January Chevrolet Record Goes Over

Responding to a winter demand for cars unprecedented in the history of the company, the Chevrolet Motor Company in January again shattered all production records for that month by building 73,676 units, almost 30,000 cars more than were made in January of 1926.

The January, 1926 production in its turn almost tripled the production of January, 1925.

Under the tentative production schedule for February the company will be prepared to make a total of 84,000 units, which would establish a new monthly production record in the history of the company, exceeding even the record monthly output in September, 1926, of 81,158 cars.

The heavy winter production is the result of demand for "the most beautiful car in Chevrolet history" which Chevrolet buyers have made upon the company's dealers since the announcement of lower prices and numerous refinements in the entire Chevrolet line.

In 1926 the Chevrolet Motor Company led all manufacturers of gear shift cars by building 732,145 cars, an increase of more than 40 per cent over the previous record year. Under a $10,000,000 expansion program initiated in 1926 the Chevrolet Motor Company is equipped for even greater production during 1927.

The new machinery making this enlarged production possible is completely installed in the various plants of the company throughout the country and all necessary changes of dies and tools have been made to insure uninterrupted manufacturing schedules during this year.

Texas and Southwestern Cattle Ass'n to Meet in El Paso

The Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Ass'n., will meet in El Paso, March 15-16-17, 1927.

Leave Amarillo at 7 p. m. Sunday March 13th. Upon arrival of "The Scout," Santa Fe train from Kansas City, Wichita and other eastern points. Arrive El Paso about 8 a. m. Monday March 14th.

As the convention does not convene until March 15th, and we have received so many requests for this schedule, we thought you would enjoy this extra day in El Paso. It will enable the Executive Committee to see that Amarillo and the Panhandle is always a little bit ahead of the other fellow; it will give you an earlier opportunity to press your Amarillo claims for the 1928 meeting and you can spend the day very nicely either in El Paso—or it doesn't matter where.

So we are going to leave El Paso about midnight, Thursday night, March 17th after close of the meeting. The sleepers will be ready for occupancy at nine thirty for those who prefer to retire early.

And now—at 8:30 a. m. Friday, March 18th, we arrive in Albuquerque, N. M. Here, the Chamber of Commerce will meet us in cars and entertain us until half past ten. We believe this will give you an opportunity of renewing your friendship with the Albuquerque Stockmen and will recall to your mind the pleasant convention held there a few years ago. Our museum, immediately adjoining the station, is open to you and we are certain that you will find its contents to be very interesting.

And a daylight trip across New Mexico, to enable you in determining range and other conditions including the scenic part of the trip near Mountain air. All of this is quite worth mentioning.

And here's the inside dope. Let Fred Harvey tell you.

A convenient arrival hour at home too.

Here is the opportunity to renew the friendship of all the "Old Timers" from over the Panhandle. That you may enjoy the trip, just as you did several years ago is the aim we are going to put over for you. Whether you are a "cowman" or a visitor, we believe you will continue to be a Santa Fe Booster when you come back home.

Epworth League for February 27, 1927

Subject—Wanted a Doctor.

Leader—Lottie Huke.

Scripture Reading—Matthew 4:23-25, 10:5-8.

Mesdames Chas. Long and R. B. Boyle were in Clovis, Wed.

"The Female" at Brook's Theatre Friday - Saturday

This is a story of South Africa. Dalla (Betty Compson) is a beautiful, primitive girl known as "The Lion Cub." She falls in love with Col. Valentia, a big game hunter. Barend De Beer, Dalla's guardian, is madly infatuated with her.

At a fashionable ball Dalla is ridiculed by the ultra-smart society folk. She seeks De Beer's sympathy and tells him she wants to go to England for three years and learn the ways of the "Englishers." De Beer proposes that she marry him and promises that she need not be actually his wife until after her return. She consents.

Dalla returns a cultured, beautifully-gowned, perfectly-poised woman. She meets Valentia and all her old love for him returns. See the results at the Brook's Theatre Friday and Saturday.

Baileyboro Bugle Call

We're having real spring weather nowadays in this part of the world. When the sand isn't blowing a gale it's as balmy as June.

We played some more games Friday. Bula School brought down five teams. Scores were as follows: Bula Senior boys 13, Baileyboro Senior boys 15; Bula Junior boys 12, Baileyboro Junior boys 2; Bula Senior girls 22, Baileyboro Senior girls 16; Bula Outside boys 16, Baileyboro Outside boys 32. The Junior Girls intended to play but Bula School had to return home on account of the lateness of the hour.

Mr. and Mrs. Holbert Shirley entertained, Saturday night, with a party for the young people. The party was well attended and all reported an enjoyable time.

Miss Syble Blackshear was the guest of Mrs. C. D. Durham Saturday. She and Miss Irene Waller spent the remainder of the night, after the party with Mrs. Durham.

C. B. Wallis and wife, Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Durham, Mrs. G. L. Blackshear and Misses Syble Blackshear and Irene Waller were Baileyboro guests at Circleback Christian Church services Sunday afternoon.

Clyde Coffman returned Saturday from a visit at Ranger.

Miss Alice Ragsdale was a guest of Miss Alice Berry, Friday night.

J. L. Morris and family visited relatives in Circleback Sunday.

Marshall Blackshear, J. W. and Fred Johnson, R. O. and J. D. Taylor, Roy Brumley, Clifton Odom and Pearl Cox, were Bailey County filibusters Sunday. They explored Heifer Lake and

Brown Gin Will Be Re-built

In conversation with R. L. Brown, this morning, he said, "The gin will be re-built in time for next season."

We understand there was some insurance on the gin stands.

The loss of the cotton gin is being felt by the business firms, as there is still 200 or 300 bales to be ginned.

Civic Club Held Interesting Meeting

The Civic Club met Monday afternoon at the Court House with nine members present. At the opening of the business session the president, Mrs. C. C. Mardis, appointed the following committees.

Court House: Mesdames E. R. Hart, Chairman; Carles and Winn.

School: Mesdames A. P. Stone, Chairman; H. A. Douglass and Connie Gupton.

Finance: Mesdames W. A. Milligan, Chairman; W. C. Bucy, H. C. Edmonds and Wm. G. Kennedy.

Entertainment: Wm. G. Kennedy, Chairman; M. S. Stidham and J. M. March.

Membership: Mesdames J. O. Jones, Jr., Chairman; A. V. McCarty Jr., Will Harper.

Cemetery: Mesdames Levi Pressly, Chairman; Snyder, Mardis.

A report from the yearbook committee was heard, and a very interesting program was planned for the next meeting: Origin of St. Patrick's Day—Mrs. Milligan.

