A BOY AND A GOVERNOR—

Governor Price Daniel proclaimed Christmas Seal Days in Texas as he visited with a small recovered tuberculosis patient, Leonard Alcala of Austin. Said Gov. Daniel in his proclamation, "For hundreds of years man has battled against disease. For more than 50 years, his battle against tuberculosis has been hard and rewarding. Today, tuberculosis as a killer is being curtailed in this country by modern drugs and improved patient care and rehabilitation facilities. But tuberculosis as a communicable, widely prevalent, expensive and long-lasting illness is still to be reckoned with. New cases reported in Texas the first nine months of this year were 3,375, and health authorities estimate there are more cases not reported than reported.

The Christmas Seal Sale is the one annual appeal of the Texas Tuberculosis Association and affiliated local associations for funds to make possible year-round efforts to curb this needless waste of human life and resources. Therefore, I do hereby designate the period from Nov. 16 to Dec. 24, 1939, as Christmas Seal Days in Texas, and urge all citizens to make a sound investment in their own and their fellow citizens' health by buying and using Christmas Seals during the holiday season."

Mesquite Control Of New Farm Public

Mesquite is an aggressive, undesirable woody shrub that occurs on approximately 55 million acres of land in Texas. Where it thrives, no single method of control will give effective control under existing conditions.

