Indications are that the weather is going to be ideal, although it is possible that harvest time, which is now beginning, will keep many people away which would otherwise attend.

OBSERVATIONS OF A BUGK PRIVATE AT NATIONAL LEGION MEET AT SANTONE

Legion men who attended the National Convention at San Antonio last week from the local post have returned, and as far as can be learned, recovered very nicely. It is estimated by some of them that they have answered nine million questions since last Monday morning. Consequently, they have been induced to write their own story just as they saw the show. The first is given herewith, and it is to be hoped that the others will not fall down on their end of the contribution.

"Hey Buddie! Going down town? Alright, hop right in. Keep your hands off those bottles, back there. G-r-r-r-r-r-r! (sound of slamming brakes) Say! you rube, don't you know we got the right of way here? We bought this town for this week and we just moved in to take charge. Just oil up your brakes and hold everything when you see us coming."

"Well this is as far we go, soldier, you'll have to walk the rest of the way or pay for your ride."

Upon approaching the Gunter Hotel, the Legion Headquarters, if you are not tuned in on any one certain wave length, this is about what you would pick up: "Hall! Hall! The gangs all here, the heck! The old grey mare, she ain't what she used to be, she ain't!" "There's a long, long trail a winding into the land of—" "You can't get 'em up, you can't get 'em up this morning." "Some day we're gonna murder the bugler, some day you're gonna find him—" "Hinky, Dinky, Parle Voo."

"Hey Buddie! Where you from?—Chicago?—never heard of it."

Everybody knew Iowa was there. They had a song something like this: "We don't give a darn for the forty-seven other states. The forty-seven other states. We don't give a darn for the forty-seven other states. We're from IOWA."

Illinois let 'em have this: "We don't give a darn for the whole state of Iowa, the whole state of Iowa, the whole state of Iowa. We don't give a darn for the whole state of Iowa, we're from Illinois."

When the show opened Monday night, the gang in the Gunter Hotel started a water-bomb raid on the gang in the street by dropping paper sacks filled with water from the third to the twelfth story, and it seemed like they had the situation pretty well in hand until Tuesday night, when a light brigade armed with slightly damaged tomatoes and over-ripe eggs, returned the fire and made it so hot for the bombers that they had to get out the fire hose to route the grenade throwers.

Two Inch Rain Is Followed By Cold Wave This Week

Rain Sunday night to the amount of two inches fell over Bailey County. This was followed by a cold wave which caused the dealers in coal and slaves to do a good business for the next two days. Tuesday morning the temperature was 39, while Wednesday morning it had dropped to 33. No crop damage has been reported, although there is many bales of cotton now open and most of the feed crop ready for harvest. The moisture was very beneficial to wheat in this section and at present, prospects are good.

Berry And Hatton Are In The Air At Lone Star Theatre

Aviation, now the greatest popular fancy, has its comedy possibilities exploited for the first time in a motion picture. Wallace Berry and Raymond Hatton in "Now We're in the Air," the Paramount film which comes to the Lone Star theatre tonight. Against their will, Berry and Hatton have been soldiers, sailors and firemen, and now they are aviators, through no doing of their own. They land in the air service when their employer enlists and they wander into a propeller testing room and have their Scotch highlander costumes blown off. Some one tosses them a pair of flying uniforms and before they know it they have been mistaken for aviators and are in the air. Mistaken identity dominates the plot. Louise Brooks plays a cool role. She is both of twin sisters, one of whom is of French fealty and the other German Berry falls in love with the German twin and Hatton with the French but they are unable to tell the girls apart, so all sorts of scrambled complications ensue. Then Berry and Hatton are mistaken for German heroes, and are acclaimed of the same status by the French. This is too good to last however, and they are about to be finished off by a firing squad when the war ends, and each wins the twin of his choice.

Information for Voters About General Election

HOW PRESIDENTS ARE ELECTED

Many inquiries have been received as to the ballot in the November elections. Many people have never voted in a Presidential election, and some have the impression that the names of the Presidential candidates appear on the ballot. Some weeks ago the Journal ran "A Lesson in Civics" but it seems that many have forgotten this lesson. For the benefit of the ones who wish to be better informed about the November election we are giving you this lesson again.

The President is not elected by popular vote. The names of the Presidential candidates do not appear upon the ballots used in the Presidential election. When you go to the polls in November, you will not find the names of Herbert Hoover and Al Smith on the ballot. You will not vote directly, technically speaking, for either. You will only vote for the PRESIDENTIAL ELECTORS.

Under our Federal Constitution, each state is entitled to as many Presidential Electors as it has Senators and Representatives in Congress. Texas therefore will have 29 votes in the electoral college for President. Each state has two Senators, regardless of the number of representatives depends upon the population. For instance, New Mexico has one representative in Congress and New York has 45. Each State has two Senators. New Mexico, therefore, has three electoral votes and New York has 47.

Each party elects its Electors in each state. For instance, in Texas, the Democrats have selected the names of 20 Democrats to appear upon the official ballot in November. Presidential Electors. Likewise, the Republicans have selected the names of 9 Republicans Electors. There also on the ticket this year, the Communist party has selected 9 members who will appear in parallel columns on the same ballot. Any person desiring to vote for Al Smith will scratch the names of the Electors who will vote for Hoover, or any of the other candidates.

The names of the Democratic and Republican candidates for U. S. Senator, Congress, Governor, and other State, district, county and precinct offices will likewise appear in the Democratic and Republican columns respectively. Any one may vote a straight Democratic ticket, if he so desires, in which case he or she will scratch the entire Republican column. He may vote a straight Republican ticket, if he or she so desires, in which case he or she will scratch the entire Democratic column. He may vote a mixed ticket, if so desired, in which case he or she will scratch the names of other columns as he or she may desire to vote for and will scratch the other columns.

If the Democratic Electors receive more votes than the Republican Electors, the Democratic Electors will cast 29 votes in the electoral college for Al Smith for President. If the Republican electors receive more votes than the Democratic electors will cast the 29 votes for Herbert Hoover for President. The candidate who receives a majority of the Electoral votes will be elected President of the United States.

The Electoral votes are cast in the following manner: The successful electors in each state meet in January following the election in the state capital, and cast the vote for President. The members themselves may show the name of the Presidential candidate for whom they voted. One copy of the certificate is made by the President of the Senate and one copy is taken by one of the electors in person, selected for that purpose, and delivered to the President of the Senate in February. The Senate canvasses the returns and announces the results, declaring that person elected who has received a majority of all the electoral votes.

What's Doing In West Texas

The new Booker bakery recently built has equipment installed and has been baking for a week. L. N. Traynor is manager of the new bakery and states that he is able to feed the whole town.

An effort is being made in Nolan county to get a County Health Unit with the financial assistance of the Rockefeller Institute. The county would finance half the project which would insure a full time doctor and four helpers.

A survey of the whole of Dawson county to account for every cow in the county is being sponsored by the Lammock Foundation. It is expected to interest a milk plant there. The milk plant pays 18 cents more per butterfat pound and deliveries are made after the milk.

T. L. Kimmel, proprietor of the Electric Hatcheries at Hockley, has doubled the capacity of his incubators this year and will handle 15,000 more eggs. This is one instance of the increasing interest in poultry in the town.

Randall county scored at the State Fair at Dallas, winning second place in the Agriculture exhibit. The exhibit was sent to the fair by the Ganvau Chamber of Commerce and Randall County Commissioners with County Agent W. H. Upchurch in charge.

Longview News

The following News from Longview was for last week, which was not received until after the paper was published.

