordered the boats to be cleared away, but the panic was so great that the crew of her boats and several frenzied women attempted to get into them as they were being lowered over the side.

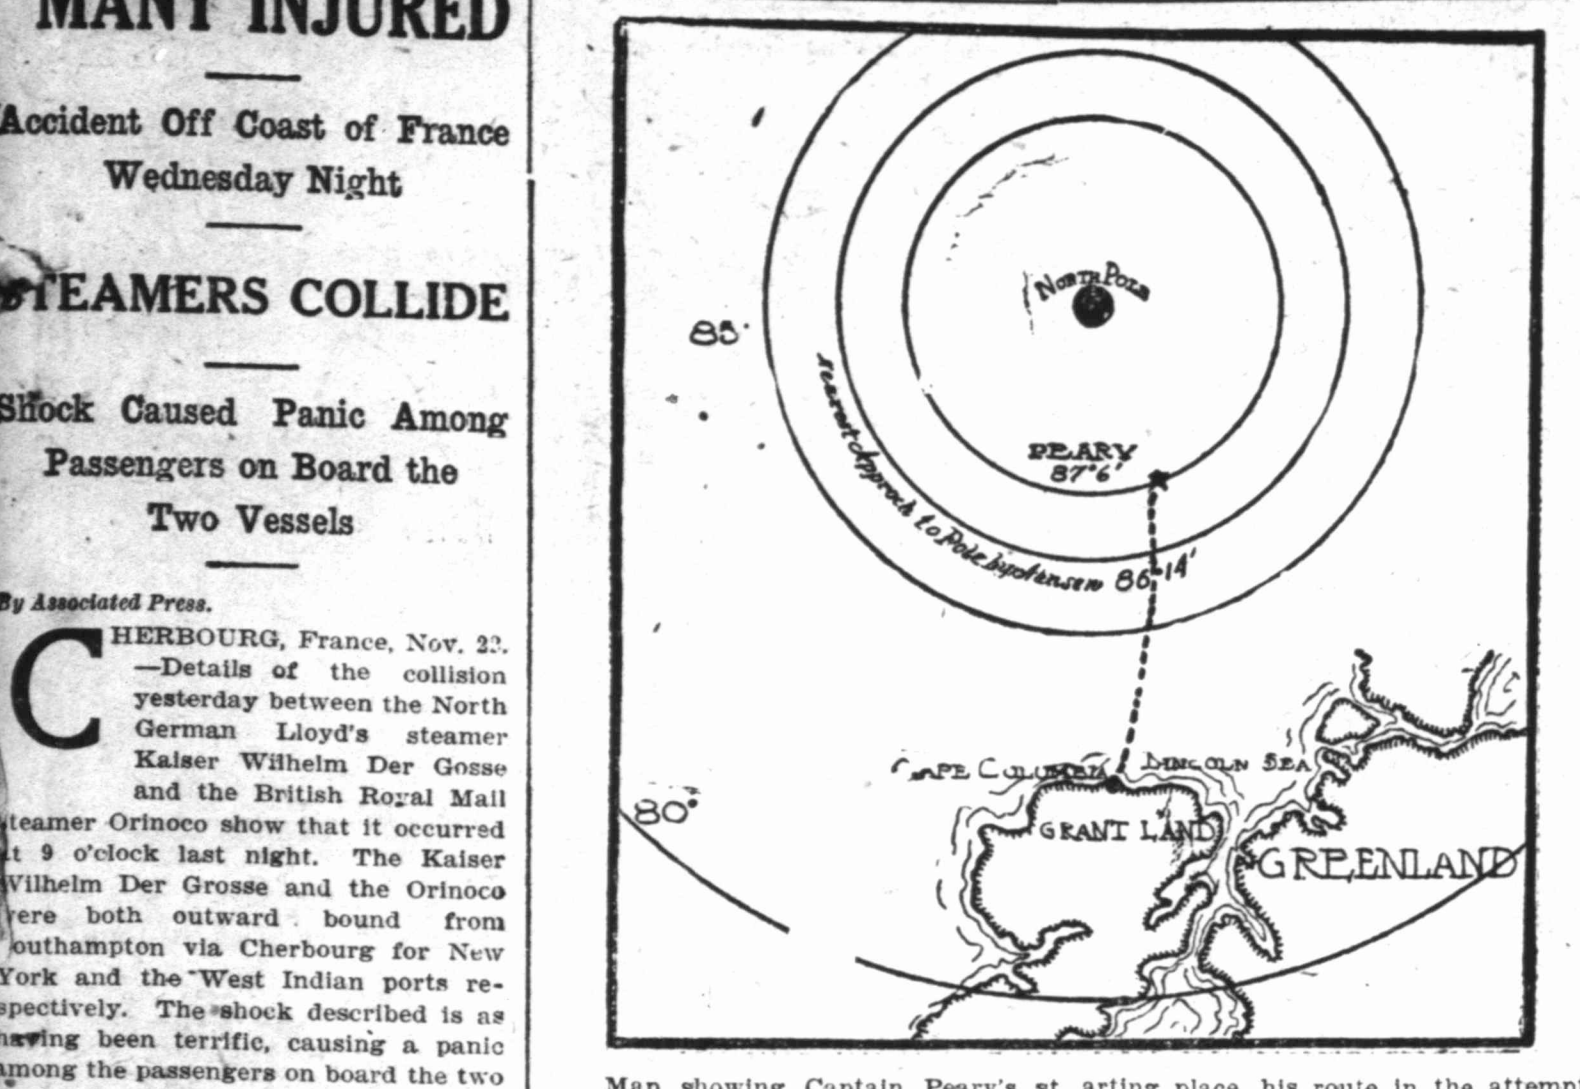

The Kaiser Wilhelm Der Grosse was struck by the Orinoco when it was abreast of the Kaiser Wilhelm Der Grosse, making a breach twelve feet wide.

By Associated Press. NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—Development in court yesterday make it almost certain that Harry K. Thaw will not be tried for the shooting of Stanford White on Dec. 3, the day recently fixed.