Reading—Mrs. March.

Music—Mrs. Stidham.

Reading—Mrs. Douglass.

Customs and Religion of the Irish—Mrs. Kennedy.

Refreshments, carrying out the "blarney" suggestions will be furnished by the members.

Mrs. C. C. Mardis entertains the club for this St. Patrick's meeting, and invites every woman in and around Muleshoe, to come, see what is being done, and join. This means you, so be there at three o'clock.

Mesdames C. B. Carles and E. R. Hart visited in the Homes of Mesdames Bonner and Price of Plainview, Sunday.

adjoining country on horeback.

Blanche and Holbert Shirley were Baileyboro visitors Sunday afternoon.

Baileyboro people attended Church services at Amherst the first three nights of the week.

Yellow House Oil Well To Be Drilled 5000 Ft.

Believing that some where under old mother earth there lies a great oil reservoir, at or near the Yellow House test, the officials of the company have decided that the drill shall penetrate the bowls of mother earth to the depth of 5000 ft, in search of the much coveted liquid gold.

These are the reports being circulated here. The initial contract depth was reached, the showing looked favorable, hence the additional depth. Oil men who are familiar with this section, believe, that around 3800 to 4200 feet the precious fluid will be found. But who can tell. Only the drill, slowly, but surely eating its way through the earth, can tell the story. Some where in this section of the South Plains it is an evident fact, that there lies a large reservoir of oil equally as large as any ever discovered in Texas to date, this is talked of, and agreed to by all oil men of authority, but where will it be located is another question.

Progress News

William and Ben Newman, of Dumont, visited in the W. D. Newman home week before last. Miss Opal returned home with them last Monday.

W. A. Kennedy was in Hereford last Thursday on business.

"The fool!" said Billy to Lydia, as Farwell finally began to bow himself off the platform.

Levine rose and began, "Ladies and gentlemen, this ends our program. We thank—"

He was interrupted here by applause from the Indians. Looking round he saw Charlie Jackson leading forward old Chief Wolf.

"Chief Wolf wants to say a few words," cried Charlie.

"The program is closed," called Levine loudly.

There was a threat in Charlie's voice. "He is going to speak!" And there was a threat in the Indian voices that answered from the audience. "Let speak! Let speak!"

Levine conferred hastily with Farwell and the Indian agent, then the three with manifest reluctance stood back and Charlie led the old Indian to the foot of the platform.

Old Wolf was half blind with trachoma. He was emaciated with sickness and slow starvation. Nevertheless, clad in the beaded buckskin and eagle feathers of his youth, with his hawk face held high he was a heroic figure of a man.

He held up his right hand and began to speak in a trembling old bass, Charlie's young tenor translating sentence by sentence.

"I come from the wick-i-ups of my fathers to say one last word to the whites. I have lived too long. I have seen my race change from young men strong and daring as eagles, as thrifty and fat as brown bears, to feeble yellow wolves fit only to lap the carrion thrown them by the whites, and to lie in the sun and die.

"And I say to you whites, you have done this. You swore by your God, in solemn council, that we could keep this reservation forever. With room for all the peoples of the world here, you could not find room for the Indian. You are a race of liars. You are a race of thieves. You have debauched our young men with your women. You have ruined our daughters with your men. You have taken our money. And now you are entering our last home with the hand of desolation. When the enemy enters the abiding place, the dweller is doomed. But I place the curse of the Indian Spirit on you and the land you are stealing. Some day it will be done to you as you have done to us. Some day—"

Levine stepped forward. "Jackson, take that Indian away," he commanded.

An angry murmur came from the Indians in the audience. A murmur that as Levine laid hold of old Wolf's arm, grew to strange calls. There was a surging movement toward the platform. Billy jumped on a box that he had found for a seat for Lydia.

"Charlie!" he roared. "Charlie! Remember there are women and children in this crowd."

"What do I care for your women and children?" shouted Charlie.

Then his glance fell on Lydia's golden head. She waved her hand to him beseechingly. Charlie hesitated for a moment, then spoke loudly in Indian to the crowd, and led old Wolf from the platform. The movement forward of the crowd and for a moment there was a complete segregation of Indians and whites.

Billy got down from his box with a sigh of relief. "That might have been an ugly moment," he said, "if Charlie hadn't seen you."

The noise of hawkers began again, but something had gone out of the celebration. The Indians stood about in groups, talking, Charlie and Chief Wolf the center always of the largest group.

Amos and John joined Billy and Lydia at the machine. "The war dancing begins at sundown," said Levine. "I told the Indian agent 'twas a risk to let them go on, after this episode. But he laughs at me. I don't like the look of things, though. I don't know but what I'd better get you folks home."

"I don't think Charlie Jackson would stand for any violence," said Billy.

"I don't know about that," Levine spoke thoughtfully. "He's left Doc Fulton and is living on the reservation again. They always revert."

"Listen! Listen!" cried Lydia.

There was a red glow behind the clouds low in the west. From the foot of the flagpole came a peculiar beat of drum. A white can beat a drum to carry one through a Gettysburg. An Indian can beat a drum to carry one's soul back to the sacrifice of blood upon a stony altar. This drum beat "magicked" Lydia and Billy. It was more than a to-sin, more than a dance rhythm, more than the spring call. They hurried to the roped-off circle round the flagpole, followed by John and Amos.

Into the ring, in all the multi-colored glory of beads and paint, swung a dozen moccasined braves. They moved in a step impossible to describe—a step grave, rhythmic, biting, now slow, three beats to a step, now swift, three steps to a beat.

Old chiefs, half blind with trachoma, scarred with scrofula and decrepit with starvation; young bucks, fresh and still strong, danced side by side, turned by the alchemy of the drum into like things, young and vivid as dawn.

Lydia shivered with excitement. Billy pulled her arm through his.

"I don't like this," he muttered. "I don't believe they mean any harm," said Lydia. "Lots of the whites started home before sunset, anyhow."

"I wish you had," replied Billy. "Gee, here it comes."

The chant suddenly changed to a yell. The drum beat quickened, and the great circle of dancing Indians broke and charged the crowd of whites. A number of them drew revolvers and began firing them into the air. Others drew their bows and the great circle of dancing Indians broke and charged the crowd of whites. A number of them drew revolvers and began firing them into the air. Others drew their bows and the great circle of dancing Indians broke and charged the crowd of whites.

"Kill 'em whites!" shrieked the squaws.

"Run 'em whites off our reservation!" shouted half a dozen young bucks.

