

West Guines Crude Strike Is Finished

Clinton Oil Co. of Midland has completed No. 1-9 E, H. Jones, Guines County deep failure, as a Glorieta discovery, 14 miles northwest of Denver City.

It gaged a daily pumping potential of 20 barrels of 27.1-gravity oil, gas-oil ratio not reported, through perforations at 5,024-5,025 feet, which had been acidized with 5,700 gallons.

Scheduled as a 13,000-foot Devonian try, it was drilled to 12,202 feet, and plugged back to 6,925 feet, in 4½-inch casing cased at 7,451 feet.

The following tops were reported under ground elevation of 5,849 feet: San Andrew, 5,940; Glorieta, 6,816; Tubbs, 7,272; Lower Clearfork, 8,016; Abo, 8,597; Wichita-Albany, 9,418; Wolfcamp, 10,036; Strawn, 10,665; Bend, 11,091; Mississippian, 11,197; Mississippian lime, 11,726; Woodford, 12,430 and Devonian, 12,474 feet.

Location is 530 feet from north and 2,357 feet from west lines of section 6, block A-6, PSL survey, 1¼ mile south of Clearfork production in the Tux-Pac field.

Sterling Gets Pair Of Tests

Two prospectors have been planned in West Sterling County. C&K Petroleum, Inc., operating from Midland, staked sites for No. 1-53 Foster, an 8,560-foot project, 11 miles southwest of Sterling City.

Drill site, 2½ miles northwest of Canyon gas production in the Onger field, is 1,690 feet from north and 960 feet from west lines of section 30, block 2B, H&TC survey.

Deepening Set

Dorchester Exploration, Inc. has filed application to re-enter and deepen to around 8,200 feet as a without, at No. 1, Lewis R. Foster, Sterling County failure, 11 miles west of Sterling City.

Originally drilled by Texas Pacific Oil Co., Inc., in 1970, it was plugged and abandoned at 7,551 feet.

It spots 1,980 feet from north and 1,500 feet from west lines of section 4, block 2B, H&TC survey, ¾ mile southwest of the Credo, East (upper Cisco) field and five miles southwest of the McEshire (Fusselman) pool.

Concho Gets Three Venture Locations

Three without sites have been scheduled in Concho County.

Fisher-Webb, Inc. and Dixon Oil Co., Abilene, will drill two 8,100-foot ventures, about eight miles northwest of Milleraville.

No. 1-3 Riverside is 900 feet from north and east lines of section 2, block 70 H&TC survey (P. J. McCarthy survey 2, abstract 1449). It is ¼ mile northwest of the dual one-well Fisher-Webb (Winchell and conglomerate) field.

Senate Panel OKs Tax Cuts

Plans To Form New Government 'Bared' After Arrests

FORT WORTH (AP) — Police, in examining property taken from five burglary suspects in a motel room, have uncovered what they suspect is a plan by a group calling themselves the "Flaming Stars" to set up a government of their own.

Police Capt. Garland Gesslin said the five arrested here Monday morning, call themselves the "chosen few" among the Flaming Stars, an organization apparently consisting of 50 members and based in Tucson, Ariz.

The group evidently financed its operations by burglaries and narcotics sales in five states, he said.

Nine burglary charges were being prepared for filing today. None of the five, aged 17 to 25, has made a statement to police but a series of handwritten pages penned by a 25-year-old musician from California detailed the group's aims and methods, Gesslin said. He gave these details:

The 25-year-old, who heads the group, calls himself the "director general."

According to the man's writings, the group came into being in December after two years of planning and has as its aim the establishment of a small government containing such departments as intelligence, communications, assassination, scientific research, mass media and seven others.

How the group proposed to set up its government and where it would be has not been established.

The writings state that some members would be assigned duties such as small arms training and mountain climbing. The notes contained several pages of names and nicknames.

Among the writings are apparent plans for an assault on something that could be a location in the Montrose section of Houston.

Along with references to the Bible and the occult, the writings say the group left California March 3 with 4,000 doses of LSD which they allegedly had sold for $2 a dose as they drove toward Fort Worth.

The writings say there were 21 persons in the group that left California or Tucson, but they apparently split up and some turned back west.

There is reference to all of them being arrested in Austin on marijuana possession charges but Austin police could not confirm this Thursday.

The five drove their 1961 model station wagon to Houston and then to New Orleans, where they posed for a group photo standing on the banks of the Mississippi River. They then returned to Houston, where a trailer was sent.

Police said the five committed at least one large residential burglary in Houston Detectives (See FLAMING Page 4A)

$2 Billion Added To House Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Finance Committee today approved a $2 billion reduction in individual income tax rates that would give every taxpayer a $40 savings in his 1975 taxes.

The committee added the provision to a $21.5 billion tax cut voted by the House and made other changes increasing the House-passed figure to $30 billion.

The bill gives a tax cut of up to $2,000 to anyone who buys a home from April through December of this year.

Committee members hoped to give the measure final approval by tonight.

The proposal to cut one percentage point from the first four tax brackets — those applying to the first $4,000 of taxable income on a joint return — was offered by Sen. Lloyd Benken, D-Tex., as relief for middle and low income families whose tax bills, in effect, have been raised by inflation.

Today's action followed approval Thursday of other tax law changes designed mainly to help large families and home buyers.

The committee agreed to raise the House-approved tax break for business to $9.9 billion by increasing the investment tax credit to 12 per cent for the next two years, and allowing a permanent 10 per cent rate thereafter.

The credit now is 4 per cent for utilities and 7 per cent for other businesses.

Committee Chairman Russell B. Long estimates that all the tax cuts in the panel's final bill will total $31.5 billion, double the amount asked for Ford and (See TAX CUT Page 4A)

Agreement Ends Airline Walkout

HOUSTON (AP) — Texas International Airlines and the striking Air Lines Employees Association have reached an agreement ending a 102-day-long strike, but a spokesman says it likely will be two weeks before the airline can resume its flight schedule.

The agreement was announced by the National Mediation Board in Washington Thursday night. A board spokesman said details would not be made public at once.

TIA Vice President Jim O'Donnell said airline and union representatives would begin today to work out back to work details, which are not a part of Thursday night's contract agreement.

Mike Fletcher, manager of the Midland TIA office, said it will be approximately 12 to 14 days before local operations resume.

Fletcher said several Midland TIA personnel continued to work during the strike, but had been farmed out to other TIA facilities across the state and had not yet returned.

Another spokesman said the airline faces a tough economic battle in its attempts to recover its share of the market, especially on competitive routes.

An ALEA spokesman in Dallas said minor details remained to be worked out but they should be settled within two or three days.

Only ALEA has been on strike but the airline was paralyzed because other unions honored ALEA picket lines.

Kissinger Says Some Progress Made On Sinai Disengagement

JERUSALEM (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger said today some progress in a three-hour session with Premier Yitzhak Rabin and Israeli negotiators, Kissinger said, "I was premature to predict an agreement."

Meeting with newsmen after the session, Kissinger said he was pleased after other aspects of the problem involved in great detail.

He said he would keep commenting between Israel and Egypt "until it is known whether an agreement is possible or whether it isn't."

In Aswan, Kissinger's last stop, a senior Egyptian official made it clear that Egypt is ready to be flexible in carrying out a Sinai agreement, but emphasized there will be no concessions to Israel in return for the Sinai mountain passes and Abu Rudeis oilfield.

Asked for an explanation, he said, "It means we can be flexible in terms of the duration of the actual withdrawal of Israeli troops and we could also be flexible in accepting certain military arrangements after the actual withdrawal."

He refused to elaborate on the military aspect, but Egyptian President Anwar Sadat said Thursday night the idea of mixed Israeli-Egyptian patrols in Sinai guarding against violations of any agreement was under consideration.

Kissinger returned to Jerusalem from Aswan earlier in the day believing the time has come for the Israelis to make a decision on giving up the Gidi and Mitla passes and the Abu Rudeis oilfield.

Portugal Nationalizes Banks

LISBON, Portugal (AP) — Portugal's leftist military government nationalized the nation's private banks today and former President Antonio de Spínola left Madrid in a Spanish airliner presumably for exile in Brazil.

Hundreds of bank employees demonstrated in the streets of Lisbon in support of the bank takeover.

Shouting "The banks belong to the people!" the bank clerks marched through the Portuguese capital's financial district. A rain-streaked banner bobbing above a sea of umbrellas identified one group of demonstrators as "The Cell of the Portuguese Communist Party."

Spínola, forced from office last September by leftist officers, flew to Spain from Portugal on Tuesday after the Portuguese government crushed what it called a right-wing revolt. Brazil, his presumed destination, is one of the world's few Portuguese-speaking places and also the haven of Marcello Caetano, the strongman Spínola helped overthrow last April.

In Moscow, the Soviet Communist party newspaper Pravda said it was widely felt that failure of the "plot" against the Portuguese government "will lead to a definite polarization of class forces and will facilitate the revolutionary and democratic process in Portugal."

The seizure of the banks in Portugal was a clear victory for the leftist bank unions and demonstrated again the power assumed by the military leadership earlier this week.

The demonstration of support, one of many expected in the next few days, took place in the area where four years ago police from the deposed rightist regime bloodied scores of bank clerks' heads.

Communists Claim Capital City Captured

SAIGON (AP) — The Viet Cong claimed today that Communist forces had captured Ban Me Thuot after five days of bitter fighting for control of the provincial capital in South Vietnam's central highlands.

South Vietnamese officials and Western military analysts acknowledged that North Vietnamese forces controlled large parts of the city, but said that government troops were still in and around it.

McCord Loses Fight Against Going To Jail

WASHINGTON (AP) — James W. McCord Jr. lost his last-ditch fight against going to prison for the Watergate break-in today when U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica rejected a motion for a new trial.

"He's denying the truth to me and he's denying the truth to the American people," McCord said after the judge refused to agree to another motion asking for a hearing on the evidence.

McCord must report next Friday to the federal prison at Alderson, Pa., to begin a one-year sentence.

McCord was convicted in January 1973, along with Gordon Liddy, of burglary, wiretapping and conspiracy in the break-in at Democratic party headquarters.

Pro Basketball Player Bill Walton Questioned in Patty Hearst Case

By The Associated Press
Bill Walton, rookie star center for the Portland Trail Blazers of the National Basketball Association, has been questioned by the FBI in connection with a grand jury investigation of the disappearance of newspaper heiress Patricia Hearst, the Portland Oregonian said today.
The paper said that Walton drove from his Portland home in San Francisco Wednesday for a 20-minute session with FBI agents. It quoted Walton's lawyer, Charles Garry, as saying that Walton had no knowledge of the whereabouts of Miss Hearst or the involvement of any of his acquaintances in the Hearst case.
A federal grand jury in Harrisburg, Pa., heard testimony Thursday from a Philadelphia college student and freelance sports writer who visited Portland earlier this winter to interview Walton for a story.
The grand jury recessed without returning an indictment and was expected to reconvene in about a month.
The student, 20-year-old Jay Weiner, refused to discuss his testimony, but sent a message to Miss Hearst through reporters:
"To Tania, Teko, Yolanda and all my sisters and brothers underground or in prison, I hope you are safe and alert. To my comrade Jack and my dear sister Micki, I am with you. Please try to understand the terrible pressure my family, friends and I have been under these past two weeks."
Miss Hearst, daughter Randolph A. Hearst, president and editor of the San Francisco Examiner, assumed the name Tania after joining the Symbionese Liberation Army (SLA), the group which kidnaped her on Feb. 4, 1974. Teko and Yolanda are believed to be the assumed names of William and Emily Harris, SLA members reported to be accompanying Miss Hearst.

The other persons named by Weiner in his statement are apparently Jack Scott, former athletic director at Oberlin College where Weiner was enrolled from 1972 to 1974, and Micki McGee, described by Walton's attorney as Scott's wife.
Friends of Walton said the couple lived with Walton, but the attorney said Walton had not seen either of them for about a month.
The grand jury was called in Pennsylvania after reports that Miss Hearst and the Harrissons may have hidden out in a farm house in South Canaan. State police said the FBI examined the house Thursday and questioned several residents of the Pocomo foothills community.
Henry Kalinowski, sheriff of Wayne County, said he received an FBI flyer in January stating that Miss Hearst and the Harrissons were believed to be hiding in the area. He said Miss Hearst, now 21, "was supposed to be pregnant or pretending to be pregnant."
Mrs. Louis Prati, who lives a few miles from the house, said two men and two women stayed in the two-story frame structure about six weeks, "leaving the second or third week of September."
Mrs. Prati, 24, said one of the men told her his name was Allen and that he was from Ohio. She said the man told her "they were here with a writer, a sports writer from Ohio."
After they left, she said she saw a note to the landlord on the door of the house. She said the note was signed "Micki" and a redneck with a newspaper logo said that they stayed in the area. He said short blond hair. He said that Miss Hearst's fingerprints were found at the house and the house was searched for fingerprints in October. The

SOLON'S WRANGLE FOR OVER AN HOUR ON ELECTION OF JUDGES
Texas House Passes Batch Of Bills In Minutes
AUSTIN (AP) — House members passed an armload of bills in minutes Thursday, then wrangled for 1½ hours before approving a resolution favoring election of federal district judges.
Rep. Emmett Whitehead, D-Rusk, a frequent critic of U.S. District Judge William Wayne Justice of Tyler, forced the issue on federal judges, winning an 81-52 vote for his resolution.
The measure, if also adopted by the Senate, would ask Congress to initiate a U.S. Constitution change requiring federal judges to be chosen for six-year terms by voters in their districts.
Federal judges, Whitehead declared, "act like little gods and tyrants" and "The time has come for Texas to be the first state in the nation to let these federal judges know we don't like what is going on."
Rep. Clavin Rucker, D-Cedar Hill, agreed, saying that in Dallas, "we have a federal judge running our jail, running our school system, running our state agencies."
"Who can we count on to protect the minority if we don't have a federal judiciary insulated from the majority?" asked Rep. Carl Parker, D-Port Arthur.
"I think we could expect the legislature to do that," Rucker replied.
Federal judges, appointed by the president, have a lifetime tenure in their jobs.
Rep. Mickey Lehman, D-Houston, said Whitehead had told him that in a possible race for Congress, "he would use a certain federal judge"—presumably Justice—"as a whipping boy."
"I categorically deny any personal vendetta," Whitehead replied. He has criticized Justice for a decision ordering the reshaping of the state reform school system into one that emphasizes community-level rehabilitation of juveniles.
Among bills passed Thursday and sent to Gov. Dolph Briscoe for signature were measures that would:
—Allow cities to sue on their own to collect delinquent municipal sales taxes from merchants instead of waiting for the state to sue and then joining the case.
—Permit any city—not just those over 500,000 population as at present—to issue revenue bonds to raise money for airport construction.
The House passed the Senate bills that give alcoholics the right to legal representation if they are absent from their commitment hearings; prohibit employment of ex-convicts as peace officers and authorize counties to regulate outdoor lighting within a 75-mile radius of the McDonald observatory.

