By Associated Press. NEW YORK, Jan. 18.-In discussing the pure milk problem yesterday before the Woman's Municipal League

"Over one-third of the 76,206 deaths

THERE ARE 27,600 WOMEN IN GOVERNMENT POSTAL SERVICE

So many conflicting reports have been circulated as to the status of women in the postal service, says a Washington dispatch, that Fourth Assistant Postmaster General Degraw has prepared a statement defining the attitude of the department toward the appointment of women. The department wishes the announcement to go forth that there is no truth in the report that women will be favored to the exclusion of men. Nor is there any basis in fact for the statement that women will not be appointed at all when men can be secured. The fourth assistant brands as a canard the story that no married women will be appointed at all. He refused to discuss the rumor that seems to have gone everywhere that preference be shown to women who were separated from their husbands. "That's a joke," he said, "and should be treated only as a joke. For that employment of women impracticable The records show that at the end of the fiscal year, June 30, last, 309 women, or 25.35 per cent of the total number of clerks in the department in Washington, were women, The salries they received ranged from $240 to $1,-800 a year. The average clerical salary of the women is $440.40, against $1, 256.2 for men, and the average subordinate salary, $402.71, compared with $686,23 for male employes.

"It is not possible to furnish complete figures showing the number of women employed in the service outside of Washington," said Mr. Degraw, "as in many cases the sex is not indicated by the papers of the appointee. At the end of the fiscal year there were in first and secondclass postoffices 194 assistant postmasters who were women. In the grades below that position there were 27,600 women employed as clerks in postoffices, with salaries ranging from $400 to $1,700 per year. There are probably 700 women postmasters of the fourth class, but no figures are available in this instance nor in those of mail messengers or contractors, altho there are hundreds of women acting in both branches. "There are no women carriers in the city delivery service, but women are employed as carriers in the rural service to a limited extent. Out of a total of 35,666 regular rural carriers 253 are women. As sub-carriers are nominated by the regulars, it frequently happens that the wife, daughter or other woman member of the carrier's family is named. The number of women applying for these places is small.

"It is the experience of the depart-ment that some of the best rural carriers in the service are women. They are usually careful, painstaking and faithful employes, with proper appreciation of their responsibilities as custodians of the mails. Occasionally there have been complaints against women carriers—one because the carrier felt that her position gave her an opportunity to deliver lectures on the evils of intemperance. Another who has married and had reared a family found it difficult to submit to the directions of the postmaster.

cited where a woman carrier, during a severe storm, finding it impossible to proceed over her entire route, returned over another road and came to a bridge across a creek where the water had risen so high as to submerge the bridge. In endeavoring to drive across, the horse, vehicle and occupant were thrown into the water. The carrier pluckily not only rescued her horse and vehicle, but recovered the sack containing the mail."

burn state liquor bill in congress and directing the Texas congressmen to vote for it. A resolution allowing four daily newspapers to each representative providing the cost was not more than three cents a copy was passed at the first reading. Representative Silliman introduced a resolution in which he called attention to an article in the Houston Post and the Fort Worth Record to the effect that the opposition "did not hope to defeat Bailey but to put a stain on his character.

A resolution was introduced providing that Speaker Love secure from the representatives of these two papers the name of the man who said that and if not that the speaker reprimand these newspaper men before the bar of the house. The resolution was passed by an overwhelming vote, and Speaker Love reserved his right to question the newspaper men until later in the Representative Clements rose question of personal privilege and took exception to an article in the Houston Post criticising him for his mileage At 9:45 o'clock the Duncan resolution was called up. King of Nacogdoches was given the floor but sur-

Speech by Duncan Duncan made an argument to the house to show that the election of a United States senator could be postponed. He called attention to a number of cases in support of his contention. Speaker Love stated that he wanted to know if it was mandatory of him when he was called upon to make arrangements for the election of a United States senator.

Duncan believed that the federal statute was directory, and not mandatory. He asked that he be granted permission to spread his statement upon the records. Speaker Love ruled that under the rules of the house the minority report was out of order and that a change in the majority report should be made by amendment on the floor. The chair construed the federal statute as being mandatory. He said he had a precedent which was read to the house.

This was section 88 of the congressional record in which objection was made to the election of a presidential elector from the state of Vermont. Mr. Love said the decision was given by Samuel J. Randell, speaker of the house, and said it was the only authority that had been found. When Love concluded the Balley men ap-

Robertson of Travis stated that he signed the majority report with the understanding that he could offer an mendment if he thought it advisable. He asked if it was in order. Love stated that it was not mandatory to elect a senator in a specified time but to ballot. The majority report providing for the election of a United States senator was then adopted.

Amendments Submitted Alderdice and Pool submitted amendments to the Kennedy resolution to make the measure more sweeping. Kennedy stated that he desired to accept the amendment. Duncan submitted amendment which he had offered last Saturday in his speech. He said it provided that if necessary the house committee could set alone King of Nacogdoches, one of the youngest members in the house, made an address in support of the Kennedy resolution. He referred to the sweeping investigation of the resolution as "Duncan monstrosity." He attacked

Duncan on his political record and criticised him on the ground that he was opposing the democratic nominee He read the nomination speech of T. B. Love, when Culberson was nominated two years ago. King insisted that specific charges be made against Bailey. He said he was authorized by Mr. Bailey to say that Davidson had rendered judgments in the anti-trust cases under the acts of 1899 which, he said, had been repealed by the acts of 1903. Duncan interrupted, saying that he would add that specific charge to his resolution gladly if King so desired. King was not willing to put that in the resolution. He criticised an assistant attorney general for applauding a speech of a pro-investigator from the gallery, claiming that he had opposed the democratic nominee in Dallas county and was secretary of the Palmer and Buokner club. He re-mention his name. Robertson of Travis rose to a question of personal privilege and good naturedly called down the Statesman ferred to W. E. Hawkins but did not

Kennedy moved to reconsider the action of the house regarding the Fort Worth Record and the Houston Post. Patton of Johnson made an address n favor of the Kennedy resolution. He pleaded with the house to investigate thoroly but to give Bailey a square

Patton referred to William A Cocke's offer to the senate committee to bring charges against Bailey which offer was made yesterday but he requested that he have twenty-four hours' time. He said that charges denoted that the investigation could be brought under the Kennedy resolution. Patton said that if Bailey was not given a square deal the democratic political grave yard would have to be widened, broadened and deepened.

Duncan secured the floor and spoke on the defense of his resolution. He charged insincerity on the part of some who opposed his resolution, claiming that the final purpose would be to elect Bailey without an investigation because he was the nominee. He said he had kept his temper when the poisoned shafts were shot at him, because the effort of the opposition was to arouse his anger; he told of James S. Hogg and his committee coming to him from the democratic convention and asking him to run for county judge. He said that this was the only public office he had held previous to this time. Holding aloft the attorney general's documents, he said that the evidence provision allowing the committee to go outside the state. He denied that this committee would not have power outside the state. He said Bailey's speech was the best argument in favor of appointing a committee with plenty of power, because he had made charges and reflections which could only proven by going outside the state. He said the suprement test of truth known to the world is a cross-examination.

covers the union and required the

Duncan exhibited the $1,750 voucher, explained that upon it were written the names of the Fourth National Bank and the Chatham National Bank of New York. He believed that two pieces of exchange were drawn for the amount. Duncan followed up the circumstantial evidence in the papers to show how necessary it was for the committee to be authorized to make a sweeping investigation. He referred to Pierce's letter to Gruet, in which he said: "That is was now proper for the company to make the payment to Bailey." He said he wanted to go to St. Louis to see if the records of the Fourth National Bank showed this draft to be issued to Pierce or to the Waters-Pierce Oil Company.

and that was what he desired in the

Duncan was frequently questioned and his replies were convincing. In answer to a question he said that he had been informed that Gruet had secured the papers on an order from Henry Clay Pierce, and that they were not stolen,

"But," said Duncan, "Pierce did not know they would be used to prosecute him for conducting a trust." Duncan said that he had made these answers upon the information fur-nished him, but it was his purpose to sift all the matter to the bottom with a full investigation. He claimed that the iron will behind the effort to stifle the investigation was Bailey, not the people. He asserted that a senator was not the people's lord, but their Duncap told the opposition not to worry about his democracy. He said he had a bushel of letters from the best Texans who indorsed him, and only two letters favored no investigation which were from "dear sweet women, who knew nothing about the facts in the case."

Duncan followed up the evidence in hand, mentioning the names of auditors, numbers of checks, youcher numbers and showed plainly the necessity of having a thoro investigation and illustrating what could be obtained in the way of evidence if allowed to go outside the state. The house adjourned until 2:30 p. m.

Must Mark Package

A bill has been introduced in the senate, which if passed, will come very near having the effect of the shipment of intoxicating liquors into local option precincts in Texas, The proposed measure requires that upon each such shipment shall be written plainly, "intoxicating liquers." For a violation of this offense a fine of from $25 to $100 is imposed. The drastic part of bill is that it seeks to impose a tax of $5,000 annually on all express companies in the state which transport the goods and has a place where it is stored for the persons for whom it is shipped.

Change in Penal Code

Representative Nobley introduced a bill in the house yesterday, amending the penal code regarding the crime of burglary. He goes further than the present law by providing that in order that the crime of burglary shall be complete, it shall not be necessary for the offender to get inside of a house or place of business, but if he only gets part of his body inside, such as trying to get in a window or door with felonoius intent, the offender shall be guilty of burglary. The discharge of fire arms or other deadly weapons with the intent of committing burglary, shall constitute a felony.

After Card Players Representative C. Sperry is going after card players in earnest. He presented a bill in the house yesterday providing that if any person plays at a game of cards at any house which is considered a public place, or a saloon, or even on the street, he shall be fined not less than $25 nor more than $100 The drastic feature of the proposed bil is that in prosecuting such cases if shall not be necessary for the state to prove that any money or anything of value was bet on such game. The offense, under the proposed bill shall be complete without such proof, In other words if two friends go into a saloon and play a game of pitch for the drinks and are caught by the police, they shall be guilty of violating

On With Election The senate has determined to proceed with the election of a United States senator next Tuesday, Jan. 22. After wrangling all day with the report of the committee on privileges and elections, which provided that the election be held then according to law, to which report was attached a minority adverse report, the senate adopted the majority report by a vote of 18 to 4. This vote was not reached until late last evening, the senate having recessed at the noon hour until o'clock in the afternoon.

