Sergeants Will Carry Petition to Washington

CHARGE PREJUDICE

Declare Only Three Men Were Absent From Companies the Night of Riot

By Associated Press.

EL RENO, Okla., Nov. 27.—Christ Stewart, colored, who has been at Fort Reno the past few days, securing data to be placed as evidence by President Roosevelt in the matter of the discharged negro soldiers of the Twenty-fifth infantry, said last night: "The substance of my investigation is supported by over one hundred affidavits, from the members and non-commissioned officers of the companies, and from the statements of officers of the companies, and amounts to this: "First, that the colored men did not want the negro soldiers in Brownsville, Texas; second, this feeling became so intense on the very night in question that Major Penrose issued an order and sent out patrols thru the town that all men should be by 8 o'clock, whether on pass or not, and Capt. Mackin, officer of day, reported, "Men in excess of three, on a pass, and the first patrol that went out to check whether or not they were in town. They never made any investigation as to real facts. From the investigation there undoubtedly was a conspiracy to make a case against the soldiers and get them out of town. "Six sergeants of long service, and in whom the commissioned officers have implicit confidence, are going to Washington with me to act as witnesses before President Roosevelt."

Special to The Telegram. EL RENO, Okla., Nov. 27.—The non-commissioned officers of the companies B, C and D of the Twenty-fifth United States Infantry, have been mustered out of the army. Last night Major Clark and a battalion of the Twenty-sixth Infantry left for Texas. In the final act the officers at Fort Reno seemed more affected than the men. Major Penrose expressed warm interest in the men's department and had a conference with them. These three companies will go to Washington and be present when the appeal in their behalf is made to the President.

MAY CAUSE CHANGE IN CHURCH FAITH

Dr. Crapsey Returns From the Priesthood Penitents

By Associated Press. NEW YORK, Nov. 27.—The Tribune today says indications are that the resignation of the Rev. Dr. Algernon E. Crapsey, Rochester after his conviction of heresy by an ecclesiastical court will set in motion an effort within the Episcopal church to broaden and liberalize its tenets. George Foster Peabody is quoted as saying that while no steps had been taken in that direction yet, a meeting of men who desired a more liberal church faith was likely to follow the sentence pronounced on Dr. Crapsey and its bearing on themselves and the general situation within the church. A Rochester, N. Y., special to the Tribune says that in a talk with Rev. Dr. Algernon E. Crapsey yesterday he developed that after thirty years' service in the Episcopal church and after having built up a church property valued at $150,000 he withdraws from the priesthood practically penitent and with not even a home to go to. His personal charities added to what he has given directly to his church have been many and large and have depleted his resources. Dr. Crapsey, it is stated, will now devote himself to disseminating his views on the platform and thru the medium of the press and reviews.

INDIANS NOT POOR ADVOCATES

Committee Impressed By Their Shrewd Arguments

Special to The Telegram. TULSA, I. T., Nov. 27.—If the demand thruout Indian Territory for the removal of restrictions were as well set forth to the senatorial committee at every place where investigations were conducted as in Tulsa it seems safe to predict the committee would recommend among other things the removal of all restrictions, except probably on homesteads of fullbloods. Some grangers, and they are not all white men, either, would not have restrictions lifted for a while at least in order to give them more of guardians than of poor unsuspecting lo, but to the credit of this part of the territory, this class of individuals is far in the minority.

The Indians as a rule want the restrictions removed, and thru their spokesmen to the committee so while it was here Friday. They are not proud to be classed and treated as wards, when their white brethren, many of whom are more in need of guardians than the Indians, are not thus held down. Nominally they are citizens, but without the rights which citizenship entails. Chief Legus Perryman of the Creek nation, Sam Brown, a Cheche, and Dr. J. H. Jones, a Broken Arrow, for years delegate from the Creek nation to Washington, were the chief Indian advocates here for the removal of restrictions. They were with the committee when he said as long as the fullblood is treated as a government ward and has everything carried on in his name, so to speak, he will not work. The only way to make anything out of the fullblood, Mr. Hodge went on to say, is to throw him upon his own resources. The story has appeared in many papers that the Indian has been a poor advocate of his own rights, when given an opportunity to speak before the committee, either sulked or made such a poor presentation of his cause, that he was not worth listening to. Senator Long while here denied this report. He said the Indians of course asked for many unreasonable things, but showed themselves surprisingly shrewd in many respects and apparently are capable of protecting themselves in the battle of life.

Famous Thoroughfare Too Small For Traffic Needs

A conference yesterday important plans for temporary and permanent relief were discussed. Longer trains and increased decking will probably will bring temporary relief. Plans for permanent relief include an almost entire rebuilding of the bridge. Doubling decking will probably be resorted to in order to make room for additional lines of railroad tracks. The engineers have informed the mayor that the present structure is only a third of their capacity and that the double-decking of the structure is entirely feasible. This form of relief, however, will be a matter of years.

JEW DENOUNCED CHICAGO POLICE

Meeting Held in Jewish Ghetto Last Night

By Associated Press. CHICAGO, Nov. 27.—Denouncing the Chicago police as bullies and tyrants and Chicago justice as ridiculous, the recently formed Hebrew Protective Association announced last night its determination to abandon direct appeal to the police department in case of Jew baiting and conduct an independent campaign for the correction of the alleged evils. This decision was made at a meeting of the organization in a hall in the Jewish ghetto last night. Nearly a quarter of the audience was made up of alleged victims of rowdianism. Some had their heads swathed in bandages. Others limped or carried crutches, and were unable to stay their cases before the organization and obtain its aid. And to this end every one talked at once until the meeting broke up in disorder from sheer excess of enthusiasm. The association is preparing to conduct a campaign almost wholly independent of the city authorities. A private detective force is to be formed, made up partly of amateurs and partially of men from detective agencies. A medical staff will be formed to care for victims of riots without charge and a legal department will collect evidence and conduct operations. To aid those who are unable to give the police satisfactory accounts of themselves and are detained for this reason, the city authorities, the association is to be known by a number and badge bearing this number and the telephone number of the association. No one believes that the United States wishes to discriminate against the Japanese."

TEXAS STUDENTS OFF FOR CHICAGO

Team from A. & M. College Will Enter Contests

Def. 1 at the International Live Stock Show held in Chicago is the day set apart for the students of the various agricultural colleges in the United States and Canada to judge the points and merits of live stock on exhibit at the show. As the competition is keen, each delegation from every state is selected for their relative efficiency from the bulk of their fellow students. This fact alone would tend to put each student upon his mettle, for the state of the college and college at a show such as the International is an honor to be coveted indeed. From the Agricultural and Mechanical College of Texas the following team has been selected this year to uphold the name of the college and of Texas: E. P. Van Zandt, J. E. Jones, A. C. Burns, W. W. White, J. C. Chambers and R. L. Hodges, the team being headed by the former, Professor Marshall of the college. "I came on ahead of the team," said E. P. Van Zandt, "so as to see my father and mother before going to the show. Professor Marshall and the rest of the team will come up Tuesday night and I will join them at the depot here, and we will all continue our journey together. Of course, we are all very hopeful that we will not do too badly. We have a good team to carry off several firsts and seconds, but no one can ever tell what may come over a man when the pinch comes and he is in the hands of the judges. To be done. There is one satisfaction, however, and that is that the other fellows are as nervous as we are, and again Texas will be in the nervous lot, anyway. We took second at Chicago last year on horses and on cattle. It is probable that we will probably as that of last year. We are going to do our best for the honor of our state and college, you may reply that the state of Texas has the poorest equipment for such a show as intended to be done by such colleges of any college of similar character in the United States. The state gives no means sufficient to provide proper herds of cattle, horses, sheep and hogs for the use of the college. The first portion of the letter was evidently in answer to some unkind criticism as to her elimination in the memoirs of Jefferson Davis of many notable men who had earned laurels in the Southern cause. This she explains by attributing to her publishers the demand that she confine herself exclusively to an account of the life of Jefferson Davis alone, and she states that her first copy of the memoirs, after submission to the publishers, had to be considerably expurgated on this account.

