Dillard Family Escapes Near Tragedy At Lake Brownwood

Mr. and Mrs. Neal Dillard and family are considering themselves one of the luckiest families in the world this week when they escaped a near-tragedy while enjoying an outing at their cabin on Lake Brownwood Sunday afternoon.

The family had gathered at the cabin and the men had gone in the boat to fish, leaving Mrs. Dillard and her daughters and children to enjoy the afternoon together. LaNeal, the Dillard's 10-year-old daughter was fishing on the boat dock when she slipped and fell into deep water. Unable to swim, she remained calm and clung to the dock until members of the family arrived to assist in getting her out of the water.

As her sister, Mrs. Jackie Pan-cake rushed to the dock to help, she suffered a badly sprained ankle and is able to get around only with the aid of crutches. Had it not been for the calmness of LaNeal, perhaps other members of the family would have met tragedy, as none of the family assisting her were able to swim.

Ferrell Newton Named Clyde Superintendent

Ferrell Newton, popular high school principal here for the past four years, was elected as superintendent of the Clyde schools the past week, according to an announcement made by H. E. Swoford, president of the Clyde School Board, Wednesday last week.

He replaces Bailey Johnson, veteran Clyde superintendent who announced recently that he was retiring at the end of this current school year. Newton will take over the reins of the Clyde schools July 1.

Newton holds a BS degree from Texas A&M College, an ME from Howard Payne College and he also attended Tarleton State and McMurry colleges. He has been teaching for 11 years, one in elementary school, four in the Callahan County GI Vocational School, and six years in the local high school, including the last four as principal.

A son of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis E. Newton, he was born and reared in the Cross Cut community and graduated as an honor student from Cross Plains High School. He served in the Navy during World War II until injuries forced his discharge in 1946.

He is married to the former Miss Maxine Strong, daughter of the late Houston Strong and Mrs. Strong, former residents of Cross Plains. They have four children, three daughters and a son. Newton is a member of the First Methodist Church here and the local Masonic Lodge.

Along with his duties as principal of the local school, he has also served as a science teacher and as an assistant coach and girls basketball coach.

8 Baseball Teams Organized For League Play This Season

Try-outs for Little League baseball teams were held last Friday afternoon when a total of 23 new players reported. Due to the large number of boys participating, six teams had to be organized, according to an announcement made here this week by H. McDonald, League

President. There will be four major league teams and two minor league teams. These, together with two Teen-Age teams will give Cross Plains over 100 boys participating in baseball programs here this summer.

Following is a listing of each team roster: Minor League "Cubs": Mike Lusk, Clay Kinnard, Jr., Vern Webb, Randy Foster, Jimmy McCowen, Lanny Kellar, O. B. Byrd, Jr., Danny McGowen, Donald Wilson, Darryl Har-grove and Albert Lee, Jr. The Cubs will be managed by Howard McGowen.

Plans Completed For Teen-Age Ball League

According to an announcement made here this week, sponsors and managers have been secured for two teen-age baseball teams in Cross Plains and boys are now signing cards for registration in this league this week. Boys who have not received cards can get them from James Alexander at the local high school and all boys from surrounding communities are invited to participate, it was said.

Boys whose ages are between 13 and 15 will be eligible to play, but applicants who will be 16 before Aug. 1 of this year, will not be permitted to start the season. Any boy who desires to play regardless of ability, will be allowed to play.

Sponsors for the teams will be Dillard Drilling Co. and Bill Pope, Bulldozers.

There will be a regular league team composed of members of the two local teams to compete in league play with Baird, Clyde and probably Moran. The champion of this group will play a one-game play-off with the winner of the eastern half composed of two teams from Cisco, Eastland and Ranger, for the league championship.

Locally, the remaining boys with the regular league players will be divided into two teams and will play twice a week until regular league play begins in June.

Beginning in June league games will be played on Tuesday and Friday. A schedule for May will appear in next week's edition of The Review.

Insurance on all ball players will be carried and will cover the boy from the time he leaves home to play ball until he returns home. Boys are asked to pay the $1 fee for their own insurance. The player will be expected to furnish their own gloves and shoes, if desired. Players of this league will be allowed to wear cleated shoes but these are not demanded, it was said. All other expenses of the season will be taken care of by the league.

