SECURITY

These days a great deal is being spoken and written on this one word. The Social Security Act is before Congress. Insurance companies are busy selling a policy that guarantees an income after a certain age is reached.

In keeping with the trend of times, we are about to inaugurate a policy regarding the sale of Used Cars. This plan will definitely place every used car or truck in a certain classification, and every car in each classification will have a very definite guarantee delivered with it.

In this way, all "guess-work" will be eliminated on every used car we sell. Watch for announcement.

MOTHERLESS BABE BEING REARED IN SCIENTIFIC MANNER AT TECH WHILE FUTURE MOTHERS GET GOOD TRAINING

Barbara is a red-haired, red-faced, month-old borrowed baby, the despot and darling of the Home Management house on the Texas Technological college campus, at Lubbock. Motherless child of a local family, she has several doting college doctors to bathe her, warm her bottle, and turn her on the other side when she cries.

Diapers and baby dresses hang on the clothes-line in the back yard, visitors with colds are banned, and the best lead for conversation at the home economics building is, "How is the baby?"

During Barbara's stay, the home economics seniors now living at the house will observe her mental and physical development and learn how to care for a child in her first year. The observation and experience supplement a course in child development.

Fugue (named for Bach's "Fugue in A Minor"), a big silky dog belonging to Miss Sannie Callian, faculty supervisor of the house, is dour these days, resenting the transfer of attention once paid to him. The entire household is demoralized. The student's office on the first floor has been converted into a baby's nursery. Where the telephone once stood before it was relegated to the butler's pantry now stand soap, baby powder, oil, brush, and cotton wool. A cot has been moved into the nursery beside a bassinet.

Duties at the house alternate between the students. For five days one girl is child director. She is responsible for the care of the baby, while the others are hostess, assistant hostess, general helper, cook, assistant cook, and waitress.

Barbara is being brought up according to modern ideas and a strict schedule. Cheerily, she sleeps and eats, and though her "mothers" insist she is a "good baby," visitors can testify that she is not neglecting the development of her lung capacity.

At least, it can be said Tech college is not teaching theory education altogether, the practical side of life being emphasized. Whether this baby, with all its scientific rearing, will grow up to become a model young lady is still a moot question, hereditarily counteracts environment, and whether these fane studies who have the "delightful" job of changing dummies, scrubbing the rear central portion of the infant's anatomy on which it will some time sit, dusting corn starch over its velvet cuticle, washing and hanging out the birdseye—whether these tasks will enhance feminine desire for a chunk of this sweetness for their own when they finally get their sheepskin from college and tie on to their best boy friend for life, is still a moot question. Some of them may be more inclined to join the ranks of birth controllers—and who can blame them.

Human nature is about the same it was 50 or 75 years ago—so is animal nature, for that's about all human nature is to begin with. Many modern scientific ideas of rearing children are valuable; but there is considerable bunk along with twentieth century notions that could be done away with and the child get along about as well. Children of poor families, where mothers have to do the best they can under the circumstances, continue having the habit of dominating the world's population. Perhaps more of them die; but there are also more of them born—so there is no dearth of babies yet visible, neither will there likely be so long as the human kind retains its primitive instincts of collaboration, and at this date there are no signs of the Creator withdrawing those functions from the race.

Still boys and girls will continue to grow up into men and women. They will continue to marry, keep house and have babies in their homes. Some of them will have a hard job keeping these infants if they had no training at all. It is a laudable fact that some of our education today is practical. A course on diaper changing is more important any time than a course in Latin. Knowing how to sterilize a baby's bottle and prepare its food is greater knowledge than knowing how to pluck eyebrows, rouge cheeks and paint fingernails.

BANKERS ARRANGING REGIONAL MEETINGS

Studying New Legal and Economic Conditions Affecting Bank Management

STRESS PUBLIC RELATIONS

American Bankers Association Sponsor of Meetings as Part of Nationwide Program of Banking Development

PHILADELPHIA—Fifteen hundred bankers from fifteen states met here in January in a two day conference devoted to discussions on legislative, managerial, operating and public relations problems of the banking business. This was the first of a series of meetings planned by the American Bankers Association in its nationwide program of banking development and the leadership of Robert V. Fleming, president of the association. Similar conferences will be held in southern and western sections of the country.