As to the disposal of the remains of President Davis, the general tenor of the letter by one who heard it read in this particular seemed to convey the opinion of the writer that Louisiana was not very pressing in its request, the admitting that the request had been made. As to Mississippi, the writer said that her request to Governor Lowry for an expression of opinion on the subject was met with the response that he "did not think that the body of Jefferson Davis was a fit subject for barter."

She also said that she could not afford to pay for guarding the tomb, which would have been necessary in an isolated location as the Mississippi cemetery. Richmond was persistent in its efforts to obtain the body and a committee of eight prominent men was appointed to confer with her.

The reason for her residence in the North, Mrs. Davis attributes to her ill-health and her poverty. The condition of her health unfitted her to bear the extreme heat of the summers in the South and her poverty made her unable to stand the expense of a change of residence during the year. The ready sale of her own and her daughter's little efforts in the North was another inducement. The best offer that she ever received in a Southern market for the production of her pen was $15 for an article of three columns by a Mississippi newspaper. The absence of press notices of her work was dwelt upon and the only notice she ever obtained from a Mississippi paper was one in a Greenwood edition, saying that she was old and too spiteful for such a work as she had attempted in the memoir.

Commenting on her daughter's death, she said that she had sacrificed her child's life in sending her to attend a reunion where she had taken a cold which afterward resulted in her death.

The letter is a bitter arraignment of many persons, and it would have been better for all interests if there had been no reference to it. The people of the South love and revere the memory of Jefferson Davis, and they also loved the noble woman who was the sharer of his joys and sorrows. There were incidents connected with Mrs. Davis' life after the death of her husband that were unpleasant for the people of the South, but they made no noise over the situation. If she preferred to after that time make her home in the North it was her privilege to do so, without giving out any disagreeable reasons that may have occasioned such action. Let the dead past bury its dead.

THE SUBTLETIES OF STEALING Pat Crowe, ex-bandit, bad man and kidnaper, has written a book, just off the press, in which he makes some unique statements. Crowe confesses to the commission of many crimes, particularly that of the kidnaping of Eddie Cudahy of Omaha, for which he received $25,000 in ransom money.

Speaking of his acquittal at Omaha he says of the verdict of the jury:

"The jurors did it for the same reason that led me to the kidnaping—A belief that the law of our land had ceased to be a thing of justice and right for all our people."

Crowe says he is no anarchist in making such a statement and explains his point of view as follows:

"The big fortunes that have been made in this country have been mostly made by men who have broken the law. Mr. Cudahy, for instance, has been called to Chicago on the charge that he and others of the notorious beef trust have been making illegal contracts which allowed them to make fabulous fortunes."

"I held Eddie Cudahy until the money was paid. Mr. Cudahy, in restraint of trade, held the people's money until the money was paid."

"If I had been found guilty I would have been sentenced for ten years or more. If Mr. Cudahy had been found guilty he would probably have got off with a fine."

Rather a startling parallel? Of course Pat Crowe is not justified in his crime—the jury seemed to think so—by the crime of another.

But the ex-bandit is arguing in the larger court of equity. His speech is that of the crude citizen who cannot understand the subtleties of a law that permits one man to steal a million and sends another man to prison for stealing $25,000. More than that—

He reveals the suspicion of the plain people respecting the unequal enforcement of the law and emphasizes the old truth.

If the law is to be respected it must be a "thing of justice to all the people."

A HUSKY FOUR-YEAR-OLD This is North Fort Worth's week to hilariously celebrate the advent of the period when she has reached the sedate and mature age of four years. And North Fort Worth is celebrating with the real Fort Worth spirit, in spite of the inclemency of the weather and determined effort on the part of Jupiter Pluvius to cast a damper upon the occasion.

And when you come to think about it, North Fort Worth has a celebration coming.

Four years ago the present prosperous and thriving little city was but a wide place in the public road, as some North Fort Worth orator has so fittingly expressed it, and there was nothing over there but the smiling face of a glorious opportunity.

Four years is but a modest span of time, but it has been sufficient for this young giant to spring forth full panoplied and equipped for the most glorious result. The packing houses opened the way and North Fort Worth did the rest with its pluck and enterprise.

The little hamlet of Marine has grown into a city of 10,000 earnest, progressive and prosperous people within the brief period of four years.

And there are few advantages Fort Worth can boast that cannot be soon located in her north side sister.

A fine public school building, excellent waterworks system, street car lines, packing houses, stock yards, great railway systems—all these and more North Fort Worth has, and the way the city is building is a genuine revelation. New houses are to be seen in every direction, new enterprises are continually being inaugurated and North Fort Worth is spreading herself in every possible direction.

And Fort Worth proper is deeply interested in all that pertains to the prosperity and development of North Fort Worth. It may be true that it is a separate and distinct municipality, but there could have been no North Fort Worth but for Fort Worth enterprise and determination. North Fort Worth is just as much an integral part of Fort Worth as if it nestled down within the city limits, and will play an important factor in the future growth and development of the Greater Fort Worth.

Let North Fort Worth celebrate and make glad the fourth anniversary of her bright and promising existence, and let all Fort Worth unite in making this anniversary celebration an honor to both cities.

There is much enjoyment to be experienced in North Fort Worth during the present carnival week. Let Fort Worth render North Fort Worth every possible assistance and rejoice with her and make exceedingly glad.

THE SHATTERED HOPE A few days ago fifty immigrants were killed in a wreck on the Baltimore & Ohio railroad. When you read the account you shuddered mentally. But did you stop to think of the shattered human hopes that went down with the wreck? Back of that wreck were the days and months of indecision over yonder in the Fatherland, the short dinners and small economies made necessary, the breaking of home ties, the high hopes of the future in the new land ever seas.

Back of that wreck were the longings of the dear ones over there, the small savings, the finding of passage money and the joy that waited with impatience the coming of father or mother or sister or sweetheart.

And all these hopes were ruined in a moment because some one blundered with the signals.

It is but another pathetic picture in the panorama of life unrolled each day by the daily press.

To those of us who stay and look on nearly all the endings of life seem full of pathos because of the hopes that break down in death.

Unfinished plans! Fortunate indeed is he who can round his life with full consummation.

Most men say: "I would not care to die if my estate were in shape, or if my children were educated or if my business were on a secure basis, or if my benevolent intentions were realized, etc.

And yet— There's another side to that we call a sad and sudden death. It is a fine thing to fall bravely fighting. It is good to die in the harness.

As that brave spirit, Robert Louis Stevenson—himself the best example of his saying—eloquently foams: "Does not life go down with better grace struggling to an end in sandy dunes?"

To us who remain the shattered hope; to him who goes at a single bound from one shore to another, the full fruition.

No death is untimely.