All of the Longview people are busy preparing for the Singing Convention which will be next Sunday. Each one has a hearty welcome to attend. Come one, come all, and bring well filled baskets.

A number of people from here attended the Box Supper at Baileyboro Friday night. After listening to an interesting program, Prof. Stringer sold the boxes. They received $6.00 which will go to help the basket ball teams.

Mrs. Dyer and son, True, attended the fair Saturday. They reported a good time and lots of excitement.

Little Alvin McCarty had the misfortune, Monday afternoon, of falling out of a swing and breaking his arm. He was rushed to the doctor and nurse where he was immediately treated. Alvin is getting along fine and soon will be back in school.

Rev. Booth filled his regular appointment here Saturday, Sunday and Sunday night. We are always glad to see the first preacher who comes for we know Brother Booth will tell us something to benefit us. Rev. Booth has preached at Longview for the past three years and he sure has been a help to the community. The people all left Sunday night feeling blue and sad, because their old pastor had resigned his place as pastor of our Baptist church, but we hope he will do as much good in other communities as he has for Longview.

Frank and Grandpa Robinson, who left for Ranger, Texas, Sunday to attend to business matters, concerning his place, returned home Saturday. They had a good time and wonderful trip. Grandpa said that he used to like Ranger, but it didn't compare with Bailey County.

The crops in the Longview community are exceedingly fine. The people are taking advantage of the pretty weather to get this splendid crop harvested. We regret that some of our larger boys and girls are having to stop school, but the farmers think they'll better make hay while the sun shines. Some will make from one to two tons of feed per acre. The cotton is opening fast with prospects of a bumper crop.

White and Ledbetter of Melvin and Eden loaded on a full train load, twenty-nine cars of two years old steers from their ranches here recently.

The cattle were shipped to the White and Ledbetter ranch in Northern Oklahoma.

P. E. Miller, Atwater-Kent salesman of Sudan, was attending to business in Mulshoe Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Wright arrived in Mulshoe Wednesday, from Dallas.

Mr. Wright is with the Doggett Grain Company and will look after their interests in this territory for the season.

Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Haberer and children, of Big Square, were in town Wednesday trading.

"Keep on forgetting and don't tell him," she curiously requested. "I shall never forget how you stood by me and did a man's share of the fighting." I told her, somewhat hesitating, she was displeased at something I had said, or left unsaid. "Will the army be at Thicketty run?" she asked. "No one knows where it'll be, I sorrowfully replied. "It should be west on its way to the head of Turtle creek. It was at the run two days ago, and I'm afraid it isn't far from there now. If it's moved north, we'll get on its line of march. Dunbar's provision train will be stretched out over a long distance. If it is still wasting time at the Run we'll shift our course and find it there."

But she did not see it again, nor did I. I stood at hand a low voice called out: "Huh-muh-wel!" My white brother and the witch-woman should be traveling like the deer," and Round Paw the Ojibwa stepped from cover and stood beside us. "The witch woman's medicine told her some one was following us. We waited," I explained. "She is arendionnan," he gravely said. "The Wolf runs long and fast from Allaquipna's town to find the army. The bone-breaking man took your talk down the Younghougen and will follow up Sewickley creek if the ghosts of the Hathawekela buried there do not stop him. The Hathawekela were the principal division of the Shawnee and claimed to be the 'elder brothers' of that nation. I had been in Old Sewickley

"You Think I'm Queer, Don't You, Mister?" She Softly Asked.

"That man Braddock don't know how to lead an army through this sort of country. He'll lead us astray. You should be ashamed for saying that." I retorted. "The army moves slowly, but as it goes by the head of Turtle creek it can still take time to do its business and yet take the form." Captain Beaujeu told me at the fort that he could do nothing but run if the creek course was taken. "Don't go and get mad at me, mister. I ain't used to armies and soldiers wonder where that Indian, Round Paw is just about this time. He should be several miles south of us and moving parallel to us. Today is the sixth. It'll all be settled in about four or five days. Gist came down from the tree and reported haze or smoke a few miles ahead. He was skeptical about its being smoke as the army ought to be in motion and not in camp. The Dinwiddie girl abruptly spoke up and declared: "I feel like we was being followed. Gist looked at her curiously and asked: "Do you pretend to hear and see things that Braddock and me can't see, nor hear?" "If I was a woman folk would say I was a witch," she gravely replied, meeting his gaze steadily. He glanced back through the shadowy woods and assured us: "I believe the Indians who chased you two have gone back to the fort." "My feeling is that only one or two men are following us," she qualified. "Yonkers often feel that way when in Indian country," he carelessly remarked. His indifference irritated her, and she stoutly insisted: "Some one's chasing us." "Far danger will be ahead, from the Indians hanging to flanks of the army," I told her. "We may have some trouble in cutting our way through. She tucked her rifle under her arm and trotted along behind us. She had had her say and was not inclined to talk further. "Curiously enough I soon found myself glancing backward, and each time I did so I met her questioning gaze and felt ashamed. At last I had to admit to myself that her words had put a foolish notion into my head. Of course one might be followed whenever alone in the forest, but as yet there was no evidence that we were being dogged. I fought against the idea, and then told Gist: "Keep on going. I'll overtake you within the next week. I'm going to watch our back track for a bit." He sped on, with the girl running a few rods behind him. I settled down between two trees and watched the view of my eye detected a flicker of something off to one side. "I saw it," murmured the girl, resting an elbow on her rifle and making ready for a quick with the escort, but all the time I was talking she was shaking her head. There was a number of women along with the train, but how many I never could learn as their names were not on the rolls. She would have the company of her sex, yet I was much depressed, and not a little provoked, at her stolidity. We left her in young Morgan's wagon and went up the hill. The wagon train was started by rifle-fire in the woods; then Cronit appeared, trailing his long rifle. He had been mistaken for a French scout and had barely escaped the bullets of some of our flankers. He was but little worse for his hasty travel and grimaced broadly on beholding us and more broadly when the thought occurred to shake hands with him. "Allaquipna's Indians are hiding in the woods, scared of the French," he told me. "There's going to be a vasty severe wring before we finish this business." "We march by the head of Turtle creek. The Indians will report on our track. The French can do nothing about it," I informed him. "There's going to be a mighty tough wring," he insisted. "I've dreamed again of the wick-girt." "She's back in one of the wagons. I'll get a spell on the French." He was much interested in my news and properties, and by his glances toward the rear I surmised he was wishing himself back beside the girl's wagon. Yet he maintained the old dream of her instead of "other one" meant bad luck. He philosophically decided it was an ill omen for him personally and perhaps did not concern the general welfare of the army. We passed a covered wagon in which Colonel Washington on a very sick animal was traveling. She had overtaken the rear of the army two days before, July fourth. I have no doubt he would have wished to question me, but I knew he must have been ill and could not ride a horse, and thought it best not to make my presence known. Before we caught up with the staff we learned that some of our rangers had fired on several of our Indian scouts, mistaking them for French Indians, and killed Scaramond's son, Scaramond, an Onondaga chief, who was among the Delaware as Man-at-Death, but had been called the Half-breed by the English since his death of Half King Sranyantia in the preceding year. The slaying of his son was a terrible error as it might have resulted in the complete alienation of the Indians. But Scaramond was above the average Indian in intelligence and was as devoted to the colonies as he was hostile to the French. They had buried the youth with suitable ceremonies the day before we reached the army and had covered his bones with the gift of an elaborate red coat to the bereaved father. Yet the tragedy had a lasting effect on the Indians. Round Paw told me that the Delaware scouts were asking one another: "If the English shoot us what will the French do?"