Lydia was trembling but cool. "Good for them! Oh, Billy, good for them!" she exclaimed.

Thus far the whites had taken the proceedings as a joke. Then a white woman screamed—

"Run! It's a massacre!"

"Massacre" is a horrifying word to use to whites in an Indian country. Men and women both took up the cry—

"It's a massacre! Run!"

And the great crowd bolted.

Like pursuing wolves, the Indians followed, beating the laggards with their bows, shouting exultantly. Billy caught Lydia round the waist and held her in front of him as well as he could.

Then Lydia heard Billy's voice in her ear. "If this isn't stopped, it will be a massacre. We've got to find Charlie Jackson. He caught a screaming squaw by the arm."

"Susie, where's Charlie Jackson?" She jerked her thumb back toward the flagpole and twisted away.

"All right! Now we'll make for the pole, Lydia, get behind me and put your arms round my waist. Hang on, for heaven's sake."

Lydia did hang on for a few moments. But the flight was now developing into a free-for-all fight. And before she knew just how it happened, Lydia had fallen and feet surged over her.

She buried her face in her arms. It seemed an age to her before Billy had snatched her to her feet. In reality she was not down for more than two minutes. Billy swung her against his chest with one arm and swung out with his other, shouting at Indians and whites alike.

"You d-d beasts! You dirty d-d beasts!"

Lydia, bruised and shaken, clung to him breathlessly, then cried, "Go ahead, Billy!"

He glanced down at her and saw a streak of blood on her forehead. His face worked and he began to sob and curse like a madman.

Kicking, striking with his free arm, on his rolling from his lips, he burst through the crowd and rushed Lydia to the free space about the flagpole where Charlie Jackson stood coolly watching the proceedings.

Billy shook his fist under the Indian's nose.

"Get down there and call the pack off or I'll brain you."

Jackson shrugged his shoulders, calmly. "Let 'em have their fun. It's their last blowout. I hope they do kill Levine and Marshall."

Lydia pulled herself free of Billy. "Call them off, Charlie. It'll just mean trouble in the end for all of you if you don't."

Charlie looked at Lydia closely and his voice changed as he said, "You got hurt, Lydia? I'm sorry."

"Sorry! You d-d brute!" raved Billy. "I tell you, call off this row!"

The two young men glared at each other. Afterglow and firelight revealed a ferocity in Billy's face and a cool hatred in Charlie's that made Lydia gasp.

Billy put his face closer to Charlie's. "Call it off!" he growled.

Charlie returned Billy's stare for a long moment. Then sullenly, slowly, he turned and threw out across the night a long, shrill cry. He gave it again and again. At each repetition the noise of the mob grew less, and shortly panting, feverish-eyed bucks began to struggle into the light around the pole.

Then, without a word, Billy led Lydia away. The Indians passing them shook their bows at them but they were unmolested.

"Can you walk, Lydia? Do you think you're badly hurt?" asked Billy. "To think of me not scratched and you hurt! Your father ought to horse-whip me!"

"You saved me from being trampled to death!" cried Lydia, indignantly. "Oh, there's the auto."

"Billy got Charlie Jackson to call the Indians in," said Lydia.

"I'll wait for you at the willows, a mile below Last Chance," said Billy.

He was an indifferent chauffeur but he reached the willows without mishap.

Sitting with the murmur of the brook and the fragrance of marsh grass enveloping them, the two young people did not talk much.

"Billy," whispered Lydia, "you're so good to me and I was so horrid to you once."

Billy felt her fingers on his knee and instantly the thin little hand was enveloped in his warm fist. "Do you take it all back, Lydia?"

"Well, the horrid part of it, I do," she hedged.

"That's all right," returned the young man. "I'm willing to fight for the rest of it. Don't try to pull your hand away, because I intend to hold it till the folks come. You can't help yourself, so you have no responsibility in the matter."

So for an hour longer they sat, watching the summer night and waiting.

Finally two dim figures approached. "All right, Lydia?" asked Amos.

"Oh, yes! Yes!" she cried. "Are either of you hurt?"

"No," replied Levine. "We got hold

So for an Hour They Sat.

of Charlie Jackson about eleven and locked him up, then we felt secure."

"You aren't going to hurt Charlie?" cried Lydia.

"No, but we'll shut him up for a week or so," said Amos.

Lydia started the car homeward. They reached home at daylight. The celebration made table talk and newspaper topic for several days. No real attempt was made to punish the Indians. For once, the whites, moved by a sense of tardy and inadequate justice, withheld their hands.

It was just before college opened that Amos announced that he was going to buy the one hundred and twenty acres John had set aside for him.

"How are you going to pay for it?" Lydia asked.

"Don't you worry, I'll tend to that," replied Amos. "John's going to hold it for me, till I can get the pine cut off. That'll pay for the land."

"How much did you pay for it, Mr. Levine?" asked Lydia.

Lydia grinned. "I forget!"

Lydia sat with her chin cupped in

CHAPTER XIV

Lonely Island Might Have Been America's

By only a small margin did the State department at Washington miss having the worry of the helpless island of Tristan da Cunha added to its cares, for it was once claimed by an American. The island, a lonely British possession in the South Atlantic, had a measure of prosperity in the early years of the Nineteenth century when the whale enticed men and wooden ships into the region. It was a haven for sailing ships from Salem, Gloucester and Boston. A Salem man named Lambert and a companion took up their residence on Tristan da Cunha and Lambert declared himself sovereign and sole possessor of the island.

"On the rational and sure ground of absolute occupancy." His hope was to develop what might be called a "filling station" for whaling ships. But Lambert and his partner were drowned two years later in the tempestuous seas for which the island is infamous. Still the island has some things to recommend it. There are no laws and when it was proposed to give the people a constitution, they regarded such a document as superfluous, so the few inhabitants living there manage their affairs without the complication of written covenants.—National Geographic Society Bulletin.

her palm, her blue eyes on Levine. To the surprise of both men, she said nothing.

After the supper dishes were washed, and Amos was attending to the chickens, Lydia came slowly out to the front steps where Levine was sitting. She leaned her head against his arm and they sat in silence.

"Lydia," said John, finally, "how does the Great Search go on?"

"I don't think I make much headway," replied Lydia. "The older I grow, the less I understand men and I've always felt as if, if there was a God, He was a man."

"You mean male, rather than female," agreed John. "Lydia, dear, I wish you did have faith."

"But do you believe, yourself?" urged Lydia.

"Yes, I know that the soul can't die," said the man, quietly. "And the thing that makes me surest is the feeling I have for you. I know that I'll have another chance."

