Have You Ever Bought Oil Or Mining Stock

This is not an oil appeal, it is not a get rich quick scheme, it is not a blue sky deal. Its an appeal to your good business judgment by other men of good judgment.

If you have ever bought stock in an oil well or a mine you well know of the calls that time after time came far just $50 or a $100 more. "We are in a position where if you send this check for another $100 we will begin producing"—you know the line of talk and the chances are that you kicked in with the extra money but what did you get out of it?

As we have said in previous appeals you aren't with or against fate in this thing we ask of you. We are asking you to make an investment, a better investment, and in this series of articles we have tried to show you that we are sold on the idea and that our earnest purpose is to sell you. The merchant who has a big store a large salesforce, his name on the window but no goods in the store to sell would be considered foolish to say the least, wouldn't he? The owner of a vacant lot, residence or business in Muleshoe or the owner of a large or small untilled acreage in Bailey county has a vacant store. He has all of the setting and opportunity for profit but he fails to obtain profit because he has stopped just short of making that investment a producing investment.

A residence on your lot that can be rented at a good figure, a business house on your down town property which can be leased for a long period or a set of improvements on your land in the country will turn your holdings into profit bearing property and will be of big value in enhancing all values in Bailey county and Muleshoe, yours included.

It is not too late in the fall to start the improvements that we urge you to make. We urge you again to let your contract for the improvements on your farm or that residence or business lot in Muleshoe and help us keep going to meet the demand for the many who are clamoring to move onto improved Bailey county land or would move to Muleshoe to help us further develop the city.

Farmer Gets $1.50 For Bushel of Maize

There is a story being told of a farmer who dreamed he had 1175 bushels of maize which he sold, not all to one dealer but a bushel to each of 1175 people. Some paid him cash but the majority put off paying, most of them thinking that since it was such a small amount he would hardly miss it. Then he needed seed for the new crop, needed to pay his help, needed to pay some notes and in general was hard up. He appealed to those whom he had sold maize but since each only owed him a small amount, they did not think it necessary to pay. He could not get along with out it.

When he awoke he hastened to town and paid his subscription to the local newspaper which he had thought it hardly necessary to pay, since the amount of the subscription would not make the publisher either poor or rich. He saw that a lot of small amounts totaled up to a goodly sum, which must be had if business is to go on.

The above story only illustrates a point with us. The cost of getting out a newspaper has been proving a heavy drain on our limited bank account, which would be considerable relieved if our subscribers would fork over the price of their subscription which they either owe now or will within the next month or so.

Yellow Jackets Trounce Texico-Farwell Eleven

A well beefed and aged team representing the twincities, Farwell and Texico, suffered a severe set back at the hand of the Yellow Jackets on Thanksgiving day.

Muleshoe presented a well balanced line and the light backfield was speedy enough to offset the great odds favoring the visitors due to their weight.

Although the visitors scored early in the game it was supposedly sure that the Jackets would off set the lead.

Texico recieved the opening kick off and after a few exchanges of play scored on a line smash. Muleshoe's defense was working smoothly and the try for an extra point was blocked.

The opening of the second quarter found the Jackets coming back a much better team, their fighting spirit being at it's highest pitch. After a few plays a triple pass, the first attempted, netted in eight yards. The next play from a lock step formation gave Moeller a broken field and he scored 69 yards for the first Muleshoe tally. The try for an extra point was successful.

The third quarter found our bops playing a great line smashing game. Hart was successful time after time in ripping off long gains thru the beefy opponent's line.

Texico showed their knowledge of the rules because they picked up an incompleated pass and ran over the goal line, however the ball was put back in the Jackets possession with only the loss of a down.

The fourth quarter opened with Muleshoe in possession of the ball on their opponant's 20 yard line. Three line smashes and off side penalty placed the ball on the four yard line. On the next play Hart plowed the entire distance for the second touchdown of the game. The try for an extra point was incomplete.

After making this last score, the Jackets played an air tight game and were never threatened by Texico-Farwell.

The visitors showed good sportsmanship and were well coached in the execution of their plays. They deserve credit for a team and are one of the strongest squads that Muleshoe has faced this season.

Health Education in Schools of County

Here to fore education was usually defined as reading, writing and arithmatic but now we find that our primary object should be first prepare our children so that they will be physically able to resist disease and to be able to keep fit to carry on their work as students in our school. So that brings home to us the need of health education as our first teachings to the children.

We know that health is the corner stone to good citizenship and we know that a man can not do the best for his community unless he is physically fit. We know that disease is preventable and if we take proper precautions the communicable disease can be wiped out. We have children we would like very much to keep in school but if by chance one should become ill and the teacher has reason to believe that the child has a communicable disease the reasonable thing to do is to exclude that child until such time as it is safe for him to go back to school. In this we are asking the parents to co-operate with the county nurse in her efforts to stop the disease that at some time or other come into each community. If we all get together on this subject it will not be any time until we can send our children to school with a feeling that they are being protected in the matter of disease.

Interesting News Of The Building Over Our City

The new courthouse will soon be completed and will be a thing of beauty and the pride of the whole county. It is expected that the finishing work will be completed about Christmas. Workmen have been busy for the past few days straightening up the grounds around the building. The concrete walks around the square add much to the looks of the building and grounds.

