Specialist Says Lawns Need Extra Attention In Fall

Now is the time to start thinking about the fall care of lawns, reminds E. M. Trew, extension pasture specialist.

Fertilization should be emphasized, points out Trew. Properly fertilized lawn grasses will go into winter in a vigorous condition and will remain green longer in the fall and will grow off earlier next spring.

Fertilization should be applied about a month before the first expected frost, advises Trew. If summer grass is pushed into lush growth by late fertilization, it may be damaged by a hard freeze. Applying fertilizer too late prevents grass from getting the most out of it before going dormant.

Apply a complete fertilizer with a 2-1-1 or 1-1-1 ratio at a rate to supply two pounds of actual nitrogen per 1,000 square feet of lawn, recommends the specialist. This amount of nitrogen would be found in 20 pounds of 10-5-5 or 10-10-10, or in 25 pounds of 8-8-8.

After fertilizer has been spread, Trew advises watering it down. Soak the soil at least six inches deep. Facility of moisture is necessary, for plants can't use fertilizer until it is dissolved. If the soil is already wet, just wash the fertilizer off the grass and onto the soil.

Ryegrass is sometimes overseeded on Bermuda to give green color during the winter, but, Trew says, this is sometimes harmful to the Bermuda. Ryegrass is usually growing in the spring when Bermuda should start and unless the ryegrass is kept closely clipped, it often give Bermuda serious competition for light, moisture and plant food. If ryegrass is seeded on a Bermuda lawn, Italian or annual ryegrass should be used for they die in the spring. Ryegrass should not be overseeded on grasses other than Bermuda.

For additional information, Trew suggests getting B-203, "Home Lawns", from the county agent or the Agricultural Information Office, College Station, Texas.

Roughage Feeding Will Cut Dairy Production Costs

Increased milk profits may be received by feeding dairy cows all the good roughage they will eat, says A. M. Meekma, extension dairy husbandman.

This is true because nutrients in roughage cost less than nutrients in other forms, Meekma adds. He points out that a cow on pasture will give more milk if she receives supplementary feed, but the amount of supplement needed depends on the quality of pasture she is grazing and the quality of other roughage she receives, such as hay or silage.

So for an economical dairy ration, Meekma advises beginning with high-quality pasture or other roughage and adding concentrates which give the most protein value for the least money. Naturally the type of concentrate used will depend on the type which is most plentiful in the operator's locality.

The husbandman suggests contacting the county agent for more advice on how to produce and preserve high quality roughage and on which concentrates to feed with the roughage to make the most economical ration. He reminds that any decrease in the feed bill is an increase in net profit.

Man in the making

You watch your bright-haired boy turn in a twinkling from rowdy horseplay to tender cherishing of an injured bird.

How humbly proud you are of such evidence that your son is growing—in all directions!

And how you want for him a world where there are no barriers to his development as a free and independent American.

There are many ways you can help assure this sort of world for him. One very important way is to be on the watch for ideas that could deprive him of his right to freedom and independence.

The idea, for instance, that "government should run such and such a business, a service, an institution." Even though it has been shown that the more things government runs, the less freedom there is for the individual.

When you hear people talking like that, point out that when you take independence away from anybody, you undermine the freedom of everybody.

