CYCLONE: DEVOURING BEHEMOTH

(MORAL: COME TO WEST TEXAS, NATURE'S SAFETY ZONE)

By JESS MITCHELL
Published in Issue of "West Texas Today" Magazine

The following is the concluding article of a series on phenomena of nature. West Texas Today has never been afraid to admit that if, out here in our empire, we have rain, we likewise have duststorm, drought and cyclone; but Mr. Mitchell brings the series to a comforting close by statistically showing that West Texas has fewer cyclonic disturbances than any other section of the state.—Editor's Note.

Humanity, ever since earth's population was begun, has been chained down to its surface. Only in a limited way has man been able to overcome the laws of gravity and the pressure of atmosphere. Miles above his head great waves of this atmosphere roll and fro, currents many miles in width flow around the entire planet. Birds and other creatures with ease and grace dart here and there through this transparent sea of atmosphere, and man in his balloons, dirigibles and airplanes sometimes for a little while soars upward beyond the limit of one's vision. But the normal position of humanity is upon the floor of this vast sea of atmosphere which extends upward from its so-called surface to an unknown distance, and while man in his aspirations and endeavors is sometimes handicapped by it, yet he could not live a single moment without it.

The movements of this boundless sea of atmosphere, scientists tell us, are under control of the sun. Never entirely at rest, it is sometimes quite calm, while at other times it is whipped into the point of terrific storms. Now, in response to a magic touch, seeds germinate, a mantle of green covers the earth and blossoms beautify the landscape. Again, by another magic touch, plant life withers, animals migrate, the streams and lakes are sealed over with ice, and even man himself is compelled to change his habits of life.

The atmosphere is the most vital factor in our earthly environment. Food and drink we must have at intervals, but deprive us of the atmosphere, and we immediately perish. While we are, to a certain extent, unconscious of its presence, we would immediately become conscious of its absence.

Circulation of the atmosphere is a thing of little little was known when some ancient declared, "the wind bloweth where it listeth, and thou hearest the sound thereof, but canst not tell whence it cometh, and whither it goeth;" but in recent years our meteorologists have learned considerable about atmospheric circulation. Now isotherms and isobars are common words in the vocabulary of the U. S. Weather Bureau, and many of us know more or less about trade winds, anti-trades, doldrums, westerlies and monsoons.

We have learned that occasionally, or at stated intervals in some prescribed sections, the elements of nature seem to balk in their regular and ordered duties, and, like fractious colts, kick over the traces and start smashing up things. Hence, we have come to study more assiduously to learn more about cyclones, tornadoes, hurricanes and tidal waves. We have learned that a cyclone is an area of low pressure, the atmosphere flowing in toward the center of such area, the entire mass moving forward at the rate of 30 or 40 miles per hour, terribly demoralizing the occupants residing in its pre-empted domain, frightening all animal life within its course and wreaking havoc upon everything within its pathway, some sections of the earth being so subject to this cyclonic movement that their tracks are well known and accurately charted.

West. Hanging from this tornadic cloud mass is generally a funnel-shaped chute from 100 to 1,000 feet in diameter, in which the air ascends and whirls with great rapidity, so fast in fact, no instruments have yet been invented to measure its whirl, and, invariably accompanied by a terrifying roar.

Having lived in the cyclone belts of both Kansas and Oklahoma, the writer admits, though not boastfully, of having a practical as well as a theoretical knowledge of these giant atmospheric disturbances which sweep down upon a given area like some devouring behemoth let loose by the gods of thunder out of the sky. I have in my possession a picture of a cyclone taken (at a respectable distance) at Chandler, Oklahoma, several years ago, and, notwithstanding the careful plans that were laid and all due precaution taken to get into the edge of the whirling terror before focusing the camera, I had a grain relief of the protruding roots of a big elm tree under which I had taken refuge, and while my body was whipped and beaten about upon the ground, my heels more often in the air than out. I succeeded in gripping that root with sufficient force to insure my future existence. I shall always feel grateful to that old elm tree, and it was not long after that incident that I came to the Plains of West Texas, commonly known as "Nature's Safety Zone."