The new high school building has been completed and the school has moved in and is well organized by this time. This building is a credit to a town of many times the size of Muleshoe. We are proud of the building and are grateful to the board for their nevertiring efforts to secure it.

Work on the Alvin George building is going on at a rapid pace this week. This building is 25x80, constructed of brick and tile. It will have a modern front and will be one of the best buildings in the city. Alvin George will conduct a hardware store and implement house, handling the John Deere line.

The Gupton buildings are taking on the appearance of real construction work this week, after a delay on steel material. The front brick is of light gray and is showing up mighty well. This building will take care of the Gupton Grocery and a rooming house over one of the buildings, the other building has not been rented to date.

The McCarty Jr. Drug store building has changed from the original plan. It will be full two stories over the corner building and will be occupied by the McCarty Drug store and the other building will be the new home of M. P. Smith's Store. These buildings are going to add a great deal to the appearance of the city.

NEARLY INSANE AT TIMES

Mrs. Saunders Tells how Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Relieved Troubles of Change of Life

Knoxville, Tenn.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound while going through the Change of Life. I was very nervous, could not sleep and had melancholy spells. In fact, I was nearly insane at times and my memory was almost a blank. I was so weak I could not do my housework half of the time and suffered dreadfully with my back. My doctor said I would have to worry it out and I went through this for three years before I began taking the Vegetable Compound which I saw advertised. I think it was eight bottles that I took. It has been two years since I took any and I haven't had a doctor since for that trouble. I do all my washing and ironing and I have gained from 116 to 138 pounds. I feel so well I think I do not need any medicine now, but I advise all women who suffer physically and mentally as I did to give the Vegetable Compound a fair trial. I hope it will do as much for them as it did for me."—Mrs. T. A. SAUNDERS, 711 E. Depot Street, Knoxville, Tenn.

Autumn Days for Various Repairs

Odd Jobs Can Be Done Because of Weather Conditions on Outside.

Autumn brings with it many days that will be opportune for repairing machinery because of weather conditions unfavorable for outdoor activities; besides, the rush of harvesting and plowing will be over. This is the ideal time to check up on what repairs and replacements are needed to the farm machinery and other equipment. The conditions and troubles had in the operation of each farm machine are still rather fresh in mind and it is a good time to make a note of these for future repair work.

Note Repairs Needed.

Each machine as it is put into its winter storage should be gone over carefully and on a card or, better, in a special repair book, should be noted the name of the manufacturing firm, the name and size and model of the machine, the serial number if it is a tractor or gas engine or other equipment having a serial or individual number having a serial individual number will help to identify the machine. Then the machine should be gone over in detail and a note made of any parts broken or so badly worn as to need replacement, with the number and name and location of the defective part. In case of doubt of any worn part it should be kept in mind that nearly always it will be cheaper and more satisfactory to replace a worn part with a new one than to have it repaired by the blacksmith or automobile welder. In case a new part cannot be obtained, however, it may not be necessary to discard a fairly good machine for the want of a single broken or worn piece, since a good workman can do wonders in the way of brazing and building up such a part.

Note Parts Needed.

In addition to listing the broken or badly worn parts, each machine should be gone over carefully and a note made of parts needing adjustment or mending or cleaning. Thus the binder cans may need new slats or straps, the elevators may need squaring up, the flag or wind stop may need new cloth over it, and so on. On the cultivator the shovels may need sharpening and repointing, and so on. The mower may need the cutter bar lined up, sections tightened or replaced, and so on.

These records should be filed in a drawer secure from mice or hung on a special hook in the repair shop. They should be taken to the local implement dealer and the numbers of all needed repairs ascertained and noted on your lists. Then secure whatever of these repairs the dealer has in stock and insist that any he does not have are ordered immediately, as you will want these repairs when you overhaul your machines, which ought to be done during the idle winter season, either by yourself if you are fortunate enough to have a good repair shop, or by the local blacksmith or repair shop. Also repairs ordered early in this way are much surer of being received in good time than if one waits until the repair rush starts. Sometimes a non-progressive or incompetent dealer may put you off or refuse to send in your order until late; but if a complaint is sent in direct to the manufacturers, such dealers will be forced to action.

Cost Barometer Is One of Big Poultry Factors

Watching the costs of production is about like watching a barometer. You try to gear your feeding machines to the desired result. It isn't "how cheap" you can feed, but "how cheap in proportion to the gain."

Make the hens right now. The egg record is the barometer. And eggs are getting to be worth real money again. And still, there are a lot of folks feeding their hens nothing but corn, or even worse, forcing them to shift for themselves. Corn is two cents a pound and no egg producer at that.

Under conditions prevailing all through the corn belt, a person can mix a 15 per cent protein mash, using bran, middlings, tankage and dried buttermilk for less than three cents a pound.

Feeding this mash, you get eggs; feeding corn alone you get disappointment. It isn't the per cent a fellow makes on his investment, it is the net money that counts.

Red and Alsike Clover Are Beneficial to Soil

Both red clover and alsike clover will enrich ground about the same to the extent of their growth. Red clover usually makes a heavier growth and hence is more beneficial. Then, too, the roots of red clover will grow into the ground deeper than alsike, and hence improve the soil to a greater depth.

