Weather Change Likely

Effects of a spring storm stretching from the northern Rockies into New Mexico threatened unpleasant changes in Texas weather today.

Forecasters looked for a cold front spreading farther south to reach into the Big Bend country of far West Texas by early Thursday. And while it still approached, a warning went up for motorists about high winds in Southwest Texas, where gusts up to 60 miles per hour were expected during the day.

A special advisory from the National Weather Service said high-topped vehicles should be taken into mountain passes of the wind belt only for necessary trips.

Blowing sand was promised on the South Plains.

At the same time prospects were seen for increasing clouds and probable showers or thunderstorms the next couple of days in other parts of the state. It was generally clear this morning, except for overcast skies in the Lower Rio Grande Valley.

With south and east winds due to shove damp air inland from the Gulf of Mexico, official observers called for light rain.

U.S. Begins Massive Viet Airlift

Da Nang Defense Pledged

SAIGON, South Vietnam (AP)—The United States began a massive airlift of refugees from Da Nang today and President Nguyen Van Thieu vowed his troops would "fight to the death if necessary" to defend the isolated northern city.

Thieu also urged the United States to take "immediate and strong reaction and rapidly provide sufficient support for our troops to fight."

In Washington, meanwhile, Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger told a news conference today that his concern about Indochina was the potential betrayal of loyal allies if Congress goes through with plans to cut off aid to South Vietnam and Cambodia.

All Questions Cited

The fundamental question, Kissinger said, is "whether we will deliberately destroy an ally by withholding aid."

In an effort to rally the nation after the loss of 11 of 44 provinces and half its territory to a North Vietnamese drive, Thieu made two radio addresses during the day. He said he had ordered the army to hold all of the remaining land.

He acknowledged that the central highlands and most of northern South Vietnam, including the old imperial capital of Hue, had been lost. But he said he would draw the line at Da Nang against the North Vietnamese advance.

Counteroffensive Vowed

Thieu also pledged to mount a counteroffensive and vowed to stay in office "until our complete victory."

The American evacuation flight, which also flew some American consulate officials, began shortly after Viet Cong rockets smashed into the giant Da Nang air base.

U.S. officials said a World Airways Boeing 727 made two runs between Da Nang and Saigon to start the evacuation of 350,000 to 500,000 refugees from the northern city. At last count there were more than 300 Americans in Da Nang, 300 miles northeast of Saigon.

It was expected that a second plane, a Flying Tiger Boeing 747 jumbo jet, would be put into service Thursday. Officials said it can carry between 1,200 and 1,600 persons. The bulk of refugees will be flown to Cam Ranh.

Conferees Urged To Pass House Version Of Tax Bill

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Ford today urged Senate conferees on a compromise tax cut bill "basically to accept the House bill with minor revisions."

Ford also was described as encouraged by the conference committee's progress as it met again behind closed doors to hammer out a bill that could win quick approval in both chambers.

Ford made public a letter to House Speaker Carl Albert in which he said the Senate version "goes far beyond the purpose of providing a quick stimulus and mortgages our economic future in a way that is unacceptable to me." Ford did not mention specifically a veto, promising to work with Congress "as long as necessary to ensure the American people a reasonable tax cut which will stimulate the economy without jeopardizing its future." The letter was dated Tuesday.

With Congress ready to reconvene for Easter, the Senate and House negotiators were at odds over a tax credit for new home buyers and the oil depletion allowance.

The conferees agreed Tuesday that the final bill will include a general 10 per cent rebate of last year's taxes up to a $200 maximum. There would be a minimum $100 rebate, except that anybody who paid under $100 last year would just get all of it back from the government.

Under pressure from the President to reduce the size of the tax cut, the conferees also begin to trim the $34.4 billion tax bill voted by the Senate.

Ford's press secretary, Ron Nessen, told reporters today the President was "encouraged by the fact they are whacking money out of the bill, killing amendments and acting with a certain amount of speed." Once the bill goes to him, the President has indicated he "wants to sleep on it," Nessen said. The spokesman said there would be no reaction from Ford for a few days to the final congressional tax decisions.

Ford has said the final figure must be held down, lest Congress make the bill "so bad it's easy to veto." If Ford vetoes the bill, he might call Congress into special session next week, forcing the lawmakers to give up their own recess. The White

Kissinger Says U.S. To Be In Touch With Russia On Reconvening Middle East Peace Conference

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger today said the United States would be in touch with the Soviet Union in the near future on reconvening the Middle East peace conference in Geneva.

"The step-by-step approach" he pursued to arrange an Arab-Israeli settlement "has suffered a setback," Kissinger told a nationally broadcast news conference, and the situation now requires a new method.

He warned the Arabs and Israelis to moderate their public statements and actions in what he said was still a time of great danger.

"A moment of potentially grave danger is not a time to engage in recriminations," Kissinger said.

He added in an indirect reference to the Soviet Union that this is also not the time for outside powers to act irresponsibly.

Saying he would entertain any other ideas for a Middle East solution, Kissinger stated

Odessa Faces Possible Suit For Water Pollution Violations

AUSTIN—The City of Odessa today faced the possibility of a state lawsuit for alleged water pollution violations after the Texas Water Quality Board (TWQB) agreed Tuesday to ask Texas Atty. Gen. John Hill to file suit.

Gus Herlik, State Health Department representative on the board, said he hoped a suit would encourage other cities to follow guidelines. He said, "This will make Odessa the example (for other cities) for what we're trying to do."

Patrick Finn, TWQB lawyer, alleged Odessa had allowed unauthorized discharges of treated sewage into Moravian Bay.

Odessa Mayor Dan Hemphill told the board, "I'm very concerned about the situation and more concerned that it gets corrected."

"Everybody says it takes the first year for a mayor to know what's going on in his city," Hemphill told the board. "Well, it's any consolation, I've been mayor for only 11 months."

Hemphill said steps were being taken to improve sewage treatment facilities. Miss Finn charged Odessa officials had been making the same claim for five years.

Miss Finn said the TWQB had counted seven similar pollution violations since February.

Odessa City Mgr. Ron Nabors attributed much of the problem to heavy rains in West Texas.

Dick Whittington, deputy TWQB director, said, "There is no question but what Odessa made discharges from Lagoon No. 1, and that's in direct conflict with the permit."

"We will follow religiously our permit" from this time forward, Hemphill told the board.

City Council, MC Board To Confer On Possible Site Of Theatre Centre

By GEORGE MASSEY

Representatives of the Midland Community Theatre were advised by the Midland City Council Tuesday that a 4-acre site on Wadley Street is valued extremely high, and that an attempt to get a new Theatre Centre located on the Midland College campus would be studied during the next two weeks.

The council decision to confer with the college board on a possible location of the theater on the campus came after two MCT members told councilmen prior attempts at locating the facility on college property had failed.

F. H. McGuigan, president of the theater's board of governors, said, "The theater is most interested in acquiring a site for a new plant just south of Midland College on Wadley Street."

McGuigan said that on March 13 the board passed a resolution for the theater building committee to prepare an application requesting a specific part of the Wadley Street property be designated as a "planned community theater district" and be made available for purchase.

He said the theater governors had indicated the 4-acre tract immediately east of the 2100 block of Wadley Street as that portion of land the plant would be located on.

Art Cole, theater director, told the council that "Midland Community Theatre has outgrown its facilities at 2301 W. Indiana St." He said, "Our programming, activities and membership have reached a plateau — stayed there for several years and are now dangerously close to falling back."

Cole said facts have indicated the advisability of attempting expansion on the present site would be "extremely costly and unwise for a number of reasons." He said it has been determined to seek a site for a new structure.

Cole said during the last three years the theater has outgrown its facility and in the same period Midland College has

Wailing Arabs Mob Coffin Of Faisal

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP)—Thousands of wailing Arabs mobbed the coffin of assassinated King Faisal before the world's richest monarch was buried in an unmarked grave today.

It was the only public portion of the simple funeral rites prescribed by the puritanical Wahabi sect of Islam.

Bathed by Moslem holy men, shrouded in a seamless white sheet, Faisal's bullet-torn body lay in El Eid mosque in Riyadh, the capital of Saudi Arabia, while princes and commoners chanted "Allah akbar," God is great.

Faisal's brother, the new 62-year-old King Khaled, wept as he prayed over the body. He was flanked by members of the royal family and 16 other kings, presidents and premiers.

Radio stations in Kuwait, Egypt, Syria and the United Arab Emirates hooked in with Riyadh state radio to broadcast live coverage of the event.

The wailing of the crowd outside the mosque could be heard over the chants of the muezzin, the Moslem priest.

He intoned: "Regard not as dead those that are killed for the sake of God... O ye true soul, return to thy God willingly and join my slaves in paradise."

The prayers lasted for 10 minutes. Then the body was placed in a simple wooden coffin and carried outside the mosque from shoulder to shoulder by the waiting crowd.

An emotion-choked radio announcer said crowds of mourners fought to touch the coffin before it was turned over to the Ulama, the Moslem holy men, for private burial without fanfare or a tombstone. The Wahabis do not mark graves because they believe veneration of the dead detracts from worship of Allah.

Earlier, King Khaled and his 52-year-old brother, Crown Prince Fahd, received pledges of allegiance from princes of the royal family, military commanders, Moslem religious leaders, Bedouin tribal chiefs and commoners.

Khaled, and Fahd at his side, were dressed in traditional flowing white robes with brown checks trimmed with gold. For 94 minutes, the new king's subjects approached the throne one by one, placed their hands on the Koran, and made their pledges.

The hundreds of Saudis in the royal court and thousands of citizens massed outside the government palace chanted "God is great" and "May Allah be with you."

A sobbing radio announcer reported that King Khaled burst into tears, starting a chain reaction among the audience.

Legg called the use of the draw "a very needless thing, and a very undesirable method of disposing of effluents." He suggested that an alternative would be to use the additional effluents, when a runoff did occur, for irrigation. Legg said it would evaporate quicker and "would certainly not do the damage" of going down the draw.

The public hearing of the amendment to the existing application was held Jan. 15, where 25 persons objected to using the draw, even occasionally, for sewage discharge. Officials of the City of Midland did not present any testimony at the meeting before the water quality board, but claimed at the public hearing that the few discharges never left city property.

U.S. Airlift Begins

Bay, 250 miles south of Da Nang.

The Saigon command said the Viet Cong blasted the area around the large Da Nang air base with 14 122mm rockets in a pre-dawn attack that killed six civilians and wounded 38. It was the first rocket attack in the area since South Vietnamese provinces began falling to the Communists three weeks ago.

Former Prime Minister Nguyen Cao Ky, one of Thieu's bitterest rivals and harshest critics, emerged from political retirement to lead a meeting of military officers and politicians opposed to Thieu. Their plan, sources said, was for Thieu to give his power up to a "National Salvation Front" composed of moderate and leftist groups.

In Cambodia, 300 government soldiers, east of Phnom Penh, walked away from their defensive positions Tuesday, field reports said. The government's 1st battalion completely abandoned its position at Svay Chrum, on the east bank of the Mekong River, by nightfall, reports said. A number of soldiers crossed the Mekong by swimming or holding on to empty ammunition boxes.

The White House said Army Chief of Staff Gen. Frederick C. Weyand is flying to Saigon with orders from President Ford to assess the military situation and determine what additional help might be needed. Weyand was the last U.S. commander in Vietnam.

The U.S. Navy carrier Hancock, with 16 Marine helicopters and 300 men aboard, steamed from Honolulu toward Indochina waters to evacuate Americans from Cambodia or Vietnam — including Da Nang — should the airport there be closed.

In his radio address, Thieu indicated he had no plans to resign: "I shall be beside you to fight until our complete victory."

"We are now faced with the decisive battle of our history," he said. "Once again, the Communists have openly invaded the territory of South Vietnam."

"We have to fight hard to save our nation, to check the advance of the enemy, to destroy them and finally to proceed to a counteroffensive."

Money Appropriated For Work-Training Center Purchase

An appropriation of $26,500 from revenue sharing funds was approved by the Midland City Council Tuesday for the purchase of a work-training center for the handicapped.

Councilmen voted to appropriate the funds from revenue sharing after taking the purchase plan out of the Community Development Act program last week.

The training center is presently being operated by the Mental Health and Mental Retardation Center here. The facility is operated in the old Williams Feed Store on East Highway 80.

The building will be leased to the MHMR center by the city for a nominal fee.

Councilmen discussed the action on Midland's recent acquisition of the old Post Office site and noted that study would continue on making the facility into a public park.

The council said negotiations with surrounding property owners would be opened in an effort to obtain the extra area needed for the park.

James Brown, city manager, said the Board of Outdoor Recreation had notified the city that demolition costs on the old Post Office building would be paid by the federal agency.

The council gave approval for the city to join with the Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission in an Emergency Medical Service Plan and indicated approval for the purchase of three ambulances under the program guidelines.

Brown told the council each of the ambulance units will cost from $16,000 to $24,000 and be fully equipped as a paramedical unit with communications equipment.

