Bulldogs Defeat Abernathy 64-12

With Bulldog backs Slack, Allredge and Blair slashing the ends of the Abernathy Antelopes at will, Spur racked up a 64 to 12 victory Friday night, to give them their 4th conference victory in District 3-A play.

Taking the kick-off, Spur immediately scored on four sweeps by Slack. Blair and Allredge, with Slack going over for the first score. Abernathy came back and after receiving the kick-off marched 70 yards to pay dirt when quarterback Hughes passed over the goal line to Stephens for the score. Spur scored three more before half time to have a lead of 27 to 12. With the opening of the 2nd half, the Bulldogs took complete charge. THE SIGNIFICANCE OF ARMISTICE DAY

The significance of Armistice Day goes deep in the "Gives You Texas" heart of this country. It marks our victory in the two most destructive wars the world has ever known. Of comparable importance, it should remind every American of the enormous human and economic wealth we knocks only once at each man's have been forced to spend to maintain our liberties, and loor but Walter Malone, the poet, to defend those principles upon which the dignity of quotes Opportunity as saying:

Armistice Day should bring us another thought as well. This nation has never provoked a war. No people on earth is more peaceful in intention. None will do more to achieve a just and lasting peace for all countries. farmer is convincing. If ever we are forced to engage in war, it will be because we can find no other means of maintaining those followed by reverses, McEachern, rights and freedoms which make up the American tra- a few years ago, found himself,

But these things, vital as they are, represent a reflection of our strength rather than the substance of it. For the core of this nation's strength and power lies in the spirit of its people.

That spirit is the spirit of freedom. It is based shortage of supply. There is no better illustration of the fact that the world has shrunk tremendously, looking at it from the military and foreign mendously, looking at it from the military and foreign relations points of view, and that America's ocean-made relations points of view, and that America's ocean-made geographical remoteness from Europe is no longer considered to be a guarantee of territorial security.

If and when the alliance comes into being, it will be the result of the Soviet Union's postwar attitude—and, more particularly, the obvious intent of that power to dominate all of Europe and destroy every possible vestige of Western demoratic influences. Had Russia even gone through the motions of cooperating with the Western nations in implementing the peace, and the Western nations in implementing the peace, and had she shown even a modicum of restraint in her dealings with the little nations that border on her boundaries, for four years and at last was a farmer who, four years before, program, can we expect to keep it is doubtful if the American Congress and the Ameri-granted. can people would have approved anything resembling an effective foreign alliance. However, that is water under the bridge, and the world being what it is we are taking more and more of the spotlight on the internation-

According to John M. Hightower, an AP foreign editor, "State department officials . . . plan to consult leaders of Congress and the major political parties to find what they will support in the final drafting of a proposed treaty to create a North Atlantic mutual defense system." The countries which will be initially involved, besides the U.S., are Canada, Britian, France. Belgium, Luxembourg, and The Netherlands. Preliminary talks have already been made between the ambass adors of these nations and Undersecretary of State Lovett, who has been doing a great deal of quiet but important spade-work for the future while his chief. General Marshall, has been occupied with critical current

Mr. Hightower reports that diplomatic authorities feel that a number of major points will survive negotiations and be formally enacted. Among them are: 1. The participating nations will form the nucleus of the non-communist alliance. 2. Other non-communist powers should be included. 3. If any of the nations involved is attacked, all the others will consider that they have been attacked as well. 4. Thereafter, each nation would take "appropriate action" in accordance with its own particular constitutional processes.

This is indicative of the progress the West is making cementing its strength against possible aggression. is reasonable to assume that such an alliance would be followed by outright military aid on a large scale to the countries of Europe which join. All of them are militarily weak, to varying degrees, and they want planes, tanks, ammunition, and so on. view of many, an alliance on paper wouldn't mean much unless it were solidly backed up by material power.

There is still another point that deserves wide mention - the courage that small European countries have shown in resisting Russia. That resistance is fairly easy for us, with our enormous military potential, and our possession of a huge country which has been free of foreign invasion. It is a very different thing for poor and devastated countries which have been fought over at almost regular istervals for centuries, and which are within easy reach of the powerful Russian bear with his innumerable divisions, his planes, his submarines, and his guns. The anti-communist leaders in those countries certainly can hold no illusions about what will happen to them if the communists to gain control—the example of Czechoslovakia is sufficient. And even the rank and file of Western sympathizers know that there would probably be an unpleasant fate in store for them too - the communists obtain their forced labor gangs from those who oppose them. All in all, the peoples and governments of Western Europe have shown a fine degree of resolution in standing up for what they believe to be right.

Two batches of top quality 93 score butter were compared. One batch was protected only by vegetable parchment. The second batch was packed in parchment plus a paraffined carton. At the end of five days the butter in the parchment—without the carton—had dropped its score to 89.3 while the cartoned butter went down only half a point to 92.5!