ABUSING THE BACHELORS Dr. Hirsch of Chicago is rather hard on the bachelor. In a recent address he said:

"The bachelor is a coward and a moral leper." As to the cowardice charge, there may be something in it. "None but the brave deserve the fair." And on this prima facie showing the bachelor is found to be greatly lacking in the virtue of moral bravery.

But as to being a moral leper—that's different. Because a bachelor refuses or neglects to be a benedict it does not follow necessarily that he is corrupt as to morals. It would be almost as logical to conclude that because a woman does not choose to marry she is a moral pervert.

The bachelor has enough to answer for. He is selfish. That is plain. He has every chance in the world to make some good woman happy and he makes the plea of avoidance. He loves himself too well. He deliberately and with malice aforethought chooses his solitary way.

The suggestion that the bachelor pay added taxes because of his refusal to bear his legitimate share of society's burdens is a good one. He should be heavily mulct for his delinquency.

But he ought not to be abused simply because he is a bachelor.

That there are too many of him is quite true. The census tells us that there are seven million unmarried men in this country.

The bachelor must be labored with. He cannot be turned from the error of his ways by calling him names. You may say of him that he is neglectful of his duty and he will not resent it.

But you cannot drive the stubborn brute.

DRIFT OF POLITICS

DEMOCRATS LOSE FOUR SENATORS

The Democrats will lose four seats of the senators retiring, being those of Patterson, of Colorado; Gearin, of Oregon, appointed to fill the unexpired term of John Hipple Mitchell; Dubois, of Idaho, and Clark, of Montana. Senator Morgan, of Alabama, has been selected by the vote of the Democrats in the primaries to succeed himself when the legislature meets. At the same time the legislature will re-elect Senator Pettus, whose term does not expire until 1909. The legislature meets only every four years, hence an election two years ahead. Governor Jeff Davis, of Arkansas, has been selected at the primaries to take Senator Berry's place, and ex-Governor Robert Taylor was chosen for another term, and Virginia has approved of Senator Martin. Foster, of Louisiana, and McLaurin, of Mississippi, have been actually elected for the terms ending in 1913. Kentucky has already elected Judge Paynter to succeed Senator Blackburn next March, and the recent elections indicated Governor Beckham as Senator McCrery's successor after March 3, 1909. The legislature will have its say in 1908, and Beckham's term as governor will expire December, 1907. Senator Bailey, of Texas, who got caught in a Standard Oil net and who it was declared had been paid a fee of $200,000 by the great trust, claims to have cleared his skirts of scandal. He declares that he will have about 10 votes out of 150 in the legislature for his return. Simmons, of North Carolina, will be re-elected. Tillman has no opposition for the senate. The new governor of South Carolina, M. F. Ansel, is opposed to him, but Tillman controls the legislature. The two senators from Oklahoma will no doubt be Democrats. They will probably be admitted after July 4, 1907.—Philadelphia Ledger.

MARYLAND IS GETTING GOOD

Maryland is trying to be good. Having gotten rid, in a measure, of the complicated ballot that disfranchised hundreds of voters and having abandoned its trick ballot, the citizens are horrified to hear the confession of Congressman-elect William H. Jackson, of the First district, that he openly bought his way to congress. Mr. Jackson is the Republican member of the famous Jackson family, others being Democrats. In a recent interview Congressman Jackson detailed how $1, $2 and even $10 had been paid for a single vote. In justification of his conduct the congressman declared that "unless voters were paid they would not come out." Not since the Baltimore fire have the people seemed so stirred. Ex-Governor Jackson, Democrat, declares he is ready to prosecute his brother if he bought his way to congress. Secretary Bonaparte says: "To jail with him." The Democrats propose to ask the house not to admit him, and to have a new election. The discussion of the subject has been most wholesome for Maryland. A corrupt practice act is sure to follow the revelations. It is about time for a change when such testimony as to vote buying in the First congress district as the following goes uncontradicted: "When the money ran out almost anything has been given to get the votes. Horses and cows have frequently been given to men in the district to vote, and an incident in Queen Anne county was told of a plane being given out of a parlor as a bribe to a man to vote. There have also been times when clothes off the clothes line, bags of flour and sets of harness have been dealt out in lieu of money." A ray of reason came to Mr. Jackson a few days ago, and he made a statement that took the sting out of his former story. He admitted that the expenses of election were enormous.