Cyclones and tornadoes are not common in altitudinous countries. As the altitudes increase the danger from such violent storms decrease, until at an approximate altitude of 2,000 feet the risk is greatly minimized. Therefore, tornadoes in West Texas are quite unknown, and in the Plains area, practically unknown. Occasionally on the Llano Estacado terrific thunderstorms, accompanied by great electrical display, and driven on by violent gales of wind, visit the area, and some have imagined from the results of their actions there was a more or less twisting motion to them; but scientists seem to doubt if such whirling motion is of any great consequence.

The Plains area of West Texas is thickly populated with people coming from certain sections of Kansas, Nebraska and Oklahoma. Whither they came hither to escape tornadoes is not positively known; but they do find a certain satisfaction in not having to doubt if such whirling motion is of any great consequence.

A delightful beautiful climate, fertile soil, pleasant winters, salubrious summers, lack of humidity, gentle sephyras continually floating across the broad prairies, and adaptability for production of a wide range of crops, are all delightful assets of this Plains area, and the absence of any prevailing diseases, miasmas, cyclones or tornadoes, are also assets that should not be overlooked, and, in fact, are being duly appreciated by the multiplied thousands who have come and who are coming to this western area.

swinging ngs -ed; o-feh c — gs Indeed, the Almighty Creator must have had a special purpose in throwing about this Plains area all the safeguards of nature and furnishing it with such infinite protection, and I have frequently thought He must have actually been finished. He piled up the mountains, cut the chasms for the gorges, left depressions for the rivers to run in, dug out the great hollows for the deposits of the seas; but it was only the Great Plains area of West Texas that he took time to smooth down, carpet it with a sward of velvet green grass, plant it with myriad of beautiful flowers, and to spread over it the rich, blue canopy of heaven studded with millions of silvery stars shining down like diamonds in the sky.

That the Creator is a great lover of beautiful things is amply proved in the lavish adornment of this great Llano

R. L. BROWN THINKS HE'S GROWING POTATO

SALAD ON HIS FARM

R. L. Brown, well known local realtor, who is also a real dirt farmer, owning 160 acres of irrigated land northeast of Muleshoe, believes he is well on his way toward growing potato salad without housewives having to go to the trouble of mixing vegetables.

Three years ago Brown had a plot of land planted to onions, yielding exceptionally large ones. Last year the same plot was planted to tomatoes, and again a bountiful crop. This year it is planted in potatoes.

A few days ago, Dee Moon, semigambian tenant on the place, was examining the vines, and to his utter surprise discovered that while there was a good crop of potatoes setting beneath the earth's surface, yet hanging from the foliage above there were innumerable little bulbs resembling tomatoes. Tasting one of these aerial specimens he discovered it contained the flavor of both onion and tomato. The small potatoes also had a delicate onion flavor.

Since discovery of this peculiar hybrid vegetation, numerous neighbors of Brown's have visited his field to taste the novelty freak creation of Nature, which is now being diligently guarded day and night, that none of it may be carried off.

Brown declares indications are his future fortune is assured, as this new vegetable combination is in universal demand by housewives, especially those who specialize in the use of can openers.

Estacado. Here his thoughts blossom in the wild meadow and native cat-claw, and become fragrant in a hundred little flowerlets that nod their pretty heads to the passing breeze and gentle sephyras continually playing across the face of nature. In spring and in summer his beauty speaks everywhere. It sparkles in the dewdrop of early morning and glistens in streams of crystal at the zenith when his breath turns the windmill lifting ropes of crystal to the surface to slack the thirst of man and beast; while in the winter his thoughts fall in snow flakes of delicate texture, glisten and dazzle on the sleet-covered prairies and are poured out in showers of gentle rain to the illumination of the sacred ground.