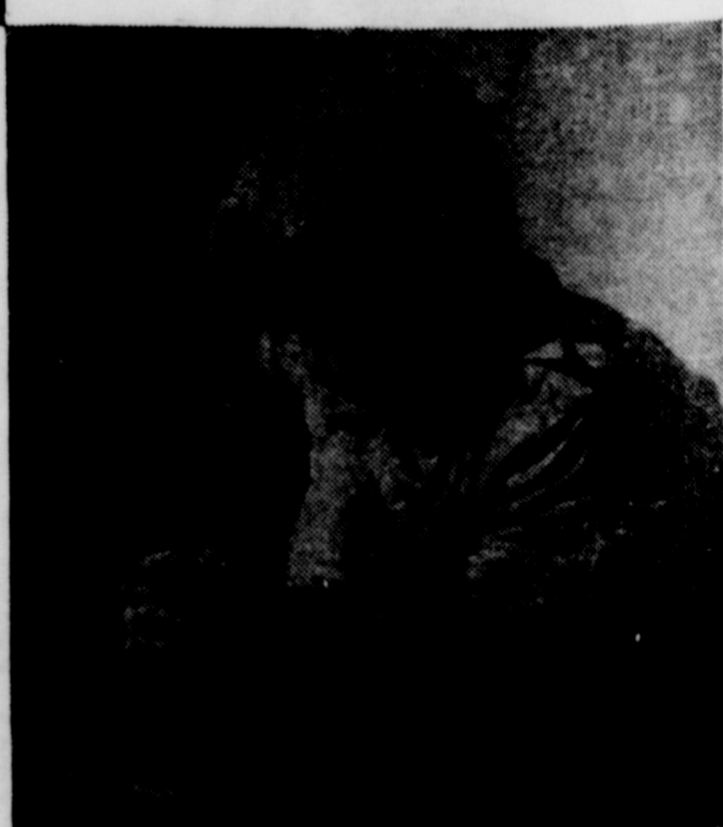

Very much aware of this threat are the independent electric companies, because government already runs part of the electric business. And powerful people are pressing government to take over more.

TATE CAPITAL Highlights AND Sidelights

by Vern Sanford

TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

More dust is being stirred up over candidates for the General Election, Nov. 4. The Legislature will vote on nine proposals to amend the Constitution, providing for annual sessions and salaries in the Legislature subject of hot debate.

Pro: Supporters say annual sessions will allow more time for consideration of important matters. State financial planning could be done for one year at a time. No more having to guessimate financial needs for two years ahead. Better pay would be a step toward attracting the best qualified persons to lawmaking. Such influential and hard-working groups as the Texas

Junior Chamber of Commerce are pushing this amendment.

Con: Equally outspoken are the opponents who say it would cause needless expense when money is already short. More time in session means more chances to spend money. Proposed salary still is not enough to attract top-notch talent, but "expenses of office" could open the door to fat-cattling with public funds. Sen. Dorsey Hardeman of San Angelo is the recognized spokesman for the "antis" which include some other lawmakers and other groups.

2. Would allow counties to extend participation in their retirement, disability and death compensation plans to elective officials of the county and precinct. Present arrangement covers only appointive officials and employees of the county.

Pro: It is a permissive law. No county has to do it unless the voters say so. It would give elective officials the same privileges as appointees, be an attraction to office.

Con: It sets no requirement for length of service. An official might serve one term or less—and receive benefits.

3. Would allow the County Commissioners Court to fill vacancies in the office of County Judge and Justices of the Peace only until the next general election. Presently such appointments are for the remainder of the unexpired term, up to four years.

Pro: It would give voters the right to choose their own replacement to office as soon as possible.

Con: Since campaigns are so costly, there would be less incentive to run for the office for only a two-year term.

4. Would provide for automatic resignation of a district, county and precinct official who announces for any other public office more than one year before the end of his term in office.

Pro: It would keep officials on the job rather than out campaigning for some other office.

Con: It would discriminate against district, county and precinct officials since other officials—U. S. senators, state senators, railroad commissioners and others with more than two-year terms—can run for another office in mid-term.

5. Would allow Home Rule cities to extend terms of their elective and appointive officials from two years to four years.

Pro: It is permissive; each city can make its own decision. Two-year term hardly allow an official time to get a program started before he has to get out and run again.

Con: Elections every two years give voters more control, build up citizen interest in government.

6. Would provide pensions, not to exceed $80 a month, for retired Texas Rangers and widows of Rangers who retired before the 1947 State Employees Retirement System was established. Money would come from the Confederate Pension Fund.

Pro: Since funds are available, it would put no extra burden on taxpayers. Protective dating clause would prevent marrying for pensions.

