Big Spring Lawyer Announces Here for District Judge Job

Announcement was made by Clyde E. Thomas, Big Spring attorney, Saturday of his candidacy for district judge of the 70th judicial district.

Thomas was a candidate for the position in 1934 race, and finished second in a three-man race, with drawing his name in the runoff primary with Charles Klapproth, incumbent.

In announcing his candidacy, Thomas said: "I am announcing my candidacy for the office of Judge of the 70th Judicial District, he desires to thank those in the last election four years ago, who took an interest in his behalf. Judge Thomas, receiving approximately 3,000 votes, lost to Judge Klapproth, the incumbent, who received 3,500, with Paul Moss of Odessa, taking the remaining 1,600 votes.

"My opponent," states Thomas, "in that election was and is a splendid fellow, and well known throughout the district, and under the circumstances the number of votes I received, with the number of votes I received, with three in the race.

"I am now 55 years of age, and have had a very varied and wide experience in the practice of law. This practice has not been confined just to the Trial Courts; I have had continually, for the past fifteen years, a good practice in the Appellate Courts, the Courts of Civil Appeals, the Supreme Court of Texas, and in the United States Circuit Court of Appeals. Experience who actual trial work in civil cases, together with appellate work in taking care of the record, is necessary for efficient, speedy and just administration of the District Court.

"In case I am elected as your District Judge, I will, of course, give my undivided time and attention to the duties of the office. I will do my best to handle the office with speed and dispatch and, therefore, economy; with my experience, I believe I can handle the office economically, with fairness and righteousness in all of my decisions.

GOP Support To South on Lynching Act

Scant Chance for Restricting the Debate Foreseen

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15 (AP).—Senator McNary of Oregon said today that republican senators would oppose any attempt to shut off debate on the anti-lynching bill.

"We can not vote for cloture (debate limitation)," the republican leader said. "We have few enough rights left, and we ought to try to preserve those we do have." Some proponents of the bill have urged a limitation on debate to end the filibuster of southern members.

Southern senators, cheered by the republican stand, asserted that there now was no chance the bill's sponsors could muster the necessary two-thirds vote to impose cloture. Without such a limitation, they said, their filibuster, now in its ninth day, could be kept going indefinitely.

Night sessions—another parliamentary weapon generally used against filibusters—have been discussed, but Senator Barkley of Kentucky, the democratic leader, reiterated today he did not know when they might be held.

Senator McKellar (D-Tenn.) asserted that night sessions "will only stiffen our opposition." In Parliamentary Knot. Southerners tied the senate in parliamentary knots late yesterday with numerous demands for quorum and roll calls.

Senator Connally (D-Tex) protested that "if the senate is going to make us stay here and discuss this infernal legislation then the senate is going to have to stay here and listen."

While the senate wrangled with its lynching debate, some members of the house appropriations committee rebelled against approval of legislation to give the president power to veto separate items in appropriation bills. This authority was included in the independent offices appropriation bill passed by the house Tuesday.

Local Scouts After Attendance Award At Council Meeting

Anticipating the winning of the special attendance award, a large crowd of Midland scout leaders and parents of Boy Scouts will attend the annual meeting and banquet of the Buffalo Trail Council, Boy Scouts of America, at the Settle hotel in Big Spring, Tuesday afternoon and evening, the local delegation to be headed by G. W. Brennehan, chairman of the Midland district, and Claude O. Crane, council scout commissioner.

The meeting will be of the convention type, beginning at 2:30 in the afternoon with group discussions and a business meeting. In the evening, beginning at 6:30, a banquet with a program of entertainment and inspiration will be given in the Crystal ballroom. L. B. Denning of Dallas, president of the Lone Star Gas Company and chairman of Boy Scout Region Nine, will deliver the principal address at the banquet. Ladies are cordially invited to attend the banquet and special entertainment has been arranged for them during the afternoon.

Dean Fastes Year

Believing he can "give up all material life and not die" because the soul is above such needs, Dean Israel H. Noe, above, of St. Mary's Episcopal Cathedral at Memphis, Tenn., has undertaken a fast to prove his belief. Friends said that Dean Noe went on an orange juice diet more than a year ago, and that on Jan. 2, 1938, he gave up even orange juice and up to 12 days later, at least, had taken no food or water except a tiny communion wafer and a sip of wine three times weekly. The friends added that Dean Noe was thin and drawn, and "looked bad."

Hopes Abandoned of Persuading Dean to Give Up Soul Fast

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Jan. 15 (AP).—Hope was abandoned today of persuading the very Rev. Israel Harding Noe to give up his quest to establish himself as living proof of immortality through fasting and prayer, after his eldest brother failed to swerve him from his decision.

"I feel there is nothing I can do," said the Rev. Thomas Noe, head of the Diocesan church home of York, S. C., last night before boarding a train for home after a day's visit with the now emaciated Dean.

"I believe my brother is thoroughly sincere and honest in seeking to achieve a spiritual plane of life. I denied my brother's material benefits. If my brother considers his action right, both as a brother and a priest, I must respect his opinion and his right to faith."

The 14th day of his abstinence from both food and water, after a year on oranges alone, found the Dean confronted with his usual heavy week-end work schedule. Revelation of Dean Noe's fast again brought him widespread publicity, which began six years ago when his wife sought a divorce on grounds of physical abandonment. The divorce suit was denied by chancery court, circuit court and the Tennessee supreme court. Last month, the dean and Mrs. Noe re-established their home at the deanery after a reconciliation.

CC Banquet Program Is Arranged

Record Number of Guests Expected At Affair Friday

Completion of arrangements for the program to be presented at the annual banquet of the Midland chamber of commerce in the Crystal ballroom of Hotel Scharbauer Friday evening at 7:30 o'clock, was announced Saturday by Mayor M. C. Ulmer, toastmaster for the annual affair, who said that some of the most talented musicians of the city had accepted invitations to appear on the program which will be brief but highly entertaining.

A vocal solo by Mrs. J. M. Hawkins, a violin selection by Mrs. Tom Sealy and several numbers by a male quartet will feature the musical program for the evening. Accompanists for the artists had not been announced yesterday. The quartet numbers are being arranged by Ed Watts.

The principal address will be delivered by Hon. John R. Suman of Houston, vice-president of the Humble Oil and Refining Company, official of the American Petroleum Institute, and a prominent figure in the oil industry of the state and nation. "Petroleum and the Future of the Permian Basin" has been announced as the subject of Mr. Suman's timely address which will be most interesting to citizens of this section. The speaker will be introduced by K. L. Sappington, superintendent of the Permian Petroleum Corporation here and chairman of the Permian Basin Chapter of the American Petroleum Institute.

Election of officers and directors of the chamber of commerce for 1938 also will be held at the meeting, the nominating committee being composed of J. E. Hill, chairman, W. T. Doherty, Allen Watts and R. M. Barron. Present officers are Marion Flynn, president, W. B. Simpson and Ed M. Whitaker, vice president, and R. M. Barron, treasurer.

Tickets for the banquet went on sale this week with a thorough canvass of the downtown district being scheduled to get underway Monday morning. A crowd of over 300 persons is anticipated. W. B. Simpson is chairman of the ticket sale committee, other members of the committee being Clint Lackey, Allen Watts, J. Howard Hodge, P. A. Nelson, Barron Wadley, John P. Butler, Raymond Uphan, Harvey Sloan, Russell C. Conkling, Barney Greathouse, W. F. Hejl, John P. Howe, J. O. Vance and S. A. Debnam. The downtown area has been divided into district with workers having been assigned to each district. The tickets are priced at seventy-five cents each.

A large crowd of oil men from over the entire Permian Basin is expected to be on hand, numerous out of town reservations already having been made. Invitations were mailed out Friday to all chambers of commerce in this section of West Texas.

Farm Leaders Take Week-End Off for Study of Measure

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15 (AP).—Congressional leaders after two weeks of trying to agree on an "all-weather farm program," took a week end recess today, hoping cottonbelt spokesmen could compromise on control provisions.

Members of the conference committee said that there was a bitter contest underway between Senator Bankhead, Alabama, advocating a rigid compulsory cotton control program effective this year, and Chairman Jones, Texas, house agriculture committee, backing more voluntary house cotton provisions, which would delay marketing control until 1939.

From This Wreckage May Come New Air Laws

While Congress started action on new aviation legislation and investigations of recent major air crashes—one in Montana and the other in the South Seas—rescuers brought the bodies of 10 victims from the charred, twisted wreckage of a Northwest Airlines plane, pictured above, which crashed into a mountainside near Bozeman, Mont. En route to this snowbound scene of northwest dogs, horses, wooded mountainside and rescuers, were members of a special investigating board, appointed by Secretary of Commerce Daniel C. Roper. The plane crashed in flames as the pilot sought to land in a small clearing during a snowstorm.

Permanent Home Is Acquired by Scouts In School Building

Through the courtesy of the members of the local school board, and W. W. Lackey, superintendent, Midland Boy Scouts now have a permanent meeting place and is one of the finest and best equipped Scout buildings in this area. The recently acquired Scout hall fills a long felt need here and will tend to further the Boy Scout program in Midland.

G. W. Brennehan, chairman of the Midland District of the Buffalo Trail Council, Boy Scouts of America, announced this week that arrangements had been completed whereby the Midland School Board had agreed to give sole usage to the old north ward school building on Illinois street to the Boy Scouts.

Only the lower floor of the building will be utilized by the Scouts at present. The interior of the ground floor has been remodeled and is now ready for occupancy. A partition was taken out between two rooms thereby making one large room, 25 x 90 feet, which will be used as a meeting and play room.