CISTERN IS UNSAFE

Danger Spot Located in the Street

Near Court House Many years ago when Fort Worth was in the village stage of development and yet when fires some times occurred, to aid the fire fighters, cisterns were dug in the upper part of the city and kept filled with water, Several are on Main street and the one nearest the court house is about 100 feet from the intersection of Main and Weatherford streets. A day or two ago a few bricks of the street paying over the cistern fell thru and an examination Friday morning disclosed the fact that a serious giving away of the mortar of the cistern lining had so weakened the structure that extensive repairs will be required to make it safe for the stream of traffic which flows constantly along that part of Main street. The break extends from the cistern opening, covered by a large squared block of stone. to a foot or more beyond the east line of the street car rail on the eastern side of the street.

Precautions are taken to prevent accidents and a force of workmen is engaged in repairing it, or at least doing such temporary work as will secure the traveling public from proba-bility of injury by a fall into the cistern, which is twenty feet deep.

COCKE PROMISES TO MAKE CHARGES

Writes Letter to the Senate Committee

AUSTIN, Texas, Jan. 18 .- Representative Cocke of Bexar county, one of the leading pro-investivation representatives in the legislature, today addressed a letter to the senate investigating committee on the Bailey-Davidson matter, in which he says that he will file specific charges against Senator Bailey, some time today or tomorrow. This letter was in addition to the one addressed to the same committee last night, wherein Cocke offered to make specific charges upon the condition that he be permitted to summon witnesses and include Bailey, and that Cocke be allowed to examine the witnesses, etc.

Chairman Green of the investigating committee declined this last proposition, as he said that under the rules the committee had the selection of an attorney to examine the witnesses. Both branches of the legislature have now adopted the report of the committees on election and privileges, providing for proceeding with the elec-tion of a United States senator next

The anti-Bailey men in both branches of the legislature are to hold a caucus and see how much strength they can muster in their final effort to get the adoption of the Duncan resolution.

INSTALLATION OF OFFICERS

Worth Commandery Spends a Pleasant Evening

The annual installation of the officers of Worth Commandery No. 19, Knights Templars, was held Thursday evening at the armory in the Masonic Temple. The installing officer was Jake Zurn, past grand commander.

The retiring eminent commander, Elmer Renfro, was presented with a fine solid gold past commander's jewel and as an additional token of esteem and appreciation the fifty-four new members whom the efforts of the commander had added this year to the roster of the commandery, joined in giving to P. G. C. Elmer Renfro a pair of gold and silver bullion shoulder

Jake Zurn presented the jewel and Dr. C. P. Brewer made the presentation of the straps. The report of the retiring eminent commander is an epitome of the work of the commandery for the year just

It hegins with regrets for the loss, by death, of five members of the commandery who have laid down the sword during the year. The ambition was to make the Worth commandery the largest in the state, for it long has been the second. Results: New members, 54; affiliated, 17; reinstated, 2; total, 83; lost by death, 5; by dismission, 5; total 10, or a net gain of 63. This gain brings the total membership to 254 and gives Worth commandery a lead of 15 or 20 over Colorado commandery, which for years led Worth by a small margin. Creating 54 new knights in a year makes a new record. The commandery has held fifty-eight conclaves during the year, of which number thirty-four were special. The financial condition of the commandery is good. 'At an expense of over $2,000 the commandery has fitted up a fine dining hall and armory and all of that expense is defrayed. The attendance at the conclaves was good. The retiring eminent commander specially acknowledges indebtedness to several of the members for the work

The officers installed are: F. H. Sparrow, eminent commander: Fritz Straughn, generalissimo; C. W. Connery, captain general; C. P. Brewer, senier warden; C. B. Brown, junior warden; Elmer Renfro, prelate; Geo. Jackson, treasurer; Henry Feild, recorder; W. W. Gloan, sword bearer; Fred Ropke, standard bearer; W. C. McKee, warder.

BY ARCH M'MACKIN A man with a mask, carrying a dark lantern and a jimmy, climbed thru the library window of the Torrence mansion and crept stealthily across the room. He flashed the lantern about, and, locating a small safe at one end of the room, tiptoed cautiously toward it. Over the long rows of silent, sleeping books, at the clock on the mantel, the white light of the lantern searched and rested on a black box.

Five minutes later a deafening explosion shook the great stone building from cellar to roof. Police Are Looking for the Owner

Lumber thieves are still annoying building contractors by stealing lumher from new buildings in the suburbs. One of the thieves came to grief Thursday night, losing his wagon and team in an attempt to steal a wagon load of lumber, and made a narrow escape from death.

For some time past the contractors for a house that is being built on Hill street have been missing lumber that had been hauled away during the night. This kind of thing got so bad that a carpenter named O'Neil was stationed in the building Thursday night to keep watch. He armed himelf with a pistol and took a position where he could see but not be een, and about midnight a wagon ove up to a pile of lumber near the se and a man who drove the wagon egan loading lumber on it. HOME-SEEKERS GO THRU FORT WORTH

Many Are Bound for Coast and Panhandle

Over 700 homeseekers were brought into Fort Worth Thursday night and Friday morning by the Rock Island railroad and on Thursday the Santa Fe brought in two full trains loaded with them, besides coaches attached to another regular train. The Cotton Belt and Missouri, Kansas and Texas and the Frisco are also bringing large numbers of people seeking homes in Texas, but the bulk of the present movement is over the Rock Island into Fort Worth and south over the Santa Fe to the coast country that is penetrated by the Rock Island system. The Rock Island brought in four full sections Thursday night and Friday two sections arriving late Thursday night, one section at 7:30 a. m. Friday and one section Friday afternoon. On the two sections Thursday night there were not less than 400 people, each section being made up of seven coaches. There was fully as many on the two sections Friday. At Fort Worth immigration splits, but the bulk of it is headed for the coast and Brownsville country. One of the Rock Island's sections from the north went north out of Fort Worth to Amarillo, from where it will go to the country west along the Pecos Valley road. This movement of homeseekers is one of the neaviest that there has been for several years. Most of it is from the north and northwestern states.

FEATHERWEIGHTS TO MEET TONIGHT

Abe Attell and Harry Baker Booked for Battle Royal

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 18.—Before the Pacific Athletic Club tonight Abe Attell and Harry Baker will, for the second time, engage in a battle royal to decide the featherweight championship of the world. The boys will fight at 122 pounds, ringside, the money to be divided 60 and 40, as at the previous meeting last November when Attell was given the decision after twenty ds of fast and furious milling. That bout left a bad taste in the mouths of both lads, as well as arousing much enmity among their sup-porters, and there will be a bitter personal grudge to settle when Attell and Baker meet in the roped arena this evening. Present appearances indicate that Attell will go into the ring a 10 to 7 favorite, altho the popularity of Baker and the enthusiasm of his back-ers may result in many wagers at That the boys will fight from the tap of the gong no fight fan doubts for a minute. Many sports who witnessed the last mill believe that Attell will not observe his usual clever tactics, but will seek to force the fighting in an aggressive and rough-and-tumble manner, hoping thereby to score an early knockout. At the first meeting all of Abe's cleverness went for nothing, and it was the punishment he inflicted when he roughed it at close quarters that won him the decision by very narrow margin. Baker will enter the ring much stronger than at the previous fight, when he was somewhat flabby. Since that time his muscular development has surprised even his trainers, and his arms and legs are as hard as whipcord. Baker has been in training for several weeks at his East Side quarters and has had the benefit of the advice of Frank McDonald, one of the best trainers in the business. Attell has been doing his stunts at Arcadia and is also in the best of condi-

There is every indication that an almost unprecedented crowd will gather at the Pacific Club tonight to witness the battle. Never before have the sports of Los Angeles evinced such bitter partisanship as in the case of Attell and Baker. The feeling aroused among the spectators at the last battle has increased rather than diminished and many long friendships were broken and enemies made as a resul of the referee's decision. This feeling is shared by the principals, and at a recent mitt matinee Baker re-fused to enter the ring with Attell for an introduction to the crowd.

Planters Discuss Immigration at a Meeting at Birmingham Special to The Telegram.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. Jan. 18.-The mmigration problem, one of the most mportant which now confronts the people of the south, is the chief subect of consideration before the Southern Cotton Association this afternoon. Governor D. C. Heyward of South Carolina will be the principal speaker and in his address will tell of the results achieved and anticipated thru the efforts of the South Carolina immigration commissioner to bring desirable immigrants from Europe. The South Carolina plan was considered by some to be in violation of the contract labor statute governing immigration, but this has been decided not to be the case by the federal officials. The negroes are rapidly leaving the farms in the south and cotton planters and other farmers are in urgent need of a reliable class of labor to take the place of the blacks. The people of the entire south are vitally interested in the problem, and it is expected that the resolutions and dis-Heyward's address may have an important bearing on proposed legislation for increasing immigration about to be undertaken by several cotton growing states.

At the session this morning the question of financing and disposing of the cotton crop was given further consideration, the speakers including S. A. Witherspoon of Meridian, Miss., and F. H. Hyatt of Columbia, S. C. Annual Meeting of United States Golf Association in Chicago Special to The Telegram

CHICAGO, Jan. 18.-From all over the country enthusiastic golfers are gathering in Chicago today to attend the annual meeting of the United States Golf Association, which will be held this evening in the Auditorium. The reception committee, composed of leading members of the Western Golf Association, met at noon in the Annex and prepared to give the visitors a rousing welcome which will long be remembered. It is planned to make the gathering an exhibition of good fellowship between the players of the east and the west, with sociability mixed with the cut-and-dried routine which has heretofore always characterized the annual meetings.

This is the first time in its history that the United States Golf Associa-tion he met in the west, and the first time that it has not held its meeting in New York, altho it has been in existence thirteen years. The present convention was originally called for New York, but this action was later rescinded by the executive committee in response to a petition signed by all the western golf clubs and a number of prominent players in the west They demanded that the organization be national in scope as well as in name, and secured the support of many eastern men. The executive committee was wise in acceding to the request, since the meeting promises to be the largest and most enthusiastic in the history of the association. It is expected that a number of clubs whose interest has been aroused by the meeting in the west will be elected to associate membership at the committee meeting, including the Homewood Country Club, the Calumet

Country Club and several others in the far west and on the Pacific coast. Texans in New York

LEE CENTENNIAL IS CELEBRATED

Old War Hero Honored Today as an Educator

LEXINGTON, Va., Jan, 18.—The celebration of the centennial anniversary of the birth of General Robert E. Lee began today at Washington and Lee university the institution of which the famous warrior was president during the five years prior to his death. The main program will be carried out tomorrow. Lee's birthday, and will consist of patriotic exercises and addresses by some of the most famous men of the north and south, Hundreds of visitors are arriving here, and veterans of the blue and the gray will clasp hands in the college chapel, where a noble recumbent statue in flawless marble guards the last resting place of one of the greatest militury leaders the world has ever known.

Special to The Telegram.