PHILOSOPHER WONDERS WHY TOP SPACE MEN ALL CAME FROM SMALL TOWNS

Editor's Note: The Bayou Philosopher on his Johnson grass farm on the Bayou discusses education this week. It's a free country, and he seems to be taking advantage of it.

Dear editor: When it comes to talking about education, I can speak without any conflict of interest, if you understand what I mean, and I was interested in an article I read some time ago about a famous educator who has surveyed the public education system in this country and announced that it was his opinion a high school to be really first class has to have at least 100 members in the senior class.

Since I didn't go to a high school that big when I was in school, I guess you can say he has a pretty good argument, but something turned up in the newspapers the other day that has got me to thinking. It's about these seven men the country has picked to be the first men to fly off into space. As I understand it, the armed services searched from top to bottom to find the best equipped men, physically, mentally, etc. to make this attempt, and where did the top seven men come from? From small towns most people never heard of before. Now I know some educator is gonna butt out and say the purpose of public schools isn't to train men to conquer space, but you'd think at least one or two of these superbly equipped men would come from a big city with a big school. I know it's nicer to have well-equipped schools, and the bigger the school the better chance it has of being well equipped, but I have a notion there are some people in this country it wouldn't make any difference what size school you put them in, they'd miss the boat. And on the other hand, there are some young people who make the boat regardless of how small a school they had to put up with. I ain't saying if you go to school in a big high school you can't come out pretty well equipped to start getting educated, I'm just saying if you look around among the leaders in all phases of life and assume they all came from big high schools, you'll be a long ways from being accurate. I've heard that a good school could consist of a good teacher on one end of a log and a good pupil on the other, but there are people who argue the whole thing depends on the size of the log. There are others who say this is true, but there's a shortage of logs. But don't take my advice on this. As far as I'm concerned, logs are made to fish from. Yours faithfully, J. A.

variety of critters that usually can be found without much trouble, either in your own back yard or around the creek.

There are some tricks about capturing, keeping, and using these various baits.

But let's talk about the earthworm. Although he likes his earth moist, the earthworm is not a resident of water. Only time he ever gets in the drink, without man's aid, is to be washed there when it rains, or dropped there when a piece of the bank crumbles off.

Water resident or not, nearly any fish recognizes the worm instantly as something to eat, and acts accordingly.

A rich, loamy, clay soil is the earthworm's favorite kind of habitat. This, because it contains plenty of organic matter which is his food. Most gardens contain the kind of soil that's right for worms, and good gardens are kept well-watered.

A little garden digging normally will produce enough worms for a day at the creek. In fact, many a youngster, forced into hard labor in the cabbage patch, with a spading fork on Saturday morning, has consoled himself with the thought that his effort will yield bait for the afternoon diversion. About the cabbages, he couldn't care less.

Worms go deep when the earth is dry. Water it, and the worms will be there next day. Or put down some wide boards and pour the dishwater over them. If there are worms in the soil, they will congregate under the boards in a few days, to eat the food in the dish-water.

Keeping worms for a short period of time requires no effort. Simply put them into a container with some of the soil in which they were found. Add a little water from time to time, but don't drown them. If they are to be kept for longer periods, the worms should be fed occasionally. Here again dishwater will do. Or use some vegetable shortening mixed with cornmeal, or bread crumbs. Just be sure to keep the container in a cool place.

You can maintain a permanent supply of worms by utilizing a hardwood box sunk into the ground. Bore a couple of holes in the bottom for drainage, and cover these with copper wire screening, so the worms can't escape. Plug all cracks in the box with alternate layers of soil and dead leaves. Add worms. Feed occasionally. It is a good idea to cover the box to keep out excessive moisture in the rainy season, and to maintain coolness. Contribute water in small amounts when the weather is dry, and you'll always have worms.

There are two thousand-odd varieties of earthworms in the world, but you don't care about that, and neither does the fish. He can't tell them apart any more than you can, nor does he know their Latin names. All he knows is that the thing is good to eat, and he will go for same when it is properly presented, which brings us to another aspect of the subject.