Either sweet clover or alfalfa is far superior for soil building to red or alsike clover. Alsike will grow on a sour soil which contains a good supply of humus better than will red clover. Sweet clover will not make much if any growth on sour soils, and neither will alfalfa; hence to grow these most valuable clovers it is necessary to have limestone in the soil, and when the soil does not contain limestone naturally it is necessary to apply it.

Over spring be sown rather early; and alfalfa can be sown either spring or in late

Poor Lamb Crop if Ewes Are Slighted

Breeders Will Face Spring in Weak Condition.

If the ewes are neglected this winter they will face the spring in a weakened, rundown condition, which will result in a poor lamb crop. Sheep generally need little shelter, but they do need food. Attention to this detail is important now that grazing has become scarce.

"It has been found from a study of the sheep industry that the small flock of 20 to 30 or 40 is the most profitable to keep on the average farm," says Prof. R. S. Curtis of the animal husbandry department at the North Carolina State college. "It is essential, however, even in this case, to give the flock some attention. Now that the grazing season is over, the owner should not neglect his breeding ewes. One of the greatest troubles that comes to the flock owner usually is at lambing time, and if some forethought and management is given to the flock this winter this trouble can be averted."

Professor Curtis makes the point that the breeding ewe must be in good shape during winter so that she may nourish the lamb properly in spring. Sometimes the ewes get in such poor condition that there is serious trouble at lambing time and only a 30 to 50 per cent crop of lambs is saved. Under proper conditions there should be a 150 per cent crop.

To help keep the ewes in good condition, Professor Curtis suggests a ration made up of 50 parts of corn, 25 parts of cottonseed meal and 25 parts of wheat bran. Feed this mixture at the rate of one pound per ewe daily, and give all the roughage that she will consume. If possible, Professor Curtis states that some silage or roots might be given in connection with the roughage.

Overcrowding Fowls Is Cause of Much Trouble

The overcrowding of birds in their sleeping quarters during the winter is responsible for considerable serious trouble, according to poultry authorities at the Kansas State Agricultural college. Frequently a building shelters twice the number of birds it was designed to accommodate. The rule of allowing a minimum of three square feet of floor space per bird should be strictly adhered to.

The vitality of the flock is frequently lowered by overcrowding. The disease, infectious bronchitis, which caused an embargo on Kansas poultry last fall was due partly to improper housing conditions.

The ideal house provides ample floor space, roosting space of eight linear inches per bird, is clean and free from drafts. Spraying once or twice weekly with a 5 per cent solution of good standard disinfectant or stock dip is recommended as a sanitary measure.

Consider Well Expense of Deep Plowing Needs

An impervious soil or hardpan which is unfavorable to root penetration, might present a condition that it would be desirable to alter by subsolling. Even in such a case, the heavy expense of deep plowing needs to be well considered before the process is attempted. For each inch of additional depth about 300,000 pounds or 150 tons of extra soil is turned over for each acre. This large weight is turned only at considerable expenditure in power, and the cost of power on the farm comes high.

Plowing four inches deeper, therefore, involves lifting to turn over some 600 tons of additional material to the acre, and for a 20-acre field, this would run to 12,000 tons.

The actual cost of subsolling 20 acres would probably run close to $100, or $10 an acre, and this is probably too low for most farm conditions.

Asparagus and Pie Plant

Fall is a fair time to set out asparagus and pie plant. Get a good variety of each. For the asparagus dig a trench 18 inches deep. Put in the bottom three to four inches of well-rotted manure. Cover this with three or four inches of well-pulverized soil. Set the plants on this layer of soil, having them 18 to 36 inches apart. Cover them, water them, and forget them. In the spring of 1927 you will have the best asparagus in the neighborhood. In the spring of 1947 that same bed will be producing.

Farm Hints

Well-greased tools stored in sheds bespeak good farmers.

It does not pay to grind or soak corn for pigs or large hogs.

Plan to grow a few acres less next year and to cultivate better.

Buy fertilizer co-operatively; and it may pay to mix your own.

From one-half to one per cent of salt should be used in the poultry mash.

The farmer who plants legumes to build up his soil, meets success half way.

One of the most common pests which cause continual poultry losses is the body louse.

Feeding Pullets to Secure Eggs

Problem Is to Keep Them Properly Developing and Milk Will Help.

Pullets should receive their share of attention in order to become profitable winter layers.

The problem of feeding birds of this sort is to keep them properly developed. If plenty of skim milk or buttermilk is available, either of these will supply most of the animal protein needed, but if they are not available then some of the commercial buttermilk feeds or meat scraps or tankage must be included in the mash.

Scratch Feed Mixture.

A scratch feed consisting of two parts cracked corn, one part wheat and one part heavy oats is suitable for the major portion of the ration for pullets until they are at least four-fifths grown. If skim milk or buttermilk is available, so that the pullets can have all they will drink, a simple mash of equal parts of bran, middlings and cornmeal may be fed. If skim milk or buttermilk is not available, provide from 5 to 10 per cent meat scraps or tankage in the mash.