It is not as a war hero that the participants in the present celebration honor Lee, but as an educator. To the alumni of Washington and Lee university, scores of whom are here to celebrate the anniversary, Lee was greater in peace than in war. To dozens of distinguished men, gathered in Lexington from all parts of the country, Lee was guide, counsellor and friend. The tributes to be paid to his memory during the celebration will come from the hearts of those who knew him and loved him, not as an intrepid leader upon the fields of battle, but as an intellectual and moral teacher, whose victories are won in molding the characters of men. The efforts made to secure the attendance of all the living alumni of Lee's time have been as successful as could be being entertained by the citizens of Lexington. An elaborate banquet has been arranged for their benefit. Charles Francis Adams will be the principal speaker tomorrow.

It was five months after he had surrendered at Appomattox that Lee assumed the presidency of Washington college, the position which he held to the time of his death, five years later. The Confederacy had crumbled before the onslaughts of Grant, and Lee, like so many other southerners, was impoverished. He was offered many positions of honor and emolument, including the presidency of a life insurance company at a salary of $10,000 a year, but refused them all to become head of the struggling little Virginia institution at a salary of $3,000. The school, while rich in historic associations, was poor in endowment and equipment. To it Lee gave all the strength of his influence and genius, with the result that it became the Mecca of students from all over the south. During the five years that Lee was in charge of the destinies of the university nearly a thousand students were enrolled and upon all he left the impress of his character, free from all vindictiveness or hatred. All of his efforts were for the restoration of peace and harmony between the people of the north and south.

"It is particularly incumbent upon those charged with the instruction of the young to set them an example of submission to authority," he wrote in his letter of acceptance. The bloody sectional strife in which he had been engaged was forgotten. Vanquished, he became an example of chivalrous nobility, greater than he had ever been

THE WOMAN IN THE ALCOVE

By ANNA KATH ARINE GREEN

The story begins with the engagement of Anson Durand and plain Miss Van Ardsdale at a dance in New York. Shortly after their troth is given. Mrs. Fairbrother, wearing an enormous diamond, passes by and goes into an alcove. Durand follows her after Miss Van Ardsdale is claimed for a dance. A few moments later Mrs. Fairbrother is discovered murdered and suspicion falls upon Durand. Her gloves are found in Miss Van Ardsdale's bag and Durand states that Mrs Fairbrother gave them to him altho he did not know that the diamond was within the gloves when he placed them in the bag. Blood on his shirt bosom is also hard to explain.

In the meantime Fairbrother is discovered in the mountains in the west. but too sick to even be apprised of the news.

Before the inquest the diamond found in the gloves is pronounced to be a good imitation. The coroner's jury does not fix the blame of the murder and yet does not acquit Durand. At the close of the inquest Durand is arrested by the police.

I found my uncle awaiting me in carriage before his own door, and I took my seat at his side without the least idea of his purpose. I supposed that he had planned this ride that he might talk to me unreservedly and without fear of interruption. But I soon saw that he had some very different object in view, for not only did he start down town instead of up, but his conversation, such as it was, confined itself to generalities and studiously avoided the one topic of supreme interest to us both.

At last, as we turned into Bleecker street I let my astonishment and perplexity appear. "Where are we bound?" I asked, "It can not be that you are taking me to see Mr. Durand?" "No,' said he, and said no more,

"Ah, police headquarters!" I faltered as the carriage made another turn and drew up before a building I had reason to remember. "Uncle, what am I to do here?" "See a friend," he answered, as he helped me to alight. Then as I followed him in some bewilderment, he whispered in my ear: "Inspector Dalzell. He wants a few minutes conversation with you." Oh, the weight which fell from my shoulders at these words! I was to hear, then, what had intervened between me and my purpose. The wearing night I had anticipated was to be lightened with some small spark of knowledge. I had confidence enough in the kind hearted inspector to be sure of that. I caught at my uncle's arm and squeezed it delightedly, quite oblivious of the curious glances I must have received from the various officials

We found him waiting for us, and experienced such pleasure at sight of his kind and earnest face that I hardly noticed uncle's sly retreat till the door closed behind him. "Oh, Inspector, what has happened?"

we passed on our way to the inspec-

I impetuously exclaimed in answer to his greeting. "Something that will help Mr. Durand without Grey-have you as good news for me "Hardly," he answered, moving up a chair and seating me in it with a fatherly air which, under the circumstances, was more discouraging than consolatory. "We have simply heard of a new witness, or rather a fact has come to light which has turned our inquiries into a new Alestian." come to light which has turned our in-quiries into a new direction."

"And—and—you can not tell me what this fact is?" I faltered as he showed no intention of adding anything to this very unsatisfactory explanation.

"I should not, but you were willing to do so much for us I must set asi my principles a little and do something for you. After all, it is only fore-stalling the reporters by a day. Miss of the great murder! As he recalled Van Arsdale, this is the story: Yesterday morning a man was shown into this room, and said that he had information to give which might possibly prove to have some bearing on the Fairbrother case. I had seen the man before and recognized him at the first glance as one of the witnesses who made the inquest unnecessarily tedious. Do you remember Jones, the caterer, who had only two or three facts to give and yet who used up the whole afternoon in trying to state those

"I do, indeed," I answered.

"Well, he was the man, and I own that I was none too delighted to see him. But he was more at his ease with me than I expected, and I soon learned what he had to tell. It was this: One of his men had suddenly left him, one of his very best men, one of those who had been with him in the capacity of waiter at the Ramsdell ball. It was not uncommon for his men to leave him, but they usually gave notice. This man gave no notice; he simply did not show up at the usual hour. This was a week or two ago. Jones, having a liking for the man, who was an excellent waiter. sent a message to his lodging house to see if he were ill. But he had left his lodgings with as little ceremony as he had left the caterer.

"This, under ordinary circumstances, would have ended the business, but there being some great function in prospect, Jones did not feel like losing so good a man without making an effort to recover him, so he looked up his references in the hope of obtaining some clue to his present whereabouts.

"He kept all such matters in a special book and expected to have no trouble in finding the man's mme, James Wellgood, or that of his former employer, But when he came to consult this book, he was astonished to find that nothing was recorded against this man's name but the date of his first employment-March 15.

"Had he hired him without a recommendation? He would not be likely to, yet the page was clear of all reference; only the name and the date. But the date! You have already noted its

the incidents of that day he understood why the record of Wellgood's name was unaccompanied by the usual reference. It had been a difficult day all round. The function was an important one, and the weather bad. There was, besides, an unusual shortage in his number of assistants. Two men had that very morning been laid up with sickness, and when this able looking, self confident Wellgood presented himself for immediate employment, he took him out of hand with the merest glance at what looked like a very satisfactory reference. Later, he had intended to look up this reference, which he had been careful to preserve by sticking it, along with other papers, on his spike-file. But in the distractions following the untoward events of the evening, he had neglected to do so, feeling perfectly satisfied with the man's work and general behavior. Now it was a different thing. The man had left him summarily, and he felt impelled to hunt up the person whether this was the first time that Wellgood had repaid good treatment with bad. Running thru the papers with which his file was now full, he found that the one he sought was not there. This roused him in good earnest, for he was certain that he had not removed it himself and there was no one else who had the right to do so. He suspected the culprit—a young tad who occasionally had access to desk. But this boy was no longer in the office. He had dismissed him for some petty fault the previous week, and it took him several days to find him again. Meantime his anger grew and when he finally came face to face with the lad, he accused him of the suspected trick with so much vehemence that the inevitable happened, and the boy confessed. This is what he acknowledged. He had taken the reference off the file, but only to give it to Wellgood himself, who had offered him money for it. When asked how much money, the boy admitted that the sum was $10-an extraordinary amount from a poor man for so simple a service.

THE STRONGEST CONSTITUTION

Rheumatism is caused by a sour, acid condition of the blood, brough on by chronic constipation, weak kidneys, poor digestion and a gen sluggish condition of the system. Because of these irregularities refuse and waste matters of the body are not promptly expelled, but are left to sour and ferment, producing irritating acids which are taken up by the blood and distributed to all parts of the system. This acrid matter weakens and diseases the blood so that instead of supplying the body with nourishing, healthful properties it deposits the poison with which it is loaded into the muscles, nerves, bones and joints, and Rheumatism gets complete control of the system. GOVERNOR CAMPBELL'S FIRST MESSAGE

There is a ring of sincerity about the first message of Governor Tom Campbell to the state legislature that carries with it the conviction that the new executive of the state is determined that every platform demand and campaign promise made the people of this state shall be redeemed if possible. There is enough radicalism in it to insure attention. There is enough prove a little bit disappointing to those who believed that the man from Palestine was going to overcome all precedent. He puts the Democratic state platform demands before the legislature in his message as follows:

First-To define and prohibit lobbying.

Second-To prohibit the issuance of free passes or the giving of free transporation, franks or free privileges in any form within this state with certain exceptions named.

Third-To prohibit corporations from contributing to the campaign expenses of any party or individual, or to secure the adoption or defeat of any measure submitted to a vote of the people. Fourth-To define and prohibit insolvent corporations from doing business in Texas, and if necessary to accomplish this purpose to submit a constitutional amendment to a vote of the people, Fifth-To compel telephone and telegraph companies to transmit each others' messages and to make necessary connections for that purpose.

Sixth-To require the subscribers to the capital stock of corporations to pay at least 50 per cent of the capital stock prescribed before filing charter, and the additional capital stock within two years, and such laws as will insure greater publicity and better protection to creditors and stockholders.

Seventh-To eliminate nepotism from the public Eighth-To the enactment of a uniform text book

Ninth-To enlarge the scope and general benefits of our present drainage and irrigation laws. Tenth-To confer necessary power in courts of competent jurisdiction to enable such courts to deal with youthful offenders in a more suitable and effec-Eleventh-To simplify and correct our present elec-

Twelfta-To amply provide for the support and maintenance of our eleemosynary institutions. Thirteenth-To enact laws relative to public road:

that good roads may be secured to all of the people. Fourteenth-That an amendment to the state constitution authorizing the erection and maintenance of a home for indigent and decrepit wives and willows of Confederate soldiers and sailors be submitted to the voters of the state.

Seventeenth-To secure equality and uniformity in taxation, the just rendition of all taxable property at its full value and to compel payment of such taxes. Eighteenth-Establishing a state department of agriculture separate from all other departments and interests. That adequate facilities for agricultural and industrial training be provided for those educational institutions of our state in which such training is Nineteenth-Compliance with the constitutional rechild in each year, and the principal of county taxation for school purposes as endorsed and recommended.

