

Annual Panhandle-Plains Dairy Show Next Week

The Panhandle-Plains of Texas will show to the world the progress that has been made in the breeding of pure bred dairy cattle through the First Annual Panhandle-Plains Dairy Show to be staged in Plainview next week, April 2nd, 4th, 5th, and 6th.

From all over the fifty-three counties of the Texas Panhandle-Plains, the area covered by the Panhandle-Plains Dairy Show Association, come reports of entries of pure bred dairy stock, and fine grade animals that in many instances will rival in production even the pure bred stock. Secretary Bob Anglin estimates that the number of animals that will be on exhibit will run higher than the most anticipated when the show was launched late in 1927.

All plans for the show have been arranged. It will be held in the cattle barn at Plainview, known as the Overall barn and the biggest stock barn in the Panhandle. It is located on the pavement in the center of Plainview and has been converted into a large exhibit hall for this occasion. Judges have been selected. They are among the most prominent dairy cattle men in America.

This show is to be largely attended as attested by the entries that have been coming into the office of the secretary.

The production contest staged in connection with the show will bring a great number of cattle. The production contest is open to cattle of all breeds and promises to be one of the outstanding features of the show. Tuesday, April 2, will be the opening day of the show and all exhibits will be ready for free public inspection, and the production contest started. The second day, Wednesday, April 4th, will be Jersey cattle judging day, and Thursday, Holstein-Friesian and Guernsey day. The evening of Thursday, April 5th, will be given over to the Annual Exhibitors' banquet in the Plainview Municipal Auditorium.

Men's Bible Class Entertain Tuesday

At the McCarty Lunch Room last Tuesday evening, the members of the First Men's Bible Class of the Methodist Church were hosts at a very pretty dinner party with their wives as guests.

The table was decorated with vases of pink and red carnations, and a lovely three course dinner was served.

Covers were laid for thirty-four guests. After dinner, the tables were cleared for "42" and the remainder of the evening was spent in this most enjoyable game.

Brooks Theatre

A motion picture which, according to reports, is one of the outstanding melodramas of the season and one of the most sensational railroad pictures ever filmed, "Red Signals," produced and released by Sterling Pictures from William Fox's novel of the same title, will be the attraction at the Brooks Theatre Friday and Saturday evenings. Railroad melodramas have long been popular in books, in magazine fiction, on the stage and are coming to be just as popular on the screen. The screen has the great advantage over all other forms of railroad fiction in that it can show the trains in action, the wrecks, the hold-ups and the other events which make railroading exciting. This is a picture you will enjoy as it is one of the best we have had this season.

Poultry Play To Be Given At High School April 5th

"The Lay of a Hen," is the name of a humorous and instructive play that will be given Thursday, April 5, at the High School auditorium for the benefit of all farmers and poultry enthusiasts.

This is a four-act comedy play (not a moving picture) and is highly educational, as well as being full of mirth and merrymaking.

This is the same play that created such a sensation at the Annual Convention of the American Baby Chick Producers' Association that was held at the Edgewater Beach Hotel in Chicago last year. It has also been given at the Farmers' Week programs of several of the State Agricultural Colleges and other big meetings.

While there is plenty of fun in it as the play goes along, it is also full of good practical poultry information for the help of anyone who keeps chickens.

This play is free. It being given under the auspices of the Bailey County Elevator of Muleshoe.

CHAPTER VIII—Continued

"Why certainly," agreed the doctor at once. He turned back. Miss Cornelia seemed pleased.

"I hoped you would," she said, with a little tremble in her voice such as might easily occur in the voice of a nervous old lady. "Oh, yes—here's paper—and a pencil," as the doctor fumbled in a pocket.

"The doctor took the sheet of paper she proffered and, using the side of his bag as a pad, began to write out the prescription.

"I don't generally advise these drugs," he said, looking up for a moment. "Still—

"What time is it?" Miss Cornelia glanced at the clock. "Half past eleven."

"Then I'd better bring you the powders myself," decided the doctor. "The pharmacy closes at eleven. I shall have to make them up myself."

"That seems a lot of trouble."

"Nothing is any trouble if I can be helpful," he assured her, smilingly. And Miss Cornelia also smiled, took the piece of paper from his hand, glanced at it once, as if out of the curiosity about the unfinished prescription and then laid it down on the table with a careless listlessness.

