DAILY BIBLE THOUGHT

SHALL WANT NO GOOD THING: — For the Lord God is a sun and a shield, the Lord will give grace.

LIFE AND GOOD DAYS: — He that will love life, and see good days, let him refrain his tongue from evil, and his lips that speak no guile.—1 Peter 3: 10.

CARTER GLASS ON THE WAR PATH.

Senator Carter Glass of Virginia is one of the most outspoken leaders of the American democracy and when he speaks his bolts the chips fall on every side. He is a member of the senate banking and currency committee and chairman of the senate sub-committee charged with recommending changes in the federal reserve act. Senator Glass is one of the authors of the federal reserve act. He was a stalwart supporter of all the policies of Woodrow Wilson. In a statement to the press he severely criticized a proposal to have the federal reserve banks grant large financial credits to foreign banks. He charged that the state department at Washington, without any sanction of law, has sought to control private credits and to interfere with the federal reserve system. Speaking of President Hoover the Virginia leader said:

"The president of the United States has not and never was intended to have any authority whatsoever over federal reserve banking policies, which are definitely fixed by statute, both affirmatively and negatively." He branded the proposal to have the federal reserve bank "thrust into the vortex of European financial operations in the guise of buying prime commercial short time bills as a 'discreditable proposition.'" He reminded the American people that the dominating figures of the New York federal reserve bank once did the same thing for England but that it is no defense or excuse for administration leaders to flout the federal reserve banking laws a second time.

Senator Glass was among those first consulted by President Hoover about the latter's proposed debt moratorium and is understood to have agreed with the president finally, except that the Virginia senator would go further and readjust all war debts.

There are rumblings of a coming storm in December. A new congress will convene and Carter Glass will answer roll call. European statesmen and financiers are holding daily conferences. As for the Hoover moratorium it is functioning. Politics play a large part in these conferences abroad and politics may play a large part in the proceedings in the December session of the 72nd congress which is almost evenly divided, speaking of the political line-up. Why not give politics a vacation at home and abroad until the terrific problems which concern the civilized world are given a solution of a partial solution?

DOHERTY WINS SECOND ROUND OF THE BATTLE.

A two judge district court in Kansas, after four days of testimony and arguments, granted a temporary injunction against state interference with sales of Cities Service stocks in Kansas. Henry L. Doherty won the first round. Then his lawyers called for another. Doherty won the second round. Now the battle is on in Kansas with the Kansas City Star leading the advocates of cheaper rates and former Sen. James A. Reed on the sidelines, watching the progress of the very interesting row between an American commonwealth, a mighty magnate of public utilities, and one of the most influential daily newspapers west of the Allegheny mountains. Rich pickings for the lawyers.

MURRAY AND STERLING FAR APART.

Governor Murray of Oklahoma ordered the barriers removed. They were removed. Then Governor Sterling of Texas ordered the rangers to replace the barriers on the Texas banks of the Red river. They were replaced. Rangers obey orders.

Murray is for free bridges. Sterling is for free bridges. Murray ignored an injunction granted by Federal Judge T. M. Kennerly. Sterling bowed to it. It was not a case of passing the buck. It was merely tossing the ball to Kennerly. How what action will the judge take?

COL. ALVIN OWSLEY IN THE PICTURE.

Col. Alvin Owsley of Dallas, past commander of the American Legion, appeared before the Lions convention in the city of Toronto and declared that the 3000 American engineers and executives working in Russia under the Soviet auspices would have their citizenship forfeited "if they refused to return to the United States in 30 days."

Col. Owsley isn't a federal judge. He is a member of the Dallas bar. Now did he speak for himself or the courts of the country or the congress of the United States? Why should these American engineers forfeit citizenship because they seek employment under a foreign flag? Henry Ford is selling tractors to the Russians. American manufacturers are selling combination reapers to the Russians. Why not forfeit Henry Ford's citizenship? Why not declare by law or otherwise that American manufacturers who sell to the Russians are without a country or a flag?

MUSSOLINI AN ADVOCATE OF PEACE.

