PHILOSOPHER FINDS SCIENTISTS IN RACE TO GO IN ALL DIRECTIONS AT ONCE

Editor's note: The Bayou Philosopher on the Bayou is taking a non-progressive attitude toward science this week, but we doubt doubt it'll have any effect on science.

Dear editor: Sooner or later I knew it would happen. According to an article I read last night in a newspaper I picked up after it fell out of my neighbor's mail box...

And you can't criticize the scientists. Everybody's doing it. It's the same thing as working 50 hours to buy a power lawnmower to save an hour's pushing with the old style model over a week. Although you can still turn a cow in and graze it off with no lawnmower at all.

As far as I'm concerned, it's perfectly all right for man to explore space in the morning and the inner core of the earth in the afternoon, with his nights free to figure up the tax bill for both ventures, but there's still plenty to interest me right here in eye range of my front porch. For example, there's a newspaper out there on the ground now with a headline saying the cost of living index has gone up another notch. Mine hasn't. Ain't no notches left on mine.

Yours faithfully, J. A.

march to the Church of Christ. Parade will begin promptly at 5 p.m. and everyone is urged to follow the group on out to the new Little League Park...

At the park a short ceremony opening the field will get underway with Jack McCarty acting as master of ceremonies. These activities will include introduction of visiting league officials, dedication of the park, traditional throwing of the first ball by the mayor...

The concession stand will be in operation and will have hot dogs, sandwiches, cold drinks, candy, gum, popcorn and the like for your pleasure.

First game will get underway at 6:30 p.m. with the 1968 city champions The Pillrollers, sponsored by City Pharmacy and managed by Bob Latson and Sam Balkum...

Second game of the evening will match the Cats, co-sponsored by the Citizens State Bank and Higginbotham's and managed by Mac Coppinger and Edwin Baum, against the Buffs, sponsored by citizens and establishments of Cross Plains and managed by John Pruet and John Adair.

Howard McGowan and D. C. Jones will manage the minor league this year and Pony League managers will be Bill Pope and Mr. Purvis. These teams will not play opening night.

On April 25, at a meeting of the Little League officials, managers, sponsors and others, the following rules were agreed upon:

1. No person is to be allowed on the playing field unless accompanied by a manager or an assistant manager of one of the teams.
2. All boys in uniform whether playing a game, waiting to play or having just finished a game are to be under the jurisdiction of their managers and any and all nights they are in their uniform and on the Little League Park.

Local Little League officials for the current year are: H. McDonald, president; A. J. McQuinn, vice president; Mrs. John Pruet, secretary-treasurer; Gwynn Elliott, player-manager; Mrs. Forrest Walker, concession stand chairman; Eddie Petty, umpire-in-chief; L. D. Bayless, public address system.

"Folly Consists of Drawing False Conclusions"

(Author's Name Below)

Very few people realize how great a value modern prescriptions really are. Older folks know, because they remember how long it used to take to cure an illness, the medical bill for the many calls physicians had to make and the large percentage of patients who unfortunately never did recover.

It is true that certain medicines, because of costly ingredients and expensive research seem highly priced. But now your physician makes fewer calls, you have much less sickness time and more lives are being saved. If you are ever concerned about the cost of any prescription, we will be glad to show you our system of pricing them fairly.

HOW BOUT THAT

Last week I started to write a column about the various natural baits. By the time I had finished with the earthworm I had run out of space. Must have been a long worm.

But I'll say one thing—it's difficult to say too much about the worm as a fish bait. Properly used, it will lure fish—not only bream, for which it is most commonly employed as an enticement—but catfish, bass, and most other fresh water varieties.

I made a guess that the minnow was the second most popular natural bait.

As with earthworms, the minnow runs into hundreds of varieties, and fish will eat them all. Generally speaking, fish like best the bait that's native to the area, which means that the spottail minnow is the Texas favorite.

In the spring it's no trick to catch spottails in a net or trap. They are near the surface and easily seen in clear water. They like swift water with a rocky or sandy bottom, for the spawning season.

Let me remind you now, however, that there are all kinds of local laws about capturing and transporting Texas minnows. So check with your game warden if you propose to take a large quantity and move them across county lines.

In off seasons—that is, when the minnows are deep and can't be readily taken, you save time by buying Mexican, Oklahoma, and Minnesota minnows from the bait shops.