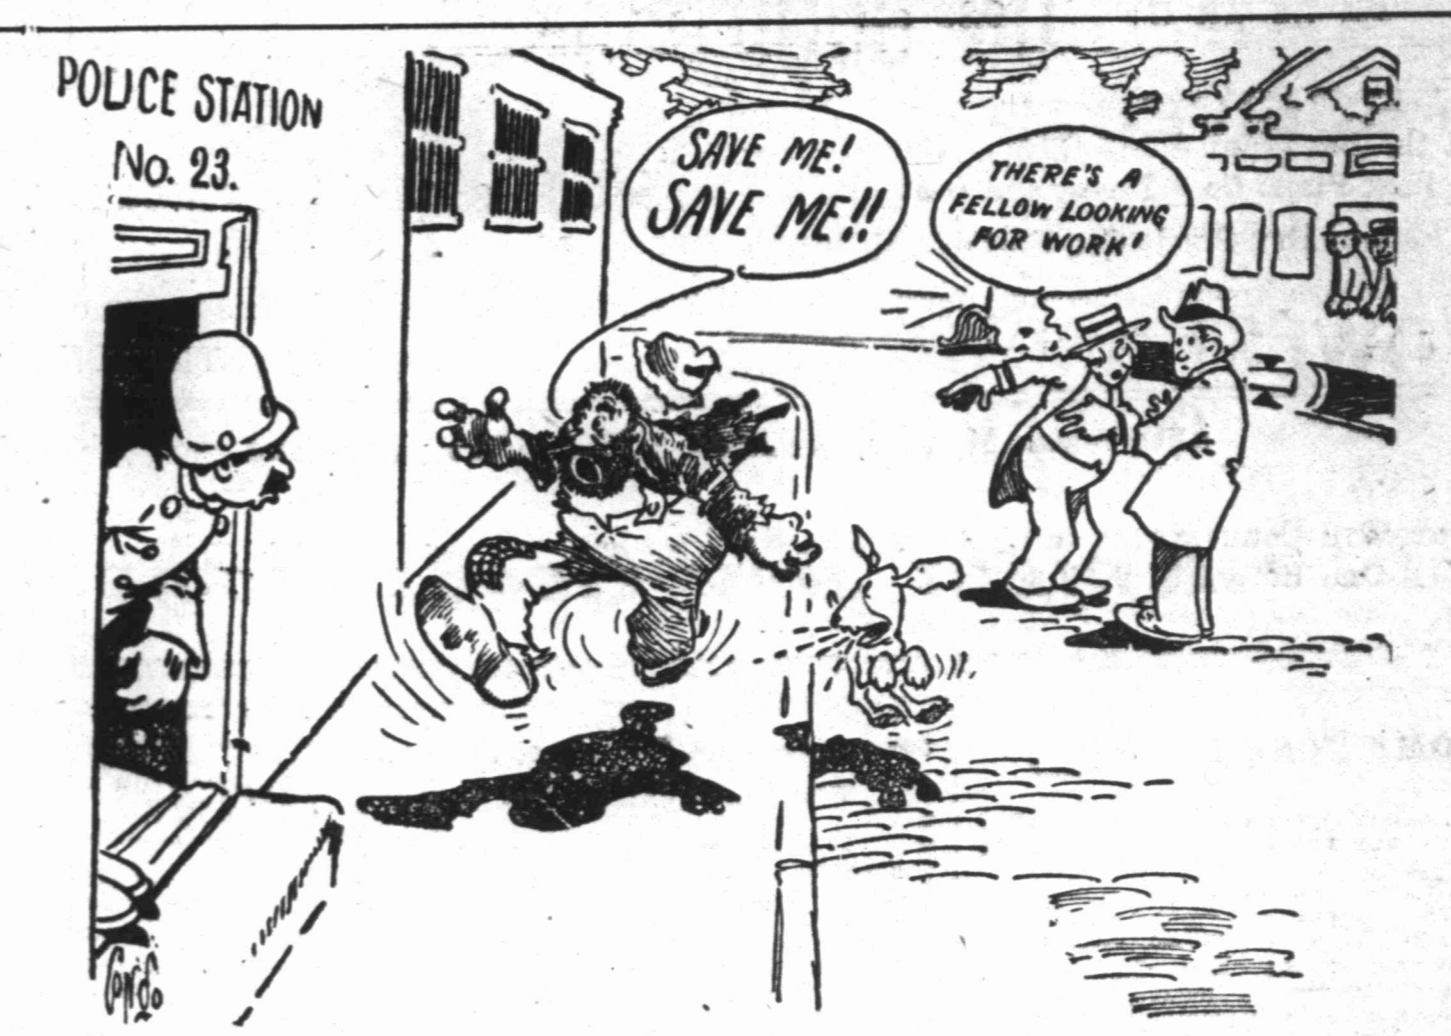

THE YOUNGEST SENATOR

This has been to a rather noticeable extent a young man's campaign, not only in the northern states, but in those that have been hitherto more politically conservative, among them Kentucky. The next senator from that state will be John Crepps Beckham, now governor, he having benefited by the new method of determining that question at the primaries. Circumstances have favored his rapid political rise. Among them were the assassination of William Goebel, whose place as governor he took; he was elected in 1900 and re-elected in 1903. He will be the youngest member of the senate, being now only 37 years of age. When he became governor he was thirty, or the same age as Governor-elect Higgins of Rhode Island. Everidge, Bailey and Burkett can no longer presume upon their youth when Beckham comes among them. There is just one year's difference between the first two. Both were born Oct. 6, Beveridge in 1862 and Bailey in 1863, but Beckham will be the only senator except Burkett of Nebraska who was born when the civil war ended. Kentucky seems to have a propensity to select young men to represent it in congress. According to the constitution of the United States a man is not eligible to membership in the senate unless he is at least 30 years of age, but Henry Clay served several months as a senator from Kentucky before he reached the age of thirty, taking his seat in that body on Dec. 29, 1806, though he did not reach the age of thirty till April 12, 1807. One respect in which Beckham's election seems in conflict with the traditions of the state comes in the fact that much of Beckham's strength has been due to the influence he has exerted in securing more restrictive liquor legislation and in enforcing the liquor laws, already on the statute books.—Boston Transcript.

THE TEXAS PRESS VERIFIED THAT RING

The demand is universal that imprisonment shall be the penalty for those corporations which can not be deterred for illegal practices by financial penalties, and the states will hasten the eradication of the rebating evil by eliminating the fine and putting guilty officials in jail.—Houston Post.

The average corporation fleeing the public cares nothing for the infliction of a fine, from the fact that it can find a way after paying the fine to recoup itself from the consumer. Jail penalties would undoubtedly work a great improvement in the situation.

Cotton yielding a bale to the acre is not confined this year to the section of the state south of the Colorado, altho this is incomparably the best cotton producing section of Texas this year. There is a record of 10 bales from a farm of 120 acres north of Taylor with about another five bales yet to pick. There is no need of rice lands in that county.—San Antonio Light.

Texas has made a big cotton crop this year, reports to the contrary notwithstanding. Of a total number of bales ginned in the entire country, a little in excess of 9,000,000, Texas is credited with nearly 3,000,000 bales. In other words, we have produced this year at least a third of the total cotton crop of the country.

Fort Worth always does the proper thing. The day the ice men met there a howling norther came up and lots of ice was in evidence. There's nothing after all like tact.—Terrell Transcript.

But Fort Worth is not guilty. The ice men brought along the change in the weather as an advertisement of their particular line of business.

Texas should have a law compelling trifling parents to put their children in the public schools. Some people are so trifling that they will allow their innocent children to grow up in ignorance in the midst of good schools. Such people are guilty of a wrong to their children and an injury to the state and should be punished for neglect. For the state to compel attendance is no more paternalism than to furnish the teacher.—Austin Tribune.

It would seem that with free public schools open to all children there should be no complaint relative to attendance, but such is not the case. There are thousands of children in Texas who remain outside the school room from the fact that their parents are too worthless to compel them to enter the schools that are maintained by the state and without cost to them.

The announcement is made that there will be no lobby at the state capital this year and that no passes will be issued to legislators. The claim has often been made by corporations that they were forced to send lobbies to state capitals by the introduction of "sand-bagging" measures, the purpose of which was to make them come across with favors. It is to be hoped that the Texas legislature will give the lie to this claim and that the corporations will be given a square deal, no more and no less.—San Antonio Gazette.

There is no question about the ability of the Texas legislature to pull thru without the aid of a lobby, and if the corporations will only keep the lobbyists away it will be found the procedure will work good to all interests.

Judge Alton B. Parker, late democratic candidate for the Presidency, has become attorney for one of the leading trusts of the country, and this doubtless accounts for the ease with which he supported the republican candidate for governor in New York recently. It also shows the wisdom of Bryan and his friends and followers in their opposition to Mr. Parker before and at the convention in the last Presidential race.—Strawn Enterprise.

Judge Parker represents a type of democracy that does not find favor with the masses. His nomination for the Presidency was one of the greatest mistakes ever perpetrated by the democratic party.

The two Mexican editors arrested at Del Rio for alleged conspiracy against the Mexican government, have been released. But the poor old editor arrested in El Paso is still behind the bars. After two years of open life spent on this border Mexican authorities have finally alleged that they want him for murder. The murder charge comes after all other charges have failed to secure his extradition.—El Paso Times.

And is doubtless made for the express purpose of landing him in Mexico, where he will experience the common fate of those who raise their voice against that government.

The effect of the snow in the Panhandle will be most beneficial. This has already been a subject of much conversation and has proven quite a stimulus to the prospector. What a twelve or fourteen inch snow means to a country adapted to the raising of grain, as is the Panhandle, is well known by the men who have had experience in that line of agriculture.—Amarillo Panhandle.

The effect of the recent big snow that covered the Texas Panhandle will be reflected in a bumper wheat crop that will be harvested in that section next spring. The Panhandle country is all right now on the wheat proposition.

'RESIDENT'S GREAT INFLUENCE The place which will be awarded to President Roosevelt by the historian is a matter on which it is neither appropriate nor timely to speculate now. It is sufficient that the President's contemporaries recognize that he has a firmer hold upon the people of the United States and is able to shape public opinion to a greater degree than any other American in official or private station.—Baltimore Sun.

A SUPERFLUOUS ARGUMENT Chicago women are wrestling with the question of who owns a wife's clothes, the wife or the husband. That seems purely academic. The husband wouldn't assert his ownership of them even if he had it, as wives sometimes proverbially do of a certain important article of male wearing apparel.—New York Tri-bune.