The council, noted however, that it did not wish to fully obligate itself to the purchase of the ambulance units until further study was made on the emergency medical service program.

A representative of Thomas Ambulance Service was in attendance at the council session and noted that the private concern would still plan to remain in the ambulance business with its present three emergency units.

The representative said Thomas' units had an average call time of less than 15 minutes. He said the private ambulance firm had planned to purchase one of the new emergency units this year, but would not do so if the city got into the program.

The council gave approval authorizing the city to join into the 911 emergency telephone system, but asked that only the Mutual and Oxford exchanges be included in the system.

Royce Brookmole, district manager for Southwestern Bell, said in a letter to the city, "Company policy requires that all exchanges in a municipality be included in a 911 system. This is especially essential in the case of the Locust exchange (which the council asked to be left out because of expense) part of which is inside the city limits and practically all of which is inside Midland County."

The statement continued, "The customer confusion resulting from providing 911 at Locust at a later date would be a negative factor and we cannot recommend this course of action."

The telephone company had suggested that three lines be used on each exchange, but that two lines would be adequate on the Locust exchange if thought necessary by the council.

The three lines from Mutual and Oxford exchanges would amount to fees of $1.50 each per month while the Locust lines would cost the city $51 per month each for their operation.

The council voted to approve specifications and authorize bids for an irrigation system on the municipal golf course at Hogan Park. Brown told the council it is estimated by the parks department that the system will cost approximately $125,000 which would come from revenue sharing funds.

Brown said the installation of the system should begin this winter and be ready for operation by the spring of 1976.

The council approved the closing of the 100 block of Main Street on April 19 for an auction of county surplus property.

Durward Wright said the county would auction off approximately $10,000 worth of equipment from the old courthouse. He said the auction would run from 9 a.m. until 6 p.m. on the 19th, or until all the equipment was sold.

The council approved a request by W. M. Hickey for a zone change from single family to planned district for the construction of an office complex at 3300 and 3302 McGoff Drive. Hickey said the office center would incorporate a single family dwelling design to conform with the present neighborhood.

Kissinger—380 School Election Absentee Ballots Cast

unrelated to congressional action.

As to the Middle East, Kissinger said a reassessment of U.S. policy there, ordered by President Ford, "is not aimed against Israel."

The United States remains "irrevocably committed to the survival of Israel," Kissinger said.

The question of a reduction in aid to the Jewish state is academic at this time, he said, since the assistance request has not been formally settled.

Israel has asked for $2.5 billion in military and economic aid for the upcoming fiscal year.

"We are not approaching this assessment with an attitude toward cutting aid," Kissinger said, only at achieving peace in the region.

"Our approach is aimed at lessening the chance of war," he said.

Kissinger declared that the United States would support a Geneva format in which separate negotiations took place, instead of a mass discussion.

Three hundred eighty absentee ballots were cast Tuesday in the Midland Independent School District trustee election, according to election manager Don Furguson who termed the tally a high turnout.

The deadline for absentee voting is 5 p.m. Tuesday, and persons planning to leave the city over the Easter holiday are urged to cast their votes before leaving.

Furguson said the administration building, where absentee balloting takes place will be open through 5 p.m. on Good Friday for persons who will be out of the city for the April 5 election.

Six persons are vying for two seats on the board of trustees in this year's contest.

Seeking election to Position 3, which will be vacated by retiring trustee Ted M. Kerr, are Johnny Warren, Jerry Pitts, Steve Scott and Mrs. Peggy Redmond.

Running for Position 4 are incumbent Roger Robles and Don Sparks.

Furguson said the record voter turnout in any trustee election was in 1970 when 5,425 votes were cast to fill four trustee positions. Of that total, 963 were cast absentee.

Last year, he said, only 193 votes were cast throughout the entire absentee period. Total votes cast were 1,101 in electing two trustees.

The election is citywide, and all qualified voters may vote for candidates for both school board positions.

LBJ Library Official Due Here Thursday

Gary A. Yarrington, museum curator of the Lyndon Baines Johnson Library in Austin will be in Midland Thursday to formulate plans for the LBJ Room of Midland College's new Learning Resources Center.

Yarrington will meet with Dr. Al G. Langford, MC president; Reagan Legg, president of the board of trustees, and Mrs. J. Howard Hodge.

The LBJ Room, proposed by Mrs. Hodge and approved by the board of trustees in 1973, has long been an interest of the late president's widow, according to Yarrington. "There are a good many items she wants to give to be displayed in the room," he said.

Yarrington will suggest exhibit techniques, arrangements and planning for the many items to be housed in the room, both permanent pieces and some on long term loan. According to Mrs. Hodge, "Mrs. Johnson would like to see this be the finest collection in the state outside of the LBJ Library."

The collection is not to be just a preservation of artifacts and memorabilia, but also a research area for students in government and history. According to Langford, it will be "a room where LBJ's work and accomplishments can be preserved for future generations of the Permian Basin and an ongoing learning environment for students in our institution."

To further the educational process, the room is to be equipped with reading materials, research data and tapes of important historical events.

College officials see the establishment of the LBJ Room as a hallmark of the young school and a unique part of the campus, as well as a fitting contribution to preserving the American way of life during the celebration of the country's Bicentennial.

The high for Thursday is expected to reach the low 70s, with southerly winds 25 to 30 mph, and occasional gusts up to 45 mph this afternoon, decreasing to 20 to 30 mph tonight.

Speed Limit In Alley Lowered

The speed limit in an alley behind Culpeper Court at Lanham was lowered to 10 m.p.h. Tuesday by the city council, and a study to see if all city alley speed limits should be lowered is now under way.

The council agreed to lower the speed limit in the Culpeper Court alley after neighbors in the area complained of heavy traffic and speeding through the paved alley behind their homes.

The present speed limit in alleys is 30 m.p.h. unless otherwise stated, just as on all public-city streets.

The council also voted to change the speed pattern on Garfield Street and eliminate parking on both sides of the street from Wadley Street to FM 868.

The council set the new speed limits at 30 m.p.h. from Wadley to 200 feet north of Maxwell and at 35 m.p.h. from that point to 200 feet north of Haynes and from that point to FM 868 at 40 m.p.h.

Oratorical Contest Winners Announced

Tony Muldrow and Peggy Ellis, both Goddard Junior High School students, were first place winners in the West Side Optimist Club's oratorical contest in the boys' and girls' divisions, respectively.

The contest, held Friday at Midland College, featured competition among 14 junior high and freshman school students.

The winners will now progress to zone competition where students will vie for eligibility in the district meet and, subsequently, $500 scholarships. The subject for the oratorical contest is "Give Me Your Hand."

In boys competition Friday, March Stanley was runner-up and Bradley Dickson was second place. In the girls portion, Amy Davenport took runner up, with Starr Boldrick placing second.

$600 In Checks Reported Stolen

A bank bag said to contain about $600 in cash and checks was reported taken from a service station at 4028 W. Illinois St. about 4:40 p.m. Tuesday.

Chuck Backalew, an employee of the station, told police that he found the bag missing from cabinet about 4:30 p.m. He said he had last handled the bag about 1 p.m.

He told police he believed the bag was taken between 2:30-3 p.m. by juveniles.

Council To Meet With MC Board On Theatre Centre

noted by the theater group, however, that past attempts had failed.

The theater representatives said there had been much concern about which institution would have the controlling hand over the theatre operation, and that administration problems had more or less negated the possibility of locating the plant on the college campus.

He said, however, "There has been a classic gulf between the tracks of these two types of institutions."

Cole said, "We have the opportunity to avoid the gulf between college theater and public theater. We have the opportunity to avoid the duplication of facilities at enormous savings to the taxpayer."

The new building would be designed to be a "virtual duplication" of the existing theater interior, Cole said. The seating capacity would remain at approximately 500, and the audience area and stage would remain the same with only minor changes. He said, however, there would be a second small theater space, seating fewer than 200 people in any of several configurations. The space would be used for television and film production.

Dance Rehearsal Space

Also planned for the new theater plant would be a large studio and rehearsal space solely for dance, "something which is seriously needed in Midland," Cole said.

He said the plant would include a theater library, carpentry shop, set-up and paint areas for full stage settings, off-stage scenery handling and temporary storage spaces, costume shop and costume and property handling and storage areas along with ample rehearsal spaces, all designed to permit simultaneous preparation of several productions.

Cole said the theater would be made for college work a "majority" of the time. He said the new plant would be financed by the voluntary contributions, without tax money, of interested Midlanders and foundations.

But city councilmen told the theater representatives that a recent appraisal report on the Wadley Street property indicates it to be "quite high."

A report by C. E. Hogue, realtor-appraiser, to the city indicated, "If it is your decision to sell as local retail then my recommended price is $2,000,000 (for the entire 26-acre tract). This is about $97,500 per acre across the board."

The council advised the theater group that negotiations with Midland College would be made in an effort to locate the plant on the campus. It was

Eldred Enters Guilty Plea To Murder; Gets 10 Years

James Allen Eldred Jr., 23, has been sentenced to 10 years in the state penitentiary on a guilty plea for the Sept. 20, 1973, shooting death of Henry Moyah here.

He pleaded guilty in open court before 142nd Dist. Judge Percy Pickett who set the punishment.

Eldred is the second of three indicted in the Moyah death to be convicted of slaying Moyah, about 40, a Canadian carnival worker.

In March 1974, Tommy Manus, 22, was convicted in a jury trial of shooting Moyah with a rifle and was sentenced to 20 years under $10,000 bonds.

Deadline Nearing On 55 Speed Bill

AUSTIN (AP) — The House Judiciary Committee today has only one more day when conditions will be at their best for passage of a bill extending the 55-mile-an-hour speed limit without raising $900 million in federal highway funds.

A House-Senate conference committee approved the bill Tuesday night after Rep. Woody Denson, D-Houston, switched his vote.

A two-thirds majority is needed in each house to make the bill go into effect prior to the federal government's April 1 deadline.

Getting 100 votes in the House is expected to be tough enough Wednesday, when most members will be present. Many are officially excused for "important business" on Thursdays, and the legislature has been enjoying three-day weekends so far this session.

The conference committee deadlocked Tuesday afternoon after the Senate Jurisprudence Committee refused immediate consideration of a companion House bill tightening the penalty for speeding between 55 and 75.

Denson and Reps. John Hootenbach, D-Odessa, and Tom Caddick, R-Midland, voted against the extension bill because they wanted the small-fine bill to win approval at the same time. Supporters of the extension bill said it was being held hostage to the small-fine bill.

Denson changed his vote Tuesday night because, he said, some senators convinced him there was no chance to get the Jurisprudence Committee to change its mind and take up the small-fine bill immediately.

A majority of the five members from each house is needed to win approval for a bill in a conference committee.

Some of those who supported the extension bill said they agreed with people like Hootenbach, who decry federal legislation, but they said they were unwilling to risk throwing away $90 million to demonstrate their anger.

"Their mandate is there. It is real," said Sen. Don Adams, D-Jasper. "You're talking about several million dollars to change the highway sign. You're talking about prorating $90 million (for the period when the limit is not extended). You're talking about a possible loss of life."

"I don't know if the Senate is going to adopt a criminal law that says, 'We don't want you to drive over 55, but if you do, we're not going to do much to you.'"

The small-fine bill would limit fines for speeding between 55 and 70 to $25, and it also would prohibit insurance companies from increasing premiums for speeding tickets in that range.

Emergency Farm Bill Faces Senate Debate Challenge

WASHINGTON (AP) — The emergency farm aid bill faces a Senate challenge from those who question whether the government should boost support for tobacco growers while spending other money to discourage smoking.

The measure, scheduled for debate today with a vote expected in the late afternoon, would establish parity for tobacco at 70 per cent, up from the current rate of about 65 per cent.

Sen. Frank E. Moss, D-Utah, says he will attempt to lower the parity level because he finds government support for the tobacco industry inconsistent with other government programs aimed at discouraging smoking.

An aide to Moss said Tuesday, "The government spends $1 million a year to educate the public on the hazards of smoking and then spends $50 million a year to help grow it."

He said the figures were those of the Agriculture Department.

The higher tobacco supports were added Friday by the Senate Agriculture Committee to a House-passed bill.

The Senate panel also voted to raise the parity level for dairy products from 60 per cent to 65 per cent, and to raise support levels for cotton producers.

Parity is a price level set by the Agriculture Department at which a farmer should be able to make a profit on his product.

Establishment of 65 per cent parity means that if the market price of the product falls below 65 per cent of the theoretical parity price, the government begins buying the product to force the market price up to the 65 per cent level.

The tobacco amendment and higher level of milk support increased the chances of a presidential veto.

The Agriculture Department has opposed the higher tobacco supports, which it said steers the administration away from the goal of letting supply and demand set tobacco prices.

Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz has said he would recommend that President Ford veto any bill including the higher parity level for the dairy industry. Ford vetoed a similar bill last December.