A shadow seemed to hang over the entire length of the slowly moving army. The militia were outspoken in their pessimism because they were not trusted to fight in the only way they had been accustomed. The regiments were facing their task with grim visages, wondering what chance they could have in this strange world when the woodsmen were so downcast. We reached the staff just as an halt was made for the officers to eat their rations. General Braddock set apart from the others, and we were not allowed to approach him. He appeared to me to be disappointed over the condition and sluggishness of the army, and disgruntled with several of his officers. How much the assistant colonel was due to my observation, and how much to the report Cronit had brought me after Beauvais escaped from the red-bellies' camp I cannot say. Undoubtedly Cronit's talk influenced my decision, as I saw him within seventy-two hours of his bloody death. (TO BE CONTINUED.)

VELVET HAT IS A NECESSITY; "PROM GOWN" FOR THE COED

THERE is no side stepping a velvet hat this season. It is written in every line of fashion's bylaws that one must be clothed in velvet from head to foot. Which is one of the "reasons why" milliners are so busy just now filling orders for "a velvet hat to match my velvet dress" or maybe it is the coat of velvet which the woman of fashion is frantic upon matching. The velvet hat, as launched this season is a theme of such vast and varied interpretation, one can scarcely

Some Velvet Hat Types

There is genuine rivalry between the snug fitting French inspired velvet caps which are so some and yet so different each from the other, and the very, very new wide-brimmed hats smartest among which is the one whose low drooping sides accent the cheek line. Very recent too is the velvet shape whose rim turns off the face so very becomingly. Then, too, velvet hats express contrasting trends in that for some a manipulation of the fabric achieves its only trimming, while others are as ornate as glittering embroidery and intricate handwork can fashion them. This all goes to show that velvet millinery includes a becoming hat for every type and for every occasion. The model to the left in the oval is admissible for a costume hat, but in any color it would be handsome. It features fabric manipulation. A swathe of shirred velvet sweeps the right side of the toque shape from top crown to the collar line where it develops into a huge fan-shaped bow. A velvet берет with a side

WHAT DR. CALDWELL LEARNED IN 47 YEARS PRACTICE

A physician watched the results of constipation for 47 years, and believed that no matter how careful people are of their health, diet and exercise, constipation will occur from time to time. Of next importance, then, is how to treat it when it comes. Dr. Caldwell always was in favor of getting as close to nature as possible, hence his remedy for constipation, known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is a mild vegetable compound. It can not harm the system and is not habit forming. Syrup Pepsin is pleasant-tasting, and youngsters love it. Dr. Caldwell did not approve of drastic physics and purges. He did not believe they were good for anybody's system. In a practice of 47 years he never saw any reason for their use when Syrup Pepsin will empty the bowels just as promptly. Do not let a day go by without a bowel movement. Do not sit and hope, but go to the nearest drugstore, and get one of the generous bottles of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, or write to "Syrup Pepsin," Dept. BB, Monticello, Illinois for free trial bottle.

Majority of Mankind Too Easily Excited

There are clubs and societies for every conceivable purpose under the sun, yet one of the most obvious needs of Americans today is left entirely uncovered. What we need is a don't-get excited club whose object shall be to keep people from coming to the boiling point when it isn't necessary. The trouble with most of us is, we get too excited over little things and too excited almost over the big ones. Agitation, loss of temper and sur-render of self-command over the trivial annoyances of life are a sheer waste of time and energy. In most human affairs more can be accomplished through poise and placidity than through effervescence and self-motivation. A don't-get-excited club could be so organized as to conserve all the human voltage that now goes to waste through needless excitement it would mean that mankind had reached the suburbs of a new era.-Harry Daniels in Thrift Magazine.

THE LOWLY PEANUT

College Station, Texas, Oct. 15.—In addition to its value as a product for the manufacture of vegetable oil, peanut butter and confections, the peanut provides a good feed for dairy cattle and hogs, recent bulletin issued by the Experiment Station, A. & M. College of Texas, points out in a discussion of approved methods of planting, cultivating, harvesting and curing of this product. It supplies a forage comparable with the clovers as feed for dairy cattle and makes a good feed for hogs but when not properly fed to hogs, either whole or as meal, frequently produces a condition known as soft pork which is penalized by the packing trade.

The culture of peanuts is adapted to the sandy soils of the state and this product fits well into crop rotation, the bulletin sets forth. Experiments at Beville and Lubbock substantiate that close planting, from three to six inches in the row, will produce larger yields of both forage and nuts than when a greater distance is given between plants in the rows. There is virtually no difference in the yield of peanuts when planted in the hull or where the hull is broken or cracked. Peanuts produce higher yields of forage when planted in 36-inch rows but higher yields of nuts are obtained when planted in 18-inch rows.

The principal demand for peanuts at present is for the shelled product for use in the production of peanut butter, confections and for roasting.

TEXAS AND TEXANS

By WILL H. HAYES

Railroad Income Increases

The net income of railways operating in Texas shows an increase of 7.8 per cent during the first seven months of 1928 as compared with a like period in 1927. This amounts to the snug increase of $1,147,927, despite the fact that both freight and passenger earnings fell off. The increase in net income was due to a decrease in all major items of operating expenses. The decrease in passenger traffic was due to private automobile and motor bus travel, and some of the decrease in freight receipts was attributable to competitive truck lines.

Both bus and truck lines are offering quicker service in most cases than the railroads and deliveries at destinations closer to business centers. Greater frequency of both bus and truck trips also tends to make them more popular.

Cotton Goes By Truck

Much of the cotton from interior points in Texas is now going by trucks to Houston, Corpus Christi and other coastal shipping points. Elgin reports that truck shipments from that point to Houston run from 150 to 200 bales a day, trucks being loaded with from 15 to 22 bales each, and making a trip every 24 hours. Shippers say that the great advantage in truck shipments is that when the cotton is loaded it goes right through to the port without delay and is not left to stand around in railway yards for days, or switched off at sidings. The railroads are going to have to give quicker and better service, or they will eventually lose most of the local freight shipments. The public is looking always for better service and turns to the agencies supplying it.

Corpus Christi Port

Business at the port of Corpus Christi is increasing at a marvelous rate, proving that the development of that port was a great economic need. Foreign ships are loading and unloading there from all seaports. Cotton shipments are especially heavy much cotton being loaded at Corpus Christi that otherwise would have to go by longer freight hauls to Houston or Galveston. Corpus Christi has become the popular port of a vast area of the richest part of Texas.

Point Isabel Port Project

If Government requirements are met by the people of the Lower Rio Grande Valley, Point Isabel will become another important Texas port. The requirements are $600,000 in cash and title to some lands. Point Isabel, on securing which the Government will make $1,000,000 appropriation for port development and budget $150,000 annually for maintenance as recommended by its engineers. This will provide convenient and quick outlet for the large citrus fruit and vegetable output of the Valley and result in complete development of that part of the State. It seems that all that is now needed is the cooperation of that section in meeting the requirements.

Falls County Bond Issue

Plans are being formulated for a $2,000,000 road bond issue for Falls county. A large part of this—nearly half—is to be used for retiring outstanding district road bonds, and the remainder for improving its State-designated highways, of which Falls county has six, two of them traversing the entire length of the county.

West Cheese Factory

West is to have a cheese factory, the first to be built in that part of the State. West and the surrounding country is populated largely by thrifty farmers of Bohemian descent and it is a safe prediction that they will make money for the owners and the farmers.

