Whoa, Now!

Even yesterday Johnnie Scudder was still barely getting around. Either he or his mare tried to make a rodeo out of last Sunday's Sheriff's posse mounted drill.

The fatalist harps on the theory that what is to be is to be and that mere mortals can do nothing to alter the course of events already predestined by God.

A group of soldiers had indoctrinated a fellow GI, who happened to be of the Negro race, along these lines on the Korean battle front. They explained to him that when the bullet with his name came along it was going to get him no matter what.

But still the colored private took every precaution to maintain cover under fire. He explained that he knew the one with his name on it would get him, but what he was worried about was the bullets addressed "to whom it may concern."

Someone else put the damper on the fatalists theory with this little squib: "Sittin' and a wishin' Will never change your fate. The Lord provides the fishin'. But you've got to dig the bait."

An unverified report was overheard in the drug store yesterday that the city of Paris, Texas received 30 inches of rain in a 24 hour period this week. Someone figure out how many gallons per acre that would be.

One of Spur's top-ranking bachelors this week stated that he intends to some day run for school trustee and make it a rule for the schools to hire only single women. Does he have his own personal interests in mind or does he think they just make better teachers?

Dust Storms Hit Area

CLEAR, CALM SKIES DUE IN AREA FOLLOWING LUSTY DUSTERS

Clear skies and mild breezes greeted the area this morning following the windiest, dustiest week since 1933.

Low barometer readings during the last few days have enabled the winds to kick up dust comparable to the dust storms of the early 30's and left citizens with red eyes and despondent hearts as precious moisture was being literally sucked from the soil.

The Texas Experiment station reports that the low barometer reading for the siege was 28.9, recorded Tuesday afternoon. The high for the last few days has been around 30.

Gusts of wind were estimated up to 50 mph during the big dustier Tuesday and the average for the week has been around 20 mph. This is about twice the average wind velocity.

Temperatures during the past week have also gone to extremes with a high of 94 being recorded Tuesday and a low of 40 at the other extreme.

The U. S. Weather Bureau, however, reports the moving on the low pressure area over the state and predicts clear skies with no dust in the immediate future.

County Cancer Fund Shy of $599 Goal

The Dickens County Cancer funds drive has collected $299 to date, states Mrs. M. H. Brannen, county education chairman. The goal set for the county is $599.

Last week two parties were held in town with those attending donating 25c to the fund. Mrs. Brannen started the progressive parties and Mrs. Erie Foster was the first to follow. The ladies that have already attended one of these parties are asked to have a similar party in their home, inviting different ladies to come and bring 25c for the drive.

The drive was supposed to end tomorrow, but will be carried on into May in hopes that the goal may be reached before the funds are sent in to the national organization.

Skelly Oil Co. No. 1 Beggs Ranch, 7,700-foot wildcat in extreme southeastern Dickens county, drilling at 1,975 feet in lime. Drivellits is 600 feet from south and west lines of Section 246, Block F, H&G Survey.

Operators conducted the test from 7,211-7,280 feet. The test tool was left open for three hours. Recovery was 470 feet of slightly gas-cut drilling mud and 1,108 feet of salty sulphur water.

Open flowing bottom hole pressure ranged from 100-750 pounds, while 30-minute shut-in pressure was 2,700 pounds. At last report drilling was progressing below 7,315 feet in lime and chert.

The prospector is 1,980 feet from north and west lines of Section 162, Block 1, H&G Survey.

Also, the Spur Lions club has promised a donation to the fund sufficient to pay for the outside lighting. This is to total about $600, states Gabriel. The money for this purpose was raised by the Lions of Spur by selling cold drinks at the softball games and at the rodeo last year.

Gabriel states that all such gifts from organizations or individuals are sincerely appreciated and will be given due recognition.

It is reported that several ladies' organizations in the city have already or intend to either purchase or make linens for the nearly-completed city hospital.

The mayor points out that all gifts of cash to be used for class 2 and 3 equipment - that is, non-expendable equipment - will be matched dollar for dollar by the federal government.

An opening date for the new hospital will be announced in the near future, states Gabriel. He reports that all equipment except linens and some kitchen equipment have been contracted for and ordered.

"SMALL BUSINESS"

The push to repeal U. S. tariff laws has humorous aspects.

The slogan of would-be repeaters "Trade, Not Aid" is credited to Britain's finance minister.

Yet Britain, with colonies and dominions all over the world, apparently cannot successfully trade in the Commonwealth family.

Arrears of paper and pulp by Mutual Security Agency highlights the situation.