Flood lights will be installed on the west side of the building for night games and outside meetings during the summer months. The grounds will be ideal for outdoor games and contests of all kinds.

The building and grounds give the Midland Boy Scouts an ideal meeting place which will compare favorably with Boy Scout quarters in cities many times larger than Midland. The central location of the new meeting place is also a very desirable feature.

Payments to Italy Are Suspended by Soviet Government

MOSCOW, Jan. 15 (AP).—Russia today suspended commercial payments to Italy, holding that the Italian navy had refused to pay for Soviet oil and that Soviet ships were being detained in Italian ports.

The government also announced payments to Russia by Italian firms had been suspended.

The Soviet trade delegation to Italy and grading organizations in Russia were instructed to suspend payments to Italian firms, including bills held by third persons.

Houston Judge in Attorney-General Contest in State

HOUSTON, Jan. 15 (Special).—District Judge Ralph Yarborough of Austin announced here today that he has definitely decided to be a candidate for attorney general of the state of Texas. He spent Saturday conferring with friends and advisers here.

Ralph Yarborough was born 35 years ago in Henderson county, worked in the oil fields and wheat fields of the Panhandle, attended Sam Houston State Teachers College and the University of Texas law school, taught school, practiced law in El Paso and has lived in Austin for the past six years. As assistant attorney general, he conducted cases involving vast amounts and was elected two years ago to the office of district judge.

Solicitor General Is FDR Choice

Confirmation in Senate Expected To Be Made Soon

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15 (AP).—President Roosevelt today nominated Solicitor General Stanley Reed to be an associate justice of the supreme court.

Reed will succeed Associate Justice George Sutherland, whose retirement from the high tribunal is effective January 18.

The nomination is the second Mr. Roosevelt has made in his two terms. Last fall he selected the then Alabama democratic Senator Hugo L. Black to succeed Associate Justice Willis Van Devanter.

There is some expectation that soon he may have to fill another seat on the court since it is believed that the serious illness of Justice Cardozo may necessitate his resignation.

Reed long has been discussed as a possible appointee to the supreme court. His name was mentioned often in speculation over Van Devanter's successor.

Word that the nomination would be made today spread through the capitol a few minutes before it was presented to the senate by Maurice C. Latta, White House executive clerk.

On the senate floor, where copies of the nomination were quickly passed among senators by pages, knots of excited conversationalists formed speedily.

Reed was born at Maysville, Ky., Dec. 31, 1884, and practiced law there after studying in Kentucky Wesleyan college, Yale, the University of Virginia, Columbia, and the Sorbonne in Paris.

As solicitor general he has carried the burden of arguing many of the New Deal's biggest cases before the supreme court during the Roosevelt administration. He is known to have made a highly favorable impression among lawyers and even his opponents frequently have congratulated him on his arguments before the tribunal.

Time for the Big Push

Construction of homes and buildings in Midland during 1937 set quite a figure, running well over the $800,000 mark, and, as is the custom, expressions sometimes are heard that "the limit has been reached."

A survey of public opinion, however, shows that entirely different ideas prevail. Many conservative citizens and business men are expecting Midland to come into its own this year, provided all opportunities are acted upon properly and promptly.

A look around will convince even the most skeptical that a housing shortage still exists. Those having houses or apartments of any degree of modernity have no difficulty in keeping them rented, and at substantial rates.

With time nearing for letting of a contract for the new gymnasium, to cost approximately $75,000, public construction is getting off to a good start. That leaves only the erection of business buildings on the uncertain list, and that is where some are predicting that the big figures will come in.

Christmas Paroles

Final checkups do not bear out the early reports that practically all prisoners, released from Alabama penal institutions on Christmas paroles, justified the trust placed in them by returning voluntarily.

Fifteen of the 554 "most worthy" prisoners who were allowed to go home for Christmas failed to return. That is rather more than the average in previous years.

Yet it would be a shame to jeopardize a humanitarian custom of more than 10 years' standing because 15 faithless ones were found. It is always possible that this does not mean any very definite falling off in morality, but simply bad luck in picking the 554 to be paroled.

After all, is it not still noteworthy that of 554 prisoners, all but 15 observed to the letter their pledged word? Such a temporary setback should not cause faith to be shaken too readily in an experiment which has so much of decency and hope behind it.

Hiring Families

Hollywood thought it very funny when Paramount Pictures had to hire an entire family in order to sign up Suratna Asmara, a Malayan jungle girl, to play the lead in a forthcoming film.

But American voters are hiring whole families all the time in order to get the services of one man.

In 1934, 44 members of the U. S. House of Representatives hired assistants or clerks of the same family name. In 1935, the number was 37; in 1936, 34; and in 1937, 25.

The last time a bill was proposed to prevent use of the annual $2,200,000 clerk-hire appropriation for congressmen's relatives, it was shouted down with a lusty "No!"

Paramount is just a copy-cat.

Behind the Scenes in Washington

Editor's Note: The opinions expressed in this article are those of Mr. Dutcher, NEA-Reporter-Telegram Washington correspondent, and are not to be construed as expressing the editorial policy of The Reporter-Telegram.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15. — If the official estimates of the 1938-39 deficit are neither more nearly accurate nor less nearly accurate than those for 1937-38, you can comfort yourself with the assurance that next fiscal year's deficit ought not to be more than $2,000,000,000.

Of course, it might be worse than that and it may be considerably better. The uncertainties of the next 18 months make anybody's guess, practically nonsensical. All you can say is that budget-balancing is out the window for much further ahead than anyone can see daylight and that a period of heavy taxation is somewhere off there in that fog.

A year ago January the President pulled out his budget estimates and spoke cheerfully of a "layman's balance" for the 1937-38 fiscal year ending with next June.

Income Down, Costs Up. Now a deficit of $1,088,000,000 is expected because receipts have been nearly a billion dollars less than estimated and expenditures about $150,000,000 more. There is at least a fair chance that this deficit will be even larger by July, when the government will have stopped incurring it.

Business being what it is, the administration estimates a 1938-39 deficit of $950,000,000, but Mr. Roosevelt insists on pointing out that this is a drop of $138,000,000 from the presently estimated 1937-1938 deficit and that his deficits and deficit estimates keep right on dropping, depression or not.

So you can easily see that if the guess for next fiscal year is as good, or bad, as last January's guess, which was off by somewhat less than $1,088,000,000, the deficit for the 12 months beginning July 1, 1938, and ending June 30, 1939, will be at least a couple of billions.

Don't Be Too Sure. Mr. Roosevelt himself is the first to warn you that you mustn't put too much faith in the estimate of a mere $950,000,000 deficit for next year. He may find it necessary — and there's plenty of indication that he will decide that it's necessary — to urge larger appropriations for the navy and army than the present budget contemplates. He is also frank to suggest that if the economic situation does not improve he probably will have to ask Congress for more than the billion dollars tentatively budgeted for work relief.

On top of that is the fact that Congress already is rebelling against those few divisions of federal expenditure where Roosevelt thinks it is wise to cut down. Cuts Recommended. Next fiscal year's budget calls for reductions, as compared with the present fiscal year, which permit F. D. R. to point to an estimated saving of $539,000,000 in federal expenditures.

Why Mother Gets Gray

The Town Quack

a hundred to one that you'll shout louder than ever. I agree with the Colorado neighbor, but there is no phone shouting equal to that of a ranchman when he talks to somebody over a rural telephone. Just let a rancher get on a phone, in a lobby or anywhere, and call someone at the ranch, and there will be a conversation which is open to the public. No muffled voices there. However, I shouldn't say it's just ranches, because every time I phone Jay Floyd about a horse, I start yelling at the top of my voice. Jay, however, modulates his vocal chords.

Another phone shouter is the oil man who is talking to the boss in a distant city, giving him the dope on a well. More inside information has been given away because of telephone shouting than because of bribery.

But I'm not kicking about it. I like to pick up a little private conversation when I can, and I'll admit it's been hard to do since I moved off of a rural party line.

Letters to Editor

To the Editor, Midland, Texas.

We are badly in need of a community hospital large enough to serve Midland and the Permian Basin. We need a hospital which is so situated and managed that the masses can have hospitalization at a lower cost than under the present regime. From what I have been able to ascertain it seems as though it is impossible under private ownership and leadership to give hospital attention to the masses at a cost which is possible for them to meet except in cases of dire emergencies.

Let's build a hospital for the people. Yours truly, J. Arthur Johnson.

in the Delaware sand. After swabbing oil down to bottom of 7-inch casing at 3,527, it was balled and cleaned out to bottom. Continuous balling with sectional ballers failed to lower fluid below the bottom of the casing. Salt water, at first small in amount, increased as balling continued, and oil decreased. At the end of eight hours of balling, the well was making all salt water. It has been shut down for further orders, and will probably be abandoned. The Barnett well, located 2,200 feet from the north, 440 feet from the east line of section 12, block 54, township 1, T. & P. sub 27 is two and one-half miles northwest of the Mason Delaware pool. It showed only one barrel of oil in 50 hours in the pay horizon of the Mason pool after shooting with 175 quarts while bottomed at 3,728.

Eisnmore Fishing.