Lockhart's Creamery

Lockhart has a cooperative creamery, which has been running only a short while. Because of the fact that it started right at cotton harvesting time, it is not running yet to its capacity. Citizens of Lockhart already see one great advantage from it. Dairywomen now sell their milk to the creamery, and instead of having a half dozen or more milk trucks rushing all over town and awakening the people at early morning hours, orderly delivery is made by the creamery at a great saving of noise and expense. The creamery products may also be bought from the grocery store and meat markets.

Teaching By Contrast

The Luling Foundation Farm, which is the Edgar B. Davis endowment conducted for the special benefit of the farmers of Caldwell, Gonzales and Comal county farmers, is making an unusual live stock exhibit at the county fairs of those counties this fall. The exhibits consist of good types of feeder steers, sheep and hogs shown side by side with poor and unprofitable types. Figures are

Stop Butter Fat Losses

The dairymen of DeWitt county last year sustained losses of from 9 to 11 cents on butter fat because of unsanitary methods of handling cream on the farms. The county farm agent has been giving demonstrations on how to keep cream separators, milk cans and other vessels clean, the result being that the loss has been largely eliminated. Last year the total sweet creamery was receiving 125 gallons of sour daily; this year the amount of sour cream has dropped to 10 or 15 gallons daily. The change is due to more sanitary methods of handling the milk.

Terrill's Cotton Estimate

George E. Terrill, Texas commissioner of agriculture, in his latest report, estimates the Texas cotton crop at 4,770,000 bales and the total crop at 14,000,000. The heavy equinoctial rains will likely cause a still further decrease in production estimates. Commissioner Terrill says the crop now justifies a price of 29 cents, and there are good reasons for believing he is right.

Texas Crate Facilities

There are several crate facilities in Texas. Another, with capital stock of $400,000, has recently been organized at San Antonio to manufacture vegetable and fruit crates and boxes from East Texas gum wood. Which shows that increased production is expected in Texas, as that amount of money is not placed in factory equipment unless there is good reason to expect profitable returns.

Texas Pecan Crop

Buyers of Texas pecans are estimating the crop of native pecans at 14,000,000 pounds for which prices ranging from 15 to 20 cents a pound should be expected. Only a small percentage of Texas pecans are of the paper shell varieties and these usually bring from 50 cents to $1.00 a pound.

Gov. Smith Says---

The way he wants to relieve the farmer is to destroy him.

Mr. Hoover, as the chief adviser of the last two administrations, upon the subject of agriculture, assumed a direct responsibility for the hoodlum and inaction of the Administration, and continues to assume the responsibility by his fulsome indorsement of the record of Coolidge policies.

"Do you believe that liquor is the great issue of this campaign?" I certainly do not.

HOOVERISM

I believe there is no surer method of sapping the freedom of self government and the sense of responsibility of our citizens than unnecessary extension of Federal control over economic activities which so vitally touch the life of every family, every industry and every community.

Ours is not a nation of land, factories, railroads, dynamo, trade or ships. It is a nation of men, women and children.

The best way to economize is to utilize your time well.

KNOW TEXAS

Texas ranks first among the states in number of ice manufacturing plants and number of persons in the industry. The annual production is valued at $25,000,000.

It is estimated that 5,000,000 persons outside of Texas are engaged in industries directly dependent on or connected with Texas cotton.

No one can contemplate the past and the future of our country without an earnest prayer that we shall maintain at all times the refreshing force of a strong farm population.

Our ideal is not only a child free from disease. It is also a child made free to develop to the utmost his capacity for physical, social and mental health.

I have no fear for the ultimate cause of religion. That springs from depths too great and too certain ever to be wholly defeated.

Mr. Winfred Young, of Chilton, was a caller at the Journal's office Monday. He is improving his farm near Baileyboro, and will be here next of the fall, looking after business interests. He says that Harman county crops are very short this year due to adverse weather conditions.

J. M. Sanders and family, of Bosque county were visiting friends north of Muleshoe the first of the week.

ADVERTISING EGGS

BRINGS PROFITS

There is a market waiting for the eggs that the progressive poultryman advertises.

So says W. A. Sumner, of the agricultural journalism department at the Wisconsin College of Agriculture. Many poultrymen are finding large profits in a "direct to the consumer" business and are building up a flourishing business through small inexpensive classified advertisements in city and town newspapers.

Before beginning, however, Mr. Sumner emphasizes that the future advertiser must be sure that he has something worth advertising and that he can give prompt replies to those who answer. To get top prices for his eggs and bring repeat orders, the poultryman must have strictly fresh eggs that he can guarantee. But, it pays to sell them, for city customers are willing to pay from 5 to 10 cents a dozen above the retail prices for strictly fresh eggs.

Often a single insertion of an advertisement will bring enough inquiries to build up a steady trade for months to come, but the sales copy must be attractive enough to draw attention to competition with all the other advertisements in the column.

In writing the advertisement, Mr. Sumner gives this hint: "Make the copy detailed enough to furnish all the necessary information, including prices." The copy must be brief, for it is paid for by the words, but no important facts should be left out.

A trade mark also helps when selling to out-of-town customers. If it is attractive and easily remembered. When it is used on neat cartons, crates or packages containing clean fresh eggs, it helps to bring more orders and makes it easy for customers to tell their friends about the poultryman's products.

PIZARRO'S SEARCH FOR GOLD AFFECTS TODAY'S FOOD COST

When Pizarro and those adventuring conquistadors who followed him into the mountain fastnesses of Peru and Bolivia forced their thousands of captives to labor in the gold and silver mines of the Andes, their acts were destined to play a part in the price of corn and beans to the housewives of the United States in 1928, according to a bulletin just issued by the American Business Research Bureau. It is a story of romance.

"Pizarro and those who followed him wanted only gold and silver and precious jewels," says the bulletin. "They found the silver mines of the high Andes rich in tin as well. To get out the silver they were forced to take out the tin also. But the tin went into the discard, into tailings. "During the centuries these hills of discarded tailings, rich in tin, grew almost mountain high. Centuries passed. The tin mines of Cornwall, in England, whose richness lured the Romans to the conquest of England, played out. The tin mines in the Malay Straits Settlements began to fail. Tin went from a few cents a pound to at one time, seventy cents a pound.

"Then the mine dumps of Bolivia, growing since the days of Pizarro, were remembered. For years England had controlled the tin market. Now Americans entered the field. The Golden Center Mines, Inc., acquired vast tin holdings in Bolivia. They include besides the mine dumps of Pizarro, both lodes and river-bed deposits.

"Tin has dropped back to fifty-five cents a pound and the British tin trust is losing its grip. American manufacturers are getting their tin cheaper. The American housewife is being freed of 'British control' when she buys a can of peas, beans, or corn."

"One of the reasons that prompted American industrialists to enter the tin industry was the fact that America, consuming over 70% of the world's supply of tin, produced less than 2% of it.

The World War naturally caused tremendous economic changes. Prices of useful metals advanced generally along with everything else, but notwithstanding the fact that it is now ten years since the war ended most of the useful metals are selling at or near the prices which ruled before the war.

The one exception is tin, which has risen so much in market value within recent years that it is sometimes referred to as the most precious of the base metals. This is not particularly surprising when the fact is taken into consideration that the mines which produced the greatest amount of tin during the past are either worked out or are rapidly being exhausted.

"The mines of Cornwall, Wales, one of the world's largest producers of tin in the past, were exhausted almost fifteen years ago; the placer stream bed and gravel deposits of the Malay peninsula, at present the greatest source of supply, are going fast. When these are exhausted in the near future it will remove about one-third of the world's present possible output of tin per annum. Production has been declining constantly and it is reasonable to believe that it will not be many years before this supply will be exhausted.

