Kaiser Says United States Will Be the Victor After a Long Struggle

Special to The Telegram. ONDON, Dec. 15.—Again the European press is busy discussing the possibility of a conflict between the United States and Japan. It seems to be the settled belief of the military and naval experts both of the continent and Great Britain that the clash is sure to come,

but there is a wide divergence of opinion as to the time that is likely to eiapse before actual hostilities are pre-Many students of world affairs are of the belief that the next five years will see the war fleets of the two naions facing each other in the Pacific, ripped for action, while others put day off as far as twenty years. Kaiser Wilhelm of Germany is said have told his confidentes that he considered the conflict as inevitable. It is known that he is watching the rift of affairs in the Pacific ocean ith keen interest and that he believes hat the United States will be the ictor after a hard struggle that must

In St. Petersburg the interest is still greater. The Russians are confident that the United States is destined to control the Pacific ocean and they are equally strong in the belief that Japan will never allow this until she has been whipped into submission. It is because of this belief in the future conflict between Japan and the United States that the Russian government has suddenly stiffened its backbone in the negotiations that are now going on between St. Petersburg and Tokio over the question of colonization rights on the Amur river.

"So long as the United States clings to the Philippines she well be a menace to Japan's supremacy in the Pacific. Manila is recognized by experts of the ert of war as the key to the Orient. ying within striking distance of Hong Cong, Singapore, Yokohoma and Canon, she will always command the lighways of Oriental commerce. As a mmercial outpost, Manila has no suerior in the world when its georaphical condition is considered, at a nparatively small cost it could be fortified as to defy all the navies

the world. "In the event of war Japan might mporarily wrest it from the United ates, but that would have but a ifling effect upon the final outcome

"The United States, with her treendous resources in men and money, would surely crush Japan in the long un, and when the terms of peace were ictated from Washington, as they rould be the Philippines would pass ack to the United States' control. Of course, every effort will be made y the officials of both nations to avoid conflict, but there must be a point impact somewhere sooner or later. "You may set it down as a fixed act that the United States, from that me on, is going to control the desnies of the Pacific."

RACE WON BY FOLGER

Miles, 2 Laps

Small Crowd Saw the Finish of Six Day Bicycle Race in New York

Special to The Telegram.

NEW YORK, Dec. 15 .- Sprinting as if his life depended upon the power of his legs, Joe Folger, who, with Eddie Root, forms the "Little Old New York" team, tonight won the six-day race in Madison Square Garden, with Hardy Downing of California second and Rult of German third. The tremenduous cheering which accompanied the end of the most exciting six-day contest was missing. It was an unpopular victory but in the final terrific spurt Folger won on his

Score 2,292 Miles, Two Laps

It was the third successive time the team of Root and Folger had captured the highest honors in the annual event. Last year it was believed that Root again would jump in and stand the awful strain of the last half hour. But to prove that there is no weak end to the combination the team decided to let Folger show what he could do. Folger whirled to victory by only a few inches and when he sped over the mark thousands hissed the man who is regarded as having been an unfair opponent to Bobby Walthour of Atlanta, Ga., and Johnny Bedell of Long Island, who have been idolized by the throngs which packed the garden during the

So great was the displeasure of the multitude and so freely expressed that the winner circled only half of the saucer in the parade which always follows the finish of the race. The thousands in the garden refused toforget the fact that Folger had been the man who, at critical moments, er dangerous opponent was wrestling a lap, that he "fell" and thus deprived the contestant of the advantage within his grasp. They refused to believe that the consistent tumbles of this man, so timely for his and Root's interests, were all accidental, and tonight they shrieked their belief from rafters to the track.

As Folger strode off, the names of Walthour and Bedell thundered in his ear from 10,000 throats, and his face became drawn, his muscles almost ragged.

Eight teams finished-Folger, partner of Root; Downing, mate of Hooper; McDonald, Coffee's colleague Downey, tied up with Moran; Mettling, Logan's ally; Clark, harnessed with Pye (Australian), and E. Geor-

gett of the Georgett brothers. Cheers for Walthour

Just before the "race" was called off so that the eight leading teams might fight the final battle of a mile. Walfhour brought the mass of men and women to their feet. It was one of the most magnificent scenes ever witnessed in such a battle. The man who, in his inmost heart, knew he had no chance, left after the deal he had been given, shook hands with his trainers and a few friends and strolled back to the track where Johnnie Bedell was burning up the wood in a cepting MacFarland and Moran were caught off their guard by Walthour, who seemed to skim like a thrown ball around the track. He worked every muscle in his body. His face was contorted with the agony of the effort but the grand, deafening, friendly voices that rolled thru the garden cheered him on. Everyone was his friend. When Bobby caught MacFarland and Moran 150 feet ahead of the bunch, the cheering became deafening and then Bedell shot out on the track and relieved his comrade, whose sprinting powers had waned under the frightful strain. Bedell picked Walthour up in clean cut shape. There was a yelling of orders among the crowds by the track side, scurrying of half dressed riders followed and soon every man in the race was either on edge to relieve his partner or trying to catch the trio of sprinters who were whirling dizzily ahead. After the finish the men paraded. Walthour was missing from the bunch. Ten thousand spectators jumped to their feet and yelled for him. No previous six day race exceeded in clamor and enthusiasm the reception he received as he rode out to their view. Downing then ran up to the judges and claimed he had won, so close had the finish been. When assured that a few inches had separated

The night audience was the smallest that ever saw the finish of a long grind. Yawning patches of chairs showed in the reserved section and the floor space of the infield was not overtaxed. In the galleries, the firemen saw to it that the aisles were kept

The crowd was bolsterous, but not unruly. A big cow bell in the hands of a gallery enthusiast made a terrific din until silenced by an attache. A few cloth advertising signs on the galleries were torn from their moorings and dropped on those in the lower tiers. That and frequent showers of torn newspapers was the extent of the rowdyism, except the deafening noise every time a rider appeared about to make a sprint that never came. The fate of the race hung in the balance early in the evening. Health Commissioner Darlington and a dozen sanitary inspectors, backed by ten of the police health squad under Sergeant Gray, took a hand in the game. Police Inspector Billy McLaughlin and thirty policemen were ready for the word to "clear the buildings." It was a tossup whether to take the riders' word for their buoyant spirits and good condition or the evidence of their eyes in the examination of each man, While the men were forced to leave the track for examination, the management hur-

BRYAN ADVISES

Special to The Telegram. GUTHRIE, Okla., Dec. 15.-William Jennings Bryan in a letter to the constitutional convention, read today, makes many suggestions about the organic law for Oklahoma. The convention voted thanks for the suggestions. Bryan recommended that a majority or two-thirds of a jury decide verdicts instead of unanimous vote. He also advised that the reading of reports of crimes should not disqualify a juror, as the reading juror is better than one who does not read. He advised for initiative and referendum laws and franchises and laws of direct primaries, a corporation and railroad commission, contempt trial by juries, party representation on all election boards, that campaign expenses be borne by communities instead of parties, chartering of corporations in state, that no director be director in a competing corporation and that no corporation have monopoly large enough to fix prices, and inheritance

Another important recommendation is for a board of arbitration for labor troubles composed of three members, two others representing parties in dispute to be added in each case. L. T. Russell, editor of the Ardmore Democrat, resigned as secretary to President Murray, as the result of differences over the printing. On the motion of Haskell, holiday adjournment will be from Dec. 21 to Jan. 2. A revised report of the finance committee showed that printing would cost $40,000 and the convention and election deficit would be $126,000, which congress will be asked to make good. President E. A. Calvin of the Tarmers' Union writes from that he will address the convention in January. T. C. CLASH WITH THE PRIESTS

Doors of the Seminary Are Forced Open

BISHOP IS EJECTED

Cardinal Richard Notified That He Must Leave Official Residence

ARIS, Dec. 15 .- Violence at two important points marked the war between church and state today. The government found it necessary to call out troops and in one instance they battered in the doors of a seminary to expel the inmates. This has added greatly to the excitement and tonight there is a feeling of nervousness in all circles. People are beginning to realize at last that the ministry is fully determined to enforce the law and even the church officials have been reluctantly forced to admit that they have on their hands a much harder fight than they planned for. It is evident that they have been taken by. surprise and are plainly worried over the outlook.

The first serious clash occurred today in Arras, where the bishop was summarily ejected from his residence last night. He refused to leave till he was forced to do so and then a great crowd gathered. They hooted the police and hurled stones and eggs at them. The police charged the mob and after a hand-to-hand fight several of the gendarmes were hurt, but none of them seriously. Many persons in the crowd sustained severe bruises and a large number were locked up.

Forced the Door

Then it was found necessary to force the doors of the great seminary. In the meantime the monks had barricaded the doors with the trunks of trees and mattresses. Men were stationed at every entrance and when the gendarmes arrived they met with a hot resistance. Bringing up heavy timbers, they battered down the doors and finally forced their way in. Even then the monks and their assistants kept up the fight till they were literally overpowered. Several were roughly handled and two were taken to the hospital. Quiet was restored only after the streets had been cleared and the inhabitants told to remain within

There was another riot in Barbentanne. The police in that place were ordered to take possession of the church property and when they undertook to do so a large crowd overpowered them and threw them into jail. It was several hours before they were released by the troops. Early in the day the government saw that there was going to be trouble and they ordered two squadrons of dra-

The riot was in progress when they arrived and they were ordered at once to clear the streets, which they did in double quick order. There were many fights and several persons were hurt but order was restored before night and the auspices notified the government that no further trouble was an-Great excitement was aroused in Paris when the report spread about the city that authorities had decided to expel Cardinal Richard, the archbishop of Paris, from his official residence.

The cardinal has been ill for several days and for that reason he has not been disturbed. Today, however, an emissary of the ministry served formal notice on him that he would have to go. At the time he was surrounded by a number of priests and minor church officials.

His reply to the notice was that he would leave only in the face of actual force and the emissary departed, saying that he would report the matter to his superior for his decision It was then noised about that the cardinal was to be expelled. Immediately priests from all parts of the city flocked to the cardinal's residence. At the same time about 500 of the most prominent Catholics of Paris wended their way in the same direction. Among them was Count Boni de Castellane and many members of the old nobility. They declared that they would resist any attempt of the police to expel the archbishop, but as the police failed to appear, they finally dispersed. A tremendous crowd had gathered in the street and for a time it looked as if there was going to be serious trouble. A large number of divinity students were mingled with the crowd, as well as several members of the chamber of deputies. For more than two hours the crowd lingered about the residence of the cardinal. Tonight there is absolute quiet. The council of ministry has drawn up a project dealing with the crisis. It includes a proviso for the continuation of public worship and consists of six articles. The proposed bill gives the state immediate ownership of churches, vicarages and seminaries. Worship may be organized under a new law, combining the laws of 1881 and 1901. From all accounts of Rome's side of the question, it is believed that the vatican has fallen back on the modern method of calling on public opinion to fight the battle for it. By arousing foreign governments to express their opinion on the action of the French government, the pope hopes, in case the opinions are favorable to his cause, to bring sufficient pressure to bear to effect a restitution in some way or

The warm sympathy expressed by Catholics in the United States has tended to strengthen the pope greatly. It is believed that the attitude of the Episcopals in the United States has a stronger stand against the aggressiveness of the French state.

Special to The Telegram. ROME, Dec. 15.—The troubles of the church in France and the keen anxiety felt over the outcome, have told on the health of the pope, which has never been strong since he became pontiff. His holiness, who has remained up late night after night, receiving and answering dispatches, is now obliged to remain in bed and secure much needed rest. His indisposition, which is reported as not serious, is thought slight, but it is thought that it is best to him to remain in bed until his strength be recovered. At the vatican it is said that no alarm is felt over his condition.

DISCUSSES BAILEY

Says Election of Senator Would Menace Success of Democratic Party

Special to The Telegram. DALLAS, Texas, Dec. 15 .- The folowing address to the constituents of his district has been issued by State Senator-elect E. G. Senter:

Dallas, Texas, Dec. 15, 1906. To the Democratic Voters of the Sixth

Senatorial District: The disclosures relating to Mr. Bailey which have been made public since the primary election, creat a condition without a precedent. Under similar circumstances, any conscientious judge would grant a new trial in a case pending before him. There are abundant evidences of a strong public demand for a rehearing in the senatorial matter, and believing that this issue is one which should be settled by the Democratic voters of the state rather than by the members of the Thirtieth legislature, I beg to submit to you the question whether, under the changed conditions, you will now instruct me to vote for or against Mr. Bailey for United States senator. I do not undertake to say how you will should be expressed, but beg to suggest that it can be ascertained without serious inconvenience, thru mass meetings or local primaries. Inasmuch as the time for action s short, I take the lberty of suggesting further that whatever steps you may choose to ake should not be deferred later than Saturday, Dec. 29.

The claim that Mr. Bailey has a vested right to the senatorship by reason of the action of the Democratic primaries and state convention must be consilered as any other claim of title. If it is proposed to stand upon technicalities the an swer is that the people's forum only acts as a court of equity. If an equity is asserted the claim must come with sufficient proof of lean hands, and that is the very question at issue. It would be a cowardly evasion of my plain duty if I did not advise you of my own convictions touching this

Loyal to Bailey

Up to the time of the publication of e in the possession of the attorney general, and the subsequent admissions of Mr. Bailey, I was committed to the view that loyalty to democratic precedents required that every doubt should be resolved in his favor, and in my own mind I have labored long and earnestly to convince myself that I could, without doing violence to my own convictions, make reasonable and satisfactory explanation of the transactions which have lately come under review. The result is, after mature deliberation, that I now come to make public confession of my own mental pettifoggery. All the years of my life have been given to the advocacy of another kind of gospel. Fran infancy I was taught that Robert Lee's sublime self-abnegation and self-chosen poverty set a historical standard for Southern madership which no man had dared or would ever dare to trample in the dust. Fortunegetting I believe to be incompatible with a zealous and faithful administration of a public trust. The fact that Mr. Bailey has risen within the brief space of six years, from admitted poverty to affluence, while his time belonged wholly to the public, is a circumstance that in the case of any official should call for afull and candid explanation. Has this been youchsafed by Mr. Bailey? Let the record speak for itself. The public was assured that it had been put in possession of the whole truth when this subject was under investigation six years ago. Did Mr. Bailey deal candidly with the public at that time? In his late speech-making tour thru Texas to explain his connection with the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, Mr. Bailey assumed to tell, with emphasis, the full history of his connection with that company. Did he then deal candidly with the public?

Has the public yet been taken into the full confidence of Mr. Bailey, and have all of the transactions of the same general class as those under review been disclosed? Has the account between him and Pierce and his associates been closed and is Mr. Bailey ready to make an exhibit of the whole to the public eye? These questions are pertinent in view of the slow and tedious processes by which all that the public now knows about this matter have been revealed.

The truth is that all that he has disclosed about the matter has been in belated explanation of some fact which found its way to the public over his violent protest.

Facts Are Admitted

A legislative investigation has been called for, but nothing it could unfold would affect the moral force of these admitted facts: 1. That Mr. Bailey undertook to act as the interceding friend of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company upon no greater evidence of its innocence than a letter of introduction delivered to him by Pierce and written by David R. Francis, whose identity with law defying and trust-promoting interests was at the time notorious.

2. That concurrently with the friendly service which he rendered to the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, Mr. Bailey began to borrow large sums of money from Pierce, that these loans were increased and that they have apparently been discharged by fees charged to Pierce and his associates for subsequent services.

3. That the group of financiers surrounding Pierce have, since the re-entrance of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company into Texas, paid enormous fees to Mr. Bailey which, in the cases disclosed to the public, have been wholly out of proportion to the services rendered, measured by the customs of this

4. That Mr. Bailey's reputation as a lawyer was as well established prior to 1900 as thereafter, but that the group of financiers whose clientage brought him wealth did not, as far as the public is advised, seek his counsel or services until after the Waters-Pierce Oil Company re-entered Texas. It is contended that these controlling facts show nothing more than indiscretion. If that be true, the reply is that there are some kinds of indiscretion which are offenses against the public weal, and this is one of them. It is also true that the case here presented exhausts the possibilities of proofs, whatever might be the circum-

It is urged that Mr. Bailey is not re-

But he is chargeable with notice of the transactions between himself and

There is a graver question here involved than Mr. Bailey's future. His conduct has placed in jeopardy the future of the democracy of the nation.

He has, at the national capital as well as in Texas, defiantly announced that he intends to continue in the course for which he is now arraigned. His re-election is sought as a vindication of his conduct. This puts him without giving full and emphatic approval to all that he has done, and in view of his attitude with respect to the matter, who can doubt that he would so construe a re-election? To give him a clear acquittance is to make a jest

of every sentence touching unlawful trusts and public morals that will be written in democratic platforms in the next national campaign. It would make Texas and Bailey the fruitful

theme of every republican orator who shall take the stump against Bryan in 1908, from Maine to California, and we delude ourselves if we imagine the effect will not be serious to the party.

Will such an example tend to invite the confidence of thoughtful voters in doubtful states? Can the democracy of the nation point to the senate un-

question, it should be remembered,

will not be answered by personal

He must be dead indeed to the richness of human friendship who can witness without a throb of sympathy the enfolding kindness which it now throws around Mr. Bailey—a touching witness to the greatness which he has so recklessly sacrificed. CHARITY GRAFT NO EXCUSE FOR NOT GIVING This is the season, if ever, when people's charitable instincts are easily touched, and for that reason it is the harvest time for charity grafters.

In a dozen cities war is being made upon these meanest of swindlers, who not only feather their own nests by lying and cheating, but do so at the expense of the widow and orphan, the sick and helpless, the shivering and starving.

A method of reducing this species of graft urged by legitimate charity workers, is that nothing be given any supposed agent of such enterprises unless he is O. Kd. by some central organization about whose honesty of purpose and method there can be no ques-

Surely it is a pity and a shame that what charitable impulse there is in us should ever be diverted to evil. There is none to waste.

Even at this soul-quickening season we are apt complacently to point to the charity grafting as excuse for not giving at all.

When men are cheated in business it never occurs to them that this is reason for their going out of

But if they are cheated in charity their first thought

Which goes to show how much stronger in most men is the instinct to get than is the instinct to

The charity grafter—if he, or she, only knew it—is working one of the hardest games, for the smallest returns, ever worked in the world. And the meanest. It is people's own fault if they are plucked by grafters. If we gave a tenth part the thought to giving that we do to getting we would not often be deceived. There is so much nonsensical praise of the charities of the rich, the ostentatious sops which millionaires bestow as solace to their own consciences, that it is well to remember that charity can be worked as a

The very rich cannot give real charity to the deserving because they do not know how. They do not know who are deserving and they will not give their own time to find out. They hire secretaries and almoners; but no second-hand charity giving goes to the right spot or in the right spirit.

There is hardly a man near whose home may not be found many cases of deserving poverty and undeserved suffering.

These he can know about by personal inquiry, and these he can help with the certainty that his charity will be in every way beneficent.

This is the giving which is more blessed than receiving, for it awakens sympathies that refresh the spirit and put sweeter and higher purposes in life.

all about us, no man can point to charity grafting as an honest excuse for not giving at all.

No; it is only the more reason why he should personally see that his money goes aright and that his interest and sympathy go with it to sweeten it.

OUR LAY SERMON

He that hasteth to be rich hath an evil eye, and considereth not that poverty shall come upon him .-

When a fellow gets swindled on a skin game he is trying to work on someone else it is a very difficult matter to work up a feeling of sympathy for him. In spite of yourself-in spite of the good feelings you would summon to the surface on such an occasion you cannot help from feeling that he got just exactly what he had coming. Consequently, it was with a smile that the majority of people read the story of the Missouri man, who, a few days ago, was robbed of $2,100 in an attempt to fleece a brace of fleecers. This Missourian, who did not wait to be shown, discovered the following simple little advertisement in a

"Wanted-Business man with $4,000 to invest; can make $30,000 in short time."

It was the old, old story, of course. One confidence man had decided as business was a little bit dull he Awould enliven the occasion by robbing his partners, and wanted the help of an outsider to assist in getting thru with the job. It was a dishonest schemerotten from top to bottom, but this Missouri man thought he saw an opportunity to get rich very quick, and he bit at the tempting bait. He took the chances and the result was that he lost his hard earned money. Good honest coin of the realm is not any more easily acquired in Missouri than it is in Texas, and when the victim lost his wad it represented his savings of years. There were callous spots on his hands that these good dollars had cost him, and a hump on his back that was placed there thru the same agency.

He forgot all the long years of toil and self-denial that had been practiced by his family and himself to get together that coin of the realm, and lost signt of the fact, too, that its loss would mean beginning again at the bottom of the ladder with every chance against him-that it would mean poverty and continued selfdenial thru all the coming years. He only saw the prospect to win, and he risked and lost it all.

And there is a lesson here for all who are afflicted with the get rich mania. It should teach us that it is better to get along thru the intricate mazes of life a plain and unpretentious plodder with a little money in the bank and surrounded by a reasonable amount of the luxuries of life, rather than to become a plunger and risk even the meat and bread that is in the family's mouth in an effort to become a John D. Rockefeller or a J. Pierpont Morgan on such short

Did you ever notice how a fish flounders when it gets out of its proper element? Well, that is just the manner in which you act when you give way to this desire for immediate worldly wealth and risk your all in its acquirement.

The get rich quick mania has a decided hold on the entire American people. Most of us are anxious to discover some near and short cut to great wealth, but it does not pay to make haste with too much speed. It is right and proper to demand due return for our labor and our products, but it is a miserably poor policy to try to beat someone else out of the proper and legitimate fruits of the long years of their toil.

Sometimes men do acquire great wealth suddenly and legitimately, but it is the exception and not the rule. A prospector may discover a gold mine of fabulous richness, or a real estate owner may enjoy a big rise in the value of his property, but in neither case does the increase gained come out of some other

And it is extremely doubtful in either case if the good is gotten out of the rapidly acquired wealth that would have resulted if it had been acquired more

This, however, is legitimate. It is not the get rich quick game that is played on Wall street and in other financial centers, in the wheat pit, in the bucket shop or by the dishonest man in any of the walks of life. Shun those games and resolve to give value received for every dollar that domes your way, and nine times out of ten you will not experience a desire to indulge in any game of chance. Money that is honestly and hardly earned comes in such a manner as to forbid such indulgence, and it is not a very hard matter after all for a man to be honest,

"He that hasteth to be rich hath an evil eye, and considereth not that poverty shall come upon him." That is a point that each and every member of the great human family can continually bear in mind

GOING AFTER THE FARMERS

The state of Texas has been in a bad way financially now for several years, on account of the failure of two legislatures in succession to levy sufficient taxes to furnish the revenue required to keep state finances on a cash basis, Members of the state legislature are now expressing themselves on important matters of future legislation, and the majority of them are declaring that revenue and taxation are the most important matters that will come up for consideration during the regular session, which convenes in the city of Austin the second Tuesday in January.

It is pretty generally believed that the tax rate will have to be raised next year in order that the deficiency in the state treasury may be overcome and the state again set down on a cash basis, but such a proposition is certain to meet with stubborn resistance among the agricultural interests, who are already declaring they are paying more than their just proportion of all state and county taxes. The experimental legislation passed by the last session in an effort to raise additional revenue has not panned out as was expected, from the fact that the interests concerned have made a strong legal fight against these measures. Ultimately it is quite likely that considerable revenue will be derived from these sources, but that does not help existing conditions. A ruling has just been made in the comptroller's department at Austin that is going to stir up a storm of angry protest from the agricultural communities o the state, and will inspire a further determination to combat any raise in the tax rate. The comptroller has rendered a ruling that will annually yield many additional thousands of dollars to the state in the way of revenue if it is carried out, and that ruling is to the effect that the improvements on property must be assesed for taxation in addition to the valuation placed on the land. The issue was directly raised by the new tax assessor of Travis county asking for instructions as to the manner of making the proper assessment on farm lands. Heretofore it has been the rule of assessors in this state to assess farm lands at so much per the improvements located thereon, while in towns and cities not only is the real estate taxed, but the improvements are made to come up with their proper and just proportion. Under this arrangement the owner of town property has been compelled to pay taxes on his improvements, while it is alleged the farmer has in the majority of instances managed to escape. The farmer who owns 100 a res of land, on which there are no improvements, would render his land for taxation at a valuation of $15 per acre. Another farmer on an adjoining tract with $10,000 worth of improvements simply values his land at $15 per acre in accordance with the valuation of his neighbor, and in this way the $10,000 worth of improvements escape taxation. In his letter to the Travis county tax assessor the state comptroller says:

"I have to advise that in valuing lands for taxation purposes, the value of all buildings, structures and improvements or other fixtures of whatsoever kind thereon, should be included. In other words, the value of the improvements should be added in arriving at

This is an issue that has been raised in Texas before, and has never failed to call forth vehement protests from the farmers. A few years ago a new assessor in a certain West Texa's county announced that when he went into office he proposed to see that all the improvements on farms in his county would be taxed, and from one of the most popular men in his county he at once became the most unpopular. The farmers declared that the proposed action was a tax on thrift and industry and they raised a hue and cry over the proposition, and it was summarily relegated to the rear. In the next election the assessor was retired from business and the old method of doing business was restored.

The people as a whole rarely take kindly to any proposition that involves an increase in taxation, and it is certain there is going to be a whole lot of trouble over this new idea if it is generally adopted. Men will not stop to figure on the fact that they ought to pay taxes on an honest rendition of all they own. They believe others temporize in matters of this kind and each individual believes he is privileged to do the same thing.

Texas taxable values show an increase of more than $82,000,000 for the past year, and there ought to be no trouble in raising all the revenue required by the

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S BAD SPELL

The admirers of President Roosevelt are again called upon to witness an executive fluke of the most pronounced type in the matter of simplified spelling, which has caused so much discussion during the brief period it has held public attention. The President seems to have entered the lists as the foremost champion of simplified orthography without giving due consideration to the consequences. Naturally of an impulsive temperament, he was in some manner led to give his indorsement to a procedure that caused the shadows of Noah Webster and other famous lexicographers to turn over in their narrow confines and dismally groan with the pain of fearful mutilation, but when Congress came to Washington town the bad spell of the President came to a very abrupt termi-

One of the first things to engross the congressional mind apparently was the bad spell labored under by the nation's chief executive, and immediately machinery was set in motion for his complete restoration, Members of both branches were horrifled to discover that public documents brought to their attention were sadly afflicted with the same bad spell that the President was laboring under, and they straightway set about to relieve the situation. One of the first things done was to pass a resolution that the old methods should prevail and spelling should be done according to Webster and other standard authorities. This action necessarily brought about something of a breach with the executive, and a skirmish line was immediately thrown out to reconnoiter the

The investigation that resulted disclosed the fact that the Big Stick was disposed to give its time and attention to more weighty and serious matters than simplified spelling, and if congress desired that the thing should be done according to Webster, the chief executive was not disposed to push the Carnegie innovation. The result was an amicable agreement that the old method shall continue to prevail, and once again the country is safe and another split in the G. O. P. has been happily averted,

But the President is too much given to taking back water. The people have witnessed so many Presidential flukes that they are beginning to suspect a decided lack of steadfastness of purpose.

The anti-Bailey meeting in Dallas Thursday night was a very warm proposition and there were speeches that fairly sizzled with brimstone. But talk is cheap and the barking dog seldom bites. If opponents of Senator Bailey really desire to accomplish his defeat it is time they were getting down to actual work. While the opposition is windjamming the Bailey forces are organizing, and unless there is to be a powerful and effective organization the anti-Bailey forces had just

That the state legislature will investigate the Waters-Pierce Oil Company and Senator Bailey's connection therewith seems to be a foregone conclusion, and pending such action there is no necessity for partisans on either side of the Bailey question to indulge in the throwing of bricks. Keep your temper and remember that every other citizen of Texas is entitled to every privilege you claim for yourself.

The newspaper war that is being waged by the Dallas News on one side and the Houston Post and Fort Worth Record on the other is one of the incidents connected with the Bailey fight that is adding a little variety to fireworks. And so far the Dallas paper has come up manfully with its end of the single-

The Telegram would be pleased to see the people of Texas express themselves fully and fairly in the matter of the election of a United States senator. This is a time when all passion and prejudice should be wholly laid aside and a choice made in an intelligent manner.

There are some men who object to the suggestion of electing Roger Q. Mills to the United States senate on the ground that he is too old. And Roger Q. Mills is a veritable spring chicken in comparison with some of the fossils doing business in that honorable body. .

Cullen F. Thomas appears to have acquired a manner of expressing himself in the same school that was So long as poverty and suffering and despair are acre without regard to the value and character of patronized by Senator Joseph Weldon Bailey.

DRIFT OF POLITICS

CULBERSON AND THE PRESIDENCY

The people of Alabama will be interested to learn that a number of the Texas papers are discussing the propriety of putting forward Senator Culberson of Texas as a candidate for the Democratic nomination to the presidency in 1908. Senator Culberson was born at Dadeville, Tallapoosa county, this state, and as a native of Alabama his public career has been watched here with interest and pride. If there were nothing else to say of the senator, it would be true that few, if any of the many distinguished men born here, who have won their spurs elsewhere, hold a higher place in the regard of our people.

There is, however, much besides to be said of the senator. His father, who lived for a number of years in this state, endeared the name of Culberson to the whole country by his humor, his sagacity, his wisdom and his statesmanship. The son is winning a higher place still. He is the most popular man in Texas. His progress there in politics, thru the attorney generalship, the governorship, to the senate, has served to solidify his following in Texas. He has left no enemies by the way. On the contrary, he has grown stronger with his people and more popular with every new opportunity he has had to exhibit the qualities in him. He has grown at Washington, too, and in the country at large. He is recognized as one of the soundest lawyers in the senate, one of the best debaters, among the first in influence in that body. He is a credit to his state and an honor to the south.

We are not now passing for ourselves upon the propriety of the south having a candidate to offer the national convention in 1908. That is a debatable question and if debated it will in our judgment be well worth debating. Just now we are alone concerned in sending to our contemporaries in Texas a cheering word as to their senior senator. Wherever he is and wherever he may be called, we feel the assurance he will cast luster, if Texas-reflected only, on his mother

The advent of Mr. Roosevelt as President has set new pace for presidential aspirants. Calm and conservative partisans, who wait for bridges before they cross them, will never become Presidents. The people demand an aggressive chief executive like Roosevelt or like Bryan. They want men who are leaders, not followers. The McKinley type of President is gone forever. No man again can preach free silver coinage in congress and be elected President on a gold-singlestandard platform, Mr. Culberson is a conservative statesman of acute discretion and Mr. Bailey is a brilliant and honest representative with a bad temper. Neither will be President of the United States .- Montgomery Advertiser.

A great deal of interesting gossip is coming out of Washington just now. In fact, the national capital is always like an old maid's tea party at the opening of a new session of congress. The flery Foraker opened war on the President early, with his negro resolution, it looks as if Foraker intended to put Mr . Roosevelt on the defensive from now until the Republican national nominating convention decides who is to be the presidential candidate in 1908. It is not Foraker alone who is seeking to cripple Roosevelt's influence in politics, but the senatorial "old guard," of which Spooner of Wisconsin, and Aldrich of Rhode Island, are the leaders, and it includes Elkins of West Virginia, Platt of New York, Dick of Ohlo, Kean of New Jersey, and others who were friendly to the railroads in the great battle last spring. There is no doubt that Platt will hold tight to his seat. He is so afraid some one will steal his United States Express Company and leave him poor that he makes an effort to keep alive to protect his own interests against those of the people. It is to benefit himself, and not his constituents, that Platt stays in the senate. His condition is really pitiable.