"It is the purpose of these working conferences to bring to association members and other bankers a thorough knowledge of the changes in banking laws and rules, provide discussion of better public relations so that there shall be greater cooperation and understanding between the banker and his customer, and to give opportunity for a survey of the problems incident to the Government's competition with our chartered institutions," Mr. Fleming said in opening the meeting.

To Help Government Out Banking

The discussions at the conference showed that the bankers are ready to make it easier for the Government to relinquish many of its emergency financial services as soon as possible by demonstrating how their institutions are able to render full banking facilities to the public on sound lines.

Bankers generally have recognized that in times of emergency the Government had to come to the assistance of the people where chartered institutions were unable to do so on account of such conditions. Mr. Fleming said they also realize that possibly many functions which the Government is performing are of a nature which can be handled by chartered institutions under the principles of sound banking.

"On the other hand," he said, "we should carry all emergency lending measures of the Government to judge which of these activities can be properly and soundly taken over by banks in their respective communities."

The attending bankers devoted time to considering the Banking Act of 1935 and the many related regulations and discretionary powers under the Federal law. These were explained by O. Howard Wolfe of Philadelphia, who said he had made a count of the various places in which the Government is making discretionary power to be exercised by government officials through regulations.

"Containing the count only of the sections which affect practically all of us, I found there are forty-eight places where discretionary power is given," he said. "It is a problem of so much importance, therefore, to master bank law as it is today or may be tomorrow."

Bank Taxation and Solvency

Bank taxation was discussed by Charles H. Mylander of Columbus, Ohio, who declared that "the average American is vitally interested in taxation of banks because solvency may depend to a large degree upon the way in which the taxing power is exercised upon them."

To prove his point he cited earnings figures which showed that the year ended June 30, 1934, for the United States as a whole, national banks used $148.9 out of each $109 of net operating assets, before tax, in payment of taxes; but in seven of the twelve Federal Reserve Districts the percentage of earnings used for taxes was above 100 per cent.

"As an example of how far taxation can go," he quoted official figures showing that in 1934 a large number of small state banks paid on the average $34.20 of every $100 of operating profits for taxes. Mr. Mylander argued that there "brought home to the average American the self-evident truth that banks, dealing as they do only in tangible property, are not proper subjects for property taxation; that the true measure of a bank's ability to pay taxes is the earnings it can make."

WHEN BANK CROOKS SHOW PREFERENCES

The American Bankers Association reports that non-member banks suffer twice the percentage of burglaries and hold-up robberies as compared with members. Member banks display a sign showing that they respect the protection of the association's detective agencies, who cause the arrest of from 150 to 400 bank crooks every year, the organization, which is a non-profit body, says.

"Professional criminals often boast of having some enough to dodge the law, but the banking system has no means available to members, so long as there are other banks without this protection," it says. "They recognize that once on the record of the Association's Protective Department, they must pay for every crime with which they can be identified. Delinquent warrants have been issued for the arrest of those who penal servitude for one crime would not expiate other offenses."

GIRL SQUADS ENJOY HIKE

The Muleshoe Scouts met Thursday of last week. It was an exceptionally pretty day so the Scouts went on a hike. Those present were: Margaret Cook, Florence Stone, Theresa Stone, June Pierson, Norma Faye Johnson, Geraldine Taylor, Lela McE Barron, Jo Ann Aldridge, Mattie Ray Griffiths, Betty Jo Jordan, Mary Sue Osborn, Jean Darnell, and the Scout leader, Mrs. Bailey, and daughter, Martha Alice.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

When my father or my mother for sake me, then the Lord will take me up.—Psalms 27:10.

The voice of parents is the voice of God, for to their children they are heaven's lieutenants.—Shakespeare.

A POLITICAL CONGRESS

The wild and woolly session of Congress forecast by various public citizens is really turning out to be somewhat of a pink tea affair, as might have been expected since this is election year.

Of course there are some vehement speeches exchanged by members and the usual acrimonious interchanges; but all are careful to see that nothing is said or done that will in any manner seriously effect the people back home nor their own prospects for being returned to their present jobs.