"What do you mean?" asked Lydia wonderingly.

"That, you'll never know," he replied.

"Well, I know that you're a dear," said the young girl, unexpectedly, "no matter how you get your Indian lands. And I love you to death."

She patted his cheek caressingly, and John Levine smiled sadly to himself in the darkness.

College life was not much unlike high school life for Lydia. She was very timid at first; suffered agony when called on to recite; reached all her classes as early as possible and sat in a far corner to escape notice.

But gradually, among the six thousand students she began to lose her self-consciousness and to feel that, after all, she was only attending a larger high school.

Except for flying visits home, John Levine spent the year at Washington. He was returned to congress practically automatically, at the end of his term. Kent throve mightily as a real estate man. He continued to call on Lydia at irregular intervals in order to boast, she thought, of his real estate acumen and of his correspondence with Margery and Olga, both of whom were now at boarding school.

One Sunday afternoon in March Amos was in town with John Levine, who was on one of his hurried visits home, when Billy Norton came over to the cottage.

Lydia saw at once that something was wrong.

"What's worrying you, Billy?" she asked.

"Lydia," he said, dropping into Amos' chair and folding his big arms, "you know my tract of land—the one I was going to buy from an Indian? I paid young Lone Wolf a ten-dollar option on it while I looked round to see how I could raise enough to pay him a fair price. He's only a kid of seventeen and stone blind from trachoma. Well, yesterday I found that Marshall had bought it in. He looked young Lone Wolf up and gave him a bag of candy. The Indians are crazy for candy. Then he told him to make his cross on a piece of paper. That that was a receipt that he was to keep and if he'd show it at the store whenever he wanted candy, he'd have all he wanted, for nothing. And he had two half-bred witnesses it. What Marshall had done was to get Lone Wolf to sign a warranty deed, giving Marshall his pine land. The poor devil of an Indian didn't know it till yesterday when he showed me his 'receipt' in great glee. Of course, they'll swear he's a mixed blood."

Lydia burst out, "Oh, I wish that reservation had never been heard of! It demoralizes every one who comes in contact with it."

"Lydia," said Billy, slowly, "I'm going to expose Marshall. I'm going to show up his crooked deals with the Indians. I'm going to rip this reservation graft wide open. I'm not going to touch an acre of the land myself so I can go in with clean hands and I'm not going to forget that I came pretty close to being a skunk, myself."

"Oh, but, Billy!" cried Lydia. "There's John Levine and all our friends—oh, you can't do it!"

"Look here, Lydia," Billy's voice was stern, "are you for or against Indian graft?"

Lydia drew a long breath but was spared an immediate answer for them was a knock on the door and Kent came in.

"Well," said Kent, after Lydia had settled them all comfortably, "I just left Charlie Jackson—poor old prune. He's been trying to keep the whites off the reservation by organizing the full bloods to stand against the half-breeds. But after a year of trying he's given up hope. He's drinking a little."

"And still you folks will keep on, stealing the reservation!" exclaimed Billy.

Nobody spoke for a moment. Lydia looked from Billy to Kent, and back again. Kent was by far the handsomer of the two. He dressed well, and sat now, knees crossed, hands clasped behind his head, with easy grace. Billy was a six-footer, larger than Kent and inclined to be raw-boned. His mouth was humorous and sensitive, his gray eyes were searching.

Billy stayed and helped Lydia to clean up the dishes. Kent would never have thought of this, Lydia said to herself with a vague pang. When they had finished Billy gravely took Lydia's coat from the hook and said, "Come, woman, and walk in the gloaming with your humble servant."

Lydia giggled and obeyed. They walked briskly till a rise in the road gave them a view of the lake and a scarlet rift in the sky where the sun had sunk in a bank of clouds.

"Now, Lydia," said Billy, "answer my question. Are you for or against Indian graft?"

Lydia's throat tightened. "I won't take sides against Mr. Levine," she replied.

"Do you mean that you don't want me to expose Marshall?" asked Billy.

"You've no right to ask me that," Lydia's voice was cross.

"But I have, Lydia, though you don't want it, my life is yours. No matter whether we can ever be anything else, we are friends, aren't we friends in the deepest sense of the word—aren't we, Lydia?"

Friendship! Something very warm and high and fine entered Lydia's heart.

"Yes, we are friends, Billy," she said slowly. "But oh, Billy, don't make me decide that! You'll have to let me think about it. You see, it's deciding my attitude toward all my friends, even toward dad. And I hadn't intended ever to decide."

"And will you tell me, tomorrow, or next day, Lydia?"

"I'll tell you as soon as I decide," she answered.

Amos brought John Levine home with him for supper. It seemed to Lydia that Levine never had been dearer to her than he was that evening. He did not talk of the Indians, to Lydia's relief, but of Washington politics. As the evening drew to a close, and Amos went out to his chickens as usual after Lizzie had gone to bed, John turned to Lydia.

"Really grown up, aren't you, Lydia? Do you enjoy being a young lady?"

"Yes, I do, only I miss the old days when I saw so much of you. No one will ever understand me as you do."

"Oh, I don't know. There are Billy and Kent."

"There'll never be any one like you," then moved by a sudden impulse she leaned toward him and said, "No matter what happens, you will always know that I love you, won't you, Mr. Levine?"

John looked at the wistful face keenly. "Why, what could happen, young Lydia?"

"Oh, lots of things! I'm grown up now—and I have to make decisions about the rightness and the wrongness of things. But no matter what I decide, nothing can change my love for you."

"When you were just a little tot," said Levine, "you were full of gumption and did your own thinking. And I've been glad to see you keep the habit. Always make your own decisions, dear. Don't let me or any one else decide matters of conscience for you."

He rose as he heard Amos coming in the back door, and with his hand under Lydia's chin, he looked long and earnestly into her eyes. Then as Billy had done earlier in the evening, he sighed, "Oh, Lydia! Lydia!" and turned away.

A Benefactor

A physician who reaches out to benefit humanity leaves a record behind him that is worth while. Such a man was Dr. R. V. Pierce.

His study along medical lines, and his knowledge of the remedial qualities of herbs and plants led to the discovery of his wonderful herb remedy, Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It is just the tonic required if a woman is borne down by pain and sufferings at regular or irregular intervals, by nervousness or dizzy spells, headache or backache. Favorite Prescription can be had in tablet form as well as liquid at your neighborhood store.

