

J. E. Adams Carries Bailey County For Judge Second Primary

Wins Over Opponent By 70 Votes. Other Candidates Win By Small Majority. Little Interest In State Races Shown.

Although not so exciting as the first primary in July, the voters of Bailey County showed much interest in the election last Saturday and the number of votes polled were almost as many as in the first contest. As in the first primary, the Judge's race seemed to attract the most attention. J. E. Adams won over Pat F. Bobo by 70 votes, while Wm. S. F. Mathiesen was elected commissioner over A. L. Davis by 12 majority. Mr. Bell was re-elected to a second term in Precinct 4, polling 110 votes to 101 for Baker. In Precinct 3, Hood won over Robinson by 14 votes.

S. N. M. Marrs, candidate for reelection as State Superintendent of Public Instruction, had the largest majority of any of the candidates for State office, the others being fairly even. Mayfield received only 2 votes more than his opponent, and the results in this race were very close. Interest over the State was centered on this contest and the vote is much heavier than was expected. Seventeen counties held no run-off election, according to reports. In these counties all local races were decided in the first primary, and the interest in the State races was not sufficient to warrant holding an election.

The following is the total votes received in Bailey County by each candidate:

State Offices	Connelly	Mayfield	Miller	Love	Gerner	Marrs	Terrill	Robison	For County Judge	Pat R. Bobo	J. E. Adams	Commissioner, Precinct No. 1	Wm. S. F. Mathiesen	A. L. Davis	Commissioner, Precinct No. 3	P. N. Hood	A. E. Robinson	Commissioner, Precinct No. 4	J. M. Bell	J. A. Baker	State Senator Thomas B. Love
	309	311	215	219	345	287	272	283		398	468		204	212		69	55		110	101

State Senator Thomas B. Love of Dallas placed before the State committee but withdrew after the State committee had declined to bar his name from the ballot, on the grounds that he has refused to support Gov. Alfred E. Smith for President. Love, in withdrawing, said he did not believe he could defeat Miller. Miller's name was left on the ballot as a safeguard of the legality of his nomination.

Connelly Increases Lead, Near 60,000

Congressman Tom Connelly's majority over United States Senator Earle B. Mayfield, his opponent, in Saturday's runoff primary, was nearing 60,000 Tuesday night, according to tabulation by the Texas Election Bureau.

All but five counties holding elections had reported with only 140 complete. Connelly's total was 395,814 and Mayfield 248,649.

Charge Mexican Citizens Cast Vote In Texas Primary

Sid Hardin, of Mission, Texas, candidate for Congress, has asked Secretary Kellogg to investigate illegal voting of 10,000 Mexican citizens in the July primary election.

It is charged in the appeal that John Carter, now ranking Democrat, voted Mexican citizens in droves after big entertainments.

Raskob Indorses 'Bolters'—Heflin

Lafayette, Ala., Aug. 28—Senator J. Thomas Heflin, who is spending a few days at home, took occasion to issue a statement dealing with party "bolting" in reference to the recent Philadelphia address of John J. Raskob in which the Democratic chairman told Republicans that they can step over and vote for Smith for President without changing their identity as Republicans.

Heflin said that Raskob "has completely committed himself to the position that it is right and proper for the voter of one party to cast his vote for the head of the ticket of another party without giving up party principles or party affiliations."

Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Douglas returned Monday night from Galveston, where they spent a few days on the beach.

Local Markets To Be Given Weekly

Beginning with this issue, the Journal will give the market report each week. These reports are furnished by Muleshoe buyers of produce and grains and are for the convenience of the people of this territory.

Crop conditions in the county are fair to good, and the elevators are doing a busy season. Produce is also reported good and local houses are making large shipments of chickens, eggs and cream daily.	Sudan	Kafir	Wheat (bu.)	Ear corn (bu.)	Shelled corn (bu.)	Cane Seed

Labor Has the Right of Way

What's Doing In West Texas New Business Is Established

LITTLEFIELD—A local rock hill a mile long and thirty feet deep will be used for parking street cars and will enlarge the business. T. J. George and L. B. Bates have purchased the Block's store at Enoch and will enlarge the business. They will have one of the largest dry goods, drugs, gas, oils and lumber stores in the county and will do business under the name of George, Bates Mercantile Company. Mr. George has recently moved to this country from Rhom, Texas, while Mr. Bates has been in the Enoch community for several months, moving there from Littlefield.

Kills Rattler In Santa Fe Station

Upon entering the waiting room at the Santa Fe station Monday morning, Mr. Eckler, station agent met a rattlesnake about two and one half feet long, which had taken possession of that part of the company's property. Rattlers are very uncommon in this section and the supposition is that Mr. Rattler was merely looking the community over and found conditions so good he decided to make his home here.

Local Business Man On Reception Committee For Famous General

How Presidents Are Elected

We find that there is some confusion among the voters as to how the President of the United States is elected. We are therefore giving this little lesson in Civics for all who may be interested.

The President is not elected by popular vote. The names of the Presidential candidates do not appear upon the ballots used in the Presidential election. When you go to the polls to cast your vote next November, you will not find the names of Herbert Hoover and Al Smith on the ballot. You will not vote directly, technically speaking for either. You will only vote for the Presidential Electors.

Under our Federal Constitution each state is entitled to as many Presidential Electors as it has Senators and Representatives in Congress. Texas, therefore, will have votes in the electoral college for President. Each state has two Senators regardless of its size or population, but the number of Representatives depends upon the population. For instance, New Mexico has one Representative in Congress and New York has 47.

Each party elects its Electors in each state. For instance, in Texas the Democrats have selected the names of 20 Democrats to appear upon the official ballot November as Presidential electors. Likewise, the Republicans will select the names of 20 Republicans, or will go so, to appear upon the same official ballot as Republican electors. The Democratic ticket will appear in parallel columns on the same ballot, any person desiring to vote for Al Smith will scratch the names of the Democratic Presidential Electors, and any person desiring to vote for Herbert Hoover will scratch the names of the Republican Electors.