On the motion of District Attorney Jerome yesterday the case was sent to the supreme court by Justice Greenbaum who is sitting in the criminal branch.

The change of program came after the result of opposition of Clifford W. Hartridge of counsel for Thaw, to the district attorney's application for a special panel of 150 takersmen from which to select the jury.

CARUSO APPEARED IN JUSTICE COURT

Police Department Determined to Convict Tenor By Associated Press. NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—Enrico Caruso, the tenor, who is charged with annoying a woman in the monkey house in Central park, will appear again in court at 2 o'clock today.

The case has now developed into a fight between the police department who is upholding the action of Police-man Cain in arresting the tenor, and Caruso and his friends.

Caruso stood perspiring for nearly three hours in the stuffy police court yesterday while a crowd of nearly 500 curious people thronged the place to listen to the testimony.

Caruso took the stand in his own defense and entered vigorous denial of the charges. His examination was not concluded when an adjournment was taken at 10 o'clock.

PRYOR AT CONGRESS

Shaw, Bryan and Bancroft Are Special Features FORT WORTH MAN Thursday One of Most Important Days on Entire Program of Congress

By Associated Press. ANSAS CITY, Nov. 22.—At the trans-Mississippi commercial congress today the special drawing cards were Leslie M. Shaw, secretary, treasurer, Isham Bancroft, consulting engineer of the sanitary canal committee, and William J. Bryan, who were on the program for speeches.

Secretary Shaw spoke at the afternoon session on "American Finance," and Mr. Bryan in the evening on "The Development of the Trans-Mississippi Region Along Commercial Lines."

There were addresses by John H. Stevens of Vernon, Texas, on "Irrigation in Texas," by Victor C. Alderson, president of the Colorado association of mines, on "Department of Mines," and by Ike T. Pryor of Texas, president of the Southwest Cattle Raisers' Association on "Livestock Interests."

Colonel Pryor spoke as follows: The live stock producers of this country feel and believe that those who represent the manufacturing district have had, and hold the reins of government, and have dominated and controlled both branches of the national congress for a number of years.

Until within a very few years the live stock interests of this country had no organization for the purpose of securing beneficial legislation, and such organization as they had was for the sole purpose of protecting the stock from depredations of kind.

A few years ago, however, the various live stock organizations in the great west were united in the realization of the fact that it was necessary for them to let congress know their wants in order to secure their equitable share of the national protection, and I say to you in all sincerity and candor, if congress does not come to the relief of the live stock interests of this country, to the extent that producers of all classes of live stock and the manufacturers of the product of the live stock industry, exclusive of with foreign markets, on, at least an equitable and fair basis with other countries, I assert, if they do not do this, give us such relief, then indeed the live stock interests will continue to be less profitable each succeeding year, and will be gradually being driven out of the business and compelling them to seek other vocations.

Figures on Cattle I will give you a few figures and in order not to burden you I select cattle as a fair example, and reasonable test or proof of what I wish to illustrate. In 1890 in this country there were 7,010,000 cattle, exclusive of milch stock, with an assessed value of $24.97 per head, and a total value of $173,455,250. In 1905 there were 47,067,658 cattle with an average value of $15.85. A shrinkage in value of $9.12 per head in six years, or $459,000,000, and when you compare the breeding of the cattle of five or six years ago with the present high standard of raising they secure in price or value becomes more astounding.

The number and value of export cattle from 1901 to 1905 are as follows: 1901, 458,215 cattle of an average value of $81.81; 1902, 567,806 cattle of an average value of $81.81.

CEASE EFFORTS FOR AN APPEAL

Lawyers May Ask Commutation of Sentence By Associated Press. NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—It was stated yesterday that the friends of Albert T. Patrick, the lawyer convicted of the murder of William Marsh Rice, have decided to desist in their efforts to bring the case before the supreme court of the United States.

None of the lawyers who have acted for Patrick in his various proceedings would say anything yesterday about the new move. Mr. Kalish of Lindsay, Kalish & Palmer, who have been preparing Patrick's appeal, said: "We have been preparing the appeal right along and have been in conference with the district attorneys' office daily. That is all I care to say about it. It was said that Patrick and his friends feel that he has a good chance of getting a commutation of sentence from Governor Higgins."

THE EXCURSION IS NOW ASSURED

Thirty-four Local Firms Have Agreed to Attend

A trades excursion is now practically assured, as the total number of firms who have stated they will send a representative along with the excursion has now reached thirty-four. A committee composed of Paul Waples, Ben C. Smith, B. B. Paddock, George C. Mountcastle and Louis Wortham, secured twelve additional names for the list within an hour and a half Thursday morning.

A start was made by the committee about 10:30 o'clock and by noon the additional names had been added. As fifty is the lowest number that can be taken, it is expected that this will be reached by the committee in the additional canvass which will be made Friday morning.

WILL RUN BOOTHS

Free Concessions to Churches at the Carnival
Many of the church organizations are arranging to erect eating booths at convenient places on the streets during the celebration. The fact that the Commercial Club will grant concessions to no other persons or organizations, and allow only the church or kindergarten association to conduct eating stands, advances the financial success of each booth. No charge is to be made for these concessions.

Several of the church committees have selected locations and the work of erecting the booths will begin at once. It is the desire of the Commercial Club that all the churches take advantage of the opportunity, since the question of providing subsistence for the crowds that are expected to be on hand daily will be one of serious moment. Plenty of good things to eat at reasonable prices will add much toward keeping the crowd jolly and good natured, and ultimately to the success of the entertainment.

NEGRO QUICKLY HUNG AT CENTER

Dick Garrett Pleads Guilty and Accepts Death Sentence

Special to The Telegram.
CENTER, Texas, Nov. 22.—Tried, convicted, sentenced and hung, all in one process of law, in less than four hours. This was the record of the district court of Shelby county Wednesday in which Dick Garrett, murderer of Dr. M. M. Paul, was meted out the ends of law.