QUAKER REFLECTIONS

It takes a lot of cheek to sell shaving soap.

Even a cook book may contain stirring passages. Any woman can keep house if her husband puts t in her name.

THE CHRISTMAS STARS

With whisper and rustle and start and hush, The dry leaves murmur on tree and bush, On somber pines with boughs bent low, Forsaken nests are piled with snow. . . . . A CHRISTMAS CAROL

It came upon the midmght clear, That glorious song of old, From angels bending o'er the earth To touch their harps of gold; "Peace on the earth, good will to men, From heaven's all-gracious King." The world in solemn stillness lay To hear the angels sing.

For lo! the days are hastening on By prophet-bards foretold, When with the ever-circling years Comes round the age of gold; When peace shall over all the earth Its ancient splendors fling, And the whole world give back the so Which now the angels sing.

The other pairs split the work evenly, grinding away in desperation without any real hope of more than a minor place at the finish. The Georget brothers, said to be the least fit of any, always trailed in last position, relieving one another. Between 5 and 6 o'clock Walthour and Bedell, changing pace with Brent and Samuelson, took the bunch at an even twenty miles clip. For sixty minutes during which all of the twenty riders still in the race made frequent changes, the spurt continued without advantage to any. Little Coffey of the Boston kid team, both of whom are still in their teens, spilled on the hoo-doo turn shortly before 7 o'clock, but fell softly without taking anyone with him. Walthour in the front, jumped away just as the red flag went up. The Downey youth was his only competitor and the two discovered their mistake within

But "Bobby's" sprinting powers had gone a glimmering with the awful straining he was unable to shake off. McFarland and Moran also made up a little. There was a scurrying of half dressed riders from their bunks. Mettling and McDonald, with evelids half closed, were present on the track in the scramble and came near causing a bad spill. Instead of keeping the pole, Mettling veered up the bank and Bedell and McFarland and Moran passed between them thru a space barely wide enough to admit their handle bars. FEW TRAVELERS HERE

Bad weather and the approach of Christmas are responsible for the lightest register at the Fort Worth hotels Saturday night that has occurred for a long time. Saturday night business is usually slack here just before Christmas, but the rainy weather of Friday and aSturday lowered the number considerably. At Christmas time the commercial travelers, many of whom usually spend Sunday in Fort Worth are working their way back home in order to spend the holiday season with their families and as most of these come from the large cities in the northern part of the country, they have left Texas for a couple of weeks. Nearly all the hotels in the city had plenty of room for late comers Saturday night, which happens very seldom in Fort Worth. The delay of the interurban cars on account of the wire being down in Dallas also had something to do with the small number of guests.

SHOT HIGHWAYMAN THRU THE HEART

Mansfield

Special to The Telegram.

MANSFIELD, Ohio, Dec. 15.—Bertho Hollingshead, 25 years of age, held up the lower part of this city late last night and was shot thru the heart and killed by a policeman. He had broken into the Bredenstein hardware store and stolen eight revolvers. He held up John and William Lomax at the corner of Sixth and Franklin streets. John held up his hands and was robbed but the other ran. Hollingshead then held up a boy named Zimmerman and afterward held up Harry Wentz, a the head. The police then met Hollingshead and immediately fired on him. Three or four shots were exchanged. The highwayman was found afterward dead, having been shot thru the heart. MARY ANN LANDED HIM The vicissitudes of matrimony are many. Wednesday came and a fairer day had never been seen. Mary Ann took it very calmly. Thursday was wet, but Friday it poured. Mary Ann waited all day, but the unreliable swain did not come. Saturday the experience was repeated. "We might as well eat the wedding cake," said Mary Ann to the domestics, and, nothing loath, with much jesting they all went to it. Lo! on Sunday afternoon the lost lover arrived. Special to The Telegram. PITTSBURG, Pa., Dec. 15 .- Augustus Hartje today took an appeal from the decision of Judge Frazier in the divorce case of himself against his wife, Mrs. Mary Scott Hartje. The appeal is to the April term of the superior court and the case will be argued here during that term of court. Reports to the effect that detectives expect to arrest the writer of the famous matinee letters on charges of fergery and conspiracy brought the following statement from J. S. Scott, Ferguson, Mr. Hartje's counsel, today: "There is nothing we are more anxious for than to find the author of the matinee letters. If they are forgeries and we will pay $100,000 for the arrest and vindication of the forger. Mr. Hartje is ready to pay that sum of money for the arrest of the forger of the letters if he can be produced and I will make this offer valid by having him make it in writing."

She Changed Her Mind Polly was sure she did not like As she recalled it, she never had liked clergymen, she remembered, since she was a small child. They looked at one disapprovingly. And uncle's will was stupid, for he had inconsiderately left all his money to her and the Rev. Cyril Wayne, jointly, provided they married. "And I will not!" declared Polly, shaking her curls vigorously. She had quite made up her mind, even before she talked to the handsome stranger at Mrs. Metts' lawn party. They had been introduced, but as people so often do. Mrs. Metts had pronounced his name so mouthily that she had no idea what it was. Still he had asked to be allowed to call, and she had assented. The door bell rang. Polly knew her heart was beating faster as she went to meet him. Then they talked. Somehow, he had an ingratiating way with him (proba-

What Sulphur Does

For the Human Body in Health and

COSTS NOTHING TO TRY The mention of sulphur will recall to many of us the early days when our mothers and grandmothers gave us our daily dose of sulphur and molasses every spring and fall, It was the universal spring and fall "blood purifier," tonic and cureall, and, mind you, this old-fashioned remedy was not without merit. The idea was good, but the remedy was crude and unpalatable, and a large quantity had to be taken to get Nowadays we get all the beneficial effects of sulphur in a palatable, concentrated form, so that a single grain is far more effective than a tablespoonful of the crude sulphur, In recent years research and experiment have proven that the best sulphur for medicinal use is that obtained from Calcium (Calcium Sulphide) and sold in drug stores under the name of Stuart's Calcium Wafers. They are small chocolate coated pellets and contain the active medicinal principle of sulphur in a highly concentrated, ef-

Few people are aware of the value of this form of sulphur in restoring and maintaining bodily vigor and health; sulphur acts directly on the liver and excretory organs and purifies and enriches the blood by the prompt elimination of waste material. Our grandmothers knew this when they dosed us with sutphur and moasses every spring and fall, but the crudity and impurity of ordinary flowers of sulphur were often worse than he disease, and cannot compare with the modern concentrated preparations Wafers is undoubtedly the best and most widely used.

They are the natural antidote for liver and kidney troubles and cure constipation and purify the blood in a way that often surprises patient and physician alike.

Dr. R. M. Wilkins, while experimenting with sulphur remedies, soon found hat the sulphur from Calcium was superior to any other form. He says: "For liver, kidney and blood troubles, especially when resulting from constipation or malaria, I have been surprised at the results obtained from Stuart's Calcium Wafers. In patients ruffering from boils and pimples and even deep-seated carbuncles, I have repeatedly seen them dry up and disappear in four or five days, leaving the skin clear and smooth. Although Stuart's Calcium Wafers is a proprietary article and sold by druggists and for that reason tabooed by many physicians, yet I know of nothing so safe and reliable for constipation, liver and kidney troubles and especially in all forms of skin diseases as this

CHURCH BUILDING TO BE DEDICATED

Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock the cornerstone of the First Methodist church (South) will be laid. The site of the building is at the corner of Seventh and Taylor streets, and tho but little more than foundations are laid and all or the greater part of the basement work done, already the promise is made that it will be one of the finest church edifices in the state. The work of the new building was initiated under the pastorate of Rev. Alonzo Monk, and last July when the first dirt was thrown, which was the beginning of the actual construction work there were special ceremonies and services in which many of the ministers of the city and several of the city officials participated.

The oldest member of the congregation, W. H. Letchworth, had the privilege of breaking ground and of casting the first shovel full of dirt. Nearly all of the hundreds of people there took part in the ceremony. The work done to this time gives an idea of the ground plan and the walls, as far as they are reared, show something of the beauty of the material used in the construction. The new pastor, Rev. Hubert D. Knickerbocker, is much pleased with the promise in the build-

SMALL FIRE LOSS SATURDAY NIGHT

Ceremonies at First Methodist | Damage by Smoke and Water Saturday Night

> Fire was discovered, in the Continental Bank & Trust Company building, on the corner of Seventh and Houston streets, owned by the Fidelity Trust Company, at 10:30 o'clock Saturday night.

> The fire originated on the fourth floor of the building in room 412, occupied by the Security Mutual Life Insurance Company. The starting point was apparently in a lounge in the corner of the room, which was totally consumed. The fire spread from there into the walls of the building and smoldered for some time. Theory as to origin assigned either to a cigaret or cigar left there or to matches set

> Damage by water and fire, mostly by water, however, is estimated to be between $2,500 and $3,500. The damage was chiefly due to the fact that the fire was burning in between the walls or under the floor of the room in which it started, and consequently the firemen had to flood the building. The janitor of the Elks club rooms was sent to the fire by a number of the members, who were there, and he came running back, stating that the door of the room above was red hot. By this time the fire department arrived and chemicals were immediately carried to the fourth floor and a large hole was chopped in the top of the Elks club rooms to locate the fire, and thru this the water poured in a steady stream. Mops were kept busy and a great deal of damage thus

In the rooms of the Continental bank on the first floor, the only damage done was in the rear of the bank rooms, where the water dripped down the walls and spoiled some of the plaster of the ceiling and walls. Otherwise the bank escaped unharmed. Other offices on the first floor of the building escaped injury, altho nearly all of the offices on the second, third and fourth floors were damaged by smoke or water. Music in the studio of Rowland D. Williams, which is next door to the room in which the fire started, was also considerably damaged. The fire was declared out by the department at 11:50 o'clock, after burning a little over an hour.

It was just two years ago Saturday that the big fire in the Texas & Pacific station took place, which began about 2:30 o'clock, the building being damaged to the extent of about $25,000, and one man, working in the dispatcher's office, killed.

Young Lightweight Champions Travel Same Road

Down for the count and out for good! Six one-time lightweight topnotchers-Young Corbett, Kid Lavigne, Jimmy Britt, Frankie Neil. Eddie Hanlon and poor Terry McGovern. the only one over 30, and he has been down for years. Two of them are just past their teens. The rose strewn path and the flowing bowl did it in most cases. Added to this, the youngsters start in too early. They get terrific beatings before nature has made them rugged enough to withstand such treatment. They can stand it for a while, but the breakdown comes sooner or later. Then their careers are ended. They are old men just when they should be in their prime.

Take Terry McGovern. He donned the gloves at 18. At 21 he was the champion and had lost the title at 22 Within two years he was as near a physical wreck as is possible for a man to become and recover. Drink did it. He was sent to the hills to a retreat and came back looking fairly good. He was in the limelight again recently on the strength of the showing he made against Jimmy Britt and against Young Corbett in that sixround go at Philadelphia. But Terry could not stay good. Now he is in an asylum, guarded by three keepers. Instead of a padded ring it is a padded cell for Terry.

Then there is Young Corbett, whom Terry was matched to fight at Baltimore in January. He was fighting at 17. At 21 he was the best in the land. and looked good for years. But he was whipped by Jimmy Britt and has hit the toboggan hard ever since. He is only 26 now, but he is not even a second-rater any more, when it compe to a lightweight possibility. Gay

Yes, and Jimmy Britt. In the professional ring at 23, he had the championship belt safely stowed in his locker at 25. Only a year and a half later he took the count from Battling Nelson and has never had a look in

Eddie Hanlon was the youngest of them all when he started. He was only 15 at the time of his first victory. He battled his way up to the top until he met Young Corbett at 18. He got an awful drubbing in that fight and has been going backward ever since. He is only 21 now, but he can't stand a good hard punch. In fact, he is easy money for class two men. "Kid" Lavigne-the same kid who is trying to break into the easy money graft right now. He is one with a checkered career, too. Lavigne is now 36, but he has passed thru the same mill. He was fighting at 19 and was good for years. Dissipation has wrecked him at last and he was whipped four times in his 29th year. Since then he has gone the usual pace until the last few months, when he says he has straightened up. Frankie Neil, once king of the bantams, as game a little scrapper as ever landed a right to the jaw. But he started too soon. He was fighting at 17. He was whipped by Eddie Hanlon at 19, but was a good kid yet when he met and was defeated by Joe Bow-

KNITTING MILL SUSPECT THE MEDICINE Investigation of Death of Mrs. Minnie IN BANKRUPTCY Starkey Special to The Telegram.

Machinery Loaded on Cars Was Seized

Special to The Telegram. KINGSTON, N. Y., Dec. 15 .- Creditors petition in bankruptcy was filed in the United States district court before Judge Holt in New York Wednesday against the Hudson Valley mills, manufacturers of children's underwear, 50 Hasbrouck avenue, this city, by these creditors: C. B. Barker & Co., $63: Tefft, Weller & Wilt Vener Company, Richmond, Va.,

It is alleged that the corporation is insolvent; that it has removed property to Fort Worth, Texas; that several suits are pending against it; that atachments have been filed, and that it is indebted to employes for wages. The company intended to move its plant to Texas and a quantity of machinery which was loaded in the cars has been seized by Sheriff Webster under an attachment issued in the action brought by out-of-town parties to recover $16,000.

There are two actions pending in the city court in which attachments have been issued and the machinery attached in the mills at Hasbrouck avenue. One has been brought by Timothy Quillinan for $460 for wages and another by C. E. Powell for $480

Wednesday a chatel mortgage was filed in the county clerk's office, given by the Hudson Valley mills to the State National Bank of Fort Worth, Texas. It was given for $8,000 and covers the plant and machinery here, 5,000 acres of land near Longford, Ga., and thirty-eight acres in Tarrant county, near Fort Worth. The mortgage states that the plant and machinery are soon to be removed to Fort Worth.

The Kingston Nationa! Bank has a prior mortgage for $4,500 on the property. The Hudson Valley mills seemed o be prosperous, but it is claimed they were unable to fill orders because of he inability to get help. Judge Holt issued an injunction restraining all persons from inteferring with the property of the mills until further order of the court. This leaves the property in the possession of the sheriff and the city marshal until the trustee in bankruptcy is elected.

MANY BIRDS KILLED Hunters in Mexico Are Ordered Ar-

Special to The Telegram.

CITY OF MEXICO, Dec. 15.-Hunters who supply the millinery establishments in the United States with bird wings and feathers have become so numerous in Mexico and are slaughtering the wild birds of the country so rapidly that several governors of Mexican states have had to issue orders against any more hunting of all kinds. Birds were being killed by the hundreds and stripped of what was saleable to milliners and then left to decay in the woods. In some places in Mexico herons have been practically exterminated. Governor Pimental of Oaxaca, where the hunters have been particularly aggressive, has ordered all men, both native or foreign, caught killing birds to be arrested. He has also prohibited the shipment of either bird wings or feathers out of the state. Other governors are following his example

SIX MEN WERE BLOWN TO ATOMS

Premature Explosion of Charge of Dynamite

Special to The Telegram. CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Dec. 15 .--In an explosion of dynamite just across the North Carolina line twenty miles from Newport, Tenn., this afternoon, six men employed in the building of an extension of the Tennessee and North Carolina railroad were blown to atoms. A seventh man was seriously injured and may not recover. The victims were all white men and had families living in the immediate vicinity of the tragedy.

The dead: TIPP HALL, HAMILTON SUTHERLAND. ALFRED SUTTON. WILLIAM SUTTON.

Dick Watkins Had $40,000 on Rose at Twenty to One

Special to The Telegram NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 15 .- Rain affected everything at the races today, including the attendance. Twenty-nine bookmakers were doing business, and if they had only been game to take the money they would have reaped a harvest. The play was light on the first race, which was of the "shake-in-ahandbag" order.

But Dick Watkins, the well known trainer, was one of the lucky ones, having $40,000 on Rose Marion at 20 to 1. Troxler, on Spider Web, went up to the stand to make a protest in this race, but was dismissed quickly. The defeats of Athelte, in the Burley and O'Neil entry, and Wild Irishman, in their respective races, cost the big players and the public a lot of money. Before the races began Bob Tucker sold Athlete to Burley and O'Neil and that horse carried the pink and black colors. In the third race, Athelte showed up prominently for a while, but died away. The winner, Goldie, belonging to Ed Corrigan, was thrown in the handicap at 90 pounds, and led all the way. Yazd broke down badly in his ride and Goldie will be a sore horse tomorrow, as old Stone gave him a terrible kick at the starting post.

SHOULD VOTE FOR BAILEY OR RESIGN

Senator Was in San Antonio Saturday

Special to The Telegram. SAN ANTONIO, Dec. 15 .- Senator . W. Bailey left tonight for his home in Gainesville. During his stay here he was the guest of Colonel Joe Gunter, and received a number of callers, including Mayor Callaghan, who presented him with a large bouquet of roses, stating that he presented them "on behalf of the people of San Antonio, to show their confidence in and respect for the junior senator from Texas.

With the visit of Bailey discussion of the actions which have brought him into the lime light, was renewed and his reception could not be deemed enthusiastic, considering the fact that his coming had been heralded in the press. Out of a voting population of 15,000, less than 50 people did him honor. In conversation in the office of Colonel Gunter, Bailey said:

"Every member of the legislature has the right and power and the only honorable way of settling the matter of voting for or against me. If he is not prepared to vote for me he should resign his office and go before the people for re-election on that issue. Otherwise he violates a sacred trust reposed in him by the Democratic party and strikes a blow to disrupt the party organization. No executive committee should call new primartes or take action in the matter. To do so is to invite a breach of the party discipline."

Still in Touch With Pierce

During the conversation Bailey voluntarily said he had communicated with H. Clay Pierce concerning the present charges. He said: "I have a telegram from Mr. Pierce in which he says the vouchers in the hands of Davidson are forgeries. I have not used this because I do not wish to be put in the attitude of having to produce evidence to the people of Texas to substantiate my word. I believe that my statement that I have done no wrong is sufficient for the good people of Texas. When they have to have documentary evidence to prove the truthfulness of my statement I will leave the public service." In the telegram from Pierce he says he has examined the vouchers of which Davidson has copies and that they are pat-ent forgeries. He says in one of them my name has been scratched out and his written over it." He says that one other is also a forgery. "This is the reason I have never been able to get a peep at them." Bailey had nothing to say for

MRS. CORA B. MILLER MAKES A FORTUNE

Says She Will Now Give Away $10,000 Worth of Medicine to Women

Until a few years ago Mrs. Cora B.

Miller lived in a manner similar to that of thousands of other very poor women of the average small town and village. She now resides in her own palatial brown-stone residence, and is considered one of the most successful usiness women in the United States. Several years ago Mrs. Miller learned f a mild and simple preparation that would readily cure female diseases and piles. After curing herself and many of her friends she was besieged by so many women needing the treatment that she decided to furnish it to those who might call for it. She started with only a few dollars' capital, and the remedy, possessing true and wonderful merit, producing marvelous cures when doctors and other remedies failed, the demand grew so rapidly she was several times compelled to seek larger quarters. She now occupies one of the city's largest office buildings, which she owns, and almost one hundred clerks and stenographers are required to assist in this great busi-Million Women Use It used Mrs. Miller's Specific, and no matter where you live, she can refer you to ladies in your own locality who can and will tell any sufferer that this marvelous remedy really cures women's diseases. Despite the fact that Mrs. Miller's business is very extensive, she is always willing to give aid and advice to every suffering woman who writes to her. She is a generous, good woman and has decided to give away to women who have never used her medicine $10,000.00 worth absolutely FREE. Every woman suffering with leu-

Miller, Box 3293, Kokomo, Ind., and receive by mail (free of charge in plain wrapper) a 50-cent box of her marvelous Specific; also her valuable book.

Remember, this offer will not last long, for thousands and thousands of women who are suffering will take advantage of this generous means of getting cured. So if you are ailing, do not suffer another day, but send your name and address to Mrs. Miller for the book and medicine before the $10,-000.00 worth is all gone.

WHY TAKE BUSINESS HOME?

Are Your Nerves Constantly Strained with Groundless Worrles?

The cause of this tense condition is in your stomach. Your food does not digest properly. Nine-tenths of all dyspepsia and indigestion is of the nervous type and the only certain cure is to right the cause. Tonics, brain foods, bitters, etc., are mere temporary stimulants. Your stomach and small intestines have become deranged by improper selections of foods, imperfect mastication and irregularity

The mucous coating of the stomach and intestines has lost its power of secreting the gastric juice (an importent factor in digestion) the muscles of the middle coating are correspondingly lifeless in grinding up the food, and as a result, the food lies in your stomach fermenting, poisoning the blood irritating the nerves and breaking down the system.

Something must be done to arouse the digestive organs to action. Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets alone have been found capable of digesting the food for the unhealthy stomach. They contain diastase, pepsin and other digestive agents which the stomach itself possesses when in health. These agents digest the food for the stomach and give the stomach a chance to rest and regain its normal powers. Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are not a patent medicine, the formula for their preparation having been made public and known to 40,000 physicians in the United States and Great Britain. By government tests, Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets have been shown not only to contain no harmful ingredients, but to possess digestives of higher purity than found in any other preparation. Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are recommended by physicians everywhere and can be bought of any druggist or direct from the manufacturers at 50 cents per box. If preferred, a free trial package will be sent you immediately upon receipt of name and address. F. A. Stuart Co.,

No Opium

In Chamberlain's Cough Remedy This remedy is a favorite with the mothers of small children, as it contains no opium or other harmful substance and may be given to a baby as confidently as to an adult. It is pleasant to take, too, which is of much importance when medicine is to be given to small children.

As a cure for bad colds, croup, and whooping cough, it is unequalled and may be depended upon with the utmost confidence. Price 25c.; large size 50c.

Mrs. Adams Gives Out an Interview

Special to The Telegram.

NEW YORK, Dec. 15.—Mrs. Anna G. dams gave to a reporter today the turn from Washington in connection with the shooting of former Senator Arthur C. Brown, of Utah, by Mrs. Anna Bradley. When asked if she was acquainted with Mrs. Bradley, Mrs. Adams answered: "I can say that while I never saw Mrs. Bradley in my life, I have a great deal of sympathy

"Will you go to the assistance of Mrs. Bradley?" was the next ques-

"I don't mean to answer that question. I will say, as I have said before, that if I had been able to see her before the unfortunate affair I am sure it would never have happened." Regarding her reported engagement to Brown, Mrs. Adams said: "I was engaged to Senator Brown, out I was engaged with the understanding that our engagement should not be considered an engagement until he had made some sort of a settlement with Mrs. Bradley.

"I loved Senator Brown devotedly, notwithstanding his relations with Mrs. Bradley, but I insisted that he should make a settlement on Mrs. Bradley before the engagement should become PITTSBURG, Pa., Dec. 15.-"No woman should be compelled to live with her mother-in-law, even if she did agree to do so before marriage, and she has a perfect right to break that agreement. If I were a woman I would leave a man who tried to compel me to live with his mother.' Judge J. A. Evans was righteously ndignant and expressed his opinion in regard to the mothers-in-law in no gentle terms. The occasion was the hearing of a desertion and non-support case brought against George H. Smith by his wife. The wife testfied that she had been compelled from the ime they were married to live with smith's mother. She said that in ddition to his mother there was also a married brothe in the house with his wife and that while she was not abused and her husband gave her some money every week, that yet it was extremely disagreeable. Smith said his wife refused to do any work in the house. Then Judge Evans delivered himself of the quotation above. He closed the case by ordering Smith to pay his wife $10 a week.

PROSPERITY OF TEXAS SHOULD MAKE ALL HAPPY FOR MONDAY

"Open the Doors of Opportunity to Talent and Virtue, and They Will Do Themselves Justice."-Emerson.

BY F. P. HOPKINS

At this yuietide all Texans should | smaller tracts and sold to farmers who be inspired with thanksgiving and happiness. And, today so many people of the sovereign state of Texas look back with pride upon the road of prosperity, following which, they have accumulated wealth and achieved merited success.

Ralph Waldo Emerson wisely said: "Wealth brings with it its own checks and balances. Open the doors of opportunity to talent and virtue, and they will do themselves justice, and prosperity will be in good hands. In a free and just commonwealth property rushes from the idle and imbecile to the industrials, brave and persever-The unprecedented prosperity and progress of Texas can hardly be realized until statistics are cited, but figures at best, are tiresome. In every enterprise, in every channel of endeavor the prosperity and wonderful success of Texas agriculture has been Just now no financial statistics so ommand the attention of Texans as hose of cotton. Laying aside the views of what cotton prices will or should be, a study of Texas' part of the cotton drama most assuredly imoues confidence in the hearts of the eaders in almost every Texas enter-

Whatever the yield or whatever may be the prices for the balance of the Texas crop, the surprising revenue from the production of cotton in Texas means a magnificent surplus over the cost of production. When one considers the small cost of producing cotton in Texas; the big increase in this season's crop in Texas, which the decrease in the other portions of the belt; and the fact that the world will require all of the season's growth of good grades of the staple; it is easy to understand the immense revenue resulting to Texas producers of the chief staple of the southland.

Cotton is only one of the industries extensively pursued in Texas at so small a cost and such an excellent net revenue and profit All of this brings home to us the fact that Texas lands have not yet eached the level of their actual intrinsic value, and that big advances nust necessarily take place next year and during the years immediately folwing. The plain and simple ecoomic analysis is that Texas lands are ower in proportion to their actual producing powers than any others in he whole United States. Eastern capitalists are satisfied with per cent income. Texas can conserely guarantee two or three times that percentage on investments.

years ago, North Fort Worth now claims for itself and adjacent suburbs a population of 10,000 souls, and besides its many businesses incident to a thriving town in the way of retail stores, groceries, markets, clothing stores, restaurants, hotels and kindred ventures, it boasts the successful management of two national banks, two ice and one cold storage plants, three elevators, one marble and monument works, one overall factory, one creamery and ice cream factory, one steam laundry, one electric light plant, a horse and mule market (the largest south of St. Louis), eight churches, a paid fire department, two electric trunk lines of street railway, an artesian system of water supply unsurpassed, representing $100,000 investment, and a residence section that is the pride of Tarrant county, as a brief description of Grand avenue will indicate. This thorofare is ten feet higher than the second story of the court house. It is the highest point in North Fort Worth. The Trinity valley flanks this to the west, forming Belmont Terrace Addition, affording a magnificent prospect and view for miles, and unsurpassed residence sites by anything n this county. NEW CHARTER IS COMPLETE

Work of Citizens' Committee Has Concluded

MAKES CHANGES

Provides for Commission Form of Government and Other Details Not in Charter

The general, or citizens' committee. as it is sometimes called, charged with making up a new charter for the city of Fort Worth, has completed its work, and a summary of the more radical changes from the present charter includes the following:

The establishment of a commission form of government for the city, the bedy of commissioners to be five in number, one of whom is designated the mayor or chairman of the board.

They are to be elected at large by the qualified voters of the city and may be divided into classes Nos. 1, 2, 3 and 4, without there being any, particular assignment of work being meant by that classification.

The commissioners are to get $3,000 a year, except the chief commissioner or mayor, who is to have a salary of $3,600 a rear.

There is no limit to the powers of the commissioners that may be conferred by act of the legislature, and some of those are the right to hold property for the city, to acquire property, to provide for the public utilities, such as water, street lighting, etc.; the power to acquire all of the public utilities in the city; to regulate street railways in every conceivable particuher; to borrow money; to issue bonds for specified purpose, and to do generally all that a municipal corporation can do, and more too, if the general

grant of power holds, The mayor must be a property holder, as well as a resident of the city for at least three years prior to the

The qualified voters of the city have the right to express their wishes on the new charter after it is adopted by the legislature, and if they do not approve the charter falls.

The following summary gives some of the more important parts of the charter as finally amended, without going into more than the general features of the very long new charter as it is finally agreed on by the com-

One of the much discussed features was the referendum, which provides for the submission of any general ordinance or franchise to the voters of the city for approval or rejection, proided the demand for such submission is made by voters of the city to the number equal to 20 per cent of the vote cast at the last general election, and such demand will suspend the operations of the ordinance or franchise until the result of the election is determined. The charter provides for the continued liability of the city for all indebtedness existing at the time of the adoption of the new charter, that is there is nothing that savors of repudiation of any kind of debt will be considered. Provision is made for the ratification of the new charter by a vote of the people, thirty days' notice of the election being given. The governing body is to be mayor, who is sometimes styled chairman, and four commissioners. The departments are to be administered by about the same number and styled officials as at present. The mayor is required to make a

$5,000 bond, payable to the county judge, and there is an "anti-salary grab" feature, which prevents the one whose salary may be advanced benefitting by that increase during his term of office.

One clause which excited considerable inquiry was the one that provides for the institution of proceedings to remove an incompetent or wrong-doing commissioner from office. The initiative may be taken by five citizens of Fort Worth, unless, in specified instances, other officials act. The commissioners have the power to remove other officials from office when the good of the service requires it. Vacancies in the commissionerships are to be filled by election by the people, unless less than six months intervene between such vacancy and the time for the general election.

Division of Nork

The division of the work is thus eral supervision of the police and fire matters with powers to employ men and to discharge them; another to have charge of streets and public property; another to have charge of finance and revenue. The mayor may assign the duties of each commissioner and change them at pleasure or when the good of the service seems to require it, provided the commissioner is assigned to other duties. A financial statement of the expenditures and receipts of the city nust be made four times a year, condition of bonded debt and all. One provision which excited inquiry is that which provides for the grant of an emergency fund of $1,000 to the mayor to be used at his discretion, tho an accounting is to be made. No intoxicating liquor sale license is to be issued to a saloon located on the same block as a public school nor within 400 feet of the said school grounds. Many of the sections are the same as in the present charter, as for instance the one relating to the corpora.

The charter is made a general law for the reason that such a provision is required to prevent the charter being construed as a local law. The provision providing for the closing of saloons at nights and on Sundays is identical with the terms of an interview had with Mr. Baskin and published in The Telegram about two onths ago. It provides saloons shall unless it first declares its purpose so to do and provides so to do by ordinance setting forth the price, terms and conditions of sale, purchase or lease by ordinance, and such ordinance shall be subject to the provisions of the referendum herein provided for."

Elective Officers

The elective officers of the corporation, under the commission charter, are to be the city attorney, city recorder and the tax assessor and col-

An effort to make the city secretary elective failed. The city plumber and the city electrician are made charter officers, so they will not be under the control of the water works secretary. The maximum salary of the recorder, or corporation judge, was fixed at $900 per year, the commission to decide how much of that amount he shall be paid. An effort to increase the proposed salaries of the mayor and the commissioners to $5,000 and $4,000 respectively failed.

The mayor is given a vote on all questions and not merely a vote in Provision is made for keeping a record of all claims filed and the disposition of the same.