"While the tin deposits in the mountains of Bolivia have been long known, it was not until the development work of American industry that the value of these deposits was fully realized. With American methods and modern machinery, this country is expected to be one of the important tin producing countries of the world for some years to come.

The Golden Center Mines, Inc., has also acquired valuable properties near San Diego, California. Engineers recently discovered that there is a vein outcrop varying in width from 50 to 100 feet and exposed on the surface for a long distance.

All in all, there is every indication that while gold and silver have in the past been considered the "romantic" metals, it is evident that the average American housewife is just as much, if not more, interested in tin as wealth. Many of the articles of her daily use are brought to her.

NOTED CLERIC FLAYS BIGOTRY

Dr. Henry Van Dyke Declares Defeat of Smith Would Be "National Calamity."

ASSAILS SECRET PROPAGANDA

Warning American voters that sinister and secret forces are threatening the very foundation upon which our Government is built, Dr. Henry Van Dyke, eminent educator, Presbyterian clergyman, author and diplomat has issued, from his home at Seal Harbor, Me., a stinging appeal for religious tolerance.

Dr. Van Dyke who holds degrees from Princeton, Harvard, Yale, Pennsylvania University, Union College and Oxford University is perhaps one of the best-known of living writers and clergymen. In a formal statement, he said:

"At the present moment there is no foot in these United States a widespread cabal to keep one of the candidates for the Presidency from election because he is a member of the Catholic Church. The other candidate has handsomely disavowed any personal share in the sentiments or arguments which characterize this cabal. This is as much to his credit. "But unfortunately he can not, or at least he does not, restrain and check the pernicious activity of his supporters, who are convinced that the end of a victory for their party justifies any means which they employ to secure it.

"If, therefore, their candidate should be elected, he would owe his election in part to the religious prejudice and anti-Catholic enmity which the cabalists have stirred up and marshaled to the polls. This would be a misfortune for him, and a calamity for our country as the home and citadel of religious liberty.

Most Important Issue
"The mere prospect of such a calamity ought to move the hearts of true Americans and honest Christians with dismay, and awaken their minds to serious thought and earnest action in defense of that right freedom of conscience which is the hard-won crowning glory of America and the dearest jewel of Christianity.

"That seems to me far and away the most important question before the country today—a question not to be answered by heated appeals to partisan allegiance—a question not raised, thank God, by either of the honorable candidates for the Presidency, but a burning question thrust upon the conscience of every American voter by the overt fulminations and covert whisperings of those who seek to defeat one of the candidates because he is a Catholic.

"My Protestantism is obedient to Him who said, 'Render unto Caesar the things that are Caesar's and to God the things that are God's.' My Protestantism is as much hereditary from the school of William of Orange, tells me that 'conscience is God's province.' My Americanism, which is a stout guard of that right native-born generations, tells me that to vote against a man because of his church-membership is to be untrue to the central faith of the Republic.

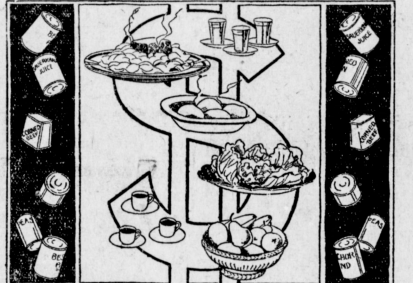

"Freedom of conscience is the greatest thing at stake in this campaign. Hundreds of thousands of voters fail to realize it. It is time to blow a trumpet to awaken the sleepers. The Palladium of the Republic is attacked by secret and open forces. It is in danger, trembling in its marble hall. The spiritual call to arms goes out to every man and woman. Defend the religious Liberty of America!"

BLAINE ADVISES BOLT

Republican Senator in Wisconsin Declares Voters Must End Corruption; Says Friends Are for Smith.

MILWAUKEE, WIS.—Republican leaders, disheartened by the tremendous reaction to the recent speech of United States Senator John J. Blaine, in which he bitterly criticized the last two Republican administrations and lauded Governor Smith, have practically given up all hope of swinging Wisconsin to Hoover.

Senator Blaine, a former Governor of Wisconsin, and one of the State's popular Republican leaders, declared in an address at Burlington: "I have no doubt that my friends and supporters are going to vote for Governor Hoover. We must condemn Republican silence on the scandals of the Harding Administration as an accessory after the fact. The thing to do is to end corruption by voting for Governor."

THIS FARM PAYS

A VIEW of the 1230 acre farm of Herbert Hoover. Operations on Mr. Hoover's farm are conducted on the same high engineering plane as all his other enterprises. The entire acreage is irrigated and highly cultivated for big crops of quality production. The land was worthless nine years ago when he bought it and was wrested from nature. Every variety of product such as potatoes, cotton, peaches, grapes, onions, figs, etc. is produced. Mr. Hoover constantly checks over with his manager, a university graduate farm expert who has the practical knowledge to go with his scientific education.

G. C. Streetman, of Stephenville, was looking after business interests in the County seat this week. He was very enthusiastic over this section of the Plains.

D. M. Holmes, of Oklahoma, was a prospector in this section the first of the week. He states that crops in his home county will be almost gathered within the next two weeks.

To the 5000 who daily become owners of the new Ford car

THE service obligation of the Ford Motor Company and its dealer organization is now growing at the rate of 5000 cars a day. It is to these new car owners that this message is addressed.

The new Ford is a remarkably fine car for one that costs so little. It is simple in design, constructed of the finest materials, and built to unusually close measurements.

These are the reasons it performs so wonderfully. These are also the reasons its service requirements are so few and the up-keep cost so low.

When you receive your new car, the dealer will explain the simple little things that should be attended to at regular intervals to insure the best performance. He will also tell you something of his own facilities for doing this work promptly and at small cost.

With the purchase of your car, you are entitled to Free Inspection Service by your dealer at 500, 1000 and 1500 miles. This service is due you and we urge you to take full advantage of it. Proper care during this breaking-in period means a great deal to the life of your car.

Included in the Free Inspection Service is a check-up of the battery, the generator charging rate, the distributor, the carburetor adjustment, lights, brakes, shock absorbers, tire inflation and steering gear. The engine oil is also changed and chassis lubricated.

No charge whatever is made for labor or materials incidental to this inspection service, except where repairs are necessary because of accident, neglect, or misuse.

The labor of changing the engine oil and lubricating the chassis is also free, although a charge is made for the new oil.

Wherever you live, you will find the Ford dealer very helpful in keeping your car in good running order for many thousands of miles at a minimum of trouble and expense.

He operates under close factory supervision and has been trained and equipped to do this work promptly, thoroughly and economically.

HOOVER SEES SECTIONALISM ENDED IN SOUTH

Alabama and Vermont Have Different Accents but Same Hearts, He Says

TRACES SOUTHERN PROGRESS

Urge Tariff Protection as Outlined by Henry Clay, Says Underwood Schedule Would Ruin Farmers.

ELIZABETHTON, Tenn. — Herbert Hoover, in his address here, expressed his profound interest in the amazing progress of the South during the past few years. "In every phase of life," he declared, "the South is moving forward. The ability and energy of the people is constantly growing and is of more dynamic scope. I know that the people of the South will agree with me that these results could never have been attained but for helpful co-operation and sound policies in the national government, and that change of these policies can bring only distress and disaster."

"Turning specifically to politics, he added: "I realize that I come here as the candidate of a political party with whose policies many of you within my sight and many within the sound of my voice have often differed. I respect your views regarding that difference. Yet so closely welded in common interest are the pressing issues of our nation today that it should be no longer unusual for a citizen of any region to vote for a President who represents the principles which correspond with his convictions."

