Find a Way or Make It.

Ambition sleeps, lad, in your brain, Bright hopes may soon awake it-You see the goal, but ne'er a path, Then find a way, or make it.

To get the eccoanut's rich ment-The shell is hard-you break it; The fragrant leaf its odor holds Until-you bruise or shake it.

Untrodden is the path you choose-You may be wise to take it, Mut look ahead, all danger see, And then you may escape it.

A mountain far too steep to climb! Well, then, don't try and do it, You may be able to go round,. Or patiently dig through it. A fence, you say, but ne'er a gate!

What can you do? you wonder; Just seale the wall; mount, if you can. And if you can't crawl under. Your way is muddy! Wait a while, Let winds and sunshine dry it;

To see some comrade try it. A river deep, you cannot swim? No steamer there, you know it? Well, if there is no other way.

Still, wait not for another rain

Build your own boat, and row it. Nay, lad, we know the way is hard-Down hill and up steep mountain; And oft you ll drink from muddy stream For want of some clear fountain.

Go down, and you'll have many a kick. Go up, and some will push you, But win your way, and praise will come From those we tried to erash you.

False praise is but a phosphorus gleam. For fame we oft mistake it; Still, for a while it lights our way, Until we overtake it.

Don't hide your talent through a fear, wish him success, also the Borther But bravely go and stake it: Wear out, don't rust-to reach your goal Lad, find a way, or make it.

Our school has inroll this year 250 pupils many of whom are from different parts of the west. Among them are Bert Weir, of Garden City. He as you remember won first money in the second day roping contest at San Angelo during the fair, also the gold medial for making the best t ne during the fair, his time bing 32 seconds, the best time ever made in San Angelo, pretty good for a college boy. He will rope in the contest Xnis, which will be at San Angelo. You will have to look out for him boys for it was no acident caused him to do business with them at Angelo for he is in the habit of twining his ox in time to get some money. Bert is my room mate and I esteem him > one of the finest boys I ever knew. I wish to congratulate the flicers whom were elected for this term and would say to the defeated ones not to grow discouraged for we will all fail some time

> I havent heard much from the school this term but know its all right, it couldent be otherwise under the management of such a noble instructor as Prof. J. S. Morgan, who is so kind, attentive and instructive in the school work. I as one of his pupils of last year esteen him very highly in every respect and wish him perfeet success in his work of this year, I also wish my old school mates well.

STOLEN BY THE SEA. England Loses Many Acres Each Year In This Way.

The Strand Magazine describes the steady and disastrous eating away of the coast line of England stated that the annual loss of area by coast erosion in England alone is probably not less than 2,000 acres. On the other hand, marsh lands have been drained and other lands have been drained and other lands reclaimed, but these areas are insiginficant as compared with those which have been lost.

Parts of the lost lands were low lying, protected by dikes or levees, which were eventually breached; other parts were washed away by floods and storms, but in many cases the sea is eating its way into tall cliffs, demolishing numerous towns and villages.

The line of anchorage for ships off Selsey, in Sussex, is still called "the park," having been a royal deer park in the reign of Henry VIII., while the treacherous shoals known as the Goodwin sands formed in early days the estate of Earl

Take an office stool, screw it up as high as possible and put it into a wagon without any springs; then seat yourself on the stool and have it driven over rocky and uneven ground during the hottest weather of July or August and after you have not had anything to eat or drink for twenty-four hours, and then you will get a faint idea of how delightfully poetic it is to ride on a camel in the wilds of Africa."

Cured Her.

On one occasion the proverbial patience of Mr. W. S. Gilbert, the playwright, was somewhat tried by a certain lady's apparent inability to speak one particular line as it had been written. Upon making a hurried entrance the actress had to exclaim to those on the stage: "Stay! Let me speak!" But she that his medical adviser prescribed persisted time after time in "going animal food as the best means of one better" and saying: "Stay, stay! Let me speak!" #### The Sign of the Three Balls.

The three gilded balls used by pawnbrokers are the three gilded said latterly: pills which the Florentine banking iouse of the Medici assumed as their arms when they became wealthy. The founder of the family had been a medicus. His children went into banking and got rich. They assumed the canting coat of arms of the pills and hung them out to show where their bank was, their business being largely in the nature of pawnbroking. Their rivals enught on to the idea and hung up three golden balls, and so their successors, having given up banking, retain the balls as the emblem of the pawnbroking side of the