The department has estimated that the Senate bill would bring price increases, within one year, of more than 8 cents for a gallon of milk, 10 cents a pound of cheese, and 20 cents a pound of butter. Those estimates are several cents higher in each category than the department said would result from the House-passed bill with lower parity level.

FREDONIA, Ariz. (AP) — Fredonia High School seniors who voted to give up a long-planned trip to California and used most of the trip money they had saved to help a classmate ill with cancer are going after all.

The seniors presented Miles Hatch with a $1,000 check last Friday, his 18th birthday, to help him meet expenses of his treatment.

MC Instructional Staff Pay Raised Cumulative $46,000

Salaries for Midland College instructional staff were raised a cumulative $46,000 for the 1970-71 school year during Tuesday night's meeting of the board of trustees.

The pay hike, which affects 60 instructors and counselors, amounts to $1,000 per year for full-time employees and $11 per semester hour, or a 10 per cent increase, for part-time teachers.

The total payroll for currently employed instructors will be $600,700 next year, compared to this year's total of $554,700.

The trustees, meeting in the college's administration building, approved also the recommendations to hire 13 additional employees for the next school year.

Included in the trustees' approval were positions for a director of learning resources, another librarian, government-history instructor, English instructor, journalism instructor, sociology-anthropology instructor, a basic studies instructional specialist, business instructor, mid-management coordinator, drafting-welding and math instructor, petroleum technology instructor, and industrial engineering and automotive mechanic instructor and a student activity director.

The student activity director, which college President Al G. Langford described as potentially one of the most important positions created for the school, would be in charge of activities ranging from securing speakers and representatives of the performing arts to sponsoring the student senate.

Trustees also approved an "affirmative action program" for the college which states that "Midland College will take affirmative action . . . to insure that every individual receives equal treatment based upon factors other than race, color, religion, age, sex or national origin."

"This plan applies to recruiting, hiring and placement of instructional staff, as well as administrative staff members. The board also approved a discipline and termination policy and a due process policy also were adopted.

In other action, trustees approved the last office error and correction list and an operating agreement for the tennis center which will be built by the college and city pending approval of the Bureau of Outdoor Recreation.

Langford, in addition, announced that the college will be participating in the exceptional teachers building which will be in use July with the student center and physical education building to be finished in June and July, respectively.

The president said the landscaping of the tennis center is continuing, with 50 trees planted to date. Parking in the building will be completed during the Easter break.

When Driving Takes Its Toll—Pay Up!

Dear Heloise:
This is a safety tip for people who drive the toll roads every day.
Take a small sponge and slit four holes, two the size of dimes, and two the size of nickels.
Put double-sided sticky tape on the bottom of the sponge and put in a convenient place in your car.
When you reach the toll barriers, you don't need to take your eyes off the road, just slip the money out of the slots. My husband and I replace the money each day.
Thought this idea might help save people from accidents.

TESTIMONY GIVEN IN CUEVAS TRIAL—

Officer Says He Shot Convict In Head

HOUSTON (AP)—A 5-foot-7 intelligence agent has testified he fired into the head of convict Rodolfo Dominguez, the top shot that ended last summer's Huntsville prison riot.

Winston Padgett of the Texas Department of Public Safety was to be cross-examined today by defense lawyers in the murder trial of Ignacio Cuevas.

The state is seeking the death penalty for Cuevas, the lone survivor among three convicts involved in the 11-day prison escape attempt that left four persons dead. He is charged with the death of a hostage, Mrs. Julia Standley, a prison librarian.

Fired Final Shots

Padgett said Tuesday his nickel-plated nine millimeter automatic was about a foot from Dominguez' head when he fired the final shots after being warned the convict still had a gun.

He said he assumes it was Father Joseph O'Brien, a prison chaplain and hostage, who said "Watch out" or "look out" and "He's got a gun."

"Father O'Brien pointed and I saw movement," Padgett said. "His (Dominguez) right arm started out from under Father O'Brien. I yelled 'Look out, he's going for a gun' or something like that, and I shot him in the head. . . . I continued to point the pistol at his head and he moved. I shot him again. I think I warned 'Watch out' or 'Get back'."

Father O'Brien, who received serious arm and chest wounds in the shootout, said he saw a large man fire the two shots. He said he now knows the man was Padgett but that he did not know at the time where the bullets struck in that all the convicts and the other hostages were either behind or under him.

Pointed To Carrasco

The priest had testified earlier the large man asked the whereabouts of Fred Gomez Carrasco, the leader of the escape attempt. Father O'Brien, giving no indication that he said anything, said he pointed in Carrasco's direction.

The shootout occurred as the three convicts, Father O'Brien, Mrs. Standley and two other women hostages were moving down the prison library ramp toward an armored car. They were using for protection a shield made of blackboards and book bags.

Padgett said he moved onto the ramp a second time after

Woman Says She May Run For Mayor

HOUSTON (AP)— Nancy Palm, Harris County Republican chairman, says she might run for mayor of Houston in the November city election.

She said Tuesday this could happen if no one she can support opposes incumbent Fred Hofheinz, a Democrat.

"I don't want to see Fred Hofheinz re-elected by default," she said. "I'm not announcing for the race, but I'm considering it."

Ancient Indians
Paleo-Indians, big-game hunters of ancient North America, made spearpoints of flint, chalcedon, chert and jasper.

"I became aware of Cuevas after I had shot Dominguez," he said. "I was aware Capt. Pete Rogers (Texas Ranger) and someone else was with him. He had what appeared to be a helmet on. He was seated, slumped more or less forward."

Cuevas and the third woman hostage, Mrs. Novella Pollard, were not injured.

The first effort to topple the shield with water pressure failed and Padgett, Rogers, and Ranger Capt. H. C. Burks said they had to retreat to cover two."

Padgett said he examined Carrasco's head and "the right side was blown away."

Jaworski Says Presidential Pardon Of Nixon Avoided Dilemma For U.S.

HOUSTON (AP)— The presidential pardon of former president Richard M. Nixon avoided a legal dilemma for the United States, former special prosecutor Leon Jaworski said here Tuesday.

Jaworski said there was a natural conflict between the freedom of the press and Richard Nixon's right to a fair trial.

Speaking at a luncheon meeting, the Houston attorney said there was real doubt that Nixon could get a fair trial because of the extensive publicity given the Watergate incident.

And yet, as with any other accused person, said Jaworski, the constitution guaranteed Nixon a fair trial.

He said this principle was overlooked by many, but the lawyer said it, too, must be rigidly upheld for all.

"Constitutional safeguards apply to all," he said. "If they are to be glossed over for the accused, then the erosion of all rights will set in. . . . If we don't let justice prevail, then we're in bad shape. It's the one thing we've got to keep without fail."

"I was convinced that's when they killed the hostages," Padgett said. "I told Capt. Rogers they were shooting the hostages."

"How many muffled sounds did you hear?" asked Dist. Atty. Jerry Sandoz of Huntsville.

"More than one, more than two," Padgett said. "I didn't count."

Padgett said he peeked out a door while the water was off.

"We fired a few times from the door, several people were firing," he said. "Our instructions were to 'Keep your shot high' because Carrasco had told the hostages to stay low if high trouble developed."

Bob Wiatt, an FBI agent, said he heard muffled sounds from within the shield when it was first struck by water.

"I knew the shield was top-heavy, so my strategy was to run out as fast as I could and try to knock it over," Wiatt said.

Strategy backfired. Wiatt said his strategy backfired when he was struck on the right rib cage by a bullet fired from within the shield, with his flak jacket stopping the bullet without his being injured.

"I was going backwards, seeing a high ball of flame, and hearing thunder," he said. "I hit the back wall of the corridor where we waited to start the assault. I must have blacked out. I was practically deaf 30 minutes to an hour."

Rogers and Burks had testified earlier that their jackets had stopped bullets.

More Communists, Civilians Are On Portuguese Cabinet

LISBON, Portugal (AP)— Portugal's military rulers have named a new cabinet with more Communists and more civilians but with military control undisturbed.

Vasco dos Santos Goncalves, a leftist, continues as premier. The new lineup announced by the Information Ministry Tuesday night has 13 civilians and eight military men. In the previous government, the officers outnumbered the civilians.

Communist party leader Alvaro Cunhal remained in the cabinet as a minister without portfolio, and another Communist, Alvaro Oliveira, was named to the new post of secretary of transportation.

A Communist satellite party, the Portuguese Democratic Movement, or MDP, also was brought into the cabinet for the first time. Its representative was named a minister without portfolio.

The same assignment was given Socialist party chief Mario Soares, who had been foreign minister in the previous cabinet. The foreign ministry went to Maj. Ernesto Melo Antunes, a moderate.

Soares' aides said he blocked an attempt to oust Socialist Justice Minister Francisco Salgado Zenha, who has clashed publicly with Goncalves.

The Socialists were unhappy about the increase in Communist representation. But they decided to remain in the government in hopes of checking or slowing the increase in Communist influence.

The centrist Popular Democrats also were added to the government for the first time, represented by another minister without portfolio.

Meanwhile, final authority remains with the 28 military officers of the leftist-dominated Revolutionary Council set up after an attempted conservative coup two weeks ago. The abortive attempt at an uprising resolved a power struggle within the military in favor of the leftists.

Man Who Disclosed Nixon Tapes Leaves FAA Post

WASHINGTON (AP) — Alexander P. Butterfield, the former White House aide who revealed Richard M. Nixon's recording system, is leaving his post as Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) administrator.

His resignation, effective March 21, was accepted Tuesday by President Ford "with sincere regret," according to a White House announcement.

It was an open secret, though, that Butterfield had fallen out of favor with the administration. Sources cited a feud with former Transportation Secretary Claude S. Bringer and criticism over the FAA's air safety performance as the primary reasons.

Although he has served as the agency's head since Nixon appointed him two years ago, most Americans remember Butterfield most as the announced witness who stirred a television audience by telling the Senate Watergate committee of the White House taping system.

Even at that moment, on July 18, 1973, Butterfield had at least a partial sense of the enormity of the revelation. Ordinarily cool and militarily crisp, his head shook and his voice faltered as he took the oath before answering questions about his earlier tenure as a Nixon aide responsible for filing presidential papers and the smooth running of the daily White House schedule.

In his letter of resignation to Ford, Butterfield wrote that he was aware of "your desire to put those of your own choosing into Cabinet and key sub-Cabinet posts."

"Ordinary to some press reports I have never in any way argued or maneuvered for my retention," he said.

According to both Transportation Department and FAA sources, however, at least the timing of the resignation was a matter of considerable haggling. Butterfield was said to have insisted that Bringer's departure precede his own.

Bringer, in turn, reportedly had sought assurances that Butterfield would be leaving before he submitted his own resignation earlier this year.

The two were said to have clashed over several issues, the foremost being whether the FAA should be subservient to the department. Butterfield fought for the agency's autonomy.

The FAA has come under increasing attack from congressmen and other quarters in recent months. Rep. Ralph H. Abner, D-Fl., cited a General Accounting Office report as documenting the agency's "serious disregard for the safety of air passengers."

A House subcommittee reportedly chastised the agency as "moved, groping, including circumstances surrounding two crashes that claimed more than 400 lives."

member staff. The office advised presidents on science-related issues ranging from energy to food.

Nixon dismantled the office in what was officially described as a move to save money and reduce the bureaucracy.

Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller, who was assigned by the President last December to look into the question of reinstating a White House science advisory body, recently came up with a list of possible options.

"But they didn't jibe with the President's views," and Ford has asked Rockefeller to try to come up with some other ideas,

President Won't Re-Establish Office Of Science, Technology

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford has decided not to re-establish the White House Office of Science and Technology dismantled by President Richard M. Nixon.

An aide said Ford instead is leaning toward the idea of creating a small board of science advisers, possibly consisting of three consultants.

Ford has been requested by several scientific associations and some well-known individual scientists to bring back the office, which was created by President Dwight D. Eisenhower after Russia launched its first satellite.

The office had been directed by the president's official science adviser and had a 50-

Simon Sees Light At End Of Economic Woes Tunnel

AUSTIN (AP) — Secretary of the Treasury William Simon has told a cattle industry convention that light can be seen at the end of the nation's tunnel of economic woes.

"I'm not here to tell you prosperity is just around the corner," Simon said. "But there will be some strengthening of prices this spring and summer."

Simon spoke Tuesday to the 56th annual session of the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association.

The secretary said he expected the nation's economy will be on its way to recovery by the end of this year.

Simon said the federal government will take positive steps to help the economy in such areas as guaranteed loans to cattle producers and possible quotas on imported beef.

"As cattlemen you can look to the government for help across the economic valleys to the peaks beyond," Simon said.

The secretary pointed to "bright spots" in today's economy such as more money being deposited in savings institutions and the liquidation of excess stocks by businessmen.

At a news conference before his speech, Simon said he thought a tax bill will come out of Congress before Congress' Easter recess.

Simon said, however, the Senate tax bill reported out last week is "clearly unacceptable."