Students on Ships

Several of the trans-Atlantic steamship lines, during the past summer season, carried in the quarters usually occupied by steerage passengers hundreds of men and women, classed as "college tourists," who were accorded an exceptionally low rate. The same service will be continued this year, probably with increased numbers taking advantage of it. There was a time when most "college tourists" worked their way across. First, the hardest of them used to go on cattle boats as, one might say, "deep-sea cowboys." Then they found openings as deckhands, kitchen (or galley) helpers, "boots," bath stewards, jazz orchestra men, etc. Now the United States shipping board has issued an order to stop all this. It claims that experience has shown that the practice of engaging collegiate tourists for such jobs has tended "to demoralize the permanent force and interfered with the policy of building up American crews for our merchant marine." Whether or not this is true, we cannot quite understand how the shipping board hopes to discourage college tourists who prefer to work their way across, says the Philadelphia Record. The same sort of young men will grab the jobs when they can, merely refraining from admitting that they are "collegiate."

The age of jazz has raised the age limit for marriage among the female contingent, according to those who have studied the tendencies of the times. These authorities agree that no girl should undertake the management of a home until she is ready to give up her financial independence and accept the role of home-maker. In these days, that age is seldom reached until a girl is in her twenties, sometimes it is much later than this. The modern girl has established a reputation for irresponsibility, and lack of self-sacrifice. She is accused of being a jazz devotee with no serious attitude toward life. Until she has outgrown these tendencies, she is unfit for the role of wife and home-maker, and nothing but unhappiness can come of a marriage under such conditions, they say. In grandmother's day it was different, says the Detroit News. The home was the main idea, grandmother didn't do the charleston, and was content to spin and attend to her home duties. That is why she could marry young with safety.

What to do in the evening of a man's day, assuming even comparative affluence and leisure, may be answered in many ways, according to the man's taste or the inclination of his interest.

Conauncey M. Depew, facing the mild vicissitudes of his ninety-third year, turns to one of the latest of modern diversions, the radio, and amuses himself by fishing sounds from the air, though he mars the picture to some extent by petulant rallery against too much music, adding that he prefers sober talks on one thing and another, talks on health topics, for instance, or politics, perhaps, and other things not so appealing to the general run of radio fans.

There is no such thing as "sleeping like a top" for eight hours—the period of slumber generally supposed to be necessary to the average human—if we may believe Prof. H. M. Johnson of the Mellon Institute, Pittsburgh, who has been making experiments with sleeping persons whose rest was recorded by apparatus attached to a hanging bed on which they slumbered. But if the sleeper upon awakening in the morning is convinced that he has had eight hours of continuous sleep he has had it, for all practical purposes, and that's all there is about it.

New York has philanthropic plans for doing away with "slums." Such plans have hitherto been regarded as visionary. But good roads and the automobile now enable a man, whatever his occupation, to find a home in the open spaces, if he has the courage and energy to do so.

Myrtle, the escaped elephant, found that the forests of British Columbia do not yield the nourishing food found in those of India and Africa. The north Pacific coast is no country for a wild elephant or the first settlers might have found some there.

In sending Abd-el-Krim to the island of Reunion France puts the whole continent of Africa between him and the Rift and will doubtless prevent all radio communication. But the climate of that tropic isle is likely to sap the energy of the mountain chieftain.

Jerusalem says that the prince of Wales will visit Palestine next year to dedicate a cemetery at Mt. Scopus. The prince says that he will visit the United States next year. All of which makes it look as if he had a good deal of mileage ahead of him.

A skull bearing evidence of having been tropaned in the old caveman days has been unearthed in Gallilee, which should give a new fillip to the argument over who was the real "father of surgery."

LINDA KARAM BEY

Linda Karam Bey is known as Egypt's wealthiest woman and one of the largest cotton producers in her country.

Not to be outdone by barbers, who are now chirotorsors, and undertakers, who have become morticians, a hypnotist, according to Dr. Morton Prince, is really a "repersonalizationist."

Science is always doing something useful. A psychologist has just found that there are more left-handed boys than girls. This knowledge will probably advance civilization a few centavies in a jiffy.

Ever since the wind died down at Miami the country has been hearing from building material interests, each claiming the superiority of their particular variety of material, as proved in the test afforded by the storm. A good deal of real, worth-while information about building has been purveyed, in consequence. As to which withstood the onslaughts of the wind and water the best is a matter about which there is a difference of opinion. The one great lesson of the storm, however, as far as building is concerned, is that it pays to build substantially. The brick dealers, the cement dealers, the lumber dealers, all are able to present evidence that buildings constructed of the material that they sell met the test superbly. But in each instance of a building which came through unscathed or little damaged, it was to be noted that both the material and the manner of construction were substantial. Shoddy material of any sort and slipshod workmanship make any building unsafe in time of stress. The better buildings movement has been given impetus by a study of the Florida catastrophe.

One of the beneficent effects of the automobile is in raising the standard of medical service in the rural districts. With the motor car the doctor can accomplish from three to four times as much, even without the allowance which at busy seasons he would have to make for the limitations to the endurance of his horses. Side by side with the motor the telephone has done much to save life. People somehow or other lived to a good old age back in the benighted '80s. But it seems strange that anyone then should have filled up the measure of the Psalmist's allotted season when we think of the drives of half a dozen miles that were sometimes necessary to reach the doctor and his slow covering of the same route.

American railroads are the safest in the world to ride on. They are safer than any other kind of transportation. But you can make them even safer by being more careful. The welfare of yourself and family may be involved.

The railroads are making a vigorous effort to reduce accidents.

Won't you help?

You can help in many ways and especially by observing these ten don'ts.

DON'T cross railroad tracks, either walking or driving, until you stop and look in both directions, whether view is obstructed or not.

Stop—look—listen!

DON'T try to cross tracks in front of an approaching train. It pays to wait.

DON'T cross a track after a train has passed, until you have made sure no train is coming from the opposite direction.

DON'T walk or stand on railroad tracks. If compelled to walk in railroad yards, avoid walking between the rails of any one track. There is usually room between the tracks.

DON'T let your children play around railroad tracks or trains. Teach them to play elsewhere.

DON'T get on or off a non-passenger freight train, or crawl under it.

DON'T attempt to get on or off a moving passenger train. Wait until it stops.

DON'T be careless when stepping on or off a standing passenger train. Watch your step.

DON'T stand on platforms of passenger cars. It is safer inside.

DON'T place hand or arm in an open window. The window may close unexpectedly.

Two-thirds of all railroad accidents are incurred by persons going on railroad tracks without stopping, looking and listening.

You share in the responsibility for these accidents.

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale MARY GRAHAM BONNER

THE SLUSH

"Most people don't think a day when it is half raining and snowing is nice, but I can tell you the Brownies did," said Daddy to Nick and Nancy.