President Roosevelt, of course, has a very satisfactory majority in both the House and Senate, and is no more anxious to stir up any hornet's nest than are the Congressional members themselves.

There may be some wonderment in the minds of Bailey County folks as to why the Republicans don't stand upon their hind legs, gnash their teeth, and spit fire about some of these measures and methods; but it must be remembered that this is also election year for the Reps., as well as the Demos, and they can't afford to do so for fear of alienating some votes which might pave the way toward Republican victory in November.

The new farm bill just passed a few days ago, and which is not a real farm bill but a soil conservation bill passed as a subterfuge to rattle around and take place of the AAA law recently annulled by the Supreme Court.

Other measures have had similar mid experiences in getting over the legal bars, and there will be still others "railroaded" through this national legislative body in similar smooth manner by adjournment and time arrives. Let no citizen deceive himself about Congressional action this year! There may be plenty of false singing and chin excursions indulged in by members; but it will all be done with a definite purpose and in such a manner as not to damage any political fences back home.

TOWNS AND TOMBSTONES

Some years ago the editor of this paper spent several years as a student on the Lycium and chatahouen with one of the leading citizens, and among other facts there was a similarity between the towns and tombstones, and becoming an alter of the had elaborate ries, that is, the people living in such towns had sufficient pride in their cemeteries and respect for their deceased loved ones that they marked their last resting places with headstones in keeping with such civic pride and family respect.

Some of these towns with unkempt streets, unpainted houses, grass grown lots, had cemeteries that were overrun with weeds; and many of the tombstones had been allowed to topple over, some of them falling entirely from their bases and lying flat on the ground.

In one graveyard I visited, I found several headstones had been removed from the grave plots, were lying out in the travel way, and no one knew to which graves they belonged.

Advances in the science of production and refining are also making it possible to use the existing supplies more wisely. One process alone has saved over 80,000,000 barrels of the crude product since it came into use in 1920, and other more recent processes promise to effect even greater savings.

TOO MANY LAWS

Most everyone will agree with the southern editor who declared in a recent issue of his paper that no one ever lived who did not believe everybody else's conduct and business needed regulation and that he could do it better than anyone else.

This obsession, he asserts, is doubtless inherited from the days of oppression when Kings made onerous laws to govern our ancestors. Subconsciously we have longed for an opportunity to regulate something or somebody else.

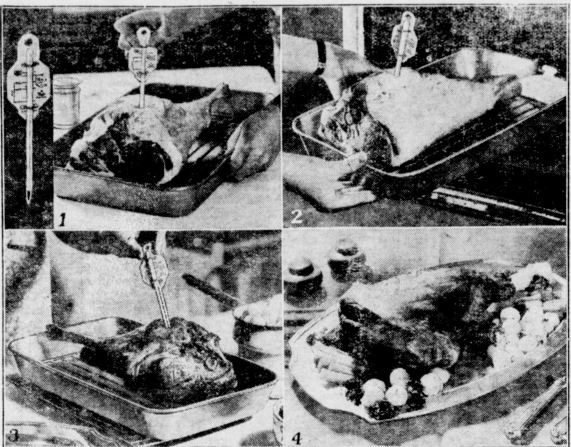

The first act of a free people is to enact laws to make themselves free. They want laws, more laws, to regulate someone else. Nobody ever suggested a law that would regulate himself.

NO GAS FAMINE

At what seems like regular intervals someone sets up a cry that the nation's crude oil supply is fast dwindling and that an actual famine in gasoline will soon stare the motorists of America full in the face.

Nothing could be more foolish than to spend even one second worrying over a future gas shortage. It may come weather like that which has prevailed during the past few years. No more nation-wide dust storms, Clayton asserts, are expected to sweep the country for at least thirty years. He bases his

SCIENCE POINTS WAY TO PERFECT ROAST

YIP, even Friend Husband can now turn out the perfect roast. The experienced cook has no advantage over the beginner. All because today roasting meat has become a matter of mechanical precision. A better knowledge of cooking acquired through research, plus the very latest in kitchen gadgets, has put this business of roasting on a scientific basis—and it's as easy as falling off the proverbial log, say the experts.

In the upper left-hand corner of the illustration above is the meat thermometer which plays a big part in this story of roasting, because it eliminates any uncertainty as to when the roast has reached the proper degree of doneness. The steps in its use are simple, as shown by the pictures.