Representatives tentatively approved, H.R. 113-11, a bill revising the law governing court-martial of National Guardsmen.
A key provision would provide, at state expense, a lawyer for any guardsmen who accidentally caused damage or injury while performing his duties under lawful orders.
Rep. Abraham Ribicak, D-San Antonio, objected.
"I, for one, lost a good part of my family in Europe during World War II because of people following orders," said Ribicak, who is Jewish.
Rep. Bill Hollowell, D-Grand Saline, the sponsor, said he also was concerned about war crimes but was trying to do right by a guardsman who might be "risking his life in a flood and makes a mistake."
Miss Hearst's father issued a statement from his San Francisco apartment Thursday saying he was aware of the FBI investigation and the grand jury session. But he said he had little hope of locating his daughter through the Pennsylvania farm house connection because authorities were "on a cold trail."

Landowners Set Last Ditch Stand Against Ft. Hood Expansion
GATESVILLE (AP) — "Our Land, Our Lives," told the standing room only crowd in Gatesville High school, "We've asked for information and we've asked to be heard in Washington and have been promised we would."
"We've still got a big job in front of us."
The landowners blasted Texas members of Congress, particularly Sens. John Tower and Lloyd Bentsen and Rep. W. R. Poage, describing as "sneaky and underhanded" the manner in which the plan leaked to people in Bell County, who stand to profit most, rather than to people who would lose their land.
The original plan included an appropriation of $50 million to purchase the land at an average appraisal of $500 per acre. Later reports use figures up to $45 million and as many as 90,000 acres.
Accuracy Challenged
The accuracy of a list of landowners and acreage provided the Fort Worth Star-Telegram by Benison's office was challenged by Gene Clark of the "Our Land, Our Lives" executive committee.
"It had to be at least three years old," Clark said. "The electric power co-operative has 600 meters in the affected area, but the list was somewhere around 200 names."
The list led some landowners to conclude that members of Congress knew of the plan before the information leaked out.
However, Poage said in a letter read by Roy Barrett, one of three lawyers representing the landowners, that Poage learned of the plan just before it became known in the Central Texas district he represents.
Barrett explained possible courses of action the landowners can take before committees in Congress, the environmental agencies and the military.
Study Required
Although the Army's plan, if approved, would permit purchase of the land beginning in mid-1977, it was learned during the meeting that it would require a study, lasting at least a year, to determine the expansion's effect on the environment.
The military is not in sympathy with blocking or delaying the plan and Bentsen, Tower and Poage in a joint statement earlier said they understood the Army's need for the land, they sympathize with the landowners and they would work to see that fair payments are made.
A similar move to expand Ft. Carson in Colorado was sidetracked recently. However, the Army is said to have a new plan that would affect another area.
Robert L. Melbern and Bob Scott, Gatesville ranchers who are in Washington on a fact-finding mission, told the landowners and businessmen of Coryell County they will have an opportunity to be heard.
Coryell County has furnished 90 per cent of Ft. Hood land but 90 per cent of the economy generated by the military post goes to adjoining Bell County spokeswoman for the landowners said.

Rain, Storms Ease Blows At Southeast

By The Associated Press
 Rained let up in parts of the Southeast today after three days of intermittent downpours that triggered widespread flooding and caused up to $20 million damage in Tennessee alone.

Flood-water watches remained in effect, however, in much of north Georgia, north Alabama, east Tennessee and parts of South Carolina.

Tornadoes and heavy thunderstorms raked the region again Thursday. Twisters touched down in Mississippi, Alabama and Georgia, but only isolated damage was reported and no serious injuries were reported. Civil Defense officials registered 12 tornadoes in Georgia.

Winds as high as 63 miles an hour hit Atlanta during a severe thunderstorm Thursday.

Rainfall amounts were staged.

going by normal standards. New inches averaged Tennessee, Ala., to a little over 2 inches — more than 2 inches at its falling in 20 minutes Thursday. Nearly 4 inches drenched Atlanta, more than 3 inches in sections of Tennessee.

Roads were evacuated in Tennessee in Fayetteville, Carthage, Hartsville and Franklin. At Jackson, Tenn., the south fork of the Forded Deer River reached its highest level in 40 years.

While officials estimated the damage in Tennessee at up to $20 million, there were no firm estimates from other states but it was hit by the late-winter storm.

Hartest hit in Kentucky was Hopkinsville, where Mayor George Adams Jr. said "the devastation was unbelievable." More than 100 homes were inundated. He estimated damage in the millions of dollars in Hopkinsville alone.

Two persons drowned in the flooding Cumberland River in Kentucky.

Everything Ready For Pancake Jamboree

The griddles are in place, the pancake mix is ready to be mixed, and within a matter of a few hours, the cry "come and get 'em" will be sounded throughout the community.

The occasion is the 18th annual Pancake Jamboree staged by the 300 members of the Midland Downtown Lions Club.

The "dining room" is the mall at Dellwood Plaza Shopping Center. The serving hours are from 7 a.m. to 5 p.m., with the public invited.

Victor Horn, general chairman of the jamboree, said the Lions hope to serve at least 10,000 persons from Midland and vicinity. The figure last year reached 8,500.

Most of the club's more than 300 members are involved in one way or another with staging the event, which is the club's one big fund-raising project. All proceeds are used to fund the club's far-reaching program of helping others.

Horn said the customer is the club's number one concern Saturday and that every effort will be made to move patrons through the serving line and to the eating tables as promptly as possible.

He said that diabetic syrup will be available on request for persons on restricted diets.

"Just ask for it," he said.

In addition to the pancakes and sausage, a special entertainment will be presented continuously during the day, beginning at 8 a.m., by some of the most talented performers of the community.

Paul Diveley, entertainment chairman, said last minute changes in the entertainment schedule, as announced Thursday, have moved the starting time of the "Puppet Team" of the First Baptist Church from 4:30 to 5 p.m., with the Midland High School Stage Band taking over at 5:30 p.m.

The Orange Blossom Special (Country-Western music), will play a one-hour concert, beginning at 4 p.m.

Lions President Jim Coker said several thousand tickets have been sold in advance, under the general direction of George Weis, Bill Malone and

Administrators, Faculty At MC Take In-Depth Look At Self-Paced Classes

Midland College administrators and business department faculty today took an in-depth look at self-paced instruction in typing and shorthand.

Fannie Reeves, business department chairman, scheduled Dolores Behrens, instructor and director of a self-paced instruction program from Amarillo Junior College, to speak with the MC group.

Miss Reeves stated, "The Amarillo Jr. College program has been extremely successful. One of the most important reasons for its success is that they have programmed and produced their own materials, rather than purchasing already prepared materials.

"The students hear their own instructors on the tape recorded lessons, lending more credibility and authenticity to the course and heightening student and instructor involvement."

The Amarillo program allows a student to enroll anytime and finish at any time. Mrs. Behrens was to cover cost of the program, the necessary record keeping and time commitment of the instructors.

Midland College has approximately 125 students enrolled in typing and shorthand. Faculty and administrative officials will consider the implementation of a specially designed program to fit the Midland College student and the business community.

At Least Seven Die In Mexican Minibus Accident

MONTERREY, Mexico (AP) — At least seven persons were killed and several injured Thursday night when a micro-bus carrying about 25 passengers plunged down a deep ravine 30 miles south of here after skidding off a mountain road, highway police said.

It was the worst bus accident in Mexico in slightly more than a month since a freight train slammed into a suburban bus near Mexico City, killing 30 persons and injuring 28.

Highway police said seven bodies were recovered and crews searched for more.

The Red Cross reported five persons were rescued alive but seriously injured. Authorities said there were no foreigners aboard the bus.

Emphasis Day Held Thursday At Trinity School

"Shalom to all who enter here" was the theme Thursday of Trinity School's sixth annual emphasis day.

The Rt. Rev. Willis R. Henton, bishop of the Diocese of Northwest, was principal speaker for the occasion which included multi-media presentations and group discussions involving the students.

Other speakers included the Rev. William C. Spang, associate professor of pastoral care at the Episcopal Seminary of the Southwest in Austin; the Rev. Bob J. Currie, rector of Holy Trinity Episcopal Church; the Rev. James Constine, rector of St. Nicholas Episcopal Church; the Rev. Jeff Kramer, curate at Holy Trinity; the Rev. Caleb Hildebrand, pastor of St. Marks United Methodist Church; and Mrs. Norma Myers, director of Christian education at Holy Trinity.

The day concluded with a chapel service during which each student had an opportunity to express through poems, posters, scriptures or other media how he could contribute to "shalom" — peace.

Briscoe Defends Appointment Of Sterling

By ROBERT BEARD
AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Gov. Dolph Briscoe says he did not know when he appointed Walter Sterling to a vacant spot that Sterling at one time was a member of the John Birch Society, but it would have made no difference.

“Mr. Sterling had the good judgment to get out of the John Birch Society,” Briscoe told a news conference Thursday. “It would have had no effect on my appointment.”

The governor said he had talked with Senate leaders, including the senator from Sterling's Houston district, Democratic Jack Ogg, and he did not believe the Birch membership would keep the Senate from confirming Sterling's appointment to The University of Texas System Board of Regents.

It was suggested Sterling's critics would be talking about “guilt by association.” If Sterling's brief membership had been in the Communist Party in the 1920s, would Briscoe have appointed him under those circumstances?

“That would be very highly speculative,” Briscoe replied. “I can't imagine those conditions arising.”

No check on Sterling was made with the Department of Public Safety, Briscoe said in answer to another question, and “I would assume the Department of Public Safety would have such information.”

“Certainly, a check was made (by his office),” the governor said. “You could make a check could be made.”

Briscoe's late son George Lawrence later told reporters Sterling was asked to let his association with the Communist Party be an issue, but the intent was to elicit names such as Kwan, not names of political organizations the nominee belonged to in the past.

On another issue, Briscoe said he opposes dividing Texas into five states, as some legislators propose, just to get more members in the U.S. Senate to protect Texas' oil interests.

The governor said he thinks Texas has been well represented in the Senate.

Asked if he meant Texas is well represented in the U.S. Senate today, Briscoe paused and said he thinks Lloyd Benson is doing a good job.

What about Republicans John Tower?

“Well, naturally, being a Democrat—the representation Texas has had in the past—the representative I endorsed, Mr. (John) Benson” Carter and Mr. (Bart) Rayburn, has been through the Democratic Party,” he said.

Neither Carter nor Rayburn were senators, though Carter presided over that body as vice president in the 1950s.

No special session should be necessary to handle reform in public school financing, Briscoe said in answer to another question.

“As you know, I am not a special-session caller,” he said, citing his refusal last summer to call one on the same issue. “In my opinion, we can do the job of public school financing reform during the regular session.”

And he has a few opinions of the demands by the Texas State Teachers Association for a $50-million minimum salary for all teachers.

“It is difficult enough to pass a tax bill, I think it would be impossible to pass one with a two-thirds vote,” he said without changing expression. It took a margin of two-thirds to pass a tax bill for a minimum salary for all teachers.

Briscoe repeatedly has pledged as new taxes, and he obviously thinks new taxes would be needed to meet the teachers' demand.

Old Ironsides Open To Public

By DANIEL Q. HANEY
BOSTON (AP) — Old Ironsides, closed to the public for two years during a major restoration of the nation's bicentennial celebration, returned to service today, hosting tourists at a berth in Boston Harbor.

Navy Secretary J. William Middendorf was to preside at ceremonies in the former Boston Navy Yard for the reopening of the 181-year-old frigate, more formally known as the USS Constitution.

“This marks its return to service in its current mission — to represent an important chapter in American and naval history,” said Lt. John Hanley, a Navy spokesman.

The sleek, black-hulled vessel is the world's oldest commissioned warship still afloat.

Its intricate rigging and masts stand in stark relief against the city's high-rise skyline. On board, its wide deck smells of fresh varnish and new lumber.

Although the ship is open again, restoration work continues, and the job is scheduled to be finished in June 1978.

“This is the ship's fifth major restoration,” said its captain, Cmdr. Tyrone G. Martin.

“We're replacing the rotting timbers, all the copper sheathing and all the planking above the waterline. We've had to redo sections of the deck and refurbish all the rigging and masts.”

In all, the government will spend $4.4 million to restore a ship that cost $302,718 when it was built in 1794.

Martin commands a crew of 60 sailors who sand, paint, give tours and help the craftsmen responsible for the reconstruction.

But the men only get one sailing trip a year — a ceremonial jaunt into Boston Harbor.

Tax Cut Wins Panel Approval

Ford, in a surprise appearance at a labor-industry banquet Thursday night, said there is “an atmosphere of compromise now” in Washington and indicated he was willing to compromise on a tax cut bill with the Democratic-controlled Congress.

Long predicted his Finance Committee will finish writing the bill tonight. That would allow Senate debate to begin no later than Tuesday. This timetable would allow the Treasury to begin mailing tax rebate checks out to every taxpayer by May 1.

The caucus of Senate Democrats agreed earlier Thursday that Congress will not start its tax cut bill until after the tax cut bill is passed and sent to the White House.

The way for quick congressional action on the tax cut was cleared when:

- The Senate Democratic caucus agreed that all-state senators should be allowed only five days to try to remove from the tax cut bill a repealer of the oil depletion allowance.
- The Senate postponed debate on an energy-conservation bill which threatened to delay action on the tax cut.
- The Finance Committee voted to add these provisions to the $21.3-billion tax-cut package approved by the House:

 - A 5 per cent tax credit, up to $2,000, for persons who buy a new or used house or mobile home as a principal residence between April 1 and Dec. 31, 1975. The cost: between $3 billion and $4 billion.
 - Give each taxpayer the option of taking a $200-per-person tax credit instead of the present 1750-per-person exemption. This would provide more benefits to families with two or more children that itemize deductions, and earn less than $20,000 a year. Under the proposal, a four-member family could deduct $800 from its tax bill instead of $3,000 from its taxable income.
 - The committee agreed tentatively to use this amendment by Sen. Walter F. Mondale, D-Minn., as a substitute for the increase in the standard deduction voted by the House.

