CinemaScope Comes To West Texas

This week area movie-goers will get their first view of CinemaScope, the new motion picture process which has caused a revolution in Hollywood -- even greater than that created twenty-seven years ago when motion pictures found their voice.

CinemaScope's life-like panoramic scale and stereophonic sound combine to make the audience experience complete engulment and participation in the action.

The first production in the new media in this area will be the outstanding film adaptation of Lloyd C. Douglas' best selling novel "The Robe". Hailed by patrons and critics alike as a history making film of monumental proportions, it presents in Color by Technicolor the greatest story of love and faith ever captured by the motion picture camera.

Richard Burton as Marcellus, the Roman who gambled for Christ's robe; Victor Mature as Demetrius, the Greek Slave; Jean Simmons as Diana, and Michael Rennie as the disciple Peter, head a cast of thousands who breathe life into the unforgettable scenes of historical pagentry.

Actually, CinemaScope is a multiple process. It consists of an anamorphic lens, a curved screen specially designed to reflect greater light, and stereophonic sound. The anamorphic lens make it possible for a 35 mm. camera to "reach out" and compress a wide angle scene on a narrow strip of film. When the film is projected through a compensating lens attached to the theatre projection machine, it spreads the image horizontally to its original ratio of 2.55 to 1. The screen is so proportioned and covers the entire proscenium.

To further enhance the startling effect of CinemaScope on the audience, a new single stereophonic sound has been developed which places four sound tracks on one strip of picture film. This makes it possible to pick up dialogue or sound effects from the point of origin on the panoramic screen.

CinemaScope is not a make-shift enlargement of a regular 35 mm. film, but an entirely new method of filming and projecting a motion picture. It starts January 14 for an extended engagement at the Lindsey Theatre, in Lubbock.

Many farmers wish now they had better records of the operations in 1953. Accurate farm records are a "must" for figuring income tax returns and should be basis for changing farm practices. Many good farm record books are available.

Seasonal Pastures Great Help To Livestock Producers

Seasonal pastures go far toward answering the livestockman's prayer for green grazing 12 months a year.

Since no single plant or combination of plants in a pasture or meadow can be managed to supply green grazing the year-round E. M. Trew, extension pasture specialist, says many producers who have discarded the one pasture system are finding greatly increased livestock profits in seasonal grazing.

Managed properly, seasonal pastures come nearest to furnishing fresh grazing around the calendar.

Trew explains cool season perennials such as fescue or bromegrass cannot be grown successfully with warm season grasses like Bermuda or Dallisgrass. Here in Texas the cool plant usually is killed during its dormant period.

Plan different summer and winter pasture, he advises. Small grains alone or with an adapted legume will furnish winter and early spring forage while permanent pastures with Sudan-grass will provide summer and early fall grazing.

Generally there will be periods when grass is not available even with irrigation, he says. Wise producers tide over these times with hay or silage stored during periods of excess production. He also adds a planned program includes a plan to utilize soil improving crops and crop residues.

A knowledge of adapted summer and winter grasses is the initial step in establishing a seasonal program.

Proper grazing management is the next consideration. Trew continues. Commence grazing at the proper time, graze the plants to the proper height and rotate pastures to assure top production and efficient use from grasses produced. Be careful to avoid overgrazing.

Adequate fertilization pays, too, in setting up and maintaining seasonal pastures. Proper management also calls for good fencing, whether permanent, temporary or both.

Farm Families Finance Changing

The financial problems of farm families are similar to those of urban small business proprietors. In contrast, most wage and salary workers have no financial interest in the companies for which they work, and therefore are not subject to the risk of heavy capital losses. As a part of their job they usually have some protection against the hazards of unemployment, sickness and old age.

Mrs. Bernice Claytor, home management specialist for the Texas Agriculture Extension Service farm homes are becoming more like urban homes - more utilities are used, and a larger proportion of goods are bought. Much of this increased cost of living is fixed - it goes on month after month and year after year, whereas net farm incomes tend to fluctuate widely.

These higher costs for living needed for farm equipment and operations. It's not to be expected, that the net worth of the farm operator will be substantially increased by rising prices, as has so often occurred in the last 15 years.

New Features For Big Fort Worth Stock Show Rodeo

Fort Worth, Jan. 14 - Rodeo fans will find new thrills and added color when they view the world's greatest indoor rodeo in Will Rogers Memorial Coliseum during the Southwestern Exposition and Fat Stock Show.