"It's got to be done, and I want it done right now, as my people can see me to Penaha and bury me and let back before night."

That is what Dick Garrett said when Judge S. M. Davis told him the sentence of law could not be executed within thirty days from the time of conviction unless he voluntarily and of his own free will and accord waived his rights. Regardless of the continued clamor of friends, he persisted with perfect calmness in having the sentence executed.

It was about 9:30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon when court was called, the military companies from Beaumont and Timpson, besides a large force of deputies, having guarded the negro in the court house all night. People from all the surrounding country had gathered in and congregated around the court house at an early hour in the morning, but no one but the military, the officers and bar and the relatives of the deceased were permitted to enter the court house and hear any part of the trial.

It was 1:27 o'clock when the spring

CLASH WITH THE PRESIDENT

The papers are having a great deal to say concerning what a number of them are terming a clash between the President and Secretary Taft, as to the dismissal of the negro troops which participated in the recent riot and murder at Brownsville. According to the view quite generally expressed the action of the secretary of war in suspending an order of the President for the summary dishonorable discharge of the negroes, will certainly result in such friction as will cause the retirement of Secretary Taft from the war department. And while that may be the net result of the situation, the Telegram is rather inclined to think there is some smooth politics being worked in connection with this affair.

There is not a smoother politician in all these United States than Theodore Roosevelt, President of the United States and commander-in-chief of the army. The outrages perpetrated by these negroes at Brownsville were so flagrant that the President was compelled to take cognizance of the situation, and the deeper he got into an investigation of the trouble the more heinous the acts of the negro troops appeared. He gave the negroes an opportunity to purge themselves by delivering up the ones who had actively participated in the outrages, but accompanied the extension of the opportunity by assuring them of discharge if they did not surrender the guilty ones. This the negroes refused to do, and the President was compelled to make good his official threat, which was done just on the eve of his departure for Panama.

But the order of the President did not find favor with a certain class in the North and East. The outrages complained of were committed in the South, and the other fellow's ox was not gored. Indignation meetings have been held, and in Secretary Taft's own state of Ohio, a demand has been made that the order be rescinded and congress remove the authority which enables the President to make such an order. Mistaken ministers and others have rushed into print with a demand that this great injustice be not done the negro troops—and we all know the ability of the President to hedge. He has given us repeated evidence of his striking ability in this direction, and the close observer of current events must be strongly impressed with the idea that again the nation's chief executive is going through the ordinary process of hedging.

Secretary Taft has issued an order suspending the President's order for the time being, and this was done in order to give the country time to get its breath and prepare for the next act in the Ethiopian farce that is now holding the national boards. Of course, the President is going to be very indignant over the action taken by Taft and insist his original order must stand. Then there is going to be the development of new evidence which warrants the abrogation of the order, and the negro troopers are going to escape the punishment their nefarious conduct so richly merited.

There is no question concerning the guilt of these negroes. There is proof enough against them to send all who participated in the murder at Brownsville to the gallows. But the military authorities have shown every disposition to shield these murderers since their crime was committed, and has placed every obstacle possible in the way of the civil authorities. If it is intended to shield and finally exculpate these men it is setting a precedent that will not be without its reward in Texas in the future. The next time such a dastardly outrage is perpetrated in this state an outraged people will take the enforcement of the law into their own hands and make short work of applying the principles of justice.

Public sentiment in Texas is not in favor of Lynch law. While there are occasions when outraged Texas manhood has repeatedly asserted itself the general sentiment in this state is to always permit the law to take its course. But when the course of the law and those in authority is so directly in contravention of the principles of justice there is a strong incentive for the people to take the matter of enforcing the law into their own hands. This is the condition that breeds lawlessness and disorder, and that serves to bring the good name of the state into disrepute abroad. But Texas people are only human, and it is but reasonable to suppose that if these men are whitewashed and turned loose without any semblance of punishment the time will come when a determined effort will be made to right what is believed to be a great wrong. It is to be hoped the original order of the President will be permitted to stand.

HOW TO BUILD A COTTON MILL

Those two big cotton mills promised for Fort Worth are remarkably slow in materializing. Beyond the assurance given out some time ago that both mills would be built, there seems to be absolutely nothing doing. And while Fort Worth is sitting back waiting for something tangible to develop the smaller cities and towns of Texas are going ahead with the great work of building cotton mills. The Dublin Telephone tells how it is being done in the following:

It is a mighty busy man these days who is not willing to spare time for private affairs to do some work for Dublin, and it warms the heart of the progressive citizen who has worked for years for the advancement of the town, often under the most discouraging circumstances, to see the unanimity with which the business men have now gotten into harness and are pulling together. We have known commercial clubs to come forth ated Thursday night, only to die a horrible death. We have known of calls being issued, handbills distributed and personal house-to-house canvasses made in an endeavor to call the business men together for the purpose of discussing some matter of civic importance, only to result in the assembling of the newspaper men and one or two other citizens of great ambitions and exalted aspirations but exceedingly small means. We have known the representatives of great enterprises coming here to seek a location to be forced to walk the streets like a blind beggar, unnoticed and unattended.

But all this is a thing of the past. And many with any sort of a proposition can now have an attentive and impartial hearing. The business men are wide awake and are determined that no good thing worth striving for shall slip by unnoticed. It is no trouble now to get together on the shortest notice. A twist of the telephone bell, a hint as to the object and place of the meeting, and in a few minutes the wealth and business acumen of the city will be assembled and ready to hear any proposition that may be presented.