The provision which is intended to prevent any grafting is so extended that it prohibits the acceptance of "complimentary payments or gifts" before or after one's term of service, as well as during his term of service. Impeachment of any officials, or official, if every found necessary, may be done by the majority of the commission, that is by three affirmative

The adoption of the "recall" feature. which provides that if the qualified voters of the city are dissatisfied with the actions of one of the elective officers of the city they may be petitioned for an election, passed on the demand of 20 per cent of the qualified voters of the city. The accused officer is to be named as a candidate, as a matter of right, unless he specifically declines to let his name be so used. and if he gets a majority of the votes it is a vindication. If any other person gets a majority vote he is to be declared elected in the place of the official thus "recalled."

The amount of tax to be levied specifically for the benefit of the Carnegie library is 2c on the $100 of valuation, the commissioners to say what proportion of that possible amount should be levied in any one

There was some opposition to the general idea of a poll tax and that was finally compromised by the adoption of the provision that the total amount collected, on account of polls, should go to the city public school funds. After the general provision, much as they are in the present charter, relating to the duty of the tax assessor to levy taxes, to examine persons as to property qualifications under oath, the commissioners are made the board of equalizers and they are required to complete their work in sixty changed or increased at the demand of the commissioners. Provision is made for the conduct of the affairs of the office if the new bond is demanded for that would work a suspension of the collector from office until the new bond was approved.

The salary of the collector and assessor is fixed at $2,500 a year, with lease any public utility or real estate I certain fees for the collection of personal taxes, which latter shall not exceed $1,000.

A provision is incorporated which it is hoped will have the effect of making taxes a preferred and collectable ien on any assigned, transferred in bulk, stock of goods, bankrupt stock,

Provision is made for the transfer of any surplus city funds left over after all claims against the special funds are satisfied, from any special fund to the general fund. Under existing laws the only use that can be made of a special fund now is the purpose for which the levy is made, no matter if there are no pending or possible claims against the fund. Provision is made for the levy of franchise taxes on all corporations at any time after 1908. Any one convicted of any kind of misappropriation of the funds of the city is forever debarred from holding city office. A reserve of $25,000 for extraordinary demands is provided for, and the unexpected balance, if any, may be used to make up the next year's re-

No department is authorized to exeed in its expenditures the estimated revenue for its department.

May Borpow Money

Permission to borrow money for current expenses is given, the uncolected taxes being pledged as collateral the limit being $10,000. The maximum tax rate is fixed at $1.75 on the $100 of valuation. The discount allowed for prompt payments may be as much as 3 per cent if the payments are made in October and 2 per cent if made in November, and the penalty of 5 per cent interest begins to run on all taxes unpaid by Feb. 1. An effort, will be made to provide for the collection of license or taxes on those who are not named as liable to such taxes in the state law, if that is found practical, of which there is great doubt expressed. No mortgage can be levied or placed on any of the public utilities without the fullest publicity and by a direct vote of the people.

One of the most important provisons approved was that which permits the issuance of city bends to the amount of $150,000 a year, beginning in 1908 and continuing to and incluling 1911, of which sum $50,000 a year may be used in providing new schools and $100,000 for the permanent pavement of streets. The provision makes the issuance of the total amount permissive and not imperative. The bonds are to be 5 per cent bonds, and must not be sold for less than par.

There is but little change from the present regulations with reference to the police and fire departments. The chiefs of those departments are to be appointees of the commission and the men under them are to be the nominees of the chiefs with the confirmation right reserved to the commission. An assistant in either department may be appointed if the commission deems

The police commissioner can vote of the commission can remove the chiefs. The chiefs have the power to temporarily suspend the men for cause in either department. The schools are placed under the almost absolute control of the board of seven trustees and the first Saturday in May next an election is to be held for the election of the seven trustees at large that election to be ordered by the city council if it is still in existence, or by the commission, if the latter body has assumed the direction of city affairs.

we will have a solicitor call.

The school trustees are to be vested with power to fix the amount of the tax rate for schools, provided the total of 50 cents on the $100 of valuation is not exceeded. The total city tax rate is fixed at $1.75 on the hundred dollars, and it is stated explicitly that the total named shall be inclusive of the one-half 1 per cent which may be levied by the school board. The present rate for schools is one-fourth of 1 per cent, or 25 cents on the $100 of valuation. The school trustees are to be debarred from incurring any debts in excess of the estimated revenues from the school tax or in excess for school buildings and grounds of the amount which may accrue to its uses from the sale of bonds elsewhere authorized, The commission can appoint its own president, vice president and secretary and these officers and the trustees are to serve without pay, except that the secretary may be paid a sum not exceeding $25 per month. No one connected with the school board in any capacity, as teachers or in any other way, can be interested in any kind of school books or supplies, and the establishment of the fact there is an interest of the kind vacates, per se, the position held.

After the election of the school trustees, as provided for, they are to draw for the terms, and those who for one year each and the others are to serve for two years each, and then alternately, in May of each year, the four or three trustees are to be elected. The trustees have control of the elections, appoint presiding officers, etc., tho the elections must be under the

'KEEP OFF THE GRASS' Large Sign on the Lawn of the City

An improvement which will be commended by every one, has been ordered at the city hall. A large sign has been placed on the lawn, where every one having business with the police department or any other branch of the city service, as has been in the habit of cutting across the grass, until a deep path has been worn. Now the forgetful one who starts to make the short cut is met by the sign, "Keep off the Grass. By Order of the Mayor.'

Presents Saturday was one of the heaviest days in line of check business that, has ever been done by the banks in the city. The volume of business done was exceedingly heavy, but chiefly in the matter of small checks, almost every depositor in the city needing money for Christmas presents. A large amount of the check business done on Saturday will not, however, be apparent for some time, as in many cases the purchases were paid for by check and these will not be deposited with the bank until Monday. The teller at one of the banks made the statement at the close of hours on Saturday that about every depositor in the bank had been in to see him. The same teller paid out $4,000 ; in silver dollars thru the window on

HEADQUARTERS OF MANY MAIL CLERKS

How to Get a Place in the Service

Fort Worth probably has more railbounds than any other city in the Atlanta, which is also headquarters of a division. The number of mail clerks, while already large, is getting larger and larger every week and many others who are not in the service, are wishing to join it.

The question has been asked many times by these latter as to how they can become mail clerks and what is necessary before they can enter the

To become a clerk in the railway maii service, one must first write direct to the civil service commission in Washington, D. C., requesting the examination blanks for the office sought, and these papers should be returned to the officers from whom they emanated. A specimen set of questions will be furnished by the commissioner upon request, and the examinations are held twice a year in every state and territory at fixed places, and all examinations relate as nearly as possible to the duties to be performed. One of the tests of a railway mail clerk is an exercise in reading manuscript

When a vacancy occurs in the service the next man is promoted and so leaving the bottom place on the list vacant. This is where the new man is assigned. The selection for the apreintment is made by the civil service commission in Washington, taking the name from among those highest on the list of eligibles. The top man is taken if the position to which the man is to be assigned is near his home. Often, however, when a large number of clerks have just been appointed from one section the new appointment will fall to a man in another section. There are many other things which are taken into consideration by the civil service in the matter of appointments.

Charcoal Kills Bad Breath

Disagreeable Odor Arising From Indigestion or From Any Habit or Indulgence, Can Be Instantly Stopped

Sample Package Mailed Free

Other people notice your bad breath where you would not notice it at all. It is nauseating to other people to stand before them and while you are talking, give them a whiff or two of your bad breath. It usually comes from food fermenting on your stomach. Sometimes you have it in the morning -that awful sour, bilious, bad breath. You can stop that at once by swallowing one or two Stuart Charcoal Lozenges, the most powerful gas and odor absorbers ever prepared.

Sometimes your meals will reveal themselves in your breath to those who alk with you. "You've had onions," or You've been eating cabbage," and all of a sudden you belch in the face of your friend. Charcoal is a wonderful absorber of odors, as every one knows, That is why Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges are so quick to stop all gases and odors of odorous foods, or gas from indigestion. Don't use breath perfumes. They never conceal the odor, and never absorb the gas that causes the odor. Besides, the very fact of using them reveals the reason for their use. Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges in the first place stop for good all sour brash and belching of gas, and make your breath pure. fresh and sweet, just after you've eaten. Then no one will turn his face away from you when you breathe or talk; your breath will be pure and fresh, and besides your food will taste so much better to you at your next meal. Just try it.

Charcoal does other wonderful things, too. It carries away from your stomach and intestines, all the impurities there massed together and which causes the bad breath. Charcoal is a purifier as well as an absorber.

Charcoal is now by far the best, most easy and mild laxative known. A whole boxful will do no harm; in fact, the more you take the better. Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges are made of pure willow charcoal and mixed with just a faint flavor of honey to make them palatable for you, but not too sweet. You just chew them like candy. They are absolutely harmless. Get a new, pure, sweet breath, freshen your stomach for your next meal, and keep the intestines in good working order. These two things are the secret of good health and long life. You can get all the charcoal necessary to do these wonderful but simple things by getting Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges. We want you to test these little wonder workers yourself before you buy them. So send us your full name and address for a free sample of Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges. Then after you have tried the sample, and been convinced, go to your druggist and get a 25c box of them. You'll feel better all over, more comfortable, and Send us your name and address today and we will at once send you by mail a sample package, free. Address F. A. Stuart Co., 60 Stuart Bldg., Mar-

DOUBLE CAPACITY

Present Plant of Ice Company Operated One Year

After running one year, with a fortyton ice plant, the Ballard Ice Com pany, which is located on Lake and Daggett avenue, has started work installing a plant to double the capacity before the ice season again opens. At the same time the company is installing a fifty-car cold storage plant on the second and third steries of the

The present plant has been in operation only a year. At the time the building was built it was made large enough to install the forty-ton addition and the cold storage plant whenever necessary, altho it was not considered that the business would demand this increase within such a short time. The improvements in the plant will be ready about April 1. The cost of installing them is not announced, but it is known that they are being put in at considerable expense.

HELD FOR HORSE THEFT

Negro Was Arrested on Suspicions,

Which Were Correct Jonas Jones, colored, was arrested by the city police on suspicion and but a little later it was learned, by a phone inquiry from Midlothian, that a team had been stolen from that place. Saturday the owner, Mr. Robinson, came here, identified the team and recovered his property. The darkey said he had sold the team, but had not been paid any money yet. He was sent to the county on a horse theft charge.

CHANGE IN TIME ON FRISGO LINE

Dallas to Kansas City Trains Taken Off

New time cards of the Rock Island and the Frisco railroads go into effect today. Trains Nos. 35 and 36 of the Rock Island, which have hitherto been running from Dallas to Kansas City and vice versa will be taken off and instead trains Nos. 17 and 18 will run between Chickasha and Fort Worth as locals. This taking off of the Kansas City trains and the stopping of the other train here, while not diminishing the number of trains of Fort Worth, will cut off one train a day each way between Fort Worth and Dallas and will leave three trains on that line. Changes in the Rock Island schedule are as follows: No. 17 will leave Chickasna at 4 a. m. and will arrive in Fort Worth at 11:30 a.m. Returning No. 18 will leave Fort Worth at 6:40 p. m. and will arrive at Chickasha at 2:10 a. m. Changes on the Frisco will be as follows: The Meteor from St. Louis will arrive here at 3:25 p. m., instead of 4:45, in order to connect with the train over the Fort Worth and Rio Grande to Brady, which leaves at 3:45 p. m. The Meteor out of For Worth will leave at 10 a. m. instead of 9:25 a. m. altho the thirty-five minutes lost will be made up before arriving at St. Louis, giving service that much shorter. Twenty minutes of the time will be made up before Denison is reached. Other changes on the Fort Worth and Rio Grande are as follows: The noon train from Brady will arrive at 12:40 p. m. instead of 11:55 a. m., as at present, while No. 12 will arrive at a. m., instead of 6:20 a. m.

Several changes in time will become effective on the Frisco today. The Meteor, northbound, will leave Fort Worth for St. Louis at 9:25 a. m. instead of 10:00 as now.

The southbound Meteor will arrive at 3:25 p. m. instead of 4:50 p. m., as now. There is also a change in the time of arrival and departure of the Brownwood trains. No. 9 will leave for Brownwood at 3:45 p. m. instead of 3 clock p. m., as now. No. 10 will arrive from Brownwood at 12:40 p. m. instead of 11:55 a. m., as now. Train No. 11 will leave for Brownwood at the same time as now, 1:55 a. m. Train No. 12 will arrive from Brownwood at 7 a. m. instead of 6:20 a. m., as now.

SERVICE DISCONTINUED

Rock Island Cuts Off Trains Because of Rains The Chicago, Rock Island & Gulf

Railway Company has issued this cir-"On account of conditions resulting from prolonged and excessive rains we have arranged to temporarily discontinue operation of trains Nos. 35 and 26 tive Sunday, December 16. On same date we will inaugurate local service instead between Fort Worth and Chickasha." The train will leave Chickasha at 4 a. m. and arrive at Fort Worth at 11:30 a. m. Returning the train will leave Fort Worth at 6:40 p. m. and arrive at

Chickasha at 2:10 a. m. There will be no changes in the schedules of the other trains. Trains Nos. 3 and 4 on the Amarillo division are discontinued, temporarily, and, beginning with today, train No. 1 will arrive at Amarillo at 3:55 p. m. and train No. 2 will leave Amarillo at

In this day of unprecedented prosperity and enterprise and keen competition, it does one good to note the success of a man who, by right doing and square dealing, clean cut business methods and industry and perseverance, has earned success and won the confidence of his entire trade. Bowden Tims, the well known Fort Worth lumberman, has recently established a large lumber yard and offices at North Fort Worth, 1040 Main street. Mr. Tims has also added a new department to his growing business, viz, building homes on easy payments. It is a good conservative plan that will aid materially in the upbuilding and actual home owning of Fort Worth and Norta Fort Worth, where so much building is in immediate prospect. The importance of this enterprise can not be emphasized too strongly. The success of it is more than assured, because Mr. Tims has undertaken it. A complete stock of building material, a fair and square dealer of conservatism and judgment, sufficient capital and unbounded industry-that tells the importance of it, in a nut-

MISSING JEWELS FOUND IN SEWER

Negroes Charged With Stealing Gems Are Arrested

During the absence of the family of day, a negro who had worked about the place stole jewelry, chiefly diamonds, valued at about $1,500, and about $100 in money.

The articles were not missed until Friday, and then a notification was sent to police headquarters.
Suspecting a missing yard man by the name of Albertus Green, aged 17, colored, a detective located him and had him arrested at Temple last night. He was brought in Saturday morning and at 10:20 o'clock he was locked up in the calaboose with a burglary charge against him.

About a thousand dollars worth of the stolen jewelry was recovered from Green when he was arrested at Temple and from Jess Edwards, colored, aged 23, practically all of the balance was recovered, there being a diamond ring valued at $100 still missing. The charge against Edwards is receiving stolen property. Edwards also had over $50 in money when he was arrested. It was a matter of information to the police that some of the jewelry had been thrown down a sewer at the Santa Fe union station, and from that it was recovered, City Marshal Maddox stated to a Telegram reporter on Saturday. That leaves the value of the missing jewels about as stated, $100.

BIDS SUBMITTED FOR MACHINERY

Council to Decide on Waterworks Expenditures

Several weeks ago the water works department was authorized to bid for the additional machinery necessary to perfect the water supply of the city, even if there was the expected increase in the demand for water by the patrons of the city water works. It was then estimated that the cost of the improvements in the service would be about $50,000 and twenty thousand or so of that sum would go for the pipe.

The bids for the piping has already been submitted and acted upon. Saturday the bids for the compressor machinery were opened and the contract awarded for the machinery necessary to make the service complete, subject of course, to the approval of the city council, the that will naturally follow the favorable report which the committee on the water works can make after the consideration given to the bids in the several sessions held Saturday. The work of the committee began about 2 o'clock and, with a recess of about two hours for supper, continued until 10:30 p. m. Then the bid of the Laidlaw, Dunn, Gordon Company of Cincinnati, Ohio was decided to be the best and the report of the committee will favor the acceptance of that bid. The bid of that company was made by Ramsey Skinner of St. Louis, the western representative of the company, who has Texas included in his territory. The amount of the bid is There were but two bids for the machinery complete, but there were others for the machinery alone, that is for the machinery not erected. There are now installed and in use at the upper water supply of the city two compressors of this same company, one a 1,200 cubic feet unit with a 30-inch stroke and the other a 1,800 cubic feet unit with a 36-inch stroke, the stroke being in general term the measure of the efficiency of the machinery. The new compressor is to be a 3,000 cubic feet unit with a 48-inch stroke, an additional power which will vastly increase the efficiency of the machinery for the purpose designed. The bids will be submitted to the council Monday with the favorable report for the Laidlaw, Dunn, Gordon

Company compressors. McCLURE'S "TRUTHFUL" HISTORY

It will be for those who have had ne supper and are not able to buy any. All such can get a hot cup of coffee and sandwich by coming to the Rescue Mission hall at 207 East Fifteenth street, from 10 p. m. to 12, without money and without price. This is something new for Fort Worth in the way of mission work, but with our fourteen years' experience in dealing with hungry men we have found that the way to a hungry man's heart is thru his stomach; or, in other words, our mission is to help the helpless and unfortunate ones. This plan has been in successful operation in the cities in the north and east for several years. In the Bowery mission this is its fourth year and more than 144,000 poor hungry men and women have been fed who didn't have any money to buy with.

Any contribution from the kind peo-"ple of Fort Worth or Texas will be very thankfully received. Send your donations for this and for all other purposes for the Rescue Mission to either of the following named gentlemen: Floyd McChesney, president; W. C. W. McKee, vice president; J. J. CLAIM DEMANDS UNJUST

Diplomat Advises Government to Open Trans-Baikal District to International Commerce

Special to The Telegram. ST. PETERSBURG, Dec. 15 .- The war scare is growing. St. Petersburg thinks Japan's defiant attitude indicates that the mikado wants war. It said that when a Japanese and a ussian in Vladivostok quarreled the Japanese consul demanded that the commanding officer, General Pflug, make a public apology or the city would be bombarded. General Pflug demands in Manchuria are equally unjust and humiliating, practically amounting to Russia's abdication of sovereignty in the trans-Baikal and Amur districts. The Chinese Eastern railroad is even carrying Japanese wares at reduced rates. Count Witte told the czar that the treaty did not include anything warranting the present Japanese preten-tions, yet he advised the negotiations. Count Witte's colleague says that Baron Komura read the text of the treaty and admitted its exactness. An influential diplomat advises the government to open the trans-Baikal

While the kaiser is helping Russia to get a new loan and is encouraging Germans to buy Russian consols, Banker Mendelssohn has organized a Franco-German syndicate for the same purpose. France alone would be unable to enforce payment in case of bankruptcy, but with the aid of Germany it can compel Russia to pay. Hence the success of the new loan is assured. The press does not expect any help from America but hopes for sympathetic neutrality, pointing out that if America and Europe refuse Japan credit and ammunition, war will be impossible.

The depot is crowded so that there are only two seats left for passengers to sit down in while waiting to take the train. A small portion of the depot is taken up with coffins, which have been allowed to remain there for several days on account of some kind of mistake between the shipper and the party to whom they were consigned. There may be a connecting link between coffins and whisky, especially the brand of whisky that is usually shipped on C. O. SHORTAGE MAKES SHIPPERS SUFFER

No Cars to Move Cattle From Western Texas

FORT STOCKTON, Texas, Dec. 15 .-The effect of a long period of mist and snow has been decidedly bad upon the people of this section in its pecuniary effects. They are already in trouble, owing to the car famine on the Texas & Pacific road. That road practically carried to market all the beef cattle of Pecos county, and when the shortage of service on it caused shippers to have to hold their cattle two weeks or more at the railroad before securing transportation then the situation began to be serious. Possibly $60,000 worth of fat cattle were ready in the county for shipment and a shortage of that much revenue this fall would surely be felt. Still there was hope that a mild fall would keep the cattle in shipping condition until January, and that the car or engine famine on the Texas & Pacific Railway might be relieved in time to ship out this stock in good marketable condition. But there came the two weeks of cold, snowy, misty, sleety weather, and the fattest cattle began to lose flesh beyond hope of recovery so late in the season. And on top of all the car and engine famine seems to become greater. At the railroad, with cattle awaiting shipment, are Livingston Brothers, Shipton Parks and E. W. Mc-Kenzie, who have been awaiting shipment more than ten days. Besides these there were many other parties in this neighborhood who had gathered cattle ready for shipment, who have now turned them loose in despair of shipping. About 4,000 head have thus missed shipment and the loss in annual income to this section is no light

Mrs. Hester went into the closet after it, and the door, which fastened by a spring catch on the outside, closed on her. She was alone in the house, and shouted for help. The door being tightly closed, muffled the sound and prevented her voice from being heard any distance. A neighbor, Mrs. Lawrence, finally heard her shouts for help, and went to her assistance.

Mrs. Miller, trembling with weak-

"I want my daughter," said Mrs. Miller, "Tell me where she is," "I'll do nothing of the sort," said Kuhn. He violently pushed her away and slammed the door. There was a locking of bolts and no further knocking or ringing could bring the doctor to the front. Mrs. Miller and relatives immediately applied to the court for a search warrant. While they were doing this Dr. Kuhn barred and barricaded the house. "If anybody gets in here, it will be by tearing down the house," he said. It has been discovered that Miss Miller and Dr. Kuhn spent several weeks in Camden, and that while there the girl made a will in his favor, leaving him everything. The relatives assert that the physician hypnotized the girl. They believe her to be either a prisoner in the house or buried there. Dr. Kuhn asserts that she is alive and well and will appear when she becomes his wife.

$130,000 PROFIT

Bought Land at $2.25 and Sold It for $4.00

A profit of nearly $130,000 was made by William Hunt of Roanoke, Va., in one year by the sale of the Cots land of 84,645 acres in Bailey county. This property was purchased just a year ago by Mr. Hunt, when on a pleasure trip to Texas, for $2.25 an acre. Since that time he has never been back to Texas, and now the land has been sold for $4 an acre.

The property was purchased thru the Winters-Daniel company of this city for a total of $343,379 by W. H. Garrett and others of Portales, N. M. The land lies on the border of Texas and New Mexico, about twenty miles southeast of Texico and consists of smooth plains land suitable fo either grazing or farming. It is located at an altitude of 2,800 feet and is just south of the Big Syndicate pasture.

At the time of the purchase of the land, which Mr. Hunt did thru the Winters-Daniel company also, he paid $65,000 down and during the year made two payments, one of which he did not have to make, the total amount paid being $90,000. By the sale of the property he made a net profit of $131,958. At the time he made the purchase he was assured that the land would bring him a profit of $100,000, but it was not expected that he would make this within a year.

GOLD IN BANK

(From the Live Stock Reporter.) It is rare that this paper steps aside to call attention in its reading columns to an advertisement in any of its columns, nor will it permit an irresponsible advertiser to use its columns if it is known that such is a fact. In this instance our object is to call attention to the diamond ad of the J E. Mitchell Company in this issue. Not that there is anything extraordinary in the ad, but the fact that for the last twenty-six years this firm has been before the people of Texas, selling them diamonds and jewelry every day in the year except Sunday, at the actual value of the gems. They indulge in no excuse for selling, except that it is their business. They never sell to move, nor move to sell, nor has their record ever shown an excuse for selling a diamond or piece of jewelry under force or a misfortune. They're in the business regularly all the timebuy and sell that way. A diamond or any other article of jewelry bought there is sold at a reasonable price, is guaranteed and the guarantee is not for a few days, or a few weeks, but for its natural time. This notive to prospective jewelry and diamond buyers is written in their interest but i not a paid advertisement

The stockmen over Texas are as a rule, the heaviest buyers of diamonds, and this year as usual, there is an effort being made to "catch the diamond money" with the usual hard-luck story of "my misfortune is your good luck." It is pleasant in this connection to note that in twenty-six years of good times and bad times, the J. E. Mitchell Jewelry Company has been before the public offering and selling diamonds and jewelry at their actual market value, with no hard-luck or closingsale dodge-just a straight proposition to sell any diamond or piece of jewelry for its actual value, and if not as represented your money refunded next day, next week, or next year. It is a common fact that this firm in authority on diamonds. If a purchaser is in dougt as to the weight or value of diamond, regardless of where bought, he takes it to Mitchell and has it weighed and valued, and his weight and value are standard, either with the miner or the retail buyer or seller. If you buy a diamond from Mitchell, it's as represented in weight and

Do not infer from this free notice that Mitchell is the only reliable diamond and jewelry merchant in Fort Worth. There are others, and you will see their advertisements in this paper. This story is written to stockmen, who have traded in Fort Wroth for the last twenty years, and is entirely for their interest. When you buy from Mitchell, the merit and worth is as stable as gold in the bank.

NEW MEDICINE CO.

Imperial Remedy Company of Houston Has Been Enlarged

Special to The Telegram. HOUSTON, Texas, Dec. 15 .- The stockholders of the Imperial Medicine Company of Houston, which was recently incorporated with a capital stock of $20,000, met here this week for the purpose of electing a board of directors and officers.

Messrs. G. F. Stenzel, G. T. Morse, R. L. Jenkins, L. S. Webster and B. F. Louis were elected director. G. F. Stenzel was made president and general manager; R. L. Jenkins, vice president; G. T. Morse, secretary and reasurer; B. F. Louis, attorney.

This company is quite well known to the people of Texas as the manufacturers of the well-advertised Imperial Remedy. They have developed an immense business, not only in Texas, but thruout the United States, their goods being sold in over twenty states and territories. Imperial Remedy, which is considered one of the greatest cures for skin diseases now on the market, is made from the prescription of a physician, now dead, who some years ago had an immense practice in this state. The remedy the company places on the market is used by many physicians on this account, not being considered what is generally termed a patent medicine. It cures every form of eczema, tetter, and, in fact, has been found a splendid remedy for any and every character of skin disease.

INEZ, Ky., Dec. 15.-Mrs. Julia Booth, living on Big Elk creek, six miles east of here, was lodged in jail at this place today charged with the murder of Esau Harris, their next door neighbor. Young Harris and William Booth, it is stated, were the best of friends. Thursday night Harris accepted an invitation to spend the night with Booth. While sitting around the hearthstone Mrs. Booth raised the question of cowardice and said that before she would run she would blow a man's head off. Her husband told her that she could be frightened until she would throw her gun and outrun a steam engine. The argument progressed until Mrs.

Booth, it is said, persuaded Harris to feign going home and to return about 1 o'clock in the morning and test the matter. Harris consented and on returning rapped at the door. Mrs. Booth woke her husband and he refused to get up. She then asked Harris his name and what he wanted. Harris told her it was none of her business and if she did not open the door he would break it down. Governor Vardaman Leaves Jackson With Train Load of Soldiers

Special to The Telegram. JACKSON, Miss., Dec. 15 .- Convicts guilty of cutting the throat of a guard placed over them and of breaking th arm of another keeper are barricaded in a building in the Oakley prison farm in this county, defying the effort of anyone to disturb them. The mutiny occurred near the noon hour.

All was quiet in the buildings and on the farm when, apparently at a prearranged signal, the prisoners mutinied. One mob fell upon Guard J. M. Buckley, cutting his throat from ear to ear. He died instantly. Another squad fell on other guards. One man's arm was broken in the fight.

The convicts were superior in strength and after clearing the way were yet unable to make their escape effectively, seeking refuge behind stanch walls. Governor Vardaman and members of the Jackson military company have left for the scene of the mutiny. The soldiers of the governor were put on a special train and rushed to the farm, where a battle will ensue unless the mutineers yield.

It is not known that any are armed with guns, tho they have knives and tools used in cultivation. The remaining guards are unequal to the occasion and at once sent word to Jackson for better than was generally expected. The increase in the surplus reserve item was $5,003,125. Banks now report a deficit of $1,699,050. This is the fifth weekly deficit this year. Loans increased by $17,002,500 and deposits contracted by $15,116,100. It is believed the changes were mainly due to shifting of loans abroad to the interior institutions. There was a cash gain of $1,224,100 against Friday's estimates of even a larger loss. To many this was the most mysterious change shown in the bank statement for some

ROBBED OF $631

Special to The Telegram. ATLANTA, Ga., Dec. 15.—Two of street Arabs robbed James O. Watkins late last night of $631, $ in Marietta street, in the center of town. They were "newsies" and had importuned Watkins to buy a paper. He told them he did not wish a paper and they then asked him to change a dime for them. Watkins pulled a well filled wallet from his pocket, & When the boys saw the money they snatched the purse and dis-appeared in a twinkling. They are still at large.

Say No Ship Will Be Sent to Hawaii

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15.—The war department denies that two regiments will be rushed to Hawaii in anticipation of trouble with the Japanese.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 15.-The Examiner publishes the following dispatch from Honolulu today: Officers of transportation have announced that two regiments are to be rushed immediately to the island, in anticipation of trouble with the Japanese. They absolutely refuse to give out any of the details bearing on the call for troops. It is understood the mikado is extremely anxious to secure possession of the Island of Lanai, which is private property. This island is fifty miles from Honolulu and could be used as an excellent naval base against the United States by any foreign power. It has two splendid harbors. Last night Attorney S. D. Gear secured an injunction against Governor Carter and Land Commissioner Pratt to prevent them selling the island to a syndicate. Eight New Members

Sovereigns of Maple Hurst Grove No.

Woodmen Circle, met in regula? session Thursday afternoon, Dec. 19 The attendance was very good, and a very interesting meeting was held. There were eight applications for membership and two transfer cards were received. Eight candidates were regularly introduced as sovereigns of the order. The year just closing has been the most successful one in the history of the grove. There is a membership of 336 sovereigns at present. After the reguler order of business, the election of officers for the ensuing year was held. Also delegates to the state convention of the Woodmen Circle, which will convene at Dallas in March. The following officers were elected: Worthy Guardian-Mrs. Ida Heck. Excellent Adviser-Mrs. Isabella Hinkley.

Special to The Telegrum. AUSTIN, Texas, Dec. 15.-Auditor Bond of the railroad commission will soon have all of the monthly reports of the railroads for October, whereupon he will give out the summary of the operations for the first four months of the current fiscal year, being July, August. September and October. From the reports in hand it is already apparent that there will be a decided increase in gross earnings over the same four months of the year before. Nearly all of the roads reporting have shown increases and some of the smaller lines range from 25 to 40 per cent for the period stated. One of the large roads, the Texas and Pacific comes in with a healthy advance, the in round figures. That amount includes the entire line. The increase in freight earnings amounted

A number of the larger roads are still out, but it is to be expected that they will keep pace with the reports already filed and a handsome increase

The foregoing seems all very well, how many more tons of freight did the roads have to carry? How many more engines were required? How many more crews and trains were necessary to do this to make this gain? Nothing is said about this. It has been shown that for a period of some fifteen years the rate per ton per mile on eastern trunk lines was reduced from 2 cents per ton miles to .799, or say eighttenths of a cent. That is, the railroads have to carry at the last rate two and a half times as much freight as at i.

