LOCAL LADY'S KIN BUILDS LAVISH HOMES IN WACO

An elaborate new housing development has been opened in Waco by Country Squires homes, a firm owned by Jack M. Dunn, son of the former Vada Smith of Cross Plains and a grandson of Mrs. J. Lee

Smith of this city. The restricted section, known as Heritage Hills, overlooks the new Lake Waco and features homes of Spanish design in the $22,000 to $40,000 price range.

Among places shown to Central Texas people in formal opening was the Casa de Reyna - the queen's house - which stands just to the left of the division's brick-walled entrance. The house features four bedrooms, two and one-half bathrooms - and the luxuriously appointed master bedroom has sunken tub. The den is stepdown, for a split level effect.