This was demonstrated Thursday evening, when in the course of fifteen minutes thirty or forty of the leading business men were gotten together to meet Mr. Leslie C. White, a large stockholder of the Bonham cotton mill, and hear his statements as to the feasibility of such an enterprise as a business venture. There were no speeches—merely questions and answers—but these were so comprehensive and so detailed so complete in their scope, that the meeting was ended there was not a doubting Thomas left, even if there had been before. In some respects it was the most successful business meeting ever held in Dublin. The information received was such as to leave no doubt in the mind of any one that a cotton mill, properly managed, is a paying investment, both for the stockholders and the city at large. It has paid at Bonham, and there is no question in the mind of anyone that if the Dublin business men take hold of it a cotton mill will be equally successful here. In four years the Bonham mill has increased its capital stock from $150,000 to $225,000, nearly doubling its capacity, and is now paying 8 per cent dividend on its present capitalization, which is equal to 10 per cent on the original investment. By mutual agreement of the stockholders, the dividend has been limited to 8 per cent, all earnings over and above the amount to go into the surplus fund for operating expenses and improvements. Mr. White says that before the mill was built they had what was known as South Bonham, a notoriously poverty-stricken district, which he described as a "South Bonham" in the sense formerly understood, the residents of that portion of the city no longer being forced to accept charity, many of them owning nice comfortable homes which they have built with their mill earnings. Both city and farm property has advanced in price, and the population of the city has increased at least 1,000 as a direct result of the mill. In addition to this, it was the indirect cause of a new railroad, which was built from Bonham to Denison, a distance of twenty-eight miles, by local capital.

The history of Texas cotton mills has been one of almost unbroken success, and what has been done at Bonham, Waxahachie, Weatherford, Denison, Itasca, Sherman and other cities will soon be repeated at Dublin.

YOUNG TEXAS CATTLE SELL WELL

The auction sale of young Texas cattle held at Decatur, Ill., a few days ago by J. G. Imboden, consisting principally of yearling steers, with a liberal mixture of heifer and steer calves, was a big success, and the avidity with which the offerings were snapped up goes to prove that the idea of young Texas range bred stuff for the corn belt is still a winning one. There were 1,673 head of cattle included in the sale, the bulk of the lot being from the ranch of J. Boog-Scott, of Coleman county, but there was also representation from Charles Stephens' herd, and the famous Hashknife ranch, located in Baylor county. The entire offering sold quickly, the 1,673 head bringing a total of $29,936, or an average of $18.07 around. Buyers were present from Illinois, Kentucky, Maryland and other states, and the prices realized are considered quite satisfactory. At the opening of the sale Mr. Imboden brought out a bunch of the Boog-Scott long yearlings, which he had been feeding since last winter, giving an explanation of his methods in handling them and clearly demonstrating that the young Texas stuff could be expected to do with intelligent and proper handling. Part of this bunch will be shown at the International show at Chicago next month, and are sure to attract great attention. There is no question but the demonstration given of what could be expected of the cattle had a very stimulative effect upon the buying, as the entire lot was closed out in less than two hours time. Gradually the corn belt feeders are learning that this Texas range bred stuff is the very best material they can find for filling their feed lots, and the demand is steadily increasing. Men who have had experience in feeding and handling these cattle come out into the range country and select the very best material they can find. This is shipped to some central and convenient point in the corn belt and the cattle advertised to be sold at auction. Feeders take advantage of the opportunity to buy the best that is produced on the Texas ranges right at their very doors, and their willingness to pay good prices has always caused these sales to average well. Texas producers feel greatly encouraged over the situation, and believe this feeder trade is yet in its infancy and is capable of very high development. It provides an outlet for the surplus stuff at figures which, in the judgment of many producers, are better than holding the stuff until it attains greater maturity. It is a field that appears to be full of promise for the future.

NEW CATTLE DIP FOUND

The matter of dealing with the fever tick is a proposition that has given the state and federal authorities a great deal of trouble ever since the discovery was made that the tick was the cause of fever among cattle. And while various methods of immediately getting rid of the tick have been adopted, principally of a dipping nature, none of the dips adopted have ever given the proper satisfaction.

After the discovery of oil at Beaumont, it was found that a certain preparation carrying a certain per cent of crude Beaumont oil, could be depended upon to kill the ticks carried by the animals, but the effect of this dip upon the cattle varied. In many instances it was so drastic as to kill both the ticks and the cattle.

While the state and federal governments have adopted the Beaumont oil dip as the standard and prescribe it as the proper method of cleaning the cattle, it has been realized that the remedy had its objections, and there have been continued experiments in an effort to discover something that would do the work and reduce the danger of losses to a minimum. According to a report that comes from Quanah, where some of these experiments have been in progress, an arsenical dip has been discovered that is just as effective as the Beaumont dip, so far as killing the ticks is concerned, and without any apparent injury to the cattle.

During the month of September more than 5,000 head of cattle were dipped in this arsenical solution, and in 117 hours every tick they carried was dead. According to those who conducted the experiment no bad effects were noticeable in the cattle, and while not yet ready to give the new dip an unqualified approval, the government authorities believe a very important discovery has been made.

The chairman of the Oklahoma constitutional convention is a former Texas Democrat, and was one of the late Governor Hogg's most trusted lieutenants. It is evident from this that Oklahoma has fallen into good hands when it chose to be dominated by the Democracy.

The Democracy is in the saddle in the new state of Oklahoma, and some very hungry members of the party are going to enjoy some elegant slices of pie. The Republicans are doing their level best to look pleasant, however.

North Fort Worth is preparing to fittingly celebrate her fourth birthday, and Rosen Heights is preparing to incorporate. The spirit of progress is hovering over everything in the vicinity of Fort Worth.

The original Terrell election bill and which should have been the election law is all right. The amendments tacked onto the bill before it was passed and approved are, nearly all of them, intended to render the election law objectionable.—Tyler Courier

The best thing the next state legislature can do is to wipe out the entire Terrell election law and pass a new measure, simple and effective, for the proper safeguarding of the ballot.

Many Southern hearts will sympathize with the older negroes in the disgraced companies, just discharged from the army. A negro born in slavery is incapable of such a crime as that at Brownsville, or of harboring the guilty. It is the younger generation that is bringing disgrace and ruin on the negro race, and the older ones must suffer for it, but they have the sympathy of all right-thinking whites in the South.—Corpus Christi Caller

It is a very rare occurrence for one of the old-time Southern negroes to get into any kind of trouble. They know their place in life and manage to keep it. The younger generation is the one that is bringing so much trouble upon the race.