The names of the Democratic and Republican candidates for U. S. Senator, Congress, Governor and other state district, county and precinct offices will likewise appear on the Democratic and Republican columns respectively. Any one may vote a straight Democratic ticket, or as he desires, in which case he or she will scratch the entire Republican column. He may vote a straight Republican ticket, if he or she so desires, in which case he or she may vote the entire Democratic ticket. Or he or she may vote a mixed ticket, if so desired, in which case he or she will leave such names in either column as he or she may desire to vote for and will scratch the other names.

If the Democratic Electors receive more votes than the Republican Electors, the Democratic Electors will cast 20 votes in the electoral college for Al Smith for President. If the Republican Electors receive more votes than the Democratic Electors, then the Republican Electors will cast the 20 votes of Texas in the electoral college for Herbert Hoover for President. The candidate who receives a majority of the Electoral votes will be elected President of the United States.

The Electoral votes are cast in the following manner: The successful Electors in each state meet in January following the election, in the state capitol building to vote for President. They prepare a certificate showing the name of the Presidential candidate for whom they voted. One copy of this certificate is mailed to the President and the Senate and one copy is taken by one of the electors in person, selected for that purpose, and delivered to the President of the Senate. In February, the Senate caucuses shall select the President from among the three candidates receiving the highest number of votes. This has not occurred in 100 years, but in 1912 when Woodrow Wilson, Taft and Roosevelt were candidates, there was much speculation preceding the election as to whether or not the electors of the President would be thrown into the House of Representatives. This would have occurred if the electors had voted into two nearly equal parts, however, enabling Wilson to carry a large majority in the states, and he therefore received a large majority of the Electoral votes—EX.

Copper State Shows Here This Week

The Copper State Shows, which are playing a special engagement in Muleshoe this week, are giving the citizens something out of the ordinary in the way of shows that are usually found with carnivals. The feature attraction, "Hiko, the South African Bushman," is under the personal direction of Prof. Coley, a veteran of the Spanish-American War, and this feature, we have been told, is one of the strangest on exhibition today. They, they have the smallest Mother-Baby alive, in fact every show is entertaining, with the many curiosities to be found.

Mr. Oberman, the owner, is well known in Muleshoe, and has made many friends in our city by giving the public something worth while. The show closes here Saturday night and goes to Texico, where they will show all next week.

Rev. Strickland of Farwell New Pastor At Baptist Church

Rev. Strickland of Farwell preached at the Baptist church here last Sunday. The new pastor will be completed and will move his family here within a few days.

The new pastor will be completed some time this week, with the exception of the post office. The land is a make of exceptional ability and a fine preacher. The Journal notes that he is extending his family a cordial welcome to Muleshoe.

Miss Marie Gwyn, who is in training at the Lubbock sanitarium, is spending her vacation here with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Gwyn.

Appointment of Prominent Legion Men to Reception Committee For Field Marshal Allenby of Great Britain Announced Last Saturday.

San Antonio, Texas, Aug. 27—Constance Gupton, of Muleshoe, was appointed on a committee of Texas Legionnaires to receive and escort Field Marshal Viscount Allenby, of Great Britain, at the American Legion national convention at San Antonio, October 8 to 12.

Announcement of the appointment, made by Department Commander Walton D. Hood, was received here today.

Mr. Gupton is Post Commander of Ben Richardson Post, American Legion, Muleshoe, Texas, and has been active in Legion work since the close of the World War. He was with the A. E. F. as a member of the 4th Trench Mortar Battalion. This organization was one of the most offensive and the history of its experiences is of unusual interest.

Field Marshal Allenby is one of the most brilliant generals of modern times and the honor accorded Mr. Gupton shows the high esteem in which he is held by the Department officials.

The Allenby committee will have charge of plans for the reception and entertainment of Field Marshal Allenby during the national Legion gathering. It will act as an escort and guard of honor for the distinguished soldier who conquered Turkey and freed Jerusalem during the War. Viscount Allenby is one of a number of distinguished guests who will attend the Legion Convention. In this respect, the San Antonio meeting is expected to surpass most of the past conventions of the organization.

Brigadier General Jacob Wolters, of Houston, is chairman of the state committee for the reception of Field Marshal Allenby. Other members of the committee are: Col. Hal Horton, Greenville; Col. P. Weathered, Houston; Col. L. R. Houston, Dallas; Dr. J. P. Flower, Livingston; Buck Wynn, Wills Point; C. K. Carter, Dallas; W. A. Henderson, Cameron; W. M. Wyatt, San Marcos; C. E. Temple, Alvarado; Frank H. Oades, Odessa; W. A. Shorsire, Brady.

BOYS KILL 28 RATTLESNAKES

While rabbit hunting on their farm, known as the McElroy place, five miles southeast of this city one day last week, two small sons of Sam Justice killed and killed 28 rattlesnakes which had been biting the cattle and horses. The lads report killing two large rattlers and after cutting them up they ate the remainder of the 28 small snakes each.

"This snakeology" tell us that the mother snake opens her mouth and permits her young to enter when her instinct tells her the little ones are in danger, and it is believed that this accounts for the finding of the little ones with the large snakes. All of them were alive—New Mexico State Tribune.

Truck Overturns On Clovis Highway

One of the big trucks of the Garrison Terr. Bureau overturned Saturday afternoon when it hit a 1600 pound bull larriat. The animal was walking along the highway and was struck even with the truck, turned squarely in front of it and was thrown into the front of a truck and a good portion of the shipment was ruined. The occupants were not injured, but the machine was very fortunate as the machine turned completely over.

LITTLE BAND-WAGON JOURNEYS

BY L. T. MERRILL

Death of "King Caucus"

IN THE election of 1824 the people for the first time had a fairly direct influence in making Presidential nominations.

"King Caucus" was dying. Keen dissatisfaction with the selection of nominees by little groups of congressmen had crystallized. Gen. Andrew Jackson, whose Tennessee friends had prevailed upon him to enter the Presidential race, soon succeeded in making the antitax issue the paramount one of the campaign. Other aspirants, with a single notable exception, were constrained to frown upon the system and eschew its benefits.