"Euse gave her an air of dumb amazement. Miss Cornelia read her wish for another moment alone with the doctor.

"Dale will let you out, doctor," said she, giving the girl the key of the front door.

"That's right," he said, smilingly. "Keep thinks looks well. Discretion is the better part of valor."

But Miss Cornelia failed to agree with him.

"I've been discreet for sixty-five years," she said, with a sniff, "and sometimes I think it was a mistake."

The doctor laughed easily and followed Dale out of the room, with a nod of farewell to the others in passage. The detective, seeking for some object upon whom to vent the growing irritation which seemed to possess him, made Bailey the scapegoat of his wrath.

"I guess we can do without you for the present," he said, with an angry frown at the latter. Bailey flushed, then remembered himself, and left the room submissively, with the air of a well-trained servant accepting an unmerited rebuke. The detective turned at once to Miss Cornelia.

"Now I want a few words with you," he said in a surly voice. "The failure of his search of the terrace and grounds seemed to irk him greatly.

"But the moment that shot was fired, the lights came on. If somebody on that staircase shot him, and then came down and took the blue-print, Miss Ogden would have seen him."

He turned upon Dale. "Did you?"

"She hesitated. Why hadn't she thought of such an explanation before? But now—it would sound too flimsy!

"No, nobody came down," she admitted, candidly. Miss Cornelia once more had put herself between him and Dale.

"Now, Mr. Anderson—" she warned. The detective was obviously trying to keep his temper. "I'm not hounding this girl!" he said, doggedly. "I haven't said yet that she committed the murder—but she took that blue-print and I want it."

"You want it to connect her with the murder," parried Miss Cornelia. The detective threw up his hands. "It's rather reasonable to suppose that I might want to return the funds to the Union bank, isn't it?" he queried in tones of heavy sarcasm. "Provided they're here," he added, doubtfully.

Miss Cornelia resolved upon comparative frankness. "I see," she said. "Well, I'll tell you this much, Mr. Anderson—and I'll ask you to believe me as a gentleman. Granting that, at one time, my niece knew something of that blue-print at this moment, we do not know where it is or who has it."

Her words had the unmistakable ring of truth. The very oath from him, she felt, she uttered doubtfully. "Damnation," he muttered. "That's right, is it?"

"That's the cue," said Miss Cornelia firmly. A silence of troubled thoughts fell upon the three. Miss Cornelia took out her knitting.

"Did you ever try knitting when you wanted to think?" she queried sweetly, after a pause in which the detective tramped from one side of the room to the other, brows knotted, eyes shut on the floor.

"No," grunted the detective. He took out a cigar—but off the end with a savage snap of teeth—it resumed his pacing.

"You should, sometimes," continued Miss Cornelia, watching his troubled movements with a faint light of mockery in her eyes. "I did it very helpfully."

"I don't need knitting to think straight," rasped Anderson, indignant. "Miss Cornelia's eyes danced. "I wonder," she said, with caustic affability. "You seem to have so much evidence left over. Do you believe in circumstantial evidence?"

"It's my business," said the detective stolidly. Miss Cornelia smiled. "While you have been investigating," she announced, "I, too, have not been idle."

The detective gave a harking laugh. She let it pass.

"To me," she continued, "it is perfectly obvious that one intelligence has been at work behind many of the things that have occurred in this house."

"Now Anderson observed with a winnow respect.

she observed. "He was not expected to go there. I found that out when I telephoned."

"The doctor" repeated the detective, his eyes narrowed, his head beginning to sway from side to side like the head of some great cat just before a spring.

"As you know," Miss Cornelia went on, "I had a supplementary bolt placed on that terrace door today."

She added the door that gave access into the alcove from the terrace. "Earlier this evening, Doctor Wells said that he had bolted it, when he had left it open—purposely, as I now realize, in order that he might return later. You may also recall that Doctor Wells took a scrap of paper from Richard Fleming's hand and tried to conceal it—why did he do that?"

She paused for a second. Then she changed her tone a little. "May I ask you to look at this?"

"It's a scrap of a piece of paper on which Doctor Wells had started to write the prescription for her sleeping-powders—and now her strategy with the doctor's bag and doctor Jack Bailey had got from the fireplace stove revealed. A sharp, black imprint of a man's right thumb—

"The doctor's finger," he said, "is the broken link of writing. The doctor had not noticed the staining of his hand, by the blackened bag-handle or, not seeing the staining of it—but the blackened bag-handle had been a trap, and he had left an indelible piece of evidence behind him."

