Special to The Telegram. WACO, Texas, Jan. 19 .- Mr. Sanford, the right of way man of the interurban promoters, who propose to build a line connecting Temple, Waco and Marlin, is in the field and securing right of way as rapidly as possible. Farmers are gladly giving right of way in most cases, as they realize the value of having such a line pass their houses and thru their lands. It is now thought that the right of way will have been secured within the next ten days and that work will commence on the line within sixty days. Those who have been over the route say that every try, which is thickly populated already and capable of sustaining an immense number of people.

Special to The Telegram. AUSTIN, Texas, Jan. 19 .- The seventh call for registered warrants, which was the first of Treasurer Sam Sparks, was issued this afternoon. The call embraces all the warrants up to and including 61,320, amounting to $306,011, This leaves a deficit of $242,247.

MANY TURKEYS RAISED IN TEXAS

Entire Output of State Probably Ten Million

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, Jan. 19 .-Reports made to the general freight offices of the Aransas Pass show that 118 cars of dressed turkeys weighing a total of 2,320,000 ponnds, were shipped from Gonzales alone during 1906. The freight officials would not accept these figures as correct until they had been fully developed. These turkeys sold for over $300,000, and all were shipped in refrigerating cars to the north. This is the largest shipment from any city in Texas it is believed. Other towns in that section also ship turkeys in great numbers, and the officers here estimate the total turkey output of the state at 10,000,000 pounds, which would have brought more than a million and a half dollars. This does not include the turkeys sold for consumption in Texas, of which there is no record. The raising of poultry in this sec-tion of Texas is becoming a vast industry. TEXAS HEIRESS DISAPPEARED

Husband Thinks She Has Met With Foul Play

Special to The Telegram. CHICAGO, Jan. 19 .- Mrs. Lucy Lewis, joint heiress to the $300,000 estate of James Wilkinson, her uncle, who died recently at Dallas, Texas, has mysteriously disappeared here, being missing since Thursday, when she started for the office of her attorney here with letters relating to the estate. There has been trouble over the settlement of the estate, other heirs, it is alleged, seeking to deprive Mrs. Lewis of her rights. She is the only niece of the late James Wilkinson, who made her one of his heirs.

Mrs. Lewis recently returned from Dallas. Her husband fears she is the victim of foul play.

BOTH CONFIDENT OF THE VICTORY

Senatorial Election Is Drawing

Special to The Telegram. ABILENE, Texas, Jan. 19 .- As Monday, the day set for the election of a state senator from the Twenty-eighth district, draws nearer the interest in the race between the Bailey and anti-Bailey factions increases. If it were a boxing match the antis would spar for time and be confident of victory. for they feel certain that they are gaining ground. The antis claim that the proceedings at Austin are working in their favor and believe that if the election was two weeks later there would be no question of the results being in their favor. On the other hand, Bailey men say that the announcement of Judge Cockrell has had little effect on the canvass, altho thousands of papers were distributed over the district containing the announcement with editorial comments and they interpret the meaning of the proceedings at Austin in their favor. At headquarters both sides claim the

A suspicion was aroused in Bailey headquarters today that an attack would be made on the personal character of Hon. W. J. Cunningham at the different voting places on the eve of the election and for use in case of such an emergency a petition was circulated among the business and professional men attesting the character of their candidate and reviewing his unassailable record for the two terms he has been the district attorney of this judicial district. But many are beginning to tire of the Bailey controversy and thinking of the $9,000 or $10,000 that it will cost the tax payers of the district to hold the election, are not in the best of humor and will be glad when the fight is over. There is no denying the fact that it has been the cause of much friction between former friends and its damaging effect will be felt for some time.

BEARS PERFORM IN A COURT ROOM

Exhibition Given for Police Judge's Benefit

Special to The Telegram, ATLANTA, Ga., Jan. 19.-For a time this afternoon Record Broyle's court room resembled the arena of a circus. Three performing bears and their keepers did stunts for the edification of the judge and court spectators. The entertainment took place at the close of a case in which two of the wners of the bears had been tried on a charge of blockading the streets. Recorder Broyle dismissed the cases, revoking the license they had obtained and ordered them to take the bears out of the city. The attorney representing the bear owners suggested that the recorder allow his clients to give an exhibition of the stunts done by the bears on the streets.

The judge assented, and one of the the big foreigners threw off his coat and engaged in a sensational wrestle with a large bear, while two other bears had a wrestling match all by themselves. Much applause was wrung from the spectators when the bear was finally thrown heavily to the floor.

HOUSTON PAUPERS ARE BURIED FREE

Culmination of Undertakers War

Special to The Telegram,

HOUSTON, Texas, Jan. 19.—Harris county is one county in the state which has its pauper dead handled without one cent of expense to the taxpayers. This did not come about thru any gigantic financeering ability on the part of the board of county commissioners, but is the result of a war among the undertakers. For several years one firm had a monopoly of the business, but competition had forced tthem to bury the dead in potter's field at 25c for each burial. When it came time to renew his contract a few days ago, all the undertaking firms in the city put in bids, some figuring the cost at $11.75 and others agreeing to do the work for nothing, Then one firm, not to be outbid, offered to pay the county 26c for each pauper turned over to them for burial. After County Judge Amerman had announced that the county did not have any unfortunate poor to sell and was not dealing in corpses, the contract was awarded to a firm that bound itself to do the work for the next two years absolutely free of charge. Under the new county contract the pauper dead are buried in a plain, varnished box and there is no elaboration about the ceremony. It is said that the advertising that comes with the contract and the hope that a corpse given over to the county undertaker will prove to be sought by friends with money or by some secret society prepared to pay for a first-class burial, actuated the Houston undertakers in

MERIDIAN, Miss., Jan. 19.- News was received in this city this morning by long distance telephone that Tol Henderson, at present employed in the rural free delivery mail service, had committed suicide by drinking a quantity of carbolic acid Friday evening at his home near Beech Springs, in Ne-shoba county.

This suicide is the culmination of a series of tragic incidents that have afflicted the family during the last year or two. Two brothers of the young man have met a violent death within that period and one other has been seriously wounded. Dr. Thomas Hender-son was killed by a man named Wil-liamson. Mal Henderson died from the accidental discnarging of his pistot and Dr. Clay Henderson was shot and seriously wounded by an aggrieved party, all within the past two years.

elasm that goes with the ideal college hero, and also with the manliness and deep under-current of feeling that belongs to the self-made but not self-worshiping man, built for success. There is a something in the work of this young actor that is—well, it's just Paul Gilmore, that's all. And people like it. It is a quaint, quiet touch that recalls Tim Murphy, somewhat; but it recalls Tim Murphy, somewhat; but it isn't Murphy-it's just Gilmore. College Widow" returns for one night only. Since last seen here, the charming Widow and her retinue of exuberant youth of both sexes has been everywhere perpetuating the George Ade vogue and filling Henry W. Savage's coffers with gold. The American public, regardless of section, has hailed The College Widow" with an enthusm entirely understandable, for it s a clean and clever comedy. The St. Louis Globe-Democrat said:

There have been many changes in he cast of 'The College Widow' since it was in St. Louis a year ago and none has been for the worse. Indeed, the present company does so well that one forgets to remember that there ever were others in the various roles. Even Dorothy Tennant, who made such a charming 'widow,' is not missed, for her successor, Louise Rutter, is every whit as charming and quite a deal prettier. She is clever and magnetic and made friends easily with the big audience at the Century last night. Robert Kelly, who played the role of "Larrabee," the coach, last season, has been prompted to a stellar place. As Boltop, the football hero, proves his worthiness and the wisdom of the management in selecting him. The part of Copernicus Talbot, a tutor, is in the hands of J. Beresford Hollis. Mr. Hollis created the role and made of it one of the big hits of the original eduction. St. Louis is now seeing his ork for the first time. Ernest Anon makes much of Jack Larrabee nd the Stub Talmadge of Donald Meek one of the really good things. Agnes Laine scored well as Bessie Tanthe athletic girl. She looked the art perfectly and acted with all the e sprightliness. An excellent of character work was the Flora ns of Patty Allison. Estelle Dale ade a very likeable 'professional ne, and others who contributed success of the play were Frank erlee, George C. Odell, Wilson Alan Brooks, John Fenton and ner. The big football scene third act scored well and won en curtains. All of the settings ellent and George Ade's best was never given a better chance It is getting at the Century this

A playlet with Mexico for its scene, by Ann Hamilton, supported by three capable gentlemen, will be the feature of the program. The work of Miss Hamilton is impressive and instructive with dramatic force. The inter pretation of an extremely passionate character is refined by a studied, but almost imperceptible restraint. In this lies the realism of the soul, for two opposite emotions are thus constantly portrayed by this clever actress, boldness and fear, both controlled by an splendid emotionalism displayed where she sees the reflection in a mirror of her lover and the consequent conflicting thoughts which arise as to whether it is a reality or not, touches the depths of the souls of the audience The fight on the grand stairway is stirring and realistic, the costumes are brilliant and the sketch handsomely

Hayes and Healy

Hayes and Healy, the Chinaman of elongated proportions and the "stubby" bell boy, will be seen for the first time in a side-splitting farce, "The Clerk and the Bell Boy." This team has pust finished a tour of the three Chicago vaudeville houses, after a return from a scene of triumph in Europe. Mr. Hayes is more than six feet tall and his partner is scarcely five feet. They are a versatile team and have a score of funny situations in the sketch that keeps the audience in a continuous uproar. The little follow shows the trials and tribulations of a bell hop in trying to understand the commands of a Chinaman clerk. After all these entanglements are straightened the comedians decide that they have vocal talents and proceed to change their costumes, making their second entrance in dress suits. They sing a few songs, tell some stories and then "Shorty" Healy gets busy with some clever imitations.

Ferry, the Frog Man

Ferry, the frog man, will introduce some novelties in presenting an extraordinary exhibition of grace and skill with some beautiful stage settings. He will be attired in a stunning costume of green to imitate a frog, and will hope about the stage in all sorts of shapes and manners, demonstrating his wonderful agility and fleetness of foot and limb. Ferry has been conceded to be the most wonderful contortionist of the day, and is always a big hit wherever he appears.

George Evers

George Evers, the man who looks like Secretary Taft, will be seen in some comical exhibitions of dancing. He has a long list of parodies on popular songs up his sleeve and will also relate some funny yarns. He is one of the popular black-faced comedians now on the boards and his witticisms and songs are highly entertaining.

The Merritt Sisters

This team will be seen in some lightning change of costumes and will imitate noted dancers in the execution of steps. They will also render songs, both being possessed of voices above the ordinary for young girls. They are handsome young girls and no doubt will aid materially in the varied program.

Louise Adams

Miss Adams will attend to the real music end of the program. She is a violin player of much merit, who has appeared in all the large cities of the country in vaudeville and concert work, having sang at many of the concerts of prominent bands.

COMMENTS ON OLD WORLD EVENTS

Cable From France's Most Noted Literature

BY MARQUIS DE CASTELLANE. (Copyright by Hearst News Service.)

Special Cable to The Telegram PARIS, Jan. 19 .- I have just returned from Strasburg, the capital of Alsace, where I have been spending a week. While there I had occasion to converse with all the big factory owners of the district, as well as with numerous Catholic priests established there, and who exercise considerable influence in the country. On every side I met with the same statement: "We shall have war in the spring." As I showed an inclination to be skeptical on this score, my informants replied: "The reason of this is very simple. The elections which will shortly take place with relation to the reichstag will certainly lot have the result expected by the derman emperor. Not only will the representatives of the liberal party, which supports his policy, not be returned in increased numbers, but he will also find that he has seriously to reckon with the socialist and Catholic parties.

The result is that William II will be obliged either to bend to the will of parties which are hostile to him or be forced to once more dissolve the parliament which has been constituted by universal suffrage." "It seems to me," I said, "that this is a very serious step to take." "So it is. This is the way revolutions come about. The German emperor is well aware of this fact, and it is because he sees no other way of solving the problem than by a sensational move that we are convinced he will declare war. He foresees that he will be victorious and will seize this opportunity to hoist himself upon a still higher pedestal when he can dictate terms to the empire, against which there can be no reply. "It might be that the issue of this war would be diametrically opposite to what he expects. Internal revolt prevails in the German army to a far greater degree than is generally supposed. Owing to the governing of the army with a mailed fist, this body seems far more disciplined than it is in reality, and the troubles and disturbances consequent upon a campaign carried on with disobedient and undisciplined troops of socialists, col-lectivists, Poles and Alsace-Lorraine will ensue. Believe us, we are on the eve of terrible events."

Church Fight in France

The struggle between Rome and France continues. I announced that it would end in a sudden change of face on the part of M. Clemenceau. He has done exactly as I expected. "The pope," says he, "has forbidden to Catholics to form association of worship. It does not matter, we will permit them to go on celebrating religious services in the churches if only their priests will carry out the for-

HIS year, more than ever before, the spirit of economical merchandising that THE FAMOUS preached for years has been given greater proof than even we could have asked for. It has prove that spot cash is the best medium of purchasing goods, and that promises to "pay" will not purchase them as cheaply. It is not that promises "to pay" are considered poor, but the great whole sale and manufacturing world, like the man with the dinner pail, always wants the money—the ready money—the spot cash—and is always willing to make the greatest concessions in their power in order to obtain it. Every pair of shoes offered in this great cash sale was bought by us for cash and will be sold for cash-because cash is strong, and with cash we are strong enough to go out into the world and buy for less money than any other store on earth may buy with promises to pay.

mality of making an announcement of their intention to hold the services." But the sovereign pontiff will not permit the priests to do this any more than he has permitted them to form asesociation for worship.

"This does not matter, either," says M. Clemenceau. "The pope will not permit the faithful to announce their intention of holding religious services. Well, we will arrange that matter for them. We will have the declaration made by the municipal authorities of each parish." And so willy nilly the Catholics find themselves obliged to bend under the loke of a law which they have refused to accept They want to pose as victims, but they will have to give up that pretention; there is no martyrdom awaiting them, no obstacles will be placed in their

Thus has M. Clemenceau performed with much grace and agility a pi-rouette which would would do honor to a clown. The struggle between the Catholics and Free Thinkers has, however, presented an aspect which is singularly flattering to the former, So perfect is the cohesion existing among the faithful that at the time when I writing these lines not a single bishop has gone counter to the papal instructions, but among the 40,000 parishes of France one only, that of Merville, has formed an association for worship, in conformity with the civil law of France, and contrary to the orders emanating from papal authority.

A Princess Ballet Dancer

A real princess, and a Russian one at that, has just created an enormous sensation by giving a most extraordinary performance. Dressed exactly like a professional ballet dancer, her legs encased in pink tights, and wearing the little white trunks which are called in French slang 'tutu," Princess Abamaleck, nee Demidoff, danced the ballet of "Cordelia" in the salons of Countess Martine de Beara.

It would be impossible to describe the spectacle. Princess Abameleck is pretty, but she has not much ability as a dancer and it must be added that she is outrageously conceited. When, after fifteen minutes of skipping and hopping upon a platform, she descended among the guests in the drawing room and with the uttermost unconcern as to her "tutu" and the shape of her legs, began to converse familiarly with her friends, I assure you the faces of some of those present were a sight to see.

It appears that the princess thus makes a spectacle of herself, I should say, gives a similar performance twice each winter, with the object of collecting funds for charity. Strange, very strange! Some women push their desire to be helpful to the verge of foolishness. But then my friends we are-all becoming crazy.

Talk With Bernhardt

I called on Sarah Bernhardt in her dressing room at the theater the other night. It was during a performance of "La Vierge d'Avila," one of the most magnificent things this astounding woman has ever done. I found her looking marvelously young as ever, gay and full of spirits as a school girl, and all enthusiasm about her forthcoming productions.

Nothing could be more indicative of the wonderful versatility of this ac- and Mr. Hamilton and Mrs. McCormick. tress than the two parts which she is and illustrations of convenient Poultry | now studying. I asked her if she would play these numbers so many admirers. "Oh, probably," she replied. "Some-times I have a mind to give a series of performances in America, during which I should perform only the masculine roles of my repertoire. King Edward is very much in favor of ft, as he thinks the tunnel would bring thousands of French tourists to England and still further promote the entente cordiale. The majority of the military authorities at the war office are equally set against the scheme. In the cabinet the extreme radicals, scouting all suggestions of war, are warmly in favor of the tunnel. Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman is doubtful about it. Meanwhile it is an open secret that the money is already found for the scheme. Erlangers, the great bankers, who are behind the scheme, can find forty million dollars for it on this side of the channel at any moment. Should the scheme go thru, Erlang-

ers will probably transfer their interest to other hands. Mr. Richard Burke of San Francisco who now makes Ireland his home, was received like royalty on his return the other day to Tipperary from America. Mr. Burke is master of the Tipperary Foxhounds, and the huntsmen and followers of the hounds gathered round his fine country house and fired off pleasant speeches congratulating the master on his safe return.

Mr. Burke's absence was due to the San Francisco earthquake, which made a large hole in his pocket. It was feared in Tipperary that Mr. Burke's money losses would compel him-as was the case with Lady Hesketh (nee Sharon of Frisco)-to give up hunting, but fortunately Mr. Burke's wealth was sufficiently substantial to stand even earthquakes, and he is once more hunting three days a week. He is a fearless rider and therefore very popular with Irish sportsmen.

The latest craze in London is to make up parties for the Alhambra music hall, which is enjoying a huge boom by the free advertisement given to Mr. and Mrs. Zancig, whose wonderful thought-reading performance was given recently before the king and queen at Sandringham. The boxes at the Alhambra, full of well known people, are almost as attractive as those at Covent Garden theater. Every one who goes has a new theory of his or her own as to how the "telepathic" messages between Zancig and his wife are conveyed. Among the Americans who have been time and again to "test" the Zancigs, are Lady Bache Cunard, Princess Hatzfeldt Mr. McCormick declares positively that he thoroly understands the method of codes used by the Zancigs, and he intends to ask the talented couple shortly to his house to give a private seance. The Zancigs receive on the average fifty invitations a week to perform at private houses, but as the majority of the smart people who write never mention terms the Danish couple politely decline these offers. Such a craze has not been known in London since the famous "Georgia Magnet," Mrs. Abbott, mystified a music hall audience years ago.