Trick riders, returning to the Fort Worth show after an absence of several years,

All the famous 24 white horses from Graham, the Possum from the family have to provide capital for operating the farm and home, and protection such as insurance. The family needs greatest protection against the loss of income due to the early death or unemployment of the earner when the children are young.

For parents in the 40 to 54 age group with older children, and the pre-retirement age group of 55-65, as well as the retired group of about 65, the problem of providing adequate maintenance during non-earning years of old age is becoming greater. Furthermore, the need for protection of the parents against dependent old age becomes more insistent as old age approaches. Even the established farm operator family faces many hazards, loss of property and income, or possible sickness, accidents, and death. Some, but not all of these risks can and should be covered by insurance. In general, the cost of small and regular losses should be regarded as an operating expense; insurance should be carried only on those hazards that seriously endanger the financial position of the family.

Kingdom Roundup

This troupe has been spectacular on the stage of the Lions International Convention, the Cheyenne Frontier Days and San Antonio's Battle of Flowers. The Roundup took part in the grand entry and posted the colors in several performances of its all 19 performances this year.

Prize money for the cowboy contestants has been increased $2,375, the Show this year putting up $33,250, to which will be added the entry fees. Rodeo judges will be Charlie Colbert of Denver and Hank Mills of La Junta, Colorado.

Five daring and graceful performers will take part in the trick riding: Jerry Portwood of Arlington, Dolores Christensen, Worthington, Minn.; Betty Lamb, Dallas; Wanda Lou McCush, Pleasant Hill, Mo., and Don Wilcox, Tulsa.

First performances of the rodeo and horse show will be Friday night, January 29; and two performances daily thereafter at 2 p. m. and 8 p. m. except that starting time of the Saturday afternoon, January 30, rodeo will be 1:30 p. m. which is when the two-hour nationwide telecast will begin.

3 Texas 4-H'ers Win National Honors

THREE TEXAS state winners have been awarded national honors in the Dairy Foods Demonstration, Soil and Water Conservation and Farm and Home Safety programs.

Emilee Griffith, 16, of Haskell, a six-year 4-H'er, has been carrying dairy foods projects since she joined the club. This year her demonstration, "One Quart a Day," featured a dairy-rich meal, including cream of tomato soup made with milk and butter, a glass of milk, and an ice cream dessert. The demonstration won first place in the county, district and state contests. As national Dairy Foods Demonstration winner, she received a trip to the National 4-H Club Congress, last year she was a member of the first place Dairy Foods team in the county.

Don Elledge, 17, of Mabank, was a national winner in the Soil and Water Conservation program, receiving a $300.00 scholarship from the Firestone Tire and Rubber Co. He used 25 acres of poor land to conduct demonstrations in crop and grass culture, which showed the possibilities of such a venture, according to Sam Mann, assistant county agent. Over three years Don successfully established five-acre hay and grazing demonstrations. He also

Food Sense—Not Nonsense

'Doc,' It Looks As If You Hit Pay Dirt

Dental scientists may have struck pay dirt in their efforts to reduce dental decay. If so, the average American can hope to have his sweets, yet have fewer decayed, missing and filled teeth than at present.

To lessen the degree of decay, dental scientists have studied the use of "chemical barricades"—the newly talked of anti-enzymes. Anti-enzyme protection is based on the widely held theory that decay is caused by acids attacking the enamel of teeth; acids that are produced by the action of bacteria on foods containing high levels of sugar, foods that many people enjoy.

The little demons that cause the fermentation use enzymes as their tools to change sugar rapidly into enamel destroying acids. These foods recognized as carbohydrate foods because they contain starch, such as enriched bread or cereals, have not been a dental threat. The enzymes break down these products so slowly that saliva can neutralize any acids formed in the process.

This theory is seen in action in countries such as Italy where 50 per cent of the calories are obtained from bread, spaghetti and macaroni. An Italian 40-year old person can be expected to have as good teeth as a 15-year old American child.

If any part of the cycle—from sugar to acid—can be interrupted, dental decay can be slowed to a walk. Research has turned to chemicals which may toss the proverbial monkey wrench into the mouth bacterial machine. These chemicals inactivate the enzymes which are necessary for acid production. From tests with thousands of subjects, two materials with tongue twisting names—sodium lauryl sarcosinate and sodium dehydroacetate held the most promise. Because these tongue twisters are absorbed by the film which covers the teeth their protection lasts for several hours.

It is hoped that evidence from clinical tests on tooth pastes containing the anti-enzymes will demonstrate that these "chemical barricades" are as effective in prevention of dental decay as the theory now indicates.