With the caucus discredited, the contest for the Presidential succession, which began only a few months after President Monroe entered upon his second term, soon developed into a wide-open fight among Jackson, Henry Clay of Kentucky, John C. Calhoun of South Carolina, John Quincy Adams of Massachusetts, and William H. Crawford of Georgia.

Various state legislatures, local mass meetings, and one state convention, held at Harrisburg, Pa., put the names of the first four of these leaders in nomination.

The Georgian was the last nominee of a congressional caucus. And when the caucus system was expiring, its last great manipulator suddenly was stricken and lay at the point of death. Overcome by malaria, he had a dark room, threatened by blindness and loss of speech, bled by doctors 23 times in three weeks, as was the old-fashioned surgical method of treating nearly all forms of illness. Crawford was unable to conduct his official duties as President Monroe's secretary of the treasury or to wage his political battles. His prospects as a Presidential candidate, indeed looked dark, but his friends in congress rallied strongly to the support of the bold leader.

The canvass was waged on all fronts with vigor. A new campaign device lent novelty to the contest. Instead of scoring campaigns, nations hearing of his victories, as is done today, adherents of the various nominees donned showy silk waistcoats upon which portraits of the men they favored had been stamped. Jackson waistcoats bearing the likeness of "Old Hickory" became especially the symbol of membership in Hickory clubs formed by his supporters.

Finally the electoral vote was taken, and it was found Jackson had 69, Adams 34, Crawford 11, and Clay 37, late returns from Louisiana, which there was much suspense, having showed Crawford into third position ahead of Clay.

None having a majority, the result meant that under the Constitutional provision for such a contingency the lower house of congress must decide the election from among the three men standing highest in the poll. This definitely put Clay out of the running. But although he could not be President himself, he was left with the power practically of deciding who the President should be! This because of the tremendous influence he wielded as speaker and as probably the most popular member of the house of representatives.

Friends of Jackson, Crawford and Adams at once maneuvered to win Clay's favor. Adams' friends were particularly anxious, because of an old feud that existed between the general and the speaker. They succeeded in patching it up. It appeared, however, that Jackson's and Crawford's friends were fishing in vain. Clay was going to throw his influence to Adams.

Crestfallen, the Jackson managers began to abuse the Kentuckian. They made dire prophecies that there would be rioting and bloodshed if the "sold hero" of New Orleans failed of election in the house. Then they put a Pennsylvania member of congress up to the business of getting an anonymous letter printed in a Pennsylvania newspaper charging that Clay had bartered his support to Adams in return for the promise of selection as Adams' secretary of state in case the latter should be elected.

Came the election in the house. There Adams, though he had run second in the electoral college, was elected. He turned the congressional vote of 13 of the then 24 states in the Union. Jackson got the congressional vote of only seven states, and Crawford none. Jackson's friends were angry and bitter. For the next four years they kept saying Adams had won the Presidency as result of a "corrupt bargain" with Clay. Although no evidence of such an intrigue ever came to light, the fact that Clay was made Adams' secretary of state furnished a good talking point for those who continued to make the charges.

But the principal consequence of the election of 1824 was to deal a death blow to caucus nominations. The first state nominating convention had made its appearance. It was inevitable that the convention idea should be broadened from a state to a national basis, though this did not come until the next decade. Then an inconsequential third party was to have the distinction of holding the first national nominating convention in America.

First National Conventions

STATE nominating conventions appeared in 1824 in protest against the congressional caucus system. It was six years later that the first national party convention was held.

Pennsylvania citizens, besides holding the first state convention, had given the idea for a national gathering. The Democrats of Lancaster county in the Keystone state went on record in 1824 as favoring "a convention of delegates from the states of the Union" as "the best and most unexceptionable method" of nominating Presidential candidates, although they admitted it would be "practically unfeasible, from the immense extent of our country and from the great expense necessarily incident to an attendance from the extreme parts of the United States."

These difficulties were real. In 1828 when the first national convention was attempted, the United States had only 23 miles of railway, and stage and horseback travel over ill-made roads was extremely slow.

The Antislavery party was one of those sporadic, middle-class parties that are born and die almost in the same campaign. But it goes the result of holding the first national convention.

The gathering met at Philadelphia in September, 1830, and called a second convention to meet in Baltimore a year later. At the latter meeting the party had a representation equal to the number of senators and representatives of the states in congress.

The National Republican forerunners of the Whig party, were not slow to imitate the Anti-Masons' example. Baltimore in 1831 was also the scene of a party meeting, each claiming its place as the first national convention. The gathering, representing in some what irregular fashion 17 states.

Members decided upon the candidates by vote, each claiming its place as the first national convention. The gathering, representing in some what irregular fashion 17 states.

Henry Clay was the unanimous choice of the convention, and it recommended the convening of a national assembly of young men in Washington the next year. This body, known derisively as "the Infant School," also endorsed the great compromiser.

Neither of these early conventions adopted what could be strictly regarded as a platform. In the modern sense, although they passed resolutions. The ten resolutions adopted by the young men at Washington have been referred to as the first platform ever formulated by a national party convention.

Gen. Andrew Jackson, who had been elected President in 1828, with his keen instinct for getting close to the people, was quick to see advantage in the new nominating method. So, although Jackson was sure of being renominated by the Democrats to succeed himself, he had a national convention summoned for the purpose of rallying his preference for Martin Van Buren of New York to be the vice presidential nominee. The latter was far from being a favorite with the party, and Jackson decided upon holding the convention to give his running-mate the semblance of a popular mandate.

"Old Hickory" saw to it in advance that none of the delegates were lined up for him. Those who were disappointed of the New Yorker were told it would be well for them to climb aboard the bandwagon unless they wished "to quarrel with the general."

It is interesting to note that from this earliest Democratic national convention date certain practices peculiar to Democratic conventions, notably the two-thirds rule, that have persisted right down through the party history.

Colonial Workers in Silver Men of Genus

IT is difficult to say when sterling was first used in America. Undoubtedly Columbus and the early discoverers brought certain impurities with them on their discovery trips. We know for certain that the early colonists used sterling brought over from the Old world.