She went on to continue to test the value of this evidence. "A thumb-print," muttered Anderson. "Whose is it?"

"That's the cue," said Miss Cornelia with what might have been a little crop of triumph in any one not a Van Gorder.

Anderson looked thoughtful. Then he felt in his pocket for a magnifying glass, failed to find it, muttered and took the reading-glass Miss Cornelia offered him.

"I try this," she said. "My whole case hangs on my conviction that that print and the one out there on the stair-rail are the same."

He went out rather grimly, paper and reading-glass in hand, to make his comparison. It was then that Beresford came in, a new and slightly more Beresford, and crossed to her at once.

"Miss Van Gorder," he said, all the flippant zing from his voice. "May I tell you of an excuse and call your gardener here?"

Dale started uncontrollably at the ominous words, but Miss Cornelia believed in circumstantial evidence. "The gardener?" Certainly! "If you'll touch that bell," she said, placidly.

"Beresford stalked to the bell and rang it. The three waited while in an agony of suspense. The detective re-entered the room by the alcove stairs, his hand unmistakably by any of the anxious glances that sought him out at once.

"It's no good," Miss Van Gorder, he said quietly. "The prints are not the same."

"Not the same," gasped Miss Cornelia, unwilling to believe her ears. Anderson laid down the paper and the reading-glass with a little gesture of dismissal.

"If you think I'm mistaken, I'll leave it to any unprejudiced person or your own eyesight. Thumb-prints never lie," he said in a flat, convincing voice. Miss Cornelia stared at him in amazement written large on her features.

"I still believe it was the doctor," she said.

she said stubbornly—but her tones were not the tones of utter conviction which she had used before.

"And yet," said the detective, ruthlessly demolishing another link in her broken chain of evidence, "the doctor was in this room tonight, according to your own statement, when the anonymous letter came through the window."

Miss Cornelia gazed at him blankly, for the first time in her life at a loss for an appropriately sharp retort. It was true—the doctor had been here in the room beside her, when the stone bearing the last anonymous warning had crashed through the window pane. And yet—

Billy's entrance in answer to Beresford's ring made her mind turn to other matters for the moment. Why had Beresford's manner changed so, and what was he saying to Billy now?

"Tell the gardener Miss Van Gorder wants him—and don't say we're all here," she said, her eyes flashing at the butler sharply. Billy nodded and disappeared. Miss Cornelia's back began to stiffen—she didn't like other people's servants around like that.

The detective, apparently, had somewhat of the same feeling. "Anderson crossed a stream of help in this case?" he said, "with obvious sarcasm, turning to Beresford."

There was a fateful pause, for an instant the young lawyer commanded from one side of the room to the other—then Jack Bailey came into the room—alone.

"The doctor's some danger in the air. His hands clenched at his sides, but except for that tiny betrayal of emotion, he still kept his servant's poise.

"You sent for me?" he queried of Miss Cornelia, submissively, ignoring the glowering Beresford.

Anderson looked thoughtful. Then he felt in his pocket for a magnifying glass, failed to find it, muttered and took the reading-glass Miss Cornelia offered him.

"I try this," she said. "My whole case hangs on my conviction that that print and the one out there on the stair-rail are the same."

He went out rather grimly, paper and reading-glass in hand, to make his comparison. It was then that Beresford came in, a new and slightly more Beresford, and crossed to her at once.

ing because of its youthfulness. He turned back to the detective soberly enough.

"This man has impressed upon the credulity of these women, I am quite sure without their knowledge," he said, with a trace of his former gallantry. He is Bailey of the Union bank, the missing cashier."

The detective slowly put down his cigar on an ashtray.

"That's the truth, is it?" he demanded.

Dale's hand flew to her breast. If Jack would only deny it—even now! But even as she thought this she realized the uselessness of any such denial.

Bailey realized it, too. "It's true, all right," he admitted hopelessly. He closed his eyes for a moment. Let them come with the handcuffs now and get it over—every moment the scene dragged out was a moment of unnecessary torture for Dale.

But Beresford had not finished with his indictment.

"I accuse him not only of the thing he is wanted for, but of the murder of Richard Fleming!" he said, fierce.