The Senate bill called for a tax cut of $33.1 billion while President Ford has said he wants a cut of between $16 billion and $20 billion.

"It's a damn shame we have to play politics with the unemployed in this country," Simon said.

Agreement May Get School Finance Reform Moving

AUSTIN (AP) — Legislators can start moving in earnest on school finance reform because of a top-level agreement on an estimate of taxable property values.

House Public Education Committee members didn't want to move without data on what each of the five bills would do to taxpayers in individual school districts.

They were publicly and loudly grouching about the absence of data Tuesday when Chairman Tom Massey returned from a meeting in Gov. Dolph Briscoe's office with an announcement that agreement had been reached.

Several sets of data were available, but the Texas Education Agency will pour into its computer the estimates compiled for Briscoe by Management Services Associates.

House Speaker Bill Clayton, who attended the 4-1/2-hour meeting with Briscoe, Massey and Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, said he looks for a bill to come out of committee in less than two weeks.

Management put together data showing taxable property in Texas school districts, counting automobiles that some districts do not tax, is worth $165 billion.

At the same public education committee meeting, a co-sponsor of Briscoe's school finance bill, Rep. Joe Pentony, D-Houston, jumped ship on the crucial issue of property appraisal.

All school finance bills would tax property as the measurement of a district's need for state aid.

Briscoe would have school districts appraise their property, with a new state equalization agency checking their techniques and figures. But Pentony endorsed a bill by Rep. Wayne Peveto, D-Orange, making county governments responsible for all tax appraisals, with statewide supervision by the comptroller.

"It is my opinion that delivery of money and property tax reform should be separate," Pentony said.

Peveto appeared before the committee to ask the support for bringing his bill to a House vote ahead of the school finance measure to resolve the tax equalization controversy. He contends many legislators won't vote for school finance reform until they are satisfied of equity in property tax appraisals.

Three of the bills before the committee provide additional state aid for "enrichment" of education in districts that tax themselves more than the amounts needed to pay for the basic Foundation School Program. Those measures were prepared by the 1973-74 House Education Committee, the State Board of Education and the Texas State Teachers Association.

Lynn Moak, assistant comptroller for planning research, said the State Board of Education's bill "would substantially equalize for districts that have the students, both in terms of expenditure patterns for current operations and in terms of additional state aid, with more going to poor districts than rich ones.

Moak devised the board's "leeway" plan while a member of the Texas Education Agency staff. It would reward a district's extra taxing effort with "It doesn't pull the higher income districts down but pulls the others up," said Rep. R.E. McAlister, D-Lubbock, sponsor of the board's bill.

Rep. DeWitt Hale, D-Corpus Christi, said there is no way to completely equalize education except for the state to "collect all the money and put all the money out," and that's not politically possible because of the desire for local control.

"The little tin god we worship in Texas is local autonomy in the operation of our school districts," said Hale, the sponsor of the TSTA bill.

Pevevo said the governor's bill has no heavy hands in it because it would leave the foundation program—state aid to local governments by the 40 top Texas school districts.

"We believe it is better to bring the floor up than the top down. The districts that will come off badly are those that are not making a large tax effort—those in the neighborhood of 20 cents per $100 market value," Pentony said.

Housing Market Still Awaiting Buyers

WASHINGTON (AP) — The crippled housing market has seen interest rates decline recently. Mortgage lending institutions report more and more money is available for home buyers. But the market's still waiting for the buyers.

While the number of starts on new houses remains about 40 per cent below a year ago and the mood of home buyers remains cautious, officials are encouraged by the developments in the lending markets.

The latest encouragement for home buyers, home builders and the economy in general came Tuesday in the Federal Home Loan Bank Board's report that in February people deposited $3.1 billion more than they withdrew at savings and loan institutions for the second month in a row. A third $3 billion month is expected for March.

As recently as last September deposits were shrinking by $1 billion a month, drying up what is the industry's largest source of loans. The flood of new money now means easier credit for buyers and builders.

But the Federal Home Loan Bank Board report showed that the new money has not prompted a rash of home buyers eager to get loans.

The volume of loans for February was up only $22 million over January and still $301 million below a year ago.

The small number of loans means "the consumer just isn't in the home-buying mood," said Kenneth J. Thygeson, an economist for the U.S. League of Savings and Loan Associations. "Our people are actively promoting loans. We're willing and able to lend the money," Thygeson said. "But we still have an awful lot of uncertainty in this economy."

Thygeson said he was encouraged by the increase in February of nearly $1 billion in loan offers by savings and loan associations. It was the first significant increase in loan commitments since April.

But he said consumers still appear reluctant to take on stable new obligations because inflation has reduced the spending power of their take-home pay by 5 per cent over the last year.

And the 10 per cent-a-year inflation in new home prices over the last two years also has dampened the housing market.

But Thygeson said he expects builders to react with stripped-down, lower-priced houses this year.

'Very Dangerous' Spring Storm Brings Warnings, Advisories To 12 States

By The Associated Press

A new spring storm, termed "very dangerous" by forecasters, churned into the central Rockies today and brought warnings and advisories in a dozen states from Canada to the desert Southwest.

Heavy snow, high winds and colder temperatures were the prime ingredients of the second major storm to develop in the West in less than a week. Parts of the northern Plains and upper Great Lakes still were digging out of a blizzard that hit Sunday and Monday.

Winter storm warnings were issued for North and South Dakota, Montana, Wyoming, Utah and Arizona. Warnings to stockmen or travelers were in effect in Idaho, Nevada, Nebraska, Colorado and Southern California. Colorado was alerted for heavy snow as well. A winter storm watch was out for New Mexico.

Winds gusted at 72 miles per hour at Twin Falls, Idaho, during the night. Gusts to 58 m.p.h. rocked Moorcroft, Wyo. Seven inches of snow piled into Havre, Mont., 4 inches sifted onto Salt Lake City, and wet snow began at Flagstaff, Ariz., at midnight. Blowing dust and sand prompted the travel advisories.

In mountain and desert areas of Southern California.

Light snow from the earlier storm lingered today from the Great Lakes region and upper Ohio Valley into the interior Northeast. Light rain fell in warmer areas along the northern Atlantic Coast.

Melting of heavy snows from previous storms pushed the Rock and Pecatonica rivers in northern Illinois toward record crests, expected today at some points. More than 2,000 persons were out of their homes in the Rockford and Freeport areas.

Fair skies were the rule in much of the Far West, the upper Mississippi Valley and across the South from Texas to Florida.

Unseasonably cold weather persisted over most of the country. Freezing temperatures extended into the southern Appalachians.

Airline Cracks Down On Workers

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — East African Airways, the airline jointly operated by Kenya, Uganda and Tanzania, has launched a crackdown on employees involved in smuggling of narcotics.

Several airline employees have been charged in recent months with smuggling marijuana from Kenya to Britain.

The airline's director-general, Col. G. W. Toko, of Uganda, has asked associations representing flight crew and cabin staff for their assistance in reporting any of their members suspected of being involved in drug trafficking.

George Parr Is Trying To Retain Firm Grip On South Texas Area

SAN DIEGO, Tex. (AP) — George Parr, mixing joviality and anger, is still trying to retain the firm grip on the political life of this South Texas country that has earned him the title of Duke of Duval for nearly half a century.

Parr, 74, and fighting a five-year prison sentence for tax evasion, fired a few blasts at his political opponents Tuesday shortly after he saw his nephew, Duval County Judge Archer Parr, removed from his job under a district court order.

The main target of Parr's attack was Clinton Manges, a banker-rancher who apparently has thrown himself into the struggle for political control of Duval County between the Parris and the Carrillo family.

Rare Interview
Manges, Parr contended in a rare interview with reporters at the offices of the San Diego school board, has put a "bridle and rein" on Dan Tobin, the man appointed to replace the younger Parr.

Asked if Manges, who has a ranch in Duval County and controlling interests in banks in Bexar and Starr counties, was trying to take over political control of the county, Parr chuckled: "Listen, he can't any more take over Duval County than I can take wings and fly to heaven."

But Manges, he added, "is telling Tobin what to do. Tobin owes a hell of a lot of money to Manges."

Parr, whose prison sentence was upheld by the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals Monday, also predicted that two figures in the power struggle in Duval County will be indicted by a federal grand jury in Corpus Christi Friday. He said Manges has made a trip to Austin to arrange for bond money and lawyers for the two men.

Manges, who at one time ap-

Possible New Consumer Agency Has Broadcasters Trifle Uneasy

By JAY SHARBUITT
NEW YORK (AP) — License renewal time often is an uneasy period for a broadcaster, especially if one or more citizen groups has asked the Federal Communications Commission to deny the renewal.

But broadcasters may become even more uneasy if a federal "Agency for Consumer Advocacy" proposed in a Senate bill is allowed to intervene in the license renewal process.

The measure would let the agency intervene on behalf of consumers during proceedings of various federal regulatory agencies, including the FCC.

Despite claims that it's doubtful the ACA ever would intervene in broadcast license renewal cases, the National Association of Broadcasters is trying to block out that provision.

Spokesman for the Senate Government Operations Committee, which this month approved the bill H.R. 11-1, emphasizes that it narrowly limits ACA intervention to cases of "substantial" consumer interest in a "marketplace transaction" where buying and selling occurs.

Dick Wegman, the committee's chief counsel, says it's highly unlikely the proposed agency ever would intervene in a license renewal case because "there's no marketplace transaction involved."

"As a practical matter, ACA wouldn't get into license renewal simply because the (proposed) budget is too limited," says Jerry Murphy of Congress Watch, a group formed by consumer advocate Ralph Nader, who supports the pending ACA bill.

Murphy says the agency might intervene in major cases involving the national consumer interest, "but it would be absurd to envision the ACA going in on every single license renewal. It's impossible."

The NAB, the leading broadcast group, represents the three TV networks, 641 TV stations and 4,885 radio stations. It says it takes no public position on the bill in general, or the FCC's specific inclusion in it.

It says it's only fighting the provision giving the ACA power to intervene in license renewal cases because it feels "there is no demonstrable need for a new federal agency to intervene in a process in which there already is substantial public participation."

Campy Musical Film Due In April

By NANCY ANDERSON
Copley News Service
HOLLYWOOD — Jay Robinson turns dancer to introduce what he calls "The Vampire Drag" in "The Night Train," a campy musical movie with a Hollywood nostalgia theme due for April release.

Underwritten by London Deca Records and starring The Blood Stone, the movie is set in old Hollywood and features actors representing and made up to look like famous, former stars (Humphrey Bogart, W.C. Fields, etc.).

"The producer must have gotten releases from families and estates," Jay says, "because he gave the real names of real stars to most of the cast, but I was an exception.

"I'm simply called 'The Vampire Count,' so I guess the producer couldn't get a release to cover You-Know-Who.

"I wear a long cape, and vampirish makeup, but am really a very sweet guy who dances and who simply adores funerals.

"When I was called in to talk about the part, I was introduced for the first time to record people who, as it turned out, were all very young and wore long hair.

"The first thing they asked was, 'Do you dance?' and I enacted Warren Beatty's boss in "Shampoo," and a George Lincoln Rockwell-type in "Three The Hard Way," and next he'll interpret the Marquis de Sade in "Zerk" with Vincent Price.

"I'd like to play a nice, normal, straight guy," he says. "You don't hear many truly nice Hollywood stories, but Jay tells one about Robert Towne, the 'Shampoo' writer.

As you probably remember, Jay was a major star after he played Caligula in "The Robe" but then suffered a series of vicissitudes including a term in prison after which he had to rebuild his career. His background is necessary to an

Hit Record Reopens Door For Al Martino

Copley News Service
HOLLYWOOD — Al Martino's new record, "To the Door of the Sun," (out as a single and also on an album) has reopened the door to the sunny side of the street for the singer whose "Here in My Heart" brought him a gold record in 1952 but who's gone through some hard times since.

"It's great!" Martino beams. "People are calling me again. An editor from Savannah, Ga., called to talk about the record which he says is a big hit there."

In addition to his gold record for "Here in My Heart," Martino also has one for "Blue Spanish Eyes," and he says sales of his "I Love You Because" also passed the magic million mark.

But the gold record for that one was never made up and delivered, Al explains, because he was living abroad at the time.

"I guess I ought to look into that," he muses, "and see if they can't make up that gold record now."

The songs in "To the Door of the Sun" album "have been in the can three years," Martino says, adding that they were recorded but temporarily left on the shelf because in some cases the rights were clouded or there were other complications regarding the titles.

"Then in December," Al continues, "I took about two weeks out to get everything cleared up so that we could release the album."

Due to the success of his new record, Martino, who opened recently at The Palmer House in Chicago, is "having a very busy three months."

"A good record is worth its weight in gold," he says gratefully. "I'm getting 10 times more exposure from this one than I got from my role in 'The Godfather.'"

(Martino played Johnny Fontane, a "family" sponsored singer in the original "Godfather II.")