Their sterling treasures, many of them heirlooms, were cherished as too valuable to leave behind. An occasional sterling object on the shelves of the early Americans furnished a particularly bright spot in the drab life of the pioneers.

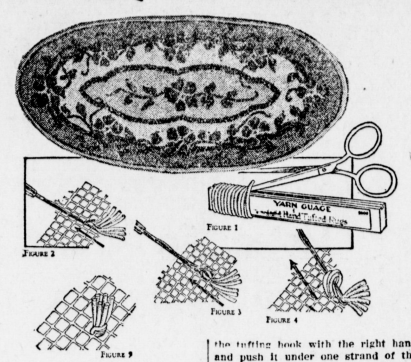

It was not long, however, before the colonies developed their own native silversmiths.

Much of this early American silver is still in existence to bear witness to the genius of that time. Such names as Standish Barry, Peter Van Dyke and the immortal Paul Revere stand out among the colonial silversmiths—Chicago American.

Jockey Club Autocrat

The Jockey club was incorporated under the laws of the state of New York on February 8, 1834. The first annual meeting was held December 31, 1834. It now has jurisdiction over all the flat racing in the state of New York. It also controls and controls the pedigrees of horses in the United States. No horse can start in a race at a registered meeting unless it has been registered and named.

Pretty Things That are made at Home

RUGMAKING, the popular pastime of generations past and present! The art has been brought to such perfection until absolutely no laborious effort is required. Women are fascinated with a new process of hand tufting which has been so simplified anyone can do it. What is more, it furnishes a fascinating pastime for leisure hours.

Very few materials are needed. Just a special yarn gauge as pictured in Fig. 1, a yarn tufting box, a stamped canvas pattern and the necessary amount of yarn according to the design to be worked.

The most convenient arrangement is to sit at a table in front of the canvas (too frame is needed as in other rugmaking), keeping the finished portion toward you as you tie the yarn.

The rug is made of a series of tufts, each quickly tied into a cross mesh in the canvas. The pattern is printed on this canvas in the colors which are to be used. Fig. 1 shows how to use the yarn gauge so that the strands be cut to equal length.

The next step is to take three of these strands and make a loop. Hold

Velvet Hats Are the Vogue for Fall

VELVET hats have a way of ignoring the calendar. It must be admitted that they are wonderfully effective with the silver frocks which beautify the mid-season landscape. Anyway, velvet, according to what leading stylists say, is hereafter to be regarded as a year-round fabric. Now this strange sentiment is regarded to velvet is not without reason, for velvet as was in ye olden days and as is in our modern times, is two different things. The term velvet in this generation may signify a weave as airy, as lightweight as chiffon.

The revival of velvet in millinery is significant, for it bespeaks a trend toward headwear of dressier men. Milliners are doing some very flattering things with velvet, which for the most part embodies a lot of work in the way of insets and quilting and sewing and hints of other intriguing treatments. Those black velvet hats, and there are many of them, which have lace insets are especially good-looking.

The tendency to off-the-face effects is quite pronounced in early velvet models. Three of the hats shown in this group, while they are face-framing, which is "the thing" this season, get their brims turned up from the eyes. Another characteristic feature of the

Forget last year's jelly failures
This year you have PEXEL

PEXEL jells all fruits. Requires less boiling. Obtains more jelly. Does not change the most delicate flavor or color of any fruit

EVEN if you've had a dozen failures—or if you never made jelly before—you can make jellies successfully with PEXEL. Just add it to fruit juice and bring to full boil. Then add sugar. Bring to vigorous boil once more. Take kettle from range. Skim. Pour into glasses. That's all—it will be jelled as soon as it is cool.

When you use PEXEL, its price—30¢—is repaid from one to three times. Time and fuel are saved. You make more jelly because fruit juice, sugar and flavor are not wasted by prolonged boiling. It is 100% pure-fruit-product. It is absolutely colorless,

CANDIDATE FILES TRUTHFUL LIST OF ELECTION "GOSTS"

New Lexington, Ohio.—The law requires candidates for office to file a report of all expenditures. A widely known candidate for sheriff in Perry county has his all ready to file and has the matter truthfully compiled, showing just what it cost him "to be elected."

"Lost 1,340 hours of sleep thinking about the election. Lost two front teeth and a lot of hair in a personal encounter with an opponent. Donated one beef, four shoats and five sheep to county barbecues. Gave away two pairs of suspenders, four calico dresses, $5 in cash and 15 baby rattles."

"Kissed 120 babies. Put up four stoves. Killed 14 fires. Walked 4, 076 miles. Shook hands with 9,508 people. Told 10,000 lies and talked enough to make in print 1,000 volumes."

"Attended 16 revivals and was baptized four times by immersion and twice by other ways. Contributed $50 to foreign missions and made love to nine widows—five grass and four sod."

"Hugged 40 old maids. Got dog-bit 39 times and was elected by 353 majority."

KEEP HEN HOUSES CLEAN

The sudden death of a few hens during the hot weather of August may not, and usually does not, indicate any special disease outbreak, according to the August Oklahoma Farmer-Stockman. However, as a matter of precaution it is advised to open up each dead hen for an examination of the internal organs for any abnormal condition which might cause death.

As at any other season, the best way to prevent disease outbreaks and individual fowl losses during the summer and early fall is to keep the premises clean and sanitary and to feed a well-balanced ration including plenty of green feed and milk.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Baty, of Truscott, Texas, were visiting in the Tom Ferris home last week. This was their first trip to Muleshoe, and Mr. Baty says that he is like many other people in the eastern part of the State, who could not realize the wonderful possibilities of Bailey County until he had seen the proof. He was especially impressed with the unlimited water supply and the wonderful crops of corn, cotton and feed.

Mrs. J. C. Weaver, who has been visiting her daughter in the East, arrived here Saturday to be with Mr. Weaver, who is still suffering from sciatic rheumatism.

