J. W. Miller Erecting Attractive House On Farm North of Town

J. W. Miller is erecting a beautiful five room house on his farm northeast of town on highway number 7. This house is 28x30 and is located on a small hill giving it a very imposing layout. A. H. Giese has the contract and the Burrow Lumber Company is furnishing the material.

We are glad to report substantial improvements going up on our farms. This shows the farmer has confidence in the country.

Poultry Theft Bill Is Passed By Senate

Austin, Texas, Sept. 28—Senator Ward's poultry bill passed the Senate Tuesday.

The bill makes the fraudulent taking of chickens or turkeys a felony, punishable by penitentiary imprisonment, or fine, or jail sentence. Before passage it was amended by Senator Bailey of De Witt so as to apply only to chickens and turkeys, and to take effect ninety days after passage.

The bill went to final reading on the suspension of rules by twenty one ays and four noes, and was finally passed by a viva voce vote. It now goes to the House, where Senator Ward said it was assured of passage.

Little Joe Bill Alsup Shoots His Big Toe With A 22 Target

On last Saturday afternoon several small boys were out hunting with targets, a mile or so on the Plainview highway. After hunting for a while the boys started back to town. Two of the boys gave Joe Bill Alsup, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Alsup, two guns to carry for them. Joe Bill is only a small fellow and while carrying the guns he pulled the trigger of one of the guns which was loaded cocked, which discharged a shot through his left big toe, going directly through the bone but did not crush it much as he is only six years old and the bone still soft.

The boys at once rushed to a near farm house and had it tied up to keep out dirt until the doctor could be reached. The boys then proceeded on to P. E. Wilemon's house where they called for Dr. Matthews, who drove by got Mr. Alsup and went to their rescue. After Dr. Matthews examined the toe and said he would get along fine. Joe Bill was doing nicely with the toe at this writing.

Boys this is a caution to all of the youngsters, so remember to always empty a gun before ever giving it to anyone.

The patrons and teachers of Muleshoe School met Tuesday night for the purpose of organizing a Parent-Teachers Association. After a short program officers were elected and committees appointed. We are looking forward to a successful year in this work.

Tom Neal, Misses Mildred and Kathryn Neal motored to Lubbock last Sunday to take Mildred back to High School.

"To The Ladies" Will Be Presented October 30, 1926

If you want to see a spotlight photograph of your neighbors and yourself in modern American home and business life, you had better plan to attend the play "To the Ladies," which is to be presented here on the evening of Oct. 30, 1926, at School Auditorium. It is one of the few classics of the day, and someone has referred to it as "Main Street on a Tear."

"To the Ladies" is an up-to-the-minute play of heart, home, husbands, beauty and business. It was written by George S. Kaufman and Marc Connelly and was a distinct Broadway success when first played by Helen Hayes and Otto Kruger, a few seasons ago at the Liberty Theatre in New York. Mr. Kaufman and Mr. Connelly are two of the best known playwrights of the day, and they have given to the American stage two other notable successes in "Merton of the Movies" and "Dulcy."

The play is loaded down with a natural flow of humor, never forced and never strained, and therefore, doubly funny. One needs but analyze the theme of the play to account for its splendid success.

The story is a complete laugh from start to finish, no matter how much this thing called self-esteem is riddled. The folks in the play talk, act and think as your own immediate friends do every day of the year, act and think as your own immediate friends do every day of the year, and you will certainly recognize them. It is novel, human and humorous throughout, and will be presented here by an excellent cast of Chicago actors.

The Old Settlers of Bailey County held their first meeting last Saturday at the home of E. H. Buhrmann's in the Y L Community. This is the first meeting they have held since the organization was started Sept. 17th, 1926. Due to the rains of the previous day the crowd was not as large as was expected. A real old time picnic dinner was served to about 34 men, women and children.

At this time they set the date for the Old Settlers Reunion picnic to be held on the 3rd. Wednesday of August, 1927.

Chevrolet Sets New Record On Production

The Chevrolet Motor company, largest manufacturer of three-speed cars, shattered two of its marks during September when it established a new monthly record of 81,158 passenger cars and trucks and attained a production total of 593,281 units for the first nine months of 1926, eclipsing the half-million production of the entire 12 months of 1925, Chevrolet's greatest year.

Neither of these figures ever has been approached by any builder of cars with three-speed selective transmissions.

The September production averaged 3,381 units daily for the 24 working days of the month. This also is a new record. The 81,158 total for September followed several recent months of record-breaking production. April, May and June with respective productions of 71,157, 74,617 and 77,241, each established successive production records. July production was restricted somewhat to permit the tooling and other changes necessary to effect several further improvements in the Chevrolet models. August production then snapped up to 76,551 units, only 690 fewer cars than were built in June which stood as Chevrolet's high record until out-distanced by September.

Chevrolet's entire 1925 production was 519,060. This is 74,221 units less than the 1926 production to the end of September. The 1925 total was passed during the second week of September.

Chevrolet's remarkable progress may be shown by the fact that the company has produced so far during 1926 a number of units approximately equal to the entire Chevrolet production from 1912 to 1920 inclusive, the first nine years during which Chevrolets were manufactured.

"These records are primarily the result of public confidence," said W. S. Khudsen, president of the Chevrolet Motor company. "We are all grateful for this confidence and will continue our efforts to merit the endorsement which the public has conferred upon the Chevrolet car."

Robt. A. Sone, our efficient County Attorney visited with homefolks in Plainview the past week-end. His Chevrolet Coupe took him there and brought him back.

Whicker Well Has Gas Vein; Blows Water 300 Feet

We have been reliably informed that on Monday of this week the Whicker test well located three miles southwest of Bledsoe, Cochran county, hit a vein of gas, blowing 300 feet of water standing in the hole over the crown-block of the standard rig.