If the American girls will only keep well posted in the progress of the divorce proceedings against Count Ben Castellane by his wife, formerly Miss Gould, the probabilities are that they won't fly as many titles now to catch foreign titles as has unfortunately been the custom with too many of our girls in the past.—Laredo Times

American girls have an object lesson in the experience of Anna Gould and others who imagined that happiness was to be found in the possession of a foreign title. It has been a hard experience, but it ought to be worth much in the future.

At an early stage in his political career Mr. William Jennings Bryan served law as all right. His most notable achievement was a long and elaborate speech in favor of free trade. The President's recently reported plans in favor of tariff revision would seem to indicate that in this respect, Mr. Bryan, in common with many leading Democrats, anticipated the Republican party.—Houston Chronicle

It is no trouble to anticipate the Republican party, in the matter of tariff revision, for it does not intend to revise the tariff. There is too much prosperity for the great manufacturing concerns of the country under the present system of protection to hope for anything else but talk of revising the tariff.

What the Denison cotton mill is doing for the Denison cotton market can be done by other mills for the cotton market of other towns. The cotton raised around these towns can better be manufactured right at home than to be shipped to New England or across the water to be manufactured and then returned to this country to be sold to the consumers.—Denison Herald

Texas cotton mills will eventually solve the market problem by enabling the producer to cut out the speculator and sell direct to the spinner, and when this is done it will save millions of dollars to the producers annually.

This country is suffering with such a plethora of trade that the arteries of commerce are about to break down with the congestion of traffic. We are likely to suffer with commercial apoplexy if the railroads do not lay in a bigger equipment and open up the congestion.—San Antonio Express

Railways of Texas are having a hard time of it in handling the immense traffic that has materialized all over the state, and claim they are doing the best they can under the circumstances. All the roads are buying new equipment.

W. H. Murray, president of the Oklahoma constitutional convention, is a native Texan. He was secretary of the car-shed convention at Houston in 1892 that nominated James Stephen Hogg. Texans are very much in evidence at Guthrie today and Texas ideas will prevail in the new constitution. Great is the Lone Star state.—Dallas Times-Herald

Texas have had a weather eye on the Oklahoma political leaves and fishes for a number of years, and when the final distribution takes place they will manage to score heavily, as usual.

THAT REMINDS ME

BOUND TO TELL At a dinner party the little son of the host and hostess was allowed to come down to dessert. Having had what his mother considered a sufficiency of fruit, he was told he must not have any more when, to the surprise of every one of the guests, he exclaimed: "If you don't give me some more, I'll tell!" A fresh supply was at once given him, and as soon as it was finished he repeated his threat. Whereupon he was suddenly and swiftly removed from the room, but he had just time to convulse the company by exclaiming: "My new trousers are made out of ma's old bedroom curtains."

MELINDA WENT

"One of the old governors of the Carolinas was a man who had lived a farmer's life most of the time until he was elected, and his wife, having never seen a steamboat or a railroad and having no wish to test either one, refused to accompany her husband to the capital. When the governor reached his destination he found that almost all the other officials were accompanied by their wives, and he sent an imperative message to his brother to "fetch Melinda along." The brother telegraphed: "She's afraid even to look at the engine." The governor read the message and pondered over it for a few moments. At the end of that time he sent off the following command: "Bill, you blindfold Melinda and back her on the train."

UP TO SNUFF

Willie Thompson, the office boy to a large firm of publishers, was a smart lad, and when, recently, he was sent to one of the operative departments with a message he noticed at once that something was wrong with the machinery. The circumstance was reported to the head of the firm, before whom Willie was summoned. "You have done me a great service, my lad," said the genial chief. "In future your wages will be increased by $1 weekly." "Thank you, sir," said the bright little fellow. "I will do my best to be worth it, and to be a good servant to you." The reply struck the chief almost as forcibly as the lad's previous service had done. "That's the right spirit, my boy," he said. "In all the years I have been in business no one has thanked me in that way. I will make the increase $2. Now, what do you say to that?" "Well, sir," said Willie, after a moment's hesitation, "would you mind if I said it again?"

ASTUTE YANKEE

A Massachusetts man tells a story of "Old John" Langley, a veteran Worcester horseman, and that is illustrative of Yankee astuteness. One day Langley sought his tailor and in somewhat profane terms demanded "a pair of breeches of the best stuff in the shop." Of the many samples submitted "Old John" hit upon a beautiful silky broadcloth, the most costly piece of goods the tailor had, and, altho this was most unsuitable for the purpose Langley insisted that it was just what he wanted. Furthermore, he declared that he desired it "made up wrong side out." The tailor expostulated in vain, but the trousers were made as per specifications, and delivered. A day or so thereafter a friend, calling on Langley, remarked on the trousers in uncomplimentary language. Langley said he was satisfied. More guying resulted in an offer from "Old John" to bet $50 that the cloth cost more per yard than that in his friend's trousers. The bet was taken and the tailor was to decide it. He named the price. The friend would not believe that the rough goods could be so costly until he was shown the shiny silky side. Then he paid, as other men had on similar bets, so that "Old John" reaped quite a harvest on his original idea.

THE PERFECTION OF GRAFT

"Graft in San Francisco!" exclaimed the Californian. "Say, you effete Easterners don't know anything about our graft. It permeates commercial as well as political life. Why, I'll bet that if the citizens undertake to hang the hoodlums they'd get stuck on the price of rope."—Philadelphia Ledger

THE DYING COWBOY

"Oh, bury me not on the lone prairie!" Those words came low, but mournfully, from the pallid lips of a youth who lay on his dying couch at the dawn of day. He wasted and pined till o'er his brow Death's shades were slowly gathering now He thought of home and the loved ones nigh As the cowboys gathered to see him die. "Oh, bury me not on the lone prairie! Where the wild coyotes will howl o'er me In a narrow grave just six by three— Oh, then bury me not on the lone prairie!" "I've always wished to be laid when I died In the churchyard there on the green hillside. By the side of my father, there let my grave be. Oh, then bury me not on the lone prairie!" "I wish to be laid in a mother's prayer, Where my sister's tears can mingle there, Where my friends can come and weep o'er me, Oh, then bury me not on the lone prairie!" "Oh, bury me not"—and his voice failed there, But they took no heed of his dying prayer; In a narrow grave, just six by three, They buried him on the lone prairie.

