

Positive Thinking By NORMAN VINCENT PEALE

Want To Take Off Pounds?

A man said he wanted to talk about a personal problem. He seemed quite uptight so we discussed formulas for healing tension.

"Why not," I told him, with the smugness of a dieter. "Look at me. I've just taken off 35 pounds."

"How did you do that?" he asked enviously.

"Well the only way to thin down is to stop eating fattening things."

"Sure, I know, but that's just the trouble. I like fattening food."

"I like fattening food, too," I replied. But I discovered that you can attack the problem by mental strategy including discipline and imagination.

I could see that he was not enthusiastic about discipline. So I told him about a weight-control formula mentioned to me by a ship captain with whom I once sailed to the Far East.

The captain's formula was: "Just take a good dose of the wonder drug sulphadiazine."

I explained that power of will is gained by inserting into your personality through right thinking a new element of strength: the ability to deny yourself.

The next step in losing weight by dieting is to use the amazing power of imagination which is even stronger than will power.

Of course, these two steps are only part of the program for losing weight which I was able to give to my visitor in some detail. They are probably the two most important steps - and after he learned to take them, he was on his way to a solution not only of his weight problem but of his other emotional problems as well.

In dealing with the problem of overweight, medical advice is essential. On the question of reducing and its importance to general well-being, my brother, Dr. Clifford Peale, a physician and surgeon, and I jointly wrote a little pocket-sized booklet called "Live Longer and Better."

Weather FORECAST: Partly cloudy with a chance of thunderstorms through Monday. No important temperature changes.

Briscoe Gains Renomination

Madge Wallis

Charlie Welch

Nominations Go To Welch, Wallis

Only 5,457 Midland County voters went to the polls Saturday in the Democratic primary here, and only 1,617 more voted in the Republican primary.

There were only two strictly local races in the Democratic primary which saw Charlie Welch, the incumbent, defeat Ciro Sanchez for the Precinct 2 county commissioner post.

Welch received 1,074 votes, while Sanchez ran a strong race with 764.

Welch will face Republican Edgar G. Harris in November. "I want to thank all the people who supported me, worked for me and voted for me," Welch said. "I also want to congratulate Mr. Sanchez and his

Republicans Pick Harris

Edgar G. "Ed" Harris was chosen by Midland County Republicans Saturday to oppose incumbent Precinct 2 County Commissioner Charlie Welch in the Nov. 5 general election.

Harris defeated his opponent, J. H. "Timber" Floyd, 239-158. Republicans also re-elected Robert L. Monaghan county chairman. Monaghan garnered 65 per cent of the 1,439 votes cast in that race, defeating Mrs. John Lauderdale 945-496.

Following state-wide trends, the 1,617 Midland County Republican primary voters favored candidates Jim Granberry and Gaylord Marshall and the "right-to-work" and income tax referendum. In line with other Texas Republicans, they also opposed pari-mutuel betting.

Granberry Favored In his bid for the GOP gubernatorial nomination, Granberry received 888 votes, easily outdistancing Odell McBrayer, who garnered 588 votes.

Marshall received the nod as the lieutenant governor nominee, polling 692 votes in the county to Troy Skates' 513.

Referendum No. 1 proposing a "right-to-work" section in the new Texas Constitution, overwhelmingly passed, receiving 1,270 for votes and only 84 against.

The margin was no less massive for Referendum No. 2, which proposed the Texas

JIM GRANBERRY Republican Choice for Governor

GOV. DOLPH BRISCOE Renominated By Democrats

Granberry Gets Republican Nod To Oppose Him

By ROBERT E. FORD Associated Press Writer

Texas voters deluged Gov. Dolph Briscoe with a storm of votes in Saturday's Democratic primary to hand him renomination to the state's highest office.

His victory was complete, for shortly after polls closed, the Democratic faithful met in precinct conventions throughout Texas and voted him control of the party machinery—critical for the 1976 presidential nomination maneuvering.

Frances "Sissy" Farenthold, handicapped by a lack of campaign money and professional organization, faded away. Two years ago, she gave Briscoe a fight for the governor's nomination.

At a late count, Briscoe had 70 per cent of the vote and Mrs. Farenthold 25 per cent. Two also-rans split the other five per cent.

Betting Issue Smashed Voters again smashed a proposal that Texas legalize pari-mutuel race track betting on a local option basis and may have killed the issue for a long time.

The wagering issue was only advisory—to give the legislature an insight into the thinking of the electorate. Added to other defeats over the years, the matter seemed in dire straits.

Both Republicans and Democrats defeated the betting proposal.

Republicans in a separate primary nominated Jim Granberry, Lubbock dentist, for governor over Fort Worth lawyer Odell McBrayer. Gaylord Marshall won GOP nomination for lieutenant governor over Troy Skates.

All Incumbents Win In other Democratic state-wide contests, all incumbents were renominated. Bob Bullock, former Texas secretary of state, won the nomination for the only office where the incumbent retired, winning the party nomination for comptroller over Hugh Edburg.

Briscoe ran on a platform of harmony within state government and holding spending within income. Also he held the usual advantage of an incumbent over a challenger.

Mrs. Farenthold lost her main campaign plank of two years ago—a demand to "throw the rascals out" of the statehouse. Briscoe never was connected even remotely to the Sharpstown bribery scandals and no scandal has touched his administration.

The challenger captured no counties although she won more than a dozen in the 1972 primary when she trailed Briscoe by 351,345 votes and lost by only 210,000 in the runoff.

Republicans soundly approved putting right-to-work and anti-state income tax provisions in the constitution now being rewritten. These, too, were only advisory.

All Paintings Taken In Great Art Robbery Recovered Intact

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP) — Detectives raided an isolated house in southeast Ireland Saturday and recovered all 19 paintings stolen in the world's biggest art robbery, police said.

"They're safe, they're safe," a policeman said. A woman discovered at the house was detained for questioning, and police credited a hunch by two policemen for the discovery of the cache.

On Friday, a ransom letter had demanded that four Irish terrorists be transferred from British to Northern Ireland jails and a cash ransom be paid for the safe return of the paintings.

A police spokesman said the paintings, worth an estimated $20.4 million, were wrapped in paper in a closet of the rented house at Glandore, a rural area 40 miles from the city of Cork.

The paintings — including a Vermeer, a Goya, a Frans Hals and three Rubens — were reported under heavy guard at a police station Saturday night.

The works were stolen nine days ago from the 100-room mansion of gold- and diamond-mining millionaire Sir Alfred Beit. A gang of thieves raided the mansion near Dublin, tied up Beit, his servants and family and started packing up the masterpieces. Some were ripped from their frames.

The robbers were led by a woman with a French accent (See PAINTINGS Page 10A)

Turbulence Lashes Basin

Turbulent weather thrashed West Texas again Saturday night with high winds, occasionally heavy rain, some hail and a few funnel cloud reports.

High winds spewed bullet-fast hailstones through Martin County, overturning small buildings, shattering windows and felling power lines.

A small boy was trapped briefly under an overturned trailer home at Tarzan in Martin County. He escaped without serious injury. Also at Tarzan there were several reports of damage to roofs and another mobile home had its roof blown off.

In another part of Martin County, election workers at the Grady School had to abandon vote counting when the storm knocked out electricity.

Flood waters swamped roadways between Andrews and Big Spring north of Midland. Rain-fall in the Lamesa area was estimated at one inch and there was an unconfirmed report of a tornado shortly before dusk near the Patricia community in Dawson County.

The line of thunderstorms swept through Midland County about 8 p.m., causing heavy rain and some hail near Greenwood. The National Weather Service at Midland Air Terminal reported only a trace of rain, but 11 inch was recorded downtown and that much or more was general in the residential areas with some low-lying areas full of water for a time.

The forecast for Midland calls for a chance of thunderstorms through Monday.

Blanchard Goes Down To Defeat

DALLAS (AP) — Late returns from the Texas Election Bureau showed most incumbent legislators held on to their jobs in Saturday's Democratic primary, but two veteran conservatives apparently lost their renomination bids.

Sen. H. J. "Doc" Blanchard of Lubbock trailed Kent Hance, also of Lubbock, 22,716 to 25,712, with only four small rural boxes out.

Rep. Ben Atwell of Hutchins, former head of the House Tax Committee, trailed far behind Dallas real estate man Calvin Rucker.

Six-County Drug Raids Round Up 31 Of 39 Suspects

By D'eva LUTHRINGER Thirty-nine persons have been charged in 42 drug sale and seven possession cases made by undercover state narcotics agents in six West Texas counties, including Midland, during a four-month investigation.

Twenty-nine of the defendants involved were arrested Friday night as law enforcement teams made simultaneous arrests in Midland, Ector, Ward and Tom Green counties.

The search for one person charged in Reeves County turned up nothing, and a woman was arrested in Dawson County Saturday night.

Another person was arrested in Ector County Saturday morning. There were nine charges against eight persons in Midland County; 20 against 19 persons in Ector County; seven for five persons in Ward County; one for one person in Reeves County, and four for four persons in Tom Green County.

Arrest warrants were issued by justices of the peace in all the counties except Ector, where a grand jury sat in called session Friday afternoon to return 20 indictments against the 19 defendants there.

Bonds on those arrested by Saturday afternoon totaled almost $1,400,000. Charges included sale of heroin, marijuana, cocaine, LSD and amphetamine and possession of heroin.

No estimate has been made of the amount of drugs the undercover agents purchased during their investigation, but individual sales were usually small, the largest ranging as high as a gram.

The only drugs confiscated at the time of the arrests were 26 "papers" of heroin in Odessa when one man was picked up. Capt. Bob Joseph, head of the DPS narcotics division for the Midland region, said.

Some of the persons named in the cases were already in custody in unrelated cases when the warrants and indictments were issued. One man is in the state penitentiary.

Another man, named in a Midland County warrant, was arrested at Odessa when he went to the jail there to get a friend out on bond.

Two men named in Ector County indictments were arrested in Midland.

The drug buys were made by three state officers and the arrests were made by DPS narcotics and intelligence officers; Texas Rangers; policemen from Midland, Odessa and San Angelo; sheriffs' officers in Midland, Odessa and Pecos and Jesse Morales, investigator for the Midland County district attorney's office.

Teams of four men each were sent out to serve the warrants. Those arrested in Midland were cited with sale of heroin and Justice of the Peace Robert Pine set bonds at $25,000 per count in the Midland County cases. Those were against Manuel Marmolejo, 33, of Rt. 2, Box 173; Cecilia A. Duran, 22, of 406 E. Mississippi St.; Felix Gomez Hernandez, 32, who was in county jail here on a burglary complaint; and his brother, Margaret Gomez Hernandez, 29, of 1401 E. Walnut Lane.

Ricky Luna and Steve Lomelo Olguin, 30, of 803 N. Baird St. were arrested in Odessa on Midland warrants. Luna was in county jail there and Olguin was picked up when he went to the Odessa jail to post bond for a friend. Another man, Jesse Seguro Ybarra, 25, of 1303 South St., was arrested in city jail here on an Odessa indictment. He remained in Midland's jail Saturday on a misdemeanor complaint which had nothing to do with the drug arrests.

Bonds of $50,000 per count were set in the Odessa cases. These persons were indicted there for sale of heroin: Rene Dominguez Rodriguez, 29; Porferio Garza, 25; Santos

Boarding Records Topple At Terminal

Midland Air Terminal reached an all-time high for enplaning passengers during April. Director of Aviation Wilson H. Banks said boardings at Terminal last month totaled 18,319 for the biggest month ever.

The figure eclipsed the March total of 17,636 which also was a record. Banks' report shows that Continental Airlines had 15,212 boardings during April, compared with 13,100 a year ago.

Those arrested in Midland were cited with sale of heroin and Justice of the Peace Robert Pine set bonds at $25,000 per

These figures reflect an increase of 3,212 passengers over April last year. The two airlines serving Midland Air-Terminal have had a total of 67,155 enplaning passengers so far this year, which is a whopping 9,946 passengers more than the 57,209 for the first four months of 1973.

While total aircraft operations at Terminal were down slightly from a year ago at 9,099, total operations so far this year were 38,159, which is 4,391 operations more than the same period in 1973.

Observers Think Negotiating State Near On Disengagement

JERUSALEM (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger returned to Israel Saturday night, and U.S. officials said he expects Syria to scale down the fighting on the Golan Heights as it inches its way toward a separation of forces agreement with the Jewish state.

He made no statement on his arrival, and was whisked away in a motorcade for another round of talks with Premier Golda Meir and other Israeli leaders.

Kissinger flies back to Syria today and Moscow Radio said Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko will be there too, at the invitation of Syrian President Hafez Assad. The broadcast gave no other details, but apparently Gromyko's mission was linked to Kissinger's efforts.

Meanwhile, the Libyan newspaper Al Fajr el-Jadid said Kissinger was trying to impose "defeatism" on Arab countries by pursuing a disengagement pact. This was a reference to the moderate policy pursued by Egypt and bitterly criticized by the Libyan regime of Col. Moammar Khadafy. Kissinger held seven hours of talks with Assad on Friday, flew to Alexandria, Egypt, Saturday where he held another round of talks with President Anwar Sadat, then flew on to Israel.

The U.S. officials flying with Kissinger said Syria and Israel are now in negotiating range on disengagement, and that Kissinger has begun to narrow differences on other key elements of the prospective pact — how to set up a buffer zone between the separated armies as well as the thinning out of forces behind the disengagement lines.

Alcoholism Week Begins In Midland County Today

Today through Saturday is Alcoholism Week in Midland County, and the Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission has announced plans for the prevention of alcohol abuse.

If the national averages hold true—and there are indications that Midland is higher than average—there are 2,720 alcoholics in Midland County today — 4 per cent of the population.

Of that 4 per cent, national studies show only 10 per cent seek professional help.

In Midland County, that 10 per cent would be 272 people, but figures compiled by the PBRPC show that 398 persons sought treatment for alcoholism between September 1972 and August 1973.

Vic Rhoades handles PBRPC's alcoholism program, which is a regional plan dealing with the prevention of alcohol abuse.

The program has six main functions: planning, development of resources, coordination, training, education-information and evaluation.

Rhoades' job, primarily, is to establish programs within political subdivisions in the PBRPC's 17-county membership area.

One of his functions is liaison between area agencies which work with alcoholics in an effort to get an overall picture and prevent duplication where possible.

The PBRPC is planning clinics for doctors.

Rhoades will talk to area college personnel in the near future to get information on alcoholism introduced into sociology and psychology courses.

Another program in the development stage is one for employers. Several large companies have instituted plans whereby help is given to alcoholic employees and Rhoades is trying to come up with a similar plan for smaller companies.

PBRPC has established this list of priorities and is working toward achieving them:

1. Develop stronger support for the regional program by developing a council or committee on alcoholism in each community in which one does not exist.
2. Develop an emergency care facility easily accessible to the citizens in each community where it does not exist.
3. Develop out-patient

Mechanic To Fiddle At Festival

By JON HALVORSEN
MIDDLE GROVE, N.Y. (AP) — Lawrence Eugene Older, 61, a journeyman mechanic who never got past the sixth grade or took a music lesson, knows hundreds of folksongs, ballads, reels and laments because he was "raised on 'em."