"I think it would be nice to tell you this cool March story on a warm day, too."

"I meant to tell it to you much earlier in the year but there are always so many stories to tell!"

"It was evening, and all day the Brownies had been snuggled in different little hiding places, bobbing up and down with excitement as they watched the hot sun melt the snow."

"They ran behind trees as they traveled to the village nearby their woods just so they could see the people looking annoyed at the slush, when they heard anyone say:

"What horrid weather we're having! I do dislike March so!" the Brownies almost chuckled aloud, and they certainly grinned from ear to ear.

"The Brownies thought people were very ridiculous when they grumbled about the weather.

"So they waited with glee until the evening came.

"Then they had a party. The Brownies divided themselves into two sides for the evening.

"Each side was given a separate part of the woods in which to get up something original.

"Six Judges were chosen apart. "The Brownies which had the best exhibit were to sit still during supper and be waited on by the others.

"They were to get all the goodies first.

"So each side worked hard to make its exhibit win. One side was called the fat Brownies and the other side the round Brownies.

"The exhibit of the round Brownies was a snow house, which, of course, was beautifully made because the snow was wet and stuck together well.

"But the fat Brownies had made a fine park. They had made paths and smoothed off the snow to edge the paths with flower beds.

"In the flower beds they had stuck twigs and little branches.

"On these they had put snowballs, which, too, had stuck because of the wet snow.

"Really, their park looked very funny, but the Brownies all thought it was perfect, and the round Brownies agreed with the judges when they said that the fat Brownies had the most original and interesting exhibit.

"So they all sat down on little snowy stumps of trees while the round Brownies waited on them.

"They had brownie soup, which is perfectly delicious, and, of course, it was piping hot.

"They call it Brownie soup because it is brown.

"Then they had croquettes with brown gravy and brown potatoes, and for dessert they had brown Betty pudding.

"The judges' wives had cooked the supper, and they received a great deal of praise for it.

"The fat Brownies thought it was wonderful to be waited on, and the round Brownies enjoyed popping up and getting everything, for then they thought they appreciated the good things to eat still more.

"And they all hoped the snow would melt some more so that they could have another party the next night and wear their new rubber boots."

"Oh," said Nancy, "I feel much cooler hearing that story."

"Yes," said Nick, "the very word snow is pleasant to hear on a hot evening."

"I think so, too," agreed Daddy, laughing.

QUEER QUIRKS IN HUMAN DESTINY

By HARRY R. CALKINS WNU Service

The Stratagem of Oglethorpe THE flight of a deserter, which at first threatened the ruin of the colony of Georgia, turned out to be the means of deceiving a large attacking force of Spaniards and saving the colony from falling into the hands of Spain.

The Spaniards were by nature poor colonizers. Although their claim to Florida embraced all of Georgia they had taken no steps to colonize the territory when in 1732 General Oglethorpe established an English colony in that region. Ten years later, on July 5, 1742, a fleet of fifty-six armed war vessels, with more than 5,000 Spanish soldiers aboard, sailed into St. Simon's harbor on the Georgia coast to drive out the English.

General Oglethorpe was sorely pressed by the invaders. His total force consisted of two ships and about six hundred men. Realizing the futility of withstanding a siege in his stronghold of Frederica, General Oglethorpe boldly attacked the Spaniards in the forest, his troops following Indian tactics and firing from behind trees.

Oglethorpe had an advantage in the ignorance of the Spaniards as to the strength of his force. After several skirmishes, in which the English came off victorious, a large party of Spaniards was ambushed and routed by a small company of English. Oglethorpe now felt encouraged to make a surprise attack in force. His plans were upset by a Frenchman who deserted from the English after firing a shot to warn the Spanish camp. Destruction now faced the colonists as the deserter would certainly reveal their weakness to the Spaniards.

Oglethorpe employed a clever stratagem to escape this danger. He wrote a letter to the deserter, addressing him as though he was an English spy and instructing him how to deceive the Spaniards by belittling the English strength and drawing them into a trap. This letter was entrusted to a Spanish prisoner to be delivered to the Frenchman in the Spanish camp. Of course it fell into the hands of Don Manuel de Maitiano, the Spanish general. He was deceived as Oglethorpe intended. When the Frenchmen attempted to disclose the true weakness of their foes, the Spaniards disbelieved him. So shaken were they by fear of being greatly outnumbered that, when Oglethorpe sent his two ships against their fleet, the entire force was embarked and fled, leaving Georgia in peace.

Christianity in Asia

A QUARRREL between two leaders in the first Crusade led to the establishment of the first Christian nation in Asia.

After the capture of Nice, capital of the Turkish kingdom of Roum, June 20, 1097, by a Christian army, Tancred and Baldwin were sent ahead of the main host with a body of cavalry. Tancred took the city of Tarsus, which Baldwin immediately proposed pillaging. Tancred had given a pledge that the city would be protected from the soldiery and he opposed Baldwin's design. Thereupon Baldwin split the cavalry force, taking his own disgruntled followers into other parts.

Emperor Alexis of the Greek empire had been astonished and frightened at the numbers of armed men that his appeal for aid against the infidel had called into his realm and had adroitly contrived to divide the Christian forces in such a way as to prevent too many being encamped about Constantinople at one time. This policy left Baldwin in the field free to pursue his ambitious course without the restraint of his brother, Godfrey of Bouillon, chief general of the Crusaders.

The Greek tyrant of Edessa, who reigned as tributary of the Turks, let it be known that he would welcome the aid of Baldwin in strengthening his throne. He even adopted Baldwin as his son and invited him into the city. The Christian leader displayed a strange conception of filial duty by marching into Edessa and putting his adopted father to death, seizing the throne for himself. While other bands of Crusaders were pressing on toward Jerusalem, fighting the Turks at every step, Baldwin settled down to the more congenial task of establishing his Christian monarchy and extending his domain.

What the Emperor Alexis most feared from the great influx of European warriors into the Near East apparently was about to come to pass—they were settling down to stay. The downfall of the Eastern Empire, however, was not to take place until nearly three centuries later, and then it was to be brought about by foes from the east, not the west. The Turks eventually triumphed over the decaying civilization of Constantinople in the Fifteenth century, and became a perpetual nuisance to Christian Europe.

"Gridiron" in Football

A gridiron is a grated utensil for broiling food over a fire. Hence any network, as of pipes, railway tracks, etc., is called a gridiron. For a similar reason the term was applied in this country to a football field, because every five yards the field is traversed by white lines.—Exchange.