That guard the sacred confines of this wonderful land of terrestrial paradise, saying to cyclones and tornadoes, "Thus far and no farther, beyond the Cap Rock you can not come!" On this enchanting scene the Creator's thoughts are gratefully green in springtime pastures, magnificently golden in the ripened fields of summer, and grow resplendent in wooded spots during the autumn—now yellow, now russet, now crimson, now a silvery grey, a flaming scarlet or a kindly purple.

The Creator's thought on these prairies are graceful in form, whether they be manifest in the playfulness of prairie dogs, the swift darting of ground squirrels or the undulating flight of birds.

The Good Book says that after the Almighty had created the heavens and the earth, after the wings and throats of aerial choirs were colored and tuned, and the quadrupeds began to bleat and bellow and neigh, after man was created and woman was perfected—that He rested, and I have sometimes wondered if among His last joyful tasks was not that of smoothing down with His omnipotent hand and putting the finishing touches to these vast rolling prairies of West Texas. Surely, He could not have really rested until such work had been fully consummated.

Elsewhere the Creator's immature thoughts may solidify into rocks and rise loftily into mountain summits, or they may dive deep into the sea; but out here in West Texas where the perfection of creation is approximated, they stretch far away in rolling prairies where the eye can never travel fast enough and far enough to even intelligently guess at their infinite breadth. No wonder this is the very best part of the State of Texas, and that it has a most peculiar attraction to the heart of the All-wise Creator. No wonder He is so particular to protect it from the ravishing cut-ups of nature, cyclones, and tornadoes. No wonder the climate is more healthful, the sunshine brighter, the water clearer, the atmosphere purer, the people more prosperous and content—this is the Creator's favor. His inestimable choice of all creation; that part He Himself thought to totally finish, plant it with the richest soil, water it from the fountains of heaven, care it with the most salubrious warmth and endow it with the greatest potential storehouse of riches, needing only to be peeped at or the hand of man to yield a greater wealth than any other portion of this great Empire of the Southwest. Fortunate indeed, are any who live in Texas; but twice fortunate are the citizens of West Texas—the Creator's Paradise of Earth, the entrance corridor to Heaven!

"So's Path, 1880" A sign in Northford, Conn., which says "So's Path, 1880," marks a colonial home which was built in 1880 and a little earlier—one of the five oldest houses in Connecticut. Solomon Linsley occupied the house many years ago and the path that runs by the house over Trickett mountain to North Branford was known locally as So's Path.

"When I woke up, a motorcycle cowboy was telling Pops that he couldn't park in the middle of the parade. I thought there were tears in Father's eyes—maybe it was only perspiration—as he answered 'My engine's dead. Help me push the car over to the curb.'

"Boyohboy, was that motor hot! Clouds of steam sizzling out of the radiator. Funny gurglings and thumpings under the hood. For crying out loud, was Dad's face red when Auntie's car passed, and they saw us stuck there! But the real bad news is the bill we got for towing and for two new bearings.

"No sir, for the life of me, I can't see the economy of using cheap gasoline... especially when Phillips 66 is engineered for specific summer weather, same as it is for the sense of trying to save cents and wasting dollars, when you can get 100% custom-tailored gasoline—yes, I mean Phillips 66—for the same price as ordinary gas?

"P.S. Since writing the above, the car's been fixed and we're using Phillips 66, and Mother says the budget's in better shape than ever because we're getting more miles and less repair bills."

 PROPOGANDA is the good old word "propaganda" is being tossed about pretty loosely. People use it as if it denoted something wicked, whereas it really means only an effort to convert other people to the propagandist's point of view, which is entirely legitimate, so long as the facts and arguments used are truthful. Undoubtedly there has been more lying and misleading propaganda in circulation these past two years than ever before in America. Most of it has been political, some of it attacking the Administration at Washington, some of it emanating from the Administration. The truth about any controversial question has never been so difficult to arrive at.

Most of the misleading propaganda does not deceive any intelligent person who knows anything about the realities of human affairs and understands human nature.

Men who ought to know better tell us that business and industry have always been based on the inhuman exploitation of wage workers and children. That sort of talk is pure propaganda.