Where the dewdrops fall, and the butterfly's lit, And the wild rose blooms on the sparrow's crest, And the wild coyotes and the wind sport free, And they buried him there on the lone prairie. —ANON.

HOW CANNONBALL GREEN FAILED TO WIN RICHES

Special to The Telegram.
OKLAHOMA CITY, O. T., Nov. 22.—Had it not been for the invasion of the railroads in the southwest Cannonball Green would have been a millionaire today. As it is he is a Caddo county, O. T., farmer, who was recently appointed a school land appraiser by Governor Frantz, but he is also one of the most interesting as well as one of the most unique characters in the southwest.

In the early days—shortly after California began to boom—Green took the prize at the Sacramento fair as the best stage driver. There were many entries. The express companies came up with their fine teams and coaches, the railroad companies had entered their teams and drivers, too, and in connection with the various railway lines, and many an old-timer was there, too, with his overland coach, but Cannonball Green carried away the honors.

He was dressed as an old stager, had a bronco team and was covered with the red mountaineer's attire. The drivers had exhibited their best stunts with their teams Green cut a figure eight with a six-horse team around the judge stand in such a manner that make even old-timers hold their breath.

Green's biggest coup as a stage driver was the opening of old Oklahoma in 1889. The Rock Island Railroad then ran only as far south as Pond Creek, O. T., a station at that time in the Cherokee strip.

Proves His Cunning
The Rock Island made a contract with Green for transporting its passengers from the end of the line to the edge of old Oklahoma at $6 each. The day the excursion started the railway company wired Green that 600 passengers would be on the first train. It was seen then that the job was one of magnitude, but Green secured the country and employed every farmer who had a wagon or buggy and with these, together with his stage line, he carried out the contract.

Cannonball Green owned a stage line all the way from the end of the line, connecting with the Santa Fe, Colorado and Texas Panhandle. When the boom struck western Kansas there was a big demand for his stage lines. Garden City and Leoti were center him for a line connecting the towns and asked him to make a proposition.

"I'll come for six town lots in each town and $1,000 bonus," was his reply and the town took him up.

He made the first trip with great ostentation. The greatest speed ever attained in Garden City up to that time was made by Green, but in the center of the town a coach wheel caught a truck gardener's cart and scattered cabbages and everything else all over the street.

Wore Diamonds
An angry German, the owner of the cart, rushed out and demanded damages. Green was wearing plenty of diamonds. He waited until the crowd was sufficiently large and then inquired the amount of the damages. The Dutchman thought $25 would be about right. Cannonball Green took from his pocket a roll of $100 bills and he contemptuously peeled off a $100 note and flung it at the gardener. That made Green solid forever with his patrons.

The first stage run ever made by Green was from Helena, Mont., to Fort Benton, at the headquarters of the Missouri river. He later established his southwest system in 1872. The fixed schedule of the route was 100 miles a day, no more and no less. Once a driver came in two hours late. The driver told Green that there were no passengers and he thought he would let the horses take it easy. The driver was new and received a free lecture on the

He Who Chews Will Know
The Proof Is in the Chewing

The wholesome flavor and delightful, appetizing aroma of the tobacco grown in the famous Piedmont tobacco belt continues to create and popularize man's fondness for chewing tobacco. Lovers of real tobacco pass the good thing along—one chewer makes another chewer—until there are now many more chewers and more pounds of tobacco chewed, to the population, in those States where SCHNAPPS tobacco was first sold, than there are in the States where SCHNAPPS has not yet been offered to the trade.

Only choice selections of well matured, thoroughly cured tobaccos, grown in the famous Piedmont tobacco belt, are used in making SCHNAPPS.

That's why it has a better quality and more lasting flavor than the tobacco formerly sold to chewers at double the price they now pay for SCHNAPPS.

That's why a 10-cent plug of SCHNAPPS is more economical than a much larger plug of cheap tobacco.

That's why SCHNAPPS wins all classes of chewers: the rich, because they do not find a chew to really please them better at any price; the poor, because they get their money's worth of the real snappy chew and flavor not found in the highly sweetened mixtures. Neither the rich nor the poor wish to chew tobacco so intensely sweet that its true flavor and tooth-preserving quality are lost.

Look for the word "SCHNAPPS" on the tag, and on the plug under the tag and then you have it—the most wholesome tobacco produced, with just enough sweetening to preserve the quality and bring out the flavor—the real tobacco flavor that stimulates and satisfies.

Sold at 50c. per pound in 5c. cuts. Strictly 10c. and 15c. plugs.

RATTLESNAKE SAT FOR HIS PICTURE
Photographer Made Reptile Disprove Popular Fallacy

A rattlesnake may be taught to "sit" for his picture. He will not look pleasant, but that would not be a striking pose, and the photographer whose adventure is given here has secured a photograph of the snake in the very act of striking. How did he do it? Why he whipped him with a switch.

This seems almost incredible, but over a hundred people were spectators from a safe distance of the novel performance. The photographer was Ernest B. Gray of Monrovia, who was awarded a bronze medal by the St. Louis exposition for one of his pictures. The scene was well, for fear some timorous person might boycott the resort thru alarm—it is just as well not to tell it. The plates and prints have just been finished and have been set aside from the novelty of the sitting. It shows that a snake coiled in a figure eight is ready to strike. It shows when to beware of the diamond back.

The way Gray happened to get the snake was this: A newcomer at the camp in the mountains had established his tent on the banks of a pretty ravine, and went out on his front porch to enjoy the sunshine. He heard the rattlesnake rattle. It was the first in his life, but tremblingly he searched the landscape for its origin. He was paralyzed to get a glimpse of a rattlesnake coiled up on a rock about ten feet away. The man's alarm was misplaced. Mr. Rattler had come out on his own front porch, for under the rocks was his lair, and what he cared for was the sunshine.