Presentation is one of the most important factors in fishing success. The big secret is to offer the bait naturally... the way the fish is accustomed to seeing it. Thus, as relates to the worm—he can't swim, he always drifts with the current. If there is no current, he drifts from top to bottom, and stays there, wriggling enough to call attention to himself.

The ordinary cane pole fisherman will ignore this precept. He will rig up a hook, line and sinker, attach a worm, and let the thing dangle there, five to six feet down, until times get better. Sometimes he catches fish, and sometimes, when the fish are in the mood, he catches a lot. But over the long haul he would do much better if he observed the rules of presentation.

Take bream, for example. The bream (colloquially perch — also bluegill, etc.) is the prize fish of the beginner. He bites readily on earthworms and other baits. And he is mighty tasty in the pan. And at least one authority says that the bluegill, for his size, is the toughest fighter of all game fish. More bream are caught on earthworms than on any other bait.

It shouldn't be necessary to say that for bream a fisherman should use a very small hook. Also just enough earthworm to cover the bend and part of the shank. But I've seen bream fishermen—beginners, obviously—with hooks much too large, baited with earthworms the size of a boy's little finger. That's too much hook and too much worm for a bream, which has a very small mouth.

Use everything small for bream. Spinning gear is wonderful. Here's a place where you can go to the ultra-light tackle, which is coming to be of considerable interest to the masters these days. Take a featherweight rod such as Conolon is making in a five-foot length. Ideally, you'd use an Italian Alcedo Micron reel. But that's out of the price range of most of us who work for a living. The Japanese are making a little reel that will do, and the price is modest. It's called the Golden Cub.

Fill your reel with 2-pound nylon monofilament, and you've got the right outfit for bream. You want a "perch" hook, and that means a small one. A tiny split shot is enough weight. No bobber is necessary where you have a current that will drift the worm down to where the fish are. If the fish are congregated in one place, say around an old submerged brush pile about six feet under, then you may want to put on the float accordingly.

Bait sparingly. Drift the worm into the place where the bream are. And you're in business. The earthworm is also a fine bait for catfish. But here you use different tackle, of course, as well as a different way of baiting the hook. If you're going for catfish, don't think of "ultra-light" tackle. If you think of spinning gear at all, it should be very heavy stuff, with not less than 10-pound test line. For catfish, you want a larger hook with a bog of worms. All should be hooked through once or twice with the ends left sticking out, so they will wriggle. Toss this kind of bait into a hole where a catfish lives and you're likely to get action.

We started out to write about natural baits and used up all this space dealing with worms. In another column we'll talk about some of the other natural baits and how to use them.

SORGHUM ALMUM SUBJECT OF NEW PUBLICATION

Sorghum alnum, a tall grass that will grow in most of Texas, is discussed in a new leaflet released by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, titled "Sorghum Alnum." Sorghum alnum, a hybrid between Johnson grass and a sorghum, is a short-lived perennial similar in appearance to Johnson grass. It has wider leaves, larger stems, longer and more spreading heads, and the first-year growth is taller than Johnson grass or Sudan grass.

The primary use of Sorghum alnum is as a grazing crop. The larger stems make it more difficult to care for hay than Johnson grass. Sorghum alnum has one distinct advantage over Sudan grass as a temporary Summer pasture crop—it makes better regrowth and produces more grazing in late Summer and Fall. It appears to be more drought tolerant than Sudan or Johnson grass, particularly on sandy soils.

Although a perennial-type plant, survival the second and third growing seasons have been erratic. In view of past experience, it will have to be considered an annual grazing crop, or at least a weak perennial for use as temporary pasture, said E. M. Trew, extension pasture specialist.

The leaflet discusses the description of the plant, its adaptation, establishment and its management. Copies of the leaflet are available from local county agent or the Agricultural Information Office, College Station. Ask for L-329.

TEXAS HEALTH NOTES

You're 16, and just when you wanted to look your best you break out with a new crop of pimples. Discouraging? Yes, but not a permanent tragedy.

In nine out of ten cases acne will disappear without treatment by your mid-20s. But why wait, when you can do something about it now?

The most important thing is to wash your face with soap and warm water at least three times daily. Why? Because at your age oil glands are often over active and tend to clog pores. Result: Pimples and blackheads.