"I'm getting a feeling from the Detroit symphony about singing with them and from the Cincinnati symphony," the happy crooner continues, "and I'm equipped for that kind of appearance because I've sung with the BBC Radio Symphony Orchestra.

"My only act is singing, and that's what I'm going to do on my upcoming tour.

"I detest special material, I can be as artsy as anyone, but I'm not going to be, because I believe in giving the public songs it can understand.

"Pretty soon, I think I'll record a religious album."

Bill Would Set Up Visitors Center
Austin Bureau
AUSTIN — A visitors center at McDonald Observatory would be authorized under a bill reported favorably to the House by a house committee.

The bill would allow The University of Texas System to accept grants and gifts to finance the center.

Rep. Richard Reynolds of Richardson was skeptical, saying he wondered whether the university system has some money for the project and wanted to bypass the appropriation system.

Final Tryout Slated Tonight
A third and final tryout session to fill the nine male roles in Midland Community Theatres next attraction, "The Last Meeting of the Knights of the White Magnolia," will be held tonight at Theatre Centre.

The comedy by Dallas playwright Preston Jones is scheduled to open here in early May as MCT's third offering of its 1975 season. Today's tryouts will begin at 8 p.m. and will be open to all interested city and area residents. Persons do not have to be members of MCT to qualify for parts in the production.

Religious Movie To Be Shown Here
"Sound of the Trumpet," a new religious motion picture produced by Ken Anderson Films, will have a showing Thursday night at Faith Temple Church, 1606 N. Terrell St.

Described as one of the most unusual and meaningful pictures ever produced, the 85-minute color film currently is being shown nationwide by churches and organizations as a vital document of events in today's world. The Thursday screening here, scheduled for 8 p.m., will be open to the public, according to the Rev. W. C. Kensa, host pastor.

Snelson Measures Okayed By Senate
Austin Bureau
AUSTIN — Sen. Pete Snelson of Midland has won passage in the Senate of two measures he introduced.

Passed Monday was a bill to permit the Department of Mental Health-Mental Retardation to assist and fund local community centers for delinquent and pre-delinquent youth. The bill was sent to the House by a 30-1 vote.

Another bill passed on voice vote. It would increase the per diem pay of the State Board of Medical Examiners from $50 to $100.

40 Arctic Musk Oxen Are Heading Back To Siberia

WASHINGTON (AP) — A million years after their ancestors evolved in north-central Asia, 40 arctic musk oxen from Alaska will head back to Siberia aboard Soviet cargo planes as part of a U.S.-Soviet exchange of endangered animal species.

Soviet scientists are to arrive today in New York and then fly on to Alaska to join their American counterparts in overseeing capture and shipment of the hulking shaggy animals, which are now extinct in Siberia.

Eskimos piloting snowmobiles will catch the musk oxen whose forebears migrated from Asia across a then-existing land bridge on Nunivak Island, a national wildlife refuge off the western Alaska coast.

The 700-pound animals will then be loaded into Soviet Ilyushin 14 transport aircraft and flown across the Bering Sea to the northern fringes of Siberia, where the Soviets intend to reestablish oxen herds.

In return, U.S. scientists hope to receive later this year a shipment of Siberian polecats, to help augment a comparable species which could face extinction on this continent.

The animal exchange program, formulated under a 1972 U.S.-Soviet agreement on environmental protection, aims to demonstrate the scientific, non-political benefits of detente.

However, the Interior Department has been reluctant to release full details on the musk oxen project because of concern that it might exacerbate anti-Soviet sentiment in Alaska.

As one Interior Department official explained, "the American commercial fisheries have advanced briefings and coordination with Gov. Jay Hammond.

A Russian was coming into town, all hell could break loose at the Anchorage airport. So the Russian team is just going there," said the Interior Department official.

To help insure state cooperation, E. U. Curtis Bohlen, an Interior deputy assistant secretary, flew to Alaska to confer with Gov. Jay Hammond.

MOST PREFER 13-HOUR DAYS— Insurance Company Employees Like Three-Day Work Week

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — The three-day work week is here for some insurance company employees and a sampling of opinion shows that most like the idea, despite having to work 13-hour days.

Howard Byrd, of Middletown, has found that working three 13-hour days and then having four days off gives him "more time to spend with my family. We've rediscovered each other."

Byrd, a computer operator, works the night shift, 6 p.m. to 7 a.m.

The schedule was initiated at Aetna Life & Casualty to keep the company's large computer operations humming. Company studies show that the 276 employees who are on the three-day week have efficiency ratings comparable to employees on traditional schedules and also have a lower than average absentee rate.

Peter Belanger, who lives in Wethersfield, is a section manager in the short week program. He thinks the night crew is more congenial because "these are the only people you see, and you have to get along."

Dick Mackay, an assistant supervisor from Middletown, says the employees keep from getting tired on their long work days by thinking about the four days off. "You're just looking at that last day."

The company studies show performance declines in two situations — if an employee has a second job, and when the crews switch their work schedule every four months.

When the switch is made, the Monday through Wednesday workers change with the Thursday through Saturday crew and all work six straight days.

"By the sixth day, tempers are a little shorter and people seem a little quieter," Belanger says.

There are some drawbacks, especially for employees who aren't interested in hobbies or who prefer spreading out their work hours. And for some there's a sense of isolation.

1974 Not Good Year In Kenya

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Agriculture in Kenya had a poor year in 1974, mainly due to drought and the higher prices of farm machinery, according to a government report released here.

Coffee production rose marginally from 71,200 tons in 1973 to 72,800 tons. Tea production declined from 56,600 to 50,100 tons. Sisal recorded the biggest increase, from 59,100 tons in 1973 to 75,000 tons last year. Cotton dropped from 16,200 to 14,500 tons and rice fell from 36,100 tons to 34,700 tons. Wheat production went up from 124,600 tons to 136,200 tons and sugar-cane output rose from 1.5 million tons to 1.75 million tons.

M-Cubs Destroy Lafayette, 14-10

By TED BATTLES
M-T Sports Editor

CASA GRANDE, Ariz. — When the Midland Cubs and Wichita Aeros piled off the bus at Scottsdale here Tuesday, from the greeting they received from San Francisco Giants' Lafayette and Phoenix Cardinals, you would have thought it was a family reunion.

When they adjourned from the playing field a little later, you were convinced of it. Both sides greeted opposing pitchers like long-lost cousins as Midland slugged Lafayette, 14-10, for their first exhibition win in three starts.

The Aeros were beating the Pacific League Giants, 9-4 in the other game.

up against the 43-foot sign in center in the third inning and then next time up in the fifth, he closed the same spot with a prodigious homer.

Byron Wilkinson, up from Key West, Donnie Moore, back from last year and Bob Welmore, Chicago batting practice pitcher last year, did the hurling.

Edwards saw all he needed to see in Moore.

"He couldn't get loose the first inning to throw his curve," Doc said. "So I told him to just go with his fast ball. He showed me enough smoke to tell me all I needed to know, so I pulled him after two innings rather than risk something happening."

Surprisingly Welmore had trouble finding the plate in his three innings and was rocked for five runs.

CUB BRIEFS—Today's game is with the Burlington A's in Scotchdale. . . Edwards likes the fact that Wallis, Randall and Mike Gordon are switch hitters.

Gordon, 6-5, 210-pounder, played at Brockton, Mass. High School basketball, baseball, football teams as a senior and led the grid team to a state title.

One reason there is a certain kinship between the Cubs and Giants is that they play several exhibitions and in the past have

BEATS CRANE TO REMAIN UNDEFEATED— Pack Wins 26th Volleyball Game

The Midland High girls got their machine rolling fast Tuesday night as they downed the Golden Cranes 15-1 and 15-4, the 26th straight volleyball win.

Consistency in protecting the server was one of Midland's biggest offensive weapons. The girls rifled 48 of 53 hard to handle serves at the Cranes.

The spiking of the Bulldogs were really impressive. The Pack clobbered the ball to the hardwood on 16 of 20 attempts, while the Crane team failed to make contact with the Bulldog court on a single spike.

In over-all play Tracie Chandler was the leader as she handled the ball 25 times and only had one stray relay throughout the entire contest as she hit from the serving line four times, cut three dinks to the floor and had three great diving saves.

Midland's Sara Moore and

Tammy Holton kept the crowd buzzing with their hard-driven spikes. Sara was impressive as she drove the ball over, through, and around blocks and came away with eight of nine spikes.

Tammy had only one spike blocked and a teammate saved that one, otherwise Miss Holton displayed some magic of her own as she connected on seven of seven for a perfect score in the spiking department.

The Bulldog serving game brought the opposing coach to her feet as well as cheers from the hometown crowd, as Miss Moore kept her opponents off-balance. They just couldn't get a good hit on her baffling serve.

Sara aced four and hit five others as she rifled 9 of 11 from the end-line. Kim Martin drove home eight of nine serves and teammate Tracie Chandler had a perfect night with her knuckleballs as he hit on seven controlled serves.

Directing the Pack's moving court play were the Bulldog sets of Ellen Tubb, Anita Wilson and Kim Martin. Coach Jo Ann Martin thinks her sets are as good as any in the state and after all — how can all those spikes hit the floor if a set didn't put them up to the net in the first place.

The Bulldog will host their cross-town opponent, the Lee Rebels, in the Bulldog gym tonight at 7:30. J.V. starting time will be 6:30.

The Midland Bulldogs downed their opponent to extend their streak to 18 straight. The scores were 15-6, 8-15, and 15-5.

Linda Winberly, Mary Raschke, Staci Moore, and Karen Graham were the big noise makers as they drove numerous spikes to the hardwood. Linda hit on seven of nine, Mary clobbered 10 of 12, Staci rifled four of five, and Karen smoked five without a miss.

McKay Selected All-Star Coach
CHICAGO (AP) — John McKay again will lead College All-Stars in their annual football classic against the National Football League champions Aug. 1 at Soldier Field.

The All-Stars will face the Pittsburgh Steelers this year. Last year there was no All-Star game because of the players' strike.

McKay guided the All-Stars in 1973 when they dropped a 14-3 decision to the Miami Dolphins.

HURLER TRYING TO MAKE PIRATE STAFF— 'Sudden Sam' McDowell Smarter, Not Quicker

BRADENTON, Fla. (AP) — "Sudden Sam" says he's "Smarter-Sam" now.

"I don't think I can throw as hard as often as I used to," said Sam McDowell, the one-time "strikeout king" who in his 11th major league season is trying to make the pitching staff of the Pittsburgh Pirates.

"I throw the fastball on occasion, but I mix in a lot of other pitches," said the 32-year-old McDowell before going out and blanking the Philadelphia Phillies for four innings.

"I never bothered working on breaking pitches before," admitted McDowell. "But now I'm getting them over more now than the fastball. I guess you could say I'm Smart Sam now."

No Breaking Ball
McDowell never needed the breaking ball. He threw nothing but smoke from the time he came up at the age of 18 in 1964 with the Cleveland Indians. He's one of baseball's all-time strikeout pitchers with 2,424, 10th best in major league pitching history. His 8.88 strikeouts per nine innings is second only to Sandy Koufax's 9.23.

The Pirates are enthused about McDowell's showing in spring training. He's worked 10 innings, allowed five hits, no runs, walked only three and struck out 12. He has an excellent chance of making a pitching staff replete with doubtful arms after operations.

McDowell pitched for the New York Yankees the past two seasons, after two years in San Francisco with the Giants. He was 1-6 with a 4.69 ERA in the American League in 1974, and was released after reportedly squabbling with manager Bill Virdon.

No Hard Feelings
"There were no hard feelings," McDowell insists about his departure from the Yankees.

"Those who say there was are no further away from the truth than the man from the moon," McDowell proclaims, overlooking the fact that man is a lot closer to the moon these days.

"If there were (hard feelings) Bill Virdon and I didn't know about it."

McDowell, however, admits that he had a drinking problem. He claims that he's licked it.

"I felt I had a drinking problem, so I said to myself, 'Okay Sam, do something about it.' And I did."

He also quite candidly tells about visiting a psychiatrist to try and restore his confidence.

"I felt this lack of confidence, and I think you're much more of a man to admit when you have a weakness. I tried to turn the thing around. Confidence is the worst thing to lose. If you don't believe in yourself, you're done."

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — They once were enemies—and sometimes still are—but they hope to help each other win the first NCAA basketball championship for the University of Kentucky since 1956.

Mason Vs. Dixon
Four years ago, Mike Flynn and Jimmy Dan Conner lived across the Mason-Dixon line from each other. Flynn was declared "Mr. Basketball" for Indiana; Conner was named "Mr. Basketball" for Kentucky.

Starting Guards
Now, they are the starting guards for the Kentucky team that meets Syracuse Saturday and are so close they almost read each others' minds.

Defeat Indiana
Conner had 17 points and five rebounds, only two fewer than Kentucky's leader, 6-foot-9 Bob Guyette.

Then he was ushered out and brought in again when the cameras were on—perhaps so the audience would think it was real. He went through the same routine he had just rehearsed.