- 1. Inserting thermometer in the center of the thickest portion of a lamb roast.
2. Placing roast, with thermometer inserted, in a moderate oven (300°-350° F.).
3. Removing roast from oven when column has reached point marked "Lamb" on metal plate.
4. The perfect roast—a delight to the appetite and to the eye.

forests on sunspots and weather records over a long period of years, and took confident of his predictions. Here, then, is one weather man who deceives three cheers, and it turns out that his prediction is true, then a few more cheers ought to be added for good measure.

COMMUNITY BEAUTY

If you are not living, according to your idea, in the best spot on earth, then you should get out. Prairie counties generally attract people who like the broad expanse, and mountainous areas those who appreciate the trees and steep hillsides. One is to be jettisoned if they get located in the wrong setting of nature.

Folks living in Muleshoe should be loyal and appreciative of that fact. Things worth while most are hearty and neighborly. Your own home and your neighborhood should be the most democratic and to you the most desirable spot on earth. Everyone owes it to themselves and the spot in which they dwell to lend their efforts toward making it so.

The children now growing up should have this same spirit inculcated in their hearts. No matter their talents, they should be urged to pick out the one that leads and then use it for not only personal but community benefit—expecting neither honor nor rewards.

Desirable towns and communities do not develop of their own volition; rather through the ideals, ideas and efforts of folks dwelling therein. Muleshoe can be made one of the choice community centers of West Texas if the people have a mind to work in that direction. It can be developed into a center of which they and their children may well be proud—and what can be done, should be done.

Jaunty Journalettes

There are several Muleshoe women who, for the first time may now boast with pride of their age, since they are eligible to an old age pension.

When a Muleshoe man has reached the age where he feels he can't learn any more, he has just about outlived his usefulness.

Have you ever noticed that the average Muleshoe wife seldom gets any until she has made her husband sorry he ever started the argument.

Any Muleshoe citizen who worries about the things that ought to be done can end his worries by pitching in and doing them.

It seems some Muleshoe citizens have the idea that thrift means scrimping and saving for 70 years so their heirs can buy a swell car.

Whether we have prohibition or repeal, there always will be a certain number of loose fellows around Muleshoe who will always get tight.

Pavement Pickups

It's got to be a little saying that "An apple a day will keep the doctor away," and Grocerman Border says, "If you don't happen to have an apple to eat an onion will work still better."

It is reported that Raz Renfrow, the new deputy sheriff, recently overtook and stopped a young lady who was speeding down the street at about 50 miles an hour. "I'll have to pinch you for speeding," said the officer. The young lady stammered and blushed and said, "Well, officer, if you must, pinch me where it won't show." It was then Raz' time to blush—and it said he did.

Muleshoe's prima donna spinster was overheard the other day telling a bunch of married women she had decided some time ago it was better to be on the lookout for a husband than to find a married woman always trying to find the one she already had.

Dr. Lewis says people generally should appreciate dentists, for by the time folks wear out their natural teeth their stomachs are not able to handle very much grub; but the dentist comes along and makes life quite bearable.

Homar Hennings insists if one will eat Red and White groceries they will never feel blue.

J. B. Waide says history puts Christopher Columbus down as the first American farmer when it says: "He plowed the seas and planted his foot on American soil."

A woman was in Jennings' store the other day after some meat, but didn't know just what she wanted. "We have some nice brains," suggested G. O. "Alright, I'll take some," replied the customer. "My husband has been going without brains for some time."

It is reported there are several Bailey County citizens who are happy over the knowledge they are not likely to be drafted to run for any county office.

Names Show Be In Muleshoe All Of The Week

Names Show Theater will be in Muleshoe all next week with an entirely different play each night...

7:45 o'clock, to which all people are invited attendance.

Several of the younger members of the congregation will have parts in the play, the cast of characters being as follows:

The Old; The New; The Reader; The Prisoner; The Negro Father; The Negro Mother; The Mother and Her Six Children in her Tenament Home; Mrs. Reynolds, wife of a coal miner and her son Floyd; Mrs. Nesbet, relief worker and her two small children; Wife of a war victim and her small son.