Mussolini never breaks away from the pictures. He never breaks away from the press headlines. Now he is for complete disarmament of civilized nations and ready to junk the cannon and the rifle and the sword. This should appeal to Senator Borah of Idaho. He is for complete disarmament. He is for revision of the Versailles treaty. He is for revision of World War debts. How would it be possible to revise or cancel the $10,000,000,000 war debt carried by the American people? France is not for disarmament. France has a magnificent army, a navy that is modern, and a greater number of war planes than any other nation. Complete disarmament will take place when the millennium comes in. It is not coming this year.

A "Moratorium" Wanted Here, Too!

UNDESIRABLES SHIPPED TO THEIR HOMELANDS.

Secretary of Labor Doak has let it be known that more than 20,000 undesirable aliens will be shipped to their homelands this year. Less than 20,000 were shipped in 1930. Jobs for the jobless appears to be the war cry of the world. Detroit taxpayers contributed $18,000,000 to the support of jobless ones and their families in less than 12 months. Now the center of the automobile industry is facing the largest deficit in history. Why not deportation of undesirables?

OTHER OPINIONS

A TIME FOR INVESTMENT

The profitable and safe investment of surplus funds has never been an easy matter. At no time does the public stand more in need of sound advice than at or near the two extremes of the business cycle, the peak and the nadir.

Today, after the severest liquidating period the United States has known, and one which thus far has paralleled in length that of the 1919-1921 bear market which ran almost twenty-two months hundreds of thousands of individuals throughout the country are asking: Has the time come to buy securities? The dangers of forecasting are well known, but so much money and time have been spent lately in statistical research and in the examination of factors influencing the value of securities that investment and economic services are acquiring a well-recognized business status.

What do the investment organizations say, and what factors are back of their advice or suggestions? In general they are committed to the theory of the business cycle which postulates a more or less invariable sequence of certain economic events. Starting let us say with rising cost of money, there follow declining bond prices, then declining stock prices and in succession declining wholesale commodity prices, lower retail prices, lower money rates, rising bond prices, advancing stock prices, recovery in wholesale commodity prices, increasing retail prices and back again to rising cost of money. The average duration of the thirteen major business cycles from 1855 to 1927 was about thirty-nine months, while the periods of unsettlement or "bear market" averaged 16 1/2 months. Among these thirteen cycles there were three depressions that assumed panic proportions, those of 1893, 1907 and 1921, and all three were dwarfed by the depression which occurred between Sept. 3, 1929, and June 2, 1931.

While the investment services do not divulge their methods of arriving at various deductions or forecasts, it is evident that their judgment must lean heavily upon certain business data and statistical devices or relations which are regarded as barometers and which have been tested over a period of time. One well-known forecasting agency outlines the theory that the physical law of action and reaction applies to business and finance if the factors of time and intensity are properly applied.

Another theory by a prominent economic service leads to the barometer rule that one should buy stocks when the index of volume of manufacture declines below the level of 89 per cent of normal provided it accompanies a decline of 1 1/4 per cent from the previous high in adjusted rates on prime commercial paper, and should sell on the converse of the proposition. A third theory is based on dividend yields in relation to interest rates and still another on interest rates in relation to bond yields.

Speaking by and large, it is generally accepted that periods of prosperity offer the best time for the disposal of securities, while severe business depressions offer the advantageous opportunity to buy them. This general theory is hardly definite enough for the average investor to base specific action upon it. He knows that booms follow depressions, bull markets succeed bear markets, but that none are of precise similarity or regularity. Turning then to these advisory services, he finds that the bulk of them are in agreement that the bear market is over and are frank to say with more or less definiteness that the stage has been reached at which people with funds to invest are justified in making long-term commitments in selected bonds, preferred and common stocks.

Seven important factors are listed as furnishing a foundation for a period of prosperity, and hence for an advance in security prices. They are the tremendous deflation in values, increased efficiency in practically every industry, the widespread withholding of purchasing on the part of the public making for a pent-up demand, the apparent stabilization in commodity prices, the current cheapness of money or credit, the probability of federal action on freight rates favorable to the railroads, and the international debt moratorium. The gist of apparently the best advice obtainable is that this is a good time to invest money, unhesitatingly and discriminatingly. — Christian Science Monitor.