On Texas roads in 1895 the rate per ton per mile was 1.277 cents. The tonnage that year was 2,263,334,307. The amount of revenue was $22,907,

In 1895 the rate was 1.067 cents. The tonnage, 4,374,479,986. The revenue was $46.675.701.45. Had the rate of 1895 been maintained the revenue to the railroads would have been $55,660,109.42. Therefore, the saving to the shippers, the producers, the consumers—the people of Texas in one year was $19.184.407.97. or $3 apiece to every man, woman and child in the state (census of 1900). DEATH OF NEIL

GREENWICH, Conn., Dec. 15 .- Inthe death of Joseph E. Neil a former prize fighter, which occurred last night in a local hote!. Neil and a woman known here as his wife went to the hotel and were assigned to a About ten minutes later the woman asked the clerk to send for a doctor, saying that Neil was ill. Dr. L. O. Thompson, who was summoned, found Neil dead with a black mark under his right eye. The woman also had a black eye but made no explanation as to how Neil met his death. She said she wanted to go to New York to see her mother, and she was allowed to do so, taking a late train for that city. Neil lived here and owned considerable property.

While on duty no soldier s allowed to receive any presents. The Emperor knew this well enough, but on passing one of the sentries at the park gates he held out a five-mark piece to him, but the sentry was not to be caught "I am not allowed to take it, Your Majesty," he said. "Come," said the Emperor, pretending to be angry; "If I command you to take it who is there to forbid you?" The soldier, almost in tears, begged to be excused. "If I put it in your sentry box, will you fetch it when your watch is over?" asked the Emperor. The soldier said he would. Un looking round his beg later on the honest sentinel found the five-mark piece, accompanied by another gold coin of greater value.

The Store That Makes Good

EXPORT OF FLOUR IS INCREASING

Milers Claim They Pay Higher

Exporting of flour from the Fort Worth mills has increased within the last ninety days and more business in that line is being done here now than has been done for a long time. The Fort Worth mills catering largely to export business for a long time or until the milling in transit privilege was withdrawn from Fort Worth by all the railroads with the single exception of the Santa Fe. The withdrawal of this privilege almost prohibited the exportation of flour from this city, as the rates were so much in favor of the mills in Kan-sas and the territories. A large part of the wheat used by the mills here is shipped in from Kansas and Nebraska and the freight on this wheat from common points there is 28 cents. Then from Fort Worth to Galveston the rate is 17 cents for the flour. For miles in the territories the start of 27. mills in the territories the rate is 17 cents for all with a milling in transit privilege, with a result that the Fort Worth and other Texas mills are at a tremendous disadvantage. Not only do they have to pay the 28 cents on the hundred pounds on the wheat, but they have to pay again on the flour. As 100 pounds of wheat will not make 100 pounds of flour, the cost per 100 pounds of flour to Galveston is about 40 cents higher here than for the mills north of Texas. This makes an advance of 10 cents a sack of 25 pounds that the mills here have to pay, and consequently hurts the busi-

The Santa Fe, however, stands by the Texas mills and allows a milling in transit privilege. Consequently almost all of the flour which has been shipped from Fort Worth for export within the last ninety days has been purchased along the line of the Santa Fe, when not bought in Texas, and has been shipped over that road to Business to Cuba from Fort Worth remains steady at all times, as the Cubans prefer the flour made from Texas wheat, which, it is claimed, makes better biscuit than the northern wheat and therefore they are willing to pay the 10 cents a sack more than they have to pay for wheat shipped from here, made from northern wheat. This matter is one that the Texas Millers' Association took up at their meeting this week and a committee was appointed to take the matter up with the railroads and if nothing satisfactory could be gained there, to carry the matter before the interstate commerce commission for a readjustment of the rates.

The Texas millers have claimed since the rate was withdrawn that it was done to build up the territory Texas business and that the withdraw-al of the rate was an arbitrary action ly the Texas Millers' Association, every rate withdrawal have taken the mat-

But the balance of argument was in the affirmative. It would be justice to both classes of pupils to reclassify them at the end of four months instead of keeping them together a year. It would save much time for the pupils and would permit more thoro work, Mr. McGee thought that ultimately it would increase the number promoted annually at least 15 per cent. Professor Paschal spoke in regard to entertaining the visiting teachers during the meeting of the state association. He said that in addition to the liberal money contributions the city teachers should "give themselves" to making the visitors feel at home. Paul Gilmore "At Yale"

The Mobile Register said: "A play of college life; also it may be called a musical melodrama; that was the performance that drew an audience ast night to the Mobile theater that filled the place. Paul Gilmore, the star, is a great favorite with this public. He is an actor without affectation, a fine figure of a man, and is generally associated with good people in an entertaining show. The author is the late Frederic Ranken, and the musical composer is A. Baldwin Sloane. The new piece is said to have a fascinating story of gossamer texture, giving its message of gayety and comic scheming thru the medlum of the mythical Kris Kringle, Little Jack Horner, Simple Simon, Margery Daw et al.

Lillian Russell's Great Tour Lillian Russell is making a complete tour of the south and middle west in her now comedy, "The Butterfly," visiting a large number of towns in which she has never appeared, but has long been anticipated. During the present season Miss Russell has stepped from her pre-eminent position as queen of comic opera to the front rank of the light comediennes of the American stage. Her art, mellowed by the experience of years, has never been more convincing than at present. It has a lightness, a finish and a charm peculiarly characteristic of the woman. It is a new Lillian Russell—the reincarnation of the spirit of comedy-who comes to conquer in a new field with all the persuasive. graces of person and manner that have proved so potent in the past.

the three sentiments of Shakespeare are peculiarly applicable to Ellen Beach Yaw, the world's famous coloratura soprano. Without any doubt this famous diva was born to be great; by dint of hard work she has achieved greatness, and now that she has reached the topmost rung in the world of sopranos she will most certainly have more greatness, which is her just due, thrust upon her.

"Merry Wives of Windsor"

The Minneapolis Journal said: "Louis James and accompanying players are giving Minneapolis audiences their first dip of the season into the Shakespearean spring this week, and the sensation is nothing but pleasing. Mr. James, probably the most capable comedian in the legitimate lists of the time, finds in the lines of Falstaff a groundwork peculiarly adapted to his powers, and to his well known temperamental touch upon the lighter side of situation and pose. He has taken liberties with the text thru softening some of the crassness of the period and has eliminated parts in entirety to let attention fall solely of the bugle sounding reveille brings | a halt for some surprising novelty in the sleeping soldiers to attention until the leaping pyramid of human athletes scales the high walls of the fortress and waves aloft the American flag, the Pekin Zouaves send thrill after thrill thru the audience.

There are seventeen youngsters in this military machine. Nattily uniformed in regulation Zouave uniform, the commander appearing in the officer's blue, there is something about the very appearance of the squad which attracts sudden and sharp attention. "Attention," then "Forward," and the soldier laddies are off on a maze of bewildering evolutions which keep the spectators guessing as to how the youngsters will disentangle them-

With a pat-pat-pat at a cadence of a step to the second, the Zouaves go thru the maneuvers of the regular army, developed into fancy figures and the manual of arms. After going thru these maneuvers the act closes with a spectacular and patriotic exhibition, in which the soldiers scale a high wall, showing how a fort is captured, and when they have ascended to the top, they plant the American flag, while the orchestra plays national melodies. It is a beautiful climax to a thrilling entertainment.

KING MIDAS

By Upton Sinclair Copyright, 1906, by Upton Sinclair, author of "The Jungle."

Helen Davis has just returned from a three years' trip to Europe and on her return breaks her engagement to her foster brother, Arthur, made in her girlhood days. Soon after her return she is invited by her rich aunt to a house party to meet a multi-millionaire, James Harrison, and others. Her aunt proposes that she try and captivate him. The very first night Helen is successful, enchanting him with her music and her manners.

The next morning the house party is broken by the illness of one of the members and Harrison takes Helen for a drive, visiting a newly purchased country home. She is absorbed in it and Harrison proposes and is accepted for his money's sake. Helen returns home to find her father gone on a visit and she returns to her aunt. Meanwhile her poor poet lover, Arthur, is very sick.

"Well, listen, then," Helen began; but then she stopped again. "Do you wish me to tell you?" she asked. "Do you care anything about it at all, or does it seem"---

"I care very much about it, indeed," the other answered. "However dreadful it may seem," said Helen. "Oh, please know that while I have been doing it, it has made me utterly wretched, and that I am so frightened now that I can scarcely talk to you; and that if there is anything that I can do-oh, absolutely anything--I will do it!" Then the girl bit her lips together and went on with desperate haste, "It's what you said about what would happen if there were some one else to love me, and to see how very bad I was!' "There is some such person?" asked the man, in a low voice.

"Yes," said she. "It is some one I have known as long as I can remember. And he loves me very much indeed, I think; and while I was letting myself be tempted in this way he was very sick, and because I knew I was so bad I did not dare go near him; and yesterday when he heard I was going to marry this man it almost killed him, and I do not know what to fear now." Then, punishing herself very bravely and swallowing all her bitter shame Helen went on to tell Mr. Howard of Arthur, and of her friendship with him, and of how long he had waited for her; she narrated in a few words how he had left her, and then how she had seen him upon the road. Afterward she stopped and sat very still, trembling, and with her eyes lowered, quite forgeting that she was driving. "Miss Davis," said the other, gently, seeing how she was suffering, "if you wish my advice about this, I should not worry myself too much; it is better. I find in my own soul's life, to save most of the time that one spends upon remorse, and devote it to action." "To action?" asked Helen.

"Yes," said the other. "You have been very thoughtless, but you may hope that nothing irrevocable has happened; and when you have seen your friend and told him the truth just as you have told it to me. I fancy it will bring him joy enough to compensate him for what he has suffered. "That was what I meant to do," the girl went on. "But I have been terrified by all sorts of fancies, and remember how much pain I caused him, I scarcely dare think of speaking to him. When I saw him by the roadside, Mr. Howard, he seemed to me to look exactly like you, there was such dreadful suffering written in

"A man who lives as you have told me your friend has lived," said the other, "has usually a very great power of suffering; such a man builds for imself an ideal which gives him all his joy and his power, and makes his ife a very glorious thing; but when anything happens to destroy his vision or to keep him from seeking it, he suffers with the same intensity that he rejoiced before. The great hunger that was once the source of his power only tears him to pieces then, as steam wrecks a broken engine.

"It's very dreadful," Helen said. how thoughtless I was all along. I only knew that he loved me very much, and that it was a vexation to

Mr. Howard glanced at her. "You not love him?" he asked. "No," said Helen quickly. "If I had oved him I could never have had a thought of all these other things. But I had no wish to love anybody; it was more of my selfishness. "Perhaps not," the other replied, gently. "Some day you may come to love him Miss Davis. "I do not know," Helen said. thur was very impatient." "When a man is swift and eager in all his life," said Mr. Howard, smiling, "he cannot well be otherwise in his love. Such devotion ought to be very precious to a woman, for such country would be greatly benefited as the tick absolutely saps the life out of an animal and instead of them getting fat during the months of May. June and July they often get poor and this condition often exists thru the late summer and fall months, and in consequence the cattle are not in condition to be marketed at all. It would not cost the man owning these cattle to exceed 5c per head to dip them, and in many instances he would derive a benefit of from $5 to $10 per head, besides exterminating the tick entirely. should like very much to see this proposition thoroly investigated and I feel confident the results will be overwhelmingly satisfactory. "Yes, I have recently returned from the Panhandle, and I find the recent storms have drawn the cattle as bad if not worse than any storm I have ever seen at this season of the year. hope, however, when the weather clears up that the cattle will not be in as bad condition as they seem to be. However, grass conditions are not at all favorable.

Wants Premium Money R. S. Stark resides at Godley in

try all around us," said Mr. Stark, "but while I say this I do not mean to insinuate that ours in any better than many other sections, but we have a good one, all the same. There are a good many pastures remaining along the Brazos river, but the main portion of the country is given up to stock farming. Our people raise horses. mules, hogs and cattle in more or less

"Plenty of feed is to be had for these stock, so there is no sufficient reason why the business should not become a success. I have at present on hand about 100 head of cattle on pasture, and they are doing exceedingly well for the season. It has become a fact that the day of the range is past, for no one can afford to graze cattle on land that is being sold all round him for $40 per acre, as it is down with us. Land that produces a half bale of cotton to the acre is too valuable to graze cattle upon, when it takes not less than ten acres to provide one cow with enough feed to keep

life in her body at the best of times. "My cattle are shorthorn Durhams, and I have some good ones. I took the premium at the fat stock show last year with my shorthorn steer Roosevelt, in the two-year-old class, the prize money amounting to $200. He weighed 1,700 pounds, or near it, and sold to Max Harris of Dallas for $8.10 per hundred. While I took the prize, I have never yet been able to get the money from the association of the shorthorn people, and am still doing my best. The secretary of the association, Mr. Stuart Harrison, assures me that the money is as good as the bank, but I had much rather have the money in my hands. It is not much encouragement to a man to exhibit his fat stuff here when he is kept waiting for the premium, as is the case with me. No doubt the Shorthorn Association is solvent, as the secretary assures me it is, but if so why does it not pay what it justly owes for the premium that they advertised they would pay to the till the next meeting of the fat stock show, and it certainly looks as if the premiums that accrued at the last, more than ten months ago, should be settled before another function of the same sort comes off. I am not kicking at the show, but I want the premiura

My connection with railroads consists of the ownership of a right of way and a dump out on the route of the Mineral Wells & Northwestern and I propose to sell it to the parties who are proposing to build that line. They are in the business and I am not, so I shall let it go. All I know about a railroad has been learned in the cow business and it has not all they run you off the track, as I was done and smash you up and leave you in as broken up condition as if you had been playing football at one of our modern universities. We have had too much rain, but cattle are doing very well. Grass has not been hurt yet, but if the damp weather continues there is no doubt but that it will rot on the ground. It is very thick and covers the ground like a mat and it will take a long continued dry spell, with plenty of wind to dry it out and keep it sweet. Should it rot those cowmen who rely upon grass entirely and make no provision for accidents will surely suffer if the weather gets very cold. Cotton is still unpicked in the fields, there being too much rain for the pickers. The farmers are paying $1 per hundred for picking and board. This is an awful price to pay and should cotton go down it will mean a loss to the farmer sure."

Reports Fair Conditions

J. M. Timberlake came in from Wilson county with a contingent of cattle for the market. "I live in Floresville," said he, "but my ranch interests are all in Atascosa county, about ten miles from Campbellton, Texas. Immediately around Floresville, and in fact, in all Wilson county, north and east of the San Antonio river, everything was hurt by the drouth, but west and south there has been plenty of rain and grass is fine and cattle are doing nicely. I do not breed cattle now, but buy steers and fatten them on the grass in my pasture. Stock are going into winter in very fair condition indeed and it looks as if they would do well thru the cold season. Most of the people are in the stock farming business now. Most of the ranchmen are buying stockers and have ceased to breed cattle. There are some still who are following the breeding business. but some of them are trying to get out of the business. The supply of steer cattle hereafter will mostly come from the "settlements," as it is called, the stock farmers and farmers, who have from one to half a dozen yearlings each year. This supply to one not initiated would look but a poor business to take the place of the ranches, but he would make a big mistake. I bought 1,500 head of steer yearlings this spring past from the farmers around the vicinity of Floresville. That is a sample of what the aggregate would be in the whole county. All the big ranches on the river have been cut up and sold to farmers except one or two. The Tom Dewees. Rosser and Carrol, Beauregard and the Griffiths ranches have all gone the way of the farmer, John Dewees lands are still held in a body and are rented by Mrs. Dewees for $2,000 per year for

Raises Good Horses

Captain Ben Van Tuyl came in from his ranch and talked horse this time. I have some good horses," he said, and as our section around Colorado is noted for its qualities for horse raising it is no wonder that mine do c extremely well. I have some forty mares, good ones, and at present I am using a standard bred trotting stallion. l have used in the past Cleveland bays confining myself to the one breed of the standards. My increase are all bred with a view to first-class harness and trotting stock. There are not enough good stock of that character raised in Texas to supply even a small portion of the demand, and it is a shame for the people of the state to send out for the necessary supply when they can by a little effort breed as good stock as the world anywhere else can. I suppose in time people will begin to appreciate the qualities of the Texas harness horse, but most of them have a notion that nothing is so good as that which comes from outside. In other words to use a familiar saying. "A prophet has honor in all countries except in his own," and so with the Texas horse. An American from Mexco, a trader, was in Colorado and vicinity the other day, and I ran across him in a buggy. I remarked on the coks of the mare he was driving and said that I had some as good of my raising. He asked what I would take or my young ones and I said $150 a head. He remarked, 'Bring them down

Captain Majors got thru his losses by fire better than was at first thought. He shipped seven or eight hundred head of his cattle to the oil mill to be fed and he found he had grass enough for the rest. ASSAULT CHARGE AGAINST DAVIS

Trial On in Judge Terrell's Court

An interesting aggravated assault rial was begun before Judge John L. Terrell in the county court Saturday afternoon, but was not concluded, it being continued over until 9 a. m. Monday in order to give an opportunity to secure the attendance of another wit-

The case was state vs. Bob Davis, the charge being that he committed an aggravated assault on Deputy Sheriff Tom Wren some time ago during a Sunday night raid made on Davis' saloon at the corner of Fifteenth and Calhoun streets. Three witnesses were introduced by the state-Tom Wren, the deputy sheriff; Roy Murphy, a newspaper reporter, who was with the raiding officers, and R. E. L. Roy. The three state witnesses testified to going to the saloon and of Davis, who was on the outside, following them in. They also testified that Davis drew a pistol and that it pointed at Wren. Davis was covered with a pistol by Roy, who ordered him to drop his gun, and at the same time Wren hit Davis over the head with a six-shooter. All of the state witnesses agreed that Davis made no attempt to shoot Wren other than having the pistol, and Wren and Roy admitted that they had no warrant for Davis or anybody else in the

Davis was put on the stand in his own defense and denied that he made any assault or intended any and claimed that he did not recognize Wren until after Wren struck him over the head with a pistol. He admitted having a pistol in his overcoat pocket, but says his overcoat was thrown across his arm and he had no recollection of taking the pistol out of his pocket that the handle may have been stick-ing out and Wren may have jerked it out of the pocket when he struck him with his (Wren's) pistol.

English Most Widely Spoken The most extensively spoken language is Chinese, but as there are so many dialects in the language, and as these differ so greatly in the confines of Mongolia and Thibet from those around Peking, it is scarcely correct to say that 382,000,000 Celestials all speak one language. Putting, therefore, China aside, the most spoken languages in the world are as follows, in millions: English, 120; German, 70; Russian, 68; Spanish, 44; Portuguese,

An Absent-Minded Swain A record breaker in absent-mindedness is certainly a Paris citizen, who appeared the other day before a magistrate to ask for a marriage license. He answered correctly and without hesitation all the questions as to his name, age and occupation, but when asked for the name of his fiancee he became embarrased, and finally replied dejectedly that he had entirely forgotten to ask her for it. This, remarks a Boulevard paper, recalls the distraction of the famous fable poet, La Fontaine. Meeting one day in a saloon a young man, he was so favorably impressed by his conversation that he expressed his admiration for him in the most flattering terms. "But he is your own son!" exclaimed a guest, in astonishment. "Is it so?" re-delighted to make his acquaintance." Backward, Turn Backward Cholly-How old is your sister? Johnny-Twenty-six, going on 25 .-

DEMAND FOR MONEY

Many Want Small Loans on Good

Security Local bankers report an almost unprecedented demand in Fort Worth for large and small loans on the best of security during the past month and money means prosperity for the bank-Business of this kind indicates that Fort Worth men are doing things "In the Name of | and are venturing in the field of busimand for loans for any one kind of business, but the demand has been steady all fall and seems to have increased with the approach of Christmas this year.

Deposits in the bank on the other hand have fallen off during the past week, as many of the depositors are withdrawing money stored up during the fall in order to pay for the gifts which they and their families have been buying during the past week.

"Fainting Lady" Obsolete

A prominent physician who, in his younger days, used to treat many cases of fainting among female patients says the "fainting lady" has gone out of fashion, athletics and a more sane system of living having put an end to the trouble. "Nowadays." says the doctor, "women are ashamed to faint. It is too kittenish. All women want to appear strong, even if they are naturally weak, And as a sex they are considerably more robust and more fascinating than they were a few years back. The reason for it is that women go in for more outdoor life and recreation than did their mothers, or their grandmothers. They may partake of more highly seasoned food and eat more than is good for them at times, but they lead a more athletic life and for that reason do not have to faint legitimately or otherwise, no matter what the shock might be. We are to have a stronger race as a consequence.'

A Good Place for All

Nothing is of keener interest to housewives just now than the furnishing of the table for the holidays. What to have Christmas is an all-absorbing M. P. Feris, the well-known staple and fancy grocer, at 100 South Jennings avenue, has a complete line of eatables, having just opened case after case of groceries and put them upon the shelves. The completeness of the stock, its freshness and the reasonable prices asked enable the shopper to buy whatever is needed. Mr. Feris also has an up-to-date meat market, employs a skilled butcher and can promptly take care of all orders for meats. Mr. Feris extends a cordial invitation to all to visit his store and wishes a happy everywhere.

A YOUNG LADY'S GOOD FORTUNE Miss Grace Gladden of Mount Pleasant, has just accepted a position as telegraph operator for the Western Union Telegraph Company in this city. Miss Gladden came here to Tandys' Depot College only a few months ago, and she then knew absolutely nothing of telegraphy. She went directly from school into the telegraph office at the Worth hotel and is highly elated over her success. The special holiday rates are now on at Tandys' Depot College. MANY NEW CLERKS IN POST OFFICE

Over 1,000 Clerks in Railway Division

The Fort Worth postoffice is now working under full holiday swing, the extra clerks authorized by the department having all been put on now. The postoffice was authorized to add four more clerks to the number of those already working in order to take care of the Christmas business. The four clerks who are working now are all in the registry department, as that branch of the work needs more extra care than the other branches of the Six Months for 25c.

Extra clerks authorized for the railway mail service will go to work on Monday, or at least the majority of them will. The department authorized the employment of seventy-four additional clerks during the Christmas holidays in the division and these have been distributed to various trains, where the rush of mail will be the heaviest. By Tuesday the number of men working in the Eleventh division will go over 1,000 for the first time in its history, unless the time of the mail weighing be counted, when 200 additional men were worked.

TWELVE GOOD REASONS WHY YOU SHOULD COOK WITH GAS

- '1-THE FIRST COST of a Gas Stove is less than that of any other stove of equal capacity.
- REPAIRS are seldom needed. The heating is applied directly to the cooking utensils or the thing cooked, hence there is no wasting or burning out of the stove plates, and the period of usefulness is longer than in any other stove.
- 3-FUEL is bought only in small quantities and paid for after it is used. There is no necessity for buying fuel in advance and storing it for future need, and Gas, if not wasted, will do your according cheaper than wood or coal.
- 4—LABOR is continually saved by cooking with gas. There is no wood, coal, gasoline or ashes to be handled. No heavy stove lids to be lifted or fuel doors to be constantly opened and shut.
- 5—TIME is gained by the quickness with which a Gas Stove can be put into operation and raised to its maximum capacity. The cooking is also more rapidly accomplished by the direct application of the heat to the thing cooked.
- 6—SPACE is saved by cooking with Gas, which can be utilized for other purposes. The Gas Stove gives maximum capacity in minimum space and can be used in places or apartments in which other stoves would be impracticable.
- 7—CLEANLINESS is one of the chief advantages of cooking with Gas. No dirt, no dust, no leaking gasoline cans, nor floors tracked up by bringing these things into the house. They are not necessary with Gas. Hence the latter encourages cleanliness in the preparation and cooking of food.
- 8—HEALTH depends much on avoiding extremes of temperature. The use of Gas avoids the necessity for hot kitchens, excessive perspiration and the evil of sudden cooling in passing in and out of doors with fuel, or from exposure to drafts or cooler rooms, in prosecuting the work usually carried on in the kitchen.

- 9—SAFETY is an important feature of cooking with Gas. Gasoline is recognized the world over as a dangerous fuel. Wood and coal throw out sparks, set fire to chimneys, originate fires fresh from ash receptacles, burn out and destroy the stove that confines them and in which fire must be left burning frequently with no one to watch it. Gas is free from these evils and is much safer than any other fuel used for cooking.
- 10—EMERGENCIES arise in every household from sudden sickness, unexpected guests or the necessity of providing for larger numbers of people than usual. The Gas Stove is a friend in need in such cases and becomes a friend indeed to all who call upon its capacity for prompt and liberal services in times of emergency.
- 11—COOKING is in a progressive state, constantly advancing in new methods of preparation and in variety of dishes, and for those whose cooking is up-to-date it is necessary that up-to-date apparatus should be used. Wood and coal are ancient and venerable forms of fuel, but they do not compare with Gas in readiness of control or steadiness of heat. Hence Gas is suited to the latest demands for a controllable heat for fine cooking or to a steady heat for the simpler forms of old-fashioned cooking.
- 12-THE GOOK is one of the most important members of the household, and should receive the consideration her responsible position entitles her to. Cooking with Gas lightens her labors, saves time for other duties or for rest for her, adds to the cleanliness of her apartments, add to her health and comfort, and permits and encourages the exercise of the highest skill. It also enables her to give better service to her employer, or to those whose wellbeing is largely in her hands, and who should be interested in her welfare.

We have sold over 850 Gas Ranges in Fort Worth in 1906—some of them your own neighbors. Does this not speak well? We will put one in your kitchen and connect it up for $15 or $17. You may take your time paying for it. All we want is a trial. Our salesmen will deem it a favor to call on you and talk over the gas proposition. Call either Phone 206 for one

FREIGHT BUREAU NOW ASSURED

Now Need Only $500 More to Be Pledged

Fort Worth is now sure to have a freight bureau and that in the very near future. The amount of $10,000, which has been set by the merchants and jobbers as the least which the bureau can get along with, has almost been reached and it should take no longer than an hour or two on Monday for the remainder to be raised. Total amount of money raised for the freight bureau has now gone to $9,500, $600 more having been added by the committee composed of A. P. Foute and B. B. Paddock on Saturday after a little over nalf a morning's

The freight bureau is a matter that is of the greatest interest to every merchant and wholesaler in the city, as it is an acknowledged fact that Fort Worth pays higher freight rates almost than any other city in the country. The railroads seem to have taken a special delight in discriminating in the matter of rates against the state of Texas and the city of Fort Worth has been as badly treated as any other city. Heretofore protests have only been made by the individuals as they would arise, but now the sufferers have considered that the time for concentrated action has come and with this action with a competent man at the head it is expected that results will be highly satisfactory. Several factories have turned Fort Worth down within the past year for no other reason than that the freight rates are against the city and the state as well and have gone on to other localities. Other cities which have once established a freight bureau have never given it up, but have rather increased he cost of maintaining it in order to nake it as thoro as possible, and get the greatest benefits that can accrue o the city which they are working for. Kansas City is one of the places where a freight bureau has been of great importance and Kansas City is probably the most favored city in the country today in the line of freight

DIRTY MONEY IS IN CIRCULATION

Banks Want Government to Pay Express

Much complaint has been made in Fort Worth as well as in other cities of the country, on the condition of the paper money that is circulating. Most all of it has long since lost the crisp nature that makes paper money easy and agreeable to handle. Cause for this deteriorating of the money is assigned the fact that the government caused the banks to pay for the express on noney sent into Washington to be re-

In order to overcome this a bill has been introduced in congress calling for the government to pay the express on this money and it is known that all the banks of the country are urging that the bill be speedily passed. At the presnt time, on account of the fact that e banks have to pay this express, they do not send any money except what is so badly ruined that it cannot

In some sections of the country, where the banks can send money in at a small rate of expressage, there are many more new bills in circulation than here, as many of the banks make a practice of returning all bills that have become soiled and thus make the government send them new bills in the place of the old. When a bill that is not absolutely unfit for business on account of a tear or wear, is sent into the government, it is up to the experts there to say whether the bill should be continued in use, and if they decide hat the bill is still fit for use it is sent to the Bank issuing it. In the meantime the bank which has sent the bill is given an equivalent of the amount in government money, thus insuring the district where that bank is of new money to that amount.

Torn bills cause considerable loss to the banks, as they are out the use of the money during the two or three weeks that it takes to send the money from here and have it returned again from Washington. Another loss is on the fund of 5 per cent of the paper money issued in paper by the bank, which is always on deposit at Washington in order to redeem bank bills of theirs, which may come in in a ruined condition. When the government takes up a sufficient amount of such notes a new batch is sent to the bank, which becomes money as soon as it is signed by the bank officials. However, as soon as a package of this is received the bank has to enclose an equivalent amount in order to make

fame or start up some sort of forty immortals for women. I want to put Widow Zola up on the topmost rung of whatever stands for the biggest and best there is in womankind

After Zola's death publicity was given to the existence of a demi-Mme. Zola and three little demis. The world very properly clasped its hands and rolled its eyes heavenward in pious

Word now comes from France that Mme. Zola has filed papers of adoption for the little demi-Zolas. They are to have the name legalized and will share in their father's inheritance. Mme, Zola, the wife, shares with demi-Zola, the mother, the responsibilities and assumes a part of the Zola obligation for the Zola offspring.

I seldom allow myself to harbor cruel criticisms of women. I have suspicion that most of them are carrying, not only their own sorrows, burdens and duties, but the sorrows, burdens and duties-ay, even the sins of others. Woman's little weaknesses, her vagaries, her very ignoranceswhat are they but the foam thrown up by the undertow of life's tragedy? I wonder often, not that woman occasionally commits grievous errors, but that these errors are so few and so oc-

Men are going to have some diffifor this act of Mme. Zola. I hope that loyalty to the school ma'am of his the funny man will feel for once an inclination to practice his trade. This is not the occasion for any man to do anything but stand aside with uncovered head and silence.

Some women will be silent, too. But those who are silent will shut the world out when they review in the silence of midnight with wet eyes (some will reverw it with dry eyes) their own marriage tragedy. Mme. Zola is not the first brave woman. The Zola name and fame has made her bravery more conspicuous.

I once knew and loved a beautiful girl, who was more than amiable in character. As child, girl and young woman she won every heart that knew her. She was an only child and was cherished with the tenderest devotion. When the Lover came she was told a bitter story. When an infant the father had brought her home with the story of his weakness. The mother's name was given. He threw himself and the mother of the baby upon his wife's mercy. The wife took the child to her home and heart and made no sign. To the world she was her own. To the child she was a loving, tender mother. When the tale was told the girl's greatest grief was that the mother she so loved had not borne her.

I danced with the gayest of those at the wedding. The lover was a sensible man and the love story was all the happier in its ending because there was noodeceit nor hidden shadows. Her death came a few years ago, and her husband still mourns her. She was the ideal wife and mother, as she had been a model girl and daughter.

I once heard a woman say she could forgive her husband anything save lying to her. She was the unhappiest woman I have ever known. The world knew that had her husband been truthful with her she would have been kept busy forgiving him. But she was a game loser and made no complaint.

The world applauds this guardian. ship, too. Orators never tire of praising the eternal feminine in loyalty, It sounds much better than crudely saying, "This dog and her

It takes a brave man, I think to own up to his wife certain misdeeds. From what I know of women I would hesitate if I were a man and had confessions to make. A superficial view indicates that most women think they I had worried somewhat over the refusal to make him one of the "Forty have the only prize there is in their illusions. A childless wife must expect certain penalties in exchange for her exemption from nature's duties.