The greatest secrecy has been preserved as to the real nature of the illness of the princess royal, duchess of The "Court Circular" has mentioned vaguely from time to time that "her-royal highness is progressing favorably after her operation." This is a most unusual course. Never before had the Court Circular omitted to mention the complaint from which a royal personage is supposed to be

BOVINIANS WILL BOOM MEMBERSHIP

Have Charge of Cattlemen's Entertainment

In accordance with the agreement between the Mystic Knights of Bovonia and the Board of Trade a representative of the Bovinians is now engaged in selecting new members and collecting the membership fees, which are to be used to defray the expenses of entertaining the visiting cattlemen

The arrangement between the two organizations is such that the business men of the city will not be called on by the Board of Trade for any contribution in connection with the annual meeting of the cattlemen, that matter having been turned over en-tirely to the Bovinians, and it is requested by both organizations that when the representative of the Bovinians calls for a list of members that any business firm will supply that the names and their fees be forthcoming at once in order that the work in hand be facilitated as much as possible. IN THE PUBLIC EYE

An Appeal to Voters

At last the morning paper has deem-ed it time to open up its editorial batteries. Up to the present it has kept discreetly silent in regard to bringing the proposed new charter before the people for vote on election, but instead it has been fostering the idea of making it a law as quickly as possible, so a general election can be called in April to elect a mayor and com-

lt-poses as a champion of the peo-ple's rights; and yet it has used its influence to secure this new charter and establish this new form of government without consulting all the people's wishes. It takes for granted that all the people, or a great majority of them, are itching for this new charter and new form of government. The morning paper with its utmost skill and acumen, has been trying to mold public sentiment against - our present charter and council, and to foist another charter and smaller council upon us with enormous salaries, for that is all this commission can possibly mean. It now says the council acted suspiciously and with undue haste in calling an election. The council waited for the mayor and citizens' committee to call such an election for it was generally understood that the said committee was going to so do, but not a sound came from the Record, the mayor or committee in behalf of an election, hence the council-acted, partly on its own account and because hundreds of citizens were demanding it In calling the election the council has stirred up a hornet's nest among those who wish this newly formed charter to become a law without a vote of the people upon it.

The Record says that "not a single representative citizen has gone into print with an objection against the proposition of the citizens' committee." The Record is not very choice in its words, else every citizen who writes or speaks upon the subject in its estimation must wear silk stockings and a beaver hat. Again it says: "No man has lifted his voice against the proposed change, and no one has taken active steps to interfere with the project unless he is actuated by sinis-

That is a serious charge, as the word 'sinister" implies dishonesty. Not very choice of words again and coming from such a high source is surely belittling to our citizenship. From such a statement it is to be wondered if the Record concedes that our citizens, who differ from it in opinion, have any rights it is bound to recognize? Are those people who differ from its views disreputable and imbued with sinister motives? It would

Would it be pertinent to ask the Record if any ordinary, humble citizen of Fort Worth who paid his taxes and had the right of suffrage has any voice in the matter of saying what

Would the Record condescent to tell us what kind of a document is our United States constitution, and our state constitution, and how they became constitutional, and how they are

If our constitutions are to be amended or substituted, they are presented to the people in an election called for that purpose, are they not? Assuredly

Now, what is a city chartr? Nothing more nor less than a constitution under which we operate a municipal form of government, and the Record and its citizens committee, all good men, tho they be, have shown a tendency to foist a brand new charter, and a new form of government upon the city of Fort Worth, without submitting the same to the people for approval or rejection. If such action is Democratic and just to every citizen in Fort Worth, then justice rules with a rather lordly hand.

The Record charges some of the city employes with being behind the charter election and that under the new government they could not be elected by th people at large. This is an amusing argument, as only the city attorney and tax collector can run before the people under the commission government. The committee has taken all the power from the people and delegated it to the commission. Of course, such a power is highly Democratic and gives the poor disreputable and sinister citizen all that he deserves

The Record charges the present council with trying to "fool the people" by getting them to retain the present charter with a few amendments. Another amusing argument: The council is endeavoring to call an election so that the people, whom the Record claims are for this new charter and commission, can have a chance to vote their sentiments. Surely if a great majority of the voters is for the Record's charter then it should not cry out that the council is trying to "fool the people." It is like the boy who hollered "wolf" when there was

The Record says "the people will not be deceived by the movement now set on foot by those opposing the commating that no one is opposing it but the council and some of the city employes. What is the Record afraid of? If that is all the opposition the new charter has, then it should not be afraid of an election to determine the matter. The fact is, the Record is as afraid of this election as the devil is of holy water, and it is very plain it wants the new charter, with its commission form of government, to become a law without the voice of the people, and the quicker the better. child could easily determine its attitude by its Sunday editorial. The Record has a right to its views, but it should not consider every citizen not in accord with it to be disreputable or to be "actuated by sinister" or dishonest motives. A paper of the high standing of the Record should set a better example in its choice of language in referring to the citizenship of Fort Worth as many men are here in the humble walks of life and who oppose its views, and its new form of city government, and these men have no taste to be charged with holding sinister motives in exercising their God-given privilege of differing from

Yes, it is now up to the mayor to either call an election and give the people a chance to vote upon this new. constitution, or to peremptorily refuse to do so. If we are to have no say by our votes, on tals new charter, then it will be an arbitrary, high-handed act, unbecoming the mayor and the mittee, and contrary to our constitutional right and privilege. It is understood that our representatives are very desirous that the people should settle this by an election, and if I were one of them I would demand that an election be called before I would consent to take the responsibility of making the new charter into a law, to find out in the end that my act represented the will of a few instead of the majority of the citizens

Voters, I have discussed this question; now let us see if we can obtain justice in this land of liberty; let us upon us without our consent. Let us all demand an election and abide by the will of the majority. Respectfully submitted. CHARLES M. BROWN.

Making a Charter

To The Telegram: It was a great and most unexpected surprise to read in your columns the opposition to a commission form of government by one claiming to be as up to date and progressive as my friend C. M. Brown, who is, after all his assertions of being advanced in modern methods, advocating that old rut worn and stony pathway of city government by ward councilmen. That custom died long ago in all well regulated communities, is ancient as the hills and better adapted to running cities into debt and keeping them there, with less to show where the money has gone, than any form of government ever instituted, and in his sober second thought and recollection of conversations had with the writer he will admit to being off on the wrong foot this time. Some features of the new charter are most objectionable to myself and friends. First, the election of commissioners in classes. That is not representative nor by rule of the mafority. Public opinion can only be expressed by a full and open election by blanket primary and choice at large, the five receiving the highest number of votes to be declared elected, they to crganize themselves by choosing a chairman-mayor, and all reads of departments, then you have a compact business body which outclasses the present form so badly there is no comparison. The politician and ward neeler lose their advocation, but the city becomes the gainer.

Second, the charter committee has been memoralized on the salary question, $3,000 for the chairman and $2,400 for commissioners being suggested as a happy medium between the $1,800 proposition presented and the charter draft. And to get something in the way of a practical government to supplant the present abomination for civic operation, concessions must be made on both sides.

Third, instead of legislating against street car companies so they will increase their demands and reduce the service in way of retaliation, require only reasonable action on their part and as an offset to allowances made by the charter, make them concede 4-cent fares in quantities of twentyfive purchased at one time. That will reach a greater number than all the other provisions named and make exceedingly popular all elements contributing to such beneficial reform. With the foregoing substitutes for he sections now in the charter, much strength will be gained for the progressive commission form of government. Get the charter right, give all a chance to analyze its features and pass upon it by popular will, then submit it to the legislature stripped of all semblance of class preferment and with the voice of a majority of our people behind it we shall get what the says we need and want. There has been some show of haste for getting it before the legislature in the exact form the framers desired without very liberal show on part of a few to accept amendments or new suggestions. This we admit rather reluctantly, but was there not a secret craving to be known as the father of the measure? Methinks there was an o'er weening ambition to pose for effect. That, in all probability, has helped to stir up the hornets' nest now buzzing so loudly. But would not the stirrers also enjoy being known as teh champions? A rightly constructed charter will win by the popular will regardless of the one source of oppositton so evidently chagrined at prospect of losing their professional and perpetual calling. But it must be a people's measure by a representative majority vote for all candidates at large or its failure is certain, GEORGE F. ROBERTS.

Worth, Texas Jan. 16. The New Hospital

To The Telegram. All Saints' Hospital, while it is thus under the directions and auspices of the Protestant Episcopal church, its charity is extended to all without regard to their religious creed, with the exception that no person afflicted with any contagious disease can be admitted into the hospital under any circumstances.

Patients are received from any part of the state upon the same terms and conditions as city patients, and may be under the care of such physicians as they choose to employ. Board is fixed at a sum which is calculated to pay actual expenses of board without profit. Clergymen (of any denomination) are received at one-half the regular price, or free if their circumstances require it. Favorable arrangements will be made with churches and charitable organizations for the care of their sick. The hospital is dependent for its support partly upon the free will offering of benevolent

There is still much work to be done Money must be contributed to pay its indebtedness and loving service given to carry forward its blessed mission: the things needed will be forthcoming because it is all for the good of man and the glory of God. All Saints' Hospital has but one object. It wants to do the best that can be done for the sick and suffering. It strives humbly and courageously to take up and carry forward in His name the purpose and work of the Divine Master. All communications as to terms of admission and board should be addressed to the Superintendent of All Saints' Hospital, Fort Worth, Texas.

Favors Commission Plan

To The Telegram. I have just read in today's Telegram the excellent article written by B. B. Paddock on "The City Council and the Mayor," and heartly agree with him in all he says, but do not think he brings out forcibly enough the fact of there being indulged in so much wind-jamming at almost every meeting of the city council (if the newspaper reports of the meetings are correct). I am of the opinion that there is entirely too much bitter feeling existing between members of the council for the good of the public. Do we elect men to public office to serve and promote the best interests of the people or do we elect them to attend meetings merely to harass and antagonize each other on some little personal pretext?

Away with such tommy-rot. Fort Worth has passed the kindergarten period and is now a teacher in the men to office who are broad-minded, progressive citizens and who will all pull together for the advancement of our city. Let's try the commission plan by all means. Yours truly, HAL MEDLIN.

special to The Telegram. COLLEGE STATION, Texas, Jan. 19. -The following interesting bulletin has just been issued from the Texas experiment station, division of chemistry,

Two kinds of salt are found on the Texas market-Texas salt and Michigan salt. The Michigan salt is used chiefly for curing meat, there being the opinion in some quarters that Texas salt will not cure meat. Five hundred or more carloads of Michigan salt are sold in Texas every year, at about $50 per carload more than for the Texas product. In other words, over $25,000 more is paid for Michigan salt than would suffice to purchase an equal quality of Texas salt. The Michigan product retails for 30c to 75c more per

MANY WANT JOB

The contest for the secretaryship of the Texas Cattle Raisers' Association is getting lively and as much electioneering is being done by the friends of the different candidates for the position as is usually done in a political campaign for a fat office.

Several Have Announced for the Secretaryship

There are several candidates in the field, among them Charley Ware, Will Way and H. E. Crowley. Way is a San Antonio man, Ware is a Fort Worth man and Crowley is from the Midland country. They are all popciation and the race for the plum which is a fat, juicy one, promises to be interesting. Crowley is a new candidate, and arrived in Fort Worth Saturday from the west, and immediately there was in-augurated a Crowley boom. The other candidates and their friends, however, are wide awake and are working like beavers all the time.

Marvel Kinsey Explains Why Hot Springs Doctors Suc. ceed Where Cthers Fail

Why are we so universally successful in our treatment of disease? When this question was put to Marvel Kinsey by a reporter, the genial gentleman smiled and said the answer is a ole one. "The doctors in our office at 900 Houston street are men who have devoted the best years of their lives to the study of certain chronic diseases. Not only are they graduates of the best colleges in Europe and America but they have spent years in the diagnosis of the particular disease which they have chosen to treat. During these years they have seen thousands and thousands of different cases and naturally have gained a great deal of knowledge by experience. By the use of this knowledge and of valuable instruments for diagnosis, they are able to tell immediately whether the case is curable or not, without asking a single question. If the case is not curable they will not accept it. This accounts for the fact that they make no failures.

"All our doctors are registered in Tarrant county and in the state of Texas. We have hundreds of testimonials from people we have cured right here in Fort Worth and we have refused to treat as many or more whose cases we found incurable."

The conversation was interrupted at this point by a grateful patient, Mr. Parks, who was loud in his praise of the skill of the Hot Springs Doctors. The gentleman is here from St. Louisin charge of some construction work that is heing done for the Fort Worth Light and Power Company. He informed Dr. Kinsey in the presence of the reporter that he had been taking treatment from the Hot Springs Doctors only three weeks and felt like a different man. Before taking treatment he was all run down and would take cold on the slightest provocation. "Since taking the Hot Springs treatment I have been unusually careless, but have suffered no bad effects from my carelessness. Dr. Kinsey smiled that kindly smile of his that makes one feel at ease in his presence. The reporter bade the genial gentleman good-bye, passed thru the crowded waiting room and remarked: "Well, I can understand why these gentlemen have the confidence of their patients."

The present low rate of mortality is due in large measure to the advances made in medical science and the knowledge of the specific treatment needed for each disease known There is no disease more commo among American and English people than dyspepsia. So prevalent has it become that thousands suffer with it unconsciously, consider the symptoms as natural to their physical constitution and resign themselves to living on in that condition. There is a remedy for dyspepsia and only one, recommended and indorsed generally by physicians: Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets have stood the test of years of use by millions of sufferers, have been subjected to governmenta analyses in Europe and America and alone have been found to contain the elements which nature has put into the stomach for digestion-pepsin, di-astase and other ferments. Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets relieve the stomach and bowels in a perfectly natural way by helping them to do their work. If the stomach is weak in gastric juice, Stuart's Tablets make up the deficiency. If the muscles are inactive, Stuart's Tablets invigorate them. Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets digest every form of food entering the stomach, one grain of the active prin-ciple of these Tablets being capable and other foods. LIQUOR DEALERS ENFORCE THE LAW

Say It Is Better for Majority of Saloon Men

DETECTIVES EMPLOYED

Texas Liquor Dealers Association and Brewers Co-operate for the Good of the Trade

The Texas Liquor Dealers' Association and the Texas Brewers' Association, the membership of which are composed of all the brewers in the state and leading wholesale liquor dealers, are active in their efforts to make the liquor traffic in the state conform strictly to laws effacted for its government.

Some time back cases for the illegal sales of liquor were made against two saloonmen at Amarillo but when the cases came up for trial Thursday, Jan. 17, the county judge threw them out of court, not on the merits of the cases, but on a legal technicality.

These cases against the two saloon men were made by detectives in the employ of the Brewers' Association of the state and were in line with the policy of the association, to force retail dealers in intoxicants to obey the laws of Texas. The wholesale liquor dealers and the brewers argue that it s the violation of law such as selling liquor without license, selling liquor on Sunday, selling liquor to minors and conducting saloons that are the resorts for crooks and other disreputable characters that has in the past done more than anything else to bring the liquor traffic into disrepute, not only in Texas but everywhere else.

Recognizing this to be true, the brewers and wholesale dealers determined to rout out those glaring evils and to that end have in their employ paid detectives whose duty it is to keep constant watch on the liquor traffic all overe Texas, and prosecute any retail dealer guilty of violating any law of the state enacted for the regulation of the business.

The result of this policy is already evident, especially in the smaller towns in the state, and the members of the association believe when it is generally understood that the wholesale dealers and the brewers are standing side by side with the officers of the law in the fight for law and law's enforcement, the dives and deadfalls will disappear and the violation of the liquor laws will almost cease.

A saloon man, not a member of the liquor dealers' association, but in full sympathy with its purposes, said to a Telegram reported:

"More good is being done in Texas in the way of enforcing the laws regulating the liquor traffic by the liquor dealers' association than all the county onicers elected by the people, for the reason that the association acts for the elevation of the business, while it has been frequently the case that officers have acted against saloon men simply to increase the fees of office. association has no favorites, and as I understand it a wholesale dealer or brewer will prosecute a customer just as quick as he will a man who is not his customer, for illegal liquor selling. It is a matter of self defense with the wholesale men and brewers, for there is no doubt that a prohibition state would have been the result if the retail liquor business was to continue as it was conducted in the past. There is no shenanigen about this policy of the association, either; it's strict business proposition and as a business man obeying the law, I endorse it. I wish every saloon man who sold a drink of liquor to a minor or a confirmed drunkard, knowingly, could be sent to the penitentiary, and I favor a forfeiture of a saloon man's license who is convicted of selling liquor in violation of the Sunday law. If a tippler must drink on Sunday let him buy a bottle Saturday and take it home with him. No saloon man has any more moral or legal right to sell liquor in Texas on Sunday than he has to steal a horse on any day in the

The Fair Association Wants Control of

The directors of the Fort Worth Driving Club have been submitted a proposition by the Fort Worth Fair Association wherein the latter assume full control of the former, agree to allow the same privileges, shoulder all indebtedness, make extended improvements and keep up the track in the best of condition.

The proposition was discussed at considerable length by the directors of the driving club, many of whom were in favor of accepting it, but on account of others not so favorably inclined, no definite action was taken.

The directors of the Fair Association state that should their proposition be accepted, arrangements will then be begun in earnest for a record-breaking fair, as the date for the same has already been reserved in the Texas cir-hope that financial aid in the neighborhood of $5,000 may be forthcoming from the citizens to be used in defraying expenses for a ten days' race meet in October. As an example, the directors point to the Dallas fair, wherein the citizens donated $20,000 and even in the face of

OHIOANS GIVEN TEXAS WELCOME

Party Will Attend Grocers Convention

E. L. Brown of Kansas City, Mo., one of the Clover Leaf passenger men, was in Fort Worth Saturday where he accompanied this far on their journey party of seventy from Toledo, Ohio, who are in Texas to attend the Na-tional Grocers' Association meeting at Dallas next week, The party came early that it might travel leisurely and extend the trip as far south as Galveston. There was, therefore, no stop in Fort Worth, the party going on thru Fort Worth Friday, which is the control of the c day night en route to Galveston and Houston and will return northward Monday evening so that it will be in Dallas Tuesday morning.

The special cars of the Toledo party are a fine Clover Leaf which is used for a commissary and diner and two tourist sleepers. There was a stop at Denison Friday which, as described by Mr. Brown, must have been a reveation to the Ohioans. When the train pulled into the Denison station they were met by a big delegation of the wholesale and retail grocers of that city and escorted outside, where there was an auto for the chairman of the delegation, carriages. for the ladies of the party and ox casts for the other members of the party. A. L. Jones, known to his intimates as "Tony Hill Jones," was at the head of the entertainment committee and they were arrayed in typical cowboy The wagons had coon skins tacked on them and the delegates were packed in like sardines. After struggling with words of adequate expression for a few moments Mr. Brown wound up and summed up with "I tell you, it was just great." The Toledoians were in Denison sev-

Largest Single Payment Ever Made Here

Winfield Scott paid into the city treasury of Fort Worth Saturday afternoon $28,668 taxes, the largest sum ever paid as taxes at one time by one man in the history of Fort Worth. The amount paid by Mr. Scott included tax and penalties due the city on real and personal property for the years 1903, 1904, 1905 and 1906. The payment was made with a check on the Fort Worth National Bank for e sum of $28,668.

The accumulation of taxes against Mr. Scott was due to a disagreement as to the assessment on personal property, Scott having been assessed on stock held by him in a St. Louis oil mill company. Scott claimed that this stock had been assessed for taxes in St. Louis and that he had paid this tax and that the assessment here, if paid, would be a double tax on the property. He made a showing to the city council that he had paid the tax on the stock at St. Louis, the assessment here was removed and a settlement of the tax claim was made Satur-

STOCKS DEPRESSED

Possible Coming Reduction of Dividend Disbursments the Cause

NEW YORK, Jan. 19 .- Stocks have been depressed by the consideration of extent of requirements for new canital and no response has occurred to the material relaxation of the stringency of the money market. The topic of capital requirement has been kept before attention by the public utterances of Presidents Hill of the Great Northern, Thomas of the Lehigh Valley and Finley of the Southern, inferences being drawn from the remarks of the last two named of a possible coming reduction of dividend disbursements and diversion of earnings into the needed betterments.