As the pullets reach full maturity supply more protein to induce them to begin laying. This can be accomplished by increasing the animal food in the mash up to 15 or 20 per cent and encouraging the pullets to eat more of the mash and less of the scratch grains. If necessary, one feed a day of moistened mash may be fed. This should be mixed so that it is crumbly. Moistened mash is usually fed at noon.

Separate Pullets.

In order to feed the pullets this way they must be separated from other birds. If it is not practicable to separate the pullets from the rest of the flock be sure to cull the whole flock rigidly. All male birds should be sold, or separated from the hens and pullets. This will leave room for the pullets with the hens. If the pullets run with the hens it is essential that all be fed liberally.

Purposes of Plowing to Improve Soil Condition

One may well ask: What are the purposes of plowing?

One purpose is to turn under organic matter lying on or growing in the soil; another is to pulverize the soil, so as to make it a better seed bed; another is to cover weed seeds and insects, in order to destroy them; and still another reason for plowing is to enable the soil better to take in the rain that falls upon it and better to check the runoff.

One reason for deep plowing or subsolling is given as providing a loosened soil in which the roots of plants may better grow, the assumption being, seemingly, that the roots of plants use only that portion of the soil that is broken up by the plow.

There is no good reason for believing that crop plants differ in their root habits much from wild plants, which grow luxuriantly on soil that has never been plowed within the memory of man or the race.

Fruits and Vegetables Best Food for All Ages

Fruits and vegetables should furnish more than half the daily food. They contain the most valuable elements for health and strength. They are the best sources of vitamins. As a food for the young, the old and those of all ages, apples and other fruits take first rank. The only way to have them good, fresh and appetizing is to grow them. Every farmer is interested in a home vegetable garden. Why not a home orchard? It is just as important as the home garden and should have a place upon every farm. No equal area on the farm will yield as profitable returns. The farmer who learns how to care for the home orchard is also likely to be a better live stock and grain grower because of his orchard experience.

Grease Very Necessary for Plows and Shovels

The time to grease the plow and the cultivator shovels is just after they have been used the last time, but the time to put them up is before the alternate freezing and thawing weather comes along. This is what checks the paint and puts the rust right in on the ground floor. Decay in the wood parts generally starts where the bolts are put through.

Every winter a lot of binders and the like make bouquets for the fence corners, but generally it is a matter of not taking time to get them under cover rather than a matter of not having shelter for them.

Put them up and remove the share that must be pounded out or replaced and the parts that need repairing.

A Rust-Proof Wheat

A rust-proof wheat is claimed by Samuel Larcombe of Birle, Man., as a result of years of selection and hybridizing. Mr. Larcombe is well known as a seed grower who has won many prizes for his farm at different shows. The new wheat has been named Axminster, and, while not claimed to be an absolutely rust resistant, it shows almost perfect freedom. It yields 80 per cent more than Marquis, and is said to be equal in milling value to Red Fife and Marquis.

Individual Drinking Cup Is Profitable

Milk Flow Decreased by Lack of Water in Winter.

Many progressive dairymen have found from experience that the installation of individual drinking cups is a profitable investment for cutting labor and feed costs.

"It has been found," says E. A. Gauntt, assistant state dairy specialist in New Jersey, "that a 10 per cent increase in milk flow can be made by the addition of this equipment. A herd of 25 cows producing 400 quarts of milk under the old system would be expected to produce 440 quarts, or an extra can of milk, with the drinking cups.

"A Holstein cow producing 100 pounds of milk a day needs about 300 pounds of water. If turned out on a cold winter day, she will not drink enough ice-water to produce that amount of milk even if watered twice a day. Then, too, much of the feed she consumes is wasted in warming up her body again. With an individual automatic drinking cup installed in the barn she may drink little and often, and the water will not be ice cold. Hence, much heat energy is saved, which means a saving of feed. Furthermore, weather conditions do not affect her as acutely when it is no longer necessary to turn her out in a cold driving storm to get water.

"Drinking cups cut labor by saving labor. They make it unnecessary to turn the cows out and perhaps even drive them down to the pasture for water. It seems like poor economy to reduce the milk flow by failing to supply the dairy with plenty of pure water, which, with the exception of fresh air, is the only free ingredient essential for milk production."

Feeding Timothy Hay to Dairy Calves and Cows

Many breeders raise the question: "What kind of hay shall I feed calves?"

"This depends on several things," says C. E. Bender, assistant dairy husbandman at the New Jersey College of Agriculture, New Brunswick. Are you feeding the calves Guernsey or Jersey milk with grain? If so, clover or alfalfa hay would be likely to cause scours. In this case timothy or timothy and clover hay may be fed to good advantage. If skim milk and grain low in protein is being fed, either alfalfa or clover hay is satisfactory.

The value of timothy hay is often greatly overestimated as a feed for calves. As a general rule it is unpalatable unless cut early. The most serious objection to it is its low protein content, which makes necessary the feeding of expensive concentrates.

It is sound economy to feed the high protein hays and balance the rest of the feed to suit the hay, except where only Guernsey or Jersey whole milk is available for calves.