The FAMILY DOCTOR
 By JOHN JOSEPH GAINES, M. D.

HARDENED ARTERIES

Normal arteries are soft, elastic and responsive to every impulse whether of food, drink, emotion or toxin. It is amazing when we think of these wonderful channels which vary in diameter from perhaps one inch down to a caliber smaller than a hair, working every second that we live, night and day, and on which our very lives depend.

It is no less than disaster when arteries become hardened from any cause, though few people who live long escape some degree of "arteriosclerosis." It is somewhat natural in the aged.

I saw a man of most exemplary habits all his life, achieve his octogenarian degree and pass it, whose arteries seemed as hard as sticks. He didn't die of hardened arteries. He drank no alcohols, used no tobacco, had absolutely no disappatons. He was unmarried. He never weighed over 130 and actually worked at quarrying building stone at 75 and even older.

Alcohol and tobacco are credited with causing hardened arteries. Your family doctor is the only man within your reach, who can tell you accurately of your condition and guide you safely. Here I want to say: Every adult man and woman should go to the doctor for a thorough looking over, at least twice a year. Have it done most particularly, you might as well not go at all if the "visit gets only a handshake and a smiling assurance from the physician that you are "all right and fit as a fiddle."

If you wait until many arteries are hardened, it is very doubtful if you can expect relief approaching cure. The way to deal with a condition that is essentially chronic is to nip it in the bud if possible. I feel that this letter is worth while.

CARD OF THANKS

We take this opportunity to thank all of our friends for the love, sympathy and kindness extended in various ways to us during the illness and death of our wife and mother, also, for the beautiful flowers sent, which made our sad hearts lighter. This is said to have a much more powerful effect upon the offending driver than a summons. He has to pump up his tires before going on, or hire somebody to do it for him, perhaps after walking a few miles before he can find a mechanic to do the job.

After one experience of this sort, it is reported, Serbian motorists pay a great deal more attention to the traffic regulations.

TRAVEL

The latest scheme to stimulate railway travel, which is being seriously discussed by railroad men and the Interstate Commerce Commission, is to charge flat-rate fares for any distance.

The principle is the same as that of letter postage. A three cent stamp carries the letter five miles or three thousand miles. The post office loses money on the long haul but makes it up on the near-by deliveries.

Under this new railway scheme anyone could buy a ticket for a dollar which would entitle him to travel the entire length of the particular railroad that issued it. But if he were only going to the next station the fare would also be a dollar.

Perhaps that won't be the exact figure, and doubtless exceptions would be made for high-speed trains, but the principle, which works successfully on the long haul, might result in giving the railroads more passenger revenue than they have ever had, and in starting more people traveling than have ever traveled before.

I don't know whether anything will come of it or not but it will be interesting to watch.

A love service never done for appreciation or reward.

PETER PAN GOES MODERN

Since Sir James Barrie produced his delightful fantasy back in the early part of the century, Peter Pan has been a favorite of theatergoers the world over. He provided Maude Adams, celebrated American actress, with a vehicle for several years. When Peter Pan went to Hollywood, the starring acron role fell to Mary Brian. And now he emerges in another form. Beatrice Lillie, international comedy favorite who broadcasts over the NBC-WJZ Blue network every Friday night, gives her impression of Peter Pan as he would appear today.

Newspaperman Wins Painting of Stars

Ernest Rogers, with Painting of Mary Lou and Lanny Ross. He Won It in a Contest.

ERNEST ROGERS, radio editor of the Atlanta (Ga.) Journal, has a new picture in his office. It's a lifelike painting of Mary Lou and Lanny Ross, the popular young lovers aboard Captain Henry's Show Boat, and he is proud of the picture for a number of reasons. It is an attractive decoration; the originals are two of his favorite radio personalities; and he won the painting for writing the best criticism of Captain Henry's Show Boat program, in competition with a number of other radio editors.