Whether the penalty is self-imposed or not makes the penalty none the less

Mme. Zola may have cherished Zola

as a man of genius. He may have endeared himself to her so strongly that she feels the world will be better by the gift of the Zola spirit in his children; a gift she had not made possible.

Or can it be that Zola was merely

ly wrangle over a most poor scrap from

But Mme. Zola rises to heights far above many women when she says: These children are innocent. They have done no wrong, and they must suffer no further punishment than can be avoided. I will give them the name that is theirs. I will give them the patrimony that is morally theirs. "I have borne the name of oZla honorably. I will help it to be borne honorably in so far as in me lies."

When a woman takes to her arms and cradles upon her breast her husband's child that should have been her own, I fancy the recording angel blots out many of the records against the follies and weaknesses of women. Womanhood shines brighter and all women should be made better.

During the receiving hours, from 3 to 6, several hundred guests called.

Mr. and Mrs. D. T. Bomar gave one of the most elaborate dinners ever served in Fort Worth at the Touraine hotel Friday night in honor of Dr. Fenton B. Turck. Covers were laid for twenty-six guests. The banquet hall was elaborately decorated with fall leaves and chrysanthemums, while on the table were plate glass mirrors surrounded by smilax intertwined with beautiful carnations. In the middle of the table was a large bunch of roses. At either side of the doors of the banquet hall were large horns of plenty filled with chrysanthemums. An innovation in dinner cards was the crest of the hotel embossed in gold

The Fortnightly Whist

A jollier company of whist players could not be found than were the guests of Mrs. W. F. Foster Wednesday afternoon. Silver score cards were used in keeping tally, that belonging to Mrs. McLain having ten credits. For this she received the guest prize, a dainty bit of Dutch embroidery on a lunch cloth. Mrs. Dooly won its mate from the club members.

Over bowls of fresh hickory nuts with home-made cake and New Mexico cider, the guests envied the club winners their tasteful prizes. Mrs. Foster's guests were: Mesdames Dooley, Taylor, Sawyer, Mullins, Gross, Gayle, Bibb, Bronquist, Con-Peterson, Coombs, McLain,

Stearns, Johnson, Hackett, Mitchell, Hills, Robinson, Busbee, Yale and Miss Fuller. Mrs. Yale will be the hostess of the

What to Sive for Christmas

Practical Suggestions for Puzzled People

Nearly every man and some women knows what it is to worry over the question: What to give for Christmas? It is not a question of how much to spend, but of what gift will bestow the greatest pleasure on the recipient—of selecting the right thing for the right person. Wouldn't it be pleasant if someone who knows should take the whole trouble off your shoulders and make out a list of things you never would have thought of, but are just the things you want? No one should be better able to tell these things than this store; to which people have been coming for Christmas gifts and advice about Christmas gifts for many a year.

Read this page of Gift Suggestions and keep it by you.

We have gone all through the store and compiled a list of about four hundred suggestions for gifts. Counting the full range of price for each article mentioned the number would be multiplied many times. Of course there are hundreds of things in the Store which are not mentioned here at all, but they are in most cases akin to those named, and as you read you will think of

Read this list for suggestions, and then come to the Store where shopping is easiest, service best, delivery most trustworthy.

This is the brightest, most comfortable Christmas Store in Fort Worth. The gift-things are fresh and well arranged for selection, and a gift parcel from "The Fair" insures quality.

The advantage of early morning Christmas shopping.

We have stocks of merchandise in every department to meet every demand, although of course some of the novelties which cannot be duplicated are disappearing each day. We have more employes to wait on you than ever before, but great as our capacity and organization may be, all who want to do their shopping in this store cannot get in at once; but all can get in and shop comfortably if enough of them come early in the morning.

The doors open at 7:45 and everything is in apple-pie order by 8 o'clock. From that time until noon is the best time for shopping. If you have not yet experienced the delights of early morning shoppingtry it on Monday.

This store will be open every night beginning on Wednesday

Remember the Old

Those to whom the memory of past happiness is their strongest tie to earth, whose Christmas today is but a recollection of Christmases long ago, should have their hearts warmed by attentions which bring to mind the happy yuletides of bygone years.

Remember the Sick

In the midst of general merrymaking pain and languor and isolation seem to assume an aspect of deeper gloom. All the more welcome to the sick is every token that they are held in kindly remembrance by those who are well and happy.

To Push Port O'Connor Road

Special to The Telegram.

HOUSTON, Texas, Dec. 15.-W. S. Hipp, who holds the contract for the construction of the Port O'Connor Railroad, returned this morning from Victoria, where has been engaged in completing arrangements to press the work. On Wednesday the directors of the Texas Railway Company met in the West Texas city to arrange for the amendment of the charter, changing the name of the corporation. The contract held by Mr. Hipp of this city, calls for the ultimate construction of 265 miles of railroad, with ninety miles already under grade. Between $5,000,000 and $6,000,000 is involved. Arrangements were perfected at San Antonio two weeks ago, when negotiations were finally completed between the promoters and Mr. Hipp, with his attorney, N. C. Abbott of Houston, The Port O'Connor Railroad project is now one of the most ambitious constructive efforts that has passed to reasonable assurance of consummation in this state for many months. A London company is said to have undertook to finance the enterprise. The plan contemplates, in adlition to the railroad construction, the expenditure of a large sum of money in providing a deep water harbor at Port O'Conner, south of Victoria, As previously explained, the road is expected to represent a short line to deep water from San Antonio and the west and from Smithville and the north. Passing northward from the terminus the new road passes thru Victoria to a point beyond where it divides. One line connects with the Missouri, Kansas & Texas at Smithville and the north, while the other connects with all roads entering San

Still Grading North

Special to The Telegram. WICHITA FALLS, Texas, Dec. 15 .-The graders of the Wichita & Northwestern have now crossed the Red river and are pushing ahead on their part of the work in the Oklahoma country. No one seems to know as yet or is willing to say, at least, where the ultimate destination of the road is. Some who keep pretty well posted as to the movement of railroads give it as their opinion that the road is headed for the city of Denver; but no one seems authorized to state exactly where it is going. The fact that is pleasing the people of this city most is that the road is going into Oklahoma country, and that it will draw a large trade to this town that it never had before. The ties are scattered along the line and the work is being pushed as rapidly as possible.

Mixed Train on Cuttoff

MEXIA, Texas, Dec. 15 .- Commencing Monday, Dec. 17, the Houston & Texas Central will begin operating a mixed train on the Mexia-Navasota cutoff. Official announcement to that effect has been made by G. F. Hawks, general superintendent of the Central, east and west lines, and the circulars are now out. From a point about two miles south of Mexia, the cutoff runs ninety-four miles to a point about three miles north of Navasota, where the main line is again found. It has been built in about a year and the steel runs from 75 to 80 pounds to the yard. Until the tracks have been settled by train running there will be no attempt to run main line trains over it. At some date in the future it may become a portion of the main line, and what is now the main line will become the branch. What is probably the greatest benefit derivable from the new trackage is in the fact that it reduces some grades from one and a half per cent to less than threequarters of one per cent. This is an important desideratum in railroading, involving, as it does a saving of fuel and the permitting of an equal schedule to be maintained.

Ready to Grade

Special to The Telegram. SNYDER, Texas. Dec. 15 .- D. Nation is in receipt of a letter from F. W. James, head of the company that is building the Roscoe, Snyder and Pacific Railroad, in which he urges the citizens to secure the right of way thru Scurry county and states that he is ready with the forces to begin the grading. We are informed by parties who are in touch with the promoters that the road will be built by next August. With the grading forces at work along the route the roadbed will be complete in a short while if the weather is favorable.

Railroad Talk at Westbrooke Special to The Telegram.

COLORADO, Texas, Dec. 15.-A new road is to be built north from Westbrooke via Gail and on thru the Plains country, M. S. Palmer, the promoter, placed a large order for railway literature last week. The -lan is to build a standard gauge road to be run with gasoline motors. A right of way one mile wide on each side of the track will be purchased and sold to actual settlers, giving to each man a railroad frontage and station every mile. The plan is feasible, without a doubt, and will be pushed to completion, giving Vestbrooke another railroad.

Building Mile a Day

Ask for Extension

Special to The Telegram. ANSON, Texas, Dec. 15 .- The promoters of the Abilene & Northern have asked Abilene and Anson for thirty days extension of time in which to complete their road to Abilene, promising five per cent discount on all bonuses provided the road is finished by Jan. 1, ten per cent discount if finished between Jan. 1 and Feb. 1, and if not finished by Feb. 1 the bonus is cancelled altogether.

Wellington Wants Line Special to The Telegram.

WELLINGTON, Texas, Dec. 15 .-There is now on foot a move that promises more success in the solution of the perplexing problem of securing a railroad than anything that has yet been proposed. At the courthouse last Wednesday evening a number of citizens, and among that number some of the most prominent and most careful business men in the community, met and unanimously indorsed the suggestion that local capital at this place, Hollis and Clarendon take the initial step toward getting a railroad from Clarendon to a connection with the Frisco at some point east of Hollis, O. T., by doing preliminary work of procuring a charter, right of way, etc., for such a road, which it is believed will make the project comparatively easy to finance.

Locating Abilene Depot

Special to The Telegram. ABILENE, Texas, Dec. 15 .- The depot of the Abilene & Northern Railway will be located on South First street, just east of the new gas plant station and north of the old baseball grounds in block 35. The track is being built to the depot grounds and the lots are being cleared for the building. "Hurry up" is the watchword of the contractors.

To Investigate Ballinger Route

Special to The Telegram. BALLINGER, Texas, Dec. 15 .-President Charles S. Miller of the Ballinger State Bank & Trust Company, wrote a letter to Superintendent T. B. Coppage, calling that official's attention to the feasibility of extending the northern branch of the Santa Fe from this point. Mr. Miller forwarded maps of the country thru which the road would lead. This week Mr. Miller received a reply from Superintendent Coppage, acknowledging receipt of his letter and the maps, and stating that the same had been forwarded to the chief engineer, with instrucare the route proposed and it would be done at an early date. Our people have taken it for granted all along that a route from Ballinger north would be investigated before the final decision, but this letter from Mr. Coppage adds assurance and is a source of congratulation, as it is felt that whenever the test is made that Ballinger will surely get the road. With the assurance that the proposed route will be investigated, these people will meet any reasonable requirement necessary to secure the road.

Right of Way Not Promised pecial to The Telegram.

HEREFORD, Texas. Dec. 15.-The local railroad committee met with J. R. Ransom at the office of Murchison, Thompson & Co. the first of the week o ascertain what could be done in the way of closing the contract for the right of way and the cash bonus of $15,000. It was learned that Mr. Ransom will want about seventy acres of land belonging to the Western Union Land Company and situated east of the Pecos Valley depot, besides the right of way to the western extremity of the town. This will be required for the accommodation of the machine shops, general offices, etc, but in view of the fact that no definite reply has been received from the Western Union as to the probable cost of their lands in question, the committee deemed it unwise to guarantee the right of way over these lands till further information could be received about them.

CIGARETS ARE POPULAR

More Than 4,400,000 Pounds Used in Paris Yearly

Special Cable to The Telegram. (Copyright, 1906, by Hearst News Service.) PARIS, Dec. 15.—The cigaret is now the favorite "smoke" of the Parisians. In 1870 the annual consumption of cigars was 5,400,000 pounds. This was steadily increased until 1875, when for the next twenty years there was a decline. In 1904 the consumption was 5,220,000. Cigarets, on the other hand, have grown in public favor all the time. In 1870, 32,000 pounds of tobacco were used for this purpose; in 1904 there was an increase to 4,400,000 pounds. Pipes are also being used, a thing which a few years ago would have been im-

MORNING BEST TIME TO SHOP

Afternoon Rush Always Annoying and Confusing

The best time to go shopping is in the morning; at this time there are few shoppers and goods will be found arranged in morning will have the time and opportunity to see and have first choice of goods. J. Montgomery The newest and most complete lines this season are in books, calendars and portfolios. Along these lines will be found the best that artists can produce. The stocks are more complete and of better quality. Novelties in toys are new and complete. In glass and leather there are new designs and novelties.

There will be more salespeople this year than ever before and the comfort and needs of shoppers will be attended to with more efficiency and rapidity than ever before. Stores will be particularly beautiful with Christmas decorations.

It is always the aim of business men to deliver packages with promptness; to assist in this matter it should be remembered by the shoppers that early buying insures prompt delivery; afternoons there is always a rush and deliveries become congested. If packcan be examined upon arrival home and arranged for presents in time to avoid trouble by delay. Instructions regarding packages should not be telephoned; this gives opportunity for additional delays and mistakes. In conclusion, after all, the best thing for a shopper to remember is, that morninf is the best and most satisfactory time goods, combs, shawls and scores of other things are included in the list. Never was there such variety of esign and assortment. In many lines there are scores of different shapes in the same line. It is not often that lines are so complete and unbroken so near Christmas. It is a pleasure to look over a full assortment of goods because in them you will find suggestions without end. Then, too, the larger stores are now buying direct from the manufacturers, saving the middleman's profit; thus the shoppers are able to purchase better goods at less price. Among the new things you will find something unusually attractive in wraps, jackets, etc. Baby wraps are a feature this season, Art goods and embroidery work are shown in all styles from Oriental to modern. An umbrella will be appreciated and will be useful; combs of almost countless shapes and of best quality.

It is a sign of education, taste and good sense to confine presents to the lines of life-useful life. Special sales and prices can be found in many lines, this gives the shopper opportunity to add quality without additional cost to gifts. It is better to give good things and be happy than to give gaudy, expensive things and realize, when it is too late, that you have made a mis-C. W. STANTON, Advertising Manager, W. C. Stripling.

Along with this fact another will have to be considered-the price of things is gradsally going upmetals, silverware, etc., have n some instances advanced from 15 to 25 per cent and may yet advance D. C. Sanders further, The stocks are now complete and a few dollars will go a long ways in the Christmas shopping. The stocks are now complete and it is a good plan to look them over early and at least select the things wanted; better still, you had better have your selections laid aside, then when you come for them you can finish your errands in better time and spirits. This plan will save unnecessary worry and trouble, both to the merchant and to the shopper. Before the jam of crowded streets, which is always the case during the last few days, you will be able to carefully inspect all lines; when the rush comes you may not be able even to find what you wish in one line. Most of all it is important that shoppers see and choose their goods at times when they have time for meditation and proper consideration. In a rush you always forget some of the important things or else you take what you would not choose unde other conditions. D. C. SANDERS.

TURKISH WOMEN PRINT A PAPER

Weekly Has Been Running Successfully Eleven Years

Special Cable to The Telegram. (Copyright, 1906, by Hearst News Service.) LONDON, Dec. 15.-Pierre Loti has written a novel which combines with his usual delightful style a most interesting revelation as to the awakening which is going on among Turkish women. A proof of the truth of his assertion is to be found in the fact that our veiled sisters in Turkey started a paper, with a woman for its editor, and written by women, as far back as the year 1895, or as it is dated according to the Mohammedan It is described as a weekly illustrated publication for ladies, price

sixty paras, which means a yearly subscription of thirty francs, and writers are informed that "any contribution that is in accordance with Mussulman faith and with Ottoman morals will be gratefully received." Some pages are given to advertisements of dressmakers, perfumers, etc.

Many of our ideas of the harem this little leaflet. For instance, there is an advertisement of an insurance company, thru which Turkish ladies can insure their lives. Of news, the paper contains very little. There are no politics, and one of the chief items of information is that "the sultan, the most holy, the most mighty, the lord of our country, who demands from !t all gratitude, went last week with all pomp and glory to the mosque of Hermidie, and having performed his religious duties, returned," and this appears regularly every week in every paper in the em-It is also stated that the sultan conferred the Order of Compassion on the sister of his majesty's secretary, and on the wife of a Greek official; but here and there are scraps of information as to what women are doing in other countries, and Pierre Loti's description of the impatience which many of the Turkish women feel for the limitations of the harem, is no doubt justified, when they read hospital,"-the "ladies' fire brigade in enchantees has shown how many of these women are better educated than the majority of European women, excellent linguists and have touched the fringe of the great thinkers, but the Turkish ladies' paper is interesting as an example of independent action, althe the mental development of the Turkish woman is probably far ahead of its contents.

"Send for the police," said the burglar. "I am ag'in it." "Not at all," said the doctor. "I often sit up nights, studying. The minute you came in here I knew that you were suffering from the zympherlitis. You displayed every symptom; so I watched you, and determined that you were a full-fledged victim. In fact, you are the only thoroly developed case in America. Sit down! There are two cases authenticated in Euroue. Zymherlitis is the most deadly disease in he world. You are the third man to get it. Here, take this."

The doctor had been mixing up something, and when he handed it up to the burglar the latter gulped it

"It's horrible," said the burglar; "why don't you shoot me, or turn me over to the p'lice?" "Here, take this," said the doctor, as he fixed up something that fizzed.

The burglar took it and doubled on the floor in a carooning agony. He stood on his head, tried to climb the walls, and finally sank in a chair, "It's a turrible desease and a horrible remedy," said the burglar, "It is," said the doctor. "Come back in a week. Here, I will show you where you are at. Now, notice how the fearful germs of zympherlitis show themselves. They need but forcible ac-

The doctor twisted the cuticle in Carter's neck and an ugly red lump appeared. Then the doctor handed Carter a mirror. "Oh, Lord!" said Carter. "It seems "It is growing!"

"Doctor," he said, "that lump on my neck is growin' an' I guess that zympherlitis has got me.'

"Jim," said the doctor, "you take this"-and he handed him a small vial -"one teaspoonful every hour, until you go to sleep, so you can't take any more, and when you get over that cussed zympherlitis. Jim. I want you to come and take care of those horses of mine."

And Jim got over the zympherlitis and has worked for Doc now some twenty years. Jim still wonders about zympherlitis, and he smiled one time in a vague, half-understanding way when, while rummaging among some of the doctor's old papers, he found one signed by one of the doctor's old the tat ted" rote with ed a ear-

under the restaurant from which the lamp was thrown to get release from flames. The blaze by this time had just begun to make extra good headway and soon set the floor and rubbish under the building afire. The alarm was raised and the entire fire force called out, but for some time they could neither get the hog out or reach the fire. Finally the floor was torn up and water poured thru upon the hog, who took the relief offered him without a grunt and the fire was finally put out. All losses, except the hog's, were covered by insurance.

Prisoner's Effort to Educate Himself Ends in Suicide

Special to The Telegram. SING SING, Dec. 15.-When it was whispered among the prisoners at Sing Sing that instead of escaping from the prison on Sunday night, Frank Schleimann, a counterfeiter, who would have been released next May, had committed suicide, even the most hardened of the convicts were sal dened and muttered: "It was the fractions that did it." Schleimann was an exceptional prisoner and was never considered a professional counterfeiter. The pretty little Austrian girl who followed him to America and for whom he was trying to provide when he made the coins, married him when he had been sent up for three years. "I'll be waiting for you when you

This gave the man tremendous inspiration and as soon as he got to Sing Sing he began attending the prison school with the determination to leave the place an educated man. Every minute that he got away from his work he put in studying arithmetic. He got as far, eight months ago, as fractions. But there he stuck. The rest of the class went on, but Schleimann stuck hard and fast on fractions. Study nights and Sundays as he would he came up against a brick wall over which he could not

Finally the keepers, watching him at work, saw that his lips were going and when they questioned him it was a sum in fractions that he put to

Finally it dawned upon him that his brain had reached its maturity, that there was no more expansion for him, that his mental caliber had been set for life-and that when he walked out of prison to meet the little wife he would still be a child in mind, who had never conquered fractions. The thought drove him mad. Recently he has been "seeing things" and fractions

full of vigor and his mind is as clear and strong as any time in his almost unparalleled career of forty-four years' service on the federal bench. He was appointed to that office by President Loncoln, as the President not only wanted a judge learned in the law but who was against the policy of secession. On one occasion Jackson was holding court when Judge Holt was of counsel. Mr. Holt had run for governor the year before and had been defeated. He asked the court for leave of absence, saying he wished to catch a train which was about due. His honor readily granted the request, remarking as he looked at his watch: "Judge Holt, you've very little time remaining and if you don't make a better run for that train than you did for governor last year you are bound

Noted Autoist Travels by Rail on Southern Tour

Charles J. Glidden, the celebrated automobile tourist, will be in Fort Worth Sunday night or Monday morning on his great touring trip of 50,000 niles in fifty countries. A message was received by The Telegram from Mr. Glidden at Little Rock, Ark., Friday morning, indicating that he would leave that city Saturday morning and would make the trip from Fort Worth to Dallas Monday. From this he will probably arrive here Sunday afternoon or night and leave the next morning after remaining here all night.

It was expected that Mr. Glidden would be here several days later than now indicated, as he was caught in the snow storm of a couple of weeks ago in New Mexico and lost several days there. From New Mexico he went to El Paso and then turned eastward to Little Rock. From Little Rock he probably makes a two days' trip to via Dallas. After visiting a number of the Texas cities Mr. Glidden goes to Laredo and thence to the City of Mex-

offices of the dispatchers in this city notice will have to get here before his arrival, as he is running on the railroad tracks, having had flanged wheels added to his equipment, and travels as the second section of some railroad train of the road upon which he is

JEWELRY THIEF CAUGHT

Two Negroes Were Arrested at Temple, Texas During the absence of the family of Otho S. Houston from home Wednesday a negro who had worked about the place stole jewelry, chiefly diamonds, valued at about $1,500, and about $100 in money.

The articles were not missed until Friday and then a notification was sent to police headquarters. Suspecting a missing yard man named Albertus Green, aged 17 years, colored, Detective Ray located him and had him arrested at Temple last night. He was brought in Saturday morning and at 10:20 o'clock was locked up in the calaboose with a burglary charge against him. About a thousand dollars worth of the stolen jewelry was recovered from Green when he was arrested at Temple and from Jess Edwards, colored, aged 23, practically all of the balance was recovered, there being a diamond ring valued at $100 still missing. The charge against Edwards is receiving stolen property. Edwards also had over $50 in money when he was ar-

One of the cleverest inventions ever brought out is the machine for sticking pins in the papers in which they are sold. The contrivance brings up paper and sets them in position.

and a southern west! Yet there is only one east, and hardly enough of that to swear by.—The Californian.

EVERYBODY

Or at least nearly everybody, buys Whisky for Xmas. You may not use it at any other time during the year, but you do not feel that you can properly celebrate this occasion without it. You, of course, want a first-class article, and we would call your attention to the two most famous brands sold in Texas: Craddock's '92 Sour Mash and Melba Pure Rye. There are few better Whiskys sold at any price, and none their equal for $4 per gallon. To those who buy Whisky all thru the year, we would say that you may possibly be a little careless at times WHEN, WHERE and WHAT you buy, but at Xmas time you want to be sure to have something good, so don't forget the old reliable house of L. Craddock & Co. 1906 has been a wonderful year for us. Thousands of new customers have added their names to our list, and have been pleased with the fair and honest treatment accorded them. We hope to have them all, together with other thousands, as our friends and customers during the new year now close at hand. But to come back to the present, the holidays will soon be here, and we would advise that you place your orders early. The express companies are already crowded, and to be sure of no delay order now.

> Remember, that we have the largest and most complete stock in the state. Goods shipped C. O. D., or upon receipt of money order. If convenient, we would advise that during the rush you send money order.

THE GREAT WHISKY HOUSE OF

L. Craddock & Co., Dallas ESTABLISHED 1875

TWO BIG SPECIAL OFFERS

THE SOUTHERN LIQUOR COMPANY sells direct to consumers, cutting out all middlemen. Our customers save the expenses and profits of retailers; they save the salaries, commissions and traveling expenses of agents. Does not your reason and good, common sense tell you we can give you more and better liquors for the same money than either a retailer or traveling agent? Certainly we can. Here is proof that our direct-selling plan saves you 50c to $1.00 on every quart of whiskey or brandy you buy from us. Read every word of these two special offers.

SPECIAL OFFER NUMBER ONE

QUARTS EXPRESS S 5

Here is a special 10-quart combination that has met the approval of thousands of our customers. Send us $5.00 today and get $8.00 worth of fine and good liquors. Note that our price-$5.00-is 50c less than the regular wholesale price of the whiskey alone; so you practically pay nothing for the excellent brandies-you get them FREE

4 full quarts Rosedale Rye, regular price......$3.00 4 full quarts Lincoln or Robinson County, Tennessee,

10 Full Quarts FINEST LIQUORS, regular price....$8.00

ALL FOR

Did you ever see a more liberal offer than the above from a substantial and reliable liquor house? Rosedale Rye Whiskey is one of our leaders. It is made from choice selected grain, double filtered through charcoal—filtered until every drop of fusel oil is removed. Many physicians have endorsed and recommended Rosedale Rye as a wholesome stimulant for the stomach. It is never sold at a lower figure than the regular wholesale price of $3.00 for four

SPECIAL OFFER NUMBER TWO A Beautiful Watch-Either Ladies' or Gentlemen's

In addition to giving a beautiful watch FREE with this $10.00 order, note that you make an actual saving of $3.00. These whiskeys are positively the best made. They meet fairly and squarely every demand of the expert judge of good liquor. They are just what they should be in age, flavor, wholesomeness and healthfulness.
You cannot get better Whiskeys than these, no matter if you are willing to pay Five Times the price we ask.

4 full quarts Soulico, Private Stock, regular price...$5.00 4 full quarts Soulico, high grade, regular price...$4.00 4 full quarts Cream of Rys.....$4.00

12 FULL QUARTS, regular price$13.00 Your choice of either Ladies' or Gentlemen's Watch

ALL FOR $10.00

You never saw a better looking watch than the ones we are giving away with this $10.00 order. They would probably retail at $10.00, but they look as if they cost $50.00 or $60.00. The dies from which the cases are made are perfect faceimiles of the most expensive gold casings, and the engraving is an exact counterpart. The case looks exactly like the original solid gold case—only an expert can tell the difference, and yet the case is simply electro gold plated. If you have a watch and do not care for another, you can easily trade this one. Remember, too, that a watch is always an acceptable gift to wife, sister, sweetheart or friend. You can select, if you wish, a lady's regular 6-size, hunting case, stem wind and stem set, beautifully engraved, gold plated time-piece.

THIS IS YOUR CHANCE TO SAVE MONEY

Select the order you want from this advertisement. Send $3.00 for 4 full quarts of Rosedale Rye Whiskey; or send $5,00 for the 10 full quarts of fine whiskies and brandies; or send $10.00 for 12 quarts of the best whiskles ever made and a beautiful watch FREE. When we began business years ago we gave an ironclad guarantee that if any buyer was not satisfied with his shipment after he had received it and tested it, he could return what was left at our expense and we would return every cent he paid for it. Thousands have bought the above combinations with this understanding. Not a single buyer has ever asked for his money back instead they buy again and again, and yet again. If they don't our guarantee still stands, and you will get your money back. All shipments are in plain boxes—no marks to indicate contents. We ship C. D. b. when desired. The above offers are subject to withdrawal at any time,

Wholesalers Retailers Manufacturers

We extend to the great throng of Christmas buyers a cordial invitation to visit our store and see the largest and best selected stock of Staple and Fancy Jewelry, Bric-a-Brac, Hand-painted China, Cut, Glass, Statuary, Imported and Domestic Pottery, etc., ever shown in the state. We have spared neither time nor money in making this Christmas the crowning event in our business history, and with our fair and generous business dealings and the most artistic goods that skill and experience can produce, we are confident of realizing our aspirations. The wonderful growth in our business warrants the assertion—we stand pre-eminent as the leading jewelers of Texas. We exercised the greatest care and precaution in our fall and holiday selections, and in buying, we ask you to compare QUALITY with PRICE. We are positive that a few quotations set forth here will put at ease the most skeptical man or woman.

DIAMONDS!

How can we sell diamonds for 10 per cent less than the other fellow? Here is the secret: We buy direct in large quantities and for cash, and can consequently give our customers the benefit of our conservativeness. In buying Diamonds of us you buy

STOCKS STRONGER AT THE WEEK'S END

Stocks Showed More Strength and the General List Made Some

Advances Special to The Telegram. NEW YORK, Dec. 15.-Some further strength was shown in the opening of the stock market. While early operations were without any special feature, the undertone was good. About the only important news since the close of Friday's markets perhaps, is the announcement that the Northern Pacific's issue of $95,000,000 of new stock, to be offered to stockholders at par on the lines laid down by the Great Northern a few days ago. The mexican government has formerly announced acquisition of the control of the Mexican railway. Despite what may be said to the contrary, the passing of the control of the Green Copper Company places that property where it will be amalgamated, it is claimed, and as the book value of the Green Copper Company is about 20 per cent more than the market price, the deal is considered a bull card on copper. The steel earnings continue to show large gains. The bank statement was much more favorable than was expected, and the money situation eased slightly. Eighty-eight railroads for October show average net increase of 10.95 per cent and for 11.45 per cent. Sixty-two roads for November show average gross increased of 5.36 per cent. Dun's Review notes some irregularity in collections, which was due to high money rates and failure to market the crops. The banks lost on the week's currency movement

staples made further advances in No-

Special to The Telegram. CHICAGO, Dec. 15 .- The grain markets opened weaker and little activity was shown early in the day. was comparatively little short selling. The seaboard clearances of late have been about 100,000 bushels per week. The farmers are in position to dictate the price, and are in position to inter-fere with pessimistic tendencies. There seems to be no doubt that there is room for a broader market on oats. The sentiment among the local professionals is decidedly bullish, and oats are expected to maintain its lead with the best of prospects for sustaining it. Small stocks and a diminishing movement along with a liberal consumptive demand and the prevailing high price of hay are the bullish features claimed in the oats situation. Provisions displayed a strong tendency at the opening. Pork products were quoted higher, and with a continued scarcity of hogs offered on the markets the situation looks bullish.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

The Market Closed Steady at a Net Gain of About Twelve Points

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 15.-The opening of the New Orleans market was steady at an advance. The offerings were light, and the values gradually worked up, March making a gain of 18 points before noon. The strength came from the over sold condition of the market and from what was conceded a bullish visible supply statement, which showed the remarkable mill takings of 414,000 bales for the week, against 327,000 for this week last year, and 395,000 this week in 1904. Liverpool displayed a very bullish tendency and futures were marked up three to four points on the close, when a decline of three points was due on the fluctuations on this side Friday night. While the into sight figures were considered very bearish, they were offset by statistics which went to make up other end of the visible supply statement. Besides the remarkably large mill takings, Liverpool sold 62,000 bales of spot cotton during the week against 49,000 last export movement. Thus far this season's total amount to 3,463,000 bales against 2,976,000 at this date last year and 3,732,000 at this date in 1904. It will be seen from this that large as exports are already, they must increase if they catch up with she exports of two seasons ago. Spots were in very strong demand at an advance of %c, anl sales toward the close became very heavy for a Saturday market. Houston wired that the snot demand there was nervous.

Special to The Telegram.

NEW YORK, Dec. 15 .- Cotton opened steady and quiet, 5 to 11 points up, but not as high as was expected on cables. There was considerable local selling in January and March, opportunity against early purchases in he Liverpool market. The market was fairly steady but dull, but made some advances on New Orleans buying. Shorts were uneasy and inclined to cover, and it looked like weak holdings had been eliminated, and the market ready to respond to fresh news -and buying operations.