Stanley A. Thompson No. 1 Eisnmore Cattle Company, deep test 19 miles south of Fort Stockton in Pecos county, which has occasioned interest by coring saturated sand, lime and conglomerate in a detrital or alluvial zone believed to be below the Pennsylvanian, yesterday was fishing for 25 stands of drillpipe, lost when depth of 7,120 feet in sand and sandy lime had been reached. Stands were in four-bits. Some called this morning in Pennsylvanian in the well at 7,035 feet. Whether it has reached the Ordovician has not yet been determined. Some saturation and gas was present in cores between 7,037 and 7,087. The test is in section 53, block D, G. C. & S. P. survey.

Casing plug will be drilled at 10 o'clock this morning in Magnolia Petroleum Company No. 1-A McKee, Ordovician prospect in the Imperial area of northern Pecos county. Nine and 5/8-inch pipe had been cemented at 5,192 with 350 sacks of cement.

County, Brewer & Collins No. 1 C.

M. Caldwell, is being plugged and abandoned at total depth of 1,960 feet in sand. It encountered water in the Delaware sand. The well caused a stir of excitement when it found a show of high-gravity oil

Clyde E. Thomas, Big Spring, who yesterday announced his candidacy for district judge of the 70th judicial district.

Present depth of the well is 5,294 feet, in green, shaly silt, of Simpson age. It indicated production when it drilled and cored oil-saturated Simpson sand from 5,271-80 feet. Simpson, middle Ordovician, was topped at 4,775, 2,390 feet subsea and far higher than other tests in the Ordovician. Operators will test the first sand showing before making any new hole. Tubing will probably be run for testing, instead of the drillstem test previously announced. Location of the Magnolia well is in section 24, block 9, H. & G. N. survey.

Amon G. Carter No. 1 Sweeten, Edwards county deep test near Rockspings, yesterday was drilling soft white lime at 5,967. It topped the lime at 5,820 and was believed to be not far above the Eilenburg, lower Ordovician. Humble No. 1 Lewis & Wardlaw, Tom Green Ordovician test, is shut down for engine repairs at 3,823 feet, in lime. In western Crane, Gulf No. 3 McKnight is coring below 6,230 feet, in dense dolomite. Circulating oil is said to be showing water cut of one to two per cent. Whether water is coming from formation or is drilling water used before operators circulated oil was not determined. The well balled dry when tested at 6,175 feet, 11 feet in the Eilenburg, lower Ordovician. Bohago Lime Low. Driller called top of brown lime at 4,160 feet in Bond and Bohago No. 1 Marcella West, southern Yoakum wildcat a mile and a half east by southeast of the small discovery producer in the Bohago area. Some geologists believed that sample analysis would fix the brown lime top at approximately 4,140 feet. If so, this would place the new Bohago well around 100 feet low on brown lime marker to the discovery, which topped brown lime at 4,032 feet, according to one pick. Location is 350 feet out of the southeast corner of section 297, block D, John H. Gibson survey. Shell No. 1-C Baumgart, extension test a mile and a half east of the line of production in southern Yoakum's Denver area, yesterday had drilled to 1,760 feet, in red rock. Shell No. 1-3 Baumgart, west offset to the company's No. 1-A, which extended the pool a mile east, is drilling lime at 4,461 feet. Wiggins, Lawson and Hyde No. 1 Dean, four mile northwest extension of the Duggan pool in southeastern Cochran, swabbed and flowed 239 barrels No. 2 in five hours while bottomed at 5,078 feet, and is now preparing to drill ahead. Sand Extensioner. Extending the Jal sand pool over a mile farther south, Culbertson & Irwin, Inc., No. 1 Nora E. Alston, in southeastern Lea county, N. M., flowed 75 barrels of oil in 12 hours through 2-inch tubing, and has been completed for that gauge. It was shot with 180 quarts of nitro from 3,278 to 3,345 feet, the total depth, where it is bottomed in sand. Wicker, Bailey No. 25 Haley, west offset to the southernmost producer in the important Vacuum pool of Lea, flowed 370 barrels of oil in 18 hours through tubing, with accompanying gas gauged at 5,406,000 cubic feet daily. Flow is natural, as the well has been neither shot nor acidized. Total depth is 4,350 feet, in lime. Phillips No. 1 M. E. Hale, semi-wildcat west of producers in the pool, is drilling lime and anhydrite at 3,909 feet, while Magnolia No. 3 Steele-Bridges a mile and half to the north and a quarter mile to the west, is drilling brown lime at 4,280. Field Completions. Four completions in as many different pools were reported at the west-end. In the Emperor pool of Winkler, Bailey No. 25 Haley, west offset 1,516.98 barrels a day following 170-quart shot, bottomed at 2,891. It topped the pay at 2,734. Amerada No. 6-A Daugherty, in Winkler's Kermit field, flowed 619 barrels a day upon completion at 2,971. Flow topped at 2,900 was shot with 100 quarts. In the Estes pool of Ward, Gulf No. 72 Estes rated daily production of 949.84 barrels, based upon flow the last three hours of a six-hour gauge, during which it tanked 118.73 barrels. Flow the first three hours was 122.27 barrels. The well entered the sand at 2,451 and is bottomed at 2,685. Broderick & Calvert No. 1 Parker, in the Harper pool of Ector, flowed 999.18 barrels in 24 hours after shooting with 670 quarts from 4,650 to 4,363, the total depth. Juliet Corson, founder of cooking schools, was born on Feb. 14, 1842.

City-County Federation Honors District President

Crystal Ballroom Is Scene of Affair For Which Mrs. T. Y. Casey of Pecos Is Guest Speaker; Musical Program Given

Glimmering social activities for the week among Midland clubwomen was the tea with which the City-County Federation entertained, complimenting Mrs. T. Y. Casey of Pecos, in the Crystal ballroom of the Hotel Scharbauer Friday afternoon from 3:30 o'clock until 5:30 o'clock. Mrs. Casey is president of the Eighth district, Federated Women's clubs of Texas.

In the receiving line for the afternoon were: Mrs. Casey, Meses. F. H. Schouten, J. Howard Hodge, L. C. Link, W. T. Walsh, Miss Lucille Thomas, Mrs. John Drummond, Mrs. Ross Williams.

Arrangements for the tea were in charge of a hospitality committee consisting of Meses. Clarence Scharbauer, Roy Parks, I. E. Daniel, Harvey Sloan, Fred Fuhrman.

Assisting the committee for the first hour were Meses. J. H. Goodman, Ralph Geisler, W. L. Simmons, J. W. Skinner, W. L. Miller, Miss Lydia G. Watson. For the second hour assisting were Meses. W. G. Whitehouse, W. B. Chapman, Wallace Irwin, F. R. Schenck.

The tea table was placed before the huge mirror at the end of the ballroom. Laid with a cutwork cloth, it was centered by a five-branched candlestick bearing lighted tapers, at the base of which was a floral arrangement of acacia, Scotch heather, and ranunculus with greenery.

Presiding at the silver coffee and tea services were Mrs. Hal Peck and Mrs. Chas. L. Klapproth with Mrs. Jas. H. Goodman and Mrs. E. H. Ellison who poured for the second hour.

Mrs. Poy Proctor arranged the musical program for the afternoon which consisted of piano and violin selections by Miss Lydia G. Watson and Mr. Ned Watson, violin numbers by Mrs. Tom Sealy accompanied by Mrs. Lee Cornelius, piano solos by Mrs. Cornelius, and vocal selections by the girls' quartet of the high school, directed by Mrs. De Lo Douglas. Quartet numbers were "Neapolitan Love Song" and "Ma Curlyheaded Baby."

Featuring the afternoon was a talk by Mrs. Casey, who was introduced by Miss Watson, second vice president of the Eighth district, who paid tribute to the honoree as an individual and as a leader in club and church work.

The privileges and responsibilities of clubwomen were discussed briefly but interestingly by Mrs. Casey who declared that "There are no special privileges without special responsibilities."

The aim of women's clubwork, she said, is "Enrichment of life through better adjustment of human relations."

Some of the privileges connected with club work are the privileges of service and the fact that working together individuals get something they cannot get alone. The individual is helped by mingling with others and wins friends among his co-workers.

"It takes a group to put over a great movement," she declared, while recognizing the fact that every movement must have a leader.

Among the responsibilities of club women are the education of women, the need to have a definite goal set, and the fact that they ought to live above the little, petty things that pull the individual down. Mrs. Casey believes that a goal should be set possibly too high for actual attainment.

Another goal for clubwomen is the goal of personal purity, not only in the physical sense which is not enough, but purity in clean thoughts and living inside one. Another goal to be set is a successful home. Another is to get out from under the "silly optimism" often held. Things don't right themselves, as individuals sometimes justify their lack of action by saying, she explained but some-one has to start the forces that make changes.

In conclusion, she again begged that clubwomen put "little petty things" out of their lives and set goals for their work.

An estimated attendance of about 80 women called during the tea hours.

City-County Federation Holds Business Meeting

A talk by Mrs. T. Y. Casey of Pecos, president of the Eighth district Federated clubs, was the chief feature of the monthly business session of the City-County Federation held in the court house Friday morning at 10:30 o'clock.

Speaking on "Federation," Mrs. Casey said that the general aim of the organization is to bring about a closer cooperation between all club women and to help promote the projects on which the various Federated clubs may be working.

She expressed gratification at hearing of some of the work being done by the group here and commended the work of the safety council, the better movies project, and the work being done for the Girl Scouts as especially worthwhile undertakings.

She also discussed the new Federated club building in Austin and gave an interesting review of the recent official call of the Federation which was held in Austin.

Hostesses for the February luncheon of the City-County Federation were announced as follows: Meses. Harvey Sloan, Fred Fuhrman, Allan Hargrave, L. G. Byerley.