And because others want to hear the songs the way Larry Older learned them from his family and friends here in the southern Adirondacks, he and his fiddle have been invited to play at the Newport Folk Festival, Columbia University, the Northeast Old Time Fiddlers Convention in Vermont, which he helped found, and Caffe Lena in nearby Saratoga Springs, among other places.

"A book's the worst place in the world to get a song. That's why the collectors now are beginning to listen and send their students right out into the woods. When they hear a man singing a song, you know, they get it a lot closer. You can't interpret off a piece of paper."

Older, one of 10 children, began working as a logger when he was 15 and bought a fiddle for $3 with his first week's pay. His repertoire — "We'd better be modest and say 500, but I do 1,000 in effect!" — includes many songs of English, Scotch and Irish origin, although often given a mountaineer's twist. He learned most of them from his mother, who worked all her life as a professional cook in lumber camps, from his father, often employed as a camp foreman, and from an uncle.

School To Spend More Money On Girls' Athletics

HOUSTON (AP) — School officials here say they plan to nearly double the amount of money spent on girls' athletic programs but the sum still won't come anywhere near the amount spent for boys' programs.

The Houston Independent School District plans to up the girls' program from $70,000 to $125,575 a year. This compares to about $1.5 million spent on boys' athletics.

The new proposal would also add track and golf to the four existing girls' sports programs—volleyball, swimming, tennis and archery.

Study committees will also be formed to investigate adding badminton and bowling programs and expanding the swimming program.

Joe Tusa, assistant superintendent in charge of athletics and physical education, said, "Girls' sports are just now really coming to the front."

Eva Rogers, director of girls' physical education and athletics, agreed that interest in an expanded program has surfaced over the past few years.

"There was always the feeling that girls don't do that sort of thing," she said. "It was too dangerous or they would lose their femininity. And it used to be very difficult to get women to coach. They thought it made them too masculine."

U.S. Church Growth Sags To Virtual Standstill

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
NEW YORK (AP) — American church growth has sagged to a virtual standstill hitting its lowest level in more than a quarter century and narrowly trailing the pace of population increase, new statistics showed Saturday.

Church membership in the country stands at 131,424,564, up only 35,000 from the previous year and the smallest overall gain since 1945 when World War II ended and U.S. church membership suffered a brief downturn.

The current scanty increase fractionally slipped behind the approximate 1 per cent population rise, but due to the masses involved, the percentage of Americans belonging to churches remained unchanged in rounded numbers — 62.4 per cent, the same as the year before.

The figures were compiled for the 1974 Yearbook of American and Canadian Churches, published by the National Council of Churches.

Jacquet said the slowdown in church growth has gone on since a 1965 peak when church membership was 64.3 per cent.

Classes Slated By Grad Center

Two classes will meet this week in the Permian Basin Graduate Center Classroom in the basement of Gilis Tower East.

Dr. Jack Elam will present a lecture from 7-10 p.m. Wednesday on drilling procedures and production operations as part of the oil and gas fundamentals course.

Bill R. Brogden will lecture from 7-10 p.m. Thursday on stimulation techniques. Fee for the lecture — a part of the general aspects of natural gas production course — is $20.

Brogden is chemical services superintendent for Halliburton Services.

He said the current figures show the least growth of that entire depressed period, and also the lowest for many years before then.

Most of the major mainline Protestant denominations registered actual losses instead of growth, with the exception of the Southern Baptists. Roman Catholic growth was minimal.

Substantial gains were largely among conservative, missionary-minded denominations.

A breakdown of totals showed there are 71,648,000 Protestants, 48,460,000 Roman Catholics, 6,115,000 Jews and 3,739,000 Eastern Orthodox affiliated with U.S. religious bodies.

The figures, mostly as of the end of 1972, also reflect these trends:

Bitter Insult
Among the primitive Yanomamo Indians of Venezuela, calling a man by the name of his dead father is considered a bitter insult.

—A continued "downward drift" in Sunday school enrollments, which fell from 38,487,453 to 36,397,785, down 4.3 per cent.

Coins, Jewelry Stolen From Home

An estimated $91 in coins, jewelry and keys apparently was taken from the home of Preston Bowman, 3610 Roosevelt St., late Friday or early Saturday.

Bowman said he and his three children left the house at 5:45 p.m. Friday and returned at 8:30 a.m. Saturday. Papers and checks were scattered about the floor and further investigation found the items missing.

A neighbor boy said he saw a youth with long, light brown hair leaving the house. The boy, clad only in jeans, showed several of the stolen items to the neighbor boy.

Entry apparently was gained through an unlocked front door.

—Weekly church attendance remained stable at 40 per cent of the population, the same as the previous year.

—Despite the growth slowdown, contributions to churches increased, as gauged by Protestant figures only. These show a $299-million increase in giving to $4.6 billion, up 5.2 per cent.

—Per capita giving rose from $93.35 to $99.16 per person.

—The number of clergy rose from 295,154 to 363,987.

—Seminary school enrollment remained at an all-time high of 31,698, reflecting an upward trend since 1966 when there were 23,196 seminarians.

—Women seminarians numbered 3,358, or 10.2 per cent of the total. It was the first time they've been counted separately.

—Construction of religious buildings totaled $944 million, up from $813 million, but inflationary costs virtually wiped out any gain, the report said.

The religious building peak in 1965 totaled $1,207 billion.

WON'T SURRENDER PAPERS— Jaworski's Office Says Stans Invoking Fifth Amendment

WASHINGTON (AP) — Maurice H. Stans, President Nixon's chief political fund-raiser, is invoking the Fifth Amendment to avoid surrendering political records needed for a probe of bribery, conspiracy and other crimes, the special prosecutor's office says.

Chief U.S. District Judge George L. Hart Jr. said Friday he believes good cause has been shown why a subpoena should be enforced and ordered Stans to appear in court May 15 to explain why he is refusing to surrender the documents.

Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski is seeking the contents of three locked filing cabinets in the offices of the Committee for the Re-Election of the President, for which Stans, a former secretary of Commerce, served as finance chairman.

Jaworski's office told the court in a statement filed Friday that the investigation also centers on allegations of illegal campaign contributions and possible violation of a law forbidding promises of government employment or benefits in return for political actions such as campaign contributions.

The statement called the documents sought "relevant and important evidence" and added:

"It appears that Mr. Stans has attempted to place these documents beyond the reach of the grand jury on the basis of his Fifth Amendment privilege against compulsory self-incrimination."

Jaworski maintained that the Fifth Amendment does not protect records filed in the course of a political campaign.

He said his office has no interest in any truly personal records but does want Stans' political files, appointment and telephone logs, contribution records and all lists recommending campaign contributors for federal jobs.

The subpoena, issued Feb. 25, also asked for all lists prepared by Stans of persons who were asked to contribute to the Nixon campaign but refused.

Last week, Stans and former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell were acquitted in U.S. District Court in New York City of conspiracy, obstruction of justice and perjury in a case stemming from a $200,000 contribution to Nixon's campaign by fugitive financier Robert L. Vesco.

BE AWARE OF SPECIAL ASSESSMENTS
Special assessments are charges levied against a property by a city or town for improvements made for the benefit of that property, such as: street improvements, installation of water and sewage systems.
These special assessments usually are made payable over several years so that, at any time, there may be payments remaining due for work already completed or possible future payments for work planned but not yet started.
If a home is to be sold, who pays these assessed charges — the buyer or the seller? Normally, special assessments for work started prior to the date of the offer to buy are paid by the seller even though payments are stretched out into the future. If the work is to start after the date of the offer, it is normally paid by the buyer.
The important thing here is for the buyer to be aware of any special assessment payments and future planned public improvements which will result in special assessments.
If you have any questions on this subject or any other aspect of real estate, feel free to phone or drop in at DON JOHNSON REALTORS, 2318 W. Ohio St. Phone: 683-5333. We're here to help! (Come in for your free copy of "Homes For Living" magazine).

Europe Shaking Off Effects Of Arab Oil Price Hikes

By The Associated Press
The soaring cost of Arab oil is leaving its mark on the economy and lifestyle of industrial Europe.

But most countries are weathering the crisis and the outlook may not be as gloomy as first thought.

When Arab producers tripled the price of their petroleum in the wake of October's Middle East war, Europe's nine Common Market nations alone had to find an additional $20 billion to meet their oil needs in 1974.

Europe has to buy about 60 per cent of its oil abroad — compared to only 12-15 per cent for the United States.

Inflation — the most obvious result — will run well over 10 per cent almost everywhere in Europe this year.

People are driving less and buying smaller cars. More and more Europeans are taking their vacations at home. They are looking for alternate ways to heat their homes and run their factories. And many are facing old-age pensions eroded by inflation.

Here is a representative look at how some European countries are coping with the increased oil prices:

West Germany
West Germany's powerful economy is surviving the situation in better shape than many industrial nations. But rising prices and unemployment — though small compared to other countries — have contributed to a sharp drop in public support for Chancellor Willy Brandt's once popular government.

The auto industry, a key earner in foreign trade, was hit by the increased petroleum prices. March production was down 20 per cent from last year.

Special legislation was passed last November to permit government control of energy production, distribution and use.

But so far the government has resisted pressure for increased control or even nationalization of oil concerns themselves.

France
So far there has been little change in French lifestyles. Roads on weekends are as full as ever though more people seem to be using smaller cars.

Total auto production for the first quarter of 1974 dipped slightly compared to the same period last year but production of small cars increased in the same period by 8.2 per cent.

Britain, particularly hard hit by the increase in oil prices, has weathered the energy crisis rather well.

Early this year Britain struggled with its own crippling coal shortage when miners struck and brought the country to the brink of economic chaos.

The Conservative government — ousted in the Feb. 28 elections — put the country on a three-day work week, ordered an across-the-board reduction of 10 per cent on oil company deliveries, lowered speed limits, and ordered cutbacks in lighting and heating.

Italy remains captive of what many Italians hope are temporary measures: speed limits, alternate Sunday driving ban, reduced public lighting, and some bars and restaurants still closing at midnight.

On the streets of Rome traffic is still frenetic but auto companies in general report a drop in sales.

Italy's biggest car maker, Fiat, reported it had a $100-million operating loss in 1973, the first in its history.

The Dutch seem to have survived the crisis fairly well. The Arabs imposed an oil embargo on the Netherlands last October because they felt she was supporting Israel in the Middle East war. But the embargo failed to cut off oil shipments to Rotterdam, the world's biggest port and a refinery center which supplies most of Northern Europe.

Simon Due To Inherit King-Sized Headaches

By R. GREGORY NOKES
WASHINGTON (AP) — Former energy chief William E. Simon will inherit some major economic headaches when he takes over from George P. Shultz as Secretary of the Treasury.

Simon's appointment by President Nixon has been confirmed by the Senate, and he probably will be sworn into office at mid-week.

Shultz, 53, the last member of the original Nixon Cabinet still on the job, has been anxious to leave for some time. Aides say he is both tired and frustrated after five grueling years in three top administration posts.

Although he was given great authority than any other Treasury secretary in recent years, Shultz has been unable to check the country's rampant inflation, which has soared to nearly 11 per cent this year.

Another problem he leaves behind is a sagging economy. It is a measure of the respect which most people have for Shultz that he is not widely blamed for the nation's economic difficulties.

Although Shultz was Nixon's unrivaled top economics adviser, it didn't mean his views always prevailed. He opposed wage and price controls from the outset and tried unsuccessfully to resign 10 months ago to protest the President's second price freeze.

But Nixon has needed Shultz — possibly more because of his high moral standing in Watergate-tainted Washington than because of his economic expertise.

Shultz says his five years in Washington have strengthened his belief that "we must do our best to hold the line against the encroachment of government on private institutions."

Shultz is the first economist to serve as treasury secretary in modern times. He was at the University of Chicago when Nixon named him to his first Cabinet as labor secretary in 1969.

He became the first director of the Office of Management and Budget in July of 1970 and moved to Treasury to replace John B. Connally in June of 1972.

Aides say he may join a major corporation after leaving government and probably still will be available to the President for special assignments.

Although Simon's aggressive style contrasts with the quiet, studied approach of Shultz, the two men have similar economic philosophies. They are both conservatives.

In outlining his views to the Senate during his confirmation hearings recently, Simon called for a return to economic fundamentals, including a balanced budget, to help restrain inflation and get the economy back on track.

Shultz would wholeheartedly agree with those policies. But he also said recently that one has to yield to the changing winds in Washington to accomplish anything.

FEO Won't Give Station Operator Immediate Help

HOUSTON (AP) — The Federal Energy Office has declined to give immediate help to a service station operator who is involved in a dispute with Mobil Oil Co.

Art Ballard, who barricaded himself with a shotgun in his station recently and successfully held out against an eviction notice obtained by Mobil, said Tuesday the regional FEO office in Dallas had ordered the company to deliver gasoline to his station.

Mobil cut off its deliveries in mid-March when it instituted the eviction suit. A jury trial is set for May 17.

However, Mobil protested and Friday Delbert M. Fowler, FEO regional administrator, said the FEO would delay action on Ballard's complaint until after eviction trial.

Fowler said if a court backs Ballard in the dispute the FEO will "consider ordering Mobil to supply him with the full allotment of gasoline."

Mobil claims Ballard's station does not meet appearance standards.

Texas Traffic Deaths Decline

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Texas traffic deaths have declined by 29 per cent this year, the Department of Public Safety reported Saturday.

The department said 761 persons have died this year, 304 fewer deaths than at this time a year ago.

There have been a total of 694 fatal traffic accidents in the state this year, a decrease of 211 or 24 per cent, the department said.

Two Police Aids

LONDON (AP) — Two inventions that detect buried bodies may help police find any murder victims among persons who are reported missing and never turn up again. A major electronics firm described one aid as a new type of aerial photography that detects when soil or foliage has been disturbed.

The other is a hand-held detector that identifies underground changes in soil compression.

5,000 Year Old Chinese Health Remedy Found

PEKING (Special) — Health researchers in China have uncovered an amazing rare old Chinese herb remedy that possesses spectacular healing qualities and reportedly has been used for 5,000 years to cure or give relief to a host of the most common illnesses suffered by mankind.

Dramatic claims are being made that this "miracle herb" called ginseng, may actually hold the key to a longer healthier life. Indeed, there is one historical case of a user living to be 266 years old.

Helps Many Illnesses
Like acupuncture, the many healing properties of this remarkable herb were once considered "folklore and superstition", but modern researchers around the world are suggesting that it may actually regulate many of the body's processes to increase SEXUAL potency, help heal ULCERS, relieve ARTHRITIS, check graying or loss of HAIR, improve DIGESTION, slow down ARTERIOSCLEROSIS, relieve ASTHMA overcome FATIGUE, improve DIABETIC conditions, relieve inflammation of the URINARY TRACT, help chronic INSOMNIA, relieve BACK-ACHES and PAINS, and generally improve your health by increasing your body's potential to heal itself.

Safe, No Side Effects
Ginseng is not a drug, but an herb or vegetable that is extremely rich in vitamins and minerals. What's more, this amazing natural remedy is completely safe and non-toxic with no side effects. Unfortunately, high-grade ginseng is in short supply, and brokers and processors around the world are bracing themselves for a "run" on the market as the herb's purported "near miraculous" healing properties become more widely known to the general public.