In his prize-winning essay, Mr. Rogers declared that the Show Boat program catches and reproduces in dramatic form the spirit of the South and echoes the articulate sentiments of thousands of listeners in all parts of the country. The essay, although shorter than most, paid tribute to each character of the popular Thursday evening NBC program, competently summarized all the varied elements of the show, and declared the hour as "clean, inspiring entertainment."

The painting of the Show Boat lovers is already well known to a number of radio fans. It recently appeared as the cover of Radio Stars magazine.

THE WOMAN OF SAMARIA

The whole community first to hear attentively the message of Jesus was neither Nazareth nor Jerusalem. The place of His youth was Him, and the city that she had enthroned Him sent Him to the cross. The first city where Jesus was received and acknowledged was Sychar, a village in Samaria, close to Jacob's well. A Samaritan woman came to draw water, and He asked her for a drink. It would seem to have been a common enough curiosity, but it surprised her. It was true then and still is that "Jews have no dealings with Samaritans." In the city called Nabulus, the ancient Shechem, of which Sychar is a kind of detached suburb, is still a little Samaritan colony. Its people and the Jews have no contacts. The Samaritans still are ready to argue that in their synagogue is the one true place of worship. They say, "Here is where the body of Joseph is buried, and with it the bodies of the other patriarchs." Jesus did not hesitate, at that well in Samaria, to impart the most sublime truth of His whole ministry to an audience of one, a Samaritan woman. The hour cometh, and now is, when the true worshippers shall worship that Father in spirit and in truth; for the Father seeketh such to worship him. God is a spirit; and they that worship him must worship him in spirit and in truth.

The Samaritan woman believed the message, the truth which He had never before spoken to any one and was not to tell to His own disciples until some weeks afterward. He was the Christ, but the Christ of the Samaritans as well as of the Jews, of all people everywhere, regardless of boundary, regardless of racial or religious traditions, transcending all barriers and all rituals and reforms. And upon this came his disciples, and marvelled that He talked with this woman; yet no man said, "What seekest thou? or, Why talkest thou with her?"

The woman then left her water-pot, and went her way into the city, and saith to the men. Come, see a man, which told me all things that ever I did: is not this the Christ? Then they went out of the city, and came unto him. Her neighbors too, believed, first because of their testimony and then because they saw the things which He spoke the truth. This was the first community on earth evangelized with the Christian message. Who carried the message? A woman who had not been by any means what society regarded as a "good woman," but who was kind enough to do a kindness to a Jew in giving him a cup of water and who received from Him in turn, and passed on to others, a drink of the water of life.

MAPLE CLUB NAMES OFFICERS
To get your family to eat enough leafy vegetables, I would suggest that you serve these vegetables as many ways as possible, and make the dishes attractive," said Miss Stewart at a vegetable cookery demonstration, held at the home of Mrs. Iris Holloway of Maple H. D. club, Friday, June 14.

MISS STEWART said that string beans, lima or dried pinto beans could be used for any of the recipes that she used. String beans were used at the demonstration. Escalloped beans, soured and bean salad were cooked and served. Mrs. Iris Holloway was elected 4-H club girl's sponsor. Mrs. J. F. Carter was elected president of the Home Demonstration club. After the club adjourned, a chicken culling demonstration was held by J. B. Waide, Jr., at the home of Mrs. B. B. Chritias.—Reporter.

MASONS ELECT OFFICERS

At the regular meeting of members of the Muleshoe Masonic Lodge held last week officers for the coming year were elected, as follows: Harold Wyer, worshipful master; W. E. Renfro, senior warden; Dan Winn, junior warden; Cephas Roebuck, Tyler; Jack Cox, senior steward; R. L. Brooks, Jr., junior steward; Judge R. J. Klump, secretary; Judge J. E. Adams, treasurer. Senior and junior deacons will be appointed by worshipful master and senior warden. Formal installation of these officers will be had at the next regular meeting, Tuesday night, July 9.

Winter Salads

SING a song of salads—cold and crisp and good. But don't snig your song only of summertime salads. Salads in winter are most important because winter-time meals need just that lightening and brightening which salads lend to the setting.