So it's just common sense to wash often to rid your skin of excess oil and dirt and to help remove the plugs. Cosmetic cleansing creams, incidentally, are not nearly as effective as soap and water. In fact, some of them make acne worse by plugging up already clogged pores.

Your trouble might be particular items of foods. So unless you are sure they do not cause flare ups, your physician will probably suggest that you watch out for: Chocolate in any form such as candy, cookies, cake, ice cream sodas, saucers, cola drinks. Instead, stick to vanilla or fruit flavored sodas and soft drinks, white cakes and cookies.

Nuts, especially peanuts and peanut butter, are capable of causing skin eruptions. Sharp cheeses won't help your acne either, but cream or cottage cheeses are usually okay.

Shellfish or salt water fish, and melons can be aggravating to acne. Woolen clothing next to bare skin might cause your neck or back to break out. If so, the solution is simple—don't wear wool except as an outer garment.

The bromides in cold pills, nerve medicines and sedatives cause skin difficulties for some people. So can iodine in cough syrups and table salt.

Following the rules of good health—getting plenty of exercise and sleep, eating nutritious meals, and drinking plenty of water—will help you get rid of unsightly acne.

Don't expect the blemishes to disappear overnight. If you follow these suggestions for three or four months and your acne hasn't improved, he will recommend, will probably prescribe internal and external medicines for your particular case.

So between you and your doctor, you have a much better than even chance of having a clean, clear complexion in time for the first big dance of the new school year next fall. It's well worth working for.

HEALTH NOTES

Five Texas babies—all less than one year old—smothered in their sleep last year in freakish accidents involving disposable sheets of plastic material.

The thin, adhesive plastic is in common use today for purposes ranging from packaging laundry and cleaning to making back yard hothouses.

The deaths grimly accentuate the growing danger of using the lightweight material to protect bedding on a baby's crib.

An eight month old boy died in Irving on June 7 during his morning nap. He was discovered with his head covered by a makeshift plastic crib sheet. The immediate cause of death was said to be suffocation.

In Victoria on September 28 a five month old boy smothered under similar circumstances when he pulled a plastic sheet over his face.

A four month old Freeport girl suffocated on July 12 when she rolled over in her crib into a plastic bag.

On August 16 a seven month old Hamlin girl smothered when she became entangled in a plastic sheet thrown over her bed to protect the bedding.

A plastic crib cover inadvertently pulled over his head caused the suffocation death on November 26 of a four month old Tyler boy.

Disposable sheets if plastic have been boons to busy mothers of infants because of time saved in laundering bedding. But the only safe plastic bedding protector is the type made specifically for that purpose—one which can be stitched to the mattress or tucked under it.

HEALTH NOTES

Piecing flimsy laundry or cleaning bags together to make a sheet can be fatal for a baby.

To prove the point, examine one of the bags the laundry uses to package shirts. Although perfect for that use, note how it clings to human skin.

Hold it to your face. Notice how quickly and effectively it throttles your breath when you inhale. Imagine that happening to an infant lying helplessly in its crib.

The bags come in handy for a great many things around the house and yard. But using them in a baby's bed isn't one of them.

Howard Hall and Eldon Franks of Oton, brother and cousin of Ira Hall, visited in his home last Thursday, en route to their home from a fishing trip near Austin. J. Hall returned to Oton with them after visiting several days with his son.

Mr. and Mrs. James Oscar Koenig returned home Wednesday night of last week from Fort Jackson, S. C., where James Oscar has completed six months' active duty with the National Guard. He received his basic training at Fort Chaffee, Ark., before being sent to Fort Jackson.

State Capital NEWS

By Vern Sanford

... just about the regular session under much of the things and agreement on financial matters heightens the possibility of a special session as soon as this one ends.

Many measures will be trampled under or pushed aside until '61. But as Speaker Waggoner Carr told the House, the problem of raising some new money "won't go away. It has to be faced."

No Easy Out—Like every other tax proposal made this session, the huge "something for everybody" omnibus tax bill recommended by the House Tax Committee brought howls of protest.

It would raise an estimated $151,000,000 a year by raising some old taxes and placing new taxes on hundreds of items. Tabbed for increases are natural gas, motor vehicles, cigarettes, liquor, wine, beer licenses.