Now Available in U.S.
Now you can get a generous 30-day supply of this amazing natural remedy direct from a major supplier by sending only $10.00 in check, cash or money order to Health Laboratories, Dept. 79, Box 2142, Palm Springs, Calif. 92262. This wonder herb is said to have helped millions of other people and it may help your health problem too. Isn't it worth a try? Adv.

Princess Makes Hit At Kentucky Derby

LOUISVILLE (AP) — Britain's Princess Margaret joined the wildly cheering, enthusiastic crowd here Saturday as Cannonade won the 100th running of the Kentucky Derby.

Her Royal Highness, in a multicolor print dress accented by a pillbox hat woven of ribbons, presented the Princess Margaret Trophy, an elaborate silver bowl made in 1746.

During the race the Princess Margaret and her husband, Lord Snowdon, were seated in a special box above the finish line.

Among those seated in the box with Princess Margaret were her hosts, Mr. and Mrs. C. V. Whitney; Sir Peter Ramsbotham, British ambassador to the United States, and Lady Ramsbotham; Lynn Stone, president of Churchill Downs, and Mrs. Stone.

Prior to her arrival, one member of the huge throng held back by security forces carrying large crowd control sticks shouted:

"Keep her out. She pays less taxes than our President."

However, the mood changed when the black Rolls Royce bearing Her Royal Highness appeared.

"She's prettier than I thought," sighed one woman.

"Where's her husband?" asked another. When he was spotted in a brown sportcoat, gold tie and white shirt, she declared: "Oh, he's so handsome."

The royal entourage was to spend the night at the Whitney farm near Lexington.

After church services today, they are to leave for Philadelphia, ending a four-day visit to Bluegrass country.

Two Texans Plead Guilty In Robbery

MEMPHIS (AP) — U.S. District Court Judge Robert M. McRae Jr. said sentencing of two Longview, Tex., men indicted on bank robbery and kidnaping charges last month will take place following a federal probation report.

Dan Hayden Aldridge, 26, an unemployed tile layer, and James Edward Makarski, 33, an unemployed machinist, changed their pleas to guilty Friday during an arraignment before McRae.

The two men admitted taking part in a March 18 robbery of $49,778 from a Union Planters National Bank branch in Memphis and the kidnaping of three bank employees.

According to police, the two Texas men and a companion, Clyde M. Hyde, 43, of Shreveport, La., took the cash and fled past police who had surrounded the building. They held the three bank employees as hostages and drove off in a bank employee's car.

A dramatic chase involving dozens of police and FBI cars and helicopters ensued.

The chase ended when a television cameraman in a news car saw the fleeing car strike and hurl a policeman into the air. The cameraman, Bill Anderson, then crashed his news car into the getaway car. A police officer, observing a gun being pointed at Anderson, crashed his cruiser into the other side of the getaway car.

As police closed in, Hyde shot one policeman, inflicting a minor wound, then fatally shot himself rather than surrender. Makarski and Aldridge gave up the hostages and surrendered.

The kidnaping charge carries a penalty of no less than 10 years in prison and the bank robbery charges carries a sentence of up to 25 years.

Houston Area Air Crash Kills Trio

HOUSTON (AP) — Three men killed in a plane crash just north of here Friday were identified Saturday.

The victims were Jerry Gerald 40, of Houston, a land developer; Chris Michalec, 24, of Houston, a salesman for Gerald, and Frank J. Tarantino, 32, of Houston, an air traffic controller for the Federal Aviation Administration.

Searchers found the bodies of the three men in a marshy area north of Houston. Sheriff's Deputy D. C. Barnes said the plane was en route from College Station to a private airport in northwest Harris County when the crash occurred.

150 Young Persons Hauled To Jail From Island Party

JASPER (AP) — Complaints by the U.S. Corps of Engineers led to the arrests Saturday of 150 young persons on Two Dikes Island in Sam Rayburn Reservoir, Jasper County Sheriff A. Aubrey Cole said.

Cole said most of the youths are being charged with disorderly conduct although some drug charges are also being filed.

The sheriff said many of those arrested were juveniles. He said the people moved into the island early Saturday for what appeared to be a party.

"It looks like they came from all over the state," Cole said. "There were women and men and some children. I don't know who was organizing it."

He said county and city police moved in around noon following reports of disorderly conduct. Those arrested were placed into five cattle trailers and then taken to the county jail in Jasper.

"They were doing just about everything a bunch of young people would do," the sheriff said. "Some were running around naked and there was some drinking going on."

Woman Publisher Added To Bridge Disaster Suit

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Wayne Corp., manufacturer of the body of the bus in which 19 persons from Woodlawn Baptist Church here were killed, has been named a defendant in a lawsuit by survivors and injured persons.

The motion to include Wayne as a co-defendant in the suit came two days after the National Transportation Safety Board's April 30 report that inadequate seat anchorages in the leased bus contributed to the deaths.

"A major factor contributing to the fatalities and injuries in the uninvaded portion of the bus was the failure of the seat anchorages," the federal agency said.

It said the seats were secured to the floor only with short metal screws, instead of bolts and nuts.

Another factor was the absence of seatbelts and highback cushioned seats as restraints, the agency said.

The bus, leased from Transportation Enterprises, Inc., was carrying a group of young people on a ski outing in northern New Mexico when it collided with a cattle truck on a narrow bridge, Dec. 26, 1972.

Woman Presses Crumpled Bonds In Steel Vault

BLOOMFIELD, Conn. (AP) — Mrs. Lee Cashingino often spends her day ironing behind a 17-ton steel vault door. And she has a wealth of wrinkles to iron.

As an assistant to the superintendent of the treasurer's vault at Connecticut General Life Insurance Co., Mrs. Cashingino has spent this past year wielding a steam iron on crumpled bonds.

The project began when company officials decided to staple and clip bonds that were purchased during the first years of the company's formation.

Many of the bonds, some of which were issued back in the 1880s, were crumpled and wrinkled after passing from buyer to buyer. It was difficult to staple them into groups of 50 and to clip the redeemable interest coupons by machine.

The idea of ironing the bonds came after months of trial and error.

"I set the iron between Dacron and Arnel, wipe the bond with a wet cloth and 'whoosh,'" said Mrs. Cashingino.

Mrs. Cashingino says each bond takes about 30 seconds to uncrumple and adds that she has never burned one. She says she ironed about 5,000 bonds last year and now averages 10 or 20 a week.

Woman, 32, Dies In Bridge Plunge

PORT ARTHUR, Tex. (AP) — A woman jumped to her death from the top of the Port Arthur Rainbow bridge over the Sabine River Saturday.

Police identified her as Verna Underwood, 32, of Orange. They recovered her body after a four-hour search. Police said she left a note saying she was despondent.

Woman Publisher Dies In Arizona

CHICAGO (AP) — Helen Hemingway Benton, publisher and vice president of Encyclopaedia Britannica Inc., has died at Phoenix, Ariz., after a brief illness, a company spokesman says. She was 72.

Mrs. Benton, who died Friday, was the wife of William Benton, a former U.S. senator from Connecticut and chairman and publisher of Encyclopaedia Britannica for 30 years. Benton died in April 1973 and Mrs. Benton was named publisher of the company.

She was a member of the firm board of directors since 1959 and lived in Southport, Conn. Mrs. Benton served as a trustee of Connecticut College, the University of Bridgeport, and the Heard Museum in Phoenix.

Funeral services are pending.

Steels, Union Sign Contract

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The nation's 10 largest steel producers and the United Steelworkers Union have formally signed their first contract reached under a no-strike agreement.

The three-year pact, signed Friday, gave 350,000 workers a 28-cent-an-hour wage hike, which amounts to 6.3 per cent. It takes effect Wednesday. They will get another 16 cents an hour on Aug. 1, 1975, and again on Aug. 1, 1976.

It also provides a revised cost-of-living formula giving a penny-an-hour pay raise for each 0.35-point increase in the federal government's consumer price index.

FASLANE BAY, Scotland (AP) — Trevor Robinson drank 100 cups of tea in 9 hours and 56 minutes Saturday and claimed a world record. He added: "I feel terrible."

Robinson, 37, is a chief petty officer at a Royal Navy submarine base on Scotland's Gare Loch. He competed in a marathon staged to benefit the Scottish Spastics Appeal Fund.

The Guinness Book of Records lists no previous tea-downing.

Texas Contracts Set April Record

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Contracts in the Texas construction industry set an all time record in April, according to Texas Contractor magazine.

The magazine said Saturday that contracts for April totaled $258.6 million. The total bulged a first quarter of $825.3 million which already had set a record for a three-month period.

The magazine said that April figures for 1973 totaled $154.8 million.

White House Says Transcripts Refute Testimony By Dean

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House, in a strongly worded analysis, said Saturday tape transcripts of John W. Dean's conversations with President Nixon "contain a number of important contradictions" in Dean's sworn testimony before the Senate Watergate committee.

Nixon Upholds Calley's Sentence

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon decided Saturday against any further reduction of the White House said in rebuttals to 16 Dean statements, "bear directly and materially on the central issue of the hearings: 'What did the President know and when did he know it?'"

Dean, who was fired as White House counsel April 30 last year, has since become the President's chief accuser in the Watergate cover-up — implying that the President knew about it as early as Sept. 13, 1972. First word of the analysis was given to newsmen by White House Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler on the Nixon plane en route from Phoenix, Ariz., to Spokane, Wash. The White House later released the analysis.

Ziegler took sharp exception to comments by Senate Watergate committee Chairman Sam J. Ervin, D-N.C., Sen. Lowell Weicker, R-Conn., and Sen. Howard Baker, R-Tenn., who have said the transcripts tend to back up Dean.

"Anyone who says the transcripts support John Dean hasn't worked at his reading or is looking at it with a totally partisan or biased eye," Ziegler said.

At the same time, Secretary of the Army Howard H. Callaway ordered Calley dismissed from the Army.

Nixon upheld Callaway's April 16 action in reducing Calley's prison sentence from 20 to 10 years.

However, Calley is expected to remain free on $1,000 bond until a federal judge in Columbus, Ga., acts in a separate case brought by Calley's lawyers in an attempt to reverse his court-martial conviction.

Even after being returned to confinement, Calley would be eligible for parole after less than six months of additional imprisonment.

Nixon Launches Expo '74

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP) — President Nixon opened the Expo '74 World's Fair Saturday and told a mostly friendly audience that he is working for peace in the world and better things at home.

Nixon spoke of clean air and water, parks, beautiful cities and countryside, but said "environment also means other things to people."

"It means, for example," he said "for every family in America a job so that he can enjoy the environment around him."

The President said that despite the apparent conflicts between ecology and industry, America could have both "and we shall have both. And the way we can have both is to develop the great resources of this country in a way that they will not pollute the atmosphere, that they will contribute to a clean environment."

It was similar to his speech Friday night at a Republican rally in Phoenix, Ariz., where he also met with scattered opposition.

At the fair, Nixon took no apparent notice of the hecklers, delivering his short speech in smiling manner.

Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., said in a television talk taped for constituents he believes that a tax cut would help the economy.

The administration has voiced opposition to any tax cut.

Major Legislation's Outlook Grows Dim In 93rd Congress

By EDMOND LeBRETON
WASHINGTON (AP) — Key members of Congress are saying privately that constituents shouldn't look for much more major legislation from the 93rd term.

Unfinished business is still piled high as the impeachment inquiry intensifies. And there are hopes to adjourn in time for fall campaigning.

Private pension reform, now near the final legislative stages, will probably go through. A major effort will be made to enact some sort of national health insurance.

Reform of Congress' own budget procedures is well advanced. There may be a modest measure of tax reform, including some relief for individuals if the economy does not improve, but not the repeatedly postponed general overhaul of the revenue code.

The House will vote soon on an energy windfall profits tax bill with a cutback on tax advantages of oil companies. Its fate in the Senate is uncertain.

The general energy bill passed last year, with standby powers including rationing authority, was vetoed. An effort to fashion another is under way with the outcome uncertain.

The foreign trade negotiation bill, passed last year by the House, is snagged in the Senate on the issue of Soviet emigration policies.

Conversely, the campaign reform measure the Senate passed is moving slowly in an unenthusiastic House committee. Both measures likely will die at the end of the term.

The comprehensive housing bill approved by the Senate has lit no fires in the House. Agreement on a limited, stopgap measure is generally accepted as the probable outcome.

No-fault automobile insurance, passed by the Senate, now starts practically from scratch in the House. Its prospects are not bright.

The agendas of several key committees are jammed. Chairman George Mahon, D-Tex., of the House Appropriations Committee, has said he expects to have a money bill before the House every day near the end of June.

The House Ways and Means Committee is in an unusual two-track operation, working on tax reform during the first part of each week, health insurance during the latter part.

While its agenda for tax reform is sweeping, committee sources say any bill approved will be limited, probably including tightening of the minimum tax paid by persons who enjoy much sheltered income.

State Bar Elects John M. Lawrence

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — State Bar of Texas members have chosen John M. Lawrence III of Bryan as their president-elect.

Lawrence will take office as bar president in July 1975. He defeated Lucious D. Bunton of Odessa in a mail ballot among the state's 24,000 lawyers. Lawrence currently is chairman of the bar's board of directors.

State Rep. Pike Powers was chosen president-elect of the State Junior Bar, which consists of about 9,000 lawyers under the age of 36. Powers defeated Carl Roth of Marshall.

Onassis Drawing Attention As Man Behind Effort To Build Refinery

By MICHAEL PUTZEL
CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — Aristotle Socrates Onassis is best known to Americans for his fabulous wealth and his wife, the former Jacqueline Kennedy.

Now he is drawing attention as the man behind an effort to build a giant oil refinery in New Hampshire.

The size and sources of his fortune are shrouded in the secrecy assured most of his 100 or so companies, registered in cities around the world.

Onassis, who says he is 63 although some records show him to be six years older, was born in Syrna, Turkey, son of a Greek tobacco merchant. Fleeing Turkish nationalists, the family went to Athens in 1922, the next year, young Aristotle sailed for Argentina with $60 in his pocket.

As the story goes, he worked as a telephone operator by day, a telephone operator by night, invested his earnings in hides and whale oil. He became an Argentine citizen and, at 23, a millionaire.

Expands Tanker Fleet
In 1932, Onassis bought six freighters at bargain, depression prices from a Canadian company. Three years later, he bought his first oil tanker.

After World War II, he expanded his tanker fleet, and also bought a small whaling fleet.

Virtually every ship in the Onassis Group was owned by a separate company, and registered in a country that levied little or no taxes on it.

During the 1950s, Onassis' whaling fleets were accused of violating international agreements on whale conservation, and his ship-buying activities led to legal trouble in the United States.

A federal grand jury indicted him in 1953 for conspiracy to defraud the United States by obtaining control of 23 American war surplus ships in violation of a law requiring that they remain in U.S. hands.

Eventually, in a complex series of settlements, Onassis agreed to pay $7 million in penalties, transfer control of the surplus ship companies to his American son and daughter, and build four big tankers in American yards.