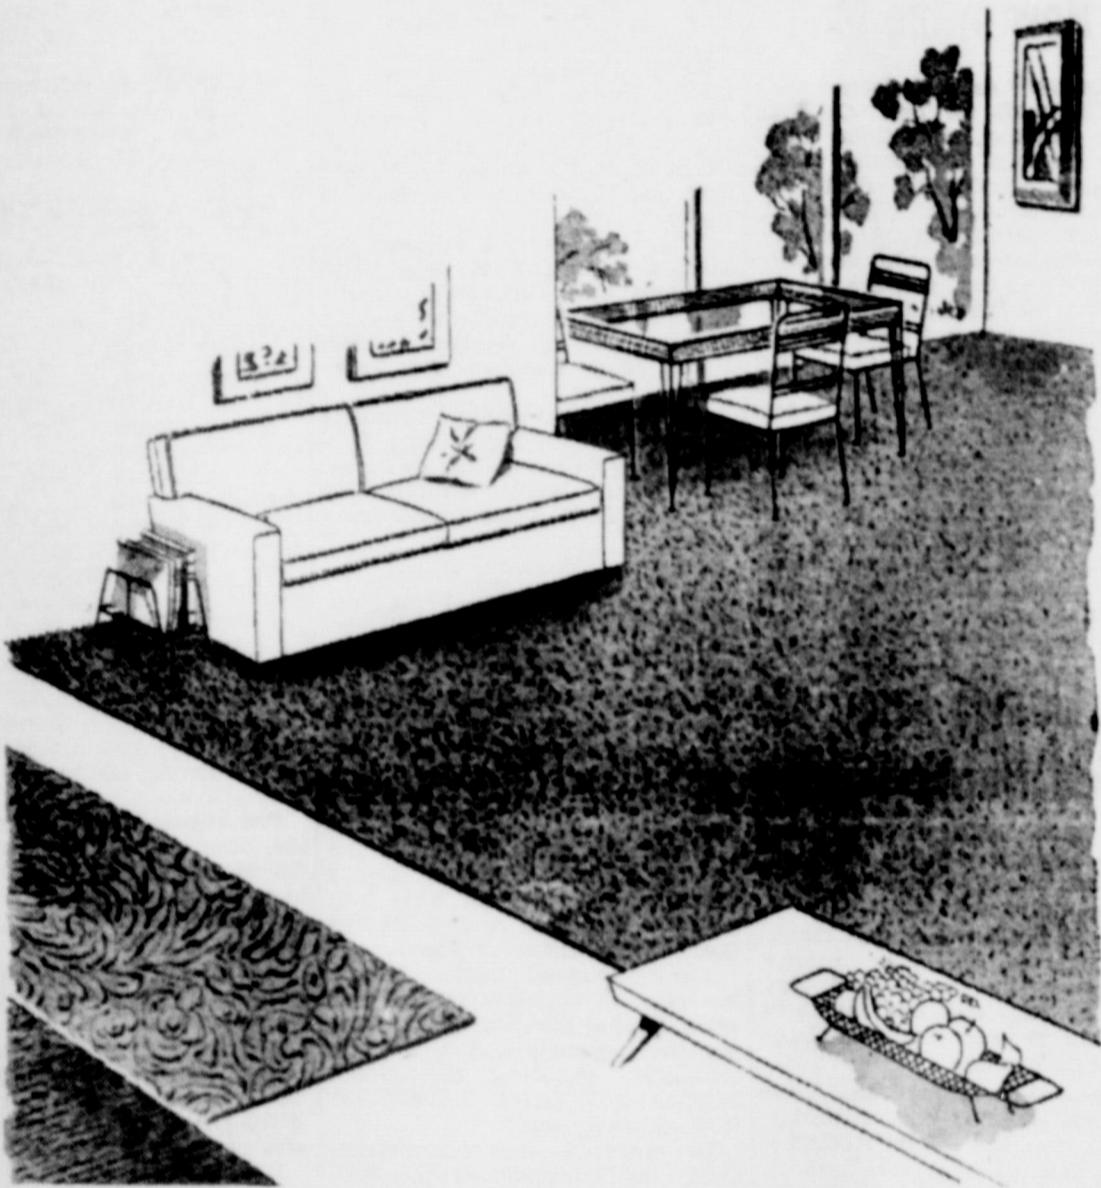

Economical control of on grazing lands depends on selection of methods provide the greatest sustained range and livestock benefits for the money expended. Essential to obtain maximum value of controlling mesquite is the density, variety and species.

"Control of Mesquite on Lands" is the title of a bulletin released by the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station, the factors influencing the effectiveness and cost of control by hand or power grubbing with kerosene and diesel basal application of 2.5 soil application of more discussed in the bulletin.

The benefits of mesquite control include increased capacity of grazing lands cost of handling livestock efficient use of other improvement practices.

Pasture Weed Control Pays Big Dividends, Says Expert

Weed growth in Texas pastures is heavy this fall. G. O. Hoffman, extension range specialist, says these uncontrolled weeds use from four to 11 times more water for growth than grasses. They rob your livestock of good grazing since weedy pastures produce very little forage for winter use.

To have more grass for next year's grazing, control weeds by spraying with one pound of 2,4-D per acre. Usually one application will give good weed control throughout the growing season. Weeds must be sprayed in early spring when they are about six inches tall and growing rapidly. Pasture weed control using 2,4-D costs about 1 per acre.

Many demonstrations have indicated that grass production is from two to ten times more on sprayed as compared to unsprayed ones. To cite an example, says Hoffman, a demonstrator who spent $2 per acre for weed control and practiced deferred grazing during the summer obtained a 325 return per acre from increased grass. This amounts to growing over a ton of forage per acre for a cost of $2. When has the price of grass been $2 per ton, asks Hoffman?

Have more grass for grazing next year and less weedy growth by planning a range pasture chemical weed control program followed by good grazing management. See your county agent for information about chemical weed control and pick up a blueprint on how to make a pasture weed sprayer. Your county agent also has information about other range management practices which will pay you big dividends, advises Hoffman.

Austin.—First of the 1960 political headquarters signs will be up before the Christmas lights. An executive committee, formed to steer the Johnson-for-President drive, is opening a state headquarters in downtown Austin. Goal of the state office is to add to the 60 or more county clubs for Johnson and eventually to expand into a national operation.