Who will inherit your property? Your husband, wife, mother, father, children, your wife's relatives? The best way you can say who will have it is to provide a will which will protect your rightful beneficiaries and dispose of your property in accordance with your wishes.
When a deceased has no will, or dies "intestate" as the law calls it, the property of that person is distributed according to a detailed formula fixed by law. In some cases this may be the way you yourself would divide it—but in many cases it is not.
The provisions of the law concerning the distribution of the property of a person who dies without a will are rather complicated, and all of the possibilities cannot be covered by a

Martin, Lewis Dare Hunted Castle As Zany Spook-Buster In "Scared Stiff"

When those two uproarious ambassadors of hilarity, Dean Martin and Jerry Lewis, get themselves involved with a hunted castle replete with hidden doors, skeletons, zombies, weird apparitions and creaky organ music, you just know that a side-splitting good time is at hand. All of this merry-scary type of unbridled nonsense is served up in Hal Wallis' Paramount release, "Scared Stiff," which is due to open next Sunday at the Palace Theatre.
Starring Dean and Jerry with Elizabeth Scott and Carmen Miranda, "Scared Stiff" is reported to be a riotous cavalcade of mirth, music and merry mayhem. The fun begins when Dean Martin, as a night club singer, and Jerry Lewis as his bumbling bus-boy buddy, incur the wrath of a hard-boiled gangster because of their familiarity with his moll. During their escape from the mobster, who is about to take them for a gangland ride, they meet Elizabeth Scott, the heiress to a haunted castle of the general statement.

There are different rules for real estate and for personal property, for community property and for separate property, for homestead property, and for all of the many possible combinations of surviving relatives. Each situation must be carefully studied to determine the correct distribution of the property.
For example, here is a general idea of how the community property which you and your spouse have accumulated will be divided if you do not make a will prior to your death.
If your husband or wife survives and there are no children, the surviving spouse receives all of the property.
If, in addition, there are surviving children or descendants of deceased children, they would divide one-half of the property, while the surviving spouse would receive the other one-half.
Of course, grandchildren do not share in the estate unless their parent who would inherit is deceased. And when descendants of previously deceased children do inherit, they receive only the portion that the child would have received, regardless of the number of such descendants.
An odd note, perhaps, is that the surviving spouse already owns one-half of the community estate prior to your death, and the law adds nothing to this share where there are children surviving.
When there are only children and their descendants surviving, they divide the entire community estate between them.
A free pamphlet containing useful information on wills and related matters has been prepared by Texas lawyers. To obtain a copy, merely print your name and address on a postcard and mail to State Bar of Texas, Colorado at Fifteenth, Austin 1, Texas.
(This column, based on Texas law, is written to inform—not to advise. No person should ever apply or interpret any law without the aid of an attorney who knows the facts because the facts may change the application of the law.)

Extra Helpings
Tangerines from Florida are most beautiful during December and January. Like oranges, they make an excellent relish when ground with fresh raw cranberries.
A pint of pre-packaged vanilla ice cream is a favorite topping for plum or other steamed puddings. Allow the package of ice cream to soften on a shelf in the refrigerator; add a tablespoon of rum or brandy flavoring and beat with rotary beater until smooth.
For a party canape sauce to serve with potato chips, blend a package of cream cheese with sour cream to "dunking" consistency. Give a tangy flavor touch with 1/4 teaspoon Tabasco.
Sesame seeds browned in a skillet over medium heat give a nut-like flavor to tossed salads.
A good cup of tea calls for rapidly boiling water and 1 teaspoon tea to tea bag per cup. Allow to brew three to five minutes for color is no indication of tea strength.
Brazil nuts, sliced and toasted have a new depth of flavor. The shelled jumbo nuts slice easily after they are softened three minutes in boiling water. Then dot with butter, add a little salt, and toast slices in moderate oven about 15 minutes, stirring to brown evenly.
For a meat and potato course—first, cut baked potatoes in half, scoop out the centers and mash. Mix in canned deviled ham, milk to moisten, and seasonings. Refill potato shells and brown in moderate oven.
Unsulphured molasses gives rich flavor and color to a quick barbecue sauce for spareribs. Combine 1/4 cup of this sweet molasses with 1 table spoon prepared mustard, 1 table spoon vinegar, 1 1/2-cup can tomato sauce and 1/2 cup chopped onion. Heat and use to baste spareribs last hour of their roasting time.