These demands and defined policies contain the latest definite expression of the people upon the subjects to which they relate and are commended to you norable bodies as worthy of your best thought and most faithful consideration. Too much importance cannot be attached to the people's demand and this view justifies a further consideration of some of these and executive in patriotic harmony may give the people what they want. Those receiving no further elaboration speak for themselves and are not intended to be minimized by failure of further mention,

It is evident from this array of excerpts from the platform, that the executive grindstone is ready, and the opening chapter of the fight for the legislation demanded by the people has been written. There is no evidence of coercion on the part of the executive, but he is making a strong stand for the redemption of party pledges and it is to be hoped he will succeed. There is enough material in those platform demands to keep the legislature busy, and when they have been | tonio fair. He gave freely of his money and time for enacted into law that body may adjourn and go home with the consciousness of duty well performed.

The Campbell message is a well written and carefully worded document. It betrays an easy familiarity with many of the problems of state government which serve to show the author is a student and a close observer of passing events. There is a vigor and virility about it that promises the Campbell administraton will not be noted for its tameness, but there will be sometoing doing in Austin every day of its duration.

Governor Campbell has started out well, and it is now up to the state legislature to write the second chapter. If that body does its plain duty in the premises all will be well,

WEST TEXAS MAKING GOOD

The man who perpetrated the remark that "West Texas could promise more and do less, and promise less and do more than any country on earth," struck so closely to the truth that his assertion has become more or less axiomatic. Those who have kept an eye on the great western portion of this state for the past twenty-five years are aware of the truth contained in this very trite enunciation of fact. No portion of Texas has promised more and done less at times than West Texas, and no portion of the state has promised less and accomplished more; paradoxical tho it may seem.

Twenty-five years ago West Texas was a nowling wilderness in comparison with conditions that prevail in that section now. Its first railway was then in process of construction, and aside from scattered cattle ranches it was utterly undeveloped. The cattlemen were the pioneers of that section, disputing ownership and control with the Redskins until the latter were successfully driven from the country, and when the cattlemen thought they were in complete control of the situation, the sheepmen began to drift in with their despised flocks, and then followed a fight for supremacy that lasted for years. The fight between the cattle and sneep interests began to attract attention and men began to push West to see the character of the country that incited so much contention. It was a fair and goodly appearing domain, and settlers began to go in to possess it.

The railway had in the meantime stretched its way across all that country, and thriving little towns began to spring up all along the line. Cattlemen raised the contention that nothing could be raised in that section but hell and cattle, and discouraged the coming of the man with the hoe at every turn in the road. And for years Dame Nature seemed to be on the side of the pioneer cattlemen. There were years when the cloudless skies brought no rain, and for one period of twenty-two months, back in the early '80s there was ne rain. The seed committed to broad bosom of old mother earth never germinated, and it seemed that famine would soon stalk abroad in the land. There was an appeal to the world for aid, and soon assistance came rolling in. St. Louis was among the first to respond, and quantities of food and supplies came from that source. Thousands of people left the west and came back on the east side of the Brazos. To all they scription of the way he writes his novels: told the same story of having starved out, and declared there was nothing in West Texas for a poor man. And this was the time when West Texas was promising much and doing little.

There were business men in West Texas towns, however, who did not lose confidence in the situation. Bales of cotton and other farm products were displayed in bank windows, and the local papers teemed with the agricultural possibilities of the west. When seasonable years came the country made surprising yields of all farm products, and it was not long until another stream of immigration was pouring into that section, This last stream was composed of men who had sized up the situation and decided that as a strict farming proposition West Texas would not pay. But they had worked it out in their own minds that by combining farming and stock raising they would hit a winning combination, and they did. The stock farmer is the man who is responsible for the rejuvenation of the west for he is the element who first gave any thing like stability to the settlement of that country. He is rapidly compelling the retirement of the big ranches, and, under his tutelage West Texas has become the most prosperous portion of the state.

And for three years now West Texas has made better crops of cotton and corn and all other products straight thru than any other portion of the state. Two bales of cotton to the acre were made on many acres of West Texas soil last year, and a bale to the acre was common. The people are of the opinion that the seasons have changed and that West Texas has come within the rain cycle. Many of them believing the filling of the Salton basin in California by the waters of the Colorado have brought this about, and they are hopeful that this great inland sea will be permitted to stand in spite of the efforts that are now directed against it. They point to the thousands of acres of ungathered cotton yet remaining in that section and say if West Texas is not now a farming country they would like to know the reason why.

New railways are being built thruout that section, cities and towns are growing as if continually touched by a magic wand, and never in the history of the state has there been witnessed such an influx of immigration as is now pouring in. Every freight train going west carries its complement if immigrant cars, and the railways have been ocmpelled to more than double all train service in order to handle the business of that section. It is now more than making good.

FITTING TRIBUTE TO LYTLE

The press of the state has paid high tribute to the memory of the late Captain John T. Lytle, of this city, secretary and general manager of the Cattle Raisers' Association of Texas, but one of the most fitting tributes to the memory of this truly excellent gentleman appeared in the columns of the San Antonio Stockman and farmer. It is as follows:

Captain John T. Lytle is dead. The announcement of his passing away caused great sorrow and expression of genuine regret in Texas and the Southwest. where he was so generally known. A pioneer in the live stock industry he was the best known man in live stock circles in the entire West and Southwest. No better, braver or kindlier man ever lived. This is the judgment of all who knew him. John Lytle in his day helped more men to start in life than any man of whom we have knowledge. All he wanted to know was the man honest, it mattered not about security. Captain Lytle loved a dollar as do others, but he worshipped men, not gold. He will not be remembered because of the money he did or did not accumulate, but because of the interest he took in humanity and the development of the great live stock industry of the Southwest. No monument of bronze is necessary to perpetuate his memory. His good deeds will live longer than a pile of metal or stone. In the earlier days of the cattle business in Texas Captain Lytle was known as "Cattle King." At the time of his death he was associated in the cattle business with T. J. Moore, John R. Blocker and W. H. Jennings, these gentlemen owning the ranch and cattle holdings of the Piedra Blanca Cattle Company in the state of Coahulla, Mexico. At his death he was secretary of the Cattle Raisers' Association of Texas, the greatest live stock organization in the world. For two terms he was president of the Texas Live Stock Association, and for four years superintendent of the live stock department of the San Anthe advancement of the greatest industry in Texas and he lived long enough to see his efforts crowned with

San Antonio was long the home of Captain Lytle prior to the time he came to this city and the universal esteem in which he was held there is but an echo of the regard felt for him in Fort Worth. No man in Texas did more for the great live stock industry than John T. Lytle, and his work in this respect will live after him. Faithful and loyal to his friends, genial and kind in his demeanor toward all with whom he came in contact, he was a fine type of the perfect gentleman, honored and useful citizen and old-time cattleman, Senator Senter says he only took a few nisp for hisfailing strength's sake, and denies that he is the habitual inebriate his enemies have pictured. All of which is true as gospel, for there are few men in existence who can testify to the fact that they have ever seen the honorable senator from Dallas the least under the influence of the cup that cheers.

The Houston Post would have the world believe that the inauguration of Governor Campbell and Lieutenant Governor Davidson was completely eclipsed by the magnificence of the reception and ovation extended to Senator Bailey. And that is always the Bailey ideato pose in the front of the procession.

It begins to look like the weather clerk has been saving the January installment for February, and in that event, we may expect February weather in March. The mild open winter so far is considered a pretty safe harbinger of a late and disagreeable spring.

I write it out first in lead pencil on cheap paper-any old way. While I am at work on the story I make notes about it on backs of envelopes that I happen to have in my pockets. I tried carrying around a formal note book once, but found that by the time I got that out and ready to use my precious thought of the moment had been frightened away. Afterward I typewrite the manuscript and correct it some more. I find that I cannot do as well by letting some one else copy it on the machine as by doing it myself, because so many new ideas come to me during that part of the work. With 'Half a Rogue' it was entirely impossible for a time to do any typewriting. and some of my manuscript must have given the print-

A new book by Mary E. Waller is an interesting event, since her first adult novel, "The Wood Carver of 'Lmypus," has become so great a favorite. Published two years ago last spring, a fifteenth edition is just announced. This letter from an Omaha (Neb.) correspondent is typical:

"The Wood Carver of 'Lympus" is the most widely talked about book at present. There are ten copies of it at the public library and five copies at one of the Tabard Inn libraries. It has been in such demand that a number of acquaintances of mine rather than wait to get it at the libraries, have bought copies. It was also the subject at a recent meeting of a large local Book Review club.

Miss Waller has returned to her home in the Great mountains of Vermont, after having seen thru the press two editions of her new book, "Thru the Gates of the Netherlands," one of the popular holiday volumes.

The next state legislature is going to have a very unpleasant duty to perform, no matter which horn of the dilemma it takes in the Bailey matter. If Bailey is defeated the cry of injustice will be raised by his friends, and if he is elected there will be a roar heard from the masses that will shake the capitol hill. It is a hard proposition, and the members of the legislature will realize it when they get to it.-Fort Worth Tele-

And the easiest and right way for them to do is t vote for the regular Democratic nominee of the same conventions which nominated these same legislators, and pay no attention to the howl of Bailey's enemies who are simply trying to defeat him from personal dislike. The record of his votes and the speeches in congress and other public acts are above reproach and are not questioned by even his most bitter enemies, because they are true and right. Perhaps Gruet knew the company he was in better than any other man. His employer was offering a LOVELY example. It is a very easy matter to raise nogs in any portion of Texas, and the experience of the Pittsburg lady can be duplicated in any Texas community. The people of Texas should give more attention to hogs and less to politics. Fort Worth Telegram.

Much depends upon the pig. Several years ago a subscriber brought in a shoat to pay three years' subscription. The animal was long and thin, but we thought that with plenty of feed and good care he would more than balance the $3 paid for him. We fed him, sheltered and watered him; but, after some six months, if he had gained a pound in weight or an inch in size, we couldn't credit him with it. We killed him to be rid of him, and the result, so far as we remember. was a little pile of skin-covered bones and a collection of spare-ribs that couldn't be masticated after twelve hours' boiling. I requires a good pig as well as good care to duplicate the lady's experience "in any Texas community."-Timpson Times.

RAILROAD DETECTIVE IS AN IMPORTANT OFFICIAL

pocial to The Telegram.

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 18.—Homer Bassford, writing to the St. Louis Republic from Houston, Texas, says:

Coming here from St. Louis not many night ago, the train had as a passenger as far as Tulsa a big, broad shouldered, clear-eyed, honest type of man, the head of a railroad department that looks after the interests of railroad company in a manner quite

MAY, JANUARY 18, 1907

Most of us have never known that the roads put all of their conductors and brakemen thru technical examinations, nor have we been informed, in detail, that every big railroad has its secret service, just as the treasury department of the United States, or the postoffice department, or the city of quite as little understood, perhaps,

The big, broad shouldered man who came down on the train the other night was Sam Allender, the head of the secret service of the Frisco Railroad system. There is nothing mysterious about Mr. Allender or his meth-

He has never worn whiskers in his life, he has never painted his face, nor has he ever microscopically examined footprints in order to find the outlines of the factory stamp in the mud.