He wound up with 12 surplus tankers and two Liberty ships, registered under foreign flags of convenience.

Paid Twice For Ships
"I paid the United States government twice for my ships," he complained at a congressional hearing in 1958.

The congressmen pressed for information about the ownership of a foreign company called Ariona, an apparent acronym for Aristotle Onassis. He said he did not know who owned it, but finally testified: "If it is in the name of someone else, then I own that someone else."

Many Onassis enterprises, including Olympic Refineries, Inc., which wants to build the New Hampshire refinery, appear to be owned by "that someone else."

The New Hampshire refinery plan has the support of Gov. Meldrim Thomson and others as an economic boost and a solution to the perennial problem of short, costly heating oil and gasoline supplies.

Environmentalists contend it would scar the landscape, and raise the risk of beach-fouling oil spills from tankers bringing in crude oil.

Olympic insists "there is very little likelihood" of a major oil spill off the New Hampshire coast, and cites a dozen safeguards it would provide to contain any spills that might occur.

Had Spill Problems
Opponents argue that even the remote chance of a spill is too great a risk.

Onassis firms have had oil spill problems before.
On Feb. 4, 1970, the tanker Olympic Arrow ran aground off Port Hawkesbury, Nova Scotia, carrying 16,000 tons of gum-thick "bunker C" fuel oil, which began gushing from the ruptured hull. Denying he was spilling oil, the captain tried to back off the rock, and called for assistance only when it became necessary to abandon ship.

Four days later, the Arrow broke apart in heavy seas, and the stern section sank, spilling millions of gallons of oil.

Lloyd's Confidential Index of ships shows the Arrow, formerly Olympic Games, formerly Sea Robin, was one of the surplus ships Onassis had obtained from the United States. She was owned by Sunstone Marine (Panama) S.A. and operated by Olympic Maritime of Monte Carlo, which manages some 65 ships known as the Onassis Fleet.

The report of the Royal Commission found the Arrow "was operated with us in the clean-up expenses, and I understand that the bill to Olympic was $3 million, which it paid."

It was the first time any Onassis official had admitted the Arrow was an Onassis ship. But the inquiry records show that Canada recovered only about $1 million, and that came from a tanker owners' voluntary agreement to compensate nations that experience oil spills — not from Olympic Maritime.

The Canadian commission added that, although Olympic Maritime managed many tankers, some of which had been involved in previous spills, "they still had not developed any contingency plan to deal with these catastrophes." It is doubtful whether they would be in any better position today to deal with a similar crisis than they were in 1970.

While the Arrow cleanup was under way, another Onassis ship, Olympic Light, ran aground in Florida. Witnesses reported the tanker pumped raw bunker C fuel oil into Tampa Bay's main shipping channel.

Dennis Quilligan of the state's attorney's office said the apparently deliberate cleaning of the ship's bilges while still in the harbor.

The Greek captain was arrested and charged with violating the spillage law, which carries a maximum penalty of five years in prison and a $10,000 fine. But he left the country before trial.

The Midland Pop-Up club also was named the outstanding club in the district.

The District 44 Communication and Leadership Award was presented to LaDoyce Lambert, managing editor of The Reporter-Telegram.

About 150 persons attended the concluding banquet.

During the business sessions Saturday, Ed Dowden of Odessa was elected District 44 governor, succeeding Ray Laird Jr. of Odessa.

Other district officers are John Slyker of Midland, educational lieutenant governor; Clarence Stovall of Midland, administrative lieutenant governor; N. J. Murdock of Lubbock, division lieutenant governor north, and Tom Crumly of Big Spring, division lieutenant governor south.

Reagan Elects Four JPs; Faces Two Run-Off Races

BIG LAKE — Voters here voiced a loud "yes" for pari-mutuel betting Saturday and elected justices of the peace for four precincts.

This was the first time Reagan County had put people in office in three of the newly redistricted JP precincts.

No one won majorities in either of the county commissioner races; so the run-off election will determine that one.

There were five candidates on the Precinct 2 commissioners slate and the run-off will be between Robert B. Ferguson III, who took 197 votes, and the incumbent, John R. Daugherty, who won 113.

Others in that race were W. E. Clemmer, 36 votes; E. T. Stiles 23; and Jeff Tucker, 17.

County Commissioner, Precinct 4, incumbent Jim L. Daniel received 132 votes Saturday, but that was not enough to keep him out of a run-off with Wayne Dolan, who took 81.

Other candidates for the post were James L. Watkins, 66 votes, and Joe V. Carnes, 28 votes.

Incumbent County Judge W. T. Mills won handily over his two opponents. Totals showed Mills 700, Frank Sandel 375 and Ralph Duesing 220.

The JP races went like this: — Precinct 1: Pauline Stout 175, Opal Watkins 74. — Precinct 2: George H. Peters (incumbent) 252, Fay Noble 82, Mary Jane Walker 44. — Precinct 3: Mozelle Whitley 213, Betty Quain 73, June Davis 30. — Precinct 4: Tim Seilman ran without opposition.

Gov. Dolph Briscoe was a heavy favorite in the governor's race and pari-mutuel betting was approved 694 to 396.

The state races took these totals here: — Governor: Briscoe 933, Frances Farenthold 244, W. H. "Bill" Posey 44, Steve S. Alexander 43.

Comptroller: Bob Bullock 892, Hugh Edburg 271. — Treasurer: Jesse James 786, Donald Yarbrough 436. — Agriculture commissioner: John C. White 855, Herbert A. "Peanut" Schroeder 304. — Railroad commissioner: Mack C. Wallace 748, C. A. Kelly 351. — Board of Education: District 21: Tom Parrett 596, Jimmie L. Elrod 510. — Court of Civil Appeals, associate justice: Howard M. Lemmons 584, Max N. Osborn 574.

Three Crane County Run-Offs Scheduled

CRANE — Run-offs will be held to determine winners in at least three Crane County races as a result of Saturday's balloting in the Democratic primary here.

The run-offs developed in races for the post of Crane County judge, Precinct 2 county commissioner and Precinct 4 commissioner.

In the judge's race, Charles Blue received 610 votes and Neal Cook 347; they edged out James G. Harlan (94), Mrs. Grace W. Mills (127) and Jerry Eugene Cowden III (65).

In the Precinct 2 commissioner's race, incumbent-by-appointment Mrs. Myrtle Tubb received 131 votes and Roy L. Jaymar received 113. Other contenders for the job in Saturday's primary were Aronid Durham (30) and E. H. "Buck" Heiser (56).

The Precinct 4 commissioner's run-off will involve incumbent Howard R. Tarpley, who got 136 votes, and H. F. "Shorty" Brock, who received 67. Their four opponents were Roy Carr (9), Joe G. Gonzales (51), Charles N. Gay (6) and Henry Green (49).

Wright Patman Renominated

By JIM BRIGANCE Associated Press Writer

U.S. Rep. Wright Patman declared nearly 50 years ago that younger men should be given a chance. But Democratic voters rejected that plea Saturday by renominating the 80-year-old House veteran to his Dist. 1 seat.

After a faltering start in the early count, Patman, chairman of the House Banking Committee, sprang to an undisputed lead over his two Democratic challengers and never again was in danger.

With 52 per cent of the vote counted, Patman's evidence of victory stood at 34,355 votes. Fred Hudson Jr., a 48-year-old businessman challenging Patman's monetary philosophy, had 17,201 votes. Glen Jones struggled behind with 14,484 votes.

In Dist. 3, Harold Collum was the winner while Democrat

Dr. Ewing, UT Scientist, Dies

GALVESTON, Tex. (AP) — Dr. W. Maurice Ewing, chief of the earth and planetary sciences division at The University of Texas Marine Biological Institute, died Saturday.

Ewing, 68, had suffered inter-cerebral hemorrhaging last Sunday.

Services are scheduled for 4 p.m. Monday in Trinity Episcopal Church at Galveston, with burial in Palisades, N.Y.

Pickle won renomination in Dist. 10, Rep. Abraham Kazen was renamed in Dist. 23, and Rep. Jim Collins took an easy victory in Dist. 3.

Doug Harlan was the apparent GOP selection in Dist. 21 while Jack Hightower grabbed a staggering victory in the Dist. 13 Democratic race. In Dist. 5, former state Sen. Mike McKool won the Democratic nomination over former Dallas County Democratic chairman Earl Luna.

The Dist. 7 Democratic winner was Jim Brady while Rep. Bob Eckhardt was renominated in Dist. 8.

A runoff seemed certain in Dist. 21 where Rep. O. C. Fisher's announced retirement touched off a horse race among six Democratic hopefuls.

Nelson Wolff shored ahead with 10,971* votes with Bob Krueger limping close behind with 8,670.

Democratic, GOP Conventions Calm

Midland County Democratic and Republican precinct convention Saturday night apparently were relatively calm affairs, according to incomplete reports available at presstime.

In the precincts contacted, only one — Republican Precinct 21 — passed resolutions about the Watergate affair. Among them was a resolution saying, "We believe President Nixon when he says he's innocent." The Precinct 21 Republicans also slammed the "national news media and self-centered publicity-seeking liberal politicians who have made countless attacks on the President of the United States."

No mention was made of Nixon or Watergate in the three other Republican precincts surveyed. Precinct 12 passed a resolution expressing the hope that California Gov. Ronald Reagan would consider running for President in 1976, and Precinct 26 approved a resolution calling for women to receive 50 per cent of the delegates to the state convention.

The Republicans also passed resolutions praising or expressing support for various public officials.

Precinct 15 Democrats selected six delegates committed to Mrs. Frances Farenthold and five uncommitted delegates to represent them at next Saturday's county convention. The Farenthold delegates were chosen in a separate caucus. Under the new rules, any group may present a petition to caucus separately if it represents at least 20 per cent of those present. It then chooses a number of delegates in proportion to its representation at the precinct convention.

Precinct 21 Democrats also had a separate caucus. One group petitioned to caucus separately "to continue open conventions, oppose the unit rule, and guarantee all groups proportional representation at all conventions." That group elected five delegates to the county convention.

Fourteen Precinct 21 delegates were chosen from a group which petitioned for Gov. Dolph Briscoe to head the Texas delegation to the National Democratic Caucus in Kansas City, Mo., Dec. 6-8.

Lawrence Lee, Precinct 21 chairman, said he will present a petition to the Texas Legislature urging them to change the date of the primary. Lee said the primary should be changed from a Saturday to a Tuesday and from the beginning of May to either mid-April or Oct. 1, in order to encourage more voter participation.

The Republicans also passed resolutions praising or expressing support for various public officials.

Ector County Judge Is Easily Defeated

ODESSA — Ector County Judge Mike Earnay was soundly defeated for re-election in Democratic primary voting here Saturday.

Joe Conally received 3,414 votes for county judge, while Kellius Turner got 2,323 and Earnay received 1,081.

Ector County Democrats disapproved a referendum to legalize pari-mutuel racetrack betting in the state, but the margin over the vote-favoring measure was a relatively small one — 3,586 to 2,836.

Voters were overwhelmingly in favor of Gov. Dolph Briscoe for a four-year term, giving him 5,109 votes. Opponent Frances Farenthold polled 1,373 Ector votes, and the two other gubernatorial candidates, Alexander and Posey, got 226 and 170 votes respectively.

Several run-offs developed in Ector County Democratic races as a result of Saturday's primary. They are in the races of Ector County Commissioner, Precinct 2; Justice of the Peace, Precinct 1, and County Commissioner, Precinct 4.

Results of the primary balloting in various other county, district and state races were as follows: County Commissioner, Precinct 2: Jack Parker, 310; Don Spear, 314; Paul D. Heitner, 170.

Justice of the Peace, Precinct 1: L. B. Henson, 256; Ralph Fuquay, 223; Harold Slinger, 446. Justice of the Peace, Precinct 2: Jan L. Brooks, 1,428; David E. Gowan, 1,280. County Commissioner, Precinct 4: Henry Carrasco, 284; Ernest Martinez, 176; Mack Stewart, 485; Sal Guerrero, 573. Justice of the Peace, Precinct 4: Manuel Valles, 839; Otis Geers, 659. Court of Civil Appeals: Osborn, 2,905; Lemmons, 3,381.

shipment of 35 cars were damaged by the storm.

Tornado winds screamed across much of West Texas and through the Panhandle, unroofing barns and splintering small outbuildings.

No serious injuries or deaths were reported as the vicious spring storms howled northward from distant western points of the state.

At the same time, torrential rains pounded the southeast corner of Texas, The Associated Press reported.

A line of thunderstorms lashed sections from southwest of Houston to near Toledo Bend and another line was extending along the Texas-New Mexico border from the Panhandle to the Pecos River.

The National Weather Service issued a tornado warning for some sections of West Texas including Lamb County early in the evening. One funnel cloud was sighted near Farwell and another near Sudan.

The Weather Service said that the thunderstorm activity would move south and dissipate today.

Authorities credited two local policemen for cracking the case.

They said Sgt. Pat O'Leary and Constable William Creedon became suspicious of the house after learning it had been rented two days before the April 26 robbery. They tipped off the county police force and a raid was organized.

Andrews Commissioner Candidates In Run-Off

ANDREWS — Andrews County voters turned thumbs down on the pari-mutuel betting issue Saturday and turned in votes which threw both county commissioner races into run-offs.

Precinct 2 Commissioner Gene Irwin will face W. G. "Dub" Hathcock in June. The vote totals in that race were close: Irwin 245, Hathcock 226, Jake T. Roach 210 and Cal Withers 167.

There was a wider spread in the totals for the five candidates in the Precinct 4 commissioners race but W. W. "Wes" Barnes, the incumbent, did not take enough votes to ward off a run-off with Willard Snow, who tallied 214 votes Saturday.

Other candidates in the Precinct 4 race were Odell Moore 178, Harry G. Yocham 34 and Walter H. Brimer 10. Russell Austin had a small lead for district judge. He polled 1,276 against Ken G. Spencer's 1,263.

G. A. Ragsdale unseated Justice of the Peace Robert Matthews for the Precinct 4, place 1, post with tallies which showed 1,271 for Ragsdale and 1,138 for Matthews.

Jay Williams won his bid for re-election to the JP Precinct 4, place 2, seat with his 1,350 votes. Challenger E. E. "Tiny" Griffith polled 1,093.

Andrews County voters placed 1,524 ballots against the pari-mutuel betting proposition and 914 for it.

Other race results showed: — Governor: Dolph Briscoe 1,841, Frances Farenthold 524, Steve S. Alexander 247 and W. H. "Bill" Posey 85. — Court of Civil Appeals, 8th District: Max N. Osborn 1,570 Howard M. Lemmons 770.

with 24,510 votes and Lemmons with 19,644.

The totals included complete returns from Ector and Midland counties, and 82 of 83 precincts in El Paso County.

Midland voters gave Osborn 3,336 votes and his opponent 1,179 votes.

In Ector County, Lemmons defeated Osborn 3,381 to 2,905.

In El Paso County, Osborn collected 9,417 votes and Lemmons managed 7,392.

Andrews County gave Osborn a wide edge, 1,576 to Lemmons' 770.