With two exceptions, the state's top Democratic brass is on the committee. Gov. Price Daniel and Speaker Sam Rayburn are honorary co-chairmen. Plans were announced by Ed Connally, chairman of the State Democratic Executive Committee, and Byron Skelton, national committeeman.
 Not on the committee are the state's junior senator, Ralph Yarborough and national committeewoman, Mrs. R. D. Randolph. Both have failed to state their preference on a presidential candidate.
 Tight Schedule.—A possible timetable for filling the three vacancies in the Legislature was set up by Atty. Gen. Will Wilson when Gov. Daniel asked him for an opinion on the election law.
 Forty days would be needed between the time the election is called and the time the new officials could take office, according to Wilson. This allows a required 35 days between the call and election day, two days for Commissioners Courts to canvass the votes and three days for county judges to certify the results to the secretary of state.
 Law does not require that all seats be filled in order to have a session, Wilson commented. But he said he felt it would be "especially desirable if more taxes are to be voted because of the old American principle of no taxation without representation."
 Governor Daniel has discussed calling a special session in January to raise money for teacher salary increases.
 Insurance Plan Debated.—Impact of a big change in auto insurance rates, due to take effect Jan. 1, is a prime discussion topic among insurance circles as well as the motoring public.
 Under the merit plan, drivers with no records of accidents or moving traffic violations for three years get a reduced rate. Others pay on a sliding scale up to double the usual rate, depending on the number and seriousness of their accidents and violations.
 Opinions on the plan vary widely. Among them:
 (1) It will make drivers more careful.
 (2) It will make clear to the driving public the direct relationship between accidents and cost of insurance.
 (3) It will cause "bad" drivers to drop their insurance.
 (4) It will result in more hassles over who was to blame for an accident. (Only the driver held responsible gets his insurance hiked.)
 (5) It will flood the court houses with contests over traffic tickets.
 (6) It will be declared illegal because of the "double jeopardy" principle. Some lawyers reason that the driver is punished for his violation once he pays a fine and cannot be punished again with higher insurance rates.
 Sen. George Parkhouse of Dallas recently predicted that merit rating would result in such an overflow of traffic cases that new courts would have to be created and new buildings to house them.
 Others have complained that traffic laws and their enforcement are not uniform and that some drivers—victims of speed traps, for example—will be penalized. Answer to this, says Insurance Board Chairman Penn J. Jackson, is to work out the wrinkles in law enforcement.
 Insurance agents, in meetings and conferences over the state, are

OUTDOORS IN TEXAS

By VERN SANFORD
 This is a great quail year. Never in the memory of living man has there been one quite so good. Every section of the state reports quail in great numbers.

Highways are lined with coveys of the birds. It is hard to drive a few miles in rural areas without hitting a bird with the car or having to slow down for a covey to cross the road.

Grain fields and brush piles seem to explode when a covey takes to flight. Bobwhites and blues are mixing groups in many spots in West and Southwest Texas. There are blues in areas which have been mostly bob habitat for years. And there are bobs flying around in some of the territory where once only blues were plentiful.

It's a great year for the birds! The man with a dog will have his "cup running over". The man who kicks out his birds and takes them as he finds them should do well too. What is the cause for this tremendous increase in the quail population?

A number of good reasons can be advanced, but it is not likely that any one reason is the complete answer. Perhaps as important as anything else is the fact that there have been at least two years when weather conditions were favorable at nesting time. This always means a great deal to feathered wildlife, especially ground nesters.

Perhaps the next most important factor is landowner assistance. One of the heaviest blows to the quail population in the past has been the complete removal of cover and feed crops for the birds. Landowners cleaned out their fence rows. They chained down mesquite thickets. They set fire to brush piles. They plowed under good range. As a result, there were comparatively few places remaining for the bobs and the blues. It was about that time that the Game and Fish Commission started its quail restocking program with birds raised by the state. These birds were produced by the thousands at the State Game Farm near Tyler. They were sold to landowners at about half the price of production.

This alone wasn't the secret of the success of the quail comeback. Before a landowner could buy these birds from the state he had to show that he had sufficient food and cover for them. Many ranchers, whose places had almost been denuded of worthwhile cover, were induced to plant multicolor roses along fence lines, in corners and in other places.

They were encouraged to leave brush at places within their fence lines and to plant feed which would be conducive to good quail nourishment.

Sportsmen clubs throughout the state joined in this movement. Some conscientious shooters also helped.

There are a number of quail hunters in Texas who, each year, restock a range with as many pen-raised birds as they take off by gun each fall.