On two successive days, MSA approved $3,700,000 in paper and pulp for England and France; England receiving $4,200,000 of the total allocation.

MSA stipulates almost half of the total may be purchased in Canada.

Thus, even for trade between England and one of her dominions, U. S. taxpayers must foot a bill.

American publishers forced to pay exorbitant prices for newsprint may take some comfort at they at least manage to get Canadian newsprint without a bid, while England, hamstrung by British family, cannot without help by U. S. taxpayers, even though U. S. dollar now discounted in Canada.

Canadian producers who control the bulk of newsprint needed by independent U. S. press, have more than tripled price in a few years.

No what to all intents and appearances is a Canadian monopoly has priced the mother.

Love Story Behind Atomic Bomb Over Japan

The gripping and moving story of Colonel Paul Tibbets, who piloted the plane which dropped the atom bomb over Hiroshima, is unfolded on the Palace screen in "Above and Beyond," an M-G-M picture packed with dramatic intensity and emotional appeal.

With Robert Taylor and Eleanor Parker in the starring roles, here is the story, told told for the first time, of the world's best-kept secret and of the man charged with the lonely responsibility for keeping it. Colonel Paul Tibbets is the man who was chosen from two million men of the United States Army Air Force to carry out "Operation Silverplate" Every move he made from then on had to be Top Secret even from his wife. Inevitably, Tibbets' own happiness became forfeit in the months of tension leading to a war and opened the atomic age over Hiroshima.

Under the discerning production-direction of Melvin Frank and Norman Panama, the narrative begins with Tibbets' selection by General Vernon Brent to organize an anonymous air force, collect equipment and train crews at an isolated air base at Wendover, Utah. As an added precautionary measure, all wives of the personnel are quartered at the field. When Lucey Tibbets' wife, has her second baby, she too joins her husband and for a while they are happy. But the constant tension, drive and enforced secrecy opens a wide gulf of misunderstanding and recrimination between the couple. It is not until the goal of the remarkable undertaking has been accomplished, when in the picture's thrilling climax, Tibbets and his crew fly the "Enola Gay" over Japan on August 6, 1945, to drop the fateful bomb over Hiroshima, that Lucey understands the motives behind her husband's seeming coldness.

Robert Taylor, in one of the most demanding roles of his career, gives brilliant action performance in his portrayal of Colonel Tibbets. An accomplished flier in private life, he has all the authority of a professional pilot. But, beyond that, he makes his figure of a lonely man assigned to an appalling task, beset with doubt and uncertainty, facing the criticism of his friends and family, but never wavering as to his ultimate goal, a flesh-and-blood creation.

WASHINGTON AND SMALL BUSINESS

A question in Washington, especially among independent businessmen:

"Just how useful is the Federal Trade Commission?"

When the Federal Trade Commission was established many years ago, it was the intent of Congress that FTC would set up rules for enforcement of anti-trust laws. The Department of Justice is charged with prosecution of violations.

G. W. Harter, the FTC in anti-trust matters is also an investigative body, as the FBI is in crime matters.

Some observers feel further comparison between FBI and FTC would be libelous to the FBI.

But on disclosures pending in Washington, comparison between FBI and FTC, bearing in mind both have investigative functions, can be carried even further.

For example, no one accuses FBI of spending all effort investigating who puts slugs in penny gum machines, while saboteurs go unnoticed.

Yet the FTC spends millions of dollars on cases such as the following: The Stewart-Allyn Company of New York makes smoking pipes. Recently, the majesty of the FTC was brought to bear in a public hearing, resulting in a decision the firm must disclose its pipes are manufactured in the U. S. even though the briar is imported.

Neither would FBI hire people not believing in the laws.

But FTC expects to investigate pending major problems raises many doubts about motives.

Retiring Commissioner John Carson reveals a case in point. Several months ago, in the Tire Case, FTC invoked for the first time in history the maximum discount rule under authority given it by Congress. This rule provides a limit to the preferential discounts that big dealers can secure over small dealers.

Yet, FTC has failed to enforce its own ruling. A Washington court decided the FTC ruling cannot be contested until the FTC enforces it.

Carson requested fullscale FTC investigation of tire distribution.

But strangely enough, this was blocked by an economist hired by the FTC. This economist, Carson reports, takes the stand FTC does not have time for this job, although every day the FTC finds time to dwell on trivial cases similar to briar pipe matter.

No one knows what influence, if any, an employee of the Commission has on FTC, but the facts are strange.