Martin County voted 205 for Lemmons and 171 for Osborn, with Upton casting 580 ballots for Osborn and 558 for Lemmons.

Osborn, a former partner in the Midland law firm of Turpin, Smith, Dyer, Harmon and Osborn, was appointed to the bench last year when Max Ramsey retired to go into private practice.

There still are two years to run on the four-year term.

Granberry Wins Easily In Ector

ODESSA — Ector County Republicans turned out in good, if not record, numbers to cast ballots in their primary election here Saturday.

Candidates for state races shared the spotlight with those running for county offices in Saturday's balloting. In addition, Republicans voted on three referendums, including the one on pari-mutuel betting.

Results of Saturday's voting in contested races were as follows: Governor: Jim Granberry, 596; McBrayer, 273. Lieutenant Governor: Troy Skates, 237; Gaylord Marshall, 508. County Republican chairman: Darr Dangerfield, 78; S. W. Holmes, 708. In the pari-mutuel betting referendum, 314 votes were cast in favor of the measure, and 586 against it. The right-to-work referendum drew 835 votes for the measure, and 56 against it. The state income tax referendum had 314 votes in favor, and 586 against it.

LOSE A POUND A DAY AND MORE Vitamin 'E' Discovery Offers Fast Weight Loss

HOLLYWOOD (Special) — New scientific discoveries have produced a Vitamin E diet that quickly works wonders on overweight people, and reportedly is gaining great popularity across the country with glowing reports of easy weight loss "while still eating almost as much as you want."

Those who follow the simple Vitamin E diet report an average loss of at least a pound a day and even more without exercise or starvation. Nutritionists' files are bulging with happy testimonials from formerly overweight people who are now trim and slim again. Best of all, you can still eat almost as much as you want of the "forbidden foods" like steak, chicken, fish, sauces, gravies, bacon and eggs and still lose weight.

Chewable (candy-like) vitamin E tablets, as used in the diet plan, contain a new scientific combination of ingredients that quickly curbs and controls the appetite, while also giving the wonderful benefits of Vitamin E which is so essential to good health.

The use of the new Vitamin E Diet tablets and foods prescribed in the plan will, through natural action, act to help your body use up excess fat. According to recent clinical tests, a person who is deficient in Vitamin E or Protein "will double the speed of fat utilization" with the use of Vitamin E.

There will be one run-off for a commissioner's seat if the Saturday night totals are correct. That will pit Curtis Palmer who received 46 votes, against Ted W. Laughlin, who won 35 votes, for Precinct 4.

They outran the third opponent, Henry Hillger, who polled 14 votes.

Dear Abby

The Winking Mailman Puzzles Housewife

-By Abigail van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Please don't laugh at me, but I am a middle-aged housewife and the high point of my day is when the mail carrier comes. He's a cheerful, pleasant man with a wonderful personality, and I seem to go out of my way to do things for me. If I don't have stamps, he sells me some. Or if I haven't quite finished writing a letter, he will stop back later to pick it up. I've invited him in for coffee and we always seem to have a lot to say to each other. He's married, too. So far it's just an innocent flirtation, you might say. Now I feel things may get out of control, and I may be getting more involved than what's good for me because I find myself looking forward to his daily visits. Every once in a while he winks at me. How would you interpret a wink, Abby? Exactly what does it mean? And how can I find out if he is just a friendly mailman or if he has something more in mind? I don't want to make a fool of myself. Perhaps your male readers can tell me what a man means when he winks at a lady.

Deadline Given For Publishing Wedding Stories

Thinking about having accounts of your engagement and wedding published in The Reporter-Telegram? If the answer is in the affirmative, brides-to-be should visit the Women's Department of the newspaper and obtain information sheets and wedding forms in order to comply with the R-T policies on wedding stories, photographs and deadlines. One of the new policy changes requires that wedding or engagement forms must be submitted before 5 p.m. Wednesday for publication in a Sunday paper. Another important policy to be aware of is that wedding stories submitted more than five days after the wedding will not be published.

For First Time In 28 Years, Nixon's Privacy Punctured

By LEE BYRD
WASHINGTON (AP)

Through the long political journey, the 28 years of victories and defeats, from the first Six Crises to the threat of impeachment, the private side of Richard M. Nixon had been virtually impenetrable.

Now that privacy is punctured, and by his own hand, "Blemishes and all," Nixon said as he announced he would yield and publish edited transcripts of his conversations about Watergate.

Blemishes there are, and ambiguities, embarrassments, brutal or adoring, just as he said.

But that those outside the Oval Office see a comprehensive picture of the Nixon personality. But it is a look far closer than ever before, and it is replete with contradictions to the Nixon traits long shown to the public at large.

Often Lonely, Indecisive.

As seen through his self-recorded conversations, Nixon is a President and a man often lonely, indecisive, rambling.

The transcripts reflect more presidential questions than presidential orders. They show a man who often seeks the reassurance of those around him.

"I just don't know how it is going to come out," he said to H. R. (Bob) Haldeman in a telephone call the night of April 14, 1973. "That is the whole point, and I just don't know."

In the recorded conversations, Nixon at times exhibits suspicion not only of adversaries but of friends. His memory seems to fail him from one conversation to the next, even on the same day. And his conversation is peppered with profanity, although most of the expletives are deleted from the edited reruns.

Nixon knew that the tape recorders were running. He had them installed. But the candor in many of the transcripts indicates that he paid no heed to that, perhaps that he had forgotten they were there. In any event, they were not intended for public consumption. The Watergate scandal changed that.

Glimpse Of Inner Nixon

At face value, it is so remarkable a glimpse of the inner Nixon that it could prove almost as crucial to his cherished place in history as the judgment reached on the issue at hand, his culpability in the Watergate scandal.

The isolation has been stripped from both the office and the man, leaving a mortal at a helm ordinarily reserved for heroes.

Richard Nixon liked the isolation of the presidency.

His critics have long claimed he was too isolated, too private. Nixon himself addresses the subject in the transcripts, at least as it applies to protecting him from the scandal.

"The main thing," Nixon told counsel John W. Dean III, "is ... the isolation of the presidency ... because that, fortunately, is totally true."

Nixon Says He Knew

At another point, John D. Ehrlichman and Haldeman were discussing the various White House aides who had knowledge relating to Watergate. "There were 8 or 10 people around here who knew," said Ehrlichman. "Bob knew, I knew, all kinds of people knew."

And for a moment, in that April 14 conversation, Nixon seemed to be saying that he did, too.

Nixon: "Well, I knew it, I knew it."

Ehrlichman: "And it was not a question of whether —"

Nixon: "I must say, though, I didn't know it but I must have assumed it though but you know, fortunately — I think you both for arranging it that way and it does show the isolation of the President, and here it's not so bad ..."

Even before Nixon could claim his solitude in the Oval Office, he guarded his privacy well. Aside from a storied outburst in California 12 years ago, the public saw only an image under control, whether it be the Old Nixon or, as political times changed, the New. And beneath that leading edge of Nixon the politician was a personality always remote.

Punctual, Orderly

He wore a flag in his lapel. He was punctual, orderly, rarely moving on impulse and almost never overstaying a visit. He dressed conservatively, blue suit, white shirt, blue tie, and even wore dress slacks and shoes while walking the surf.

He professed not to understand rock music, but he frequently would summon his dog, King Timahoe, and sit by a blazing fire to the strains of "Victory at Sea" or "The King and I." He went dancing exactly once, on the night of his second inauguration.

"We are so (expletive deleted) square that we get caught at everything," Haldeman once remarked to Nixon amid the Watergate trauma.

It appeared even that Nixon was a shy man.

Some saw it as modesty; others as inborn nervousness. The transcripts often indicate defensiveness.

It has been claimed by Nixon's supporters that the thinking which produced the Watergate break-in, the dirty tricks, the enemies list, was generated not from the top but by young, misguided zealots on the staff.

Yet, this remark by Nixon to John Dean on Sept. 15, 1972: "Nobody is a friend of ours! Let's face it! Don't worry about that sort of thing."

And again, to Dean: "I want the most comprehensive notes on all those who tried to do us in. They didn't have to do it ... They are asking for it and they are going to get it." Later, he declares his opponents "are going to lie around and squeal."

Whether Nixon intended those remarks and others like them to be taken literally is, like so much else, ambiguous. Nonetheless, it is clear that this is a side of Nixon which does not conform with the one previously held up to the public.

In his debates with John F. Kennedy 14 years ago, Nixon assailed Harry S. Truman's glib language, saying that "whoever is President is going to be a man that all children of America look up to or look down on, and I can only say I am very proud that President Eisenhower restored dignity and decency and, frankly, good language to the conduct of the presidency of the United States."

"And I only hope should I win this election that ... whenever any mother or father talks to his child, he can look at the man in the White House, and whatever he may think of his policies, he will say, 'Well, there is a man who maintains the kind of standards personally that I would want my child to follow.'"

The model he described in 1960 does not match the man who emerges from the pages released Tuesday. The public Nixon sometimes misspoke himself, once slipped to the point of describing some of the matrons on the banquet circuit as dogs.

Image Contradicted

But aides said he allowed himself "only an occasional damn" in private conversation; never lost his temper, exhibited no more than "controlled impatience."

True, there are only occasional damns in the transcripts. That word wouldn't fit where the frequent "expletive deleted" notations appear.

Nixon ends one conversation by saying: "(Expletive deleted) it."

As for controlled impatience, there are these passages: "Have you kicked a few butts around?" and "I am not going to screw around with this." Or, to press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler: "I'm so sick of this thing, I want to get it done with and over. And I don't want to hear about it again."

Nixon's spokesmen have described him as a man of consummate organization, one who comes to grips quickly with any problem, and conserves both time and words. They told of Nixon sitting at Camp David or his hideaway suite in the Executive Office Building, armed with the facts at hand and a lapful of yellow legal pads, and spelling out clear, concise commands. The tapes indicate that, at least in the case of the Watergate scandal, that is not the way the Nixon White House worked.

Dependent On Aides

Instead, they show a President who is heavily dependent upon his aides, not only for raw information but for guidance; one who frequently seems confused and forgetful; one who lingers on a minor point for minutes at a time and who, in the end, often appears reluctant to make a decision.

Nixon tells in an April 14 exchange with Ehrlichman of his determination to fight to keep Haldeman on the staff.

Having said that, Nixon solicits Ehrlichman's reassurance on that decision no fewer than six times in the same conversation. "Am I wrong?" asks the President. "Well, maybe I am not right ... Is there something to be said for that, or not? Well, people make mistakes, but you don't fire a guy for a mistake, do you?"

Never Grasped Issue

Such ambivalence may be Nixon's silver lining in the cloud of Watergate. There are, to be sure, indications that he condoned the cover-up — and there are indications that he did not. There is also the impression that he never fully grasped the issue.

On March 21, 1973, expressing concern that aides might face criminal charges, Nixon said: "I don't give a damn about

Hearst Says White House Transcripts Make Nixon's Impeachment Inevitable

SEATTLE (AP) — William Randolph Hearst Jr. says transcripts of presidential conversations "add up to as damning a document as it is possible to imagine short of an actual indictment."

The editor of the Hearst newspapers said the conversations reveal President Nixon as a man "with a moral blind spot" and make his impeachment inevitable.

Hearst, formerly an ardent supporter of the President, made the comments in an editorial in his Sunday column for Hearst-owned newspapers in seven cities. The Seattle Post-Intelligencer carried the column on the front page of its early Sunday edition, published Friday night.

The transcripts were released by the White House Tuesday, in response to a House Judiciary Committee subpoena for tapes of presidential conversations for use in the panel's impeachment investigation.

"The gang talking on the tapes, even the censored version, comes through in just that way — a gang of racketeers talking over strategy in a jam-up situation," Hearst wrote.

He said the transcripts "reveal a man totally absorbed in the cheapest and sleaziest kind of conniving to preserve appearance and almost totally unconcerned with ethics. The man seems to have a moral blind spot."

96 Are Arrested In Egyptian Plot

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — A total of 96 persons, including members of the armed services and a military academy, have been arrested in connection with the alleged April 17 plot to topple President Anwar Sadat, the Cairo press reported today.

Eleven persons died and 27 were wounded in an attack on the academy, according to published accounts, which have linked the ring leaders directly with Libyan leader Col. Moammar Khadafy.

36 Persons Are Arrested In Greece

ATHENS (AP) — The government announced today the arrest of 36 persons, mostly students, and accused them of being members of Communist organizations.

A communique said another 14 persons were being sought. Those arrested included three women.

Police said they raided several apartments around Athens and confiscated tape recorders, printing machines, leftist handbills plus arms of various types.

At one apartment, according to the announcement, one of the youths allegedly attempted to fire at police but he was quickly disarmed.

The announcement said those arrested belonged to two Communist organizations named Revolutionary Communist Movement of Greece and Anti-Fascist and Anti-Imperialist Student Movement of Greece.

The Greek Communist party was outlawed in 1947.

the publicity. We could rock realize or appreciate at any time the implications of his involvement."

On that morning, Dean told Nixon quite specifically about the secret delivery of cash to Watergate defendants. That afternoon, Nixon asked for the details all over again.

John Dean told the Senate Watergate committee over a year ago that "While the President was involved ... he did not realize or appreciate at any time the implications of his involvement."

Dean added: "When the facts come out, I hope the President is forgiven."

Whether Nixon is ultimately adjudged in that light, of course, is in the hands of Congress and the nation. But even if he is one day disburdened of Watergate, he can never reclaim the revelations about the private Nixon in those 1,254 pages. His once-proud and secure isolation is scarred forever.

Alioto Ordered To Keep Silent On Murder Case

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Mayor Joseph Alioto, who links 12 "Zebra" murders here to a black separatist group, has been ordered to keep silent on the case of three young men accused of killing three of the victims.

Municipal Court Judge Agnes O'Brien Smith issued the order Friday at a court appearance for Larry C. Green, 22; J. C. Simon, 29, and Manuel Moore, 29. The three were ordered to enter pleas May 9.

Alioto Included
"No party to this action, no attorney, no public officials from chief of police or sheriff on down or any subpoenaed witness is allowed, under the order, to discuss details of the case," said Smith.

Asked if the gag rule will apply to Alioto, she said: "I will include him in."

The mayor has blamed a fanatical group of "Death Angels" for 80 killings in California, including 13 random slayings here in a case police have code-named "Operation Zebra." Seven persons have been wounded in the "Zebra" attacks in San Francisco.

But other California law enforcement authorities say they have no evidence that any such gang exists outside San Francisco.

Four men arrested in the case were released Thursday night for lack of evidence. They were Tom Manney, 31, San Francisco State football star in the early 1960s; Clarence Jamerson, 37; Dwight Stallings, 28, and Edgar Burton, 22.

Chief of Inspectors Charles Barca said release of the four "does not preclude any prosecution in the future if we develop additional evidence."

Before the arrests, police had listed 12 murders and six injuries in the Zebra file. All the victims were white and shot down without apparent reason by assailants witnesses described as black.

But Green was charged with one count of murder, one of conspiracy and two counts of kidnaping in the Oct. 20 decapitation slaying of newswoman Quita Hague, 28, and the slaying and beating of her husband, Richard, 30, an incident not previously listed.