In the Political Arena

By HUGH NUGENT FITZGERALD
James A. Farley is the democratic state chairman of the New York organization of his party. He crossed the continent to attend the national Elks convention. On his trip westward he interviewed party leaders. On his trip eastward he interviewed party leaders. He traveled in the Kansas City where he held representatives of the press that the country over prominent democrats "believe we are on the road to the greatest victory for the party since the civil war."

A republican split in the state of New York led to the election by Benjamin Harrison, Cleveland came back four years later and overwhelmed Harrison. There were labor strikes and riots everywhere in America before the election and Cleveland served two terms and then on the free silver issue his party disowned him. In history he ranks in the list of "greatest American presidents." Then the republicans came back and held the reins of power until 1912. Theodore Roosevelt split the republican party in two. He led the bull moose. William Howard Taft led the "stalwarts" of the G. O. P. It was a walk-over as well as a walk-in for Wilson. 1916 Wilson was re-elected. His achievements placed him among the immortals. California republican leader of the Human Johnson stripe knifed Charles Evans Hughes, the republican nominee.

In 1920 it was a walk-over for the republicans and it has been a walk-over and a stay-in for the republicans ever since Woodrow Wilson stepped down and out. If the democratic leaders as well as the demagogic bank and flyers are wise in 1932 and present a united front to their hereditary enemy, they may "sweep the country" if they pursue their usual throat-slitting tactics, then the donkey and his trainers may be thrown into the ditch as they were in 1920, 1924 and 1928.

Did You Ever Stop to Think?

By EDSON R. WAITE
Shawnee, Oklahoma.

Written in San Francisco, I am stepping in the new twenty-eight story William Taylor Hotel, from my room, I look out upon the famous Civic Center in which are grouped the great City Hall, the Municipal Auditorium, the Public Library, and the State Building, all facing upon a beautiful park where fountains play and California flowers bloom in profusion.

Just across the street from the William Taylor Hotel is the site of the U. S. Government's new building which will be built immediately and which will house the Federal offices of this district. This building will cost three million five hundred thousand dollars.

Just beyond the City Hall, construction is now going forward on the City War Memorial and Civic Opera House, which will seat thirty two hundred persons.

Immediately opposite my window is Leavenworth street, which will shortly be converted into a beautiful esplanade directly from the William Taylor to Market street, San Francisco's great thoroughfare.

Surrounding this beautiful Civic Center is San Francisco's new theatrical district. To my right is the new Fox, the world's finest theatre. Just before me is the Radio Keith Orpheum, and to my left the Paramount, United Artists, Golden Gate and Loew's Warfield.

To one who remembers that twenty-five years ago all this city lay a mass of fire-charred waste, the story of San Francisco's civic era is one of amazing romance and brilliant achievement.

That the outstanding features of well advertised products are meeting the approval of people everywhere.

Many slumbering business concerns are waking to the value of continuous advertising and are starting now to build up trade by using the printed page not once in a while, but all the while.

before buying has taken such a hold on the public that only continuous advertising can expect to get continuous business.

The dealers who advertise quality continuously are those who have the greatest business. People who buy advertised merchandise buy satisfaction. Advertising is more valuable today than ever; it meets the selling requirements of every line of business.

Everywhere the rapidly increasing demand for advertised products is bringing great prosperity to those who use the aid of continuous advertising. Business concerns who know a worth while opportunity to increase business when they see it increasing by increased advertising.

MEANDERINGS COST $20

OKLAHOMA CITY, July 21.—The nocturnal prowling habit of Rusty Persian tomcat, has cost two interested parties upwards of $20.

E. B. Moore appealed a court deci- sion granting Mrs. A. N. Foster, who adopted the cat when she found it on the street, a $5 judg- ment for two months' board bill. A district court judge ruled that Moore was the rightful owner and was not responsible for Rusty's mean- derings and assessed the court costs equally between Moore and Mrs. Foster, $14.85 each.

46,620 Cars of Vegetables Shipped

AUSTIN, July 21.—Shipments of fruits and vegetables from Texas during the first six months of 1931 amounted to 46,620 cars, compared to 42,315 cars during the similar period of 1930, according to the Bureau of Business Research at The University of Texas.