Mrs. F. H. Schouten, Federation president, announced the nomination committee to be: Meses. Tom C. Bobo, M. R. Hill, M. E. Honig.

Book Chosen for Review Is Highly Praised by Critics

"Madame Curie," biography of the great woman scientist, which Mrs. R. Steele Johnston has chosen for her book review to be presented here February 9 under auspices of the Modern Study club and the Delphian chapter, has been highly praised by women's publications.

Mrs. Johnston herself hails it as fascinating.

"The Torch," official publication of Beta Sigma Phi, international cultural and social sorority, said of the book:

"Madame Curie" is a compelling story written with a simplicity and beauty of narrative which lends it great power. The early days of this great woman, her childhood surrounded by brother and sisters, her marriage, her children, her amazing career with its struggles and disappointments, its achievement and throughout, its completely human side, make it fine reading.

"The Independent Woman" of December, 1937 said:

"This is the first, and definitive, biography of Marie Curie, discoverer of radium, twice winner of the Nobel Prize, greatest of all women of science. Written by her distinguished daughter, it tells the thrilling and almost unknown story of Madame Curie's rise from poverty and obscurity to the highest pinnacles of achievement."

Tickets for the review, to be presented in the Crystal ballroom of the Hotel Scharbauer, at 4 o'clock in the afternoon, may be obtained from members of either of the sponsoring clubs.

The public is invited to attend. Admission is 50 cents.

Hats To Dwarf All Others

The dwarf Grumpy's peaked hat . . . it's of green suede with a thick folded cuff. Right: This low, peaked silk turban in a "dwarf print" is an adaptation of the dwarf Sneezy's little hat. It sweeps forward, has a bright green grosgrain bow at the front just over the forehead.

(Hats from Bonwit Teller, New York)

By MARIAN YOUNG
 NEA Service Staff Correspondent.

NEW YORK—Snow white and her seven dwarfs are the big fashion news of the moment, for smart women are wearing adaptations of the hats which will be seen atop the heads of the much heralded screen characters.

In one Fifth Avenue store's military collection each character in the film is represented, from the sooty black suede of Mickey Mouse's (he wears it when he introduces the cast) to Snow White's little bonnet and the Prince's dashing tam. All the gnomish traits are emphasized by fat, pouchy hats that fold comfortably back over themselves; tall peaks that shoot up amazingly, then lie demurely under the chin; bows that seem to ramble all over the hats, stopping at random in the most flattering spots; soft, squashy brims contrasted with huge curved coxcomb feathers.

Colors and names are symbolic—the Huntsman is in brave green. Happy in gold. The adaptation of the heroine's hat comes in delicate blue (a soft pastel shade called Snow White blue), and the Prince's is done in warm, vivid red. All are impish, yet wearable—silly, too—perhaps, but becomingly so.

Doc's, for instance, a purple felt affair, with a medium brim and a squashy, belting crown which folds over, would be flattering to almost any young face. Genevieve Travers, one of the current social season's most attractive debutantes, has been seen around town in it.

Angelica Morgan, another smart little debutante, bought Snow White. And Martha Stevenson wears "Bash-

Find Her Among Dolls in Store

This saucer-eyed, 20-month-old girl was found wandering among the toys in a Buffalo department store, and no one has appeared to claim her. She was given the name "Jane Addams" as a tribute to the founder of Hull House. Cared for by a Buffalo society, the store's clerks made up a Christmas basket for "Jane," while officials hunted her parents.

BETTER THAN VARSITY 'L'

Charley Rohm, star of the Louisiana State backfield, defies anyone to produce a better trophy than the one to which he is pointing. "Pinky's" pride and joy happens to be the seat of Norman Hall's football pants, the result of a wager made over the outcome of the Louisiana State-Tulane game, captured by the Tigers, 20-7. The seat of their trousers was the bet made by the rival captains.

COUNTRY CLUB HEIGHTS

The PAYOFF

BY JESS RODGERS.
A short visit with Collier Parris, Lubbock Avalanche-Journal sports scribe, last night netted answers to a couple of questions that had us wondering. The West Texas-New Mexico League will hold its first meeting of the year in Lubbock Jan. 21. Lubbock is a certainty to enter the league this year if it operates. Arrangements have been made with Dallas to place a club in Lubbock and all is "set."
Parris also divulged information that may mean a lot very soon. He says interest in getting into the league is rising in Odessa and it is believed the New Mexico city will start with the others.
A drive of 440 miles last night has left this dept. just a shade "peaked" today (if you think that is not such a long run try making it in 410 driving minutes like we did), so we'll use the scissors and offer up some interesting dope from Tony Slaughter's Odessa column.
Applications for the Odessa high school coaching job continue to crowd Supt. Murry H. Fly's over-taxed Post Office box.
As you know, current Coach Froggie Lovorn previously stated that he would not be an applicant for the job after producing one of the best football teams in Odessa's history the past year with a handful of material. But that's the way with the coaching business. It reminds one of the time when Baseballer Snipe Conley was manager of the Dallas team in the Texas League, won the league flag then went on to cop the Dixie series. Spring came around as usual the next year and Snipe wasn't there. Froggie didn't win any championships but he has done a good job with the material on hand.
Latest of the applicants to file for the local hot spot of Permian Basin coaching is Gene Taylor, former T. C. U. all-around athlete and present coach of Daniel Baker College at Brownwood. Taylor is a brother of Coach Harry Taylor of San Angelo, Harry and Gene were formerly coaches at Post when they finished at T. C. U. They also played semi-pro baseball on the same team at Big Lake back in the booms days of '25 and '26.
Taylor Has Good Record.
Gene Taylor was in town last Sunday looking the situation over. His present set-up at Daniel Baker is not too good. Since the school pulled away from the Presbyterian church, the going has been a little rugged from a financial angle at times, but Taylor has piloted them through and has been pretty high in the Texas Conference standings. Two years ago, A. C. C., a team that hadn't won a game all year, pulled one of those surprises to upset the Eagles and knock them out of the title. His basketball teams have always been powers in the loop. The Odessa coaching job would probably pay more than the present job at Daniel Baker.
Next comes Maurice "Dutch" Baumgarten, a successful coach at Midland in 1936 who piloted the Bulldogs to a regional title over such teams as McCamey, Wink and Littlefield, although the McCamey team was a set-up as were all the other teams in that district that year. Baumgarten had a fine record when he left Midland, basketball, track and football titles over some pretty stiff opposition. This past school year Baumgarten left Midland for Nacogdoches to play in class A circles. He was in a tough country of East Texas football powers, Lukin and Longview, the state champions. He didn't win a district title but made a good showing his first year with new material. Dutch would be welcomed back in this section but it is doubtful the school board will pay what he is asking.

Another applicant is Marlin "Shorty" Hayhurst, former Texas Tech star and present head man at McCamey. Hayhurst is another of the boys in this section that

BOLD NOVICE FINDS SIX-DAY BIKE ORNERY AS A BRONC

Sports Writer Jerry Brondfield Goes 'Round and 'Round and 'Round and Then the Lights Went Out

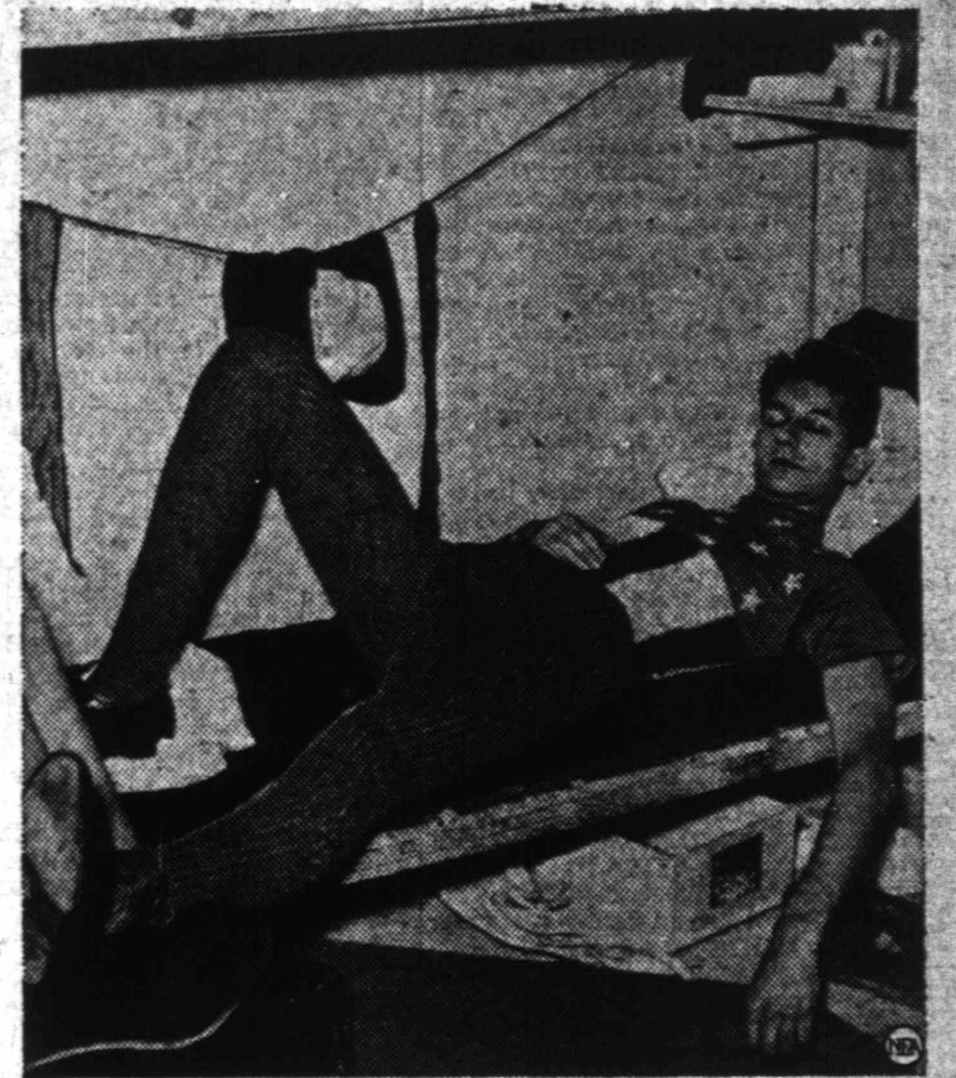

Al Crossley, left, imparts a few words of wisdom—and warning—at the start of Jerry Brondfield's initial whirl at six-day bicycle racing. "Don't be afraid to hit them banks and turns, kid."