- Under present law, a family of four with $10,000 in income has an average tax bill of $908. The House action would cut that to $715, and if the Mondale amendment is approved, the figure would drop to $465.
- Provide a refundable tax credit designed, in effect, to offset the cost of Social Security taxes for families making up to $8,000 a year.

The Senate provision would allow such families with children a tax refund of 10 per cent, up to $400, on earned income. The House voted a 5 per cent refund, up to $200, for all taxpayers in the low brackets, including college students who work parttime and single persons.

Since the House passed the bill, the big question in the Senate has been how the oil depletion issue will be decided.

Under the action taken by the Democratic caucus, a petition to cut off debate on depletion will be filed as soon as the tax bill reaches the floor.

Angelo Student Tells UT Regents Changes Necessary

AUSTIN (AP) — A University of Texas student told regents today they must correct alleged racial discrimination by the school.

Irma Soto, 26, of San Angelo said her organization, United Students Against Racism, wanted a progress report from the regents on the group's demands by their next monthly meeting.

Miss Soto was one of 10 students who locked themselves in the office of acting UT-Austin President Lorenz Rogers for eight hours Thursday. The protesters said they would not leave until the demands had been met.

The group met with university administrators and two state representatives Thursday afternoon and agreed to leave Dr. Rogers' office after being granted amnesty and the right to talk to the regents.

Miss Soto told the regents all standardized tests should be eliminated for minority students and asked for a division of minority affairs at the university.

Patrons Boo Cut Version Of 'Throat'

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Patrons booted at an adult theater here this week when a vice squad approved version of the controversial movie “Deep Throat” flickered on the projector.

“Nobody got to see what Linda Lovelace (the film's star) has become famous for,” Capt. James Depres, San Antonio vice squad head, said.

Four months ago, a six-member Bexar County jury found the uncensored version obscene. The movie made a repeat showing Wednesday after the theater operators took police advice on which scenes should be cut.

About 175 persons paid $5 each to see the cut version, police said.

“Quite a few of them were unhappy about it,” Police Sgt. Beryl Moore said. “I heard one person call it a rip-off. Another said it should have been rated R and not X.”

Educator Says Higher Financial Costs May Doom Private Universities

By JOHN LUMPKIN
DALLAS (AP) — "If nothing is done, they die, including Harvard. Harvard may run it out to 20 years, Columbia in 15 years."
Peter Pouncey, 37, an ancient historian by discipline and now the dean of Columbia College of Columbia University, speaks about private universities. He has four years behind him in a study of Columbia's financial future.
Of his Ivy League school in New York City, he said, "We'll be in the last six to go, but they'll all go."
In his native British accent, he says, "Over the next five years, the operating budget deficit (at Columbia) will escalate to $35 million."
Deficit Cited
"Clearly, Columbia is a wealthy university... its declared endowment is at $430 odd million. But you cannot run many years at a $35 million deficit, whatever your endowment. You clearly reduce yourself so fast because you go on; you have to cut yourself so much you're not a university at all."
So, says Pouncey, the projected $35 million deficit "clearly has a farcical ingredient. You don't allow it to get to that level. You start cutting. But what kind of university do you have left as you cut to shoulder those incremental costs?"

"I have been part of a university retrenching look for the last four years."
Pouncey, interviewed in Dallas, was in Texas recently to discuss his studies and his predictions with Columbia alumni at a three-day session at a resort near Austin.
His proposed solution to saving private institutions of higher learning is government subsidy not directly to the institution but indirectly to the prospective student. As a foreigner, he sees private institutions in the United States as unique—"this whole richness of a private university." It is "much admired abroad," says Pouncey, who notes there was private institutions of higher learning in the United States before there was a U.S. Constitution.
"What I do want to do is subsidize the student on the same basis that the state student is subsidized. In other words, the cost of his education will be substantially paid for so that the student thereby has a genuine choice of a private or a public university and all universities compete in an open market place on the same basis."
"Inferior universities," Pouncey said, "would then go to the wall because students wouldn't choose them. That is genuine competition."

Already, he says, private colleges "are closing monthly. In fact, they have not been the big success so far as has been taken particular notice of them."
Business Loss
Direct subsidy to the private institutions — "plucking down huge chunks of government money"—will make private institutions essentially state institutions, says the bespectacled Pouncey. "There won't be this rather excellent, feisty springing off of particularly academic ideas which I suspect are more fertile in the private sector and have more influence on the public sector than the other way around."

If all colleges and universities are a part of the state system, he said, "You will have an education system that will be every bit as costly as the one that is being faded and then some."
"And it will be an education system that is subject to the vagaries and vicissitudes of the legislature and its wretched budget problems."
Columbia, as a private institution, now is educating its students at less cost than the four large state universities in

New York, says Pouncey. It shows that the idea of changing higher education by the state is a myth, he says.
The cost of educating a student per year at the four major New York state universities is about $4,000 while Columbia's costs are about $7,000, Pouncey says.
Potential Viewed
"But the taxpayer who is in fact paying all this," Pouncey says of the state universities' student costs, "does not realize he is paying quite as much because what he sees is the tuition paid by the individual student, which in New York state is a maximum $800 (per year)."

Therefore, the taxpayer "makes the assumption that state education is somehow cheap and private education is clearly expensive."
A student subsidy based mainly on need and, in some cases, partially on merit would allow schools like Columbia to stay in business, says Pouncey. He advocates strict accreditation of private colleges under such a system to avoid schools which are merely "boarding houses." He does not object to government monitoring of a private college's finances so that costs won't be padded.
A private college "involves a particular faculty working in combination with a specific student body to produce a particular curriculum according to standards to the interests and competence of both," he says. Although Pouncey admires the "egalitarian" virtues of state education, he views it as involving "almost of necessity the drawing up of an educational blueprint in a state capital away from students and faculty and then imposing it in a general outline."

To say in the academic business, the state can raise the taxes for its schools as costs increase. Meanwhile, says Pouncey, private institutions must transfer their escalating costs "directly to the student, forcing an ever-widening gap between the public and private sectors, and effectively killing the latter."

Will a solution like the student subsidy Pouncey proposes be effected?
"I'm pessimistic," he says. "I think the climate could not be more hostile. The taxpayer says, 'My God, what else do we have to pay for...?' There is nothing like a Russian scientific achievement challenging our national pride. I think student unrest in the late '60s scared a lot of people toward the private university and the university education system in general. It made it seem a luxury for which people aren't grateful."

Black Africa's Club Of Exiles Is Growing

By LARRY HEINZERLING
Associated Press Writer
JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Elizabeth Bagaya, the attractive former foreign minister of Uganda, has become the most recent to join black Africa's growing club of exiles.
Uganda's unpredictable president, Gen. Idi Amin, fired the 35-year-old former model and attorney after accusing her of making love with a white man in a restroom while on a stop-over at a Paris airport. She has denied the charge, and French officials who were at the airport at the time have termed the charge impossible.
Miss Bagaya also was accused by Amin of having contacts with British and American intelligence agents and was detained briefly in Uganda. Friends abroad at one time feared she might be put to death.
She was born Princess Elizabeth of Toro, one of the small Ugandan kingdoms abolished by President Milton Obote in 1967 before Amin ousted him.
She fled Uganda in February and now is living with a brother in neighboring Kenya. As an exile she has joined thousands of other Africans who have been forced to abandon their countries.
Among them is Obote, who was overthrown by Amin in 1971 and now lives in neighboring Tanzania.
Odumegwa Ojukwu, the bearded leader of breakaway Biafra, remains in the Ivory Coast where he fled when federal Nigerian forces crushed eastern Nigeria's 30-month revolt in 1970.
Ojukwu runs a trucking concern in the former French colony.

Dear Abby

—By Abigail van Buren
How To Interrupt An Interruption

DEAR ABBY: We had a couple over last week, and when one started to talk, the spouse interrupted to talk about something entirely different. Both continued talking to both my husband and me in this manner throughout the entire evening. At one point in the evening, the husband and I were talking, and his wife interrupted by shouting my name: then she addressed a question to me which was completely unrelated to the subject I was discussing with her husband. I cannot do justice to two conversations at one time, especially when each is trying to be heard over the other. This lack of consideration for each other strikes me as being very rude, but I may be wrong. By the end of the evening I was completely exhausted. What does one do when he finds himself in this kind of predicament?

MINNEAPOLIS STAR READER

DEAR READER: When someone interrupts a conversation, it's perfectly all right for you to interrupt the interrupter with, "Please excuse me, but I can listen to only one person at a time. Would you mind waiting until we have finished?" The interrupter will probably be struck speechless. And wouldn't that be lovely?

DEAR ABBY: I don't know how to say this, but I have a problem that's driving me crazy! I am 22 (a female) nicely built, so I've been told, and the only thing I don't have is a rear end. The front of me is really nice, but I just don't have any behind at all. My clothes would fit me so much better if I had a little something back there. Can you help me?
NEEDS A REAR

DEAR NEEDS: I can't. But write to Frederick's of Hollywood and ask about their foam rubber fannies. They are the living end!

CONFIDENTIAL TO OLLIE DUNLAP: You asked if any readers (other than yourself) had ever lived to help a daughter celebrate her 50th wedding anniversary. Yes, hundreds. So far, the record is held by a 104-year-old Indian woman who says she helped her 89-year-old daughter celebrate her 73rd wedding anniversary.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY in care of this newspaper. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Many Volunteers Are Being Exploited

By AUDREY GELLES
Copy News Service

The Volunteer! What noble thoughts that conjure up. Compassion; community service; appreciation. Yet, in fact, the volunteer (according to Department of Labor statistics, most volunteers are women) may be exploited as free labor and, worse, may be doing someone else's job.

In most cases the volunteer isn't even reimbursed for ordinary out-of-pocket expenses such as transportation to the "job," uniforms or meals. Even institutions that have employee cafeterias rarely throw in a meal ticket as a token of appreciation.

If the volunteer is injured while "on the job," she isn't protected by workmen's compensation as an employee would be. She has to foot the bill herself unless she cares to sue the volunteer-for institution and can prove negligence on their part. If she trips and breaks a leg because of her own "carelessness," forget it. Ironically (or perhaps not so), hospitals which are the object of so much volunteer labor have no reputation for returning the favor with free medical care.

Personally Liable

A paid employee if sued for some action connected with his or her job (a car accident, for example) isn't personally liable. The employer provides the legal defense and pays the indemnity, if any. A volunteer, by contrast, is personally liable if sued in connection with volunteer services (and it has happened).

An insurance plan to cover volunteers is now in the works, but it is coming about only because of limited legislation. Mr. Pat-Cot businessman contributes his company's immediate merchandise or services during a slow season and takes the full value as a tax deduction. Mrs. Average Housewife gives generously of her time, and all that the Internal Revenue Service will allow as tax deductions are the cost of a uniform plus transportation from home to the place of service. (In one isolated instance a mother was allowed to deduct the cost of a baby sitter, but IRS made it clear this was not a precedent.) Although she is making a very substantial charitable contribution indeed, the volunteer cannot deduct the fair market value of her work as same from her taxes.

Pending Bill

There is a bill pending that would give limited relief in this area; it would allow as a tax credit the number of volunteer hours (minus the first 50) worked multiplied by the minimum wage and would apply only to certain specified fields. Not much of a panacea for the volunteer.

Many women complain that they are railroaded into volunteer work by social pressures; the rationale being that women have so much free time and are supposed to be giving anyway. The decision to

Clean Socks

The best way to keep socks fresh, clean, and odorless is to wash them in soda water instead of soapy water. If washed in soapy water, soap particles may cling to the fibers, giving a soapy flavor to foods that are put through them.

This Year's Easter Lily Designed To Be Shorter

By EARL ARONSON
AP Newsmasters

The lily you get this Easter may be shorter, by design. Scientists have found a way to reduce lily sizes through a chemical plant growth retardant that does not affect other characteristics of the plant.

The chemical, described by Prof. John G. Seeley of the New York State College of Agriculture and Life Sciences at Cornell, is "encymidol." It does not reduce the number of leaves or flowers, nor seriously delay the time of bloom," Seeley said. And the flower size is not changed.

Some tall plants are in demand for church decorations during the Easter holiday, Seeley related, but many consumers prefer shorter ones, 18 to 20 inches from the bottom of the container to the top of the plant. Tall ones range from 24 to 34 inches tall.

Experimenting with a popular Easter lily named "Ace," the researchers trimmed the height 20 to 30 per cent (or 4-5 inches) with a single application of the chemical. Just one quarter of one milligram (there are 28,400 milligrams to the ounce) was applied as a solution to the soil when the plant was five to nine inches tall. If the concentration was doubled, the plant height could be reduced by about 50 per cent, Seeley reported.

But you have to be careful about application. For instance, taller lilies need double the dosage, and the "chemical works miracles when sprayed on the foliage," Seeley said, adding:

"If the concentration is a little too strong or a little too much is sprayed on the plant, the internodes (the stem distance between the leaves) will be shortened so sharply that the top of the plant will have a palm tree effect."

The experiments, he said, make it possible to grow some of the garden lilies as attractive potted plants for sale in winter and spring.

At Michigan State University, horticulturists have come up with a formula to keep cut flowers fresher longer: one part water, one part ginger ale and half a teaspoon of chlorine bleach per quart of mixture. The pH is right, the bleach controls bacteria and the sweet drink nourishes the blossoms, they reported.

If your cucumbers were bitter last summer, poor weather probably was responsible. The bitterness may be caused by long periods of wet or damp weather or perhaps a long dry spell.

Plant varieties recommended for your area are in catalogs. Your county Extension office can help with selection.

If you have an indoor lemon tree and it isn't doing well, keep the soil on the moist side, slightly acidic. The tree will get a boost if you take it outdoors in the summer.

Flowers of hydrangeas will be blue if grown in acid soil, otherwise pink. To make them blue, water at 10-day intervals in late summer (three applications) with aluminum sulfate at the rate of seven teaspoons per quart of water or three ounces per gallon. Use nonphosphorus fertilizers.

Building With Bottles? Better Listen To Expert

By TERRY KIRKPATRICK
LAFAYETTE, La. (AP) — A few things to keep in mind when you build a den out of old wine and whisky bottles: red and blue ones are hard to come by, watch out for algae, and you'll likely be kept awake nights when the wind turns the walls into a giant jug band.