U. S. HIGHWAY 84 MARKED

U. S. Highway No. 70, the same being State highway 28 has been marked for some time past, now State highway No. 7, which is U. S. Highway No. 84 is also marked.

While many tourists like to travel the state cardinals, yet practically all of them prefer to travel the U. S. roads, which generally speaking, are the best highways available.

VISIT MUSEUM AT CANYON

Sunday morning 70 members of the Muleshoe Grade school, three high school pupils, three school bus drivers and two grade school teachers left for Palo Duro canyon on an all day outing.

Officials and employees at the museum expressed their appreciation and complimented the Muleshoe group very highly on their behavior while being their guests.

MRS. STEVENS HONORED

Tuesday afternoon from 4:30 until 6:00 o'clock a surprise miscellaneous shower was given in honor of Mrs. Glenn Stevens, nee Maudie Douglas, at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Douglass.

Various entertaining games were played after which the honoree was presented with many lovely and useful gifts.

Delicious refreshments were served to the following guests: Mrs. Duddley Rountree and Mrs. Haden Jennings, of Clovis, N. M.; Mrs. A. J. Sparks, of Sudan; Misses Marie Sutton, Elizabeth Haddon, Neva and Tidwell Douglass, Medames Bill Collins, Morris Douglass, Peggy Rockett, H. A. Douglass, Howard Wiseman and the honoree, Mrs. Glenn Stevens.

Several friends who were unable to attend sent gifts.

It enters into human relationships business life.

Returning to the front of the office, I pointed to a rocking chair I always keep there for weary city customers, and suggested he have a seat, at the same time fumbling in my pocket for some loose change, which I didn't have, for I was sure it wouldn't be many minutes before I would be "touched" for the price of a hamburger, cup of coffee or piece of pie.

The stranger bowed his thanks as he became seated. Apologizing to him I returned to my writing of a news story I had just picked up on the street. Soon he was asleep; but not for long, for the printer started a job press and awakened him. Straightening up in the rocker, he rubbed his eyes, then from some hidden place in his only garment drew forth a hard, dry piece of lightbread, holding it up before him, he mumbled a few words I could not catch, then began nibbling it.

"Jesus Christ!" I exclaimed, "don't eat that old dry stuff. Here I'll write you a note. Go down to a restaurant and get some good food. I happen to be out of change; but my credit is good anywhere in town."

He looked at me startled for a moment, then smilingly said, "So you know my name, do you?" It was then my turn to explain, for I really had no thought of speaking his name. It just came out involuntarily because of surprise.

"Yes," he said, "I am Jesus of Nazareth. I have been all over this nation, and am spending most of this year in Texas. It's quite a state to get over. I find, I am dressed just as I was nineteen centuries ago when I was on earth, have been living about the same as then, my physical features haven't changed much; but even those who claim to read sacred literature don't seem to ever recognize me. You can see for yourself the nail-prints in my hands and feet, and I noticed you observed a while ago the scars on my brow from the crown of thorns I wore before I was crucified."

Shocked at the revealed identity, nervous and agitated I said, "I wasn't looking for you to return this way. I thought you were coming back in a..."

"I recall some of these denominations insist that a certain day of the week be set aside as Sabbath, but another teaches members of their sect must be plunged under water while some others think just a little water sprinkled or poured on their heads is sufficient symbol of spiritual cleansing. Some denominations go so far as to declare unless people are immersed entirely they are not to be saved when this old world finally leaps on the funeral pyre and the lapping flames of destruction wind about it. Some denominations, I find argue much about my sacrament, whether it is really my flesh or just consecrated bread they are eating, while still others get a bit excited over the manifestation of my Spirit which came back to them on the Day of Pentecost, has visited them frequently; but they don't always recognize and receive him.

"I find some of these denominations have much internal strife. Members become pitted one against another. Some fall out with their pastor, while others uphold him. They have church meetings and church trials, accusing one another of wrong-doing, when I know through my spiritual discernment that some of the greatest accusers are guilty of worse sin than those they seek to ostracize. To say the least, I didn't teach anything like that while I was on earth. I said 'Judge not lest ye be judged,' for I well knew that no one really understood a human heart except my Father who is in heaven. But some of them will not heed him and my service and sacrifice for humanity is much hindered."