Barley Contains Large Percentage of Protein

Barley is a grain that contains a somewhat higher percentage of protein than corn, and, for that reason when the two grains have the same market value per pound, should be a more economical feed for hogs than corn. On the other hand, the large percentage of hull attached to the kernel gives barley a high percentage of crude fiber, which is one of its disadvantages for hog-feeding purposes. There is practically no food value in the hull and the stomach of the hog is not well adapted for handling roughage. It is generally considered that, pound for pound, barley has about 85 per cent of the food value of No. 2 corn when fed to hogs in connection with a high-protein supplement like tankage. A five-year investigation at the North Dakota experiment station shows barley up in a somewhat more favorable light.

Control Chinch Bugs

Fall is the time when the chinch bug can be most successfully controlled. Whenever the bugs have caused injury during the preceding season, 98 per cent of them will be found in the fall hibernating in the clump-forming grasses, such as bunch grass and bluestem, in meadows, pastures, ravines, waste places, and along roadsides. Co-operative experiments with farmers in many localities have shown that where these bug-infested areas have been systematically burned, the chinch-bug problem has been solved for the ensuing year.

FARM FACTS

Horse radish should be harvested just before winter.

The winter courses at the state college of agriculture are tuition-free to residents of New York state.

It is not at all necessary to confine the hogs on the corn by means of hog-tight fences. Just give them a taste of corn and you will have no trouble with them breaking into other grain fields.

The first time a man sells a little misrepresented produce, he sells all of his reputation and has none left thereafter. A record of reliability requires no safe deposit box and pays interest without the necessity of clipping coupons.

DR. W. B. CALDWELL AT THE AGE OF 83

Dr. W. B. Caldwell of Monticello, Ill., a practicing physician for 47 years, it seemed cruel that so many constipated infants and children had to be kept constantly "stirred up" and half sick by taking cathartic pills, tablets, salts, calomel and nasty oils.

While he knew that constipation was the cause of nearly all children's little ills, he did not believe that a sickening "purge" or "physic" every day or two was necessary.

In Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin he discovered a laxative which regulates the bowels. A single dose will establish natural, healthy bowel movement for weeks at a time, even if the child was chronically constipated. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin not only causes a gentle, easy bowel movement but best of all, it is often months before another dose is necessary. Besides, it is absolutely harmless, and so pleasant that even a cross, feverish, bilious, sick child gladly takes it.

Buy a large 60-cent bottle at any store that sells medicine and just see for yourself.

Why have RHEUMATISM?

OH, what a wonderful feeling to be free from that miserable rheumatism. To know again the joy of limber joints and active muscles—freedom from that agonizing pain!

How often have you longed for some relief as you suffered torture from swollen, inflamed muscles and joints—how often have you said you would give anything in the World for a few hours comfort!

But you didn't know that all you had to do to get real relief from this nerve wracking misery was just to build rich, red blood, did you? You didn't know that rheumatism had to be stopped from the inside by destroying the impurities that cause it—by building millions of red cells in your poor, weak blood, did you?

Until you fill your system full of healthy, rich, red blood you will never end your rheumatism. S. S. S. will surely help you. That's because S. S. S.

Is Your Work Hard?

Is your work wearing you out? Are you tortured with throbbing backache—feel tired, weak and worn out? Then look to your kidneys! Many occupations tend to weaken the kidneys. Constant backache, headaches, dizziness and rheumatic pains result. One suffers annoying kidney irregularities; feels nervous, irritable and worn out. Don't wait! Use Doan's Pills—a stimulant diuretic to the kidneys. Workers everywhere recommend Doan's. They should help you, too. Ask your neighbor!

A Texas Case

S. W. Humbird, a mechanic, Eagle Lake, Texas, says: "A heavy cold disordered my kidneys and I was miserable with dull aches across my back. When it turned quickly or bent over to lift anything, cutting pains took me across my kidneys. My kidneys acted irregularly, too, and kept me feeling out of sorts. One box of Doan's Pills rid me of the ailment."

FASHIONS IN DOGS

"Many Times When I Was a Boy I Stared at Some Woman Dressed Like That."

MRS. VENNOR called Old Man Negley up to the porch as he was at work weeding one of the front yard's flower-borders. In her hand was a yellowed magazine.

"Look!" she bade him, pointing to a picture on one of the pages. "I ran across this 1870 magazine in an attic trunk today. Here is a picture I want to ask you about."

Old Man Negley took the magazine in one hand, while with the other he fumbled for his steel-rimmed spectacles. Then he looked at the picture.

It represented a woman in crinoline and shawl and with a funny little chip bonnet on her queerly arranged hair. Under one arm she carried a little dog. It was at this dog Mrs. Venner pointed.

"What on earth is that?" she queried. "In my twenty-five years I've seen almost every sort of dog there is. But this one is new to me. See its huge round eyes and bashed-in pug nose; and the way its tail curls like a corkscrew. Yet it must have been fashionable in its day. For look at what the line under the picture says."

Old Man Negley spelled out the caption: "Newest Style in Damsel and Doggie." Then he turned the magazine over and looked at its date of May, 1870.

"I was fifteen years old when this picture was printed," said he. "And I've a pretty good memory. It may seem queer and outlandish to you, ma'am. But it seems mighty natural to me. Makes me kind of homesick to look at it, in this year of 1925. Many's the time I've turned around in the street when I was a boy to stare at some woman dressed like that, and wish my mother could afford to wear such elegant clothes. The—"

"But I asked you about the dog she is carrying," interrupted Mrs. Venner, who was not at all interested in the old man's reminiscences. "What breed is it; or is it just a freak picture?"