Farming, tariff and prohibition were touched upon clearly and frankly by the candidate. He advocated strengthening of the protective tariff "as Henry Clay of Kentucky advocated it" and he expressed particular desire to see "complete protection for the farmer of the home market." Such protection, he said, is vital to the South, and would produce a needed further diversification on Southern agriculture. "Retreat to the Underwood tariff schedule," he declared, "would ruin millions of farmers."

Abolition of the liquor traffic, according to Mr. Hoover, "has become a fundamental part of our fundamental law. Later in his speech he explained: "The purpose of the 18th Amendment is to protect the American home. A sacred obligation is imposed on the President to secure its honest enforcement and to eliminate the abuses which have grown up around it. I wish it to succeed."

Some of the other important portions of his address were: "State Boundaries Vanish. "I am from the West, where our people are proud to be the settled portion of both the North and the South. Our recent differences from that of the people of Alabama and Vermont, but we have the same hearts, the same kind of homes, the same ideals and aspirations. Every morning and evening we read the same news; every night we listen by radio to the same voices."

"Our mental and physical frontiers are gone. It happens that we need geographical divisions for statistical and descriptive use but otherwise we could leave this question to orators and humorists."

"To the Westerner, appreciative of history and tradition, the occasion presents a double significance. As you have shown today, this locality was once the nation's frontier. Here were enacted some of the most stirring scenes in the brilliant drama of our pioneer era. Seven years before the Declaration of Independence there came to the banks of the Watauga — which was then the far west — the first permanent settlers. They erected what was to all practical purposes a free and independent state, under their own constitution. Historians of our frontier agree that no more striking proof of the native capacity of our early Americans for local self-government was ever given."

This Little Girl Got Well Quick

"Just after her third birthday, my little daughter, Connie, had a serious attack of intestinal flu," says Mrs. H. W. Furnage, 217 Cadaver, St. Antonio, Texas. "It left her very weak and pale. Her bowels wouldn't act right, she had no appetite and nothing agreed with her."

"Our physician told us to give her some California Fig Syrup. It made her pick up right away, and now she is as robust and happy as any child in our neighborhood. I give California Fig Syrup full credit for her wonderful condition. It is a great thing for children."

Children like the rich, fruity taste of California Fig Syrup, and you can give it to them as often as they need it, because it is purely vegetable. For over 50 years leading physicians have recommended it, and its overwhelming sales record of over four million bottles a year shows it gives satisfaction. Nothing compares with it as a gentle but certain laxative, and it goes further than this. It regulates the stomach and bowels and gives tone and strength to these organs so they continue to act normally, of their own accord.

There are many imitations of California Fig Syrup, so look for the name "California" on the carton to be sure you get the genuine.

HALLOWEEN

(Copyright, W. N. U.)

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON Drawing by M. G. Ketterer.

THE history of Halloween bears a curious resemblance to that of some of the other red letter days on our calendar, notably St. Valentine's day, Easter day, and Christmas day, in that it was originally a pagan festival which was taken over and incorporated into Christian religious observances and later changed so much that a great deal of its religious significance was lost. As a result, its traditions are a mixture of the pagan and the Christian, considerably modified in recent years by modern commercialism.

Halloween had its origin in the respect and homage paid by ancient nations to the sun. The pagans of those days, whether Egyptian, Greek or Roman, assigned a place of great importance in their pantheon to the sun god, the giver of light and heat. The sun marked out for them the time of work and the time of rest; it divided the year into seasons. It made possible the sowing of crops of grain and fruits and under its warming rays flourished all that was beautiful and splendid on this earth. So it was only natural that the early pagan should set aside a day of grief for the ending of summer when his beauty and splendor declined under the frosts and winds of the coming winter, when the earth fell under the spell of the evil powers and was not to be free from their again until the evening of spring. But, mingled with this grief over the passing of summer was the joy which he felt as he beheld the golden harvest of the autumn and in his heart he felt a song of thanksgiving for the ripened grain and fruit. The deity to whom the Romans were accustomed to render thanks for these gifts was the goddess, Pomona, and they were accustomed to set apart October 31 or November 1 in her honor as a festival day in which nuts and apples, representing the winter store of fruits, figured prominently.

The ancient druids also held their autumn festival on about November 1 and lighter in honor of their sun god in thankfulness for the harvest. They believed that on the eve of this festival, Saman, lord of death, called together the wicked souls who had been condemned with in the past year to inhabit the bodies of animals. That the main celebration of Halloween in some countries is derived straight from these druid ceremonies is shown by the fact that in parts of Ireland October 31 is still called "Halloweek, Shammas" or the Vigil Shammas. In general, though, Halloween represents a blending of the druid autumn festival and the Roman festival in honor of Pomona. With the coming of Christianity this feast day, as were many other pagan festivals, was appropriated by the early Christian leaders and became All Saints' or All Souls' day. These leaders could not easily deny the existence of the pagan gods and convince new converts to the faith, but they explained them as the children of evil, their power that of black magic. So it came to be the universal

'TIS the night when small folk walk Happy in disguise. 'Tis the night when men ghosts stalk With their glowing eyes. From the fence, the black cats scream In the moon's pale light. It is like a fairy dream; Halloween tonight! Pumpkins, yellow than gold; Scat-tacks on the pavement; Devils dashing thither, bold; Madmen in their train! Bells and whistles ring and roar On the still night air. Oh, such fun, could Saints of Yore, Then have been aware? Much content, whirled like snow— On, prancing merrily; Masked and painted to the ears; Blackened, daring eyes! Halloween can hold no fear If you are in disguise. —George Selma Miksimin in Poetry.

belief that these spirits of darkness driven from their old haunts, had taken refuge in caves and caverns where they held ghostly revels all the year 'round, but on Halloween they came out to practice their magic and do harm to men.

Good people were always in great dread of these evil spirits, and there was much awe whispering as Halloween approached. Some came forth as copper-colored birds to kill farm animals. Some stole babies, leaving in their place changelings, goblins who were old in wickedness while still in the cradle. Sometimes they would steal a bride to take her to their dark lair, while the bridegroom bemoaned her disappearance.

If one wished to escape the lurking devils on this day he must not permit himself to be caught unawares. To give a stranger milk or tea, to bring home a fiery thorn, to listen to ghostly music might deliver one into their hands, and if one went to the spirit realm, he would find upon his return that hundreds of years had elapsed, and that he himself had become aged, decreed and blind.

No wonder, then, that the good people took every precaution to drive away the powers of evil. Torches, which carried from west to east, would send them scurrying away through the air. In Scotland the village youths were wont to go from house to house on Halloween crying: "Give a peat ' burn the witches." To tie red thread around the throat, to sew a slip of wick elm in the doublet, to hold up a wand made from the rowan tree, all served to protect one from magic.

It was a terrible thing to be born on Halloween. In Ireland the story is still told of the fate of Red Mike, who "was a queer one from his birth, an' no wonder, for he first saw the light atween dark an' dark of a Halloweek eve." At a party a toast proven Mike's soul to be all black and foul. In anger he cried, "I've the gift of sight, I have, an' on this day my curse can blast whate'er I choose." At that the priest showed a crucifix and he ran away howling to disappear through a bog into the ground.

The pagan origin of the festival is seen in many of the traditions which still cling to Halloween. Thus the Halloweek festival an evil spirit purpose of keeping away devils, witches and other mischief-making beings, in accordance with the belief of the early Christians, and it also perpetuated the druidical custom of lighting fires in honor of the sun god in thankfulness for the harvest. The use of apples and nuts in our present Halloween celebrations is a survival of the druid ceremonies in which these edibles represented the winter store of fruits for which the sun god was thanked. They were also used in the divinations and consulting of omens which gradually became a part of the custom of the early Christians, which was so tinged with superstition by the early Christians. Indeed, in some countries, Halloween is also known as "Nutcrack Night" because of the custom of using nuts as a means of discovering the course love affairs will take.