Roustabouts are busy working placing casing in the hole and as soon as they pipe the well for its first 300 foot depth the water will be pumped out and drilling will be continued.

People all over this part of the Plains are very optimistic concerning the outcome of this test. This well is located about 40 miles southwest of Muleshoe.

The Civic Club Is A Real Live Bunch

(Received to late for last weeks paper)

The Civic Club met Monday afternoon, Oct. 4th, in the Ladies Rest Room at the court house for one of the most enthusiastic meetings of the year. A number of the old members were back with three or four more ready to join.

Mrs. Connie Gupton had previously tendered her resignation as reporter and the President, Mrs. Arthur Milligan, appointed Mrs. Oliver Jones to serve the remainder of the term.

The most notable event of the afternoon was the unanimous decision of the Civic Club to begin a campaign at once for the planting of trees and shrubs as soon as the water works are established. The oldest residents there agreed that Spring is the proper time for setting out trees in this immediate section and by that time water will be available, it is thought.

While no action was taken, the need for an emergency room in town was fully realized and plans were brought forth and discussed as to how this need could best be filled. As the Club is already bearing a number of other expenses, it was deemed necessary to lay aside this matter for the time.

The first of a series of interesting programs will be given Monday, October 18. This meeting will be called to order at 2:30 in the home of Mrs. J. E. Aldridge.

Response—My Favorite Cake Recipe.

Cake Demonstration—Mrs. Lewis and Mrs. Faulkner.

Paper—The Secrets of Successful Cake Making by Miss Amelia Speneer.

Report on Year Book—Program Committee.

If you want to join a live bunch, line up with the Civic Club. You are invited.

Mrs. Ray Griffiths is on the sick list this week.

Mrs. D. W. Winn and little son visited with relatives in Lubbock, Tuesday.

Silas Brown and wife, of Amarillo, visited in the DeBord home Sunday.

Miss Dollie Lawrence was here the week-end from Texico, visiting homefolks. She is going to school in the sister city.

Test Located Nine Miles from Town; Standard Rig

The Humble Oil Company has made a location and moved a Standard rig to section 2, T W P 14 S in leagues 555 and 566, in the northwest corner of said section in Parmer county. The test will be 9 miles direct northwest, or 13 miles by the section lines, from Muleshoe. It is on the Capitol Reservation lands. They are to go 3500 feet unless they find oil or gas in paying quantities at a lesser depth. The Capitol Company has leased 40,000 acres of land to the Humble Company under the above contract.

The following article was taken from the Tribune of Farwell, and shows there is still to be more drilling in this territory.

"Mr. Hamlin intimated that the Gulf Company would likely put down a test in this county within the next few months, but he authorized no statements concerning negotiations with the Gulf Company. Early in July Mr. Hamlin gave the Tribune the following statement relative to a 25,000 acre lease which had been granted the Gulf Production Company by the Capitol Reservation Lands:

"The lease that we have granted does not carry with it a drilling contract, but we have reasons to believe that a number of tests for oil will be made by the Gulf people. They are one of the major oil production companies of the land and we feel that they have secured this lease for the purpose of making a real test of this locality, which they are well able to do."

We understand the Gulf Company is to make a location in Castro county about 30 miles northwest of here in the near future. From all indications Muleshoe is going to be surrounded with oil wells. We think after all the country around Muleshoe is punched full of holes they will find the big pool right under the Journal office.

A Muleshoe Boy Goes To Hospital

Miss Wentland told a certain little boy that he must go to a hospital to have his tonsils and adenoids removed. The youngster was not visibly disturbed by the prospect according to visitor who called upon his mother. The visitor found the little boy deep in thought, and questioned him to find out if he was afraid. The reply was addressed partly to his mother.

"Mother, I ain't afraid of going to the hospital. I'll be brave and do just as they tell me. I'm not going to let them off a baby on me, like they do to you when you was there."

You'll like Muleshoe.

CHAPTER IX

Had Town Marshal McGrath assaulted Marcus Handy on a day when the camp was booming along at its accustomed pace, the politics of Cottonwood might at once have rushed forward to a climax. I speculate yet on this, wondering if it all would have turned out more happily, in that event, for Marcus Handy and me. More and more the "business element" and the better men who lived by industry—which meant of course most of us—were beginning to see a change must come. But also, more and more had the gamblers, the dispensers of vice and the actual criminals grown insolent and overbearing through immunity. To meet this situation head-on would have taken all a man's courage with both property and life. If the citizenry of Cottonwood boasted in common any virtue, it was courage. But things were going very well for most of us; decent, public opinion in general, while deploring our civic condition, inclined to let well enough alone. It needed a dramatic incident to crystallize the western spirit of fair play, to translate sentiment into action. This unfair and brutal assault by a sworn officer of the law might have served that purpose—but for the discovery on Hayden hill.

The ebullient joy inspired by that event left no room in the public bosom for any other emotion. By afternoon the camp had become a madhouse; by night, a joyous chaos. It was settled now, said the public opinion of the bar-rooms, Cottonwood was a "permanent camp." Permanent! She was the greatest camp ever discovered in the Rockies—in the world—in the universe!

Even Marcus Handy, nursing his physical and moral injuries, was caught up in the universal wave of optimism and enthusiasm. He had better reason than most of the rest. Before I had finished staunching his wounds, I had broken the news in one confused burst; and hastened to inform him that he was to be my partner. Marcus balked a little at that.

"I'm afraid you're letting your generosity get away with you, boy," he said. "But it's the way I'd expect you to act," he added shyly.