First nquistishment at end of first mile. Beginners should go easy on the one-handed stuff.

Brondfield finds racing to nowhere what it's cracked up to be only when they're speaking of spills and pile-ups. There he is on the right—out cold. Freddie Spencer is the other victim.

Jockeys of the iron steeds require no curfew and never suffer from insomnia. Brondfield flattens out his long frame, gives one of the bunks a workout, and calls it a career in the screwy whirl.

BY JERRY BRONDFIELD
NEA Service Sports Writer.
CLEVELAND, Jan. 15.—I'm through as a six-day bicycle rider. In fact I'm through as a bike rider for any length of time.
Let Gustave Killian collect the splinters. Al Crossley may grab his coffee on the fly. And Piet Van Kempen may race around in circles to his heart's content.
I'll continue to be a typewriter jockey.
It didn't take long to convince me. All I did was wander down to the last six-day bike affair and ask the boys if I couldn't ride in their race for awhile. The trick always had looked plenty easy to me.

Sure, sure, climb right on, was the answer.
"Ever ride?" inquired George Harvey, the promoter.
"Nope."
"Hmmm. Better take your first half dozen laps with Al Crossley, then."
And there I was, perched on a bike. First thing I discovered was the contraption had no brakes. Not a coaster affair—your wheels went around if you wanted them to or not.

Nothing Like Reassurance.
"What happens if I get dizzy?" I asked Al, just a bit worried.
"You won't. . . only knew one guy who did."
"What happened to him?"
"Oh, he plied off a bank and cracked three ribs on the railing."
I cut loose by myself. Simple stuff on the flat. But the banked curves looked like a transplanted acre of the Swiss Alps.
I'd go around and around and around and around. And the guys did that for six days!

A dozen more laps and the inside of my throat felt like a piece of A-1 sandpaper. Drinking a cup of coffee while guiding the iron steed with one hand was risky but necessary. I must have used black magic to manage it.
Henri Le Page swept by in something of a rush.
"Careful, my fran," the Frenchman warned, "don't try to steal any laps."
On his next whirl around I told him he could relax. I wasn't going anywhere in two big a hurry.
What does one think about in a race to nowhere?

Everything and nothing, according to Crossley. Sometimes thoughts flash through his mind as fast as the whirling spokes of his wheel. Then there are times, he says, when his mind goes so blank he almost falls from the saddle.
Mine was a one-track mind, and I could think only of one thing: How much longer could I stay on the blamed bike?
Bike Becomes Backing Bronco.
It was Freddie Spencer who proved my undoing.

"Let's take a fast one around the bank," he challenged.
"Who, me?" I didn't consider myself quite ready for the fancy stuff just yet.
"Sure. . . come on. Just follow me. . . you'll be okay."
It was then or never, with Spencer leading the way. We picked up speed and suddenly there it was dead ahead of us, almost a 45-degree angle.
"Here it is. . . pump fast and don't steer with the handlebars! Use your body!" yelled Freddie. Too late. Up, up, up, standing on my ear, almost. Frantically I wrenched the handlebars all the way around. There was a skidding sound. The bike lurched heavily and then I was sailing out into space. But not alone. My flying bike caught Spencer neatly, and three bumps later we were in a pile of legs, arms and whirling wheels.

That was that.
I headed for a bunk.
I knew when I had enough.
And now the boss wants to make this a series.
Next, I fight Joe Louis.
Oh, yeah!

has been winning district titles right along, but the other teams plidded around, found technicalities that tossed his teams out of the running by the ineligibility route. Hayhurst's last district title in football was in 1936 when his club was named champion after a three-way tie. The past season his team was on top again, but Iraan moved in as the champ by the courtroom route. McCamey did not have enough material for Class A competition and withdrew. Hayhurst might do well in faster company if given the boys. His last fling at Class A football was successful, especially when the Badgers played San Angelo.
Roy White, present head coach at Big Lake, is also an applicant for Lovorn's post. White is a former Daniel Baker star, played six years of professional football with the Chicago Bears and coached at Hamilton before moving in to head the Reagan schools. He also had a fling at boxing. Over at Big Lake the past year White had the best material in the district but they were not accustomed to his style of play. Injuries in non-district games with Sonora, Ozona and Midland ruined his season. They skidded back with a good game with McCamey and finally wound up the season in pretty good shape. White is a smart football coach and plays it as well as any of the boys in the pro loop. Red Grange, former Illinois "Galloping Ghost" saw White walking in the lobby of the Adolphus Hotel last September in Dallas when the Chicago Bears were getting ready to meet the Southwest All-Stars. Grange remarked to this correspondent, "There's one of the best football players to come out of Texas." Grange is one of the Bears' coaches.

Who Are These Guys?
From Cisco comes the application of Billy Cooper, now assistant coach over there. Cooper attended school at Hardin-Simmons. He is a good basketball coach and player. He coached at Eldorado high school before moving in at the Big Dam school. We saw his B team play two years ago and they looked "Potent," but Billy is not quite ready for a spot like Odessa.
Joe Dean Avinger, now an instructor in the Port Arthur schools who hasn't coached in two years, is another whose name is on file with local school authorities. Avinger formerly coached at Kerena, Tague and one or two other places over the state.
J. H. Finley, assistant coach at Texarkana, Tex., in class A circles is another who has applied for the job.
Starnes To Stay.
Another is Allan Mayhew, a professor at the school of Mines in El Paso.
Leading for the coaching job is Esker Curtis, present Breckenridge high school coach. Curtis has not fled for the job but has been approached by several Odessa friends to file for the position if he can get loose from the present Breckenridge contract. If he can get loose your correspondent will lay the wagger that Curtis will be the next Odessa mentor.
The local school board would like to have the new mentor report after the mid-term exams so he would be here for Spring training since there will be an opening that early.

Leading the applicants in this section would be present assistant coach Kenneth Starnes if he decided to file for the job. If he does not file for the position, it has been indicated that he will remain here as assistant. Starnes told this correspondent this week that he would not apply for the job.
Two late applicants that nearly missed getting in this week's paper are "Fais" Cranfill of Temple and your old friend Clyde "Silm" Park of Fort Stockton.
Cranfill formerly coached at Hardin-Simmons University at Abilene. He moved from the Taylor county village to Del Rio where a group of Spanish-Americans were on hand to help him establish a good record.
This past season he moved in at Temple replacing Red Forehand, who moved on to Breckenridge High in San Antonio. Forehand was supposed to have had the best material in the state showing up at Temple for the 1937 football season. Cranfill moved in and won his district title knocking over everybody but Waco and lost the final Thanksgiving game by a one touchdown margin. Temple had defeated Cleburne more decisively than did Waco and was awarded the district title by the district committee. We saw his Wildcat bowl over Thomas Jefferson of San Antonio by three touchdowns for the bi-district title. Then along came P. E. Shotwell's juggernaut from Longview and eliminated Temple in the quarterfinals. Thus boy Cranfill is another that should get serious consideration from the local board.
At Fort Stockton Clyde Park ran out his materials several years ago but has been doing right well except when meeting Wink. His football team was the best in the region in the year 1934 when Rocksprings, a poorly coached club, fluked a last minute win over the Panthers from West of the Pecos for the bi-district crown.
Park's basketball teams at Eastland, McCamey and Fort Stockton have been sensational. He has taken two teams, McCamey and Fort Stockton, to the state meet in Austin. That's something very few coaches in this section have been able to do.
With the list of applicants on hand Odessa should find the man they are looking for. It's going to be tough sledding for whoever takes the post. For verification of this just look back over the past ten years of the mentors that have been here. Odessa should correct this error in wolfing good honest instructors out of their jobs when the wolfers failed to do their share in providing material. The jobs are here for fathers of six and seven boys. It's the wolfers' next move without the howl.