"The dog is a pug," answered Negley. "And a very good specimen of pug at that. It's funny you never saw one. No, it isn't so funny, either. At a big dog show last year I saw two pugs on exhibition. And the younger spectators gaped at them as if they were curiosities."

"But fifty or even forty years ago you couldn't walk a mile on any fashionable street without seeing a dozen of them. By nature they were pretty little fellows, and clever, too. But most of their mistresses used to gorge them with rich food and give them almost no exercise, so the poor things got fat and wheezy."

"No, you wouldn't be likely to recognize the picture or know what kind of dog it was. Any more than you would know what to do with a dress such as that woman in the picture is wearing."

"You see, fashions in dogs change just as fashions in clothes or in slang; though most folks don't stop to realize it. I'm a pretty old man and I'm interested in dogs. So I've kept track of those canine fashions better than the folks around me have bothered to. For instance:

"The pug used to be the most fashionable dog in the world. Then all at once pugs vanished. You didn't see them any more. Just as you didn't see crinoline and hoopskirts any more. Fashion got tired of pugs and dropped them. Their mean breeders stopped producing them because there wasn't any more market for their wares."

"Along came the tiny poodle, with the funny clipped coat and his hair sometimes tied up with a pink bow above his eyes. The miniature poodle was all the rage. Some people even had his coat clipped into their own monograms or crests. They used to take a real artist to clip those dogs in the right fancy way. He disappeared; so did the Sult. So did the black-and-tan. So did many another."

"Then there was the Newfoundland. I don't believe you've seen the Newfoundland dogs in the street in thirty years. Yet they used to be everywhere in my young manhood. The Newfoundland is one of the grandest dogs that ever walked. It was a crime to let him go out of fashion.

"Do you know the queer thing that sent the Newfoundland into the discard and changed him all at once from the most fashionable dog of all into an almost extinct creature? I'll tell you."

"The Newfoundland was jet black; at least that was the color the breeders were trying to stick to and standardize. Then a great English painter named Landseer made a picture of a black-and-white dog that looked something like a Newfoundland and he called it 'A Distinguished Member of the Life-Saving Service.'"

"Well, that seemed innocent enough. But it did all sorts of mischief. People said they had been cheated in buying jet black Newfoundlands, because Landseer ought to know, and Landseer depicted a Newfoundland as partly white. So they stopped buying black Newfoundlands. Landseer came out with a statement that he hadn't intended that black-and-white dog in the picture to represent a Newfoundland at all. But it was too late. The trouble was made. People weren't sure. They didn't want to own a mutt. So they stopped buying any kind of Newfoundland at all. And the grandest dog in the world went out of fashion."

"Then there is the mastiff, another magnificent dog. He used to be seen everywhere. Outside a few dog shows I haven't seen a mastiff in twenty years. I am not sure what killed his popularity as a fashionable dog. Perhaps it was because so many people began to move into big cities and into small flats where there was no room for him."

"Yes, ma'am, fashions in dogs change as much as in clothes. That baby of yours will maybe stare at the picture of a bulldog or a chow or a Pomeranian fifty years from now and wonder what sort of outlandish animal it may be."

"Just cast your memory back a very few years and take note of the way one breed after another has jumped into fashion and then crawled out again. No need to wait for fifty years to recognize that."

"And it's all wrong. A dog is a pal. He isn't a fad. If any dog was good as a pal or a guard or a worker fifty years ago, that same kind of dog will be just as good along those same lines a hundred years from now, if his breed is kept up by the fanciers."

"People who change from one breed to another, just because the new breed happens to be fashionable—well—those people don't deserve the love and the loyalty of a first-class dog. They aren't true dog fanciers. They are fad fanciers. Suppose a dog changed masters just as soon as his old master was less popular with the crowd than he used to be? We'd call him a worthless cur for deserting his boss. Well, what are we going to call the man who throws over his loyal old dog for the sake of a fashion?"

Explaining Fishing Gear

Friend husband, laden down with impedimenta, was departing on a fishing trip. He paused to see if he had overlooked anything, and friend wife seized the opportunity to inquire: "Does it take all that gear to make a fish bite?" The man of the house sighed: "No, darling, it doesn't take all this gear to make a fish bite. It merely takes all of this to locate the blame."

Explains Love's Madness

The love which is often poetically described as a spring "malady" has now been given a prosaic explanation. We are told that it is the additional moisture of the season that causes people to write poems, fall in love and shun work.

BAKED HAM IS FINE FOR HOLIDAY DINNER

Properly Cooked Ham is Easy to Slice.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Well-baked ham is one of the most attractive meats that can be served on the family table. It is appropriate for any of the holiday occasions when an especially good dinner is in order, for it not only looks delicious, but has an appetizing fragrance developed from the brown sugar and whole cloves used on its surface during baking, and an incomparable flavor due to this seasoning and the method of cooking. At old-fashioned Thanksgiving dinners it was not unusual to see a baked ham at one end of the table and a roast turkey at the other; the flavor of the two meats seem to blend well.