The unprofitable results of the underwriting of the American Telephone and Erie convertible bond issues served to discourage confidence in the ability of the market to absorb pros-

THE VALUE OF CHARGOAL

Few People Know How Useful It Is in Preserving Health and Beauty.

Costs Nothing to Try. Nearly everybody knows that charcoal is the safest and most efficient disinfectant and purifier in nature, but few realize its value when taken into the human system for the same cleansing purpose. Charcoal is a remedy that the more you take of it the better; it is not a drug at all, but simply absorbs the gases and impurities always present in the stomach and intestines and carries them out of the system. Charcoal sweetens the breath, after smoking, drinking or after eating onions and other odorous vegetables. Charcoal effectually clears and improves the complexion, it whitens the teeth and further acts as a natural and eminently safe cathartic. It absorbs the injurious gases which collect in the stemach and bowels; it disinfects the mouth and throat from the poison of catarrh. All druggists sell charcoal in one form or another, but probably the best charcoal and the most for the money is in Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges; they are composed of the finest powdered Willow charcoal, and other harmless antiseptics in tablet form, or rather in the form of large, pleasant tasting lozenges, the charcoal being mixed with

The daily use of these lozenges will soon tell in a much improved condition of the general health, better complexion, sweeter breath and purer blood, and the beauty of it is, that no possible harm can result from their continued use, but, on the contrary, the benefits of charcoal, says: "I advise Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges to all patients suffering from gas in stom-ach and bowels, and to clear the complexion and purify the breath, mouth and throat; I also believe the liver is greatly benefited by the daily use of them; they cost but twenty-five cents a box at drug stores, and altho in some sense a patent preparation, yet I be-lieve I get more and better charcoal in Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges than in any of the ordinary charcoal tablets." Sens your name and address today for a free trial package and see for yourself. F. A. Stuart Co., 56 Stuart Bidg., Marshall, Mich.

Tillson of this city, charge that fake fertilizers are being sold to confiding farmers over the state who listen to the stories of peddlers who offer a recipe for $5 and the materials for the fertilizer for $2 additional.

This is the receipe usually sold, altho it varies sometimes as to some of the ingredients, as others equally worthless may be substituted ad libi-

Two pounds blue stone; two pounds salpteter; two pounds nitrate of ammonia; two pounds soda ash; four pounds muriate of potash. This is to be dissolved in five gallons of rainwater and sprinkled on sand and is represented as sufficient for one acre of land. The state chemist says these ingredients may be purchased at any drug store for $2 or less and when prepared, he says, would be worth as a fertilizer about 31 cents. It may be stated for the benefit of those who wish to make their own fertilizer that free recipes may be had by applying to the United States government stations, while the Texas Agricultural and Mechanical College will

VETERANS ARE ENTERTAINED

Tell Stories of War Time

The Daughters of the Confederacy intertained the Confederate veterans at R. E. Lee camp headquarters Saturday night and the two hundred old soldiers who gathered there never had better time in their lives.

There was no set program, no music or anything like that, but for over an hour, while the big crowd of men and women were in the camp quarters, old soldiers talked of war times, told war stories-in fact, lived over again the stirring times of the '60s.

At 8:30 p. m. announcement was made that supper was ready in a room across the hall, but that only thirtyfive men could brace up against the grub wagon at a time. Thirty-five filed out to the spread and wele filled up on sandwiches, coffee and ice cream and cake and when they had hid their rations under their belts they fell back to the rear and thirty-five more hungry veterans lined up to the tables. This was kept up until the last soldier had been fed and then the Daughters and Sons of Confederate veterans took their turns at the tables and there was enough for everybody and everybody enjoyed it.

The supper was supervised by Mesdames Scoble, Jordan and others and was a success thruout.

howled and danger lurked. These are the scenes where once were enacted the tragdies of contending ploneers.

San Antonio will not forget her park commissioner—for he was a pioneer in the building of breathing spots in a great city. He taught municipalities how nature in her wildness could be so tamed as to be beautiful and yet natural. He gave his life and his means to this end. Mr. Mahncke, at his own expense, often imported rare plants and flowers to be used in beautifying these parks, squares and plazas.

And now, since his dreams have grown into realities, San Antonians have awakened to the fact that these very breathing spots have increased the value of every piece of property in the city. Thus he so planned that his beloved city is in the forefront as the most enchanting and beautiful in all the southland. To the poor, as well as the rich, the memory of this ploneer is as precious as the fragrance freshly blown from roses blooming in the gar-

Special to The Telegram AUSTIN, Texas, Jan. 19 .- Representative Davis of Brazos tonight gave out a statement in which he give his reason for voting against the Duncan resolution and in favor of the substitute. He says that for the committee under the Duncan resolution to go to the four quarters of the earth for testimony with no specific charge preferred by any reputable person would be a disgrace to the state and a reflection apon the integrity and character of Mr. Bailey.

RULES OF PROCEDURE

Both Committees Will Observe the Same Order During Investigation Special to The Telegram.

AUSTIN, Texas, Jan. 19 .- Both the house and senate investigating committees on the Bailey matter today adopted rules providing for the course of procedure for investigation. The rules of the senate, which are pracwith kiven:

ARID FARM MADE GARDEN BY GREAT FLOWING WELL

BY J. MARVIN NICHOLS. Written for The Telegram.

One of the prettiest and most interesting countries anywhere is that rich, historic valley thru which run the limpid waters of the San Antonio and the romantic San Pedro. The hot summers are tempered by the gulf breeze laden with the ozone that proves to be a wondrous tonic to tired and wasted bodies. Sunshine is for always and the dark days rarely ever come. Roses bloom all the year and the very air is rich with the breath of flowers. In this valley, and in the gay and laughing city of San Antonio, the very ancient blends with the very modern. All the heritages of a new semi-circle. They deploy into a lagoon that spreads out into a beautiful lake before it narrows into the far-famed and romantic San Pedro creek. As if to embrace one another, and reaching across the rippling waters, the tangled arms of giant oaks have been stretched for ages. Along with them the graceful weeping willows droop in feathery branches. It is a natural beauty unequalled anywhere.

Is it any wonder that the strange people chased northward by the Aztecs beyond the Rio Grande, when they found this enchanted region, should exclaim "Tejas! Tejas" ("the land of the blessed.") Paradise? It can be no matter of surprise that as early as 1869, when Don de Leon found these people presperous and contented, he age are received out of a dim and very distant past. The sound of voices coming from modern and superb cathedrals die in the silence of the missions built in the dawn of the eighteenth century by colonists come over from the Canary Islands.

All the country round about is blessed with bountiful springs that are exhaustless in their supply. Great, gurgling springs lie within the very city. The San Antonio river and the beautiful San Pedro flow from founts that are as clear as crystal and unfailing. The city obtains its water supply from twelve artesian wells that have a flow of over thirty million gallons per day, In another section of the valley, and near the city, there are artesian wells that discharge each day nearly one million gallons of hot sulphur water at a temperature of 104 degrees.

There was a time, and not so many years in the past either, when beauty and profit in this valley were undreamed of. These famous springs were bones of contention over which the Indians, Spaniards and American pioneers waged relentless war. In those crude days they formed a valuable base of supply. The outlying vallev was a wilderness of mesquite and cacti. Now, by the touch of wisdom and thrift the desert is blossoming like the rose and the city has become a paradise of the wildest beauty.

It is amazing how long people kindled their camp fires around these gushing springs before they really understood for why nature had been so lavish. That valley's history absolutely loses itself in obscurity. Before Columbus discovered America the city was an Indian village and the whole valley a war plain. When the Montezumas swayed the scepter in Old Mexico the Aztecs drove a people northward beyond the borders of the Rio Grande. And in this wonderful valley, in 1689, Don de Leon, governor of Coahuila, found a prosperous and con-

It remained for others, however, to use these extravagances of nature so as to produce comfort and prosperity for the most people. No man more completely did this for San Antonio than the late Ludwig Mahncke. So effective were his services as park com-

man was kind enough to meet me in San Antonio and take me for a drive over his irrigated garden farm. A more delightful hour I never spent than in his spacious and beautiful home in conversation with himself and wife. They literally lay themselves out for the pleasure of the visitors who see this wonderful garden-and hundreds epjoy their hospitality. Then, huge old trees hung with grape and ivy. Spanish moss thickly festooned all. It was a jungle of mesquite undergrowth and agarita. Thru this impenetrable wifderness the San Antonio crawled in serpent fashion. Now it is a vast outdoors for thousands-rich and poor alike. Flowers are blooming and grasses, in the richest green, are like velvet to the feet. Canoes glide softly and the fish are watched as they sport the stormy times incident to the Indian days in the northwest and the Spanish struggles in the southwest. From Rusk, in 1855, he moved with his father to a ranch twenty-two miles northwest of Fort Worth. To write his adventures and experiences on that frontier would make a volume. Those were the days when the Comanches, Klowas and Apachs made their thieving and bloody raids into the land of the pale face. And those were the times when Quantrell's band were dare devils set to exterminate the lawless and the

In 1877 Mr. Collins moved to Sar Antonio. It was the year the old Gulf, Harrisburg and San Antonio road, now the Southern Pacific, was put thru that country. He entered at once upon his business in hydraulic engineering For years he manufactured and sold every sort of a water supply contrivance. While he is concerned in many affairs yet, for over forty years, he has not ceased to be a student. Invariably, and every day, he sets apart a time for the scientific study of the thing that so engages his mind. The truth is, his great garden is a demonstration farm without the support of the government or any individual. He spends hundreds of dollars in experiments. His one desire seems to be to show just what and just how per-fectly, the Texas soil will produce. When that is discovered Mr. Collins

They travel extensively. Their son -who married the daughter of Mr. Nies, the onion experimenter on the Rio Grand-manages his father's large Angora ranch in the Uvalde country. I shall never forget the moment l stood with Mrs. Collins before a certain picture that hangs on the wall We were so close to the plane whose strings are swept no more.

And my heart was deeply stirred as the mother looked on the fair face of a vanished and transfigured girl, Thus alone, they go often to the continent. Mrs. Collins is an authoress both in poetry and fiction. Among her many cherished mementoes of England are personal letters from good Queen Vic-toria and an ivory bust of Queen Alexandra, with whom she had the rare privilege of an audience. Irrigation is centuries old in the San antonio country, but its scientific use is only in the last six or seven years. The river rises in the northern limits of the city in a series of mammoth springs. Their sparkling floods form a stream about thirty feet wide and ten feet deep. The adventurous Spaniard 200 years ago, trained this water away thru acequias to quench the alluvial soil of the valley. These old hydraulic works still stand. Flowing now under streets and great business blocks, in a limited way, they still serve their purpose.

An Experiment in Irrigation

In 1900 Mr. Collins decided to retire from business. At the same time he determined to spend the balance of his days demonstrating the possibilities of scientific irrigation. He well knew that under this valley existed an immense subterranean basin, whose supply would be exhaustless. If this could be reached all that vast cactus and mesquite wilderness could be transformed into blooming fields and gardens. His friends smiled when he set 100 Mexicans to work clearing 180 acres of bare and desclate land on the Leona road that he purchased for a

Mr. Collins, knowing that all depended on tapping a basin deep under the soil, began boring for water. A depth of 700 feet was reached-and water, clear as crystal and exhaustless. The result was an artesian well with a steady output of 100,000 gallons. Rising twenty-eight feet above the surface, 4t flows in a solid stream twelve inches in diameter. The water falls into a large cement basin, from which it flows into a large canal, thence distributed over the entire farm. A gentleman standing by this well and looking toward the vast volume covering the farm, said: "Mr. Collins, where do you get your power?" in the Panhandle, I reckon," quickly responded Mr. Collins. It would be interesting to know just in what high altitude nature has stored these oceans of crystal waters. The government analysist in Washington pronounced this well the only absolutely pure water ever analyzed in that office. Norcross of Chicago delights to tell how Mr. Collins rushed out and got a large fish on short order for dinner It makes one hungry to watch them sport in the immense, clear basin near the well. This farm is rented in twelve-acre blocks to professional gardeners. The rent comes easy at $25 per acre, cash Once friends laughed and thought he had wheels in his head because he dreamed of any virtue in these arid acres. The other day a gentleman from Maine offered him $500, spot cash, for each acre, and it was as promptly refused. The people laugh no more. Since Mr. Collins has shown what can be done, from the old Pleasanton road near to the Leona hills-a distance of six miles—is one vast garden watered by these unfailing fountains. Some things interest me. One is that on five acres he raised a crop of ribbon cane that cleared him $1,600 in cold cash. Another, two crops of corn on the same land and in the same season averaged 140 bushels. Another, his solving of the boll weevil question so paramount in Texas. He planted his cotton on three acres remote from the public road. The quail and birds on his farm have perfect protection and are there in droves. Right where the boll beevil devastated fields, he gathered four heavy bales from the three acres. Surely here is room for thought. Nature will correct her evils if not interfered with,

It's a good, old world after all, If you have no friends or money, In the river you can fall; Marriages are quite common and, More people there will be, Provided you take Rocky Mountain J. P. Brashear. Tea.

crets of life. It is that marvelous, subtle, unseen power that enables you to control man or woman and to banish ill-luck. IT IS THE KEY TO'A HIGHER LIFE. It sways the minds of millions and regulates the destines of nations. All truly great men and women possess personal magnetism and use it. The rich man is rich because he utilizes this invisible force; the poor man is poor because he lacks magnetism or the knowledge of its use. The salesman, the statesman, the lover all profit by the use of the marvelous force.

GREAT TOWN IS GOLDFIELD, NEV.

Gambling Never Stops in New Mining Camp

EVERYBODY MONEY MAD

Stenographers Earn $50 a Week, Messengers $100 a Month-Town Has No Government

Special to The Telegram. GOLDFIELD, Nev. Jan. 19.—There's a man over at the Gold Dust saloon who is making a book based on the proposition that this mining camp will be wiped out by fire before spring. He regards it as an odds-on chance. He's ne finding many persons who differ with him, either. If Goldfield escapes the fate that has sooner or later overtaken every other big mining camp, it won't be because an vadequate precautions have been taken against it. The character of its architecture is admirably indicated in a sentence employed by the Goldfield Tribune in describing what happened when Honolulu Henry's shack burned up the other day. It looked bad for the town for a time; but, says the Tribune, "willing hands bore adjoining houses away from peril."

The menace of fire is ever present in the minds of the turbulent population. The other day an alarm rang out. In 20 seconds every store and restaurant and saloon was empty, and Broadwayyes, that's what they call it-was packed with an excited mob galloping to the upper end of the town. It didn't amount to anything, but it reminded one that there are just two things that will draw all Goldfield away from its treasure hunting. One is fire, the other is shooting.

Goldfield Beyond the Law

There's never a law of God or man runs far south enough in Nevada to bother Goldfield much. There isn't any government here, and people behavewhen they do behave-because they think it's best for their health. There's no city or town government, no local organization, no police, ,no mayor, no jail-nothing but a deputy sheriff of the county of Esmeralda. There are, however, enough saloons to employ 186 bartenders, and enough gambling joints to enlist the services of 133 faro dealers, roulette operators, crap experts and such like, Tex Rickard's place, called the Northern, is one of the biggest of the lot, Larry Sullivan, who used to shanghai sailors at Portland, Ore., is the owner of the Palace, while others that are jammed to the doors every night are the Monte Carlo, the Del Monte, the Hermitag the Bank and the Gold Dust. This is the wide-openest town in all the world. If the gambling fever overtakes you, no matter where you are, you won't have to take more than ten steps in order to get rid of your money. Every hotel has two or three games running in the office or in the next room or back of the bar.

The gambler who can't find a game to suit him here must be hard to please. He may take his choice of faro, oulette, craps, slough, klondike, stud, straight poker, twenty-one, the wheel of fortune, fantan or stop. And, if these aren't enough, every time you turn around there's a new kind of nickel in the slot machine all ready to amuse you and take your chicken feed. Also there are two or three saloons completely equipped with poolroom layouts, so that the man who has followed the ponies elsewhere won't feel lonesome in Goldfield.

They Play 'Em High There

Nor will the big gambler have any reason to feel cramped by the presence of any stingy limit. A man from Reno went into the Hermitage night before last. He had so much coin that it annoyed him.

They are very obliging at the Hermitage, however, and when the Reno man emerged he left behind him $27,-000 in cash. There are several places where, if a man has the cash there will be no objection to his placing $30 on a single number. If it wins, this means that the house pays him $1,050. Two years and a half ago the desert wind cloted among a group of half a

Their chief objections are to the clause for universal transfers; to the suggestions, intending to present their ideas and not to dictate the wording. Obpection was made to the clause in relation to the crossings for the broad character of the clause in that it could require the railways to build viaducts or dig tunnels at the discretion of the commission. Some of the committeemen cautioned the committee against the attempt to impose additional burdens on the companies not provided for in the contract which is the franchise granted; that is the burdens could not be made retroactive. The powers of the city in such matters were only the police power anyway and these were limited to reasonable regulations. Objection was made to the clause that seeks to require the street railways to grade, pave and keep in repair the whole street between the curbs instead of as now, between the tracks and a reasonabel distance on each side. The committee thought this was a reasonable objection. The broad clause requiring the railways to do anything the commissioners might wish almost, said Mr. Cantey, was supplemented by the requirement that the railway companies sprinkle the street. He contended the street railways should be only be required to bear its just proportion of the expenses and no more objection was made to the clause requiring the street railways to reimburse the property owners for moneys already paid for street paying on the grounds that it would obligate the companies to pay for the paving twice, for it is a settled principle that the companies can be required to restore the pavements, torn up to lay tracks,

Objection was made to the latitude of the clause giving one company the right to use the tracks of another company. The history of the opening of Jennings avenue was recited as part of the argument. The conclusion was reached that there was greater charter discrimination against the street railway companies, for it was the only character of corporation that the charter seeks to require to allow joint use of its appliances. Mr. Powell favored a limited joint use of the tracks, as for instance over the viaduct or over tracks in congested

Mr. Axtell thought the clause, as broad as it was, was a "snap" for any other new company that might come in. The joint use should be restricted to bridges, viaducts, etc.
M. B. Harris thought the commission should have a reasonable discretion in this matter. The universal transfer clause was objected to, on the grounds that it was illegal, as well as unjust. Mr. Flournoy held there was no reason for that system in Fort Worth; it would simply kill the small com panies. The committee seemed to think that unless the division of fares could be fixed on the mileage basis it would be impracticable.

The right to joint use of tracks was again taken up and argued by Messrs. Powell, Ayres, Capps, Harris and others. M. B. Harris moved the reference of the communication from the street railways to the subcommittee consisting of Judge McLean, Captain Paddock, Dr. Cooper, Mr. Ousley, Mr. Matlock and W. D. Harris. Mr. Powell offered his proposition for a 3 per cent gross franchise tax.