CARD OF THANKS

I take this method of thanking the people of Bailey county for their co-operation during the recent campaign. Your support at the polls Saturday led to my nomination for the office of County Judge and School Superintendent. I appreciate the vote given me, but wish my opponent's supporters to know that I hold no malice toward them because they did not see fit to vote for me. It shall be my purpose to render impartial service.

Yours truly,

General Motors Proving Grounds Active

General Motors proving ground, the 1245 acre outdoor proving ground near Milford, Mich., where cars are accurately measured to find out their performance ability, has in response to a demand for greater accuracy, added a weather house to its many ingenious scientific checking devices.

Adapted, like so many of its companion devices at the proving ground, to the sole task of evaluating precisely and impartially all makes of automobiles, the weather house is, perhaps, the only one of its kind in the world. Unlike other observatories, this one is not a weather forecaster, but a weather "hindcaster" to use a term employed by proving ground engineers. Its unique, again, in that it includes in its complete equipment, probably the only wind velocity indicator in operation outside of the United States Navy.

It has been in use for several weeks, and is now operating day and night under the direction of skilled meteorologists. Its reports are available to all General Motors division engineers and daily reports are filed at Lansing with the Michigan state weather department.

Here is a hypothetical instance of the manner in which the weather house assists the engineer in the precise task of engineering an automobile's merit:

The Chevrolet engineering division, in checking back on the performance of one of its "Bigger and Better" models, might find that on May 9th its gasoline consumption exceeded slightly by that of the preceding and following days. It might be found, too, that a little more water was required for the radiator and that fluctuations were noted in the speed zone of which effects would be discerned by the average driver.

The Chevrolet engineers will set out to find the cause of these variations. And one of the first aids they will call upon is the weather recorder.

In checking back with the graphic weather records, the engineers might find that the wind velocity varied on May 9th between six and ten miles per hour. On May 8th and 10th it remained below five miles an hour throughout the day. Thus the engineers know in making their comparisons that the wind was a factor in the change and to what extent. In like manner they are able to exactly tell what effect the sunshine, rain, humidity or snow had to do with performance fluctuations on any given hour of any given day. This definite knowledge is a vital help in developing new models and an adjusting old ones.

The wind velocity, incidentally, is one of the most important meteorological factors in motor performance. So marked is its effect, in fact, that precise tests are impossible when it exceeds 10 miles an hour. The complex and always reliable wind velocity indicator, which came into being in the United States Navy, where it was evolved from a device originally used for transmitting messages from the bridge of a ship to the engine room, is one of the most highly considered pieces of equipment in the weather house.

Weather has always been a bugaboo to automotive engineers, and the proving ground has not neglected to place it among the most important factors bearing upon performance. Means of recording temperature and barometric pressure had been in use before the weather house was established. It related, however, for this compact little building, whose warning flags are discernable from all parts of the ground, to place weather computation on an efficient basis. About 1,000 feet higher than Detroit with cold winters, warm summers and generous distribution of snow and rainfall, meteorologists agree with automobile men that it is ideally located.

WATER SAFETY MONTH FOR BOY SCOUTS CLOSING

(August is water safety month with the Boy Scout Troops of the Eastern New Mexico Area Council. Practically all of the troops have been given instruction in swimming for beginners and life saving for the more advanced scouts.)

Alamogordo, Dexter and Roswell scouts and leaders have been precise in having the help of a National Field representative of the Red Cross. He spent two days in each of the named towns and helped the local leaders give examinations and instruction. Already forty scouts have completed the requirements for the Junior Life Saving emblem and it is expected that many more will finish up this week. The Junior Red Cross work is the same as the scout emblem requirements in life saving and most of the scouts are completing the two at the same time.

J. J. Walden Trained For Big Position

Mr. J. J. Walden is the sole owner of the Southwestern Engraving Company of Fort Worth, Texas, and the principal stockholder of the Tyler Commercial College, Tyler, Texas, and Atlanta, Georgia. His annual income is very large and he is rated to be worth over $25,000.00.

This income and this rating were not handed to Mr. Walden on a silver platter. Indeed, a few years ago—when he was 16 years of age and lived at Tascas, Texas—he stood just where hundreds of thousands of young people stand today; without money, without influential friends, without even a High School training.

But unlike many others, he didn't spend any time bemoaning his handicaps. He quickly discovered that without special ability of any kind he wouldn't have a ghost of a chance ever to rise above the ranks of mule shoe workers. Observation showed him that it was in the world of business where the biggest incomes were made—where opportunities were more abundant. All that stood between him and these opportunities was his lack of business training.

When the fourth of May rolls 'round, I always feel like celebrating," says Mr. Walden. "It was on that day that I enrolled at Tyler Commercial College, Tyler, Texas. Just six months later, November 4, I had graduated in Bookkeeping and shorthand and other subjects.

My starting salary was small indeed compared to what we now pay T. C. G. graduates who come to our college. But the salary that was ordinary, just as it is today. The big thing Tyler Commercial College did for me was to give me a wealth of opportunities. I was soon making enough to enable me to lay away quite a bit. So, when my chance came to go into business for myself, I was ready—both with money and experience.

So if you want to make your mark in the world, you CAN. All you need to supply is the ambition and the will. Tyler Commercial College is the rest. CARD OF THANKS

I am certainly most pleased, gratified and especially thankful to the many voters and friends of Bailey county that supported me for Judge, as well as the many that did likewise for the office of County Attorney, in the primary last Saturday. I lost a clean race but I can well assure all that I shall never forget the loyalty and friendliness that I know I have you here with you. I sincerely hope and trust that I may be permitted to remain here with you for many more years, during which time, I trust I shall be able to retain your friendship and make many more; in addition, when possible, render any service that the individual or county as whole may command.

Give 'em the Air
OR THEY'LL GIVE YOU THE AIR.
If tires could whistle when they need more air, right now it would sound like 11 o'clock on an Armistice Day Celebration.
Perhaps half the tires on the streets—possibly including some of yours—are gasping for air. Begging for their breath of life!
What do they get? A kick in the sidewall—or a kick to see if they are bulging. "Ha, ha," laugh the little devils that punish soft tires. "Motorists don't know that even as little as 3 pounds under-inflation enables us to raise—er, hovoc. Or that too much air is also destructive."
Goodyears, because of their rubber-insulated flexible SUPERTWIST cord body, can stand more abuse than any other tires we know—yet it isn't fair to expect even a Goodyear to deliver all its greater mileage without the proper amount of air inside. Have those tires examined TODAY.