He had ceased munching on his crust of bread and put it away while talking. It seemed to relieve him somewhat to talk to someone he thought knew him, even though that person was an humble country newspaper editor. I said to him, "Come, let's go get some grub! I wouldn't worry so much about the folks in this old world, they may not be worth it. I had a Baptist preacher friend in Oklahoma City one time, he was pastor of the First Baptist church there, his name was McConnell, and, after he had preached and pled with his members for several years he quit and went to lecturing on the chautauqua platform. I asked him why he quit preaching. 'Oh,' he replied, 'It's such unappreciated work. I decided if they wanted to go to hell I'd just let 'em go, so I don't believe I'd worry too much about these folks.'"

My visitor didn't answer me, and, realizing my advice had not been asked I again suggested we get something to eat. Then a peculiar quirk came in my mind, and it seemed I was in some great city. As we walked down the street together folks passing looked at my guest in strange manner. Some made remarks about him. I presume it was because of his peculiar dress. I couldn't catch all they said. Several whom I knew spoke to me then looked at me in peculiar manner as though they thought I had gone crazy, keeping company of such an odd looking fellow; but somehow I didn't mind it at all.

IF YOU THINK CREAM SEPARATOR DISCS HAVE A SOFT SNAP, JUST REMEMBER THESE FACTS:

A cream separator bowl spins at speeds ranging from 8,000 to 10,000 revolutions a minute in the heart of the bowl scientifically designed discs direct the course of the whirling, swirling mass of milk, leading the cream to one outlet and the skimmed milk to others. The centrifugal force generated exerts an unbelievably heavy pressure on these discs.

She Pays Her Expenses With Prizes

Earning one's way through college is no longer a new idea, but winning one's way by means of contest prizes is certainly a new method of accomplishing this. The contest winnings of Miss Margaret Simpson, Denton, have been sufficient to cover the entire cost of her education at Texas State College for Women (CIA) where she is a junior in the department of journalism. She is pictured above with her latest award—a five passenger automobile which she received in a national essay contest.

NEW AAA READY FOR ACTION SEC. WALLACE SAYS

Officials Declare It An Improvement Over Former Law.

AAA officials say they are ready for instant action to launch the new farm relief program when President Roosevelt signs the soil conservation-subsidy measure into law, which he did last Saturday night.

Secretary Wallace has already made a routine official examination of the proposed printing of the bill. The first action of the AAA is expected to be a formal announcement calling regional meetings of farmers at Memphis, Chicago, New York City and Salt Lake City to discuss details of the $500,000,000 program to retire crop land for soil conservation.

The Memphis and Chicago meetings have been scheduled tentatively to begin next Thursday and continue three days, with the others the next week.

Officials said agreement has been reached on many of the major details, but added that the first official disclosure of how the program will operate will be made to farmers themselves at the regional meetings.

One conclusion appeared certain—that the new program will provide subsidies for a considerably greater number of individuals than did the AAA, but that the average amount of payments will be somewhat smaller.

It was indicated that eventually a survey may have to be made for every farm in the United States.

The greatest activity in shifting lands from commercial to soil conservation crops this year is expected in the cotton belt. There, an official said, the AAA may seek diversion of a minimum of 15 million acres normally devoted to cotton.

Cotton was described by one official as the only major crop where there is a dangerous surplus this year, and success of the new program in the South is expected to have an important bearing upon the future permanent late-federal cooperative conservation program.

"I do not regard this bill as a panacea or as a final plan," said President Roosevelt. "Rather I consider it a new basis to build and improve upon, and success of the new program in the South is expected to have an important bearing upon the future permanent late-federal cooperative conservation program."

"Aiming at justice for agriculture and self-interest for the nation, the plan seeks to salvage and conserve the greatest values in human life and resources with which this nation is endowed."

(The law authorizes $500,000,000 in subsidies to farmers annually to withdraw land from commercial crop production and use it for soil building growths or other "economic purposes. The money will be paid either directly to farmers or through states set up approved conservation programs. After two years the subsidies will be paid only in states which have programs.)

AAA officials said a major aim will be to take 23,000,000 to 30,000,000 acres out of commercial crop production in 1936.