It was also referred. A suggestion from R. M. Carter was read that the city should have the right to purchase public utilities. The possibility of natural gas being brought to the city was the keynote for Judge Harris, who explained the suggestion of Colonel Carter. He said the natural gas company might sell gas here for 35c to 50c. It would bankrupt the other company to force them to sell gas at that price. Mr. Ayres argued against the whole thing on the "public ownership" idea.

If you his celebrated sermon on "Four Popular Evils." on the "public ownership" idea.

present, but would abide the action of The Eighth Ward Civic League resolutions were read and referred.

The petition of the railway passen ger agents for regulation of ticket scalpers was referred. A paper commending Ben P. Ayres for advocating the selection of the city attorney, the tax assessor and collector by appointment instead of election was filed. The Armstrong resolution from the city council was read. A motion was made to lay the resolution on the table subject to call.

Mr. Powell said there was a need for getting an expression from the people. Public sentiment was being formed and now was the time to con sider the question. Mr. Woodman thought the demand for an expression of public opinion might be obtained by petitions. Mr. Harris advocated a campaign of education and an election after the charter was passed by the legislature.

which could provide a legitimate way to submit the matter to vote. Mr. Axtell opposed the idea of nonsubmission to the vote of the people. He favored the idea, the of merely voting "for commission" and "against commission." He thought the issues would be the high salaries and that of appointive or elective commission and subordinates, and he favored the submission to a vote. Lee Stephens stated that it was his understanding all along that the work of the committee was to be submitted to the people, that they might say if they wanted the charter as drafted by the committee or not. He had been assured a legal election could be held under the restrictions of the Terrell election law. Speaking for himself and other members of the committee representing the labor interests, he earnestly favored the vote.

The committee adjourned about 11 o'clock without having reached any decision regarding the election.

Local Committee Appointed to Receive Visitors

The Touring Club of the county democracy of Chicago is to visit Fort Worth, arriving here the morning of Feb. 5. The stay in Fort Worth will be three or four hours, and the time will be devoted to sight seeing, stirring up the enthusiasm of the democrats if that be needed and getting lunch ere the flight to Waco.

The Touring Club is a peculiar organization of the county democracy, and its success wherever it has been is one of the wonders of the political history of the country. It will come about 150 strong and bring with it a band of forty pieces. This tour of the Touring Club will take them to Springfield, St. Louis, Little Rock, Dallas, Fort Worth, Waco, Austin, San Antonio, Galveston, Houston, New Orleans, Mobile, Montgomery, Birmingham and Nashville, The county democracy has long been a great factor in the political history of Chicago, and has not been without influence on the country at large. The organization has existed since 1882 and now numbers over 3,000 members. This committee on reception and entertainment has been appointed: William Capps, Marshall Spoonts, Stuart Harrison, J. E. Weeden, Brown Harwood, R. H. Foster, W. B. Paddock and

URGE VOTERS TO PAY THEIR TAXES I

Mayor Harris Writes an Open

ELECTIONS ARE COMING

Mayor Says Every Man Should Be Prepared to Help the Commission Form of Government

Fort Worth voters have not been paying poll tax as promptly as usual in past years and the prospects now are that Fort Worth's vote will fall short in approaching elections unless the people who owe a poll tax call on City Collector Gilvin and settle. Mayor Harris has addressed the following to the poll tax payers of Fort Worth, hoping to arouse them to the point of preparing themselves to vote when the time comes: Fort Worth, Texas, Jan. 19.

To the Citizens of Fort Worth: Permit me to call your attention to the fact that only a few days remain within which to pay your poll tax if you intend to be qualified to vote at such elections as may be held during the coming year. There are many good reasons why every citizen in the city of Fort Worth who can qualify himself to vote by the payment of poll taxes or by securing his certificate of exemption should do so at once. There is not one good reason why any man should not thus qualify himself. In the first place it speaks well for our city to have a large enrollment of qualified voters because it is a good index to the number of our population and is also a good index to the public spirited character of our citizenship. Every great people must be a free people and every great people should exercise those privileges which in all the ages, have been cherished and prized and guarded with a zealous care by free and liberty loving people.

In the second place it is well known that some city elections are held each year under our present form of government. There is no knowing at this time what questions might arise in the mind of each voter at the time of the elections that will come and no way of telling how anxious every citizen may be to take part in such elections as may come. It is well known that there is a strong sentiment among the people of our city in favor of a change of the form of government, and if the change advocated should be made, it is certain that an election of mayor and commissioners to succeed in the official positions and responsibilities the present governing body of the city will have to be made by popular vote of those citizens of our city who shall at that time be qualified to vote by having prepared themselves with a receipt showing their exemption from liability to pay the same. If such elections shall be held you can not know now how anxious you may be at that time to be able to cast your vote in determining who shall be elected to those positions. It is easily apparent to every thoughtful citizen that the success or failure of a commission form of government will depend much upon the character of men who may be elected to serve the first term as commovement of the whole governmental that the measures and plans and policies of the new government will be formed. If this important initial work is poorly done it may handicap and fetter and obstruct the very easy missioners. It will be during that term machinery for years to come. The first term of commission government will be necessarily a formative and constructive period. The importance of having all during that period well and wisely done can not be over estimated. But to insure this being so done it goes without saying that the citizens must look well to the question of what kind of men, from the standpoint of business ability and from the standpoint of personal honesty, their officers shall be. You can not have a voice in helping determin that unless you qualify yourselves to vote between now and Feb. 1. Let me impress upon you that this leaves but a few days within which to act. Another thing that should be borne in mind is that other elections affecting the public weal of the city may come up before the expiration of another year; and if so every citizen who can by a little attention at this time qualify himself to vote should do so. For instance it may be that if the legislature passes an act providing for a board of commissioners instead of a city council that it may provide that it shall be in force and effect only after an election shall have been held in the city of Fort Worth to determine by popular vote whether the new charter shall be adopted or not. In other words it may be that the act of the legislature creating a new charter would also in connection therewith direct and require that an election should be held in the city by which the qualified voters should determine whether the new charter should go into effect I see by this morning's Record that Judge J. E. Martin and some others suggest this to the legislature. What will be done in this respect I do not know, and the advisability and practicability of this plan I have not especially considered. But it is enough to say that the entire voting population of our city ought to be enough on the alert and enough moved by patriotic impulses to be ready to vote upon any vital issue that may in any form or manner come before the public. Another thought I wish to present and to urge upon the minds of all citizens, is that in the matter and movement of urging the people to get themselves in position where they are armed with a tax receipt or a certificate and qualified to cast a vote that there should be no selfish measures or plans adopted and nothing done looking to the qualification to vote of one part of our citizenship to the exclusion and neglect of any other part of our pouplation which may also be entitled to qualify themselves to vote and to cast their ballots on any issue that may arise. Every man and every set of men and every enterprise or aggregation of enterprises be willing and even anxious that every single citizen who can qualify himself to vote by the payment of poll taxes or securing a certificate should do so without regard to the question, and without consideration of the question at this time, as to whether all citizens will likely. vote one way or another upon any question or issue that may likely arise. For persons entertaining or advocating any certain view to undertake to have only those of a similar view qualifythemselves and allow all others to remain disqualified is exceedingly selfish. All individuals and all interests ought to be liberal enough in their views to believe that what ever ought to prevail will prevail if the entire citizenship is prepared to vote and does vote. Every one that might be looked upon as having special or per-sonal interest to serve ought to be willing to take his chance before the penses, but not with league teams,

MAKE CAMPAIGN FOR GOOD ROADS

County Association Formed at Waco Saturday

Special to The Telegram. WAXAHACHIE, Texas, Jan. 19.~ The executive committee of the Texas Good Roads' Association met here this afternoon and decided to make a vigorous campaign in the state during the next few weeks. The national and state presidents were instructed to proceed in the organization of counties as rapidly as possible. Forty or fifty conventions are to be held, closing with a state convention at Austin in March. The first of these conventions was held here today with a large attendance. Several speeches were made and a county association formed.

pleted, owing to the refusal or failure of some banks to furnish the infor-The report is based upon the individual deposits in the banks on Nov. 12, 1966, as compared with Nov. 9, 1905; those being the dates on which the comptroller of currency called upon the national banks for a statement, and the greater part of the figures were secured from the statements pub. lished in the newspapers, as required by law. The figures compiled show unprecedented prosperity in the territory contiguous to the Fort Worth and Denver, commonly known as the Panhandle. On Nov. 12, 1906, the individual desposits amounted to $7,199,-006.79, against $4,762,417.89 on Nov. 9, 1905; an increase of $2,436,588.90, or nearly 50 per cent. Compleet returns from all banks would doubtless show fully 50 per cent increase.

Worth and Denver has been gathering information about the condition

along its line, based on the individual deposits in the banks along that line.

It is no easy matter to secure this information and, notwithstanding the efforts that have been made, the information has not been entirely com-

The Fort Worth and Denver people consider that this statement reflects the condition along its line better than any statistics or information they can obtain.

The detail statement shows what part of the line has enjoyed the greatest prosperity; and also shows what part of the line has suffered from adverse crop conditions. A person who is unfamiliar with the line or its conditions could take the detail statement and determine where crop conditions were unfavorable or normal. For instance, thru the cross time bers, where excessive rains prevailed during the spring and the ravages of the boll worm weer most felt, the individual deposits in some cases show a decrease, and at other points remain about the same as the previous year.

Best Example of Prosperity

The best example of prosperity is reflected in the deposits of the bank at Claude, which on Nov. 9, 1905, had $41,242.16, and on Nov. 12, 1906, had $102,081.28; an increase of about 150 per cent. The conditions farther up the line also show an immense increase, especially at Dalhart, where on Nov. 9, 1305, there was but one bank with $118,661.63; on Nov. 12, 1905, there were two banks with $284,277.69. During the year 1906 a bank was established at Texline, which on Nov.

12, 1906, had $15,690.15 on deposit. Increases are shown at every point above the cross timbers, including Bellevue, which town on Nov. 9, 1905, had $40,000 on deposit, and notwithstanding the cyclone, which practically wiped that prosperous town off the face of the earth, on Nov. 12, 1906, had $75,463.56 on deposit in the bank at that place. The statement of bank deposits along the Fort Worth and Denver does not include the Fort Worth banks, and the figures shown represent only that part of the line served by one line to a greater extent than perhaps any other part of Texas, except that part of the line west of Fort Worth on the Texas and Pacific, and west of San Antonio on the Galveston, Harrisburg and San Antonio railroad.

Emigrant Movables

Another statement prepared by the freight department of the Fort Worth and Denver, which is of interest not only to that line and the territory served by it, but to the public generally, and that is a statement of carloads of emigrant movables unloaded at points on that line, which includes only such cars as were hauled by the Fort Worth and Denver, and does not take into account those brought in by other lines at junction points; nor does it include emigrant movables which were destined to points on its connections, such as the Pecos Valley at Amarillo, Rock Island at Amarillo and Dalhart and the Frisco at Vernon and Quanah; nor does it include those destined to points on the Wichita Val-

This statement shows that from July 1 to-Dec. 31, 1905, 418 cars were unloaded; from Jan. 1 to June 30, 1906, 395, making a total of 813 cars during the road's fiscal year. From July 1, 1906, to Dec. 31 same year, 637 cars were unloaded at stations on its line. A comparison with the same months of the previous year shows an increase of 229 cars, or over 50 per cent. In addition to this movement, which is principally from Texas, there has been a heavy movement from the north, especialy to the Plains country, which is unloaded at points along the Southern Kansas, Pecos Valley and Rock Island lines east of Amarilo and Dalhart.

The immigration to that part of the state has been unprecedented and shows that the people of Texas who are largely in the majority in this movement, realize that the Pannandle country affords better opportunities than are afforded thru the older settled portions of the state, where land values are higher and crop conditions no more certain than they are in the Panhandle.

Doubtless a great deal of the increase in bank deposits is due to the immigration to that country, as nearly every farmer moving to the Panhandle country carries not only his car load of personal effects farm machinery, etc. but a nice bank acount in addition. A banker at one point state. that over $40,000 was deposited in his bank in one week by people who had just moved into the country. The only way to account for the immigration from one part of Texas to another is that the farmer has been studying the conditions in the Panhandle, and has become convinced that the season there is no more uncertain than in other parts of Texas or in other It has taken a long time to bring about this change of conditions, because only a few years ago the farmer had the impression that that part of the state, now enjoying such prosperity and increase in population, was suited only for a grazing country, and the man who was exclusively in the cattle business encouraged that idea. There is no doubt that the cowman has been shoved back by the man with the hoe, and those who held that the plow destroyed the most profitable crop in that section of the state have been converted, and not only converted, but grown immensely wealthy, because they held on to their land until the farmer made a demand for it and sold out at an immense profit. Land Values

Comparatively speaking, land values are still low in that section of the state, and, as has often been said, is worth more than it is selling for now, or is not worth one-fifth of what is being realized. It has been abundantly demonstrated that an acre of that land will produce as much value in the shape of crops as the black land country. In fact, it has been demonstrated that a farmer in that part of the Panhandle in which cotton is grown can make more money raising cotton than the man with a black land farm. So far the farmer has confined him-

The freight department of the Fort | self to the staple crops, but when they worth and Denver has been gather- | become thoroly established hog raising will greatly increase on account of the certainty and cheapness with which Kaffir corn is raised, to say nothing of the Indian corn, of which the Pan-

OF THE PANHANDLE

Poultry raising for market will become an adjunct to the farmer, and it is hoped that creameries wil be established so that the farmer may market at a profit surplus dairy products. The conditions along the Wichita Valley are very much the same as along the Fort Worth and Denver, althe a part of that line has just been opened, and, therefore, no comparisons with previous years can be made.

The bank deposits on Nov. 12, 1906, were $2,447,834.32 which added to the deposits along the Denver makes over $9,500,000 in the banks along these

SANITARIUM ENLARGED

Arlington Heights Enterprise Will Soon Be Completed

Since the beginning of the Arlington Heights Sanitarium, which is now under construction on the recently acquired site about four blocks east of Lake Como, the plans as to size have been materially changed. Dr. Jno. L. Turner, who for several years was superintendent of the insane asylum at Terrell, is the principal proprietor of the Arlington Heights sanitarium and will move his family, to Fort Worth about Feb. 5. Dr. Turner says the original plans for the sanitarium provided for the care of only fifteen patients, but now the change in plans provides for room for thirty-seven patients.

Plumbers and electricians are now at work and it is thought that the building will be ready for occupancy by the 5th of February. It is the intention of the Arlington Heights sanitarium to give special attention to the treatment of nervous diseases.

KNIGHT MOVED

Store Now Located at 405-407 Houston Street

Opening of the new store of G. S. Knight at 405-407 Houston street was attended with great success last week. In its new quarters the Knight store has more room, better arrangement and lighting, and has added considerable improvements in the way of fixtures. The force of clerks has been increased and a delivery wagon has been added to the store's equipment. An attractive feature of the new store is the lighting facilities, which are such as to do away with need of artificial light except at nights. To meet the increased size, the stock of the store has been enlarged and is constantly being increased.

Want Support of People of the State of Texas

ON RESOLUTION Election of Senator Tuesday

Would Be Stain on the Honor of State of Texas

necial to The Telegram. AUSTIN, Texas, Jan. 19 .- The following address to the people of Texas was issued tonight by those members of the legislature favoring a searching nvestigation of Bailey:
To the People of Texas: Both branches of the legislature have voted difficult a dissenting voice that there ould be an investigation of the harges against Senator Bailey. Difes arose as to the procedure to he adopted, but no member of the legture has gone on record as opposng an investigation. The investigating ittees of the senate and house are now organized and it is believed hat the taking of testimony will be egun on Monday.

Full and specific charges have gone to both committees tonight. Several lays will certainly be consumed in the ding of testimony and each house will then be called upon to take action upon the report which its committee may submit. Under these circumstances, it would e a gross outrage upon the state of Pexas for the legislature to proceed to the election of a United States sentor before the reports of the investirating committees shall be received nd acted upon. If Mr. Bailey shall onstrate his innocence after a full restigation practically the entire bership of both houses are ready vote for his re-election. If he uld be proven guilty, the democratic party could never outlive the just disice which it would earn by electing senator in the face of pending rges and making an investigation the charges afterward, nor would lexas ever hear the end of it. The ons place the party itself on trial and the issue will, in our julgent, determine whether its agents in the legislature hold its interest and public weal above the political fores of a single individual. A plan s been devised whereby the votes of mbers who desire to postpone the ection until action shall be taken on the reports of the investigating comnittee may be so cast and scattered as to avoid an election and to reserve de-

be in sympathy with those objects to send telegrams to their local represenatives in the house and senate favoring postponement. No people's lobby is re and great pressure is being rought to bear upon hesitating members. In our judgment it would be a crime against democracy and against Pexas to force the election of a United States senator now. A majority of the legislature undoubtedly shares this opinion. It is, however, being hard pressed by outside forces. It is an hour of trial as by fire for the democratic party of Texas. Let the people quickly give expression to their wishes and let all who can come here without delay. It should be remembered that the Duncan resolutions received the active support of seventy-three members of house and senate. The substitute resolution which was finally adopted in the house was so improved by amendments as to cover almost the same ground as the Duncan resolutions. It will require the votes of eighty-three members of the legislature to force the election of a United States senator on Tuesday. The supporters of the Duncan resolution can be trusted to stand by their colors, and we are assured that many of those who voted for the house substitute are unwilling to become parties to such a scandalous farce as would be enacted if an election of senator should occur before the investigation is completed. Such a proeeding would be a record admission defore all of a design to return a judgment of acquittal without regard to the evidence that may be offered. The honor of Texas is involved and it is imperative that the people should promptly come to its defense. This address is issued by the pro-investigation legislature caucus. Signed, JOHN M. DUNCAN, Chairman.

Mexican Central Railway Beaten Out of Thousands of Dollars Special to The Telegram.

CITY OF MEXICO, Jan. 19 .- The_ Mexican Central railroad has just discovered a scheme of clever counterfeiters which has defrauded them out of thousands of dollars during the past twelve months, how much cannot be told until the tickets sold have been audited completely. The counterfeiters made many tickets, sold them to speculators and they in turn sold them to the public. For some time it has been noticed that more tickets were coming into the general office than could be accounted for, but that the tickets were counterfelt was not discovered until every ticket man on the road was checked up and found correct. So far the detectives in the employ of the road have not located the men who counterfeited the tickets and the sale of them still continues.

Special to The Telegram, WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.-Interstate commerce commissioners say the country needs $200,000,000 expended in making its internal waterways capable of relieving the tremendous pressure of traffic.