Cheerful Colors

Get plenty of color into these delightful winter salads. Think of your color scheme in terms of flaming bits of pimiento, carrots, green peppers, cherries and other warm colors. Make use of such nourishing ingredients as canned chicken, and other canned meats, and such fish as canned shrimps, lobster, crabmeat and tuna. Vary your dressings, according to the ingredients in the salad, remembering that roux-corned cheese dressing is particularly good with a salad of greens, and that lime juice is a delicious addition to a French dressing when used with a fruit salad.

Here are two gay winter salads and a seasonal dressing:

Posy Salad: Arrange alternate slices of orange and canned peaches in petal form in a bed of lettuce. Combine equal quantities of chopped dates and chopped salted peanuts. Moisten with mayonnaise, form into balls and place in the center of each posy. Chop candied ginger and make a thin border around the date ball. Serve with cream mayonnaise to which a little chopped pimiento and green pepper has been added.

Chicken and Fruit Salad: Marinate two 6-ounce cans of chicken in French dressing for an hour. Add two-thirds cup canned grapefruit pulp, two-thirds cup canned diced pineapple and one-half cup nuts. Moisten with mayonnaise. Serve in popover or cream puff shells. This serves eight persons.*

Boisterous Beans

BEAN-FED boys and girls kick up their heels. And bean-fed adults feel pretty good, too. Not just because beans can be made into so many delicious dishes and taste so good—but because they contain the wherewithal to produce muscle, energy and general well-being.

No doubt you serve them often, just as they come from the can—broiling them for a few minutes in those intriguing little brown pottery bowls, garnished with a bit of bacon which sizzles and adds its juices to the beans. But there are lots of other ways to add lima beans and stringless beans to your daily menus. Make them, for instance, into these appetizing meat combinations:

With Beef or With Pork

American Beef Steak with Beans: Sauté eight small whole onions in butter for five minutes. Add one cup of water, one teaspoon salt, the liquor from one No. 2 can of lima beans and the liquor from one cup of canned peas. Cook five minutes more, add one cup of potato balls and one-half teaspoon kitchen bouquet, and cook an additional five minutes. Add two cups of tomatoes, the lima beans, the peas, and the contents of one 12-ounce can of roast beef. Add slowly the liquor from one No. 2 can of stringless beans, stirring until smooth. This serves eight persons.

Stringless Beans with Pork: Cut one slice of salt pork into fine pieces and sauté until golden brown. Add one-half tablespoon flour and stir until smooth. Add slowly the liquor from one No. 2 can of stringless beans, stirring until smooth. Add the beans cut in one-inch lengths, and simmer for five minutes with salt and pepper to taste. This serves six.*

Tailored Summer Suit

NEW YORK . . . Here is a fashionable tailored suit for summer. It is of heavy white silk shantung lined with a collar of blue velvet. The belt buckle and buttons are a gold-colored metal. A white linen blouse with a shirred jabot edged with blue and red embroidery completes the outfit.

CAMERAGRAPHS

INDUSTRY: In Canadian north woods there is a hum of activity as trees are felled and logs hauled to the river for the spring drive.

NEW STAR IN THE SKY: Presenting Ruth Cartwright of Kansas whom great Roxy calls one of the most important discoveries of his career. She has the greatest potentialities of any artist who has ever worked for him, says the veteran showman. She featured with Roxy's Gang over the Columbia network every Saturday night.

ATTENTION, LADIES: Here's the new style in hats as shown by Beatrice Lillie (Lady Peel of the Stars) at the Waldorf. The national comedy favorite is starred over NBC's Blue network from coast to coast every Friday night at 8 P. M., "Radio Time." Note the jockey influence in the new mode of ladies' headwear.

WITH TWO: A flounce, Claudette Colbert, Paramount Star, shows the "fluff" which is in the world of fashion.

JACK BENNY, easy going ring master of NBC's coast-to-coast WJZ network, 7:00 P. M. to 8:30 P. M. has just won new laurels to the crown. He won last year when he was voted "radio comedian in the New York" version of the poll of 200 leading radio-telephone men. He was again chosen, this time by the "radio" men, as the best on the air. "Lads don't scratch a bit," Jack remarks.