Beresford already in an Attitude of Defense.

glaring at Bailey, as if of only a yearful more of making a name for himself and Miss Cornelia held him back from striking the latter down where he stood.

Bailey's eyes snapped open. He took a threatening step toward his accuser. "You lie!" he said in a hoarse, violent voice.

The question of her answer seemed to infuriate the detective.

"Quite a pretty little conspiracy," he said. "How do you expect me to do anything, with the entire household against me? Tell me that."

"Exactly," said Miss Cornelia. "And if we are united against you, why should I have sent for you? You might tell me that, too."

He turned to Bailey savagely. "What did you mean by that 'three hours' news?" he demanded.

"I could have cleared myself in 'three hours,'" said Bailey, with calm despair.

Beresford laughed, mockingly—a laugh that seemed to sear into Bailey's consciousness like the touch of a hot iron. Again he turned frenziedly upon the young lawyer, his hands balled up into fists—Beresford already in an attitude of defense—the detective about to step in between them—Miss Cornelia stiff in her chair—Dale over by the fireplace, her hand at her heart. Then they relaxed.

"Probably the doctor," murmured Miss Cornelia uncertainly, as the doorman rang. "He was to come back with some sleeping-powders."

Billy appeared for the key of the front door.

"If that's Doctor Wells," warned the detective, "admit him. If it's any body else, call me."

Billy grimaced unconsciously and departed. The detective moved nearer to Bailey.

"Have you got a gun on you?"

"Yes," Bailey bowed his head. "Well, I'll just make sure of that."

The detective's hands ran swiftly and expertly over Bailey's form, through his pockets, probing for concealed weapons. Then he slowly drew a pair of handcuffs from his pocket, he prepared to put them on his wrists.

But Dale stepped between them. The sight of her lover, beaten, submissive, his head bowed, waiting obediently like a common criminal for the detective to lock his wrists in steel broke down her last defense. She rushed into the center of the room, between Bailey and the detective, her eyes wild with terror, her words stumbling over each other in her eagerness to get them—

Luxemburg Has Much to Attract the Tourist

About all the average person knows about Luxemburg is that it is a small country somewhere between Belgium and Germany, but the little country possesses some rare scenery. The country is as old as most of its neighbors, and Rome thought it important enough to fortify it, centuries ago. From its dual family have come queens of France and emperors of Germany. The city of Luxemburg is a rocky gem in a forest setting, and its name is due to the fact that Robert, Peter, travel writer, from here one can look to Treves and Tilonville, and not only into Germany but to Langony and the north of France, Arlon, Brussels and the coasts of Belgium. The old fortress of Vauban has been modernized so that its garrison no longer shadows the city. When the visitor has seen its sights, such as the duke's palace, in Spanish Renaissance style, the Seventeenth century cathedral, its bridge and viaducts, the palace of the archbishop, the old city, and the wonderful parks, he has before him some of the best motor roads in Europe for a spin through the duchy to see other cities and towns—Dreux, Treves.

Explosion's Effect

The Bureau of standards says that the noise level of an explosion or explosion occurred simultaneously. There is an interesting record of an observer in England who was looking down and across a stretch of open country from a hill during a bright sunny day, and suddenly noticed a long narrow shadow rushing toward him steadily across the valley. As it passed him he heard the sudden report of a heavy explosion and felt the jar of it. A powder magazine several miles away had exploded, as he learned later. The "shadow" was the result of the increased density of the air in the compression waves.

City's Downfall Complete

Achala was the name given by the Romans to the province that comprised the southern part of Greece, and the capital of the province was the famous city of Corinth. In ancient times its wealth was so great as to be proverbial; so were the vice and profanity which it indulged in. The city in the Middle Ages shrunk to a miserable village, standing on part of the site of the ancient city.

She Shrieked Madly.

ence of a hidden room in this house—and who, finding us in occupation of the house, has tried to get rid of me in two ways. First, by frightening me with anonymous threats—and, second, by urging me to leave. Some one, who, very possibly, entered this house tonight, shortly before the murder, and slipped up that staircase."

"The doctor?"

and cuffs. Miss Cornelia, allied with the doctor, screened once more had startled household to the fact she knew she had failed to mechanically watched at Anderson stand by the side of Kerry to bed and threaten to lock up, and listened vaguely to the reason between her aunt and detective that followed it, with more than casual interest. Nevertheless, that conversation was a real result later on.