This is what Russell Dupuis, assistant professor of architecture at the University of Southwestern Louisiana, learned when he bottled in his patio.

Seven friends helped him collect the 3,500 assorted bottles for the addition to his self-built experimental house that sits on a wooded acre 15 miles from here.

He found a few red ones, now collectors' items and expensive, to highlight the standard green, amber and clear tones of liquor, wine and soft drink bottles.

For a touch of blue, he went to the drugstore for four milk of magnesia containers.

Then to the hardware store to order 3,500 corks.

"I corked every one of them," the 43-year-old bachelor said. "Moisture would accumulate and algae would start growing in there, and the wind would be blowing in them at night."

The bottles lie horizontally in a bed of mortar. The wall is sturdy, but no match for a north wind, and two electric heaters are deployed in the 9-by-40-foot room.

In sunlight, the bottles gleam brilliantly. At night, artificial lighting from the outside gives the walls a stained-glass glow.

Experimental, but not impractical, Dupuis says. And he now shares his all-window, second-floor bedroom for his all-bottle, first-floor patio.

"The total effect, the mood, is quite nice. Since I built the wall, I'm very content with that space."

"It's very tranquil, very peaceful. After a hectic day at school, it's reposeful, sitting there enjoying the bottles."

Sheinwold On Bridge Even Silly Bait May Hook A Fish

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Don't be ashamed to put a very silly piece of bait on your hook. After all, you're not going to swallow the bait yourself, and there's no telling what an opponent will swallow.

Opening lead — ♠ Q

Declarer took the first trick in dummy, discarding a club from his hand, and led the low diamond to his king.

West was ready for this play with a motheaten piece of bait. He simply played the deuce of diamonds on declarer's king.

West didn't play the deuce of diamonds instantly, with the speed of lightning or cunningly. He made the play simply, normally.

West doubted that the trap would work since his overcall located the ace of diamonds in hand. Still, there was no harm in trying.

Swallows Hook

But South swallowed the bait and discovered the hook. He drew two rounds of trumps and led another diamond from dummy. This gave West two diamonds tricks.

After winning with the king of diamonds South should cash the ace of spades, lead a club to the ace, discard a club on the ace of hearts and ruff a club. He could then lead a trump to the nine and ruff another club.

Since the clubs broke 2-3, dummy's last club would be good. South would lead a trump to the king and discard a diamond on the last club.

Only if the clubs failed to break would South need to try a second diamond play.

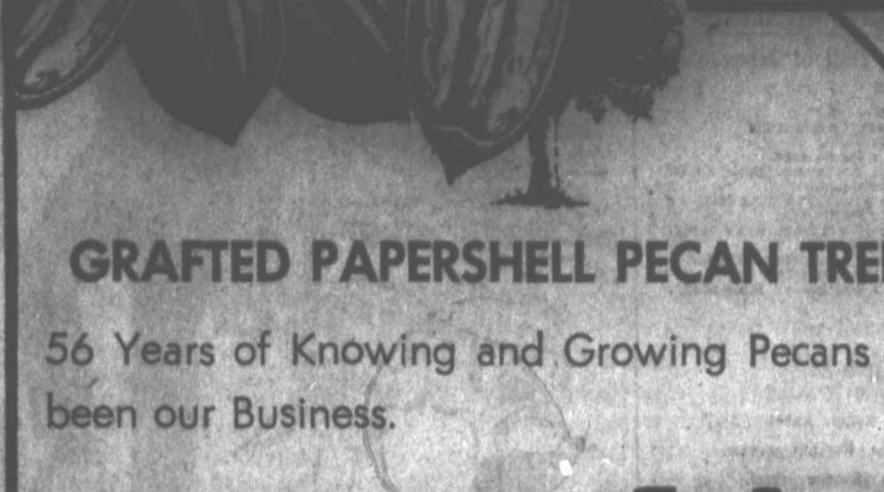

DAILY QUESTION
Partner opens with one club, and the next player passes. You hold: S-6 5 H-8 5 4 2 D-6 4 3 C-Q 10 5. What do you say?

ANSWER: Pass. Don't strain to respond to an opening bid of one club. If partner has a three-card club suit, he may still be better off at one club undoubled than at some higher contract doubled.

'Gift of Gab'
Kissing the Blarney Stone, by hanging upside down 90 feet in the air, is said to confer

the "gift of gab."

David Windibari, a Nigerian pastor, will be guest speaker at the Midland Lutheran Church Tuesday night.

The visitor is one of eight missionaries being brought to the U.S. this year to speak to congregations of the American Lutheran Church (ALC) on behalf of the ALC's United Nations Appeal. The denomination recently launched the appeal for $5 million over and above regular church contributions supporting missions around the world and in the U.S. Some $5 million has been raised thus far in the campaign.

Pastor Windibari, a native Nigerian, comes from a pagan farm and hunting family. He became part of a Lutheran collection class in 1947 and was baptized in 1949. He served as an agricultural assistant for several years, completed his college work and then entered the Theological College of Northern Nigeria in 1957. He was ordained in 1972 and became the pastor of Methodist Church in Jos-town, Nigeria. His work includes Sunday school, Boys' Brigade, Girls' Brigade, choir, youth activities, fellowships, prayer meetings and Bible studies. His wife also is from a non-Christian family and was baptized a few months prior to their marriage. They have 5 children ranging in age from 6 to 17.

The members of the Midland Lutheran congregation will have a pot-luck supper at 5:30 p.m. Tuesday preceding Pastor Windibari's talk. A special color film slide presentation is planned.

'Presbyterian Week' Events Set

The congregations of Midland's four Presbyterian churches will participate in a series of special Lenten services and events next week during annual "Presbyterian Week" here.

Dr. Wallace M. Alston Jr., pastor of the First Presbyterian Church in Princeton, N.J., will be the featured speaker at services Sunday through Wednesday.

Presbyterian Week will be launched with a worship service for all four congregations Sunday morning in First Presbyterian Church. Dr. Alston will be in the pulpit for the 11 a.m. service, with sermon topic to be "The Time of Our Lives."

A session dinner, for which reservations were to have been made by Thursday noon, will be held at 9:30 p.m. Sunday in the Trinity Presbyterian fellowship hall. It will be followed by a worship service at Trinity Church, beginning at 7:30 p.m. Dr. Alston's sermon topic is to be "The Kingdom Not of This World."

Monday's schedule calls for Bible study beginning at 7 a.m. in the First Presbyterian fellowship hall, with Dr. Alston to speak on "The Constructive Use of Shame in Our Time." The study session will be repeated at 9:30 a.m. in Christ Presbyterian Church.

A "rap" session and Dutch-treat luncheon is scheduled Monday noon in FPC's fellowship hall. The evening service, announced for 7:30 p.m., will be at Trinity Church, with the guest speaker's topic to be "How Do We Decide What is Right?"

Bible study at 7 a.m. and 8:30 a.m. Tuesday, in the same locations as on Monday, will have Dr. Alston discussing "The Meaning of Predestination for Our Time." The noon rap-session and luncheon will again be in FPC fellowship hall and the 7:30 o'clock evening service will again be in Trinity Church, with Dr. Alston's sermon topic to be "Christ and the Economic Crisis."

On Wednesday, final day of the special emphasis, Dr. Alston will speak on "The Kingdom and the Power and the Glory" at the 7 and 9:30 a.m. study sessions, in the same locations as before. The third rap-session and luncheon will begin at noon in the FPC fellowship hall, and the concluding worship service will again be at Trinity Church. The speaker's sermon is to be titled "The Motherhood of God."

Dr. Alston, a native of Lexington, Ky., is the son of a Presbyterian minister. The father served for a number of years as president of Agnes Scott College.

Dr. Alston served in the U.S. Navy and did his undergraduate work at Emory University before receiving a B.D. degree from Union Theological Seminary of Virginia. He did graduate work at Harvard Divinity School, the University of Zurich, Switzerland, and Union Seminary, where he earned a doctorate in theology in 1968. Before becoming senior minister of Nassau United Presbyterian Church last year, he held several pastorates in the Presbyterian Church, U.S. (PCUS). In 1972 he served as visiting professor of preaching at the Duke University Divinity School. He and his wife are the parents of three children, ages 11, 10, and 4.

St. Nicholas' Has Busy Weekend Set

A busy weekend is ahead for St. Nicholas' Episcopal Church here.

The parish will be host to the Rt. Rev. Willis R. Henton of Lubbock, bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of Northwest Texas, for special ceremonies Saturday evening celebrating the parish's debt-free status.

In conjunction with his official annual visit to the parish, Bishop Henton also will confirm classes of adults from both St. Nicholas' and Holy Trinity parishes who have completed courses of instruction in Episcopal doctrine and teachings. The confirmation rites will take place during the Sunday morning service at St. Nicholas', beginning at 10 o'clock. A reception honoring Bishop Henton and the conferees will follow in the parish hall.

The Saturday evening celebrations will include a service of consecration in the sanctuary, and a mortgage-burning ceremony on the church lawn. Bishop Henton will conduct the consecration service at 6:30 p.m., and the note-burning ceremony immediately afterward. Joining him in the mortgage-burning rite will be the Rev. J. L. Considine Jr., rector of the parish; Jack Hitt and Louis Halstead Jr., the parish's senior and junior wardens respectively; the Rev. Richard S. Neal of San Angelo, the first vicar of St. Nicholas' when it was established as a mission almost 20 years ago, and later the first rector when it became a parish; and Paul Davis Jr., representing Midland Savings and Loan Association, which held the mortgage now retired by the parish.

A dinner in the parish hall will conclude Saturday's special events.

St. Nicholas' was established in August 1959 as a mission of Holy Trinity Church here. The original church structure at 2030 Princeton St. has undergone several major renovation and expansion projects through the years, with the present physical plant valued in excess of $215,000. The parish has approximately 500 active communicant members, with more than 1,100 baptized persons listed on its rolls.

Events Slated At Odessa Church

ODESSA — Highland United Methodist Church of Odessa is sponsoring a "Genie and Bobbie Moore Weekend" today through Sunday. The Moores, from Anson, are singing evangelists who for several years were members of the well-known Ed Robb Crusades team.

The weekend will begin with a pot-luck fellowship supper at 7 p.m. today. The Moores will provide the program around the table in the church fellowship hall, presenting duets and solos, and will lead group singing and witness.

Saturday at 8 p.m., Mr. and Mrs. Moore will present a public concert in the church sanctuary. There will be no admission, but a free-will offering will be taken.

Sunday morning at both the 8:45 and 10:55 services, Mr. Moore will preach, and he and his wife will sing. Sunday night, the several choirs of Highland UMC will present a special service of Lenten music beginning at 7. Climaxing the service will be a presentation by the Sanctuary Choir, under the direction of Robert Sewell, of a cantata, "No Greater Love," by John W. Peterson.

All special events and services will be open to the public. Highland UMC is at 1808 N. Dixie St.

COMING TO MIDLAND — Wayland Baptist College's Concert Choir and the Spirit of America Singers will present a program of sacred music at 7:30 p.m. Saturday in Wilshire Park Baptist Church, 801 S. Bentwood St. The vocal ensembles currently are on a spring concert tour, with other area engagements at Fort Stockton, San Angelo and Odessa. The public is invited to hear them in their Midland performance Saturday.

McGrew To Give Lecture Sunday

James M. McGrew of Boston, a member of the Christian Science Board of Lectureship, will be a guest of Midland's First Church of Christ, Scientist, for a special lecture Sunday afternoon.

The 3:30 p.m. event in the Midland church at 1001 W. Tennessee St. will be open to the public without charge.

"Your Unlimited Opportunities" will be the title of McGrew's talk, latest in the series of public lectures presented here during the last several years by Christian Science representatives at the invitation of the Midland Christian Science congregation.

Problems can be turned into opportunities for discovering God's power, McGrew believes. To live constantly at the point of opportunity, "means asking the ultimate questions about God and man and the universe and the divine laws that govern the universe," he says.

McGrew, who holds bachelor's and master's degrees in business administration from the University of Chicago, was introduced to Christian Science more than 20 years ago. During World War II he served in the Davis and his family were charter members of the Golf Course Road congregation in 1963 and he has served as a deacon there. In his new post, he will be in charge of an annual program involving Bible study, devotionals, fellowships, retreats and special campaigns. Youth of the congregation now are in the midst of planning a June trip to Jamaica to conduct a vacation Bible school.

Farm Price-Support Bill Expected To Draw Heated Debate

WASHINGTON (AP) — A farm price-support bill the Ford administration opposes as costly to consumers is expected to arouse heated debate when it comes to the House floor next week.

Administration economists say support increases contained in the bill would translate into retail-price boosts of 8 cents a gallon for milk, 20 cents a pound for butter and 10 cents a pound for cheese.

By an 11 to 5 vote Thursday, the House Rules Committee cleared the measure and placed no restrictions on floor amendments.

House Speaker Carl Albert, who backs the bill, said later he hopes it can be brought to a vote Tuesday or Wednesday. He conceded that strong opposition could develop, but he predicted eventual approval.

In approving the bill earlier this week, the House Agriculture Committee called the legislation necessary to protect rural America during the current economic hard times and to encourage production.

But the Agriculture Department has modified it as a "partial step backward" for both farmers and consumers.

Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz, who finds himself in a rare alliance with consumer-oriented urban legislators on this issue, said he would not President Ford to veto the bill if it survives the House and later the Senate.

The bill would increase dairy price supports from their current 88 per cent to 95 per cent of parity and also boost the prices that the government guarantees farmers will receive for grain and cotton. Cotton already is selling near the price at which the government is vulnerable to make payments to growers.

As used in connection with the federal price index of farm commodities, parity would be at 100 per cent if the price a farmer received for his product equaled the full cost of producing it plus a reasonable profit.

The measure also would increase the amount of money farmers can borrow from the government by using their crops as security.

Besides its cost to consumers, Butz contended that the bill would "deny farmers the incentive to produce commodities needed in the marketplace, causing them instead to produce for government payments."

"It could force cropland out of production and drain the federal treasury of billions of dollars."

Butz placed the cost at $800 million this year and possibly more than $5 billion by 1977.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The South Vietnamese air force, which reportedly had been rationing flying time before the offensive began, was said to be consuming scarce supplies of fuel as it tries to support hard-pressed army units.

The current Pentagon view is that the North Vietnamese objective is to cut off areas in the central highlands and other predominantly rural regions from control of the Saigon government without hitting at the main strength of the South Vietnamese army.