"Someone's got to stake me, or I can't develop that claim," said I, "and it had better be you than anyone I know." The man's quaint habit of secrecy about his most vital affairs had infected me, and I had never told him about my background in the East.

"All right; I guess I'll take a whirl with you," announced Marcus at last. "If I can keep any of my money out of the maw of that d—n paper company!"

So was born the partnership which developed and operated the Upper Case claim on Hayden hill, which was the name given the location, in honor of Buck. For of course, when we came to name it, we used a printing term. Let me tell here, once for all, the story of the Upper Case, simple but typical. Hayden hill was "spotted." The ore, as many learned by hard experience, lay in pockets, great and small, and not the most experienced geologists could prophesy their lay from the surface conformation. The Hayden and Croly tunnel tapped one of these pockets—nearly the greatest. Our shaft was only fifty yards away, yet never, from the morning when we turned the first shovel of earth until the night when its mouth was boarded up as a dangerous prospect hole, did it turn up an ounce of paying ore. After we had sunk to a depth below which carbonates had never yet been discovered on Hayden hill, we abandoned it as a bad job. Then a company with a theory that a deep sulphide formation underlay the whole hill made offers for some of the unproductive or worked-out claims. We sold for just enough money to pay Marcus back what he had sunk in it, plus a block of stock. I am keeping the stock yet—as a souvenir.

But Marcus, when we had patched him up with court-plaster from the drug store, displayed a nobler emotion than greed of gold or hate of man. "She's the biggest story that ever came out in this camp!" he said. "We've got to spread ourselves! We're making history, boy. When Cottonwood is capital of the state, this issue of the Courier will be framed in the statehouse for a souvenir! You know the story. Write it for all you're worth."

My story finished, Marcus sent me forth to get an interview with Buck. Estimating the probabilities, I repaired straight to Huffaker's. My judgment had led me aright. Already, the first story of the hotel was finished and occupied; and the dining-room and bar, as I approached, radiated light, babble and song. I pushed inside. Buck, still in his red flannel shirt, his overalls tucked into his muddy boots, was dining in state. Heading a long table heaped with food, pinnacled with champagne bottles, he had seated Jim Huffaker at his right, Isidore Cohen at his left. The company was pieced out with "mining men," but through the door when Buck saw me and rose to his feet, roaring boisterous welcome.

"Gents!" he cried, rapping for order with the butt of an empty bottle. "There's the mascot! There's the tenderfoot that brought me luck! Step up, kid, and let 'em see you. He's going to be rich too! Jim, 's my credit still good? All right. Wine again!"

So I was surrounded, congratulated, welcomed prematurely to the financial aristocracy. While the false light of adulation tickled my vanity as well as my sense of humor, I had no desire to sit with the mighty that evening; life had moved so fast since Buck's messenger woke me as to yield no opportunity for seeing Constance. On the plea of urgent business necessity, I got Buck away from the table, dragged him past the clutched, congratulating hands, shut him up in a back room of Huffaker's bar, and interviewed him.

"Well, Buck," I said, "now that you're rich, what are you going to do? Go East and settle down?"

"East, h—!" exclaimed Buck. "These here Rockies is good enough for me!"

"Here in Cott nwood?" I asked.

"Sure! Cert! What's the use of movin' to New York or Frisco when we're going to have New York right here?"

"Buck," I warned from the depths of my Yankee caution, "it's certain you have a very rich mine. There may be a million dollars down there, enough at any rate so that you might invest it and—"

"Sure I'm going to invest it!" said Buck. "Don't think I'm going to blow it all in, do you? In mines. I'll own this here camp before I'm through—"

"But mines are a matter of luck," I interrupted.

"Cert. And my luck has turned," replied Buck simply. I had no time for further argument, because a new delegation of prominent citizens was pounding at the door; and Buck, lapped in such jobs as he had never before known, was in no mood for introspection.

I hastened to Mrs. Barnaby's—late. Glancing through the door, I saw that the place at the head of the table was cleared; Constance had supped and departed. I went round to the sleeping tent and called. At the sound of my voice she came running forth into the twilight, both hands outstretched.

"I hear that you have struck it!" she said, "and oh, I'm glad!"

I went all a-tremble; except for memory of that afternoon in the gulch, I should have lost my self-control again. She seemed to perceive my emotion; for she said quickly:

"We musn't talk here by night this way—people gossip—I've had to make it a rule not to see men callers in the evening. Good night, Robert; I hope your claim makes a million!" and I was gone through the tent-flap. Had I yielded to my impulses, I should have torn the canvas into shreds.

Reading page-proofs that night, I glanced up at Marcus, who was locking a form.

"Aren't you going to refer to the McGrath episode?" I asked.

"Nope!" said Marcus cheerfully. "Crowded out to make room for more interesting matter. By the way, boy—don't you go taking this matter up with Marshal McGrath. Next time he'll shoot, and I don't want to lose my best and only reporter. Just keep out of his way. We're going to get the criminal news for the Courier from others than the appointed authorities."

"Is the campaign for municipal government abandoned then?" I asked, and held my breath for the answer. I esteemed Marcus, and did not like to think that he lacked nerve.

"No," he replied. "But when I cut my wolf loose again, old hoss, he's going to bite!" To which cryptic utterance he put a period with a resounding blow of his maul on the block.

The days passed, bringing the advance-guard of a new rush to Cottonwood camp. Again we were crowded beyond all possibility of accommodating our pilgrims and strangers.