Your point about that thumb-print be stair-rail is very interesting. I person said, with a certain respect, it just what does it prove?"

"It points down," said Miss Cornelia, still glowing with the memory of the whistle of surprise the detective had given when she had shown him the strange thumb-print on the rail of the alcove stairs.

"It does," he admitted. "But what then?"

Miss Cornelia tried to put her case as clearly and tersely as possible. "It shows that somebody stood there for some time, listening to my niece and Richard Fleming in this room below," she said.

"All right—I'll grant that to save argument," retorted the detective.

GLOOM-MAKERS

Anybody who doesn't know any better might concede from reading a few daily papers that it's about over with America, and that she is "going to the dogs" in a hurry. And the professional gloom maker is back of it all. There's more happiness than misery in the world today; more good people than bad people; more kindness than cruelty; more sympathy than censure. But the papers print the crimes instead of the kindliness; the gloom makers meet you on the streets of Muleshoe and starts to pour out his story of woe and to wonder "what the world is coming to," dismiss him with a smile. Tell him it's the best world you've ever lived in, and that it suits you since you are not in position to change it. Then suggest that he take a spring tonic, or a good liver stimulant.

NO TIME FOR ALIBS

Along about this time of year some people begin to use the alibi of the little boy whose mother ordered him to wash his neck and ears, "What's the use in washin'm," he whined, "they'll get dirty agin." That's the alibi some property owners advance when the season arrives for cleaning up for spring and summer.

We're again around to the spring season, and there is no excuse for dadding or offering alibis. Good health and a more attractive community demand that everybody clean up their premises. Dead leaves and grass during the winter months must be disposed of, and without further delay if we are to safeguard the health of Muleshoe residents and prevent what might prove a deplorable epidemic. Cleaning up doesn't merely mean making our surroundings more attractive, though that alone is sufficient reason to justify it. Cleaning up means ridding the community of disease germs that are certain to bring disease and death if left to breed in dirty and stagnant places.

As a usual thing our people never need a warning along this line. But always there are a few who lag back and offer alibis for not joining in the annual clean-up. It is to them we make this appeal. You wouldn't deliberately wreck your neighbor's health. Then why jeopardize it? Why expose him to disease and death by your failure to clean up your premises? Now let your conscience be your judge.

SENIOR WEEK AT U. OF T. MAY 14 THROUGH MAY 20

AUSTIN, Texas.—Dates for Senior week at the University of Texas have been set for May 14 through May 20 according to Miss Oma Willoughby of Brady, president of Cap and Gown Society, organization of senior women students. Among the activities scheduled for the week by tradition are year-service honoring senior women. A Senior Sing by Reagan Literary Society, formal initiation of junior girls into Cap and Gown and the Senior Swingout. The last named event is the climax of the week's festivities and it is at that time when the seniors dress in caps and gowns transfer the blazonnet chain from their shoulders to those of the juniors. At this time also the outstanding women students who have been selected for membership in Mortar Board, national senior women's organization, are announced.

STUDENT CAMPAIGN FOR UNIVERSITY STUDENT BUILDINGS

AUSTIN, Texas.—Clen (Or) Higgins of Dallas, popular student of the University of Texas and co-captain of last season's Longhorn football team has been selected to head the campus Student Union fund drive for the University student buildings project by members of the Ex-Students' Association. The student campaign will be launched April 2 and will last for only a short period during which a through canvass of the University will be made.

Others appointed to work with Higgins are Miss Gyneth Stugard of Alamo, Co-Chairman; Tom Martin Davis of Austin, Miss Frances McConnell of Jackson and John McCallough of Waco, vice-chairmen. The Student Union project is for the purpose of raising about $500,000 for partly financing the building of three student buildings on the University campus. The value of the entire project will be approximately one million dollars. Of this amount, the board of Regents will furnish $600,000.

WET--BUT IA BURNED!

Usually, when material is wet--thoroughly soaked--there is no need to worry about the possibility of fire. There's a "joker" in the pile though, when hay is the subject of the wetting. A barn located in New Hampshire, during the flood in November, 1927, was particularly wet, being partially submerged. And it contained hay. The owner started to remove the hay when the water had subsided sufficiently, but spontaneous combustion beat him to it. Result--the barn burned to the ground.

