HOOVER SEES BIGGER BUDGET 1931

MONTH'S STUDY REVEALS DOUBT OF REDUCTIONS

Expenditures as Low as $3,600,000,000 Unforeseen.

By LAWRENCE SULLIVAN
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON, Sept. 28. — A month's intensive study of prospective government expenditures for the next fiscal year has given President Hoover little hope that the 1931 budget can be held down to the $3,600,000,000 estimate for the current year.

Thus far, the president has found in his budget studies no promise for tax reductions in the near future. Preliminary estimates for 32 independent establishments of the government total $356,500,000 for 1931 against appropriations of $363,000,000 for the current fiscal year, ending June 30, 1930. The increase is in the veterans bureau, which will need $506,225,000 next year against $397,937,000 in 1930.

But even should the regular executive departments keep down their estimates to the 1930 figures, the whole government organization will still require vastly more money next year. The federal farm board, which has $151,500,000 this year, has not yet submitted a preliminary estimate of 1931 needs. Whatever the farm board demands above $150,000,000 next year will represent increased outlay for the government as a whole.

In addition, the president has already approved a $10,000,000 program for building public buildings in Washington. The 15 cruiser naval building program, even if trimmed to the naval conference, would require upwards of $20,000,000 for the 1931 whitehouse.

Whitehouse expenses are estimated at $402,320 for 1931, against appropriations of $611,944 in the current year. The shipbuilding board will get along with $6,300,000 against $11,494,000 appropriated this year.

The interstate commerce commission will have $1,000,000 more and the Porto Rican hurricane commission, $1,000,000 less. The federal trade commission will have $500,000 more and the national advisory committee for aeronautics $500,000 less.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28. — President Hoover has directed that the 1931 budget be constructed and classified by "functions" as well as by departments making the expenditure.

The functional system applied to the budget for the current year shows:

Military functions, $1,346,357,992.
Civil functions, $722,920,353.
Nonfunctional, $1,582,577,788.

The nonfunctional expenses include interest and sinking fund on the public debt, tax refunds and trust fund charges. They aggregated 41.86 per cent of the 1930 budget. Military functions call for 35.61 per cent and civil functions 12.12. The remaining percentage of the budget is accounted for in the postal deficit.

FALL FACES TRIAL AGAIN

Albert B. Fall, former secretary of interior, faces trial again on Oct. 7 in a District of Columbia court at Washington on charges of bribery in connection with the Teapot Dome oil leases. Above are Fall (upper left) and several of those who have been summoned as witnesses: Rear Admiral H. H. Roscaux (upper right), a member of the advisory committee of the Federal Oil Conservation board; E. C. Finney (lower left), first assistant secretary of interior; Senator Thomas J. Walsh of Montana (lower right), who exposed the Teapot Dome scandal.

WILLIAM II IS NOT LIKELY TO LEAVE HOLLAND

By JULIUS FRAEDSEN.
United Press Staff Correspondent.
WALDEN-ON-HUDSON, N. Y., Sept. 28.—Wilhelm of Prussia, patriarch of the now scattered house of Hohenzollern and one time emperor of Germany, will leave his place of exile in Holland only if by a turn of affairs in Germany he is invited to resume his hereditary place as king of Prussia, according to Poulney Bigelow, adventurer and author, who today told of letters recently received from the former Kaiser.

Bigelow, son of a former ambassador to France, knew William II, when he was a boy and the friendship has continued. For many years Bigelow lived in Germany and he is an authority on the history of that nation.

Now 75 years old, he makes his home in this sleepy village on the banks of the Huds. n., surrounded by books and a host of curious gathered round the world.

Bigelow has not seen Wilhelm since he was forced to flee his throne near the close of the war. Letters, however, come frequently from Doorn to Walden, most of them written in English in a fine, clear script.

Wilhelm would perhaps like to live out his life in Germany, rather than in exile, Bigelow thinks, but prairie scribbles any attempt; unless asked to be king of Prussia again.

GROUP TO HEAR NAVY OFFICER SEPTEMBER 30

Shearer, Central Witness, Also to Be Examined.

By PAUL R. MALLON
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON, Sept. 28.—Admiral J. M. Reeves, mentioned in testimony before the senate subcommittee investigating the activities of William B. Shearer, big navy propagandist, as having expressed the hope that the 1927 Geneva disarmament conference would fail, notified the committee today he desired to appear before it Monday.

