R. T. Tuley, Jr., social security district manager in Abilene, explained that each person who reaches 65 on or after Jan. 1, 1966, has a seven-month period during which he may enroll for the supplementary medical insurance plan, but the effective date of this protection depends on the date of his application. This individual enrollment period begins with the third month before he is 65 and ends in the third month after his 65th birthday. As an example, Tuley said, if an application is not filed until the month after a person becomes 65, medical insurance coverage does not begin until the first day of tertainment for smaller youths, the second month after he applies.

He urged everyone who has a 65th birthday approaching, including those who continue working, to file his application at the social security office two or three months before that 65th birthday. This early action will guarantee full medicare protection beginning on the first day of the month age 65 is reached, but no earlier than July 1, 1966.