In the long run, senior Pentagon officials believe the North Vietnamese will attempt to isolate the major cities of South Vietnam, including the capital.

So far, the North Vietnamese have succeeded in cutting several important roads, including historic Route 19 connecting the highland city of Pleiku with the coast.

This highway has been fought over since the days of the French and was one of the first key routes secured by the Americans when they sent divisions into South Vietnam in 1965.

Pentagon strategists think the North Vietnamese may try to seal off Pleiku and the city of Kontum farther north, thus blocking South Vietnamese forces there from resupply except by air.

To the south, the Communists have cut the only major highway leading to Tay Ninh City, another long-time objective northwest of Saigon. U.S. intelligence predicts large-scale attacks soon in this region.

The Pentagon sources believe this activity will not be enough to wrest the most important parts of the country without additional North Vietnamese troops.

Intelligence authorities are watching for signs of any major movement of additional North Vietnamese troops from above the old demilitarized border zone into South Vietnam.

Part of the 31st North Vietnamese Army Division already has crossed the DMZ but the six other strategic reserve divisions remain well to the north, according to recent information.

At full strength, North Vietnamese divisions total about 10,000 men each. But most divisions, particularly those already in the South, are believed to be below strength.

The Pentagon lists 14 full North Vietnamese divisions operating in South Vietnam and another stationed in nearby Cambodia.

North Vietnamese combat troops in South Vietnam total about 200,000 men, the Pentagon says. About 50,000 replacements and reinforcements are reported to have infiltrated from the North in the past two months in preparation for the new offensive.

On the South Vietnamese side, Pentagon officials say there are about 355,000 combat troops, although the books carry nearly one million men as regulars or militiamen.

Analysts Say South Vietnamese Should Be Able To Keep Hold Of Important Parts Of Country

WASHINGTON (AP) — Military analysts say the South Vietnamese army should be able to keep control of the most important sections of the country unless North Vietnam sends in more major combat units.

This appraisal came as North Vietnamese forces pushed their offensive in a number of areas, forcing the South Vietnamese to draw heavily on their ammunition stocks.

Khmer Rouge Now Controls Major Portion Of Cambodia

EDITOR'S NOTE: The writer, who speaks the language of Cambodia, has compiled the following report from interviews in the past 18 months with refugees, prisoners, diplomats and government officials.

Not much is known of the Khmer Rouge — which means Red Cambodians. But they are said to be highly communistic, distrustful of foreigners, ruthless, dynamic and capable of bringing Cambodia's warring cultures and society more into line with China's.

The Khmer Rouge's chief enemy was Prince Norodom Sihanouk when he was the nation's leader. But they became allies after he was ousted in March 1970 and took up arms in Peking.

When the Indochina war first spread to Cambodia, the insurgents consisted of pro-Sihanouk forces, old-line Communist-Marxist revolutionaries and elements who opposed the ruling government's alliance with the United States.

At that time, the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong were in the forefront of the fight in Cambodia. During a two-year North Vietnamese occupation of large areas of the country, about 5,000 Cambodians were sent to North Vietnam after the French defeat in Indochina in 1954 returned fully trained to take over the organization of the Khmer Rouge.

In 1970 many of the factions within the insurgent movement have been eliminated, and the tightly knit Communist party of Cambodia has become dominant. Battles between factions have been reported, but the Communists have gained control of the movement, and they have party members in charge of every region, sector, province and zone district.

Each group has a president, everyone wears black, Marx work in the fields during the day and can't grow at night. Marriage is prohibited until age 25. Travel from village to village requires a permit, and people are taken away for minor infractions of rules and never seen again.

Railroad Commission Gathers Testimony On Hydrogen Sulphide

By JACK KEEVER
AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Hydrogen sulphide is a colorless gas that smells like rotten eggs. It is poisonous, flammable, corrosive and explosive—it kills. And it is used to produce oil, the foundation of Texas' economy.

After 17 deaths as a result of fatal hydrogen sulphide leaks in recent months, the Texas Railroad Commission gathered testimony at a public hearing Thursday on possible additional safety measures.

One witness was J. H. Sullivan, the engineer who designed the Denver City oil recovery unit that leaked and killed nine persons Feb. 2.

Sullivan said the fitting that failed, causing the leak, had been used safely twice. In addition, the fitting on the Atlantic Richfield Co. (ARCO) well failed under pressure of 1,500 pounds per square inch even though it had been tested safely at pressures as high as 10,000 pounds.

Had the fitting been used on one previous occasion without causing trouble? asked Midland lawyer Tom Sealy.

"Two, I believe," replied Sullivan, manager of chemical engineering at ARCO's Plano headquarters.

100 Attend Hearing
Sullivan and others testified at a hearing which attracted approximately 100 oilmen, including some from Nebraska, Oklahoma, Colorado, Illinois and Louisiana.

The commission scheduled the hearing to consider revising its rules on hydrogen sulphide, which is injected into the ground to recover more oil after initial production has waned because of low pressure in the wells.

Leaks of the poisonous gas have resulted in 17 deaths recently.

The incident at Denver City, in Youakum County near the New Mexico border, occurred Feb. 2 when hydrogen sulphide leaked from a tertiary pilot recovery unit.

Sullivan said ARCO was compressing a combination of 90 per cent carbon dioxide and 4 to 5 per cent hydrogen sulphide gas and injecting it into half of the wells in the area. The other wells were being flooded with water to bring up additional oil. The unit had been in continuous operation since November 1972 without accident, Sullivan said. Since Feb. 2 the company has gone back to using water exclusively.

Could a workman have looked at the fitting that failed and "see that it was unsafe?" Sealy asked.

"No," replied Sullivan, who said he issued the specifications under which the project was put together.

"The fittings for all practical purposes would appear identical," he said.

Stress Increases
Sullivan said leaks occur when hydrogen ions penetrate a steel fitting and create hydrogen gas, which increases the internal stress on the steel.

"To be 'on the safe side,'" he said, ARCO had spent $100,000 testing specifications approved by the National Association of Chemical Engineers (NACE).

"We've been trying to live with what we thought was right," Sullivan said.

Sealy noted that with "renewed emphasis" on producing oil and gas, "there are going to be some risks in this endeavor." He recalled that three astronauts had died in a single incident in the United States' space efforts and that airplane and auto crashes are still killing people.

But he said ARCO "is making every effort to minimize dangers."

Hearing Called Timely
"This hearing," he added, "is most timely."

Lowell Smith, an Amoco Oil Co. engineer, testified that it expects to recover up to two billion extra barrels of oil by injecting waste gas, including hydrogen sulphide, into its West Texas properties. An 18-month test will first be run in Amoco's Slaughter Estate field in Hockley County. As many as 100 million extra barrels of oil may be recovered from the Slaughter field alone, he said.

Tertiary recovery methods in West Texas by all operators could produce as much as eight billion more barrels of oil, which compares to vaunted Alaskan North Slope discovery of 10 billion barrels.

To protect Amoco employees and Hockley County residents, an Amoco statement said, 61 devices "will monitor continuously for corrosion," and engineers "will periodically check more than 100 selected spots with an ultrasonic measuring instrument."

South Vietnamese troops kept the Phnom Penh army at bay while in rear areas insurgents with the Hard-trained Cambodians began to control the population and recruit, arms and train an army.

According to scores of refugees interviewed, life for the people in Khmer Rouge areas did not begin to change until North Vietnamese troops began leaving to prepare for their Easter offensive in South Vietnam in 1973. Slowly life became regimented.

Best known among the Khmer Rouge leaders is Khieu Samphan, 44, a former Sihanouk official and National Assembly deputy who was sentenced to death by Sihanouk and now is deputy premier, commander in chief and minister of defense in the Khmer Rouge government.

Since 1970 many of the factions within the insurgent movement have been eliminated, and the tightly knit Communist party of Cambodia has become dominant. Battles between factions have been reported, but the Communists have gained control of the movement, and they have party members in charge of every region, sector, province and zone district.

As part of the consolidating, pro-Sihanouk elements are being eliminated or absorbed. Sihanouk himself has said that if he comes back it will only be as a figurehead.

The roots of Cambodia's Communist movement go back to 1951 and the People's party. The Communists trace their history in three stages: 1951-54 a political struggle against Sihanouk; 1954-67 a political struggle against Sihanouk; and in 1967 the armed struggle resumed.

Khmer Rouge is slowly replacing Sihanouk as the Khmer Rouge's international leader. However, it is believed that he is not the top man. The movement appears to be controlled by a central committee of relative unknowns.

After their reorganization in September 1973, the insurgents began to consolidate and collect the countryside while at the same time launching their first all-Cambodia offensive. It almost toppled the Phnom Penh government. The drive was stopped by U.S. bombing which ended on Aug. 15, 1973.

About 400,000 refugees fled Khmer Rouge zones in 1974, according to Western relief agencies.

Cham Seo, 39, a watch repairman in Kompong Cham Province, was one such refugee.

"The people are separated into all kinds of groups. Chinese, Vietnamese, Cambodians, anyone who has a skill, they are taken away for their own sake."

Each group has a president, everyone wears black, Marx work in the fields during the day and can't grow at night. Marriage is prohibited until age 25. Travel from village to village requires a permit, and people are taken away for minor infractions of rules and never seen again.

Kim Sath, 24, an elementary school teacher from Svay Rieng Province, said, "If they knew I was a teacher they would have killed me. I disguised myself as a farmer and cut wood and worked in the fields."

Kim Sath said that early in 1974 "the village security men came to our house and garden and made lists of everything we owned. They said it now be longed to the village cooperative. Before we killed a chicken we had to ask permission from the village president."

Villagers from Kompong Cham and Outang said civil servants and soldiers were killed after they were captured. In Batihsamung province, only 39 out of 800 people escaped after the villages of Taiton and Tagon were overrun last May.

In eastern Cambodia, there is a marriage of convenience between the Cambodian insurgents and the North Vietnamese troops guarding the Ho Chi Minh Trail. The Cambodians supply rice and produce in exchange for war materiel.

Ordinary Khmer Rouge soldiers and the North Vietnamese live in separate areas, and business is conducted by liaison personnel. At times there have been open clashes.

State Playoffs Begin At Austin

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Houston Kashmere's Rams, rugged rebounders and ballgame streakers, played defense today of their Class AAAA schoolboy basketball title with a semifinal game against Midland Lee.

The winner will play the survivor of the Friday night contest between Fort Worth Paschal and San Antonio Highlands for the championship Saturday afternoon.

Larry LaPoyner, the dominant man in Class B in the 1976, is matched against Richards in the semifinals in that division Saturday morning.

Spade will meet Moggard in the other semifinal game, with the championship match set for 8 p.m. Saturday.

Kashmere has won 44 games without a loss this season, extending its record winning streak to 76 over two years.

Two 1974 all-tournament players, Karl Godine and Jarvis Williams, join three other seniors in a lineup that has poured in 100 or more points in 10 games this season. The Rams' victories include an all-state (1975) triumph over Paschal, which has lost only one other game.

Godine, a 6-foot 4-inch forward, has averaged 28 points a game this season, 4-3 Carl Byrd 23 and Williams 10 for Kashmere.

LaPoyner also has a perfect record, 40-0, including a 52-51 victory over Corsicana and 74-57 victory over Palestine, both

LPGA Cancels Houston Play

Sponsors Fail To Put Up Prize Money

HOUSTON (AP) — The Ladies Professional Golfers Association (LPGA) has voted not to play in the $100,000 LPGA tournament scheduled here after hearing a last minute play now, pay later offer from the sponsor.

LPGA executive director Bud Erickson broke the unprecedented news late Thursday night after a final meeting with the tournament sponsor, Gulf Coast Golf News.

"Due to the fact that Larry Flood and Gulf Coast Golf News have failed to live up to the contractual obligations concerning the prize purse, the LPGA today (Thursday) announced the decision of its membership not to participate in the Gulf Coast Golf News Open," Erickson said in the statement.

Vote Against Tourney
LPGA lawyer Fletcher Etheridge said less than two percent of the $100,000 purse was on deposit in a bank late Thursday when the LPGA touring protocol overwhelmingly not to play in the tournament, scheduled to begin today.

"We've had some bad checks, things like that, but never this much," Erickson said.

Kashmere Presents Opportunity Of Lifetime

Battle Scene

By Ted Battles

While many fans moaned at the "bad luck" that befell Midland Lee in its bid for the state championship of the Class AAAA tournament at Austin today, wouldn't it have been worse to go and not get to play the Rams?

It's like playing some of the great UCLA teams. Win or lose, it's something the players will remember the rest of their lives.

And along the same line, another Midlander finds himself in much the same boat when UTEP goes up against No. 1 ranked Indiana Saturday in the first round of the NCAA playoffs. Six-eight Gary Brewster, who played for Midland High when the Bulldogs reached Austin three years ago, will be playing for the Miners. It will be on tv.

Five district championships in a row for the Tall City, not a bad record. Also three trips in four years to state for Tall City girls.

It seems as though Houston always has a representative in the final round of four at Austin, but we wonder if any city the size of Midland has sent a team to state as many times in so short a period...

Some 800 tickets for the state tournament were sold in Midland, so the Rebels will have plenty of vocal support in Austin. However, some fans were wondering where they were going to sleep...

Charley Moore, the Milwaukee Brewer catcher who is being mentioned quite frequently in commiques from San City, Ark., is the same one who hit three homers in his game at Caba Stadium while playing for Shreveport in the Texas League two years ago...

Midland Cub Manager Doc Edwards wonders whether Whitney Lockman hired him to "get even."

Edwards recalls, "Whitney and I used to just about fight every time we played against one another. He's a great competitor and I don't like to lose either and it usually ended up with somebody getting knocked down and Whitney and I having a few words."

While Bob Knight has the nation's No. 1 team at Indiana this season, he probably had to do a better coaching job while at West Point, where, because of regulations, he never had a player over 6-6.

Knight still produced teams good enough to go to the National Invitational Tournament four times in six seasons.

The Cadets' best team was the 1970 club that lost to St. John's, 60-59, on a couple of late free throws in the semifinals.

Knight remembers he went to the press room and "I couldn't talk, I was emotionally whipped."

Howard Cozell walked up to Knight and Bob gives a beautiful imitation of Howard's sing-song tone and his back-up speech... "Bah-see, I know it's tough. But remember when the sun comes up tomorrow, they'll still be fightin' in Vee-yet-Na-aham..."