At about this time Mike, the day bartender of the Silver Dollar saloon, began to loom up from the hazy mists of my general acquaintance. For some weeks now he had held a loose connection with the Courier as a collector of printing jobs on commission and a gatherer of small news items. The Silver Dollar, which stood just where the glories of Main street encountered the cheap, open brothels of Pearl street, had a hard name in camp. Rumor called it headquarters for the thug element. As for Mike—I never knew his other name—he was a small, hatched-face man with a dead, inscrutable eye and the appearance in his street clothes of a respectable and somewhat self-effacing mechanic. He said little at any time, and that little in a voice which sucked the words in through a set of narrow teeth slanted backward like an anaconda's. He used to bring his information as rough notes, written in a business hand whose Spencerian flourishes contrasted oddly with its grammatical staccato.

Only by a process of painful cross-examination could I extract the human lights which made the story. When we severed relations with the marshal's office, Mike became at once invaluable. Our necessary criminal news we got from his reports; and we never missed an essential item. Twice, after I had drawn from him his budget of information, he stepped over to Marcus, spoke a quiet word; they retired then to the space behind the printing-press—the only private place in our office—and talked in whispers. Except for the uncomfortable feeling of being on the outside and a touch of amusement at my editor's mania for dramatic secrecy, I gave little thought to these conferences.

One night Marcus did not come back from dinner. Mike, reporting at eight o'clock as was his habit, laid down his budget of notes and gave his usual unilluminating explanations. He had only two unimportant hold-ups and a case of assault and battery; I put aside his notes to "work up" when I had finished the "telegraph" news. But Mike did not at once depart. For fifteen minutes he stood around the office, shifting from one foot to the other and asking faintly at intervals when I expected the boss to come back.

"Say," he said at last, "I got business that won't wait. Give this note to the boss as soon as he comes in, will you? It's important."

I took the piece of folded copy-paper, slipped it into my pocket. A minute later, in fear that I might forget it, I laid it on the desk before me. I was working furiously that night. The telegraph matter finished, I turned to Mike's items. Absently, I unfolded the note with the rest, read it over at one glance of the eye before I realized what it was doing.

"Proved that somebody in town informs when they is money shipments," it read. "Regular sistem. . . . May have interesting facts tomorrow."

I folded the note quickly, put it back into my pocket. When Marcus arrived half an hour later I gave it

French Woman Famed for Skill as Cook

The famous Brillat-Savarin died February 2, 1826. He was celebrated for his book called "The Physiology of Taste," wherein he established the French tradition for good cooking, says the Detroit News.

At a banquet held in Paris recently in his honor it was remarked that there was no woman guest. Somebody has been explaining the omission on the ground that both the great epicures and the great cooks have all been men.

That may be broadly true, but not long before Brillat-Savarin's days there was one woman cook who achieved an almost unparalleled popularity. This was Marie, the cook of the Paris fermier-general of the period, whose dinners at the Elysee palace had a wide celebrity. The host would not employ a man cook, and though this at first caused astonishment among the people whom he

Why, to Be Sure
It was raining terribly. The playing field was a sea of mud. The players came up out of every scrimmage like pulling a flivver out of a mud-hole. Everything was a mess. The football jerseys had lost their brilliant hues and the white pants of the officials were a dark gray shade.
"Isn't it terrible that they should get so dirty! Look at that fellow's shirt. How will they ever get them all clean!"
"Say, what do you suppose they got the scrub team for?"—Grinnell Malteaser.

to him, wondering if the honorable and discreet thing was to admit my mistake or to keep silence, I decided on silence. Of course, I would keep his secret; and to let him know that I knew would only disturb him. A little guiltily, however, I watched him read it. He whistled, caught up his hat and hurried through the door to be gone for another half-hour. The loose ends of this affair began to knot themselves together in my mind. Mike, of course, was a detective, admirably placed in the Silver Dollar, admirably concealed by the device of giving him desultory employment on the Courier. But was he Marcus Handy's man alone—or whose?

The next day brought another tiny, significant incident—like a jet of steam from a verdant and blossoming earth, which indicates the volcano awakening to eruption underneath. But whereas my deductions from Mike's notes revealed to me part at least of the hidden truth, the meaning of this at the time escaped me.

Through a still summer afternoon, with the great mountain above seeming very near, I had ridden out to Hayden hill. Ostensibly, I made this journey in order to report progress on our development work to Marcus; in reality I went to gloat. That piece of earth was mine—not a gift or inheritance, like the fruits of life I had enjoyed hitherto, but already discounting my stroke of luck, attributing my good fortune to my native acumen.

Across the site of our placer diggings stretched now a bridge of unseasoned logs, the needles still green on their roughly trimmed stumps of branches. The rather large cabin on the next claim down-stream had passed from a private residence to a public institution. A shrewd saloon-keeper, newly arrived, had seen his chance for business with the owners, the prospectors and the mere sightseers crowding to Hayden hill, had rented the cabin at rates which returned its owners much greater revenue than their dwindling placer claim, had opened the Big Bonanza saloon.

At the door of the Big Bonanza saloon stood hitched a team of matched coal-black Morgan horses, the silver mountings of their harness reflected in the glossy polish of their hides. The carriage behind them seemed, from the glint of its varnish, the unspotted newness of its yellow trimmings, to be out on its maiden journey. As I pulled up to admire this equipage, its owner strode from the Big Bonanza, chewing an unlighted cigar. He unhitched and mounted to the seat. He wore checked trousers as new as the paint of his carriage, a black "diagonal" coat with binding all wide, a low, loud waistcoat revealing a white, hard and glossy shirt-front, wherein gleamed two diamond studs. Above that were a round felt hat, a set of whiskers evidently but that morning trimmed by a too expert barber, and the countenance of—Buck! I was forced to look twice before I made sure of that and hailed him.