ELUSIVE THINGS IN POLITICS Several great corporations have announced a purpose to raise wages. Is it a fact, after all, that the cost of living is higher than it used to be? Some of the campaign speakers said it was not. What an elusive thing the truth is in politics.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

KING CORN'S EMINENCE A corn crop of 2,881,000,000 bushels for 1906 is the latest government estimate. It is the largest ever raised and worth over $1,152,000,000. This year in the United States has been one of unequalled prosperity in productions of the soil.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

ARION CONCERT UNUSUALLY GOOD

Large Audience at Greenwall's Likes Seagle and Chorus

With cold, disagreeable weather was unable to keep Greenwall's from being field Monday night at the nineteenth concert given by the Arions, together with Oscar Seagle, baritone, and Miss Augusta Bates, pianist.

The audience which completely filled the downstairs auditorium and overflowed into the balcony, was one of the largest which ever greeted an Arion concert, and it was undoubtedly the most enthusiastic. The singing of Seagle and a change in the character of the work done by the Arions were the two factors responsible for the enthusiasm.

Seagle has sung in Fort Worth before, but Monday night he outshone all previous successes and from his opening "La Tosca" number to the closing one from Verdi's "Un Ballo in Maschera," he held his audience captive whenever his lips were opened.

The Arion numbers, under the direction of Claude A. Rossignol, showed a decided change in the character of work attempted this year. Their last number, Dudley Buck's setting of Tennyson's "Bugle Song," provoked an enthusiastic demand for an encore which was not forthcoming.

SAVE THE NEGROES FROM FOOL FRIENDS

Indiana Man Talks About the Race Question

"For the good of the negro soldiers who have just been dishonorably discharged from the army by order of the President, for a cause that he and a very large percentage of the people deem amply sufficient for nothing more hurtful could have been done than the discharge of a lot of impulsive sentimentalist in different sections, protesting against the discharge, and demanding that the negroes be reinstated."

The above was said by Calvin H. Benton of New Albany, Ind., to a Telegram reporter Monday afternoon. Mr. Benton is a Republican in politics and a business man who makes frequent trips thru the south and says that he has made the negro a study. Continuing his talk to the reporter, he said:

"The effect of these protests against the President's action on the part of negro soldiers will be to their disadvantage. They read the papers, and reading of what the sentimentalist, north and east, who know but little of negro character, are saying and doing, supposedly in the interest of the negroes, the negroes will be led to attach an importance to themselves that will, to say the least of it, do no good and will likely do much harm. The negro needs but little encouragement to make him decline to cooperate in the social settlement work that is being done by this crowd is a bid for them to become a worthless, trifling and objectionable class of people."

WRECK ON ROCK ISLAND. Broken Freight Details Several Cars on Graham-Fort Worth Branch.

Monday afternoon a broken flange under one of the baggage cars in the afternoon train on the Graham-Fort Worth branch of the Rock Island caused a wreck of the passenger train, all of the cars behind the second baggage car going off the rails.

GAVE DOZEN TURKEYS. Nat Washer to Feed Inmates of Orphan's Home.

A dozen fat turkeys, a feast for the children of the orphan's home, was a present that arrived at the home Monday from Nat Washer of San Antonio.

Will Extend Line. The Brownsville, Hidalgo & Northern Railway Company has under consideration the question of further extending its line under construction up the valley of the Rio Grande from Brownsville to Eagle Pass, about 350 miles. Land owners along the route offer large gifts of land.

Will Issue Passes. Railway men connected with the responsibility of management or with the passenger departments look with much interest on the action of the Monon in its disregard of the features of the rate bill.

One line, however, the Missouri, Kansas & Texas, thru its general passenger department, has prepared a new series of contracts for the re-issuance of distribution. General Passenger Agent St. George, who drew it up, says that he consulted the legal department and is advised that such a course with the law in every particular. The contract is as follows:

The owner or publisher of the paper, magazine or other advertising medium, party to this contract, will, during the life of this agreement, whenever traveling, travel over the lines of the Missouri, Kansas & Texas Railway Company, and route the members of his family and his employees over its lines, at the lowest reasonable can, fares and accommodations being equal or better, and he shall have the right to call upon the railway for such tickets, mileage or other passenger transportation as may be required from time to time for the exclusive use of the publisher, his immediate family and employees directly connected therewith, to the value of the gross amount of this contract. This is a reduction of rates charged for at full tariff rates—any balance that may be found to exist at the expiration of this contract to be settled for by other party in cash.

List of persons for whom transportation may be desired and in what manner connected with the publisher must be furnished by the publisher to the general passenger agent of the railway company at the time of signing this agreement.

The publisher of the above named paper or periodical must also render to the railway company monthly statements, showing in detail the number of lines or inches of display, reading or local notices inserted, the rate per line or inch and the total amount for the month.

Grants Wage Increase. Among the recent increases in wages granted by railway companies are those of the New York Central and the Wabash, both to firemen. The Central increase is an average of 5 cents per hour and about 3.000 men are benefited to that extent. The Wabash increase is from $2 and $4 on passenger engines to $2.10 and $2.20 and from $2.50 and $2.60 to $2.60 and $2.70 on freight engines, the size of the engine to control the rate of pay.

Enters Express Business. Using an automobile for the collection of packages, the Aurora, Elgin & Chicago electric line, has gone into competition with the express business between Chicago and the places reached by the electric line. One factor in the hoped for business is a reduction of rates of 50 per cent as compared with the present steam road rates.

Elected to Office. W. C. Nixon, formerly with the Santa Fe in Texas, who a short time ago went to the Frisco, has been elected vice president of the general manager, succeeding C. R. Gray, who was elected second vice president. Mr. Nixon went from Texas as an assistant to Mr. Gray, who was at that time traffic manager.

Will Give Rates. It is reported that the Union Pacific will not comply with the ruling of the interstate commerce commission that party rates for theatrical companies must be lower than similar rates open to all.

Synopsis
Helen Davis, having just returned from a course of three years' study in Germany, is being asked to marry her foster brother, Arthur, who has walked twelve miles from Hilltown, where he has been teaching school, to meet her in the forest, as they used to do before she went abroad. As they come to the edge of the woods she reminds her of her promise to him before she went away. She draws back and says that she was young at that time.

Helen goes to the village to pay a visit of charity to one of her father's flock (the father being a preacher). She tells him to wait, but when she returns he is gone. She goes home and shows that she can do as she pleases with her brother. Just after she leaves Arthur comes in with a poem he has written for her and reads it. She is delighted and starts to recite Wagner's "Ninth Symphony." Arthur is so moved by the music that he seizes her hand and covers it with kisses, whereupon she tells him she does not love him. Arthur leaves the house, although he is expected to spend the Saturday and Sunday holidays there.

After his arrival at her father's house, Helen is surprised to find that she is not to play such frantic, heavy music, which has surprised the country people, coming especially from the minister. A storm comes up and Helen attempts to keep her thoughts from Arthur, who is undoubtedly out in it, by her mother's side. Her thoughts run back to the man out in the storm.

CHAPTER V.
"If chance will have me king, why chance may crown me, without my stir."