Improved Uniform International Sunday School Lesson

(By REV. F. D. FLIZWATER, D.D., Dean of the Evening School, Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.) (© 1927, Western Newspaper Union.)

Lesson for February 27 MAKING THE COMMUNITY CHRISTIAN Temperance Lesson.

LESSON TEXT—Gal. 5:13-25. GOLDEN TEXT—Have no fellowship with the unfruitful works of darkness, but rather reprove them.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Serving One Another by Love. JUNIOR TOPIC—The Law of Love. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Self-Control for the Sake of Others. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Works of Darkness and Works of Light.

The only way this can be called a way of making the world Christian is by leading the individuals to a personal knowledge and experience of Jesus Christ and entering therefore into the power of the new life. Having shown in chapters 3 and 4 of this epistle that the believer is free from the law as a means of justification, Paul makes practical application of this doctrine. The divine way of making the community Christian is to secure the regeneration of the individual. The way to destroy the work of the devil is through the sonship of believers.

1. Christian Freedom (vv. 13-15). It is not an occasion to the "flesh" (v. 13).

Liberty is not license. The notion that when one is free from the law, that he is free from constraint, is wickedly erroneous. License of the flesh means not merely the indulgence of the flesh in actual material sins, but in the expression of a self-centered life in biting and devouring one another (v. 15).

2. By love serving one another (v. 13).

Freedom from the Mosaic law means slavery to the law of love. The emerging from bondage through Christ is the passing into a sphere of life in which all the powers should act under the dominion of the true motive, love—Morgan. Love thus becomes the fulfillment of the law.

11. Walking in the Spirit (vv. 16-18).

This discloses the secret of how a life of service to another can be lived. The governing principle in the life of a believer is the Holy Spirit. Walking in the Spirit results in:

1. Loving service to others. 2. Victory over the flesh (vv. 16, 17).

By the flesh is meant the corrupt nature of man expressing itself in the realm of sense and self. The renewed man is two men between which is going on a mortal conflict. The Christian must choose between good and evil. When he chooses the evil, the Holy Spirit opposes, and when he chooses the good the flesh opposes. Notwithstanding this deadly conflict, victory is sure.

111. The Works of the Flesh (vv. 19-21).

By works of the flesh is meant the operation of the carnal nature. The one who chooses to live according to the impulse and desires of his natural heart will be practicing the following sins:

1. Sensuality (v. 19). 2. Irreligion (v. 20). These acts take place in the realm of the spirit and are:

(1) Idolatry, which means the worshiping of idols. (2) Witchcraft or sorcery. This means all dealing with the occult.

3. Sins of temper (vv. 20, 21). These take place in the sphere of the mind and are:

(1) Hatred. (2) Variance, which means strife and contention. (3) Emulations, jealousy. (4) Wrath, bursts of passion. (5) Seditions, factions in the state. (6) Heresies, factions in the church. (7) Envyings. (8) Murders.

4. Sins of excess (v. 21). (1) Drunkenness. This means indulgence in intoxicating liquors. (2) Revelings, acts of dissipation under the influence of intoxicants. These who practice such sins shall be excluded from the kingdom of God.

IV. The Fruit of the Spirit (vv. 22-24).

This indicates action in the realm of life. The product of the Holy Spirit indwelling the believer.

(1) Love to God and man. (2) Joy, glad-heartedness because of what God has done. (3) Peace with God and fellowman. (4) Long-suffering, taking insult and injury without murmuring. (5) Gentleness, kindness to others. (6) Goodness, doing good to others. (7) Faith, believes God and commits all to Him. (8) Meekness, submission to God. (9) Temperance, self-control in all things. Against such there is no law.

Underrating Value Oh, do we not too frequently underrate the value of the promises of God? They were made to us and we should trust them, for they are as true as the God by whom they were made.—Echoes.

Exceedingly Difficult It is exceedingly difficult for one's heart to bow and say, "I will be nothing but a lamb," but that is our place, for the Lord says, "Vengeance is mine."—Echoes.

Keeping the System So Clean There Are No Bodily Odors

A lot of people who never have to take a laxative eat a candy cascaret now and then. Do you know why?

They have found that cascara sweetens the whole system—brings an immaculacy of person that means everything. It prevents bodily chemistry from ever making one unconsciously offensive to others. And what a perfect regulator of the bowels!

Salts affect the lining of the bowels. Mineral oils leave a coating that the blood must carry off through the pores. How much better to cascade the system, and cause the bowels to expel everything by normal muscular contraction! To say nothing of the cleaner, sweeter condition that lasts for days—a wholesome condition that makes the use of deodorants quite unnecessary in January or July! Men and women whose years have brought on sluggishness often find that a cascaret only once a week is all the tonic they need.

Cascara is splendid for children, too, and they love the taste of this candy laxative which every drugstore has for 10c and 25c.

A car for every purse and purpose

THIS YEAR the General Motors line is an imposing Automobile Show in itself. Here is every style of body. Every type of design — four cylinder, six cylinder, eight cylinder. Every improvement. Every price, from the Chevrolet touring car at $510 to the Cadillac with special coach work at $9,000. A car for every purse and purpose. Every one of the models now on display is different and distinguished. Yet two unifying characteristics bind them all together:

1 EVERY CLOSED BODY is by Fisher. The quality of all body workmanship is Fisher quality, and because Fisher is owned by General Motors, every resource has been utilized to make body and chassis a perfect quality unit.

2 EVERY MODEL has shared in the advantages of General Motors research, purchasing standards and Proving Ground tests; and in the economies of volume production. Dollar for dollar you will buy more value in the car you select because of General Motors quality and the public's purchase of more than 1,200,000 General Motors cars last year.

THE GENERAL MOTORS line is a direct result of the record-breaking patronage accorded by the public in 1926. The economies which this great volume afforded have been passed on to the car purchaser in even better quality. With great pride we invite you to inspect these new General Motors cars and to make one or more of them your own.

Popular Texan Praises Tanlac Patrick Dougherty New Man Now

Widely and well known in Southern states, Mr. Dougherty had had breakdown due to stomach trouble of 10 years' standing. Tried Tanlac and felt improved; persevered and fully overcame distressing symptoms

In his active outdoor life as a dealer in horses and mules, Mr. Patrick Dougherty has traveled all through the South, making and keeping a host of friends. His home is now at 203 West Central Ave., Fort Worth, Texas. For ten years stomach trouble afflicted him. "I suffered untold agony," he said recently. "The very odor of food sickened me and what little I could eat lay like a stone in my stomach. Each morning I would rise with an awful pain inside me, and I had no heart for the day's work. Life was a dreary drudge to me then. I grew weak and sallow, lost weight and was easily exhausted. I grew discouraged and depressed.