According to Howard Dodgen, executive secretary of the Game and Fish Commission, it requires in excess of 6,000,000 quail each year for the hunters. The quail season, which basically is Dec. 1 to Jan. 16, is hunted hard in some areas.

There was a time when shooters would take every bird in a covey. Now they are leaving a few for seed.

There is a factor, however, which works strongly against this wonderful little bird. It is hard hit in the winter by bad weather and predators.

Biologists who have spent years studying the ways and means of quail will tell you that the spring breeding season is entered with only 20 per cent of the quail available at the beginning of the harvest.

In other words, 80 per cent of every year's average quail crop is gone by the beginning of a new breeding season. Only a small portion of them are taken by gunners. Some just plain starve. This was the case in some of the areas south of Wichita Falls last year.

That is ideal quail country. There is a great deal of feed, including much small grain. Naturally, this also is an inducement to rats. Last year the rat population vitally affected the quail populations. By mid-December the quail had become so poor that hunters quit taking them and thousands of birds died of starvation.

There was a strong rat infestation in other parts of the state, too. This year the rat crop hasn't been so bad. But there still are many predators.

One of the worst is the common house cat. It kills off thousands of quail each year. Some hunters shoot every house cat they see afraid for this reason. Shooting resorts also have had something to do with the increase in quail shooting interest.

At first the shooting resorts had little acceptance among old-time shooters. However, many fellows found they could go to shooting resorts and find advantageous hunting at a cost that would not exceed the total cost of quail hunting elsewhere. This would include the price of the lease, the dogs and the uncertainty.

Resort owners have released many birds. Some are not killed by the hunters. They find their way into other areas . . . and the total population of birds goes up.

So, there are many reasons why this is the quail hunting year for you. Get out and get your share!

IT'S THE LAW . . . In Texas

Farm Leases. At this time of year, many landlords and tenants are thinking about farm rental arrangements for 1960. While some operate from year to year on the basis of verbal agreements regulated largely by local customs, written lease are better and may save disagreement and hard feelings between parties. Farming is a business and should be conducted in a businesslike manner for best success. Rental contracts involve a full year's work by the tenant and possibly thousands of dollars for both parties. A few dollars spent on a properly drawn lease is good business economy.

A farm lease is not a simple paper. Printed lease forms often turn out to be traps if not understood, or if not properly executed. A farm-tenant contract is intricate and of such importance to both parties concern that amateur draftsmanship is risky.

Fixing of cash rent or designating the length of term are relatively simple. Yet, even in these matters, ambiguity or incompleteness can cause bitter disputes and expensive lawsuits.

A loosely drawn property description may have consequences entirely unintended by either the landlord or tenant. Where rent is to be based on acreage, an accurate description is doubly important.

In addition, there are legal rules to substitute for some omissions in written leases. For example, a hold-over by the tenant may automatically renew the contract if the lease is silent on the subject. It is as important to know the results of omissions as to know the courts' interpretation of the language used.

There are many matters which should be covered by a properly drawn lease. For instance, if a tenant is to farm on a share basis, care should be taken to define what expenses are to be paid by the parties as well as what shares are to be taken out. A lease should cover such things as who is to make repairs, what land is to be cropped, whether the tenant can cut timber, whether loss of a building by fire or other cause frees the tenant, or whether the landlord must accept a sub-tenant.

One great cause of difficulty with leases is blind faith on the part of the persons involved that all differences of opinion can be worked out. Poor memories as to verbal agreements can cause disputes between persons even though they are both honest and generous.

Many of the possibilities that should be covered by a properly drawn lease will not occur to inexperienced persons. The renting of land deserves a written contract, and it is a contract too important to be entrusted to anyone other than an expert.

(This column, prepared by the State Bar of Texas, is written to inform—not to advise. No person should ever apply or interpret any law without the aid of an attorney who is fully advised concerning the facts involved, because a slight variance in facts may change the application of the law.)