New targets include hotel rooms, restaurant meals, cigars, chewing tobacco, snuff, aircraft and auto parts, dozens of luxury items (jewelry, furs, cameras, watches, silver, etc.), radio and TV parts, business machines, commercial rentals, club dues, construction materials, dance studios, reducing salons.

Officially, the bill is known as the Tax Committee substitute for H. B. 727. Unofficially, it's called a lot of other things.

House members showed no more eagerness to rally behind this broad-based approach than they had for Gov. Price Daniel's less "spread out" plan.

Give Little, Take Little—Two appropriations bills of varying sizes have been passed by the House and put their money in banks and decide to stick it in a stock instead.

Backers of the measure say the banks and other businesses are holding and getting the benefit of property that does not belong to them, should be used to benefit all the people.

Co-op Bill Shunted Aside—A bill to allow rural electric co-ops more "elbow room" has been sent to the Attorney General for an opinion.

Rep. Alonzo Jamison of Denton, sponsor, protested to the House State Affairs Committee that this would kill the bill. This late in the season, delay is usually fatal.

Highly controversial, the bill would allow co-ops to add new customers after the area of their lines is annexed to a city.

Advertising Bill Advances—A state-financed advertising program for Texas moved close to final enactment despite heated opposition from an advertising man in the Senate.

Proposed bill would create the Texas Development Board to supervise tourist advertising by the Highway Department and industry advertising by the Texas Industrial Commission.

Sen. George Parkhouse, an advertising man from Dallas, objected, not to the idea of state advertising, but to the way it would be handled. He declared the suggested $100,000 appropriation would be wasted.

But the bill gained final approval in the Senate and next-to-final passage in the House.

Fire-Police Bill Gains—A shorter work week for many city firemen and policemen is near to legislative approval.

Senate has passed the bill finally, and a House committee has recommended passage.

Bill limits firemen's working hours to 72 in cities of 10,000 to 60,000 population, 63 hours in cities of 60,000 to 125,000 and 60 hours for all larger than 125,000. Policemen would work the same hours as other city employees.

City officials have protested the measure would raise local expenses and aggravate an already acute revenue-raising problem.

Texas Derby?—Not given much chance of passing, but exciting some interest is a proposal to legalize horse racing and betting in Texas.

Rep. Homer Koliba of Columbus introduced the measure which was sent to a House subcommittee. Thoroughbred horse breeders pointed out that legalized pari-mutual betting could bring in a lot of tax money.

Opponents, including Dr. W. R. White, president of Baylor University, charged it would bring on crime, poverty and immorality.

Pari-mutual betting was outlawed in Texas in the thirties, but proposals to return it came up frequently, always giving rise to lively legislative debate.

Short Snorts—A youth vs. age battle was abandoned when the House failed to give enough votes to a proposed constitutional amendment to raise minimum age for Senators from 26 to 30, House members from 21 to 25. Opponents countered with a measure to set maximum age for legislators at 60.

Guards are needed by the Texas Department of Corrections, according to Director O. B. Ellis. Men interested in permanent employment by the department should contact J. F. Heard, assistant director in charge of business and custody, Box 32, Huntsville.

NOTE OF APPRECIATION

I would like to take this means of expressing my sincere thanks to my customers who have faithfully supported me the 20 years I was in business in Cross Plains, and want the fine people of the community to know that I will certainly miss each of you.

senate. Differences will be adjusted by a conference committee of members from the two houses.

Both bills call for spending nearly $2,500,000,000 during the next two years. House bill is slightly larger. It calls for approximately $333,000,000 from general revenue. Senate would spend only $307,000,000 in general revenue.

To satisfy both houses, the conference committee will try to reach a compromise between these two figures. However, it's worked out, it's already clear that spending will considerably exceed the $281,000,000 spent from general fund for 1958-59.

Rough Sledding—Governor Daniel's "abandoned property act" barely squeaked by its first test on the House floor by a 71-69 vote.

Measure would allow the state to take over money and property unclaimed for seven years or more. Estimates of how much it would bring in immediately range from $20,000,000 to $50,000,000.