"Hello!" he cried as I approached; and then, somewhat sheepishly: "What think of the new shell?"

"It's great. It's swell," I said, suppressing my smiles. "You must be cashing in!"

"Nope!" replied Buck. "Not till next week. First shipment started to Denver yesterday. Don't have to pay. Everybody gives me tick." Then, reverting a little shyly to the fascinating subject of his clothes: "Since the boys elected me president of the Hayden Hill Mine Owners' association I kinder feel I ought to dog up a little!" He withdrew the unlighted cigar from his mouth, spat a loose piece of wrapper from his lips. "Tryin' to break myself of chavin'!" he remarked. "Jim Huffaker said a dry cigar was the best way. But it ain't very satisfyin'."

We drifted into the gossip of the day. Buck's claim was developing beyond all expectations. Still the ore body seemed to widen out; and still it grew richer. One sack which had gone down to Denver assayed eight hundred dollars to the ton. Shorty had been shirking his share of the work. "Drunk a heap," said Buck. "And then there's that girl from Red Nell's house. . . . Two of the other claims had already reached 'signs.' 'You'll break into it yourself any day, now,' pronounced Buck. Hadn't been any symptoms of claim-jumping yet. Probably because the crooks in town knew what kind of men had located on Hayden hill. "That was just blind luck," he commented. "The right kind of men got locations here. Had a mine owners' association before they'd scratched ground. And we'll stand together, too. Anybody that tries anything funny up here is monkeyin' with a buzzsaw. I guess the camp's next in order." He paused a moment.

"Sacramento diggings," he added in a low, even tone.

"What?" I asked. Buck was seldom cryptic.

"Guess you ain't a member of our lodge," laughed Buck; and at once changed the subject to the shortage of mine hardware.

If I thought at all of this curious phrase, it was to reflect with amusement that Buck had probably joined by now every secret order represented in Cottonwood.

I looked up to realize that if I kept straight on, I must pass round the county jail. I had taken that course from the suburbs, where I had gone to look for a freighter with a bear story, in pure absentmindedness born of a troubled mind. The dazzling interest of my dual job as reporter for the Courier and owner of the Upper Case mine had saved me, all this time, from that sickness of the spirit which afflicts unhappy lovers. But sometimes when I was alone—as tonight—the hopeless misery of my situation and the uncertainty of the path I was following came over me in a wave of black, tormenting misery.

I hesitated just a moment. Not since the day when he beat up Marcus Handy had I encountered Marshal McGrath face to face. Subconsciously, I had been dreading the meeting. Of course, I should look through him, as though he were not there. Then, probably, the marshal would taunt me—or Marcus, which would come to the same thing. If I answered him in kind, he would probably shoot. I had no illusions as to my chance in a pistol match with the marshal. Moreover, Marcus had again and again implored me not to hunt trouble in that quarter. On the other hand, if I failed to answer in kind I should lose all standing; should be known simply as a tenderfoot that backed down. And by now my growing position in camp had become sweet, so young was I.

In the shadow of a cabin which blocked the approaches from the hillside to the jail, I hesitated, my pride disputing with my prudence. I glanced at the jail. Brilliant light flooding through its front window illuminated Marshal McGrath's rocking chair. I noted, on the hazy edge of the belt of light, two male figures standing close together as though in conversation, and the outlines of a horse. But neither was the marshal. All this in the mere pause of an interrupted step.

I was about to advance, certain that the chance of meeting my enemy was remote, when the two men stepped out into the belt of light. One, though his face lay in shadow, I recognized as the talkative Charlie Meek. The light shone full on the face of the other. It was a comely countenance; my first, photographic glimpse recorded a brow running almost without break into a straight regular nose; from beneath his black slouch hat, now pushed back on his head, emerged a tuft of curling blond hair. Then he turned from profile to full face, and smiled at some remark of Charlie Meek. And I saw that a loose mouth marred his comeliness.

I had lifted my foot to step forth and boldly to pass the jail, when he stooped, picked up the reins, led his horse's head and foreshoulders into the belt of light. The motion stirred in me a faint memory which held me, searching my brain, to the spot. The face was new. Yet that motion reminded me of something significant, dramatic, buried perplexingly in the depths of memory. Charlie, talking in low tones over his shoulder, thrust his key into the lock of the jail. A forward motion of the horse blotted out his figure. The stranger mounted; the horse swung round backward and sideward as an independent steed will. On his buckskin flank lay a white marking—shaped like the upper half of a pear, the head and shoulders of a veiled woman.

That was the horse I had seen in the bushes after the robbery of the Cottonwood stage! And the rider . . . when I saw him before, he was masked. But that motion, that figure were the same. As certainly as though he had confessed it, I knew that this was the man whom I had seen lying along the rock covering the stage passengers, whom I had seen mounting that same horse with the pear-shaped marking.

verting a little shyly to the fascinating subject of his clothes:

"Since the boys elected me president of the Hayden Hill Mine Owners' association I kinder feel I ought to dog up a little!" He withdrew the unlighted cigar from his mouth, spat a loose piece of wrapper from his lips. "Tryin' to break myself of chavin'!" he remarked. "Jim Huffaker said a dry cigar was the best way. But it ain't very satisfyin'."

We drifted into the gossip of the day. Buck's claim was developing beyond all expectations. Still the ore body seemed to widen out; and still it grew richer. One sack which had gone down to Denver assayed eight hundred dollars to the ton. Shorty had been shirking his share of the work. "Drunk a heap," said Buck. "And then there's that girl from Red Nell's house. . . . Two of the other claims had already reached 'signs.' 'You'll break into it yourself any day, now,' pronounced Buck. TODAY AFTER 80 YEARS!