Book Review
BY UNITED PRESS
From a scarlet circus girl to a great empress has the sound of a Hollywood epic. In fact, the cinema captains probably could not improve one whit on the experiences of Theodora, who ruled the Byzantine Empire with the great Justinian. The fabulous story of this woman is given the breath of life by Rene Kraus in a historical novel, "Theodora" (Doubleday Doran).
At the outset it should be pointed out that the author, a German, bases his story of Theodora on the writings of Procopius, a historian of the time, who has left the most complete picture, perhaps biased, of this glittering woman. Procopius' "Anecdota" contains virtually all the evidence that poses her as a courtesan of low origin, cruel, avaricious and diabolically gifted. That Theodora was a great beauty, highly intellectual and of imperious will there can be no doubt.
Theodora started her rise to fame in the Eastern Roman Empire as a tiny girl when she wandered into a circus arena and petted a giant killer serpent, imported to amuse the populace by snapping the backs of lions. Her father was a bear keeper, killed by one of his charges. Theodora grew up in the circus and she learned about men as all circus girls did in those times. But she thirsted for more wealth and power than they ever dreamed of having. She plied her whole life to that end.
Her first conquest was Hekhebolos, governor-general of Pentapolis. But as his mistress her greed was her undoing and she was set adrift, with her carefully hoarded treasure confiscated. This reverse only made Theodora more determined. She would win and later marry Justinian, crown prince and son of the Emperor Justin. She met and won him, but the marriage laws forbade a patrician from marrying a circus girl. Her connivance began and when her net was spun, Theodora sat on the throne as empress regnant. Justin had died, the marriage laws had been changed and she had reached her apogee of fame.
She ruled with a hand of iron and even the great Justinian was held in her power. The Byzantine Empire was decaying and Theodora was hastening its fall by exacting tribute that incited revolution. The Nika insurrection occurred in 529 A. D. but thanks to Theodora's firmness the crown was saved. Her cruelty saved the day. That marked the height of her power, but she lived on, dying of cancer in 548.
Kraus' story, raked from the ashes of the past, is exciting, well rounded with detail and convincingly told.
A KEENE, honest intelligent newspaper correspondent can do much in his day-to-day stories to write history. He can do much more in a book.

Herbert L. Matthews, New York Times war correspondent with the Spanish loyalists is such a reporter and his book is "Two Wars and More to Come" (Carrick & Evans).
His two wars are the Italian-Ethiopian war and the Spanish civil war, and "more to come" means that he feels in him that there are more wars on the way.
That Matthews' reporting is of high order is shown by the inclusion of his name, along with that of his rival James M. Minifie of the New York Herald Tribune, on the 1937 honor roll of the Nation "for the sustained quality of their correspondence on the Spanish civil war."
One of his biggest stories was his expedition with the Italian column which crossed the unmapped, untraveled-by white men—Danakil desert from Italian Eritrea into Ethiopia to join with other Italian forces advancing on Addis Ababa. Only he and one Italian correspondent went along. "This did come out with a story—the battle of Enda Gorge, in which only luck, coolness, courage and the failure of the Ethiopians to take advantage of their opportunities prevented the annihilation of the entire column, including Matthews. Then he went on to Addis Ababa. In the same motor car with Reyholds Packard and Eleanor Packard of the United Press war staff, and he tells that story vividly, too.

As he was for the Italians in Ethiopia, Matthews with the loyalists in Spain is for the loyalists. He believes not only that they are right but that they must win unless Italy wins for the nationalists.
Of the defeat of an Italian army by the loyalists in the battle of Brihuga on the Guadajajara front last March he says:
"It will rank as one of the 12 or 15 decisive battles of history. In my opinion nothing more important has happened in the world since the European war in the defeat of the Italian on the Guadajajara front. It will be a symbol of a turning point for history in the years to come, even if the loyalists lose." He tells the full dramatic story of that battle as only a good reporter on the spot can.
NEGLE Y FARSON, well-remembered for his fascinating autobiography, "The Way of a Transgressor," has written another chapter in his adventurous life as he lived it hurriedly above and below the Equator. This book, "Transgressor in the Tropics" (Harcourt Brace), isn't exactly a travel story as it is concerned more with people than places, but Farson really is sightseeing. The contrast with his first "Transgressor" is clear-cut, for in it he was plowing through life while now he is on an excursion assignment.
But wherever Farson is and whatever he writes about, his magnetic personality slips into every page. He's a grand story teller whether he's in the tropics, the frozen north or India.
His South American journey took him from Barbadoes to Trinidad, Aruba to the Panama Canal Zone and thence down the west coast through and across to Buenos Aires. He learned about justice and jails in Colon; saw a bullfighter gored; met a Frenchman who escaped from Devil's Island, and interviewed President Alfonso Lopez of Colombia and learned about Wall Street loans.
Farson crossed over the Andes in the rainy season to Quito and learned about dictatorship in Ecuador; then on the Guayaquil and its willing heat; next into Peru and on to Chile, thence across to Buenos Aires.
Farson paused long enough to delve into the history, customs, politics and troubles of these countries. He saw low life and high life and had a taste of both.

Studebaker Head Optimistic Over Industry Outlook

W. F. Hoff, Studebaker dealer here, quotes Paul G. Hoffman, president of the Studebaker Corporation, as believing the automobile business is on a sound footing.

"Compared with 1937 going will probably be hard in 1938, but not so hard as in other recent years," said Mr. Hoffman. "The automobile business has come through the great depression with products and sales forces in fighting trim.

"Buyers are more discriminating in times like these, but we are ready for shrewd buyers. The whole automotive industry is offering excess value for the purchaser's dollar, and this is particularly true of Studebaker. We call our 1938 cars our 'crowning achievement,' and we mean just that.

"We know that business can be had if we fight for it intelligently and courageously. Millions of people have the money to buy. You have and I have. It's up to you and to me to persuade each other to keep our money circulating.

"Business skies may clear rapidly if you and I and others advance bravely. This recession is the result of mental attitudes and not of thoughts, money shortage, overproduction, high prices or similar factors which have brought about depressions in the past. Since the current recession is the result of fear, uncertainty and distrust, it can be overcome by courage, certainty and confidence—above all, by cooperation between government and business. There are indications that government may give encouragement to business during 1938. If so, business is ready to go ahead creating and distributing ever more and more wealth to maintain in this country the highest standard of living the world has ever known."

THE New SUPER TRACTION Firestone GROUND GRIP TIRES FOR CARS • TRUCKS AND BUSES

DEEPER BITE FOR GREATER TRACTION. The tread is flatter with higher shoulders and bigger, broader bars of rubber. Wider, deeper, tapered spaces between the lugs assure positive self-cleaning action and continuous traction.

GREATER ROADABILITY. Tread is designed to fit the road, providing materially longer life.

LONGER WEAR, GREATER ECONOMY. The tread is made of special, extra-tough, wear-resisting rubber which assures longer mileage. All the traction bars are joined together in a continuous design to prevent bumping on paved roads and each is triple-braced and triple anchored preventing it from breaking off as so often happens when separate rubber lugs are used.

EXTRA STRENGTH FOR GREATER SAFETY. Every fiber of every cord is saturated with liquid rubber by the Firestone patented Gum-Dipping process. This greatly increases the strength of the tire to withstand the strain of extra traction. Two extra layers of Gum-Dipped cords under the tread bind the tread and cord body so solidly together that we guarantee they will not separate. Come in today and find out how little it costs to equip your car, truck or school bus with new super-traction Firestone Ground Grip Tires.

When roads are covered with snow, farmers need the extra traction of the new Firestone Ground Grip Tires. Farm tractors equipped with the new Super-Traction Firestone Ground Grip Tires are able to "make their own roads."

Pennies, nickels, dimes and quarters dropped in the coffers of the numbers racket barons help swell the daily "take" to more than $1,000,000. The players, mostly persons of limited means, use hunches, verse numbers of sermon texts, dream books, charms and lucky potions to select numbers in the hope of making a killing—while operators reap a golden harvest.

EDITORS: This is the last of three articles dealing with the numbers racket and based on a nation-wide survey conducted by NEA and The Reporter-Telegram.

By NEA Service.

Pile together enough pennies, nickels and dimes, and first thing you know you're counting really big money.

That's what the numbers racketeers are doing. They're grossing a million dollars a day out of the game of policy, and by far the largest percentage of it comes from the small coin purses of the poor.

A nation-wide survey conducted by NEA Service and The Reporter-Telegram reveals that the average size of bets in the numbers game today is 10 cents. And this applies both to the large, well-organized games which probably use mutual figures or treasury balances for the payoff figures, and to the smaller games which use wheel or dice devices to pick the winning numbers.

There are, of course, some numbers on policy game bets of $5, even higher, but operators for the most part split such bets among their fellow-to eliminate the long chance that they might be hit for a staggering amount.

Welch? It Depends.

And do the operators Welch when hard hit?

Here's the answer to that question from 30 typical cities, large and small, in scattered section of the country. To the question: "Do they Welch?" the answer from 12 cities was "never," from six cities "seldom," from eight cities "some times" and from four cities "often."

In nearly every case it appeared that operators Welch only as a last resort. They know that their customers, uncomprehending as they are of the odds against their winning, might stop playing eventually if they were not paid when they won.

Violence in Cities.

To the question, "How is the winning number selected?" the answer from nine cities was "race track mutual figures," from six cities "stock market, bond market, treasury balance and clearing house figures," from three cities "wheel devices," from two cities "butter and egg market quotations," and from one city "bird cage dice apparatus."

The remainder replied that a number of different games were in operation.

Violence resulting from the numbers racket for the most part seems to have been concentrated in the

Here is a typical "numbers slip" of the type which uses the daily treasury balance to determine the pay-off number. The bettor plays No. 387, "boxed." He puts up 30 cents—five cents on each of the six combinations of numbers which can be formed from the digits 3, 8 and 7. If one of these combinations had won, the player would have received 600 times five cents, or $30.

negroes or foreigners, most of them superstitious, all of them eager to use any method which may bring them the lucky number.

In many negro districts, stores exist for the sole purpose of selling books which tell readers what number to play after dreaming of such and such an object. Other such commodities include lucky incense, perfume which is supposed to impart good fortune to the wearer, and various luck charms.

large eastern cities where the "take" is so tremendous that it is considered worth killing to acquire.