THE REAL BLUEBEARD

Hero of Nursery Tale Had Living Counterpart Like many of the other heroes of the nursery tales, Bluebeard once lived in the flesh and blood, if the old chronicler, Holinshed, from whom Shakespeare got so much of his material, is to be believed. According to that writer, the original Bluebeard was Giles de Retz, or de Raiz, marquis of Laval, who became marshal of France in 1420. He is described as an impious and debauched man, a devotee of the black art, who enticed young men and women to his castle anl killed them in order to obtain innocent blood for his magical enchantments, and who also murdered six or seven of his wives. His crimes were discovered and he was burned at the stake in 1440 at Nantes. According to an old French legend, however, the original Bluebeard lived in Britanny in the sixth century and was known as Count Conomer. After seven of his wives had disappeared, he became enamored of Triphyna, the daughter of Count Guereck of Vannes. The wedding was celebrated at Vannes, and Conomer took his bride

Before a year had passed Triphyna noticed a change in her husband's manner and, fearing the same fate that had met her predecessors, she fled from the castle, but was over taken by Conomer, who struck off her head with a single blow. St. Gildas, by whom the unfortunate wife had been educated, happened to pass the spot soon after, and seeing the body. tenderly replaced the head, and by prayer restored Triphyna to life. The story does not relate the end of Con-

GERMAN TALK MOSTLY BLUFF

VOL. XXIV. NO. 28

France May Hope for Alliance With Neighbor Some Day

BY THE MARQUIS DE CASTEL LANE. Cable Special to The Telegram

(Copyright, 1906, by Hearst News Service.) PARIS, Dec. 15.—There are all kinds of diplomatists—the silent ones who give themselves an air of carrying the destinies of the world in their brains, and the chattering ones, to whose works the public, nine times out of ten, attributes too great importance. Prince von Radolin, the German ambassador to France, is one of the latter.

Taking advantage a few days ago of the highly pacific declarations of Prince von Buelow, his chief and the director of German policy, he explained to an interviewer that the speech was a confirmation of the attitude he took up and maintained during his emperor's escapade at Tangier.

Prince von Radolin declares-and one must believe him-that the hulla. balloo he made on that occasion was a simple blowing off of steam with no ulterior purpose. "Prince von Buelow," says the ambassador, "assures me and has authorized me to sav in his name that the chancellery at Berlin and the German embassy in Paris has always gone the same way.

These words, which seem to be slightly in disagreement with the appearance of certain acts, especially Baron Tattenbach's conduct at Algeciras, are certainly reassuring from the point of view of peace. It shows the desire of the emperor to consolidate his foreign policy and no longer allow some of his advisers to pull in one direction while he and his chancellor are going in another.

And henceforward we know that on the other side of the Rhine there is a prince who not only does not wish us any harm, but is ready to give us his hand on the day, which is perhaps not so far off as we think, when we are ready to extend ours.

Lourdes to Be Closed

Is Lourdes to be closed, or are the religious-minded to be left to think and pray as they will? The reputation of the celebrated place of pilgrimage is as universal now as it was in times past. that of the Delphic oracle. There where all Greece resorted for centuries to give thanks to the gods none thought of making a mockery. France, or rather those who govern her at present, flatter themselves that they are going to make a deeper furrow in the world's intellectual field than ancient country has such an ambition. They wish to rid France of what they consider to be superstition, and under this fallacious pretext, practice a despotism which free America, happily for its subjects, does not know. So the government is preparing to battle with a virgin—the Virgin Lourdes, who has never done an ill to anyone, but in one way and another. does good to many. The faithful will naturally oppose this pretention of declaring to men what they should be-

TOLSTOI TIRED OF SHAKESPEARE

Has Read Works in Three Languages-Still Not Admirer

By a Staff Correspondent.

(Copyright, 1906, by Hearst News Service.) LONDON, Dec. 15.-It will be remembered that the theory that Francis Bacon was the author of Shakespeare's works rame from America, but the Baconian theory is now at rest, chiefly because the known writings of Francis Bacon vary so widely in style, methods of thought and in individuality from the writings of William Shakespeare, and no man can explain how any one learned in the lore of the classics could be guilty of the anachronisms which are to be found in the pages of "Julius Caesar," and yet write a drama which is so full of the local coloring of ancient Rome.

In one of our latest magazines Count Tolstoi contributes an article on Shakespeare and the drama, and here is a completely new expression of opinion, for the great novelist tells us that when he read "King Lear," "Romeo and Juliet," "Hamlet" "Macbeth" he felt "an irresistible repulsion and tedium." He has read the works of Shakespeare, he says, in Russian, English and German, "and I invariably underwent the same feelings of repulsion, weariness and bewilderment." He then submits one of the most extolled dramas, namely "King Lear," to detailed analysis, and he sums it up as "a very bad, carelessly composed production, which cannot evoke anything but aversion and weariness."

Tolstoi is nothing if not original, but his greatest characteristic is courage, that courage which alone enables a man to do any great work in the world, and which Mr. Bernard Shaw, our great playwright, says is the rarest quality that exists, but with Tolstoi this courage comes from his absolute belief in the overwhelming greatness of the principles which he is bound

LONDON, Dec. 15 .- T. P. O'Connor has just returned from America, and to all who are interested in that country his experiences are of vivid interest. I read an articles written by him last week which seemed to me an entirely new point of view. He says that the Americans are a sad people. His friends, he says, insist that he should say "serious," but no-he persists that he could never get rid of the impression of sadness as the dominant mood with which he was brought in contact among the Americans he met in the streets, in the tram car and in the railway train. "It is not," he says, "that you do not meet with an enormous amount of good humor among Americans, for they are the most good-humored people in the world, quick to see the humorous side, and with an intense spirit of humor, even in the most sericus, tragic things of life, but I still hold the conviction," he says, "that there is a sense of strange sadness brooding over the country. In repose the American is sad"-the newsboy who sold him his paper was sad, the girl on her way to business, who took her book and sat reading in the corner of the car, was sad, and the taciturnity of the people whom he met struck him as a symptom of the prevailing joylessness which he holds to characteristic of the modern American, "In short," he said, "I felt everywhere in America a curious sense of a silent, unrelaxed, and tho somewhat concealed, a very real and a very bitter division of class and class, the portents and auguries of a bitter class war that might be settled by ballet boxes, and yet also might burst forth to the cause of woman suffrage is no other than King Oscar of Sweden. Mr. Michelsen, the Norwegian premier, declared in a speech at Bergen that the women had backed him so splendidly during the crisis with Sweden, that he personally should vote for a woman suffrage bill in the storthing should it be brought in.

King Oscar was subsequently approached by a deputation of Swedish women. He told them that as a constitutional king he was prevented from taking an active part in politics, but that he should do all he could to forward the cause. The liberal press in Sweden cannot understand the situation here, and they ask, with some pertinence, "How can a son of Gladstone keep the daughter of Cobden incarcerated in a prison for criminals, for insisting with impatience on having the vote, as if all extensions of the suffrage were not won that way!"

The names of Cobden and Gladstone still stands in the minds of the Scandinavians as representative of all that is best in England. The question is indeed difficult to answer.

The Duke of Argyll, who, as Marquis of Lorne, was always known as the Marquis Forlorn, owing to the fact that he was snubbed by the entire royal family and even his wife. Princess Louise, got another rude shock recently at Glasgow. Stopping to admire the works of the Argyll Motor Car Company he indiscreetly inquired of one of the mechanics who was loafing about outside why the firm had chosen the name of Argyll for their automobiles. The man, not knowing in the least who he was addressing, replied, indifferently: "Well, it's not a bad sort of name, but you may be sure we didn't call the cars after that old fool, the duke."

Actress Refuses Aid

The pluck of Mrs. James Brown Potter in rushing about from one provincial theater to another in the hope of_ retrieving her lost fortune is admired even by those who do not care for her acting. Mrs. Potter is at present giving one week's performance at each one of the many suburban theaters around London and with "Charlotte Cordoy" she has already made enough money to set up a modest little home. At one of the Midland manufacturing towns Mrs. Potter received an anonymous letter from a well wisher of evident weakn offering to purchase the actress a new home on the River Thames and telling her that she could repay the purchase money by small nstallments over a long period.

If Mrs. Potter accepted thru the medium of the press the writer would disclose his name. The actress, however, refused this as she has consistently refused many other offers of help. "I mean to build up my fortunes again," she tells all her friends, and it begins to look as if she would succeed.

King to Consult Curzon

It is whispered in court circles that King Edward is very anxious to consult Lord Cuzon on several important questions, notably the signs of unrest among some of the natives in India. Lord Curzon on his return from the United States, will reside at Reigate Priory, Surrey, for the rest of the winter. The Priory is the property of Lady Henry Somerset, the great temperance reformer, who leases it to Captain and Mrs. Ronald Greville, great friends of the king.

REAL FACTS ABOUT THE JAPANESE SCHOOL QUESTION

So general has been the misapprehension regarding the so-called "exclusion" of Japanese children from the public schools of San Francisco that, in order to place the matter in the right light before its readers, The Telegram, thru its special correspondent at San Francisco, has secured from President Altman of the San Francisco board of education a statement clearly explaining the situation. In this statement President Altman makes it plain that Japanese children are not denied education at the expense of San Francisco-that they are not "excluded," but that for good reasons and he law of the state they are marely "secrecated being provided for them and maintained out of the general school fund. President of the San Francisco Board of Education.

With all due deference to President | to establish separate schools for Indian Roosevelt, I must say it surprises me that, with all the minuteness of detail of information furnished Victor H. Metcalf, who came to San Francisco as the special representative of the President in this matter, and who upon his return to Washington must have undoubtedly placed all of this information at the disposal of the chief executive of this country, there should be such a display of ignorance upon the part of the President as to state in his message that Japanese pupils are barred from the public schools of this city.

This would lead people outside of San Francisco to believe that we refuse an education to the Japanese children. Japanese children have not been excluded from the public schools of San Francisco. They have not, in fact, been denied any of the advantages which are accorded children of American birth and parentage, and not the slightest obstacle has been thrown in the way of their education. The impression already gone forth that the Japanese children were indeed excluded from our local institutions of learning arises from the fact that a section of the school law of the state of Caliernia providing for a separate school for these children has been put into force and effect, In other words, far from barring the Japanese children from the public schools of San Francisco, the board of education has merely said to them: "Attend this particular school and there find all the advantages and facilities which are provided for our own white children.

He went down to the manager of the concert hall, where he was to take part in an entertainment the next night, and said, "I cannot keep my engagement with you. I cannot take my part on the program. I have been up to the Royal Albert hall and accepted Christ.'

The manager said, "All right, but ou must go out on the stage and tell "I will do that," he replied. When it came to his number on the program Mr. Quentyn Ashlyn stepped out on the platform and said: "Friends, I cannot give you my usual entertainment this evening. I have been converted in the Torrey-Alexander mission at the Royal Albert hall.' They commenced to laugh and appland -they thought it was part of a joke.

When they had quieted down he said, "It is no joke; I have accepted Christ as my saviour, and I cannot waste my life in merely making people laugh." And at least one person was converted right then and there. Then the manager of the hall said to him, "Mr. Ashlyn, you may have this place every night for a week to preach in if you want it," and for a week that concert house was turned into a gospel meeting, and for a week n the heart of fashionable London, in Langham place, the converted entertainer preached the gospel, and a good many were converted. STAMP MOVED UP WALL

Explanation Simple, But Clerk May Be Pardoned for Feeling Nervous

"An old gentleman," remarked the major to a Portland Express reporter, "bought some stamps from me one day last week, and after moistening one fell to the floor. He did not bother to pick it up, and, after affixing another stamp on his letter, left the store and I forgot all about the incident. A few minutes later my clerk came into the store from the rear room, and at once his face attracted my attention for he seemed to be troubled about something, while he gazed fixedly in a certain direction. Calling over to me he sail: 'I do not think I am crazy, but I do see something that I cannot understand.' I looked where he pointed and distinctly saw the postage stamp moving steadily up the side of the wall!

"The explanation is this: The stamp fallen on a fly and stuck to it."

TRAINING A HUSBAND

Advice to Brides Need Not Be

Followed Too Literally A great many bridegrooms are like jelly. It is only when they begin to grow cold that they become set in their ways, says a writer in Good Housekeeping. It is interesting to thousands were driven into the sea, trace the development of the season and the king was compelled to flee into the forest.

961 Perhaps it was this success that led the Danes to adopt the custom of celebrating Caristmas. In 961 King Edgar held a royal festival at York at this season. Sir Walter Scott, in "Marmion," refers to the "savage Danes" keeping Christmas.

1016 Like the Germans, the Danes were given rulers on Christmas day, but were not quite as ahppy in their choice as the people of the fed-rated empire. In 1016 Cnut, or Canute, son of Sweden, first king of England, was chosen king over all England for the third time. This Danish king followed his father's teachings for the first few years of his reign. He was guilty of troctous murders, several of which he committed on Christmas day, when his subjects were off guard, indulging in the festivities of the season, which

1043-Canute's son, Harold, occupied the throne for a short time, and then, on Christmas day, 1043, Edward the Confessor was crowned. 1066-When Harold II was chosen to assume the crown, it was felt that his reign would be short, and it was, terminating at the battle of Hastings. On the following Christmas day William the Conqueror was crowned king, and a stable line of succession for English rulers was founded. When William was crowned in West-

1642—The most astonishing thing connected with Christmas about this time was a plea for the abolishment of the day made by the Puritans. Old John Taylor, the "Water Poet," says in this connection: "All the liberties and harmless sports, the merry gambols, dances and friscols, with which the toiling plowman and laborer once a year were wont to be recreated, and their spirit and hopes revived for a whole twelvemonth, are now extinct and put out of use, in such a fashion as if they had never been. BREACH OF PROMISE A PUZZLE TO JURYMEN

MISS MARIAN SETTLE.

Special to The Telegram LONDON, Dec. 15 .- Whether Heinrich Thyssen, son of a multimillionaire German iron king, really promised to marry Miss Marian Settle, a beautiful actress, daughter of the late Judge Settle, of Jacksonville, Fla., is a question which a London jury has declared itself not wise enough to an-

Miss Settle, convinced that Heinrich intended to marry her, gave herself entirely to him, and then, when his love grew cold, she brought suit for $60,000 for breach of promise. Heinrich declared that he wanted Marian, simply as his mistress.

Heinrich first met Marian three years ago while she was performing in "The Country Girl" at Daly's theater, London. He fell in love with her, and sent her a basket of flowers, with his card. She acknowledged them, and then he wrote for an interview with her, which she granted. According to Marian, he proposed marriage, and she agreed to live with him as his wife until he could arrange matters with his father, who might disinherit him if he married an actress.

Heinrich told Marian his father was an extraordinary man. In fact, he said his father had selected a wife for him, and that there had been a dinner at which she and her people were present, but that he had walked out, and this had annoyed his father and made him very angry. It was arranged between the young couple that they should not mention names in their letters, Heinrich signing himself Tumty No. 1 and Marian fumty No. 2. The two traveled together about Europe and went to America, Tumty No. 1 introducing Tumty No. 2 to his friends as his fiancee Affectionate letters passed between them when they were separated, Mar-

"My Dearest Darling D. D. D.: I am worrying as to how your cold is. Dearest Tumty No. 1, will you tell your little Tumty No. 2 whether you truly love her, or are tired of me and wish to get rid of me. Tell me what our future is to be. Are we really to stick together? Do you intend to marry me? You say you cannot while your father lives. Do you intend to marry me afterwards, or is this only an excuse? Dear Tumty, I love you so much. Do not make a fool of me."

He replied: "D. D. D.—I have just got your letter of 24 Jan. A very nice letter, too, I love to have letters from Tumty No. 2. Everything will come all right. With love from Tumty No. 1 to Tumty

In another letter Heinrich wrote asking the actress to return to England from New York and telling her: You must not upset me by silliness. You know perfectly well what I want from Tumty No. 1. Love and kisses.

Let me know when you are coming back." The lady sent one letter in which she signed herself "Tumty No. Oneand-a-half." Finally Heinrich's love ceased, and he wrote to Tumty No. 2: "My Dear Marian-This letter will probably be a great disappointment to yon, but I cannot act differently. After all the different conversations we had at Carlsbad about marriage you will

James F. Lingafelter has been sentenced to serve four years in the penitentiary and is out on bail pending decision on appeal. His wife, Mary, has been sentenced to serve three years, and is at liberty awaiting action by the circuit court on her appeal. Their son, Robert C. Lingafelter, is serving an indeterminate sentence of frmo one to twenty years. They left the Newark Sayings Bank with a shortage of $60,000. They are accused of having looted the Homestead Building and Savings Company of $86,000. Their victims, numbered by the hundreds, were the industrious and thrifty; the homeseekers of the community. Of these there were 1,600 in the building and loan company. These poor people

ried their small savings to the Lingafelters. They lived "in rent" or in modest cottages loaded down with mortgages which were to be paid with The Lingafelters lived in the most metropolitan and one of the most costly mansions in this section of the state. It was, however, a house of trouble. Some will tell you that a hoodoo rests upon it. The house was built by a congressman, whose wife said she'd show Ohio how houses were put up

In 1887 he organized the building and loan company and in 1890 the bank. It was the first savings bank in this city and the people, especially the poor, flocked to it with their money. Deposits as low as 50 cents were ac-

The twin concerns oc upied the same room. Officially, Lingafelter was secretary of the building and loan company. In fact, he was the whole thing -he and his family. His wife was there most of the time. His son much of the time. They were not on the payroll as employes. It was a labor of love they explained, for the husband and father, who was busy most of the time in the savings bank.

Robert, the son, whose escapades had for years been the talk of the town, had authority to sign his father's name. He worked on the books. James F. was cashier and general manager of the bank. Robert was employed there several years ago for a few months. Then he worked for the building and loan. Things went badly and in 1904 both concerns were placed in the hands of receivers. Among other interesting developments was the fact that Lingafelter's accounts with the bank had not been balanced since 1898. He had ten accounts and they were overdrawn

What has become of the money taken from the two concerns is a mystery, and Robert squandered it, according to the statements of a great majority of those who are asked the question. "Lingafelter was easy going," they say, "and yielded to his wife. The latter idolized the son. She minimized his wrong doing and backed all his demands for money." Robert's way of getting rid of money were diverse. Often, too, they were picturesque. One of his earlier exploits was the shooting of a drove of hogs owned by a man near town. A performance credited to him involved the shattering of a $1,000 mirror in a Columbus saloon with champagne bottles. He has denied this charge. He attended a medical college in Columbus and added to the regular studies a course in poker and faro. He tried his hand at managing theatrical attractions. He also managed female bicycle riders. Lingafelter gave princely tips to waiters. He spent $3,000 in an illuminating trip thru the east.

All the pills were sent to the bank and near, telling the people that they gressman's family and the monumental and were paid. Lingafelter shook his are on the threshold of another twelve-money. They have been defended by high-priced lawyers and it is believe: in some quarters that their home, sold for the benefit of creditors, was bought in for the couple. They are now living in the hoodoo castle in lonely grandeur. Lingafelter is soft spoken, while his wife is of resolute and determined manner. They feel that they are much abused. The mother still defends the boy and says he did nothing wrong. Lingafelter says that of the $86,000 building and loan alleged shortage, the amount of $46,000 was paid to the shareholders in unearned dividends and that the balance is a myth-a sort of bookkeeping mirage. He claims the association was solvent at the time of the receivership. The bank failed, he says, because of bad loans he was forced to make by order of the directors. One of the directors committed suicide by drowning soon ofter the bank failure. The others have been sued to make good part of the shortage. Prosecuting Attorney J. R. Fitzgibon has led in pressing the cases in court. He secured the conviction of Lingafelter and his son on the charge of forgery. The verdict was overturned by higher courts and the prosecutor arranged for new trials, in which the prisoners were again convicted. Mrs. Lingafelter was found guilty this month on the charge of aiding and abbeting the commission of a forgery. Her lawyers told the jury that if she made any false entries it was to shield

TYPES OF WOMEN STRIKERS WHO DEFEATED THE MEAT TRUST.

Special to The Telegran .

NEW YORK, D.c. 15.—When the butchers of the East Side advanced the price of meat 2 cents a pound to meet the demand of the beef trust, which had jumped the wholesale price, 2,000 housewives of the poorer section of New York made a patriotic demonstration, unique in the battle of the common people, against trust oppression. Two cents counts for 2 cents on the East side of New York, and the women went on strike, declaring that the advanced price of meats was outrageous. Two of them, Mrs. Estner Delbofsky, of 402 East Fourth street, and Mrs. Repecca Resnack, of the same address, organized all the housewives for blocks around. These women formed in line and marched thru the streets, stopping at every butcher shop and notifying the dealer that unless the price of meat was reduced they | and the strikers declared the boycott would eat fish or go without meat for both sides. This house is supported by 545 posts, some of which run from one house, which has sixteen doors and population of 100. The first floor,

made of split up sections of nibong

Borneo, the second largest island on mothers-in-law, has been given a poetical name "The Land of the Golden Duck," and enthusiastic writers refer to it as "The Garden of mate, whatever that is. But there is no denying that nature is both beautiful and bountiful on this monsoon swept land basking in a shallow sea. Like other tropical islands food stuffs are so easily obtainable that one is prohibited from anticipating much energy and ambition on the part of the indigenous population.

That was the idea of yesterday, but it is not the opinion of travelers of today. You know that the primitive home of the so-called "white man was in a warm climate." The barbarian hordes which not long ago swept down from the north have only recently become civilized under the sunny influence of the southern branches of the races. Our modern civilization, long barred from the hot lands, has now turned thither, and in Borneo, and Samoa, in Fiji and New Guinea, in East Africa and West Africa the white man is found. When we look at the missionaries we find real examples of northern Christian who domiciled at nativity-time in rigorous regions is now flourishing in the most productive portions of the planet. There is more time in the tropics for the consideration of loftier subjects than how to get food and raiment and shelter with plenty of sleep. It is in the winters of the northland that people slumber their life away. The tropics do not require so much sleep. It is not remembered that in warm, sunny climes much of the best in art, literature and science has emerged. A milder and kinder civilization may yet be produced by the Christianized natives of the equatorial countries for the hustle and bustle for sustenance is not so insistent as in the cold climates, and more time and disposition obtains for the finer, fairer and gentler things of life. Let us hope that the new civilization, the civilization of the tropics will excel ours, which owes so much to the ancient simplicity of those who lived and taught on the shores of the narrow Mediterranean sea.

Borneo is in the tropics. The equator lies across Borneo. I called it the paradise of mothers-in-law! Let me furnish the schedule for the Dyak marriage ceremonies-In the first place a young brave can find no girl to court unless he has taken at least one human head and dried and kept the skull. That was formerly the universal custom and still prevails to a considerable degree. These prohibitions are intended to teach them reverence to their fathers-in-law and mothers-in-

This island is full of interest to the scientist. Here I found the cannibal snake that eats snakes, here flourishes the plant that lives by being bitten by ants, so I have been told; I did not see the plant during my visit in Borneo, here dwells the orang-outang, or the 'wild man of the woods," which was long supposed to give color to the Darwinian theory but that theory must go elsewhere as the orang-outang, a ow grade animal is below the dog and horse in intelligence! The Malays have a proverb "even a lizard gives a fly time to pray," which has been derived from the manner of the tiny Saurian going for its prey! There are other interesting things on this island, but among the most useful and entrancing studies will be the effect of the teaching of the Master Teacher Christ on the sea gypsies, and land Dyaks, once head hunters and otherwise violent and outrageous savages until the love of God and men constrained Christians, lay and clerical, to leave their comfortable homes and throw in their lot with the wild man of Borneo.

There is very little missionary work being done in British North Borneo aside from feeble efforts by the church of England and the Roman Catholics. European missionaries—the staff is small-are at work in the Dutch possession. There the Rheinish mission has 9,000 converts and recently a widespread revival began! In Sarawak, which may be considered a Mohammedan country because the conquering race (Malay) follow the prophet of Mecca, there has been for years effort put forth by the S. P. brownskins, with a population of possibly 400,000, ruled over by an Englishman known as the rajah or king. The independence of the state was first recognized by the United States of America, and it may be considered as under the protection of Great Britain. There are practically no written laws. The rajah is absolute monarch, but thruout the state he has placed officials known as residents. They are all Englishmen, and are assisted by the native chiefs, but anyone has the right of appeal from their decision to the rajah himself, and may approach him personally. Many of his constituents are savages, most of whom have given up the interesting but barbarous practice of head hunting. The American black braid. The government of this country is unique and I think it may be considered as just but certainly not as beneficial to the native races as would be the administration of the British.

VAUDEVILLE TO HELP HIS CHURCH

New York Pastor Believes in Entertainment

NEW YORK, Dec. 15.-Declaring that if the church expects to continue popular with the people it must keep up with the times the Rev. Frank M. Goodchild, pastor of the Central Baptist church, one of the largest in the city, has introduced vaudeville into his services.

Dr. Goodchild induced the trustees of his church to vote him a fund with which to employ talent. From a theatrical booking agency he has made up a program for each Sunday evening during the winter.

The first performer was Miss Ethel M. Palmer, a vaudeville performer, who whistled sacred music, being accompanied by a pianist. The congregation was startled at first at the shrill notes of the whistler issuing from beneath the pulpit. Later the members seemed to calm their fears and enjoy the act.

The next performance was by Chas. Wold, who rendered sacred music upon musical glasses, familiar to all vaudeville devotees. Dr. Goodchild said: "If my church is to continue to do any good it must get in touch with the people. There is no use preaching to empty pews, nor is there much reason for work in a flock of church members, all of whom are at least supposed to be living aright. I am not particular as to the means of getting people to attend my church, as long as I get them."

and is proud of his section of the great state. He resides in Wood county at Alba. "I am a stock farmer in addition to some other matters of business, among which is butchering stock for our local market," said Mr. Williams. "Our people are, those at least who are engaged in farming, giving their attention more and more to raising feedstuffs and forage crops and breeding stock. This is especially to in the case of hogs. With the quality and quantity of food suitable for tening swine, that can be harvested our county and in fact in all of East lexas, there is no reason at all, except the indifference of the people, why our section should not become the great hog producing section of the state. In the first place the quality of the stock hogs has been improved until there are as fine bred hogs with us as there are in any other part of the state. The razorback is no longer to be found in Wood county. He has become one of the down and out club and is now only a remembrance and a subject for a joke. Our cattle have been improved, too, and the good work still goes on. As to feeds, while we raise corn more or less each year, the time has passed in East Texas when a stock farmer makes corn the sole feed and without it determines that he cannot raise hogs. That is an exploded idea and has been laid away along with many other ancient prejudices. Our sandy soil is especially productive relative to any vine or root crop and in consequence field peas of any variety, goobers, potatoes, especially sweet, and all species of vegetables and fruits are at their best in our country. There is no better feed for hogs than goobers, potatoes and goobers, taken in connection with some grass. The peas and goobers make fine feed both for hogs and cattle and the hay cured from the vines of the field peas and goobers makes a remarkably succulent and nourishing feed for horses and cat-

for by the town folks for their car-"The field peas are planted either by themselves or, as is most commonly done, are planted among the corn when it is laid by. This last fashior makes i hard to gather the corn, but it makes a splendid pasture for hogs and all manner of stock. It is not necessary to tell a southern man what virtue there is in sweet potatoes as food for hogs, for every one knows that. It was always the Tie in the south in the old days to have a few acres in a potato patch and when ready they were plowed up and the best, according to size were separated from the small ones and 'bedded' for the family use what were called 'notato banks.' The stock may graze it down until a mule can't get a hold on it with its strong teeth, but the minute the stock are removed it goes to growing and that at a rapid rate. In second bottoms of the creeks, it will get to be half leg high, and here it will be very fine for cattle, these animals not being able to eat it when it is grazed close to the ground with any degree of good. For hogs, there is nothing better and taken with the feedstuffs mentioned heretofore in this talk, a complete ration is obtained, which not alone produces the best results, but they are merely incidents, as it were, and help as a change of diet. We have had a world of crab grass this year, owing to the great fall of rain, but there was some compensation in the fine stalk fields that were to be had for our stock."

Stock Farming Good Business

James Connelly lives at Trenton, which is not far from Van Alstyne. 'Yes, I follow stock farming for a livelihood and I am confident that any farmer can get a big lot of satisfaction out of that branch of agriculture if he will make up his mind that there is something else that will bring money besides cotton and corn. I raise crops of feed and feed it to cattle and hogs and then sell the proceeds in the shape of good fat livestock. It is a good business, paying well, and is healthful at the same time. We made a very good crop of cotton this year and it is strange, for down in the neighborhood of Van Alstyne the weevil ate everything up or rather stung it to death. Cattle Doing Well Joe Payne came in from the territory with encouraging words from that section as to conditions. "Things are all right up at Waggoner in the nation," he said. "I am feeding 803 head of steer cattle up there on meal and hulls. Cattle are doing very well in that section and there is plenty of feed for anybody who wishes it. Crops have been good and everybody seems to be flourishing. There las been a lot of rain and all last week there was a misty, drizzling fall of moisture all the time. Take it all together matters could be much worse than they are at present. The country is pretty well settled now with farmers and farms are the common thing in the section of the territory where I have been re-

"Each full-blood Indian has a homestead of thirty acres that he cannot sell or dispossess himself of in less than twenty-five years. At a council that was held with the government the Cherokees agreed to certain restrictious. The land allotted was not to be allowed to be sold within less time than five years from the date of the agreement 1902. This was signed by both the Cherokees and the United States government, but the last congress, without any right or justice, took it upon themselves to restrict the full bloods for another twenty-five years before they could sell their lands. I am sure that this law will not stand in the courts.

"The senatorial committee that has just gotten thru an investigation, I am sure, will take another view of this case than the house did last session. and will remove the restrictions if not in full, still in part, so that the Indians can lease or sell some portion of their land. The United States realhad no right to interfere in any way with the lands of the Indians, for they were theirs by solemn treaty, the ndians giving value in the shape of their lands in the states within which they lived east of the Mississippi.