"Captain de Beaujeu, your words are so many puzzles to me," I coldly informed him. "I stood at the side of Monsieur Falet when he offered his belt to Alliquippa in the village, and was not in the village, however, when the dead Huron was found. I know that Alliquippa did not relish our friend's presence in the village and that he left early in the evening instead of waiting to make the journey with me in the morning as we had agreed. Do you mean to say that the young Englishman has not arrived?"

"The Englishman arrived, but not with Falet. It is like this Monsieur Belmont: The young man arrived before daylight, but he passed—no, instead of waiting to make the journey with me in the morning as we had agreed. Do you mean to say that the young Englishman has not arrived?"

"I was tongue-tied for a good minute. It did not take me a second to realize that in the vague light of early morning Cromil had made a mistake and had killed poor Falet instead of Beaujeu; that it was Beaujeu and the girl who had passed—no, instead of waiting to make the journey with me in the morning as we had agreed. Do you mean to say that the young Englishman has not arrived?"

"I do not understand. Falet was to leave the Indian village with me. Because of Alliquippa's ill will, he changed his plans and left at night; at least I surely believed he left at night. Now, behold! A miracle is worked. He starts with the Englishman, and it is Lieutenant Beaujeu who comes to his place."

Beaujeu smiled faintly and pleasantly said:

"It may not be a mystery after all. Lieutenant Beaujeu did tell me that Falet planned to leave at night and for some reason changed his plan. The Englishman who is French at heart was impatient to reach the fort and came with Beaujeu instead of waiting to come with Falet. Yes, it is simple enough to get some bits of news. I shall be surprised if he does not arrive before this evening."

"Ah, now it begins to straighten out. For some reason Falet left the village last night. Our belt had been refused and our Huron killed. Beaujeu was unwilling to leave the village, yet he tried outside to transact some business. Perhaps to win over some of the younger Delawares. We shall know what it is all about when he comes. We shall laugh at the wonderment his change of plans has occasioned."

"I left him and myself wondering about the fort, seeking the whoadogon to tell him that our comrades were very simple, or had been asleep, to allow us to attack our enemies at such an ugly trap. It was a warm day and yet I felt a chill as I glanced about in search of Round Face. Let us but get through the gate and I will ask no more of fate."

"Instead of the Indian I came upon the Dinwiddie girl. She had her hair carefully arranged under her hat, or, but off, I could not tell which. And she would pass for a young man read by enough, a very young man. Yet she had betrayed her sex to Beaujeu, and I wondered if de Beaujeu also knew the truth."

"Far from being surprised at seeing her, she quickly greeted: 'I have been waiting for you, mister. I saw you when you came in.' 'I shall cut off myself most lucky to see me go out alive and not a prisoner,' I told her. 'I have just learned that you came here with one called Beaujeu.' 'At the last minute Mr. Falet changed his mind. He told me to tell the truth to Mr. Beaujeu, who, he said, was a good man. Mr. Falet said he should be in such a mortal hurry to make the fort I had best go on ahead. Mr. Beaujeu is a good man. I'm to go to Canada at the first chance. What do you mean about being lucky if you get out of here alive? Do you guess you're a scout for Braddock?'

"For God's sake, hush!" I cautioned; for we were near the kitchen and sharp ears might overhear us. "If Beaujeu comes back from Shenango and finds me here, the Indians will burn me."

Her small face went white with horror.

"You can pass through the gate," she muttered. "Why do you wait? Go! Go now!"

"Two things hold me. The Onondaga, whom I haven't found—and you."

"Me?" she gasped.

"You must leave here and get back to the settlements where you belong. You must stop this business of going to Canada. It's a mad scheme. Do you believe that all men are honest, as Beaujeu seems to be? You are English and you speak French. How do you know how you will be treated in Canada, especially after the French are whipped and any one of the English blood is found out to be a traitor? How do you know the few French soldiers, once they're driven from this place, can protect you from their own Indians? Why, child, the French themselves will be fortunate if they escape being killed by the Ottawas and Hurons. You must stop this foolishness and go back with me—if I can find the Indian and get through the gate."

"If you make me go back, I shall always hate you," she passionately returned; and could Beaujeu have seen her then he would have known she was a woman. Before I could speak an expression of great misery passed over her face and she whispered:

"And if anything happens to you I'll kill myself."

I had no patience with her, or with her sex. Fair Josephine, old Alexandria, who pledged herself to the last of the Browns, and this ill-woman of the Witches' head, were all of a piece—these cunning creatures."

"I'll help you, if I can," I told her. "But I don't propose to go into a Huron kettle trying it unless you are willing to help yourself. One of these much shouting and singing outside the eastern gate broke up our talk, and we turned and looked to see what the clamor portended. Through the gate, walking two by two, came several Frenchmen. Next came a long string of Indians. Pontiac, wearing no paint, led these, a gray blanket thrown over his shoulders, although the day was very hot. Behind him came 'captain Jacobs and Shingles, the leaders of the Belawares."

Canada Jacobs and Shingles, of the Delawares, for whose heads the governor of Pennsylvania would soon be offering a reward of a hundred and forty pounds apiece, were outside and on the fighting line. But I do not believe they resented the great Uto's quickness to put himself ahead and act the mouthpiece when he was not acting the leader. Some say that Pontiac was a fiend incarnate, one who used the peace-pipe to mask his plans for wholesale killings. My experiences early taught me that the white men, as well as red, were cruel in war. Pontiac was a great man, by whatever racial standards we judge him, and surely deceit and intrigue were practiced in the Old World long before this red leader became an adept at dissimulation."