As Dust and Sand Swallow Up Western Farm Crops

KANSAS CITY . . . The increased violence of the sand and dust storms sweeping the plains of Wyoming, Colorado, Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas and afflicting all mid-western states, brings succeeding stories of the great damage done to farms and agricultural lands. . . . Upper photo shows a ridge blown sand and silt as high as the barn on a Western Kansas farm. Lower left, women shoppers of Alva, Okla., braving the dust storm. Lower right, two residents of Boise City, Okla., wearing the newly designed dust masks to protect health as the storms continue.

Food Drinks

AN interesting food booklet, recently issued, classes all drinks having milk as a base as "food beverages." Any one who has substituted a chocolate-egg-malted-milk at the soda fountain for his usual lunch, on a busy day will agree that these milk beverages, plus a flavored syrup, plus an egg, are indeed food, in a very sustaining sense. For Young and Old. Make more of them for your children, for children are busy people and dislike lingering over food. Grow-ups may sit down to a long course dinner with anticipation and enjoyment, but to children it usually represents a whole lot of food to be consumed and a whole lot of valuable time wasted from play. While food drinks should not substitute children's meals, they should supplement them. Here are some suggestions for after-school food drinks: Chocolate Cinnamon Malted Milk: Shake together six tablespoons malted milk, four tablespoons chocolate syrup, one teaspoon cinnamon, one-half cup water, two and one-half cups milk and some cracked ice. This makes four tall glasses. Fruit and Milk Punch: Mash two bananas and add the following ingredients: two cups pineapple syrup, one cup evaporated milk, two tablespoons fresh lime juice, one-half cup orange juice and one-half cup crushed pineapple. Shake well with crushed ice. This makes five tall glasses.*

Great Wild Life Sanctuary

The world's most wonderful sanctuary for wild life lies in the north-eastern portion of the Transvaal bordering on Portuguese East Africa, between the Crocodile river and the Pretoria. It presents a vast variety of scenery, from the wild gorges where the great rivers thread their way through the Limpopo hills, to the open, palm-dotted flats of the Shingweddi, and the dense thorn bush country of the Sabi river. Away to the west tower the giant Emakensberg peaks, from whose summits the low veldt appears like a huge billiard table.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

by REV. CHARLES E. DUNN

Christian Missions.
Lesson for June 23rd. Acts 1: 6-8.
Golden Text: Mark 16:15.

Christian Missions are a going concern. There are about 25,000 missionaries on the foreign field, and many of them occupy comfortable, substantial homes. The compounds of the principal foreign missionary societies occupy areas in each of the leading cities where the missionary enterprise has established itself. It is clear that the pioneer days of the movement are over.

One is impressed, in studying missions, with the wisdom, ability, and hard work of the present missionaries, and the extent of the success already achieved. With the conviction that the time had come for a careful appraisal of the whole movement, in all of its phases, a group of distinguished laymen went to the Orient a few years ago for a detailed, unbiased investigation. Their report, "Re-Thinking Missions: A Laymen's Inquiry After One Hundred Years," created a sensation, and immediately became one of the best sellers in the religious book field.

These commissioners brought back from their trip a strong and unanimous conviction that foreign missions are of great importance if conducted on sound lines. They criticize the sectarianism and Westernism of Protestant missions, and assert that their primary aim should not be to build up the church as an institution, but to permeate both the individual and society with the spirit of Christ.

But note that this epoch-making report does not advocate any retreat. In fact these thoughtful laymen favor many lines of advance which will require, for their accomplishment, large additional funds. Indeed if all of their suggestions are carried out Christendom will become bankrupt. The need is overwhelming. For the world is critically ill, and the Christian, missionary gospel of good-will is the road to health.

Circleback News

Sunday school was well attended June 16, especially the young people's class. We understand their teacher is sponsoring a picnic for them Thursday, June 20. We were glad to have Mrs. Moore and children with us.