Con: It would allow ex-Rangers to receive pensions for as little as two years' service and with no payments on their part, a more generous arrangement than is provided for other states employees.

7. Would allow Legislature to appropriate money for advertising the advantages of Texas in nationally-circulated publications. Use of the name or picture of any living state officials would be prohibited, and public funds would have to be matched by private funds.

Pro: Texas is one of only three states without a state program to attract tourists and industry. Proponents say it would pay for itself many times by bringing new money into the state.

Con: This should be handled by the businesses who would benefit through their trade associations, chambers of commerce, etc.

8. Would allow the Legislature to appropriate money to pay for medical care for people who receive old age assistance, aid to the blind and aid to dependent children.

Pro: It would provide help for people whose small monthly checks cannot possibly cover medical emergencies. Since payments would be made only to the vendor (doctor, hospital or what not), the money could be used only for its intended purpose.

Con: It would cost the state an estimated $9,000,000, with no limit on how much it could drain from the Treasury. It would mean double taxation for cities and counties already providing medical care for their needy.

9. Would allow the Legislature to authorize creation of hospital districts in Amarillo, Wichita County and Jefferson County.

Pro: It is permissive. People in the affected areas could decide what they want to do with it.

Con: Proposed amendment is long (1,000 words), detailed and so complicated that few voters can even understand it. If such provisions are needed, they should be made in statutes rather than by adding to our already-long Constitution.

Rough Road Ahead—Latest reports by the State Tax Study Commission list several possible new tax sources the Legislature could turn to for additional revenue.

They include (1) new selective sales taxes, (2) a general retail sales tax, (3) a personal income tax, (4) a "value-added" tax levied on difference between selling price and cost to seller, (5) a gross income and receipts tax on business and (6) a corporation net income tax.

Mr. and Mrs. Roger Watson and Mr. and Mrs. Jack DeBusk attended the State Fair in Dallas Wednesday of last week.

Mrs. Sam Barr returned from Brownwood Thursday of last week after a few days' visit in the home of her son, Alton Barr, and family.

Mrs. Hettie Lacy left Friday for Lampasas, where she visited Friday night with her son and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Lacy and son, Wade. Mrs. Lacy was met there by her daughter, Mrs. Linden Newton of Vanderbilt, and accompanied her home for an extended visit.

Visitors recently in the home of Mrs. Earnest Washburn were here her sister, Mrs. Nancy Pierceson and also her niece, Mrs. Peggy Price, both of Richmond, Calif., and her brother and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Harris of Fort Stockton.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Spencer were in Dallas during the week end visiting with relatives, and Saturday attended the concert given by the McMurry Indian Band, of which their son, Bill, is a member, at the State Fair of Texas.

SADDLE BAGS AND MEDICINE

During the "Horse and Buggy Days" a Doctor's Saddle Bags were very important to him. In them he was used to carry what medications he could along with him on each call, since there was no other quick way could get it to the patient. However, even then depend on the Pharmacist to prepare most medications of importance.

Today's modern Medical Doctor does not have to keep his medications to those he can carry in his bag in his office, and besides, he is far too busy to have the time to dispense medications himself. Now, most Doctors do carry emergency medications in their bags and offices now, most of which are new bags that are furnished them at no charge by the manufacturers, for their evaluation. However, as in the past, your Doctor depends almost 100 per cent on the Pharmacist for his important medications, for which he writes Prescriptions.

Without modern Pharmacies, your Medical Doctor would be sorely handicapped because he would have to limit his medication to those he could carry himself. This would be a step back to the "Horse and Buggy Days," and would put a much heavier work load on our already overworked doctors.

Our Pharmacy is modern in every respect, and the doctors in this area have come to depend on us for the right medicine at the right time. They know that we carry complete stocks of all the tried and proven over drugs and they can depend on us at any hour of the day or night for the proper medication, thus having to limit their treatment to a handful of pills of some kind which could be dispensed from their office.