"When the Cherokees sold the strip along the northern border of their lands to a man named Joya, the neutral land it was called, their title was disputed and they took the case to the United States supreme court, and that court held that the title of the Cherokees was absolute, and that they alone could give a valid and legal title, as they were the sole owners under their treaty rights. The modern court of the territory and the secretary of interior have held different views and now the Indians have no title it is held except what congress gives them. "There never was a more unfair action on the part of any government, but no treaty with the Indians seems to have any binding effect when the land crazy people desire to enter upon and take it from its owners. We are nearly all for statehood, for the quicker we get from under the authority of the secretary of the interior and the territory courts the better we will be pleased. Nothing could be worse than Grass is a perfect mat on the ground and is green near the ground. It is a perfect hay on the ground and the cattle are enoving it to the fullest. There is no trouble about rotting grass down in that section as yet. I hear some talk of grass rotting out west in the papers, but there seems to be nothing to fear down in the Concho country.'

son county. "I am a dealer in cattle and stock and at the same time am engaged in the stock farming business, too. I do not work my lands myself but that is my business. We raise lots of feed stuff but we never sell it in the shape of grain but put it into the flesh of cattle and hogs and then sell it. This is the only true way to make farming pay and it is the most interesting by a long sight. We have had very much too much rain and between it and the boll weevils and boll worms the cotton has been a failure, not-more than a bale to six acres being the result. Cattle are very scarce now in our section, they having been picked up pretty close. This can also be said of the hogs, too, which have been sold very close indeed, as the price has been high all the year. There was plenty of forage crops raised and there is no lack of feed stuff for the cattle and hogs. The immense amount of rain has caused the crab grass to choke out the alfalfa and ruin it. Millet and sorghum are good crops with us and make good feed. Corn turned out forty bushels to the acre. Ours is a pretty good peach and pear country but apples do not last. They do very well for a few years and then die out. Ours is the regular black land and makes good crops of cotton and corn but it is not a country that will produce good crops of peanuts and such things as that,"

Alfalfa Has Failed Charles Shultz, who is a stock farmer near town, was on the yards looking over the stock and hearing the news. "We have gone thru the year very 'well," said he, "and all the interests on the farm are not suffering to any extent. Alfalfa is the only thing probably that has failed, and we have plowed it up, as it was not doing very well. Cotton turned out very good and was not troubled with weevil or worms. The sheep are doing fine and there is about as fine a flock of young lambs as any man ought to wish for. With the season in the ground that we have, it is hardly probable but that the next year will be as good a one as this."

The President feels the keenest appreciation of the high honor accorded him in making him the recipient of this prize, but he is disinclined to profit financially by his labors in this behalf. Physician Admits Leaving Poison for Hopelessly Sick Patients

The question of euthanasia has been exercising persons in various parts of the country of late, and while it has always seemed to me that certain incurably ill sufferers ought to be put out of their agony, I never met but one physician who openly confessed to having intentionally killed anyone. He is an old army surgeon, now retired from practice, and I asked him one day what treatment was given abdominal gun-shot wounds during the war, for I had heard that abdominal surgery was almost undreamed of in

ORTH FORT WORTH joins Fort Worth on the north. They are destined to be the largest center of population in the Southwest. This vast area embraces 100,000 square miles of the fertile land comparatively undeveloped, or one-third of Texas. This territory is being converted into farms. The large ranches are being divided into smaller tracts and sold to farmers who are beginning development. Almost every variety of soil and climate is afforded and unlimited opportunities are presented in this vast domain. This grand extent is the feeder for the nucleus that makes North Fort Worth, with two giant packing houses of Armour & Co. and Swift & Co., and the canning factory of Libby, McNeil & Libby, stock yards and railroads, THE GREAT LIVESTOCK MARKET OF THE SOUTHWEST

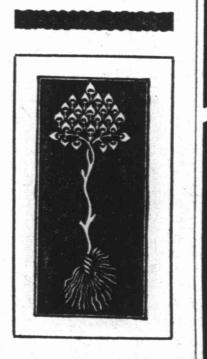

From a crossroads village a few years ago, North Fort Worth now claims for itself and adjacent suburbs a population of 10,000 souls, and besides its many businesses incident to a thriving town in the way of retail stores, groceries, markets, clothing stores, restaurants, hotels and kindred ventures, it boasts the successful management of two national banks, two ice and one cold storage plants, three elevators, one marble and monument works, one overall factory, one creamery and ice cream factory, one steam laundry, one electric light plant, a horse and mule market (the largest south of St. Louis), eight churches, a paid fire department, two electric trunk lines of street railway, an artesian system of water supply unsurpassed, representing $100,000 investment, and a residence section that is the pride of Tarrant county, as a brief description of Grand avenue will indicate. This thorofare is ten feet higher than the second story of the courthouse. It is the highest point in North Fort Worth. The Trinity valley flanks this to the west, forming Belmont Terrace Addition, affording a magnificent prospect and view for miles, and unsurpassed residence sites by anything in this county. The street is paved. Cement walks grace its sides, and altogether an ideal spot finds lodgment for the most modern and up-to-date homes.

Aside from several trunk lines which connect with every railroad in Texas, making this the state's greatest railroad center, here are afforded, as nowhere else, unlimited sites and favors for factories, warehouses, elevators, cotton mills and innumerable opportunities for the manufacturer and wholesaler. The local pride of the town centers in the new $35,000 high and grammar school building, which equals anything in Texas from an architectural standpoint, and furnishes educational facilities the best in the land. Our public school has enrolled 733 pupils, independent of which there is a kindergarten with forty pupils.

The truth of all these assertions is borne out by investigation which we invite, and we assure you the heartiest co-operation in satisfying your research for investment or home. North Fort Worth needs more factories, more residences for rental purposes, more retail stores, more business buildings. Anything that can succeed elsewhere can succeed here, and many things unsuccessful elsewhere are bound to succeed here. Opportunities are almost boundless. Let your inquiries be answered by the Commercial Club of North Fort Worth or the undersigned. It is our pleasure to serve.

And then, when her aunt had been heard coming heavily down the stairs, rustling at every step-when she had pushed aside the rose-colored drapery with one thick, white, bejeweled arm, and stood there a moment, very pink and very blue and very golden-when she had come in and greeted her kindly, affectionately, say-

any longer, but their little girl, and that her name was to be Genevra!-The young girl sat up hastily. They had been all that was good to heror they had tried-and now duty demanded the response they asked—that she be as a daughter to them. She was anxious to be worthy of their generous affection at any cost, and it would cost! Tears flowed again. It means the ending of all her girlhood friendships, for the girls she had met at school belonged to families that did not know Mr. and Mrs. Pilger-would not know them. Could she ever forget having brought her dearest chum home for a few holidays, and overhearing later the remark that the Pilgers were "hopelessly vulgar, you know, tho you wouldn't expect it, to see Genevra!" That they were so she knew. All this would mean the spoiling of her young

"Dressing for dinner, dear? I've got a great surprise for you tonight. No, won't tell you anything about it. You'll see him at dinner time."

Laughing, her aunt went away and Genevra clutched at the dressing table, shivering suddenly. Now it had come. They had invited to dinner the man who had been hanging for two years like a threatening cloud over her horizon. It must be Hopper, the young business partner of her uncle! She had never seen him, but could he be anything but horrible-the man who had said her aunt was the handsomest woman in New York; of whom her uncle spoke as a darned good fellow, an artist at concocting certain drinks, and the very devil with the

The preparation of her toilet for that dinner was the most sickening trial she had ever undergone; but it was nothing in comparison with the dinner. The guest of honor sat beside her, and murmured gallantries in her ear, He was big and sleek, with bold eyes and large laughter, affecting massive jewelry set with just a sufficient number of black pears to throw the diamonds into greater contrast. The girl hardly dared trust herself to look upon the figure of her aunt, opposite, so vast and tumultuous was the expanse of bare whiteness above her green-blue gown, so myriad the colored gems that glowed amidst the diamonds on her shoulders, neck and hair. Then when her uncle, who drank much wine and showed it in his eyes, slapped his wife coarsely on the shoulder, she flicking a few drops of water into his face in return, and they all laughed. Genevra felt that she should surely be consumed with hot humilia-

The evening came to an end, with its good-humored merry-making, Genevra had played and sung, and received the ensuing compliments with a modesty born as much of embarrassment as of nature. Mr. and Mrs. Pilger were pleased with their investment in her education. Mr. Hopper was pleased with her in every way. He had even remarked upon the beauty of her throat, to her unspeakable confusion. The last witticism had been laughed at, the last glance of pleased gratification exchanged, and after a fond good-night embrace from her aunt, a good-natured pat from her uncle, Genevra found herself in her room alone. She sank to her knees by the bedside, too anguished for tears, feeling hemmed in by horror.

Mr. Hopper's sentiments became quickly known. He sent masses of expensive flowers; bon-bons enough to make a girls' boarding school happy, There were automobile trips when he followed them to their summer "cottage." In fact, his wooing would have grown very ardent had it not been for Genevra's unwavering refusal to so anywhere unchaperoned. As a consequence her aunt, rather reluctantly, accompanied them always. And surely her high spirits and fun made for a better companion for Mr. Hopper, than his inamorata ever could have been. When the fall season came and with the return to town a merry-go-round of dinners, theaters and dances, his continual escort became almost unbearable. Never was there an evening meal free from his presence. If they oined a party, Mr. Hopper had her charge. If they dined privately, he was the fourth at table.

Yet, so far as his companionship was concerned, none other at hand would have been preferable. The women they knew were all of a type, elaborately coiffed, gorgeously dressed, perfumed, and the men their natural, masculine counterparts. Genevra writhed in a society which repelled her, fearing in any way to betray the repulsion.

And, worst of all, the nothing had been said, she knew that she was eventually expected to marry him. Just what she should do when the moment of crisis came she would not even consider-the thought was too painful; but many an hour the girl spent alone, in the early morning, or indeed waking in the dark night, trying to devise a plan for earning her own living if an hour of compulsion should come. One clear, cold Sunday morning dull unhappiness drove her out of the house before her uncle or aunt had arisen. People were coming to dinner and to remain all afternoon. There would be a little more wine than was necessary, high gayety and ragtime music. Partto nerve herself for the coming day, partly to get away from her own introspection, Genevra walked far and Returning, she passed a church of the same denomination that she had attended at school. The services were commencing, the sound of the organ swelled even to the street. A longing filled her heart and she went in. Before she came out she had become a member of the congregation. Girls do such things quickly sometimes when the assistant pastor is young, alert and skilled in the ways of women, and all this was the Rev.

Arthur Grant. Her action occasioned some surprise at home, but no disfavor. It was when she began spending week-day afternoons at the "settlement" as well as Sunday mornings at the church that Mr. and Mrs. Pilger made decided protest. Genevra heard their words without reply, and repeated them to the Rev. Arthur Grant, who listened, much disturbed at the thought of losing his pretty and capable assistant.

looking straight into her eyes, "we shall never find anyone to take your place. You give more time and are more valuable than any of the other girls; in fact, you are the only one who really puts her heart in the work. And—the children are not the only ones who will miss you. There areothers will miss you, too." He was a young man and only assistant rector, and some things are hard to say.

The time was short until Christmas, and Genevra lingered a little longevery day, while the young minister never failed to look in for a little while at least, to see how his charges were progressing, no matter w many other duties called him. It did his heart good to see this luxurywrapped young woman pour out such loving kindness to the swarm of chiliren, mostly unclean, all affectionate, that clung to her and adored her. It gave him greater faith in his own work, better courage for himself. And his heart ached to think that soon the settlement would know her ministrations no more. The time narrowed to two days. That afternoon he was slow in taking leave. "Can you come all day tomorrow?" asked. "I know it is asking so much you to be here the day before ristmas, but no one could trim the Christmas tree like you. I don't know anyone who would be such a help in getting things ready for the evening. And I do want the poor little rats to have the nicest Christmas, because it is their only one that you will have anything to do with."

"Do you want them to rejoice because I am going away?" she asked, "Let them rejoice, if they will," he answered, "Children forget. It is we own-ups who remember." 'Good night," said Genevra, extending her hand, with a little sigh. "I will surely come all day tomorrow, because it is the last time, and I want to be all the help I can." "No one will ever take your place," he replied. "Good night-until tomor-

That day a very different scene had taken place in the business offices of Pilger & Hopper, when the latter had suddenly burst in, angry and heated out of all proportion to the weather.
"See here, Pilger!" he exclaimed hotly. "You've been stringing me long enough! It's no fault of mine that Genevra and I haven't had an understanding long before this. I'll have one tonight or know the reason why. And if it's that pup of a preacher, I'll smash in his face for him. What are you talking about?" snorted her uncle, looking up with a pair shrewd, little eyes. "I know what I'm talking about, and you ought to know too. The girl lives at his Settlement House. Looking after the children? Children nothing! She goes there to see him and I don't like it. She'll take me tonight or leave that's all. I'm no fool for any girl to twist around her finger. She can have the preacher."

'What do you say?" cried Pilger. turning purple with fury, and bursting into an explosion of profanity. She'll marry you, or I'll know the reason why. Hopper, don't say a word to the girl this evening, and I will announce your engagement at the dance tomorrow night. Leave it to me. Any time I see her thrown away on a preacher! Any time!"

The indignant suitor allowed himself to be persuaded to another day's delay, and the next morning dawned ominously for Genevra "Last day at the settlement, isn't it?" was her ancle's query at the breakfast table. And his added words

"About time," foreboded ill. Mrs. Pilger's languid crossness at having her niece away all day made matters still more unpleasant, and Genevra was glad to escape into the open air. All the way to the settlement House her brain mechanically repeated over and over, "the last day," "the last day."

.The children were not to come that afternoon, but to wait until the evening, and then, with their parents and the tree, have all the joys of Christmas eve. So Genevra and Arthur Grant were practically alene all day.

They hung the tree with glittering festoons and trimmed it with many candles, fastened on the presents all tied up in pretty parcels, arranged the last detail for evening and the work was done. Something else had been accomplished, too-a set determination in one young man's mind that neither wealth nor outside opposition should interfere between him and his heart's

It was 6 o'clock and Genevra was drawing on her gloves, "It is time for me to go," she said in a shaking voice. He tried to speak what was crying for utterance from his lips, but could

"I-I hope the children will have a lovely time-and-I wish them all-and you-a-very merry Christ-"Merry Christmas!" he exclaimed.

"Merry for me, when I know you'll never be here again?" Genevra had read somewhere about an astral body. She felt as if she were conscious of one now, and it was drawing out of her and wavering around her empty shell. She spoke without conscious hearing of what she was saying: "I hung a present on the tree for you-"

"Genevra," he said, "Genevra!" and almost crushed her little hands in his. "There's only one Christmas present that I want and it isn't on the tree-" The door opened and Mr. Hopper walked in. "Thought I'd find you here, Gen," he said, blithely. "I came to take you in the parlor of the parsonage, was hardly the proper place for such expressions.

But as all her fellow-workers were hanging breathlessly on the recital of Mrs. Gleason, wife of the local druggist, her remark passed unnoticed. "Yes, he said just that: 'If you can get one that costs $5 more, all the bet-There's nothing too good for Mrs. Hiram Grey--'

"With the accent on the 'Hiram,' I suppose," suggested Miss Kent, the town milliner. The druggist's wife caught her breath and resumed: "And then he bought every Christmas tree ornament in our store and Bradley's stationery store, too, even to the wax angel which my husband was quite sure he would lose on, nothing so expensive ever having been sold in Santa Anna before. And then two hours later Larry Grey, he came in, and what he said when he found all the Christmas tree trimmings was gone my husband said would curl your hair. And he handed Mr. Gleason a $10 bill, and told him to telegraph an order for a duplicate lot, and some more, directly."

"My, those trees will be worth seeing. It's a shame the Grey family live twenty miles from nowheres." "And to think of Lucy Grey having a gold mounted toilet set, with French women painted on the back of the mirror and the brush, and only ten years ago the two families of them coming here in prairie schooners. Well, some folks do have luck!" sighed the little

The minister's wife looked up from her sewing. "Yes, but I think Lucy Grey would rather have back her sister's companionship and love than all the goldmounted toilet sets in Christendom. It is very sad indeed.

The soft, regretful tones quieted the clatter of gossiping tongues. The druggist's wife coughed not exactly in apologetic manner, but as if she had said, perhaps, a trifle too much. The little milliner rose and fastened her scarf around her throat. She had work to finish at the shop. Some one remarked that the doctor had told the blacksmith's wife that her eldest child was threatened with appendicitis, and perhaps a committee ought to be appointed to tender the sympathy and assistance of the Ladies' Aid. And so the conversation drifted in other channels, but the Grey quarrel was by no means forgotten. In fact, for nearly a year the breach between the two brothers had been the one, allabsorbing, never-failing topic of gossip in Santa Anna, and, in a way, Santa Anna had profited by the quarrel. For when Hiram Grey bought his wife a new dress length at the Fawett store, Larry Grey bought his wife a better one at the Hanson store. When Larry Grey paid $200 on the mortgage hanging over the church, Hiram promptly sent his offering of $250. Not that the Greys of either family ever came to town to church. They had done so before the quarrel. Even their women folk had sometimes driven in for the meetings of the Ladies' Aid. Now they stayed away. Not that they were afraid of meeting, but because the presence of the two factions might embarrass other churchgoers and impede the efforts of the Ladies' Aid. At least that was what Mrs. Hiram Grey had said to the minister when he had ridden the lonely fifteen miles out the Saguache road to find out why he had lost two good parishioners. Mrs. Larry Grey had simply worked her fingers in and out of the lace which edged her apron and wept

Away back in other years and in Old Missouri, Hiram and Larry Grey had married sisters, Ellen and Lucy Barton. Together the four had made a small farm profitable. Then, reducing all their belongings to cash, they had taken prairie schooners and entered this nountain-locked valley of Southern Colorado, with its marvelous undeveloped resources, its great sheep ranges, and its land to be had from the government for a song or less. With their nest egg they had made a fair start, and by in-telligent, purposeful efforts were becoming prosperous, when the serpent in the form of a corporation lawyer entered their Eden. Hiram Grey was in Pueblo at the time, on his way to Kansas City with a great shipment of sheep and lambs, Larry wrote to him, setting forth the lawyer's plan, but the letter miscarried and so, in the subsequent silence of Hiram, the foundation of the domestic tragedy was laid. The lawyer had no time to waste. If the deal was to be closed at all, it must be done at once. Other men who controlled watersheds would be glad to talk business.

Avarice, the glitter of gold on the distant horizon, dazzled Larry. He closed the bargain. The lawyer went back to Denver and drew up corporation papers, by which a company was formed which controlled the water supply of thousands upon thousands of acres of ranch land, and Larry Grey was vice-president of the company. All the ranchmen to the south of the Larry Grey land would have to pay so much a year for water to run thru their irrigation ditches, water which heretofore had been free, and Hiram Grey was among those southern neighbors. In fact, his ranch lay next to Larry's, and their comfortable homes were just the width of a quarter section apart.

Larry had really meant to protect Hiram's water rights in the final deal. He had power to do so, but Hiram's hot words when he returned from the trip whose profits the brothers were to share roused a very devil in his souland he shut off the water supply within twenty-four hours.

Then Hiram had built, at tremendous expense, an artesian well, and the quarrel to all appearances was deeper than this well, and as inexhaustible. Connection between the two comfortable homes on opposite sides of the quarter section ceased. Barring sensational efforts to outdo each other in the eyes of acquaintances and tradesmen in Santa Anna, fifteen miles away, the community knew nothing. Only the sad faces of the two sisters on their trips to town, and the fact that two governesses instead of one taught the two flocks of small Greys bore eloquent testimony to the fact that all intercourse between the two families had been broken off. "Larry, think of it," she said, tearfully. "A lovely Christmas tree and not a match in the house to light it when the children get up. A beautiful turkey, mince pie, everything that's good-and the nearest neighbor from whom we could borrow matches, ten miles away. Oh, if you only hadn't-" she stopped abruptly.

She would not reproach him on this, Christmas eve. He had meant to do what was best. He had told her that he wanted money and power only to make her happier. He could not understand. And arguing thus, she fell asleep in his arms.

But her words would not sleep. They came back to the man, sitting rigidly in the dark, his arms clasped about the woman he loved.

"A lovely Christmas tree and not a match to light it. The nearest neightor ten miles away. Oh, if only you

If only he hadn't! How many times in the past three months he had said the same thing. How often he had missed Hiram's protecting presence and comforting strength and brotherly affection. How often he had grieved as the children's plea for cousinly companionship had been cut short by his wife's tactful words. He had made them all unhappy. What was the use of trying to hide this fact with a gorgeous tree and high priced gifts? There was something they wanted more than presents.

Suddenly he, bent forward and caught his wife's regular breathing. Then very gently he laid her on the sofa, covered her with infinite care, and, putting on his great coat, stalked forth into the night.

There was a path thru sage brush across the quarter section, long since dropped into disuse, but he found it now and followed it, close to the barbed wire fence. Suddenly he caught the approach of quick, pattering feet. He bent his head to listen. It was not the soft, padded fall of a wolfs or coyote's foot. It was human, and short and sharp, and it was very close now. He sprang forward and a woman fell gasping into his arms.

"Oh, Larry, is that you? I was frightened almost to death. I never dreamed you'd be coming this way to-

"Nor I, that I'd meet you on the same path," he said, grimly, as he supported his trembling sister-in-law. She clung to him gratefully and ignored his grim speech.

"I haven't slept a wink, I saw such a funny flame in your kitchen window tonight, and somehow I could not get it out of my head that something had happened to my sister Ellen." "Well, something did happen, but not her. I burned every dog-on match in the house and she's cried herself to sleep because she can't light the tree in the morning for the kids." Lucy Grey lifted sparkling eyes to

'Come right back to the house and we'll get those matches and take them back together.' Larry hesitated.

'I'll go-on one condition. I want a few minutes' talk with Hiram-I want to tell him I was in the wrong and I'm going to make it right-I want-Across the sky a pale white wht crept. Lucy Grey caught her brotherin-law's arm.

"Don't you waste a minute like this. Ellen will cry her eyes out about those matches, if we don't hurry." Larry entered his brother's house with words of regret and penitence on his lips. Hiram had been roused from slumber by the vague realization that the place beside him in the great fourposter was empty. At sight of his wife and brother, he gave an exclamamight have known she couldn't stand it at Christmas time, and I'm glad she went after you. Larry, I'm an old fool-and by God, how I've

The younger brother stepped into the warm, lamplighted room, feeling like a Christmas prodigal, but he did not speak. He picked up the hand that, by reason of great difference in years, had guided him over many rough places. His cold, trembling lips touched the work-worn fingers and something round and hot and moist followed the quick, impetuous

"Here are matches, Larry," said Lucy Grey, handing her brother-inlaw a bulging pasteboard box of the precious articles. "And I've called the children. They're dressing. So's Miss We're all going back with Benson. you. Gracious, I must help little Larry on with his boots. The sky's getting awful light."

Ellen Grey turned restlessly and flung back the afghan her husband had tucked about her. Where was she? Oh, yes; in the sitting room! There stood the tree, strangely gaunt in the pale dawn. She remembered There were no matches with which to light it. She hoped the children would sleep until very late. She sat up very straight, Steps, steps just outside the door. Perhaps David had found some matches after all Perhaps Larry-

"Hark, the herald-angels sing, Glory to the new born king; Peace on earth and mercy mild, God and sinners reconciled."

She stumbled toward the door. Those voices, a bass she knew well, a tenor that had rung in this room, oh, how often, and, yet, that was her sister's queer, uncertain alto among the childish falsettos. She opened the door and leaned dizzily against its frame. "Lucy, Lucy!" she cried, and flung vide open her arms.

Miss Benson, Hiram Grey's governess, looked far across the valley where the first pale pink shafts of sunlight were touching the mountains with a faint celestial glory.

Hiram and Larry Grey tried to look unconcerned and said something about its being uncommon warm Christmas weather, but the small Hiram Greys plunged madly into the nouse and up the narrow stairway to the rooms where they knew their cousins would be found.

"Come on, kids," shouted Larry the second. "Come on an' sing heraldangels an' see what Santa Claus

What Larry had made thru his deal with the Santa Anna Improvement Company, Hiram had perhaps doubled by a fortunate turn in the wool market. tradespeople, but he had gone to the depot and claimed a large express package from Denver which, he explained to the station agent, was the finest doll his partner, the corporation lawyer, could get. It was for little Lucy, his daughter, named in honor of the aunt whom, by the way, she missed sorely. Perhaps the doll might fill the void. Of course, Larry Grey did not say all this, but he thought it as he drove back with the parcel snuggling up against his great coat. And so came Christmas eve. The Hiram Greys trimmed their tree early and retired. As Lucy Grey stepped for the last time to her window she saw across the quarter section of land a sudden flame shoot up behind her sister's kitchen window and then as suddenly die down into darknass. "I do declare, Hiram, it looked exactly as if something had taken fire over at Ellen's and then gone out again quick. Do you suppose she-'Oh, don't worry about other people's affairs. The children will hear you chattering and be down like wolves on the Christmas tree before midnight. Larry'll take care of Ellen, don't you worry. He has shown he knows how to look after his own."

The bitterness of his tones told his wife that even in this Christmas tide the wrath in his heart did not burn low. She crept into bed, buried her face in her pillow and gave way to soundless sobs.

Over in the Larry Grey house there had been a fire, a single but hopeblasting tongue of flame. Not that the Larry Greys had realized the extent of their loss at the time. It was an hour before its full extent was

They, too, had begun to trim the tree early, Larry, Ellen and the governess, an Eastern college girl, who had come West for her health and was trying to banish her own homesickness by creating a Christmas spirit that would not burn in the Larry Grey home. But the tree was a beauty, the trimmings intricate and demanding many bits of ribbon and wire hangers. The two women made a feint of Christmas merriment as they prepared the trifles for Larry to hang. Strands of popcorn and tinsel gave the finishing touch, and then they stepped back to admire their work.

"Lovely," exclaimed the governess. "Do light it up, Mr. Grey, while we arrange the presents. Let us have a peek at its complete loveliness before we go to bed. In the morning we shall be so excited with the children that we will not notice the tree." On the opposite side of the room rose a mighty fireplace of adobe in which pinion logs usually burned. But tonight it had been warm, owing to a sudden thaw, and they had let the fire burn low, Larry Grey kicked the ashes and gray logs aside as he bent

"Where are the matches, Ellen?" he asked as he felt in the empty box above the fireplace. "Oh, I have been so busy I forgot to fill the safes. You'll find them in the corner closet in the kitchen-a whole big box that you brought home yes-

spark could he find.

And a moment later the flame that Lucy Grey had seen a quarter of a mile away shot up into the air. Larry never knew just how it happened. He opened the big box, struck a match and turned to light the kitchen lamp when the whole box of matches seemed to flash up in one mighty flame. He turned to the sink, picked up a bucket and doused the flames. It was over in the twinkling of the eye and then ne went back to the sitting room. "Got any more matches in the house, Ellen? I've paralyzed that box for

And then began the weary search for matches. Lamp in hand, and followed you both-but not in the way you ask by the two women, he searched every cranny of the house. The usually careful and forehanded housekeeper had forgotten to fill the holders in the Christmas excitement. Even the bedrooms would not yield up a precious lucifer. The wood range had been permitted to go out after supper. The embers in the fireplace were absolutely dead. The trio sat down and looked at each other in amused dismay.

"A matchless Christmas," murmured the governess. "We'll have to sit up all night and watch this lamp. If it burns out, we can take a taper and light an-"Better still," suggested Ellen, "we will build a fire here and then, in the morning, light the tree and the kitchen' fire from the fireplace." "You are both wrong," exclaimed Larry, feeling that somehow the affair was taking on the flavor of an adver-"I'll go up to David's cabin and borrow some matches."

David was the man of all work and e had a cabin of his own behind the corrals. No doubt he would be blessed with a big supply of matches, for he was an inveterate smoker. Larry reached for his hat and coat and just at that moment there came a knock at the door. Ellen, lamp in hand, stepped to the door. It swung open and the lamp went out in the draft. A voice, rich and friendly came out of the night. "Sure, Mrs. Grey, would you give me the loan of a few matches? I haven't one, and two of the boys from the Bar-X range has dropped in for a bit of Christmas cheer and friendly

"I am Royal Stetson," she inclined her head coldly and did not contradict. But when he added in scarcely distinguishable words, "Do you wish to start for the ranch tonight?" she announced with an air which cut like a whiplash, "I have decided to go tonight, and by stage."

He drew some six feet of brawn and bone up haughtily, while his eyes blazed in a way not good to see, but their fire was lost on Kathryn. She had turned without another word and walked swiftly out of the parlor to the office. As she stopped again climbed the stairs. Her knees failed her, and a feeling of faintness assailed her. "It's the effect of the altitude," she told herself bravely, altho a better explanation was found in the presence of the man leaning against the office door and following her with a pair of angry and perplexed eyes. "The villain!" she breathed and then stole another glance. He was certainly a handsome one.

She had resolved on a desperate move. Shutting her teeth firmly and resisting a desire to shut her eyes, she removed a small revolver from her suit case and slipped it tremblingly into the bosom of her dress. "If he follows us"-she whispered and shivered. At intervals for a month she had practiced with that revolver and, barring a constant fear of it, she felt proficient in its use since she had mastered the art of pulling the trigger. "Fair night, ma'am, but cold," volunteered the stage driver as he tucked her unsteadily away in the back seat of the stage and surrounded her with boxes and bags galore.

Kathryn's hand flew to her hat as the stage was jerked violently forward. A fleeting backward glance revealed a tall figure in a fur coat and hat standing beside one of the porch pillars, and the light streamed out of the office door fell on a smooth, dark The stranger was evidently equipped for traveling. panied by a bottle, alarmed her. The belief that she was being followed terrified her, while the limitless wastes thru which they were moving made her heart ache with loneliness. A sharp wind carried the dust in eddies around the wagon, leaving a long dirt air trail behind them. The moon, bright and full, arose out of a dreary distance in the east and moved toward a dreary distance in the west. It shone on a wilderness of

had left home and safety behind and projected herself into this land of terror and danger. Back in God's country it was Christmas eve, with cheer and comfort. The family were collected now in the library around the Christmas tree singing Christmas carols and distributing gifts. And here was she beset with evils on all sides. The threatened tears were checked by a sound on the back trail. She thought she saw a shapeless, shadowy thing plunged down a sliding, dust deep decline into the Oregon coulee. Fool sat on her haunches and, nipping at Rambler's neck, slid down. Rambler, pawing, scrambling and kicking, followed half a length behind in a cloud of dust, while the brake, gripping iron on iron, screamed an ear-racking accompaniment. At the bottom of the gulch the horses stonned with such accord as to dislodge Kathryn from

"Oh, what a shame to drive such horses!" cried Kathryn in despair. "I'm afraid to get in and I'm afraid not to. Oh, dear, what shall I do?" "Well, in this country we do whathic-we have to," was the consoling assurance. "And I'll warn you, ma'am, that if them beasts take it into their heads to hit the trail on the run-hiccan't get 'em back after you until tomorrow. They've got the western spirit, ma'am," proudly, "the independence and go ahead."

The half tipsy jehu grinned and rested one foot on top of the dashboard. Kathryn glanced at the elevation which they had come and saw something which at once decided her. There defined against the sky on top of the mesa appeared two horses, a carriage with the top laid back and the erect figure of a man fur coated and capped.

"I'll get in!" she cried hastily, stepping forward. The roan saw the movement and chose to be afraid. The next instant there was a mad plunge thru the coulee and a scramble up the other side.

The driver's voice floated back, loudy cheerful, "Wish you'd taken my advice sooner, ma'am." His words were lost in a cloud of dust, and Kathryn stood alone in the midst of Big Horn basin listening to the rapid thud of the runaway horses' feet.

"Slowly, boys," she heard a deep voice say, and two Indian ponies slid down the incline and stopped before Their driver sprang from the carriage and lifted his cap courteously, altho his voice was decided. "It's fortunate I followed the stage directly, because behind us-"I shall not ride with you!" gasped Kathryn.

Far behind them arose a confusion of sounds, which caused the man to isten intently a moment. Then-"You will kindly get into the buggy at once."