Ham is generally baked after a preliminary boiling to make it tender and shorten the length of time it remains in the oven, but with care a moist, tender ham may be baked from the start. In most cases, however, a combination of boiling and baking is preferred. If the ham is at all dry or very salty it should be soaked in cold water for several hours before being put on to cook.

For ordinary family use, even with several guests, a ten-pound ham will be found convenient. The United States Department of Agriculture gives the following directions for cooking a ham of this size:

Wash the ham thoroughly and trim off any mold or loose pieces. Soak overnight if the ham is unusually dry or salty. Otherwise, put directly into cold water with a teaspoon and a half of pickling spice, three slices each of carrot and onion, a stalk of celery, half a teaspoonful of celery salt, a sprig of parsley, and a quarter of a cupful of strong vinegar. Bring to a boil and cook just below the boiling point four hours, or until it is tender when pierced with a long-tined fork. The meat should be somewhat shrunk from the bone, but the ham should not be overcooked or it will be difficult to carve. The time of cooking varies greatly with the shape of the ham, its age, and the kind of cure.

To bake a ham that has been boiled first, remove the skin and cover it with the following paste: One cupful of brown sugar, one cupful of fine, soft bread crumbs, one teaspoonful of mustard, and enough vinegar or cider to hold the paste together. Stick the ham with whole cloves and bake for 30 to 60 minutes, basting with one cupful of water mixed with one-fourth cupful of vinegar or cider and two tablespoonfuls of brown sugar.

Good results may also be obtained by cooking the ham in a fireless cooker until tender, and then preparing it for serving in the same way as ham cooked directly on the stove.

After the first festive serving of the ham, it may appear in many forms on the table, and if alternated with other meats, it need not become monotonous. Pieces that cannot be sliced may be put through the food chopper and used for sandwiches, hashes, creamed dishes, omelets, and in other ways. The ground ham, if covered with a layer of rendered ham fat, will keep in the refrigerator for several weeks.

Even when there is no special occasion for serving a whole ham, the ten-pound size will be found economical. The amount of meat in proportion to bone and fat is satisfactory, almost all the meat will cut into attractive slices, and if properly stored, the cooked meat will keep well. The entire ham may be cooked at one time, or it may be cut in half, and each half cooked separately. The uncooked piece should be carefully wrapped in waxed paper and stored in a cool, but not too cold place, preferably hanging where air circulates around it. Sometimes a butcher is willing to cut a ham and sell one-half at a time. Smaller hams may be found on the market, but the texture of the meat is not so good nor the cuts so satisfactory as in the medium-sized hams.

GOOD DOUGHNUTS ARE RARE TREAT

Tender Cakes Are Useful for Various Occasions.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Any mother who has ever let a boy of twelve or fourteen try his hand at frying doughnuts, knows the possibilities of this occupation as an alternative to a candy pull. Most boys like some kinds of cooking, and all boys like doughnuts. Making doughnuts appeals because it promises worth-while results. Next time the boy scolds—or the girl scolds, for that matter—want "something different" to do for a social hour, let them make doughnuts. Divide them into squads of four—two to roll and cut out, and two to fry. Use two frying kettles if possible. If there are more young people in the group, let them play games and take their turns later. Four is about all the average kitchen will accommodate comfortably at one time. Of course part of the fun comes afterward when the doughnuts are passed, with cider or hot cocoa, and the surplus is divided to be taken home. The dough that was cut from the centers may be cooked with the doughnuts to satisfy the natural desire for "just a little taste" as the frying goes on.

Good tender doughnuts, freshly made, are useful for innumerable occasions where simple refreshments are called for. At church societies and other community gatherings something inexpensive but popular is usually served, and doughnuts, with a beverage of some sort, answer this need admirably. When a chance caller comes during the late afternoon, doughnuts with coffee are much appreciated. After the evening "foursome" at cards, doughnuts and a fruit drink are appropriate. All the doughnuts permitted at lunch or suppertime will of course be eaten by the family, and this form of sweet seems especially to meet the fuel needs of big hungry boys who are growing fast and using their muscles a great deal for athletics or heavy out-of-doors work.

The United States Department of Agriculture gives the recipe below for making doughnuts. The ingredients given make about forty.

Doughnuts.
1 cupful milk	1 cupful sugar
4 1/2 cupfuls sifted soft-wheat flour	2 teaspoonfuls 1/2 teaspoonful cinnamon
5 teaspoonfuls baking powder	1/2 teaspoonful nutmeg
2 teaspoonfuls fat
2 eggs

Place the fat in a warm place until it becomes soft, though not melted, so that it may be combined easily with the sugar. Stir in the beaten egg yolks and add alternately the dry ingredients, which have been mixed and sifted together, and the milk. Add only a small quantity of liquid at the start. Add the flavoring and fold in the well-beaten egg whites last. Roll out through about one-third inch thick with off-handling it any more than necessary. Cut out the doughnuts and fry in deep fat, hot enough (375 degrees Fahrenheit) to make a doughnut rise to the surface quickly and to brown each side in about one minute. Drain on brown paper. When dry they may be rolled in pulverized sugar.