RULING ASKED ON VALIDITY OF STATE TAX ACT

Collectors Of State Ask Ruling On Legality Of Discounts.

The tax collector's task in Texas may be so intricate this fall, according to present indications, unless some features of the new law applying to tax payments are cleared up shortly.

At the state convention of Tax Assessors and Collectors held in Lubbock about a month ago, it was discovered that laws and amendments passed at the last session of the Legislature contained not less than 15 modifications to the old tax collection and payment laws, putting collectors in a huddle to give correct interpretation to many of these revisions.

Now it is declared some of these new provisions are illegal, some county collectors absolutely refusing to make collections under the new laws, insisting for the cash discounts to be unconstitutional, and if such collections are made their bond-holders may become responsible and have to re-imburse for their acts.

Last week application was made to the State Comptroller to obtain a ruling from the Attorney General on three questions, as follows:

1. Is the discount plan provided by H. B. 6 constitutional?

2. Is the system and forms prescribed by you (the comptroller) and now being used by the assessors and collectors on 1935 assessments and collections in keeping with the bill?

3. If the courts hereafter would find that the discount features of H. B. 6 are unconstitutional, would the tax collector and his bondsmen be liable for discounts allowed by him under this bill when the full amount of the tax has been charged to him and accepted for by him on the tax roll and he has only collected the amount of taxes less the discount authorized by the bill?

A recent decision of the Supreme court upholding certain tax remissions has increased doubt of the tax discount law's validity in the opinion of several authorities, collectors feeling it is but right, proper and a matter of fairness and safety that such ruling be made at this time.

Preachers Lay Plans For Prohibition Fight Many Speakers Active

Ministers from the majority of the Churches of Lamb and Bailey counties met with the Littlefield ministers last Monday morning in the first annual meeting of the Ministerial Alliance of the two counties, the Alliance having been organized in Littlefield June 11, 1934 with 13 members. Since that time the membership has grown to more than 30 and meetings have been held in many of the churches of the counties.

The officers, Rev. J. W. Hendrix, chairman; Rev. John Evans, vice-chairman; Rev. Vernie Pipes, clerk; and Rev. Joe F. Grizzle, corresponding secretary and treasurer, were re-elected to serve the Alliance for another year.

The Alliance will for the next few direct its labors to the prohibition issue. Special rallies will be held in all the towns in the territory and speakers will be sent to any and all communities desiring them.

A committee composed of Rev. J. W. Hendrix, Jev. Joe F. Grizzle, of Littlefield and Rev. J. F. Luker, of Muleshoe, will secure speakers and be ready to furnish one to any community on request. Special rallies will be held as follows: Littlefield, Saturday afternoon, July 6; Amherst and Sudan, July 13; Muleshoe and Aertih, July 20; Olton and Ardoy, July 27; and back to Littlefield, August 17.

The Alliance expects to have some of the very best speakers in the state present this issue to the people of Lamb and Bailey counties.

Rev. C. P. McMasters, Methodist pastor at Buia and Rev. W. J. McDaniel, Baptist pastor at Olton, were received into the membership of the Alliance.

The next meeting will be held with the Amherst pastors, Monday morning July 1 and will be styled Laymen's day. All laymen interested in the work of the Alliance is trying to do are urged to attend this meeting.—Secretary.

LAYMEN'S DAY PROGRAM
Next Sunday morning the Methodist church will hold their Laymen's Day program. We earnestly hope that every layman will be present. Visitors are invited. A. C. Gaede, charge lay leader, will have charge.

The following subjects will be discussed by laymen:

"The Christian Home," Warren Powers.
"A Christian Industrial Order," A. W. Copley.

"A Sober Nation," Good Harden.
"A Warless World," I. W. Haney.

At the evening hour, 8:30 o'clock, Rev. W. L. Tittle, presiding elder of the Plainview district, will preach. The third quarterly conference for the year will be held. Let's make Sunday a great day.—J. FRANK LUKER, Pastor.