"Seeing what it had done for other sick folks, I gave Tanlac a trial and can truthfully say it gave me relief. Three bottles convinced me of its value so I continued till six were finished. The awful weight and pains in my stomach soon disappeared and my appetite came back. I was able to sleep naturally again for the first time in years. Now I'm strong and well; nothing bothers me. Tanlac will always have a warm place in my heart."

What Tanlac did for Mr. Dougherty it has done for many thousands of others. Over a hundred thousand grateful friends have written to tell us so. If you're in poor health, try Tanlac. Your druggist has it. Over 52 million bottles sold.

The Best Laxative He Ever Tried

Mr. W. J. Dorlon, New York, writes: "Sick headache, indigestion and constipation have troubled me for years. I tried everything but I can truthfully say your CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS is the best laxative I have ever used. I find that they are small, easy to take and their action does not pain me. They keep me regular and I want to tell you how I appreciate this purely vegetable medicine, knowing, due to my experience in laboratory work that laxatives, containing Mercury, Calomel and other poisonous drugs are injurious."

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS are sugar coated, small, easy to swallow, and everyone in the family can take them in perfect confidence as they are a doctor's own formula.

FLORAL PRINTS FOR HOUSEWEAR; SUPPLE SILHOUETTE IN FAVOR

SOME airs the erstwhile simple housedress is putting on nowadays! Even the materials from which it is made are delightfully camouflaging in appearance, especially the highly mercerized cottons whose colorful floral prints duplicate in patterning and in sheen the more expensive silks. When it comes to laundering, these handsome prints prove them-printed linens which include both neat conventional motifs or themes as brilliantly colorful as one might make. Organdie trimmings lend a charming trimming to materials of heavier weave. Pique, also organdie in pure white are used for collar, cuffs and pocket on gay gingham. What with a notably "different" play on color and a changing mood selves not only lovable, but tubable to the point of perfection.

The compose mode is given a place of first importance in the styling of the "last word" washable frocks. To the "I-always-make-my-own-wash-dresses" enthusiast here is a timely hint—when you buy a dress length of fancy print or gay gingham, be sure to purchase a solid colored material for the pockets, necktie, collar, cuffs and other trimming details. Then again choose a rather "fussy" pattern, at least see to it that there be no suggestion of the at-one-time popular bungalow apron style. Rather select a model as here pictured, with circular skirt, fancy tie-collar 'n' everything.

Cotton fabrics were never so alluring as at this very moment. Highly mercerized weaves patterned in foudlard suggestions are among most reof the silhouette, it is just one thrill after another along the pathway of spring and summer fashions.

Especially are new color combinations and effects being whirled into the arena of the mode at a dizzying rate. Fashionists are defining color in the plural. This color compose idea, which is the underlying principle of most of the fashionable color schemes, interprets two methods, that of combining various tones and tints of the same color, or using contrast shades.

It is the modish color plus color idea which so enhances the attractive frock in this picture. For this model the designer employs queen's blue crepe with French gray. The latter is used for the blouse below the bolero outline and for the collar and below-the-elbow sleeve puffs. Another color version which could be successfully worked out in this frock would be cent showings in the wash-goods section. One of these can't-tell-from-silk fabrics which glorifies the colorful cotton print was chosen for the attractive daytime washable frock in the picture. Its monotone color trim expresses an outstanding style note.

Sprightly floral prints prevail in spring cottons. Among charming new washable materials cotton crepes are shown patterned in tiny blossoms with a tweed-like background, basistes in alluring flower designs on a white base, volles belowered in resplendent coloring and the latest effects are that of Grecian rose with monkey skin, the new pinkish tone introduced this season. Which all goes to show that the two-color theme is playing a tremendously important part in the styling of crepe, also crepe-satin frocks for afternoon wear.

Of no less interest than the color question is that of the supple silhouette, which is giving such a feminized aspect to the mode. Skirts whose fullness is attained through plaits or gathers, the bolero and the blouse combine to achieve the soft, pretty comforts so approved for the coming months. The frock in the picture is characteristic of this new vogue. For the upper portion of the bodice the stylist uses the queen's blue crepe, simulating a bolero posed over a very smart blouse. Plaits at the front of the skirt only, further interpret the mode.

The fact that so many of the new materials are soft and often sheer gives impetus to the new graceful silhouette.

And then Grandma Danced

"WE were quite alarmed about mother. She wouldn't eat, was terribly constipated, bilious, and seemed to be fading fast. We thought it due entirely to her 86 years of age. But a neighbor brought over a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin and it was really remarkable how she picked right up, and now she can even dance around with her grandchildren. Now we are never without Syrup Pepsin in the house." (Name and address furnished upon request.)

Drugs Excite the Kidneys, Drink Water

Take Salts at First Sign of Bladder Irritation or Backache

The American men and women must guard constantly against kidney trouble because we often eat too much rich food. Our blood is filled with acids which the kidneys strive to filter out; they weaken from overwork, become sluggish, the eliminative tissues clog and the result is kidney trouble, bladder weakness and a general decline in health.

When your kidneys feel like lumps of lead; your back hurts or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment, or you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night; if you suffer with sick headache, or dizzy, nervous spells, acid stomach, or if you have rheumatism when the weather is bad, begin drinking lots of good soft water and get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts. Take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine.

This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help flush and stimulate clogged kidneys, to neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer are a source of irritation, thus often relieving bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, cannot injure, makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink and belongs in every home, because nobody can make a mistake by having a good kidney flushing any time.

Why So Piffing?

We would like to stop for just a little sermon. Why need all the stories of motion pictures be so piffing? Why need the heroes and heroines have to be fairly plastered with virtues? Wouldn't a good deal of creditable behavior be assumed by the audiences if all the tags were left off, and average people just put through their paces? Maybe not. But there is one thing we are sure of, and that is that which is enchanting to the eye can be greatly increased if there is some genuine emotion behind it. Heywood Brown writes in Judge. The world is a long way from wanting its aesthetes cold. We have always had the theory that what made the Merry Widow waltz so much the superior of all its rivals was that it was the climax of an emotional scene. The widow and her prince had quarreled and gone their ways, but they met for one last waltz. The music was excellent, and the dancers were young, romantic and skillful. But there have been waltzes danced just as well and better, that have hardly lasted through to the hotel orchestras. The reason was that they were simply stuck into the middle of a musical piece, made their fugitive demand on the eye and ear, and said not a word to the heart.