Simon and Moore were charged with murder in the Dec. 20 shooting of Alario Bertuccio, 81, and in the Jan. 28 murder of Jane Holly, 45, in a San Francisco coin laundry.

AFTER THE MEETING — San Francisco Mayor Joseph Alioto talks with newsmen after meeting with Atty. Gen. William Saxbe at the Justice Department in Washington Friday. Alioto sought assistance in the investigation of the "Zebra" murders and was given a promise by Saxbe he would help in any way he can. (AP Wirephoto.)

Kidnaping, California Robbery Link Is Being Sought By FBI

By The Associated Press
The FBI says it has reason to believe two men sought in the abduction of 18-year-old Sue Lundquist and her husband are the same men who robbed a California man earlier this week.

Mrs. Lundquist and her husband Edward, 24, told police they were kidnaped late Wednesday by two armed men who checked into a motel the couple manage at Milan, N.M.

A truck driver found Mrs. Lundquist early Friday on Interstate 40 near Groom in the Texas Panhandle.

Mrs. Lundquist told her husband, "she was left about a quarter of a mile west of Groom, tied up by the side of the road."

"She said she had been slapped around, but other than that she was not harmed," Lundquist said.

descriptions and the manner in which both robberies were carried out, we have good reason to believe the same two men were involved."

O'Brien said that in California a man reported he was assaulted by two hitchhikers he picked up near San Bernardino. He said the men robbed him, took his car, and left him tied up in a desert area.

WASHINGTON OIL—

Some Planning End Of Depletion Allowance Now

By CLYDE LA MOTTE
Reporter-Telegram Washington Oil Correspondent
WASHINGTON — Some congressmen, scenting victory after winning House Ways and Means Committee approval of a three-year phaseout of percentage depletion for domestic crude oil production, now are readying a move to end it entirely right now. In fact, the elimination of the long-standing tax provision would be made retroactive to last Jan. 1.

It seems evident that some anti-oil members of the committee, confident that the phaseout provision will be readily accepted by a House majority when the tax proposal comes up for vote, think they may be able to take the added step of killing the percentage depletion provision entirely. No need to go through a three-year period.

One of the members pushing for such an approach is Rep. William J. Green (D-Pa.). His hope is that the House Rules Committee will permit at least one amendment to be offered from the floor when the tax bill reaches that stage.

Normally, a tax bill is sent up for vote under a closed rule so that members of the House either vote for the entire committee plan or vote against it. There seem to be several reasons behind the drive to show the public that Congress is ready and willing to lower the boom on the oil industry. One major factor stems from the quarterly tax statements currently being issued by major companies. In most cases, these show that oil company profits are up sharply over the comparative quarter of last year.

This rise in profits is cited as proof that the industry is profiteering during a time of energy shortages.

Another argument is that the tax provision the industry has had over the decades didn't result in adequate domestic supplies, so there's no point in retaining it.

There may be still another underlying reason. The Nixon administration has been insisting that more incentive is needed to spur domestic exploration and drilling. Among other things, the administration

Bill F. Bales of Midland has opened an office at Tyler as an independent operator after 17 years with Exxon.

Bales entered the oil business 21 years ago and has worked in every phase of petroleum land management. He will continue to work in the West Texas-New Mexico area, particularly in the Delaware Basin, as well as in Oklahoma, Arkansas and Louisiana.

The new independent has served as a director of the American Association of Petroleum Landmen and is a former president of the East Texas Association of Petroleum Landmen.

Bales, a member of the Permian Basin Landmen's Association, is a recipient of the Texas Mid-Continent Oil and Gas Association Outstanding Performance Award and the organization's Special Performance Award.

The office address at Tyler is 3025 E. Southeast Loop 323. His Midland telephone number is 683-1511.

According to the weekly survey conducted by Reed Drilling Equipment, the rig count in the Permian Basin Empire of West Texas and Southeast New Mexico was up one rig over the 240 units reported two weeks ago, making the rig count for last week 241.

Last year, in a comparable week, there were only 203 rigs operating in the Permian Basin.

Eddy County, N.M., continued to account for the largest number of rotaries making hole, with 34.

Deer County had 25 active rigs, which was a decrease of one from the 26 units reported two weeks ago.

Lea County, N.M., is in third place, with 23 active rotaries.

Two Wildcats Staked In Kimble Area

A. N. Norwood, Inc., operating out of Midland, has made plans to drill two 2,500-foot wildcats in the vicinity of his No. 1 Weisenburg, undesignated Canyon sand gas discovery, and in the southwest part of Kimble County.

Both projects are six miles northwest of Telegraph.

The No. 1 Allied spots 467 feet from south and west lines of section 14, W. J. Jemison survey (GC&SF survey on some maps), abstract 1621, and it is approximately 1/4 mile east of the No. 1 Weisenburg.

The No. 1 Coleman is approximately 1,500 feet southeast of the opener, and spots 467 feet from north and west lines of section 12, F. H. Dupuy, abstract 1758.

Norwood's No. 1 Weisenburg was completed March 23 for a calculated, absolute open flow of 4 million cubic feet of gas per day, through perforations, at 1,733-1,740 feet.

Patton Stakes Menard Wildcat

Lloyd Patton, Fort Worth, filed application to drill No. 1-E Concho Valley Council, Boy Scouts of America, two miles south of the five-well 3800 Harkey area of the Shaheen field of Menard County.

Drill site is 550 feet from north and 660 feet from west lines of Lorenz Ziegler survey 1580, abstract 830. Contract depth is 4,200 feet.

Operators Testing At Project Sites

Two Eddy County, N.M., projects have assured Pennsylvania gas production.

Belco Petroleum Corp., Midland, No. 1 Yates-Gushwa Communitized, scheduled 9,300-foot Morrow wildcat, 1 1/2 miles east of the Penasco Draw (Morrow) gas field, flowed gas at the rate of 350,000 cubic feet daily from an unidentified Pennsylvanian zone.

The test was taken through a 29-44-inch choke and perforations at 8,759-8,767 feet. Treatment, if any, was not reported.

Testing continued.

Project site is 1,500 feet from north and 660 feet from west lines of section 35-18-25e, five miles southwest of Dayton.

Second Test

Scheduled as a 1 1/2 mile northwest outpost to the Morrow opener of the Red Lake multipay field in Eddy County, No. 1 Kaiser Communitized flowed gas at the maximum rate of 3.8 million cubic feet per day. The operator is Kewanee Oil Co.

The test was taken through a 1/2-inch choke and perforations at 9,044-9,193 feet, after the section had been treated with 4,500 gallons of acid, it flowed 2.4 million cubic feet of gas per day, along with nine barrels of condensate and seven barrels of water.

SUBTLE SIDE-EFFECT OF ARAB OIL EMBARGO— Drilling Executive Says Free Market Eventually Will Solve Fuel Problems

By MAX B. SKELTON
HOUSTON (AP) — The president of the International Association of Drilling Contractors says the Arabs, in a sense, may have done the United States a favor by imposing their oil embargo.

"I think we owe the Arabs our gratitude for making us face up to the inevitable shortfall in our conventional energy supplies in a manner and on a schedule which we could have achieved only in response to such a dramatic stimulus," says Alden J. Laborde of New Orleans.

"An appreciation of our increasingly critical situation was thrust upon us, fortunately at a time when our country can still manage adequate solutions with relative ease."

In a message to drilling contractors, Laborde outlined several benefits resulting from the embargo.

"Out of it all will come some needed changes in our attitudes, hopefully away from the excesses of our wasteful society which result in our committing to the trash heap more commodities than most countries use," he said.

"We also welcome the more reasonable reappraisal of the inter-relationships between our energy needs and our environment with the result the Alaskan pipeline is now under way, offshore lease sales have been resumed and accelerated, and interest in domestic energy sources other than oil and gas is being encouraged."

Laborde added that another, though more subtle, benefit "could be that of causing us to reaffirm our wavering faith in the free enterprise system."

Laborde said the free market straightened out the nation's most problem quite well but "only when the government gave up in complete desperation."

"I am convinced the free market could and eventually will take care of our fuel problems, too, when it is given the chance," he said.

"Maybe by then we shall conclude that all the laws Congress can pass cannot make a pound of flesh."

HOUSTON — According to its latest review of U.S. drilling activity, World Oil magazine reports more new U.S. wells were drilled in the first quarter of 1974 than in any first quarter since 1968.

The 1974 first quarter total is 7,468 completions as compared to 6,360 last year. Footage totaled 38,808,371 compared to 1973 footage of 32,915,996.

Three states showed marked increases in new well drilling. Texas drilled 2,498 new wells in 1974; 615 more than the '73 total. In Oklahoma, new wells amounted to 694 compared to 469 in 1973. And Kansas showed a 40.6 per cent increase in 1974; up to 679 from 483.

Biggest increase in wildcat drilling for the first quarter occurred in Texas, District 7-B Abilene. Wildcats totaled 127 compared to 58 in 1973. Louisiana showed little increase; 110 in 1974 from 104 in 1973. In over-all U.S. wildcat drilling, 1,569 wells were drilled totaling 9,791,690 feet of hole. This is a 10.5 per cent increase over 1973 figures of 1,420 wildcats and 8,833,906 feet of hole.

First quarter discoveries amounted to 178 — 79 oil; 99 gas. Flowing oil wells number 606; up 10.6 per cent from 1973 total of 548.

Daily rig activity at the end of March averaged 1,508 rigs compared with February activity of 1,624. March 1973 rig activity was 1,202.

MHS Seniors Win Conoco Scholarships

Two Midland High School seniors, Tony Diaz and Raul Madrid, have been named winners in a special college scholarship program sponsored by Continental Oil Co. The Conoco program is designed to attract outstanding minority students to the technical professions in the petroleum field. The 1974 awards mark the fourth consecutive year that a Midland student has been honored in Conoco's minority scholarship program. Diaz is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Diaz, 1900 S. Colorado St., and Madrid is the son of Mrs. Flora L. Madrid, Box 915, Stanton. Madrid's brother, Armando, won a Conoco scholarship in 1972 and currently attends Texas Tech.

Washington Oil—

In the current atmosphere in Washington, many congressmen facing a re-election campaign this fall are scurrying away from any semblance of being lined up with the administration on such a touchy, emotional issue.

Several oil-state members of the House Ways and Means Committee, convinced that the punitive action against the industry will, in the long-run, hurt not only the industry but the general public by creating greater shortages and even higher prices, sought a middle-ground approach on the current oil tax issue.

For instance, Rep. Omar Burleson (D-Tex.) proposed that the excess oil profits tax provision contained in the bill not be applied if a company plowed those profits back into further development of energy resources.

At one point in the committee's deliberation, this approach was adopted, specifying that up to 100 per cent of the profits tax could be offset by reinvestment. However, that was subsequently whittled back to 50 per cent.

What has been generally overlooked is that his excess profits provision will also apply to the hundreds of thousands of royalty owners, including farmers and others, as well as to the companies that produce the petroleum. That is, the move to punish the "Big Boys" will also punish many little guys, too.

Regardless of who suffers, the question that has been unanswered is how the tax change is going to help meet the nation's need for development of more energy resources. Even so, there seems to be little doubt at this stage that when the House votes on the tax measure, it will vote to phase out percentage depletion for oil production. And, as indicated earlier, it might even eliminate the provision entirely and retroactively.

As the bill stands now, percentage depletion would be retained for natural gas production, under certain terms and conditions. This is a tacit but not open admission that natural gas has been underpriced for many years because of federal control of wellhead prices of natural gas sold in interstate commerce.

As a result of federal involvement in natural gas pricing over the years, natural gas sells for a far lower price than oil on a BTU basis. This despite the fact that natural gas is considered to be a premium fuel.

No consumer-oriented congressman is willing to concede publicly that federal controls of natural gas prices distorted the energy picture and played a role in creating the current energy supply crisis. Therefore, the reason given for continuing percentage depletion for gas while cutting it for oil is that this will result in a needed "Readjustment" on the price of the two fuels.

As a result, the prospect is that price controls on oil and oil products will continue for the foreseeable future even though the industry's tax bill will increase some $14 billion over the next five years under the committee's plan. That will teach the industry to quit trying to make a profit on its operations.

The mood of Washington being what it is these days, that lesson seems to some congressmen to be worth teaching, even though consumers will bear the brunt of any resulting worsening of the energy supply picture.

Conoco officials presenting the awards said the summer job is an important part of the program because it combines on-the-job experience in the student's career field with the opportunity to earn additional money for school expenses.

Both Diaz and Madrid are honor students, have received civic club awards and have excelled in school athletics. Diaz is a member of the National Honor Society, captain of the cross-country team, president of the student council and spent two months in Europe last summer as an exchange student sponsored by the American Field Service. He plans to attend Texas A&M University.

Madrid was an outstanding football player in high school, earning all-district honors for two years and serving as team captain in his senior year. In addition to doing farm work in his spare time, he is a member of the Human Relations Committee. He plans to attend Texas Tech.

During the past week, Jones and Laughlin said it has a program under way which permits sufficient pipe for drilling more than two wells a day with emphasis on independent oilmen.

William F. Ewart, vice president-commercial, said, "Although tonnage of oil country pipe shipped to independent operators already has been increased substantially, it has been recognized that independents still need additional pipe."

Ewart said, "These (independent) operators must have access to additional tubular goods."

Jones and Laughlin said the pipe will be marketed by its distributors who will sell to operators who demonstrate a need.

The J&L mill will not maintain a stockpile but will send the good direct to supply houses.

"This is a continuing program directed to J&L existing customers as well as new ac-

Raney To Show Film To D&D Club

J. C. Raney of Midland, petroleum engineer with Pennzoil Co., will present a 37-minute film, "The Energy Crisis — A Better Understanding," at the meeting of the Midland Desk & Derrick Club Thursday.

The meeting will begin at 6:30 p.m. in the Midland Country Club.

The film shows how natural gas prices are arrived at, how oil companies price gasoline, and what caused the energy crisis.

Personalities in the film include J. Hugh Liedtke, formerly executive officer of Pennzoil, and William C. Liedtke Jr., also formerly of Midland, Pennzoil president.

Raney, a former district engineer with Mobil Oil Corp., has been with Pennzoil five years.

Gas Association Adopts New Name

TULSA — The Natural Gas Processors Suppliers Association has announced adoption of a new name and election of new officers.

The organization's new name is Gas Processors Suppliers Association, and new officers for 1974-75 are: president, Ben K. Rector, Fisher Control Co., Marshalltown, Iowa; vice president, James C. Norris, Brown & Root, Inc., Houston; vice president, Walter C. Smith, Process Equipment Co., Tulsa; and treasurer, Kenneth W. Andrews, Byron Jackson Pumps, Houston.

Fuel Solution—

Warren L. Baker, vice president of the association, agreed by saying the law of supply and demand is the only way the nation can solve its energy shortage.

"Uncertain government policies are the greatest deterrent in the path of the United States ever developing sufficient domestic energy supplies to reduce its dependency on foreign sources to viable levels," Baker said.

Baker said recent months have offered ample proof how better economic conditions can stimulate oil and gas development rates.