There was a note of brusque masterfulness in the tone, which caused Kathryn's anger to mount above her fear. With numb fingers she drew out her little gun and gripped it desperately in both hands. "I can shoot you," she declared indignantly, fumbling for the trigger. The next instant she stood empty handed, while her revolver disappear. ed somewhere inside the big fur coat. "You are probably unaware you were holding the butt end of that gun toward me!" its possessor remarked in a voice unmistakably choked with amusement. Then the amusement faded. "Pardon me, but this is no time for child's play," he added as the sounds back of them became louder. Dexteriously and unexpectedly he picked Kathryn up, set her in the carriage and was beside her before she could utter a protest.

"I'm sorry, but there's no time to lose," he said, looking into her eyes

As the ponies rose to the next mesa the sounds on the back trail resolved themselves into the shouts and laughter of many men. Never were the sounds of human voices more welcome to Kathryn. "I am going to appeal to those men for aid," she declared in a spirited voice. "They may be western gentlemen!" Her abductor's face went red, and he said quietly: "That is according to what your ideas of gentlemanliness may be. They are drunken sheep herders on their way to Meeteetse, and it's my intention to give them a wide

"Oh!" The spirit oozed out of Kathryn's voice. She glanced at the profile beside her, the strong mouth and firm chin. He certainly looked like a gentleman himself, she thought, but how could she explain his actions. Everything was unreal and contradictory in this awful western land, from porters that refused tips to attractive men who abducted defenseless women without appearing to enjoy the operation in the least. In the silence which followed sha began to realize how cold she was. The wind sucked thru the gulches and drove over the hills, chilling her thru and thru. Her shivers aroused her companion, who gently drew the fur robe up, tucking it securely around her. Then, without apology or ceremony, he gathered her numb fingers into his left hand and warmed them. His gentleness contrasted strangely with his late peremptory actions and added to the unreality of the situation. "It's all a dream," thought Kathryn, her head dropping drowsily, "Perhaps I'll wake and find he isn't a villain, but a very-" And with the thought unfinished, overcome by fatigue, she drifted into dreamland.

When she awoke she gazed about in bewilderment. The sun was painting the east in gorgeous colors, and at the right in the misty distance arose the peaks of the Shoshone mountains. Meeteetse lay behind them, and down at the left, near the road, Wood river chattered among its stones. Suddenly dawning recollection brought the blood surging into her cheeks. She raised her hands to adjust her velvet toque, at the same time meeting a pair of dark eyes containing an expression which filled her with confusion as she glanced involuntarily at the fur clad shoulder against which she had been sleeping. "I wish you a most delightful Christmas," her companion said quietly, his eyes on the Ponies.

Her heart leaped in sudden hope. She tried to speak, but her lips were parched and stiff, and it was an instant before she could whisper, "Where-where am I going to spend

Her abductor turned quickly and looked at her. There was a touch of anger and wonder in his voice. "I suppose here at the Y-open-A ranch." She strained her eyes in silence down Wood river valley, where a collection of buildings appeared in the midst of a group of trees. The ponies turned sharply from the highway and stopped before a large gate. Their driver laid the reins in Kathryn's hands and sprang to the ground. Swinging back the gate, he said briefly, "This is the Y-open-A."

Down the field a pony galloped bearing a well known figure, and Kathryn sat stupid, scarcely believing the evidence of her own senses. Behind her sounded a short whistle, and at the signal the horses started, and she found herself driving alone to meet the mistress of the ranch.

"A merry Christmas to you, dear, and a happy time among us." Mrs. Stetson wheeled her horse, and the two clasped hands.

Bonner, a novel of rather startling fashion, and one of the latest in the field, is hardly worth reading unless the reader has time and likes modern society fiction. Methods used by the characters in dealing with one another are unusual and after a surprising succession of events, the whole story breaks up by a thunder-clap from an unknown field, thus rendering a happy ending to the hero and heroine, if such they can be called, and catastrophe to

Dominick Ryan, son of the wealthy widow, Mrs. Con Ryan, has been trapped into a marriage with a stenographer Bernice Iverson. New York and prospects are given for a happy marriage.

This last book of Geraldine Bonner's has the one characteristic of late fiction. It can be read quickly. Page follows page, altho for its length there is little incident and consequently one skims along rapidly. The sudden change in plot caused by the discovery of an earlier marriage of Bernice takes one's breath away and before it is re-

One cannot entirely sympathize with Rose Conner, who allows a married man to make open love to her after two weeks' acquaintance, but whose sense of honor is deeply wounded by the revealing of her father's attempt to procure a divorce for her lover. The one step is not so far beyond the other to cause such a revulsion of feeling. One cannot help but like Bil! Cannon with his scheme. Bluff, hearty exminer, he has more than his share of money and is not used to being crossed. Dominick, however, is weak and can do nothing for himself, even seeking sympathy from Rose for his trou-

The Blissful State of Widowhood We have never been able to understand why even the dour Jeremiah should have regarded widowhood as a just cause of reproach. Whatever may be their sentiments after the event few women, while their husbands live, really wish to lose them, and, barring those who cultivate the habit of nagging or whining to their own great enjoyment, practically none can find themselves directly responsible for the demise of her partner. It was not uncommon, however, in the old days, to consider misfortune itself as deserving of censure, and it was in this cruelly harsh spirit, we assume, that the pro-

cause for lamentation if alive and observant today. Surely no reproach now attaches to widowhood and we question whether, in point of fact, it is from the day of that daughter's first any longer regarded as an affliction and not, in the general run, as a somewhat happy circumstance. True, the lot of a woman especially a young woman, suddenly deprived of the presence of the man whom she has grown accustomed to see about the house, is still regarded as one of peculiar sadness; but it is indeed amazing to note the brevity of the time required to transform commiseration into congratulation, and even envy, on the part of her sisters. The primary cause of this attitude lies doubtless in the value attached to the acquirement of pecuniary independence and personal freedom, but unless we have misjudged the controlling forces of femininity, a most unlikely supposition the enviousness is directly traceable to a suspicion that men are prone to consider widows more attractive than maidens or even married women of similar ages. One never hears of a sour young widow, and seldom a gay old maid: the former is referred to in-

usually as "crabbed," and it is needless to say which a man is asked to come to meet at teas, houseparties and like functions, where the masculine presence is most desired and with the greatest difficulty obtained. is an interesting fact, moreover that the discrimination in favor of the widow finds ample justification, althe it is probably accounted for by the difference between what is expected of her and of her unwedded sister. No responsibility as to attractiveness rests upon the shoulders of an unalluring spinster, and, sensitive to this practice the arts of pleasing and relies for attention upon cultivated personal satire, which quickly palls upon one seeking a more gracious form of amusement. The young widow, on the other hand, realizing that her shining qualities have been duly heralded, is constantly alive to the necessity of justifying her reputation for vivacity. sweetness of disposition, charm of manner or daring speech, as the case may be, and is induced by pride to exert her utmost endeavors to make herself agreeable. In this she profits from the American man's chivalry to women and fidelity to men, and is aided materially by the convention of pólite society, which accords her a

Not that demure appearance and coy glances lack efficacy; far from it. Even beauty, "all powerful as it is," according to Montaigne, "has not wherewithal to make itself relished without the mediation of these little arts;" if spinsters had been endowed with a monopoly of such weapons, the contest would be waged more evenly. Unfortunately for them, if not indeed for all of us, these qualities are common to all women, and are so susceptible of sedulous cultivation by constant practice that the maiden's shyness of manner is fully counterbalanced by the greater adeptness of the widow in the exercise of flitting obliquity by eyelashes tinged to meet the requirements of harmonious ex-

Indefinite continuance in the intermediate state, which we have seen to be far from unhappy, would be contrary to feminine nature and distinctly unwise, as tending toward what might seem to have the effect of a professional condition, such, for example, as inevitably withers interest in a lady who has huried more than two husbanls; but in the present state of our civilization, in view of the considerations herewith set forth simply, yet to our mind conclusively, we unhesitatingly advise preliminary marriage with one carefully selected with a view to his early demise, to be followed by an interim of joyous widowhood before definitely and finally engaging in matrimony as a permanent peation likely to induce the placidity rational existence.—George Harvey n the North American Review for

"Once we taught the nations what to do. Now we teach them what not to do," says Charles Edward Russell in "Soldiers of the Common Good," in the Christmas Everybody's. "It is even so. In all the remaking of New Zealand a tremendous force has been the determination to escape, at whatever cost, the conditions prevailing in the United States. All the world knows what has happened to us. The story of the corner of the globe; the very boatmen on the Wanganui river and the Maori school boys will tell you that America is dominated by its rich men and corporations and distracted with labor upheavals. To all mankind we seem to have become the awful example. Often in Switzerland and Germany I was startled to find how keenly, even to the minutest details, our troubles had been noted, and here in New Zealand not a line of their significance was overlooked in the discussion provoked by the new measures. 'Let us have no trusts here as they have in America,' men said. 'Let us have nothing like the American railroad companies, bribing legislatures and watering stock.' 'The strikes in America are terrible calamities; we must not have such things here.' The newspapers teemed and still teem with such comments; and if we have done ill for ourselves we have at least done well for our neighbors, since every disastrous effect upon America of the unequal distribution of earnings and of opportunity has been a spur to the regeneraion of New Zealand.'

"If Sinclair is an example of an honest and sincere and competent Socialist, then his maudlin sympathy, his ignorance, prejudice, malice and unreliableness impeach him as a person unfit and unworthy of trust or confidence. The book called forth from William Jennings Bryan another, entitled "Letters to a Chinese Official, Being Western View of Eastern Civilization," Mr. Bryan being unaware that the authorship had been avowed. Now Mr. Dickinson has written a rejoinder to Mr. Bryan, which will appear in the December Century under the title of "Eastern and Western Ideals." "I do not propose to defend my representation of China against Mr. Bryan's," says Mr. Dickinson. "For my purpose I selected all the good, as he, for his, has selected all the evil; and a controversy carried on upon such lines as those can have no fruitful result. Nor would it be really interesting or relevant. Like Mr. Bryan, I am a westerner; it is western civilization with which we are both most nearly concerned, and if I differ with him, it is not, I think, upon the question of ultimate ideals, but upon the degree to which we have realized, or are in process of realizing them." There is certain to be much of suggestive interest in Mr. Dickinson's discussion of Mr. Bryan's reply to his

"How about the talking machines? These, to be sure, are purely mechanical; the owner cannot regulate the music produced by them. This makes them less desirable for those who enjoy the fascination of personally producing music. Shall we therefore condemn them entirely? Mr. Goodrich says: "All but the phonograph can be recommended for special purposes." But the musical phonograph surely has its uses-even for teachers. I was informed at a large music store that teachers ofte ne and asked permission to hear a certain song sung into a talking machine by Caruso or ! some other famous singer, to make sure of some detail of phrasing. Other teachers buy a phonograph, so as to have it always on hand for their pupils. Starting with the beginning of the states, a brief outline of history preceding the revolution is given. The need of a strong government, following the failure of the articles of confederacy and the formation of the constitutional convention. The spirit of the delegates to this convention is aptly shown in the words of Washington, "It is too probable that no plan we propose will be adopted. If to please the people we offer what we ourselves disapprove, however can we afterward defend our work? Let us raise a standard to which the wise and honest can repair; the event is in the hand of the publication of a book caused the international sensation which has followed the appearance of "Hohenlohe Memoirs," the English translation of which is published this week. Publishers in England and America have frequently remarked the dearth in the last few years of good stories for children, altho the search for the right material has been persistent. Not long ago an English publishing house offered two large prizes, one for the best story for children of both sexes, and the other for the best girls' story. The two contests were conducted separately, but the awards were made and it was intended to announce the names of the winners simultaneously. Greatly to the publishers' surprise they learned after the prizes had been awarded that both of the successful stories came from the same author, Miss Christina Gowans Whyte. The prize story for girls was "The Story Book Girls," which is published by the Macmillan Company. E. F. Benson's "Paul," recently published by the Lippincotts, is winning good opinions for itself, and will no doubt be one of the big sellers of the season. It is a modern love story, the scene of which alternates between Italy and England. The book is considered the strongest and most human yet produced by its author, who is favorably

"The Workers, and Others Poems" Has a new Anglo-American poet arrived?" This question has been asked by more than one critical reader of a recent volume of verse, entitled "The Worker, and Other Poems." Its author, Coningsby William Dawson, is a very young man; an Englishman by birth, a graduate of Oxford, and at present a resident of this country. His unpretentious and unheralded little volume has been acclaimed by many a surprised critic as a genuine and im-

"The House of a Thousand Candles" The third English edition of "The House of a Thousand Candles" (Bobs-Merrill Company) was exhausted in November, and the novel bids fair to repeat its American success. American Flags

A work likely to become practically national text-book on all matters relating to American flags is Peleg D Harrison's "The Stars and Strips and Other American Flags," just published by Little, Brown & Co. Mr. Harrison has brought together in his large ocable information.

"Eight Secrets" Ernest Ingersoll's new story, "Eight

Secrets," is dedicated "To the Ninth Secret." The delightful story throws no light on this cryptic reference, and Mr. Ingersoll is already receiving letters demanding that he write another book to elucidate the mystery.

It is often said that the English do not understand American humor. However this may be as regards some American humor, there is no doubt that they like Mark Twain, and a second English edition of the recently published "The $30,000 Bequest" has already been issued.

Made In Porto Rico From Porto Rican Tobacco

That's one thing that's sure about El Toro Cigars —something extremely doubtful about the many so-called "Porto Rican" brands.

The recent increased cost of Porto Rican leaf is responsible for the many brands of doubtful quality now being rushed on the market.

CIGAR—5 Cents

is the one cigar you can be sure is genuine Porto Rican—in name and quality.

El Toro represents the best 5-cent Cigar that Porto Rico can produce. Smokers of El Toro cigars know how far superior this brand has always been to any cigar sold for 5 cents.

This year's Porto Rican tobacco crop is better than ever before, and only the choicest selections are used in the El Toro. For this reason, the El Toros now on the market are particularly recommended to smokers.

Every El Toro is now banded. This is the cigar that has done so much to popularize Porto Rican cigars among discriminating smokers.

CHRISTMAS OF BULLS AND BEARS

How Day Before Holiday Is Spent in World's Market

HE Christmas spirit is about the only thing traded in on December 24 on Wall street, and the brokers have a celebration each year that literally jars things loose. The features of this ceremony vary, but the horseplay does The brokers let off the tension and have a good time generally. The festivities begin at noon and sometimes last for several hours. The galieries early, mostly with wives and weethearts of the members on the floor. The stock exchange is liberally draped with green and red. The Seventh regiment band is on hand and as the chairman sounds the gong begins playing "The Star Spangled Banner" or some other patriotic air. Sometimes an elaborate program is arranged, nade up of minstrel acts, coon songs, comic talks and similar performances. But, whatever the especial form of entertainment, the bulls and bears conduct themselves in much the same way. They make Rome howl. Hats are mashed; bags of confetti are thrown at the ladies in the gallery, who in turn empty the contents over the heads and shoulders of the shouting brokers below.

If there happen to be new members hey are "initiated," and are carried about the room in a yelling procession to the music of the band. On one such occasion an amateur football game was played in the great chamber of the stock exchange. Afterward the members indulged in a cakewalk for an immense forty pound cake, which was temptingly displayed on the chairtock exchange celebrations, all sorts comic presents were handed out, and the carnival ended up by everydy telling jokes on everybody else. recent years this formal observance of the day has been abandoned. A Santa Claus Party

As the once popular "dankey party" no longer holds forth for novelty, here is something new-a Santa Claus party. Take an old sheet and paint or draw on it a Santa Claus. Have a number of red caps cut from medium weight water color paper and distributed among the guests. Taking turns, let each one be blindfolded and, walking toward the sheet, try to place the cap on Santa's head. The person succeeding is the winner and receives the prize of a toy Santa Claus. Turkey Which Ended Long Fast An odd incident of the last Christmas celebration in St. Louis was the breaking of a month long fast by James Barrington, who had been in custody two and one-half years on a charge of murder. Barrington expected turkey for dinner Thanksgiving day, and when the jail rations were served minus the national bird he refused to eat and promptly went on a strike. He declined his provisions consistently until Christmas, when he got the pined for turkey.

LITTLE ALICE'S WONDERFUL TRIP

Doll Tells Her Story of Girl Who Was Kind

The very first thing I can remember in all the four months of my life squealed crossly every time they were touched. Well, here I had to sit perfeetly quiet for days and days, watchpassed by our house, until I got so I never would be able to walk again. One day a lovely little girl came past, and I was sure she liked me best of all the dolls, for she came close up to where I sat and pressed her tiny face against the glass and smiled at me so sweetly that I wanted her to take me right away with her. I heard her begging her mamma to buy me for her, but I guess her mamma didn't like me, or something; anyway, she went away and left me still sitting in that horrid glass house and I was so tired.

After a few days we were all taken out of our glass house and carried away to the most wonderful room I have ever seen. It was crowded with sleds and horses and little wooly bears and other dolls, and just everythingnow where do you suppose it was? It was Santa Claus' storeroom, where he kept all his gifts for boys and girls until he got his list made out and got ready for his journey. Here we were ay until he called for us. We were there a long time and one night just as we were all going to sleep, in rushed Santa Claus, all covered with snow. He must have been in an awful hurry, for he bundled us all into boxes and bags and dumped us into his sleigh and before we knew what had happened he was off-and such a journey -over housetops and tree tops and fences and hills without ever stopping until we came to a place where there were ever so many houses; then Santa Claus would jump out at each house taking some one of us with him; I had just about decided that he was going to keep me, when the reindeers stopped suddenly before a pretty white cottage and out jumped Santa Claus as usual, but this time he took me. I was frightened out of my wits, for he climbed up to the very top of the old black chimney and then started down

Finally he came back to me and bidding me good night, vanished thru the chimney as noiselessly as we had come down. So I was left alone, but I was so tired after that strange journey that I went right to sleep until mornstred, it can be purchased for about | beautiful lady, who lifted me carefully | ing, when I was awakened by the sound of little bare feet on the stairway and then I opened my eyes what do you think I saw? All at once she remembered me, for down she came off the steps and picked me up, bed and all, ing the crowds of people as they and what a welcome I did get to my new home! And here I am still as I tired and cramped up that I thought write you this little story, as happy as ever doll could be.

How Her Thoughtfulness Made the Sunshine Come Out

The little girl I'm going to tell you about lived in a big city miles and miles away from here, and her parents were very poor, so Christmas didn't mean the same to Marion as it does to most boys and girls, for there were tiny brothers and sisters to be clothed and fed, and when Santa did come, he always had to leave warm clothes and food instead of dolls and toys and candies and nuts, and all the good things that children like to have him leave: so never in all her life had little Marion owned a real doll until one day, just before my story opens, a kind aunt, who lived away off in another city, had sent her a beautiful big doll, with lovely brown curls and big brown eyes, just like Marion's own What a happy little girl Marion was, and what good times they had together, the fine long walks they would take and the tea parties Marion would give, and invite all the other brothers and sisters, and always the new dollie was queen of the party. One day as they were taking the usual walk, they passed a little cottage away back from the street-a cold, bare looking cottage, and glancing up n utterly useless and undesirable at the window, Marion caught sight of gift. She seemed so glad to see Marion, and how she admired the beautiful big doll-she told Marion how when just a tiny baby she had had a fall and that all the rest of her life she would just have to sit there in her little chair, that she could never go to school, or walk or play like other girls; she must just sit there by her cheerless window and watch them; besides this Meg's mamma was very poor and it took all she could earn to buy food, so she hadn't even a doll like Marion's, or toys to keep her company thru the long, lonely day when her mamma was away at work, and how tired she got. Ten million dollars' worth of toys will have been sold by Christmas! Boys and girls, and grown folks, too-can you comprehend these

Just think-it required a whole fleet of ships to bring this great cargo across the ocean from Toyland, the land of the master toymakers. Toyland, you know, is somewhere in Germany, where a swift river runs thru grassy banks and children with wooden shoes skip and play in the streets from morning until night. Never before has the ingenuity of the human brain been taxed to such extent as it has this year to invent new toys.

Jointed dolls, with fine, rolling eyes and soft, lisping voices are the proper thing this season. They walk and talk and drink tea in smart, up-to-date style. They wear real lace and jewels, too. If they don't come up to this high standard, then the little daughters of the rich won't have them. And the boy of the family must have equipment. Every current event is eagerly seized upon by the topmaker as an idea. The Russia-Japan war has brought forth 40,000,000 of toy Japanese and toy Russians, enabling the boys to have great mimic battles. The children of the rich can "shoot the chutes" this year in their own homes. Then there are the big stuffed elephants and camels and goats, all very new in Toyland, and racing automobiles that cost $400 and $500. Nearly all of our toys come from Germany. The big wholesale toyhouses send their buyers away off to the old country in quest of the master creations of the toymakers. And queer stories these men tell on their return about old, gray-haired men, crooked-backed with age, who have toiled for over half a century in the toymaster's shop. The cunning of their hands does not bring to them big profits, however. A mere pittance is the limit of their reward for a lifetime's work. Of course, there is the other side of the story, the poor man's children, the pathetic love that is bestowed upon the foolish looking homemade rag doll, the tenderness with which it is laid to rest at night, and the grateful little prayer that subconsciously goes up to heaven upon its receipt. But poor man's son or rich man's son, it is all the same. The toymaker is busy from one end of the year to the other, and millions upon millions of dollars are spent annually that the

When this was discovered by the treacherous Hoeder, the blind god of brute strength, he took a wand of it, and, being directed how to aim it, the mistletoe pierced Baldur thru the heart, and he fell dead to the ground .- Bos-

There are many traditions connected with holly-one, that it is unlucky to bring it into the house before Christmas eve. There are two kinds of holly, the prickly and nonprickly, and according as the holly which is brought in for the Christmas decoration is smooth or rough the wife or the husband will be master. A bunch of holly with berries must be broken from holly which has been used in church decoration and kept until the next Christmas to protect from lightning and insure a lucky year.

NO MONTANA LOSSES

From Helena comes the news that the storm whih has been raging in most parts of Montana has culminated in a snowstorm and is general thruout the state. But the cattle and sheep men are unusually well prepared to withstand a siege of cold weather and show little concern over the bad turn in the weather.

W. G. Preuitt, secretary of the Montana Stock Growers' association, with headquarters at Helena, and who keeps in close touch with live stock conditions in that state, said to the representative of the Helena Independent: "The cattlemen of Montana are prepared to withstand cold weather, and have no complaint to make about this weather. It is merely seasonable. The past season has been a fair one for the cattlemen and they will be able to bring their herds through the winter. unless it is unusually severe, in nice shape. They have plenty of feed on hand, the cattle themselves are in good condition, and on the whole the outlook is not bad."

Mr. Preuitt said that there were a good many cattlemen who had cattle to ship ,but were unable to do so for lack of cars and unless the shortage on both the Great Northern and Northern Paific roads is soon ended, animals meant for this year's market will have to be carried over until next year.

THE CHICAGO SHOW

Under superb weather conditions the seventh International Live Stock Exposition opened its doors this morning. Tonight the ring show will be inaugurated in a blaze of glory. With propitious weather conditions attendance is expected to reach the half million mark. The close will be next Saturday

"I look for an increase of 150,000 over last year, which reached the halfmillion mark," said W. E. Skinner, general manager of the exposition "The live stock show has developed into the biggest attraction, in crowds and floor space, in the world, so far as I know. The building, constructed especially for this purpose and used only one week in the year, has been enlarged until the exhibiting ring is larger than the horse show ring at the Coliseum and the seating capacity is about 50 per cent greater. This area include the acres of pens where live stock are kept on general in the fat steer display at the International The Hoosier state contributed a Hereford calf of such outstanding quality that it was made the champion steer of the breed without question. Even General Manager, son of the great Perfection, on which the hope of winning the grand championship, had to relinquish all claim to that coveted honor after being made first in his class. Professor C. F. Curtiss, ever on the alert for championship material, after omparing the Indiana candidate, admitted that he had gone down in defeat and warmly approved the decision of Judge Turner. His next more was o secure this calf prodigy for the Iowa college. The sensational youngster is a purebred Hereford named Peerless Wilton 39th's Defender. He was bred by H. Fluck. year."-Chicago Drover's Journal.

This year the show will live up to its "international" in a dashing manner. Hereford Calf Champion Indiana turned a sensational trick

With the exception of losses of Angora goats in Southern New Mexico, he injuries done to live stock by the storm of two weeks ago and the subsequent cold weather are not nearly as bad as was feared. The loss in Angora goats was brought about by the fact that many of the animals had been sheared recently, and therefore could not stand the rigers of the blizzard and the severe cold of the snow on the ground. In many sections of New Mexico the sheep and cattle are wintering very well. There is plenty of snow on and moisture in the ground and the ranges are good. This, as far as can be judged now, bespeaks a prosperous season for New Mexico live stock owners next year.—Santa Fe New Mexican.

Made New Record The grand champion load of cattle nade a new record this year when they old at $17 per hundredweight. The ext highest price in exposition hisery was $15.50, paid for Kerricks' dodlies the first year of the show. Funk Brothers can well be proud of their hievement this year. They had the harpest kind of competition from uch men as Krambeck and Escher, both of whom have developed prize winners in the past. The standard of quality in the fat department has been growing better with each succeeding year, and there were more pure diamonds on exhibition this year than in any previous one. So far as finished cattle are concerned the Angus men seem to have the best of it, for out of seven contests the black cattle have been champions. The record made this year was certainly one to be proud of by the exhibitors most of whom had exceptionally good cattle. The value of the prize load this year was $244 per head, or $3,666 for the car load .-Chicago Live Stock World.

Sheepmen Lose Heavily

The extreme difficulty in obtaining cars which has prevailed on every railroad line in New Mexico during the present shipping season has caused heavy losses to the sheep growers of New Mexico and to the buyers who have come into New Mexico for feeders, says the Albuquerque Journal. All purchases have been made and all sheep are ready for delivery. They have not been delivered and shipment has not been made with thousands of head of sheep because of the inability of owners or buyers to get cars in which to ship them. The complaint does not come from any one line, but and it is improbable that many will | from every sheep growing section of the territory, affecting every railroad line which enters New Mexico.

A New Classification

DENVER, Colo. Dec. 10 .- The Western Stock Association, whose next annual exhibition opens in Denver on Jan. 24, has determined upon a new departure in regard to the classification of feeder cattle, says the Record-Stockman. Heretofore a feeder has been classed as an animal that has been fed nothing but grass or hay. Iowa Agricultural College based its This has barred many sections from competition for the reason that many cattlemen are compelled to feed a certain amount of concentrated food during the winter in order to keep their animals growing, not having enough hay or grass. As this was manifestly unjust and barred many sections from competition the Western Snow has decided to classify feeders upon the same basis that they are classified in the market. If the animal is not fat enough or in proper condition for beef it is a feeder. In order to have the cattle entered in the show properly classified a committee of experts will be appointed to go over the cattle and classify them either as feeders or fat cattle prior to the judgment, and no questions will be asked as to what the cattle have been fed. A special class has been arranged however for grassfed cattle, open only to cattle that have been fed on hay and grass and have never been fed grain or other concentrated food. Cattle entered in this class may also compete in the regular feeder classes. While this new plan is an experiment, it is believed that it is a step in the right direction. It will enable cattle from the southwest to compete in the same classes with cattle from the north, and there will be some choice car lots exhibited from the Panhandle of Texas and New Mexico.

Packers to Show Methods

"The big meat packers are to be allowed an opportunity to demonstrate that the 'Jungle' is more or less a piece of fiction. A coterie of Chicago business men, believing that the stories which have occupied the public prints lately regarding the methods of the packing houses, were strictly detrimental to interests, especially in Chicago, have formed an association which will be educational in its tendency. The National Packers' Exposition Company is the name of the company just incorporated, the central feature of which will be the holding of an immense exposition of packing house products and methods. Charles F. Gunther is president of the company, Ben Leven vice president, Stewart Spalding secretary and treasurer and James W. Sechrest general man-

So says the literary department. It is the intention of the company to hold a gigantic exposition of the products of packers in all lines. The plan is international in scope. It is the intention to invite foreign packers to exhibit at the different expositions held under the auspices of the organization. These expositions will be held in all the prominent cities of the country the first one to be given at the Coliseum, Chicago. From there the exhibits will be moved entire to Madison Square garden, New York, and thence to Pittsburg. Philadelphia and Kansas City in turn. The date of the opening show has been fixed at May 1 and will continue for two weeks.

Confidence in Our Inspection As was announced in the National Provisioner several weeks ago, the Italian government has notified Washington that it will accept the United States meat inspection stamp under the new law as a sufficient guarantee of the healthfulness of American pork, even without the microscopical inspection previously required. The Italian officials state that they are satisfied that our new inspection system is sufficiently strict to warrant the purity of the meat.

This show of confidence is in striking contrast to the action of the German and French governments in barring further imports of American pork since the suspension of microscopical inspection. It is well known, however, that action in these latter instances was due to political motives, particularly in Germany, where the agrarian party will go to any extreme to shut out American meat. Their action is practically hypocritical when It is remembered that the microscopical inspection certificates they formerly demanded were thrown in the waste basket. They had not been demanded in good faith, but only as an added bar in the way of American importations.

lewish Massacres and Russia's Regeneration

infamous massacre of St. Bartholomew's has been the premier example of the virulence inspired by racial and religious hatred. The recent slaughter of Jews at Odessa and other points in the Russian empire is far ghastlier.

The massacre of St. Barthol was the sanguinary finale of a long and bitter controversy, the climax of a war of extermination. It was regarded at the time as an almost natural consequence of the relations which existed between the political factions of France. It was the outcome of a civil war in which the religious instability of the moment became a prominent factor, but it was primarily the struggle for a crown. The horror inspired by the massacre of St. Bartholomew's has been cumulative. There is no evidence to show that it was followed by any widespread and immediate sense of public indignation. The dominant and victorious party found in it a cause for rejoicing.

Except in carnage, there is little parallel between St. Bartholomew's and the recent criminal and wholly irrational slaughter of the Russian Jews. Even in that respect the comparison falters, for the victims of this twentieth century outrage greatly outnumber the Huguenots who fell on that fatal night. Since the initial crime of Kishineff, which was followed by the fearful retribution of the Japanese war, atrocities against the Jewish inhabitants of the empire have been so frequent that the public sense of horror has become dulled, almost deadened to receptiveness. To collect, sort and transmit properly this vast aggregate of holiday presents is a work requiring a high order of administrative ability. and it is a marvel that the proportion of delays and miscarriages is so small.

The work of loading an express car is a trade in itself. It demands from the stower away of the goods as much familiarity with the various stations along the road as is possessed by the messenger who accompanies the goods and distributes them en route. The car loader must stow away the packages as fast as they are handed to him and must arrange them with reference to important stations and junctions. He must build his piles of goods systematically and firmly, so that they will not collapse and become hopelessly confused. Certain general rules must be observed rigidly. Heavy articles must not be placed on lighter ones that might be crushed. Wet goods and perishable stuff must be kept apart from other things and packages marked "With Care" must be given some attention, although it has been found by experience that directions for handling furnished by the sender may, as a rule, safely be disregarded.

At the receiving point the holiday bustle is still in progress. Until the recious consignment is delivered to its rightful owner the employee of the express company may not return to the paths of peace.