Pro Team Expansion Quickly Going Bust

NEW YORK (AP) — People used to say the sports expansion boom would end when it ran out of cities. But a funny thing is happening on the way to Europe, the Orient and Smallyville, USA: The boom is going bust.

For the most part, the incredible days of pro sports expansion appear over. Some teams may even disappear in the near future, victims of the deteriorating economy, dilution and overexposure.

In the days before Wall St. replaced Flatbush Ave. as the capital of the sports world, there were fewer leagues, fewer teams and fewer problems. Ownership and profit margins were as constant as the New York Yankees winning the World Series.

Times Have Changed
But times have changed. The Yankees haven't won a World Series since 1962 and teams that were just starting or didn't exist then now own "world" titles. The Mets won the World Series in 1969, Milwaukee won the National Basketball Association title in 1971 and Philadelphia of the National Hockey League won a Stanley Cup in 1974.

Leagues that didn't exist in 1962—the American Basketball Association, World Hockey Association and World Football League to name only a few—have been crowning champions and losing money.

Since 1961 pro football has increased from 14 to 38 teams, hockey from 6 to 32, basketball from 9 to 23 and baseball from 16 to 24. And team sports have sprung up in tennis, soccer, track, lacrosse, boxing and volleyball, reflecting the interest in making a fast buck.

But what is becoming undeniably clear is that there is only so much gold in them thar hills. And the inflationary rush of new teams and leagues combined with a recession has left some of these teams and leagues steeped in debt.

Teams have folded in the ABA, the WHA, and in World Team Tennis. One league, the WFL, almost folded after losing $20 million in its first season. World Team Boxing, which said it would have 48 teams, began with four and has not been heard from since its first week when it suspended three of its four teams for non-payment of bills.

Consolidation Possible
Consolidation may also be the case in the ABA, another league that has been bathing in red ink since its inception. League president John Y. Brown advocates trimming the fat from the 10-team league by axing its weak sisters, Memphis and San Diego.

"We're in the entertainment business," Brown says. "And people just won't pay to see inferior products. Money is tight and you can't expect people to pay and see us beat Memphis by 50 points."

In the boom of the '60s the key word was expansion. But with the threatened bust of the '70s the password may be contraction as teams and leagues grapple for a profitable share of a very competitive—and shrinking—sports dollar.

"I think you will see teams disappearing in the near future," says baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn. "There has been too great overexpansion of sports."

Kuhn believes baseball is less affected by economic downturns because its tickets are cheaper than other major sports. He says "there could be expansion in the future, but the general economic picture has prompted our people to take a more careful look."

Padres Make Profit
Baseball hasn't expanded since adding four teams in 1969. The National Hockey League may add two more teams in the next two years, but there is a good chance those teams may simply be transferred from other cities. The NBA has postponed a planned expansion into Canada in 1975. There is talk of contraction in the World Hockey Association.

One of the 1969 expansion teams in baseball, the San Diego Padres, made its first operating profit last year, only to find its climbing days weren't over.

The Padres paid $10 million just to join the National League. But that fee didn't include the cost of buying player contracts from other teams, the development of a scouting organization from scratch, leasing a stadium and building spring training facilities.

"It cost us at least another million in start-up costs that first year," says Peter Bavasi, vice president and general manager of the Padres. "The second year was better because we didn't have to buy the typewriters and office furniture again."

"By then we were operating on a budget similar to the established clubs, except we were (Continued on 4B)

NBA Sets New Format For 1975 College Draft One Week After Playoffs

CHICAGO (AP) — The National Basketball Association Board of Governors has a new schedule format for the 1975-76 season, and will hold their 1975 college draft within a week after the playoffs this season.

The league will again have an 82-game schedule, but changes will be made within the various divisions.

Teams in four-club divisions will play the other three teams seven times. They will play other teams in the same conference five times and the other nine teams in the league four times.

Teams in five-club divisions will play other teams in their divisions seven times or six times and the rest of the league five times.

Regarding the so-called

"Oscar Robertson players' suit" against the league, the owners were given a progress report on litigation.

The issue ultimately will go to trial and deal with the college draft, the option clause and compensation to teams losing athletes who have played out their options.

No action was taken on the Buffalo Braves' complaint of tampering in the case of Eddie Donovan, who resigned as Braves' general manager last week. His contract expires April 1.

Donovan reportedly will take over as general manager of the New York Knicks.

NBA Commissioner Walter Kennedy said the Donovan matter will be discussed at a hearing April 3.

Pirates Loaded NL East Favorites Sport Heavy Bats

BRADENTON, Fla. (AP) — Only 10 current Pittsburgh Pirates played in the 1971 World Series, but the dominant characteristic of the team is the same—hitting.

Dwight Gooden was President the last time a Pirate pitcher won 20 games, and the Steelers have the town's only super defense.

Last season the Pirates had more hits, 1,560, and a better team batting average, .274, than anybody in major league baseball.

Their run production, 761, ranked third behind Los Angeles and Cincinnati, but Pirate management moved to erase that gap this season by shortening the fences at Three Rivers Stadium. The distances have been cut from 340 feet to 335 down the lines, from 365 to 375 in the alleys and from 410 to 400 in dead center.

The old dimensions were a carryover from Forbes Field, where guys named Clemente and Virdon played with Gold Gloves in the spacious outfield and the Pirates sprayed base hits.

Now the Pirates have meat and muscle and not much speed. However, you can waddle around the basepaths if you hit it far enough.

"From top to bottom there is no team in baseball that has more power than the Pirates," Manager Danny Murtaugh says flatly. "The hitters the stouter fences should help most are the ones with good opposite field power: men like Al Oliver, Richie Zisk and Willie Stargell."

Beyond their bats, the Pirates have a steady but unspectacular pitching staff that put a strain on the organization's major medical coverage in the off-season.

Murtaugh sticks religiously to a five-man starting rotation, one reason why Pittsburgh hasn't had a pitcher win 20 games since Vernon Law did it in 1960.

Last season, Pittsburgh recovered from a dismal start to play .671 ball over the final half of the season and win its fourth National League East title in five years. However, the winningest pitcher on the Pirate staff, lefty Jerry Reuss, finished with a 16-11 record, followed by Jim Rooker at 15-11.

Two pitchers with the potential to win big are Ken Brett and Dock Ellis, both coming off up-and-down seasons.

Brett was the club's leading pitcher the first four months of last season, and he had 12 victories going into the All-Star game. Yet he missed more than a month down the stretch with an ailing elbow that required offseason surgery.

Ellis got off to a dismal 3-8 start with a 4.54 ERA. Then he won nine of his next 10 games with a 1.89 ERA before a line drive broke his pitching hand late in the season.

Ellis, the National League starter in the 1971 All-Star game, has been the sensation of the spring training for the Pirates and figures to start the opener in Chicago against the Cubs. Veteran lefty Sam McDowell, cut by the Yankees last winter after quitting the club late last season, is also making a serious bid to win a spot on the roster.

Another new face, rookie Craig Reynolds, might edge second-year men Mario Mendoza and Frank Taveras for the starting job at shortstop.

Reynolds, a Houston native, was the Pirates' top pick in the 1971 free agent draft, and his bat fits the Pittsburgh mold. He hit .336 in 36 Class AAA games last season.

Houston Opening Spring Drills

HOUSTON (AP) — The University of Houston began spring football practice Monday with 60 roster players and 11 walk-ons turning out under sunny skies.

Head Coach Bill Yeoman will be trying to fill three holes on offense and six on defense caused by graduation from an 8-3-1 team last year.

Bubba McGallion arrived the first day as the No. 1 quarterback. McGallion took over in the fifth game last year and started the rest.

Junior Mark Mohr, the strong safety last year, was moved to left cornerback—vacated by the graduating Todd Williamson—in the lone major first day position change.

Right defensive tackle Lee Canallito missed the practice because of knee trouble but Yeoman said he expects the 265-pound junior to go at full speed this spring.

TALL CITY SWEEP — Lee and Midland High produced a 1-2-3-4 sweep in the 440 dash at the West Texas Relays this year. Tim Parker, left, won the event with a 50.8 while Otis Butler was third and Earl Evans second. Midland High's David Harmon, right, was fourth. # Western Texas Reaping Spoils

Boxing

"The time has come to quit." With that comment, Jerry Quarry quietly announced his retirement from boxing. Quarry, once considered a "Great White Hope" in the heavyweight division, made the decision after losing to Ken Norton Monday night.

Muhammad Ali, who defeated Chuck Wepner in a disgraceful exhibition Monday, doesn't know when he will fight again but has said, "It will be a big one this time."

Basketball

The FBI announced Monday that Jacksonville University was not guilty of manipulating basketball scores during the 1973-74 season. The FBI simply said that the investigation is closed.

Western Texas College of Snyder is receiving the spoils of victory after winning the National Junior College basketball championship. Bob Miller, a 6-6 guard, and 6-7 forward Eugene Harris have each received over 50 offers from major colleges, including USC, North Carolina State, California, LSU, Ole Miss and all of the SWC members.

Baseball

Bob Boone, who was almost traded by Philadelphia this winter, is listed as the Philadelphia top catcher, but there is still some controversy over the situation. For one, pitcher Steve Carlton has made it plain that he doesn't like pitching with Boone behind the plate. "The pitcher has the ball," Boone said. "He (Carlton) doesn't have to throw what the catcher calls for."

Detroit Tiger hurler Joe Coleman doesn't have to worry about fighting for a job in spring training despite slumping to a lackluster 14-12 mark last year. One Detroit writer said, "Coleman is the best they've got, and beggars can't be choosers."

Hockey

The World Hockey Association is working on two franchise shifts for next season which could put teams in Calgary and Miami. It's believed that the Baltimore Blades would be relocated to Calgary, and the Chicago Cougars to Miami.

The Minnesota Fighting Saints of the World Hockey Assn. lost $1.26 million during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1974, according to the club's annual report.

Football

Offensive linemen Ed Foster, a 6-3, 275-pounder from the University of Oklahoma, has signed with the Saskatchewan Roughriders of the Canadian Football League.

John E. Beake, former offensive backfield coach of the Kansas City Chiefs of the NFL, has been named offensive coordinator at Colorado State University.

Thompson Earns Top College Cage Player

NEW YORK (AP) — David Thompson of North Carolina State was named The Associated Press college basketball Player of the Year today for the second straight season.

The 6-foot-4 forward with incredible jumping ability won in a landslide, collecting 188 votes from the nation's sports writers and broadcasters to outdistance Notre Dame's Adrian Dantley, who had 51.

In winning the award, Thompson becomes the second player to win it back-to-back in the past four years. UCLA's Bill Walton was The AP's Player of the Year in 1972 and 1973.

Senior forward David Meyers of UCLA finished third with 21 votes. Kevin Grevey, Kentucky's standout forward, was the only other player with more than four votes. He had 10.

Thompson, called by scouts "the most devastating player in the college game today," was one of the nation's highest scorers—but his contribution soared beyond his 29.9

average. He was a darling of the fans—and a pest to his opponents—with a patented "Alley Oop" shot, leaping high above the basket rim to take a lob pass for an easy two points.

His ability to spring for rebounds is a record at North Carolina State—an amazing 49-inch vertical leap from a standing position.

One play this season typified his talents. Thompson went up for a rebound and came down with the ball after being hit behind the legs by an opponent.

On his back, Thompson fired a perfect outlet pass to a teammate, charging down the court on a fast break. Thompson got up and followed the play. When his teammate missed the shot, Thompson charged in, took the rebound and scored.

The 11th son of a poor North Carolina family, Thompson turned down a reported $2 million to join the pros last year after his junior year. He's sure to be either the first or second pick in this year's draft.

Thompson became the leading all-time scorer in the Atlantic Coast Conference. He wound up with a career total 2,509 points, eclipsing Buzz Wilkinson's longtime record at Virginia. At the end of this season, North Carolina State retired Thompson's uniform, the first time that's been done in the history of the school.

John Lucas of Maryland and Indiana's Scott May finished tied for fifth in the voting with four votes apiece and Utah's Ticky Burden and Indiana's Quinn Buckner were right behind with three each.

Expansion Going Bust---

(Continued From 4B) burdened by interest payments and the declining balance on the $10 million entrance fee. You can make an operating profit on a yearly basis, but what about that $10 million plus interest?

"You can become an established club on the field when you pencil in a competent lineup. But from an economic standpoint, you don't become an established club until you've paid back all the obligations, all the burdens of getting into the league."

Bavasi sees future expansion teams having an even harder time.

"The floating prime interest rate is much higher than it was seven years ago," Bavasi says. "And you've got to couple that with skyrocketing costs in all areas. The franchise fee might be higher and the price of laundering a towel, cleaning a uniform and the daily meal allowance—to name just a few—will certainly be higher."

Bavasi also pointed out that a recent federal court decision in Atlanta, which may limit the depreciation allowance owners can deduct for players' salaries and means less tax write-offs for the owners, could cause potential franchise buyers to have second thoughts.