Weber Farm Wagons have been used on American farms for 80 years. That fact alone may not be positive proof of quality, but it must be admitted that any manufacturing plant that has produced wagons for four score years must be making good ones. Forther you can rest assured that the Weber name has become known to a good many farmers in that length of time. These combine with the Patented Fifth Wheel and the Patented Swivel Reaching to make the McCormick-Deering Weber the logical wagon choice.

A Little Poem Composed
 By One Of Our Readers

The sea came wooing in mad male fashion
 The strand like a maiden shy and fair
 He fell at her feet with a cry of pasion
 And flung out his arms to clasp her there
 He swore to be true and the bright stars glisened
 While winds went dalying off with the ships
 The strand like a maden leaned and listened
 And the seas wild kisses fell on her lips
 But desolate now in the moonlights glory
 Is lying the pale deserted strand
 While the sea is telling the same old story
 To another shore in another land,
 Mrs. A. J. Scott.

Roy Crosswhite and family, formerly of Hurley, but who moved to Herford last year spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. A.
 J. Scott. Mr. and Mrs. Scott certainly did enjoy having them.
 Mr. Crosswhite says he likes Herford and has a good position there with the public service and reports that all the streets in Hereford are now paved and there are some beautiful buildings going up. We wish the Crosswhite family every success.

F. N. Holmes Here Visiting Old Time Friends of 1907

F. N. Holmes, of Glenco, Oklahoma, was here this week visiting in the homes of John R. Boyle, C. C. Mardis, J. W. Johnson, C. E. Dotson and others who were here in the early days. Mr. Holmes came here in February 1907 and remained in the West Camp community until 1910, when he and his family moved to Oklahoma, where they have made their home.

He hauled the first piece of lumber on the Steven F. Coldran lands in the West Camp country and had a great part in starting up that community. He was surprised to see such a big change take place in this short time. Hundreds of new farms and homes scattered everywhere, wonderful crops and happy citizenship. He still owns a quarter section of land in that community and may move back here in the spring. He expects to keep his chicken ranch in Oklahoma, also.

Radio in Polar Regions

The MacMillan expedition to the polar regions had radio for its only means of communication. Using low power and short wave lengths, the expedition communicated with several stations in the United States while the ship was frozen in thousands of miles away. Broadcasting concerts to the United States stations were during the long, dark nights of the Arctic zone. The call letters were WNP, the slogan was Wireless North Pole, and the power was about 500 watts.

Just Fancy

Henry Fielding, in "Tom Jones," tells of Sophia, "The nice proportion of her arms promised the truest symmetry of her limbs." Fancy an age in which one had to guess at a knee from an elbow!—Des Moines Capital.

FELT HAT STAGES COMEBACK; PARIS THINKS WELL OF PLAID

LIKE certain favorite players who perennially announce a "positive" last appearance, the felt hat is successfully staging another "farewell performance." But is it "farewell"? Not from present indications. Rather is the felt hat endearing itself to its audience even to a greater degree than heretofore, in that it is presenting an entirely new and varied program in which artful creased crowns and cunning rippling brims are playing leading roles.

Of course when it comes to dressy millinery for dressy occasions, the mode is very explicit in that regard, insisting on a more ornate and elaborate styling than we have been accustomed to for many seasons past.

If in Paris do as Parisians do, that is, choose any sort of material just so it is gay plaid. This vogue for plaid is sweeping through the entire of fashion's realm.

The picture portrays two equally yet equally handsome versions of the plaid mode. Plaid worsted is given flattering treatment in the Paris-made two-piece frock to the right. In this instance the darker side of the plaid cloth is used for the skirt, the reverse giving a varied trimming for the blouse, which itself is made of beige kasha matched to the predominating tone in the plaid.

None other than a French stylist could contrive so intricate a fabric handling as is evidenced in the win-

Variety in Felt Hats.

For practical wear, youthful, novel and becoming types, such as the picture shows, are quite the proper thing.

There are points of outstanding interest in each of these models so carefully selected as representative of the mode. An evolution of the old-time cloche, but in softer effect, describes in a measure the first little hat. There is the inevitable crease in the soft crown and there is also the stylish trim of grosgrain ribbon.

Perforated felt gives us something new to think about. An effective patterning is worked out on the tall mod-some plaid silk frock shown here to the left. Manipulation of material is an outstanding bright light in the newer apparel creations. Elaborately styled yet simple in appearance to the eye, is a sentiment which prevails throughout all dress design.

The latest smart combination registers leather and plaided woolen, using the latter for the skirt, lining the gay leather coat with the plaid where it also gives an enlivening contrast in collar and cuffs to match.

Very popular is the fashion for skirt of plaid, either silk or wool, topped with a velvet jacket. Also one sees the black or navy velvet skirt designed in scalloped tiers, with which is worn a tunic or blouse of plaid taffeta.

Perfectly stunning velvet plaid two-piece frocks are appearing on avenue and boulevard with which are worn velvet hats in solid coloring, shirred, corded or stitched, the ensemble enhanced by a handsome fur neckpiece.

Costume ensembles are of the latest which use plaid for the one-piece

Some crowns show the crease from right to left as instanced in the little hat shown to the right. Note that it is a very fine velours, and it is this quality-kind which is in demand this season.

Exploiting the latest slant-back draped crown is the girlish felt hat shown in the center. It is in Lanvin green with a grosgrain banding in the now-so-much-talked-of jungle green.

Again the soft brim is apparent in the model to the left below, and it is ribbon bound, this being a feature of so many of the fashionable felts.

One of the whims of fashion is for the hatband carried out in two or three tones. Felt hats often match shoes and handbags in their coloring, dress and for the lining of the top-coat which itself is developed of either solid-colored velvet or cloth.