Spontaneous combustion is perhaps the least understood of all causes of fire. That's probably the reason why it does so much damage (over $15,000,000 in 1926, according to figures computed by the National Board of Fire Underwriters).

Take your own home for instance. How about that cellar, that attic and that garage? Don't forget the clothes closets either! Remove any piles of rags, paper or rubbish. Such materials may be oily or wet, and without your knowledge. If so look out! You may wake up in the middle of the night and wonder how you ever got into such a hot place.

THIEVES HIGHLY ORGANIZED

"Fences" organized along highly efficient business lines, dispose annually of loot valued at $500,000,000, according to Newton D. Baker, chairman of the National Crime Commission. Mr. Baker, who was formerly Secretary of war, made public this estimate of annual losses from thefts in a statement announcing the introduction in Congress of a bill designed to stop the activities of receivers of stolen goods. Concerning the work of the Committee, Mr. Baker says: "This committee, with the advice of men who have given much previous study to the question, has made an exhaustive survey of the situation, and from the statements of public prosecutors, chief of police and business firms throughout the country, is convinced that the claim that losses from this source amount to more than $300,000,000 yearly is more than justified."

Mr. Baker's report shows that the solitary burglar is disappearing, and that his place is being taken by criminals well organized who make thefts for merchandise on a large scale. He expresses the belief that commercially organized thieves would dissolve their bands overnight if their "fences," their market or outlet, were eliminated.

With such tremendous thefts, burglary and robbery, fire insurance is being called upon to protect the public from losses which, in the aggregate, are running well up toward the total of the annual destruction caused by fire in this nation. The casualty insurance companies are stepping into the breach to repay much of the disastrous loss caused by robbery, but they must have public cooperation along lines of crime prevention, just as much as fire insurance companies have similar co-operation along lines of fire prevention. If this terrific annual drain on the country's resources is to be checked,

W. M. Sherry, one of Farmer county's most extensive farmers was in town Tuesday.

The revival at Watson, which is being conducted by Rev. David G. Paynor of Plainview, a student of Wayland College is progressing nicely. Up to Sunday night there were twenty conversions. The meeting will continue through this week. Rev. Chas. Odum is assisting in the singing.

Sunday School Lesson

(By REV. P. B. FITZWATER, D.D., Dean Moody Bible Institute of Chicago, 106-112, Western Newspaper Union.)

Lesson for April 1

JESUS THE SUFFERING MESSIAH

LESSON TEXT—Mark 8:27-38. GOLDEN TEXT—Whoever will come after Me, let him deny himself and take up his cross and follow Me.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus the Great Teacher. JUNIOR TOPIC—The Heroism of Jesus.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—The Cost of Being Loyal to Christ. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Jesus Interprets His Messiahship.

I. Peter's Confession of Christ (vv. 27-30).

Two questions of Jesus provoked this confession. 1. "Who do men say that I am?" (v. 27, 28). This question referred to the opinions of the people regarding Jesus. Some believed Him to be John, the Baptist, some Elijah, and some, one of the prophets. They all recognized Him to be a teacher or prophet with more than human authority and power. Jesus was not content with this acknowledgment. Had He been satisfied with this He would not have been willing in Jerusalem, for the Jews willingly acknowledged Him as much more than a human teacher. 2. "Who say you that I am?" (v. 29, 30). Jesus persistently claimed to be the God man, the very Son of God incarnate. He wanted the personal opinion of the disciples concerning Himself.

II. Jesus' Teaching Concerning the Cross (vv. 31-33).

He charged the disciples not to make public His Messiahship as that would precipitate the crisis. The disciples had much need of instruction yet, to prepare them for the crucial hour of the cross.

1. What He taught (v. 31).

(1) "The Son of Man must suffer many things. He suffered physical weariness and hunger, ridicule and contempt and even misunderstanding.

(2) "He rejected of the elders, chief priests and scribes." This was the nation's official representatives, the very ones who should have known and received Christ and recommended His reception on the part of the nation. True He came to His own yet His own received Him not (John 1:11). (3) "He killed." This announcement was startling to the disciples. They had not yet come to realize that redemption was to be accomplished through the passion and the cross.

(4) "Rise again." Though this was utterly inconceivable to the disciples. He showed them that this would be the glorious issue of His death.

2. How the disciples received His teaching (v. 32).

So unwelcome was His teaching touching the cross that Peter, the spokesman of the disciples, rebuked Him. Peter later saw through this darkness the light of glory on the hilltops beyond (1 Pet. 1:3, 4).