Cubs Battle At First

Sons Of Tv Star, Laborer Want Job

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. (AP) — The son of a Hollywood television star is running behind the son of a Philadelphia area laborer in the competition for a vacant job here.

It's democracy in action, baseball style, at the spring training camp of the Chicago Cubs.

"I don't feel we're competing for the job; I feel like the job is mine, that I proved last year I can handle it," said Andy Thornton.

"They're going to give Andy every opportunity in the world to stay at first base. There's no doubt about that," said a frustrated Pete LaCock.

Pete Impatient
LaCock, a well-tanned, blond Californian, is the son of quiz show host Peter Marshall. The 23-year-old athlete is single, likes to work on cars in his free time and talks of becoming a race driver when he gets out of baseball.

He's also very impatient, something Thornton can understand.

"I spent seven long years in the minor leagues preparing myself," Thornton said before the Cubs opened the exhibition season. "I sat on the bench the first half of last year but I felt I was productive. I had a .360 batting average pinch hitting"

Thornton, 25 and married, was a rookie with the Cubs last year and hit .261 in 107 games. He took over at first base in midseason for Billy Williams, who was hurt and later moved to left field. In the off-season, Williams was traded to the Oakland A's.

Thornton, like LaCock, was a high school football star but chose to go into professional baseball. He went to Cheyney State College several semesters between baseball seasons and did recreational work in black neighborhoods of West Chester, Pa., over the winter.

"My father's just a common laborer. Right now, he's caught in the recession and out of work," said the first baseman.

Thornton bats right-handed, LaCock left-handed. Peter Marshall told Johnny Carson and a national television audience recently that the Cubs would probably platoon them this season. But neither player likes the idea and Manager Jim Marshall says, "I don't plan to platoon them."

LaCock complains that, "I've had three good minor league seasons in a row but they've never given me a real chance to make this club. Last spring I played in the first exhibition game, hit a home run and a double, and didn't play again."

He switched from the outfield to first base last season and hit .337 with 23 homers and 91 runs batted in for Wichita of the American Association.

"I would have won the triple crown but the Cubs called me up near the end of the season. Then they didn't use me much until Andy broke a finger. I couldn't understand that," he said.

And LaCock can't understand why the Cubs can't find a place for him somewhere in the lineup.

"I'll do my thing on the bench this year if I have to, but if I'm not playing next year I'll demand they trade me and maybe leave baseball if they don't," he said.

Thompson Repeats

NEW YORK (AP) — North Carolina State's David Thompson is an All-American for the third straight year—which shouldn't surprise his fans, his coach or the pro scouts.

Thompson, everybody's darling, was named to The Associated Press 1976 All-American team Friday along with Notre Dame's Adrian Dantley, Dave Meyers of UCLA, Luther "Ticky" Burden of Utah and Indiana's Scott May.

The 6-foot-4 Thompson was an obvious choice for the first team after a magnificent season which produced 30 points a game and plenty of thrills for Wolfpack fans. An electrifying player with superhuman leaping powers, Thompson's specialty was a home-made "alley-oop" shot where he sailed above the basket to take a teammate's lob for an easy field goal.

His most explosive performance this season was a 37-point, 17-rebound show against Buffalo State. But he had other performances almost as remarkable.

The 6-6 Dantley, a scoring machine for Notre Dame who takes charge of a game when the occasion demands, is praised for his "strength, agility and great body control."

Dantley scored more than 30 points a game this season, rising to the heights against Notre Dame's toughest teams. He scored 40 points in two games against UCLA, 38 against top-ranked Indiana and 29 against Maryland. His biggest game was a 49-point effort against the Brent International team and North Carolina. The third leading scorer in Utah history, Burden delivered 63 per cent of his field goal attempts.

The 6-7 May is the No. 1 player on the nation's No. 1 team. The junior played in 27 games before breaking his wrist, averaging about 18 points and 17 rebounds a game. One of the most fluid big men in the nation, May led the powerful Hoosiers in scoring 13 times and rebounding 10 times.

His most explosive performance this season was a 37-point, 17-rebound show against Buffalo State. But he had other

Grid Giants Victims Of Stadium Delay

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — Construction delays in the New Jersey Sports Complex could prevent the New Jersey Giants from moving into the football stadium there before 1977.

Until today, the New Jersey Sports and Exposition Authority had indicated the stadium in East Rutherford, N.J., would be completed by July 1 of next year.

But the Authority disclosed Thursday that the target date was now sometime in the fall of 1978.

"That's the timetable our management people are giving us," said the chairman of the construction committee, Alfred Linkletter.

"Our architects are more optimistic."

Linkletter, vice chairman of the seven-man authority, blamed last fall's coal shut-down for causing a ripple effect that has delayed installation of structural steel.

He said that the same problem would delay completion of the Sports Complex's one-mile race track until "late August or early September of 1978."

The Giants probably will be forced to exercise an option to play their 1976 home games at remodeled Yankee Stadium, the site they abandoned in favor of

Same Royals Try Again

FORT MYERS, Fla. (AP)—The Kansas City Royals may be baseball's biggest question mark this season.

The Royals picked up three new pitchers a year ago: Nelson Briles, Marty Pattin and reliever Lindy McDaniel. With them, manager Jack McKeon was betting in terms of starting at least the West Division of the American League.

What happened? The Royals fell on their faces.

Coldstart, as usual, was the West—and the World Series. Kansas City, after making a strong challenge for half the season, faded to fifth, 13 games behind the A's.

No Trades

It was no secret the Royals planned to go to the trading post and often after their 1974 disaster. Everyone except perhaps pitcher Steve Busby and center fielder Arnis Ott was available on the swapping market.

The Royals didn't make a single trade. Their only acquisition in Herman Kilbreth, the 35-year-old slugger who was given his unconditional release by the Minnesota Twins.

McKeon thinks the 1975 version of the Royals is more promising than the 1974 team.

"I've told this club it's a new season," McKeon says. "I told them we certainly want to forget '74. Yet despite our shortcomings, I hope we all learned something from it."

Defensive Strength

Again, one of the Royals' major strengths will be their defense, particularly in the infield. John Mayberry will be at first base, Cookie Rojas at second, Fred Patek at shortstop and George Brett, a youngster with only one full year of major league experience, at third.

Fred Healy is regarded by McKeon as one of the best catchers in the AL.

Hal Miller, who led the AL in hitting as a designated hitter with a .305 average, has been shifted to left field on a full-time basis to make room for Kilbreth. Ott is a future in center and one of the best of that post. The veteran Vince Pinson likely will be in right.

Pitching

If the pitching comes through, McKeon thinks the Royals could win in the West. Busby carved a 23-14 record a year ago and tossed a no-hitter for the second straight season.

Busby, Paul Splittorff, Al Fitzmorris and Nelson Briles figure to be the four-man starting rotation. If a fifth starter is needed, Martin Pittin or Bruce Dal Canton may get the assignment.

Dal Canton developed a knuckleball after the 1973 campaign. If it is as effective as it was part of the last season, he may break into the four-man starting rotation. He won eight and lost 10 in 1974.

A healthy Briles also could be a factor. Briles, 37 last year, suffered a knee injury pitching in a gymnasium a week before spring training in 1974 and never performed to his capability.

Splittorff, a 30-game winner in 1947, dipped to 13-19.

Doug Bird, McDaniels and Steve Mingozi head the relief corps. Bird and Mingozi had five years last season but McDaniels had one of his worst, 1-4.

Dal Canton developed a knuckleball after the 1973 campaign. If it is as effective as it was part of the last season, he may break into the four-man starting rotation. He won eight and lost 10 in 1974.

A healthy Briles also could be a factor. Briles, 37 last year, suffered a knee injury pitching in a gymnasium a week before spring training in 1974 and never performed to his capability.

Splittorff, a 30-game winner in 1947, dipped to 13-19.

Doug Bird, McDaniels and Steve Mingozi head the relief corps. Bird and Mingozi had five years last season but McDaniels had one of his worst, 1-4.

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Mike Polchik gave a pep talk. And his University of Minnesota teammates, especially junior Warren Miller, were all ears.

As a result, Minnesota rallied to defeat a tired Harvard team 4-2 Thursday night and kept alive its hopes for a second straight National Collegiate Athletic Association hockey championship.

Phils Fail In Bid To Obtain Dick Allen From Atlanta

Baseball

Major League baseball teams will share $83 million in network TV money during the four year contracts signed recently, Commissioner Bowie Kuhn said. The package with ABC and NBC, effective in 1976, is an increase of $21 million over the current five-year contract with NBC.

Twelve of the 24 major league baseball teams report advances ticket sales ahead of a year ago and four others are even with last year's pace. "We have a price structure which is very moderate," said Commissioner Bowie Kuhn, "in many a major league stadium, a family of four may purchase tickets for as little as a total of $6. What other sport or entertainment form—makes that possible?"

The LA Dodgers, who have not increased ticket prices in 18 years, attracted 2,532,474, but season ticket sales are up 35 per cent and the Dodgers are thinking in terms of 3 million. The Texas Rangers, whose attendance increased by more than 500,000 last season, report season ticket sales up nearly 70 per cent. Cleveland, New York Yankees and Milwaukee all have surpassed 1974 sales by 20 to 50 per cent.

When the Philadelphia Phillies failed to obtain baseball slugger Richie Allen, who just doesn't want to play this year,

Philly right fielder Jay Johnstone, who would have probably lost his job to Allen, said, "That's the best news I've heard since Ford replaced Nixon."

Basketball

Frank Arnold, assistant basketball coach under John Wooden for four years, was named head coach at Brigham Young University, replacing Glenn Potter, who resigned after two straight losing seasons.

Oklahoma's Alvin Adams, Iowa State's Herbie Ivy, Kansas State's Chuck Williams and Nebraska's Jerry Fort, four of the five top scorers, were named to the All-Big Eight team along with Kansas' Rick Suttle, 6-10 center.

Upstart Drake shocked Southern Cal, 88-76, in the opening round of the National Commissioners Invitational basketball tournament Thursday and Arizona surprised East Carolina with a crushing 94-76 victory.

Boxing

Just when it appeared that challenger Chuck Wepler had won the verbal battle with Muhammad Ali, the heavyweight champion showed he retained the old preflight savvy and showmanship.

"I'm not in the best of shape," said Ali, who meets Wepler in Cleveland March 24, "but I don't have to be in best shape. I'm about 35 per cent now and I'll be 50 per cent by the time of the fight. He's not a Joe Frazier, Ken Norton or George Foreman. I don't want to waste myself anyway. I want to hold the title 10 more years and I've got to pace myself."

Football

The Washington Redskins marching band, which has been performing for years for the price of two free tickets, won't have to pay to perform at Redskin home games next fall after all. Or, at least not very much. The band will continue to sit in its elevated section in the RFK Stadium, will get one free ticket and have the right to purchase another one.

Perennial all-pro Alex Page signed a five-year contract with the Minnesota Vikings at an estimated $100,000 per year. Owner Eugene Klein expects two things from Tommy Prothro, the man he hired to coach the San Diego NFL Chargers. First, lose weight. Second, give up smoking. "I'll be disappointed if he doesn't get rid of 50 pounds," Klein said as Prothro, 280, headed for a six-week diet program at Duke. . . . Joe Sabol, who had only three losing seasons in nine years at Norwich, Vt., University, has resigned to become head coach at Gettysburg, Pa., College. . . .

Track

UTEP is the favorite to repeat as NCAA indoor track champions because of its depth in the field events as competition began for a two-day run at Detroit today. The Miners are led by Hans Hogland, shot put; Greg Joy, 7-4 high jumper; and Wilson Waigwa, a miler who has done 3:37.5 this year.

One of the new rules in effect this year will be the elimination of a competitor for a false start. The rule is designed to help keep meets on schedule. It takes at least two minutes every time a starter has to recall a group of runners.

Golf

Japan won five out of eight matches Thursday to take an 11-5 lead in the first round of their $86,000 professional golf match.

Racing

Past-Tipton Co. has sold 50 per cent of its Kentucky branch to 22 investors, including 15 central Kentucky horsemen, in an effort to localize control of the New York-based thoroughbred auction company.

Indians Lose, Frank Pleased

By The Associated Press
Frank Robinson was a looser the first time out, but he was still pleased.

"Gaylord and Jim Perry were very good," Cleveland's rookie baseball manager said of his top two pitchers, who blanked San Francisco through the first six innings. "Gaylord wasn't quite as sharp as usual, but he got the job done.

"And Jim just threw the ball in and got them out. He made it look easy."

With the Perry brothers doing their thing, Cleveland jumped out to a 3-0 lead. But the Giants battled back in the late innings and won 6-4 on Ed Goodson's two-out double in the 10th.

Oops, First Mistake

Robinson admitted he was surprised by Goodson, a left-handed batter who is learning how to switch hit this spring. "I thought he was left-handed, which is why I brought (Dave) LaRoche into the situation when I did," Robinson said.

Goodson batted from the right side and stroked LaRoche's first pitch into right-center.

"The fact is, Dave will have to face right-handed hitters in situations like that, so it didn't really matter," Robinson said.

In other exhibition games Thursday, the Chicago White Sox blanked St. Louis 5-0, Milwaukee defeated the Chicago Cubs 3-1, Texas powered past Los Angeles 8-4, Boston crushed Pittsburgh 8-2, Montreal nipped Detroit 6-5, Cincinnati edged Minnesota 3-2, the New York Yankees slipped past the New York Mets 7-6, Atlanta squeezed past Houston 3-2 in 18 innings, and Kansas City rolled over Baltimore 7-1.

Aaron Has RBI
Henry Aaron, returning to Milwaukee where he started his major league career, knocked in his first run as a Brewer with a sacrifice fly. But it was John Briggs who powered a home run in the first and scored on Aaron's sacrifice fly before catcher Darrell Porter homered to give Milwaukee the victory.

Aaron broke in with the Milwaukee Braves, then moved to Atlanta when the franchise was shifted. He was traded during the off-season to the Brewers.

Tony Perez singled home the winning run in Cincinnati's victory.

VOLLEYBALL ACTION — LaRhetta Poole, left, of Midland High, puts the pressure on Abilene Cooper as Bulldogs' girls reeled off 19th straight victory without defeat this season Thursday night at MHS gym.

MHS Girls Make It 19 Straight

The Midland High girls volleyball kept their unblemished record intact at the MHS gym Thursday with a 15-2, 15-8 victory over Abilene Cooper.

