The last school taught in the Flag Springs building was conducted by B. C. Chrisman, Sr., and Carroll Surles assistant. This was the school year 1905-1906.

At the close of the 1905-1906 school term, the citizens of the community raised sufficient funds for the construction of a new building at a new location. Mr. Brantly, a carpenter from McKinney, assisted by his son, Claxton, was employed to supervise the construction of the new building. By the beginning of the 1906 1907 school term, the new building, of two rooms and two stories, was completed and ready for the school term.

Soon after the construction of the first Flag Springs school building, a Baptist church was organized and the spiritual needs of the community were served by J. R. Kelly (also a school teacher) I. D. Hull, Uncle Charnel Hightower and C. C Andrews. All services were held in the Flag Springs school build-

In 1901 or 1902, a new church building was constructed at the present site and pastored by I. D. Hull, B. G. Richbourg, Revs. Wililams, Ivy, Joe Mayes and O'Bryant in the early days.

The first store in the community was constructed by John and Jim Clark in the year 1898. After a few years the building was sold to Mack Jones and he established the first and only drug store of the community. After the sale of the building to Mack Jones, the Clark Brothers constructed a new two-story building, a few feet to the west of their original building and engaged in the general mercantile

Many things we have gained and some we have lost in the slow march of civilization. To the early settler generosity was a cardinal virtue sometimes carried to an extreme that this day would seem ludicrous in this day of sharp competition.

The appeal of the sick and distressed called forth a steady reponse from the scattered ranthers and farmers of the early days and they vied with each other to bring the first relief to those who were in distress. No one was called upon to solicit aid, it was sufficient to make known a worthy object of charity and the response was spon-

In the Heyser pasture near Atwell there is a lonely and unmarked grave. Though none now living remember her name, Mrs. John Heyser, on whose land the grave is located, remembers the death of the little girl, and assisted in preparing her shroud. Her name has been forgotten, if it was ever known.

In the summer of 1877, before the marriage of Mrs. Heyser, a family from Missouri came traveling through this part of the state. They camped under the shade of a small liveoak tree. There the little girl became suddenly ill and died that night.

There were none to render aid whom the father knew, and as far as his knowledge of the country, there were none upon whom he could call.

But, "God moves in a mysterious way. His wonders to perform," so when believing he was in a wilderness and probably miles away from civilization, alone with his living and dead, away from the distance came the crowing of a rooster. Contrary to the crowing of the cock that reminded Peter of his betrayal of Christ, which brought chagrin and remorse to that desciple, the crowing of this cock brought glad tidings to this sorrowing family, that human beings were near, and in the direction from whence the sound came he walked and found sympathetic hands ready and willing to aid him in his distress. Where the rooster crowed was the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Downs, where Mr. and Mrs.