Black and white plaid woollens are especially featured in smart coatings. These are offset with trimmings of furs blended to the color effect of the cloth. Often the plaid presents a salt-and-pepper effect over its surface.

Ombre plaid is the very newest fabric sensation. It is especially effective in the heavy worsted materials. For instance a brown, green and beige plaid will be very dark at one edge of the cloth, grading into pale coloring at the other. The climax of elegance in these ombre plaids is reached with the interweaving of gold and silver thread.

Figures on Future World Population

Sir George H. Knibbs gives different estimates of the possible population of the world, ranging from 2,942,000,000—if the world's existing population increased in ratio of O. R. Baker's estimate of possible increase in the United States agricultural area—to 9,792,000,000—if all existing arable land in the world could support three persons per acre—and a final maximum of 13,440,000,000 if an average of a person per two and one-half acres applied to the whole land surface of the world.

Assuming that the present standard of living is retained, together with the present national prejudices and egotisms, Sir George considers it doubtful whether the population will ever reach the 5,000,000,000 limit. If man better co-ordinates his effort so as to involve less expense in nonproductive effort, then possibly the advance of science may enable the 7,000,000,000 limit to be reached.

BAD COLD? TAKE "CASCARETS" FOR BOWELS TONIGHT

No headache, constipation, bad cold or sour stomach by morning

Get a 10-cent box. Sick headache, biliousness, coated tongue, head and nose clogged up with a cold—always trace this to torpid liver; delayed fermenting food in the bowels or sour, gassy stomach.

Poisonous matter clogged in the intestines, instead of being cast out of the system is re-absorbed into the blood. When this poison reaches the delicate brain tissue it causes congestion and that dull, throbbing, sickening headache.

Cascarets immediately cleanse the stomach, remove the sour, undigested food and foul gases, take the excess bile from the liver and carry out all the constipated waste matter and poisons in the bowels.

A Cascaret tonight will surely straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep—a 10-cent box from your druggist means your head clear, stomach sweet and your liver and bowels regular for months.

Makes Movies Natural

A photo-chemist in Germany has developed a process for producing movies in natural colors without greater expense or more trouble than in black-and-white effects. With an ordinary camera and a monochromatic film specially treated by the secret process, a film showing every shade of tone from the top to the bottom of the spectrum is obtained, which can be projected with an ordinary projector.

All great art is the expression of man's delight in God's work, not his own.—Ruskin.

"Upon recommendation I tried Tanlac, and the results amazed me. I slept better, could eat my food with felish and without suffering from indigestion pains. I gained weight. My nerves were quieted and I was no longer dizzy.

"Tanlac made me a new man. I now enjoy perfect health, and work all day at high speed without tiring. Tanlac is the one remedy for continued good health, for keeping strong. Tanlac put me on my feet and I can recommend it as a great tonic."

THIS WOMAN'S BATTLE

Wins Against Ill Health

"At times I was hardly able to do my housework," writes Mrs. Margaret Wallace of 1547 Safford Ave., Columbus, Ohio. How many women have found themselves in this same condition! How many women have fought bravely on day after day, cooking, washing, ironing, doing the dishes, and keeping the house clean, when they were in a weakened condition and had not sufficient strength to perform these duties easily and properly!

When Mrs. Wallace was experiencing great difficulty in carrying on the daily tasks, a friend advised her to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and she gave it a fair trial. "I just can't give enough thanks to it," she writes. "Now I can eat anything at all and I am feeling better than I have for years. I shall never be without your medicine again."

A woman who is fighting for her health and her family's happiness is a valiant soldier. She wages her battle in her own kitchen. She has no thrilling bugles to cheer her on, no waving banners.

Many other women tell us, as Mrs. Wallace did, that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was their faithful ally in the struggle for better health.

Testament Reading Timed

It required 69 hours and 20 minutes of constant reading for members of the First Methodist church at Yucipa, Calif., to finish the Old and New Testaments, says the Pathfinder Magazine. This is 10 minutes better than last year's time. In 1925 the Seventh Day Adventists in Boston read the Bible aloud in 55 hours and 47 minutes.

Chronic Head Colds

A Simple Method of Prevention.

There is no disease more offensive or disagreeable, or no disease that will lead to as much serious trouble as catarrh or chronic colds. It often produces chronic headaches and deafness, affecting the eyes and voice, and frequently weakening the lungs. Get rid of catarrh by a simple, safe, pleasant home remedy, discovered by Dr. Blosser, a catarrh specialist.

Dr. Blosser's remedy is composed of medicinal herbs, berries and flowers, which you smoke in a small pipe or cigarette. The smoke vapor is inhaled into the air passages of the nose, head, throat and lungs, and carries medicine where sprays, douches and ointments cannot possibly reach. Its effect is soothing and healing, and as it contains no tobacco or cubebs is perfectly harmless, and may be used by women and children as well as men.

If you suffer with catarrh, catarrhal deafness, asthma, hay fever, bronchial irritations, or if subject to frequent colds, get from your drug store a pocket size package of Dr. Blosser's cigarettes. Prove for your self their pleasant and beneficial effects.

Lesson for October 17

MOSES HONORED IN HIS DEATH

LESSON TEXT—Deut. 34:1-12.
GOLDEN TEXT—Precious in the sight of the Lord is the death of his saints.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Moses Sees the Promised Land.
JUNIOR TOPIC—The Death of Moses.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Lessons from the Life of Moses.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—What the World Owes Moses.