Added to all that are skyrocketing salaries and a decline in fan interest. A recent Louis

Bullpups Nip Abilene, 7-6

Coach Stan Moore's Midland Bullpup junior varsity scored three runs in the bottom of the seventh inning Tuesday to pull out a 7-6 victory over the Abilene JV at Simon Field.

Bruce Knowlton, up from the sophomore team, tripled with the bases loaded to bring the Bullpups from a 6-4 deficit.

Kevin Pearce had two hits in three trips while Phillip Ward went three-for-three. John Magness was the winning pitcher.

The Pups are 4-4 on the season following the big victory.

On Monday, Moore's sophomore unit took a 10-0 win

Harris survey showed that fan interest in football dropped two percentage points since 1973, baseball lost four, basketball slipped two and hockey dropped six points. Of the 12 sports listed, only tennis and horse racing showed an increase in fan interest.

over the Monarchs JV to keep their record 6-6. Larry Murphy threw a one-hitter for the sophomores while retiring the first 13 he faced. Pearce went three-for-three.

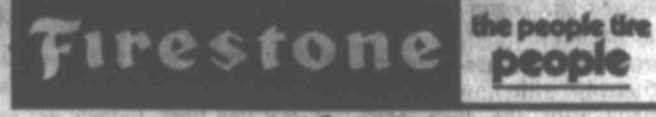

The sophomores face the Big Spring JV in Big Spring today.

Harris Leads All-Americans

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lusia Harris, a 6-foot-3 sophomore who averaged 24.4 points and 14.5 rebounds a game in leading Delta State to the Association of Intercollegiate Athletics for Women basketball championship, was one of 10 players named Monday to a women's All-American team.

Water For Texas

Gov. Dolph Briscoe has been interested and busily engaged in water development, particularly in bringing water to Texas from other states, for two years or more.

It went on to say that studies indicated that this action alone will not be sufficient to meet the state's future needs and that the importation of water from outside the state will be necessary.

It would appear that a resolution offered in the legislature by Rep. James Nugent of Kerrville requesting the governor to talk with other states on bringing water to Texas, might be a bit outdated.

Briscoe is familiar with the state's water needs and he already has been in touch with other states in this regard.

It is not out of line, however, to let the governor know of the interest of the legislature in the matter, with the intention possibly of supporting his efforts in this regard.

Nugent's resolution asks that Briscoe keep the legislature informed of the talks and advised of any legislative action required to implement an importation program deemed essential to the long-range interests of Texas.

Nugent's bill, HCR 98, which was referred to the Natural Resources Committee, say that Texas is working to insure that "all its surface and ground water resources are developed to the fullest extent and on the most environmentally sound basis."

This is a matter in which all Texans should be vitally interested, and it is felt that the governor will announce developments at the proper times and occasions.

tions can be negotiated. For instance, the Soviets showed their willingness to move into Egypt during the 1973 Mideast war.

Many Americans mistakenly believe national defense claims a far greater percentage of this nation's tax dollars.

hostility, we will become more anxious about our own security. I doubt that America's future will be so unsettling.

This is unacceptable reasoning. It is not based on fact. Of course mistakes were made. But viewed within the long sweep of history, there has never been an era of such limited conflict, trade expansion, economic betterment and improved civil liberties.

The Soviets understand the role of power in international affairs. In their view, it was a shift in the balance of power in their favor which forced us into the policy called "détente."

Inflation has made its impact on defense no less than on the household budget. In each of the past several years, the funds budgeted for defense were not sufficient to cope with steeply rising prices.

The critical national security issue before the 94th Congress is the relevance of armed forces in an uncertain and turbulent world.

We now are entering a period of potential instability. We seem to have few steadfast friends and few steadfast enemies. Nuclear proliferation is a distinct possibility.

In contrast, U.S. forces have been coming down. During the past seven years, the size of our defense forces has shrunk dramatically, despite rising costs.

This reduction process has been so gradual that the shrinkage of our forces has not captured the attention of the American people.

What was at stake in publishing, then, was not national security but international etiquette, not American secrets but Soviet face, not the sabotage of a second Glomar mission but the ruffling of Russian tail feathers if we should go ahead with it.

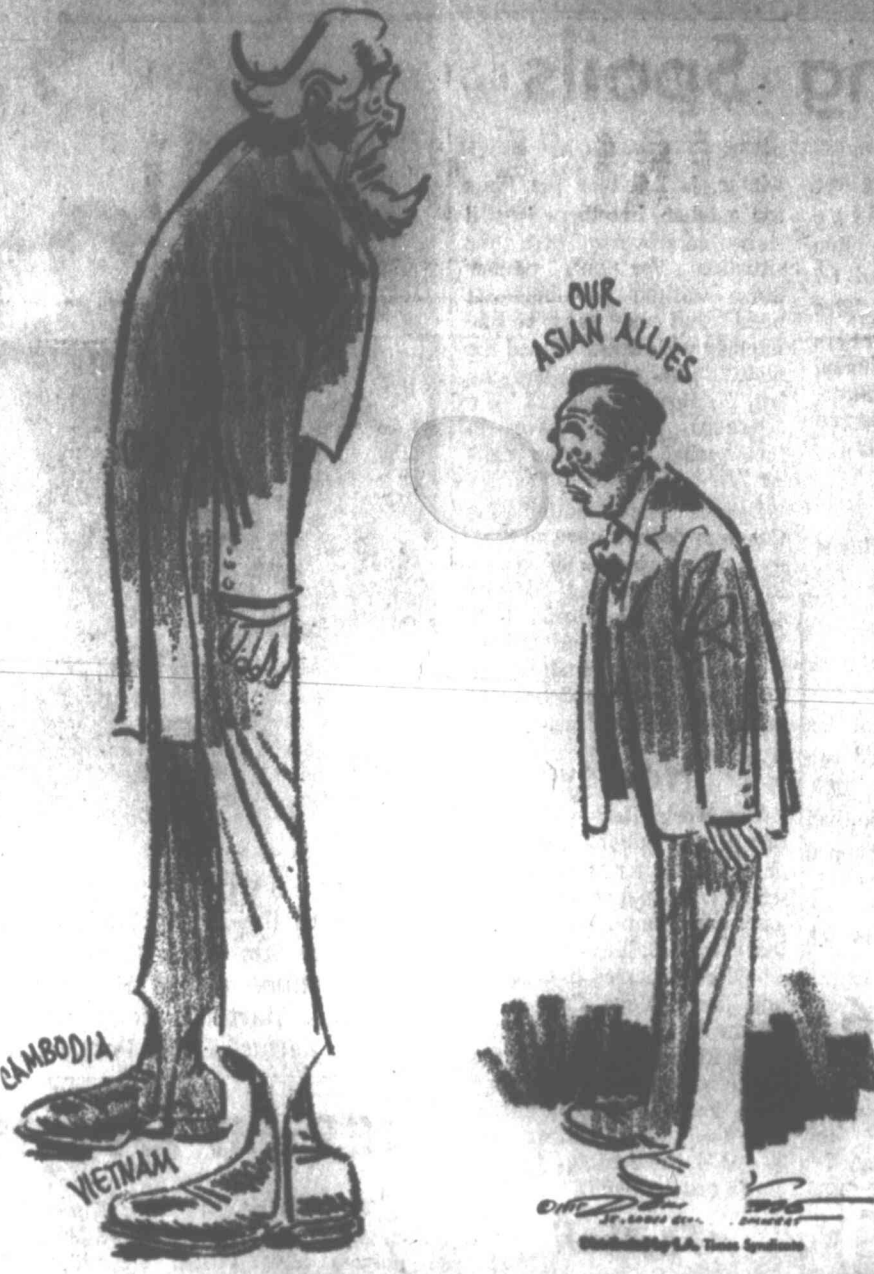

These international problems should not and cannot be readily resolved by the use of force. But while we do not seek to use force, neither do we want force used against our interests.

In 1968, 44 per cent of the federal budget was devoted to defense; today the figure has plummeted to 27 per cent.

Why should this disturb us? The United States cannot walk away from the rest of the world. Internationally, we are involved in trade and in the pursuit of monetary stability.

'I Won't Back Out On My Commitment'

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By JACK ANDERSON with Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — There have been signs of late that the press — battle-scarred from its jousts with two Presidents and shaken by the enormity of its victory over them — has begun to wear a hair shirt.

The old blather about "responsibility" to keep secrets instead of exploding abuses has begun to creep back into press parlance.

The old pre-Watergate, pre-Vietnam ideals of partnership with government, of cozy intimacy with the high and mighty, of a camaraderie of secrets shared by this peerage but kept from the public, begins to appeal once more to a press concerned that its abrasive successes have earned it a bad name and a hostile reception.

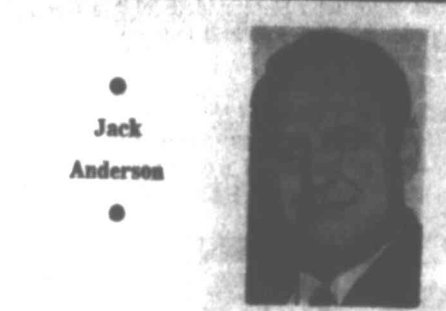

At such times, we reporters need a reminder that we exist not to lie down with the lions but to fend them off, to cause the turmoil by which the free system cleanses and energizes itself.

The story of the Central Intelligence Agency-Howard Hughes Glomar Explorer is just such a reminder. Some of the nation's top news organizations knew about the abortive attempt to salvage an 18-year-old Soviet sub that sank to the bottom of the Pacific.

They chose, for reasons weighty and altruistic, not to reveal it. We made the opposite choice. Certainly, there are legitimate secrets which ought not to be revealed. Sometimes, the right of the public to know and the press to print should be subordinated voluntarily to the interests of national security or the safety of endangered individuals.

In the past, we have been amenable to such appeals from CIA Director William Colby and his predecessors. Last May, we received a letter from Colby which declared:

"Please let me express my appreciation and that of the Agency for your recent cooperation on the wording of one of your stories so as to protect significant and still continuing intelligence sources."

But this time, Colby's arguments for secrecy were not compelling. It was hardly conceivable that the Glomar expedition was still a secret from Soviet intelligence.

Thousands of people in our government and industry had played some part in it over a seven-year span; some of them were leaking it out; newsmen were around asking questions; a ring of thieves and blackmailers had broken into the Hughes offices in Hollywood and had stolen documents describing the Glomar operation; and on Feb. 8, 1975, the Los Angeles Times had published key ingredients of the story.

So the Russians knew. We knew they knew. They knew we knew they knew. But, as Colby told us, it would be "rubbing their noses in it" to let the American people know.

What was at stake in publishing, then, was not national security but international etiquette, not American secrets but Soviet face, not the sabotage of a second Glomar mission but the ruffling of Russian tail feathers if we should go ahead with it.

These are considerations not to be mocked, but we hold them to be insufficient reason for renewing the dread precedent of cutting off the news — the windpipe of the American system.

All right. If there is no compelling reason to suppress, is there a public need to know a story that might inconvenience the conduct of our

INSIDE REPORT

Hartmann's Highways To Ford Wide Open

By HOWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Although some politicians have written him off as a White House power, presidential counselor Robert Hartmann retains enough influence to override President Ford's other senior aides on a step of dubious political and economic wisdom: expanded highway construction to fight the recession.

Hartmann was Mr. Ford's top aide during his nine years as House minority leader, but he has not fitted easily into the more formal, tightly organized world of the Ford White House.

But the President's decision to release $2 billion in impounded highway funds, announced Feb. 12 at Topeka, Kan., reveals that disorganized Bob Hartmann still can be tuned closer than super-organized Don Rumsfeld to Mr. Ford's own political mentality.

For weeks prior to Topeka, the President was under intense pressure from "the highwaymen" — builders, construction unions, auto men and, especially, state governors — to release the road money. That coalition, having given highway-building top priority among all public works for the past generation, remains potent. But "the highwaymen" were running into trouble inside the White House. Their opponents included such top brass as Rumsfeld, Treasury Secretary William Simon and chief economic adviser Alan Greenspan, an opposition that would ordinarily doom any proposal, particularly when buttressed by impressive political and economic arguments.

Politically, it was argued, spending another $2 billion hardly eased Mr. Ford's herculean task of controlling outlays voted by the overwhelmingly Democratic Congress.

Economically, it was argued, the trouble with all public works spending to combat recession, highways included, is the time lag of spending the money. Of the $2 billion released by Mr. Ford, only $50 million will be spent by June 30. Another $1 billion will be spent in the next fiscal year, with the remaining $850 million spent after June 30, 1976, presumably long after the economic upturn when inflation is likely to be the major economic issue.

Finally, there is wide consensus inside the administration that, given the need to conserve energy and the deplorable inattention to mass transit, highway building should now have much lower priority. Using road construction as a primary anti-recession weapon contradicts that consensus.

But Mr. Ford, himself a "highwayman" during 25 years in Congress, was susceptible to arguments of the governors — and Counselor Hartmann.