Yet he has arrested more men than Sherlock Holmes, and his subordinates, who know his work, think that he is one of the best managers of a case and one of the best masters of deduction in the realm of secret serv-

One of the best of these subordinates told me that one of Allender's good points was that he made no mistakes. By this he meant that Allender always had a case well in hand before he proceeded to apprehend a culprit. By this method he avoids the obvious danger of damage suits against his company for false arrests and impris-

Thefts Are Frequent

There is seldom a day in the history of a railroad system of importance that there is not committed some sort of crime in which the company has a direct interest, not only because of the damage to its own property or the loss of some portion of it, but because—and this is the more likely—that the interests of some patron are affected. Only the other day, at Springfield, a thief drove up to a car loaded with cord-wood, and stole every stick of it. The man to whom the car was assigned at once reported his loss to the agent, who, in turn, notified the secret service department of the company.

In two hours an operative was on the scene, aided by or aiding the local authorities, and at the end of the day the thief was locked up. He was a

HOSPITAL CASES

The following recoveries in cases of Bright's Disease and Diabetes are of special interest because the patients recovered after leading hospitals had failed. The genuineness of the cases is thus assured:

Mrs. C. C. Matthewson, No. 502
Powell street, San Francisco. Diabetes.
Was in Woman's Hospital on Sacramento street. They told her that there was eleven per cent of sugar and that she was incurable. She then had an examination made at the Lane Hospital. Same diagnosis, Went home and took Fulton's Compound and re-

Mr. Wm. White, Deputy City Assor of San Francisco. Bright's Disease. Was in St. Luke's Hospital six weeks. Grew worse, went home. Then tried the Waldeck; after three weeks went home sure that nothing could be done. Heard of Mrs. Matthewson's recovery and took Fulton's Compound and recovered.

Mrs. R. Lester Bell of Auburn, N. Y., was in the Albany Hospital so low with Bright's Disease that it was expected she would die during the night. She was so swollen with the dropsy that a touch would cause her to scream. Case looked so hopeless her husband was permitted to get and give her Fulton's Renal Compound. Complete recovery. Has since passed for life insurance. Druggist M. L. Walley of Auburn thought it so wonderful he had affidavits made of all the parties.

A. G. Porter of West Haxen, Conn. Bright's Disease; was in New Haven General Hospital nearly blind. They told him he would never be any better. He gave up and went home to die. Heard about Fulton's Compound; sent for it, got well and is now back to his railroad work.

W. A. Whitney of Cheyenne, Supt. of the Union Pacific R. R. Co., was in St. John's Hospital in Cheyenne. Bright's Disease. Albumen so heavy tube solidified, dropsy, casts, etc., etc. Case looked hopeless. On the advice of physicians resigned and wert to Honolulu to prolong life as long as possible. In Honolulu heard of Deputy U. S. Marshal Winters' recovery from Bright's Disease under Fulton's Renal Compound, took it and recovered.

Chas. A. Newton, yardmaster Southern Pacific R. R. Co., Sacramento. The physicians at the So. Pac. Hospital diagnosed the case as Diabetes. Continuing to get worse, he took Fulton's Compound and recovered. Two years later Newton's son developed Bright's Disease. When the family doctor said he could not live he was put on Fulton's Compound. The boy is now at school, complete recovery.

Inc. Gyselaar, merchant of Eureka, Cal, was in the Lane Hospital, San Francisco. Close question as to whether it was Bright's Disease or Cirrhosis of the Liver. After consultation they treated him for the latter. After three months and eight tappings, the case looked hopeless and the family took him home and put him on Fulton's Compound. Recovery

T. J. Mulloy of No. 2316 Bryant street, San Francisco, was in the U. S. Marine Hospital with Bright's Disease. Got so low his sister was advised the end was near and to take him home. She did so and put him on Fulton's Compound. Recovered.

W. B. Hutchinson, mate of one of the Island Steamers was in the Honolulu Hospital slowly dying with Bright's Disease. President Otis of the Honolulu Drug Co., got Fulton's Compound into the case, Complete retoyery.

Mail sacks lying on the open platform on trucks are sometimes cut open or taken to the nearest woods and there rifled. This is not only a matter for the government, but one for the carrying company as well. Not long ago one of the well known railroads was notified in its secret service office of the loss of a sack containing money and jewelry. One of the best men in the service was put to work on the case. He found that the money was sent by a man who had kept the numbers of the bills.

This seemed a step in the right direction, but for a day or two, in towns near the point where the robbery occurred, the operative (which is another name for detective) made little headway. He learned from a young man who had mailed a small box on the day of the robbery that one of the stolen pieces of jewelry was a ring with a garnet set.

Ring Clew to Robbery

The detective, who, by the way, was not Mr. Allender, but an associate, went to the jeweler from whom the ring was obtained, and there learned of two of its peculiarities. One was that the ring had been cut down, and the other was a slight imperfection in one of the clips that held the set.

Two hours afterward the detective saw a man wearing a garnet ring. This detective has an honest interest in precious stones, and with an absent manner he went to the stranger and asked him for a look at the garnet. The man did not suspect.

"That's an odd stone, where did you get it?" the detective asked. He had meantime looked for the defective clip and it was not visible.

"Jeweler up the street." the man replied. There was something peculiar in the tone of the answer. The ring did not appear to fit the description of the one lost in the mail sack, but the man who had it on his finger did not appear to act just "right."

"I like the stone," the detective said.

"Come on up and show me where I can get one like it."

The two went up the street, chatting merrily upon the beauty of garnets and other baubles of value.

"This is the place," said the man with the ring. The two went in. The jeweler smiled:

"Back again?" he said to the man with the ring, at which the detective reached the premature conclusion that he was on the wrong trail.

"Yes, my friend here wants to look at some garnets—like this one." The jeweler was very sorry. "We never keep stones of that sort," he said. "You understand, of course, that that ring was brought in for repair—"

"Oh, no you are mistaken, I bought it here," the man with the ring exploded.

"Doesn't look as if it needed repair," the detective went on, amiably. "What was wrong with it?"
"One of the clips was out of place and it was to be cut down slightly.

it had already been cut when I got it."

"How much did you charge for repairing the ring?" the detective asked, idly, looking over a tray of watches.

"I think it was a dollar—let me see,

Yes, it was a dollar—had to go to the bank to get a twenty changed for the gentleman."

"Sorry to give you all of this trouble, but let's go down to the bank and have a look at the twenty."

The man said that he was too busy, but when the detective opened his coat, there was no further argument. The bank happened to have that particular twenty still in stock—for it was a small place, and sure enough, it bore the number of one of the bills known to be in the missing pouch.

When the case came to trial the attorney for the defense undertook to prove, by expert testimony, that thousands of that particular grade of garnet rings were turned out every year, and that many of them were cut down. It was at this point that the actual loser of the ring that was sent thru the mail was called as a witness, "All I've got to say," he broke out, "is that if that is my ring it will rattle in the set if you hold it a certain

Indisputable Evidence

The lawyers got together and held the ring the "certain way," and there was the telltale rattle. The mail thich had a bad record. By last accounts he was still under lock and key.

"That was rather a pretty case," said the old detective who told the story, "yet it is typical of many we have in hand all of the time. There is little mystery about our business. We are after criminals, and we follow a definite training that we get in the school of experience.

"The criminal is a type, and we learn, after many years, some of his peculiarities. There may be a touch of intuition in our methods, but there is a lot of hard work coupled with it."

The secret service department costs

a lot of hard work coupled with it.'
The secret service department costs each railroad system thousands of dollars a year, but the protection of the patron and the company's property makes it necessary. Local police authorities cannot be expected to keep in touch with the meandering interests of a big and intricate common carrier. It must have a police of its own to which to tell its troubles.

FORT WORTH BOY IS APPRECIATED

Harry Steinfoldt Given Handsome Diamond Scarfpin

Harry Steinfeldt, a Fort Worth boy, who has climbed away up in baseball circles since he left this city, is being appreciated at last and his worth on the diamond is recognized by the magnates. "Steiny" has a host of friends in Fort Worth who will be glad to learn of any good luck that comes to him, and the following by Jack Ryder, the well known baseball reporter for the Chicago Journal, certainly indicates that things are coming "Steiny's" way:

"President Murphy of the Chicago Cubs came to town yesterday morning as the advance guard of the baseball men who will be here to attend the meeting of the national commission today. He celebrated the occasion by taking Harry Steinfeldt by the hand, leading the crack third-sacker to a jewelry store and forcing upon him a beautiful diamond scarfpin, in the lucky shape of a horseshoe, as a token of appreciation for Steiny's fine work with the bat during the season just closed. The gift was a big surprise to Steinfeldt, who could scarcely express his thanks for the moment. ' wanted to hand Harry some token, said Murphy, 'to show him that the Chicago Club appreciated his steady and consistent batting this year. He made more base hits than any other man in the league and beat out Chance, Kling and other heavy hitters for slugging honors. It was largely his splendid work that enabled Chance to tie Wagner for total runs scored. Steiny experienced no slump all the season, played in nearly every game, and was always going at top speed. He has a two-year contract with the Chicago club, so this gift cannot be taken as a folly to induce him to sign for next season, but is merely a sign of our admiration for his grand work." "The scarfpin was a beauty, set with fourteen white diamonds and of considerable value."

The material for the telegraph connections has arrived and the Western Union will begin that part of the work on Monday of next week.

It is expected that a week's time will be required in which to complete the work of moving, at the expiration of which time the Rock Island officials will be located in headquarters strictly modern. The general freight office will begin moving Saturday afternoon.

EMUSEMENTS!

At the Majestic Danny and Dolly Mann are presenting a pretty pastoral at the Majestic theater this week which they call "Mandy Hawkins," the scene of which is laid in New Hampshire. Mrs. Mann plays the part of "Mandy" and it is one of the most realistic bits of the way down east girl character ever presented. The makeup she uses, her dialect and mannerisms are perfect. This sketch is always a big hit as it is replete with pathos and comedy so well intermingled that the audience is usually kept busy changing from laughter to sadness. Special scenery and elaborate effects are used in presenting the playlet. Mr. Mann portrays the character of a New Hampshire farmer. A few delightful pictures of rustic life which are rare in vaudeville, are presented. The work of the principals can be said to be flawless. Others on the bill are Clayton, Jenkins and Jasper in a negro specialty, "The Darktown Circus," in which the pet donkey, "Jasper," occupied a prom-inent part; the Dochemdorf troupe of girls in military movements; Memphis Kennedy, black face entertainer: Francis Wood, hoop roller, and Gil Brown, song and dance artist.