3. Jesus rebukes Peter (v. 33). He told Peter plainly that his attitude was due to his being under the influence of the devil.

III. Jesus Going to Jerusalem to Die (Mark 10:32-34).

Jesus went to Jerusalem with the consciousness of the awful tragedy of the cross before Him; the treachery of Judas, the fiery persecutions of the priests, the unjust judgment, the delivery to Pontius Pilate, the mocking, the scourging, the crown of thorns, the cross between nails, the spear and the spear all were spread before Him. He moved on to His goal, not by external necessity but a fixed purpose. He had not only come "to minister but to give His life a ransom for many." The joyous outlook of the victory which was to be accomplished through the shedding of His blood led Him forward (Heb. 12:2).

IV. The Cost of Discipleship (Mark 8:34).

The law of the Christian life is suffering. To follow Christ means to turn one's back upon the world. To repudiate the world means to incur the hatred of the world; to be Christians means to share Christ's suffering.

1. There must be denial of self (v. 34). There is a wide difference between self-denial and denial of self. All people practice self-denial, but only Christians deny self.

2. The cross must be taken up (v. 34). This means the suffering and shame which lie in the pathway of loyalty to God. To live the godly life means suffering (1 Tim. 3:12).

3. Christ must be followed (v. 34). This means to have the mind of Christ (Phil. 2:5) and to perform the service of Christ. The blessed issue of following Christ is a life of freedom here and now, and eternal life hereafter.

Must Cry Unto God

It is not enough for the soul to be in need; the soul must also cry unto God. Need alone is the begueter of despair, but need with crying is the birthplace of prayer. The very distresses the soul is in are the birth throes of such prayer.—James H. McCenkey.

Sin Is No More

Whenever a man gets to the blood of Jesus Christ he is done with the sin question.—B. B. King.

If Back Hurts Flush Kidneys

Drink Plenty of Water and Take Glass of Salts Before Breakfast Occasionally

When your kidneys hurt and your back feels sore, don't get scared and proceed to load your stomach with a lot of drugs that excite the kidneys and irritate the entire urinary tract. Keep your kidneys clean like you keep your bowels clean, by flushing them with a mild, harmless salts which helps to remove the body's uric waste and stimulate them to their normal activity.

The function of the kidneys is to filter the blood. In 24 hours they strain from it 500 grains of acid and waste, so we can readily understand the vital importance of keeping the kidneys active.

Drink lots of good water—you can't drink too much; also get from any pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts. Take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with bicarbonate and has been used for years to help clean and stimulate clogged kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in the system so they are no longer a source of irritation, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to help keep their kidneys clean and active. Try this; also keep up the water drinking, and no doubt you will wonder what became of your kidney trouble and backache.

Roses in Profusion

One thousand varieties of roses are included in the vast rose garden of the University of Texas at Austin. Every known variety of rose grown in Texas and many varieties from other states are among the specimens in this remarkable garden, one of the largest in the world. The garden is under the supervision of Dr. B. C. Thorp, professor of botany at the University of Texas. The rose garden is as part of the Texas Botanical garden, which was established two years ago.

What Do You Look For When You Buy Tires?

There are two things to consider in buying a tire—that you are going to get and what you are going to pay. Quality buying is the attitude of some—price buying is the consideration of others.

Whichever way you buy, we have a tire for you—and they are both GOODYEARS. For the man who must consider cost as of first importance, we have the GOODYEAR PATHFINDER, undeniably the most value for your money anywhere. You don't have to "shop around"—Goodyear Pathfinders meet every demand of the price-buyer. Stout, enduring, good looking, and backed by "the greatest name in rubber.

But if it is quality that is paramount in your mind, let us, show you the Goodyear All-Weather Tires made with SUPERTWIST, the remarkably elastic ne word, and the new broad traction, road-gripping All-Weather Tread. Goodyear has built the very best tire in its whole history in this famous All-Weather. We take a great deal of pride in selling it because we are certain that in appearance, performance and all other requirements, it can't be beat. It will be a pleasure to show you this tire we are bragging about in this ad.

With every tire we sell, either Goodyear Pathfinder or Goodyear All-Weather, goes our Goodyear Service, really famous hereabouts.