Midland High is now 19-0 on the year and 5-0 in District 5-4A play.

Sara Moore had a good day for the Bulldogs with seven defensive blocks, five serves and clobbered the ball to the floor on five of seven attempts. Carolyn Wolf was the high point server, hitting on 13 consecutive serves, and came up with a diving save while all her relays were playable. Cindy Pulte also had seven defensive blocks.

The Bulldog consistency, however, came from the backcourt wizardry of Tracie Chandler, LaRhetta Poole and Carolyn Wolf.

The Midland High junior varsity made it 15-0 for the season and 5-0 in district play by downing the Cougars, 15-6, 15-5.

The Bulldogs and Rebels are entered in the Howard College Invitational Volleyball meet this weekend in Big Spring.

Jabbar's 41 Points More Eloquent Than Loud Talk

By The Associated Press
 Kareem Abdul-Jabbar took out his wrath against the Atlanta Hawks this time instead of the officials.

The massive Milwaukee center, who had unhesitatingly blasted the officiating after fouling out in the Bucks' previous National Basketball Association game, lashed out at the Hawks with 41 points Thursday night in a 120-104 rout over Atlanta.

The victory lifted Milwaukee within one-half game of idle Detroit in the fight for the "wild card" playoff berth in the Western Conference.

Only one-half game also separates Cleveland and New York, the teams battling for the "wild card" playoff spot in the Eastern Conference. Cleveland maintained the slim advantage, frowning the Los Angeles Lakers 104-85, while the Knicks best the Portland Trail Blazers of the season.

In the other NBA game, the Buffalo Braves rattled the Golden State Warriors 122-103. Knicks 116, Trail Blazers 105. Earl Monroe had a game-high 29 points and Bill Bradley added 25, but it was reserve Mel Davis' 13 points in the fourth quarter that keyed the Knicks' 10th consecutive victory over Portland at Madison Square Garden. Davis got 11 of his points during a 17-4 surge that carried the Knicks from a precarious 93-91 lead into a commanding 110-85 advantage. Sidney Wicks led Portland with 26 points, two more than Geoff Petrie.

Braves 122, Warriors 103. Buffalo's Bob McAdoo, the league's leading scorer, broke loose for 30 points, including 27 in the second half, and grabbed 24 rebounds in propelling the Braves to a record 43rd victory best the Portland Trail Blazers of the season.

Defendant In Mormon Murders Can't Fire His Lawyers

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Robert Klessen wants to fire his lawyers in the Mormon murder case, but a state district court judge refuses to let him do it. The judge has ordered Klessen's attorneys to proceed Monday as scheduled.

After the sanity trial, Judge Tom Blackwell said Thursday, he will be inclined to grant the defendant's motion to withdraw from the case.

Klessen then could hire new lawyers for the murder trial, assuming he is found competent to assist lawyers in defending against charges he killed two Mormon missionaries, the judge said.

Blackwell also said he would grant, reluctantly, Klessen's motion giving him status as codefendant. Klessen said since his life was at stake, he wanted to be on top of his case.

Bob Gibbins, lead defense counsel, said Klessen believes he is competent to stand trial and wants Monday's proceeding canceled. Gibbins told reporters Klessen fears he might be found incompetent and sent to a state mental hospital, where he would be held, perhaps for years, until it is determined he is sane enough to assist his lawyers at a murder trial.

"This sanity trial is something that the United States Supreme Court and the (Texas) Court of Criminal Appeals have required the trial judge to have if he has any information indicating he is not competent to stand trial," Blackwell said.

The court is required to give it to him whether he wants it or not."

Gibbins called Klessen to the stand to testify on their "irreconcilable" differences.

Klessen turned in the witness chair to face the judge and spoke in a clipped, New England accent. He frequently held his eyes closed as he talked, and his nose occasionally rested lightly against the microphone.

The 42-year-old, slope-shouldered defendant is accused of killing Gary Darley, 20, of Sino Valley, Calif., and Mark Fischer, 19, of Milwaukee, Wis., and then cutting up their bodies with a taxidermist's band saw.

Klessen spoke for several minutes about his "rather extensive education." He claimed two bachelor's and two master's degrees, the latter from European universities. He lacks only four hours on a Ph.D., he said, and he has completed a course at the National Police Academy of Quantico, Va.

He said he and Gibbins disagreed over the worth of his gun collection, which was confiscated by federal authorities in Buffalo, N.Y., in 1971, and over the $30,000 fee, plus expenses, Gibbins was charging him. The guns are worth $500,000, not the $300,000 the federal officers claim, he said.

"My (Buffalo) home has been seized, and my (Wayne County, N.Y.) farm has been seized and disposed of, and I have been harassed for a long, long time for my anti-war feelings, which will probably hurt the judge's feelings, but which was never true," he said cryptically. The judge is a National Guard general.

Klessen said he had been attacked twice in jail, once when a fellow prisoner "smashed my leg in the door of my cell block." His mail has been tampered with, he said, because it takes seven days for letters from San Antonio, 75 miles south of Austin, to reach him.

He has asked Gibbins to file a civil suit on the alleged assaults in jail, but Gibbins told him he was more interested in agreement among the doctors, Klessen's life right now than in the question of Klessen's competency to stand trial.

Gibbins asked the judge what would happen if Klessen, as requested, refused to allow witnesses to be called at the sanity trial. The judge said he would call them himself in that case.

CAB Urged To Determine Whether Braniff Should Be Shut Down For Alleged Board Violations

By JAY PERKINS
WASHINGTON (AP) — The enforcement arm of the Civil Aeronautics Board has urged the CAB to determine whether Braniff International Airlines should be partially or totally shut down for alleged violations of board regulations.

The CAB's Bureau of Enforcement made the recommendation after accusing Braniff and American Airlines of amassing hidden corporate funds totaling hundreds of thousands of dollars.

One purpose of those funds, the bureau charged in its complaint, was to finance unlawful political contributions.

Both Pled Guilty

Both airlines pleaded guilty and were fined in 1973 for donations to the re-election campaign of then-President Richard Nixon.

The bureau urged the CAB to take several possible actions to involve penalties on the two airlines for the allegedly improper bookkeeping maneuvers. Those actions basically involved requiring the airlines to submit detailed statements explaining just what they did, what corrective action they since have taken, and to submit annual statements on the receipt of assets.

However, in the case of Braniff, the bureau also urged the CAB to institute a proceeding to determine whether that airline should be allowed to continue operation under its present management.

Action Unprecedented

Such an action would be unprecedented. The board in past enforcement proceedings had used fines totaling up to $1,000 a day as punishment for improper actions.

The bureau says the board should determine "whether Braniff, with its present management, remains fit, willing and able to conform to the provisions of the (Federal Aviation) act and rules, regulations and requirements of the board thereunder, with respect to its operations in air transportation generally or with respect to its operations in air transportation within Latin America."

It also urged the board to determine "whether the public convenience and necessity require that Braniff's authority to operate in air transportation generally or to operate in air transportation within Latin America be altered, amended, modified or suspended for such a period of time as its present management retains operational control over its activities, or be revoked for intentional failure to comply with the act and requirements . . ."

And the bureau also suggested the board, in that proceeding, determine whether "any air carrier other than Braniff seeks to perform, and it is fit, willing and able to perform, the air transportation generally, or the air transportation in Latin America, presently being operated by Braniff . . ."

Going To Judge

The bureau's allegations and recommendations now must go to an administrative law judge, who will rule on the allegations and suggest possible relief. His decision will be applicable to the five member CAB. The board's decision also can be appealed through the federal courts.

One CAB source said: "We'll probably arrive at a negotiated settlement. But I should emphasize that these are very, very serious charges."

The enforcement bureau alleged that Braniff amassed a secret fund of "at least $641,395 and as much as $926,955" from the sale of thousands of unaccounted-for tickets between 1968 and 1972.

Disbursements Listed

Disbursements included a $40,000 contribution to the Nixon re-election campaign, the CAB complaint said. Although Braniff officers admitted to that contribution and later reimbursed a regular corporate account for it, none of the other revenue from unaccounted-for tickets had been reflected on the airline's general books, the bureau said.

American was accused of building a secret cash fund of up to $275,000 through a variety of bookkeeping tricks that allegedly included rifeoffs from a subsidiary and phony commission payments.

A Braniff spokesman said the implication of any "slush" fund was false. He said the "inaccurate implication in the complaint of a substantial discretionary 'slush' fund can be quickly corrected and that the remaining matters which relate to competitive practices not uncommon in the air transport industry can be promptly resolved."

Ford's Advisers To 'Soften' Opposition To Proposed Cambodian Aid Compromise

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford's advisers will "soften" their opposition over the weekend to a suggested compromise on additional U.S. military aid to Cambodia, administration sources say.

The sources said they did not know how far the compromise will go but said some congressmen will be contacted over the weekend in an effort to win approval of some military aid by House and Senate committees.

The Ford administration's renewed effort comes after the Senate Democratic caucus voted 38 to 5 Thursday against any more arms for the Cambodian government and after the House Foreign Affairs Committee voted 18 to 15 to reject the compromise.

The House panel's vote was on a bill to provide Cambodia with an additional $82.5 million in military aid with a decreased cutoff of all military assistance on June 30. The administration had asked for $222 million with no cutoff.

bert, who is not a member of the committee, said he thought military aid for Cambodia can't be counted dead as long as a possibility remains for approval.

Ingersoll said there would be "no chance" for peace negotiations in Cambodia if insurgents were told in advance that U.S. support would end on that date.

Rep. Donald M. Fraser, D-Minn., told Ingersoll he had been prepared to vote for the compromise until Ingersoll rejected it. A ranking committee member said two other votes on the panel also were lost because of Ingersoll's position.

The House committee adjourned without a final vote on Ford's aid request and will meet Tuesday for that purpose.

Chairman Thomas E. Morgan, D-Pa., of the House Foreign Affairs Committee said he thought the aid request was dead.

"I think it's a lost cause," he said. "I think we're just prolonging the agony."

However, Speaker Carl Albert, who is not a member of the committee, said he thought military aid for Cambodia can't be counted dead as long as a possibility remains for approval.

of some compromise by either the House panel or the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

The Senate committee meets Monday to vote on the aid question. A Senate subcommittee already has recommended $125 million in military aid with no stated cutoff date.

However, the nonbinding policy vote by the Senate Democratic caucus placed the $125-million bill in doubt. A similar resolution opposing further aid to Cambodia passed the House Democratic caucus earlier this week by a 169 to 49 vote.

White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen said Ford "is terribly disappointed" by the congressional developments. Thursday, Nessen said administration officials "don't get the feeling that this is the final parliamentary move."

Meanwhile, Ford met for 45 minutes with retired Army Gen. William C. Westmoreland, former U.S. military commander in Vietnam.

Westmoreland later told reporters that Congress should give Ford the authority to launch B52 air strikes in Indochina and to mine the North Vietnamese port of Haiphong.

"The only language that Hanoi understands is the language of force," Westmoreland said.

El Paso Credit Firm To Change Collection Forms

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Transamerica Credit Corp. of El Paso has agreed to pay $500 and to stop sending collection notices resembling telegrams or urgent notices, Atty. Gen. John Hill said Thursday.

The judgment against the company was entered by State District Court Judge Edwin Berliner of El Paso, Hill said.

Hill's petition against the company alleged that Transamerica's telegram-type notices were deceptive and misleading since they were not bona fide telegrams from Western Union or any other telegraph office.

Trade Schools Under Investigation Said Certified By Federal Official

DALLAS (AP) — A federal education official in Dallas gave five Texas trade schools clean bills of health—despite reports of serious problems involving loan refunds—one month before the state attorney general began an investigation of the five schools.

The Dallas Morning News reported today that Leo Hatten, director of the U.S. Department of Health Education and Welfare's Office of Guaranteed Student Loans (OGSL), cleared the schools in a confidential memorandum dated June 10, 1974.

The newspaper reported the memorandum stated that Hatten told his superiors in Washington that based on conversations with E. W. Quinton, director of the proprietary school division of the Texas Education Agency, and Hatten's own review of "voluminous records," he felt that the necessary care and diligence have been exercised by OGSL in proceeding with insuring loans for students attending these schools.

The five schools reviewed in the memorandum were in San Antonio, Corpus Christi, Beaumont, Abilene and Houston. All were purchased by Carl Whelk of San Antonio in 1973 from Ling-Temco-Vought Education Systems, Inc.

The attorney general's office later filed suit against Whelk, and in December 1974, District Court Judge Franklin Spears of San Antonio ordered an audit of the schools.

The News reported that when contacted about the memorandum, Quinton declined comment.

Hatten was reassigned to other duties temporarily until an FBI investigation of the federal loan office in Dallas is completed.

An internal audit of the Texas Education Agency's operations is scheduled to be released in Austin Wednesday. The report is sharply critical of the proprietary schools division's practice of backdating loans.

Hill Says Government Should Collect From Training Schools, Not Students

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — The federal government ought not to be looking solely to students for repayment on loans for vocational training they never received, says Atty. Gen. John Hill.

Hill said Thursday he sent a March 10 letter on the matter to Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger of the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Hill told Weinberger he has filed suit against 12 privately operated trade schools for not paying tuition refunds to students whose courses were involuntarily terminated by the schools. State law entitles them to a 100 per cent refund.

HEW is trying to collect payment from the students only on the Federally Insured Loan Program debts, Hill said. Instead, it should be looking to the schools that were holding back refunds to which the students were entitled, he said.

Ruling Expected Today On Lufkin's Redistricting Suit

TYLER, Tex. (AP) — A federal judge was expected to rule today in a Lufkin redistricting suit, which challenges the present method of electing city commissioners.

The suit has been filed on behalf of Lufkin's black residents, who claim the present at-large method "unconstitutionally dilutes and diminishes the voting strength."

The suit seeks to have the seven city commissioners of Lufkin—including the mayor—elected from single districts, rather than at large.

U.S. District Court Judge William Wayne Justice Wednesday ordered that candidates for Nacogdoches County commissioner "must live in the district they seek to represent and must be voted on only by the residents of the district."

He set a March 28 filing deadline for candidates in the April election, which he said Nacogdoches officials may postpone if they need more time to prepare.

Nacogdoches Mayor A.L. Mangham said he is confident the decision will be appealed to the U.S. 5th Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans.

Four Chevron Oil Executives Killed In Airplane Crash

BRISBANE, Australia (AP) — Four Chevron Oil executives from California and their Australian pilot were killed Thursday when their light plane crashed in northern Australia about 600 miles northwest of Alice Springs, the U.S. Consulate announced.