Chairman Shortridge notified the naval officer he would be heard on Monday before Shearer is examined. The committee has not heard from the other three officers whose names were brought into the inquiry by Drew Pearson, Washington newspaperman.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28.—On the threshold of a new disarmament meeting with Premier MacDonald of Great Britain here next week, Pres. Hoover is closely following the evidence before the senate investigating committee concerning the breakup of the 1927 disarmament meeting and has ordered his departments to offer any possible assistance to the committee.

Several department papers of important significance to the investigation already have been turned over to the committee, the United Press is reliably informed. Others are soon to follow, among them records which federal agents have on the activities of William B. Shearer, naval propagandist, whose Geneva activities caused the investigation.

While there has been no public collaboration between the justice department inquiry into the case ordered by Mr. Hoover and the senate investigation suggested by Sen. Borah of Idaho, justice department agents have attended every session of the committee in the guise of spectators and the committee has been able to confront witnesses with private letters and secret arrangements which were not brought out in previous testimony.

Members of the senate committee made no secret of their intention to prevent any new "Shearer" incident from rising to upset the proposed disarmament conference which Premier MacDonald and Mr. Hoover are arranging. This hope is shared by the president and explains his interest in the inquiry.

In reference to MacDonald and the president, the committee will hold no sessions while the British premier is in Washington. It hopes to conclude before he arrives next Friday but should it be unable to finish by that time it will recess over the period of his visit.

The next development in the senate inquiry will be the appearance before the committee Monday of the central witness, Shearer. He has declined to talk while the shipbuilders who were employing him held the stand, deploring his work and expressing their sorrow they had hired him.

"I will have my day," he has told experts, upon the advice of his counsel, Judge Cohan of New York.

Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald Sails on Peace Mission to United States; Departure Delayed by Fog

By HENRY T. RUSSELL
United Press Staff Correspondent
SOUTHAMPTON, Eng., Sept. 28.—Premier J. Ramsay MacDonald sailed on the Berengaria at 9:30 a. m. today for his peace mission to the United States.

A heavy fog delayed departure of the vessel but the sun finally broke through the banks of mist and the Berengaria was able to proceed on its journey.

MacDonald and his daughter, Isabel, were in their cabins at the hour of sailing and only a few workmen were on the dock to see the vessel slip away. Britain's farewell to its Laborite premier was given last evening when he came from London to Southampton to board the liner.

Prior to sailing, MacDonald sent a final message to the London Daily Herald, the organ of the British labor party. In this message he said:

"I go to America as a humble missionary of peace inspired by the purpose which I have always cherished in my heart. My strong hope is that a complete agreement will be fulfilled. I feel I have come near to realizing the great ambition of my life. That is, to assist in giving a practical and really effective expression to the world's desire for lasting peace."

LONDON, Sept. 28.—Determination to avoid any delay in the general march forward towards disarmament was expressed today by Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald in a message to the national executive committee of the Labor party. The message is to be communicated to the annual Labor party conference at Brighton when it opens Monday.

He reiterated that any agreement on naval limitation reached on his present trip to the United States can only be preliminary to a larger agreement which must be reached with other naval powers.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28.—Weather permitting, President Hoover will motor to his Rapidan camp in the Blue Ridge mountains of Virginia this afternoon to make ready for the visit of Premier Ramsay MacDonald to the wilderness retreat next week-end.

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—Great Britain's prime minister, J. Ramsay MacDonald, is expected to make his first public speech in this country on the day of his arrival here from Washington, Oct. 11.

MacDonald is to be the guest of four societies at a luncheon in his honor at the Hotel Astor. The organizations include St. Andrews, St. Georges and St. Davids societies of New York, representing the Scottish, English and Welsh elements in the community, and the English speaking union of the United States.

Oklahoma Oil Field Shut Down

All drilling wells will be shut down for a 15-day period after cement has hardened at the last casing point.

To Speak Here

Dr. Ira Landrith, citizenship superintendent of the International society of Christian Endeavor, who will deliver an address at the First Christian church of Cisco next Friday night at 7:45.

DR. LANDRITH WILL DELIVER ADDRESS HERE

"Young people are tractable, impressionable and they would rather be right than wrong."

"All prejudice is the child of sin and ignorance."

"The crime of partisanship has been making a political issue of world peace, partisan football of the broken heart of humanity. The Nero of partisanship has been fiddling while the world burns."