"Why," said the commissioner, who has recently been doing some investigating of car shortage and other railroad troubles, "we went out to Minneapolis to study conditions, and were told that the railroads could not keep up with the development of business. They told us of how the railroads used to drive away the Indians as they advanced to their lines into the wilderness. They were built far ahead of

Is One of the World's Greatest Living Violinists

Music lovers are taking considerable interest in the announcement that Alexander Petschnikoff will appear in Dallas January 25 in concert, Alexander Petschnikoff is from Moscow, where he entered the conservatory when a very young boy, and was the pupil of Hrimaly for a number of years. In one course he won the first prize and gold medal at the conservatory, after which he was offered the opportunity to continue his studies in Paris. For a time, at the outset of his career. Petschnikoff experienced struggles of all kinds, but fortune smiled upon him when he became the object of interest to the Princess Oursoroff. who heard him play at a concert. Her influence was exerted in his behalf. and he was soon feted and courted by nobility. The Princess Oursoroff presented Petschnikoff with a magnificent violin, a valuable instrument once owned by Ferdinand Laub, the famous "Laub violin" of which much has been written and spoken by musicians and particularly violinists, for it is said to be the most valuable instrument in existence. When Petschnikoff made his debut in Berlin his success was unprecedented, he created a furor wherever he appeared. His playing is free from whariatanism and trickery, the charm of it rests in his glowing temperament, ideal conception and wonderful power of expression, and has been regarded phenomenal, because he can move the hearts of his hearers as few other violinists are able to do.

LARGEST COTTON MILL IN WORLD

Manager Green Preparing to Handle Big Proposition

TRAFFIC IS GROWING

Inland Waterways Would Help Solv Transportation Problem Now Before the Business Men

Special to The Telegram. SINTON, Texas, Jan. 19.—The largest cotton mill in the world is to be built near this place on the Taft ranch. Manager Green says:

"We have a pretty big proposition, 163,000 acres nearly all tillable land. We did not know that it was good for farms until we tried it out. We could not afford to sell a few thousand acres and have them farm by wrong crops or wrong methods, so we cleared up several thousand acres, graded roads, put in drainage ditches where needed on the level lands and proved just what could be done with the land. We have averaged .68 of a bale of cotton of high grade for seven years, have raised good crops of corn, kaffir corn, cane, broom corn, and vegetables, but as a cotton country San Patricio leads the state with 750 bales on 800 acres, and 126 bales on 110 acres, and it is long staple grading very high. intend putting all the land a mile on each side of the Sap in cultivation from Sinton to the gulf, making a continuous farm . two mfles wide and twenty-five miles long. Each 100 acres will have a house, barn and water supply and will be rented on shares. The tenants will have the benefit of our experience and supervision. Our cotton crop has averaged us $7 rent from one quarter of the crop for seven years. The remainder of the land will be opened to settlement from time to time and sold to actual settlers on easy terms. We put a clause in the deed providing that the purchaser must start improving his land within one year, both on farm land and on town lots in Sinton. Charles P. Taft and Mrs. Taft of Cincinnati, the principal owners of the ranch, will be here next month accompanied by Secretary William Taft, Secretary Root and his son and Charles Taft of New York. Charles P. Taft has not seen his ranch in eight years. He is the largest cotton mill operator in the state of Georgia and they intend to establish at Sinton the largest mill in the south. We will grow and manufacture our own cotton, the first plant in the world to do this."

A DARK OUTLOOK

Oscar Peters Was Kept in Jail and Lost Crops Special to The Telegram.

BROWNWOOD, Texas, Jan. 19.-If the world ever looked dark and dreary to a man, that man is Oscar Peters. who was released from jail, the grandjury having failed to secure sufficient evidence to indict him on the charge of murdering Dan Faulkner. When Peters was put in jail on September last he had as fine a crop as could be found in the county, and when he was released he found that his crop had gone to waste and that he was penniless. Of course he is too much elated over the fact that he has at last been set free to worry any great amount over his financial loss, but to any other man it seems ruin. Mr. Peters was seen shortly after he was released and said he estimated that he had lost about twenty-five bales of cotton, several hundred bushels of corn, some maize and two thousand bundles of sorghum. He values his part of the crop at $1,000 and says he owes only $160, which he could have paid if he had been allowed to gather his crop and have realized a neat sum toward buying himself a home. Mrs. Peters remained on the place until the leaste expired the first of the year and moved to town, where Peters found a hearty welcome when he hurried there. Peters says that as soon as he is strong enough to do so he will arrange to go to farming and hopes to make another good crop. He says that he knew he was innocent

An Important Enterprise in Store for Beeville

Special to The Telegram. BEEVILLE, Texas, Jan. 19.—The enterprise of John Teague in determining to plant out an orchard of fifty acres in oranges is an important item to Beeville. It has long been known that oranges could be made commercially profitable in this section, and from the fact that the trees grown on residence premises for ornamental purposes have borne heavily and have not been killed by frosts save in exceptional years, when the orange belt in Florida likewise suffered. Eight-yearold frees in Beeville have produced as many as $50 marketable oranges in a single season. An acre of such fruit would be worth to the grower all the way from $1,500 to $2,000. These trees have had no protection and no extra care nor fertilization. The suggestion drawn from them is consequently the more valuable. The succ Mr. Teague's enterprise will add to the value of land in the coast country, as the supply of oranges grown in the United States is not equal to the demand, and the industry will admit of a large increase in acreage without affecting the price.

Special Cable to The Telegram, PARIS, Jan. 19.-The Roman Catholic church in France will stand solidly with the Vatican. This was the decision reached by the conference of French bishops after a consultation which lasted from Tuesday until today. Some of the prelates fought for a compromise, but they later bowed to the will of the majority and there were no dissenting votes when the vote was finally taken to reaffirm the refusal of the pope to accept the terms of the chamber of deputies and state separation law. The position of the church is fairly expressed by Cardi-

Pius did not desire a compromise.

"France must go to Rome," he claimed. "No other end y possible, however long a time may elapse. That condition will ultimately be realized. The holy father or one of his suc cessors will receive the penitent at

The next move of the bishops do less will be to direct the parish priests, if the latter are prosecuted for c brating masses illegally, to allow them-selves to be condemned, but not to pay their fines, and instead go to prison. Two Licenses Issued for Each | They Discussed Modern School

A coincidence in the issuance of marriage licenses was the subject of some comment in the county clerk's office Saturday morning and investigation disclosed the fact that twice during the week two marriage licenses were issued for the marriage of one young woman.

On Jan, 16 a marriage license was issued for the marriage of Duke Mc-Guire and Miss Ida McCoy, both of North Fort Worth, The following morning the marriage license was returned and there is endorsed on the record "Returned. The parties decided not to marry."

Later the same day another marriage license was issued to Duke McGuire and Miss Ida Swearengen. It is explained that the bride had been living with her stepfather, whose hame is Mc-Coy and she was commonly known by that name. After the mistake was discovered the marriage was off for the date originally set, Jan. 16, but later t was decided that the marriage should take place.

A marriage license was isued Jan-17 to Frank Williams and Miss Buby Collins, the residence of the bride being given as 1314 Bluff street and that of the groom as 515 Evans avenue. Justice Bratton went to the nome of the bride and married the couple, Next day it was learned that the true name of the bride was Ruby V. Jobe and the mistake in this instance arose from the fact that she, too, was living in the family of her stepfather and that caused the confusion. Justice Bratton again married the couple.

INVASION OF ENGLAND

Catholic Orders Fleeing, From France Settle in England

Special to The Telegram. LONDON, Jan. 19 .- During the last few days a remarkable invasion of Great Britain has commenced. Expelled from their homes in France, several of the principal Roman Catholic seminaries and religious communities have been transferred to this country.

Among the orders thus removed is an entire community of nuns from Arras, who have just arrived at the Benedictine convent on Corbelly Hill, Kirckbrightshire. This convent, which was established nearly twenty-five years ago, now will practically become the home of the Benedictine order. Between thirty and forty nuns made the journey from Arras, France, to Scotland, among them being the prioress, who is 80 years of age. Hampshire, Dorset and Somerset are the favorite English counties for the establishment of these French institutions. In each of these counties large estates have been purchased and will be transformed into convents and seminaries. There is reason to believe that before the French government commenced taking inventories of the Catholic churches and institutions the greater part of their valuable properties had been removed to England. The entire funds, amounting to large sum of money of the various communities emigrating to this country are at present in the hands of an English lady residing in London and well known in the Roman Catholic

A LARGE LEMON

A Denton Man Has the Biggest One

Ever Grown Special to The Telegram. DENTON, Texas, Jan. 19.-What is believed to be the largest lemon that was ever grown was exhibited on the streets today and was grown by John Herren, living on Beauchamp's hill, in the south part of the city. The monster specimen shown measured sixteen and one-half inches in circumferance one way and nineteen and one-half inches long way. It weighed exactly two pounds and five ounces. Besides the large lemon shown Mr. Herren also had several others almost as large. When exhibited on the streets almost every one refused to believe that the fruit was a lemon, but after a thoro examination they were forced to admit it. Mr. Herrin says that the lemons excel not alone in size but in quality the ordinary kinds found at fruit stands.

Dying of Consumption Special to The Telegram.

LEANDER, Texas, Jan. 19 .- A man of the name of Wilson, who lives in the mountains some twelve miles west of this place, keeping a herd of goats, is dying of consumption in his lonely camp. Some of the people living within a few miles of the goat ranch went there to move him to Wiley Rope's place where they could care for him, but they found him too low to move. He is about 30 years old and it is said that his only relatives are a mother and sister somewhere in Virginia,

NEGRO TEACHERS MET SATURDAY

Methods

The institute for colored teachers was held in the school building at the corner of Twelfth and Steadman streets Saturday. The superintendent held grade meetings from 9 to 10. He questioned the teachers on the work done, and emphasized the necessity of keeping their work up to the requirements as laid down in the school manual He requested the teachers to supply themselves with the books necessary for the successful and accurate teaching of their subjects.

The colored teachers were very well pleased and expressed themselves as being greatly benefited by the institution of grade meetings in their in-stitute, and benefited by the helpful suggestions thrown out by the super-The grade meetings over, the super-

N. M. Gay read a paper on "The Practical Value of History." She said that it inspired the young to higher ideals and greater usefulness, love of home and country thru the object lesson and interesting stories, and biographies presented to the pupils, Professor J. T. Langston discussed the paper. He said history should be deprived of all its bookishness and made to live in the minds of the pupil. In this way the young could be directed to profitable pursuits in life thru a study of the industrial progress of the country; they could be made valuable citizens thru their interest ters which they would finally imitate and which would encourage them in their despondent moods. An instrumental duet by Misses Beatrice and Edna Brown was followed by a paper by Miss Alice Williams.

"How to Manage Incorrigibles."
Professor I. M. Terrell said this was the most important question confronting teachers today. Miss Hughes read a paper on some aims of teaching. They were to make better home-makers and citizens of the boys and girls.

The superintendent urged the teachers to prepare and keep on exhibition samples of each child's work. This would encourage them and their parents. He asked the teachers to prepare an exhibit of their pupils' work for some time in the spring-San Jacinto day. Among those who discussed the several papers were Miss M. Mc-Coy and Professor Wm. Coleman and Miss Laura Terry.

KINGSTON LOSSES All Insurance Was Carried by British

Special to The Telegram. NEW YORK, Jan. 19 .- Not a dollar of loss was suffered by any American fire insurance company as a result of the earthquake and fire in Kingston, Jamalca.

All of the insurance carried there was placed in twenty-three British companies, thru their colonial branches. The amount of outstanding insurance in the stricken city is about $7,500,000, but only a very small proportion of this will have to be paid. owing to an earthquake blause in nearly all of the policies which exempts, the companies from liability. This clause holds, it is claimed, where fire is the result of the earthquake. A few months ago some of the British companies arranged to issue at an increased cost a policy covering loss by earthquake and all other causes, but the people of Jamaica did not take kindly to it on the ground that the chances of loss by earthquake were so remote as to be un-worthy of consideration. The black population of Kingston and the other affected cities carried practically no insurance on property. NEW COMPRESS

I have seen men and women pass by a $5,000 bull or a $10,000 stallion to look at a coop of Bantam chickens or bronze turkeys. Let's have the finest horse show ever held-when I say horse show, I mean everything-we have as fine imported draft stallions here as the world produces-Texas has supplied some of the swiftest horses under harness of saddle on the track that the world has seen-let's have them represented; and say, how about asses? You know that fine jacks have reached a volume of dollars and cents in Texas that few people realize. Let's have some of these asses in line at the show; and hogs, why, we can't do enough in the hog line; everybody needs them; everybody eats them, and while we speak of hogs, had you thought anything of sneep and goats? Great Scott, the man who is raising good sheep is making more clear money on his investment than any other line of live stock, and they are here to a 17,000-acre ranch near "Tamaleville," better known as San Antonio. Some of them, I hear, bring $500 head-let's have some goats in line. "By the way, did you ever know there are more dog cranks than any other cranks? Why, there are dogs In Texas that are worth $500 to $5,000 a nead-let's have a bench show along with the others. In fact, Mr. French, let's have every kind of pet and live stock show that going—have it good, have it big, and right up to now. We are right in the heart of the country, give it good and let the world see it next March."

Therefore this opportunity is taken to introduce to all Fort Worth, and the territory contiguous, the gentlemen who are behind and of this enterprise, which will no doubt play an important part in making Fort Worth the first and greatest city in the state.

Texas has long needed a furniture exposition building, where all the furniture dealers of the state can replen. ish or buy their opening stocks without the expense or annoyance of a trip to the eastern factories. But the church has organizations that can interest them in other ways, and, happily, some of them are putting this machinery to work for the benefit of these lonely boys. I have been noticing a little about this church question. The Christian orginizations that are recognizing that men are different from women, that young men want a different diversion and interest from those favored by ladies' aids and missionary meetings are getting hold of the men. I do not dare tell my friends so, but from what I know of boys, lots of this Christian work puts the cart before the horse. Boys are driven off by some of the effort made to win them. These hundreds of boys and young men that are habitual night loafers need somebody to direct them before it is too late.

There is one thing about living. It does not bore with monotony as long as there are folks there will be something doing. I heard a woman sigh sadly the other day. She was to be parted from somebody she loved. She had no one else, so she said, and the lonelmess that she saw coming scared

I wonder if the human heart will ever reconcile itself to its oneness with life. Life and love, the twin mysteries of existence send down into nature's storehouse, each its own roots, draws each its own sustenance. Here and there go forth twigs and tendrils, hopes invitation to other units of life to join in partnership for happiness. Sconer or later the green leaves decay. The twigs are broken, only the rcots stand where nature has placed them. The life after all is lived alone. Hope may try to disguise the fact, may shed infinite radiance to encourage, but after all there is stability only in those any adequate precautions have been into the duties and obligations and interchange of human sympathies.

Partings are not sweet sorrows. No anguish ever became heart comfort. The relationships of the family are broken, mothers and daughters, fathers and sons, husband and wife are parted. Death, tragedy, even love and marriage, break family ties and snap them as if they were not. The tenderest hearts are then the ones to be prostrate. The roots of the ego have not taken sufficient hold upon the meaning of living. It seems such a cruel thing to even think, but the best equipped for life are those who live best for themselves in the fundamentals of sincerity, in integrity of purpose, in cultivation of talent, in independence of activities.

The marriage of Miss Thetta Hill to Ernest L. Smith last Wednesday evening was a great surprise to all of her friends. The wedding was suspected to be heard of at no distant day, but the actual celebration was not looked for so soon. The explanation given to intimate friends is that Mr. Smith, who has held a responsible situation here, has been transferred to Kansas City, with instruction to report there at Sentimental folks will understand why such sudden orders accelerated Cupid's doings. The Rev. A. E. Dubber officiated at this hurried ceremony and soon afterward Mr. and Mrs. Smith left for their Kansas City home. The bride was married in her goingaway gown, of brown eolienne, handsomely trimmed, the accessories of hat, gloves and shoes corresponding. There were many handsome presents, notwithstanding the short time of notice, all attesting the esteem in which the bride and her husband is held. Mrs. Smith is the sister of Mrs. Edith Reed, the expert proof reader of The Telegram, and is a young woman of much beauty, charming manners and a lovable disposition. Mr. Smith is a young business man of high reputation, and will hold in Kansas City an even more responsible position with a New York city house.

New Baby! What magic, what mystery, what charm these words have for us. Yet, how infinitely more they mean to the mother. A new life; short, to be sure, but full of possibilities. Some one must be patient, hopeful, watchful, proud and never discouraged. That "some one" is the mother. She has heard her baby's first cry, and whether it be her first or tenth, the feeling is the same. Her feeble arms are out-stretched; those arms that will never desert it as long as the mother shall live. And that hand which supports the head of the new-born babe, the mother's hand, supports the civilization of the world.

Is it any wonder, we ask you, mothers, that with all these responsibilities resting upon your all too weak shoulders, we urge upon you the necessity of selecting the babe's medicine with utmost care; the necessity of protecting your babe from worthless, unknown and narcotic drugs as you would protect it from the fire?

JAMAICA, THE PARADISE OF THE CARIBBEAN SEA

The island of Jamaica is like a beautiful woman, both in its fascinations and in its fate. Beauty, in man and in nature, is not always a joy, nor does it last forever. As for beauty in women, we have known, ever since the day of n of Troy, that it has been a sinenough for such of the other sex as happened to be brought in contact with its effects. No small part of the tragic events of history have been associated with or occasioned by this mysterious and irresistible en-

And when I say that Jamaica is like a beautiful woman, I have regard to this side of the matter. I lived there during three years, and I have always lelt that in all that constitutes scenic and climatic charm, the little island was supreme above every other part of this world that I have visited. It has beauty so intense and allervading that the senses sometimes airly ache in the contemplation and the traveler for what he will behold there. It outdoes all description, but none who has seen it ever will lose its lovely image from his memory. Here, then, is beauty; and here also the destructive forces of nature are wont to wreak themselves with ungovernable and appalling fury.

History recalls how the earthquake of centuries ago annihilated in the drawing of a breath the rich and beautiful little city which lay at the entrance of what is now-or recently was-the harbor of Kingston; and I have drifted in a boat over the spot where the city sank and could still discern thru the deep green clearness of the water the plan and outlines of dwellings which had once been the abode of the great buccaneers, who once made the Caribbean a byword of adventure and peril.

That catastrophe left its mark upon the imagination of mankind as well as upon the face of the beautiful island, and, tho there have since then been many minor shiverings of the earth's crust in Jamaica, and more than one convulsion which altered the topography, there has never until now been an earthquake that could shake Kingston from her seat or make her feel that she, like the vanished Port Royal, depended for her existence upon unknown powers that lurk beneath the voluptuous graces of her outward aspect. She has felt their long deferred vengeance at last, and it is hard to picture that soft featured and gracious city the wilderness of ruin and death which a few minutes of blind and ruthless fury have made of it. The city lay at the margin of the wildest plain in the island, which comes with a gradual slope to the sea from the base of the mountains, which have at that point withdrawn some

The chief street saunters along parallel with the shore, and from it shorter ways branch out toward the hills. Several of these pass beyond the city limits and find their way by winding courses into the heart of the mountains. Many wooden wharves push out from the city front, and besides them lie much sea-going craft and a few steamers, the largest of these being the vessels which ply between the city and our northern coast

There are several hotels, but the time of my sojourn there was but one with the ambition or the means for entertaining people accustomed to northern accommodations. It was an old edifice, solidly built, but it is today doubtless an unrecognizable mass of wood splinters and crumbled stone

The city was mainly composed of shops, with dwellings for the poorer part of the population only-negroes being by far in the majority; for in this small island, barely one hundred and forty miles in length, and not more than a third of that in its greatest width, the number of blacks approaches eight hundred thousand, while the total white population numbers less than nine thousand all told. The men of the greatest wealth in the town and island are "brown men," as they are called; and most of them are a cross of the negro and the Jew.