"Everybody Works But Father" at

Greenwall's opera house tonight and tomorrow matinee and night, bids fair to become as popular as the song that inspired it. The play is enjoying the same success on the road as it did during the months of its excellent opening. The music is catchy and popular, the numbers are beautiful and entrancing, the humor is infectious and the whole idea and purpose of the comedy a brilliant effort in play construction. Mr. Harrison Greene, as a comedian, needs no introduction to theater goers, and his acting of the German father in this particular play has been favorably compared with the work of Louis Mann and by some critics as even a funnier interpretation. There is a laugh in every line, and thruout the entire play the gorgeousness of the stage pictures and beauty and grace of the many pretty girls, coupled with the melody and catchy songs and effectiveness of its many musical numbers and electrical dances hold one spell-bound with the possibilities of the comedy and beauty of its conception.

"The College Widow"

George Ade is said to have remarked after finishing the manuscript of "The College Widow," which comes to Greenwall's opera house Monday night, Jan. 21, that if the play was not a success he would never write another. "It's the best I can do," declared the young playwright. Since the production of the comedy, the verdict of all America has been so unanimously approving that Mr. Ade's head might well be turned if he were made of common clay, which he is not. "The most successful and yet the most modest American writers for the stage" compliment frequently naid his which acquaintancs of the Indianian say is fully justified.

"The College Widow" will be presented this season by one of the strongest companies Henry W. Savage has yet organized.

Paul Gilmore

One of the chief features of the new college play, "At Yale," which will be produced by Mr. Jules Murry at Greenwall's opera house Wednesday matinee and night, Jan. 23, is the music. Mr. Paul Gilmore, who is a crank on this subject, took the precaution last summer to spend some time at Yale, studying the songs and the singers on the college campus, and as a result, he has selected nearly a lozen of the best national college songs and has taken care to have them sung by a double quartet of trained voices in true Yale style so that, when his play is seen here, college men who witness the performance will be able

A Touching Tribute From a Grateful Wife

Alderman Kelly's Wife Presents Each of the Hot Springs Doctors With a Buttonhole Bouquet

A HOME MADE HAPPY

Mrs. R. T. Kelly, wife of the promi-nent North Fort Worth alderman, called at 900 Houston street and pre-sented each of the Hot Springs Doctors with a beautiful white carnation as a mark of appreciation for what they have accomplished in her husband's case. Mr. Kelly has been sick since last June, and after being dosed with quinine, strychnine, arsenic and calo-mel until he could hardly stand, he made up his mind to go to Marli Wells, which he did, but got so weak he had to go to bed. He suffered with the most horrible pains, his head felt as the it would burst open, or that he would lose his mind. He tried doctor after doctor, without getting any re-lief. His condition grew steadily worse, his pains more severe, until it seemed as if the days grew shorter, only to make a longer night. His suf-ferings were all but unbearable. Sleep became a stranger to him. He was helpless, pain racked, discourag Four weeks ago his brothers of the lodge of Woodmen of the World persuaded him to try the Hot Springs Doctors. He had no faith; he was tired of being drugged and dosed with vile decoctions that served only to aggravate his sufferings. Four weeks ago he commenced the Hot Springs Doctors' treatment-and Sunday last was able to dress himself and go out and eat dinner with a friend If you have ever been confined to your room for only a day or two you may have a slight idea of Mr. Kelly's feelings when he stepped out of his residence at 1209 Rusk street for the first time in months. His first thought was of the men that made it possible for him to enjoy God's sunshine after months of (Note—It was at first suggested by the management of the Maude Fealy Company to give the seats in connection with new subscriptions, but owing to the system of delivery in Fort Worth and collections by carriers it has been deemed advisable to avoid confusion by accepting votes only on coupons which appear in The Telegram. This makes the contest more simple and does away with the possibility of misunderstanding.)

STANDING OF CONTESTANTS

The fourth day of the contest finds Miss Julia Smith still in the lead. Miss Smith is hard at work to win the box and eight seats and has many friends at work. She has a new rival today in Miss Carolyn Boaz of 701 Florence street, who starts with 27 votes. Miss Barton today has advanced from last to fifth place. Miss Fealy, for whose play the seats will be given, has never before appeared in Fort Worth. Her photograph took the prize for beauty in the World's Exposition at Paris and she is without doubt the most beautiful actress now on the American stage. Her experience with Sir Henry Irving; in the original "Quo Vadis" company, and with other high-class productions has given her a great reputation, making her appearance here of unusual interest,

A BURIED CITY

May Discover an American Pompeii in Arizona Wilds Special to The Telegram.

PHOENIX, Ariz., Jan. 18.-The greatest interest is manifested here in the application of Assistant Secretary Rathbun of the Smithsonian Institute, for a congressional appropriation to continue scientific investigations at the Casa Grande ruins near Florence, Ariz. It is believed that continued excavations will result in the discovery of a buried city which will surpass Pompeil and will become one of the great wonders of the world, attracting scientists and tourists from every nation. A preliminary appropriation made by congress last winter has been exhausted, but the work already done has served to give some idea of the grandeur and extent of the ruins, and has furnished an object lesson for students of American archaeology.

The Casa Grande ruins are situated near the village of Florence, about twelve miles from the Santa Fe railway and eighteen miles from the Southern Pacific line. They consist of three clusters of buildings, covered by mounds of earth. One of these buildings has been partially excavated un-der the direction of Dr. J. Walter Fewkes, of the American Bureau of Ethnology, who is in charge of the work. It is 250 by 450 feet in extent. Another of the ancient structure,s according to Dr. Fewkes, is over 200 feet wide and 500 feet long. Aside from these buildings known to exist, archaeologists who have investigated the ruins believe that many other huge edifices, all built in a remote antiquity, will be uncovered.

There is no more beautiful location for a ranch in the whole of Texas, but its ate is sealed insofar as it will ever gain be known as a ranch. "I am ere in Fort Worth for one or two " said Captain Charles Willjam Bayly Collyns, "but the most imortant is that of closing a deal wherein our ranch is being sold. We have country for some fifteen years and have been in the cattle business. If I were the only one interested in the proposition I would not entertain the offer that is going to take the property, $6 per acre, but would take my time, for I am as sure as that the sun rises every morning, that it will sell in twelve months for $15 per acre. It is all fine agricultural fand and is well located for farms, the river running thru the place from one end to the other and always affords an unailing supply of water. We have good sattle and have always bred our horse stock enough perhaps to give us our own mounts. The Angelo section of Texas is a remarkably fine body of land and as a cow country has always been famous for its fine grass. I have always noticed that where the grass lourishes best there is to be found a fine quality of soil that will make good agricultural possibilities. I married Texas and shall continue to make he state my home and, am now building a good house in San Angelo with view to making that city my future home. I, being the ouly member of my family that is 'footloose' will have to take a trip to Australia. I expect to settle up an estate my father left over there. How soon I shall go is uncertain. I am looking for a good driving horse for my wife, and have come over to the yards to get him. "Yes, I am a a native of England. From the south of England." Grass Is Good Captain Bill Waddell; the noted cowman of the Odessa country, came on the market and was captured near the exchange and requested to answer questions. "You may say that my cattle are in a most amazing good fix at ent. Grass is growing again and he stock have gotten entirely over he hard spell that we had in Novemer. Of course we cannot expect to go hru the halance of the winter without more cold spells, but the cattle are in such good fix that it is hardly pable that they will suffer as much is is usual out our way when the stock are in thin shape. It will certainly take a good lot of cold weather to hurt them as much as usual. Yes, I am putding my ranch on the market. I have been out in that country twenty-nine years, having gone out there before the railroad had left Fort Worth going west. I feel that I have served my time and now that the other fellows want my land at a good price I am willing to let him have his chance. I saw the first pine plank brought to Colorado City and it was put into the building which was called the Dunn & Coleman house, and was the first house built of lumber ever built in the town. The lumber was hauled from Waco and I was present when it came to Colorado City, or rather the land where that place now stands. Yesterday I stood and looked on while this building was burned down, so you may say that I was at the building and ending of the house. We have not sold much land yet, have been preparing for this and getting everything in The whole western section of the state is certainly looking and feeling well, thank you."

Complaints of Delay Ben Van Tuyl, the Mitchell county stockman, came in on a freight with some of his good cows and steers. "Nothing is hurting my stock at present," said Mr. Van Tuyl, "and they are in very good fix for winter time. A cowman's greatest worry now is thru the railroads, which don't seem to be able to get cars to us within any very remote time and do not seem to care whether they do or not. It is getting to be outrageous. I went to get a sleeper ticket from the Texas and Pacific and he could not-that is, the agent could not-tell me when the train was likely to come in or go out. He then asked me if I wanted the ticket. I told I him I would wait until I, knew whether my train was coming in at night or in the daytime, for if it was in daytime I would not wish to have a sleeper ticket. I came in this time on a freight with six cars of cows and steers. We reached the yards in the city this morning early, but no one can tell when the cars will be started for the yards, only a mile away, or how long it will take for the road to make that mile. It may be supper time before they get in the yards and the cattle are unloaded, too late for the market today."

Will Market Carefully Captain Richard True came in from the south and told how he had shot a sixteen-point buck down in La Salle county. In old times it used to be the custom for a hunter who claimed to have killed anything to bring visible evidence of the fact, the foot or tail of a deer, a bear's paw or the "beard" of a turkey, but Captain True did not have any of these things in sight to prove that he had killed the

"I killed him sure enough, and might have brought a foot along, only I was sure that none of you tender feet would know a deer's foot from a cow's. Anyway, grass is good down there and cattle are in pretty good fix and would be better if a little rain would fall. Everything is green and grass and weeds in great shape for winter. There are some cattle to come out, but people are in no hurry and will string them out so as not to overcrowd the loaded with some of the good stuff that he always has on hand out in the sand hill country. "Cattle are in very fair condition and have not suffered so far to any extent from the winter. There is plenty of feed for them in the hills and the grass is getting green again. There is nothingg new to relate, the usual amount of work that is always to be done in the winter time being the only thing to relieve the monotony of the situation. The hogs are still running free, as we have not had sufficient cold weather to take chances on killing. We will not kill so many this year as last in any event. I sold ten sections of my land some time ago for $3 per acre and in a few days it sold for $5, which made me feel sore. I still have some sheep and they are in very good fix. The western Texas sheep are better than any other and stand well the winters." Big Ranches Passing

south Texas, having spent the holidays in and near his old home in San "San Antonio certainty looks lovely now," said he, "everything is in full bloom and the roses are beautiful. The whole country south and southwest of San Antonio is just as fine as can be. Everything is still green and growing and cattle are in excellent condition and could be shipped out now if one wanted to. Grass is good and all stuff that makes that section such a great cattle country is rushing. Lands are selling well and there is a constant demand for them. This is causing the big ranches to disappear and farming communities are taking their place. The whole of southwest Texas will. after a while, become one vast truck

Out in Arizona Captain Jacks is again in the city with a view to selecting a car load of hogs to be shipped to his home town, Globe, Ariz. He was here some two weeks or more ago and at that time bought what he needed and shipped them. Hogs are scarce out in that section of Arizona and he finds the Fort Worth market the best place to hunt up what he wishes. Matters out there are about as usual with no cold weather to speak of since the November spell. Cattle and stock generally are doing as finely as could be expected for the season of the year. There is not much of anything immediately around Globe, except mountains and mineral.