Hartmann, who deplores government-by-memorandum, wrote no tightly reasoned argument for highway spending. Nor did he have much to say in meetings, which did not amount to much (with anti-spender Simon absent because of congressional hearings). Rather, Hartmann's influence on the President was exerted privately and personally.

"I got the idea the President's mind was made up before the meetings began," one official told us. If so, a far-from-dead Bob Hartmann was largely responsible.

The Samoan Question

The left-right split in the Republican party has reduced its thimbleful of governors to haggling over this esoteric question: can the appointed governor of American Samoa vote in the caucus of Republican governors? Or is he a civil servant barred from such political activity by the Hatch Act?

The answer could decide the surprisingly intense struggle over the next chairman of the National Governors' Conference, rotating to the Republicans this year. The 13 elected Republican governors are split between two highly regarded figures in the party, the conservatives backing Gov. James Holshouser of North Carolina and the liberals supporting Gov. Robert Ray of Iowa.

That's where the Samoan question intrudes. Earl Ruth, a conservative defeated for reelection to Congress from North Carolina last year, was recently appointed governor of American Samoa as part of President Ford's hiring program for unemployed Republican politicians. Naturally, he supports fellow Carolinian Holshouser.

But Ray's allies say the Hatch Act prohibits Ruth from voting in the caucus of Republican governors when it decides between Holshouser and Ray during the National Governors' Conference at New Orleans in June. Administration officials contend the Hatch Act is mute on the point.

Hatch Act or not, liberal governors tried to vote Ruth out of the Republican caucus during the recent midwinter governors' conference in Washington. With several conservatives absent, there were enough votes to eliminate Ruth, but Holshouser quietly left the meeting, preventing a vote for lack of a quorum.

Glamors, Blue Chippers Lead Broad Mart Advance

NEW YORK (AP) — Glamors and blue chippers paced a broad stock market rally today, spurred by optimism that President Ford and Congress might agree on a tax cut bill before the Easter break.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrial surges 12.83 to 767.02. Of the blue chip issues listed in the Dow average, DuPont climbed 2% and Eastman Kodak 2, while Exxon, Sears, International Paper, Union Carbide and U.S. Steel were pointed gainers.

Issues rising in price outnumbered losers by a four to one margin on the New York Stock Exchange.

Analysts said Wall Street was encouraged by signs that Congress and President Ford were coming closer to a compromise on a tax cut measure now being hashed out by a Senate-House conference committee.

The hope was that the anti-inflationary bill will clear Congress and be signed into law before the Easter break.

MGF Reports '74 Records

MGF Oil Corp. reported greater revenues and net income for 1974 than for any other year in the company's history.

Total revenues rose 61 percent from $3,795,016 in 1973 to $6,102,894 in 1974. Net income was $714,494 (37 cents a share) in 1974 compared to a loss of $365,556 (19 cents a share) in 1973.

The company had 1,954,848 shares outstanding at the end of both years.

The increases came mainly from a 68 percent increase in oil and gas sales and a 100 percent increase in contract drilling revenues in 1974 compared to 1973.

Recovery was through shut holes at 3,367-3,373 feet, after fracturing with 3,000 gallons of water and 1,000 pounds of sand. Originally drilled by Thomas D. Humphrey to 3,874 feet, in 1964, it has been cleaned out to 3,600 feet.

The project is 1 1/2 miles southeast of Ballinger and about 1/2 mile northwest of the Jennings opener in the Midstates multiphase field.

Court Rejects Claim To Oil

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Supreme Court today rejected an East Texan's claim that producers who drilled on his property defrauded him by not reporting they had struck oil.

Without writing its own opinion, the high court ruled it could find "no reversible error" in decisions by a Panola County district court and the Tyler Court of Civil Appeals.

W. Thomas Bolton sued Alton Coats and Olin Mathieson Chemical Corp., who held the working interest on his land, along with several others whom he claimed benefited.

Bolton said Coats and Olin Mathieson reported two gas producing strata but failed to tell him or the Texas Railroad Commission of an oil strike in the Burnett Sand of the Trevi Peak formation. The commission issued an order declaring the reservoir a gas field.

Bolton sued for the royalties he would have earned from oil production as well as for appointment of a receiver to properly exploit the alleged oil strike.

Two Scientists Working To Eliminate 'Goat Heads'

By ROBERT E. FORD
Associated Press Writer

A couple of scientists at a place with the improbable name of Bushland, Tex., are performing an obscure bit of service to humanity for which all young people should be grateful.

benefit toddlers and other youngsters up to the age when their parents catch them and put shoes on them. Old Fido, the family pet, also will be happy about it.

What Drs. Allen F. Wiese and Norris E. Daniels have done is to begin reducing if not eliminating goat heads.

Goat heads produce probably the most painful burrs known to man. The burrs are a quarter inch in size or a little larger with several spines each of which is as sharp as a needle and hard as steel.

They will go through the hardest human foot, while bicycle tires don't stand a chance with them. Your dog will come limping home on three feet and beg you to take a burr out.

Goat heads are known by several names. Some places they are known as sand burrs because they grow great in sandy land.

The scientists call them puncturevines when talking to less educated persons, although the true scientific name is Tribulus terrestris. It's been a long time since Miss Lucy Moore taught us Latin, but that seems to translate into tribulation of the land, which the goat head certainly is.

Daniels says that in Kansas they are known as Texas sand burrs. Outside of Kansas they are known as Kansas or New Mexico sand burrs.

The burrs are in sections, and when you break one off, it has the appearance of the head of a goat, horns and all, hence the name.

Weevil Likes It
Wiese and Daniels discovered that other scientists in India found that a weevil would eat the goat head and nothing else.

Some weevils were imported to Italy—the puncturevine grows worldwide although we doubt that the Russians would admit there are any there in what they like to think is the perfect society.

Eventually, the weevils reached the Bushland Texas Agricultural Experiment Station of Texas A&M University in 1962.

The weevils were freed in various parts of the Panhandle and South Plains. They already have spread as far south as Temple, Tex., west to Albuquerque, N.M., and throughout Central Oklahoma.

The weevil bores into the burr and lays its eggs, and eventually the eggs hatch and crawl out.

Ruining Romantic Fixture
This cycle generally destroys the germination ability of the burr, which is the seed of the vine. With luck, this might erase this pest from the earth.

Daniels says chemicals will kill the puncturevine "but it's not really worth fooling with."

This is another of the efforts to destroy bad insects without use of chemical insecticides.

They even are trying to ruin a romantic fixture of the West made more famous than it should have been because of the song about tumblin' tumbleweeds.

A tumbleweed, newcomers must be told, we suppose, is a weed which grows kneehigh or higher, the limbs curving up to make a total picture of a ball.

When these die in the fall, the first wind breaks them off at the root and sends them tumblin' across the countryside until they pile up by the hundreds and thousands along fences and against the barn.

Costly To Control
Romantic or not, the tumbleweed costs California millions each year to control and in crop losses. Besides, they harbor many pest insects which attack sugar beets, tomatoes and melons.

They have imported a moth from Pakistan and Turkey. It is Coleophora parthenica and it eats tumbleweeds for breakfast, lunch and dinner.

Even a virus is being enlisted in the attempt to stop use of insecticides.

The Southwest Research Institute at San Antonio, Tex., is working with a virus which is deadly to the cotton bollworm and the tobacco budworm.

The virus has its shortcomings. It is sensitive to sunlight and other environmental conditions and doesn't live long under field conditions. The scientists are trying to build up its health so it will stay around long enough to kill insects in the field.

IFH Help
Back to the goat heads—Daniels and Wiese say that the puncturevine seed weevil is not likely to completely wipe out the painful stickers but will help a lot.

For one thing, any survivors are spread by being carried by automobile, truck and tractor tires.

The research is not aimed particularly at protecting bare feet. The puncturevine also is bad for crops.

Just the same, says an extension service science writer, Robert L. Haney, "Thinning out goat heads in alleys and vacant lots might save one or two patch jobs a year on bicycles."

This obscure benefit alone, says Haney, might save Texas kids over $100,000 a year.

And he adds, "There's no way to put a dollar value on the saving on pain to the bare feet of children and pets."

HAPPY MOMENT — It's a happy moment for blind Jimmy Albert as he strokes the nose of a lion for the first time during a tour of Magic Mountain recently. Youngsters at the Blind Children's Center were treated to a touch-and-tell inspection of wild animals in an educational program sponsored by the amusement park 30 miles north of Los Angeles. # Recession On Cat's Feet For U.S. Rich

By LEE MITGANG
AP Business Writer

The nation's rich are feeling the recession, too. But for them, it's a recession on cat's feet: very quiet, but the claws are still there.

"I go to Europe at least three times a year, but I haven't gone this year and I may not next," says a tennis player waiting for a court at a Great Neck, N.Y., indoor tennis club.

"I hate to say it, but we've really curtailed our travel," says Mrs. Miles M. O'Brien Jr. of Grosse Pointe, Mich., a wealthy suburb of Detroit. "We had hoped to go to Aspen this year, but it just wasn't in the cards. We don't entertain as much, either."

But others with more blithe spirits still buy diamond-crusted Frisbees for $2,500 at Sidney Mobell's jewelry store on San Francisco's Nob Hill. In Winnetka, Ill., women still order $450 custom-made sports jackets for their husbands.

On New York's Fifth Avenue, Cartier's jewelry store president Fred Montezinos says, "People still pick up a $175,000 piece without batting an eye." Down the street at Abercrombie & Fitch, antique guns for $8,000 to $45,000 are selling as fast as the store can stock them.

The recession is producing contradictory alterations in wealthy Americans' spending habits and lifestyles. Where cutbacks occur, they have not been particularly drastic.

In Great Neck, Nob Hill, Grosse Pointe, Shaker Heights, Ohio, Philadelphia Main Line suburbs, Highland Park, Texas, and Winnetka — all among the richest communities in the nation — The Associated Press found wealthy Americans who:

—Are switching to chicken but still shop at gourmet food stores.

—Are camping on their vacations but drive to their campsites in new Mercedes Benzs.

—Take several weekend trips to Florida or Palm Springs on a moment's notice but still feel they can't afford a European trip.

The recession's impact on a wealthy family also seems to depend on what part of the country it lives in. Residents of Grosse Pointe, many of whom took their wealth from America's car craze, are cutting back more perceptibly than some other rich communities.

In wealthy Highland Park, an incorporated community surrounded by Dallas, the financial capital of the Southwest, resident Al Cooter, owner of several camera shops, asks with a smile, "Recession? What recession? Things are fine here."

But a walk down Middle Neck Road, Great Neck's main street, reveals signs of business problems: storefronts advertising sales in clothing, books and jewelry, all of which sold effortlessly in better times in the fashion-conscious Long Island community.

Many in Great Neck made fortunes in New York City's garment district and on Wall Street, and they're now feeling the slump in both fields.

There are signs, too, that more wives in wealthy households are looking for jobs in an effort to maintain a high living standard.

Truly puzzling behavior is to be found at Great Neck's dinner tables and on those of some other wealthy areas.

The owner of Kuch's Gourmet Food Shop says business is excellent and wealthy Great Neck patrons continue to buy luxury items like crabmeat and precooked snacks.

"They're paying $5 for a cheesecake, 55 cents for a box of crackers, $1.99 for a loaf of Russian black pumpernickel bread," says Barbara Ardell, a saleswoman at the Bryn Mawr Cheese Shop on the Philadelphia Main Line.

While the rich have kept their taste for culinary knickknacks, they seem ready to economize by serving more chicken and less prime rib.

"I can see the change in just the last six months," says a butcher at Great Neck's Jays Kosher Meat Store. "Freezer orders are way down. My wealthy clients used to buy sides of beef, but now they're just taking cuts."

"My wife, Linda, is being selective in her purchase of groceries," says Shaker Heights attorney Harry J. Lehman, who represents the area in Ohio's House of Representatives. "We have cut down on steak and we have quit going out to eat one night a week. That's a saving of $30 right there."

No real pattern emerges on how top-class restaurants are faring in the recession. A survey of about a dozen expensive restaurants in the nation taken by the trade group National Restaurant Association reported that the rich are still spending big away from home.

But the owner of New York's La Caravelle, Robert Meyzen, says, "Business is definitely off now, and any premium restaurant that says otherwise is probably not being frank." A meal for a party of five at La Caravelle can cost $500.

Likewise, Jerry Hurley of the National Club Association says the larger, more prestigious country clubs still are doing well. Interviews with club members suggest this is one pleasure few rich Americans are willing to sacrifice.

"What should I cut out? The golf club? I enjoy that," says Benjamin M. Gaston Jr., an insurance executive who lives on the Philadelphia Main Line.

"There has been no cutback on the number of meals served or the entertaining at our club. Last year we raised food prices 10 per cent. No one said anything," says the manager of a Winnetka country club who declined to be identified.

On Nob Hill and in Great Neck, Cadillac sales are about level with a year ago, but down about 60 per cent from the bumper 1973 model year.