Some of these men are worth several millions of dollars; most of them are members of the local legislature and resolute to take their place in white society. But the encouraged for political reasons by the English government, they do not find their way scendants of the old planters and the American visitors. Some perfunctory 'calling' takes place between the two races; but nothing that fairly be termed social intimacy exists or is ever likely to. There is a race course near the city where fashionable throngs assemble at every sporting occasion.

ments on duty on the islands are a mile or two to the east, while the other military headquarters, which may have escaped destruction, lie at a height of nearly five thousand feet above the plain and the city, over-looking them, but so often hidden behind clouds that weeks pass during which the forlorn soldiers catch no glimpse of the world beneath them. The journey up to their sky neighboring eyrle is some fifteen miles, and is a long day's ride up and back. would have been a strange absorbing spectacle to have witnessed from this seat among the clouds the sud-den annihilation of the beautiful city the sea.

But the amorus butcher was scarcely married when he longed to see the pretty seamstress again and she was at the same time leased to see him. Things went on in this ambiguous way for some time, when the man finally proposed to quit his wife, by whom he already had two children, and live with the seamstress if she would leave her husband. The proposition was accepted and one aome was opened in Lagny and another in Meany. The wife of the butcher immediately applied for a divorce and ob-But the man who is not gifted with the virtue of constancy, conceived a new admiration for his former wife in view of her determined action, and gave her to understand that if she would make up with him he would dismiss the seamstress and live with her again, in spite of the divorce. She accepted and some weeks ago was triumpnantly installed anew, with her former husband, and the door was slammed in the seamstress' face. But this time the latter said that she would have revenge. Accordingly, she dressed herself in man's clothes, with a big hood thrown over her head and knocked at the door at about 6 in the evening, when she knew the butcher was absent. When the door was opened she said she was a gas inspector, and came to look at the meter. Her rival suspected no harm and got a candle, which she lighted, and accompanied her to the kitchen, where the pseudo gas inspector took the first opportunity to snatch a bottle full of alcohol from under her arm and pour the contents on the candle and the clothes of her rival, as well as over a baby she was holding in her arm. In an instant both mother and child were in a blaze. The unfortunate woman made frantic attempts to extinguish the fire, rushing from one room to another and calling for help. Neighbors hurriedly came to the rescue, but it was too late. The child was so badly burnt that it was not expected to live, and serious fears were entertained for

Tragic Death of Housekeeper at Observatory in the Mountains

Special Cable to The Telegram. VIENNA, Jan, 19 .- Mountain climbers who have ascended the Hohe Sonnblick in Salzburg will regret to hear of the tragic death of Frau Elisabeth Noel, who, for many years, filled the not unimportant post of housekeeper of the observatory on the summit of that mountain, and whose uniform kindness will be gratefully remem-bered by many a tired Alpinist, Herr Lechner, the chief meteoroligist, had gone down to Rauris in the valley below and Frau Noel set out in the afternoon to meet him half way on his return. Overcome by fatigue sae rested in the newly-fallen snow and fell The assistant meteorologist, alarmed at Frau Noel's protracted absence, went in search for her and found her in a semi-frozen state. He made a heroic attempt to carry her back to the observatory, but found it impossible. With every breath he sank with his burden up to the breast in the snow and had to abandon his task. Herr Lechner did not return until the next morning, when the two men returned to the spot, only to find a corpse. A severe snowstorm had raged over night and in their strenuous attempts to reach the spot they started an avalanche which swept the body away into a crevasse. With immense trouble it was finally recovered and taken to the mortuary at Kolm.

FRENCH POLITICS

Coombes and Clemenceau Billed for Political Fight to Finish

Special Cable to Tue Telegram. PARIS, Jan. 19 .- The reappearance of M. Coombes in the political arena and his inclusion on the separation committee are discussed by those papers which have no great love for the statesmen.

M. Desmounlins, in the Gaulois, rather seems to welcome Coombes back, not, of course, because he has any admiration for the man or for his policy, because he thinks the "little father," as the ex-premier is called, may cause trouble, and bring about Clemenceau's fall. He even goes so far as to predict a political duel between the two statesmen, and prophesies as to how it will be fought. Both adversaries, we are told do not belong to the same school. M. Coombes is represented as belonging to the Italian school of fencing. That is to say, he plays a game of ruses and feints. M. Clemenceau, on the other hand, is a Homeric fencer. He harangues the seconds, threatens his opponent, and describes for his benefit the nature of the cuts he intends to inflict. But while he is posing the other approaches stealthily, "and you will see," adds M. Desmoulins, "that he will strike M. Clemenceau when the latter least expects it." The Royalist paper, which is one of the most ardent champions of the church, predicts the downfall of all those politicians who have had a hand in the Jownfall of the separation law. Thus we are told that M. Rouvier disappeared as the had fallen thru a trap door; no better fate will await M. Briand, the minister who has to bear the brunt of all this warring against the church and it is expected that the political career of M. Coombes will end in a similarly dramatic fash-

Meanwhile, one fact strikes the impartial looker-on. M. Clemenceau is not yet disposed of. His enemies seem to take little account of the great strength he has displayed since he became premier. It will not be his fault if a desperate effort is not made to dispose of the vexed church question.

Roving Tramp Had $50,000 of Stolen Money in His Possession Special Cable to The Telegram, ...

VIENNA, Jan. 19 .- Some time ago the story came from Budapest that an old beggar of neglected appearance, believed to be a Dr. Gerlach, had died there, leaving a fortune of $50,000 Some curious details have now transpired concerning this individual, whose strange mode of life was believed to be due to mere eccentricity. Gerlach, it appears, was a university graduate and for many years held a responsible position in the house of Baron Baldaczy, a Hungarian nobleman. The latter died and his large fortune went to distant relatives. It was discovered that some $50,000 in money and valuables were missing, but no one suspected the faithful Gerlach. The latter pretended to be wholly destitute and frequently applied for, and received assistance from the heirs he had robbed. It was some years before the mystery was cleared up by a bank employe, who accidently discovered that the owner of a large deposit account and Dr. Gerlach were one and the same person, Shortly before he died in hospital, Gerlach confessed that he had originally intended to enjoy the fruits of his robbery quietly after the limitation period had expired; but since then he had taken a liking for the roving tramp life he was leading and resolved to leave the money to charity.

BY BOTTLE POST

Letters Traveled 1,000 Miles by Water in Twelve Months

CHRISTIANA, Jan. 19. - On the northernmost coast a bottle has been washed ashore containing letters and a packet of tobacco. The letters, which were written in Icelandic, showed that this messenger from the sea came from the Vestmanna islands, which are situated off the southern coast of Iceland. The few inhabitants of these wild, inhospitable islands have no communication with the outside world except by "bottle post." Whenever they want to communicate with the Icelanders, their nearest neighbors, they place their letters in a bottle, adding some tobacco as a gift to the finder, who is expected to forward the letters to their destinations. The bottle is then carefully sealed and thrown into the sea when a south wind is blowing so that the current generally carries it to the Icelandic shores. The bottle in question, however, evidently got out of its course and had taken fully twelve months to reach the Norwegian coast, a distance of over 1,000 miles, roughly speaking.

The body was buried with military honors in the garrison cemetery at Mullerstrasse. But it turned out that the dead man was not Gensch, the body was disinterred and recognized as that of a missing merchant. It was then re-interred in the Jewish cemetery. COURT DECISION

Husband Need Not Pay for Goods Purchased by Wife Against His Authority

Special Cable to The Telegram,

PARIS, Jan. 19.-Can claim credit for goods supplied to a wife after they have been warned by the husband not to allow her credit? This point came up for decision at the fourth chamber of the tribunal recent-

In May of last year, a count who married a wealthy American lady, learned that his wife was contracting debts unknown to him. It occurred to him that he ought to regulate her expenditure, and he therefore wrote to various tradesmen asking for informa-tion as to the orders given by the countess. He learned that in two or three months a dressmaker in the Avenue de l'Opera had supplied the countess with dresses, blouses and lingerie to the amount of $5,200. Afterwards this same dressmaker, ignoring the count's warning supplied goods to

The court delivered a very interesting judgment, which may be useful to other husbands in the count's position. It found that the count could not be called upon to pay the $720, since the goods had been delivered against his authority. As for the former bill of $5,200, the court found that the husband could only be held responsible for goods the amount of which was compatible with his social and pecuniary

The judgment went on to point out that the tradesmen should have known that the nature and repetition of the orders were manifestly out of propor-tion with the husband's resources. The orders showed that twenty-one dresses and twenty-two blouses had been delivered in the space of two months. Taking into account the husband's warning, the extravagant nature of the orders, and the exaggerated prices charged the court found that the count should not pay more than $3,400. In his defense the dressmaker said he hoped to have been paid by his customer, but, unfortunately, the countess was ruined by the earthquake at San Francisco, where she possessed several houses.

At Montesson, Count de la Vaulx has an airship which he declares will be able to perform duty as an aerial torpedo boat. The "Patrie." of the brothers Lebaudy, which can carry several men and shells, has been decided as the cruiser of the air, a fortress airship; but the dimensions of Count de la Vaulx's airship are such that it can follow an army corps. While the "Patrie" measures 150 feet from end to end, his airship is only half that length and can be conveyed in one or two military wagons. The airship requires gas only to the amount of a few hundred cubic feet. It can be inflated in a day and prepared for action in a few hours. It will only carry one man and can be easily

OUR LAY SERMON

"Vanity of vanities; all is vanity."-Ecclesiastes,

Vanity is one of the most common and besetting sins that afflicts the world today. Few of us are free from a more or less pompous strut, and our bump of self-conceit is in the majority of instances abnormally developed. This has prompted the nomely old suggestion to the effect that sudden riches might be developed thru the buying of certain individuals at what they are actually worth and selling them for what they consider themselves worth. And there is no doubt that a large and lucrative business could be driven in every Texas community by a procedure of this kind. All of the human family are more or less egotistical and given over to vainglory. Some of us are proud of our personal appearance to such an extent that we cannot pass any object that will reflect our image without stealing an admiring glance at the object of our affections. Others cannot walk down the street without assuming a strut and air of pomposity that seems to continually suggest "what a great man am I." Others believe that the very fate of the universe depends on their actions and are resentful that Omnipotent Jove ofes not consult them concerning the plans he has on and for the proper direction of the children of men, And even others believe that nothing can succeed unless they are consulted. If they are connected with e business enterprise its very success depends upon its maintaining the connection. All is vanity-vanity is written everywhere. And after all, what does it amount to?

What does it profit a man to win out in politics or siness or anything else unworthfly and lose the od opinion of his neighbors and a large measure t his own self-respect? Deep down in our hearts re all know just exactly what we are. All the vainlory we can acquire in a life time does not destroy real conscicusness that we are built of clay.

Suppose we are a successful politician and so ined with the worth of our own self to the world at we become the most arrogant and egotistical cuss at walks the face of the earth and imagine we can no wrong because of our own inherent greatness. l yet, the fact stands out as plain as the wart on an's nose that no man is honored by elevation to e unless he himself honors the office. And no n is essential in any business enterprise any longer he is actually useful and can make a profit for mplayer on the investment.

eatness comes from within, not from without. e and power do not make a man great; it all deon how he fills his office and exercises his r. We might elevate a fool to office, but that act ar part would not make him great. He would be same old fool always that he was when we ed him in his exalted position. Just as some businesses are compelled to dispense with the services of valuable men because they come too high, so the business world is rapidly learning to pass up the individual who shows a disposition to overrate himself. A man without self-appreciation is but a sorry specimen of humanity at best, but the unfortunate fact still sticks out to remind us of the universal disposition to place the figures too high. None of us are half so good as we really seem and try to make the world believe. There is always a screw loose somewhere.

REWARD OF A TEXAS RANGER

William J. McDonald, the ranger captain who has just been appointed revenue agent of the state of Texas by Governor Thomas M. Campbell, is one of the most noted and picturesque characters in the southwest. He has been connected with the state ranger service and engaged in promoting peace and tranquility on the Texas frontier for the past forty years, and is known as one of the most daring and intrepid men within the borders of the state. The assertion that he would charge hell with a half bucket of water is somewhat figurative, but decidedly characteristic, as was the famous assertion made by Mcany time in order to be interrogated by Senator Foraker of Ohio concerning the Brownsville affair. During all the years of his connection with the ranger service Captain McDonald has given evidence of a reckless disregard of fear and there are numerous instances where he has literally taken his life in his own hands in the discharge of a public duty and come out unscathed. But the old ranger captain has tired of the active duties of ranger life, which had largely consisted of running down bad men, and in the evening of his eventful life he has been retired to a position of less strenuousness, but where he can still faithfully serve the people of his state. His appointment as state revenue agent gives universal satisfaction.

Captain McDonald has been pictured in many eastern publications as a big border ruffian, and is anything else than what he has been represented in many sensational articles. Small and wiry, he would not be regarded as the fearless man that has done so much for law and order in Texas were it not for the record he has made, and what he lacks in physical stature is more than made good in nerve and "sand." In the course of his eventful career it has been necessary for him to kill several men, and on his person he carries many eloquent reminders of the encounters had with men who were quick on trigger and also strangers to fear. McDonald always goes armed, for the simple reason that he never knows when he is going to be confronted by an enemy, or be called upon to establish and maintain the peace. A big 45 and one of the latest improved automatic pistols can always be found upon his person, and when he sleeps at night these two shooting irons are always within easy reach of his hand. He is not ostentatious in the matter of his guns, but treats them simply as a necessity.

Captain McDonald was badly wounded in Childress county about ten years ago in a desperate encounter with Sheriff Matthews over the custody of a prisoner. It was a regular pistol duel, and the sheriff was assisted by two deputies, who rained not lead in the vicinity of the doughty ranger. After the smoke of battle had cleared away it was found that the sheriff had been killed and McDonald was thought to be fatally wounded. But his wounds did not prevent him from following the retreating deputies and firing several futile shots at them.

Over in east Texas about seven years ago there was a terrible lynching party, in which John and George Humphreys, two white farmers, were strung up and killed. McDonald went to work on the case alone and unaided and as a net result of his efforts twelve of the desperate men who participated in the lynching bee were run down, captured and sentenced to long terms in the state penitentiary. While stationed in the vicinity of Quanah, in the Texas Panhandle, he trailed a notorious criminal alone over 400 miles, and when he overtook him in company with four other men, compelled him to surrender and return with him.

About three years ago McDonald had a fight with cattle thieves in another part of the Panhandle country and three of them escaped. He trailed the bunch for 300 miles and single-handed captured them near Norman and brought them back to Texas to answer for their crimes. Down in Colorado county the Reese-Townsend feud had raged for years and there had been many bloody encounters. Upon one memorable occasion the belligerents on both sides numbering about 100 men, were lined up on the streets of Columbus in full war paint and prepared to make material additions to the city cemetery when McDonald walked in and took all their artillery and cutiery from them and compelled the entire shooting match to dis-

It was in 1896 that he prevented the Fitzsimmons-Maher prize fight from being pulled off in El Paso, and in Galveston he once stopped a noted pugilistic encounter by boldly walking into the ring and arresting both prize fighters. His recent engagement with a party of Mexican bushwhackers down on the Rio Grande is well known and fresh in the minds of the public, and four Mexicans sleep their last sleep as a result of the encounter. This in brief is something of the story of Captain W. J. McDonald, but there is much more of absorbing interest that could be written,

MARCH MEETING OF CATTLEMEN

The annual meeting of the Cattle Raisers' Association of Texas in this city next March promises to be one of the most interesting in the history of that great organization, and the preliminary work in the matter of proper and suitable entertainment is already being arranged. Fort Worth will come up with this end of the program in the usual thoro and felicitous manner, sparing neither pains or expense in the effort to make the visiting cattlemen feel that he is upon

One of the most important matters to come before the annual meeting of the cattlemen will be the election of a secretary and general manager to succeed the late John T. Lytle, who like his immediate predecessor, James C. Loving, died in harness. Captain Lytle's official term would have expired and his successor would have been elected at this meeting, and while there is no question but that he would have been re-elected had he lived, the matter of choosing an actual successor will probably be a more complicated matter. There are several avowed candidates for the position and they are already at work seeking support among the members. The Cattle Raisers' Association of Texas has had but two secretaries and general managers during the entire period of its existence, Loving and Lytle, When Loving was called to his reward there was a pretty warm contest instituted for the position by several worthy aspirants, but the association settled the mat-If thru his personal egotism. These vice presidents are Richard Walsh of Palo Duro and H. E. Crowley of Midland. It is not known, however, whether either of these gentlemen would accept the position.

Friends of Charles L. Ware of this city are presenting his claims for the position, and Mr. Ware authorizes the announcement that he is a candidate for the position. He has been identified with the live stock business all his life, and is universally esteemed by all Texas stockmen. There are several others, also, who are willing to accept the position-

There lived some years ago in western Pennsylvania an old circuit preacher, whose genial humor and kindliness of heart endeared him to all the people of his district. His opportunities to "tie the knot" were numerous. On one occasion he found upon his arrival at a certain town several couples waiting. The old man was tired, and wished to make short work

"Stand up," he began, "and join hands." He then nurried thru the marriage service. "There," he said, "ye can go; ye're man and wife,

Two of the couples hesitated and made it apparent that in the hurried "jining" they had become confused and had taken the hands of the wrong persons. The old preacher took in the situation, but with a wave of his hand dispersed them, saying in a deep voice:

FARM MEMORIES BY BUSH

When I was a boy we had one un failing job-husking corn. We husked all winter. We husked from crop to crop. It was like a curse on my life. It was the unfailing remedy for the least appearance of laziness. "Go down to the north lot and husk a few bushels of corn." That was the order, and it had to be obeyed. And with a corn crop running into the billions of bushels they still husk it by hand. Why does n't somebody who is sorry for farmer boys, invent something?

WITH THE BOOKS

"HEARTS AND THE CROSS"

But seldom is it that a find is made among the works of such authors as "Hearts and the Cross," which comes to us from the pen of Harold Morton Kramer, another author from the literary state of Indiana. His first book has already caught like wildfire and is pronounced by critics as one of the best things that has ever been written by a Hoosier, a complimentary notice which is all the greater when one stops to consider the number of men who have brought credit to their native state of Indiana by literary

Not only has he proved himself an able writer. Here we have a story with a theme exhibiting a nobleness of thought such as few modern books in modern fiction have done. Elements of interest attraction are strong thruout the entire book and when one first begins to read, the story is a ready friend until it is finished; and then when one has read it all, interest in the problem of the book continues and the chances are that the reader will be turning the story over in his mind for several days, until at last the book is picked up and read afresh.