Typical of the strong and epigrammatic addresses of Dr. Ira Landrith are these quotations. Dr. Ira Landrith, citizenship superintendent of the International society of Christian Endeavor, one of the best known public speakers in America, will speak at the First Christian church here at 7:45 o'clock next Friday night under the auspices of the Texas Christian Endeavor union. A native of Texas, Dr. Landrith is home in any part of the United States, following 25 years of supreme activity on the platform and in the van of progressive movements. He was formerly president of Ward-Belmont college. For the past few years much of his time has been devoted to writings and addresses in promotion of the Christian Endeavor movement. Dr. Landrith was trained for the law, but in early manhood entered the ministry. He has since been a writer, an educator, an editor, and a distinguished and capable Christian statesman, known best in his campaigns for civic righteousness.

The Kansas City Gazette-Globe recently described him in these terms: "As a platform man, Dr. Landrith is unsurpassed. His style mingles the elusive plantation melody, quietly permeating as the moonlight and soft as the scent of magnolias, with the precipitous fire of a soul that instantly flares out against injustice, whether it be individual or national."

CISCO CROSSES LINE FOUR TIMES LAST QUARTER

Big Dam Team Brilliant in Western City Victory.

By R. A. BUTLER
EL PASO HIGH SCHOOL STADIUM, EL PASO, Sept. 28.—Under the glare of batteries of powerful floodlights ranged about this magnificent stadium tonight the Cisco Lobos declared again their supremacy over a fighting El Paso Tiger football club. The score as the final gun ended the sensational clash was Cisco 38, El Paso 13.

Many Thrills
There were enough thrills in the first quarter of the game to make an S. M. U. battle look like 30 cents. Both teams opened up with the aerial game from the start and intercepted passes were the rule rather than the exception.

Holt started the fireworks when he intercepted Phippen's toss to Van Horn on the 50 yard line. Simon punted to Cisco's fourth yard marker.

The Lobos made two first downs then Banes intercepted a Lobo pass. On the next play Turk kicked a Tiger pass and

A crowd of enthusiastic football fans, estimated at between 1,500 and 2,000 in number, heard the returns of the Lobo-Tiger game, played in pay, as they were received in Cisco last night by telegraph at the Ford-Green Music company and broadcast locally to the waiting crowds which congregated along the street.

Line plays gained a few yards and on the fourth down Phippen's pass bounced off Whitehead's fingers in the end zone.

Tigers Score First.
If the first quarter appeared all Cisco the second was largely El Paso. The Tigers drew first blood in that period when Broadbush punched the Cisco line for six inches and a score after the firm of Broadbush and Simon had featured in a dazzling aerial display. The Tigers couldn't do much with the Lobo line but they knew ways to get over it and they did so. The kick failed on offside penalty.

But the Lobos were far from ready to concede the Tigers the game. They came back fighting like the pack they symbolize and in a drive featured by Miller's 25 yard slant off his left tackle, carried the ball across the Tiger-goal line in a series of driving line plays. Phippen kicked goal and the score was 7 to 6, Cisco. It was a glorious comeback. The Lobos appeared to have been mollified by the Tiger score. So the half ended.

Phippen Features Drive.
Only a few minutes after the opening of the second half the Lobos scored again, this time when Phippen carried the ball a yard over a hotly contested goal line in a quarterback sneak. Phippen

FIND BODIES OF EIGHT IN MINE BLAST

PANAMA, Okla., Sept. 28.—The bodies of eight miners, victims of an explosion which cleaned the 1,500 foot shaft of No. 7-Covington coal mine near here, were recovered early today.

Working into the early hours of the morning, hundreds of rescue workers braved the deadly gas of the wrecked shaft and brought the bodies to the surface where they were claimed by friends and relatives among a crowd of more than a thousand which kept vigil at the mine last night.

Two bodies were recovered earlier in the night. The remaining six were recovered among the debris early today.

The dead: Jack Shelton, Shady Point, Ok. William Capes, Poteau. Herman Cureton, Panama. Willoughby Wells, Shady Point. Bob Hanson, Jenny Lind, Ark. Three miners had not been identified definitely. It was believed one was named Smith and another was named Howard.

NEWS PROPHECY PEERED WELL INTO FUTURE

ST. PAUL, Sept. 27.—Making predictions on events to occur within the next 150 years is in a sense a task comparatively free of danger since one would not be alive to hear taunts ever uttered.