New York city alone attributed 40 murders to the numbers racket, Philadelphia 15, Akron six, Boston five, Atlanta four. Other cities replied that there were no murders that could be directly connected with the racket although they involved persons connected with the game.

In 18 of 30 cities the games were operated quite peacefully, either all under one head of with each rival organization holding its own "territory" and making no effort to encroach on that of other mob leaders.

Police Can't Do Much.

And what of police efforts to halt the racket? The survey indicated that in most large cities police activities against numbers have been lackadaisical, if not non-existent.

Answers to this question ran like this: "A few negroes arrested;" "occasional arrests;" "some pick-ups;" "more or less condoned by police;" "puny and intermittent;" "none to speak of;" "they can't get the higher-up;" and "can't get convictions."

Most of the replies indicated doubt that the lack of police activity resulted from bribes or other "fix" methods, but rather from inability to assign enough men to clean out the hundreds of small establishments where the numbers slips are sold.

In some states, apparently, it never has been definitely established whether policy games are contrary to law. Police, working under the general anti-gambling statutes, have been unable to obtain convictions in court and have relaxed their efforts for that reason.

Sideline of Luck Charms.

One of the interesting sidelights on the numbers racket is the tremendous sale of dream books, lucky potions and pamphlets showing how to play hunches.

By far the greatest percentage of those who play policy are

CLASS FAVORITES ELECTED.

Joe Norman, senior class favorite; Marion Taylor, junior favorite; Bob Eldson, sophomore favorite, were elected Friday, after having been nominated Wednesday afternoon immediately after school.

In the senior class Joe Norman, Louise Elkin, Aldredge Estes, and Frank Nixon were nominees for favorite. The juniors chose to nominate Freddie Faye Turner, Fred G. Middleton, Jean Lewis, and Marion Taylor as their candidates. Jacqueline Campbell, Leland Foster, and Bob Eldson were candidates for the honor from the sophomore class. The freshman class nominated Jay Francis, Truman Whitaker, Kathryn Jordan, and Steven Stookey.

Thursday morning at 8:30 the students voted by secret ballot for their respective class favorites. After counting the ballots, it was discovered that no class had elected a favorite and run-off was held Friday morning at 8:30. The senior, junior and sophomore classes elected their favorites, but the freshman class had a second run-off Friday afternoon at 3:15 and will have the final election Monday.

GYM PLANS COMPLETED THURSDAY.

When the board met Thursday afternoon for one of their monthly meetings, final plans were completed for Midland High School's new gymnasium. The gym is to be placed north of the school some twenty five feet from the present building. There are to be four entrances, two on the south and two on the north. A basketball court, 89 by 50 feet will be surrounded by approximately 500 elevated seats; three hundred and fifty more seats can be arranged if needed. The west end of the gym will be entirely for girls. The shower and locker room will accommodate from 30 to 35 girls. The east wing will be fitted into a manual training room, a large practice room for the band with adjoining soundproof individual practice rooms, a room for our football team, a room for the visiting team, and a regular physical education room.

The construction will, in all probability, begin the latter part of February or the first of March.

"GROWING PAINS" IN REHEARSAL.

Because of the large cast and early date that the junior play is to be given, the cast is working at night and every time possible during the day. The play will be given some time in the latter part of January.

Miss Bruner chose "Growing Pains" purposely because of the large cast so that more students desiring parts can have an opportunity to be in it. The cast is made up of eighteen characters, two of whom are veterans and the others have had no experience in play work. However, they are all showing remarkable talent.

The play tells the dilemma of the McIntyres, who see their boy and girl tossed in the catacombs of adolescence and can help little, further than give directions for the turbulent course from a distance, advice which eccentric youth always rejects, of course.

These two kids, George and Tiny, go through their throes in company with the neighborhood kids. Many things happen to all of them, but the end is bright and promising.

MRS. HODGE AND MRS. RODGERS SPEAK AT HOME ECONOMICS MEETING.

The members of the Home Economic club met in 300 study hall, Tuesday afternoon at 3:30 for their regular meeting. The subject of the program was "Self Improvement." The meeting was called to order by the president, Louise Elkin, then turned over to Beardean Rains, secretary, who announced each number on the program. Mary Elizabeth Kerr gave a talk on "Good Books and Magazines."

In keeping with the theme of the program, Mrs. Howard Hodge spoke on "Travel." She told about her trip to Florida last year. On this trip, Mr. and Mrs. Hodge arrived in New Orleans in time for the Mardi Gras celebration. In her talk, Mrs. Hodge dwelt on the beauty and splendor of the floats and the parade as a whole. As soon as the parade was over, the designers and costume makers began on new costumes and new ideas for the next Mardi Gras. Mr. and Mrs. Hodge continued the trip from New Orleans following the coast line to Miami, Florida. Mrs. Hodge told of some of her most exciting experiences, such as, eating coconuts and citrus fruits, slumming, and mingling with the social heights. She advised all of the girls to travel as much as possible and when opportunity knocks.

Mrs. Jess Rodgers gave a very interesting and educational talk on "Personal Appearance." She told about the appearance and customs of the natives of Hawaii. In her talk, she emphasized that the American women and girls should be glad of their opportunities and health habits compared with the slovenliness of the Hawaiian natives.

COURSE IN TEXAS HISTORY MAY BE OFFERED.

Mr. J. C. Moore, senior history teacher, states that a course in Texas history will be offered for upper classmen next semester provided a sufficient number of students enroll. This course has never been offered in Midland High School before, but is a very interesting subject. Early land grants, the colony under Mexican domination, the revolution of the Texans against Mexico, the establishment of Texas as a Republic, the annexation of Texas to the Union, and the growth and development of modern industry will be studied in detail.

A FUND CREDIT WILL BE ALLOWED FOR THE TEXAS HISTORY COURSE.

GIRLS QUARTET SINGS OVER RADIO.

Friday, January 7, at one forty-five o'clock the high school girls quartet gave a program for the PTA, singing several numbers over the radio. Jessa Lynn Tuttle, Barbara Jean Harper, Jacqueline Crowley, and Wanda Walker sang the following numbers:

"Roses of Picardy" by Wood.
 "My Curly Headed Baby" by Clutsum.

Those girls have also been invited to give a few numbers at the tea to be given Friday at the Scharbauer Hotel by the Woman's Federated Clubs.

Due to the present demand for songs by the girls, Mrs. Douglas, director, has selected the following numbers for practice:

"Love's Old Sweet Song" by Molloy.
 "Neapolitan Nights" by Zamecnik.

CHORAL CLUB PROGRESSES NICELY.

The Choral club has been working diligently since the beginning of the school term so that they would be ready for the annual Choral club contest in Abilene sometime in the spring.

The sixth period has been given to the choral club for their practice every Monday, Wednesday, and Friday. There are approximately fifty girls attending regularly. The club, under the direction of Mrs. Douglas has learned the following numbers:

"The Blue Danube Waltz" (Greeting to Spring), by Johan Strauss.
 "Wurum" (Indian Lullaby), by Lieurance.

"Around the Gypsy Fire" (The Hungarian Dance), by Brahms; and "Sweetheart" from Maytime by Romberg.

Mrs. Douglas has ordered a number of new songs which the Choral club will begin work on soon. Frank Nixon, senior, is accompanist to the club.

RHYTHM NEWS.

The band has been working on solos mostly, also duets, trios, quartets, and sextettes. Out of the sixteen solos approximately half of them are ready.

There are about twelve duets being worked up and Mr. Armstrong hopes to have some of them ready for a concert soon.

There are seven trios, which are hard, but they will have them ready soon.

Out of the remaining there are about nineteen quartets and ensembles. The sextet has not started working yet and it will be a good while before it has a number.

Mr. Armstrong is working with the Spanish and German bands, too. There are five in each band—a bass, cornet, trombone, and two clarinets. The band is progressing nicely and hopes to give a concert soon.

BASKET BALL BOUNCES.

Well, well, five victories and three defeats. That's the season standing so far. Not bad, and if you follow the team you will notice that while the victories rapidly climb the defeat column all but stands still.

At the Monahans game Coach thought he put the second team in but if you had seen the game, you couldn't have told it. Collier and Bryan showed up just as well as Barnes and Norman, though Barnes and Norman showed out. Adams and Lynch played their usual good game. I don't see why all you readers don't follow the team to our various games and root for us because a good rooting section really pep up a team. Over at Wink, when the Wink team made a point the roof did everything but fall the people yelled so loud. For Midland, hardly a whisper arose. We have a good team all right but they need backing as every good team does.

The second team started out a very poor bunch of basketball players but now are getting to look like a real basketball team. My basketball pants really have gotten into a bad habit. Midland's basketballers crushed the Monahans Lobes 50-20 at Monahans Saturday, January 8. Norman forward was high point man with six field goals and three free throws for a total of 15 points; Lynch was second with 12 points. After the first half, Coaches L. W. Taylor and E. W. MIDLAND PLAYS WINK CAGERS.

Friday, January 7, Midland's crack basketball team journeyed to Wink for another game. Wink won 18-11. Midland could not seem to hit the basket and were for the first time this season held to less than 10 points during the last half. Adams, guard, was high point man with five points. Book Review-

A Marine. Now in "Just for the Hell of It" (Dood Mead), he has written of those two lusty decades, which weren't all spent in leathernecking, not by 10 years and a couple of continents.