In the Teritory S. W. Kelley, from Klowa, I. T., with hogs, looked as if he had had his share of the good things during the holidays and was ready for the new year. He is dealer in stock and cares little which it is so that he can buy it with sufficient margin to make a good profit. This is what all men are in business for anyway.

"Our people are alive to the situation, just as much as any other people. and will be ready to take advantage of any good things that may turn up. Nothing doing just now, it being the middle season when everybody is on the lookout, making their arrangements for the coming seasons. There will be a lot of cotton planted this coming year, I suppose, as it succeeded so well last year. Things are still in an evolution state and no one knows just what will happen when the territory becomes a state.

GREATNESS OF TEXAS Guy Waggoner, junior member of the firm of D. Waggoner & Son of Vernon, Texas, among the largest owners and shippers of good cattle from the Lone Star state, was a visitor at the yards today, and reports conditions generally very satisfactory in his state, althan 75 per cent of the usual number of cattle fed there this season. And to illustrate this point he stated that along the line of the Missouri, Kansas & Texas railroad, where many oil mills are located, there is on feed this year 29,700 head, as against 41,210 last year, and 74,945 in 1904, and he is of the opinion that this proportion will hold for the state at large. Last year his firm fed about 8,000 head, while this year they have only about 3,000 head on feed. Stock is in good condition, and, he states, the fed cattle will begin to come to market the last of this month. Mr. Waggoner said they had a fine cotton crop in that state last year-in fast all kinds of crops were good ingtwithstanding the fact that some damage was done by the excessive wet weather. And that while a few years too, there was little raised in that trafe but attorn new all kinds of crops are grown—the big tanches being cut up the grown—the big tanches being cut up into small farms, and the people prosperous.

state of Texas, he told us that it would take forty-eight hours to go from Longview to El Paso, going thirty miles an hour; whereas he could leave St. Louis and riding at the same rate he could be in seven states in twentyfour hours; or if in Europe he could visit three different European countries where three different languages are anoken.

As an evidence of the Messrs. Waggoner's faith in Texas and its vast possibilities, it may be stated that they own over 600,000 acres of land in the northwestern part of the state, right on the edge of the Panhandle country, the land being in five different counties.-St. Louis Reporter.

VIEWS ON LIVESTOCK

Evans-Montague Commission Co. Cattle-Receipts this week have been extremely heavy. Monday showed the largest receipts of the year at all the markets, with over 200 cars here and fully 10c to 15c decline was shown Monday. Since that time receipts have fallen off some, but we have had plenty to supply the demand, so we can only quote a slight reaction on the good fat handy light weight steers and strictly good butcher cows, which we quote 5c to 10c higher than the close of Monday. Calves have been rather plentiful, but ruled steady until Thursday, when the buyers took off 25c per hundred on everything in the calf line. Bulls have remained steady on both stockers and fat bulls. We hope to see the receipts next week more moderate and an advance in the market. It is claimed by many that there is a shortage in marketable cattle: yet the receipts of the past week do not indicate this shortage, and but for the prosperous condition of the country and the extremely good demand for meat by the consumers, 4t is our opinion that the market would have shown a further decline, but as stated above, if we can have moderate receipts next week we hope to see them recover all of the decline of last Monday, We quote:

NEW YORK COTTON AGAIN DECLINES

Causes Slump

NEW YORK, Jan. 18 .- The anticipation of a bearish census report and the estimate of continued larger port receipts started the prices of cotton on the New York exchange downward, and the opening was at a loss of from 3 to 6 points. Immediately following the opening the lack of selling pressure caused some recovery, and before the middle of the day's trading the early loss had been fully recovered. The undertone was by no means, strong, however, and the quotations were ranges. Some hesitation seemed apparent at the early opening in the attitude of Liverpool, especially in the drop in spot sales, but this was to some extent offset by the indicated let up in receipts at the gins at interior points, and the prospects for an exhaustion of interior stocks at a much earlier period than is usual. The recovery following the opening was also partly due to the purchase by New York brokers of 50,000 bales. These purchases were thought to have been made for a Philadelphia firm, and the market was

NEW YORK STOCKS BREAK NEAR CLOSE

Easier Money May Bring Improvement

Special to The Telegram.

NEW YORK, Jan. 18 .- Stocks displayed a strong tendency at the opening, when all the popular securities opened at an advance. The undertone seems inclined to the bull side, especially since it has become evident that the character of support that is being given the stocks controlled by the Standard Oil, Harriman and Frick interests, that this powerful group is preparing to give aggressive support to the bull side. Professional traders who claim to be on the inside of the situation are sending out tips to purchase with this one thing in mind. Following this advice, Union Pacific, Southern Pacific, St. Paul, Atchison, Pennsylvania, Baltimore & Ohio, Reading Steels and Copper were bought for profits within a reasonable time, While Louisville & Nashville and Smelters were also included in some of the purchases, and these stocks showed quite an active trade for the greater part of the session.

Money was quoted lower, for both time and call loans, and the bank statement tomorrow is expected to show more favorable financial conditions, and while the list of stocks began to show considerable weakness after the middle of the session, the financial situation, it is thought, will justify more active operations when the bank statement is issued. C. H. Toups this morning received a telegram stating that Captain John T. Lytle, of San Antonio, Texas, died yesterday. Captain Lytle was one of the pioneer cowmen of Texas and devoted much of his time in organizing and working for the good of the cattlemen of the southwest. At the time of his death he was secretary and general manager of the Texas Cattle Raisers' Association, an organization which has practically wiped out the cattle thieves of that state, and at the present time it is next to impossible to market a steer belonging to some one else. Indifferent Market Follows Lower Opening

Special to The Telegram. NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 18 .- There was no change in spot prices at New Orleans for the greater part of the day, and that market was quiet and steady. Futures opened 4 to 5 points lower, and while some improvement was soon noticed, and slight bulges were made in prices, the fluctuations were within a few points of the opening until near the close of the session. The practically complete dry-up of the arbitrage between New Orleans and New York leaves the local ring dead during the duli speculative period, and hedging transactions, which are insufficient to feed the market. Perhaps the worst part of the situation is these conditions may continue for an indefinite period, or until such time as altered improvements shall have improved the New Orleans ring from the standpoint of the buyer. In the meantime narrow views will in all probability mar rather than help a very unsatisfactory situation.

Toward noon the market began to show wearness, and the values dropped below the opening prices. This checked selling and the market began to drag. Further improvement, however was looked for by local longs, and had the high figures of the day been reached toward the close, there would have been considerable selling According to information, New York considers her stock cheap enough on the hasis of future quotations. Some people bought on this belief, and this led to straddle operations, which somewhat reduced the market dif-

Weakness Is Shown in Pork Receipts Products

Special to The Telegram CHICAGO, Ill., Jan. 18 .- The entire grain and provision market opened higher than the close of yesterday and held a steady tone at the advance for the greater portion of the day's trad-

July wheat opened %c up, and further strength developed as the day's trading progressed, with the fluctuations ranging close around 77c. Foreign cables came in ¼ to ¼ English points higher, with the imports somewhat increased. The heavier exports from this side, together with the unsettled weather conditions thruout the west, which remain unfavorable for the movement of stocks from country elevators and interior points, operated as a stimulating influence to strengthen the wheat market. The receipts at the various grain centers, while the movement is fairly liberal, hardly equal the daily requirements, and prevent any accumulation. This lack of the receipts to meet the demand for trading operations in cash stuff is due to the insufficient car service. The present prices may suffer some reaction but the local talent is bullish as to the ultimate result, and were good purchasers on all dips when there was anything to buy.

Corn and oats maintained their strong positions, opening higher and remained about steady with the advance in the quotations. Foreign cables were favorable, corn opening in London about %d higher than was due to open. Cunningham and Wagner were good sellers of corn around 45 cents to 45%c, while Cudahy was also a good seller. Provisions were influenced by the advance in corn, and opened 2c to 5c nigher. The receipts of hogs at the Chicago market were 33,000, with 4,000 left over from yesterday. The estimate is 29,000, with a steady hog mar-

Endorses Council's Action Fort Worth, Texas, Jan. 14.

Editor Telegram. While I have been a consistent advocate of a commission to govern this city I have been equally consistent in my disapproval of the arbitrary and undemocratic method adopted in framing the new charter by the self-constituted committee, who have taken upon themselves, without any authority conferred by the people, the right to formulate laws for the government of the people of this city. No wonder they object to allowing the people to pass on their work. I am not prepared to say what motives prompted the city council to order a referendum on the proposition, but I am frank to say that I for one endorse their action for it is apparent that the committee which did not derive its authority from the people have no intention of permitting the people to have any say whatever in the matter.

zens' committee shall be defeated, they have only themselves to blame for it. "All governments derive their just powers from the consent of the governed;" applying this test, then the proposed charter should fail, for they have not obtained the consent of those they seek to govern."

"Taxation without representation is tyranny." This is another axiom that is engraved on the heart of every American. Measured by this great truth their charter should also fail, for they seek to fix upon us a taxing measure in the framing of which the people have had no voice. When a cause is not just it is always customary to resort to technicalities to defeat the ends of justice, hence it is now claimed that the proposed reference to the people by the

There can be no legal phase to the question of the people expressing an opinion, but there may be a technical objection to the appropriation necessary to hold the election; will the friends of the committee charter avail themselves of this to defeat an expression of the

Terse Tales of the Movements of Cattlemen All Over the Great Range Country of the Entire Southwest

Mexico Improving Stock

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, Jan. 14.-Mexico is buying more well-bred breeding cattle than any six states in the union. This is a claim made by breeders of good beef stock.

From the most miserable specimens of range cattle to the finest grades on the continent is the record of the Diaz republic in the last ten years. The cattle-raising industry in the republic is now one of the principal sources of prosperity there. The large ranch of Don Luis Terrazas and his son-in-law, Enrique C. Creel, the new ambassador to the United States, which covers many thousands of acres in Chihuahua, is one of the best-stocked cattle ranches in the world.