In regard to the use of nuts in the Halloweek festival an evil spirit observes: "The first of November seems to retain the celebration of a festival to Pomona, when it is supposed that if a maiden ate an apple on the approach of winter. Divinations and consulting of omens attended of these ceremonies in the practice of the heathen. Among the druid rural sacrifice of nuts, propitious omens are sought touching matrimony: if the nuts lie still and burn together, it augurs a happy marriage or a hopeful love; if, on the contrary, they bounce and fly asunder, the sign is unpropitious. I do not doubt but the witch fires kindled on this day anciently burnt for this rural sacrifice."

Apples are used in various ways in the divination ceremonies. It was believed that if a maiden ate an apple before a mirror, brushing her hair the while, the face of her future husband could be seen in the mirror peeping through her hair. Among the druids there were certain conditions attached to this ceremony. The girl must steal an apple for use in the ceremony and must not touch the apple with her hand. Then, standing before the mirror at midnight she would repeat "With this stolen knife, I pare this stolen apple, and as I cast the paring over my life shoulder I command that the face of my lover appear." It was also believed that if man or maiden at Halloween time should throw the paring over the shoulder upon falling to the ground it would form the letter of the name of the future husband or wife.

In Scotland was observed the ceremony of pulling kale stocks, or stalks of colewort. Young people were led hand in hand, blindfolded into the kaleyard, or garden, and each pulled the first stalk he met with; they then returned to the fire to inspect their prizes. As the stalk was big or little, straight or crooked, so should be the future wife or husband; the quantity of yird (straw) clinging to the root indicated the tocher (wealth); or dowry; the taste of the pith or cutock indicated the temper. Then the runts, or stalks, were placed over the root (indicated the tocher (wealth)). The first to enter thereafter were those of the individuals whom the respective parties were to marry.

What Doctors Think of the Laxative Habit

In all history, no India was ever known to have constipation. Nor need YOU. He chewed the bark of a tree called cascara. Today, we have the candy Cascaret.

Constipating the bowels never forms a laxative habit. If already formed, an occasional Cascaret will usually break the habit. For cascara strengthens the muscular walls of the bowels, and their need of any aid at all grows constantly less. What other cathartic has this characteristic? The writer knows of none.

An evacuation brought gently about by cascara will, nine times in ten, be followed by full functioning of the bowels on the morrow—and for days after. For there is no REACTION as with sennelax salts, or any of the man made purgatives that go through one's system like a bullet.

Physicians tell us cascara is the ideal laxative—and the tongue tells us candy Cascarets are its ideal form. At least a million people know this; what a pity there are any who don't! Especially parents; because children love to take a Cascaret. After which, for days-on-end, the bowels will be seen to work of their own accord.

The only habit from cascara is that of regularity! Cascarets tone and train the bowels. But at the first sign of returning sluggishness another Cascaret is as effective as the first.

There isn't a druggist who hasn't Cascarets, so WHY experiment with laxatives?

Willing to Be Taught "You shouldn't slide on the polished floor like that, Junior." "How should I, then?"

Odd, Isn't It? She—I see bicycling is again on the rise. He—Yes, in spite of the falling off.

The nurse tells you to take Bayer Aspirin because she knows it's safe. Doctors have told her so. It has no effect on the heart, so take it to stop a headache or check a cold. For almost instant relief of neuralgia, neuritis, rheumatism; even lumbago. But be sure it's Bayer—the genuine Aspirin. At druggists, with proven directions for its many uses.

Ideals are often beautiful and at the age of twenty we think they can be always realized. Mrs. Colston, who, with her trio of pretty daughters, has forsaken Texas and made Hollywood her home, was asked the other day who was boss of the household. "Well, I used to be," she replied with a smile. "But now that the girls are grown up, we have a commission form of government."

There's no use in worrying. That's the name of the things which takes it attractive. Sometimes a great success can't look important in a hotel lobby.

Census Shows U. S. Growth

In the first census in 1790 the population was only 3,929,214. In 1920 the enumeration showed there were 102,710,029 inhabitants in the United States. In 1910 the total was 91,972,293, making an increase for the decade from 1910 to 1920 of 13,738,354. If, as has been estimated, the total for the continental United States during the coming census passes the 120,000,000 mark, the increase for this decade will be slightly greater.—Washington Star.

Tree Planting

For the year 1927 the total distribution was 50,029,929 trees. Leaders in reforestation are Pennsylvania and New York, which distributed 65 per cent of the total number of trees

Clean Kidneys By Drinking Lots of Water

Take Salts to Flush Kidneys if Bladder Bothers or Back Hurts

Eating too much rich food may produce kidney trouble in some form, says a well-known authority, because the acids created excite the kidneys. Then they become overworked, get sluggish, clog up and cause all sorts of distress, particularly backache and misery in the kidney region, rheumatic twinges, severe headaches, acid stomach, constipation, torpid liver, sleeplessness, bladder and urinary irritation.

The moment your back hurts or kidneys aren't acting right, or if bladder bothers you, begin drinking lots of good water and also get about four ounces of Jal Salts from any good pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may get set fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithium and has been used for years to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity; also to neutralize the acids in the system so that they no longer irritate, thus often relieving bladder disorders.

Jal Salts cannot injure anyone; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to help keep the kidneys and urinary organs clean, thus often avoiding serious kidney disorders.

You Cannot Have Health If Constipated

"I am writing you in regard to Milks Emulsion. About two years ago I became constipated and suffered with piles. I tried all kinds of advertised medicines and didn't get any results. I would have to take a cathartic every night. I fell off in weight from 155 to 105 pounds. I got so skinny I didn't look like myself.

"A friend advised me to try Milks Emulsion. After taking one or two bottles it did me so much good I wrote you for advice in the treatment of my case. I followed the instructions you gave me and used twelve bottles of Milks Emulsion and I am now in perfect health. I have gained 25 pounds. I recommend Milks Emulsion to every sufferer of constipation.

"I want to thank you for your advice." Yours truly, W. L. JONES, Greensboro, Ala., R. F. D. No. 5, Box 84.

DADDY'S EVENING FAIRY TALE

PUTTING

"Let's have a nutting party," said Mrs. Red Squirrel, and Mr. Red Squirrel said:

"The very thing. Today is a splendid day for a nutting party."

"We'd like to join the fun," said the chipmunks, "and get some of the nuts for the winter."

"We're also planning to give a banquet in honor of Chippy Chippy's birthday which comes tomorrow."

"We never knew that Chippy Chippy's birthday was tomorrow," said Mrs. Red Squirrel.

She was thinking as hard as she could what she could get ready to give Chippy Chippy on such short notice.

"We didn't tell our friends, as we didn't want them to feel they had to give Chippy Chippy presents, but we did want to give a birthday party for him," said the chipmunks.

"Squirrels Will Always Eat"

"As a matter of fact," said Chippy, "I don't think it was my birthday."

"Neither did we," said the chipmunks, "but we knew it now as we have just decided upon it."

"Ha, ha," laughed the red squirrels, "and you said you hadn't told us before so we wouldn't feel we had to get presents."

"Never mind," added Mrs. Red Squirrel, "I'll have some special treat for him."

For she remembered that she had had a birthday once—at a time when she was absolutely sure it was a birthday—because she just longed for a feast.