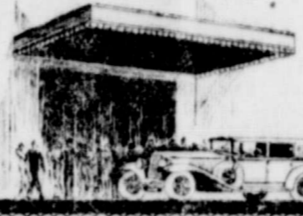

"This increase of 10 per cent was caused for the most part by the heavier movements of mixed vege- tables, cabbage and tomatoes," the Bureau's report said. "June ship- ments of 9,599 cars represented a decline of 6.1 per cent from the May total, contrary to a three-year aver- age increase of 13 per cent during this period."

"Movement by commodities in carlots during June was as follows: Mixed vegetables, 33 cars; cabbage, 12 cars; onions, 296 cars; tomatoes, 5,316 cars; potatoes, 1,856 cars; cu- cumbers, 43 cars; watermelons, 1,365 cars; cantaloupes, 7 cars; peaches, 13 cars; and carrots, 27 cars."

When she was in her own room Liane sat, hands locked, staring out over the shadows of the trees. She had put out her night light and, wrapped in her satin and old-own dressing gown, had curled up in the big chair to think.

What on earth should she do? To have that silly old story dragged through the newspapers would surely kill her mother. Cass was so proud of her. And she herself had been, in that adventure, so innocent, so ignorant.

Words younger seemed that pleasure- started young girl who six months ago had gone unthinkingly to dinner with Molly Cronin and "a couple of the boys." How was she to know the dinner would end in a brawl and shooting?

Step by step she reviewed in her mind the events of that fearful night. Cass's strained face... Molly's impudence... Shane McDermid's kindly Irish smile.

Uncle Sam's Purse Opens for Highways

FORT WORTH, July 21.—Road projects in Texas receiving federal aid now total 942 miles of highways. C. E. Swain, district engineer of the bureau of public roads, reported here. Construction on all of the projects is now underway or ready to be contracted for.

The work will cost $16,500,000 including bridge projects, of which about $13,000,000 is federal money. The federal appropriation is being devoted largely to gaps in traffic arteries of the state's highway system.

Texas is one of nine states making notable increases in its road building expenditures for 1931 according to a recent survey by the bureau of public roads.

FOUR BRITISH MEMORIALS TO BE DEDICATED

ARRAS, France, July 21.—Just 17 years after Great Britain's entry into the World War, on August 4, at 10:15 a. m., four British memorials will be dedicated to the unknown dead. The memorials are at Loos in Gohelle, Vis in Artois, Pozieres in Somme, and Louveral in N.-rd.

The dedication at Loos will be presided over by the British novelist, Rudyard Kipling, whose son was among the unidentified dead in that district. Buglers of the Royal Irish Guards will sound "The Last Post" and "Reveille" before the monument bearing the names of 20,693 men listed as missing in the battle of Loos, the Lys estuary, and Bethune. The memorial is the work of the architect, Herbert Baker. There are 1,772 British and 28 Canadian dead buried in the cemetery there.

The memorial at Vis was started by the same Canadian corps that recaptured the town in August, 1918. The dedication will be attended by the prefect of Pas de Calais, several army corps, and the mayors of the towns in the battle district. School children will sing the French national anthem. The memorial has inscribed on it the names of 9,903 men who were reported missing after the advance in Picardy on the Hindenburg line and after the final advance. In the cemetery there are 1,749 British, 582 Canadian, six Australian, and two South African war dead.

The memorial at Pozieres bears the names of 14,890 men of the Fifth army who disappeared after the battle of the Somme, between March 21 and August 7, 1918. The dedication will be presided over by Generals Horace Smith-Dorrien and Fabian Ware. The Sherwood Foresters, General Dorrien's regiment, will sound the "Last Post." There are 1,809 British, 690 Australian, 16 Canadian, and one German war dead in the cemetery at Pozieres.

The cemetery of Louveral, near Cambrai, is the site of the memorial to the 7,948 missing in the battle of Cambrai in November and December of 1917. The memorial ceremony will be presided over by Sir Louis Vaughan, representing General Lord Byng of Vimy. The prefects of the three departments of Nord, Pas de Calais and Somme have been invited to attend the services at which speeches will be made by Sir Louis and representatives of the French government. The cemetery of Louveral is a small one, where 118 British, four Australian and two New Zealand soldiers are buried.