"Hearts and the Cross" is the story of a mysterious wanderer, who comes to a small community without a preacher, except for the Dunkard settlement and takes up the work in the small chapel that he finds there, satisfying every denomination by his abstinance from offending remarks and yet at the same time exhibiting such power that all wish for his con-

Lawlessness and noble self-sacrifice have their part in the development of an intensely dramatic plot, the interest of which is sustained until the mystery is cleared up and a satisfactory conclusion is reached with exceeding joy to those who earn it.

There is a love plot, of course, to the story, as the title clearly indicates, and it is in the strength of the heroine that the interest centers part of the ime. She is always a noble second to the chief actor in the story and their happiness at the end is a just outcome

The book is comprehensive and modern containing explicit and practical information on the subjects covered in its forty-two chapters. These chapters are arranged in groups and include Invitations and Answers, Luncheons, Teas, Informal Card Parties, Cotillions, Dinner Dances and Theater Parties, The Table and Its Appointments, Dinner Giving, Visiting and the Use of Cards, Wedding Preparations, A Hostess in a Country House, the Employes in a Household and other topics of interest. The latest forms for invitations of every sort, formal and informal and for visiting cards are illustrated. Suggestions in detail are given on notewriting, conversation, traveling, dress for all occasions for men and women, etc.

. . . . LITERARY GROUP

The continued popularity of the nature books of Dr. Charles Conrad Abbott is shown in the fact that new editions of three of his former successes, "Travels in a Tree-top," "Recent Rambles," and "Clear Skies and Cloudy," have just been issued by the Lippincotts.

E. F. Bensan's recent books have been noted for one striking character, but the reviewers seem to agree that his most unusual creation is Theodore Beckwith, one of the principal characters of his last novel, "Paul" (Lippincott), to whom the critics are applying such terms as "vampire," "devil" and "fiend."

Dr. L. L. Zamennof, the inventor of Esperanto, the universal language which has begun to attract such wide and important attention, has an interesting paper in regard to this new language in the current number of The North American Review.

 The Complete Story of

"Hector," by Edward Ostrom, Jr., is notable both for its strength and its tenderness. The noble fire horse and his rough, rugged driver are brought before the reader in such manner as to win clear, understanding sympathy. The story is one that will appeal to the human side of every heart that has throbbed with quickened pulse as the clanging engines dashed by with their galloping horses and blue-shirted fire-fighters, seemingly stirred alike with eagerness to battle for the safety of imperilled lives.

The forceful pencil of L. Methfessel has illustrated "Hector" and has presented a worthy picture of the noble animal whose life-story is here related. It is a picture combining the fidelity of a flashlight photograph with the effect that could be produced only by the pencil of an artist whose soul is attuned to sympathy with the brute hero

Skinny was made driver of the engine after that-the windows spitting fire and smoke, Skinny had crawled slowly up the front of the building with his scaling lad-

and the water frozen in glaciers over the pavements and walls, that seemed to know instinctively the peril of the tottering wall and communicated his fears to

The pulsating, throbbing engine had been dragged away only a moment before the street was filled with a ruin of fallen and smoking brick.

Hector again responding to the firm but delicate guidance of his friend, had by his enormous strength alone swerved the engine from its course and barely clear of a big sight-seeing automobile filled with white-faced. frightened tourists. Skinny had grinned at them as he passed, but he knew only too well that it was Hector alone that had saved a half dozen lives, including probably his own.

Do you wonder that he loved his fine big horse! Through all the best part of his life they had gone together-friends, sharing dangers, comforts and pleas-

Out of his dream came Skinny with a shock. Round the last corner at the foot of the hill they dashed at reckless speed. The blue-coated policeman sprang out from the curb and shouted down the avenue to clear back; Boiler was stone dead, his skull crushed in Men an apple by Hector's terrible hoof; Hector himself, panting and sweating, stood bravely quiet with his kneesshaved to the bone. And the tiny girl who a moment before had been smiling and happy, was-safe on the sidewalk, her small face hidden in her frock, sobbing she scarce knew why.

Then Hector took the engine up the hill alone. His veins stood out so painfully beneath the strain, however-the sweat poured over his muscular flanks so thickly, and the panting of his huge sides was so terrible to hear-that it seemed to poor Skinny as if his favorite, too, must kill himself before they reached the top, But the smell of the fire came to Hector, and he lifted his weary feet into a canter. The hoses soon stretched with a tamiliar quivering on every hand and the firemen were running ahead of him with their bright axes. He there in the thick of it at last-the red blood dripping from his nostrils. "I want to take my horse home, sir," said Skinny to the chief, touching his hat.

Skinny explained his misfortune in short sentences "I might better killed the kid than that horse," he added sadly.

"Take him home, lad," said the Chief, wiping the smoke from his eyes. "I'll send someone up with your

So Skinny took Hector by the bridle, and led him gently all the long way down the hill, sympathizing with him tenderly, and patting his soft nose as they went. Poor Hector could scarcely drag one hoof behind the other. At the foot of the hill the little girl, with screams of laughter, was tearing the yellow wings from a butterfly.

"Oh, poor hossie!" she cried, as Hector limped past with bleeding knees. But Skinny turned away his face

Upon reaching home, Hector gave a snort that was half a groan, and walking unsteadily thio his own stall, leaned up against the side; and the boards cried out beneath his weight, and the stanchions shifted their feet unwillingly. Some oats were in the manger, wet and fragrant, though Hector cared not even to sniff at them, but let his huge head, a mountain in itself, droop lower and lower down.

"Poor old cuss," whispered Skinny, kissing the horse's nose furtively. "I hope to God yer ain't busted!" The man came slowly out of the stall; and the big horse lay heavily down and c'osed his eyes.

"Hector's busted," said Skinny, trying to explain the sorry situation in a business-like voice to the green hand who had been left on watch.

The latter tip-toed-over to Hector's stall, and peered in mutely. Hector paid no attention to him. Skinny threw two blankets over the prostrate horse, and slid another rolled up for a pillow under his head. The flies were buzzing lazily over the fragrant oats. Skinny, who seized every chance to swear at the green hand, phoned for a veterinary, and then stamped about like a baited bull, cursing the long delay. When the surgeon at last arrived with his little satchel, and looked at poor Hector with his cold, unsympathetic eyes, he pursed up his lips hopelessly, and shook his old bald

"He's pretty bad, ain't he?" blurted Skinny. "Oh yes, I knew it-I felt sure from the first there wasn't no hope-oh, yes, I give him up clean from the start-" Skinny's shoestring came untied as he spoke, and he was a long time fixing it. The veterinary, meanwhile, explained with obvious satisfaction that Hector had had a serious hemorrhage, and might even then be bleeding slowly to death inside.

"Keep him quiet," he said warningly.

But Hector showed no disposition to move, lying wearily with closed eyes and heavy breathing, oblivious to all that went on around him. Even toward evening when No. 10, grimy and unkempt, in tow of two strange horses came rumbling up to the door, he did not offer to raise his head. He did not lift his heavy eyelids when the clumsy pewcomers staggered and stamped on the slippery concrete, in their violent straining to accomplish jointly what he could have done alone. He did not prick up his ears when the wondering me drew near, and staring at him in open pity, call "Hector!" softly with their well-known voices; and even when his good friend Scraggs, the spaghetti-covered do mascot, blundered crab-fashion into the stall and sniffer noisily with tickley whiskers at the ice bandages, h gave no sign of life. Nothing seemed to affect his So the men on tiptoe went soberly about their wor of cleaning up; the flies continued to buzz undisturbe in Hector's manger; and Skinny, with blind eyes, mad a mournful pretence at furbishing up the harness.

Suddenly, however, a strange thing happened. was not that the alarm began to ring with its clear, glass-like note of warning-for that was a common, all most hourly occurrence—but there came a noise of terrible effort from Hector's stall. The partition wall of the stall kicked loose by the mighty iron shoes, scaled over the concrete floor like a square of pasteboard. Hect arising with a mighty groan, came forth.

"You say that in a peculiar way.' I remarked. "Because it has struck us peculiarly. Where is Sears now? And why did he not go on with Mr. Fairbrother when he left home with every apparent intention of accompanying him to the Placide mine? Miss Van Arsdale, we were impressed with this fact when we heard of Mr. Fairbrother's lonely trip from where he was taken ill to his mine outside of Santa Fe; but we have only given it its due importance since hearing what has come to us today. "Miss Van Arsdale,' continued the inspector, as I looked up quickly, "I am going to show great confidence in you. I am going to tell you what our men have learned about this Sears, As I have said before, it is but forestalling the reporters by a day, and it may help you to understand why I sent you such peremptory orders to stop, when your whole heart was fixed on an attempt by which you hoped to right Mr. Durand. We can not afford to disturb so distinguished a person as the one you have under your eye, while the least hope remains of fixing this crime elsewhere. And we have such hope. This man, this Sears, is by no means the simple character one would expect from his position. Considering the short time we have had (it was only yesterday that Jones found his way into this office), we have unearthed some very interesting facts in his regard. His devotion to Mr. Fairbrother was never any secret, and we knew as much about that the day after the murder as we do now. But the feelings with which he regarded Mrs. Fairbrother-well, that is another thing—and it was not till last night we heard that the attachment which bound him to her was of the sort which takes no account of youth or age, fitness or unfitness. He was no Adonis, and old enough, we are told to be her father; but for all that we have already found several persons who can tell strange stories of the persistence with which his eager old eyes would follow her whenever chance threw them together during the time roof; and others who relate, with even more avidity, how, after her removal to apartments of her own, he used to to catch a glimpse of her figure as she crossed the sidewalk on her way to and from her carriage. Indeed, his senseless, almost senile passion for this magnificent beauty became a by-word in some mouths, and it only escaped being mentioned at the inquest from respect to Mr. Fairbrother, who had never recognized this weakness in his steward, and from its lack of visible connection with her horrible death and the stealing of her great jewel. Nevertheless, we have a witness now-it is astonishing how many witnesses we can scare up by a little effort, who never thought of coming forward themselves-who can swear to having seen him one night shaking his fist at her retreating figure as she stepped haughtily by him into her apartment house. This witness is sure that the man he saw thus gesticulating was Sears, and he is sure the woman was Mrs. Fairbrother. The only thing he is not sure of is how his own wife will feel when she hears that he was in that particular neighborhood on that particular evening, when he was evidently supposed to be somewhere else." And the inspector laughed.

"Is the steward's disposition a bad one," I asked, "that this display of almost with his thoughts. Now I saw. He desired something in return, feeling should impress you so much?" "I don't know what to say about that yet. Opinions differ on this point, contemplation of my face, "and you must have seen this man when he lift-His friends speak of him as the mildest kind of a man who, without native ed the jewel and handed it back to Mr. executive skill, could not manage the Grey. Did you remark his features?"
"No, sir; I was too far off; besides, great household he has in charge. His enemies, and we have unearthed a few, say, on the contrary, that they have never had any confidence in his quiet ways; that these were not in keeping with the fact of his having been a California miner in the early '50s.

"You can see I am putting you very nearly where we are ourselves. Nor do I see why I should not add that this passion of the seemingly subdued but really hot-headed steward for a woman, who never showed him anything but what he might call an insulting indifference, struck us as a clue to be worked up, especially after we received this answer to a telegram we sent late last night to the nurse who is caring for Mr. Fairbrother in New Mexico." It is the depth of injustice, to my mind, for any portion of society to make a whip out of the necessities of the rest of society, with which they may whip the needy into line to pay tribute so great that in spite of the vast wealth that this latter portion of society produces, it is compelled to live

No one has a right to wealth he does nothing to earn, unless it is given him freely and willingly by one who has earned it. Every adult should render service to the community an equivalent of the amount of wealth he takes out of the community.

Those who work usefully with their brains are as truly producers as those who work with their hands. There are great captains of industry who co-ordinate labor, such as the presidents of railroad systems, who receive large salaries for their work. They are of the workers. They render valuable it. Motley county and parts of most of the adjoining counties, and the company is not encouraging agriculture just now. They will have to come to t after a while, I suppose, for the farmer is slow moving as a rule, but he gets there all the same, and his movement is constant and all the time. No ranch man can hold his lands profitably above a certain price, and it is only a question of time when the real estate man will help it up to a point above what it can be profitably used for cattle. The Panhandle is going to be one of the best stock farming sections of Texas. It has the soil, water in abundance climate and productiveness. It will produce anything that any other country will and some things that other countries will not. There is no healthier country anywhere and altogether it is a poor man's country, sure. The farmers are leaving counties like Red River and moving out west in great numbers. I have a neighbor who came from East Texas long ago. Not many months ago he said he wanted to go back to his old home, eat muscadines, get a box of quinine pills, sit in the sun on the side of the house and shake with a good old-fashioned chill. He went and came back. He said he did not get the muscadines, but he got as fine a sample of chills and quinine as he ever had had in the old days, and he looked it. I was a resident of Denton county for years. I read Merchant's golden

Cattle Are Scarce W. H. Abernathy came in from the line of the Texas Central, where he had been looking after his cattle interests.

"I was in the vicinity of Hico and down at Morgan. Cattle are remarkably scarce, especially those which are fit for market purposes. The country is in very good shape to take care of stock as grass for winter is excellent and there is no lack of feed among the classes of which cotton seed takes, generally, first place. In speaking of of grass, alfalfa, etc., but the fact is that cotton seed and its products are among the leaders. There is an immense amount of cotton awaiting shipment along the right of way about Hice and the gins are running on full time just as they do in the early fall and winter, and picking is still going on. The scarcity of cars for shipping is, the great trouble and some people get mad and say things. Some say that if the railroads can't handle the traffic before that this was the headquarters that they had better sell out to the of The Stockman-Journal. In fact, government and be done with it. You see, when people have stuff upon which to realize money on they don't stop to ask questions but insist on having the work done. One man suggested that the whole trouble to the railroads was the fact that so much cotton had been raised that the oil had greased the tracks and the road could not move the trains. Others hooted at this and said that oil made things smooth in this day and generation for some men to run into office on, and it could not be that. Any way, joking aside, the dearth of cars is a serious thing with people now and promises that thingswill be better some time in the future don't seem to affect the situation in the least down about Hico."

Rough Feeding Cattle J. B. Sanders is one old time Texan

who hails now from Sapulpa, I. T., but is still in love with his native state. "Stock cattle are wintering in better shape than I ever saw them before. am rough feeding 1,400 head on the stalk fields, corn and cotton seed There are few mature hogs but the people are turning their attention to the hog business and it will pay, for we have a fine corn country and with grass and corghum we can make meat fat and put it on the market quickly. Cotton was fine this year and the gins are running almost all of the time. We have a compress in the town so you see we have a cotton country sure. Stock farming will be the best business with us in a little while sure. The country will soon be settled too thickly for stock to be run, as we have always been accustomed to have them. The thing that is making us more notice now than any other is the Glenn oil fields. Nearly every day a well is brought in and from expert oil men who have visited all the fields we learn that this field is the best that has come in yet. The development has been slow heretofore owing to the scarcity of labor, but when labor becomes more plentiful the development of the fields will progress in proportion

"I came down to put my girls at school in Whitewright. I was surprised to see how poor the cotton crop had been in Fannin county and the adjoining ones. Boll weevil and worms I learned, were the cause. I am a native of Texas and came from Hills-

sometimes a very good crop is made by individuals. Sugar beets are also another prime crop. The planting of our crop of potatoes begins in May and continues on into and through June. The marketing begins some time during the last of September and the first of October, and continues until planting time is again on hand.

All farmers have cellars in which they store their crop of potatoes and protect them from the cold when necessary by having fires to keep the atmosphere at an even temperature. In the cultivation of the potato crop we plant alfalfa, and when it is about a foot in height plow it under for a fertilizer. It is one of the best for that purpose, giving to the soil just what is needed for potatoes, and at the same time keeps the soil loose and prevents packing, which is the best condition for a crop of potatoes. Irrigation goes on, whether it is a rainy season or not, for it is best to keep up a system when you once begin it. I

TALK WITH THE TEXAS STOCK FARMERS

The Agricultural College

The Agricultural and Mechanical College as an educational institution of the state should hold precedence in minds of the people above any other, and this is said with no wish to speak or even hint a derogatory word of any other other institution that has been established by the state or the youths of the commonwealth. Just now the men who produce the raw naterial which goes to establish the idation for the state's prosperity, are waking up to the great possibilities it the soil and climate present to se engaged in the avocations of arming and stock raising and they are oking around for possible help to sist them in their efforts to follow he Biblical truism, "to make two ades of grass grow where one grew fore," and with this increase feed any more head of cattle which have fore depended upon the "one lade" that grew on the great ranges. At this time when these matters are racting the attention of the people naturally turn to the institution ich they have established in the inst of this very business that they re engaged in and ask of the repretive whom they have expected to the right thing, "What have you me to carry out the wishes of the ock-farming interests of the people?" n answer to this question The men who is employed by the state teach the principles of stock raising the youths who are sent to this in-"Prof. F. R. Marshall, will you speak

r the information of the people as to nt of the agricultural part of ege of which you are a memand teacher?" Of course as a teacher in the aniindustry section of the college ,I naturally more interested in that on of the business of the instituwhich comes directly under my supervision, the needs of which hus made very apparent from the of the necessary implements, as may be called, with which the has to be done, if done as it d be. I will remind you that I in no way criticising any one or department for the lack of these tessities which all other colleges h in the United States and Canada in superfluity, it would seem by parison. An evolution is now going n the state and the business that ferent branches of the college ints in the agricultural and stock g lines have but just begun to never was in the history of this such a wakening along agricul-I and stock raising lines, and never a demand for information that d be useful in making an increase e yield of crops. Of course, farming depends entirely upon for its success and a edge of the best methods to profeed for stock is as important as uent knowledge of stock the gether there. The young men from this college had studied the exact kind of animals they were to judge all the nsequent knowledge of stock the eing corollary of the other. Is as branch have an interest in the subject of agriculture in so far as it appertains to feeds and their relations to results when fed to stock. The intent of this branch of the subject matter is to instruct the students in such manner that he will be a capable man in his section of the state to instruct others, generally, of course, by example and precept, in the best methods to produce required results. For example, one of the students out in the western part of the state was selected at a district fair to judge the stock. This being the case it necessarily follows that every means should be at hand to enable scholars to attain as thoro a knowledge of the subject as it possible during the course of study. Among the most necessary things in the study of an animal or animals should be, as any one would see at once, a sufficient number of animals of all species and grades, horses, cattle, sheep and hogs, to enable the study of the kind to be most complete.