Most of the people whom Helen met upon her arrival were of her own sex, so that she did not feel called upon to make special exertions to please them; but she was naturally cheerful and happy with every one, and the other matters of her life were not talked upon, which Mrs. Roberts had talked upon so much in her quiet propensities before her mind that it was a relief to her to put them aside and attend to her own affairs. Helen was glad that most of the men were to arrive later, so that she might make her appearance before them under the most favorable circumstances. When she heard the distant whistle of the afternoon train a group of hours later it was not that she thought that she retired to her room to rest before dressing.

Aunt Polly followed her plan of accompanying the girl to a proper style of living, had engaged a maid to attend her during her stay, and Helen felt that she had a more comfortable and flung herself down upon the bed to think.

Helen had imbibed during her Sunday school days the usual formulas of dogmatic religion, but upon matters of morality her ideas were of the vaguest possible description. The quiet of life had always been her instinct for happiness, her "kenial sense of youth," but she had never formulated any rule of life to herself, but the whole of her thought was joy, primarily for herself, and incidentally for other people, because it made her happy, and she would (unless it were possible to avoid them) in debating within herself the arguments which her aunt had brought before her, and it was that principle chiefly by which she tested them.

To the girl's eager nature, keenly sensitive to pleasure, the prospect of the prospect so suddenly flung wide before her eyes was so intoxicating that she again and again she thought of it made her tremble and burn. So far as Helen could see at that moment, a marriage with this Mr. Harrison would mean the command of every source of happiness; and upon a scale so magnificent, so brilliant of color, that she had never known, that she shrank from it as something impossible and unnatural. Again and again she buried her heated brow in her hands and muttered, "I ought to have known it before! I ought to have had time to realize it."

That which restrained her from welcoming such an opportunity, from clasping it to her in ecstasy and flinging herself madly into the whirl of pleasure it held out, was not so much her conscience and the ideals which she had formed more or less vaguely from the novels she had read, as her read, as the instinct of her maidenhood, which made her shrink from the thought of marriage with a man whom she did not love. So strong was her feeling in her that at first she felt that she could not even bear to be introduced to him with such an idea in her mind.

It was Aunt Polly's wisdom and diplomacy which finally overcame her scruples enough to persuade her to that first step; Helen kept thinking of her aunt's words—that no one wanted to compel her to marry the man, that she might do just as she chose. She argued that it was foolish to worry herself, or to be ill at ease. She might see what sort of a man he was; if he fell in love with her it would do no harm—Helen was not long in discovering that the instinct of her maidenhood, which she had so often felt, was a mariner who leaves the steering of his vessel to the tempest.

She had stilled her objection by such arguments, and was just beginning to feel the excitement of the prospect once more, when the maid knocked at the door and asked to know if mademoiselle was ready to dress for dinner.

And mademoiselle arose and bathed her face and arms and was once more her old refreshed and rejoicing self, for that mysterious and wonderful process which was to send her out an hour or two later a vision of perfectness, compounded of the hues of the rose and the colors of evening, with the new and the old, was as all the woman's own. Besides the prospect her aunt had spoken of, there were reasons enough why Helen should be content. It was her first recognized appearance in high society; and so she sat in front of the tall mirror and criticized every detail of the coiffure which the maid prepared, and eyed by turns her amazing neck and shoulders and the wonderful dress, as yet unworn, which shone from the bed thru its covering of tissue paper; and was the time she heard the first ring and delight that it was a pleasure to be near her. Soon Aunt Polly, clad in plain black, entered the room, and she retired in favor of Helen, came in to assist and superintend the toilet. So serious at the task, and so filled with a sense of its importance, that she never looked at Helen, and so Helen had not broken the spell by declaring that she felt like an Asbatene warrior being decked out for battle with three or four minutes, or like Rinaldo, or Amadis donning his armor.

And Helen was in fact going to war, a war for which nature has been training her woman since the first fig tree grew. She carried a bow strong as the one of Ulysses, which no man could draw, and a sword sharper than the rest in the world, and armed with a helmet, beside her treasure of golden hair, she wore one rose, set there with the art of a conchologist, so that it was no longer a red rose, but one more bright perfection that had come to ripeness with the dawn of the day. Her dress was of the same color, a color which when worn upon a woman is a challenge, crying abroad that here is perfection, that here is the end of the world. When the last touch was finished and Helen gazed upon herself, with her hair arranged as she had seen in the throat so soft and white, she knew that she was compared to all about her, as a vision from another world. Chiefest of all she knew that neither arms and shoulders, nor robe, nor gleaming hair, would ever be thought of when once she had taken the place of Helen, with its serene perfection had caught the eye, she knew that, as usual, men must start when they saw her, and never take their eyes off her. The thought filled her with an exciting consciousness of power, and reared her form with a new dignity, and made her chest heave and her cheeks burn with yet a new beauty.

When everything was ready, Aunt Polly's husband was called in to gaze upon her. A little man was Aunt Polly's husband, with black side whiskers and a high, pointed hat, and a most quiet and unobtrusive person, looking just what he had been represented—a "plain, sensible man, who attended to his half of the family affairs, and left the other half to his wife. He gazed upon Helen and never took his eyes off her. "You are so much beauty, and then took the end of her fingers very lightly in his and pronounced her "absolutely perfect." "An angel," he added, "it's after 7, so perhaps we'd best descend."

So he led the girl down to her triumph, to the handsome parlors of the house where eight or ten men were strolling about. It was quite exciting to Helen to meet the other guests, all strangers, and Aunt Polly had apparently considered Mr. Harrison so much importance that she had said nothing about the other, leaving her niece at liberty to make what speculations she pleased.

It was a brilliant company which was seated in the dining room a short while later. As it was assembled in Helen's honor, Aunt Polly had taken care to bring those who would please the girl, and represent high life and luxury at its best; all of the guests were young and well-to-do. The members of the "smart set," who had passed the third decade, are apt to show signs of weariness; a little of their youth and health is gone, and some of their animation, and all of their joy—so that one may be led to ask himself if there is not something wrong about their views, and ways of living. When they are young, however, they represent the possibilities of the human mind in all things known. In some wonderful way external to themselves they have managed to manipulate the laws of men so as to make men do for them the hard and painful tasks of life, so that they have no care but to make their lives as pleasant as possible, and as generally excellent as selfishness can be. Helen, of course, was not in the least of the party, but she was quite satisfied with her externals. She saw about her perfect toilets and perfect manners; she saw everyone as happy as she liked every one to be; and the result was that her spirits took fire, and she was clever from the first to the last. She carried everything before her, and performed the real feat of dominating the table by her beauty and cleverness, without being tedious or vain. Aunt Polly replied to the delighted looks of her husband at the other end of the table, and the two only wished that Mr. Harrison had been there then.

As a matter of fact Helen had forgotten Mr. Harrison, and he did not come back to her mind until the dinner was almost over, when suddenly she heard the bell ring. It was the time that he was to arrive, and so she knew that she would see him in another half hour. In the excitement of the present moment all of her hesitation was gone, and she was as ready to meet him as her aunt could have wished.

When a few minutes later and went into the parlors again, Helen was the first to enter, upon the arm of the man she had been thinking of. Mr. Harrison, and as she glanced about her, she could not keep from giving a slight start. Far down at the other end of the room she had caught sight of the figure of a man, and her first thought had been that it must be the millionaire. His frail, slender form was more than half concealed by the cushions of the sofa upon which he was seated, but even so, Helen could discover that he was a slight cripple.

The man rose as the party entered, and Aunt Polly went toward him; she anxiously expected her niece to follow and be introduced to the stranger, but in the meantime the truth had occurred to Helen, that it must be the Mr. Howard she had been told of; she turned to one side with her partner and began remarking the pictures in the room.