A spokesman said the executives from California were George C. Jester, vice president of the Chevron Oil Trading Co., San Rafael; Walter G. Walton, manager for project development of the Chevron Food, Machinery and Chemical Corp., San Jose; Norris B. Shumate, vice president of the Chevron Land Development Co., Danville; and Dr. Malcolm H. McVickar, national manager for agronomy in the Ortho Division of the Chevron Chemical Co., San Francisco.

The spokesman said the four were on a business trip.

Their pilot was Jerry Walker.

The Cessna 310, owned by an Australian charter company, crashed on a cattle ranch about 5 p.m. Thursday. Police from Katherine, about 150 miles away, reached the site this morning.

Banks Mirror American Dedication To Bigness

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Americans have long feared bigness, or at least the badness they fear comes with bigness, especially the power that permits one or more companies to diminish price competition.

Government antitrust activity is familiar to anyone who has ever taken an introductory American history course, and it continues, most immediately in the form of a suit against International Business Machines.

Nevertheless, American industry has an affinity for growth and size, and nowhere is it more evident today than in banking, where the powers of aggressive, big city institutions has begun ringing alarm bells.

The more dominant position the superlarge bank achieves, the more it can dictate terms to industries which need bank capital, especially since Wall Street, the alternative fund raiser, is in a weakened position.

David Cates, a consultant to bank managements throughout the country, is especially aware of the power concentration, particularly the fight between the superlarge banks and the large regional banks just below them in size.

Cates, who has held various titles in finance, including that of vice president for the investment house of Loeb, Rhoades & Co., believes that credit crises help the superlarge banks.

Crisis now seem to be recurrent in our money system. Credit crunches, for instance, occurred in 1966, 1969 and 1974, the latter the most grievous of all. Crises, he fears, may have become structured into the system.

When there is a liquidity shortage, or credit crunch, suspicions seems to spread that all but the very largest banks may have problems meeting their commitments. As a result, corporations transfer or "upstream" their business to the largest banks, at the expense of smaller ones.

This is more of a problem for the regional banks than is immediately apparent. Faced with a loss of confidence, they are forced to turn conservative in order to prove their stability. They sacrifice earnings opportunities in the process.

Another factor works in favor of the biggest banks: they enjoy a rate benefit in bidding for funds. They have access to the lowest cost money. Corporate treasurers, for instance, might be willing to accept only 6 per cent on a certificate of deposit from a superlarge bank but demand 6.5 from a medium-size institution.

A factor that Cates calls decentralization also favors the largest banks. Earlier in our financial history money tended to remain relatively close to the locale of the moneyholder. Now it travels.

When rates become attractive sophisticated moneyholders send their money where rates are best. Again, the very largest banks have an advantage in issuing attractive savings and investment instruments.

Driving specialists suggest that to signal well in advance avoids confusing other drivers.

Truth In Lending Violations Charged

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — TextPIRG, a self-styled consumer advocate group, claims 116 of 188 Texas lending institutions which it checked are violating the federal Truth in Lending Act.

TextPIRG representatives told a news conference Thursday that the 116 banks and savings and loan institutions are using such terms as "add-on rate" or "Discount rate," which are misleading and cost the consumer more money.

They said the federal law requires lending institutions to use only one interest rate, the annual percentage rate, when talking to customers about how much loans will cost.

Glasphalt May Aid In Speedier Repairs Of Hole Roadways

GOLDEN, Colo. (AP) — Glasphalt may make it possible to repair those winter potholes in the street without waiting for warm weather. A research study reveals that glasphalt, a street paving material made with crushed waste glass and asphalt, can be more successfully laid in colder weather than a conventional asphalt made with crushed stone. The study, made by the Colorado School of Mines Research Institute for the Glass Container Manufacturers Institute, found two reasons that glasphalt can be used in colder weather: it contains more heat than conventional asphalt and it cools more slowly.

Pancake Jamboree!

Members of the Midland Downtown Lions Club, one of the largest in Lions International, has invited 10,000 persons to dine with them Saturday. They will be disappointed, too, if at least that many Midland and area residents do not show up.

The occasion, of course, is the club's 19th annual Pancake Jamboree, scheduled from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. Saturday in the Dellwood Plaza Mall.

The club fed 8,500 persons at last year's jamboree, and it has stocked sufficient pancake mix, sausage, syrup and other items to take care of 1975's expanded invitation list.

Now, pancakes are delicious most anytime but when they are Midland Downtown Lions Club pancakes, they are exceptionally tasty.

This especially is true when one considers the many and varied humanitarian causes funded by total proceeds from the Pancake Jamboree.

If all Midlanders could have seen the look of appreciation on the face of the crippled boy as he maneuvered his new motorized wheel chair, furnished by the Lions, among club members at a recent meeting, it would be impossible to feed all the people attending the big pancake festival.

Proceeds from last year's jamboree paid for the wheelchair, along with scores of pairs of eye glasses, assistance for other unfortunate persons, and many other special projects. The club's annual budget for its benevolent program exceeds $10,000.

Yes, this makes it all worthwhile . . . and all of the work in connection with the jamboree is done by club members, with assistance from the Lion Tamers Club and the Midland Leo Club.

Don't forget also that top caliber entertainment will be furnished throughout the day.

Saturday is Lions Pancake Jamboree Day in Midland . . . and you are invited!

Fine Line, Indeed!

There seems to be a fine line—a very fine line—between the sale of cookies and candy.

And the Texas Camp Fire Girls are not at all happy with the difference between candy and cookies as determined by Texas Comptroller Bob Bullock.

In fact, the Camp Fire Girls organization has filed suit in district court at Austin claiming that Bullock discriminates between cookie and candy sales girls.

The Girl Scouts, as most persons are aware, conduct annual Girl Scout cookie sales, while the Camp Fire Girls sell candy.

The court suit seeks to retrieve $13,248 for the Fort Worth-based Texas Council of Camp Fire Girls, Inc. This is the sum which has been paid, under protest, in sales tax and interest on candy sold by Camp Fire Girls in 1971, 1972 and 1973 . . . after Bullock had determined the candy sales were taxable.

In its petition, the Camp Fire Girls organization maintains there is no distinctive difference between a "cookie" and "candy." Many a parent will agree.

A spokesman for Bullock, however, maintains there is a difference when it comes to sales taxes. He said candy is a luxury and cookies are not. Under state law food is not subject to sales taxes.

It would appear in this particular case the line would be too dim to be seen by the comptroller . . . but the court will have to decide.

DEMOCRATIC CANDIDATES—

There Is No Clear Winner In Sight!

By JAMES CARY
Copley News Service

WASHINGTON — At the first turn in the race for the Democratic presidential nomination the five announced candidates are running close together with no clear winner in sight.

If there is a leader, 17 months before the nominating convention, it presumably would have to be Sen. Henry Jackson of Washington who is out front (1) on the issues, (2) in having a professional organization in place, and (3) in financing.

Presumably Sen. Lloyd Bentsen of Texas is a distant second.

After that you can make your own guess at the relative standings of Arizona congressman, Morris Udall, former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter, and former Sen. Fred Harris of Oklahoma.

Yet far more important to the final outcome than this early jockeying for position is the unannounced candidates. Some or all of them could be injected into the race at any time with unforeseen consequences.

Certainly the most potent of these at the moment is Gov. George Corley Wallace of Alabama, whose proved vote-getting ability in both 1968 and 1972 made him into a power to be reckoned with in the party.

Sen. Edmund Muskie of Maine, the 1968 Democratic vice presidential candidate, and for a time the leading aspirant for the 1972 presidential nomination, likewise continues to demonstrate strength in the polls.

Old war-horse Sen. Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota also can never be totally ruled out as a possible contender. Humphreys won the nomination in 1968 and came from way back to almost nip the eventual winner, Republican Richard Nixon, in the general election that year.

Sen. Frank Church of Idaho most certainly has to be considered another dark horse possibility. The party's liberal wing, left without a leader after both Sens. Walter Mondale of Minnesota and Edward Kennedy of Massachusetts announced they would not run, has indicated considerable interest in Church as the man who could pick up their fallen banner.

Church should be in a favorable position in the months ahead to test the political winds.

He will be receiving considerable exposure as chairman of the Senate select committee investigating the Central Intelligence Agency. So far, however, he has rejected suggestions he might become a candidate.

That leaves two other possibilities, both remote: Sen. George McGovern, whose crushing defeat when he was the Democratic nominee in 1972 seems to rule him out as a serious contender this time, and Ted Kennedy, who so

WASHINGTON — In their zeal to nail crooked narcotics agents, federal inspectors have used Watergate-style tactics, which have violated the laws they sought to enforce.

One detective, accused of taking a bribe in a dubious case, was told he had three choices: He could cooperate with the inspectors, take his chances on a prison term or commit suicide. He shot himself to death after pleading his innocence in a suicide note.

We have uncovered several elaborate hoaxes, which were developed by the inspectors to entrap agents. Sometimes, the inspectors actually instigated crimes to determine whether suspected lawmen would take bribes.

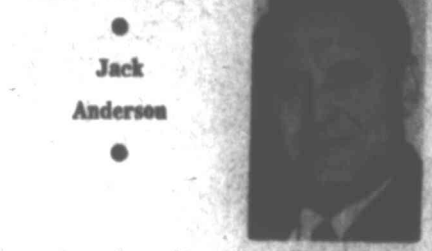

The overzealous inspectors used bugged informants, phony identification papers and other tactics reminiscent of the notorious White House plumbers.

The questionable cases seem to center upon Andy Tartaglino, the soft-spoken, bespectacled former No. 2 man at the Drug Enforcement Administration. It was Tartaglino, for example, who made the fatal suicide suggestion.

His supporters describe him as a "brilliant and innovative" investigator. But we have learned that his tactics have forced the government to drop the prosecution of at least half a dozen cases.

In one case, a narcotics agent was provided with a phony identity and two loaded pistols. He was purposely arrested on a firearms charge. Then he bribed a New York assistant district attorney to help him beat the rap.

Judge Henry Friendly threw out the case on jurisdictional grounds. But he also scolded Tartaglino and the prosecutors for attempting "to set up a federal crime."

Jack Anderson

Declared the judge: "We do not at all share the government's pride in its achievement of causing the bribery of a state district attorney by a scheme which involved lying to New York police officers and perjury before New York judges and grand jurors."

The court records in another case charge that an underworld informant, working with Tartaglino, "violated the federal narcotics laws without being arrested for the violation and was arrested for other criminal acts but not prosecuted."

The informant was used to get evidence against two narcotics agents. Tartaglino's conduct of the investigation, according to our sources, led to a suspended sentence for one of the defendants.

The mild-mannered Tartaglino, while acknowledging his role in these investigations, told us the prosecutors made the decision to go ahead.

We sent our associate Bob Owens to New York City to check out the suicide case, which involved a New York police detective named Joe Nunziata. Ironically, Nunziata wasn't the target of the investigation. Tartaglino merely wanted to bring pressure on him to cooperate.

At government expense, Tartaglino flew a former informant, Carlo Dandolo, to the United States from Italy. Dandolo

INSIDE REPORT—

Hussein Of Jordan: A King In Waiting

By ROWLAND EVANS
and ROBERT NOVAK

AMMAN, Jordan — Israel's failure last summer to conduct serious negotiations with King Hussein of Jordan over the West Bank of his kingdom has returned to haunt Israel, a fact made brutally clear here by the King and his ministers as they publicly wash their hands of the Arab-Israeli struggle.

Even Secretary of State Henry Kissinger has quietly admitted to Hussein that a golden chance was ignored after the Israeli-Syrian disengagement agreement last May.

"Dr. Kissinger had access to our plan for Israeli withdrawal from the Jordan River," a key minister told us privately. "But when he showed it to the Israelis, all they talked about was continuing military control of the entire West Bank." So Jordan's plan got nowhere.

With Jordan out of the bargaining game and both Israel and the U.S. headed for deep embarrassment when the Geneva conference reconvenes, the doughty little King relaxes on his exotic beaches at Agaba grinning like a royal Cheshire cat.

Hussein has no intention of filling an empty chair at Geneva created by these two factors: first, Israel's refusal to start serious negotiations last summer with Jordan over the future of the West Bank, which would have attached Jordan into the Geneva framework as their West Bank bargaining partner; second, the Arab decision at Rabat designating the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO) as "sole representative" of the Palestinians who live on the Israeli-occupied West Bank.

Israel is deadly serious, more so today following the murderous PLO raid on Tel Aviv, in saying it will never negotiate with PLO. But if not with the PLO, with whom will Israel negotiate over the crux of the Arab-Israeli struggle, the West Bank?

Not King Hussein, who is positioning himself far from public involvement in Arab efforts to regain the Palestinian West Bank for the PLO.

"We've been carrying baggage for our Arab brothers too long," one royal adviser told us with some anger. "Those who want gold must mint it themselves." In short, Hussein won't risk any more black eyes or broken arms to recover the West Bank when all the Arab states have decreed that the land and its people should be returned to the PLO, not Jordan.

The prospect of an empty chair at Geneva has already produced signs that Egypt and possibly other Arab states now regret their designation of the PLO as "sole representative" and would like to restore Hussein to a principal role in dealing with Israel for return of the West Bank. But even if another Arab summit did reverse the earlier decision at Rabat, Hussein would not come running.

Far from it. Hussein and his prime minister, Zaid Fifei (who is also defense and foreign minister), have "conditions" they would insist on. One obvious condition: If Jordan acts as the Arab agent to retrieve the West Bank from Israel, Jordan's old plan for final political settlement must be given a fair chance. That plan: a federation of the Hashemite kingdom of Jordan (now limited to the East Bank) with the Palestinian West Bank, creating a united Arab kingdom.

Although Hussein and Fifei won't talk specifics, that would clearly mean a fair referendum among Palestinians on the West Bank, letting them choose between a united kingdom or a PLO-style government or perhaps some third alternative. The referendum would be binding.

But Hussein does not seem impatient over his isolation. One official explained it this way: "I used to think we couldn't live without the West Bank, but we are living well." Hussein has radically changed his constitution and reorganized his parliament to take account of the West Bank's new status. The success of his economic development program, financed by Arab oil money with U.S. and other Western help, has surprised U.S. diplomats here.

So Hussein is biding his time, watching other Arab states try to come to terms with Israel and each other.