Some fishermen don't like these minnows, for one reason or another, but my experience is that fish will strike them all, or any of them. Frankly, I don't think that when a fish is hungry, he stops to look up a minnow's pedigree.

To catch minnows, the seine is an ancient and still effective article, the use of which is too familiar to be explained here.

A more recent tool is the drop, or umbrella type net, which is handy because one man can use it. I've seen commercial baitmen take thousands of spottails out of streams with this kind of net.

There are various kinds of minnow traps. All are effective when placed in a good spot where minnows live, and especially when baited with cracker crumbs. When you fail to catch minnows by these methods there's always the tackle and bait shop.

Wherever you get your minnows, the big problem is to keep them alive and transport them to your favorite fishing hole. That may be many miles from where you live.

In cold weather, this is not much of a problem. But when the hot summer sun boils down, your minnows will start to turn belly up if not handled properly.

Your best bet is to use the so-called "porous" bucket. It allows a certain amount of breathing, or aeration, in the water. Keep the top on. Minnows will live a long time in this kind of bucket. In case of doubt, drop in a few ice cubes. They give off oxygen as they melt.

One caution about porous buckets. Never dip one into the water. If you do, it will lose its breathing ability. From then on, you might as well haul your minnows in a lard can.

When you select your minnows, keep in mind the kind of fish you will seek on the current trip. It goes without saying that big minnows are for big fish. Small minnows are for small fish.

If you are after crappie you want minnows about two inches long or less. If bass is your game—white or black—the minnow might be between two and three inches long. If you're going to bait a trotline with minnows, the biggest ones you can get are the best.

I use a medium-sized minnow. The little fish can't take a big minnow, but a big fish will take a smaller minnow. Using a two-inch bait, you stand a chance to get anything that comes your way.

Now, how do you hook your min-

now. Hold a minnow in your left hand, bottom side up. Take the hook in your right hand. Insert the hook just where the gills come together and pull upward and outward, so that the point of the hook emerges between and forward of the minnow's eyes, missing the middle of the head.

For a long time, I hooked minnows through the back. That is, behind the dorsal fin and just deep enough to miss the backbone. The minnow stays alive that way. He is free to swim around if you give him some latitude in the way you rig up.

But, I have reached the conclusion that the best way to hook a minnow is through the lips. This method permits you to give the minnow a more natural action when you lift your rod. The minnow moves forward, head first, when pulled in. Such a method also permits the minnow to stay alive for a long time.

Artificial lure manufacturers strive to get the action of a wounded minnow. But here you have the real thing. You're offering the fish a real, live, wounded minnow. You wounded him when you strung him on the hook! This kind of bait is about the most attractive of all to a fish.

Absence of weight will give the minnow more freedom to be natural. It will increase his charms to the fish. If you use a lead weight, use a small one and place it two or three feet above the hook.

Keep the minnow moving. To begin with, if he is a free swimming minnow (no lead weight attached to him) cast him out where you think he will drift down into bass territory—then give him slack and let him swim. When your line shows that he has reached bottom, or some other refuge, lift the rod so as to move him slightly. Pretty soon, by the direction your line is leading, you can locate him.

Lift the line again, gently, to give him a natural action. Keep working him your way, even though you think he may not have reached the spot where you thought the fish might be. You could be wrong. Work him in slowly, adjusting your sights, and cast again.

If there are fish in water, you stand a mighty good chance of getting them by using this method.

Mud and massive loads stop other trucks—but not this Chevy!

Chevrolet tandem slogs through deep mud to deliver large load.

F. F. Kirchner, cement block manufacturer of St. Ann, Mo., has this to say about his Chevy 10703 tandem: "Fully loaded we're up over 40,000 lbs. GVW and at most excavation sites we have to move through soft sand and mud . . . My driver tells me he always gets through, too, even where other, bigger trucks can't make it!"

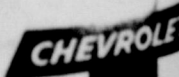

Statements like this are typical of Chevrolet truck owners across the country. Their enthusiasm for Chevrolet's "git-up-and-go" is well founded in fact—they've seen how Chevy tames their toughest jobs in record time.