But to indie forecasts so accurate that more than half of them have come true within a half century is nothing short of magic and such was the record of an anonymous writer in a St. Louis newspaper in 1880.

In dismantling an old home here the clipping bearing the predictions of "E. P. P." the otherwise anonymous St. Louis writer, came to light. It was from a newspaper published Feb. 19, 1888.

E. P. P. started out as follows: "I shall take the liberty of transcribing you 100 years into the future. It is Jan. 1, 1988."

And the well here is what he predicted: Formation of a League of Nations, which he called by that very name.

Formation of a world court for settlement of international disputes. Machines in which man would fly with ease carrying heavy weights and freight.

Perfection of the "photophone," by means of which the world's news would be broadcast by sound and picture.

General knowledge of world events on the day they occur. Reformation rather than penalization of criminals.

Increases in the span of human life. So much for the predictions which already have come partly true, at least, 43 years after they were made.

E. P. P. was still 87 years old at the time of his predictions. Roads to be given over to cultivation having been made unnecessary by air transportation.

Abolition of postoffices with serial mail delivery at each persons door by parachute. Givers to Come. A new United States stretching

EARLE PEACOX IS ASSESSED PRISON TERM

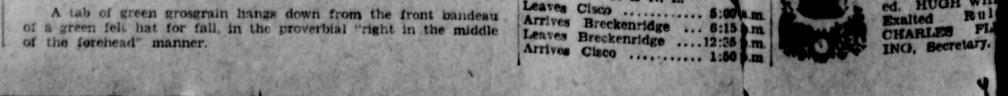

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Sept. 28.—Earle Francis Peacox, 21-year old radio expert, has escaped the electric chair but he must serve from 20 years to life in a state prison for the murder of his wife, Dorothy.

Peacox's mother, Mrs. Catherine Peacox, who testified that there was a slight streak of insanity in her son and who had sat at his side during the long, drawn out ordeal, collapsed when the foreman of the jury intoned the body's findings.

THIS HAS HAPPENED
HELEN PAGE feels unhappy over her classmates' accusations of love with her handsome cousin, LEONARD BRENT. But she represents all that she knows of love and family and she knows how to handle it. Brent changes all his plans for Helen's future after a chance meeting with a dying man, CHARLES NELLIN, who tells a strange story which Brent is able to corroborate to some extent on a trip to Yonkers.

"Why are you wearing your mother's locket?" he asked. "You might lose it."

On graduating, Helen reminds her guardian of his promise to reveal her parentage and is amazed when he informs her that she is the daughter of a millionaire, CYRIL CUNNINGHAM, and that he intended to take her to him when she was 18. Brent introduces her to Cunningham as his granddaughter and offers as proof a photograph containing a picture of ANGELINE CUNNINGHAM which he had taken from the dying Nellin.

HOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

On grounds of the place had been one delightful surprise. From the highway the estate had been neglected, forsaken look. Helen had quickly discovered the western veranda with its hanging roses and the well-kept lawn that led down to the lake. In a small garden, she learned one day, was visible from the room which had been her mother's.

Her grandfather had given her a key to the room without comment other than, "you are the first to enter it."

Brent understood that he meant to see her mother's departure. She had at once to the closed door and stood before it with a prayer on her lips that she might come within it to the parents she would not remember.

There was much that she was grateful for. Many things to be remembered and wept over. And at last came upon a photograph of Charles Nellin—the man she believed to be her father.

She studied his handsome features intently and reverently and wondered why there was a slight smile at her heart. The picture, in the locket, she knew. There was a sad fatality about it that touched a responsive chord in her own heart, but Charles Nellin's countenance lacked the power to move her.

Still, she took his photograph to her room and placed it on her dressing table, being motivated by a selfish feeling.

On the days passed and the preparations for her birthday party went smoothly ahead, she paused to look at that pictured face and wonder if her mother had been happily married.

A happy marriage, Helen was convinced to believe, might conceivably be a very rare thing. For, as she had been told in certain circles, she was modern enough to believe, in regard to Brent, for instance, she was frank with herself. She knew she would marry if he asked her to, but she also knew that their life would be a struggle.

the one he had taken from Charles Nellin's possession.

He had found it on the floor of the main building. Just inside the door. As he picked it up he thought that Helen had dropped it there. He had put it in his pocket with the intention of returning it and cautioning her against such carelessness.