One of the secrets of success in making doughnuts is the use of a plain mixture such as the above. A rich dough tends to absorb too much fat in frying. The dough should be rolled smooth and not too thick, for a rough surface absorbs more fat, and a thick doughnut does not cook entirely through in the short frying period. If the fat is not hot enough the doughnuts will be greasy. Doughnuts can be forced under the fat to make them brown evenly and quickly by pushing a wire frying basket down on them.

Scalloped Cabbage and Cheese

Wash a medium-sized cabbage thoroughly, put it into boiling water and cook for 20 minutes. Drain it. Make a cup of white sauce, season with salt and pepper, and stir into it three-quarters of a cupful of grated cheese. Cut up a cupful of dish place all. In a greased baking dish alternate layers of the cabbage and cheese, cover the top with bread crumbs, and bake until the cabbage is tender. This has been combined with a little melted butter or other fat, and baked until the crumbs are browned.

Texas Progress Will Continue.

While the proven and reported conditions in state departmental affairs are humiliating to right-thinking Texans and are greatly to be deplored, there is no need to be pessimistic about them. It is true that matters have been proven and admitted in the courts that shock the sensibilities of many people and that are calculated to shake public confidence in the ability of the people to safeguard public interests and that there are vague rumors as to matters yet to be brought to light, but conditions have never yet become so bad but that Texans have been ready and able to correct them when once their duty is clear. Texas is a state of such magnitude and of such varied interests, and most Texans are so busy with their own affairs, that the people are a bit slow to be aroused to public duty, but once awakened they do not hesitate to act in a way to secure results.

Texans Inclined to Charity.

Texans are a confiding people and inclined to be charitable in their opinions—they are slow to conclude that others, and especially that officials, will deliberately violate a trust placed in them. But let it be proven beyond a doubt that a confidence has been misplaced and they are quick to resent wrong-doing. For these reasons we may rest assured that the courts and the legislature, now that the eyes of Texas are turned toward them to protect their interests, will not fail to do their duty. Rumors and whisperings will be sifted to the very bottom in order that the fair name of the state may be protected, and officials who are honest and unafraid will render every possible assistance to that end. Honest men do not fear the light of publicity, but rather seek it, and those whose duty it is to search out and expose official wrong-doing may be assured that they will have the united support of all those who have the interests of the state at heart. There may be some differences of opinion as to the best methods to be used to secure results, but all true, loyal Texans will desire that the fair name of Texas be cleared of the stigma resting upon it.

Progress Must Not Halt.

Just now Texas has started upon an era of progress such as has not been known before. It is growing in every direction. There is not a part of the state that is not at work for bigger and better development. We are just beginning to realize the wonderful possibilities that lie before us. We are thinking in terms of thousands and multiplied thousands where formerly we thought only in measures of tens and hundreds. Shocked now by misplaced confidence, some are inclined to hesitate and to cry out "What is the use? We only tax ourselves that others may be enriched. We are but the dupes of those who should serve us." But because we may have been imposed upon once or twice in our lives, it does not follow that we should lose confidence in all our fellow-men. We can't afford to lower our vision because it has not always been reached. We must continue to build roads and factories, to conserve our wasting waters and irrigate our valleys, to care for our unfortunate and to educate our children. We must not halt and thus lose much of the progress we have made.

Information About Texas.

Bad news spreads all too quickly; the good moves slowly. At the Texas meeting of advertising men in Fort Worth, it was agreed by all that neither people out of or inside the state know much of the great resources of Texas. When this point was reached in the meeting, a resolution was adopted to raise $100,000 to spend next year to tell Texans and the rest of the world something about this great state. This sum is to be increased from year to year until it reaches $500,000 annually.

This movement is in line with the action of the Texas Centennial Committee, which decided that before it centennial celebration it must spend a year or two years in an educational campaign to interest Texans sufficiently in their own state and in what it is doing and proposes to do. The entire population of Texas must be brought to know Texas.

Showing the Right Spirit.

Houston started recently to raise $400,000 as a Community Chest. The movement started off with such an impetus that when the various soliciting committees made their reports the subscriptions were $30,000 in excess of the amount sought. That is the spirit that has built Houston and that all Texas should have.

Brady's Turkey Trot.

Although Cuero conceived the idea of an annual Turkey Trot just before Thanksgiving and received much splendid advertising from it, that little city allowed it to lapse this year. Brady at once picked up the idea, got its trot into the movies, and is getting much publicity from it. A good thing is usually worth all the effort it costs, and Cuero had a good thing.

Calm Retreat

Storms of any kind are virtually unknown to East Turkistan.

"Now I Am Well and the Mother of Two Children"

Just Another Story About the Goodness of

PE-RU-NA

Mrs. Anna Linder, R. F. D. No. 1, Box 44, Dassel, Meeker County, Minn., writes: "For two years I suffered with that terrible disease chronic catarrh. Fortunately I saw your advertisement and took Pe-ru-na. Now I am well and the mother of two children. I owe it all to Pe-ru-na. I would not be without that great remedy for twice its cost, for I am well and strong now. I cannot speak in too high terms of its value as a medicine."

For more than half a century Dr. Hartman's Pe-ru-na has been performing just such wonderwork as this.

Pe-ru-na is sold everywhere in both tablet and liquid form. Insist upon having genuine Pe-ru-na.