"Since crude oil prices began rising last May, drilling rigs employed in searching for crude oil and natural gas production advanced from 1,063 to more than 1,363 during the first two months of 1974," he said.

'Nothing Wrong With It'

Back a few years ago when Elmer Danner of San Angelo was president of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, he almost always managed to work into his public speeches the phrase, "There's nothing wrong with making a profit."

Certainly, there wasn't anything wrong with it then, there isn't now, and there never has been . . . in the United States of America.

This nation bloomed and blossomed into greatness under the free enterprise system.

This is why it seems incredible that the profit system should come under attack from those who have reaped its blessings and benefits.

Yet, there is a calculated campaign to persuade the American public that business in general, and the oil industry in particular, makes too much profit.

It is just as evident from whence much of the persuasion comes. There are those irresponsible persons in Congress, joined by certain segments of the liberal eastern press, who are having a field day in denouncing the reported first quarter earnings of major oil companies.

Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., for example, has termed oil profits "obscene." But this really shouldn't come as a surprise to most persons, in the face of his previous efforts to wreck the petroleum industry. He has the strange idea that rolling back the price of domestic crude will increase production.

Then there is Rep. Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, whose panel last week approved a special tax on so-called "windfall" profits by oil companies. And it appears, based on the existing attitude of Congress, that the measure probably will be enacted.

The Daily Oklahoman pointed out in a recent editorial that, "Unprecedented percentage gains in earnings had been expected by the oil companies, especially from their foreign operations, because of the world oil shortage. Much of the profit picture is deceptive, and this is something which many persons don't or won't understand.

Profits also must be considered in relation to the capital investment required to produce and sustain them.

We agree with the Oklahoma City newspaper in that "Either the oil companies earn more, invest more and find more oil — or consumers won't have enough at any price."

Yes, as Elmer Danner said, "There's nothing wrong with making a profit" . . . in fact it is essential!

'Somehow - You're Just Not Convincing'

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Jack Anderson Says: Filling in the blank spaces in new CIA book is interesting experience.

WASHINGTON — A controversial book about the Central Intelligence Agency has gone to press with several blank spaces, marking the passages that the CIA has managed at least temporarily to delete.

With the help of our own CIA sources, we now have filled in the blanks. The deletions, all fascinating, some explosive, are more likely to make people blush than to bring down governments.

The CIA, nevertheless, still is fighting in the courts to keep the embarrassing revelations out of the forthcoming book, "The CIA and the Cult of Intelligence," by Victor Marchetti and John Marks.

Marchetti is a bespectacled former intelligence analyst who has been forbidden by the CIA to mention that he played a crucial role in the celebrated Cuban missile crisis.

The Cuba-bound Soviet missiles, too large to stow below decks, were disguised in crates on deck U.S. reconnaissance planes brought back photographs, which Marchetti examined. Through tedious, microscopic study, say our sources, he was able to distinguish between tractor crates and missile crates.

The passages that the CIA still is contesting in the courts — with a few exceptions which we voluntarily will omit — might mortify the CIA but couldn't possibly endanger the national security. The censored incidents make the CIA look like a covert circus, with the cloak-and-dagger crowd getting involved in some unbelievable situations, sometimes hilarious, sometimes grim.

One episode which has been deleted from the book, for example, concerns a Soviet spy in Japan who was about to defect to the United States. The prospect exhilarated the head of the CIA's Soviet desk who caught the first jet for Tokyo to get in on the action.

But the Russians became suspicious of their comrade and tailed him to the trusting spot. At the dramatic moment of defection, the prospective turncoat found himself literally caught in a tug-of-war, with the Americans pulling on one arm and the Russians clinging to the other. In the middle of the struggle, the Japanese gendarmes intruded upon the unlikely scene and carted the whole group off to the pokey for disturbing the peace.

This doesn't compare to the high drama in the Himalayas, however, when the United States needed information on the Chinese nuclear tests in remote Sinkiang province. The CIA recruited a mountain climbing crew and trained them for five weeks in the Colorado mountains. Then in the late 1960s, the CIA climbers were dispatched to scale one of the loftiest peaks in the Himalayas to install a nuclear-powered listening device aimed at the Chinese test sites.

The climb was so hazardous that a couple of the packers fell to their deaths. But the device, at last, was triumphantly implanted. Unhappily, the first mountain blizzard swept the States. In his expansive Texas style, LBJ dispensed gifts and souvenirs, wine and dined dignitaries and put on a lavish performance. To his embarrassment, he considerably exceeded the budget allowed for the trip by the State Department.

Because of economics LBJ himself had imposed, the State Department simply was unable to cover the tab. So the President was obliged to turn to the CIA, which paid the bill out of a secret slush fund called "The Directors Contingency Fund."

This fund had to be tapped in 1967, too, by Defense Secretary Robert McNamara whose Pentagon budget couldn't meet a verbal commitment he had made to Norway for arms aid. The funds secretly were transferred from the CIA to the Defense Department without the knowledge of Congress.

The CIA also used money from the secret fund to invest in stocks, which presumably were plowed back into CIA retirement, escrow and credit union funds. The revelation that the CIA was playing the stock market, our sources report, was cut out of the Marchetti-Marks book.

There were other deletions, such as the account of the release of propaganda balloons over the Chinese mainland during the cultural revolution. The propaganda wafted into China on balloons had moderate success, fomenting some dissension within the ranks of the Red Guards.

As for the final contract, it had to be a good one. If East had shilly-shalied and finally played a low spade, the slam would have gone up with his king.

We also have no criticism of South's play. Almost anyone would have played the jack. We do want to commend East. It takes a really good player to see the need to duck when the spade is led at him and to duck quickly enough so as not to give away the location of the ace.

BRUCE BLOSSAT Is He Or Isn't He? Does Anyone Care? Your Move!

WASHINGTON (NEA) — A sampling of expert political judgments suggests that, so far, Nelson Rockefeller simply isn't making the right kind of moves to advance him toward the 1976 Republican presidential nomination.

His persistent denials of intent ("I am not a candidate") are widely viewed in the world of politicians and observers as foolish. The climate of the times, engendered by the horrors and deceptions of Watergate, doesn't allow for that brand of silly coyness today.

From the moment of his resignation as governor of New York last fall, no appraiser of politics has felt that there was anything but self-serving political purpose in his creation of the so-called Commission on Critical Choices.

Even if there were substantial contrary evidence, it wouldn't make much difference anyway. Americans are tired of commissions setting forth choices and goals. There is no hint that this one or any other today could serve well as anybody's presidential launching platform.

But these things are only the start of Rockefeller's current problems. More damaging for the long haul is that he really seems not to have learned much about presidential nominating tactics from his past failures.

In a way that cannot be disclosed here, he was put to a small but important test in this field some time back. His response was so utterly unsophisticated, after all these years, that it cast him in the most dismal light.

Rockefeller is surrounded by some demonstrably able, charming, experienced aides. They have served him long and well in many ways. But the proof lies in history. Not one of them has the kind of sharply tailored talent required to get him enough national convention delegates to win a presidential nomination.

Indeed, at least one or two still cling to the mythical notion they developed in 1968 that Rocky was on the verge of breaking open the race in its climactic Miami Beach phase and defeating Richard Nixon. The truth is his campaign that year, begun belatedly on April 30, was a fabric of error, of half-hearted effort, of misguided conceptions. Far from lifting him up, his Miami Beach undertakings only underscored his sweeping failure.

In the intervening years, the peculiar magic that used to charge a room electrically when he entered it has slowly but surely diminished in force. Some would say it is gone.

You can't pin it to age, though Rocky will soon be 66 and will be 68 at nominating time. He retains his vigor. What's working against him is that, to many politicians and voters, he's just been around too long. Polling brought that out in New York, and killed his earlier plan to seek a fifth term.

His smiling face still bespeaks the warm-hearted man of good will. But it also stirs too many memories of ancient, bitter battles with the hard Right, of tilts with the backers of Barry Goldwater and Ronald Reagan.

Few Republican party realists wish to see a 1976 replay of that struggle. That's bad news for Reagan, too, notwithstanding polls showing him leading the

DAVID POLING, D.D. Winds Of Change Sweep The Church! Reasons Told

NEW YORK (NEA) — Some new and vital trends have emerged for the Christian church. They are as decisive and far-reaching as the negative formations which hit the religious community just 10 years ago.

The Sixties were the time of tumult and shouting, the participation of the Church in almost every painful encounter known to man. The war in Vietnam, the racial confrontation in America, the death of God debate — all made for fragmentation and dis-ease in the Church.

In some quarters it was pure disaster, with Bishop Pike saying strange things and popular religious personalities saying absolutely nothing. Add the Angela Davis affair and you have packaged the Sixties completely.

Many people ran after salvation, looking in other directions, and hearing prophets from many camps. Political and economic salvation was preached and promoted. After a year of Watergate and two years of inhuman inflation, the faithful are starting to read the Old and New Testaments once again. Church attendance is up for the first time in a decade. Contributions to religious causes show an increase: The Seventies are going to be much different within the religious community.

Here are seven quick reasons for some of the major changes going on in the churches of North America.

1 — Rise of the laity. In every major denomination, lay leadership is evident at the highest levels. This is not knocking out the Christian Church is at its greatest strength when the laity are sharing leadership and power.

2 — Rise of Women. The early Christian Church would have collapsed without the participation and support of women. Women's liberation is not a fad within the circle of the faithful, rather a dramatic fact. Women theologians — Barbara Ward of London, Rosemary Reuther of Harvard, Dr. Josephine Ford of Notre Dame — all have a significant following throughout the Church. At Union Seminary in New York and Yale Divinity School in New Haven, almost 300 women are preparing for ordination.

3 — Broad participation of Youth. Many congregations today have young men and women serving on their official boards. Several denominations now include youth in their national meetings, with vote. Today the Christian Church offers a broader range of age groups in active social and intellectual involvement than almost any other institution in Western society. For many churches, the generation gap is inoperative.

4 — Racial Awareness. Some of the largest Christian denominations now have nonwhite officials at the highest office. Here we see a sincere and aggressive stance by churchmen to fully implement the Christian gospel at every employment level. As this policy succeeds, the Church will be healthier and happier.

5 — Intchurch Relations. At this moment, the trust and friendship of diverse Christian bodies seems to be reaching for new levels of belonging. This is not to say that one big super Church is finally coming to pass — rather a deeper fellowship and a distinct lessening of strife and tension.

6 — Fading of the Overhead Church. Presbyterians, United Church of Christ, Episcopalians are among many who have dismantled large bureaucracies and brought the power back to the people. These are major and important changes that point to the strength and leadership now of the local congregation.

7 — Bible Study. Christians all over the place are caught up in serious Bible study. In a recent visit to San Antonio, with Attorney Paul Smith, his wife, Anne, and a dozen friends at dinner, the conversation for three hours: inspiration of the Scriptures, charismatic groups, the Jesus Freaks and writings of Keith Miller. The Church is going full sail with the winds of change, a refreshing experience for millions.

Milk Units Reportedly Asked To Reaffirm Nixon Donation

WASHINGTON (AP) —The White House asked dairy farmers cooperatives to reaffirm a promise of $2 million in campaign donations the night before the administration raised federal milk price supports in 1971, House Judiciary Committee lawyers say.

played any role in Nixon's decision to raise milk prices. It says he was influenced by "traditional political considerations," including pressure from Congress for a price increase.

His former law partner Marion Harrison declined comment. In another development Friday, a perjury indictment against Texas lawyer Jake Jacobson was dismissed on technical grounds. Watergate prosecutors said, however, that Jacobson might be indicted.

Rock-Throwers Cause Damage

Several reports of rocks being thrown through windows were made to Midland police Saturday morning.

Chotiner's alleged request came one day after Nixon overruled the Agriculture Department on milk prices and one day before the decision to raise prices was announced officially.

They are seeking recordings of talks with Colson, Chotiner, Ehrlichman and Treasury Secretary John B. Connally, who pressed hard for a price increase and who has been accused of taking $10,000 from dairymen in return for his help, something Connally has denied consistently.

The letter, which was sent April 19 and made public Friday, was intended to back up the Judiciary Committee's request for the tapes.

Michigan Convict To Graduate From University With Honors

MARQUETTE, Mich. (AP) — Mark Stevens, convicted in the bombing of a campus building in 1971, graduates from Northern Michigan University with high honors next week. But he'll have to get leave from prison to attend the ceremonies.

Stevens, who graduates with dual majors in history and sociology, has been in Marquette State Prison since pleading guilty to conspiracy in the bombing of a laboratory on the Orchard Ridge campus of Oakland County Community College in suburban Detroit. He was sentenced to from 4 1/2 to 8 1/2 years.

Stevens, 24, will graduate summa cum laude with a near-perfect 3.9 grade average under a two-year-old program in which Northern Michigan professors teach inside the prison.

He plans to earn a masters degree at Northern Michigan after his release and hopes eventually to attend medical school.

But in 1971, Stevens was a member of a radical group linked to several bombings in the Detroit area. Two others along with Stevens pleaded guilty to conspiracy in the bombing of the laboratory.

Stevens says he no longer favors violence as a tactic for social change but still believes government should be more responsive to people's needs. He is due for parole soon.

Illness Interrupts Archer Parr Trial

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Testimony about the creation of the Duval County water district was interrupted in the federal perjury trial of Archer Parr when Parr's attorney became ill on Friday and was whisked from the courtroom.

Parr, who is Duval County Judge, is charged with lying to a grand jury about payments he received from the water district between 1968 and 1970.

Defense attorney James Gillespie of San Antonio was hauled from court chambers by stretcher to an ambulance, which carried him to a local hospital. He was treated for dizziness and released, a spokeswoman said, with a doctor's admonition to rest.

U.S. District Court Judge D. W. Suttle adjourned the trial, which already has lasted five days, until Tuesday. The judge, who did not mention Gillespie's problems to the jury, has a mandatory schedule of criminal arraignments on Monday.

President, Aides Feared Kennedy Would Exploit Watergate, Transcripts Indicate

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon and his top aides feared that Sen. Edward M. Kennedy would try to exploit the Watergate affair for political purposes, according to transcripts of Watergate conversations.

Kennedy did begin the original investigation and went as far as to subpoena some records and documents. But he decided against holding hearings, a spokesman said, for the very reason that they would appear politically motivated.

"Sen. Kennedy thought the situation needed to be looked into, but Sen. (Sam) Ervin also had subcommittees with jurisdiction and it was felt he would be the best choice to run a Senate investigation," the spokesman said.

The edited Watergate tape transcripts released by the White House this week are laced with references that reveal the apparent preoccupation of Nixon and his close associates with Kennedy's political maneuvering.

"Yes, I guess the Kennedy crowd is just laying in the bushes just waiting to make their move," President Nixon said to White House counsel John W. Dean III during an Oval Office conversation Feb. 28, 1972, three weeks after the Senate's special committee was created with Ervin as chairman.

In the same conversation, Nixon told Dean that former Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy was ruthless and that former President Lyndon B. Johnson

"believed" that Bobby bugged him."

In discussing the formation of the Senate Watergate committee, Dean suggested that the administration could "make it through these things and minimal people will be hurt," and added that the legislators "may even paint themselves as being such partisans and off base, that they are really damaging to the institutions of government themselves."