Before he could locate her he had seen Eva. And just as she came up to him, smiling a welcome, Helen had appeared behind her. Brent's quick eye saw in a glance that Helen was wearing her locket.

For an instant his mind was in a whirl. Then he bent over Eva's hand and bestowed the customary kiss upon it. When he looked up Helen was turning away.

A few minutes later, in a secluded corner of the library, he took the locket from his pocket and opened it. It must be, he knew, the locket that Mr. Cunningham had spoken of—the one he believed his daughter, Evangeline, had taken away with her.

He had expected to see Cyril Cunningham's picture in it. An exclamation of surprise escaped him when he saw that it contained one of Charles Nellin instead.

Whom could it belong to? Where had it come from? He must he told himself, find out at once if Helen had discovered it here at Bramblewood or if—

The thought that someone here, among the guests, might be the owner of the locket brought a cold perspiration to Brent's usually cool brow.

Brent put it in his pocket, and breathed a hearty sigh of relief. At least whoever had lost the other would not think he or she saw Helen wearing it and claim it, and thereby start an investigation that might lead to exposure of Helen as an impostor.

They finished the dance, waltzing to the immortal strains of the Blue Danube, and Helen went about the duties imposed upon her by her role of hostess.

The party was a huge success. The girls got their kick out of acting demure and the boys enjoyed themselves wondering what it would be like if the "femmes" should revert in earnest to the manners and customs of former days.

After that they waited for the real fun to begin. But Mr. Cunningham prevented it. He had come down by great physical effort to assist in welcoming the guests and hear his house ring once more to the tune of merry laughter, to watch the pretty flirting of maids as coy—for the moment—as any he had known, and to dream over the past.

A feeling of having made his peace with the world stole over him as the hour to retire to his room drew near. His strength was failing rapidly but he had planned a surprise that he wished to announce at the traditional moment and he did not want to make a change.

His presence held back the desires of his guests. They could not fling aside the spirit that he had called up for the occasion and be their modern selves while he remained downstairs.

No one was so discourteous as to let him suspect that he served as a damper, and when supper time arrived he was convinced that his idea had brought joy to others as well as to himself.

With the assistance of his attendant, Marks, he took his place at the head of the long table in the big dining room and assumed the duties of host with dignity and ease.

into an excited but subdued chatter.

Mr. Cunningham bent his head and kissed Helen very gently. Her eyes filled suddenly with tears.

"Thank you," she said in a choked whisper. Then she turned her head to look down the table where Brent sat. There was upon his face an expression that she could not gauge, perhaps because he was desperately trying to conceal his elation and keep his expression inscrutable.

He had not guessed Mr. Cunningham's decision to accept Helen as his granddaughter and heiress to his fortune. It came to him as a great surprise as it was to her. He did not go to her at once, but her eyes constantly sought his and he knew that she was waiting for him to tell her what this latest development would mean to them. Would he leave her now, go away and forget, thinking his duty done?

Duty! Helen hated the word. She wanted love. And Leno did not love her, she was certain of it. His continued attitude of sorrowful renunciation proved it.

And wouldn't he give her up altogether now that he knew her fate was sealed and she must remain with her grandfather? The thought brought anguish to her.

She was deaf to the remarks of the people who crowded about her, offering their congratulations and felicitations. She scarcely heard Mr. Cunningham's meager explanation of her history.

But when Eva came to her and, putting her arms about her, said: "I'm so glad, for your sake," she wanted to cry out that there was nothing to be glad about—that her life was being sacrificed. Her self-control was leaving her in a panic of fear that she had lost Brent.

Just as she might have said something wild she saw Brent coming toward her. He took her hand and pressed it hard. "Courage, my dear," he said under his breath. Helen barely caught the words but they steadied her. She smiled at him and turned away to those who were still gathering around her.

As she did so Eva unobtrusively slipped a hand into Brent's. He gave it a perfunctory squeeze and let it go. Eva was too excited to note his lack of warmth.

Her act annoyed Brent excessively and he cursed himself for having been a fool about her. He had slipped but rarely in his life and as he looked at Eva he felt a desire to choke her for having been the cause of one of those rare occasions.

One word to Helen of his attentions to Eva and he knew he might as well cry for the moon as to seek to win her. He seemed to realize the folly of his conduct with full force now that Helen had become the Cunningham heiress.

But later in the night he had a comforting reassurance of her feeling for him.