Be of Single Purpose

It is a common practice to blame the world for our individual faults and failures. Nothing is more futile than to criticize circumstances.

Get a goal. It is the first essential in making a life good. A single purpose is the first essential of success.

Every man is given brains and a backbone with the idea that he will use both. You develop your muscle by contracting it in the application of its power.

The determined mind defies hindrances as a trained racer will hurdle hindrances. Resistance is needless to development.

But yourself to work to do some worthwhile job and stick to it until it is done. That is the only way to win the success that satisfies.

Hundreds Of Women Henington Grocery Guests Two Days

Aids from the general increase of business last Saturday and Monday, occasioned by special offerings, the management of Henington grocery, this city, entertained several hundred women because of the demonstrations held there those two days.

The demonstrators were of Red and White food products, of which this store makes a specialty, also of Jacob Dold meat, Red and White coffee, cakes and sandwiches of Dold's meats were served for refreshment.

In addition several attractive baskets of groceries were given to some who had registered and made nominal purchases. These were Mrs. Tommy Galt, Mrs. J. B. Burkhead, Joe Ann Aldridge, J. P. THE DOCTORS ARE RIGHT

Women should take only liquid laxatives

Many believe any laxative they might take only makes constipation worse. And that isn't true. Do what doctors do to relieve this condition. They use a liquid laxative.

laxative, and keep reducing the dose until the bowels need no help at all.

Reduced dosage is the secret of aiding Nature in restoring regularity. You must use a little less laxative each time, and that's why your laxative should be in liquid form. A liquid dose can be regulated to the drop.

BANK CHARTERING POLICY REVIEWED

State Official Declares Correct Principles in Licensing Banks Are Essential for Sound Banking Conditions

PHILADELPHIA. — Sound public policy in chartering banks was discussed by Carl K. Withers, Commissioner of Banking and Insurance of the State of New Jersey, before the Eastern Conference on Banking Service, held here recently under the auspices of the American Bankers Association. He declared that a few conditions bearing on the future stability and security of our banking system seem of more importance than that of a sound policy to be pursued in chartering of banks.

Attending to competitive policies of both state and national banking authorities to charter the most banks in the past, he said that the country was over-banked, and that aside from any other consideration, economic or otherwise, this condition was brought about largely through an unwise, haphazard and unthinking charter policy, alternating between the state and national systems, which has marked and hampered banking progress in this country since its very inception.

Political Influence He decried political considerations in connection with the chartering of banks, saying: "Political influence has had no more place in banking than it has in the deliberations of our highest tribunal. The Supreme Court of the United States. Until this is reorganized and brought into being within both our state and national systems, we may never feel safe against the shifting sands of political compromise."

As to the "element of sometimes ridiculous competition heretofore existing between the state and national systems," he said that the country was said in favor of the progress made in recent years. In many states there exists a practical working agreement between local supervising agencies and the federal authorities, whereby all charter applications are mutually considered on a basis of community character, responsibility and fitness.

Aside from the competitive and political aspects of our future charter policy, he said that there are several other more individual and local which merit consideration. Among these he mentioned honesty of purpose, character of the character of management and adequacy of capital.

Most state laws make reference to the "character, responsibility and fitness" of banking purposes of a new bank, he said, continuing: "So important do I conceive this factor to be, that I place it first among those considerations for which the motive is sound, honest and sincere, there is little likelihood that the resultant institution in its service to the community will reflect other than the spirit of its founders."

The Lessons of the Past "Too often in the past have charters been granted to promoters pure and simple, not always pure and by no means simple. The country was dotted with such. The experience has been costly and, it is to be hoped, the lesson well learned, not only by charter-granting authorities, but the public."

Other factors to be considered as most important in granting new bank charters, he said, are the number of institutions already serving the area, the record of earnings of existing institutions, the number of failures since 1920, and the reasons therefor, public convenience and advantage, the reasonable prospects for growth of the community, and expectation of profitable operation and whether a branch bank could serve as well.

"Sound public policy demands that no new banks be chartered unless there is a definite, necessary and permanent need," he declared. "Sound mergers, consolidations and the sensible extension of branch banking are much to be preferred to any general movement toward a flood of new charters. But here again, we must guard carefully against monopoly."