The bear-killers greedily bolted their hands and proudly on their gay coats, although the room was like an oven. Pontiac drank but a portion of his wine. After the names of the bear had been announced and the happy killers had hurried outside to display their trophy, the Ottawa chief remained to say:

"Son of Onondio, child of the French king your master and our uncle, the sorcerers of the Potawatomi have dreamed of a medicine lodge set up outside this room." He pointed through the window. "The dead bear is the English army, the dream said. In the medicine lodge, ghosts will talk, and tell the English army will have its ass kicked in its heels."

"My friend, I must not leave him behind."

"Who on? I will find him and tell him," she whispered, giving me a little push.

Royalty Had Eye to Saving the "Bawbees"

The collection of books made by the late King Leopold of Belgium is extremely valuable. A French writer tells of how Leopold, hearing that a particular book he desired was in the possession of a small dealer in a poor quarter of Paris, set out to obtain it at the lowest price possible, for Leopold counted with care every penny he spent on his hobby and part of the pleasure it afforded him, according to a writer in the New York Herald Tribune. Was the setting of a valuable volume at a low figure. This particular book was a French translation made in the sixteenth century of a Latin work by a writer named 'Cretanus, written about 200 A. D. When Leopold arrived in Paris he

"He would not understand. He is too, with the savages outside. He must be inside the stockade somewhere," I was demurring, when she gave a little cry of joy.

"Mister, you've killed both of us."

"Before I could look about to learn what had prompted this incoherent speech an arrow was loosed through my side and Captain Beaujeu was gently inviting:

"Come, my friend. We will not wait for Beaujeu. The Indians are not far off, and Pontiac tells them it's a good omen. We will have the chiefs in while we eat and give them some brain to keep their hearts bright. We can give some food too to the warriors who killed the bear. Come, monsieur, let us forget for a few hours that the English are drawing blood and that Pontiac is drawing blood before our red children. The Englishman shall go with us, if you will."

That the Dinwiddie girl was walking back toward the river stockade, and I explained:

"He speaks no French yet. He would not enjoy it."

CHAPTER VII

Beaujeu Gives a Dinner

There were six of us at the table and two empty chairs. One of these was reserved for Beaujeu. I followed the example of the others on entering the room and stood my long rifle up in the corner nearest the door; but my belt, and encased by the skirts of my hunting-shirt, were my ax and knife. I sat facing an open window through which the savages could be seen. The night was closing in hot and close, and the door like the window, was left open about the door were grouped various tribal leaders, and the two warriors who had killed the bear."

I was seated between Sieur de Carqueville and Sieur de Parieux. Beaujeu sat at the head of the table and facing the open door. After we had taken our places and wine had been poured, the commandant called for two pewter dishes and filled them with brandy. Two ivory cups were brought and placed beside him. Then he called for the slayers of the bear to enter. Pontiac escorted them forward."

The commandant recognized him as being the intellectual superior of the other chiefs, and rose and clasped his hand and asked him to be seated and take a glass of wine. Pontiac, seeing I never departed from my seat, was all for the red man and preferred to remain standing while he filled the office of interpreter. He gave the meaning of having but one syllable—to expellie the bestowal of honors on the bear-killers. And yet his crafty mind knew what the white men were thinking; that he was the infant personality. He could perform a humble service because it did honor to the recipient."

Lesson for September 2 PAUL PREACHING IN THESSALONICA AND BEREIA

LESSON TEXT—Acts 17:1-15; 1 Thess. 4:13-17; Romans 13:1-2. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Paul and the Scriptures. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Paul, Organizer of Churches.

1. Preaching in Thessalonica (Acts 17:1-10).

He studied the divine order, "to the Jew first," but whenever they proved themselves unworthy he turned to the Gentiles. He went out on the Sabbath as usual to the synagogue, and he expounded unto them the Scriptures. Concerning Christ he set forth three propositions:

(1) "That Christ must needs have suffered" (v. 3).

(2) "Risen from the dead" (v. 3).

(3) "That this Jesus, whom I preach unto you, is Christ."

He declared that the historic Jesus who he had proclaimed had suffered and risen from the dead, therefore He is the predicted Messiah.

While some Jews believed and many Greeks, the envy of certain Jews was so aroused at Paul's success that they gathered together a mob of riotous persons who turned the preaching of Paul into a species lie. He preached the kingdom of Jesus (v. 7). Jesus' most serious coming in relation to this earth.

What He Preached at Thessalonica (1 Thess. 5:13-20).

He corrected certain doctrinal errors which had crept into the church. They were not to sorrow unjustly (v. 13).

Because they failed to understand the meaning of Paul's preaching they were indulging in excessive sorrow. They seemed to think that their loved ones who had died would miss the blessings of glory when they returned to the Lord.

The events associated with the Lord's coming (v. 13-18).

In this section he gives the reasons why they were not to allow themselves to be overwhelmed with grief.

The departed saints will come back when Jesus comes (v. 17).

Believers following the death of believers their spirits go to be with the Lord where they remain in the state of blessedness until the Lord comes again.

The bodies of the dead in Christ shall come from the grave (v. 16).

Scene 2—Gertie is at home setting on the lounge and pulling superluous hairs out of Baby Wottle's head. The telephone rings. Gertie goes to answer. Sub-title: "The wrong number." Baby Wottle falls off the lounge and lands on his head. Sub-title: "Oh, what a headache."

Scene 3—George and Minnie are sitting on the porch talking to the waiter. Gertie comes out of the house and catches them. Sub-title: "Caught in the act." The hammock springs and Gertie tumbles down suddenly on the floor. Sub-title: "I couldn't be a very good hammock."

Scene 4—Gertie goes to Swamp's detective agency and hires Al Swamp to take up the case. Al puts on his shoes and starts out with Gertie. Sub-title: "The wrong address." As door hits them in the eye and knocks them down. Sub-title: "In again, out again, Finnegan."

Scene 5—George and Minnie are spooning in the fish store. Minnie steps on a eel and falls down. Sub-title: "Minnie says her eel slipped. George says her fish ought to wear rubber ones." Al and Gertie come in the store and surprise the lovers. George runs to a fish box and sets on a persimmon. Gertie tries to get down but falls and tears his trousers. Al tries to pick him up but slips on the slippery floor and tears his trousers. Sub-title: "I think they are made to be patched up than the marital affairs of the Wottles."