Caught by the Rear
The man ran for Gray's tent. Gray's desire to get acquainted with snakes had been raised about, but this man wanted merely a run to get to him never to mind, and cut a forked stick, intending with this to invite his sitter. When they returned to the scene the snake had commenced to go home. He left his tail out. Gray grasped him by the rear and jerked him out, and six of the snake's rattles came off in his hand, but he had time to pick the stick over the back of the snake's head. The stick was of manzanita and the forks were four inches long and wedged the serpent's head to the ground.

The scared man had by this time recovered his courage and held the snake until Gray tied a rope around his writhing body, and the other end of the rope to a strong stick. He was then released and Gray jerked him into the tent and proceeded to his tent with his prisoner.

The snake was rattling like a country brass band. Altho his body was twenty inches in circumference, this snake was only slightly over four feet long. The noise of the capture had spread about the resort and over a hundred campers gathered on the side of the hill at a safe distance. It was a restless audience. They did not go out between acts. They reversed the custom. At every nervous movement of the snake they prepared for a stampede up the hill.

The photographer set up his camera, a 4x5, to cover a portion of the ground where he intended to pose the snake. All the while snake and man were eyeing each other. The wicked, beady eyes of the serpent were fixed upon his captor with a match that was unmitigable. The stick to which he was tied had been driven in the ground. But all preparations complete, Gray cut the string that bound the snake.

Exit audience! Screams and warnings. Then they all came back and shouted advice.

A Case of Staring
"It was almost a case of staring each other down," said Gray, when questioned of the incident. "My theory was that if he understood I was not afraid of him he would follow, and am not promoting any hypnotist theories, but I believe the snake succumbed to my will power as much as to the whip that he had in his mouth, and I should switch cut from the underbrush."

The snake did not attempt to crawl away. He seemed to know it was no use. He inched forward a few inches. Gray found that to switch the snake on the nose made him strike. He disapproved the theory that the snake can strike its length, and claims that a third of its length is the reach of any serpent of this kind.

The camera was set up eighteen inches away from the snake. And repeatedly he struck—and under provocation of the switch.

"He was trying to bite me, of course," says Gray. "And I can't say whether it is the snapshots or the time plates that took the best. But on some I ventured to give a little time as he lay in this figure eight with his head out."

Ice Water Souse
After fighting about twenty-five rounds with the snake, the photographer called for a tub of ice water. Two brave young men from the hillside audience volunteered for this service. Then he soured Mr. Snake and held him under the water until he was stiff with the cold. At first it was a task to keep him under. His head was submerged ten minutes, yet Gray is positive he held his breath.

When he was lifted out the fight was not yet out of him. He was enough himself to make frightful faces, which the camera has faithfully reproduced. When this semi-paralyzed condition was coiled by hand in the theoretical positions, with head in the center of coil. Popular fallacy presents the snake thus to the mind of the uninitiated, but Gray says that he has never seen a snake pose thus of his own accord. Then the snake was taken thus with just a little dead snake's value has been brought into camp, as "The Snake Family."

It would be poetic if this snake could have given his life for his services as sitter, but you can't give way to feelings of gratitude where this historic enemy of man is concerned, especially when all the women and children in camp know about him. Perhaps this snake would hereafter have run from the approach of any man, fearing a camera flash like any other celebrity. But Gray did best for him. He took example from the fate offered the man who was under torture for putting the face on "The Man Who Laughs."

If he confessed he would only be hanged. So this snake was given chloroform, so that he would not know when he was killed. He would not take it from a sponge—again holding his breath as under water. It was necessary to pour it into his mouth and pour it into him. When the body was absolutely inert two boys took him and skinned him, and his beautiful scaly coat was soaked for a day.

This is a snake story of snake stories, but the camera proves the truth.—Los Angeles Times.

Railroad Rumbblings

Cotton in Mixed Cars
A word of warning protest is issued against a practice which is growing up of forwarding cotton in what are called a "mixed car." As an example, a car comes to a compress with, say fifty bales of cotton, but under stress that car can hold say ten more bales of cotton. Suppose the first lot of cotton to be the accumulation of himself and ten bales are destined for a German port. The cotton arriving at a port, say Galveston, will not go to the Liverpool but to the steamship wharf. A remedy for that evil is to load the cotton for one port on one car as far as possible. The shipper might do better to have the cotton in ten additional ten bales are destined for a German port. The cotton arriving at a port, say Galveston, will not go to the Liverpool but to the steamship wharf.

Ship on Flat Cars

Under pressure the railroads have departed from the rule which has so long prevailed and returned to a practice, which was very common at one time until the cost for cotton burned and increased danger of fires was made so apparent that the railroads have regarded, and now it is no unusual thing to see cotton shipments on flats, or in cattle cars.
As a means of increasing the safety in transportation of cotton, a most inflammable freight at best, the railroads have, for a number of years past, been in the process of shipping cotton only in box cars and those with tightly closed doors, so the sparks from the engines and the heat of the cars in transit. Since this rule was deviated from the fires have grown out of all proportion and one result is a notification of insurance companies that the rates will be increased on exposed cotton, and that is taken to mean cotton delayed at station platforms or in open cars, or held on sidings in open cars.

ODESSA, Texas, Nov. 22.—A petition has been circulated for the purpose of presenting to Superintendent J. W. Ward of Big Springs to make some provision for water at the stock pens east of town. ## HERE'S A GOOD FARMER

Made $400 an Acre Off the Cane Crop

Special to The Telegram.
SAN ANTONIO, Texas, Nov. 22.—F. F. Collins, owner of the famous Collins gardens, near this city, made his first experiment this year in raising ribbon cane. Off one acre and one-half he sold $1,000 worth of cane. He still has three and one-half acres. He will turn this into molasses and says he will realize $1,000 more from this, making an average of $400 per acre off the cane crop. He also planted three acres in cotton and by farming it scientifically raised four bales of cotton. But for the boll weevil he says he would have raised six bales more.