When she found opportunity she glanced over and saw that the man had seated himself on the sofa and was talking to Mrs. Roberts. He looked, as Helen thought, all the invalid her aunt had described him to be, for the face was pale and very wan, so that it made her shudder. "Dear me," she exclaimed to herself. "I don't think such a man ought to be in a party, and he should be removed away and set himself to the task of forgetting him, which she very easily did.

A merry party was soon gathered about her, rejoicing in the glory of her presence, and listening to the stories which she told of her adventures in Europe. Helen kept the circle well in hand that way and was equally ready when one of the young ladies began to recite a poem, or when French poetry in the hope of scolding her. Thus her animation continued without rest until Mrs. Roberts escorted one of the guests to the piano to sing to them.

INSOMNIA CURED
Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Restored Wrecked Nerves to Normal Condition and Good Health Followed.

The sufferer from sleeplessness too often resorts to habit-forming drugs in order to secure the coveted rest. But sleep obtained by the use of opiates is not refreshing and the benefit is but temporary at best.

Mrs. H. A. Fletcher, of 59 Blodgett street, Manchester, N. H., is living evidence of the truth of this statement. She says: "I received a shock of an apoplectic character. It was so severe that the sight of my right eye was affected, causing me to see objects double. I was confined to my bed about four weeks, at one time being told by the doctor that I could not get well. When I could leave my bed I was in such a nervous state that I could not sleep at night. I would get up and sit on a chair until completely tired out and then go back to bed and sleep from exhaustion.

"I had been under the doctor's care for six weeks when my sister, Mrs. Loveland, of Everett, persuaded me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. I began taking the pills with the result that I soon experienced relief. One night soon after taking them I lay awake only a short time and the next night I rested well. From that time I slept well every night and soon got well and strong. I have recommended Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a number of times, and my niece has taken them for weak nerves and poor blood and found them very beneficial."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have cured many severe nervous troubles, headache, neuritis and sciatica as well as diseases of the blood such as anaemia, rheumatism, pale and sallow complexion and many forms of weakness. All druggists sell Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, or they will be sent by mail postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box, six boxes for $2.50, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Company, Schuetteau, N. Y.

THE COTTON MARKET
LOWER COTTON FUTURES
DESPITE ACTIVE SPOTS

New York Cotton
Special to The Telegram.
NEW YORK, Nov. 27.—Today's market was anxious, nervous, complicated. Awaiting the issuance of the government's two reports, which will come Dec. 8 and 10, the students of the price fluctuations of the staple point in accord with the principal factor that is holding cotton to the present level, viz., the uncommonly strong demand for actual cotton and the scarcity of room grades. Naturally, then, in the absence of any new feature today, also, of course, spots continued in excellent demand, the proximity of Thanksgiving being a decided factor in evening up orders and profit-taking, so that after the higher opening the market sagged about 20 points from the top level of the morning.

Futures here opened 6 to 10 points higher than the quotations put in effect Monday, December, which opened at 10.45, the highest point in the morning, receded steadily to 10.32, was bid back to 10.36 and declined again, the 12:40 o'clock market being 10.28, or a loss of 8 points from yesterday's closing level. January opened at 10.53, advanced one point, then declined to 10.38, but improved to 10.40 by 1 o'clock, showing a loss of 9 points under Monday's price. March opened at 10.73, declined to 10.62 and at 12:40 p. m. settled around 10.60, with the tone steady.

The average estimate of 161 members of this exchange today was that the present crop will be 12,457,000 bales. Price was out with a circular this morning, predicting a great scramble for the balance of this year's yield, and prophesying a deficit in the supply of needed cotton, no matter what the crop may prove to be. The consensus of opinion of the south is that futures will continue to rise high as long as the present strong demand for spots might last, and taking this as their argument, the bulls here are contending that, as the time draws nearer and nearer, when the real economic factors shall be revealed, the spot stringency will become tighter and tighter.

With spots around 11.3-11.6 at New Orleans, certain of the southern ring looks with confidence at the steady advance of late as being warranted, yet the reluctance of the leaders here and in Europe to follow the steps of New Orleans causes a conservative tone to prevail.

In a nutshell—this morning's decline is not taken as a change in sentiment, but rather as a natural consequence of liquidation that usually precedes a holiday, coupled with the fact that no new feature presented itself, although spots continue in splendid demand, as evidenced by the reports throughout the southern today.

Another thing, the expected broadening of the market by the entering of outside interests has not yet become a reality, and the market is, therefore, more susceptible to the mere sentiment of the rings.

The reluctance of Liverpool, the determination of this market at the forwardness of New Orleans, where should be the ones best posted as to the present field of the chief product of the south—all these present a complex study to the spotless.

DEFENSE ASKS FOR A CONTINUANCE

AUSTIN, Texas, Nov. 27.—Motion for a continuance until the next term of court was made and argued by the lawyers for the defense today in the suit of the state of Texas vs. Waters-Pierce Oil Company for penalties and forfeiture of permit to do business in the state for alleged violation of anti-trust law pending before Judge V. L. Brooks in the Twenty-sixth district court.

Judge Brooks declined to pass on the question of continuance today. The motion for continuance was made by Judge R. L. Penn of the defendant's counsel, predicated upon the claim that the amended petition of the plaintiff was so voluminous and contained so many new allegations that the defendant's counsel would be unable in less than one day to prepare an amended answer, and contained several new causes of action which would require considerable investigation before they could be properly defended and would make it impossible for the defense to proceed at this term of court.

Judge Penn argued that while it might be contended that some of the new matters pleaded would go to make up cause of action at least two or three of the allegations introduced were new causes of action, stating alleged illegal rebate agreements with the Eagle Refining Company, Texas Oil and Gasoline Company and Roy Campbell Company, which are introduced by the state in the amended petition. For this reason, said Judge Penn, the defense cannot and will not be ready to proceed with the trial of the case at this term of court, and would ask a continuance until the next term, to wit, the first Monday in March, 1907. Judge George Clark of Waco of the defendant's counsel, also argued briefly for a continuance.

COAL FAMINE PREVAILS

Railroads Are Rushing Cars to the Mines
Nothing is embarrassing the railroads more than the coal famine that is prevailing all over the southwest. The situation is aggravated by the car famine as cars enough to haul coal to the mines are not being secured. All the coal hauling roads have issued orders to corral all empty coal cars to be pulled and rush them to the mines, and this is being done, the cars being loaded at once and the coal moved to where it is needed. Notwithstanding the activity on the part of the roads, the coal situation is anything but easy.

LIVESTOCK MARKET STEADY TO LOWER

Cattle Market Steady to Lower—Hogs to 10c Lower—Receipts Moderate—Market Slow
The receipts today up to the close of the market were moderate, except calves, which had a liberal run. The market today did not show the late arrivals yesterday, which came in on the market late in the afternoon, and were not reported back. By adding these to the ear receipts made the unusual large run of nearly 5,000 cattle, besides a heavy run of calves. The receipts of cattle today were estimated at 4,000, including several lots driven in. Nothing was reported back for late arrivals. The hog receipts were moderate, being run about 1,000 on the early market. The cattle receipts included quite a sprinkling of fairly well finished steers, some of which were driven to the market and were unsettled for some time, and the day's session was well advanced before the markets showed much activity. The receipts of sheep were slightly lower, while hogs were from 5c to 10c lower, which affected the local market.