"To illustrate: The college selected myself and six of the students as a class to go to the International Live Stock Show that came off in Chicago in December. I selected the class and of course those who were thought to be the best in their lines to sustain the honor of Texas were chosen. Of these one was from Fort Worth, Ed Van Zandt, a son of Major Van Zandt. Now the contest that these boys were to enter was to be composed of classes from any agricultural college in the United States and Canada. These colleges have every appointment that could possibly be required for instruction. Taking the Iowa college for example. It has specimens of every class and grade of animals that are used for domestic purposes in the civilized mestic purposes in the civilized world. Norman, Clydesdale, Frenca, German, etc., among the horses; Poland-China, Berkshire, Durock Jersey and all the other swine; Shropshire, Merino and all the other sheep; polled cattle of all classes, Durhams, Herefords, Holsteins, Jerseys and all others in common use. This college was in the market at the International show with $35,000 to make purchases of fine stock, the finer the better, for the instruction of their students. The president of the Agricultural college of Mississippi was on hand with $25,000 for the same purpose, all the money in both instances being appropriated by the respective states for that purpose. I will not enter into details of the contest at Chicago, but it will suffice to say that Iowa carried off the first prize. Texas stood second in the horse contest. I wish to remark that there was not a class of young men from young gentlemen. Why then did they not win out? "In theory of course they were the equal of any, but it takes practical experience added to theory and there is where our boys fell down. The Iowa class have at the college every species of animal of the finest, bought at these shows, before their eyes all the time and the theory and practical work to-any college that could compete in in-nce with my class of Texas

session before they came to Chicago, and it was no new lesson to them. Altogether we have at our agricultural college not more than seven hundred dollars' worth of animals of all kinds, including everything. It is true that at times some generous stockman will lend us a herd of his fine stuff for the boys, but no one can afford to do this

"The class of Texas boys had visited the fairs at Dallas and San Antonio, but outside of that all they knew was theory. As one of our lads said in explaining to the Iowa boys, who expressed the opinion that the Texans must have a lot-of fine stock at their college being a cattle country, 'No, we have no animals.' "Then how did you learn so much?" asked the Iowa lad. 'From books and from pictures," he replied,' and they stared at him in utter surprise. Yet those theoretical boys took second place in judging horses.

"Of course, there are many, many needs at the college, but in my Jepartment the absolute necessity for the legislature to appropriate money in sufficient quantity to enable the college authorities to buy at least stock of all classes in numbers sufficient for good work and provision for taking care of them, is a crying need. In the past the mechanical branch of the college has been given much more attention than the agricultural, which includes the animal department, and in consequence it is in much better condition as to apparatus, etc., than the agricultural, Of course, when a student first comes he is shown thru toe departments and seeing how much better the mechanical department is sunplied he will naturally desire to take that course and generally does. I cannot enter into too long a discussion of this subject, etc., but I am in hopes that when the stock-farmers of the state understand conditions and the necessities of the college they will insist upon a sufficient appropriation each year to at least give the students of agriculture and animal industry a fair chance to learn their work.

"Colonel Tom Bugbee has generously allowed the college to have 100 steers he is feeding at Clarendon to experiment with. He has 2,500 acres of Kaffir corn which he raised this year, and proposes to furnish as much of that as will be necessary in the experiment. In fact, he pays all expenses of every kind. The experiment will be with the fattening qualities of a ration composed of Kaffir corn and cotton seed meal. There are many very generous men in Texas who take a great interest in the college and they can be relied upon to always be ready to aid in in any way."

Farmers Turning to Stock Very few stockmen or stockfarmers have visited the headquarters of the livestock interests of Texas, located in Fort Worth, for the last week, these workers having a mind to enjoy the pleasures of the Christmas holidays just as others do. but nevertheless some have been on hand with or without stuff to market, and among them was S. W. Buchanan, who resides in Bryan, Brazos county, Texas.

"Yes, I am a stockman with a stock-

The favorite class of cattle made ready for the evolution by is the Devon, altho there can be found trading all my rough grass lands to a mixture of almost all breeds. The the Matador Cattle Company for good Devon makes a very serviceable anismooth sections that were sure things mal, making good beef and also are for cultivation, and I now have my land in a body and it is all good for the plow and will sell well some time. I am in no special hurry. I intend to cultivate a part of my land this year. We are sixty miles from a railroad, but there has been about five thousand bales of cotton raised in the county. It has to be hauled to Childress and good milkers and butter producers. Hogs have become a leading feature of the stock-farming interests and so far the Poland-China and the Berkshire have been the favorites, but the first named hog is losing ground in the favor of the people from the fact that they have ceased to be good breeders. This class of hogs do not bring more than four or five pigs in a litter, so in contrast with other up with us, for the Matador Land and classes they do not show up well. The Cattle Company owns nearly all of farmers have had good crops this year and have plenty of money, and the banks never held as much cash on deposit. Almost all kinds of fruit and vegetables are easily raised in quantitles, which only need proper methods of distribution to put much money into circulation of the country. "A good crop of Irish potatoes are being marketed now, which were harvested this fall, and they are fine. There are still plenty of young potatoes to be had in the market now. Cabbage, snap beans, shellots and other things of a like character are plentiful with us at this late season. Di-

and it is also fine for all stock. We had extra good cotton this year and fair corn and the boll weevil did not have much to do with things this "One advantage that we have had is the fact that the agricultural and mechanical college is so near us that our people can easily adapt themselves to what is going on there and new ideas are constantly being instilled into the farmers' craniums to be used by them in the future. Fertilizers are coming into use with us and the best methods for their application and the right kind of fertilizers to use, etc., can be easily learned at the college It is a great institution and should have the earnest support of every farmer and stockman in the state, so versification has struck in with our people and they always have some-way, which is to plant the burr clover

up the college. Bryan has become quite a city, having now 6,900 people, and many insti-tutions of a public and semi-public character to boast of its progress. Among the institutions that have the most attraction for our people are the five public school buildings which have been erected for the accommodation of the children of the town.

NEW YORK STOCKS CLOSED WEAKER

Slow Operations Follow Very Weak Opening

Special to The Telegram.

NEW YORK, Jan. 19.-Stocks were weaker at the opening and displayed a very dull undertone for the greater part of the early session. Toward noon more activity was developed and the market was unsteady and very nervous until near the close, when further liquidation on great margin calls was in progress, while the bears began to increase their aggressiveness. Opera-tions were attended with considerable irregularity and while today's fluctuations reached near yesterday's low level, the ruling prices were only frac-tionally reduced and the market rallied fairly well on the publication of the bank statement, which, all things con-sidered, was favorable enough. In view of the easier money situation, investment buying increased and the Harrimans, Pennsylvania, Baltimore and Ohio, Atchison and Steel preferred are returning attractive dividends at quoted prices. The nervous condition of the market, however, may bring about a reversal of sentiment at any time, and the present supply of stocks will not be over-plentiful when stocks

The favorable bank statement did not cause the improvement in stocks that was looked for, and the trading was very slow and the market weak thruout the short session. The quotations were

HESTER'S REPORT SHOWS INCREASE

Big Gain in Movement Over 1903 and 1904

Special to The Telegram. NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 19.-The weekly statement of Secretary Hester of the New Orleans Cotton Exchange, issued at the close of business last night, shows an increase in the movement into sight compared with the seven days ending this date last year, of 215,000 bales, and an increase the same days in 1905 of 261,000 and an increase for the same day in 1904 of 174,000.

For the eighteen days of January the totals show an increase over last year of 575,000 bales, an increase over the same period year before last of 556,000 and an increase over the same time in 1904 of 427,000. For the 140 days of the season that have elapsed the aggregate is ahead of the 140 days of last-year 1,526,000 bales, ahead the same days year before last 786,000 and ahead of 1904 by 1.520,000. The amount brought into sight during the past week has been 425,590 bales, against 210,752 for the seven days ending this date last year, 163,521 year before last and 251,456 same time in 1904 and, for the eighteen days of January it has been 1,128,601, against 556,410 last year, 542,728 year before last and 701,187 same time in 1904.

The movement since Sept. 1 shows receipts at all United States ports 6,-793,030 bales, against 5,470,543 last year, 6,349,283 year before last and 5,724,166 same time in 1904. Overland across the Mississippi, Ohio and Potomac rivers to northern mills and Canada 690,131. against 506,609 last year, 602,563 year before last and 567,050 same time in 1903, interior stocks in excess of those held at the close of the commercial year 632,513, against 562,477 last year, year 632,513, against 562,477 last year, 899,598 year before last and 409,959 same time in 1904; southern mills takings 1,138,000, against 1,087,608 last year, 1,923,848 year before last and 933,121 same time in 1904.

These make the total movement for the 140 days of the season from Sept. 1 to date 9,163,674 bales, against 7,627,237 last year, 8,575,262 year before last and 7,633,309 same time in 1904. NEW YORK COTTON

Special to The Telegram. NEW YORK, Jan. 19-New York futures opened at a loss of from 3 to 5 points, and while the market was rather irregular, the fluctuations were within exceedingly narrow margins. Later in the short session some improvement was made, especially in March, but nothing of importance developed. The otherwise bearish into sight figures was offset by the very bullish takings by spinners, which were as follows:

This week, 350,000 bales, against 251,000 last year and 274,000 bales the year before. Of this, northern and Canadian spinners took 1,472,000 bales, against 1,412,000 bales last year and 1,316,000 bales the year before. Southern spinners took 1,154,000 bales, against 1,104,000 bales last year, and 2,992,000 the year before.

The late improvement in the market developed stronger than was expected, when shorts began to cover on the declines, in anticipation of better values, and bought the closing quotation, 14 points better at the close than the opening, while March made a net gain of 11 points, May a net gain of 9 points and July gained 8 points. The quotations were as follows:

NEW YORK, Jan. 19. January ... 9.21 9.21 9.35-36 March 9.38 9.50 9.36 9.49-50 May 950 9.60 July 9.59 9.67 9.56 9.67-68

TEN POINTS GAIN IN N. O. COTTON

Covering by Shorts Caused Values to Advance

Special to The Telegram. NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 19.-The opening of New Orleans futures was barely steady with Friday's closing quotations. While the increase in the visible was very bearish, the mill takings were fully as bullish, which held the market fairly steady for a great portion of the day, otherwise the into sight statement of Secretary Hester of the New Orleans Cotton Exchange would have had a bearish effect on the market at the early opening, in that the visible supply at the close of business last night was an increase over the past three years for the same period. The comparative figures gives the into sight movement for the past seven days an increase of 261,000 bales over last year, and an increase of 174,000 bales over the year before. For the four and one-half months of the season that have elapsed the aggregate is ahead of the figures of last year by 1,526,000 bales, and for the seven days ending this date last year there is a gain of 575,000 bales and an increase over the same time in 1904 by 427,000 bales.

There was a great falling off in mill takings, comparing the figures with the Spot news was not satisfactory, the export trade complaining that there was a significant absence of a demand from Europe. Local factors seemed willing to sell, and if a bullish census report was not expected next week, there would in all probability be a break in futures from the present low level. Much depends, however, on the bureau report. The close was steady at an advance of 4 to 10 points above the opening.

STRENGTH SHOWN IN GRAIN MARKET

Provisions Close Steady With Opening Prices

CHICAGO, Jan. 19 .- The grain and provision market displayed some more strength today, and trading in the pit was more animated.

Wheat opened with a strong undertone and quotations were generally at an advance. Advices fro mthe north west showed more unfavorable weather for the movement of the crop, and the receipts at various grain cen tesr for export were heavy, con mostly from stocks stored in warehouses, and northwestern shipping points where it has been stored for some time waiting for transportation facilities. The export demand seems to increase, and the supply so far has not been fully equal to the demand. Foreign cables indicate that wheat closed about as expected, being influenced very little by the imports from America. Argentina is experiencing much difficulty in marketing the crop the quality of which is said the crop, the quality of which is said to be of an inferior quality. Corn and oats were strong, and trading operations active. There were more buyers than sellers, the local longs seeming to maintain a bu position. However, at the high fig-ures, considerable quantities were sold Provisions were not so strong as the last few days. The opening was generally weaker, and but slight recovery was made thruout the day's trad ing. The principal difference in the figures was in the closing bids. The support that has been given pork by county packers was lacking, and the market was comparatively dull.

SOCIETY GIRL BRINGS

Special to The Telegram SEATTLE Wash., Jan. 17.-Mrs. Nellie Ramsey Collins, who as Miss Nellie Ramsey was one of the most popular society girls of this city, received a postal recently addressed in care of "The Red Light District," and now she wants heavy damages from the Northern Pacific Company, alleging that the card caused her to lose an "advantageous marriage contract." Society is as busy as it can be talking about the case. Meanwhile Mrs. Collins, now a bride, is assuring her friends she will have redress a plenty. Last spring Miss Ramsey's betrothed forwarded her a parcel. The address was not complete. Acting on an incorrect understanding, the agent sent the mischief-making postal, Thereupon Miss Ramsey found her-self in a pretty pickle. A member of one of the prominent families of the state, and visiting in Seattle with friends at the time, the story of the postal soon became current.

Life Among the Pigmies

I had been for weeks in the vast woodland of the Eternal Twilight, in the very heart of darkest Africa, so that the Pigmies knew me and were inclined to do anything I asked of them. One day I had dispatched a messenger ahead, inviting the Pigmies to meet me at a certain place in the forest. Sure enough, I found on arrival a full dozen awaiting the coming of "The Big White Chief," as they were pleased to call me. On looking them over we found that no women were present and a messenger was at once dispatched asking some to come. Soon after four women appeared, and behold, with them a Pigmy baby seated astride its mother's left hip, the first Pigmy baby I had ever seen. It was little smaller than an ordinary baby-if there is such a thing as an "ordinary baby"-with head well shaped, body well developed, eyes bright, its laugh as cheerful as that of a white child, and its cry as insistent and sad. The Pigmies went thru various performances for our entertainment. First they sat on the ground in an ellipse, Three elected to place their haunches on sections of two inch tree trunks. How they could be more comfortable there than on the level ground probably only a Pigmy could explain. But I doubt not that they could give as good an explanation as that of the Polynesians who have sections of bamboo trunks for pillows. The Sultan of the Pigmies wore a bit of foreign cloth about his head and an equally small bit about his body; others were equally seantily supplied with bark-cloth. The Sultan held a piece of heavy wood rounded on each side, half an inch thick and ten inches long, in his left hand. The other Pigmies made grimaces which at times suggested the facial expressions of apes, orang-outangs and monkeys, while their voices were engaged in a weird woodland chant. Then the Sultan sang a solo and all the others joined in the re-

When two local drums struck up they all arose and danced with the right foot, the left hand, and the face, Other musical instruments they have none, tho I searched their huts and camp to see. The dance was followed by a march, first in a circle, then in the form of an ellipse, the women joinwith the baby enjoyed it as much as the rest, and the child offered neither visible nor audible objection to the ollification, altho it must have been onsiderably jolted.

The voices of the Pigmies are melo-dious; this holds true in all their fun The Pigmy faces are well formed from the eyebrows up. I noticed that one of them had very well developed the phrenological bump of reason. The Pigmies have well developed brows, while other black people have almost none. I say black people, but I have seen very few black people in Africa. The Pigmies are not black; they are brown with black hair, and all that I have seen have been well developed in the chests.

The Pigmies are pleasant people, because they keep their persons very clean. The Pigmy bathes often. When

Think of nearly ONE HUNDRED MILLIONS of boxes of Cascarets sold in the last eleven years, all on the pure merit of this wonderful preparation, and every tablet of nearly a BILLION TABLETS having exactly the same Purity, Quality and Medicinal Merit as the rest of them. It is the PURITY OF PRO-CESS that made this seeming miracle possible—purity in the sense of exactness, nicety, care and selection.

When, in 1896, Cascarets were first created, the purpose of its makers was to make the best Bowel Remedy ever designed and compounded. The preparation was to be pure and harmless, made by PURE PROCESSES, and sold under a pure promise that it would accomplish always what was claimed, with the alternative of a guaranty or money refunded.

The grateful recommendation of hundreds of thousands of pleased patrons who found Cascarets to be TRUE and dependable was by far the greatest element in the promotion of their success.

Now that the PURE POOD AND DRUG ACT has gone into effect, we cannot refrain from welcoming it for the benefit of the people, and at the same time from claiming that we adopted OUR OWN PURE DRUGS act in 1896, and by steadfast adherence to the principles then set to guide the base convinces the world of the power of purity and truth as exemplified by Cascarets, a pure, honest, harmless, reliable article for the pre-

This bath not only insures cleanliness but warmth as well. expected to find these strange little freaks of humanity unwashed and unkempt, but my personal observation found them otherwise. They have a reputation for bathing which may not be borne out by the facts. To wit, Mrs. Browning in the Dead Pan writes:

"In what revels are ye sunken In old Aethiopia? Have the Pigmies made you drunken Bathing in mandragora?"

Because they are not nervous. The Pigmies are not easily inconvenienced by weather or accident. They are less sensible to pain than white skins. They are naturally thus, altho Isidorus and Serapion would no doubt hold it due to bathing in narcotic mandragora and thereby diminished sensibility to pain. What a blessing it must be to the Pigmy families not to have the thousand ills that civilized flesh is helr to! Because they are jolly. These mannikin are not mad for gain, and therefore have more shouts for joy than misers. Truly it is said: "O' delved gold, the wailer's heap." The Pigmies do not understand coin and hoarded wealth, which as often saddens as re-

Full of fun are these odd little denizens of the forest. They dance and romp and play to their heart's content. I am pleased to write that they invite their wives to participate in their pleasures and diversions. In-deed, in wife treatment they are superior to their bigger neighbors. They may at times roam idly in the forest, but what I have seen makes me think they are too full of jolly mischief to be very lazy. I noticed during my sojourn among the Pigmies that mimicry employs some of their time while at play. A droll humor which is exceedingly funny results. They can imitate their larger neighbors, or the white man, and take them off to perfection. To see them strut about in the dance with stiff legs and solemn faces fills one with roars of laughter. Mimics have great powers of observation and this is characteristic of the Pigmy. His whole life tends to the development of that faculty. Could we write the entire dwarf history, the chapters given to the real Mambutti or Pigmy of the dark heart of Africa would bring from the reader a tear of sympathy and the voice of helpfulness. In all the mighty forest there are no schools, churches or im-provement societies. If the Pigmy can with his present opportunities "win the secret of a weed's plain heart," with the help of missionary and teacher he may reach the high altitude of a daily newspaper. Were the Pigmy to print a paper now, methinks it would con-tain an ink-cry for help. While it is the task of anatomical science to prove that these small varieties of the human race have been the predecessors of full sized humanity, yet we may safely, I think, infer that the Pigmies were the first inhabitant of Central Africa and hence among the greatest land owners on the earth. Why should they who chronologically are the first be the last to receive the healthful results of Christian philanthropy? While the Figmy has his forest, his food and his fun, set he in paser in expertunities to the name of our Lord. I am remind-ed of the cuts, caustic but Christian words of Thomas Carlyle, "The Cause of the Poor in Gof's Name and the

Moffat had hoped for the man who could laugh; the Pigmy is included in that. I like the Pigmies. Room for improvement, to be sure. "Can the Ethiopian change his skin?" A white skin is a great bother in tropical Africa. It is fortunate for the Pigmy that he cannot change his skin. If he could he might not get a good fit, and I reckon there is nothing more uncomfortable than a skin that does not Lend the Pigmy a hand. His ancestors have sunk down into the mould of the forest; let not the present-day Pigmies go into the past in like circumstances. Let the old Gospel story be told in the compact area of black forest. The grace of God can re-make the Pigmy. Thru his dense forests I passed unharmed and unharming. Are there no preachers to go to the Pigmies?