We put the tire on correctly and attend to all the details of inflation, alignment checking, etc., and even then we're not through. We inspect your tires periodically to see that you are getting all the mileage built in at the factory. We never lose interest in the tire we sell. That's our idea of real service.

GOODYEAR HEAVY DUTY CORD

Do you work hard, play hard, DRIVE hard? Then here's your tire. A real glutton for punishment. You never sa wthe road-it's afraid of. More Goodyear plies in it. More Goodyear rubber in it. Reinforced ribs in its side-walls. All-Weather tread on its face.

LOOK ABOUT THE FIRST PANHANDLE-PLAINS DAIRY SHOW

Lookbook—A final check up and discussion of plans and details of the first panhandle Plains Dairy Show will be made Saturday, March 31, when the board of directors, the executive committee and heads of all departments and all committees of the Panhandle-Plains Dairy Show Association will meet at Plainview at two o'clock P. M. D. F. Eaton of Lubbock, president of the show, has issued an urgent call to all the above individuals as well as any interested citizens to attend the meeting.

Everything is in good shape for the show which will be held in Plainview April 3, 4, 5, and 6th and interest indicates that the first show will go over in much bigger proportions than ever hoped when it was first proposed to stage the dairy exposition.

Entries are coming in nicely and all those who have not yet sent in their entries have been asked to send them to Maury Hopkins, Plainview, assistant manager of the show.

Details for the sale in connection with the show have been worked out and buyers are expected to attend from all over the Southwest. Over $4,000 in premiums in the pure breed classes, grade cattle classes and milk production contest are offered.

Officials of the show point to the value of the industry to this section and are trying to develop it to the highest point with this annual dairy show.

NEWSPAPERS ARE BEST ADVERTISING MEDIUM

The newspaper is the best advertising medium, states J. C. McQuiston, advertising manager of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, in addressing the advertising Council of the Chicago Association of Commerce recently.

Officials of the show point to the value of the industry to this section and are trying to develop it to the highest point with this annual dairy show.

"We believe that you can make a sale with a newspaper advertisement today that it will take you a month or a year to get in any other medium, if you get it at all," said Mr. McQuiston in explaining why his company has centralized the bulk of its advertising in the newspaper.

KNOW TEXAS

Lake Kemp above Wichita Falls is the largest artificial lake in Texas and one of the largest in the United States. It has sufficient reserve to irrigate 100,000 acres besides supplying water for Wichita Falls.

There are 850,000 acres of irrigated land in Texas, according to the best estimates.

More than 300,000 acres are under irrigation in the Rio Grande valley and tentative projects would add 100,000 more.

Texas has 60 cities of 5,000 or more population.

In the last three years there has been more railroad construction in Texas than in any other state. Florida ranks second.

The first railroad in Texas was started in 1851. It was the Buffalo Bayou, Brazos and Colorado, now part of the Southern Pacific System.

The High School Graduates all attended the show at Sudan Thursday night in a body, this was the showing of the wonderful Picture Ben-Hur, all were loud in their praise of the picture.

Misses Jewel and Opal Haney were in Clovis Wednesday afternoon.

Brother Johnson, said the 'parson, "can't you all donate some small contribution to be fund for fencing in de culled cemetery?" "I dunno as I kin, parson," replied Brother Johnson. "I don't see no use in a fence around no cemetery. What's in there can't get out and what's out sho' don't wait in."

Doctor—"About nine patients out of ten don't live through this operation. Is there anything I can do for you before we begin?"

Dusky Patient—"Yassah. Kindly hand me mah hat."

LARGE NUMBER GET DEGREES, AT U. OF T.

Austin, Texas.—Diplomas have been ordered for 674 students of the University of Texas who expect to receive degrees at the June commencement, according to E. J. Mathews, registrar. This number is an approximation of the number who will actually graduate, according to Mr. Mathews, for it will doubtless be altered by some students dropping out of school and others who will register in absentia.

There are 279 candidates for bachelor of arts degrees from the College of Arts and Sciences; 125 candidates for master of arts, and 6 students applying for master of business administration degrees. In the other divisions of the University the candidates for degrees are classified as follows: Bachelor of law, 60; bachelor of business administration, 30; bachelor of journalism, 2; bachelor of science in home economics, 30; bachelor of science in education, 15; bachelor of science in physical education, 3; and 77 candidates for bachelor of science degrees in the various departments of the College of Engineering.