The FTC after making one of the most important rulings ever made for free enterprise fails to enforce it.

This strange paradox does not stand alone in FTC record.

Other FTC actions are just as puzzling. For example, after years of research, the FTC prepared a long, several hundred page report on the actions of a few major American oil companies allied with British oil interests, in establishing an alleged world petroleum cartel. This report was then buried by the FTC and required action by U. S. senators to make it public.

The FTC has great powers. But many Congressmen are becoming curious as to just how, and for whom, is FTC using this Congressional grant of power.

IT'S THE LAW

in Texas

How bail is set in criminal cases explained by bar

Why persons accused of crime are released on bail is a subject on which most of us have little knowledge but considerable curiosity, according to the State Bar of Texas.

In the United States a defendant in a criminal action is presumed to be innocent until his guilt is established beyond a reasonable doubt. His guilt or innocence is established at his trial not when he is arrested.

With this concept in mind it is not hard to see why the right to bail in criminal cases is guaranteed by the Constitution of the United States, with the exception of capital cases. A capital crime is one which the punishment may be death. In Texas, treason, rape and robbery with firearms are capital offenses.

All prisoners are bailable in Texas except where the proof is evident that a capital offense has been committed and it is probable that a jury will assess the death penalty.

An officer making an arrest is required by law to take the accused promptly before a magistrate. It is the duty of the magistrate to examine into the truth of the accusation made. He determines whether the accused should be discharged or bailed or held without bail. If bail is set for the defendant, the magistrate must determine the amount. The law provides a procedure for reviewing these decisions before the Court of Criminal Appeals.

When an accused is on bail when his trial commences he has the right to remain on bail during the trial of his case. Where the punishment of a defendant has been assessed at confinement in the penitentiary for fifteen years or less the defendant has the right to remain on bail pending the appeal of his case. If the penalty is more than fifteen years the defendant is kept in custody from the moment the jury returns its verdict.

The Constitution also says that bail may not be set in excessive amount. What is considered a reasonable amount depends largely upon the circumstances and the risk involved. Bail must be set high enough to assure the court and the state that the person will not run away, but will return and submit to trial on the date set.

The judge usually will ask the prosecuting attorney for a recommendation as to the amount of bail. The accused's attorney may ask that the amount recommended be reduced, giving his reason. The judge will settle on an amount he believes reasonable to assure the accused's presence at the trial.

Economists Meet With Amer. Bankers

The less favorable price situation for agriculture currently is not a result of depressed domestic demand since the change came during a period of high employment and incomes. That was the opinion of a panel of economists before a meeting of the Agricultural Commission of the American Bankers Association at Houston recently.

The panel, composed of Harry Love, Virginia Timm, Texas A & M College; E. C. Young, Purdue University; and O. B. Jensen, University of Minnesota, gave three major reasons for the drop in farm prices: namely, high overall production in other countries; and continued limited dollar exchange. The group attributed to increased marketing after several years of expanding numbers, the primary cause for the sharp drop in cattle prices. They classified butter and lard as special problems.

The economists pointed out that barring an expanding war, prospects are for a leveling rather than a sharp drop in defense spending. Moreover the easing supply situation indicated that production of industrial goods is catching up with demand.

Keeping the country's economy at a high level in the future, they said, will require shifts of resources among farm commodities and between agriculture and business. New developments such as television and air conditioning offer opportunities. Highway construction and repairs represent a real need, as do school buildings, hospitals and the like.

Farm price supports, said the experts, is not the remedy for the present agricultural situation. But they hastened to concede that present supports should not be abandoned quickly. Such action, they added probably would demoralize markets, especially for wheat and cotton. Future agricultural adjustments, they said, will be more difficult to make should a labor let-down in business activity and employment occur.

They believe the lower prices for meat would stimulate demand and thus help the leveling out process. Adjustments, they said, as production of any agricultural commodity can not be expanded indefinitely. Butter and lard are being replaced by other fats and

THE AMERICAN WAY

Good Question

Price supports above market levels lead to surpluses and in turn to production controls. Price supports, over the long run according to the experts, should be reserved for periods of unusual distress situation. They hinder adjustment making and are capitalized into higher land prices and rentals. On the whole, the panel members believed the financial position of agriculture was good. Farmers are in a pretty good position to make readjustments, but at present are more dependent upon high level employment and production in the remainder of the nation's economy than heretofore. The economists said leaders should be giving special consideration to maintaining a strong economy generally instead of to high price support. The final objective, believe the economists, should be to improve and strengthen markets--and not to replace them.