Use of Written Lease for Hunting, Fishing Advised

Hunting leases are becoming more and more important to hunters, farmers and ranchers. Hunters are interested in obtaining exclusive hunting rights in return for their payments to the landowner, while farmers and ranchers are interested in regulating the use of their land by other people and in supplementing their income, says Ed Cooper, extension wildlife specialist. Whenever details of the leasing arrangement or amount of money involved are of importance, the lease should be in writing. A written lease provides a basis for discussion of all the provisions affecting both the hunter and the landowner, and a signed copy should be kept by each.

Cooper and Fred Sargent, assistant professor, Texas Agricultural Experiment Station, have written a leaflet, entitled, "Hunting Leases". A sample of a lease designed to cover the minimum provisions which all parties concerned should have clearly understood is included. Additional provisions should be added to the lease to cover special situations or conditions the contracting parties wish to include. Five additional provisions that can be added are also included.

A landowner may wish to issue daily permits to hunt or fish on his property. Under some conditions this procedure will bring in a higher total return than the seasonal leases. Permits are also useful when no fee is charged. They make it possible for the landowner to know who is on his land and also serve to inform the guest of his responsibilities. Samples of day hunting and fishing permits and a courtesy permit are also included in the leaflet.

Local county agents have copies, or they are available from the Agricultural Information Office, College Station. Ask for L-461.

Words simply fail us when we try to say "Thank You" to our many wonderful friends. The long days in the hospital were made shorter each day as the cards, letters and flowers arrived. We especially appreciate Bro. Walters and our church family, from whom we know many prayers were said in our behalf, to Mrs. Walters who teaches my Sunday School girls; to Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Smith who have so graciously opened their home to us; and to Jean Fore who has faithfully written my news for me and to all others who have been so kind and helpful and especially to the doctor who has been so faithful to us.

May we simply say thank you and may the good Lord take a special likin' to each to you.
 R. D. and Leona Hitt.

Mrs. Viola Tyler and Mrs. Juanita Rhodes recently visited in Fort Worth with Mr. and Mrs. Oral Ray and family. Mrs. D. Community Pasture-Range Improvement Program

A new community Pasture-Range Improvement program has been developed for the entire state, according to G. O. Hoffman, extension range specialist. This program is sponsored by the Texas Plant Food Educational Society in cooperation with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Awards totaling $400 will be given to the six outstanding communities in pasture and range improvement in each of the 12 state districts. All communities entering will receive a certificate.

It is designed so that each farmer, rancher and community entering wins even if they do not receive a cash award. You win by improving your pasture, range and livestock conditions to obtain more efficient production and increased family income, Hoffman explained.

The purpose of the program is four-fold: to increase the quality and quantity of livestock forage; to promote wiser use of grazing lands; to promote better use of cropland; and to stimulate community cooperation and improvement by individuals and families working together.

Judging is made on progress made in pasture, range and community improvement during the past year. Eighty per cent of the score is based on progress made in forage production, utilization and management of pastures and ranges. The remaining 20 per cent is based on improvement in community life, such as building and repairing and improving of the community social and religious life. This is a program the farmer and rancher can enter and win, added the specialist. For details on how to enter, see your local county agent now as entries close December 1.

Mr. and Mrs. Dale Bishop and sons were business visitors in Lamesa Monday.

Mrs. Albert Givens and sons of Odessa came Monday to visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ira Hall through the Thanksgiving holidays.

faster and safer than sunshine...
for everything you wash and wear...
dry anything in minutes... without sun-fading or wind whipping

1960 FRIGIDAIRE "WRINKLES-AWAY" Electric DRYER

CUSTOM IMPERIAL MODEL FEATURES...
Exclusive Filtrator Heat, Lint and Moisture Control

- NO STEAM BATH DRYING
- NO PLUMBING
- NO VENTING

Air is heated by the Radiantube Heating Unit in the back and is pulled through the drum and clothes. Lint and moisture-laden air pass through the Filtrator. Room air entering the dryer through the grille in front cools the Filtrator. Moisture is condensed and collected in the porcelain waned tray below, for easy disposal - automatically if desired. Lint collected on the Filtrator surface can be easily rinsed or wiped away whenever necessary.

Whatever you wash and wear... just match the fabric to the right drying temperature