The guests were departing—long after Mr. Cunningham had retired—and Helen suggested to Brent that they drive Eva home since she insisted that she could not remain over night. She had to leave early the next morning for a music lesson in the city.

"Bob is coming for me," Eva told them, with an appealing glance at Helen.

"Oh," Helen said indifferently, and then added, enthusiastically to Brent: "Suppose we go and drive the sun up, Leno?"

HERE'S A STOWAWAY WHO PREFERRED HIS LAUNDRY

HAVANA, Sept. 28.—Being a stowaway in these days of world travel has become an ordinary affair, but to become a stowaway against one's will—that's news.

Rafael Casado, Key West laundryman for the P. & O. liners' sailors, took the wash to the steamer recently as usual and asked for his money. While waiting for it, however, the steamer cast off and Casado found himself going to sea, hence he did.

Upon arrival of the steamer "Governor Cobb" in Havana, Cuban authorities asked questions, and as a result of their interview the journeying laundryman was sent to Tiscornia—the immigration station to await the return of the P. O. boat to Key West and the laundry.

A CHARMING HOUSE WITH ENGLISH LINES

THE English type of house has, in recent years, been enjoying an increasing popularity among home-builders. And deservedly so, for it presents an interesting exterior and an amiable possible interior.

The unique gabled front of this design at once sets the house off from its neighbors. The classic entrance, painted white, cream or ivory, is a mark of distinction and brings out that varied beauty of the brickwork.

One of the big sensations of the home talent college comedy "Aunt Lucia" will be the "men's flapper chorus." This group consists of more than 30 Cisco-business men playing the part of college girls.

The "Aunt Lucia" flapper chorus promises something new in the way of choruses. Here are their names, the college flappers, members of Sig Sig a Retire sorority.

POWELL PLAYS LEAD ROLE IN 'GREENE CASE'

"The Green Murder Case" was a great mystery story but as a moving picture at the Palace Theatre today it is even more gripping, more exciting.

The plot has to do with the strange killings which occur in the Green family's household. An elder son, his younger brother and their mother succumb to the fiendish hand of an unknown murderer.

William Powell in "The Green Murder Case" A Paramount Picture

William Powell, as Philo Vance, is called in in the case by his friend "The Canary Murder Case" E. H. Calvert, the district attorney. Working on the case with Powell is Eugene Pallente, the practical-minded and blundering comedy detective who was also one of the figures in "The Canary Murder Case."

If you like your thrills dished up with machine-gun rapidity, if you like entertainment that keeps your pulses tingling, don't pass up "The Green Murder Case." It is one of the season's best bets.

Moody revealed that since about three million dollars of the tax payers' money had been required to pay 74 prison debts which accumulated before his administration. He added that lands on which prison farms are locate are of no agricultural value because they are subjected continually to damaging floods.

GRAY HAIR INDICATES BAD HEALTH—MAKES YOU OLD

Gray Hair Is Dead Hair, But Youthful Color Can Be Revived

USERS OF NEW TONIC LOOKS YEARS YOUNGER

A newly discovered scalp and hair tonic banishes itchy dandruff, cures and falling hair and while doing this users notice in amazement that the youthful color returns to their gray hair as if by magic.

Primarily intended only as a stimulating tonic to put the hair and scalp in vigorous condition—it has followed that the hair revives and changes back to its shade of brown, red, auburn, black or blonde, as the case may be, and the user actually looks years younger. What is more becoming than the shade nature bestowed originally to match your complexion? There are over 3,000 shades to human hair and no expert can tint or paint the hair with old-time dyes so satisfactorily.

It seems a doctor asked himself this question: If I can stimulate the heart, liver, bowels, digestion, why not a stimulating tonic to the scalp and hair roots. Endless experiments resulted in the "Lea's Tonic" which may now be obtained in leading drug stores. Change, shade by shade, is gradual back to youthful, both men and women use it. One suspects and experts can detect it. Thousands of empty tests prove Lea's Hair Tonic has less and continuously satisfied over long periods of years. One may apply to small areas on scalp and watch results.

If the reader desires to try Lea's Hair Tonic on guarantee of their satisfaction they should send a bottle to drug store or publisher bill to this advertisement send to Lea Tonic Co., P. O. Box 100, Wood, Md., for regular bottles directions, postage paid. Dealers in larger cities charge much as $25.00 for treatment can easily apply yourself at home.