Public Confidence

Challenging a recently published statement that there is an "apparent loss of public confidence in banks," William A. Hays of Illinois, N. Y., asks why, if this were true, bank deposits are constantly increasing. "I maintain that any banking institution which continues to serve its community since the trying days of 1929 must be enjoying the respect and confidence of that community, and I am sure that the same industry of banking institutions which have come through this depression have never had to 'regain' public confidence," he says.

Trust Institutions

A directory of trust institutions published by the Trust Division, American Bankers Association, lists 2,533 institutions having aggregate capital funds of $4,415,000,000 and total resources of $35,432,000,000. It shows a total of 6,949 men and women engaged in this phase of bank work. The trust institutions comprise 1,866 state-chartered trust companies, 1,063 banks and 1,792 national banks and departments.

OIL LEASING IS SPREADING

With several thousand acres of land already leased in Bailey county, similar leasing for oil speculation is spreading now in Lamb, adjoining county, according to report.

A few years ago a well was drilled in Lamb county on the old Yellow House ranch near its headquarters, and abandoned. Many who knew something of the situation at that time, declared the drillers went a little far as there was a showing of oil before the bit could be removed and the hole plugged from public gaze. Now leasing is again active in that section, with rumors several locations have already been made by major oil companies or their representatives and drilling will be started within a short time.

ENCHANTING FOODS FOR ST. PATRICK'S DAY

WHEN you plan your menu for a St. Patrick's Day luncheon, supper-party, or even a family meal on March 17th—bear in mind that these must be no ordinary, everyday foods. St. Patrick was no ordinary person, if we are to believe legends concerning his life.

Some of the less well known of these legends are as fascinating as the old-told tale of his routing the snakes from Ireland. There is the story of St. Patrick as a little lad. Playing in the snow one cold winter's day, he managed to break loose some small lumps of ice. He hurried home to show them to his nurse, of whom he was very fond. She came grumbling into the room saying surely to goodness he could have spent his time more profitably by bringing in a bit of wood for the fire instead of odd bits which would soon melt and mess up the whole place. St. Patrick felt very sad to have displeased his nurse, so he spread his little hands over the lumps of ice, and lo! they suddenly turned into a roaring bonfire.

More Magic At another time the old nurse fell ill, and lying limply on her bed she begged for a pot of honey. Nothing else in the world would help her, she said. But no honey could be found in the whole of the village. The little Patrick took a pitcher of water, and by passing his hands over it, changed it into the finest honey—a food which saved the old woman's life.

Let us see if we can borrow a little of this magic, and pass our hands over every food in such a way as to turn them into miracle goods—foods worthy to be served in the name of good St. Pat. Green foods, of course, to keep his memory green, and to have the charm of his native life.

Garnished with Green—And Good The following dishes have been selected because they are festive enough for any of your parties, and at the same time delicious enough for whatever meal you wish to serve them.

Sardine Egg Omelet: Hard-cook eight eggs, peel, cut in halves and remove the yolks. Mash well, add two tablespoons of melted butter, two tablespoons of onion juice and four tablespoons of mayonnaise. Mix thoroughly, and season to taste with salt and pepper. Move the skin and bones from one 3½-ounce can of sardines (or use a 4-ounce can of the shinkles, boneless variety). Mash and add to the egg yolk. Fill lightly back into the egg cups, decorate tops with capers, slices of stuffed olive or tiny strips of green pepper. Chill thoroughly. Arrange on a large platter decorated with water-cress. This serves eight people. Green Gage Mousse: Put the stones from two 5-ounce cans of green gage plums and 1 plum through a sieve. Add a third cup sugar and one cup syrup. Boil for minutes. Strain through a colander in two table water, and dissolve syrup. Cool. Add or lemon juice, and when to set, fold in one cup of beaten cream. Pack in a melon mold in a mixture of salt and ice. Or freeze through a tray. This serves eight persons.

St. Patrick's Cocktail: Combine the contents of one No. 2 can of pineapple juice, one-half cup of honey and two cups of sweetened Chilli wine. Put a green cherry in each tall slim glass, with crushed ice and pour in the cocktail. Top with a sprig of fresh mint. This fills eight glasses.