Butcher Stock
The supply of butcher stock was moderate and the prices were generally steady to a shade lower. The market opened fairly well finished gross cows, with a few steers in medium flesh. There was no strictly choice stuff offered, and the demand was not so great as usual. Packers and order buyers were in the market only for small quantities, and the best offerings were from 50 to 10c lower, in sympathy with a further decline in the northern provision markets. The general quality of the offerings was from 50 to 10c lower, in sympathy with a further decline in the northern provision markets. The general quality of the offerings was from 50 to 10c lower, in sympathy with a further decline in the northern provision markets.

TEXAS CENTRAL BONDS

Issue Discussed Before Railroad Commission at Austin
Special to The Telegram.
AUSTIN, Texas, Nov. 27.—The railroad commission met today with a large attendance and a heavy docket. The first proposition taken up was the proposed order requiring the Texas Central Railway Company to cancel an issue of $650,000 of its bonds on account of its not being approved by the railroad commission. These bonds are part of an issue of $2,146,000 which were issued under a mortgage dated April 1, 1892. Attorney F. W. Campbell of Dallas, attorney for the company, said that a detailed statement concerning the history of the bonds had been filed with the commission. He contended that the bonds were issued upon a right guaranteed under a mortgage. It was the main contention, he said, upon which the sale of the road was made. The agreement was entered into before the passage of the stock and bond law. Judge Campbell contended that it was not within the power of the legislature of the commission to make any law taking away any rights that had been previously acquired.

HIS ONLY HOPE After a siege of seven years' illness, most of which time life seemed in the balance, Mr. A. Thompson, a well-known business man of Milwaukee, living at 427 Chestnut St., who was suffering from an affection of the stomach and liver, was finally told by his physician that an operation would be necessary to save his life. He had the same determination and iron will that had carried him safely through his long illness. Thompson flatly refused his consent. That was some weeks ago. When seen recently he was much better and gave this statement for publication: "I did not believe an operation was necessary, so I dismissed my physicians and began a treatment of Cooper's New Discovery and Quick Relief, as I had never heard of any cases similar to mine that had cured. After using these wonderful medicines for about two weeks I am improved to a remarkable degree. I have tried everything and would advise any sufferer from stomach or liver trouble to stop experimenting and use these remedies in the first place, for they are the only cure."

COOPER'S NEW DISCOVERY is the great tonic for stomach trouble and general debility. It is a powerful purgative, runs down the bowels, and breaks up all the poisons in the system. It is sold for one dollar per bottle. Cooper's Quick Relief, the assistant remedy, is used in connection with the New Discovery and is sold only by H. T. Pangburn & Co.

CITIZENS WANT INCORPORATION

Meeting Held at Rosen Heights Monday Night

CITIZENS EXPRESS VIEWS

Sam Rosen, T. B. Gregory, J. J. Riden, Mr. Swindall and Others Made Speeches

A mass meeting of the citizens of Rosen Heights was held at the public school building Monday night for the purpose of discussing the various phases of the proposed movement to incorporate the town of Rosen Heights as a separate town for municipal purposes.

The meeting was called to order by Colonel T. B. Gregory, president of the Citizens League. He stated that the object of his having called the citizens together in this meeting was for the purpose of discussing in every detail both the advantages and disadvantages, if there be any disadvantages, that the incorporation of the town would bring to the citizenship.

Colonel Gregory said that the question of incorporating Rosen Heights was one of vast importance to all the people concerned, and while the sentiment in favor of incorporation seemed to be greatly in the majority, yet there were a few who had expressed an opposition feeling. These people, he said, had a perfect right to their own opinions in these matters, the same as he or any other person, and that he respected their opinions. But, as neighbors, and as a people whose interests are in common, it was his desire, in a calm and friendly way, to reason with them and thoroughly discuss every feature of the question, that all might clearly understand just what might be expected to be the ultimate result. So far as was known, the opposition to incorporation has been greatly in the minority. In fact, the opposition as has been expressed, had seemed so small that the advocates of incorporation had looked upon it as of no consequence. But it is the desire of the Citizens' League, which is composed of the representative citizenship of Rosen Heights, to make the result of incorporation as near unanimous as possible. So in order to have a better understanding and that the question may more thoroughly be gone over in a meeting of the citizens, the meeting for this purpose had been called. Colonel Gregory further stated that those who opposed the movement should speak up and state why they opposed it.

Following the short address of Colonel Gregory, several speeches were made. L. T. Knight took the floor and stated that he was in favor of incorporation, but wanted some information on the manner of maintaining a municipality, and the probable tax rate. He was answered by Colonel Gregory, who stated that it was his idea that the government of Rosen Heights, that it be most economically administered. In the first place, said Colonel Gregory, the items of most expense, that which were usually the cause of the financial troubles of a great many of the smaller municipalities, that of salaries for officers that were not needed, could be almost entirely eliminated. The objects of those who were the prime movers in this movement were to create expensive offices that they may sap the taxpayers to death. The principal offices can be made to be self-sustaining. The offices of city marshal, assessor and collector can be consolidated, and one person elected to fill all these offices, and competent men will willingly accept the trust and give it the proper attention for the fees. The other offices, which require very little money, will be filled in the same way. By this method, there will be very little expense of government, and it is not necessary to create offices with fat salaries, in order that a few of the people may practice graft and grow rich off the pockets of the taxpayers or home builders. As much as the Rosen Heights people desire handsome public buildings, costly towers and expensive public improvements, their object in this movement is to throw a protection around their homes and give them that independence that only self-government can give them. "That is why we want to incorporate," said Colonel Gregory, "and not for the purpose of being of special benefit to any class or individual."

ROASTS THE ALDERMEN

Mr. Swindall spoke along the lines of those who preceded him and brought out the additional fact that Rosen Heights needed some street improvements as well as North Fort Worth and that it was a long way to work from North Fort Worth to Rosen Heights—so far that the street force would be many, many long hours getting out there, they haven't got all the streets in front of the homes of the aldermen fixed up over there yet, but they are working on them.

A DOCTOR'S TRIALS. He Sometimes Gets Sick Like Other People. Even doing good to people is hard work if you have too much of it to do. No one knows this better than the hard-working, conscientious family doctor. He has troubles of his own—often gets caught in the rain or snow, or loses so much sleep he sometimes gets out of sorts. An overworked Ohio doctor tells his experience: "About three years ago as the result of doing two men's work, attending a large practice and looking after the details of another business, my health broke down completely, and I was little better than a physical wreck. I suffered from indigestion and constipation, loss of weight and appetite, bloating and pain after meals, loss of memory and lack of nerve force for continued mental application. I became irritable, easily angered and despondent without cause. The heart's action became irregular and weak, with frequent attacks of palpitation during the first hour or two after retiring. "Some Grape-Nuts and cut bananas came for my lunch one day and pleased me particularly with the result. I got more satisfaction from it than from anything I had eaten for months, and on further investigation and use, I got out Grape-Nuts for my morning and evening meals, served usually with cream and a sprinkle of salt or sugar. My improvement was rapid and permanent in weight as well as in physical and mental endurance. In a word, I am filled with the joy of living again, and continue the daily use of Grape-Nuts for breakfast and often for the evening meal. "The little pamphlet, 'The Road to Wellville,' found in pigns, is invariably saved and handed to some needy patient along with the indicated remedy." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. "There's a reason."