THE WHOLE THING.

That's the Way a Tennessee Man Looked at Coffee The following letter is so interesting and contains so much good hard sense about the coffee question, we publish it for our readers: "I laughed at the idea that coffee injured me, notwithstanding the trembling hands, sallow, muddy complexion, the tired, listless feeling and aversion to mental or physical effort. Also the terrible moments in the night when my heart would palpitate so violently that it seemed each moment it would wear itself out and become as heavy as lead. "When I married, my coffee days came to an end—my good wife refused to serve it to me, placing Postum on the table instead. "This was done over my protest—I had had experience with Postum—a straw colored liquid with an insipid taste, but the cup she set before me did not so but, and in a way I even enjoyed it. But we had not then fully learned how to make Postum properly—by long boiling. "The results came. The old heaviness after meals no longer troubled me, the heart palpitation stopped. I found more enjoyment in out of doors exercise, and, best of all, I found myself at the office getting thru my work with an ease I had never known before. "Many persons have spoken to me about Postum in such a way as to leave no doubt that they do not know how to make it. You might as well set meat or vegetables on the back of the stove and let them steep, as to prepare Postum that way. "I say to such, boil it—boil it till it has a dark, rich color and then you will have a beverage that will win and hold you." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Read the famous little book, "The Road to Wellville," in packages. "There's a reason."

That's the Way a Tennessee Man Looked at Coffee The following letter is so interesting and contains so much good hard sense about the coffee question, we publish it for our readers: "I laughed at the idea that coffee injured me, notwithstanding the trembling hands, sallow, muddy complexion, the tired, listless feeling and aversion to mental or physical effort. Also the terrible moments in the night when my heart would palpitate so violently that it seemed each moment it would wear itself out and become as heavy as lead. "When I married, my coffee days came to an end—my good wife refused to serve it to me, placing Postum on the table instead. "This was done over my protest—I had had experience with Postum—a straw colored liquid with an insipid taste, but the cup she set before me did not so but, and in a way I even enjoyed it. But we had not then fully learned how to make Postum properly—by long boiling. "The results came. The old heaviness after meals no longer troubled me, the heart palpitation stopped. I found more enjoyment in out of doors exercise, and, best of all, I found myself at the office getting thru my work with an ease I had never known before. "Many persons have spoken to me about Postum in such a way as to leave no doubt that they do not know how to make it. You might as well set meat or vegetables on the back of the stove and let them steep, as to prepare Postum that way. "I say to such, boil it—boil it till it has a dark, rich color and then you will have a beverage that will win and hold you." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. The Paddock-Harrison Wedding The Broadway Baptist church was filled Wednesday evening with friends of Miss Mary Harrison and W. B. Paddock, their marriage being one of the events of the season in which society has been greatly interested. The bride is the elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Paddock and is beloved by a large circle of friends. Mr. Paddock is a prominent member of the Fort Worth bar, and has won success and distinction in his profession. He is from saying he is the son of Captain and Mrs. B. B. Paddock, and therefore doubly the recipient of public favor.

The church decorations were confined to the platform, the space from the platform steps to the ceiling being filled with a screen of palms, ferns and ivy, with a huge cluster of white chrysanthemums. Behind this screen of green were the musicians, William J. Marsh, organist; Miss Center, violinist, and a male quartet including Messrs. Estess, Vance, Taylor and Hubbard.

Before the ceremony the organ and violin gave a pre-nuptial melody, and for the entrance of the bride and groom the quartet sang the wedding march from Lohengrin. During the ceremony the Trauerrie was given as a duet by organ and violin.

The ushers, Thomas W. Ridgway, C. A. Myers, Marshall Spoons and E. K. Collett, acted as escorts for the bridesmaids, Misses Cora, Mary Cartwright, Lella Labatt and Bernice Brown.

The bridesmaids' gowns were of white tulle, made after the simplest design, and each carried a bouquet of yellow chrysanthemums resting upon elaborate bodice trimmings of lace. Always companions were the culture adornments.

The interior arrangements of the church made possible the bridal procession quite out of the ordinary. From either side of the pulpit platform the bridesmaids entered the church, facing the spectators. At the rear of the church they met the ushers, and the procession, two bridesmaids followed by two ushers, alternating, passed down the center aisle to where the minister, Rev. D. Knickerbocker, awaited them. The matrons of honor, Mrs. Robert Hollingsworth and Mrs. Card G. Elliott, came in one behind the other, and the bride followed by her father.

The wedding gown was a princess trained radium with a hand-run veil of Brussels net, the veil fastened with a row of pearls, while the hair was formed the bridal bouquet.

Mr. Paddock was accompanied by his brother, Wirt Paddock, as his best man.

The bride and bridesroom were followed by Mrs. Pollock, Mrs. Elliott and Wirt Paddock, followed by Mrs. W. B. Paddock, Miss Brown and Thomas W. Ridgway, Miss Cartwright and C. A. Myers, Miss Labatt and E. K. Collett.

After the ceremony there was an informal reception, attended by the wedding party and a number of intimate friends.

Struppier who assembled at the home of Mrs. Josephine Ryan, to witness the ceremony and to extend sincere wishes for happiness.

A bouquet of yellow chrysanthemums was prepared in the parlor for the ceremony but flowers were used everywhere in greatest profusion. The mantels of the parlor were draped in yellow and vases large and small were filled.

In the hall autumn leaves and red chrysanthemums gave a cheerful and festive touch to the dining room white murals were favored.

Rev. Father Parks officiated, the bridesmaid was Miss Josephine French and the best man was Will Q. Bateman Jr.

Before the ceremony Mrs. Charles Wallace Lewis sang "All For You," with Miss Maudlin Feigl, a four-act comedy-drama, which scored a big hit at the Savoy theater, New York, will be presented at Greenwald's opera house Friday night, Nov. 23.