I. Moses Views the Promised Land From Mount Pisgah (vv. 1-4).

At the Lord's bidding Moses ascended the mountain from which he got a view of the promised land. He obeyed, though he knew that he was to die there (Deut. 32:50). He greatly desired to go into the land (Deut. 3:25), but graciously submitted to the will of the Lord. Though he was not permitted to enter the land, God gave him a view in its fullest dimensions of the land which was to be the inheritance of the people which he had delivered and led for forty years. The reason given by the Lord for refusing an entrance into the land was Moses' failure to sanctify the Lord at Meribah (Deut. 32:51, cf. Num. 20: 1-13). This was too glaring a sin for the Lord to pass over, though Moses had served Him faithfully for many years.

II. The Death and Burial of Moses (vv. 5-9).

1. His death (v. 5).
Though he died in the vigor of manhood, his work was done. He did not die before his time. God put him into the world for a purpose, and as soon as that work was done He called him home. Though Moses was a great man he was not exempt from death.

2. The burial of Moses (v. 6).
God buried him. Most likely this service was performed by the angels. Likely this is the time and circumstance when the devil contended with Michael, the archangel, over the body of Moses (Jude 9).

3. The time of mourning for Moses (v. 8).

They mourned for thirty days. It is not wrong to lay away earthly friends even with tears, but as Christians we should not mourn as those who have no hope. Indeed, it is much better to express our appreciation and love for our friends by showing the proper courtesy and respect while they are alive, than to mourn over them when they are dead.

III. The Successor of Moses (v. 9).

Joshua, who had been the minister of Moses during all the years of the wilderness journey, now became the military leader of the Israelites. That Joshua was a fit man as a leader of the Israelites is seen.

1. By the fact that he was full of the spirit of wisdom.

While the Lord is not dependent upon human wisdom, He does select as His representatives men whom He has endowed with the proper wisdom.

2. He was divinely ordained for the work at the hand of Moses, "for Moses had laid his hands upon him."

This he had done at the command of God (Num. 27:18-21).

3. The people owned him as their leader. "The children of Israel hearkened unto him, and did as the Lord commanded Moses."

In order for successful leadership a ruler must have the individual affection and allegiance of the people.

IV. Encomium Upon Moses (vv. 10-12).

In this eulogy Moses is given a place at the head of the Old Testament prophets. With the exception of the Greater Prophet (Deut. 18:15-18), of whom Moses was a type, he stands as the greatest prophet of Israel.

1. He was great because of his intimacy with God (v. 10), "whom the Lord knew face to face."

2. He was great in that he gave to the world a code of laws unequalled in the world's history.

3. He was great as a general in that he liberated the Israelitish nation from the oppression of the greatest nation of the earth.

4. He was great because he led two or three million Israelites through the desert for forty years.

5. He was great because he gave to us in the book of Deuteronomy three orations which, according to the judgment of competent critics, stand at the head of the world's literature.

Calumet contains two leavening units—one begins to work when the dough is mixed, the other waits for the heat of the oven, then both units work together. And that means double value, double protection against bake-day failure and waste. Try it. MAKES BAKING EASIER

$1.50 per year

We are glad to note the Civic League is going to have a tree planting plank in their program for this year. There is not another thing a person can have on their place that will add value, more than beautiful trees, shrubs or a pretty lawn. With plenty of water promised us by the city Muleshoe should try to have a pretty yard contest next season.

The school boys have been coming in pretty handy for the truck farmers during the past week helping pull peanuts and grable sweet potatoes. The boys made good help in the fields and the extra money helps to pay their little school expenses. It is better to teach a boy to work, than lay around idling away his time.

With the wonderful moisture in the ground at this time of the year we would like to see quite an acreage planted in wheat. The money comes in at a time when cash is short, and wheat is a good price nearly every year. Cotton land makes wonderful wheat ground. Let's plant some wheat.

Randall County News: "A wild cat was a dreaded animal among the pioneers of the west, but now every town in West Texas wants a wild cat of its own—and most of them are getting one." And wild cats are just about as dangerous now as they were in years gone by, and more people get hurt by them now than possibly ever in the history of the nation. Wildcat wells, however are necessary, and it is only through the effort of some individual that the oil industry is being developed. There are a few wildcats around the Muleshoe section, now, that are being watched with considerable interest by the people of this section as well as elsewhere.

Once a year, The Dallas News offers its readers an opportunity to make a substantial saving on yearly subscriptions. This is a sort of Christmas present from The Dallas News to its readers. Last year and the year before, practically all of the old subscribers availed themselves of this opportunity, and thousands of new readers were added. Among other things, The News stated that it maintains the highest priced News-gathering organization in the Southwest. Its ten leased wires, aided by an army of regular and special correspondents, bring the news from all parts of Ameri-

State Sends Nurse to Bailey County to Receive Field Experience

Miss Lucilee Stone, of Fort Worth, is now in Bailey county with Miss Wentland, County Nurse getting her field work for Public Health Nursing. We can assure Miss Stone that she will not lack for work and that she is more than welcome to our county, it is with pleasure that we note the fact that she has been sent here to assist Miss Wentland and we are glad that we have the facilities to accommodate her in preparation for her work in some other county. Miss Stone will be given practical work in school inspection and in infant and maternity work, this latter work is the most important of all because it is to the coming generation that we look to for our future citizens and we want them to be well equipped for their battle with life.

Miss Wentland Inspects Three Schools This Past Week Over County

Miss Wentland visited and inspected the Goodland, Wilson and Figure Two school this past week, she said that the children as a whole were in much better physical condition this year than they were last and that there have been numerous correction made. She hopes that all schools will show up as favorable as the ones just inspected. One thing noted in visiting all schools was the lack of proper drinking facilities and also the lack of facilities for the provis-