Just as Collings' life was thrills-packed, so is his autobiography. It was the war that launched him on a big-scale exploits although as a youngster, Collings gave a few hints of what might be expected later. In 1917 he won a commission in the Marine Corps, became a pilot and went overseas. Back home soon after the Armistice, and then on to Haiti, where Marines were sent to restore order. There Collings found his cup of adventure full. He drank deeply of it and his stories of this dark land are tops for the book.

Out of the Marines finally, Collings barnstormed, worked in the "boiler room" of a "bucket shop," sold life insurance, flew Pan-American airmail, became a writer by accident and got a magazine assignment to cover the Ethiopian war. His African interlude is next to Haiti in high interest.

THE growing popularity in America of Jean Sibelius, the great Finnish composer, who in recent years has grown to be a prime favorite among music lovers, makes an authoritative biography of this great living master particularly timely. For well-known as are his works, little is known of Sibelius himself.

The majestic recluse of Jarvenpaa is a solitary. He has few intimates and goes almost nowhere, burying himself with his music in his country home.

Karl Ekman, one of the few who know Sibelius well, has drawn an intimate portrait of the composer in his biography, "Jean Sibelius" (Knopf).

It is a picture of the composer's life to the present—he is now 72—replete with factual incidents and many of Sibelius' sayings.

MANY books are written about the more exciting aspects of Fascist Italy, for and against Mussolini and his men. "The Plough and the Sword" (Columbia University Press), by Carl T. Schmidt, is one of another sort. It tells of "labor, land, and property in Fascist Italy" as the sub-title has it. It is a sober, serious, factual story of Italy's farmhands, of its farmers, of the effects of Fascist policy on farmers, workers, and the country. It is full of tables and notes—and the story unfolds in an interesting to a student of Fascism as a more exciting book on the more colorful aspects of life in Italy today.

"Marriages Are Made at Home" (Knopf), by Clarita de Forceville.—A woman-to-woman chat on how to hold your husband.

"The Wax Apple" (Dutton), by Mary Jane Ward.—Trials and tribulations in the lives of two neighboring families.

"Silent Witnesses" (Crime Club), by John Stephen Strange.—An intricate mystery yarn involving divorce and a will, whereby a reporter's hunch breaks the story.

"Oh Promise Me" (Doubleday Doran), by Kenneth Horan.—A delightful, humorous story of the aristocratic family of Eastmeadow, Mich., set just after the Spanish-American war.

Balanced Ration Not so Confusing in the Feeding of Cattle or Sheep if Beginner Determines Use of Three Fundamentals

Editor's Note: The following article on simple feeding instruction was prepared by A. D.

Jackson, chief of the division of publications for the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station at the A. & M. College. It is published herewith for its interest and value to those engaged in or contemplating the feeding of cattle or sheep.

Simple instructions for combining a balanced ration for steers or lambs have recently been prepared by John H. Jones, animal husbandman, Texas Agricultural Experiment Station. Mr. Jones observes that the beginning feeder is too often confused by the term balanced ration. He states that a ration is made up of three things: ROUGHAGE, consisting of cottonseed hulls, hay or silage; PROTEIN SUPPLEMENT, which in Texas means cottonseed meal or cottonseed cake; and GRAIN consisting of grain sorghums, corn, barley, or rice; and what the feeder wants is a method or system of feeding which will give the steers or lambs a balanced ration from the time they start on feed and are thin until the time they are fattened. Mr. Jones remarks that a balanced ration consisting of amounts of grain, cottonseed meal, and roughage, recommended by feeding authorities, may be suitable when the animals are starting on feed or may be suitable only if they are on full feed and any one ration cannot be suitable for steers or lambs for the entire feeding period. He recommends that from the start to the end of the feeding period, the steers or lambs should have all the roughage they will eat. The protein part of the ration may be supplied in a definite amount from start to end of the feeding period according to the age and type of animals. For Texas conditions this means that weaned calves should get about two pounds of cottonseed meal daily; yearlings three to three and one-half pounds; and aged steers three and one-half to five pounds, while lambs should receive from one-third to two-fifths pounds per day. If alfalfa or other legume is used for roughage then the cottonseed meal allowance should be reduced to one-half of these amounts.

Fill With Roughage.
The practical procedure is to pen the animals and give them a fill of roughage while they are getting used to being confined, then in a very few days after the animals are filled up on roughage the full allowance of cottonseed meal can be fed. It is important to get the animals to eat all the cottonseed meal allowance before feeding any grain. Having got the animals to eating the roughage and protein supplement properly, it is then only necessary for the feeder to watch the amount of grain to be supplied and the steers or lambs will take care of that feature. Only very small amounts of grain should be fed at first. For lambs a twentieth of a pound per head is sufficient; for a calf, one-half pounds should be fed and for a steer begin with one pound of grain per day. The amount of grain should be increased gradually adding each day the starting amount until the animals show they have a ration high enough in grain. This is determined by watching the appetites and droppings to tell when to increase the grain. Mr. Jones cautions that the animals should not be allowed to get any where near to scouring and he states that under this plan the ration will always be balanced to the needs of the fattening steers or lambs for the reason that the ration was balanced in the beginning by using enough cottonseed meal to balance the roughage and as the feeding has progressed the added grain has replaced roughage in the ration. As animals fatten, they require a lesser proportion of protein and since the percentage of protein in this ration has decreased slightly as grain was added the ration accordingly remains balanced to the needs of the animals.

Adding The Protein.
There is a wide choice of rations possible on Texas farms in the profitable use of whatever feeds are available. If roughage is very abundant and grain relatively scarce, rations containing smaller allowances of protein and grain can be fed to cattle successfully by lengthening the feeding period so as to enable the consumption of larger amounts of roughage than would be consumed in a short feeding period. Good finish has been secured at the Experiment Station by feeding rations of high roughage content for a period of some two hundred days. In these tests, the total amount of cottonseed meal or cottonseed and grain required was less than when the feeding period was shorter and the daily allowance of concentrates greater. In this type of feeding, the best available quality of roughage should be supplied, feeding all the animals will eat from the beginning. The feed of cottonseed meal should be from 1 to 5 pounds per head daily according to the size of the steers. The grain part of the ration should be fed sparingly, about 3 pounds per day for the first sixty days, 6 pounds for the second sixty days and about 9 pounds per day for the remainder of the feeding period. These amounts will give about two-thirds as much total protein feeds and grain as would be fed in the ordinary high-pressure feeding period of say 120 days and will enable the feeding of almost twice as much roughage as would ordinarily be fed in the feeding period.

The protein part of the ration may well be supplied and some of the grain replaced by cottonseed if the price is favorable. Yearling steers can be safely fed four pounds of cottonseed and two pounds of cottonseed meal daily. The grain allowance of say five hundred pounds per steer can be withheld until the last sixty or ninety days of a two hundred day feeding period.

Hudson Dealer Here Sees New Products

J. M. Hawkins has just returned here from a meeting in Dallas where the new Hudson 112 was unveiled for the first time in this vicinity. Mr. Burns, from the Hudson factory in Detroit, was on hand for the ceremony and stated that the factory is already swinging into full production, and volume shipments of this new entry in the lowest price field are now being made. The announcement of this new car, along with the fact that Hudson is restoring jobs to 6,000 men and spending $11,000,000 for material, created a nation-wide stir last week. Coming at a time when news of lay-offs and retrenchment had become common, the announcement was hailed as introducing a new optimistic note into the general business situation.

Hawkins, who, with other dealers from this part of the country, had his first look at the new car, states that a public showing of the new Hudson 112 will be made here. He states that the car is particularly outstanding in the matter of size, roominess and advance mechanical and safety features heretofore confined to higher priced cars. The meeting at Dallas was one of 83 which will be held throughout the country from coast to coast during the next ten days to show the new car, which has set a high mark in the matter of public interest for such announcements. Front page stories in the big dailies of the largest cities of the country acclaimed the announcement by President A. E. Bart of the Hudson Company, whose organization was doing its bit by putting "men and money back to work." Orders for the new cars have already reached the factory in such volume that steady production for the balance of the winter has already been assured.

Food Grinder Cheer.

If you use a food grinder a great deal and find it convenient to have it assembled and fastened to table or shelf, use a paper bag or sheet of waxed paper over it to keep it thoroughly clean and ready for use.

Co-Eds Demand Men Present Better Front

KENT, O. (AP)—The men of Kent State University had better put up a "stiff-shirt" front at campus social events or they won't have any Kent co-eds for dancing partners. An indignant co-ed released her pent-up feelings on the subject in a letter to the campus newspaper. In it she protested against men students attired in "checked shirts and leather jerkins" at dances. She said: "We give a dance, everything is lovely, then what? Most of the men turn up looking as out of place as tin forks at a banquet."

Barrel Stave Surplus Forces Mills to Close

WAYNESBURG, Pa. (AP)—Is America's thirst being quenched? That was the question here after a Waynesburg barrel stave mill, which had been in continuous operation the last few years, and another stave mill at nearby Wind Ridge were shut down indefinitely because of an 80,000 stave surplus. "Most of the staves are used in whisky barrels and wine kegs. Dust from the explosion of Mount Katmai, Alaska, in 1912, made its way to North Africa in two weeks' time."

Fill With Roughage.

The practical procedure is to pen the animals and give them a fill of roughage while they are getting used to being confined, then in a very few days after the animals are filled up on roughage the full allowance of cottonseed meal can be fed. It is important to get the animals to eat all the cottonseed meal allowance before feeding any grain. Having got the animals to eating the roughage and protein supple-