Scene 6—They all go to the Wottle home. Minnie loses her interest in George and falls in love with Al. They decide to get married. Sub-title: "Al asks the fair Minnie to become his bride. She says O. K.," summons minister. George and Al and Minnie are married with the Wottles as witnesses. Sub-title: "The knot is tied."

Scene 7—The party adjourns to the dining room where the fish breakfast is falling down. Sub-title: "London Bridges is falling down." In the midst of the hilarity, Baby Wottle chokes on a fish bone and dies. Sub-title: "Fah Jolly Bab. No bones."

Anatomy of One Reel Comedy

By RING LARDNER

To the Editor: In a recent letter I gave my readers the story of a friend of mine named Joe Cooper that was not getting along so good in his regular job and finely began to take correspondence courses by mail in other lines like short-story writing and expert act and cartoonist and etc., and after a while he got so he was knocking out close to 50 thousand per annum for his spare time.

While they still in another field yet that Joe hasn't went it and that is writing photo plays and great big money is promised for good ones because God knows they are a rare bird and if there is some of my readers that finds trouble making both ends meet the other end I'll drop him a couple 100 thousand a year extra earned in their spare time, why here is the field to go into.

You can pick up most any magazine and find a dozen ads of correspondence schools that learn you how to write photo plays or movies as I have mentioned. I've had a number of people in my kind of rypes I have made it up in my mind to start a school of my own along these lines and my qualifications is that I have wrote 2 photo plays and I've both dropped like the sure thing and my system of teaching will be to learn my pupils to write photo plays opposite to like I write.

The big money in the screen game today lays in 1 reel comedies. The things that is necessary in writing 1 reel comedies is (1) a catchy title (2) a funny idea (3) plenty of laughs (4) witty sub titles. As a sample of what will go and go big, the King School of Photo Play Writing gives the following specimen of a 1 reel comedy.

As a title for this picture we have chose "The Flimpy Tribe" which in itself will knock them for a fisher.

CHARACTERS: GEORGE WOTTLE, a fishmonger (comedy lead), GERTRUDE WOTTLE, his wife (comedy lead), MINNIE QUAGMIRE, her rival (subrette)

AL SWAMP, a private detective (heavy comedy)

"WORTH IT IN GOLD"

Verdict of Woman Who Tried Pinkham's Compound

Tully, N. Y.—"It hurt me to walk or sit down without help and I felt sick and weak. My mother-in-law told Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound and she induced me to take it. I have now on the fourth bottle and have also used Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash. The medicine that will do for me what the Vegetable Compound and Sanative Wash have done are certainly worth their weight in gold. I think I have given them a fair trial and I expect to take two more bottles of the Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. CHARLES MONAGAN, R. F. D. 1, Tully, N. Y.

Bulgar Capital Plans

to Enhance Beauty

Sofia is a small but beautiful city, one of the most charming in the Balkans. But not satisfied to rest on their laurels the Sofia city fathers are bent on improving the appearance of the Bulgarian capital. A price of about $15,000 has been set aside for the best plan. Foreigners as well as Bulgarians are permitted to compete. A series of parks and city buildings is contemplated. Italian engineers have already started to work on an elaborate scheme to bring water to the mountains. A long aqueduct, resembling old Roman construction, will form part of the new waterworks. Other Italian irrigation engineers are draining marshes.

Speed, But—

"Speed isn't everything," Edsel Ford, at a dinner in Dearborn, was talking about airplanes.

"If in any degree you sacrifice safety to speed you are more foolish than the Yorkshire drummer," he went on.

The Yorkshire drummer bragged that he covered more customers in a given time than any man on the road. When he was asked how he did it he answered:

"I drops dead in at door. 'Marnin!' I says. 'Marnin,' says they. 'Owt?' says I. 'Nowt,' says they. 'Marnin,' says I. 'Marnin,' says they. And off I goes to t' next stop."

STOP THAT ITCHING

Use Blue Star Soap, then apply Blue Star Remedy for Eczema, Itch, and other skin troubles. Children's sores cracked hands, sore feet, eczema, and other skin troubles. It kills germs, stops itching, and restores the skin to its normal state. Price, 25¢ per box. Ask your druggist.—Adv.

Shaving Statistics

When a man shaves his razor crosses his face at a speed of nearly thirty miles an hour. He may also cut through approximately 25,000 hairs per minute. Details of this kind in the life of a safety razor blade are given in a London publication, the Engineer, by J. Ferdinand Kayser. He says that 27,000 hairs packed together would occupy about two and one-half square centimeters. The edge of a good blade does not on an average give more than ten clean shaves. Hence its useful cutting life is only fifty seconds.

"O' happy Day" sang the landlady as a young hungarian wash on the line. It was a "happy day" because she used Red Cross Ball Blue.—Adv.

Average Californian

The average Californian probably isn't a Californian at all, but hails from Illinois, Missouri or New York, according to figures of L. E. Ross, chief of the state's bureau of statistics. Only one-third of the present population of the state is native. Illinois leads all other states in populating the Golden State, having contributed 137,000 residents. Missouri has contributed 104,000 inhabitants; New York, 102,000; Ohio, 88,880; Iowa, 86,500; and Kansas, 62,550.

Petrified Tree Identified

At Florissant, Colo., among other specimens there is a petrified tree stump 17½ feet in diameter and 10½ feet high. It has been pronounced by natural scientists that these trees, which have lain buried in a volcanic lava bed for thousands of years, come from the Redwood or Sequoia variety, such as now grow in California.

An Investment with an EXTRA DIVIDEND

THERE'S a big difference between an investment and a speculation. You can speculate in any old gasoline and hope it will deliver a satisfactory number of miles per gallon. You can invest in Summer Conoco and be sure of an extra dividend—a bonus of extra miles.

Your purchases of gasoline during the touring season represent a substantial investment. Make sure that the returns from that investment are the highest you can get.