For your own tough trucking jobs, you'll find Chevrolet has all that it takes, and then some, to get the work done quickly and economically. With stamina to spare, Chevrolet trucks keep on the go day after day. Powerful engines haul maximum loads—hold fuel and maintenance expenses to a minimum. And Chevy's solid build keeps cabs and bodies tight through years of work.

For the right truck and components to handle your tough job, contact your local Chevrolet dealer. He'll prescribe the correct cost-cutting Chevy combination that'll make your toughest job look easy.

No job's too tough for a Chevrolet truck!

State Capital NEWS

By Vern Sanford

AUSTIN, Tex.—Most people in or connected with the 56th Legislature are comforting themselves with the knowledge that air conditioning was installed in House and Senate chambers last year.

It may be pretty hot, they say, before a majority of both houses come to agreement on new taxes.

House members systematically cut to pieces the big omnibus tax bill (HB 727). As originally proposed, it would have raised $500,000,000, mostly from scores of new selective sales taxes on items ranging from face paint to house paint. After members got through cutting out the things that brought the loudest howls, it was down to less than one-fourth its starting size.

It was then given preliminary approval (second reading) by the narrowest of votes, 74 to 72, counting Speaker Waggoner Carr's "yes" vote. Carr stepped down from the speaker's rostrum to plead with members to pass the bill, even though it had been stripped to practically nothing, so as to "get something to the Senate."

Senate cannot consider a tax bill until it has been passed by the House. But for the Senate, getting the shattered fragments of HB 727 is like getting four wheels and some broken glass with the invitation to make an automobile.

TASK AHEAD—In the days that remain until May 12, or in special sessions thereafter, the Legislature faces these decisions:

1. Appropriations—House has passed a bill calling for $222,000,000 in general revenue; Senate, a bill for $302,000,000. Differences must be adjusted in conference committee, which neither presiding officer seemed in a hurry to appoint. This could mean some sort of agreement that there would be no final decision on the appropriations bill until a tax program emerges.

2. Taxes—Either house's spending bill, with the deficit added in, would require something around $200,000,000 in new tax money. This much, it seems certain, must be found, somewhere.

3. School improvement—backers of the Hale-Aikin Committee program will push for adoption of at least part of that program. It would add some $100,000,000 a year to state expenses.

ABANDONED PROPERTY—"ABANDONED"—In a vote that surprised many, the House killed the abandoned property bill, 80 to 67.

Proposed measure would have allowed the state to take over dormant bank accounts and property held by insurance companies, utilities and oil and gas companies if it had gone unclaimed seven years.

Some felt that Gov. Price Daniel, who had fought strenuously for the bill, might regard its defeat as third term fodder. He said at one time its passage meant more to him than anything since the tidelands.

Afterward, the governor said "the fight has just begun." He was critical of Speaker Carr for having allowed the measure to come to a vote when it did.

"COW BILLS" PASS—Senate has given final approval to three bills affecting ranchers and dairymen.

A milk bill, sponsored by Sen. Grady Hazlewood of Amarillo, would prohibit bringing in milk from other states unless it could be established that the milk was produced under the health and sanitation standards placed on Texas producers.

Sen. Ray Roberts of McKinney pushed through a bill that would provide a penalty for allowing cattle to roam on state and national highways, and relieve motorists of liability for hitting stock.

A bill tightening licensing regulations of veterinarians also was passed by the Senate. Sen. Andy Rogers of Childress, sponsor, noted that there is no present law to suspend licenses of veterinarians guilty of malpractice.

WHAT'S THE USE—Senators refused, 16 to 15, to take up Sen. A. M. Aikin's bill to improve schools and raise teacher pay.

Those who opposed said passing the bill before tax money is found wouldn't bring a "crying dime" to the teachers.

Hopeful teachers could take some comfort from the fact that some who voted against considering the bill said they would favor it when money is on hand.

LOAN SHARK CURB PASSED—Texans will probably have an opportunity to vote in November, 1960, on whether to adopt a new approach for regulating lending practices.

Both House and Senate have approved a proposed constitutional amendment that would allow the Legislature to regulate the amount of interest that could be charged. Present 10 per cent ceiling on interest, set in the Constitution, would be abolished.

A constitutional amendment must be approved by the voters at a general election after it has been passed by the Legislature and signed by the governor.