This ranch has more than a thousand Hereford bulls that are of blood royal. But there are many other ranches in various parts of the republic where cattle of the best quality have replaced the scrubs of a few years ago. The dairy cattle industry is also being pushed to the front in the republic and all along the line the breed of live stock is being bettered. This is due in chief to the great number of progressive American cattlemen who have removed to the republic to en-

proven profitable to the Mexican ranch At the recent San Antonio International Fair a Mexican ranch owner placed an order for 500 miles of wire gage in cattle raising. Their lead has

Pleads for Better Cattle COLUMBIA, Mo., Jan. 14.-The Live Stock Breeders' Association held a session at the agricultural meeting and listened to addresses by Walter Miller of Peru, Ind., ex-Senator W. A. Harris of Chicago and H. J. Waters of the Missouri Agricultural College.

Mr. Miller attacked the "pedigree" rage in live stock breeding and ex-Senator Harris championed the "pedigree." Mr. Waters read a paper on "Baby Beef Production," in which he opposed the feeding of very young animals by professional feeders, holding that it was not a good business proposition. Ex-Senator Harris made a strong plea for higher-bred cattle and used the situation in England, where stock is raised at a profit on land worth $300 per acre, provement and the necessity of it in | yields are secured. The prize Shornhorn steer from the state farm, which was slaughtered for the banquet Thursday night, broke the record made at the Chicago International Live Stock Show in December by dressing out 70 per cent on the gross weight. Before being slaughtered the steer weighed 1,700 pounds and dressed 1,190 pounds. The hide will be mounted and sent to the Jamestown exposition.

Prosperous West Texas

B. F. Davis of Scurry county, Texas, one of the well-known ranchmen of that part of the state, thinks the future of Texas is bound to be of a very prosperous nature, judging from the turn things have taken down there during the last two years. Mr. Davis has known that country when there was nothing about it worth bragging on, He recalls the time when the men who owned large tracts of land were the poorest lot of men in the country, as they could neither sell out nor make anything out of the land. "But that was before we got so close up to the front," said Mr. Davis. "We have the great resources in Texas that, when properly developed, are bound to make the state famous. We are the leading cattle state in the union, and besides that we lead everything in the production of cotton. The changing ownership of land had a great deal to do with it, All it needed was developing. Everybody is prosperous there now, and the future looks promising."-Drovers'

Profitable Hog Raising J. F. Smyer of Whitfield, Texas, who has been a resident of Swisher county for seventeen years, says that hog raising is being developed there very fast. This is due to the fact that the ranches are being converted into stock farms. "Since we commenced to raise corn, wheat, kaffir corn and other feed, we have taken up hog raising," said Mr. Smyer. "I have at present 100 hogs on my ranch of 2,560 acres. Several car loads a month are now being shipped out of our county, which shows that we are increasing the number. Some fatten them on corn, and others use kaffir corn, while in places wheat is fed to the hogs. Wheat is raised to illustrate the benefit of such im- | there in large quantities and heavy

TRIBUTE TO LYTLE Captain John T. Lytle, secretary of the Cattle Raisers' Association of Texas, and for half a century one of the best known cattlemen of the Lone Star state, died at his home in San Antonio yesterday, according to a dispatch received from there today. Captain Lytle contracted tuberculosis last summer while on a trip thru the Panhandle and in the last few weeks his life had been despaired of by his family and closest friends. He was nearly 70 years of age and had been a resident of San Antonio for fifty years. He was for many years a committee-man of the Cattle Raisers' Association and later second vice president, while on the death of former Secretary J. C. Loving a few years ago, Captain Lytle was named his successor and had served in that capacity with vis-

Captain Lytle was among the most widely known cattlemen in the United States, and a pioneer among the "cat-tle kings" of Texas. He established a great ranch west of San Antonio in the early days and for many years was one of the largest growers of cattle in the state and each year came over the old Santa Fe trail with many thousands of his cattle, bound for northern ranges. He sold out his Texas ranch a few years ago and invested heavily in ranch property in old Mexico, owning an extensive cattle ranch there at the time of his death.

Captain was always an ardent worker wherever livestock men convened, and had been prominent in the affairs of the National Livestock Association the American Stock Growers' Association and later the American-National Livestock Association, while his active interest in the Cattle Raisers' Association of Texas made him one of the most conspicuous cattle men of the state. A pioneer in the Texas cattle business, he was among the more progressive of the rangemen and had bred up his great herds in the past two decades until they were among the best carrying Texas brands.

Many of the Chicago traders knew

Captain Lytle well, and the news of his death today, while not unexpected, was a shock to the warm friends he had made here.—Chicago Drovers' Journal,

FAVORS BOUNTY LAW Senator Claude Hudspeth of El Paso says that the wild animals cause an annual loss of not less than $500,000 to the stockmen of Texas. This is a conservative estimate, he thinks, of the loss from this pest. He has been ranching in Crockett county for a number of years and it is his belief that in that county alone the wild

And if we should build a new President's yacht, Would they call her the "Beliamy Storer," or not? animals kill livestock to the value of $150,000 annually. "I have prepared a bill which I hope to get thru the legislature, appropriating $100,000 to be paid as bounty for wolf and other wild animal scalps," he said. "This fund would go to supplement the scalp bounty which different counties may appropriate for the same purpose under the law which was passed at the last session. Crockett county has been paying for these wild animal scalps for about ten years and as a result of her work along this line there has been a big decrease in the number of lobo wolves, coyotes and wild cats. My bill pro-vides that a bounty of $5 shall be paid on each lobo wolf or panther killed. In addition to the county appropriation in Crockett a number an organization under which they pay for the scalps of these wild animals. It has been costing that county about $1,000 per annum to carry on the work. But in Val Verde and other adjoining counties no provision is made for paying bounty and the wild animals are very bad there. The annual losses of livestock thruout western Texas on account of the wild animals is something enormous. At least 10 per cent of the calves are killed. A regular fee is charged in Germany for the use of canals and canalized rivers, but none for rivers that have been made navigable or improved.

Short breath, fluttering. palpitation, sinking spells are symptoms of a weak heart, struggling to do its work. It must keep the blood in circulation to carry nourishment to make flesh, bone and muscle, and remove the wornout particles. When it cannot do this, it must have help. I think no other medicine could do for me what Heart Cure has could do for me what Heart Cure has done. My case was bad; had as it could be at times. CHEST OF SILVER GIVEN TO HOVEY

he is held, in appreciation for his loyal devotion of the best interests of Fort Worth, a number of the business men friendly regard to Colonel S. B. Hovey, late vice president of the Rock Island in Texas, and that testimonial was worth Thus ay evening, the presentation speech being made by C. E. Hicks. The gift is a dark oak, brass bound case of solid silver and contains a five-piece tea set with tray, a five-piece carving set, and 150 pieces of flatware in the Georgian pattern The work is the highest style of the silversmith's art and the contract price was over $750. It was furnished by the J. E. Mitchell Company.

Lately the office employes of the Chicago, Rock Island & Gulf gave Colonel Hovey a magnificent silver, gold lined loving cup, and at the same time the men of the mechanical department and the trainmen presented split second stop watch. Charles E. Hicks, who was one of the subscribers to the fund, was selected to make the presentation speech. "Gentlemen: I think I can truthfully say that this is the only time in my life that I have beene handicapped. I simply lack the command of the English language to express my feelings, as my heart dictates tonight. Let it be brief. The object of this congregation of friends is to offer the hand of goodfellowship today and forever to the man who has made the name of Hovey

"Mr. Hovey, you have done your work well. Every man, woman and child that knows you respects and loves you. No man could do more, few have done as well. The words, 'Well done, thou good and faithful servant," apply to you absolutely.
"We have brought you this gift as little token of our respect and love or you. If you do us the honor to accept it, our heartfelt love and best wishes for the happiness and prosperity of you and yours go with it. It is yours if you will accept it." Indicating the chest of silverware he tendered that to Colonel Hovey as a token of the honor, respect and best wishes they bore him, Colonel Hovey was too much affected to do more than say that he found words inadequate to give true expression to his feelings, but he concluded, "From the depths of my heart I thank you, my friends.

STOLEN PISTOL CAUSES TROUBLE

Boys Say Negro Took it From

evening arrested a negro and two white boys in connection with a burglary that presents a case of no Little human

The case was originated by Officer Speight arresting Gene Wilson, a negro, on a charge of carrying a pistol, finding a pistol on him which Speight thought he recognized. He called up the supposed owner and informed him of the pistol, but at that time the man did not know that he had lost a pistol. He called at police headquarers, now-ever, and on being snown the weapon identified it as his property. On going home he learned that his house had been burglarized and the pistol stolen from a drawer in a dresser.

When put up against the state of facts, the negro in an effort to clear himself, said he had bought the pistol from a white boy, giving information that led to the arrest of D. Wilkerson and Earl Love, two lads, neither of them over 11 years old. These boys were taken in hand by Officer Speight, who put them thru a course of ques-tioning which resulted in the little fellows making a clean breast admitting to having burglarized the house and taking the pistol. They denied having sold the pistol to the negro, saying that after they had committed the burglary the negro took the pistol away from them. The case goes to the county.

"It's in the atmosphere," said Captain Jim Allen, as he looked over the police blotter and read the last list of names that had been entered there since he went off duty. It must be in the atmosphere, for the brands of whisky and beer in town are just the same as they have always been, and it must be this unnatural January weather that puts meanness in people. I feel kinder mean myself on account of it."

WANT NEW COURT

Fort Worth Attorneys Would Like to See Docket Cleaned Up

A petition signed by about 160 attorneys has been forwarded to Austin asking that a new criminal court be established and located at Fort Worth, that is an exclusive criminal court for Tarrant county, be created. Supporting the petition are statements showing the congested condition of the dockets of the two district courts here and the absolute need for relief. There are now pending on the dockets of the Seventeenth and Fortyeighth district courts of Tarrant county 3,360 cases and of that number there are over 350 criminal cases, a large number of the latter being murder or capital cases, the trial of which can easily take several days for each. When the new court house was designed anticipating the need for a special criminal court for the county, a room on the second floor was planned for the Tarrant county criminal court and if it is established there will be no need for any additional work on the court house other than the furnishing of the court room. It is on the north side of the building and in the middle of the second floor adjoining the county attorney's office. "There are criminal courts of the character desired here at San Antonio, Galveston, Houston and Dallas and the business which legitimately comes before a court of this description as fully justifies an additional court in Tarrant county as it does in the other countles and cities," said an attorney

The petition was sent to Austin on Thursday with the request that action be taken to the end that the legislature may act with promptness in bringing the relief which it is claimed is urgently needed.