"We'll start for the nuts in the morning," said Mrs. Red Squirrel, "and in the evening we'll have the feast."

"Aren't you to have anything to eat during the day?" asked the little red squirrels.

"We'll starve," said the little chipmunks, almost weeping at the thought.

"Of course we'll eat a little," Mr. Red Squirrel said.

"Squirrels will always eat. We can eat and work at the same time, which is extremely clever of us."

"We'll have a nibble every little while—as often as we wish, he continued, and all the little squirrels and chipmunks felt happier.

"We've said," said Mrs. Red Squirrel explained to the children, "that we would have a special feast in the evening."

Everyone felt very happy and they all went off to have good sleeps so they would feel quite fresh for the morning.

Morning came and the rest of the squirrels and chipmunks were awake and ready for all the fun.

"We feel just like a good hunt," said the red squirrels.

"So do we," said the chipmunks. Far off they saw the gray squirrels and they hurried away for the gray squirrels are fond of fluting the red squirrels and chipmunks.

They are much stronger and are apt to win.

So they all had a nutting party, and they nibbled and stored many away, and showed places where there were more nuts to be found.

And when Mr. Sun was going to bed they had their special feast.

Suddenly they all said: "Many happy returns, Chippy Chippy."

In their excitement over getting the nuts they had forgotten that they had planned to make this day his birthday.

But Chippy Chippy had forgotten too, and the chestnut feast made up for everything.

Oh, it was a wonderful party!

Birds Like Candy
Commenting on grackles, Mrs. Ansel O. Cole of Iowa informs Nature Magazine of Washington of an interesting bird party she held for her many bird friends. Mrs. Cole put candy on the birds' feeding table. The result was surprising, for among those who attended the party were robins and their young, orioles and their babies, catbirds, bluejays, cardinals, rose-breasted grosbeaks, chickadees, nuthatches, tufted titmice and, of course, English sparrows. Grackles flocked in and carried off bits to their young. They also tried the soaking process in the bird bath and appeared much surprised and chagrined to see the candy dissolve.

Improved Uniform International Sunday School Lesson

Lesson for October 21
CHRISTIAN STEWARDSHIP

LESSON TEXT—II Cor. 8:1-15; 9:6, 7. GOLDEN TEXT—First gave their own selves to the Lord.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Glad giving. JUNIOR TOPIC—Glad giving. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—What is God's Claim on Us? YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Principles of Christian Stewardship.

1. Examples of True Christian Benevolence (II Cor. 8:1-5).

The liberality of these Macedonian churches exhibits practically every grand principle and motive which enter into the giving which has God's sanction. Observe:

1. The source of true giving (v. 1). This is said to be the grace of God, by which is meant that the disposition to give freely of our means is a disposition created by the Holy Spirit. This puts the Christian giving on a much higher plane than that which brings the people into the bondage of the law to give a tenth.

2. They gave from the depths of their poverty, not from the abundance of their riches (v. 2).

Their limited means did not cause them to restrict their gifts, but their deep poverty abounded into the "riches of their liberality." On the basis of this philosophy our poverty ought to be a call for greater generosity, for God has promised that if we give liberally He will give liberally in return.

3. Their willingness surpassed their ability (v. 3).

God's gifts are reckoned by the degree of the willingness, not by the amount given (II Cor. 8:12; 9:7).

If such grace were to come upon the churches today, there would be an abundance of funds to carry on the Lord's work.

4. They were insistent on being allowed the privilege of giving (v. 4).

They did not need to be pressed by the Lord. How far we have departed from the apostolic method. Today we employ the shrewdest men in financial affairs that can be found to manage affairs at our missionary meetings and the dedication of our churches.

5. They first gave themselves to the Lord (v. 4, 5).

This is most fundamental to right giving, for when one gives himself to the Lord there is no reason for withholding his gifts. If one does not give himself to the Lord there will be the desire to raise money as much for self as can be done within the bounds of respectability. The only first motive of raising money for the Lord is first to induce men and women to give their lives to the Lord and then to give of their possessions.

6. Emulation of Macedonian Benevolence Urged (II Cor. 8:10-15).

Moved by the generosity of the Macedonian churches, Paul desires Titus to commend to the Corinthians the same grace. This grace he urged upon them, giving:

1. Not as a command (v. 8). It must be spontaneous—liberal.

2. As a proof of the sincerity of their love (v. 8). Love is more than mere sentiment; it is benevolent action toward the object loved.

3. As the completion and harmony of Christian character (v. 7).

The Corinthian church abounded in spiritual gifts such as faith, utterance, knowledge, diligence, and in love for their ministers. But the grace of liberality was needful for the harmony of their lives.

4. The self-sacrificing example of Christ (v. 9). Self-sacrifice is the test of love.

5. Because the true principles upon which gifts are acceptable with God is a willing mind (vv. 10-12). God does not estimate the value of a gift on the ground of its intrinsic worth, but the underlying motive of the giver.

6. Because of a common equality (vv. 13-15). Every Christian should give something. The law governing the gift is ability.

7. Encouragement to Give (II Cor. 9:6, 7).

1. The volume of reaping is based upon the sowing (v. 6). Those who sow sparingly cannot expect to reap bountifully.

2. There should be a heart purpose (v. 7). This calls for intelligence as to the object of giving.

3. Giving should not be of necessity (v. 7). No practitioner who becomes the giver who gives through pressure.

4. God loves a cheerful giver (v. 7). The one who has the right understanding of his responsibility toward God with reference to temporal possessions will regard giving as a glorious privilege.

5. Faith of Adherence
When I cannot enjoy the faith of assurance, I live by the faith of adherence.—Matthew Henry.

6. Faith of Adherence
When I cannot enjoy the faith of assurance, I live by the faith of adherence.—Matthew Henry.

7. The Bible

COTTON CROP CONDITIONS

Dallas, Texas, Oct. 15.—Unquestionable deterioration in the cotton crop during the past five weeks has taken place, according to reports compiled by the Department of Public Relations of the Southland Insurance Company.

In this quarter of all cotton seasons including times at which no two people agree as to the outlook, general opinion has centered in the belief that the cotton will neither be too small to assure prosperity to the state as a whole, nor too large to make possible the securing of a fair price for the product.

Reports received in the last five weeks indicate, without reservation, that rapid deterioration is going on and very probably will continue. This shrinkage of the crop is, of course, due to various reasons—root rot, weevils, hot and dry weather, boll worms, and even slight damage by frost. As far as the general outlook is concerned however, two factors must be taken into consideration. One of these is the noticeable improvement in the quality of cotton produced this year especially in north and northeast Texas, and the other fact that acreage this year appears to be producing an unusually large amount of cotton despite deterioration.

Other aspects of Texas' chance for prosperity this fall are extremely bright. The grain crops have been unusually large and profitable; the cattle industry in the extreme western part of Texas is more nearly on its feet than it has been since the war, and sections which have suffered most from near crop failures during the past two years appear to have been the most fortunate this season.

Notable spots on the crop map for this month are Dallas, Potter, Randall and Deaf Smith counties in the Panhandle where the biggest grain crop in history is reported; in the Rio Grande Valley which is producing a one hundred per cent vegetable crop and the gulf counties around Corpus Christi, where weather conditions appear to be extremely favorable for next season.

Any business map of Texas at the present time would be a spotted affair ranging from almost hopeless outlooks to the brightest of prospects. In the main, however, farmers, city folk and business itself believe conditions better than average.

A 10,000 egg capacity electric incubator will be in operation in Tahoka by January, and the owners, Prof. Taylor, White and Verner Smith will be in the market for eggs from certified flocks, after that date.