Backers of the change say it will pave the way for driving loan sharks out of Texas. Such a measure has been sought for a number of years and has the backing of Texas Legislative Council.

MORE COLLEGES OKAYED—Texas is on the way to having a new medical school and three new state-supported four-year colleges.

Senate, in a burst of educational zeal, passed bills to (1) elevate Arlington State College between Fort Worth and Dallas to a senior college, (2) make Tarleton State College at Stephenville a four-year college, (3) make Midwestern University at Wichita Falls a four-year state-supported college and (4) establish a new University of Texas medical branch at San Antonio.

All except the Midwestern bill already had been passed by the House.

OPEN MEETINGS APPROVED—Meetings of state, city, county and district boards and their records will be required to be open to the public under a bill given final Senate approval.

Measure that passed was a combination of Sen. Preston Smith's "open meetings" bill and Sen. George Parkhouse's "open records" bill.

Senate Jurisprudence Committee has amended Smith's original proposal to say that closed meetings could be held "for the discussion of appointments or matters which, if made public, might adversely affect the public security or the financial interests of the state or its political subdivisions."

Mr. and Mrs. Travis Foster were in Eden Friday, April 17, to attend the funeral of H. K. Dale Sr.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Barclay and family of Brownwood visited her parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. N. Foster Thursday night of last week.

SCS DISTRICT NEWS

Many farmers in this area are using Chinese Red peas as a summer legume and meeting with good success.

The Chinese Red pea is a Cowpea and is a warm season plant. For best results, Chinese Red peas should be planted about the same time as grain sorghums. They may be planted after small grain is harvested in June or July, but yields will probably be reduced by late seeding.

Chinese Red peas are a legume and an excellent soil conditioning crop. Yields from crops following peas have shown a decided increase over crops not following a legume. They produce a large amount of forage which can be returned to the soil in the form of organic matter. Plant about 10 pounds of seed per acre by planting on a well prepared seedbed. Chinese Red peas should be planted in normal width rows due to average moisture conditions.

In addition to being used as a soil improving crop, Chinese Red peas may be used for hay, seed production or erosion control.

Confidence

The consumation of any transaction at a bank involves, to a limited or broad degree, institutional policy. A single deposit involves the element of trusteeship and a single credit advancement embraces the element Confidence.

Confidence does not travel a one-way street—such progress as we may enjoy as a banking institution is but a barometer of community growth between the owners of money and the custodian of it.

Senator YARBOROUGH'S REPORT

(than non-veterans, statistics show. And more than a fourth of the veterans who received this training became scientists and engineers.

One witness quoted the Bradley Commission Report which said, "The veterans' educational program was a major contribution to the national welfare, and the country would be weaker educationally, economically, and in terms of national defense, if educators, veterans organizations, the president and the congress had not seen fit to embark upon this new and momentous educational enterprise."

Another man told the subcommittee that this training not only helped the productive power of our nation, "but, on the basis of additional income taxes which our government collects on this added earning power, the cost of veterans education is paying better returns than any security listed on the New

Many people have written me about my proposal to extend the provisions of the Korean GI Bill to "Cold War veterans."

This proposed new law would extend the educational assistance, vocational rehabilitation, home loan guaranties and mustering-out pay provisions through 1963.

The main feature of the new measure is its educational provisions. The Korean GI Bill ended on January 31, 1955. The Yarbrough Bill would provide 1 1/2 days of college training for each day of active military service for veterans, with a maximum of three years college training. The subsistence pay would be at the same rate as in the Korean GI Bill.

This Bill would also extend vocational rehabilitation and home loan guaranties and would provide for $100 mustering out pay for veterans honorably discharged after the bill is passed. All these benefits would be extended through 1963, when the draft law ends.

The measure is now being considered by the Senate Veterans Affairs Subcommittee, of which I am chairman. I am pleased to report that in hearings held recently, the Yarbrough Bill was endorsed by representatives of Universities and Colleges, state vocational training units, veterans organizations, veterans and their families and others.

Testimony before the subcommittee has shown that about one out of every two men who served in World War II, or 7,800,000 veterans, received educational training under the first GI Bill. Another two million veterans of the Korean Conflict also received this training under a similar measure. Educators tell me veterans made better grades and conducted themselves better at college than the non-veterans. When they finished, the training helped them earn higher income and pay more taxes.