Nixon: "I frankly say that I would rather they would be partisan — rather than for them to have a facade of fairness and all the rest. Ervin always talks about his being a great constitutional lawyer (expletive deleted). He's got (Sen. Howard H.) Baker totally toppled over to him. Ervin works harder than most of our southern gentlemen."

Dean: "I am convinced that he has shown that he is merely a puppet for Kennedy in this whole thing. The fine hand of the Kennedys is behind this whole hearing. There is no doubt about it."

Dean said he believed Sam Dash, the committee's chief counsel, had been selected by Kennedy and told Nixon "I think this is also something we will be able to quietly and slowly document. Leak this to the press, and the parts and cast become much more apparent."

The transcripts show no further discussion on this subject and Dean apparently was unable to prove his claim.

A spokesman for Ervin said the senator was picked to head the special Watergate committee not by Kennedy, but by Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., and the choice was unanimously approved by the Democrat caucus in January 1973.

As for Dash, he said, "there was no input from Kennedy, absolutely none." The chief counsel, he said, was recommended by a subcommittee staff consultant who was a law-teaching colleague of Dash and knew his reputation as a prosecutor and wiretap authority in Philadelphia.

Investigators Will Study Cause Of Radioactive Leak At Power Plant

AIKEN, S.C. (AP) — Federal and state investigators have been sent to the Savannah River Plant of the Atomic Energy Commission to determine the cause of a radioactive gas leak and whether it contaminated the area.

Federal investigators will probe the cause of the leak. Personnel from the state's Department of Health and Environmental Control's Division of Radiological Health Services are monitoring a 60-mile area around the plant to see if water, milk or vegetation has been contaminated.

The tritium gas, manufactured from hydrogen, leaked Thursday because of a failure in a process line at the production facility, Michael Butler, an AEC spokesman, said Friday. He said the gas was at an altitude of about 200 feet and presented no danger to the public.

Deportation Order Reversed By Court

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The federal appeals court here has reversed an Immigration and Naturalization Service order deporting Jesus Armando Gonzalez, an alien.

The 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals sent the Texas case back Friday to the Board of Immigration Appeals for a hearing to determine if Gonzalez was "qualitatively acceptable at the time of entry."

South Carolina health officials said they did not expect to find concentrations of radioactive activity but were checking to be sure. They said rain Thursday night probably grounded much of the gas.

AEC officials said some gas was still airborne and had been blown over the Atlantic Ocean by Friday night. Both state and local officials said there was little danger in the gas because it could only harm humans if it were inhaled or swallowed.

Court Affirms Conviction Of Commissioner

HOUSTON (AP) — The conviction of former Harris County Commissioner V. V. Ramsey on charges stemming from a county purchase of voting machines has been upheld by the U.S. 5th Court of Appeals in New Orleans.

The court said Friday it found no reversible error in a federal court jury's conviction of Ramsey on charges of bribery, conspiracy and mail fraud.

Ramsey was sentenced to five years in prison and fined $21,000 by U.S. District Court Judge Woodrow Seals.

Ramsey's attorneys said the case will be appealed to the U.S. Supreme Court. Ramsey, 60, is free on bond pending the outcome of his appeal.

MCT's 'D-Day' Nearing

"D-Day" for several dozen Midland Community Theatre actors and members is little more than a week away.

On May 15, approximately 50 Midlanders will depart for Dundalk, Ireland, and the Dundalk Maytime Festival, where two MCT productions will be on the boards. Casts and crews for the two productions are in the midst of final preparations for the series of performances to be presented at the festival.

The Midland group will stage the comedy "Butterflies Are Free" and a melodrama, "Peril on the Pecos," complete with olio. Both productions have been seen by Midland audiences in the past.

"Butterflies To Compete" "Butterflies Are Free," one of the hits of MCT's 1973 season, has been revived with the original cast members (except one) to be the U.S. entry in an international drama competition to be held as part of the Dundalk Festival. Cast members include Sandra McBride, Jim Salners, Becky Huff and Ron Hughes.

The production will be competing with those staged by drama companies from the Republic of Ireland, Northern Ireland, Czechoslovakia, England and Wales.

"Peril on the Pecos," one of MCT's inimitable melodramas presented annually by the Summer Mummies, will be given a series of performances strictly for the entertainment of festival audiences. It will not be an entry in the drama competition.

The melodrama is the one presented here in the summer of 1972, the year that council members of the International Amateur Theater Association held their biennial meeting in Midland. The production so delighted Micael MacArtain, one of the IATA councilors, who is from Dundalk, that he made arrangements to invite the Mummies to bring the production to the Dundalk Festival.

The melodrama will be complete with the traditional olio entertainment, presenting dancers, singers and specialty acts.

In addition to persons actually working in the two stage productions, a number of MCT members and boosters also are making the trip to Dundalk. The West Texas contingent also will visit other points in Ireland and will spend several days in London before returning to the Tall City about June 1.

Just Bad Timing

WARSAW (AP) — Police in Lodz reported they grabbed a man walking along a street wearing only his socks, but he denied being a streaker. He told them the husband of a woman he had been visiting returned at an inopportune time.

REHEARSING MELODRAMA — Midland Community Theatre performers are putting finishing touches to their revival of the melodrama "Peril on the Pecos" which they'll present, along with the traditional olio, at the Dundalk Maytime Festival in Dundalk, Ireland later this month. Approximately 50 Midlanders will attend the festival as cast and crew members of "Peril" and a comedy, "Butterflies Are Free," which MCT also will present before festival audiences. Seen above, during a recent "Peril on the Pecos" rehearsal session are, from left, Gloria Stephenson, Flo Vivion, Marge Samples, Dick Vivion, Ron Hughes and Rita Buckley.

Graphics Exhibit To Go On Display

A collection of 50 graphics from the National Association of Women Artists will go on view Thursday at Museum of the Southwest, 1705 W. Indiana St.

The collection was part of the association's 34th annual exhibition last year at the National Academy galleries in New York City. The collection has since been circulating to museums, art centers and university galleries throughout the U.S.

The National Association of Women Artists, originally the Womens Art Club, is marking its 55th anniversary this year. Members of the organization live and work in 40 states. Many are included in Who's Who in America and Who's Who of American Artists as well as in international listings. In addition to sponsoring traveling exhibitions in this country, the organization has presented numerous exhibitions abroad, including those in Italy and elsewhere in Europe, in Mexico, Central and South America, and in India and Japan. Members also have staged exchange shows with women artists of Japan and Italy.

The exhibition here will continue through May 31.

Camera Club's Competition Set

Midland Camera Club members will stage both color and black-and-white print competitions at their monthly meeting Monday night.

The meeting is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. in the Museum of the Southwest's Lancaster House, 1705 W. Indiana St. It will be open to the public.

Midlander's Art Going On Display

Paintings by Midland artist Viola Rosson are featured during the current month in Midland Woman's Club at Hogan Park.

A tea honoring Mrs. Rosson between 1:30 and 4:30 p.m. today will officially open the show. The public is invited.

Mrs. Rosson, formerly an art teacher in Lee High School here, has studied with a number of noted artist-teachers, including the late Frank Klepper of Dallas, Leonard Brooks of Mexico and Dr. Emilio Caballero of West Texas State University, Canyon. She is a member of Midland Arts Association and the Texas Watercolor Society.

Mrs. Rosson, a graduate of the Art Institute of Chicago, has had one-woman shows in the past at the Midland Woman's Club and Midland County Public Library as well as the Museum of Art in Springfield, Mo. She has won numerous awards, including purchase prizes and best-in-show, at juried exhibitions. She has made sketching trips to Mexico, Hawaii and Europe, and to various points in the U.S.

Edith Irving Wants Divorce

ZURICH, Switzerland (AP) — Edith Irving says she wants a divorce from her husband, Clifford, whose phony autobiography of Howard R. Hughes landed the Irvings in prison.

The 38-year-old blonde said she will try to earn enough money as an artist to repay huge financial claims against her for her part in the $650,000 hoax in 1972.

Claims against her, her husband and Richard Susskind, Irving's associate, total $1,365,100, she said.

MAA To Hold Annual Meeting

Midland Arts Association will hold its annual meeting Friday night to close out its current year.

The 8 p.m. meeting in the Lancaster House of the Museum of the Southwest, 1705 W. Indiana St., will be highlighted by the election of officers from a panel of nominees to be presented to the MAA membership. Annual reports also will be presented. A social hour will follow the meeting.

Dorothy Peterson is the outgoing president of MAA.

Helen Hayes Gets Award

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — Actress Helen Hayes has received an award given only once before.

Miss Hayes, who twice has won an Oscar, was presented Friday with the Maude Adams award by Stephens College. The award, honoring outstanding actresses, had been given previously only to the late Agnes Moorehead in 1971.

The Stephens class of 1946 established the award in the name of Maude Adams, who was known as the "first lady of the theater" in the early 1900s and who taught at Stephens from 1937 to 1950.

Ex-Child Star To Marry Again

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — Margaret O'Brien, the former child star, plans to get married for the second time.

Court officials said Friday Miss O'Brien, 36, took out a marriage license on Thursday to marry Roy T. Thorsen, vice president of a steel casting firm.

It is Thorsen's first marriage.

Final Symphony Concerts Opened To General Public

Musical works from the 18th, 19th and 20th centuries will provide refreshing variety to the final pair of season subscription concerts offered by the Midland-Odesa Symphony.

The season-closers are scheduled for 8 p.m. Monday in Odesa's Bonham Junior High School, and 8 p.m. Tuesday in the Lee High School auditorium here.

The unusually wide spectrum of sound to be offered in the dual concerts has created much interest, and therefore the programs are being opened to the general public in addition to symphony season subscribers. Single tickets will be for sale in the auditorium lobby before each of the concerts.

Providing the most interest is the famous orchestral fairy tale, "Peter and the Wolf," which will be a highlight of the concert pair. The Prokofiev work has been delighting both adults and youngsters around the globe since it was premiered in 1936.

In the Odesa concert, former Odesa mayor Jim Reese will be the narrator for the work. In Midland, Mayor Ernest Angelo will narrate.

In this delightful musical work, each character of the fairy tale is represented by a corresponding instrument in the orchestra: that is, the bird by a flute, the duck by an oboe, the cat by a clarinet in a low register, Peter by a string quartet, the wolf by three horns, and so on.

Well-known critic Irving Kolodin has noted that "Peter and the Wolf" exists on several levels: In the first place, as an illustration of the 'fairy tale' with which it is concerned; secondly, as a fanciful primer illustrating the instruments of the orchestra as they are utilized, and lastly, as a demonstration of the composer's skill in achieving an aesthetic whole from these assorted objectives."

Also programmed for the symphony concerts are Handel's

Concerto Grosso for Strings in A minor, Op. 6, No. 4, and the famous Symphony No. 7 of Beethoven.

The Concerto Grosso is one of the acclaimed Twelve Concerti Grossi, or "Grand Concertos," which George Frederick Handel composed in London in the remarkably short span of one month in the autumn of 1739. The fourth work of the group is the one to be heard this week. It has been called the finest of the set, with its usually rich musical texture and its supreme lyricism.

Ludwig van Beethoven's Seventh Symphony was begun in the fall of 1811 or the very early part of 1812. It is today one of the most popular of all of Beethoven's nine symphonic masterpieces, and is generally regarded as one of the most dramatic and melodic of the series.

The pair of concerts this week will be conducted by symphony music director Robert Kreis.

Few Months Of Loving Easing Memories Of Tot's Kidnaping Ordeal

By WILLIAM SCHIFFMAN
 MODESTO, Calif. (AP) — Mrs. Lauer said, "He eats constantly, and he loves mashed potatoes," she added. Tom Lauer, 23, found out about his son's new teeth the hard way. "I was sitting there rocking him, counting his teeth one night, and crunch! It didn't take me long to learn not to poke my finger in his mouth. "He even wrinkles his nose like he used to," Tom said. His mother calls it Tommy's "rabbit face." A few months of loving and playing with the toddler have eased memories of the long weeks when the Lauvers wondered if they would ever hold little Tommy again — or if he was still alive. "It seems to me now like the year never happened," Mrs. Lauer said. The youngster, then 11 months old, was abducted by a man with a knife who accosted Mrs. Lauer as she loaded groceries into her car Jan. 26, 1973. After driving around a few minutes, the kidnaper pushed her from the car after taking her name and address and promising to contact her to return the child. The contact never came. Weeks turned into months as officers checked hundreds of tips but produced no clues. Finally, a woman who moved here after the abduction read a first anniversary newspaper account of the Lauvers' loss. She thought a neighbor's adopted child looked like a photo of the Lauer boy printed with the story and called detectives. Sheriff's deputies confirmed the identity by checking footprints and returned Tommy to his parents Feb. 5. Robert William Coffey and his wife Marjorie have been indicted for kidnaping. Mrs. Lauer identified Coffey from a lineup as her child's abductor. The Coffeys reportedly were unable to bear a child of their own. They called Tommy "Shawn." Alice Williams, Coffey's sister, said she never saw the child mistreated or dirty. "They really loved him and took good care of him. He had boxes of toys in his room. And when he had a cold or something they took him to the doctor — and worried a lot." Officers at first said Tommy's ankles were red and swollen as if they had been bound, but now they and the Lauvers refuse to discuss his feet, speech or any other aspect of the youngster's medical situation because of the pending trial. In spite of their elation at having Tommy back, some of the trauma lingers. Mrs. Lauer won't take Tommy shopping with her in the car alone. "I'll take him out with me if someone else is along. Otherwise, I take him to his aunt's house," she said, brushing her straight brown hair from her face. Tom Lauer, a handy man for a mobile home sales firm, lost the use of his arms temporarily. Doctors say it was a reaction to the shock of the abduction. The paralysis gradually disappeared and he returned to work after a few weeks. "After it happened I was kind of lost," Mrs. Lauer said softly. "I prayed every night about it. I never gave up. But after a while I could be logical about it and discuss it without breaking down every time," she said as Tommy climbed onto her lap for a kiss. "In fact, two days before Tommy was found, I had gone off the pill so I could have another child. Now I think I'll wait awhile." As she talked, Tommy wobbled across the floor among his toys, laughing, a graham cracker crumbling in his hand. He refused to say a word, but his reaction made it plain he knew what every word meant. Mrs. Lauer proudly displayed Tommy's room, brimming with toys and new furniture — presents from a community party on his birthday, Feb. 20. More than 300 Modestoans who had followed the Lauvers' year of anguish turned out to share their joy. Tommy's room has new wall-to-wall carpeting donated by a local merchant. Bunk beds and a new dresser almost fill the small room. In the living room, squashed amoeba-like in front of the small television set, is a yellow beanbag chair. "He watches 'Sesame Street' from there," Mrs. Lauer added. Tommy constantly wandered back to his mother who was curled in the corner of a worn sofa. Her soft eyes followed him as he clutched toys scattered around the room. A mother again after a year in limbo, Mrs. Lauer admits Tommy will be spoiled. "If I don't do it, Tom will." And she isn't worried that her son doesn't walk or talk as well as he might. "I think once he starts, its going to come out like you wouldn't believe."
